Officials Study Prospect Of Further Soviet Air Clashes

Washington, April 19—(AP)—The possibility of further Soviet-American air clashes along the uneasy front of the cold war in Europe is being carefully studied by top officials here. They are also deeply concerned, it was learned today, about the reasons why the Russians allegedly shot down a U. S. Naval plane in the Baltic Sea area April 8. They have demanded—but doubt they will get—Soviet assurances that no such thing will happen again.

State Department officials saw no prospect that the Russians would withdraw from their version of the incident and therefore expected that Moscow would reject both the American charges and the demands growing out of them. These demands were that Russia should make a "prompt and thorough investigation" of the affair and should order the Soviet Air Force "that there be no repetition, under whatever pretext, of incidents of this kind."

The American note also said this government expects that the Soviet government "will express its regret for the unlawful and provocative behavior of its aviators, will punish those responsible for the attack on the Navy plane and will pay appropriate indemnity for the unprovoked destruction of American lives and property."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
EVEN THE STORMS HELP
Do you complain about the weather? Many people do. Yet so-called bad weather, as well as good, performs a very real service to humanity.

There is plenty of good cheer about sunny weather, but many people find continual sunshine productive of irritation. The next time visibility is bad and the rain-drops splash against your window, just reflect on whether the general dreariness of the day does not have about it a certain calming effect on your nerves.

Greenville Traffic Continues Problem

The Reflector during the past several months has devoted a considerable amount of space in both its editorial and news columns to the deplorable traffic situation in Greenville.

Just this week-end there popped up again an instance in which the traffic on the city streets snarled the efforts of firemen to reach the scene of a fire. It is bad enough to have the traffic in Greenville moving in such a manner that tie-ups are frequent; but when the congestion hampers the efforts of the firemen who are attempting to carry out their duty, the situation is doubly distressing.

Would it not be a worthwhile project for the city fathers to spend a small portion of their valuable time to try to work out some method of coping with Greenville's traffic problem? Would it not be time well spent if the police department would see that officers are on hand at the proper time at the scene of a fire to see that traffic snarls would not develop to hinder the firemen?

We believe these two methods of helping to eradicate the traffic problem are reasonable to suggest to the city administration. But if the city officials don't believe our suggestions are feasible, we wish they would take some positive steps of their own. Maybe they have some ideas of how to alleviate the situation they have not yet tried.

Then, too, in addition to the city officials, the automobile drivers must cooperate with the fire and police departments if such incidents as occurred Sunday night are to be avoided.

Greenville's traffic situation, although it shows some improvement from time to time, still is a threat to every person who walks or rides along the streets of the city. We should do something about it, and not be long in doing it.

The Wide Gap Between Past And Present

John H. MacMillan, chairman of the board of Cargill, Inc., biggest grain dealers in the world, recently told some North Carolinians a number of things that didn't sound too good to people accustomed to bragging about their home state.

Briefly, MacMillan said our average corn production is far below what it should be, and that improvement cannot come without steps to replace washed-off topsoil and utilization of more scientific data in farming.

He gave an important warning that farmers should plan now for the eventual end of government farm programs. He (MacMillan) said farmers must look to the soil instead of the government for their income; and that makes hard sense.

The only true incentive for farming is sustenance, whether at the bare level of livelihood or on a plane that provides comforts and luxuries. Government is not the source of these attainments; it is only the crutch upon which growers now lean. In time this crutch must be discarded or our agricultural businessmen will remain permanently crippled.

Despite North Carolina's long history as an agricultural state, there is much room for bringing farm methods up to date. The great majority of growers are still far behind in the application of known advantages and advances in the field. And saying this is by no means an indictment nor criticism... but a clearly recognizable fact. The science of farming has passed many milestones since primitive man scratched his fields with a crooked stick.

From time to time the Reflector has sought to emphasize progress that is being made toward bettering farm conditions in Pitt county. There has been much work done; but that work has been aimed at putting into effect advances that were recognized decades ago.

We know that it would require a great and united effort to close the gap between current practices and the application of the latest farming developments. We know, too, that it would be costly and in many cases beyond the reach of the majority. All that can be reasonably hoped for, and urged is that every effort be made in this direction. Complacency and inertia can deteriorate a farm just as it will sap the life from any other business.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Kefauver investigators will discover that the nation's vast postwar criminal syndicates have found a novel and relatively safe field for investment of their racketeering millions in profits, if they follow up leads available in the files of the Securities & Exchange Commission, the Internal Revenue Bureau and other agencies.

Gangland's ingenious leaders are now hijacking certain interstate corporations and small industries in almost the same brutal manner that they prey on the liquor trucks and markets of bootlegging rivals in prohibition days.

By open threats or by mysterious stock deals, they are buying their way into bus, trolley and utility firms, hotels, taverns, laundries, beverage houses and other trade and entertainment lines.

Violence occurs when owners of local enterprises—taverns, night clubs, hotels, laundries etc.—refuse to cooperate. Many seemingly local crimes staged by individual hoodlums and handled as sporadic affairs by the police are, in reality, designed to frighten owners and operators into admitting the syndicate bosses as legitimate partners.

TRANSITION—Historical and economic factors lie behind the present-day transition of the underworld's big-time directors into semi-respectable business men and industrialists. It is not an accident.

When repeal shut off a rich source of revenue, many of them became legitimate liquor wholesalers and retailers. One of Washington's most prosperous distributors today used to supply Cabinet members, prominent politicians and the social set with illicit stuff during Volsteadism.

Liquor no longer offers swollen profits because of high taxes, severe competition and constant policing by local, state and federal police, as well as by the brewers and distillers themselves.

Wartime and postwar "easy money" provided them with other profitable ventures. They operated night clubs, after-hour places and gambling joints. They took up the numbers and book-making. But the public is not so free with its cash these days, and profits are falling. For these and other reasons they now seek a new status.

RETURN—The higher-up hoodlums want to become business men by hook or crook. Their motives are personal and economic.

Many have succeeded in establishing themselves and their families in staid communities, where their past is not too well known. They want to add to their aura of decency by fleeing the underworld of negotiable vice, where life itself is a cheap commodity.

Like men who have made their pile, they also seek a return on their "hot money," even though it may be smaller than their underworld gains. In a sense they mean to reform, although there is no spiritual urge behind their desire for a change of life.

HEAT—They have also seen handwriting on the wall that may prove fatal to their ancient system of crime.

Authorities in many of their principal centers of operations—New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Miami, Kansas City, Los Angeles, San Francisco—have turned on the heat because of public indignation. A surefire issue for politicians these days is "honest and clean government," as results in so many places have demonstrated.

But local drives alone would not have frightened the gangsters out of business. They do not even fear the FBI, whose operations are definitely limited. Few organized rackets have ever been broken up by J. Edgar Hoover's agents.

SLAYING—Their present fright and flight into less violent and dangerous fields is prompted by the belief that the Senate investigation will make their cruder forms of crime unhealthy and unprofitable, if it is not handicapped and straitjacketed for political reasons.

National gangsters most ominous day was when unknown assassins shot down two Kansas City underworld politicians in a Democratic clubhouse on Truman Road (once known as Prospect Street) under a large-sized campaign picture of President Harry S. Truman of Missouri.

That slaying, in view of its politico-economic ramifications, insured what may be the first comprehensive survey of crime in the United States on a national scale.

POWER—The Kefauver investigation will not uncover this new alliance between the underworld and corporations, however, unless the Senate and Administration give it extraordinary power. To wit: The secrecy now surrounding the files and operations of SEC, Internal Revenue, the Treasury and other agencies must be stripped away. Otherwise, laws and regulations designed to protect honest men will operate to shield crooks.

The investigators must have sufficient funds to employ an expert staff of accountants, stock market operators and plain, flatfooted detectives. It must also have plenty of time. The original amount allocated was only $50,000, and the terminating date was set at July 31 of this year. Those provisions are totally inadequate. In the opinion of men behind the inquiry Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan should be named to the committee by Vice-President Barkley. He is the only member comparable to the Senate's famed investigators—James A. Reed, Thomas A. Walsh, Burton K. Wheeler, Robert F. La Follette etc.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Every time a nationally-known figure comes to Greenville, I'm hot on his trail for an interview, and from all indications Friday, April 28, will be a red hot day for me. The Vice President of the United States, Alben Barkley, will be the speaker at the first annual Roosevelt Day dinner, to be held at Wright Auditorium. Not only will the Veep be here, but just about every prominent political figure you can name, including Senators Graham and Hoey, Governor Scott, and Congressman Bonner.

J. B. Spilman, Jr., president of the Pitt County Unit of the Young Democrats Club, has taken time off from reading political science books and fertilizer manuals (the works at Blount Fertilizer) to plan the dinner. In fact, these days he has no time whatsoever for pleasure reading.

"How do you go about getting a ticket to the dinner?" I asked J. B.

"They were made available to day," he said. "Bracing myself, I asked 'How much?' 'Five dollars a plate.' I was floored. 'Is that all?' When a man as, shall we say, conservative as I am takes five bucks lightly, you can rest assured that there's a bargain in view. Why is five dollars a reasonable amount? Among other things, one of the purposes of the rally is to raise funds for the Democratic party. The Greenville rally will be similar to the national rally in Washington and the state meeting in Raleigh. As you remember, in Washington plates were $100 each. In Raleigh, with the same speaker at the Greenville meeting, plates were $50. Consider yourself convinced that $5 a plate is very reasonable. Of course I must admit that filet mignon was served in Washington, but good old pig, barbequed right here in Greenville, is almost as good. Barkley's speech will naturally be the highlight of the rally, but the behind-the-scenes activity will be something to behold. Whenever politicians gather, there's bound to be button-holing and hobnobbing. The lobby at the Proctor will be like a three-ring circus to an onlooker. If he knows the politicians, he'll be able to spot at a glance the groups standing in the lobby that are pro-this or anti-that.

The Vice-President will be accompanied by his wife, who is probably the most publicized vice-president's wife in history, in view of her marriage to him while he was in office. And newsmen played up the fact that the Veep, at 70, married a considerably younger woman.

A week from Friday is the big day. If you see an eager beaver chasing around Very Important People, you know that it's me, and the VIP's have a chase on their hands. And I thank you.

JOBS—State jobs are right attractive now. Those who have them are pretty well satisfied and lots of other people would like to get on the state payroll. Dr. Henry Hilton, director of personnel, said the ratio of applications to job placements is running twenty to one. Applications average about twenty a day, he said, while only about one worker a day can be employed. This condition is in striking contrast to that prevailing a few years ago when the state experienced serious difficulty in manning essential jobs. Many people then were engaged in war work, and the pay scale of the state was considerably below the industrial wage level. Now state pay is attractive, being in some instances above the level for comparable work outside, and the war time jobs are no longer available. The turnover, low as it is, Hilton said, occurs mostly in the stenographic classifications. In the higher grade clerical classes and among subordinate officials there is almost no turnover. There is still scarcity of qualified school teachers in some areas, but for most part the classrooms are more adequately manned than for several years past.

POWER—The Neuse flows slowly through relatively flat country and is not adaptable to power dam projects like the Catawba, Roanoke and Yadkin rivers. It is more readily adaptable to location of steam power plants than some of the fast moving streams. Carolina Power & Light Company has in early stages of construction a 100,000 horse power steam plant at Goldsboro, and just this week announced purchase of an additional 100,000 generating unit for the plant. Steam power electricity and flood control are essential phases of the total problem, along with control plan patterned more along lines of a huge drainage district. Durham, Raleigh and Smithfield are presently confronted with acute sewage disposal problems. Goldsboro, Kinston and New Bern are vitally concerned about what goes into the upper reaches of the Neuse, because the river flows close by those cities and is a source of water supply as well as sewage disposal for several communities. Ross thinks immediate attention should be given to an overall plan for the future.

PLAN—He doesn't have a formulated plan, but does have some ideas to suggest to the board. Adoption of which might possibly save the individual municipalities a good deal of money. He thinks serious thought should be given the overall plans before Durham and Raleigh, already involved in lawsuits about sewage dumping, spend several million dollars for installations that might not fit into the general scheme later.

PARKS—Main reason for scheduling the spring G&D board meeting at Goldsboro was to show members the Cliffs on the Neuse state park and plan for further development. The board will visit the park Monday. Then on Tuesday the board will go en masse to the Buggs Island project on the Roanoke river. Primary objective of that visit will be to study possibilities of developing the area around the artificial lakes to be created by the dam for state park and recreational purposes.

ENTERTAINMENT—Speaking of recreation brings up the general subject of entertainment. It is noted that in addition to "Lost Colony" on Roanoke Island, "Unto These Hills," the Cherokee Indian pageant in the Great Smoky Mountains, the more localized dramas at Boone and Kenansville will be reproduced this year. "Echoes of the Blue Ridge" is scheduled at Boone for June 30-July 4, while the "Duplin Story" will be staged at Kenansville September 7-12.

BETTERIES—More than a hundred thousand dollars will be spent by state and federal governments this year to fight Japanese beetle infestation in North Carolina. Probably almost as much will be spent by individual farmers and orchardists. The general assembly allotted $25,000 for Japanese work, and estimates are that federal agencies will spend some three times as much.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

BEAR DOWN ON 'EM (Greensboro Daily News)

Anybody who believed that the State Board of Elections did not mean business when it sought to dismiss several allegedly unworthy county election board members several weeks ago must have repented of his or her unbelief in the light of what happened when the state board convened at Raleigh last week.

After weighing evidence gathered by the SBI since the original election flare-up, the state board requested the attorney general to turn over the evidence against a former county board member in Haywood to the solicitor of the district in which that county lies "for such investigation and action as he sees fit." What the solicitor will do about the matter is something else again, especially when one recalls what has happened to similar cases in years past. But state board at least has acted firmly and courageously.

In another instance eligibility of a Swain county elections board member has been questioned and an open hearing on charges of habitual and public drunkenness, carrying concealed weapons and buying votes is being arranged in Bryson City. Thus these charges too are to be aired and the public itself, which has the highest stake in decent elections and an adequately protected suffrage, let in on the full facts.

The Daily News' previous criticism of the state board was not for its evident desire to clean up unwelcome county election situations but for the peremptory and even illegal manner in which it went about this clean-up. It is now proceeding with due regard for the law and through constituted channels, and in this renewed move it has our support and our abiding commendation. Out of such zeal, determination, courage and regard for its sworn obligation to carry out the election laws, in letter and in spirit, may well come the clean, honest elections that we have not had in too many precincts in North Carolina. The mere fact that the state board has shown that it means business, that it is not to be deterred from its duty, can be counted upon to have a tremendous effect in and of itself.

Such as we believe in local autonomy, it has been established in several vital fields, including elections, that corrective action can be expected only on or from the state level. So Messrs. Election Board Members, keep beating down.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Labor's drive for pensions threatens to add to the difficulties older men have in obtaining employment.

This is not likely to involve the giant corporations which have agreed to pension systems. In most of the plans set up, pensions are tied to length of employment. Thus, there is no added liability in hiring an older worker because on retirement his pension payments would be less.

But many small business men are frightened about pension plans. They figure that after the unions have won pensions in big plants and stores, they will turn their attention to the little fellows.

And the small operators, as of today, don't know what demands will be made on them. In the absence of this information, they are showing signs of being cautious and the obvious caution is to hire men as far under the pension age as possible.

The problem of finding employment for older workers has long been with us. But the fact that the problem came before two state legislatures this year indicates that it is becoming graver. The Massachusetts legislature was asked to prohibit discrimination because of age, as well as race and religion, and the Rhode Island legislature was asked to investigate discrimination against workers over 40. Legislation is being prepared for the next session of the New York legislature and measures will probably come before other states' lawmakers.

Legal authorities say there are difficulties in enacting workable laws against age discrimination. It would be difficult to prove bias. And in some jobs, younger men are admittedly more efficient, so laws requiring employers to hire less efficient men might readily be found unconstitutional.

But there's one way in which legislatures could make hiring of older men popular. That's to grant unemployment and other tax rebates to concerns with higher average ages of employees. A company with employees averaging 40 years of age would pay less in taxes than a company with employees averaging 29.

Socialistic? Well, exactly the same system was used by the Thomas E. Dewey administration in Republican-controlled state of New York to combat employment turn-over last year. Employers with minimum severance and layoffs were given slices of a fat rebate melon.

SCHOOLING HELPS CREDIT COLLECTIONS How education can step up prompt payment of bills is being explained to the credit management division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association in Chicago today by Carroll D. Whisler, Cincinnati department store credit manager.

The Cincinnati Credit Bureau periodically invites in commercial school teachers, principals and college business students to hear explanations of its credit checking system and the importance of meeting obligations on time. Personnel directors of large industries are given the same information with suggestions how they can cooperate with employees in avoiding garnishees. This education, according to Mr. Whisler, pays dividends in prompter payments.

SO THAT'S WHAT FLYING DISKS ARE!

More publicity than he expected was garnered by a Hollywood automobile dealer who turned loose a large yellow balloon bearing a certificate for a year's free lubrication.

The agreement was found in an outlying area. But meanwhile scores of people had phoned police and newspapers that they had spotted a flying saucer.

SELLING FAULTS CHECKED BY RECORDING The "hidden mike" is now being used to teach better salesmanship.

A New York appliance chain sent its salesmen to a 10-weeks course in selling at City College of New York. Unknown to the students, microphones were at their sales posts. Then, with their permission, recordings were played back in class and instructors criticized the salesmanship displayed.

LOOKS LIKE FIRINGS ARE QUITE EXPENSIVE

There have been a lot of announcements about federal employees in National Defense, Rent Control and other government agencies being let out. But the Department of Commerce estimates show wage and salary receipts from government employment were at the annual rate of 21.8 billion dollars in February compared with 20.4 billion in February, 1949, and with 19.1 billion for the full year of 1948.

Hal Boyle's Column

New York—(AP)—Princess Elizabeth of Britain will have her second child this summer.

And naturally the parents in Buckingham Palace are wondering what to name the baby. That is always a problem.

They must be weary of naming their offspring George, Edward, or John—assuming it's to be a boy. And royal folk always operate on the assumption that the next child will be male.

I've got a free-for-nothing suggestion: Let's call the kid Wichita Windsor. That might bridge him between two worlds.

Because poor young "Wichita Windsor the First" is bound to be a kind of rich sad sack. He will stand third in line to the throne—following Mother Elizabeth herself and his brother, Bonny Prince Charles.

The best he can hope for in his native land is a weary dukedom and a life of boredom. This is because, by the ancient law of primogeniture, the oldest brother inherits the family's chief title and wealth.

Young Wichita Windsor—let us call him that—cannot, barring accident, become either king or prime minister of Great Britain. He is condemned to a life of being a secondary figurehead, a rubber stamp in lifelong reserve.

But just supposing that this second child of Elizabeth should turn out to be one of the great political geniuses of history. In the country of his birth he would have no avenue to exercise his astuteness except by creating a revolution and grabbing top control.

And violent revolution is no longer popular in England.

With a name like Wichita Windsor, however, he could emigrate to the United States and become a real power. Mind you, I'm not suggesting that he should.

But if he did what would be his opportunities? Well, in one way they would be less than those of a son of the most poverty-stricken Negro family in the poorest section of Mississippi—or Harlem.

That is, any native-born Negro or white American child can be president of the United States, and no son or disciple of a foreign king can. That is decreed in our constitution.

But that would be the only political limitation upon him. Young Wichita Windsor could become mayor of New York City, senator from California, or governor of Illinois.

wants to give the kid a square break will just call him something plain and simple like Wichita Windsor.

Or maybe even Marshall Jr.—if that seems a better plan.

Washington—National Home Demonstration Week is April 30 to May 6. Some 3,000,000 country women will show what they are doing to improve their homes and keep their families well.

In about 56,000 communities women will hold festivals, county-wide meetings, tours, demonstrations, exhibits and other activities. A part of the Department of Agriculture's Cooperative Extension Service, the home demonstration program began in 1913. It features good home management, nutrition, food production and preservation, use of equipment, home furnishings, family relations, clothing, consumer buying, community activity.

Home demonstration agents, who conduct the program with homemakers, are cooperatively employed by local county governments, state agricultural colleges and the Agriculture Department. "A part of the agent's job is to inspire and encourage the homemakers, as well as to give specific and technical help," Miss Mary Rokahr, in charge of the extension service's home economics specialists, explained. "Helping them are nearly 150,000 volunteer local leaders who have been given special training and pass on what they have learned to their neighbors. The week is especially set apart to pay tribute to these volunteer workers and to play up the results of their work during the year."

Miss Rokahr, who has been in home management work for 20 years, and has traveled through every state and territory to give experienced advice in the program, told me that homemakers are "broadening their horizons and developing a better understanding of national and international affairs" everywhere. "In addition," she told me, "rural women continue to work for better nutrition—1,204,000 families improved their food supply last year and more than 1,500,000 families received help in food canning, freezing, drying and storing."

"Also some 834,000 families were assisted with clothing construction problems, and 754,000 with selection of clothing and textiles, with the result that new fabrics are no longer a mystery to homemakers," Miss Rokahr points out that in 1948, 40 per cent more families got help in home sewing than in 1947, which she says is a reflection of the home sewing boom sweeping the country.

"Improved housing is a big part of the program," she added. Several hundred thousand homes were built, remodeled or improved in 1949. Nearly 320,000 families were assisted in rearranging or improving their kitchens, many thousands more in the selection of furnishings or equipment and in improving home grounds."

Back In Jail After Risky Brain Operation For Crime Tendency

New York, April 19—(AP)—A handsome former marine, who submitted to risky brain surgery last fall to cure him of criminal tendencies, was back in jail today—wanted by the law in four states.

He is 25-year-old Charles Hinkley, arrested as a fugitive from a Kansas Veterans Administration hospital where doctors had hoped he would regain normalcy.

Hinkley was picked up in South Deerfield, Mass., at the end of a trail of bad checks that began with his escape from the Winter General Hospital in Topeka, Kas., two weeks ago, authorities said. Topeka wants him back, and older charges are pending against him in New York City and Florida.

High School Votes Friday For Student Government

The annual elections of Student Government officers of Greenville High School will be held Friday, a spokesman for the organization stated today.

For the first time in many years two candidates are running without opposition. There is no opposition for the offices of secretary or treasurer.

The polls will open Friday morning from 8 o'clock to 1:30. The student body of the school will vote during their library periods, or at other re-arranged times.

In order that the entire student body could vote, the members of the Greenville High School band and Glee club who left for Greensboro this morning to take part in the State Music festival, voted today.

The line-up of candidates at present, is as follows: President—Rodney Fulcher and Lyman Ormond, a race which is expected to draw the hottest contest in the election; vice president—Ann McCrary and Glenn Scott; secretary—Lois Tucker, with no opposition; treasurer—Donald Tucker, also with no opposition; roving representatives—in which three candidates are running for the two offices, Ray Taylor, Dianna

Porter and Frank Brooks.

Each of the candidates with their campaign managers and fellow workers, are busy placing posters and banners in all parts of the high school in order to solicit votes for their candidates.

Miss Francis Lamb, Student Government advisor, commented on the elections this morning: "The Student Council believes in carrying the students to the polls and not the polls to the students."

The election is carried on as our national election. Each of the candidates were nominated by 25 students signing a petition in his name. The amount of expenditure which can be used is approved by the Election committee before the start of the elections preparations.

On Monday, campaign speeches are made, with election of the officers by Australian ballot taking place on the following Friday.

"Our High School is enthusiastic about the coming election which is highlighted by the numerous posters, clever campaign slogans and unusual election displays being used this year," the Student Government advisor said in closing.

They were Clifford Adams, Doris Edwards, Elizabeth Glasgow, Donald Smith, Catherine Hill, Albert Edwards, Ora Mae Rouse, Margaret Mason, Gene Hart, Houston Williams, Dorothy Cain, Avis Squires Patricia Williams. Numerous other persons from Greenville attended.

The theme of the Baptist student "spring retreat" was "Christians Committed to Leadership." Inspiring messages were delivered by Rev. Richard T. Howerton, First Baptist Church, Lincolnton; M. A. # CPL Campaign Gets Under Way Thursday; 140 Games

Robins Play Tarboro Here, With Game Time Set At 7:45; Kinston At New Bern, Wilson At Goldsboro, Roanoke Rapids At Rocky Mount

By BERT MOYE
Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Class D Coastal Plain League, which will open its campaign for 1950 tomorrow night, as all eight members of the loop swing into action in the first league tests on a quartet of diamonds.

A total of 140 games will be played on the schedule this year, with the season coming to a close on Labor Day, September 4. Also included in this year's schedule are two holiday games in which doubleheaders will be played, these being on May 30th and July 4th. All games in the league are to be played at night with 7:45 as the designated starting time, with the exception of Sunday games, which will be at 3:00 o'clock.

First day openings will find Tarboro at Greenville, Kinston at New Bern, Wilson at Goldsboro and Roanoke Rapids at Rocky Mount. Second openings will be Friday with the paired teams reversed.

Last year the Rocky Mount Leafs were Coastal Plain League champions as they finished in top position with a record of 79 wins and 60 losses for a percentage of .568. The Kinston Eagles finished in second place with 74 wins and 64 losses for a .536 percentage; the New Bern Bears finished in third place with 73 wins and 66 losses for a .525 percentage; and the Greenville club finished in fourth place with a record of 71 wins and 67 losses for a .514 percentage.

In the playoffs Greenville defeated Rocky Mount, four games to two; Kinston defeated New Bern, four games to two. In the finals Greenville defeated Kinston four games to two taking the league playoff series.

The league this year has changed its player classification to read two veterans, nine limited service men and five rookies. Last year the clubs were all "red" four veterans, eight limited service men and four rookies. This player classification had to be changed by the directors in order that several of the clubs could form working agreements with the big league clubs.

The list of managers for the coming season includes three holdovers from last season, these being Joe Antolick, who will pilot the Tarboro Athletics; Glen Lockamy, who piloted the Roanoke Rapids Jays and Red Benton who was at the helm of the Rocky Mount Leafs at the close of last season.

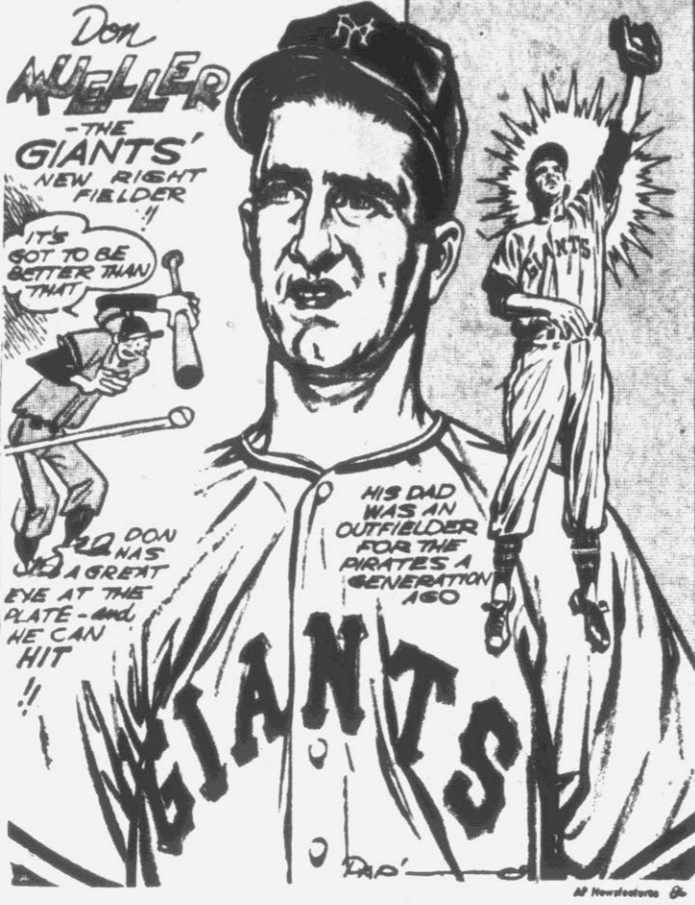

The list of pilots are: James Hefferson, Goldsboro; Randy Hefflin, Greenville; Walter Millies, Kinston; Harry Land, New Bern; Bill Herzing, Wilson; Red Benton, Rocky Mount; Len Lockamy, Roanoke Rapids; and Joe Antolick at Tarboro.

Underneath, most of them are pretty good guys, and it's too much for the likes of me to fathom how they take the terrific verbal beating they undergo every year. But they live, and baseball wouldn't be the same without them.

Opener
New York, April 19—(AP)—Major league baseball's 1950 opening day was a sad one for pitchers. Only four—Robin Roberts of Philadelphia, Warren Spahn of Boston, Ned Garver of the St. Louis Browns and Gerald Staley of the St. Louis Cardinals—finished what they started.

Sport Slants By Pap

Mueller Makes It . . . . . by Pap

Making his second bid to gain a berth with the New York Giants, Don Mueller appears to have made the grade with a brilliant spring training showing. Mueller was brought up by the Giants late in the 1948 season and remained with the club until late August when he was sent to Minneapolis, where playing regularly, he batted well over .300 and earned another chance.

Mueller's consistent hitting has earned him a place in the Giant line-up and it will have to keep him there. In the field, Don is a capable but not brilliant fielder. He isn't very fast and may experience some difficulty playing the right field wall in the Polo Grounds. But his hitting can make Manager Leo Durocher overlook some flaws on defense.

The son of a former major leaguer, Heinie Mueller, who played for Pittsburgh in the early '20s, Don is a natural hitter and one of the most difficult to fool on a pitch. He rarely strikes out. He can pull or punch a pitch, a talent that makes him fit perfectly into Durocher's favorite hit-and-run play. Don loves to poke a hit to left when the shortstop moves toward second with the runner breaking from first. A natural left field hitter, Mueller should give the Giants some added punch at the plate.

Bucs Drop Heavy-Scoring Contest To AC Bulldogs

By BILL LLOYD
Atlantic Christian's Bulldogs shelled three Pirate pitchers yesterday, to carry the treasured Bobunk Trophy back to Wilson for the first time this year, winning 13-9.

Coach Bob Reynolds' hitters greeted starter Vernon Jones with a barrage of four hits in the first inning, including a double by Centerfielder Hardison, to tally three runs in the first frame.

Next big inning for the visitors came in the third inning as they crossed the plate five times on five hits, a passed ball and two walks.

Atlantic Christian put the game on ice in the fifth inning, scoring two more runs on a single and walk, and a double by Shortstop Carlton.

Only big frame for the Pirates came in the fourth as they tallied five runs on four hits, two walks and a passed ball.

Big guns for the Bulldog blasters were Centerfielder Hardison, who had a triple, double and two singles in five trips to the plate, while Shortstop Carlton garnered two doubles and two singles in five trips. Carlton also knocked in four runs.

Leaders for the Pirates were Shortstop Jack Wallace and First Baseman Sonny Russell. Wallace slammed out a triple and two one-baggers in five trips, with Russell getting three singles in four trips.

Pitcher Jack Boykin went all the way for the Bulldogs, scattering the Pirate 12-hit attack.

President Joe Novak said three weekends still are fulfilled in the potential record-breaking summer slate. If they are filled, he said, 1950 will be the PGA's greatest money posted year—A prize aggregate of more than $50,000 anticipated for combined winter, spring and summer competition.

Pirates Host To WCTC Thursday For Twin Bill

Coach Jack Boone's Pirate nine will be striving to get back on the winning ways in conference play here tomorrow when they play hosts to the West Carolina Catamounts in a doubleheader.

The game will be played at the Pirates' baseball field, with the first game getting underway at 1:30 p.m. West Carolina is riding the top of the league with Elon at present with two wins against no losses. Both the Cats' wins came over Appalachian.

Expected to start one of the two games tomorrow will be Bob Cotter, ace lefthander for the Pirates, who pitched a terrific win over the Greenville Robins here last Saturday.

Coach Boone stated he would probably call on one of his freshman hurlers for the second game, which will either be Jim Hudson, Dick Hobbs, or George McCullen.

In their second doubleheader of the week, East Carolina will go against the cellar-dwelling Appalachian Mounts. Vernon Jones, who started against ACC yesterday, may get the starting nod in one of the games Friday, while another frosh twirler will be counted on for mound duties in the second game.

The Appalachian game will be the last home game for the Pirates until they meet the Norfolk Air Station here May 1. They traveled to Norfolk Saturday to play the Naval Amphibians.

Lefthander Fred Soles is the current hitting star for the Pirate swingers with a batting average of .465. V. Jones, who doubles up in the pastures when not pitching, is second with a .316 percentage.

Pinehurst Event Tightens Up As Play Progresses

Pinehurst, N.C., April 19—(AP)—The battle lines were drawn tighter as only 32 of the original 137 hopefuls remained for today's second and third round play in the 50th annual North and South Amateur Golf Tournament.

Today's 24 matches will leave only eight survivors for tomorrow's quarter-final play. The favorite acted their part in general yesterday, but there was the customary surprise as well as the usual near upsets.

Each of the two brackets had a "big three." The upper bracket was headed by defending champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio; Harry H. Haverstick, the medalist from Lancaster, Penn., and Pinehurst's Dick Chapman.

Bosox Staging Press Slowdown

Boston, April 19—(AP)—An unexplained Rod Sox player-imposed "slowdown" against baseball writers entering the clubhouse left the scribes with mingled emotions today.

Under the restriction, writers will be barred from the dressing room before a game and will not be allowed to enter until 30 minutes after a game.

Grifton Defeats Contentnea, 3-2

Grifton, April 19—The Bulldogs won their fourth game yesterday in anything but a flawless fashion. They beat Contentnea 3-2 in a game that saw some brilliant pitching coupled with loose fielding.

Contentnea's mound flash, Lang, provided the pitching thrills as he struck out 12 batters of the 18 facing him in the seven-inning tilt. He issued no free passes but gave up six timely hits that accounted for the locals' win.

Grifton did not have the finesse afield they have displayed in winning three games to date. They committed seven miscues but still managed to eke out a one-run lead at the end.

Reuben Ewell, pitching and hitting star for Coach Howard Stallings' Bulldogs, was the game's big slugger. He collected a triple and a double for four times at bat.

Phantoms Bow To Washington By 8-4 For Third Loop Defeat

Showing for the first time before the homefolks at Guy Smith Stadium yesterday afternoon, the Green Phantoms went down before a nine-hit Washington Pam Pack attack, backed up with five of their own errors, losing 8-4 for their third Northeastern loss of the campaign.

Having scored one run in the first and two in the second, the Pack went hitless and scoreless in the third but came back in the fourth to put the game away for all intents and purposes.

In the big fourth they capitalized on the Phantoms' miscues to shove over four runs on only two hits. Red Dixon, starting pitcher for the Pack, led off the inning the easiest way by getting in the way of the ball and taking first. He stole second and came home on Robertson's single. Hodges, next up for the Pack, got on an error by the catcher and scored when Cherry singled. Cherry came home during the next two infield outs, scoring on a fielder's choice. Woolard was out short to first for the third out but before the damage was done.

Greenville could muster but two runs in the second to go ahead the only time during the seven innings Dixon weakened and walked the first three men. Walter Perry and Billy Brady scored from second and third when Joyner singled. They scored single runs in the third and fifth but not enough to catch the Pack lead.

Vainright started the game for the Phants and was relieved in the fourth in favor of Joe Clark. Clark stayed in for the remainder and retired the batters in the fifth in order on strikeouts. Although he gave the Pack only one hit, he walked three men, allowing a run to score on a wild pitch. He struck out six during the two innings he pitched.

Dixon started for the Pack and was yanked in the third in favor of Robertson who came to the mound from centerfield. Robertson struck out the next two men to end the inning after Dixon had allowed one run across. Robertson retired the side in the fourth, gave up two hits and one run in the fifth and gave the Phants nothing to look at from then on in.

The summary: R H E
Washington . . . 120 401 0-8 9 0
Greenville . . . 021 010 0-4 7 5
Batteries: For Washington—Dixon, Robertson and O'Carroll; for Greenville: Vainright, Clark and Moore, Sawyer.

Rocky Mount Women Get Low Scores In Golf Meet

Rocky Mount women golfers again came through yesterday afternoon for low gross scores among 50 participating golfers in the Eastern Women's Golfing Association.

Playing on the Country Club course, Frances Stevens and Margaret Livengood, both from Rocky Mount, scored a 78 and 83 respectively to lead the pack in the second outing of the five-town organization. Their scores came on a handicap which is figured at two-thirds of the difference between the actual score and par 76 for women.

Sixty-odd women sat down to luncheon at the club prior to the afternoon's two rounds but only 50 entered the tournament which will continue for the next six weeks.

Mrs. Larry James of Greenville led the local women, coming in second to New Bern's Thelma Lewis in low net score. Mrs. James cared an 82 on a 12-point handicap. Her card was one over Mrs. Lewis' who shot 81 on a 16-point spot.

Low putting honors went to Wilson as Ruby Johnson was low with 28 for the 18 holes. Three others were tied for third and putted it off to determine the winner. They were Ruth Caddell of Rocky Mount, Mrs. Graham Flanagan of Greenville, and Justine Daughterridge of Rocky Mount, all with 29.

Honors for the most birdies went to Kitty Van Buskirk of New Bern with two for the afternoon.

Participating from Greenville were: Mrs. Fred Smye, Mrs. Larry James, Mrs. Tom Smoot, Mrs. Alice Long, Mrs. John Warner, Grace Smith, Mrs. Lillian Flanagan, Mrs. Carolyn Thomas and Mrs. Betty Bryan.

Boston Is Again Left At Post By Yankee Nine

By The Associated Press

Old Case, reigning miracle man of baseball, has done it again. The Yanks are off a-winging on the strength of a throbbing 15-10 opening day victory yesterday at Fenway Park.

They did it the hard way, overcoming an early 9-0 Boston lead and winning with nine runs in a shocking eighth-inning revolution. Just like 1949.

Air Force Puts New Jet Bomber At Top Priority

Washington, April 19—(AP)—The Air Force has put a 600-mile-an-hour jet bomber at the top of its buying list and intends to keep it there next year.

The favored plane is a B-47 Stratojet, which has just begun to fly off the Boeing Aircraft Company's production line at Wichita, Kan.

Its speed, far above that of the B-36 Intercontinental bomber, is counted upon to provide increased production against interception by other planes.

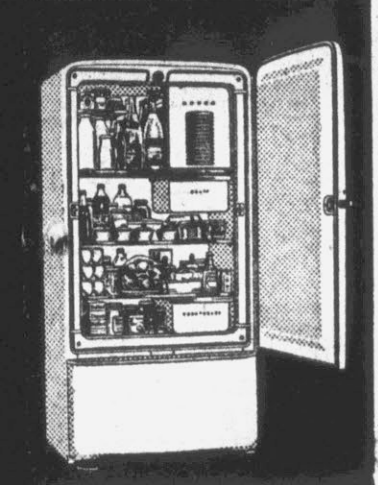

The jet bomber's range, however, is only a fraction of that achieved by the B-36 with its piston engines.

While the combat radius of the B-36 is listed officially at 5,000 miles, that of the Stratojet is placed only at "more than 1,000 miles."

But the Air Force is busily trying to increase the range of the faster plane. Besides adopting more efficient engines for the craft, it recently ordered an experimental B-47 equipped with four engines of greater power than six used on the type now in production.

When the jet bomber joins the medium bomber groups in which it will replace B-29 superfortresses of World War II, its range will be increased further by B-29 tanager planes in those groups. The tanker can be sent ahead of the jet bombers to refuel them on their way to targets.

Chas. Eaton, 82 Is Renominated

Newark, N. J., April 19—(AP)—Charles A. Eaton, 82-year-old Republican congressman and ranking GOP House spokesman on foreign affairs, yesterday won renomination for a 14th term.

The tall, white haired legislator coasted to an easy win over two opponents in New Jersey's fifth congressional district primary election.

His victory was one of eight won by organization-backed candidates in the state's 14 congressional districts. Five of the primary fights were in the Republican column and three in the Democratic.

Seven GOP and three Democratic incumbents were renominated without opposition.

There were no statewide contests in the off-year primary, the second in the nation this year. All of the battles were fought on local issues.

Eaton, who will face Democrat Thomas Chabrak, an author, in the November election, has won both primaries and general elections in past years by three-to-two margins or better.

The Fountain Ruritan Club met in the Fountain School lunch room April 6 at 7 p. m. and were served by the Fountain Women's Club.

R. A. Fountain reported on the progress of the current street improvement in Fountain. The minutes of the National Ruritan convention were discussed. Mrs. Jack Speight reported that the Women's Club and the Junior Women's Club had given all of their resources toward the building of the community building. And that individuals had promised the roof and the ceilings to the building, and appealed to the club for further donations.

WESTON MILLS, N. Y.—(AP)—The late Mary E. Munda has paid $5,480.65 of her native Britain's war debt to the United States. The Cattaraugus county woman died in 1946. U. S. Attorney George L. Grobe in Buffalo has been informed that her wish has been carried out.

TOKYO—(AP)—The number of Catholic priests in Japan has increased almost 85 per cent since the end of the war, according to figures of the National Catholic Committee of Japan. It lists 740 priests, three-fourths of them foreigners, now in Japan. There also are more than 2,500 nuns, three-quarters of them Japanese.

A recent occupation survey showed about 140,000 Catholics in this country.

Solves Delay For Big Crime Probe

Washington, April 19—(AP)—It may be some time before the Senate begins action on legislation aimed at launching a $150,000 nationwide crime investigation.

Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois said today that party leaders would not sidetrack other important legislation for a prolonged debate on the proposed inquiry.

"If we could get an agreement to vote on the resolution after three or four hours of debate," Lucas said, "I'd take it up immediately."

But he said all the signs point to "four or five days" of argument which would hold up consideration of the foreign aid, basing point, Fair Employment Practices Commission, and other measures.

He also said there has been no agreement on when the crime inquiry issue will be brought before the Senate.

Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.), who proposed the investigation, told reporters yesterday he had "been given to understand" by party leaders that the resolution would be put before the Senate last Monday.

In the meantime a Senate commerce subcommittee went ahead with plans to hear testimony tomorrow and Friday from city officials supporting a bill to ban the sending of gambling information across state lines. It is aimed primarily at horse race bookmaker operations.

Drought Adds To Damage By Cold

Raleigh, N. C., April 19—(AP)—Cold and dry weather have ganged up into a destroying combination against North Carolina crops.

A cold snap last week left the Sandhills area with a peach crop that may be 85 to 90 percent below normal, says a federal marketing supervisor.

And the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service says a lack of soil moisture has caused considerable damage in the coastal plain and is spreading to upper Piedmont counties.

The peach crop report was made by B. S. Rich, federal fruit and vegetable specialist with the State Department of Agriculture, following an inspection of damaged orchards yesterday.

It's too early to determine exactly said Rich, but his inspection indicated this year's crop will be a maximum of 25 per cent of normal. "It may be less than that—down to 10 or 15 percent of normal," he added.

Best estimates now point to a crop of 75,000 to 100,000 bushels, compared with the 500,000 to 600,000 bushels considered a "fair crop" in normal years in the Sandhills.

Try Treatments By Sound Waves

Atlantic City, April 19—(AP)—High frequency sound waves inaudible to the human ear can smash gallstones into small bits that could pass painlessly out of the body.

The sound wave treatment offers hope for removing gallstones—and perhaps kidney stones also—without surgery.

It was described today to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by a team of three doctors. They are Drs. Harold Lamport of the Yale School of Medicine and Herbert F. Newman and Ralph Eichhorn of Bethel Israel Hospital in New York City.

Their work so far has been done only on anesthetized rabbits and a dog. They found that the bean of sound waves would break up gallstones in five to 60 seconds. In this time, the beam of sound didn't burn the living tissue around the stones.

No sound-wave operation on humans has been tried yet. The right equipment doesn't exist. But some is being developed by the Crystal Research Laboratories in Hartford, Conn.

Brannan Plan Is Smith's Target

By The Associated Press
U. S. Senatorial candidate Willis Smith says the Brannan farm plan "would amount to a series of experiments of the rank of uncertainty."
The proposal, he told an audience at Warrenton last night, is a fantastic scheme which "could well wreck the national treasury."
Senator Frank Graham, whom Smith is campaigning to replace as the state's junior Senator, told a meeting at Wilson, meanwhile, he would "like to see the North Carolina way" on the racial problem "become the way of the whole South."
Graham reiterated opposition to federal legislation of the problem. In his attack on the Brannan

Approximately 2,100 Naval Air Reservists will be given eight weeks of indoctrination training at Naval air stations throughout the country this summer.
The recruits, who are new members of organized squadrons of the Naval Air Reserve, will report to their training areas at various dates in June.

Rosy View For Tar Heel Future

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 19—(AP)—Governor Scott says North Carolina's agricultural and industrial futures are rosy.
That's what he told the closing session of the annual convention of the North Carolina restaurant association here last night.
The governor predicted that the state's agricultural development soon will rival California's booming rise in farm products. And, he said, its industrial development soon will make North Carolina the "Pennsylvania of the South."

Buncombe Voters Okay Bond Issue

Asheville, N. C., April 19—(AP)—Buncombe county voters gave a 4,000-vote majority to a $5,500,000 school bond issue yesterday.

At the same time they also approved consolidation of the present county school debt of $3,158,000 now divided among 26 school districts. The vote on that question was 11,314 to 7,592.
Money from the bond issue will be used to build 22 new buildings—17 in the county and five in the city of Asheville.

Still Building Many Homes In North Carolina

Greensboro, N. C., April 19—(AP)—They're still building plenty of homes in North Carolina.
In fact, residential construction in the state in the first three months of 1950 exceeded the record established by the federal housing administration during the same period last year.
A report released by James P. McRae of Greensboro, state FHA director, reveals that mortgage insurance applications in all types of loans for the first quarter of 1950 involved 69 per cent living units than those received during the corresponding period in 1949.
Applications were received on 5,172 units, compared with 3,065 the opening quarter of 1949.

Look how you save with Dynaflow

FIRST thing you notice, of course, is the bother and effort Dynaflow Drive* saves.
Next, that Dynaflow saves you physically—after long trips you're less tense and tired, more relaxed.
But then, as the miles pile up—and this comes from cold, recorded fact after Dynaflow's two years of public operation—you spot savings you hadn't expected...
You save on tires—because power application is steady, even. On clutch expense—the usual friction clutch is gone.
You save on transmission maintenance, and the rear-axle expenses likely to go with it. And the way your engine is oil-cushioned against normal shocks and strains shows up in less engine upkeep.
*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional as extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

You may well discover another pleasant surprise, too.
We are getting a steadily mounting number of well-satisfied letters about gasoline mileage with Dynaflow cars.
The SPECIAL has shown some records little short of phenomenal. The SUPER is delivering mileage that compares most favorably with gearshift cars. And the ROADMASTER more than holds its own with cars of its size and bulk.
In short, there's a lot more to please your budget in the 1950 Dynaflow than its new lower price. Refinements over the past two years result in savings that are sizable over the life of the car.
Knowing that, don't you want us to demonstrate the big side of Dynaflow—the utter smoothness of America's first oil-does-it-all drive?

Only Buick has Dynaflow—and with it goes! HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.)
• NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD fender, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steady torque-tube • WIDE ARRAY OF MODELS with Body by Fisher.

Matchless Team — DYNAFLOW and F-263
In the Buick beauty pictured here you can have both Dynaflow and Buick's very latest in power. For every 1950 SUPER has the F-263 engine, that lively high-compression stepper that's the big power thrill of the season. Dynaflow Drive is optional equipment at extra cost.

Chapter 11

Andrew had found Morton in a bitter mood, and had left him in the main street at closing time. Morton had come in ten minutes before, quiet and threatening as a storm cloud, so that when the Red Lion closed, Andrew had said he would go for a walk to clear his head, which was in no need of clearing, but really to give Morton a chance to get over his ill temper.

The night and the moonlight and the country smells made him feel like a cat when it had the wind in its tail. So Andrew sang, because he felt curiously free and detached, because he wanted to forget Morton's lowering face and the wary eagerness in William Brody's eye; because he wanted to forget the office, and Hamlyn's offer, and more than anything the vulnerable happiness in Katherine Best's eyes as she had run past him with William to the theater.

His song ended abruptly. He came around the corner of the high hawthorn hedge and saw Katherine herself standing like a pale ghost in the moonlight.

"Hello," he said vaguely, glad that it was Katherine. After all he was the representative of an important theatrical agent. It was not quite in keeping with that character to go caroling along the moonlit lanes. But he felt Katherine would understand, and in any case she was not the type to make stock jokes of it for the amusement of her fellow actors. He said rather obviously, "Are you just going home?"

"Yes," she was silent for a moment. "I always seem to meet you when I'm afraid of something. You really helped me to get into Morton's company that day. I was petrified, and you gave me a sort of push that carried me through."

He said at once, "What are you frightened of now?"

She said, in that same hesitant, grave, gentle voice, "It's very stupid. I've been across the fields from Williams to my lodgings often, but tonight somehow I'm afraid to go. So I was going around by the main road."

"Will it make you feel any safer if I walk with you?"

"Why, yes, thank you—if it's not taking you out of your way."

"I'm going to Morton's cottage. I'm staying there with him."

She looked at him without speaking, and he said, as he would never have said to a more sophisticated woman, "The night was sheer magic. It tempted me."

Walking silently, thinking of William she was startled when he said suddenly, "Why didn't William walk back with you?" Her head went up with sharp, resentful awareness, with the tossing, suspicious movement of a wild pony when he went on inexorably, "Isn't he your sweetheart?"

His use of the beautiful, old-fashioned word startled her. She said sharply, "I didn't think you were the sort of person who asked

"Why not? If people didn't ask questions, they would not get to know each other at all."

"Do you want to know me?" she asked.

He thought of Morton's rescue plan and knew she was beyond saving, but he surprised himself by saying quite truthfully and sincerely, "I do, very much."

"Oh?" She was startled.

"Why not?"

"I don't know. Why should you? You've only seen me twice."

"Four times," he corrected her. "But why does anyone want to know anyone? Why did you want to know William?"

She said defensively, "William is just my friend. He didn't come home with me because he's going up to town early in the morning and is busy getting some things ready."

"He is? I may see him on the train. Perhaps he'll have lunch with me."

"I expect he'll be pretty busy all day. He's going to have some pictures taken. It's a good idea to have some modern ones as well as Morton's costume pictures in the front of the house."

"Yes." So he has not told her. They came to the white washed backs of the main street shops, gleaming in the moonlight, the great black beams stripping the plaster. She stopped at a small gate in the wall. "This is my place. Thank you very much, Mr. . . ?" She paused in surprise, because although she had resented his questions and decided she did not like him very much, she felt as though she had known him for a very long time. "Why, I don't know your name."

"Andrew Nolan." He made a little bow. The name obviously conveyed nothing to her. She just thanked him and bade him good night, opened the gate and disappeared within. He turned about and strode off in the direction of Morton's cottage. He found he was angry, because as usual his chicken heart could not stand a word that was not to his liking. He was going to be hurt, and neither he nor anyone else could prevent it.

Morton flung the window open. "I thought I heard the gate go," said Morton. He sounded more cheerful, and a delicious smell of cooking seeped out of the window into the garden. "Come in, my boy," he called. "A fugged hare with red currant jelly . . ."

Andrew came to earth with a start. "At this hour?" he protested. "We'll be awake all night!"

"Nonsense; good food is right at any hour. It's all ready. What's the matter with you, lad; are you moonstruck?"

"I believe I am," said Andrew as he went into the cottage. (To be continued.)

The 1950 cancer campaign for $4,500 will get its first public boost tonight as the annual Kickoff Dinner is held for campaign workers, county chapter officers, and service chairmen.

Meeting at the Woman's Club at 7 p.m., the banquet will precede the beginning of the campaign by four days. But it is designed each year to acquaint the chairmen and canvassers on educational factors which are used to bring cancer to the minds of the public.

Presiding tonight will be County Commander Mrs. Charles Reynolds. She will inform the chairmen of their duties during the campaign and how best to inform the public of the dangers of the disease.

Two movies are scheduled for showing to the group tonight. They are "The Traitor Within" and "The Doctor Talks Back." The films have been making the rounds of churches and schools throughout the county for the past two weeks.

Tossed Twice By Pugnacious Bull

T. A. Langley of Greenville route five was reported to have been tossed twice by an angry bull Langley and four other men were attempting to load on a truck to bring to stock sales in Greenville.

According to the witnesses, the butt-headed bull slammed Langley against the barn in his stable lot this morning while Langley attempted to get a rope on the bull. A few minutes later when the bull was being held by three ropes, it broke away and caught Langley with its head and sent him crashing through the plank walling of the stable lot.

Langley apparently escaped serious injury, a witness said, because he and his four helpers succeeded in loading the bull on the truck and bringing him to town.

After the bull first threw Langley against the barn, the five men cornered the bull in a stable and got three ropes on him. It was later when the bull was being brought from the stable that it broke away and hit Langley the second time.

Decorations For Ten Men Lost In Baltic Voted

Washington, April 19 — (AP) — The Senate today voted decorations to the 10 men lost in the Baltic plane incident.

The action was taken without dissent on the motion of Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois who called the loss of the U.S. Navy plane and its crew "a ruthless action by barbarous forces."

It followed a flurry of angry criticism of Russia on the Senate floor and a sharp rebuff at the State Department to a Russian claim that the American plane was lost on a mission of deliberate provocation against the Soviet Union.

In a statement released with the note, the department said the Russians apparently had decorated the Red aviators responsible for the attack.

The Senate resolution to award decorations to the American fliers now goes to the House.

New View Of Old Ailment Given To Physicians

Boston, April 19 — (AP) — The common cold is probably not caused by a virus as you have been told for many years, nor by germs of any sort.

Instead grandfather was right when he said it was caused by the weather.

This surprising view of colds was given to the American college of physicians by Dr. William J. Kerr, of San Francisco, and of the University of California school of Medicine. Dr. Kerr is eminent. His opinions he explained are backed by a lot of laboratory experiments.

He said he doesn't believe that colds are caused by any living organism, except that flu, grippe and some other diseases can damage the nose and so start a cold.

The usual causes, he said, are dusts, gases, emotions, and especially changes in weather which come with changes in weather.

Ayden Lions Stage 'Bread Day'

Boy Hemby (left) chairman of the Ayden Lions Club committee for "bread day," makes an early sale to Mrs. Corey Stokes to begin the sale of loaves of bread by the Ayden club. The Ayden Lions will canvass their town Friday selling the loaves from which proceeds will go to the club blind fund. Hemby said his club hopes to receive $250 for the blind fund from the 600 loaves of bread they will have for sale. (Seth Muse photo).

This snapshot was published by the Kansas City Star, along with a letter signed "Eddie," saying Brother Terry is upset and Baby Sister Sandra is ill because they cannot find their father. The note said Dad Sandra left Johnson City, Tenn., two weeks ago to hunt work in Kansas City, "Eddie," presumably sitting at left, failed to give the name of his father, the last name of himself and his brother and sister, and their home address. ## J.W.H. Roberts

"If it were not for my fear of the way the government is going now and if it were not for the fact that Willis Smith symbolizes the true Democratic Party of the South and believes in upholding the American form of government, then I would not be supporting him," declared the Judge.

The Pitt manager said today that he would name a county-wide committee of workers to serve with him in a campaign for Mr. Smith in this county.

Tough American

Well, now, having thus declared our position, where do we go from here? Supposing Moscow tosses back the fighting reply which our General Anthony C. McAuliffe made to the German demand for surrender in the Battle of the Bulge: "Nuts." Does the United States government then have to take umbrage and sever diplomatic relations?

Not so many years ago such notes as have been exchanged between Moscow and Washington over the Baltic affair would have had grave results. However, we are passing through a strange and hectic period in which values have changed sharply, at least temporarily.

Spending And

(Continued from page one) "All too often these groups loudly proclaim their desire for economy, but at the same time they want their local pet projects at the federal government's expense. They want economy practiced on the other fellow but not on themselves.

"So my appeal is directed not only to the Senate of the United States. It is directed in an even greater degree to the citizens of the localities themselves."

In short, Douglas said, this was the old pork barrel bill.

Altogether, the bill called for spending $1,565,000,000. Douglas offered a number of suggestions—amendments—for cutting $840,000,000 off that amount. The Senators voted down every one of his suggestions.

Not all of the $840,000,000 which Douglas wanted eliminated involved work on something as simple and perhaps as unnecessary as recreation improvement.

Some went much further than that and touched on things which other senators vigorously argued were of utmost importance in their areas and had the full approval of the U. S. Army engineers.

In some cases, they were so angry they argued that Douglas didn't know what he was talking about although he protested that he had

Preparedness

(Continued from page one) There is no Bolshevism or Communism in Russia today, declared Mr. Rosen, but rather state capitalism. He described Stalin as a tyrant, a combination of Ivan the Terrible and Peter the Great. Bolshevism—the name, he said, is derived from the Russian term "majority"—does not exist in the one-party government of modern Russia. The Constitution of 1936 ended Communism by changing the principle of "to each according to his needs" to "to each according to his work." With that change, he said, classes came back to Russia, classes based on remuneration on the basis of ability to produce.

Why, Mr. Rosen asked, does the Iron Curtain exist? Outlining the struggle for power in Russia after World War I, Mr. Rosen stated that Stalin's idea, contrary to that of Trotsky, was to abandon the idea of world revolution and to convince the world of the benefits of Communism by showing it successfully in operation in Russia.

"If the ideology were working in Russia today," declared Mr. Rosen, "there would be no need for an Iron Curtain," either in Russia or in the satellite nations. The Iron Curtain, he implied, hides the failures of the present Russian government.
