Party Harmony Appeal Is Stressed In Demo Session

Keynote Address By Thad Eure Says There Is Room For Differences; Statement Echoed By Chairman Jordan; Large Number At Convention

Raleigh, N.C., May 11—(AP)—Plans for party harmony were voiced as North Carolina Democrats met in their state convention today. Secretary of State Thad Eure declared in his keynote address that there is room in the Democratic party "for all honest differences of opinion."

This was echoed by State Democratic Chairman Everett Jordan who said "as long as we have a family as big as the Democratic party we're bound to have a few fights." He urged the Democrats to unite behind Democratic candidates selected in the May 27 primary.

Jordan told the delegates he understood that every county in North Carolina was represented at the convention and that it was probably the largest convention in many years held in an off-previous election year.

Before the convention proper began, Democrats met from the state's congressional districts to name various committees. In the seventh district, a statement that "there is no place for Dixiecrat philosophies" in the party's state platform was cheered.

Immediate Aid

Washington, May 11—(AP)—Undersecretary of State Webb said today the United States plans immediate military and economic aid to Southeast Asia. Webb told a news conference: 1. The department "plans to implement at once" a recommendation by a special survey mission that about $60,000,000 be used for economic help to the area.

2. The military needs of the area will be met by drawing on President Truman's "emergency fund" of $79,000,000 approved by Congress for the general area of China.

Webb did not go into details of distribution of aid. In Paris last Monday, Secretary Acheson said American economic and military help would be sent immediately to French Indochina.

Power Projects Stressed In Talk

Truman To Fight Developments For Private Profit

Grand Coulee Dam, Wash., May 11—(AP)—President Truman declared today his determination to develop low-cost public power on all the country's great rivers against its use "for private profit."

"We have embarked, all over the country, on the task of fully developing our resources for all the people," he said. "And we shall have to continue to overcome the opposition of those who do not understand the greatness of our goal, or who fear the impairment of their selfish interests."

"We will meet opposition from the private power groups. Many of them—there are honorable exceptions, of course—do not want the energy of our rivers put to use as power and sold to the people at cost."

The President spoke out sharply against the opposition of private power companies to rural electrification and other local public agencies constructing transmission lines for the delivery and sale of power purchased at dam sites at cost. He said their opposition "is wrong."

Over $1 Million Loss To Fires

Raleigh, May 11—(AP)—There were 1,377 forest fires in North Carolina in April, J. V. Whitfield of Burgaw reported today. Whitfield, chairman of the Keep North Carolina Green Committee of the N.C. Forestry Association, said the fires burned over 267,928 acres of woodland and caused damage estimated at $1,061,320.

He said the blazes destroyed more seedlings than State Forest nurseries have produced since they have been in existence—an estimated 47,500,000.

Ayden Surpasses Quota In Cancer Fund Campaign

Farmville Nearing $900 Goal; Greenville Might Reach Quota This Week

With little more than $2,600 collected to date in the 1950 Cancer campaign, Ayden makes the claim of being the first of the larger county towns to surpass its quota. Chairman by Mrs. Ben Demain the town went over its $325 quota by $100, collecting over $425 at the end of the second week of the current drive.

Other towns throughout the county which have reached their quotas are Winterville, Bethel, Belvoir and Beaver Dam. Farmville, it was reported, is nearing its quota of $900. Sam Bundy, chairman for the town, said this week he thought it would be reached shortly.

Despite reports last week that Greenville would not reach its goal of $2,000, E. R. Conway, chairman, stated yesterday the figure might be reached this week. Most of the individual district canvassers have reported to him and have turned over their money to the treasurer, W. H. Woolard. However, no report from the men's and women's civic clubs has been made.

District Names Demo Executive Committee

Raleigh, N.C. May 11—(AP)—North Carolina Democrats held their congressional district meetings today as a preliminary to the state Democratic convention.

Britain Warming To French Offer Pool Resources

London, May 11—(AP)—The three big western powers began their big policy talks today amid signs that Britain was warming up to France's plan to pool much of Europe's coal and steel resources.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson already has given his "sympathy and approval" to the idea behind French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's proposal. The British, who received the plan with astonishment and reserve, now say nothing about it at first except that it would be studied. Soon after Acheson's implied approval, however, a British foreign office spokesman said Britain regarded Schuman's proposal as most important.

Utilities Await Overdue Action On REA Request

Local Projects Delayed; Commission Hears Requests At Tuesday Meeting

A delegation of Maple-Cypress community persons was told Tuesday night by the Greenville Utilities Commission that that southern Pitt community would be included in electrification plans when the recently requested loan for REA funds comes through.

Meeting the members of the Commission last night in its regular monthly meeting, the delegation was told the loan was still pending in the REA office in Washington and no definite time has been learned as yet when the $910,000 will be granted.

The Commission last week bought a lot on which will be constructed the auxiliary gas pumping station for the southeast "hwest" area of town which has been affected with low gas pressure during the winters. The lot is located adjacent to and east of the Atlantic Coastline tracks between 13th and 14th Streets.

The muddied water coming out of Greenville residents' plumbing is safe enough to drink. Martin Swartz, superintendent of Greenville Utilities, said yesterday.

Driver Seriously Injured When Car Turns Over

Pitt county's first automobile accident in the month of May injured one person seriously last night when the car he was driving ran off the highway about nine miles from Greenville. The car was described by highway patrolmen as being a total loss. The car turned over after leaving the highway. (Reflector photo by Roy Hardee).

Youth Injured As Car Turned Over

Taken To Hospital By Passing Motorist; Car Is Total Loss

One person was seriously injured last night when a car left the highway and turned over on the Washington highway about nine miles from Greenville.

The youth was taken to Pitt General Hospital by a passing motorist, whose name was not known. The hospital notified the patrol. A passenger, Dave Alligood, of Washington, who was riding in the front seat of the car with Ricks survived the accident with only minor bruises and scratches.

Rail Strike Quick To Hurt Industry

Unemployment Mounts Swiftly As Crippling Walkout Begins To Take Toll; Many Thousands Of Workers To Be Affected

Chicago, May 11—Unemployment mounted swiftly today as coal mining and other industry began feeling the effects of the strike of locomotive firemen on four key rail systems.

Fourteen major mines in western Pennsylvania, including those owned by the Bethlehem Steel Corp., closed down. There were no empty gondolas to carry coal away. The shutdowns forced 4,460 miners into idleness.

U. S. Considers Lending A-Bombs To Allied Powers

Discussions In Preliminary Stages; Proposal Is New Defense Concept

Washington, May 11—(AP)—U.S. military officials are considering the idea that this country should arm its North Atlantic allies with atomic bombs.

Discussions are in the preliminary stages, and the military authorities are still far from a recommendation on which the President might base a proposal to Congress.

The idea of placing atomic bombs within reach of Britain, France and other allies is being explored thoroughly, however, and military arguments are developing both for and against it.

Advocates contend that some way must be found to arm Western Europe faster and cheaper than is possible with conventional weapons. They argue that the job must be done in two years, the earliest time by which it is estimated Russia may have a stockpile of atomic bombs adequate for a major blow in an atomic war.

Peace Out Of Fear

Only The Threat Of The Cold War Could Have Brought The French Offer To Pool Coal and Steel Industries; A Proposal Is Not A Conclusion; Await Reaction

Only a great threat such a war could have brought about such amazing gestures of peace as are being exchanged between bitter enemies like France and Germany. France has proposed the pooling of Europe's vital coal and steel industries under a common authority as a means of preventing a third world war. This project—approved by the cabinet and announced by German Minister Schuman—would include the joining of France's output in the rich Saar and Lorraine regions with that of Germany's industries along the Ruhr. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, said today, "this astonishing proposal is a masterpiece of statesmanship."

Our Supreme Tribunal

Making Life Safer And Living Better; Rights And Freedoms Of Majorities And The Minorities; Day To Day Task Of Supreme Court; Our Stake In Its Justice

Washington, May 11—(AP)—If you were a pre-historic man, living alone, you'd have absolute freedom to do as you please. There'd be no laws, since there'd be no society to make laws. You could steal any stranger's food or kill him. You'd be free to do it, without fear of punishment. Unfortunately, you, any stranger likewise would be free to do the same to you. So never for one moment of your life would you be free of the fear of what some stranger might do to you. This would be pretty shaky living. When people began to live in tribes, they saw this and drew up rules and laws to make life longer and more livable. These rules and laws were simple agreements, or social contracts, by a lot of people who wanted to live together without fear of damage. Then, for instance, they'd make a law against murder. After that, everyone knew if he violated the law he'd be punished. This was intended to make life safer for everyone. But—the people who agreed to this agreed to give up a certain freedom—freedom to kill. When the American people decided to live together, they, too, agreed to a social contract, called the U. S. constitution. This guaranteed them certain freedoms and rights, such as freedom of speech and the right to trial by jury. Then to make living in America better, Congress and the states passed laws, lists of "do's" and "don'ts" for Americans. Some of these laws take away from individual freedoms. For instance, laws against murder, disturbing the peace, theft. Their purpose is to protect against abuse of freedom. At the same time it is the purpose of the constitution "to see that. As many people as possible have as much freedom as possible while still keeping the American form of government intact. It is the unending job of the Supreme Court to decide what is in accord with the constitution and what is contrary to it. In many such judgments on the cases which come before it, the Court must protect the rights and freedoms of the people. (Continued on Page Eleven)

Greenville Woman Honored Southern Pines Convention

Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, president of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club, was installed as state treasurer of the North Carolina organization Tuesday at a luncheon at Southern Pines during the closing day of convention session.

At the banquet session, Mrs. Copeland received a silver state trophy on behalf of the Greenville club for the outstanding club of the year, based on increase in membership, attendance and civic participation in community activities. This is the outstanding award of the club year and the one most desired by the 21 clubs of the state.

The Greenville club tied for award of club project for an underprivileged girl and Durham and Greenville split the $25 award offered last year at the Charlotte convention. Mrs. Copeland donated this cash award and presented it Tuesday.

The scrapbook prepared by the club with Mrs. Lettie Ellbro as chairman of the committee received honorable mention.
Attending as delegates for full time from the Greenville club were: Mrs. Copeland, Mrs. Cora S. Powell, Mrs. Ruby Lum, Mrs. Eleanor Norris, Mrs. Frances Cassick and Mrs. Louise Carrigan. Attending for the banquet at the Tuesday session were Mrs. Marie Cox, Mrs. Margaret Boykin, Mrs. Chester Walsh, Mrs. Cassie Sawyer and Mary Belle Eldridge of Greenville.

Bridge Party Honors Miss Kilgo

Another in a series of parties planned to honor Miss Susanne Kilgo, bride-elect of this month, was given on Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. F. J. Forbes was hostess at bridge.

Beautiful arrangements of mock orange, roses and peonies were used in the rooms where three tables were in play. At the conclusion of the games a salad course with coffee and bridal cakes was served. Mrs. Robert Arthur was awarded costume jewelry for making high score. Miss Kilgo was presented a gift of china and also drew the consolation prize, a deck of cards.

Piney Grove News

Howdy Folks.
Several things have happened since I last appeared but I won't attempt to go back and cover them all. However, I would like to tell you that we have recently organized a Youth Fellowship group at Piney Grove Free Will Baptist church. The purpose of this organization is to aid the progress of the church. It meets regularly the Monday after each third Sunday. Our last meeting was held at Mr. and Mrs. William Tripp's home and we had quite a large crowd there. This month we meet with Mrs. Johnnie Cassick at 8 p. m. All who are interested are cordially invited to attend.

Don't forget the Junior Ladies Auxiliary meeting on Monday. We are to meet with Mrs. Johnnie Cassick. All members are urged to attend and visitors are cordially invited.

A large crowd attended the central conference at Piney Grove fifth Saturday and the Sunday school convention the following Sunday. The church was filled to overflowing both days. Dinner was served on the ground. We are proud to report that Piney Grove received the banner for attendance and hope we will be able to keep it. That Sunday we had 218 present.

The Junior Ladies Auxiliary presented a mock wedding at the Red

Oak Community building last Wednesday night, and everyone present had a shower of laughs. So many have asked for a repeat performance that we plan to give this wedding again the 24th of May at the same place. We sincerely hope you will plan now to attend. Home-made cakes and candy will also be sold afterwards. It's worth the price of admission to see Aaron Case dress up as Mrs. B. L. Tyson and Joe Wyatt-Tyson as Mrs. Nina Tripp. Ask Sam Worthington and Mrs. Ed Tyson if they don't agree.

Little Miss Willette Tripp celebrated her first birthday fifth Sunday. She really had quite a birthday dinner with dinner at the church.

Little Judy Humbles received her fourth Sunday school pin for perfect attendance Sunday, July 1, only four years old and that is what I call a record.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Jack Kite, formerly of our Sunday school, has been sick. We wish for her a very speedy recovery.

Mrs. Bernice Causey recently visited her children in Norfolk.

Mrs. William Tripp is no longer just a housewife. She has recently gone to work for Hospital Savings

Association of Chapel Hill who have opened an office in Greenville.

Everyone who was present at the ymn festival last fifth Sunday at Ed Oak had a wonderful time. The hours all sang beautifully and the nail children sang exceptionally well.

Sunday is Mother's day and also a regular preaching Sunday. We hope to have a large number present for this service.

Fountain Children Take Part In Spring Festival

Approximately 200 children of the Fountain school last night took part in the annual colorful spring festival which was attended by more than 250 parents and friends.

The festival celebration was highlighted by the crowning of Ann Harris as queen, who with her court, reigned at the festival while dancers and singers entertained them. Queen Ann was crowned at the opening of the festival program by Sigbee Dilda, king of the festival.

Members of the first grade rhythm band were the first to entertain the royalty at the festival as they paraded dressed in their white uniforms with blue and red capes. The band played "Stars and Stripes Forever" and "Grandfather's Clock," which were followed by the singing of a song.

Next came the third grade Hansel and Gretel dancers and singers who performed for the court and the audience with their song and German folk dance.

Hungarian folk dancers—members of the fourth and fifth grades—were next on the program as they danced a Csobogar which represented Hungarian maids in a skipping dance.

American folk dances came into the program as the Children's Polka which dates back to the first of the century was danced and accompanied by a song.

Two of the most colorful dances of the festival were the ribbon dance and Minuet. The boys and girls in bright red, yellow and blue, and danced in pairs with ribbons to match their blouses. The Minuet was danced by the older members of the student body—girls in evening dresses with bouquets of spring flowers and boys in suits.

The tiptoe Ace of Diamonds dance was included in the program, and the festival was climaxed with the traditional May Pole dance which was danced around two May Poles, one at each end of the gymnasium.

The program was accompanied by a narration in verse which told of each of the dances and songs in the festival, and was read by Narrator Billy Mayo.

Queen Ann bid the members of her court and the audience: good-night by singing a solo.

In addition to the king and queen, other members of the court for the festival were twin flower girls Sarah and Sandra Smith, train bearers John Tugwell and Mike Gardner, crown bearer Melvin Abrams, Maid of Honor Algeria Owens, and Betsy Oakley, Ernestine Mosely, Shirley Tugwell, Katherine Baker, Mary F. Owens and Eunice Shackelford.

The festival was under the direction of Mrs. Herman Baker, principal of the Fountain school, who wrote the narrative for the program as well as directed the program. The festival was given as the culmination of the year's work in the music and physical education program of the school.

The Parent-Teachers Association of the school and the civic clubs of the Fountain community have sponsored the music program in the school this year by paying the salary of Mrs. Emily S. Watson, music teacher for the school.

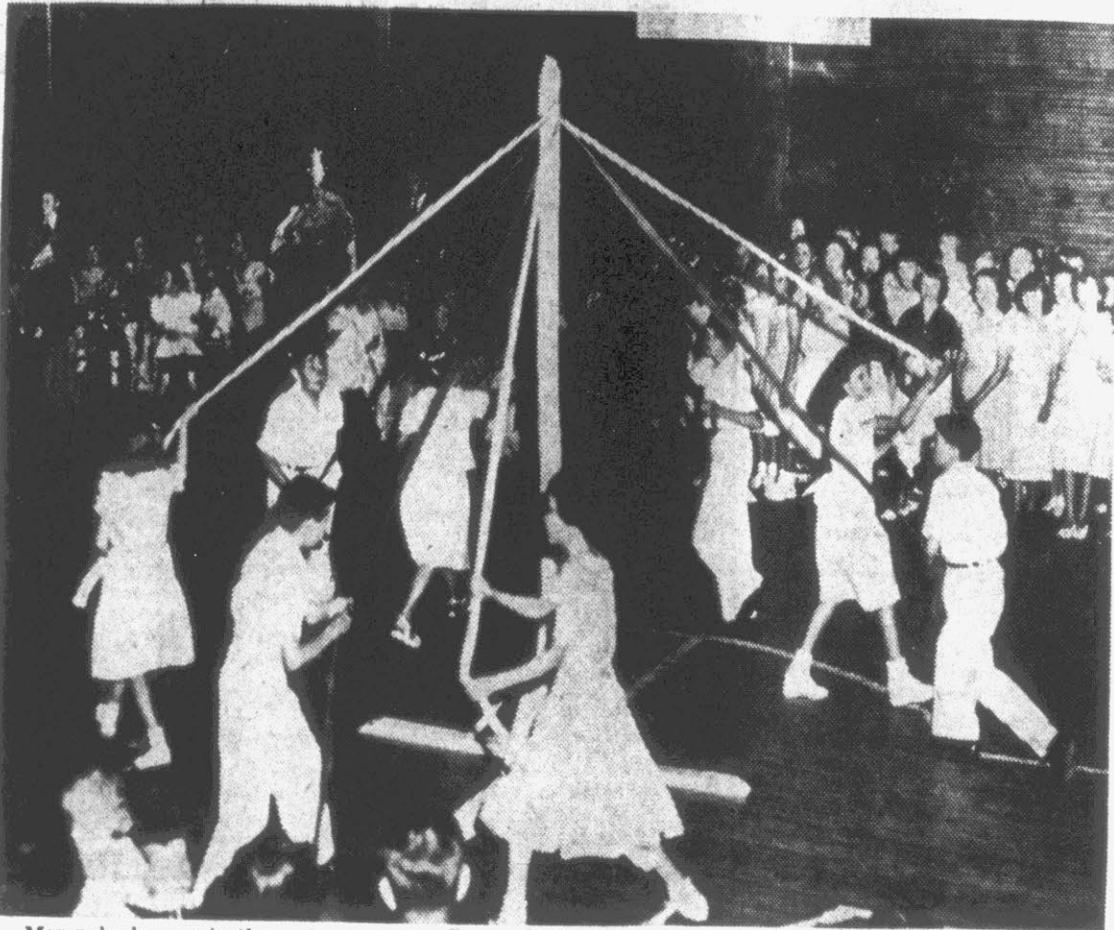

Mrs. Baker said it was through the cooperation of all the teachers and students in the school that the music and dancing program was arranged for the festival.

The school gymnasium was decorated with pine and other greenery in keeping with the spring theme.

Recital Part Of Alumni Program

Among scheduled programs of Alumni Day at East Carolina Teachers College, to be held Saturday, May 13, as opening event of the Forty-First Annual Commencement Exercises, will be a recital at which the department of music will present a number of its talented students. The program will take place at 8:00 o'clock in the Austin auditorium on the campus and will be open to the public.

Other events of Saturday will be a meeting of the Alumni Association at 10:00 in the morning, a luncheon for visitors on the campus at 1:00 in the afternoon; following this, reunions of the classes of 1915, 1920, 1925, 1930, 1940, and 1949; and a tea for alumni, seniors, and faculty members at the home of President and Mrs. John D. Messick.

Taking part in the recital Saturday evening will be a group of soloists who will give both vocal and instrumental numbers; the Women's Chorus and the College Singers, directed by Dan E. Vornholt; the College Choir, directed by Dr. Karl V. Gilbert; and a clarinet quartet made up of William Glasgow, Rocky Mount; Ethel Clement, Oxford; Edward Reynolds, Creswell; and Leonard Starling, Rocky Mount.

Soloists who will appear in the recital are Carolyn Eisele, Statesville, soprano; Rodney Roberts, Greenville, trombonist; Robert Mays, Hopewell, Va., baritone; Rupert Browning, Logan, W. Va., and Nina Abernethy, Rocky Mount, pianists; and Louise Brooks, Falcon, mezzo soprano. Accompanists will be Madeline Hodges, Washington, and Alison Hearne, Greenville. Donald Adcock of Durham, graduate student in the department of music, will play his own composition for the flute "Renascence."

ments of small businesses as well as large businesses became a burden which added greatly to the time and effort necessary to conduct a business of any sort. Since the war there have been ever increasing instructions on new records which businesses are required to keep for the various departments and agencies of both the national and state governments.

These records may be of some value to the governmental agencies, but for the most part the records which businesses are required to keep for the government probably never become more than statistics which would have been just as well left uncompiled for the value they are to the people of the country.

With the multiplying forms and reports which the various government levels are requiring, government in business is becoming more of a burden than a benefit to both the employer and the employe alike.

News Behind the News
 BY RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, May 11—New York City is a disgustingly bourgeois place of dirt and depravity, crime and carnal, beggars and banks, where the "tragic evils" of the capitalistic system forecast its eventual doom and illustrate by contrast the splendid strength and virtue of Russia's communist society and state.

That is the word picture of our metropolis which the first postwar reporters assigned to the United States by Pravda, Stalin's official newspaper, have sent to their readers. It shows graphically, and more eloquently than President Truman's and Secretary Acheson's notes and speeches of protest, how the facts of world affairs are withheld from the Russian people.

It emphasizes the meaning and operation of what Winston Churchill called the "iron curtain."

DECEPTION—It also suggests, significantly, that living conditions within Russia and the satellite nations must be unbelievably harsh and rugged, if such willful deception becomes necessary in order to make Stalin's subjects satisfied with their hard lot.

It shows, too, what small chance this or any other Administration has of reaching a decent and honest agreement with the Communist rulers for world cooperation and understanding. For Pravda publishes only what pleases Stalin. Government censors sit in the city room and executive offices, and every news article or editorial must have their approval before it can be run.

TRAGIC—This example of Russian reporting has current interest for government officials and the Washington press corps because the two men who wrote it—Gregori I. Rassadin and Ivan Filippov—have applied for membership in the newspaper group officially accredited by Congress.

Although neither is a veteran journalist or speaks much English, they will be admitted to the Congressional press gallery, which means that they may attend all press conferences with the President, Cabinet members and other officials.

Their report on New York would be only an amusing bit of newspaper gossip, if it were not such a tragic commentary on official and human hopes for staying off what Mr. Truman describes as a "world conflagration."

BROADWAY—They wrote that Broadway is a crowded boulevard lined with bars, gaudy theaters and gambling joints frequented only by the wealthy. But they said that its bright lights, its restaurants, its jazz and skyscrapers serve only to cover up the "ghastly social contrasts" of the city.

"Turn into Broadway," according to Reporters Rassadin and Filippov, "and you will see beggars and unemployed. Among the crowds of passersby you will notice women beggars asking alms for their starving children.

"Dirty, unshaven men beg for even five cents for a piece of bread. And to your question as to what has forced them to beg, they will indignantly reply, 'Unemployment.'"

"It is difficult for a Soviet man to realize the full tragedy and hopeless situation of the American unemployed. People thrown on the streets by enterprises are doomed to an existence of starvation.

"Hungry and homeless people can be encountered on park benches, in dirty joss houses, in doorways and subway entrances. Some unemployed are forced to sleep even in old cars for which they pay twenty cents a night."

ESCAPE—"Spiritual poverty," they found, matches the "material poverty." Although they visited art galleries, libraries and museums, they discovered only the sickly signs that American culture was designed as an escape from life and "social contradictions."

"The hit of the New York theatrical season," they reported, "is a play called 'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes.' The main character in this vulgar vaudeville is a prostitute.

"Cinema advertisements are covered by semi-naked women. Film heroes shoot, use knives, strangle and rape. The very titles of the films speak of the content of Hollywood film production. 'A Crowd of Killers,' 'Blood Money' and hundreds of similar detective films are day after day poisoning the consciousness of millions of Americans."

AWE—The downtown financial district, which they apparently visited at night, seemed to frighten and awe them. Here is how it impressed them:

"We pass through the grim, narrow street. Here there is no neon advertisement. The bosses of Wall Street do not like the light. They live by dark deeds and dark adventures.

"The dark shadows of numerous banks create an atmosphere of mystery. There, in the secret places and headquarters of the manufacturers of weapons, new ghastly plans are being prepared for the enslavement of the peoples, new and dishonest means of deriving profit are being nursed on the sweat and blood of the people."

VOICES—"But they heard a few voices 'clamoring for peace,' working for 'the growth of the democratic movement in this country' and leading in the 'fight for freedom.'"

The "voices" they heard were those of Henry A. Wallace and Paul Robeson at their turbulent Peekskill rally!

The Wonderful Wizards Of Washington

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

There's no telling how much money it costs Uncle Sam just to answer the letters from John Q. Public addressed to the President. Quite often I have considered writing the President a letter myself, but not until now have I had a topic worthy of his attention:

Dear Mr. Harry S. (for nothing) Truman:

First of all, I would like to know something about that "S." If you didn't have a middle initial or name, and though you needed one, why did you pick "S"? The odds against that letter were 26 to one, and yet you picked it. Maybe you had Uncle "Sam" in mind.

But the "S" really isn't what I'm writing you about at all. It's really this business of a subsidy. You see, I write a column five days a week in the Greenville, N. C. Daily Reflector, and to be perfectly frank, it sometimes isn't worth reading.

For every one that goes to press that isn't worth reading there are several that hit the waste basket. Quite often I start a column and before it's half done I throw it away.

Now, let me divert you to the government's farm program. If a farmer raises potatoes they are supposed to bring a certain price, and if they don't, Uncle Sam buys them from the farmer and lets them rot. Meanwhile other potatoes are imported from Canada and sold for less than the price the government pays.

The same applies to eggs, except the government goes to the trouble of storing them in caves if they don't bring a certain price.

Why, Mister Truman, shouldn't this apply to my column? If the government would guarantee me a certain price for every column, no matter how sorry it is, I could soon retire from the ones that go into the waste basket.

As it is, the readers howl, but say they have to read at least the first paragraph to find out what Wife Rachel is doing, or whether or not the rest of the thing is worth while.

Still better, Mister Truman, why not pay me for the column ideas that pop in my mind that I never write? Some of these are so bad that I would almost pay myself to keep from writing them.

Mister Truman, if the farmer gets paid for what he raises that can't be used, why can't the journalist be guaranteed that everything he writes will bring a certain price?

If you are fishing, stop. If you are in Florida, go back to Washington. This matter is urgent. Thank you for your immediate attention.

Cordially,
 I, Jackson,
 P.S.: I voted for you last time.
 "And I thank you."

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Raleigh, N. C.

FADING—Many complaints have been registered about fading automobile license tags. One out of every eight or ten cars seen parked along the streets has lost part or all the black and orange paint, leaving only a white metal plate with slightly raised numerals to identify the car. Explanation offered by motor vehicle folks is this: Because of steel shortage, the state had to buy a lot of sheet aluminum for the 1950 tags. Aluminum will not take paint, until it has been thoroughly cooked in a special kind of chemical solution and at high temperature. Operators in the prison license plate shop let several vats in which the plates were being boiled get too cool. Result was the paint would not stick. Very few plates on the rear of cars are affected, but the paint on the front plates just will not stand up against the wind and sand, unless the metal had been properly treated before being painted.

SUBDUED—Governor Scott surprised Capitol reporters attending recent press conference. Some of the fellows who had boasted that nothing the government could do would surprise them wondered if they heard aright when he said such nice things about the utilities commission, the telephone companies and the power companies. He told reporters he thought these public and private agencies are doing a pretty good job. From beginning of his administration until now he has been caustic in criticism of the utilities commission for acting like attorneys for utilities instead of guardians of public interests.

He said telephone companies were not trying to do the job, and that the big power companies apparently didn't care about aiding in development of the state's progress, along economic, social and cultural lines. Now he says they are doing all right. Implication is that this prodding was responsible for the progress made.

CONTINUING—Fact is, business has been ahead of politics all the while. First requisite for telephone expansion is adequate central office equipment. Big telephone companies started just as soon as the war ended to building these facilities. Electric power lines to farms are worthless unless there is power to send over them. Governor Scott mentioned no matter how sorry it is, I could soon retire from the ones that go into the waste basket.

PARADISE—Tobacco has been and still is the dominant factor in eastern North Carolina agriculture, but there is developing more interest in livestock. With Agriculture Commissioner Balentine your reporter paid a pop call at Duart Farms near Lumberton the other day and listened to Myron Duncan, manager of the farm, was eloquent about the possibilities for a real dairy industry in that section. Duncan came down from Wisconsin about three years ago. He says about 400 people in Eastern Carolina live in Paradise and don't realize it. "Near the end or after the close of Governor Scott's administration."

CREDIT—Who is entitled to credit for these and other development projects? That is a difficult question. Perhaps more public buildings in North Carolina have the names of Clydia Hoey as governor than any other chief executive in state history. That is because Hoey was WPA error during the PWA and WPA building regime. Quite likely Kerr Scott's name will appear on more corner stones than Hoey's. That's because Scott is governor during the post war building boom, although the money going into these buildings accrued during the Broughton and Cherry administrations, and could not be spent because of wartime conditions. Credit does not belong so much to the government official or the private utilities executive in power at time of completing the project as to the spirit of growth and continuing progress inherent in Americans—including Tar Heels.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Apparel retailers complaining they have little style news to promote this summer now that button-front and other classic styles have become so standard, do have something solid to take hold of.

That's the new wrinkle-resistant cotton clothes. You really do your customer a favor when you get her to add these to her own and her children's wardrobes. She won't have to wash and iron clothes so often this summer.

Wrinkle-resistant fabrics are generally treated with textile resins or other chemicals so that each tiny fiber is completely coated. Not only do such fabrics shed wrinkles easier than untreated clothes, but they stay clean longer, and are more wear-resistant. The finish is generally durable; it will last as long as the garment itself.

A number of manufacturers are now producing women's and children's dresses and sports wear, and men's sports shirts, from these treated fabrics. Such garments do cost a little more than untreated ones. But do you see how useful they can be to your customers, and the solid, factual selling arguments they give you? Retailers, BBB, New FTC Seeking Nylon Label, Ad Rules.

First the retailers, then the Better Business Bureau, and now the Federal Trade Commission are seeking ways of eliminating misrepresentations—often unconscious—of part-nylon articles. The demand for agreement on how such goods should be labeled and advertised arose when retailers offered slips and other merchandise as nylon, which really contained a percentage of rayon. When the situation was called to their attention, a number of retailers complained that manufacturers had failed to inform them of the presence of the rayon.

Retailers themselves will have to exercise great care in ordering and then in marking and advertising mixed goods if they and the trade generally want to avoid outside regulation, advises the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Not that mixed goods are necessarily inferior. In fact, part-rayon content sometimes helps woven nylon goods to have greater porosity and resilience, two qualities nylon lacks. Instead of omitting that information (if they're aware of it), sellers can well take a positive tack and play up the mixed blend as a virtue. Plan Nationwide Campaign On Books For Summer Reading

Booksellers will launch a drive late in May to sell more books for summer vacations. One campaigner suggests the slogan: "Good Books Add SO MUCH TO A Good Vacation." One recommended tie-up for retailers: display vacation book supplements and paste-ups of book columns so customers can refer to them when selecting books.

Food Brokers More Useful Than Ever, American Spokesman
 Not long ago it was popular to predict that food brokers and other middlemen would fade out of the distribution picture. But the brokers themselves are finding that currently more manufacturers are turning to them to sell their products, says Watson Rogers, president of the National Food Brokers Association. Many sales managers find brokers are more economical and effective than using a salaried sales staff, he claims.

That must be at least partly true. The brokers are very much alive. One reason the report of their death turned out to be slightly premature, is the Robinson-Patman Act, which lessened the power of what Rogers calls "coercive buying ability."

Beware of over-careful buying these days, Rogers warns wholesalers. He points out that it costs almost three times as much to take three different orders of 100 cases into a warehouse as one order of 300 cases.

Short And Significant Business Notes
 Machine tool sales are picking up as industry seeks cost-cutting devices, says the Machine Tool Builders Association. Picking "The Outstanding Mother in Town" is the favorite Mother's Day promotion, judging from reports rolling into this office from various cities. Rubber products are bouncing upward against present price levels; new hikes are expected soon on tires, foam rubber products and other rubber goods as the result of recent sharp price increases in raw rubber. Why were the experts who predicted price decreases in 1950 so far off the target? asks the Bulletin of the National Association of Purchasing Agents.

Apparently a prophet is not without honor save in the price predicting business.

Hal Boyle's Column

Seattle—(AP)—The great Pacific Northwest is beaver busy today.

It feels it is the promised land of the American future. But it is something like a young boy reaching the weed stage, who is growing right out of his clothes.

The area is developing so fast it is finding it difficult to keep up with the demands of its post-war expansion. It is still building like mad.

Almost everywhere you look, you see trees going down and homes going up, as the cities reach out into the woods. And new factories are springing up to serve a mushrooming population.

The power supply is already strained in some sections, and dozens of dams are being built, or are in the planning stage, to tap fresh might from the Northwest's roaring mountain streams.

To a casual visitor there appears to be no letup in the post-war boom. But it is curiously unlike other booms in United States history. There is an unmistakable solidity about it.

You get the feeling there are almost as many real estate offices about as there are filling stations. But the land salesmen aren't serving free lunches or hiring jazz bands to lure the customers in, as was customary in Florida during the hectic boom there in the 1920's.

It's a high-priced area and the wages are generally high. I found this out when I got a shoeshiner at the Seattle-Tacoma airport, and the boy said, "Two bits, please." That didn't include a tip either. But they don't tip as much out here as they do in the East.

There are short cuts to keep down the costs. People in the Northwest seem to know how to do more things for themselves than they do in some other sections. At one small party I attended, for example, two of the men were building their own homes. They didn't see anything unusual about it—and they were white collar workers.

Even in Portland, the city of lovely homes, they will tell you—without envy—that Seattle probably will be the real metropolis of the West coast.

Seattle is sure to pass Los Angeles and may even in time outrank New York City, said one man, who has made a study of the region's resources.

"It has an unlimited water and power supply to draw on—Los Angeles hasn't. And Seattle is the nearest big port to the Far East, a trading area with 800,000,000 people. That's a potential market much bigger than Europe."

Such bright visions don't thrill as many residents here as you might think. The booster attitude isn't particularly strong in the Pacific Northwest.

Those who live here like it because the recreational facilities of seashore and mountain and forest are unspooled—and unencumbered. They fear that if millions of other Americans move out here to enjoy the mild climate—who minds if it drizzles on many, many days?—they themselves will be engulfed. Their attitude is that of a family which settles down to enjoy a fresh picnic site, only to have six other families come whooping up to share it, too.

"The real trouble is so many people are coming out here it's hard to adapt them all to our western way of life," sighed one lady. "They're beginning to swallow us—and we were here first."

But it is doubtful if that will slow the boom in the Pacific Northwest. It has a crowded time a-coming.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—The American Friends Service Committee, Quaker-founded during World War I, is still working for peace throughout the world in many projects started at World War II's end. The committee was organized in 1917 by the late Rufus Jones, a leading Quaker and professor at Haverford College, Pa., established by the Religious Society of Friends. The committee's purpose is to afford people who do not believe in fighting wars a way to save mankind in ameliorating the suffering caused by wars.

Though it expresses the religious concerns of the Society of Friends only one-third of the organization's members are Quakers. More than 90 per cent of its financial support is contributed by non-Quakers. Currently the committee is heavily involved in projects in Germany, Israel, France, Austria, China, Japan and India. It also carries on some work, with other welfare units, in Italy and Finland. Its biggest accomplishment is the setting-up of neighborhood centers similar to community centers here.

Relief work is part of the program, but mostly the centers offer services to supplement home facilities and home life of the people who come to them. These include laundries, libraries, day nurseries, shoe repair shops, workshops, a little theater and discussion groups and other recreational and cultural projects.

"The need and kind of thing they do rises right there on the spot and isn't superimposed on the people from outside," I was told by Corinne Hardesty, former top-notch newspaperwoman, who is the committee since 1946. "The centers are guided by the people in each community and eventually we expect them to be taken over by the people."

Miss Hardesty, who spent nine months in Arab Palestine, where for a while the Quakers administered UN relief for Arab refugees, says the Quakers started schools for about 18,000 refugee children in a trading area with 800,000,000 people. "Since there was no money for schools," she told me, "the Quakers started them on faith and prayers, finally getting money from UN and other groups by selling containers in which food had been shipped to the country."

The 425 teachers were volunteers, mostly from the refugees. The schools were set up in about 10 villages and camps. Only sad thing, Miss Hardesty says, is that they accommodated but 18,000 of the child refugee population of more than 60,000. Leaving Palestine, Miss Hardesty, a public relations officer of the committee, visited other centers in France, Germany, Austria and southern Palestine. At Gaza, Israel, she stayed at one of the four homes operated by the Quakers for their workers.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

CANNOT LIVE WITHOUT IT (Index-Journal, Greenwood, S.C.)
 Water storage involves more than just having enough of the stuff to satisfy thirst, wash dishes and cars, sprinkle lawns and fill the bathtub, the principal every-day household uses. Water is vital to many industries, and stored supplies make agriculture possible in arid areas. Water is the first essential of civilization. Without it life can endure only on a precarious subsistence basis. Shifting winds and other natural causes are partly responsible for the transformation of many once verdant and productive areas into barren, waterless wastes, but man's carelessness and lack of foresight have contributed greatly to the ruin.

The appalling results may be seen in many parts of the world, especially in the Mediterranean basin. Here in the United States are many portents of disaster. Eroded farms, rivers muddy with precious topsoil washing into the sea, blinding mountain tops, flood plains, all tell of water wasted, of water bringing poverty instead of prosperity.

In time of drought, when sources of supply shrink visibly, everybody gets worried and many plans for new reservoirs and water systems are offered. But when the rains come and the water level rises beyond the point of immediate danger, interest wanes.

As they are in so many other matters, are the States going to surrender to the federal government the initiative in water supply development?

YOU'RE FREE TO SHUT UP, MINERS (Statesville Daily Record)
 Back in January a coal miner named Joe Dickmon was so reckless as to call John L. Lewis a dictator: He was promptly suspended from the United Mine Workers for this indiscretion, and that meant he couldn't get further work in the pits.

Now we learn that Dickmon has apologized and that the UMW has decided to reinstate him as a result.

This little sample of how free speech works in Lewis' union doesn't need much pointing up.

Strength for the Day

MIRACLES
 Twentieth century man sometimes professes great difficulty in believing the Biblical miracles. They just couldn't happen, he asserts. They are contrary to nature. They do not meet the test of reason.

Twentieth century man needs to realize that there are many things in heaven and earth that are not dreamt of in his philosophy—or in his science. The miracles recorded in the Bible do not request acceptance on the basis of reason but on the basis of faith.

Miracles played a particular part in the ministry and life of Jesus. There are some people who claim that the deity of Jesus Christ is proved by the fact that he performed miracles. This would appear to be a quite mistaken idea. Rather it is the other way about; because he was divine, he performed miracles. We are not called upon to believe the gospel because we believe the gospel. Jesus being the kind of person he was, it is no unwarranted strain on wholesome faith to believe that he performed miracles. His life was greater than any miracle he performed. His influence through the centuries has been a continuing miracle.

Depression Measures In Times Of Prosperity?

Back in the '30's when the economy of the United States was wallowing in the depths of a severe depression, workers and businessmen alike welcomed measures such as the bill creating the Civilian Conservation Corps which gave work to thousands of young men who could not otherwise find employment.

That was during the years when the nation's business hit one of the lowest ebbs in its history, and the measures such as the CCC were taken as temporary steps to overcome the extreme emergency.

Even now, however, when the country is enjoying the greatest period of prosperity it has ever experienced, Senator Murray (D-Montana) and Congressman Bosone (D-Utah) have introduced into congress bills which would reestablish the CCC to provide work for a maximum of 500,000 men between the ages of 17 and 28.

We believe that these men are getting off on the wrong foot in the type of legislation the people of the United States want and need. It is true that the nation's unemployment lists are growing, but it is also a fact that more people are at work in the United States today than ever before. The CCC which was created during the depression was designed to help the country work its way out of a depression. At the present time we are far from being in the depths of a depression, and the Reflector can see no need for the reestablishment of the CCC except as a measure for the politicians to garner more votes.

With the pay scale for CCC members ranging from $66 to $90 a month, the CCC would cost the government about $36,000,000 monthly to pay off the CCC boys alone, to say nothing of the cost of administering the program on the government's bureaucratic basis.

The Reflector doesn't think that kind of spending is necessary at the present time to keep our economic system in balance. If it is done in these times of unprecedented prosperity, what in the world will the government propose if there is a slight business slump?

Maybe The Senator Is Right

In a statement Senate Minority Leader Wherry of Nebraska voiced what probably is the feeling of many small businessmen who vote both the Republican and the Democratic tickets in national elections.

Wherry said instead of the proposed 5-point program which is designed to aid small business, "small business would rather have a 5-point program to take government out of business." There is no denying that in recent years government regulations have entered more and more into the activities of the smallest businesses in the country; until now there is hardly a business, no matter how small, which does not have to spend as much time keeping government records as it does keeping its own records.

During the war years with the emergency regulations, the government require-

Arkansas, Texas, Chosen For Intensive Dixiecrat Campaign

By CLEM BROSSIER
 Jackson, Miss., May 11—(AP)—Arkansas and Texas were selected today as proving grounds for the new states' rights door-to-door campaign against President Truman's fair deal.

The decision was reached within hours of the endorsement by the third annual states' rights meeting of a new approach to the two-year-old fight.

Leaders planned to retire "Saturday and Sunday politicians" and replace them with paid organizers in every state.

Cash is the main obstacle still facing the conservative Southerners. Vice chairman W. W. Wright of Jackson, Miss., estimates campaign expenses in 13 Southern states will be $2,000,000.

A spokesman says they start the Arkansas-Texas trials from scratch. The movement is out to sell southerners on the states' rights stand and through them eventually to gain state party control.

In 1948, with control of state machinery firmly in hands of states' rightsers carried Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina. Their hold still is solid in Mississippi and South Carolina. Alabama states' rights committeemen were elected into a minority in the May 2 election there.

Control in Louisiana is in doubt, leader Perez, national states rights director and Sen. Russell Long (D-La) who advocates remaining in the National Democrat party under any circumstance, are aligned on opposite sides.

Texas elects a new congressional delegation state officials and precinct committeemen who ultimately determine state Democratic executive committee membership.

Arkansas campaign include one for governor and other state officers, one senator, with Sen. Philbrick (D-Ark) unopposed, and a slate of supreme court justices. The executive committee is not elected.

Registrars Face Action In Court

Durham, N.C., May 11—(AP)—Plans for criminal and civil action against registrars in Nash County have been announced by three local Negro attorneys.

The lawyers charged yesterday that the registrars failed to register qualified Negro voters for the May 27 primary.

The lawyers are W. Frank Brower, M. E. Johnson and C. M. Pearson. They said they were acting in the interest of the state Non-Partisan Voters League, which was organized here March 4.

They said they planned action against Registrars F. L. Roberson and Claude Glover of Jackson precinct, and William G. Collins, chairman of the Nash County Board of Elections.

The attorneys said they will seek a declaratory judgment injunction with damages and criminal action through the office of U.S. Attorney General McGrath.

"Removal of United States Attorney John Manning of the eastern district of North Carolina" also will be sought, the three said. They claimed Manning failed to act following the investigation of affidavits submitted by Warren County Negroes two years ago, who claimed they had not been allowed to register.

Smith's Way Is Said Safe, Sure

By the Associated Press

The way of U.S. Senatorial Candidate Willis Smith "appears to be the steady, the sure and the safe way," Col. W. T. Joyner of Raleigh declared last night.

In a statewide radio address in behalf of Smith, Joyner said the real issue in the Democratic senatorial race is whether the state will go to the left with Senator Frank Graham or to the right with Smith.

The course the nation is following now will "make us a socialistic nation within five years," predicted Joyner, a former state elections board chairman and keynoter of the 1948 Democratic state convention.

Joyner declared Graham has talked in generalities about such questions as the Brannan plan, socialized medicine, FEPC, and deficit spending, but has not said specifically he favors balancing the budget, opposing the Brannan Plan, or whether he will vote against the Ewing socialized medicine plan.

Hospitals Have Aspect Of Home

Paris Island, S. C.—(AP)—To Marine Surgeant William E. Schrest, Naval Hospitals have become as much like home as barracks life. He has already spent three of the past eight years recuperating from seven automobile accidents in which he has been involved, and from wounds received during the Guadalcanal campaign of 1942.

An expert midget car racer on the Midwest circuit to his entry into the Corps, Surgeant Schrest is presently recovering in the Naval Hospital, Beaufort, S. C. from a broken back sustained in an auto accident last December. Incidentally, the sergeant wasn't driving at the time of any of the seven car accidents.

Thrift Ordered

Tel Aviv, Israel—(AP)—If you want to buy toothpaste or shaving cream in Israel you've got to return the used container. Adding a little more austerity to an austere country, the salvage control of the ministry of supply and rationing is out to save just about everything that can be saved.

Highway License Examiner Warns About Deadline

Harry L. Martin, license examiner for the North Carolina Highway Safety Division, with headquarters on the second floor of the Greenville City Hall, today reminded motorists whose names start with the letters N, O, P and Q, to apply for examination for renewal of their driver's licenses before June 30.

Starting July 1, the examiner will check with motorists whose names start with the letters R, S and T until the end of the year, Martin stated.

The examiner is now issuing renewals of chauffeur's licenses. Chauffeur's licenses will expire June 30, Martin stated, and he reminded that chauffeurs apprehended without their driver's licenses will be cited to court for trial.

The examiner's office is open daily except Saturdays, from 8:30 to 5:30 p. m.

Displays 'Lemon'

Paterson, N.J., May 11—(AP) An auto firm has asked a court to force a customer to be less blatant about an auto he claims is a lemon.

Hudson-Ridgewood Motors, Inc., of nearby Ridgewood, charged that Angelo Padula drew pictures of lemons on it, and drove around with a sign that said: "This is a lemon—nine miles to a gallon of gas."

The complainants said they offered Padula a new motor, but that he insists they replace the whole car. A hearing was set for tomorrow.

Lost Libel Suit Against Paper

York, S. C. May 11—(AP)—A South Carolina legislator yesterday lost the $100,000 libel suit he filed against the Herald Publishing Company of Rock Hill.

Rep. A. Y. Cartwright, Jr., of York sued the company and Talbot Patrick, editor and publisher of the paper, following the publication of two letters in the paper's "Voice of the People" column.

It took a jury three hours to return its verdict.

President Roosevelt's Board said— NO!

President Truman's Board said— NO!

Still the leaders of the Railroad Firemen's "STRIKE!"

Union say—

This ridiculous strike is an affront to every citizen of the nation. It's not for more money. It's not because of hours. It's only for soft feather-bedding spots for additional unnecessary firemen to go along in diesel locomotives just for the ride. A leading liberal newspaper calls the demands of the union leaders "horse-feathers!"

• The reckless leaders of the firemen's union want to force down the throats of the railroads and the public a ridiculous "make-work" proposal which has been twice ruled out by Presidential Fact Finding Boards duly appointed under the provisions of the Railway Labor Act.

"feather-bedding" by leading the members of their union out on strike and threatening paralysis to large areas of the nation, they are defying the spirit and intent of the very law which they helped to create.

This strike is not for higher wages. It is a strike to force the railroads to employ many more thousands of firemen who are not needed! It would be indefensible waste. The railroads have refused to place this additional and unnecessary burden on the public.

But more important than any other consideration, is the action of these few irresponsible union leaders in seeking to force a crippling strike upon the nation for their own selfish purposes.

There is no other possible answer to such a demand but "No!"

The railroads in making such a reply believe they have the whole-hearted support of the people in whose interest they are willing to fight this out, despite the loss and inconvenience that all will suffer.

It is time to put an end to such un-American demands.

By BERT MOYE Manager Randy Heflin and his Greenville Robins registered their third straight win over the New Bern Bears here last night as they blasted the visitors 11-4.

The Robins scored their other run in the first inning after two men were out when Strausser singled and with the help of two miscues was able to cross the plate.

The Bears were then held scoreless until the ninth frame when Cornwell's double, Billy Bevil's single and a fly to deep centerfield gave them another marker.

Manager Randy Heflin went the route for the Robins last night to gain his third win of the season and his second against the Bears.

Superhuman Show Of Courage By Man Who Died Minutes Before Rescue

New York, May 11.—(AP)—A guy with a lot of courage—trapped for more than 27 hours at the bottom of a well shaft—died in agony late yesterday shortly after rescuers finally reached him.

Wall-digger Dominick Atteo was taken to the end.

But burns, pain, exhaustion and the pressure of rocks and earth were more than his strong frame could stand.

Atteo, 49-year-old father of six children, died five minutes before he was lifted out of his tomb 20 feet beneath a Brooklyn garage.

Only a few times during his agonizing imprisonment did he falter in faith, hope or courage.

A hospital interne and Roman Catholic priests administered the long hours as rescue workers feverishly dug a trench to reach him.

Doctors said Atteo—crushed, seared and half-blinded—put up an almost superhuman show of courage.

Five hundred persons, many of them with rosaries, prayed outside during the ordeal.

Atteo's attractive, 32-year-old second wife, Marie, became hysterical when her long vigil of prayer teams ended in despair.

"What am I going to do without him?" she cried. "He was the most wonderful man in the world, and so brave."

A friend told her that her husband might have been blind and crippled if he had lived. "He couldn't have stood that," the widow said.

Dr. Harold Berson, 25, worn out by perilous trips down the well shaft during 26 hours to administer to the tortured victim, said "I thought he was going to make it. His courage and endurance were beyond belief."

The doctor said Atteo apparently died of exhaustion and shock.

The tunneling rescue workers had reached Atteo's side at 1:10 p. m. and started to extricate him. He died at approximately 2:40.

Atteo, a contractor, had been digging the well under the garage seeking water for washing automobiles. Use of city water for that purpose is banned during the current shortage.

A caven trapped him early Tuesday afternoon. And he was badly burned later in a flareup when a lighted cigarette lowered to him came in contact with oxygen being pumped down the shaft.

Funeral Friday For William F. Evans

William Franklin Evans, 67, died in St. John's Hospital at Long Island City, New York, Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock after having suffered a cerebral hemorrhage early Wednesday morning. Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home Friday afternoon at four o'clock by the Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. Edgar B. Fisher, Methodist minister of Wilmington, and burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Evans, son of the late William Franklin and Annie Sermons Evans, was born in Greenville and reared in Goldsboro. He taught school in Pitt County for several years and passed the bar examination in 1908 and practiced law in Greenville for about ten years. He lived in Raleigh from 1917 to 1930, where he served as district solicitor. He then moved to Washington, D. C., and was employed by the U. S. Internal Revenue Department. In 1941 he was transferred to New York and had been attorney for the Bureau of Internal Revenue in New York. He was a former member of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and was an Odd-fellow. He was married to the former Eva Allen of Greenville in March 1904.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Robert H. Evans of New York and W. F. Evans, Jr., of Wilmington; a grandchild; a great grandchild; a brother, James L. Evans of Greenville; and two sisters, Mrs. D. W. Davis of Goldsboro and Mrs. W. M. Curtis of Chapel Hill.

Scoutmasters In Outdoor Meeting

Scoutmasters of the Pitt district participated in an outdoor meeting Monday night as they prepared their own suppers over open fires in the Cotanche Street park.

The supper was followed by the monthly business meeting of the Scouters roundtable at which the activities of the 1950 camporee which was held week before last in Kinston was discussed.

The Scouters also discussed the plans for the participation of Scouts from this district in the national Jamboree which will be held in Valley Forge, Pa. during the last week in June and the first week in July, and the Council Camp Charles which opens next month.

The scoutmasters voted to continue troop activities during the summer months rather than disbanding the troops until next fall as has been done in the past few summers. The scoutmasters also voted to hold another outdoor supper meeting during June.

In this connection the United States is said to support the idea of German participation in the economic and political fields but not in the military. That undoubtedly will represent the views of the other western European nations. France, in particular, has been fearful of German rearmament, and this feeling is shared by Britain and lesser states.

However, from the economic viewpoint that is widespread agreement that the rehabilitation of Germany is essential to the recovery of the rest of Europe. In London this thought is tempered somewhat by the fear that a combination of German and French heavy industries might deprive England of her dominant place in the European steel business.

Woodrow Ewing Back In Prison

Raleigh, N. C., May 11.—(AP)—Woodrow Ewing, 23, was returned to Central prison today to resume serving a life sentence for killing his wife.

Ewing, who escaped last Thursday from a Macon county road gang was recaptured by three highway patrolmen late yesterday at the home of an Indian girl near Chadbourne.

Chief prison supervisor J. O. Sawyer said the patrolmen, led by Sgt. J. R. Pridden of Whiteville, encountered no resistance from Ewing although he had an axe in the house.

In 1946 Ewing was under sentence of death for killing his wife, Carmell Louis Miller Ewing, but he received a commutation to life imprisonment after psychiatrists reported he was suffering from mental illnesses.

He also was charged with killing his wife's 13-month-old daughter by a previous marriage. This case was not tried, however, since he was convicted of first degree murder for his wife's slaying.

freedoms of minorities while protecting the rights and freedoms of the majority. It's no cinch.

Justice Jackson said this week: "The court's day-to-day task is to reject as false, claims in the name of civil liberty which would paralyze or impair authority to defend existence of our society, and to reject as false claims in the name of security which would undermine our freedoms and open the way to oppression."

And chief justice Vinson said that if constitutional government like ours is to survive "it must have power to protect itself against unlawful conduct . . . freedom of speech thus does not comprehend the right to speak on a subject at any time."

This is why every decision of the court on freedom of speech, since all of us have such a stake in it, gets so much attention.

It is also why the decisions of the court—since it's made up of human beings—are examined so closely to be sure that even with the best intentions it doesn't take away unnecessarily one additional freedom from anyone.

Such a decision, while appearing to be good today, may weaken the structure in a way that can't be foreseen and serve as a precedent for some future court to approve a law that cripples freedom badly.

It is not hard to imagine—if this government and a constitution stand another 1,000 years—that man, of the freedom which seem so solid today may vanish through new laws and new court decisions.

You can see why: these are situations change. New laws constantly are being passed to meet both these call for new court decisions to meet new realities and adapt the constitution to the necessities of new times.

A check with the Pitt General Hospital at 12:30 today revealed that the Ricks youth suffered a concussion and facial lacerations. Dr. Wirstead at the hospital described the condition of the youth as being "good." He further stated that he did not think the boy had any broken bones. "I think that his general condition is good and barring any setback will possibly be released Friday," Wirstead stated. Unofficial records indicate the boy's age was 17.

Patrolmen Laws and Chadwick revealed that the investigation of the accident was complete and no charges were brought against the driver.

Estimated Flue-Cured Tobacco Production For 1949 Is Revised

Washington, May 11—(AP)—About 25,000,000 more pounds of flue-cured tobacco was produced last year than in 1948 but the value dropped some $15,000,000.

The value of the 1949 crop was listed as $525,511,000 as compared with $549,983,000 the previous year. Last year's production is 13 per cent higher than the 10-year average of 990,000,000 pounds.

Just Imagine It's Yours! You say you have never driven a Cadillac? Well, it's a lovely day—and there are beautiful roads to travel down and interesting places to visit—and a little dreaming never hurt a soul. . . so just slide over behind the wheel. It's yours! First, you'll just want to sit for awhile, with your hand on the slender, obedient wheel—and get a close-up view of the ingrained goodness that makes this car so unmistakably . . . the Standard of the World. And then you turn the key, touch the soft-throated engine into action—and you're away. The steering wheel all but reads your mind! The brakes are as soft as velvet, and immediate in their response! The road has become a boulevard—and the turns and lights seem so very close together! And the soft, easy quietness of it all! You just sit and relax—in complete contentment—and the miles go by—and the miles go by. . . "Oh, how I wish this car were mine!" Well, it's time, we think, to stop dreaming—and lend an ear to this: the lowest-priced Cadillac costs less to buy than certain models of numerous other makes of cars; it is so enduring that it will give a lifetime of service; and it is so economical that it actually approaches the low-priced popular cars in gasoline mileage. Yes, it's time to go into action—and to make this car your own!

This Time The Anti-Trust Lawyers Won A Case Against A&P

As almost everyone now knows, the anti-trust lawyers in Washington have brought a civil suit to destroy A&P. They ask the courts to order the dissolution of this company.

They say that this suit is based on the fact that they won a suit against us at Danville, Illinois, in 1946.

They did. In that case, Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley made a decision against A&P.

Immediately thereafter, in a letter explaining his decision, Judge Lindley wrote:

*"I have not condemned the A&P system.
I have not made a finding which could be the basis for a suit of dissolution."*

So, now we have the anti-trust lawyers saying that their suit to dissolve A&P is based on Judge Lindley's decision; while Judge Lindley himself says his decision could not be the basis for a suit of dissolution.

In previous ads we told you about the cases against A&P which the anti-trust lawyers lost. We promised to tell you about this case they won. Here is the story of the Danville case.

What Judge Lindley Objected To

At Danville, the anti-trust lawyers made all of the charges which they are again making against A&P today. They were substantially the same charges they had made and dropped at Dallas, Texas, after four federal judges had objected to some of them as "inflammatory."

In his decision, Judge Lindley was critical of some of our activities. He threw some of the charges out of court. He did not make any decision on others.

He even took occasion to praise A&P for the efficient job of food distribution it had done.

Judge Lindley said:

"To buy, sell and distribute to a substantial portion of 130,000,000 people, one and three-quarter billion dollars worth of food annually at a profit of 1½ cents on each dollar, is an achievement one may well be proud of."

"No place in the world I take it are people so well fed as in the United States. Nowhere else, I suppose, do food distributors accomplish efficient distribution at so low a margin of profit. In contrast, we are told in other nations the problem is not one of an adequate diet but one of no diet at all."

But Judge Lindley did find us in violation of the Sherman Act. He based his ruling on the dual role played by our fresh fruit and vegetable buying subsidiary, the Atlantic Commission Company, whereby that organization acted both as buying agent for A&P and as selling agent for growers.

Judge Lindley said:

"If I assume for the purpose of disposition of this case that in general the policy of A&P was to operate within the law and attribute to defendants a desire to comply with the law, there still remains the conscious, knowing adoption by all defendants of a plan of action by the Atlantic Commission Company affecting every department of A&P and every retail store which cannot be squared with the intent and purpose of the act."

In his letter explaining the decision, Judge Lindley wrote: "I have condemned their practices through the Atlantic Commission Company."

Judge Lindley imposed fines totaling $175,000. When his decision was upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, we paid the fines. This ended the case—but we did not stop there.

What We Did To Correct This

In the light of the decision, we immediately set about reviewing our activities to be sure that there could never again be any criticism of our operations.

First, the Atlantic Commission Company abandoned the dual role to which Judge Lindley objected and which he said was the basis of his decision against us.

We did this even though the Atlantic Commission Company had been licensed for many years by the United States Department of Agriculture to act as both a buyer and seller of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The Atlantic Commission Company now only buys for A&P. In other words, we stopped doing the thing which Judge Lindley said put us in violation of the Sherman Act.

We made additional changes in other methods of operation which Judge Lindley had questioned at Danville, even though he did not base his decision on them.

We did even more than this!

We went down to Washington and asked the anti-trust lawyers what else they thought we should do to conform to their new interpretation of the vague anti-trust laws.

The only answer we ever got was that we should break up this company!

Despite their claim that they were not opposed to A&P's size, they insisted that we destroy this size.

Despite their claim that they were not opposed to our manufacturing operations, they insisted that we get rid of our factories which produce many of the fine foods you buy at A&P.

Despite their claim that they were not opposed to our low prices, they insisted that we destroy many of the efficiencies that make these low prices possible.

In other words, they insisted upon the dissolution of A&P.

We were still trying to find out from the anti-trust lawyers what else they thought we should do to conform to the law when they filed the current suit to destroy A&P.

Why, Then, Do They Want To Put A&P Out Of Business?

Ever since this suit was filed, the anti-trust lawyers have been making damaging statements that could seriously hurt our business if they were believed by the public.

They say that we were found guilty at Danville of all the charges they are making today. This is not true. Judge Lindley did not sustain all of the charges of the anti-trust lawyers.

They say this suit is designed to enforce the law.

But A&P has clearly demonstrated its sincere desire to abide by the spirit, as well as the letter of the law.

They say they are seeking to "enjoin" A&P from engaging in certain "alleged" practices. Actually, the whole purpose of this suit is not to "enjoin" us, but to put us out of business.

They say that this suit for dissolution is based on the decision handed down by Judge Lindley in Danville.

But Judge Lindley has said of his decision: "I have not made a finding which could be the basis for a suit of dissolution."

What, then, is the real reason why the anti-trust lawyers want to destroy this company, which for 90 years has pioneered the methods of distribution which have given the American people more good food for their money?

Ayden To Honor Queen Mother In Sunday Program

On next Sunday the entire country will be paying homage to Mother's Day. In Pitt County, the town of Ayden will celebrate not only Mother's Day, but will be staging an event of their own in honor of some mother.

The Queen Mother for a day, an annual event, is being held this year in the Ayden high school auditorium at eight o'clock Friday night, May 12th.

Featuring the evening will be an address, "What Mother Means," by Dean W. E. Marshall of East Carolina Teachers College. Master of ceremonies will be former Greenville Police Chief Jim Tanner.

The Queen mother will be crowned by All-America Art Weiner, Carolina star football player. The Hon. Jesse A. Jones of Kinston and a Lion will speak.

A variety of talent from Greenville is included on the program. Cecil Ellington will entertain with his saxophone and the three singing Conways are to furnish several numbers on the program.

Several Ayden performers are expected to brighten the occasion, with Trop Wilson playing the blackface role of Al Jolson and Cloyce Braswell singing.

Others to be included on the program will include Ted Rowe of Washington, Irish tenor, who will sing to the Queen.

Possibly one of the outstanding features of the show will be little Irma Dean Phillips of Pitt County and Elizabeth City, a blind little girl only four feet tall. She and her accompanist have the reputation of being able to put on a fun-filled show, which is a hit in every town they have played so far.

There is no admission to the show; however, a free will offering will be taken at the end of the performance.

Radio Made For Miners In Event Of Accidents

NEW YORK (AP)—Miners would carry radio transmitters to tell rescuers where they were trapped in a radio set-up devised by James A. McNiven of New Orleans. He is an electrical engineer with the U.S. Coast Guard.

The miner would stick metallic probes into the ceiling of the mine. He would speak into a radio transmitter, and the signals would be carried to a receiver at the surface. Batteries of the type supplying power for a miner's head lamp would be strong enough to allow him to broadcast, McNiven said.

The miner's transmitter-receiver could be a portable affair, perhaps carried on a man's back, he said. There might be one for each man, or one for each small group of men. Rescue work could be speeded up if trapped men could tell just where they were, and what the situation was. McNiven said the method had been tested successfully in coal mines.

Dickinson Avenue — Dial 2054

Raleigh, May 11—Promoters of tourist and vacation business for North Carolina are confronted with a serious problem in connection with zoning for special purposes all property within and adjacent to recreational areas. The problem is more acute along the beaches and in the mountains, but to considerable degree it is found all over the state.

Chief trouble is recognition of need so often comes too late. It is somewhat like cancer and tuberculosis. It is now known that these diseases can be easily controlled if the diagnosis is made early enough. Often the disease has such a foothold before it is recognized, it can be alleviated to only limited extent, instead of entirely checked if it has been discovered in time.

Carolina Beach and those in the Kitty Hawk-Kill Devil-Nags Head section have found they did not start in time. So have the better class facilities in Hickory Nut Gorge from Lake Lure to Bat Cave. Alerted by these examples, promoters of Soco Valley are talking about application of zoning regulations there before the place gets cluttered up with honky-tonks.

The Kitty Hawk to Nag's Head Lake Lure to Bat Cave areas have so many natural advantages the honky-tonks have not seriously depreciated their attractions, but everybody except the honky-tonkers admits that earlier zoning restriction would have eliminated some undesirable establishments.

White the problem is mainly local it has statewide implications at these widely advertised vacation places. The illustrations used here are meant to be just that—illustrations of a broad question. There are many other places along the coast and in the mountains as well as in central Carolina, where the same factors must be dealt with.

The long established places have a more serious difficulty to get rid of undesirables than the places just beginning to develop. That is why Soco Valley offers a good example of what can and should be done.

Ever since the Great Smoky National Park was established North Carolinians have complained that Tennessee was "stealing" it, because Gatlinburg offered so much better accommodations for guests than did any point on the Carolina side—and that in face of the Blue Ridge Parkway being on this side the state line. Opening of the Soco Gap Road, popular designation for U. S. 19 from Waynesville to Cherokee, afforded opportunity for development of equal or superior facilities in North Carolina. These facilities are coming along faster than many Carolinians realize. Around the post-office village of Maggie motor courts motels and top rate hotels are in operation and under construction. To date there are no places that could be classed as honky-tonks. Experience of other developments leads to belief they will appear—useless unless some restrictions against them can be applied now.

Not only property owners in the immediate vicinity but public spirited all through that section of the state are concerned about the matter, and beauty lovers everywhere are interested. Legislation will be proposed with good chance of enactment to provide zoning authorities in this and similar areas. Some legislation will have support of important business organizations like the Southeastern North Carolina Beach Association and Associated Western Communities—to name just two of the many organized groups sponsoring travel-vacation promotion on regional basis—as well as numerous local chambers of commerce.

By Mary Howard

Chapter 30
Andrew put Morton up in his apartment, the attic floor of an old brownstone house just off Lexington Avenue. It was slightly reminiscent of South Kensington. Morton gasped and puffed at the stairs, but he was certainly more at home among Andrew's books and pictures, his pleasant rugs and comfortable modern furniture, and the portraits and souvenirs of Sarah Nolan's theatrical life, than he would have been in the efficient comfort of a hotel. There were only two bedrooms, so he found Katherine a room in a small, quiet hotel about ten minutes away.

It gave Andrew a thrill to see her bright eyes and flushed cheeks, and her eager, sympathetic interest in this, his home city. A European by experience and upbringing, he never realized how much a New Yorker he was until he returned to it, and he enjoyed Katherine's frank and ingenious homage.

"What do you like most about it here?" he asked.

"The feeling of excitement, of optimism and gaiety, the sort of sparkling feeling. You feel here that anything might happen and probably will."

"Anything else?"

Seventh Street, they were to read the play with Katherine. Andrew had arranged to get to the office early so that he could get through his mail and go in to watch the auditions. Mr. Hamlyn would be in from California tonight, and he too would be coming along to see the first development of this secret ewe lamb of his.

As he walked across the wide reception hall, he caught sight of a familiar figure going through the swing door into the street. He hurried across, down the carpeted stairs, then stood for the moment outside, hesitating. A squeal of brakes, and a stream of abuse sent him flying down to the corner of the avenue. He saw William apparently unconcerned, propping himself against a street lamp, and listening graciously to the large serious gentleman who had apparently just dragged him from under the wheels of a passing taxi, and was lecturing him on the perils of New York streets for foreigners and strangers. Andrew strode up and shook him by the shoulder. William smiled blandly, his gay face lighting with recognition, and said, "Oh, hello Nolan. How nice to see you old boy. This gentleman has just saved my life."

106-Year-Old Church Has Had Only Four Pastors

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Green Street Baptist Church and its Negro congregation is 106 years old. And it has had only four pastors in that time.

Founded in 1844 by a group of 29 slaves, the church now has an active membership of 500. In contrast to its stately pillared temple of today, Green Street Church had its humble beginning in a livery stable which the members by the work of their own hands converted into a suitable house of worship. The founders could neither read nor write, so an interested white friend served as secretary. The records in his clear script are still legible.

First of the church's four pastors was the Rev. George Wells, who served through six of the congregation's formative years, dying in 1850. The second minister, the Rev. Richard Sneathen, served 20 years, seeing his people emerge from slavery. The Rev. Daniel Abraham Gaddie guided the flock for 33 years. And a similar period was spanned by the service of the Rev. Henry Wise Jones, who has just retired.

Okinawa Opens New University

Okinawa—(AP)—The first university in the Ryukyu islands is opening its doors to 500 students. Ryukyu University has been built on the site of Shuri castle, which was leveled by shellfire during the American assault on Okinawa in 1945. It already has eight classroom buildings, and an administration building.

Arthur E. Mead, director of civil information and education for the Okinawa military government, said the University program would include adult extension courses throughout the islands.

Poor Yield Seen In Winter Wheat

Washington, May 11 — (AP) — The weather and insect-plagued winter wheat crop was forecast at 689,595,000 bushels as of May 1 by the Agriculture Department yesterday.

This is a reduction of 73,995,000 bushels from the 763,590,000 bushels forecast a month ago. It compares with last year's crop of 901,668,000 bushels and with the ten-year average of 758,821,000 bushels.

The crop has been harassed by dry weather and green bug infestations, principally in the southern Great Plains.

The acreage of winter wheat to be harvested, the acre yield and the production, respectively, by states included:

Off-Street Parking Lot System Grows

Chicago—(AP)—An increasing number of cities are establishing off-street parking lots to relieve traffic congestion in their business districts. The International City Managers Association reports that 380 cities of more than 10,000 population now own and operate a total of 828 parking lots. Sixty-three of the cities opened municipal lots last year and 100 other cities that previously had them provided additional lots.

Crossbred Peach Trees Developed For California

Riverside, Calif.—(AP)—Until recently, the situation in Southern California peach orchards was like this:

The mild winters seemed to be wider peach trees imported from the eastern United States. They leaved out late, bloomed weakly. The fruit was scrawny. Peach trees from South China seemed to like the climate, but their fruit was not commercially valuable.

Now the two have been crossed. Several strains of excellent freestone mid-season and late-maturing peaches have been developed, reports M. W. Winslow of the California College of Agriculture experiment station here.

Raised A Family To Be Marines

New Orleans, La.—(AP)—Membership in the Marine Corps is a family ideology with the Ingraham family. Five brothers are presently serving here with the Marine Reserve 10th Infantry Battalion. One of the men is a regular Marine, who is on the Inspector-Instructor staff of the same organization.

Five is not the final count, however. There is another Ingraham, who is also with the regulars and is stationed in California. Mother Ingraham proudly address that "all my boys were raised to be Marines."

California Tries New Range Grass

Davis, Calif.—(AP)—More than 500 kinds of range grasses have been imported to California during the past five years, reports the University's College of Agriculture. They came from various areas of the United States as well as from foreign countries throughout the world.

In adaptation trials, the new grasses are planted in various counties to see where they will do well and produce better range feed.

Opossums Have Use In Research

Berkeley, Calif.—(AP)—A University of California scientist who has succeeded in raising opossums in captivity believes they may become useful as laboratory animals. Because the embryonic opossum goes through a period of development in his mother's pouch, where he can observe easily, he may be a good subject for studying mammalian life in one of its earliest forms, says Harold C. Reynolds museum technician.

The opossum emerges from the mother after 13 days' pre-natal development. Then the little creature has to climb into the mother's pouch where he nurses for about 60 days before becoming a fully developed baby. This is an ideal setup for the laboratory experimenter except for one major drawback. All attempts to raise opossums in captivity heretofore have failed, Reynolds said.

The California scientist reported however, that after several years of trial and error he had learned how to raise opossums in cages. "I now has some third-generation animals which were born in captivity."

Scientist Denies Secret Meeting

Oakland, Calif., May 10—(AP)—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer flatly denies the accusation of a woman ex-communist that the top atomic scientist held a secret, closed meeting with communists at his Berkeley home in July, 1941.

Mrs. Paul Crouch, admittedly a communist from 1929 to 1942, told a state senate committee here yesterday that she attended such a communist meeting at Dr. Oppenheimer's home when he was in the physics department of the University of California.

Last night in Washington, Dr. Oppenheimer, now director of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, N. J., denied it. He said in a statement:

"I have never been a member of the Communist party. I never assembled any such group of people for any such purpose in my home or anywhere else. I am unable to recall any gathering in my house that could reasonably have been mistaken for such a meeting. Neither the name Crouch nor the accounts of Mr. and Mrs. Crouch recall to me anyone I have ever known."

Mrs. Crouch, who became a communist in 1929 while a textile worker on strike at Gastonia, N. C., was called before the state senate un-American committee which is seeking to determine if communists had access to the university's atom-smashing laboratory.

ROOM FOR ROBINS

Chicago—(AP)—Two robins built a nest atop a large light fixture near the entrance to a north side hotel. The management not only allowed them to stay but also kept the light out during their sleeping hours.
