President Carries Tour To Wyoming

Declares Administration Will Push Development Of West Over Opposition Of 'Reactionary Forces'; Brings Message Boosting Brannan Farm Plan

Aboard Truman Train, May 9—(AP)—President Truman declared today his administration will push the development of the west over the opposition of "reactionary forces" of "privilege and greed" with their philosophy of "teapot dome."

The president carried his day and night cross-country stumping tour into Wyoming after telling an agricultural crowd at Lincoln, Neb., enactment of the controversial Brannan farm plan would help assure "peace and prosperity for ourselves and the world."

In a speech prepared for an audience today at Casper, Wyo., the Chief Executive described the new Kortes Dam, 50 miles away, as a source of "wealth and strength for the people of the world."

And he scoffed at those who cry "socialism," "regimentation," or "boondoggle" at government water and land resource development.

As the day proceeded he continued to talk to large and apparently happy crowds who jammed the tracks around his private car in the chatty, neighborly fashion that was his "vote appeal" in 1948.

Like at Pacific Junction, Iowa, yesterday where he told them he wanted them to look at their "hired man" to see if he is the same fellow who came out "looking for votes two years ago." He added he was 66 even if they thought he didn't look it.

Mr. Truman revived the old "teapot dome" oil scandal at Casper, contrasting the philosophy of "teapot dome" with that behind the construction of the Kortes Dam.

The solemn note he sounded in speeches yesterday in Illinois and Iowa, where he warned the Midwest that a return to "isolationism" could bring on "a third world war," crept into his Casper talk.

"We are engaged in a world-wide struggle to bring lasting peace to the world," he said. "In that struggle we are being opposed by a cynical imperialism which asserts that freedom and democracy are soft and incapable of strong action."

By developing projects like the Kortes Dam, Mr. Truman continued, this country "can prove how false, how hollow, are the claims of communism."

In the democratic tradition he added, "we shall move forward on the path of freedom and peace."

In the same vein, Mr. Truman told his farm audience at Lincoln last night that the production payment plan sponsored by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan "is the best plan yet proposed for getting an abundant production of perishable crops consumed without knocking the bottom out of the farmer's income."

Under the government would pay the farmers the difference between what they receive at the market for perishable crops and a predetermined "fair return."

In Washington, Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) denounced the Brannan plan as "that economic monstrosity carrying fines and jail sentences for farmers who refuse to goose-step upon command of Washington bureaucrats."

Mr. Truman assured the Casper audience today that the 81st (Democratic-controlled) Congress has been "moving forward—not backward."

NOMINATED—Washington, May 9—(AP)—President Truman today nominated Earl Dallah Joh son, New York investment counselor, to be assistant secretary of the arm; succeeded by Archibald S. Alexander who has become undersecretary.

French Indochina Aid

The Guarantee That Was Required Of France Before Military And Economic Aid Was Granted; Imperialism Is Out; Highly Strategic Area, Rich In Resources

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

One of the most important (and delicate) problems for solution in U.S. Secretary of State Acheson's conferences in Paris with French Foreign Minister Schuman, has involved France's request for aid in fighting communism in French Indochina—and Acheson already has provided at least a partial answer.

The Secretary announced yesterday at the end of his first day's conference with Schuman that American military and economic aid will be sent to French Indochina immediately. The bulk of $75,000,000 already appropriated by Congress to combat communism in the Far East will go to Indochina.

Diplomatic sources in Paris say that in return for this aid America wanted, and received, a guarantee of greater independence for Indochina. Schuman promised that "commonwealth relations" would be established.

Such an American qualification had been expected. The writing on the wall for all to see is that imperialism in Asia is dead. The big question has been whether France was prepared to accept that verdict.

In short, was Paris ready to grant Indochina greater independence.

Or were our French friends asking us to help them maintain their empire. Uncle Sam is making it clear that, so far as he is concerned, imperialism is out, although he has no objection to dominion status for former dependencies.

But why all this bother about Indochina? What is its importance to the Western world? Well, Indochina is the Aladdin's lamp that might open up the riches of all Southeast Asia to the Communists.

In other words it is a highly strategic area. This is true not only in the military sense but from the standpoint of natural resources and food supplies for an always hungry part of the globe.

The warfare in Indochina has been proceeding unceasingly for some four years. French supported Emperor Bao Dai of Vietnam is battling guerrilla forces of Ho Chi Minh, a Communist who was trained in Moscow and who is receiving Soviet aid.

Ho's jungle government is recognized by Moscow. The Red control of neighboring China puts the Communists in an enviable position.

Economy Drive

Washington, May 9—(AP)—House Republican leaders agreed today to try to cut $596,000,000 from the $25,000,000,000 omnibus appropriation bill.

The agreement was reached at a meeting of the GOP Policy Committee.

Rep. Taber of New York, leader of the Republican drive to whack approximately one billion dollars from the big measure, said the committee decided to push amendments:

(1) Restrict federal agencies in filling job vacancies during the fiscal year starting July 1 and (2) reduce sums tentatively approved for operation of the government.

Taber said if the House rejects the proposals, they will be tied to a motion to send the bill back to the appropriations committee.

The Army, the Navy and the Air Force, he said, will be exempted from the proposed cuts.

Tobacco Film To Be Shown Here

The already famous motion picture, "Bright Leaf," which will have its world premiere showing at Raleigh, North Carolina, May 31, is being heralded as one of the sensations of motion pictures coming out of Hollywood, California.

The picture will be shown in Greenville June 5 and 6. Showing of the interesting tobacco epic here is expected to be a special event, warehousemen and others stated today.

Raleigh, which is not a tobacco market, was chosen as the site for the premier showing of "Bright Leaf" because it is the capital of the largest tobacco growing and manufacturing state in the Union.

The Greenville Merchants Association, in connection with the showing here June 5 and 6 of the picture, is sponsoring a contest for girls between the ages of 16 and 25 years. The Trade Promotion Committee has charge of the project.

The girl who wins in this contest will be given a free trip to the premier showing of the movie in Raleigh May 31. The Greenville girl selected will compete with other girls from Eastern Carolina towns and cities.

A committee in Raleigh will judge the contestants on: personal appearance, charm, beauty, poise and other qualities which feature typical young American womanhood.

The winner in the state "bright leaf" contest will be given a 1950 Mercury automobile. Every girl contestant in "Bright Leaf" who goes to Raleigh for the "world premiere" of "Bright Leaf" will be entertained and she will receive a gift.

Rules of the "Bright Leaf" Contest: The Greenville Merchants Association is having ballots printed. They are free. They may be obtained by merchants and other businessmen at the Merchants' Association offices, second floor, City Hall, Greenville. The contest starts Friday, May 12, and continues through May 24.

Rules of the contest provide: Ballots will be given by stores to customers with each 50c purchase or 50c paid on account. There is a limit of 100 votes to a customer on purchases at any one time. No customer may receive more than 100 votes in the "Bright Leaf" motion picture contest at any one time. Cora S. Powell, executive secretary of the Greenville Merchants' Association, said today.

AIR BASE CONTRACTS—Washington, May 9—(AP)—The Army announced today that it has awarded contracts for the construction of two secret Air Force installations, one in the Chicago area and the other at St. Albans, Vt.

Shelve Plan For Building Homes For Servicemen

Washington, May 9—(AP)—The House Armed Services Committee today shelved a plan to let the government build $97,643,000 worth of homes for families of servicemen in this country.

The committee struck the provision from a multi-million dollar military public works bill on the recommendation of Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.). He said the job of building homes for military people should be turned over to private firms operating under the Wherry Act.

That act gives government aid to contractors putting up houses intended for military tenants.

In addition, the committee knocked out about $1,072,000 authorized for expansions and improvements at several military hospitals which Secretary of Defense Johnson has ordered closed.

Soviet Spy Ring Details Handed Gov't Of Iran

Refugee Soviet Official Exposes Vast Network Honeycombing Country

Tehran, Iran, May 9—(AP)—A refugee Soviet official has handed over to the Iranian government and Western power representatives a detailed expose of vast Soviet spy ring honeycombing this country.

The source of this information cannot be disclosed. But on good authority it can be said the Soviet refugee named Chabik G. Oganessian, secretary of the big Russian embassy in Tehran and trustee of the Armenian Orthodox Church, is the head of a spy ring which is penetrating all aspects of Iranian life.

The informant said Iran has virtually complete information on all Iranians working with the ring. Disclosure is possible now because Moscow has learned of the leak.

A high official of the Soviet trade commission delivered himself to a Western power representative here four months ago. His name still is a top-level secret, so that his family will be protected. This official agreed to remain at work for a month, during which he secured copies of documents showing the whole pattern of Soviet operations in Iran, including spying, tax evasion and even actual felonies.

"If Iran ever wanted to go to the United Nations and show her hand she could give the U.S.S.R. the worst black eye she ever received politically," said one person who saw all the documents.

Daniel Simonovich Komissarov, 42, first secretary in charge of the press at the Soviet embassy, flew to Moscow when the Russians learned of the leak.

Iran, which considers him the real key man in the embassy although outranked by others, has told Moscow his return is not desired. The Russians replied, in defiance of normal protocol, that they intended to send Komissarov back unless Iran could bring a charge against him.

Political sources say failure of the Iranian government to order the ouster of Soviet spy ring leaders is causing serious concern in Iranian military and Western diplomatic circles.

Gov. Scott Inspects Patrol Equipment

Governor Kerr Scott inspected Troop A of the highway patrol here shortly after noon today in his second visit to Greenville since becoming governor of North Carolina. Gov. Scott Explains His Visit Is Just 'Routine' Patrol Inspection

Governor Kerr Scott today made his second visit to Greenville and his third visit to Pitt county since becoming governor of North Carolina as he inspected members of Troop A of the state highway patrol here shortly after noon.

The governor explained his visit as a routine inspection of the highway patrol troops since the recent shake-up in the patrol organization of the state. "The troop inspection was favorable compared with the other troops in the state," North Carolina's chief executive remarked following the inspection. As he looked down at a plate of barbecued chicken at Respass where the patrolmen and their guests had a dinner following the inspection, the governor quipped, "The patrolmen looked like they are well fed too."

Governor Scott was accompanied to Greenville today in the number "1" car by Assistant Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Joe Garrett and Gene Hughes of the State Utilities Commission office in Raleigh.

Col. L. C. Rosser, commissioner of motor vehicles, not here for the inspection of Troop A today, but Col. J. R. Smith, commander of the highway patrol, and Major D. T. Lambert, who last week gave up the command of Troop A to take over his duties as executive officer of the state highway patrol, were here to review the troop with Governor Scott.

The inspection took place at Farmers warehouse in north Greenville where some 40 patrol cars from the 26 counties of the troop territory were lined up for review by the governor. A total of 76 patrolmen of the troop's 104 men were here for the inspection, with only skeleton crews being left on duty in each of the 26 counties in the troop.

The governor first reviewed the patrolmen in mass formation, and then the patrolmen took their places beside their cars which the governor walked by at a rapid pace. He also looked over a firearm display and a display of medals and trophies which were won by Cpl. John Laws of Greenville, a member of the state highway patrol pistol team. The complete personnel and vehicle inspection took the chief executive approximately 20 minutes.

Following the inspection, approximately 150 patrolmen and their guests attended a dinner at Respass barbecue place where Governor Scott was the guest of honor. Governor Scott was scheduled to return to Raleigh immediately after the dinner.

W. T. Kizer said the name of one of the prospects to whom the plant has leased already has been turned over to the company officials by the local chamber of commerce.

The transportation and communications committee was directed to support the efforts of the city-county airport commission in seeking to obtain a hearing before the Civil Aeronautics board on getting air transportation into the local airport.

W. Winslow, chairman of the cultural committee, reported the completion of the association for an artificial insemination program for dairy cattle in Pitt county; will have to be delayed until next fall because the training program for the specialists which was held at State College was moved up to April rather than May. He said, however, efforts will be continued to have the necessary 600 cattle signed for the program by next fall so Pitt county may have a specialist trained in the training program which will be conducted by State College in September.

Winslow said the cows have been signed up for the program in the county in addition to approximately 300 cattle in dairy herds in Pitt county which have been signed to the program.

The board voted to accept the resignation of C. Stuart Carr who asked his resignation be accepted because he will move to Kinston June 1. Larry Averett, manager of Mea Shoe Store, was elected to the post of directors of the chamber of commerce to fill the unexpired term of Carr.

President Van C. Fleming, Jr., reported the response to the proposed farmers day for Greenville this year has been good, and preparations are being made for the formation of a steering committee which will direct the farmers day activities.

The board voted to endorse the resolution adopted recently by the State Utilities commission asking that Congress remove the excise taxes from telephone charges. The board directed letters be written to Congressman Herbert Bonner and Senators Clyde R. Hoey and Frank P. Graham urging their support of similar action on the floors of Congress. The directors also voted to request the congressman and senators to support measures which would prevent a cut-back in postal services, and proposed that any deficit in the post office department be made up through increased rates or other operational changes in the postal department rather than through decreased services.

The "Miss Bright Leaf" contest which is being sponsored by the Merchants Association of North Carolina in conjunction with the world premiere of a movie on eastern North Carolina received the endorsement of the chamber of commerce by a vote of the board of directors. The treasurer's report and other routing business matters was disposed of at the meeting.

Alabama, carried by the States Rights in 1948, indicated a change of heart last week. Democrats there elected a new state executive committee. A majority of the winners are anti-States Rights.

The Alabama committee led the successful State Rights campaign in 1948. Former Governor Frank Dixon of Alabama will report tomorrow on the States Rights defeat in his state.

Whether States Rights followers keep control of Democratic party machinery in Louisiana may come up for decision today at Baton Rouge, La.

States Righters At Turning Point

Convention Will Decide Life Or Death For Movement

Jackson, Miss., May 9—(AP)—States Righters face decisions here tomorrow which may mean life or death for the movement and its bitter opposition to federal civil rights bills.

Most of those who led four Deep South states out of the regular Democratic party two years ago will be here. They expect 3,000 others for a third national States Rights meeting.

The meeting is a "where do we go from here" affair. An executive committee session tonight will offer a chart for action.

W. W. Wright of Jackson, vice-chairman of the committee, said he looked for a program calling for stronger organization, well-planned drives to raise money and States Rights offices in each Southern state.

Whichard, Daily Reflector; Badger Johnson, Jack Wallace and Sherman Parks, local army reserve unit; Bancroft Moseley, Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Complicated Terms

Differences Between A Motion And A Measure And Two Aces Up The Filibusterers' Sleeve; Cloture Rule And Reluctance To Apply It; Tactics In FEPC Fight

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, May 9—(AP)—A motion . . . A measure . . . difference between a motion and a measure . . . cloture . . .

They're all terms used in the senate and are some of the things which cause life to be less than simple for the lawmakers.

In the FEPC bill, now awaiting some senate action, there's a good example of how motion-measure-cloture complicate things for the senators.

The southern Democrats don't want this bill passed. To stop the rest of the senate from approving they're willing, singly and in relays to talk themselves into exhaustion with a filibuster.

So long as this filibuster, or marathon talk, continues it can block all senate action on the FEPC and on all other senate work too.

Then—and this is the aim of the filibuster—in order to get on with the rest of their work, the other senators will abandon the FEPC bill.

But can a minority—the southern Democrats—are in a minority—block the work of the rest of the senate?

Yes, unless the rest are willing to vote for a thing called "cloture," which means: shutting off a filibuster.

This can be done any time two-thirds of the total number of senators—64 of the 96—want to vote for cloture.

If you read that in a hurry, it sounds easy. It isn't. In the first place, few senators relish voting for cloture. Some say they may want to filibuster on something. They don't want cloture used on them.

In the second place, that vote of 64 out of 96 is no cinch to get. For example: A simple majority vote of just those present at voting time is all that is needed when the senate votes on a bill.

If only 70 senators were on the floor at voting time and 36 voted for and 34 against, the bill would pass.

But if a vote or cloture comes up and only the same 70 senators are on the floor and 36 vote for cloture, 34 against, there's no cloture. There can't be any cloture unless 64 of the total number of 96 senators, whether or not all 96 are present, vote for it.

Immanuel Baptist Church Revival A good crowd greeted the Rev. Paul B. Nickens last night as he brought his first message in the revival services now going on at Immanuel Baptist church. Mr. Nickens, who is pastor of the Ludford Memorial Baptist church of Plymouth, is an effective speaker who commands the attention of his hearers in a way that appeals to both young and old. Tonight he will speak on the subject: "Wherein Are We Different?"

The services begin each night at 7:45 with an attractive song service led by Mrs. Moye Dall. Special music and choruses by the boys and girls are interesting features of the meeting. We invite you and your friends to follow the crowds to Immanuel Baptist church.

Mr. Nickens also speaks over WGTO each morning this week at 9:15.

Joint Hostesses Give Bon Voyage Party

The last meeting of the Sans Souci Book club year was chosen by the hostesses, Mrs. E. B. Sugg, Sr., and Mrs. J. E. Waldrop, as one to especially honor two of the club members, Mrs. F. M. Wooten and Mrs. W. I. Wooten, and two club daughters, Misses Susanne Kilgo and Lillian Wooten.

The meeting took the form of a Bon Voyage party, for the Wootens will leave Sunday for New York where they will sail on the "Queen Mary" for two months in Europe. Miss Kilgo will set sail on the sea of matrimony this month.

In planning the meeting the hostesses showed ingenuity and thought which brought great pleasure to all present.

The Waldrop home was a lovely setting for the meeting. Spring flowers gave their cheery welcome and made the home especially attractive.

Upon arrival guests were invited by the hostesses to the dining room which was made most appropriate and lovely for the Bon Voyage meeting. The dining table, covered with a cut work cloth, was centered with a ship ready for the voyage. This was flanked by black miniature suit cases spilling pink carnations. From each end of the beautifully appointed table a delightful two course luncheon was served by Mrs. J. B. James and Mrs. J. E. Kittrell.

The business session was presided over by Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, president, with twenty-one members answering to roll call. The club voted to send its usual contribution to the Cancer Fund and the librarian was asked to turn over all books to the City Library.

Mrs. Sugg next introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ficklen Arthur, who gave a most interesting talk on "Transportation and Communications Fifty Years Ago and Today," tracing transportation from the horse and buggy days to the jet plane of today with its speed of more than 1,000 miles an hour.

With these changes industry changed also—first the necessary blacksmith shops, then with motor cars came garages and factories; the luxury liner and deluxe trains and finally the jet plane—each bringing about industrial changes throughout the world.

The same industrial changes were by the advancement of communications—the telephones, radio, "walkie-talkie" and "walkie-hearer" used in the war, and now television with all its possibilities.

The changes in transportation and communications have brought many world problems—changing our geography, changing trade routes, freedom of the air and television.

World unity is no longer a dream but a fact brought about by the changes in transportation and communications.

After thanking Mrs. Arthur for her most timely and informative talk the hostesses presented Bon Voyage gifts to the travelers and gifts to Mrs. C. S. Carr who will soon make Kingston her home, and to Mrs. Arthur. In presenting the gifts Mrs. Waldrop read an original poem suited to each person, thus giving them a special meaning.

After wishing for each member to Miss Kilgo.

Mrs. I. J. Edwards, Jr., was given a prize for sewing the neatest hem and Miss Joyce Corbett was also given a prize for finishing her towel first.

The hostesses presented the bride-elect a silver sandwich tray and a corsage to represent a wedding bouquet, made of a full blown peony and tied with tulle. Mrs. Hudson was presented a corsage of pink glads.

Happened a guy and a gal were walking on the beach. Happened they were walking in opposite directions. Happened the guy was reading a book as he walked. Happened he shot a glance at the gal, a chance glance. Happened he went back to reading his book.

Happened the gal went into the bath house. Happened she put on a bathing suit. Happened she went out and walked on the beach. Happened this same guy came along, reading this same book. Happened he shot her a chance glance. Happened he stopped. In his tracks. Happened he dug his toe in the sand. Happened he spoke shyly. Happened she dug her toe in the sand. Happened she smiled shyly. Happened the guy and the gal went walking on the beach. Together. Hand in hand

Now isn't that a pretty story? Not a word of it's true. All a fiction. Except the part about the bathing suit, and even that is a dream. A dream of a bathing suit. The kind we sell at our house.

A dream of a bathing suit. Sculptured by Rose Marie Reid. Have you seen?

Pitt County Records Are Being Microfilmed For Preservation

Just in case only local oldtimers remember the fire that destroyed the courthouse and all the records in 1910, they need not worry about present legal records being destroyed in the future.

During yesterday and today the deeds, claims, wills and such which have been filed in Pitt County and which were not lost by the 1910 fire are now being recorded on microfilm for posterity's use. And the job isn't costing the county a cent.

As a public service the Latter Day Saints—the Mormon Church of Salt Lake City and environs—is doing the job of microfilming the records of counties of the 48 states free of charge. The Genealogical Society of the Mormon Church has set aside for recording each county's records, one copy going to the state capital and the other being retained by the Society.

William Koehler of Salt Lake City is presently thumbing through the record books of Pitt, filming all the documents from the year 1862 to the present. He is the only man who is handling the project and has "done" the records of 28 North Carolina counties to date.

At the rate of 1,400 pages of records per hour, Koehler figures two days will be about all Pitt will require. Prior to coming here he worked in Martin County where he recorded all the records there. Before coming to North Carolina, where his headquarters are in Franklin, he worked the state of Maryland. That job took him two years and 140,000 feet of film. In addition to the work in the United States other Society photographers have done the same work for the governments of England and Denmark. The job in North Carolina, so far, has taken since last September.

Koehler says it took him 46 months to "get used to the job." He describes it as a "very tedious job" and when he first began the undertaking, he counted pages in his sleep at night.

All he does is place the old and worn and handwritten record book underneath the camera. Turning the pages, which are written on both sides, he photographs two at a time. When one book is finished, another is shoved under. All there is to it is turn the pages, press the button and hope it turns out all right. But it's the standing up that gets him, he says.

So the courthouse may go up in smoke again but the legal records of county transactions will remain intact. With a copy in Raleigh at the State Department of Archives and History, there is assurance that none of the records will be lost forever. Because the microfilm, under proper storage conditions, is good for 2,200 years.

After that time, Koehler says with a sigh, somebody will have to do the job all over again.

Planning Bill On Prison System

Raleigh, May 9—(AP)—Rep. John Umstead of Orange says he will introduce a bill in the next Legislature calling for a separate state prison system. North Carolina is the only state

Pitt Records Are Put On Film

"The shouting and tumult fades and the captains and kings depart," but Pitt County's legal records will remain intact. That's what the man in the above photo is making sure of. He's Walter Koehler, photographer of the Genealogical Society of the Mormon Church, who has for the past several years been recording various counties' records throughout the United States. Done as a public service by the Mormon church, the records are microfilmed and sent to Raleigh for safekeeping. Koehler is shown as he turns the pages of a record book while the camera above takes a picture of the two pages. (Photo by Roy Hardee).

in the country which operates its prisons as divisions of its highway department.

Umstead said his bill will propose that all penal agencies, including training schools, be put under a single department.

Russians Stage New Walkout On United Nations

Bangkok, May 9—(AP)—Russia today walked out of a United Nations committee where it had expected to win a seat for Red China. The Russian delegate stalked out when the committee refused to take up a Soviet resolution calling for unseating the Nationalist China delegate and seating of the Communist China representative.

It was the first meeting of the Industry and Trade session of the UN Regional Economic Conference for Asia and the Far East.

It was the 24th and last of the major United Nations bodies from which the Soviets have walked out rather than participate because the Sino Red delegate was not seated.

for a curtailment of federal spending to slow the nation's pace down the road to collectivism.

Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, a recognized leader in the international movement for a world federation, who addressed the bankers this morning, was another of the key speakers at the convention.

We will venture to say there are few counties in the state which have such recognized leaders as Waldrop and Humber are in their respective fields; and we doubt if a town the size of Greenville ever before has furnished two of the principal speakers at a convention of North Carolina bankers.

These two Pitt counties have been accorded a high honor by members of the group which is recognized as consisting of soundest thinkers and best businessmen in North Carolina. Pitt county is honored to lay claim to two of its citizens whose personal achievements have been accorded recognition by the bankers of the state.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, May 6.—A veteran expert familiar with Communist underground activities, who once served in a similar capacity for an Albany legislative committee associated with Governor Thomas E. Dewey, is responsible for the Tydings Committee's decision to make a more thorough and exhaustive investigation of charges that Owen Lattimore preached the Moscow line with respect to American policy in abandoned China.

He is Robert Morris, who was named as assistant counsel at the insistence of Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, the only really aggressive Republican member of the investigating group.

It is he who has supplied Mr. Hickenlooper and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge with the only questions which seemed to embarrass the John Hopkins Far Eastern authority and Administration defenders on the committee. There has been a noticeable shift of atmosphere and attitude since Mr. Morris was engaged three weeks ago.

CONCERN—In fact, the Democratic majority has shown its concern over his special knowledge of subversive activities and agents. He is not permitted to examine witnesses, and it is extremely difficult for a third party like Mr. Hickenlooper to develop the facts by proxy.

Many a time, when it was obvious that the Iowa should pursue a certain phase as the result of an answer, he has passed on to the next query without realizing the importance of the original material.

Mr. Morris is also barred from the executive sessions, where witnesses like Louis Budenz have given evidence that a man with the Republican counsel's background would have been able to develop in greater and more significant detail.

The New York lawyer's career in chasing Communists began when he served as counsel for the Rapp-Coudert Joint Legislative Committee at Albany. His assignment was to investigate subversive textbooks, teaching and personnel in the public schools of New York City. Rep. Frederic R. Coudert Jr., one of the authors of the inquiry resolution, says that "Morris did a bangup job."

EXPERT—Mr. Morris was associated with the well-known New York law firm of Coudert Bros., when he was commandeered by Naval Intelligence, because of his Albany performance, to handle the problem of subversive affairs. While serving in that post, he made an extensive study of Communist personnel and operations inside and outside the government.

He was the Naval Intelligence expert in the notorious Amerasia case, which involved the disappearance of top secret documents from several Washington war agencies.

Although these papers are said to have been far more important than the Alger Hiss memos found in a pumpkin on Whittaker Chambers' Maryland dairy farm, the investigation and prosecution of Amerasia defendants were hushed up under suspicious circumstances.

The magazine publisher, Philip Jaffe, and his alleged government confederates who included both Navy and State Department officials, were not indicted or did not receive slap-on-the-wrist fines. A prominent State Department authority on Far Eastern matters involved in the case was John Service, now returning from abroad for appearance before the Tydings Committee.

CORRECTING—It was Mr. Morris who provided the series of eighty questions which enabled Senators Hickenlooper and Lodge to elicit from Mr. Lattimore the fact that he knew almost all the dramatic persons in the Amerasia affair. He said that he had never looked on them as subversives or fellow-travelers, only as "brilliant liberals."

The State Department adviser on the Orient also attended a picnic with several of the defendants about the time of the trial. When asked whether he was helping them to prepare a defense, he replied that he was merely correcting the proofs of a book written by one of Amerasia's China-born authors.

SURPRISE—Senator Tydings, presumably because of additional information turned over by Mr. Morris, has said that the committee will review the Amerasia hush-up and exoneration before the conclusion of the inquiry. His decision has caused some surprise, inasmuch as this incident was not mentioned specifically in the McCarthy resolution of inquiry approved by the Senate.

In some higher quarters, it is believed that the Administration's whole China policy which has permitted the Reds to seize that vast and rich area, would have been entirely different if the Amerasia conspiracy had been fully exposed at the time it happened. The United States might have reinforced Chiang Kai-shek instead of accepting the Wallace-Marshall proposals that he be abandoned.

CLOSE—During that critical period, when we withdrew aid from the Chinese Nationalists, State's Oriental experts were on especially close terms with Amerasia's publisher and writers, who were violently pro-Communist in this field at least.

Incidentally, it was Naval Intelligence that uncovered the facts in this wartime theft of military and diplomatic documents, and many high officers in that service have never been satisfied with the manner in which the White House, State and the Justice Department shied away from a showdown. Mr. Morris is one of that group.

SHADOW—The abortive Truman-Lucas attempt to save Senator Claude Pepper from defeat in the recent Florida primary by deferring Senate consideration of an FEPC Bill for three months threatens speedy enactment of far more important legislation. The utter failure of their strategy casts a shadow over the President's western "non-political" tour, and may mean the defeat of the Illinois legislator next fall.

The colored people's anger over stalling on their favorite measure forced Senate Leader Lucas to schedule it for floor debate this week, even though it will precipitate a long filibuster.

However, the President and his Capitol Hill agent, especially since keeping this controversial question out of the headlines did not help Pepper, had to go through the motions of demanding action to appease a powerful voting group in Chicago and elsewhere. They have threatened to massacre Mr. Lucas when he runs next fall.

STRATEGY—In taking up FEPC this week, the White House had another scheme in mind. On May 15, there will be a great political rally in Chicago for Mr. Truman. On May 14 there will be a radio round-table on the question of Civil Rights.

The President believes it will rehabilitate him with FEPC beneficiaries if the Southern Democrats are blocking Senate action at that very moment. He will blame the delay on them, but promise again that he will "keep up the fight for equality." It is the same strategy that enabled him to defeat Dewey in 1948 and to elect a Democratic Congress.

The Other Man Could Get A Steam Shovel, Too

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If you wonder what the next 10 years will have in store for you, wonder no longer, for old Jack has found all the answers in "Everybody's Digest." Leave it to one of the digest magazines—they solve all your problems and even predict your future ones. The war is not included, but almost everything else:

"A depression? Not in the '29 sense. But an 'economic down,' yes, and within the first half of the decade. It will be a gradual, year-by-year slide, not a sudden drop.

"The recovery? An upturn by mid-decade and then a long, slow trend upward. A mild and moderate inflation brewed in the early years of the shakedown and recovery, will simmer along through the latter years.

"Average prices will be higher 10 years hence than they are today. Incomes will be going up through the latter Fifties, with most of the improvement at the lower and lower-middle sections of the scale. The trend: fewer very poor, fewer very rich. "A surplus of women will cause talk and a few changes. About one million more women than men in the early Fifties. Older women will account for most, but not all, of the surplus. There will be more working women. The competition for husbands will not get any less.

"A buyers' market in housing will be in full swing within a year or two. Builders will be searching for shortcuts, ways to trim costs. They will be working hard to sell houses. Compared to the late Forties, you will be getting more for your money.

"Helicopters by 1960 will be about where the automobile was in 1900. You may know someone who commutes in his private helicopter but the odds are strong that you won't fly one yourself. There may be a fair number of helicopters transit lines serving suburbs and connecting with outlying airports. Private flying in other types of planes won't take the country by storm either.

"Your automobile will be different but not startlingly so. Motors will get more powerful and efficient year by year. The motor will stay in front, though a few custom and experimental models will feature rear-end power by 1960. Automatic transmissions will get to be optional on the lowest-priced cars and standard on all others. In style your car will look slim and angular compared to the fat creations of 1948 and 1949.

"Canasta will go out, but bridge, poker, golf and crossword puzzles will be the standby as they are today.

"Television will continue to boom, of course. Twenty million sets will be operating in the latter Fifties. Quality of programs will improve, and by mid-decade there will be a coast-to-coast television network. Color won't come into general use until the middle of the decade. Sets will trend to larger screens, lower prices; 16-inch pictures will be "standard" and I thank the Digest.

CULLOWHEE—Most auspicious circumstances surrounded inauguration of Paul Apperson Reid as fourth president of Western Carolina Teachers College at Cullowhee last Saturday. It was a perfect May day. The mountains around the village of Cullowhee are high enough to be impressive without inspiring awe. These hills, spotted with white dogwood in full bloom with occasional apple blossoms showing just a tinge of color, against verdant background of variegated shades from almost yellow to almost black, reminded of what Mrs. Carl Sandburg said about the view from her home near Hendersonville. With affectionate cadence in her voice she said: "It is so easy to live with."

PHYSICAL—Starting 61 years ago with a one teacher school, successive and continuing build-ups have established here a college community with facilities for more than five hundred students—and a building program just beginning that will more than double facilities of dormitories, class rooms, and other physical requisites for a growing institution. The two most recent legislatures have allotted three and a half million dollars for permanent improvements here.

CULTURAL—Inspiring as are the physical surroundings—mountains for stability, flowering trees for beauty, modern buildings to evidence progress—the cultural atmosphere was more dominant at Saturday's inaugural. In that field, as in the physical, were found stability, beauty and progress. In the platform with the incoming president sat the founder and first president of the institution, Robert Lee Madison, who as a boy sat on the knee of Robert E. Lee in Lexington, Virginia, and absorbed some of the idealism of that great man. Out front sat another man, almost twice Reid's age, native of these hills and member of the first board of trustees, W. C. Norton. Roots of these men go way back. Then on the platform was a chorus of WCTC students, perhaps none of them half the new president's age, contributing beauty and looking to the future.

RECOGNITION—WCTC is comparatively a small college but it cannot be classed as insignificant. Marching in the academic procession and seated in the auditorium just in front of the rostrum were representatives of seventy eight universities, colleges and scientific-cultural groups, some little, some big. Harvard University, established 253 years before this school was born, had official representation. So did the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, which dates back less than four years. The Great-er University of North Carolina had three official representatives. A dozen other state universities took cognizance of the importance of this event, along with privately endowed and denominational schools embracing almost every religious faith and political creed.

JUSTIFIED—Your rambling reporter, mixing as much as possible with these representatives, heard many comments to general effect that whatever recognition had been shown was amply justified by the attitude and philosophy expressed in the masterly inaugural address of President

Paul Reid. He said he wanted the institution to grow, but he does not aspire to bigness for its own sake. He wants to adhere to main objectives which is training teachers, but also wants the college to serve other purposes for the people in the mountain area. He wants to teach history and mathematics but is more concerned about teaching character. Being a tax supported school, he doesn't want sectarian tents paraded, but he covets a deeply religious atmosphere on the campus and throughout all institutional operations. Without losing sight of the main objective (the training of teachers) he hopes that his college also will train young people for the responsibilities of citizenship in a democracy and in a peaceful world. He said nothing to indicate he thought an era was ending or another beginning. He accepted with humble gratitude the foundations which have been laid and looks ahead to further building upon them along all lines of progress.

RAMP—Despite pouring rain and ankle deep slush more than five thousand people attended the twentieth annual Ramp Convention Sunday at Black Gap, nearly a mile high up in the Great Smoky Mountains of Haywood county. Begun by half a dozen men from Canton who chanced to get together to cook and eat ramps in 1930 and decided to repeat the stunt the next year, the "convention" after two decades has become one of the high spots in the political and social activity of Haywood county.

As adviser for the Greenville High School Forensic Club, I would like to report the club's participation in the National Speech Tournament in Kenosha, Wisconsin, and express my personal appreciation to the civic groups (Exchange Club, Elks, Kiwanians, Jaycees, Lions and Rotarians) who made it possible for the students to travel to Kenosha. Greenville's students participated against state champions from thirty-five other states in the following events: Rodney Fulcher in oratory (3 rounds), radio (3 rounds), debating (3 rounds); Harvey Bradshaw in radio (3 rounds), debating (3 rounds); and only five contestants remained. In the opening round of the dramatic contest, Carolyn Clapp was ranked second. The Massachusetts state champion who ranked above her later took third place in the final contest. All these speech events were double-elimination contests, and the elimination continued until only five speakers remained in each event for the final round. Greenville's student participants did so well that I was invited to preside over the Extemporaneous Speaking Final Contest and the awarding of the trophy to the national winner in that division. R. B. STARLING.

The Voice Of The People

Carolyn Clapp in dramatic declamation (3 rounds) and poetry interpretation (3 rounds).

If all the participations were put together as a group achievement, I do not believe any other state's record would match ours. However, the real benefit is in the training received through participation in speech events with other state champions. Greenville's highest achievements included a debate victory over the number one seeded team from Iowa which was rated as having the best chance to win the national trophy. When Harvey Bradshaw was eliminated in the semi-finals in radio,

only five contestants remained. In the opening round of the dramatic contest, Carolyn Clapp was ranked second. The Massachusetts state champion who ranked above her later took third place in the final contest. All these speech events were double-elimination contests, and the elimination continued until only five speakers remained in each event for the final round. Greenville's student participants did so well that I was invited to preside over the Extemporaneous Speaking Final Contest and the awarding of the trophy to the national winner in that division. R. Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
It's not too early to prepare for the camping season. Veteran merchandisers consider a separate "shop" or department, with all camping clothes and needs assembled in one place, the most successful way to seek this business.

For one thing, no mother wants to have to lug one or two children around a store, even a comparatively small store, to pick up various goods. For another, the department approach offers the merchant the best opportunity for suggestive selling. He can display together various goods that a camper may need, and pick up extra sales on items that might not be on mother's list, but that she or the kids will see.

Even one counter will help along the "camp shop" idea, as long as the merchandise is assembled in that area. The department ought to be easily accessible from the street, and promoted, labeled and advertised as a "camp shop" too, with ads and window displays showing coordinated groupings rather than just items.

But to get your share of this business—or more—you need to have one or two really hot leaders, something unique with you, or something you are willing to give unusually good value on. Some stores feature special prices on name tapes; others make tee shirts their leader. Still others tie up with outstanding children's camps in their area, feature their emblems, and offer advice on what's required at these places. A mother is a pretty busy woman when she has to get the youngsters off to camp; she'll appreciate any help you can give.

Don't price camp items too high, one experienced merchandiser advises. If you're out of line on some items, you may lose the sale of the entire outfit. It's worth keeping margins down to make a sale that size.

MANUFACTURER'S DISPLAY HELPS THE RETAILER
Manufacturers trying to dream up display equipment that retailers will really use, and retailers looking for displays that are really useful, can both take a tip from a fixture currently being offered by a lamp manufacturer (Mitchell Manufacturing Co., 2625 Clybourn, Chicago). The display is an integrated table and floor lamp "department" consisting of a permanent wood display completely wired and with space for ten lamps. The lamps are plugged into outlets already wired into the display. The compact fixtures shipped flat and can be adapted for use in furniture stores, electrical shops, hardware stores, radio shops, variety stores and auto supply stores.

Another interesting display is the "Miss Curly doll nurse that presents in a little counter "department," the five first aid items most needed in a home.

CALIFORNIA SEIZES STYLE LEADERSHIP IN HOME GOODS
The way California designers and manufacturers have come to the fore in clothing styling has already made producers in other manufacturing centers—watch West Coast ideas closely. California sports clothes, for men as well as women, are now worn in many parts of the world. Manufacturers in other climes have caught on, and are making "California" styles too.

Now California designers are capturing more of the home furnishing business. Their casually-styled furniture is showing up in many homes far from the West Coast. But the real news is that California pottery now has about 25 per cent of the country's dinnerware business. A year ago, West Coast's gaily-colored but simply-shaped dishes accounted for only 17 per cent.

MEN WEARING MORE SPORTS SHIRTS THAN DRESS TYPES
The influence of California styles upon the country is underscored by what's happening in the shirt business. For the last two months for which records have been issued, January and February, production of sports shirts outstripped output of dress styles. That's partly in anticipation of warm-weather selling ahead, but it's more of a trend than just that. Note that February production of the casual styles was more than 50 per cent higher than the same month a year ago. Not only do men now wear sports shirts most of their leisure time, but comes the first touch of warm weather and many men may wear them to office and business.

Butte, Mont. —(AP)— If Butte ever runs out of copper, it can still rent itself out as the nation's premier atom bomb hide-away.

There are more than 7,000 miles of underground workings—some a mile deep—beneath this "greatest mining camp on earth." They could hold the 8,000,000 population of New York City comfortably. And they could do so with less crowding than Gotham's people get today on the way to work in the subway.

Butte isn't catering to fugitives from an atom-afraid world. The main things Butte is still interested in are metal and fun. It originally sat on "the richest hill in the world," and it still feels it does.

This hill is a swelling Butte, a pimple compared to the Continental Divide mountains around it, that has produced more than $2,500,000,000 in the last 86 years. That wealth has come from gold, silver, zinc and copper—but mostly from copper.

Butte is a Lazarus town. It twice has been given up for dead. But if today it is a civic corpse, then it is the liveliest one in history. It is a deathless town that always has risen from the grave its doubters buried it in—and, still hale and hearty, survives its detractors, those of little faith.

At 86 years of age Butte isn't looking for ghost town retirement. Its problem is to get enough hard rock miners to keep it booming. Founded in 1864, when gold was first discovered, it dwindled to 60 inhabitants by 1874, when the surface placer claims were worked out.

Then for eight years it revived as a silver-mining center. And in 1882 a stubborn Irish immigrant, Marcus Daly, the first of the copper kings, bulled others into a realization of the real pay-dirt—copper, the metal civilization has more everyday uses for than gold.

Fifty years ago even the critics were saying that Butte again was through. They claimed the rich rifts of peacock-ore—the high-bearing veins are multi-colored as a peacock's tail—were about exhausted.

But they were wrong. Today "the richest hill" so far appears still inexhaustible, it produces one-third of the nation's copper and the end isn't in sight.

Our high grade ore is just as good as it ever was," said a spokesman for the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, which owns the hill. "We don't know ourselves how much there is left—we haven't reached the point where it would be worthwhile to make an engineering survey. "But we have reached a point where it is profitable also to mine 150,000,000 tons of low grade ore—and that alone would keep us busy for the next 35 years."

A miner put it more down-to-earth:

"This hill runs clear down to hell. We'll never run out of copper until we dynamite the devil himself."

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Ted Leopold, helicopter pilot who takes on crop-dusting jobs on the west coast, is about to receive a U. S. Treasury Department life saving medal. It will be the 802nd awarded by the department since 1874. Congress in 1874 gave the department permission to honor "anyone who rescues, endeavors to rescue any other person from drowning, shipwreck, or other peril of the water."

Ted Leopold is receiving his for helping Coast Guard seaman Leonard Wisniewski, in his spectacular rescue of a fisherman off the California coast last September. Young Wisniewski received a gold medal, the treasury's 501st award. If the rescue or attempted rescue is made at the risk of one's own life and "evidenced extreme and heroic daring" the medal is gold. For less distinguished cases it's silver.

In the most recent case fisherman Frederick D. Lorets was swept off some rocks and carried out to sea. Seaman Wisniewski, stationed at a Coast Guard station nearby, saw him, jumped into the turbulent waters and swam to his side. Meanwhile, helicopter pilot Leopold, flying over the scene, dropped a rope to young Wisniewski. The seaman wrapped the rope around his own wrist, held on to the drowning man with his right arm. The helicopter dropped them on a cliff.

Treasury officials tell me that of the persons honored over the years 22 have been women. Two of them have received gold medals. The first woman to receive an award was Miss Bertie O. Burr, in June 1892. She got a gold medal. She was the only one who could swim in a group of four young ladies bathing in the rain-swollen Blue River near Crete, Neb. She rescued two who lost their footing in the swift current.

Edna Lewis Wilson, winner of the other gold medal, a Treasury gold medal, was a Treasury man tells me they cost about $200 got it for rescuing two soldiers from Fort Adams, R. I., in 1881, off the Lime Rock Light-house. Ice they were crossing broke up. Mrs. Wilson later rescued some 13 other persons on different occasions.

Confederate Vet Dies, Aged 108

Higginsville, Mo., May 9—(AP)—Uncle Johnny Graves, the nation's oldest confederate veteran, died today. He was 108.

His real name was John Thomas Graves, but everybody knew him as Uncle Johnny.

Until about ten days ago when he became ill, Uncle Johnny could still feed himself, smoke his pipe and chew tobacco.

Smoking, chewing, a place to eat and sleep—that's about all a man of his age could ask, he used to say.

He liked to sit in a rocker at the state confederate veterans home here, reminisce and chat with visitors. He even offered advice on the atom bomb, which he called "the devil's instrument."

"The best thing that all nations can do today is to let well enough alone to keep peace," he said shortly before his 108th birthday anniversary last Jan. 1. No one ever wins in a war and the next one won't be funny."

He was the last veteran in the confederate home which once housed 325 of his fellow soldiers. He had the 92-acre place practically to himself. A few widows of veterans, however, still live there.

It cost the state about $25,000 a year to keep the home open and see that Johnny was properly cared for.

R. H. Chapman, the home's superintendent, said today he did not know whether the institution would be closed now.

Aid Promised To French Indochina By Sec. Acheson

Paris, May 9—(AP)—U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson said tonight American economic and military help will be sent immediately to French Indochina.

The U. S. Secretary of State began a round of cold war talks here by hearing French pleas for speedy help in the southeast Asia territory to hold back the threat of Communism. French officials were said to be "very satisfied" with the results of today's discussions between Acheson and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

Acheson did not specify the amount of aid to be sent Indochina, where the French have been carrying on a shooting war against the forces of Communist-trained Ho Chi Minh for almost four years.

Further Saving On N. C. Project

Raleigh, May 9—(AP)—A saving of about $74,000 has been marked up on another project in the state's huge permanent improvements program.

The Budget Bureau reported yesterday that low bids on a music and fine arts building at North Carolina College at Durham, plus the architects' fees, put the cost at $234,618.30. This is $74,447.70 less than the $309,066 appropriated by the Legislature for the building.

VFW Post Is Sponsoring Show For Band Uniforms

Plans for the presentation of Marie's Dance Review to be sponsored by the Greenville V. F. W. Post have been announced. A spokesman for the local post revealed today.

The Greenville Post plans to sponsor the dance review with the main object of raising funds to purchase new band uniforms for the Greenville High School band.

A solicitation program among the Greenville Merchants got under way this morning. The program will be aimed at obtaining donations towards the buying of new band equipment. All names of persons giving to the solicitation program will appear on the Dance Review program.

It was also pointed out by club officials that all of the money coming from the solicitation program will go entirely for new uniforms, with none of the money going to pay for the cost of the programs or the staging of the dance review.

In addition to the merchants, any person who would like to help buy new uniforms for the High School band is urged to send or bring his contribution to Ralph Tucker at the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, Larry Averette stated.

Averette said that the local club plans to build to the school band fund each year in order to keep the band in top condition.

At the present time there are 60 members in the band. New uniforms cost about $65 each, Principal O. E. Dowd reported. The High School band is called on for many different occasions in the course of a school year, and should look the best possible, a club official voiced.

The present schedule calls for Marie's dance review to be staged on May 26-27, Friday and Saturday nights, at eight o'clock in Austin auditorium.

The review this year is entitled, "Past, Present and Future," featuring over 45 different numbers and skits.

The band uniforms which the local band is using now, were bought in 1938, and since that time only about ten additional uniforms have been purchased to cover the increase in the size of the unit. There are 61 members in the band now, and the cost of equipping the band would be around $3,500, Principal Dowd stated.

Hope For Quiet Demo Convention

Raleigh, N. C. May 8—(AP)—The stage was set today for what state Democratic chairman Everett Jordan hopes will be a routine session of the party's state convention Thursday.

The last convention two years ago—a Presidential election year—voted to send an uninstruced delegation to the National convention. Thus, the party leaders neither endorsed President Truman nor gave overt encouragement to the states' rights group.

Jordan is on record as stating he hopes the convention can finish its business early enough in time for its more than 3,000 delegates to return to their homes the same day.

Former Governor R. Gregg Cherry, a key man in keeping the party from bolting the National Democratic ranks in crucial 1948, will draw up the tentative platform for the convention.

Secretary of State Thad Eure will give the keynote which he has promised. I will be a record breaker for brevity.

Large Part Of City Covered By Flood Waters

Winnipeg, Manitoba, May 8—(AP)—Hundreds of blocks of this great prairie city lay beneath a sea of muddy water today as troops and civilian volunteers worked wearily to bolster sagging levees against a new flood threat from North Dakota and Minnesota.

Silt-laden water swirled through many Winnipeg streets, paralyzing communications and transport on the outskirts, and authorities warned that the worst is yet to come.

The city may face two flood crests as spring torrents pour down the Red River from the rain-soaked northern United States. The first crest is expected within the next few days.

Meanwhile, the Canadian army warned some 1,500 residents in low lying areas to flee at once because the dikes might break at any time.

India Expecting British Capital

Salmon, Halibut Fishing Related At Rotary Meet

By WYATT BROWN
Salmon and halibut fishing in Alaska was described last night for the Rotarians by Ed Strand of Seattle, Washington, who will graduate from East Carolina Teachers College next Monday. On returning from his World War II Army service Strand went up to Alaska to do commercial fishing.

Strand worked in a fish cannery as dishwasher and spud peeler his first two summers and a half. Then, he went salmon fishing.

Salmon fishing is done much like had seining according to Strand's account. A net twelve hundred feet long and sixty feet deep is anchored on the shore. The loose end is taken out at right angle to the shore. Here it is left for fish—salmon—to drift into the net. After a proper length of time the end out into the water is hauled to shore and the fish caught dipped out.

The fishing is done in coves and bays. The season lasts three weeks and two days. A five hundred dollar earning is considered good.

The next season Strand said he fished for halibut which is done in big water. The season starts the first of May while it is still snowing, sleeting and hailing. Strand said the clothing was quite bulky—heavy woolen long underwear, woolen pants and shirt, boots, gloves, and over all this is worn oil skins.

The schedule of a typical day on a halibut fishing boat begins for the cook at 2:30 a.m. when he gets

Young Agricultural Engineers See Drainage Project

State college's senior drainage class of sixteen young agricultural engineers visited Julius Parker's farm in Belvoir yesterday to learn about the draining of wet land in the county. In the above photo the group is clustered around the big tile trenching machine as it starts to cut a three and one-half foot ditch for the tile to be laid. The class was under the direction of Professors T. V. Wilson and Ellis G. Dieker, drainage engineers of State College. The project was explained to the students by Parker, who operates the machine and W. C. Eagles of the Pitt County Soil Conservation Service. (Reflector staff photo by Roy Hardee).

up to prepare coffee and rolls for the crew. With breakfasts ready the cook calls the crew and then the cook goes back to bed. The crew eat and then lay out the fishing gear. They wake up the cook at 5 a.m. to prepare the big breakfast while the crew retires for another hour's nap.

Dinner was usually beef and a vegetable. The evening meal was always fish fried, stewed or boiled—this was popular, the narrator insisted for the Scandinavians who made up the crew.

The young ex-fisherman said it looked strange to him that the liver from the halibut brought as much as all the rest of the fish would sell for even though some halibut run to 300 pounds. The liver sells for $3.13 a pound.

In conclusion the student from the Northwest availed himself the opportunity to say how "thoroughly pleasurable" his stay in Greenville had been for the past four years.

Howard Hodges, Jr. was a guest of the Rotarians last night. Visiting Rotarians were: George Davis and Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville and Frank Kilpatrick of Ayden. Erce Webb, club president, reminded the Greenville Rotarians that the Rotary conference at Wrightsville Beach was next week and that Robert Humber, a Greenville Rotarian, would be one of the speakers on the program.

Charles White spoke of the fine cooperation the citizens are affording the college in bringing entertainment programs to Greenville. He asked the Rotarians to indicate how many tickets they would take for next season. Eleven finer programs are planned, he told the Rotarians.

Raleigh, N. C., May 9—(P)—North Carolina Traffic hit an all-time peak last month.

On an average day in April, 68,102 vehicles passed the highway commission's 20 counting machines, the commission reported yesterday. The previous high, 67,623, was marked up last August.

James S. Burch, commission statistics and planning engineer pointed out that August usually is the peak month, and added: "This great increase in traffic so early this year gives some indication of how crowded the highways will become this summer."

Goldsboro Rallies To Down Robins In 3-2 Pitching Duel

Locals Take Early Lead But Edged Out Despite Brilliant Performance By Lewey; Visitors Score Winning Run In Final Frame

By BERT MOYE

Manager Jimmy Herbinson's Goldsboro Cardinals rallied for single runs in the eighth and ninth innings here last night to win a pitcher's battle with the Robins by a 3-2 margin. The win for the Cardinals was their third straight over the Robins this season.

The Robins went out in front 2-0 in the first two innings by putting across singletons in the first and second frames. In the first inning Charlie Ouzts walked, advanced to second on Scarpa's infield out, Paul Strausser was walked and when George Hall forced Strausser at second, Ouzts raced home from third when on the relay back to first in a double play attempt, First Baseman Smith let the ball get away from him.

The Robins ended their scoring for the night in the second frame when Matthew Hall and Joe Allegritti led off with a walk. Fleming Flott forced Hall at third, Jim Lewey got a short single into left field and when Allegritti tried to make it home on the out was thrown out at the plate with Flott taking second. Charlie Ouzts then singled to bring in Flott. The Cardinals came back in the top of the third to put across one run when Fred LeClaire doubled into the left field, advanced to third on a wild pitch and came home on Chuck Sedor's infield out.

Trailing by one run as the eighth started, Chuck Sedor doubled to left and scored on a single by Jack Hinkle. In the ninth, Jim Mellinger singled, went to second on Bill Johnson's infield out, and came in with the winning run when Manager Jim Herbinson got a hit into rightfield.

Jim Lewey went the route for the Robins and gave up only seven hits, four of which were collected by the Cardinals in the last two innings. He struck out a total of 13 men and did not issue a single walk. The loss for Lewey was his third straight of the season.

Jack Hinkle with two singles in four trips to the plate was the only Cardinal able to get more than one hit off the offerings of Lewey.

Two Cardinal hurlers, Fred LeClaire and Bobby Watts, faced the Robins and limited the locals to two long singles during the contest. LeClaire, who pitched the first seven frames, gave up these two hits but was free with walks, allowing 11 men to reach first via this route. Bobby Watts pitched two innings of hitless ball to get credit for the win.

Both of the Robins' hits came in the second frame with Charlie Ouzts and Jim Lewey getting them and which incidentally enabled the Robins to put across their second run of the game.

The Robins journey over to Goldsboro tonight to meet the Cardinals in a return game and return home Wednesday night to meet the New Bern Bears in the first of a two-game series.

Joseph Griffin, limited service hurler for the Robins, was given his release by the local club yesterday. It was announced by Business Manager Russ Filley.

Bucs Down Naval Air Nine By 6-4

Five-Run First Frame Provides Margin Of Victory; East Carolina Plays Atlantic Christian In Wilson This Afternoon

By BILL LLOYD

Sonny Russell's 360-foot circuit clout in the first inning with Jack Wallace on second provided the winning margin for Coach Jack Boone's East Carolina Pirates when they defeated a visiting Norfolk Naval Base Receiving Station nine, 6-4, here Monday afternoon.

The Bucs will take on Atlantic Christian's Bulldogs in Wilson Tuesday afternoon in a battle for the ancient Bohunk trophy. Coach Boone planned to call on his ace hurler, Lefty Bob McCotter, to avenge an earlier 13-9 loss handed the Bucs by the Bulldogs. A win over ACC might send the Pirates into third place in the North State Conference, depending on the outcome of games elsewhere this week.

On Monday afternoon's encounter the Bucs jumped on the Bluejackets' starting hurler, Bill Weidman, for five runs in the initial frame. Frank Ceruzzi led off with a free pass to first and advanced to second on Bob Bailey's infield single. Fred Soles followed with another infield hit to fill the bases. Jack Wallace slashed a sharp drive into centerfield for a single to push Ceruzzi and Bailey across with two runs. The centerfielder let the ball get by him, allowing Soles to score and Wallace to take second. Sonny Russell then slammed a 3-2 pitch over the left field wall 360 feet away to drive home Wallace, and give the Pirates a commanding 5-0 lead which they never relinquished.

After Russell's four-bagger, Jack Kuzman took to the mound for the Navy nine and performed a remarkable relief job. In his eight innings on the mound he twirled three-hit ball and allowed only one run which was unearned.

It came in the sixth when Leon Jones singled to left and the hot ground ball rolled between the leftfielder's legs. Jones went to third on the play and was awarded another base when the visiting third baseman threw his glove at the ball on the throw-in.

Freshman George McCullen started on the mound for East Carolina and hurled effective six-hit ball for seven innings. However, he showed signs of weakness in the eighth and had to receive aid from Hal Whitehouse.

Jack Wallace, flashy second baseman for the Pirates, led the winners at the plate with two for four. Sonny Russell's homer was his first of the season, and was hit harder than any ball hit in College stadium this year.

Stengel Asserts Detroit Is Best Yanks Have Met

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
Rival big league managers are beginning to talk about Red Rolfe's hustling Detroit Tigers with a great deal of respect.

Baseball men who previously had regarded the Tigers as "just another first division club," are openly giving the Bengals a good chance to win the American League flag.

Casey Stengel, skipper of the New York Yankees, is the latest to climb aboard the Detroit bandwagon. Not that he thinks his Yankees won't repeat. But he now rates the Tigers even with Boston's powerful Red Sox as the teams he expects to give him his toughest fight.

"Detroit is the best looking club we've faced thus far," he said yesterday following the Tigers' 7-1 triumph over his world champions. "Except for one inning (Sunday's eighth), Rolfe's guys looked like a real top-notch outfit.

"They're going to be tough, you can bet on that. Especially when (Hal) Newhouse comes around. I don't like to talk about players on other clubs, but that (Art) Houtteman looked like the best pitcher in the league out there today."

Newhouse, out all season with a lame left shoulder, is ready to try out his arm. Rolfe is waiting for the proper moment to take the wraps off him. The 28-year-old southpaw with four 20-game seasons behind him, won 18 last year.

Even without Hal, the Tigers today were leading the league. Although tied with Boston in games won and lost, the Tigers lead the Red Sox by 64 percentage points. They've won 10 of 14 starts while the Sox have won 13 of 20.

The two clubs meet in the first of an important three-game series at Fenway Park today.

It was a cold, raw April afternoon in Ebbetts Field and the occasion was the Phillies' first series of the season with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Robin Roberts was resting in the visiting club's quarters awaiting the call to warm up for his pitching assignment. He had beaten Brooklyn in Philadelphia, something he had not been able to accomplish last season, so someone suggested that it could indicate that he was going to have a fine season—possibly join the select circle of 30-game winners.

Newhouse Says He's Ready To Go; May Be Factor In Detroit's Race

New York, May 9—(AP)—Hal Newhouse, highest paid pitcher in baseball who has been plagued with a mysterious shoulder ache, is ready to play again, he said today.

The Detroit Tigers, without him, are on top in the American League, and if Newhouse can still come up with another 20-game winning season it could be a decisive factor in the pennant race.

"I expect to go soon," said Hal. "Now is the time for us to make our move. It would help a lot if we could get at some good ball clubs and pound 'em into the ground."

Maps, Hegan Lead American League At Bat

Chicago, May 9—(AP)—The top ten batters in the American League are clicking at 366 or better—a fast pace led by Cliff (Tazman) Maps, New York Yankee outfielder and catcher Jim Hegan of Cleveland.

In statistics officially computed through Sunday's games, Maps had authored 406 with 13 blows in 32 times at bat. Hegan had 405 with 15 hits in 37 trips.

Chapter 28
The minute the door closed behind them, Morton said, "You know William's not doing well in America?" "I didn't, no."
"They're talking of dropping him from the cast of this picture."
"But he's under contract."
"For a time, yes. But they needn't use him, and they won't. They will keep him hanging about, offering him chicken feed or nothing. But he can't take any other offer. What will he do, living there for three years with no work?"
Katherine went to the window and looked at the garden. She said stiffly, "He has his wife out there. Surely she can help him."
"I hear that's breaking up, too. Magda isn't interested in failures."
"What do you want me to do?" she asked.
"For your own sake, take this job. It's a great chance for you, and I want to do it."
"What has this to do with William?"
"I have told you, I am not interested in William."

the mountains beneath the moonlight.
It was three hours later when William turned through the white gates of his home. It had been a glorious evening. They had proceeded from bar to bar, arguing and talking, and all the old lovedly locked up words had come spouting to the surface again, and he had avoided going home until the last possible moment.

He stood in the darkness of the kitchen, shivering in the warm night air. There was a step near the door and the light was switched on. Mr. Hamlyn, small, dark and neat as a penguin in his dinner jacket, stood in the door. He looked at William with a curious mixture of impatience and pity. "I thought I heard the door. William, I've been waiting to speak to you."

Agree To Berlin Voting If Conditions Accepted

Berlin, May 9—(AP)—Russia says she will agree to a city-wide election in Berlin if Allied troops moved more than 100 miles back to West Germany. There appears little chance the Soviet condition will be accepted.

Along with four other demands calculated to give East German Communists the upper hand in the elections, a Russian note last night proposed withdrawal of all occupation troops from the city. Russian troops would need to move only to Berlin's outskirts. American, British and French soldiers would have to go to the Soviet zone border on Elbe River, more than 100 miles to the west.

Guarded but cool first reactions to the Russian response were registered by two of the three Western commandants who three weeks ago proposed the city-wide ballot. Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the American occupation chief here, said he found "little encouragement" in the Russian note. The British commandant, Maj. Gen. Geoffrey K. Bourne, termed the reply "a very roundabout way of saying 'no'."

Taylor added he found "some consolation" that "even the Soviets cannot be silent before the deep desire of Berlin to be reunited."

American hens averaged 81 eggs in the cold first and last quarters of 1949, compared to 41 in 1925.

Good Weather

The Greenville area during the past several days experienced typical spring and summer weather, with the temperature ranging from the upper 50s at night to the upper 70s during the day.

Highest temperature in the Greenville area Monday at 71 degrees; lowest during last night was 46, and at 5 a. m. today the mercury stood at 50 degrees.

Mrs. C. E. Maiden, observer here for the U. S. Department of Commerce, reported.

Rainfall in the Greenville area during the first eight days of May was three and one-tenth inches.

China Reds Say Americans Freed

Tokyo, May 9—(AP)—The Chinese Communists broadcast today they are releasing two American airmen from whom they extorted "spy confessions" after 18 months in prison.

The official Peiping radio said the two airmen, E. C. Bender and W. C. Smith, will be deported. Marine Master Sgt. Elmer C. Bender, Cincinnati, and Navy Chief Electrician William C. Smith, Long Beach, Calif., were forced down October 19, 1948, on a flight from Tsingtao, then a U. S. naval base.

They have been held incommunicado. The Reds stiffly rejected all efforts to obtain their release.

The Communist radio broadcast this statement by Gen. Hsu Shih-Yuh, commander of the Shantung military district.

"It was not until lately that Bender and Smith, influenced by our magnanimous policy toward prisoners, began to confess..."

The history of Communism is full of similar "confessions," obtained after long imprisonment.

Historic Map Is Up For Action

New York, May 9—(AP)—A world map—the first one that America ever got its name on—is to be sold at auction.

It's 443 years old, and its owner, Franz Joseph II, reigning prince of Liechtenstein, lays down one requirement for the sale:

Only bids exceeding $50,000 are acceptable.

The map, the only known copy of a world globular map printed in 1507, is believed the first to show the western hemisphere and to designate it "America."

The man who put America's name on the map was Martin Waldseemüller, a German mapmaker, who wrote that the new world should be called America because of the voyages into that area of Amerigo Vesputti.

The map, consisting of globular segments presumably designed to be cut out and shaped into a globe, was handed down to Prince Franz Joseph by his forbears.

Pair Charged In Theft Of Motors And Fuel Supply

Two young men identified by members of the Sheriff's department as David Bunting, 19, and James Forrest, 20, are being held in Pitt county jail charged with the theft of two outboard motors, 10 quarts of oil and five gallons of gasoline from a camp near the port terminal on April 23.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the youths admitted taking the items from a camp on Hardee creek owned by Seth Harrington. He said the pair has been charged with breaking and entering and larceny. The two waived preliminary hearing and have been bound over to Superior court. $500 bond was set for each of the youths, but neither had posted bond by today, Tyson said.

The sheriff said Bunting was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Arthur (Duke) Anderson Friday night, and Forrest was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Jasper Lee Mills Sunday night.

Spurious Smokes In West Europe

Richmond, Va., May 9—(AP)—Tobacco interests said today that three of the "big five" American cigarette brands are being counterfeited in a number of western European countries.

The spurious smokes, described as pretty authentically packaged and even bearing phoney U. S. internal revenue stamps, were reported being widely distributed in France, Belgium, Italy, Luxembourg and western Germany.

Report Destruction Of Invasion Craft By Raid

Taipei, May 9—(AP)—The Nationalist Chinese air force today reported it sank the better part of 2,800 Communist invasion craft in a blistering attack on three ports opposite Formosa.

The small craft, presumably assembled for a Red invasion attempt against Formosa, were trapped in surprise raids on the ports of Swatow, Amoy and Foochow. The three are likely bases for the projected Red invasion of Formosa.

The biggest concentration of small craft, mostly junks, was found at the mouth of the Min River near Foochow. The air force said some 2,000 or more small craft were trapped there.

The air force also reported a fresh air attack Monday night on Ningpo, 90 miles south of Shanghai. Communist defenders of the Ningpo air field put up a heavy anti-craft fire, but the Nationalists said most of the field's installations were destroyed by bombs.

Other Nationalist Warplanes Blasted Red Artillery Positions On Chintang, One of Communist Held Islands of the Chushan Group. The Reds have shelled Chushan's main islands from Chintang, which is only three miles away.

Dispatches belatedly reported that Nationalist warships fought a three hour battle with 200 Communist small craft near Chushan on May 6 and sank more than half of the Red flotilla.

Judgments On Civil Actions In Superior Court

Eight cases were disposed of yesterday in Superior Court as the first term of May civil court got underway with Judge Henry Grady of New Bern presiding. The eight included five divorces.

The three other civil actions with judgments were:

J. L. Williams vs. Columbia Fire Insurance Company—plaintiff to recover $250 for damage to tobacco on the floor of Growers Warehouse caused by rain leaking through the roof during September 1947, and $11.50 costs of action. Plaintiff originally asked for $2,840.

James H. and Mabel K. Tucker vs. Hobert Whisenant—compromised settlement of $2,500 for injuries received in automobile accident and ensuing disablement. Plaintiff originally asked for $15,000.

A. J. Melton vs. J. W. Hardy—defendant pays $1,300.70 and costs of action for failure to settle loan for farming purposes.

Three women jurors were in the box for the hearing in the Tucker-Whisenant case. That is the largest number of women sitting for one case in the history of Pitt County.

Pooling Of Wealth

Paris, May 9—(AP)—France suggested international pooling of Europe's coal and steel wealth today as a necessary step to keep peace in the world.

More than 12 million Government insurance policies have been dropped by veterans since World War II.

Vote Reduction In Cigar Excises

Washington, May 9—(AP)—The house ways and means committee reversed itself today and voted to cut cigar excises by $15,000,000 a year.

The slash, if finally approved, would reduce the $45,000,000 annual tax on cigar smokers by one-third. The committee previously had refused to cut the cigar tax.

House-To-House Recruit Drive

Winston-Salem, N. C., May 9—(AP)—Winston-Salem has been selected as one of the first cities in the nation for a house-to-house recruiting campaign to get men for the army.

The campaign here opened at 8 a. m. today when recruiters began ringing doorbells. Virtually every home in Winston-Salem will be visited, officials said.

for rendering further assistance to Indochina and to Red guerrillas in other countries.

There is no doubt that Indochina is in grave danger from the Communists. If they succeed in gaining control there they fall heirs to a great wealth of rice and other foodstuffs, as well as minerals and rubber. By the same token the Western world loses an invaluable military base and a storehouse of resources.

Control of Indochina would be a godsend to the Communist government in China. One of the Peiping regime's gravest dangers rests in its inability to meet the call of China's millions for food, especially with a disastrous famine sweeping the great Yangtze valley and threatening the lives of some 20,000,000 people, many of whom now are reportedly subsisting on grass roots and bark.

Cloture Is Much Harder To Get Than A Simple Majority Vote On A Bill

That's not all.

In the senate there's a difference between a "motion" and a "measure." A "measure" is simply a bill like the FEPC bill and the measure and motion go like this:

Before the senate can consider a bill, some senator has to make motion to bring up the bill for consideration. If a simple majority of these present vote approval of the motion, then the senate can consider the bill. Then, after debate, the senate can vote on the bill itself.

But, until a motion to bring up a bill is approved, there can be neither consideration nor action on the bill.

The motion is made to bring up the FEPC bill. Immediately the southerners begin their filibuster, not on the bill itself, but on the motion to bring it up. The purpose: To prevent the senate from even voting on the motion to bring up the bill.

If, finally, the rest of the senators vote cloture on the filibuster, they then vote on the motion to bring up the bill. As soon as the
