Mediators Give Up In Rail Dispute; Strike Is Started

Mediation Board Says Report On Deadlock Will Be Submitted To Washington; Firemen And Enginemen Strike Against Four Key Systems

Chicago, May 10—(AP)—A strike of railroad firemen crippled the nation's rail network today and within a few hours mediators abandoned hope of quick settlement.

Francis A. O'Neill, chairman of the National (railway) mediation board said "we've given up."

He added that a report on the deadlock will be submitted to Washington.

The board had tried in continuous session since 9 p. m. last night to reach some agreement.

Asked what the next step would be, O'Neill replied "I can't say until we make our report to Washington." He added:

"We have been unable to get anywhere. For the last three or four days we have been working on a 'package' deal with the brotherhood." He declined to say what the "package" contained.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive firemen and enginemen, one of the five big operating unions, struck against four key systems in the nation's rail network at 6 a. m. local standard time today.

Their walkout was to enforce demands for hiring a second fireman on multiple diesel unit locomotives. The railroads, whose contention had been upsheld by Presidential fact finding boards, maintention had been upheld by presand that as the second fireman would be unneeded on a diesel which has no fire to tend.

The Brotherhood insisted the man should be added as a safety measure

O'Neill said no further sessions were scheduled and added:

"If either side wants to resume talks they can notify me."

The strike tied a knot in the nation's vast railroad network in its early stages.

Before the negotiators collapsed Roob Allie, secretary of the Michigan Association of railroads, said he was informed all demands of the Brotherhood had been settled except that one for assignment of a firemen to switchers of less than 90,000 pounds.

The New York Central, one of the struck lines, uses a fireman on such engines now. The Pennsylvania does not. Other lines whose operations are crippled by the walkout are the Southern Railway, serving the south, and the Santa Fe, a principal carrier between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

At 8 a. m. Central Standard time the strike became effective across the nation. The Brotherhood used a creeping technique in putting the walkout in force. Instead of a simultaneous walkout, the men struck at 6 a. m. in their local standard time zones.

As a result the strike on the New York Central and Pennsylvania was three hours old when it started against the Santa Fe on the Pacific coast. It was the first major strike since May 1946.

Pickets representing the 18,000 firemen on strike appeared at key points.

The tactic of striking four principal carriers inconvenienced, but did not strand, the traveling public. Trains on runs at the time of the strike's zero hour continued on to their terminals

Travelers between major terminal cities could make their trips on competing lines. Those relying on local service of the striking lines had to switch to buses or other modes of transport.

Big freight customers transferred their shipping from the struck lines to alternate systems.

Large Gathering Seen For State Demo Convention

Some Observers Predict Between 4,000 And 5,000 To Attend Meeting

Raleigh, May 10—(AP)—An outsize gathering of party members for tomorrow's biennial Democratic State convention appeared a prospect today.

Solid bookings for tonight were reported by the city's two largest hotels. Officials added that they had to decline numerous requests from Democrats who wanted to be here for the meeting.

Some observers predicted that between 4,000 and 5,000 will be here for the convention. There are about 3,100 authorized delegates, but some counties double their delegations by giving each member a half-vote.

The campaign for the party nomination to the U. S. senate was viewed as at least partially responsible for the indicated high interest in the meeting.

Three of the candidates are expected to attend the convention—Senator Frank Graham, Willis Smith of Raleigh, and former Senator Robert R. Reynolds of Asheville. Olla Ray Boyd of Pinetown, the fourth candidate, has not indicated whether he plans to attend

The convention will be called to order at noon in Memorial auditorium. Two hours earlier, the 12 congressional district meetings are scheduled in various downtown buildings.

Secretary of State Thad Eure, who will be the keynote speaker, finished work on his speech yesterday. There will be no changes he said, "unless some event of great significance occurs between now and the convention." Eure added that his speech will run between 26 and 29 minutes—which would be a record for shortness.

Former Governor R. Gregg Cherof Gastonia also has completed the preliminary draft of the platform to be submitted to the platform committee and then to the full convention. Cherry is chairman of the platform committee.

State Chairman Everett Jordan has announced that no invitations are being sent to party leaders who customarily sit on the auditorium stage during the convention.

He said, "however, all members of the congressional delegation, the governor, ex-governors, their wives, the judiciary, heads of state departments and other active Democrats will be expected to occupy their usual seats."

Hint President May Veto Bill

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Reports persisted today that President Truman may veto the bill authorizing flood control and navigation projects estimated to cost $1,730,000,000.

Senator Magnuson said "there have been some hints that the bill might be vetoed."

He left Weshington last night to join the President's train at either Pendleton, Ore., or Pasco, Wash., today, and confer with him.

Local Airport Is Included In CAA Nat'l Program

Improvements Recommended During Next 3 Years; Nature Unspecified

(From the Reflector's Washington Bureau)

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Further improvement of the Pitt-Greenville airport during the next three years has been recommended by the Civil Aeronautics Administration as part of its revised national airport program.

Rep. Herbert C. Bonner of Washington was informed by CAA of the inclusion of the Greenville airport in the program. The nature of the proposed improvements was not specified but they would not alter the field's present Class four rating.

The airport was one of eighty-seven in North Carolina recommended by CAA for construction or improvement during the next few years, at a total cost of $18,941,000, of which $8,979,000 would be in federal funds.

No funds, federal or sponsor, are assured by the inclusion of an airport in the national plan, it was pointed out, but on the basis of congressional appropriations, CAA will include in its program for the next fiscal year those locations which show the greatest need.

Willard T. Kyzer, manager of the Greenville chamber of commerce and a member of the Pitt-Greenville airport commission, commented this morning, "We're glad to see they are keeping us in mind with this program, because we hope we are going to need it."

He explained that each year the CAA has included the Pitt-Greenville airport in its program so if air service is obtained for the airport there will be money available to construct an administration building and other necessary facilities. Kyzer said the cost of such construction usually is paid with 50 per cent from federal funds and 50 per cent from local funds.

Get First Look At Loyalty Files

Probers Look Over Files On 81 Persons Named By Solon

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Senate investigators got their first look today at loyalty files on 81 persons named by Senator McCarthy in his charges of Communism in the government.

Four members of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee began looking them over at the White House shortly before 10 a m. They were chairman Tydings and senators McMahon, Green and Lodge.

Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, said the files were brought to the White House executive offices about an hour before the senators arrived.

Before he went to the White House, Tydings told reporters it was his understanding that the files "contained not only all of the data which the State Department investigators have assembled but also all the loyalty data which the FBI has gatheredhas gathered and referred to the state department, and which has been made a part of these files."

Tydings said the committee members intend to pursue the examination of the files "with all diligence possible commensurate with our other duties in Congress."

The senators did their file inspecting in the cabinet room.

Draft Law Gets Quick Clearance

Washington, May 10 — (AP) — The House Rules Committee today quickly cleared for House consideration a two-year extension of the military draft law.

The bill was speeded toward a vote less than a week after the House Armed Services Committee heard an evaluation of the cold war's development from the nation's top military chiefs.

Administration And Patrol Are Linked In Scott Progress Review

Governor Kerr Scott yesterday addressed members of Troop A of the Highway Patrol as 'members of the Administration" and told them they would "not be out of line" in correcting "mean statements" about his administration.

Here to inspect the Troop yesterday at noon, Governor Scott spoke to the patrol and members' wives and guests at a barbecue dinner at Respess'.

In an informal talk, which was sh[illegible]th humor, Scott outlined [illegible]ogress of the Patrol to date [illegible]hen went into a general outline of the progress of his administration.

The Governor stated he worked through the legislature and the Patrol's lobbyists to get higher pay for the men and other projects benefitting the statewide organization of law enforcement. He said the administration "wants to work with you because you are agents of the state."

Later he informed the men that they were direct members of the administration and that statements to the effect that it was not doing its job could be corrected by patrol members when they informed people of what the administration was trying to do for the people.

In stating what he had tried to do for the state, Scott reviewed his programs, commenting on work for stamping out tuberculosis, the mental hospital program, good health program and enlargement of the Utilities commission. He touched lightly on last year's road and school bond vote, saying those two programs were familiar to all persons.

And he stated he had no program "in mind other than those programs which will benefit the persons of North Carolina in helping to increase the general welfare of the state." He said the 1949 legislature did not increase any taxes except where the people voted to increase them. "We are not spending a cent of money we do not have," he stated.

On the basis of his inaugurated statewide program, Scott stated that in the "next 25 years North Carolina will enter the greatest era of prosperity it has known—when programs underway now are completely developed." He told the members, "I need your help."

He qualified his statement to the men about correcting persons who were critical of the administration, saying it "depends on who you're talking to as to whether the administration is good or bad.

"If you're talking to a banker, the administration is bad because they are not able to draw interest on state funds any more. If you are talking to persons who are for better roads and schools, the administration is doing all right. It just depends who you're talking to."

The Troop was urged to save as much money on expense accounts as possible. They were told that if they saved one-and-two-thirds cents each day, $1,000,000 could be saved by the troops throughout the state at the end of his tenure as governor. He urged them to refrain from eating at prison camps in the future because in the past "those hogs have been checking up with no hams and no sidemeat."

More recently, though, he said the "hogs have been reported with two hams apiece and plenty of sidemeat at the end of the year."

After Scott left for Raleigh, a meeting of the troop was held for the first time under its new captain, S. H. Mitchell. He greeted each patrolman as they rose to call their names. Major Lambert, Patrol executive officer and formerly head of Troop A, spoke to the group in his first return since he accepted the new job. Patrol Colonel J. R. Smith was present but did not address the group.

Barkley Names Five Senators In Crime Inquiry

Washington, May 10 — (AP) — Vice President Barkley today named five senators to conduct a nationwide investigation of crime and corruption after noting that he had not discussed it with President Truman.

Named to conduct the sweeping probe were Senators Kefauver (D-Tenn), who first proposed the investigation, and O'Conor (D-Md), Hunt (D-Wyo), Tobey (R-NH), and Wiley (R-Wis).

The inquiry to be made by a special committee representing both commerce and judiciary committees was voted a $150,000 fund by the Senate when the probe was finally ordered.

Barkley's unusual announcement that President Truman had not been consulted about either the committee to make the inquiry or its membership apparently reflected earlier Republican charges.

Exceptions To Holiday Rules

Raleigh N. C., May 10— (AP) — Workers in the state advertising division today were a lonely exception to the rule that state offices take a holiday for Confederate Memorial day.

Director Charles Parker and his staff worked all day in a deserted Education building. The staff had volunteered to come in in order to catch up on more than 3,000 inquiries about North Carolina's vacation facilities which came in yesterday and Monday.

States Righters Pledge Fight Against Fair Deal

Jackson, Miss., May 10—(AP)—States Rights leaders pledged today an all-out, two-year fight to stifle President Truman's Fair Deal program.

Resolutions endorsed last night by the executive committee rake what it terms the "Truman welfare state" and advocate a south-wide rebellion against it.

Delegates for today's meeting are expected from 14 states including several thousand Mississippians.

Many of the home staters already are keyed up by Senator Harry F. Byrd's blistering attack at Cleveland, Miss., against "heading down the road to socialism."

The executive committee also adopted an ambitious plan for precinct-by-precinct organization in a fight for full control of all deep-south states.

They believe this would give them the balance of power in the 1952 Democratic convention.

One of their chief pegs in a "grass roots" organizing plan was outlined by a group of Baylor University students here from Waco, Tex.

Bob Slimp, Baylor student, said his group had more than 200 States Rights members in that school. They also, he added, have recruits on every Texas college campus.

Slimp suggested, and the committee approved, the use of college students as "shock troops" for house-to-house work in the proposed intensive campaign for southern states.

Thousands Homeless In Midwest Flood States

By the Associated Press

Seventeen persons were dead or missing and more thousands were homeless today as the most damaging floods in years swept over three midwest states.

Human misery rose in the flood areas of North Dakota, Minnesota and Nebraska. Scores of communities were isolated as the surging waters from rain-swollen rivers and streams spilled out over thousands of acres of land.

Across the border in southern Manitoba, the flood crisis mounted. The homeless was some 15,000, and another 10,000 faced evacuation.

All the fatalities were in Nebraska. One of the worst floods in nearly 50 years struck the southeastern section of the state yesterday. Seven bodies had been recovered. Hope was abandoned for the other 10 missing persons.

The flash floods that hit southeast Nebraska followed downpours earlier in the week. The waves of water engulfed homes and swept cars from highways. Most of the dead were highway travelers caught by the floodwaters.

Seven or eight passengers in a Burlington bus enroute from Nebraska City to Lincoln were caught in a crushing wave of water on a highway near Unadilla. Three passengers survived by hanging to trees. Four Nebraska City persons lost their lives when their car was swept from a highway near Auburn by floodwaters.

Annual Parade Of Children And Rites At Courthouse

By CHESTER WALSH

Members of the George B. Singletary Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy, with the assistance and cooperation of City Schools Supt. June H. Rose, today presented their annual memorial service at the Confederate monument on the courthouse lawn.

A parade of the Greenville high school band and students from the school to the courthouse featured the day.

Announcements by Program Chairman June H. Rose was followed by the invocation by Rev. Leonard Topping, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, reminded that the Greenville High School is one of the few in North Carolina which has each year paraded its band and students and participated in the Confederate Memorial exercises on May 10.

Ray Sears, High School student, recited the story of "The Sword of Lee," and Peggy Joyce Barrow recited "The Nameless Nation."

The High School band drew applause when it played "The Old North State," with the assemblage singing the first verse and chorus.

The High School Glee Club sang two verses of "Tenting Tonight."

While the High School band played "My Old Kentucky Home" students placed flowers on the Confederate monument on the courthouse alwn.

The High School Glee Club sang "The Lord's Prayer," with Miss Ona Shindler directing.

The High School band under the direction of James D. Rodgers, concluded the exercises by playing an old southern song, "Oh, Sus-

President Acts To Bolster U. S. Atomic Strength

Signs Nat'l Science Foundation Act; Says Cold War Will Be Prolonged

Aboard Truman Train, May 10—(AP)—President Truman acted today to bolster the nation's atomic strength as he held out the grim prospect that the cold war with Russia will continue "for a long, long time."

He disclosed, in a speech at Pocatello, Idaho, the signing of the National Science Foundation Act. He said it will keep the United States ahead in scientific developments and help it "exert a more vital force for peace."

The critical international situation was uppermost in the President's expressed thoughts as he began, at 6 a.m. (Mountain Time) the first of 14 talks on a swing through Idaho and Oregon.

"The first atomic explosion in history took place in the desert of New Mexico in July, 1945," he said in a speech, prepared for his train-side audience at Pocatello.

"I decided at that time that I would do my utmost to see that this new discovery was used in a way which would make the world a better place to live in.

In a separate statement, Mr. Truman said the act, creating an independent agency to promote scientific research, will add to the store of knowledge which is "indispensable to our continued growth, prosperity and security."

The Pocatello speech followed a solemn foreign policy address last night at Laramie, Wyo. in which he promised ultimate victory for the free nations in their struggle against the "new and terrible tyranny" of Russia.

"This is a long-time project," the President asserted. "I know that the American people are impatient. But in this instance, we must be more than patient.

"The conflict that exists in world affairs will be with us for a long, long time.

"There is no quick way, no easy way, to end it."

He gave assurance, however, that "the non-Communist nations together have two-thirds of the world's people and three-fourths of the world's productive power" plus "the greatest attraction of all—human freedom."

"I say again that we have a long task," Mr. Truman declared. "It may be many years before we can be sure that communism is no longer a threat, that our goals of stability and peace have been attained. But those goals are clearly within our reach."

Providing Safeguards

Bevin And Acheson's Peculiar Position In Protecting Economic Strength, And At Same Time Providing Military Security; European Unity Is Major Endeavor

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

British Foreign Minister Bevin and U.S. Secretary of State Acheson are up against a particularly tough problem in their London discussion of ways and means for winning the cold war.

They are confronted with the pressing need of safeguarding the economic position of the democracies, while at the same time they must provide a military security which is sapping the economic life.

It is a vicious circle which has been produced by Soviet strategy.

However, many close observers hold that the Western nations have been contributing (inadvertently, but none the less contributing) to the success of this Russian scheme through lack of organization. While the Communists are presenting an ostensibly solid front, the Western nations continue to find difficulties in cooperating.

The London Times (Liberal with Conservative leanings) declares that "at no time since the war have Western statesmen gathered in graver circumstances."

The Times says that far more has been heard recently about the doubts and differences that divide the Western powers than about the tremendous enterprises and common interests that unite them. The paper thinks the reverses in Asia have found the West without an answer, and believes the answer lies in the direction of more effective organization of the will power and material resources of the Atlantic community.

Of course the question of how to increase European unity is one of the paramount questions being considered by Messrs Acheson and Bevin And we impatient onlookers must recognize that it's far easier to state the problem than to solve it.

The economic interests of Western Europe are so complicated that in some instances they oppose one another. Moreover, Europe as a whole took a terrific beating in the World War and the money which must now be expended for military preparedness is needed for rehabilitation.

A concrete illustration of this complicated situation can be seen in Germany. It is agreed generally that the economic rehabilitation of Germany is vital to the recovery of Western Europe. But Britain is fearful of German competition in trade, and France is afraid of a militarily

White-Hot Argument

FEPC Bill Is One Of Hottest Ever Laid In Lap Of Congress; Points Of Argument Often Overlooked In Heated Statements; Outline Of Arguments On Both Sides

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, May 10—(AP)— The FEPC bill is one of the hottest ever laid in the lap of Congress. It generates so much heat, among its friends and foes, that the arguments sometimes get overlooked.

This story will attempt to outline the arguments on both sides, as taken from statements made by Senators who examined the idea of an FEPC. But first a word about the FEPC bill. The bill now in the senate, if it became law, would:

1 Make it unlawful for an employer to discriminate against—refuse to hire— a job-seeker because of his race, color, or religion

2 And create an FEPC—a five-man board called the fair employment practices commission—to see that the law was carried out. This board would have power to order an employer to obey it.

(The house passed a bill, which, while its announced aim is the same wouldn't give the FEPC power to order a boss to do anything. Those who want a stronger bill, like the one in the senate, condemn the house-passed bill as a measure without teeth).

Ten states now have laws, of one kind or another, against discrimination toward job-seekers. Some have teeth, some don't. The 10 states are New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Indiana, Washington, New Mexico, Oregon, Connecticut.

Here are some of the arguments of those fighting the senate bill:

It would destroy the right of an employer to choose his own employes, thus destroying his freedom to hire; the employer would be "bedeviled" in every move he made, hiring, firing, promoting; it would be universally disregarded anyway and that would breed contempt for all laws; it is presented chiefly as a bid for votes; it would create antagonism among workers and lead to riots and disorders; it would lead to regimentation; it would subject a great part of American industry to the "whims, prejudices and caprices of bureaucracy"; such a bill can't be forced on the people of any state until they're ready for it, and many states are not ready now; a number of states are making progress toward ending discrimination through voluntary means but this bill would destroy that. And, furthermore, some opponents of the senate bill say it's Communist-in-

For 'You All'

President John D. Messick of East Carolina Teachers College heard by long distance this week the new $30,000 organ which will soon be installed in the Austin building on the campus.

Herman J. Tellers, president of the Tellers Organ Company of Erie, Pa., telephoned Dr. Messick last Monday that building the organ had been completed and that it was ready for testing before being dismantled, shipped to Greenville, and rebuilt here. "Hold the 'phone if you want to hear it," he said. So Dr. Messick, listening to the strains of the fine instrument, became the first at the college to hear it played.

"This is for 'you all'," Mr. Tellers then told the East Carolina president with a chuckle in his voice. The chimes on the organ came clearly through to Greenville playing "Dixie."

F. H. A. Girls Elect New Officers

"Let it rain, let pour," but the F. H. A. girls continue their work. Many girls in Pitt county were disappointed Tuesday morning, May 2, when they awoke to find it raining after having anticipated an afternoon at Whichard's beach with F. H. A. girls from every chapter in the county. But shortly after lunch the rain disappeared, therefore, the meeting was carried on as planned.

The county song leader lead in group singing until 4:30 when the president opened the meeting with reports from the treasurer and several committees. The presentation of candidates for officers for the 1950-51 term came next. After the campaign speeches and stunts had been given, the president adjourned the meeting, and the girls all went out to enjoy hot dogs for supper.

Immediately following the weiner roast, ballots were cast for the election of next year's county officers. While girls from the Ayden chapter counted the votes, Bethel and Winterville chapters gave two stunts. Bethel girls gave a very fine example of the "Charleston," and Winterville F. H. A.'ers impersonated "the typical teen-ager in the movies." The ballot committee announced the new officers directly after the stunts.

Mr. Bill Powell, of E. C. T. C., who is now doing student teaching in physical education, led the recreation. The installation of the new officers was the last thing on the program. The installation service was very inspirational and gave the new officers the enthusiasm and vigor needed to improve the county meetings and make the work of the county more announced and worthwhile.

The new officers elect were: President, Shirley Newton, Farmville; vice president, Carolyn Branch, Greenville; secretary, Barbara Worthington, Winterville; treasurer, Joanne Padley, Ayden; historian-reporter, Bobby Ann Smith, Chicod; parliamentarian, Mary Burgess, Grimesland; song leader, Jean Cullifer, Bethel.

Mrs. Robert McCotter Is Bridge Hostess

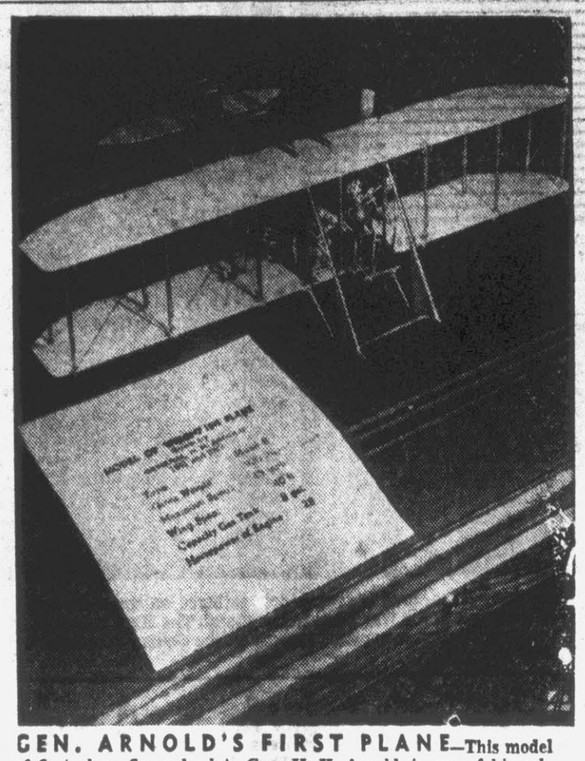

Grifton.—Mrs. Robert McCotter was a gracious hostess on Friday evening when she entertained at bridge at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jake Worthington. Guests found their places at three tables appointed for the games in rooms pleasingly decorated with bouquets of pansies, verbena, roses and other flowers. During the games the hostess passed Coca-Colas and potato chips and as cards were laid aside strawberry short cake was served.

Mrs. Kenneth Walker was high scorer and Mrs. Thomas Gower second high. The consolation went to Mrs. Wilbur Murphy. Other players were Mrs. Bryan Davis, Mrs. Albert Tyson, Mrs. Manley Lee, Mrs. John Coward, Mrs. Walter Murphy, Mrs. Paul Bradley, Mrs. Claude Hart, Mrs. Jake Worthington and Miss Doris Smith.

Financial Relief Sought By Actor

Los Angeles, May 10—(AP)—Errol Flynn, who is currently courting a Romanian princess, claims his alimony payments to his first wife are so high he is in financial straits.

The actor filed a court action yesterday asking that his agreement to pay actress Lili Damita $18,000 a year be modified.

Among other things, Flynn objects to Miss Damita's way of living. He alleged she "has traveled extensively throughout the United States and abroad and has lived in an extravagant manner without making an attempt to live conservatively or earn a livelihood, although she is capable of so doing."

Flynn asserted that Miss Damita, mother of his 9-year-old son, Sean, has not worked for many years although she is a competent actress. He claimed she had rejected roles offered her.

The actor's request for financial relief asserted that in addition to alimony payments he is paying $5,200 a year for support of Sean and is also obliged to pay income taxes on payments to Miss Damita. He said he is in debt to the federal government $150,000 on income taxes.

He listed as other financial obligations his payment of $550 monthly for support of his two children by his second marriage, to Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes, and $400 a month for support of his parents.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

IT WORKS WELL ANYWHERE

Archie Campbell, a famous missionary, tells the story of two sons of a Korean Christian pastor who were shot by a communist. The boys died with their arms extended in the form of a cross.

Then things changed about a bit, and the communist was captured and tried for murder. The Korean pastor, whose sons had been murdered, put in his appearance at the trial and pleaded so eloquently for the life of the man who had murdered his two boys that the judge paroled the murderer in the custody of the pastor. The pastor's plea was that this man should not be put to death because he was not ready, spiritually, to meet the ordeal of death.

The communist has become an ardent Christian and his family also has embraced the faith. The father of the communist came to the Korean pastor after the trial and prostrated himself at the feet of this fine Christian man. The father of the murderer has insisted that he be allowed to pay for the education of the children remaining in the pastor's family.

If we had enough high-powered Christianity it would break open communistic Russia quicker than hydrogen bombs. Furthermore, it will work in our own country to break down systems of ignorance and wickedness—and in our own lives.

The Test May Come On A Day Of Prayer

The forces for peace are expecting their greatest strain on May 28, a Sunday, in the streets of Berlin.

Early indications are that the anticipated street fighting will not be between Americans and Russians . . . in fact, it appears that the Russians are making it a point to avoid being on the scene. Presumably "unarmed" German communist youth will be pitted against the police and western military garrison.

The expected clash will mark a new high-water mark in the tensions of the cold war. Should the violence result in injury or death of one or more of the demonstrators it will immediately become a source of invaluable propaganda for Moscow and a stepping stone toward new provocations.

On that Sunday much may happen greatly affecting the lives of individuals and families living thousands of miles from the scene of action. No one knows the extent of its importance; the effects may not become apparent for months, weeks or days; but it is apparent that May 28 will be an important day in the lives of all of us.

There is little or nothing that we at home can do about it. The authorities at Berlin will take all necessary precautions but there is a limit to even what they can do.

While morning religious services are being conducted in our churches along the eastern time belts of America, a grave crisis will be at its peak across the Atlantic. It would be fitting that our prayers on that Sunday be offered for the cause of peace. For whether it is all a bluff, or the hand will be played out in that distant city . . . we will need the guidance, the consolation, the mercy and power of the Almighty.

The Balance Of Power Is Changing Hands

Time was when organized labor in the United States was a weakling under-dog in its struggle with management for concessions which labor leaders thought the workers should have.

The unions had no funds with which to present their views to the public. The labor organizations were forced to rely upon the news columns of papers and magazines to bring public opinion to their support.

Times have changed and the changes are evident on every hand.

In Sunday's New York Times, we were impressed by two full-page advertisements in the same section of the paper. One of the pages was paid for by the Chrysler corporation setting forth its view of the more than 180-day strike which was settled last week. The other page was paid for by the International Union, UAW, CIO, and set forth the union's view of the strike which just ended.

The corporation in its advertisement expressed regret the strike had occurred and declared "A strike is not a victory for anybody." The union's advertisement, however, asserted, "The courage, solidarity and determination of the Chrysler workers has at last compelled the Chrysler corporation to grant their reasonable and just demands." The union described the settlement a victory "over Chrysler corporation's blind selfishness."

Where once the struggle between labor and management was a lop-sided battle between big business and little workers, the people of the United States now see it is the battle of one big business against another.

Legislation and tremendous growth have at least put labor on an even footing with industry, and in many cases it seems to us, the scales of justice are tipping toward labor.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, May 10—The most eloquent advocates of government economy in the House are begging the Republican leadership, especially Minority Leader "Joe" Martin, not to force a showdown on this issue in a reelection year. His good nature and his desire to elect a GOP House next November may incline him to agree to their pathetic pleadings.

The test will come—may come late today—when the lower chamber votes on final disposition of the one-package appropriation bill, which provides approximately $29 billion for financing the domestic federal operations for the 1951 fiscal year.

The outcome will be unusually important because this new method of handling money bills in a single measure was supposed to eliminate hit-or-miss, pork-barrel spending.

Although the $29 billion represent $1.5 billion reduction of President Truman's original budget demands, it does not include funds for foreign economic or military aid or for fixed charges like the annual interest on the public debt. These will raise the total to about $40.5 billion, a record peacetime appropriation.

• • • •

WEAKENED—The prospective savings engineered in the House Appropriations Committee and during floor debate amount to far less than the reductions insisted on by such sincere, economy-minded men as Senator Taft of Ohio on the Republican side of the aisle, and by Senator Byrd of Virginia on the Democratic side.

They have demanded cuts ranging from $3 billion to $5 billion in an attempt to avoid a deficit estimated at $5 billion for 1951, on top of 1950's prospective deficit of $7 billion.

But the vocal foes of extravagance and huge federal borrowings, which are the basic but hidden causes of high prices, peak taxes and the heavy burden of national and individual indebtedness, weakened when the time came to vote on costly projects for their own districts. In many instances they upped even the presidential proposals.

COMPLEX—Floor consideration of a bulky Appropriation Bill is a highly technical and complex process, which explains why members can imitate Calvin Coolidge on the political platform but really throw money around like a convivial sailor without their constituents getting wise to the deception.

As each paragraph and project is brought up in the House, a member can demand that the specific amount for this item be reduced or increased. It is usually kept at the committee figure or boosted in these piecemeal votes, which are rarely recorded.

As a result, the final bill carries the original committee amount, or an even larger total. Everybody climbs aboard the gravy train.

The gentleman from Ohio, say, may be a Republican, anti-Administration and fairly sincere in his desire for saving money. But his inclinations in that direction usually operate only when some other member's pet project is affected. When money for improvements in his district is proposed, he votes for it.

But, inasmuch as these votes are not kept for the permanent record, consisting only of inarticulate and unidentifiable "yeas" and "nays," it is impossible to learn who stands for what.

• • • •

METHODS—Under House procedure there are two methods of killing or forcing a downward revision of an Appropriation Bill loaded with pork, pap and political plunder.

These are problems now before Speaker Martin as a result of individual Republicans' demands that their weakness for preaching but not practicing economy be cloaked with parliamentary invisibility.

The first is a motion to recommit the measure to the Appropriations Committee, with instructions to reduce the total amount so that it will conform with House sentiment.

It requires one-fifth of those actually present to obtain a vote on such a motion, and it must be adopted by a majority. It is not difficult to round up that number, if the men behind the economy demands are sincere.

• • • •

CATCH—In actual practice, however, major measures are rarely recommitted. Members dislike that procedure because it is tantamount to a rebuke and a reflection on friends on the particular committee involved. Moreover, the same weapon may be used against their own committees some day with respect to a bill they have framed.

The other means of annihilating or revising a questionable piece of legislation is to vote against final adoption. That requires the committee to review its work, and try to write a bill that will pass. It is a harsh remedy, but it is the only practicable one for men who actually want economy, lower taxes, lower prices and general economic stability.

But—and here is the catch—what usually happens is that the stump speakers for economy vote to recommit, and, when that fails, vote in favor of the overall measure itself. Then they point to their recommital action as evidence of how their heart bleeds for the taxpayer, without mentioning their paragraph-by-paragraph votes on their approval of the bill in its final and unchanged form.

• • • •

PROBLEM—The problem confronting Mr. Martin is whether to base his economy fight on a mere motion to recommit, or to insist on a roll call vote on the bill itself, after, as expected, the recommital motion has been defeated.

In other words, will the GOP leadership force every member, including its own partisans, to go on record for or against the greatest peacetime budget in history, and in one of the country's most prosperous years?

Unfortunately, a majority of the money-savers on both sides of the aisle are asking him to sidestep a showdown.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Monday afternoon I ran into Bert Moye in the Post Office. Since Bert covers the Greenville Robins' baseball games for the Reflector and writes the sports column, "Diamond Dust," our subject of conversation was naturally baseball.

'Bert," I confessed, "so far I haven't seen the Robins in action. Tell me about them so I can write a column." This is a fine trick, I must admit. Asking the sports columnist what he knows about the ball team so I can steal his material is not the most honorable thing I've ever done.

Bert and I chatted a while, but he's saving what he knows about the team for his own column. The only solution is to bolster the attendance at Guy Smith Stadium by two—Wife Rachel and me, in order to see for myself what's going on.

Up to now attendance at Guy Smith Stadium has been discouraging to every one concerned. There are several reasons for this: Old man weather has taken his toll, but more important is the fact that he Robins aren't winning the games.

Greenville baseball fans are hard to please. They simply won't go to the games if there is any reason to think the team will not win. This is unfair to the ball team, but nevertheless, the fans stay away.

Somebody Told Me that the operators have advised the Greenville players against sending any laundry in Greenville. This story may not be true, but by checking the box from day to day it is very noticeable that changes are being made in the lineup daily. The owners of the Greenville team seem determined to find a winning combination, and I, for one, think they'll find it soon.

What the Greenville team needs is support. One way to gain support is to be optimistic about the team's chances.

The other day when I was getting ready to see a ball game I happened to see an article entitled "How to Crash a Gate."

Since I'm an honest fellow I plan to pay my way into Guy Smith Stadium, but nevertheless I couldn't help noticing the article. Some of the people who crash gates are very able to pay, but crash them as a hobby.

A respectable Philadelphian specialized in crashing sports events and boasting, thereafter, of his ability. For more than a year he managed to get into basketball games, prize fights, roller-skating rinks and other indoor promotions by posing as an electrician. His technique was to go up to the gateman, ask if the overhead bulbs were giving enough light, shout instructions regarding the replacement of burned-out bulbs to any maintenance men who might be near-by, then stroll briskly into the park as though to complete his check of the light.

The article described many other tricks that can be used to crash a gate, but I'm saving them in case I should change my mind about being honest. On the other hand, I doubt if W. R. would let me sneak in.

And I thank you.

Daily Reflector Bureau — By LYNN NISBET — Raleigh, N. C.

SMOOTHER—Majority of the county Democratic conventions held throughout the state last Saturday were harmonious affairs. This was true in several counties where real trouble had been expected. Reports reaching capitol square indicate fewer changes among county chairmen, and most of these came without a scrap by retirement of the incumbent. That means Democratic party machinery on local level is running smoothly, despite marked personal division with respect to candidates.

ELECTION—This is particularly true of mountain counties which were stirred up by alleged undue interference with local conditions by the state board of elections. In several places the harmony policy is solely one of survival. The primary has far less importance than the general election, and only hope for Republican defeat lies in Democratic unity. Time after time your reporter heard on a recent trip through the west expressions like this: "We'll iron these matters out; we've got to." In about 75 counties the post of county chairman is honorary; in the other 25 it is a working job the year around, particularly strenuous in September and October.

HEAVY—There is prospect of heavier than usual primary vote in the close counties, because of the larger number of local candidates. For years it was said the east nominates, the west elects. The west will have greater share in the nominations this year. There will be fewer instances like Wilkes County in 1948, when the combined second primary vote of Johnson and Scott was 4100, and the general election vote for the Democratic governor was 6581; or Madison where 1986 Democrats voted in the primary, 2777 in the election. The November Democratic vote was generally higher than the primary totals two years ago, but the difference was much less in the east.

REGISTRATION—Opinion differs as to whether the new registration system will increase or reduce the primary vote. In the 21 counties having new registration some voters may find themselves out in the cold by reason of their own negligence in failing to register. On the other hand, a larger percentage of those who do register will go back on primary day to vote. In that connection warning is repeated that registration books close at sundown Saturday of this week.

MILESTONES—The state Democratic convention Thursday is regarded a significant milestone in the current political campaign. It is next to the last significant item ahead of the primary on May 27. The first was the Republican state convention in Charlotte on March 14. Next was close of filing time for state and district candidates on March 18. Then came end of filing time for county and local candidates on April 15, and opening of registration books on April 29. There remain the state Democratic convention Thursday and close of registration books Saturday. (This year there might be some significance in "challenge day" Saturday of next week, but usually that has small bearing on the situation.) Each of the milestones already passed has failed to have the effect predicted in advance. There were no surprise filings for state offices, very few for local positions, and there was no rush on registrars. The Republican state convention was innocuous, and no Democratic county convention made headlines except in local papers. Advance "off-record" information is that neither the keynote address nor the proposed platform offered at the state convention will occasion violent reaction in any quarter.

DESTINATION — These milestones along the political route are about as insignificant as those along the highways. The end of the trip is only thing of importance. For all practical purposes the trip ends May 27 with respect to state and district contests, although in about one-fourth the counties it doesn't end until November 7.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LONG OVERDUE
(Henderson Dispatch)

Defeat of Senator Claude Pepper in Florida was long overdue. He is a liberal of liberals, if not a straight-out left winger. Almost without exception he has supported socialistic legislation in both the Truman and Roosevelt administrations. There is no reason that we know of to assume that he is a Communist, and we do not believe he is, or even that he plays around with that type of people — either Americans or foreigners.

Nomination of Representative Smathers over Pepper is indicative of the thinking of Florida citizens. They have had enough of the Pepper liberalism in Washington, just as we believe millions of other Americans have also. His defeat will to that extent weaken the Truman fair deal program, which ought never to have been presented and which has no proper place in the American way of life. It is simply and solely a bid for minority bloc votes and to those who favor government paternalism and regimentation on a large scale. x x

If Americans would preserve their freedom and individuality, they will be wise in accepting the Florida vote as an example. Vital principles of government are at stake in this election year in this country. It is not enough to support any man's candidacy solely because he is a nice fellow, or is a personal acquaintance or that he possesses exceptional ability. The issues should be determined upon their merit and not on mere personalities.

The ship of state should be steered away from the socialist rocks. Britain today stands as a solemn warning sign of the pitfalls and disasters that wait down the road of leftwing theories and policies, and which will as surely come to America as they have to the English people if we follow in their footsteps instead of pursuing the course which through the years has led this nation to high standards of living, to wealth, to freedom, good government and a place of greatness and power never achieved by any people since time began. It is amazing that any person should advocate swapping them off for dictatorships, totalitarian rule or socialism or communism.

Defeat of Pepper points the way, and decisions in other elections soon to be held will determine whether the momentum in that direction will be increased or if we shall continue down the road to class rule and national socialism.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

While many sectors of the clothing trades are wringing their hands and wondering what to do to divert consumer spending back from tetelevision - auto - home concentration, shoe men are coming up with some really sound promotional plans for Fall. Their ideas for building up sales checks will be revealed at the Popular price Shoe Show of America in New York May 14-18. The show—co-sponsored by the National Association of Shoe Chain Stores and the New England Shoe and Leather Association — will draw retailers from every state and a number of foreign countries. Edward Atkins, executive secretary of the chain-store association, estimates some 6000 retailers will view over 900 hotel rooms of shoe displays in the biggest get-together the popular - price retailers and producers have yet staged.

Shoe sales and price tags haven't been as hard hit as in the textile clothing trade. But the retailers have a special problem, Atkins points out. The average sales check has noticeably declined since 1948. U.S. Department of Commerce reports show that the average shoe produced in this country had a wholesale price of $3.91 in 1948; by February 1950, it had dropped to $3.52.

At retail the decline has of course been even more severe, since retailers get a smaller dollars-and-cents margin, (if same percentage) when wholesale levels drop. The decline, Atkins told this writer in a pre-show interview, is attributable not so much to price reduction on the same grades, but to the public demand for lower prices which has forced production and selling emphasis toward lower qualities.

To build up sales checks to their 1948 stature, the shoe men have some interesting style promotion ideas. First of all, Atkins points out, the Fall fashion trend this year will help because there will be a sharp demarcation between dressed-up styles and casual wear. A woman can be all dressed up or all dressed down, but she won't be able to wear casual shoes with a dressy outfit. Dressy clothes will be dressy indeed.

To capitalize on the fashion trend, alert retailers this year will promote pumps harder than ever. They'll be able to show more styles in pumps—and more attractive styles—than ever before. Most women would prefer to wear pumps anyway; they flatter the foot. But oxfords are more comfortable. The manufacturers are solving that barrier to selling dressy shoes by making pumps not only better-looking but more comfortable, Atkins reports.

In men's shoes, says this trade expert, merchandisers will promote grain leathers, but they'll try not to feature as prominently the double and triple soles that have drastically reduced shoe purchases by U.S. males in recent years. Atkins points out that the men's shoe business hasn't even kept up with the population increase since stores started featuring heavy-soled shoes.

JUVENILE SHOE BUSINESS HOTTEST RETAILING CHANCE

But the brightest spot on the shoe retailer's horizon is the children's business. Not only has the child population of the country expanded some 40-50 per cent, but, says Atkins, you can multiply that higher sales potential by the sharper style consciousness now noticeable among youngsters.

For one important influence, television is making small fry more conscious of their clothes; Atkins points to the demand for cowboy styles as one evidence. Soon there may be an "Indian" influence to capture the kids' imaginations, current video plans indicate.

The influence of girls' fashion magazines has increased style consciousness here too, the shoe association official reports. Now juvenile shoe manufacturers are putting more style into children's shoes to tie in with this developing interest and sell an extra pair —probably a dressy style—besides the shoe mother brought the child for.

If the shoe men don't build up that sales check this Fall, it won't be because they don't have ideas, and alertness to trends.

ROOM AIR CONDITIONERS HAVING BEST YEAR YET

From several corners of the country come reports indicating that room air conditioners for homes, offices and small stores, this Summer will have their best season yet. Business is booming, reports Kauffman Air Conditioning Co. of St. Louis. Sam Kauffman promotes window-installed coolers for homes and offices as "100 per cent salvable"—simply disconnect and move to new location. Another manufacturer reports his firm doubled production of window units this year but is already unable to fill all orders.

Room air conditioners are at least partly an impulse item, merchants say. Many retailers get their ads set up well ahead and keep checking weather reports. First signal of hot weather, and the insert orders are approved.

NO INFLATION, BUT PRICES FIRMING UP

Prices are undoubtedly firming. Lumber supplies, rubber, oils, wool, metals, some foods, are all creeping up. Only important exception is textiles, going the other direction recently. But there's no further inflation in the making, say most business experts; competition is too keen right now for any noticeable jump in finished products.

Hal Boyle's Column

Butte, Mont.—(AP)—You have to be careful about shaking hands with dear old ladies in this town.

They may crush your fingers.

How do they get such a powerful grip? Working the lever on slot machines.

There is a kind of closed season at present on the more open forms of gambling in Montana. But the slot machines click merrily on. They make so much noise they drown out the juke boxes, which is a kind of blessing.

Nothing so typifies the "easy come, easy go" philosophy of this frontier mining camp than its fondness for slot machines.

There are about 50 churches in Butte and its environs, 180 saloons, and a minimum of 750 slot machines to serve a population of 50,000. That means there is a slot machine for every 60 people.

They are popular with all types. Playing a battery of four machines, you may see a wealthy businessman, a young housewife, a dear old lady with a muffler over her head, and a bar fly—all lined up democratically together seeking the elusive jackpot.

It is a silent and not very social pastime. The players rarely say a word to one another, but stare intently at the whirling wheels with a glazed look. Occasionally an angry player, his coins gone, will kick a machine, or shake it vigorously. The machine doesn't kick back—but it doesn't cough up any dough either.

There are machines to take every coin minted by Uncle Sam except a penny—from a nickel to a silver dollar.

'I watched one old lady put a thousand dollars in the buck machine," said a bartender. "It took her three days to lose it all—and she was all worn out."

Some bartenders have a custom of serving free drinks to customers as long as they are keeping a slot machine busy. It's good business.

Under Montana law the slot machines are legal only in fraternal, benevolent or non-profit organizations. To get around this every saloon puts a sign over its battery of one-armed bandits such as this: "Thanatopsis Club For Members Only." But anyone can walk in and play them, no matter whether he can even pronounce thanatopsis.

The legality of these subterfuges is being challenged in court. But the machines keep clicking—and they more than pay the overhead of many establishments.

"I have twelve machines in my place, and one week they took in $1,800," said one proprietor. "My cut was half of that—$900."

Glancing around to see that his wife wasn't watching, he took five silver dollars out of the cash register. He walked over and put them in the machine and lost them, one after the other.

"I know better than to play them myself," he said, half-apologetically. "But you know they kind of get you—even though you know you can't really beat them."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON— Don't call a policeman a "flat foot." Policemen have good feet. No civil service examination would ever let a "flat foot" on the force. Mailmen have the best feet, however. Nurses have good feet, too. This is what Dr. Joseph Lelyveld of Rockland, Mass., told me. He is chairman of the National Foot Health Council and founder and chairman of National Foot Health Week, May 20-27. He was in Washington to confer with officials of the Public Health Service and the Children's Bureau, who are also interested in promoting good foot health.

"The objective of Foot Health Week," Dr. Lelyveld said, "is to focus individual thinking on the importance of foot care and proper footwear to good health, comfort and happiness. National figures have estimated that 63 per cent of all industrial workers lose as much as a day's work per month because their feet hurt. In addition, aching feet result in slower work, less efficiency in the plants, lost motion, errors and impairment of health. In stores, they mean irritable clerks, greater breakage of merchandise, mistakes, lost sales, sarcastic replies to simple questions and angered customers"

He says sore feet are a major cause of absenteeism all along the production line and that employees with sore feet cost industry more than $100,000,000 a year. "Business men are scouting around for something to do about their employees' feet," he told me. "The answer is industrial foot clinics, where all employed persons, whether sitting or standing, may be properly supervised and given advice about shoes and hosiery. There are many who have foot troubles because their feet get too little of the right exercise, walking. Walking is the easiest, simplest and best exercise to take."

Dr. Lelyveld says mailmen have the best feet because of the "extreme care taken to keep their feet comfortable and efficient." Nurses, he says, are also in this group of good foot care. Barbers and dentists have the most foot troubles.

New Insecticides Introduced; One Is Worth Millions

Jacksonville, Fla., May 10—(AP)—Two "miracle" insecticide developments were announced here today, one of which may mean millions to citrus.

The other is a product for tobacco. Both are from the laboratories of the Wilson and Tomer Fertilizer company. At the same time the company said it had just completed a fertilizer to be sold only to manufacturers and designed especially of mineral-deficient soils of Georgia and Alabama.

All three were developed under the guidance of Dr. B. R. Fudge, horticulturist for the company.

Dr. Fudge said the citrus spray is an insecticide-fungicide-nutritional, and "has been field-tested for the past couple months to an extent that we can say today that it does all we ever expected of it."

The tobacco mixture is a dust which kills virtually all the weed's plant pests but, Dr. Fudge said, does not harm the plant if correctly used—"a condition not heretofore possible. He said it is a mixture of parathion, DDT and chlorinated camphone and is now being field-tested in Florida and Georgia.

Dr. Fudge is a native of Rock Hill S. C.

Sold Salt For Valuable Dyes

Los Angeles, May 10—(AP)—Irving Gressman, 29 has been sentenced to 10 years imprisonment on charges that the "dye" which he sold to foreign firms actually was common table salt.

Federal Judge Harry C. Westover in sentencing him, said: "This is the most serious crime against international good will that I have encountered."

Grossman was ordered to make restitution to his victims in India, Holland, Belgium and Italy. It was charged that on one shipment of 115 drums of salt Grossman received $44,000.

French Offer May Be Solution For Uniting German Economy With West

By SYDNEY MIRKIN

London, May 10—(AP)—A French proposal to pool Europe's coal and steel was seen here today as a possible solution to a major cold war problem facing the West—how to integrate Germany's economy into the Western front.

Western diplomats here for the Big Three talks beginning tomorrow call such German cooperation the most important step necessary to bolster the West against Russia.

Announcing the plan approved by the French cabinet, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman proposed that the pooling start with France's own rich Lorraine and Saar areas and Germany's industrial Ruhr valley.

West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer quickly termed the proposal a "generous step by France towards Germany."

The French plan, he continued, appeared to "create the pre-conditions for making any future conflict between France and Germany impossible."

At the same time Adenauer announced his government already was planning a step toward participation in European unity. Adenauer said his cabinet had accepted an invitation for West Germany to enter the Council of Europe as an associate member. It would have an advisory status in the Council's Consultative Assembly but would not be represented on the controlling committee of foreign ministers.

Schuman proposed that a "common high authority" would control the Franco-German coal and steel output, and that other European countries, "East or West," would be invited to join the pool.

France already controls the coal mines of the near-autonomous Saar region, which was attached to Germany before World War II. West Germany's Ruhr mines now are under international control of the allied occupation authorities.

The French proposal was expected to be discussed when the Big Three foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain and France begin their talks here tomorrow.

The United States is expected to approve readily the French proposal. It may already have done so, since Schuman's announcement came less than 24 hours after he conferred in Paris with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Acheson and Bevin meet today for their second round of talks prior to being joined by Schuman tomorrow.

In the only London newspaper editorial on the Schuman plan, the Liberal News Chronicle said it brought new hope to Europe and might "end forever the rivalry between France and Germany." But the Conservative Graphic headlined its account "Coal, Steel Pool Shock For Britain."

Coal production in France and the Saar last year was estimated unofficially at 65,000,000 metric tons, compared to West Germany's 103,000,000 tons. Steel production in France and the Saar reportedly totaled 10,800,000 tons, while 9,100,000 tons were produced in West Germany.

Hall was tried and convicted in January. Carter was indicted last fall after a grand jury investigation.

Graham, Smith Campaigns Rise And Fall; Neither Can Claim Victory Yet

By LYNN NISBET
Reflector Bureau
Asso. Afternoon Dailies

Raleigh, May 10—Your reporter has visited within the past three weeks a goodly part of North Carolina. Here are some semi-personal observations, which for convenience are phrased in first personal pronouns, and of necessity embody some fact and some opinion—with occasional difficulty in determining which is which.

From Raleigh to Fairmont to Wilson to Washington to Charlotte to Asheville to Cullowhee to Black Camp Gap to Shelby to Raleigh doesn't cover the state geographically. Farm day programs, chamber of commerce banquets, press associations, college president inaugurals, Ramp Club conventions and casual conversations with filling station operators by no means completely covers the various phases of North Carolina activity. Rides "thumbed" with top state officials, ward heeler politicians, high school athletes and clerical workers still leave a lot of potential sources of information unchecked. It is submitted that these trips and contacts provide a pretty good cross section check of North Carolina sentiment.

Based on information collected your reporter is of opinion that the next United States senator is yet to be chosen. Not enough voters have made up their minds to justify prediction of victory for either of the two leading aspirants. There are still a few people who insist that Bob Reynolds must be reckoned with. Such appraisal has been possible under the circumstances fails to indicate much strength for Bouncing Bob of Buncombe. He will get small support in the east except personal loyalty votes, cast by people for whom he did favors during his twelve years tenure as senator. There are several thousands of these, for it is common knowledge that Senator Reynolds from 1933 to 1945 helped more people than perhaps any other member of either branch of congress in state history. But they are not enough to change basic election results.

Reynolds will get a sizeable vote in his mountain neighboring counties, but capable observers are coming to doubt this will be enough to necessitate a second primary. The real race is between Frank Graham, appointed incumbent senator, and Willis Smith. It is a real race, too, and it has been going in waves of advantage first to one then to the other. Just after Smith announced there was an upsurge in his direction. A week or so later it looked like he had lost momentum and Graham was moving upward very fast. Then there was a period of static, when neither seemed to show progress. Within the past two weeks there has been accelerating progress for the Smith forces.

What bothers both camps is the matter of timing. If the current Smith rising tide continues he will win in the first primary. If the tide ebbs again, as it did a few weeks ago, the Graham folks will be faced with timing their rise. In the two and a half weeks remaining before primary day a lot of things can happen. There is increasing evidence that the nomination will be determined by the piedmont area. Smith is apparently well ahead in the area east of Raleigh. Graham apparently is ahead in the area west of Asheville. That is an unfair comparison because the vote east of Raleigh is much larger than that west of Asheville. But the lines almost have to be drawn that way in order to designate the piedmont, which comprises half the area and from two-thirds to three-fourths of the voting strength in the state. That is why both major candidates have concentrated attention on the piedmont, and will do so for the rest of the campaign.

The election will be decided, in last analysis, in a dozen or so counties along and adjacent to the Southern railroad from Reidsville to Kings Mountain. That is where the battle is being waged now. Your reporter has been unable to make satisfactory appraisal of conditions in this area.

One reason for slower coagulation of sentiment in the central part of the state seems to be the voters there are looking at the problem at somewhat longer range. Far eastern and far western voters are making decisions based upon conditions current in 1950. The midstaters apparently are looking farther ahead, and are thinking more about trends that will affect their situation five or ten years from now.

It is that factor which makes this a crucial year, and which puts the senatorial race in forefront of the picture as determining long time course of Tar Heel politics. Election of Senator Graham to complete the full term a part of which he is filling by executive appointment will mean firm establishment of the Scott-Graham-Daniels philosophy in North Carolina government for a decade or more. Choice of Willis Smith will mean that North Carolina is disposed to Florida, which had followed Australia and Great Britain in a trend back to more conservative lines in government.

People in the east, who usually move slowly in any direction, now seem disposed to take the conservative route. People in the mountains, likewise traditionally slow to change, seem more disposed to take a chance on the new ideas. In the middle part of the state, where lines are more clearly drawn between management and labor, where there is more equal division of races, there is not sufficient evidence of trends to warrant forecast.

Chicago—(AP)—The Grand... thers Club announced it would award prizes for the best miniature hats Tiny bonnets soon began to come in from parts of the land. Mrs. Collette Collins, chairman of the contest, received 75 of them in one day. Her mail carrier seemed perturbed and curious.

"So I smiled and told him about the contest," she said, adding: "He didn't smile back."

Smallest Peach Crop In 50 Years

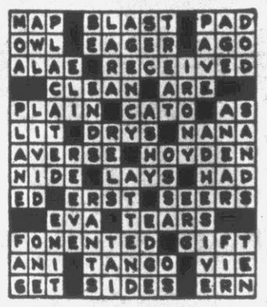

Macon, Ga., May 9—(AP)—Georgia's peach crop was estimated today at not more than 1,500 carloads, the smallest in 50 years and a multi-million dollar loss.

W. C. Bewley, president of the Georgia fruit exchange, said the crop failure was the third in succession, "an unprecedented situation."

And Now It's Up To You!

We have been running a series of advertisements appearing weekly regarding buying at home. In these ads we stated how much money our members paid out for salaries and how many families derived the daily living from this source.

This week's advertisement is the last in this series; therefore, we ask in fairness to you as well as ourselves that you contact one of our dealers before buying your next car.

We don't ask or want you, Mr. Purchaser, to pay us one nickel more for our product; all we want is a fair chance to sell you at the price every customer pays—and remember, you can see us any day in the week, without the cost for a trip out of town.

Why just listen to reasons?

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF!

THIS TIME we'd like to tell you about something that you cannot see in this picture—something, in fact, you cannot know about from looking at someone else in a passing Buick—or from viewing a Buick on our showroom floor.

It's the feel you get from a Buick in motion.

You are going to find out that it is something like traveling on your own private, jet-propelled cloud—only firmer.

Maybe you know a stretch of washboard road, where you have to slow down, or bounce and jitter.

Try that in a Buick and see how you keep a level, comfortable boulevard smoothness.

Maybe you're always on edge to dodge dips and chuckholes. Those also lose most of their jolt when you're at the wheel of a Buick—or in the rear seat.

In a few simple words—the ride of any Buick—SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER—is out of this world.

We could give you a lot of reasons. Soft coil springs on all four wheels, for example—the firm linkage of the torque-tube drive—the distribution of weight—big soft tires on wide rims—the way Buick engines are mounted.

Even Dynaflow Drive*—always silk-smooth and free of geared-drive harshness—plays its part in the marvelous Buick ride.

But why simply listen to reasons? Experience is still the best teacher.

Come see for yourself why the Buick ride is called "matchless"—and how little it costs to replace a jitterbuggy with one of these level-striding honeys.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Death Rate Cut 80 Per Cent In Pneumonia, Flu

New York, N.Y.—For every person who now dies of pneumonia or influenza, five would have died if the mortality rate of only 20 years ago had continued, the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company report. This striking improvement of 80 percent in the death rate among the company's Industrial policyholders is attributed mainly to the widespread use of the sulfa drugs and penicillin in the treatment of pneumonia.

The statisticians report a remarkable reduction in the seasonal variation between the high death rates in the winter months and the relatively low rates in summer. In 1929, the year of the worst epidemic within the past quarter century, the death rate from pneumonia and influenza in winter reached a high of more than 10 times the rates in late summer. In 1949, the highest pneumonia death rate of the year recorded in January was only about twice the minimum rate in July. Last year, moreover, the highest monthly rate was below the lowest for any month in the pre-sulfa period.

The outstanding achievements in reducing the mortality from pneumonia and influenza, however, should not obscure the fact that these diseases still account for more than 50,000 deaths yearly in the United States, the statisticians point out.

Further progress in saving lives can be made through the more widespread use of the techniques which have proved so successful," the statisticians observe, "but the ultimate triumph will come when methods of preventing these infections are discovered. The emphasis in research is now on immunization. If the proper vaccines can be developed, influenza and pneumonia will certainly take a minor position among the causes of death in this country."

Civilization In Africa Is Pushed

KHARTOUM, the Sudan—(AP)—The British-run Sudanese government is spending $2,800,000 to speed up the civilization of an isolated and primitive African tribe:

The Zandes, a simple people who live in the deep south of the Sudan in equatorial province — near the equator and the Belgian Congo.

A government spokesman says that the scheme to make some 200,000 Zandes self sufficient "may provide the answer for the economic and social development of similarly placed tribes of the African continent." The scheme, itself, is a simple one with the tribespeople growing crops for local processing.

The Zandes are known to Europeans as the "potbellies." One of the chief elements of their simple diet is ants. They eat ants in several ways and press them to obtain cooking oil. Ant hills in the Zande country are recignized as private property. One Zande would no more trespass on another's ant hill than he would his hut.

Candidate Smith Raps Scott And Graham In Talk

By The Associated Press

U. S. Senatorial candidate Willis Smith swung at both Senator Frank Graham and Governor Scott in a speech last night.

CIO leaders favor Graham in the Democratic Senatorial race Smith said, "because they know he will carry out their program of Socialization."

Scott, he also told a Smith-for-senate rally at Rocky Mount, tried to "purge" elections officials in eight western counties because the counties voted against Scott for governor.

And, Smith added, the governor is afraid the people will vote against Graham, the man whom Scott appointed to the senate.

Graham, in a state-wide broadcast from Raleigh, expressed opposition to deficit financing and reiterated opposition to the Brannan plan, Socialized medicine and the FEPC bill.

Smith quoted a news story from Washington which said the CIO political action committee is backing Graham.

"The CIO knows that I am opposed to the FEPC, the Brannan plan, Socialized medicine, and to some of the other schemes, philosophies, and ideologies favored by my opponent," Smith asserted.

In criticizing Scott, Smith referred to the recent action of the state board of elections in ignoring political party chairmen's recommendations in appointing elections boards in eight western counties. The board later withdrew the appointments on obtaining a ruling that they were illegal.

"The governor of this state", Smith said, "attempted in a most dictatorial manner to purge these elections officials, contrary to law, and contrary to every sense of fair play x x x ".

On deficit financing, Senator Graham told his radio audience:

"I am, as a sound public, fiscal and business policy, opposed to deficit financing. I am in favor of balancing the budget short of unbalancing the nation and the world by turning the earth over to the Communist dictatorship."

Coroner Rouse Checks On Two Deaths In Pitt

Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse today reported two deaths from natural causes which occurred here since Sunday.

Eddie Lee Willoughby, 28-year-old Negro, a student at the GI Manual Training School in Farmville, died Tuesday of a heart attack while sitting in a chair at the home of a relative, Louis Harris.

John Huggins, 45-year-old Negro, who had been in bad health several years, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack. He was being taken to a physician's office. While stopping at the Farmville police station to make contact with the doctor, Higgins died. Coroner Rouse ascribed his death to heart trouble.

There will be no inquests.

strong Germany.

This gives a bird's eye glimpse of the Western situation, but it's only part of the story. We mustn't forget that this cold war is a two front war, and the Western powers are up against an equally stiff and in many respects more complicated position in Asia, where British, French and Dutch special interests are heavily involved.

Part of the past lack of unity among the Western powers is put down by some observers to self-interest. It may be, too, that it has been in part due to the fact that some Western powers have clung to the wishful thinking that, after all, Russia would in due course abandon her cold war and play ball with the West.

But that phase of hope seems to have come to an end. The West now recognizes fully that Russia has no thought whatever of ending the cold war but intends to continue the Red crusade to a bitter finish.

Friends of the bill say:

It would close the gap between what we preach about Democracy and how we actually practice it; raise the prestige of the United States around the world; help the whole nation's economy by increasing the buying power of all the people;

It deals only with establishing economic equality and has nothing to do with social equality, which some of its opponents have suggested in order to confuse the issue; religious groups of every major denomination have testified in favor of the bill;

Although southerners are fighting it hardest, discrimination in employment is not confined to one section of the country or any one industry; it happens all over and is being done by business, the government, and labor unions; the discrimination not only is widespread but is increasing, a number of states now have anti-discriminatory laws and before they passed them they were warned business would leave the state, white employes would quit their jobs, and employers would be harassed and hounded on indiscriminate charges but—those things haven't come to pass.

WILLIS SMITH IS A FRIEND OF THE WORKING PEOPLE

HIS RECORD PROVES IT

- Willis Smith came up the hard-working ambitious American way. He knows what it is to have to earn a living, and he knows the problems of the working man. He is a practical man, not a theorist.
- As a legislator and as Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives, he supported and helped enact the WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW, still regarded as one of the finest laws ever passed for the working man in this State.
- He believes in high wage scales.
- He believes the high standard of living of the American working man comes from our free competitive system. He will fight to save the country from the fate of Socialist England.
- He is opposed to any program of socialism which would tear down and destroy the American system of government.
- He is opposed to Communism and to the Communists who seek to slow down and eventually stop the wheels of industry. They know that the only force keeping Russia quiet is the power of American industry.

DR. GRAHAM SIGNED IT

Dr. Frank Graham, the appointed Junior Senator from North Carolina, signed the Civil Rights report, which included the FEPC proposals without any dissent. See for yourself—read the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights. (Available at Govt. Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.)

WILLIS SMITH Will Save the WORKING MAN from FEPC

The FEPC is more dangerous to the Southern working man than to anyone else in America. It will stir up strife and hate between races in the South.

The FEPC will mean that a man's job can be claimed by another man just because he is of a different race or color or even a different religion.

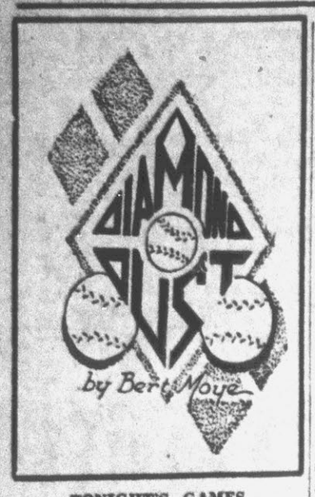

The FEPC will mean the end of freedom to decide whom you will work with. All this would be decided by Federal bureaucrats from Washington.

The FEPC has been promoted by the Communist Party as one way to stir up racial discord and hatred, and to weaken this country.

Robins Lose To Goldsboro By One-Sided 16-2 Margin

Cardinals Collect 20 Hits From Offerings Of Three Pitchers; Robins Play New Bern In Ladies Night Here This Evening

By BERT MOYE

Manager Jim Herbison's Goldsboro Cardinals hit safely in every inning and scored in all but one as they trounced the Greenville Robins, 16 to 2, over in Goldsboro last night. The win was their fourth straight over the locals this season.

The Cardinals collected a total of 20 hits off the offerings of three Robin hurlers, good for 30 total bases which included two homers and a double.

The four runs made in the first frame off five hits aided by two walks and a stolen base would have given the Cardinals a win. But they came back in the second to score two more runs when Jack Hinkle homered over the wall with a mate on board; scored again in the third on a walk, stolen base and a single; added three more in the fourth when Bill Johnson collected his fifth homer of the season over the leftfield wall with two mates aboard; another singleton in the fifth on a walk and two singles; two more in the sixth on two walks, a single and a double. They ended their scoring in the seventh when they put across three more runs on three singles and two walks, a passed ball.

The Robins were held scoreless until the fifth frame when they scored a singleton on George Hallow's triple and John Musumeci's long fly to left field. They scored again in the eighth when Scarpa led off with a walk, advanced to second on an infield out and came home on Fleming Flott's single.

Lefty Bob Slaybaugh, a rookie hurler, went the route for the Cardinals and tossed a neat five-hitter for his second win against the Robins this season. He fanned nine batters to bring his total to 49 for the season in four games.

George Hallow with a triple and a single in three trips to the plate led the five-hit attack off Slaybaugh.

Manager Randy Heflin used three rookie hurlers against the Cardinals in last night's contest with George Stephens, the starting hurler, who allowed six hits and six runs in the one and one-third frames he pitched, being credited with the loss, his third of the current season.

George Ash, who relieved him in the second, allowed a total of 10 hits and Lefty Francis Buckshon finished the game, giving up four hits.

Every single Cardinal player collected at least one hit during the contest with Bill Johnson getting a homer, double and a single in three official trips to the plate and Manager Jim Herbison getting three singles in five trips to the plate to lead the 20-hit attack off the three Robin hurlers.

The Robins play at home tonight when they meet the New Bern Bears, who in their twin bill with the league-leading Rocky Mount Leafs in New Bern last night took both ends of the bargain bill by a score of 5-2 and 13-0, with Ted Weygant hurling a one-hitter against the Leafs in the second contest.

Phantoms Beaten, 5-3, By Elizabeth City Nine

Big Third Inning When Visitors Got One Hit, But Scored Three Runs, Proved Downfall For Greenville High Squad

Greenville's Phantoms again played hard luck ball and went down to loss No. 7 as the Yellow Jackets from Elizabeth City took a 5-3 decision over Bo Farley's charges yesterday at the stadium. The win was the second for the Jackets this year over the Phants.

The game was hard luck all the way as both teams could glean but five hits apiece. The crux of the matter was the big third inning when the Jackets got one hit but scored three runs—enough to salt the game away for they scored two more after that.

In that inning the leadoff man, Forbes, was on via a shortstop error and Gibson walked next. Askew got on by a wild pitch that saw Forbes score the first Jacket run. Then First Baseman Cuthrell singled to center to score the two men ahead of him.

Greenville went runless until the seventh when they scored one run. They followed that singleton with two more in the ninth but not until the Jackets had closed the door with another two-run inning to dasn all Phant hopes for win No. 4.

Elizabeth City was guilty of eight errors but the Phants couldn't capitalize on them. Their two-run inning came in the ninth when it was too late. Jordan and Taylor led off the hitting in that frame, after Goor had struckout, with successive singles. Both scored later after Briley had moved them up a base by getting hit by the pitcher and an error at first. Their other run came in the seventh on one hit, an error and a fielders' choice.

Julian Vainright started the game for the Phants and was lifted in the top of the seventh in favor of Bobby Flye. Vainright allowed but two hits during his stint. Flye gave them the remaining three in his relief role, but Vainright got credit for the loss.

For Elizabeth City Sawyer went all the way, giving up five hits, walking two and striking out five.

The Phantoms' record presently stands at seven losses and three wins. The Jackets' win yesterday marked the second time this year they have lost twice to the same team. Kinston did it before. The three wins for Greenville have been at the expense of Edenton twice and a single over Roanoke Rapids.

The line score:

Dimaggio Slump Has Him And Teammates Worried

By JOE REICHLER
AP Sports Writer

What's wrong with Joe DiMaggio?

The star outfielder of the world champion New York Yankees, one of the greatest and highest paid figures in the game, is in the midst of one of his worst batting slumps.

Not only does it have Joe worried, it has the entire Yankee team concerned.

DiMaggio is the first to tell you that he's never felt better in his life.

What then is the reason for his current puny .247 batting mark?

"I can't explain it," he said before last night's game against the St. Louis Browns. "All I know is that my timing is off. I suppose I need more batting practice."

Joe went naught for four as the Yankees defeated the Browns, 4-2. Lefty Ed Lopat pitched a three-hitter for his third triumph.

DiMaggio now has gone six games with only two singles in 22 times at bat. That's a miscroscopic .091 batting mark. During that time he has failed to drive in a run or score one.

Meanwhile, Ralph Kiner, the National League's home run king, went on another batting spree last night. He blasted two home runs, one with the bases full, to defeat Brooklyn almost single-handedly. Kiner's sixth and seventh homers of the season enabled the Pittsburgh Pirates to overcome a 5-0 deficit and whip the Dodgers, 10-5.

Kiner's grand slammer, which came in the bottom of the eighth, was his second of the campaign and the eighth of his big league career. That tied him with Philadelphia's Bill Nicholson for most grand slam homers by active National leaguers.

Winterville Tops Grimesland, 3-0

Grimesland, May 10—Winton Hill pitched four-hit ball and Winterville backed him up afield with no errors as the Wolves took a 3-0 decision over Grimesland last Friday.

The shutout was made effective primarily by Hill's pitching when he struck out 14 Grimesland batters and allowed only one man to reach third. His teammates were getting but four hits but that number, coupled with two Grimesland errors, enabled them to score the winning tallies.

The Wolves scored two runs in the second when Dick Buck and Thomas Robinson got two successive free passes. Both scored immediately afterward on a single to left by Don McLawhorn. The other run came in the third when E. C. Averette scored on a line single after he had doubled to center.

Hill came in for further honors as he led his mates in batting, getting two of their four hits in three times up. Boyd led Grimesland with two for three.

The line score:

	R	H	E
Winterville .... 021 000 0—3	4	0
Grimesland .... 000 000 0—0	4	2

The batteries: Winterville — Hill and Faulkner; Grimesland — Edwards and Burgess.

Gil Sloan Left Out Of Lineups

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Gil Coan wants to know what a guy has to do to become the Washington Nats' regular leftfielder.

Coan, who has been a springtime sensation and an all-season flop for the past four years, is clubbing the ball at a .327 pace. But he still isn't one of Manager Bucky Harris' regular gardeners.

When the opposition uses a lefthander, as Chicago did last night, Bucky employes the less impressive half of his two-platoon system. Instead of Coan and Ed Stewart (who is hitting .356), Harris started Sam Mele and Bob Ortiz. Both are hitting around .200.

For Coan, a left handed batter from Monroe, N. C., the system is a bit bewildering. Under a final "hit or else" threat before the season started, Coan has been going great guns. He has started in 12 of the Nats' 16 games thus far and has been a big factor in keeping Washington in the American League's first division.

In the last four games he's started, Coan has belted two "grand slam" home runs. That's something that was accomplished only once by a Washington player last season.

Of his 16 hits in 49 times at bat, half were for extra bases. Plus the two-bases loaded wallops, he has hit two other homers—one more than he hit all last season. His other extra base hits were three doubles and a triple.

Greenville And Farmville Golfers In Vital Meeting

Greenville's golf team meets Farmville on the Country Club course this afternoon in an effort to double up on the once-beaten visitors and place themselves in contention for the championship of the Coastal Golf Association.

And they can do it—

1. If Tarboro beats Kinston today.
2. If New Bern loses at Smithfield today.
3. If Captain Dave Mosier's golfers can repeat over Farmville.

All of that is happy conjecture and can very easily blow up. At the present New Bern and Kinston are tied for the lead by virtue of New Bern's loss to Greenville and Kinston's loss to New Bern. Greenville has lost once to each of them.

If the above three ifs pan out properly, the lead will be shared by New Bern, Kinston and last year's champions, Greenville. The race may very well go right down to the wire in next week's final matches. At that time Kinston will meet New Bern and the winner will emerge tied with Greenville, if the matches today pan out in an orderly manner.

However, if New Bern and Kinston win their matches today, they will remain tied up. And next week's round will see either Kinston or New Bern walking off with the championship.

So Greenville has a chance of entering a tie with one of the two should either of them lose today, the other taking over undispuated possession of first place.

With a promise of clear weather for the two nine-hole rounds this afternoon, Mosier expects Farmville to bring about 30 players—the more the better, he thinks. Greenville formerly defeated Farmville by an overwhelming 57-26 score.

Free Ice Cream If He Gets Nod

New York, May 10—(AP)—Free ice cream for all the kids in the block.

That's Paddy Young's alluring promise to the gang on his street in Greenwich Village. There is one "If", it only goes if he whips Charlie Fusari Friday night at Madison Square Gerden.

Paddy, an Irish Laddie of 21 years owns Paddy's sweet shop on Bleecker street. While he trains, his sister Eileen, dips double scoop cones for the trade. The specialty is ice cream and penny candy bars.

"Sure, I'm a business man," said Paddy with a wide grin, "I want to have something to fall back on, just in case."

The ring historians say it's the same ice cream parlor where Gene Tunney used to hang out when he, too, was a Greenwich Village boy.

Paddy, youngest of a family of four, will have his gang on hand for the Fusari fight.

"The whole family always comes to see my fights," he said, "and most of the neighborhood too."

Young came up the hard way. A fighter since he was 18, Paddy is a product of the Greenwich House and the police athletic league program. He did a stint as a dock worker, like his dad.

Would he like to fight Jack La Motta, the widdleweight champion?

"Would I?" he said. "Very much. I guess that's every middleweigh's ambition now."

Six Unearned Runs Win For Atlantic Christian By 8-2

Loose fielding by East Carolina's defensive wall proved to be their downfall yesterday, as Atlantic Christian came from behind to win, 8-2.

Yesterday's contest closed out the season for Coach Jack Boone's Pirates with a record of eight wins against as many defeats for a fifth place berth in the league standings.

Six unearned runs proved costly in yesterday's game, as the Bucs committed six errors afield.

The Bulldogs came from behind a 2-0 Pirate lead, by scoring two runs in the third on two hits, one error, two walks, and two stolen bases.

Coach Bob Reynolds' nine scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth as McCaskill reached first on an error, stole second, and crossed the plate on C. Tart's long single to centerfield. The Wilson lads put on the finishing touches with three runs in the seventh and two more in the eighth.

The Pirates' two runs all came in the second inning, with Wallace leading off with a walk. He stole second, and reached third on a fielder's choice.

After two were out, Billy Smith singled sharply through short, scoring Wallace. George Wood followed with a single, moving Smith to second. Pitcher McCotter walked, loading the bases. Stan Terrill then worked a full count before gaining a free pass to first forcing Smith across the plate for the Pirates' final run.

Billy Smith and Jack Wallace led the Pirate batters with two hits apiece. Smith had two in three trips while Wallace had two for four.

Carlton, McCrary, and B. Tart led the Bulldog ten-hit attack with two hits apiece.

Rare Runner . . . . . by Pap'

Hailed as "potentially the finest distance runner in the history of the United States Military Academy Cadet Richard Shea is making amazing strides to live up to his mark at the Academy. Shea has turned in an amazing string of important cross-country, indoor and outdoor victories and is headed for greatness on the cinders.

Shea had only limited experience in informal cross-counutry competition when he entered the Military Academy in 1948. He was tabbed as a comer in his Plebe year when he set a new freshman standard at West Point with a 4:26.5 mile. Last fall, the barrel-chested ex-GI, surprised the track world by romping home ahead of the field in both the Intercollegiate and Heptagonal cross-country championship. During the past winter Shea twice shattered the Academy Field House two mile record, finally lowering the record to 9:21.7 in a dual meet with the University of Pennsylvania.

The 22 year old veteran served as a staff sergeant with the 53rd Constabular squadron in Europe in 1946, and saw competition in the inter-allied Olympic games in Germany. Powerfully built for a track man, Shea stands 5-feet-9 and weighs 160 pounds. His build and running style recall Glenn Cunningham in action. And his track ambition is to lower the Academy mile standard which currently stands at 4:15.

Switch Site For NCAA Basketball Tourney In 1951

Chicago, May 10—(AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament finals will be moved from Madison Square Garden in 1951 to the University of Minnesota's new fieldhouse.

The switch was officially announced by Arthur (Dutch) Lonborg director of athletics at Kansas and chairman of the NCAA tournament committee.

The field, expanded from eight to 16 teams for the first time since the tourney was inaugurated in 1939, will enter elimination competition in three cities before the finalists go to Minneapolis for the championship showdown.

Eight teams will compete for the eastern title at two cities. Four will play at the North Carolina State College fieldhouse, Raleigh March 20, and four at Madison Square Garden in New York on the same date.

Chapter 29

William smiled his charming, ingenious smile, and said brightly:

"Nice to see you, sir. Just back from New York?"

"I got in this afternoon. Magda came to meet me at the airport."

"Very filial of her, I'm sure."

"I went back to my apartment," said Mr. Hamlyn, "and changed and came here; I understand there was some kind of party for your birthday."

William had the grace to be distressed.

He said seriously with that disarming touch of boyish frankness that saved his skin so often, "I've absolutely no excuse. I had an awful afternoon at the studio. I quarreled with everyone, and finished up with a blazing row with Fraser. I simply went out and got tight."

Mr. Hamlyn looked thoughtfully at William, then said, "Come into the lounge, William, and have some coffee."

William drank his coffee. "Apparently they went straight off to the Mocambo," he said. "I'm glad Magda didn't wait for me."

"Magda has gone," said Mr. Hamlyn.

"Gone where?"

"To Reno."

William put down his cup and stared, and then gave a queer little laugh.

"I was against the marriage from the start," said Mr. Hamlyn, "and I don't blame you for that, William."

"What made her decide to go? What made her decide tonight that it was the end?"

"I think I did, William. I know that Magda doesn't like failures, and this evening I was given a report on you from the studio. They have all had just about enough of you, my boy. So I told her. We've got someone else to play the part."

"Bailey said you would," William answered with politely bitter interest. "But I understood from Blount and Nolan that they could not fire me."

"No, not exactly, but they needn't give you any parts. And if we offer you parts, any sort of parts"—Mr. Hamlyn paused, letting this sink in—"and you refuse to accept them, you have broken your contract."

William sat, his hands clasped loosely between his knees, wondering why the whole thing seemed so funny. He said apologetically. "This must be frightfully embarrassing to you, sir. After all, it was through you that I came. I do see that it's cost the company a lot of money, and for nothing."

Mr. Hamlyn smiled gratefully. "It has been darned embarrassing. In my position you can afford to make mistakes, but not quite such big ones. Though I still don't think it was such a mistake," he added gently.

William looked at him, a little bewildered. "You mean you advise me to stay here and play a singing cowboy or something, on the chance of learning my business and getting some small good part . . ."

Mr. Hamlyn shook his head. "No. I advise you to ask us to release you, and I'll see they accept. If you want any money to help you home, let me know."

"No, thanks," William said hurriedly, "I can manage." Manage what? To go back home with his tail between his legs? What was there and who was there to go back to?

Mr. Hamlyn rose quietly, as though they had been having quite a pleasant chat. "Well, I must be getting along now," he said, and went toward the door. "By the way—" He paused. "That old guy Morton you used to work for is in New York to produce a play. I wonder how he'll make out on Briadway?"

The glass William had just filled fell from his hand and rolled unbroken on the soft white carpet, the spirit leaving a sticky brown stain as it rolled.

"Morton?" he said incredulously. "In New York? It's impossible. What on earth could have persuaded him to leave Broadweir?"

"A very good play. If I hadn't seen him myself, I wouldn't have believed it."

He went out, leaving William there alone.

Katherine had heard various tales of Atlantic crossings, good and bad, but she rather suspected that no one had ever had such a one as hers.

The minute the train drew out, L. M. brought out the script of the play, and the moment they were abroad, and the fuss of embarkation and boat drill were over, he started rehearsing her in her part.

A gale blew from the second day out, and Katherine was very sick. Morton, surrounded by remedies, was not. She was too ill to think of anything but hanging onto the rail of her bunk and remembering her words, while Morton paced the narrow space of the cabin, moving the chairs about, kneeling on the floor, clasping her in his arms as the script demanded, ignoring the startled looks of the steward and stewardess, and the blank and fascinated face of Katherine's cabin companion, who completely forgot to be ill herself, so intrigued was she with this fat and bibulous gentleman who could pour out the passion of twenty-one without looking incongruous, who could gaze out of the porthole at a teeming boiling sea, and talk about the sunset over the roofs of Montparnasse, until you could see them yourself.

So, when the boat docked and she saw a familiar face and heard a familiar voice shouting, she turned, her heart leaping with relief and delight, and ran straight across to Andrew, leaving Morton cursing and blaspheming in the midst of the indifferent, busy crowd.

"Oh, Andrew," she said delightedly, "I'm so glad to see you." And she put her arms around his neck and kissed him. He held her for a moment, his eyes searching her face, and then quite suddenly let her go. "I'm glad to see you, Kate. Have you missed me?"

"Yes," she said, "I've missed you."

The little crinkling, self-mocking smile touched Andrew's mouth. "Well, that's something," he said, taking her arm. "Come along. We'd better rescue L. M. before he has apoplexy."

Jorgensen Is Appointed As Playground Director

In a recent City Recreation Commission meeting, Dr. N. M. Jorgenson was appointed as Technical Director of Playgrounds in the city.

Coach Bo Farley of Greenville High School was employed for the summer baseball program which will get under way on the city playgrounds on June 19.

The Greenville playgrounds will not open until the 19th due to the churches in the city conducting bible schools the first two weeks that the schools are out.

Bill Kittrell was employed as assistant playground director and technical manager of the Greenville city swimming pool.

Both the white and the Negro Teen Age clubs will open on June 5, the Monday following the closing of the city schools.

All applications for employment of playground workers should be made to Dr. Jorgensen.

The commission heard the report on the New Cotton Mill playground, the land for which was given by M. R. Long. The report stated that a combination swing, small slide, basket ball court and other small items have already been installed at the new playground.

Chairman Heber B. Tripp again voiced the need for new equipment for the playgrounds, but pointed out that the budget at the present will not allow the commission to purchase the needed equipment. It was suggested by some members that the local civic clubs donate money or equipment for use on the playgrounds in order that they might be fixed up properly for the opening of the summer playground season.

Various clubs in the past brought equipment and placed it on the playground, a spokesman for the group pointed out.

Chairman Tripp also asked that if someone knew of a section where there was not a playground in which one was badly needed, to contact him, and some arrangements will be made to have the area fixed up, he stated.

Awards For Six Students Given By Nat'l Group

Six students majoring in foreign language at East Carolina Teachers College received awards recently from the National Congress of Sigma Pi Alpha, National honorary foreign language fraternity, for achievements in their fields.

Peggy Steed of Warsaw, president of the East Carolina Phi Sigma chapter, received her award for achievement in French at the assembly of the national congress of the fraternity held recently at Mitchell College. Others who received their awards here, with their major fields, were Eloise Tucker, Spanish Greenville; R. Knott Braxton, Spanish, Farmville; William Roy Phelps Spanish, Greenville; Mary Emma Hudson, Spanish, Greenville; and Ann Beatty, French Greenville.

The awards were presented to the recipients by James L. Fleming, director of the department of foreign language at East Carolina.

Girl Scout Group Active In County

By CHESTER WALSH

Girl Scouting in Greenville has a splendid record, reports show. The first Girl Scout troop was organized here in 1939, two years before the outbreak of World War II, when the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor in the Pacific.

Girl Scouting in this city became popular from the outset. Parents, school teachers and others, keenly interested in the welfare of the young people of the city, lent a helping hand from the start, and they are still 'carrying on" in the project of developing the young girls into the "women of the future."

The Brownies, youngest in the age range of 7, 8 and 9 years, have a wonderful part in the development of Girl Scouting here and elsewhere, Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Greenville Girl Scout commissioner, said today. Mrs. E. L. Henderson, Girl Scout executive secretary, said the Brownies are a very important part of Girl Scouting. She reported the recent investiture service of more than two score girls into the Brownies.

Brownies inducted were:

Mary Harrington, Mary May, Jo Ann Smith, Goldis Starling, Sara Webb, Jenny Lynn Thompson, Bobby Rouse, Melissa Whichard, Susan Cashwell, Frances Brewer, Becker Basnight, Lee Lang Harrell, Nena Duncan, Margaret Nobles, Louise FFickien, Jane Reynolds, Mary French Hawes, Frances Moseley, Millie Overton, Jane Blue, Pat Evans, Bobby Newman, Ann Evans, Evelyn McKnight, Bobby Newman, Marsha Perkins, Sara Collins, Mary Lee Beverly, Barbara Gilliam, Betty Derrich, Kay Oglesby, Carroll Ferrell, Ann Greene, Sara Smiley and Jo Linda Brewer, and others.

Miss Virginia Boerger, a high school teacher, was the first active leader in Girl Scouting in Greenville. Mrs. J. B. Kittrell was he first Girl Scout commissioner and she served two terms, during which time Girl Scouting here expanded to a gratifying extent. Mrs. Henderson, always active since Girl Scouting was started here, is still active and is serving faithfully and efficiently as the executive secretary, a member of the Girl Scout Council stated today.

Girl Scouting here made great progress while Molly Lanning was Girl Scout executive.

Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Girl Scout commissioner, reminded today that the Girl Scout Summer Camp at Camp Hardee, on a high bluff, overlooking Pamlico River, below Chocowinity, will open June 18. The second summer encampment will start July 2, and the third and last encampment starts July 16.

High School Band, Glee Club At Services

Members of the student body of Greenville High School this afternoon placed flowers on the monument to the Confederate dead during the memorial services held on the court house lawn. Paving Projects On Outer Banks Will Begin Soon

Preparations are being made to begin the first paving projects on North Carolina's outer banks under the state bond program, it was announced today by Commissioner W. Guy Hargett through the second division headquarters here.

Paving already is underway on a 6.3 mile project on Cedar Island in Carteret county, and equipment is being assembled for paving approximately nine miles of road from Atlantic Beach to Salter Path on Morehead Island.

The most unique of the outer banks projects, however, will be the paving on Ocracoke Island where the state will begin work on improving 1.9 miles of roads. As most people know, Ocracoke is accessible only by water and air, and the state highway commission will have to resort to barges to transport its paving machinery to the historical Hyde county island. Road machinery has been sent to the island previously on barges for the maintenance of the sandy roads already on the island, but this will be North Carolina's first attempt to send its paving machinery over water to do paving on one of its outer banks.

Division Engineer R. Markham of Greenville said, "We hope to get the work underway right away," and explained that the paving equipment would be loaded on barges at Washington and transported down the Pamlico river and across Pamlico Sound to Ocracoke. Markham explained the paving on the state's outer banks is "an unusual type of work," and for that reason it is difficult to tell just how long it will take to complete each of the projects.

For the project on Ocracoke, the second division will load on the barges one D-7 tractor, one six-yard pan, two trucks, one road machine, and two two-bag mixers.

The paving equipment which already is being used on Cedar Island and that which will be used on Morehead Island between Atlantic Beach and Salter Path will not have to be transported by water because the islands are joined to the mainland by bridges.

All three of the projects on the outer banks are being done with the construction forces of the state highway commission.

Little Theater's First Production

By JOHN SPINKS JR.

"Mama's Angel Child" was presented last night by the Greenville Little Theater Guild as its first production since it recently became reorganized and the small crowd present was taken for a romp through the vagaries of snaring a millionaire by a young widow, aided and abetted by her daughter who was doing the same thing on the well-heeled son.

Annie Laurie Askew played to the hilt the role of Mrs. Charmer, mother of the dubious "angel child," played by Mildred Jones. Absent in last night's production was Bill Riggins, who was slated to play Mr. Bagley the millionaire, but could not due to a bad case of laryngitis. The director of the play, Kip West, took over his role, with script in hand, and made a convincing portrayal of the stock market devotee.

Dick Armstrong, Bagley's son by a former marriage, was played by Sam Fleming Jr. He fell for the little-girl wiles of Daphne Charmer, who stepped down from her 21 years —"I can vote"—to wearing pinafores and pigtails in an effort to grab the son while her mother was falling hard for Bagley and his millions.

Ellen, an old family "container" as she stated it, was played by Mrs Lindsay Savage and she was a party to the proceedings of bogus romance as she pursed Willoughby, Bagley's valet, with promises of a full life of good cooking for him. Virginia Garrison pursued the valet also as Miss Kreech, a spinster visiting at the summer hotel. Both ladies were undone when it was announced Willoughby had a wife and three children.

The whole denouement had its hazardous moments for the heroine and her daughter when they learned, though falsely, that Bagley had lost his money in the market. By that time, however, Mrs. Charmer had managed to fall in love with Bagley, and not his money, and when the report came he was not bankrupt as expected, the finish had a glossily romantic moment with a never-say-die clinch at the curtain.

Negro Returned From Baltimore

A Negro sought by the Sheriff's Department of Pitt since August 1948 was returned here yesterday from Baltimore for trial in the holdup of a taxi driver the night of August 23, 1948.

Linwood (Pete) Williams, wanted for holding up Robert Vandiford, Greenville taxi driver, between Winterville and Ayden, was brought here yesterday after he was released from prison in Maryland after serving 18 months of a two year sentence for theft of a car in that state.

Williams, a native of Grifton, was charged with stealing $8.35 from Vandiford with whom he was riding. Another Negro was a passenger in the car but he escaped with Williams after the holdup. Bloodhounds chased Williams through the woods during the night but he escaped into Greene County from which place he fled to Baltimore.

Aiding in the search for Williams during the chase were Deputy Lloyd Manning and Sheriff Tyson. Deputy Duke Andrews brought Williams to Greenville from Baltimore yesterday.
