FEPC Is Virtually Killed By Refusal To Invoke 'Cloture'

Test Vote To Choke Off Debate On Motion To Bring Measure Before Senate Falls Short 12 Votes Of Required 64 For Adoption

Washington, May 19—(AP)—The senate virtually killed the fair employment practices (FEPC) bill for the session today by refusing to block filibustering by Southern opponents.

The test came on an attempt to choke off debate on a motion to bring before the senate for consideration this key measure of President Truman's civil rights program.

A cloture (debate limiting) petition fell short by 12 votes of getting the required 64 for adoption. A roll call showed 52 "yes" and 32 "no" votes.

It was a victory for Southern Democrats and dealt a heavy blow to chances of getting action on any of the President's civil rights program at this session.

The Southern triumph had been anticipated, but Democratic leader Lucas of Illinois said in advance that another attempt to force consideration of the FEPC bill would be made, possibly next week.

His principal hope was to pick up additional votes from Senators who were absent. An absent senator, in effect, voted against the cloture (debate-limitation) move.

The vote was the first tryout for the senate's new rule, adopted last year, under which debate on a motion to take up a bill can be shut off by a two-thirds majority of the entire senate.

Previously such a motion was not subject to cloture, but under the old rule, once a bill was before the senate, debate could be halted by two-thirds of the senators.

It was the first time a civil rights issue had reached a showdown vote of any kind in the senate since July 1946, when senators rejected a petition to close debate on an anti-poll tax bill.

A similar anti-poll tax bill was brought up in the Republican 80th Congress, but died when the senate failed to reach a vote on a cloture petition in August 1948. No action was taken on FEPC in the 8th Congress.

In the present session, the house has voted to set up an FEPC without authority to enforce its rulings. The senate bill would provide penalties of $500 fine or a year's imprisonment, or both, for violation of the commission's orders.

Senator Myers (D-Pa.) assistant Democratic leader in the senate, urged FEPC backers to put out their "finest efforts and greatest influence" into the fight.

There was standing room only in the galleries as the senate reached the vote. Many Negroes were among the spectators.

Several house members especially Southerners, watched from the rear of the chamber.

Lucas said before the vote that defeat on the move to cut off debate would be "a serious setback" but that he would try again after the senate has attended to some other business.

He indicated his motion to bring up the FEPC bill would be kept before the senate and another cloture petition—like the one that forced the vote today—would be filed next week.

Unless the senate is willing to impose cloture, he said, it would be "practically impossible to adopt an effective fair employment practice law" over determined opposition from "ixie senators."

AGAINST CLOTURE. Washington, May 19—(AP)—Senators Maybank and Johnston of South Carolina voted against cloture for the FEPC bill today. Graham was absent. He is ill in North Carolina.

Great hope for the avoidance of another world conflict can be taken from the action of the 12 Atlantic pact nations in setting up a permanent council to coordinate and direct anti-communist defense measures, both military and economic.

The development represents the strongest concrete expression of determination thus far exhibited by the combined western powers in their search for security against Russian aggression. It is based on the conviction that the sole way of winning Russian respect is by a display of power.

That is the only understandable international language of this atomic age of ours—an unwelcome thought, but true.

Let's analyze this Atlantic Pact move to see just what it means. We have here involved the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Italy, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Portugal and Iceland. Moreover a project is afoot to take Western Germany, with its vast Ruhr steel and coal facilities, into the fold.

Concentrated in this brotherhood of the bulk of the industrial productivity of the world. Military strength must be based on industrial power. The resources of the Atlantic powers are far and away stronger than those of the Russian bloc.

Heavy Registration For Primary Noted

Pitt Figures Not Known, But Precincts Report Heavier Than Usual Turnout; Between 18,000 And 19,000 Voters

Registration in Pitt county for the Democratic primary which will be held in North Carolina a week from tomorrow has been reported heavier than average in former years.

J. Henry Harrell, chairman of the Pitt county board of elections, said today the actual number of newly registered persons in the county is not available, but from reports from several of the county's 20 precincts, it is apparent registration is heavier than usual. He said there definitely were more people who had their names added to the county's registration books this year than in the election year of 1948.

The registration of Negro voters in the county this year, however, Harrell said, has been reported lighter than it was two years ago.

The chairman of the board of elections stated that particularly heavy registration has been reported in the Greenville and the other large boxes in the county apparently have registered more new voters than usual.

Harrell estimated there are between 18,000 and 19,000 registered voters in Pitt county.

The registration period for the county closed last Saturday, and challenge day will be held at the voting place of each precinct in the county tomorrow from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Election day will be Saturday, May 27.

Pitt Candidates Lag In Reporting

By noon today, no candidate for county office has filed a financial statement for campaign expenses with the clerk of Superior Court.

According to North Carolina statutes all persons running for public office must file a statement 10 days prior to the primary election and 20 days after the election.

Clerk of Court D. T. House said this morning none of the candidates had filed their statements with his office. The final date for filing was Wednesday. In the event of a second primary, the candidate must hand in a statement 10 days before.

First primary expenditures may not exceed one half of the salary paid for the office. Expenditures for a second primary may not exceed one fourth of the salary of the office. The candidate does not have to list travel expenses—gasoline, board or lodging—in his expense account, but must list all other money paid for the campaign.

Samplings Show Fraud, Waste

Washington, May 19—(AP)—Comptroller General Lindsay Warren told Congress today a small sampling has uncovered $25,000,000 of fraud and waste in settlement of war contracts.

"Since only a sampling of terminations was made, I would hesitate to hazard a guess as to the full extent of fraud and overpayments."

Atlantic Pact Alliance To Have A Permanent Council Directing Defense Measures; Analysis Of Move; Acceptance Of Fact That In Unity Lies Strength For All

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Four representatives of the Greenville city government and two representatives of the Pitt county government yesterday attended a meeting in Wilson dealing with the state retirement program for public employees.

Attending the meeting from Greenville and Pitt county were Mayor W. S. Stafford, City Clerk J. O. Duall, Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz, Utilities Manager Larry Brown, Superintendent of County Schools D. H. Conley, and County Auditor Allan Powell.

The House Ways and Means Committee voted today to cut the taxes on the coal industry by $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year.

It was a further move away from the recommendations of President Truman. The President has urged that business taxes be increased. If changed at all, to make up for prospective losses in government revenue from cuts in excise taxes on such things as telephone and telegraph bills and travel tickets.

West Concludes Only By Arming Can Peace Exist

Results Of Atlantic Pact Conference Is Personal Triumph For Acheson

By WES GALLAGHER. London, May 19—(AP)—The West has concluded it can live in peace only by arming to the teeth.

This is the essence of 10 days negotiations here by the Big Three powers and the Atlantic Pact nations. The decision taken at the talks may be as momentous as any since the war.

The Western nations showed plainly, by embarking on an immediate rearming program, that they have little or no hope of negotiating a peace settlement with Russia within the United Nations or anywhere else at this time.

It is recognition that the world is divided between the East and West and there can be no neutrals. Should the Atlantic Pact be broadened to include other nations, as is being discussed, it could amount to practically the "Western United Nations" suggested by former President Herbert Hoover.

Many nations in Europe have clung to the hope that some super power would bring an overall settlement. In this week's talks they abandoned this hope. It was a hard decision to make. It means that their peoples will have to sacrifice to support the armed forces they hoped would not be necessary in a postwar world.

The fact that the nations made that decision was a personal triumph for Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Acheson sold the thesis that it is useless to negotiate with Russia until the West is able to sit down at the conference tables on equal military terms with the Soviet Union.

The West recognized that it might take years to reach a point where negotiations might yield results. Until then, it seems, the world must live as two armed camps.

There was much lofty talk during the conference by the countries concerned about giving up national sovereignty in the common interest. But actually none have given up this sovereignty in the final analysis.

The machinery set-up depends on the "good will" of the nations concerned to the financial and military support of the decisions made here. If they have this the machinery will work. It cannot work otherwise.

The machinery set-up has no supreme authority to enforce common decisions on its members. Anyone can say "No."

If one nation says "no," the security of all is threatened, since each must furnish an essential part to the "collective armed forces."

It will be no easy task for the governments concerned to carry their announced policies through. The governments will sometimes face the choice of raising taxes on their irritated peoples, or defaulting their pact pledges.

Baruch Calls For Mobilization In Critical Time

Washington, May 19—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch says the United States can lose any future war by failure to mobilize now, and that atomic bombs or anything else should be used on any nation starting a conflict.

In two speeches last night, Baruch, financier and long-time adviser to Presidents, urged that the U. S. prepare for war during peacetime to discourage any would-be aggressor.

He told a Columbia University seminar on economic mobilization that "these are the years of decision, which we are now passing through. Yet Washington today is the capital of indecision."

"Although the cold war is now in its fifth year," he said, "we still lack the equivalent of a global strategy for peace-waging."

"We continue to dissipate our resources without decision," he added.

Attend Study On Retirement Plan

Washington, May 19—(AP)—President Truman will sound the keynote for observance of Armed Forces Day throughout the nation tomorrow.

With Secretary of Defense Johnson, the President speaks tonight at a banquet of military men in the Statler Hotel here—a session expected to stress the theme of national strength through unity.

Tomorrow's nation-wide observance of Armed Forces Day will be the first of its kind. Heretofore the Army, Navy and Air Forces have sponsored separate "days" of their own. The change reflects unification of the three services under the Defense Department.

More Tests For Reorganization

Washington, May 19—(AP)—President Truman's battered reorganization program faces new tests today in the Senate, where five of his plans to make changes in federal agencies have died in recent days.

The latest victim was the Agriculture Department plan, which was rejected by a voice vote yesterday without a word being said in its defense.

Truman To Keynote First Armed Forces Day Event

Washington, May 19—(AP)—President Truman will sound the keynote for observance of Armed Forces Day throughout the nation tomorrow.

Tomorrow's nation-wide observance of Armed Forces Day will be the first of its kind. Heretofore the Army, Navy and Air Forces have sponsored separate "days" of their own. The change reflects unification of the three services under the Defense Department.

Crack units of all the armed forces will pass in review before the President, Johnson and other national leaders in a mammoth military parade in the Capitol tomorrow morning.

Eight big B-36 intercontinental bombers from Fort Worth, Texas, will mark the day by taking different routes across the country, one passing over each of the 48 state capitals and more than 250 cities and military installations.

The Navy will display ships of many types at the principal ports along the coasts and the Great Lakes. These ships, like shore installations of the Army, the Navy, the Air Force and the Marine Corps, will observe "open house" for the public.

First Shovel Of Dirt Turned In School Construction

Ground Broken Today For New West Greenville School Building

Ground-breaking ceremonies were held this morning at the West Greenville School on the site where a new $55,000 utility building is to be constructed.

The ground-breaking by Principal of the West Greenville Elementary School, Miss Agnes Fullilove, was attended by members of the Greenville City School Board, and the entire faculty and student body of the school.

Rev. H. G. Haney, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, gave the invocation.

Bids for the construction of the school were let on May 4, but were found to be somewhat higher than had been counted on. Minor alterations were made in the building plans to bring construction costs under the allotted amount for the project.

This morning Mayor Stafford told the assembled group that the city was making fine progress in its school building program, and the program was one of which the city could be proud. "With the addition of the proposed unit, the city will have one of the most modern school plants in the state," the mayor said.

J. B. James, chairman of the city school board, spoke briefly. The speakers were introduced by J. H. Rose.

Following the speeches, the school glee clubs sang several numbers.

Big Three See No Hope For Early Austria Pact

Set Plans In Motion To Lift Most Occupation Controls In Western Zone Of Austria; Acheson Praises Work

London, May 19—(AP)—The Big Three announced today there is no hope in the immediate future for Russian agreement to an Austrian independence treaty. They set in motion plans to lift most occupation controls in the Western zones of Austria.

At the same time U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson declared that the North Atlantic treaty has been a "positive influence for peace beyond the North Atlantic area."

Acheson issued a statement before boarding the liner Britannic at Liverpool for the return trip from the historic North Atlantic treaty foreign ministers' meetings here.

The U. S. secretary, reviewing the achievements in Big Three and 12-nation talks of the past 10 days, called for "hard and constant work" and the closest kind of cooperation in all the fields of national and international life.

He said the North Atlantic council had provided "means for perfecting the common defense as a deterrent to aggression in order that peace may be more secure."

The treaty already, he said, has made its influence felt over a wide area, particularly in encouraging developments in Greece, Iran and Turkey, areas whose security, Acheson said, "is a matter of special concern."

Elaborating on their agreement on Austria reached here, Britain, France and the United States announced they would replace military governors in their occupation zones with civilian high commissioners who will double as diplomatic representatives of their countries in Austria.

An American spokesman said the Austrian decision reached by Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman were not to be considered a substitute for a final independence treaty. But Western diplomats feel the Russians are not likely to agree in the near future on Austria.

Top Businessmen Pledge Attempt Aid Employment

Industrialists Set Stabilized Employment And More Jobs As Goals To Be Met

Boston, May 19—(AP)—A group of the nation's top industrial chiefs were pledged today to stabilize employment and create more jobs. The promise was made at Boston's mid-century jubilee by 42 industrialists representing firms with assets of 24 billion dollars.

After meeting in Boston's historic Faneuil hall yesterday, they issued a declaration setting forth these pledges:

1 To stabilize employment by leveling out seasonal peaks and valleys in production, by diversification of products, and vigorous search for new markets.

2 To create more jobs through research, new facilities, new equipment and new methods, to keep pace with the needs of the country and its rapidly expanding labor force.

3 To keep improving tools and production efficiency, so that the earning power of the individual will be increased.

4 To give to each employee the opportunity to develop his abilities recognizing his right to improve himself as he improves the business.

5 To maintain the healthy competitive spirit that results in new ideas through better products and services to the public.

6 To encourage more widespread investment in common stocks, to the end that more millions of Americans may become owners of industry as well as employees.

The business tycoons—including P. idents of Bethlehem Steel Co., International Paper Co., U. S. Rubber and Radio Corporation of America—said "the best way to prevent unemployment is to produce goods at lower unit cost so that more people can afford them; as more people employ will be kept busy making them."

The industrialists said that "in all candor it must be said that there are many obstacles in the way of complete fulfillment" of their pledges.

"A government that has grown faster than our ability to support it is taking away money that should be put to work," they said. "Regulations which serve only to retard production have been imposed. The power to tax has been used to dry up the flow of risk capital into new enterprises."

"These things are detrimental, but not fatal. But if we continue to so regulate or control Americans so that they are no longer able to venture and toil in projects of their own choice; or if we remove the incentive for them to do so; we shall in either case have taken a step that is not merely detrimental, but fatal."

Plan Dynamiting To Ease Tension On Flood Dyke

Winnipeg, Man., May 19—(AP)—The Canadian army prepared today to blast out part of a railroad embankment near suburban Fort Garry to ease pressure on the dike there as rain squalls threatened to swell the rampaging Red river.

The growing pressure on the six mile Fort Garry dike is endangering a large, but sparsely settled section of the suburban greater Winnipeg. The weather bureau gave urgency to the plan by predicting that thunderstorms would add a half inch of rainfall in the valley.

During the night the river rose more than an inch bringing it to the highest point in its 1950 flood—30.3 feet. This is 12.3 feet above the flood rise level here and only about two feet below what officers consider the disaster point.

States? No. It would apply only to:

- 1. Every agency of the federal government.
2. Every labor union which has 50 or more members. This would mean practically every union.
3. Every employer who had 50 or more employees and this is very important—who did business across state lines. That is, if he was in interstate commerce. That needs explaining.
If an employer had 50 or more employees and shipped his product across state lines, he'd be covered by the law because he'd be definitely in interstate commerce.
But suppose he had 50 or more employees but sold what he made entirely within his own state. Would the law apply to him? That might depend.
For example, if he got his materials from another state—even though he sold what he made from those materials entirely within his own state—the court might rule he was in interstate commerce. That would have to be decided by the courts.
But if all his materials came from within his own state and his

Indicate Request For Court Term

Clerk of Court D. T. House reported yesterday the Pitt Bar Association has indicated it will request the County Commissioners to ask for a special two-week term of criminal court in October in an effort to clear the docket of its 150 cases.

House said the reason for the request was because a criminal week of Superior Court is already scheduled for that month, thereby allowing three weeks to get rid of as many cases as possible.

At its May 11 meeting the Board of Commissioners moved to ask for a special term in July. However, since then the advisability of a term during the middle of the growing season has been argued against.

House explained witnesses and jurors are too hard to get just at the time when tobacco and other crops need close attention to get them to court for any length of time.

A mixed term of court will begin here Monday, May 29. But that week will be for the trial of jail cases only. At the present time there are only three persons in jail awaiting trial. Unless others are put in jail, in the absence of bond, only those three will be tried the first day of the term.

Court Asked To Deny Petition

Raleigh, N. C., May 19—(AP)—The State Supreme Court was asked today to deny a petition seeking another hearing in Pitt Superior court for two teen-age Negro cousins who face death on a murder conviction.

A motion that the petition filed in behalf of Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels be rejected was filed with the court by Attorney General Harry McMullan.

Purpose: To make it unlawful for an employer or labor union to discriminate against a worker or a man looking for a job, because of his color, religious belief, or race.

This would make it unlawful for an employer to refuse to hire a man, or promote him, because, for example, he was a Negro, Jew or a person of Japanese descent.

Likewise, it would be unlawful for those reasons—for a labor union to refuse membership to such a person, or segregate him if he was a member, or in any way limit his chances for advancement.

Would the law apply to every single employer in the United States? No. It would apply only to:

Betty Jean Robbs Becomes Bride Of Benjamin D. Moore Jr.

Gaffney, S. C.—Miss Betty Jean Robbs and Mr. Benjamin Dale Moore, Jr., were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, May 6, at 3:30 o'clock at the Buford Street Methodist church in a ceremony marked with dignity and charm. The Rev. Theodore E. Jones, pastor of the bride, was the officiating minister. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with a background of fern. Seven-branched candelabra holding lighted cathedral tapers and large floor baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons were placed in the church. The chancel rail held fern, with lighted candles placed on the chancel, and a fan-shaped arrangement of white gladioli and snapdragons in the center.

Mrs. A. L. Wood, organist, and Miss Nancy Wells, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music. Prior to the ceremony Miss Wells sang "O Promise Me" and "Because." The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" (Wagner) was used as the processional, and the Wedding March from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn) was used as the recessional. "Clair de Lune" (Debussy) was played softly while the vows were being spoken. Miss Wells sang "The Lord's Prayer" as a benediction.

Serving as ushers were: Ernest Long, Max Shirley, John Robbs, brother of the bride, and Albert Oettinger, of Mooresville, N.C. Thad Nobles of Greenville, N.C., was best man.

Mrs. C. A. Copeland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of yellow taffeta featuring a pointed neckline with a high net yoke. The bodice was fitted with cap sleeves, and the full skirt fell from a pointed waistline. Mitts to match the gown, and a colonial nosegay of pink carnations and blue baby's breath, tied with blue satin ribbon, completed her costume.

Bridesmaids were Miss Jo Ann Mintz, of Washington, D. C., Miss Louise Camp, Miss Elizabeth Blanton and Miss Anne Wolfe, of this city. They wore pale green gowns identical to the one worn by the matron of honor, with matching mitts and nosegays of yellow carnations and baby's breath, tied with pink satin ribbon.

Nancy Forrest and Phyllis Moore, of Greenville, N. C., were flower girls. Their pink frocks were miniature versions of those worn by the other attendants, and they carried baskets of pink carnations.

Miss Maude Moore, sister of the bride, wore a blue crepe floor length gown, with an orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Robbs, entertained with a reception at their home on Rutledge avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Robbs, Miss Maude Moore, and the bride, Miss Maude Moore, formed the receiving line. Lovely sweet peas, blue iris, peonies and lemon lilies decorated the home. The dining table was covered with an exquisitely hand-embroidered cloth of imported linen and had a centerpiece of white carnations, snapdragons and lilies of the valley. A crystal punch bowl was at one end of the table, with Mrs. Forrest Huggin serving. A three-tiered wedding cake, beautifully decorated with rosebuds and topped with a miniature bride and groom, was at the other end, and was served by Mrs. Dorothy Andrews and Mrs. S. A. Philson. The bride attendants assisted in serving cake, punch, nuts and mints. Mrs. Jack Shippard, of Spartanburg, presided over the gift room, and Miss Cleo Little kept the bride's register.

Later in the evening the young couple left for a wedding trip to Florida. For traveling Mrs. Moore wore a linen suit of a soft peach shade, with which she used tan accessories. She wore a white orchid at her shoulder.

Mrs. Moore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grady Robbs, of Rutledge avenue. She is a young woman of unusual charm and ability, and has been widely entertained prior to her wedding. She attended Limestone College, Montreat Junior College, Montreat, N. C. and Cecil's Business College, Spartanburg.

Mr. Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Dale Moore, of Greenville, N. C. He was graduated from North Carolina State College, and holds a position with the Gaffney Manufacturing Company. He and his bride will reside at 800 South Limestone street.

Senior Class Of Griffton High Presents Play

Members of the Senior class of the Griffton high school presented their class night play, "A Southern Rose" on Wednesday night in the school auditorium. The setting for the play was a rose garden at the Fairfax Southern home, at the time the present and the past. The setting was a scene of beauty with the use of rose trellis and white picket fence on which were twined roses and ivy. As the play opened with "General Picket" played by Charles Wethington seated on a garden bench pondering over days of long ago "Polly" Maxine Hayes appeared and there ensued a conversation between the two in which the old man told of the time when her grandmother was in the garden much the same as she and now she was home from a girls finishing school and madly in love with a young man from the North of which she was sure her father would not approve unless won over by his good manners. Time faded into the past to show the old man in his youth and the young lady as her grandmother and the appearance of "Marse John," William Jackson and how they planned to win over the father to their side.

As the scene went back to the present two of Polly's friends, Kit McLawhorn and Virginia Stancill, came in to make plans for a graduation day they would be different, this they did.

As the curtain went down Mrs. William May sang "The Roseary." Aileen Jones, Salutatorian, gave her speech, "We Would Be Kings." Second scene with Charles Lester Wade as announcer was "O Time in Its Flight."

"Eternal Youth" (President's Address) Ray Mumford.

Mrs. J. F. Arthur Entertains Club At Luncheon

On Tuesday, May 16, the End of the Century Club celebrated its final meeting of the year with a luncheon at the beautiful suburban home of Mrs. Picklen Arthur.

A short business meeting was held at which time Mrs. C. A. White as president gave gracious thanks to all the members for the cooperation they had shown through the club year. Mrs. J. S. Moye described the book selected for the Bowen shelf.

It was voted also to give a donation to the Shepherd Memorial library as was customary with this club, and the club books were collected to be given to the library also.

Luncheon Honors Miss Kilgo

On Wednesday at one o'clock, Mrs. Jim Groome entertained at a delightful luncheon at the home of her mother, Mrs. H. H. Duncan, in honor of Miss Susanne Kilgo, bride-elect of Saturday.

The guests were greeted at the door by the hostess and honoree and invited into the living room where places were set for twelve at card tables. The house was decorated with summer flowers. The tables were covered in white luncheon cloths and in the center of each was a small bouquet of pansies. The bride's place was marked by a nosegay of pastel flowers.

A colorful salad course and dessert were served. Miss Kilgo was remembered with a gift in her chosen pattern of silver. The following: J. B. Kittrell, Jr., W. M. Scales, Tom guests were present: Misses Kilgo Webb, A. W. Bryan, Sterling Hudson and Lib Kittrell, Mesdames Jack son, Alton Barrett and James Edwards, Jr., Charles Howard, Jr., Smith.

"IT'S FROM BEST'S"

Many have heard these words from childhood about Mother's engagement diamond, Grandfather's gold watch, the family silver. Memories such as these influence them more than they know, so that when a young man looks for a wedding ring, when a girl chooses her wedding silver, the name Best quite naturally comes to mind. Best Jewelry Company is a continuing tradition with those who like to hand down, from generation to generation, appreciation for fine quality in silver, lovely tableware, gold and diamond jewelry.

Hoof-And-Mouth Disease To Be Target Of Special Laboratory

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer
Washington, May 18—(AP)—Work soon will start on a laboratory which will seek to free the world of one of the greatest threats to its food supply.

That threat is the foot-and-mouth disease. It is extremely contagious, comparable to the virus that causes the common cold or sm. Ixox in humans. It is feared partly because of the mortality it causes among livestock and partly because it leaves its victims ailing and unproductive.

Outbreak of the dread disease in Mexico in 1946 threw a scare into American officials. Bars were thrown up immediately against imports of Mexican cattle and other livestock.

Because there is no known effective cure or permanent vaccine, Congress directed the Agriculture department to set up a laboratory to search for ways of combatting the virus.

Only recently the department chose a site on Prudence Island, in Massachusetts Bay. The laboratory is expected to cost about $25,000,000 and to employ 400 workers.

Luckily, the United States has been remarkably free of the disease. It has invaded the country nine times, but each time it was quickly stamped out by destruction of infected and exposed animals. Such is not the case with most other parts of the world.

With more than half the total American farm income derived from livestock and livestock products, the entire economy of this country would suffer, to say nothing of the effect on the food supply, if the disease should become established here.

Thus far enforcement of rigid quarantine regulations has been the main line of defense. Now officials feel that the time has come to try to find a more powerful weapon in the form of drugs.

Obviously, officials say, this country can't afford to wait until an emergency exists before beginning its own research, nor depend on other countries.

Discovery of a cure would not only serve as a protection against this country's meat and milk supply, but would help boost supplies of these foods for other parts of the world.

Ballard's X Roads Contest Entry News

The Daily Vacation Bible school will begin at Ballard's Presbyterian church Monday afternoon, May 29th. The school will be conducted with local help this year. All the children that are interested are invited to come and be in the classes.

Mrs. James C. B. Moore and W. H. Elks were hostesses at the May meeting of the Women of the Church.

The meeting opened by the group standing for a few minutes of silent prayer closed by Rev. Edwin S. Coats.

The Bible study, taken from Exodus on Moses' prayers, was conducted by Mrs. Gilmer Nichols, assisted by other members.

In the absence of the program leader, Mrs. P. J. Elks, the program on the Texas-Mexican school for boys was presented by Mrs. C. C. Harris. This school is supported by the home mission work of the church and part of the birthday offering taken each year in May goes to that school to establish a chair of Bible, the other part goes to Presbyterian student work in state schools.

Mrs. Annie Flanagan presided over the business session at which plans were made for the daily vacation Bible school.

During the social hour the hostesses served delicious home made cake topped with ice cream.

Mrs. Annie Flanagan is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bill Gillette, in Richmond, Va.

Mrs. George Worthington of Washington, D. C., is spending two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Verna Joyner.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Stokes of Washington were Sunday guests of Mrs. Mamie R. Holloway.

Roy Smith of the U. S. navy is spending a 16 day furlough with his wife, Mrs. Roy Smith.

Miss Lillian Harris of Halifax spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Harris.

Mrs. G. T. Tyson and Forbes Allen and Miss Edith Tyson visited Mrs. Tyson's sister, Mrs. Lilly, in a Norfolk hospital Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Coy, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crawford attended the funeral of Mr. William F. Evans in Greenville Friday afternoon.

J. J. McCoy is visiting the Purina Research farm near St. Louis, Mo. this week. He won the trip by selling such a large amount of Purina feed.

Mrs. Moses Tyson, Noah Barber, G. S. Nichols and Johnnie O'Neal were Raleigh visitors Saturday.

Mrs. Wiley B. Tripp and little son are visiting Mrs. Tripp's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Tyson.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gillette of Richmond, Va., announce the birth of a son, William Gillette, Jr., in the Medical College of Virginia hospital on May 7, 1950. Mrs. Gillette is the former Nancy Flanagan.

Miss Janet Waters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Ray Waters of 107 S. Woodlawn, is another of Greenville's pretty girls who has entered the Miss Bright Leaf contest from which one young lady from Greenville will be chosen to represent the city at the world premier of the movie "Bright Leaf" which will be shown in Raleigh May 31. Miss Waters is a rising senior at Greenville high school, is a member of the Dramateers, and is active in the young people's work at the Eighth Street Christian church.

Sophomore Will See His Son Given Diploma

Newark, Del., May 18—(AP)—A 40-year-old sophomore will see his son get a diploma at the University of Delaware's annual commencement exercises June 6.

Receiving his sheepskin in business administration will be Frank H. Horner, Jr., 24 of Wilmington, Del., a navy veteran of World War 2.

Witnessing the ceremony will be his father, Frank H. Horner, Sr., a sophomore in the school of education. The elder Horner also is a veteran of the last World War.

Returning from service with General Patton's third army, the elder Horner said he decided to enter college because he "fed up with being nice to people" in his old job as a grocery clerk. He thinks teaching will be better because "you don't have to worry about pupils taking their business to the school on the next corner."

J. E. Winslow, Greenville Farm Leader Says . . .

"I am fully convinced that Frank Graham, if elected to the Senate, will continue to work and strive for the betterment of farmers, workers and business conditions."

Duke-Developed Drug Is Produced

Durham, N. C. May 19—(AP)—The Duke University Hospital has announced that Bantnine, a new peptic ulcer drug developed by its staff, now is being produced in quantity. Bantnine is being distributed in tablet form on a doctor's prescription only.

The drug, developed by Dr. Keith S. Grimson in association with Dr. C. K. Lyons and Dr. F. H. Longino, has relieved pain and healed some ulcer patients at Duke Hospital. However, Dr. Grimson has warned that it may take years of trial before the lasting powers of Bantnine are known.

TRIAL HALTED FOR WEEK-END

Ouster Case To Begin Sixth Week Here Monday A.M.

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst yesterday afternoon completed his fourth day on the witness stand in the ouster proceedings against him brought by members of the board of county commissioners and the fifth week of the hearing ended when court recessed until Monday morning. Since the hearing was begun on Monday, May 9, there have been twenty-one days of actual hearings, the other time of the five weeks being taken up with the week-end recesses, a three-day recess between presentation of evidence by the prosecution and defense and a two-day recess last week because of the primary.

THE SHERIFF TOOK THE WITNESS STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENSE LAST MONDAY MORNING AND HAS BEEN UNDER CROSS EXAMINATION SINCE NOON WEDNESDAY. ON CROSS-EXAMINATION HE HAS ADMITTED MANY IRREGULARITIES IN THE MANNER OF KEEPING THE RECORDS OF HIS OFFICE WHICH MADE IT PRACTICALLY IMPOSSIBLE TO ACCURATELY CHECK THE TRANSACTIONS OF HIS OFFICE DURING THE 11 1-2 YEARS HE HAS BEEN SHERIFF.

Continuing under cross examination yesterday afternoon the sheriff admitted that he had collected jail fees from both justices of the peace and the county on 275 jail days represented in one of the schedules of the audit. He also admitted that of 41 items from Justices of the Peace J. I. Smith and H. L. Jenkins 13 were entered on his records and paid over to the county with no record of the remaining 28 items. Asked by the cross-examiner why these items, contended by the sheriff in previous testimony to belong to him, had been placed on the county's books and paid over to the county, the sheriff replied that through mistake they got entered on the county fees book.

"Were you so absent-minded and habitually negligent in the affairs of the office as to make such mistakes of paying to the county 13 of 42 items that you have contended belong to you?" asked Attorney Kelum of counsel for the petitioners. "Sometimes we were so busy that we naturally made mistakes," replied the sheriff.

The cross examination also included the examination of approximately 50 vouchers covering payments to the sheriff for transporting prisoners to Raleigh and transporting persons to the Negro asylum in Goldsboro. In many instances the mileage on these items varied and the sheriff was asked why he had approved these items and collected from the county when they were incorrect. He explained that in most instances the information contained on the bills was put there by the deputy who had made the trip or by some member of his office staff and that as a matter of routine he approved these bills without close examination. He explained that in some instances the difference in mileage to Raleigh was accounted for in the route it was necessary to travel. In one instance he declared that he was taking a prisoner to Raleigh for safekeeping, and in order to avoid a mob he had traveled from Greenville by way of Washington, Williamston and Rocky Mount to go to Raleigh.

bert Hoover two decades ago.

A Congress which becomes a rubber stamp to President Truman or any other chief executive of the United States, becomes a Congress which represents the administration rather than the people.

If such a thing should happen in the United States, it would be only a short period of time until the government ceased to exist at the will of and for the convenience of the people. The government would become paramount, and the interests of the individual citizens would be secondary.

Unemployment Solution Is Taking A New Shape

There is a lot of talk about an unemployment crisis. But a union official this week told us it may not be as serious as some people would have the public believe.

In fact this official of organized labor made the flat statement that in most of this area there are job openings for everyone who wants to work.

This statement is surprising in one respect, coming from a representative of organized labor; but it is significant that labor leaders are aware that a lot of unemployment is not so much due to the lack of jobs as it is to the lack of people willing to take the jobs.

Throughout the country today there are millions of people who are drawing compensation from the government every week because they do not hold a job they prefer.

The solution to the unemployment problem has ceased to become a matter of finding jobs for the people, but has become a problem of finding people for the jobs.

THE DECENCY OF HONEST LABOR

There is a delightful children's story about L'il Hamibal who wouldn't tote. Everytime he got all fixed to do something he wanted to do, his mother called on him to go on an errand somewhere or tote something. At last he decided to flee this tyranny and set out on his own.

When supper time came he was all ready for a big meal and went about looking for his place at the table. He found, to his consternation, that there was no place for L'il Hamibal. The rabbits ate with the greatest cheer and with hearty appetites, but L'il Hamibal did not get a morsel. The reason, as it turned out, was because there was no place at that table for folks that shirked their duty. No tote, no food.

The Bible version of this principle is that if any will not work, neither shall he eat. Common decency requires every strong and self-respecting man to hold up his end in the project of life. There are many now who do not work because no man hires them, and such should have the sympathy and support they deserve. But even in the best of times there are those who would live by something other than their own efforts.

Every living soul should be compelled to submit to the principle that if one would partake of any of life's good things, he must be willing to tote something in return.

The First Armed Forces Day Scheduled Tomorrow

Tomorrow is America's first Armed Forces Day.

No more Army Day; no more Navy Day, no more Air Force Day... they're all being honored on one day to emphasize their unity.

With members of the United States armed services scattered all over a tense, war-scarred world... on occupation duty or with missions in liberated countries... Armed Forces Day, 1950, has a special significance.

They form a thin steel band of resistance to an alien force as well as bringing peace to unsettled peoples and security to the fearful.

The words of Eisenhower on the united command of the Armed Forces are worth repeating: "Those who now serve, greatly merit our praise and active support. They constitute a united host, each arm skilled in its own field, proud in the traditions and loyalties of its own service, all resolute in a team whose purpose is the invincible defense of this country."

Good Government Must Have Checks And Balances

The call has gone out from the administration to remove from Congress all the Senators and Representatives (both Democrats and Republicans) who oppose the left wing program of President Truman.

Thank God we still live in a democracy in which the people, not the president, have the say-so about who is in Congress.

President Truman has called on the people of the nation to do exactly the thing which has caused totalitarian governments to come into being in other nations of the world. The removal of all the opposition to any particular program in the government would be as devastating to the United States as the removal of the inalienable rights guaranteed to the people of this land by the constitution.

The government of the United States has grown great and strong because it has been constructed upon a system of checks and balances between the principal branches of the government as well as checks and balances within these branches. The good government for the people has come about through the assimilation of all the ideas, pro and con, about a particular matter with a resulting product which is for the good of the people at large; not a small segment of the population.

The removal of all Congressional opposition to the program proposed by President Truman would be as serious a blow to the future of the country as it would have been to remove all Congressional opposition to proposals in recent years by Henry A. Wallace or Senator Glenn Taylor; and just as devastating as it would have been to remove all opposition to the program of Her-

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Sewing-machine sales are humming these days, and appliance dealers are casting longing glances at the field long dominated by department stores and "sewing machine stores."

In fact, the National Appliance and Radio Dealers Association is currently campaigning to get its members into the sewing-machine act.

It's a good business — if you know how to handle it. Selling sewing machines has its own special promotional and service angles. You don't have to tell a woman how to operate a refrigerator; it operates for her. But you do have to teach her how to operate a sewing machine and sometimes even how to sew, which is why the department stores and specialty sewing shops have long held on to this business. Apparently they know how to sew. In this business you have to at least run demonstrations, and some of the most successful sewing machine retailers run regular schools with instruction on both a mass and individual basis. Of course not the entire cost of such instruction is borne by the retailer by any means; women generally pay moderate fees for the courses.

You also have to be equipped to give women advice on special sewing problems; what attachments are best for darning, what tools are required for cutting the garment preparatory to sewing it, etc.

Besides the instruction angle, service arrangements must be quite adequate for sewing machine business. These machines are more complicated, more likely to get out of order if not handled properly, than most other appliances. Some of the larger stores maintain their own departments, but obviously most small appliance shops would find that too costly. But dealers are warmed by their association to at least make arrangements with an experienced outside firm before they tackle sewing machines.

There's business in them these days, but be warned of the complications before you jump in.

DRIVE AGAINST TIE-IN SALES AS TRUST-LAW VIOLATION

Judging from recent remarks by spokesmen for the U.S. Department of Justice, you'll see more actions against tie-in sales pretty soon. Such deals got a big boost after the war when retailers had to take slower-moving items to get wanted merchandise. Many a liquor retailer bought extra rum to get Scotch; many an appliance dealer bought automatic ironers to get automatic washers. Right now merchants frequently find they have to buy radios to get desirable lines of television sets.

The Justice Department's current thinking is that tie-in sales foster "monopoly" because—in the liquor business, for example—a wholesaler can't shop around and pick the best brands of each kind of liquor if he's forced to buy goods he doesn't want, particularly if there's an "exclusive dealing" requirement too.

RUBBER PRICES, SUPPLIES GETTING SERIOUS

Whether you make, sell or use products made of rubber, its supply situation is worth your serious attention. A number of commodities are currently rising, but rubber is reaching new highs almost daily, reports from abroad indicate. One explanation is that world consumption is higher than had been anticipated, and shipments are below expectations. Production of synthetic rubber will soon be stepped up in the U.S., but it is not yet known whether the synthetic product will alleviate the supply condition enough to stem the rise in prices of both crude rubber and its finished products.

APPAREL RETAILERS EXPECT BETTER SUMMER BUSINESS

There seems to be no doubt that the apparel business—which has been mired in the doldrums while hard lines boomed—is picking up this summer. Retailers are calling for cottons and sheers as warmer weather begins to break. They're even asking for one-week deliveries on moderate-price cool numbers as chambrays, sheers and gingham styles, but are only partly successful in getting shipments that fast, market reports indicate.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

How many times have you heard people say, "I just never seem to have time to write letters." Like me, you probably say it about yourself. It seems that someone who writes as much as I do would be a good correspondent, but the reverse is true. I've been owing letters for months, so I decided to answer one today, to a fellow named Bobby Babcock who used to live in Greenville.

U. S. Army
 Lord Knows Where,
 Dear Bobby,

Try as I might, I couldn't wait two years to answer your new letter. I'm anxious to tell you the latest about the town I imagine you would like to be living in, Greenville.

If you came back here you would probably recognize some of the old buildings and streets, but not the people. And the new homes and business establishments would astound you.

Remember when we used to know just about everybody in town? Remember the days when we could keep up with the new cars bought in Greenville because we knew the owners? Since then, Greenville has gone through two stages, and you missed both of them.

The first stage was when a person could no longer keep up with folks who among the working folk. But even then, it was easy to keep up with the rich ones. Always, the rich ones are easiest to keep up with, because most everybody else slams at them all the time. One of the best ways I know to keep people from saying bad things about you is to pay your bills but stay broke.

The second stage is now in reign. You can walk down the streets of Greenville and see well dressed people riding around in cars half a block long, and have no idea who they are. They may not be rich, but on the outside they look mighty prosperous.

Who are these people? Where did they come from? What do they do? It's hard to keep track of Greenville people, even the ones that ride around in big cars.

And, brother, you've never seen the like of housing. For months I've been sitting around waiting to buy a house. "With all these houses going up," Wife Rachel and I kept telling ourselves, "plenty will soon be for sale." Instead it seems that ten new ones are being started every week.

Bobby, I don't think the high school boys are as mischievous as you were. That hankerchief trick you pulled was a cake-taker. Never will I forget how you would walk down the sidewalk, with your hankerchief ready. When a car approached, you would put the hanky on your brow, stagger, and fall over as the car passed. When the car would slam on brakes to find out what your trouble was, you would get up and run. The rest of the team would sit up in the college woods and enjoy the show. You know, I'm glad I never did anything like that.

Come to see us,
 And I thank you.

TEACHERS—The salaries paid teachers in North Carolina public schools are now comparable to earnings of similarly trained personnel in private industry. Because of that fact the average educational record of school teachers is considerably higher than it was a few years ago. That, unfortunately, doesn't mean that school teachers generally are adequately trained for their jobs. There are still far too many teachers handicapped by inadequate or inappropriate training. This is particularly true in the elementary grades. Furthermore, the state supported teacher training colleges are contributing to the imbalance instead of alleviating it.

LOSPIDED—Only possible conclusion from these figures is that the teacher training courses are not co-ordinated to classroom needs, and that in both white and colored groups there is far too much attention to training high school teachers.

UNPREPARED—Result is that a great many teachers in the elementary grades are ill prepared for their jobs, although they may hold doctor degrees from big universities. Where did the elementary schools get the 1325 new teachers, representing difference between last year's graduates and current school year demand? Some of them came from holders of less than A-Grade certificates, but most of them came from ranks of teachers trained for high school work.

WRONG—The state department of public instruction has prepared a table of specially trained teachers cast in roles for which their training does not fit them. Three teachers who majored in biology are in elementary classrooms, one of them in the first grade. Of 68 graduates who majored in French nine were teaching classes below the sixth grade. There were thirty-five science majors — only three in high school and one each in first and second grades. Obviously they are not "adequately" prepared for these assignments.

PROSPECTIVE—Prospects for next year are no brighter. In fact, the discrepancy between high school and elementary teacher graduates has been increasing for a good many years. In 1941, for example, there were 647 elementary and 1008 high school teachers graduates from the state teacher training colleges. Last year the ratio was 308 to 1341. For this year (1950) the prospect is 234 elementary and 1468 high school teachers.

REASON—Public instruction officials are frank to say they do not know the reason for this trend. It might be because high schools generally are located in communities where living conditions are better; or it may be that prospective teachers recognize it is easier to deal with adolescents in class than with beginners.

The Voice Of The People

ized by the 1945 legislature, and is ten times the amount of the budget of 1939-40—just ten years ago. And in addition to the appropriations for current expenses, the last General Assembly authorized bond issues which bring the total authorized spending by the North Carolina state government to the astounding sum of $747,500,000.

Thus, we may well believe, there is little to choose between the national administration under President Truman and the state administration under Governor Scott. Both are devoted advocates to deficit spending. Both are driving us as fast as they can toward, if not bankruptcy then individual penury in which we will have precious few pennies for the necessities of life when we have paid our taxes.

What can be done about it? Little enough now. For the time being we like sheep before the sheers are dumb. But the time is coming when it will be necessary for all of us to band together with solidarity and a singleness of purpose to reorganize politically, and throw off the socialist yoke which both President Truman and Governor Scott have imposed upon us.

It is good financial policy, when national tax burdens are high, for state governments to ease the tax load of their people. Instead, under the Scott administration, we have not only been saddled with heavier tax burdens, but have outstripped the federal government in proportion to population and wealth.

Surely, we realize that this Scott policy is fundamentally wrong, even confiscatory. It is time for us to be as earnest in our effort to restore our state finances to a sound basis, by choosing a real economist two years hence, as in our determination to do as well with respect of the presidency.

Hal Boyle's Column

New York—(AP)—"To be happily married as I am—I call that a good life," said the Duke of Windsor.

He had just finished watching a film screening of his first television appearance.

I had been invited to see the screening in the offices of "March of Time." Before going, on the offchance that the Duke himself might show up, I went around my office and asked a number of men and women: "What is the thing you'd like to know most today about the Duke of Windsor?"

It turned out that most wanted to know these things: Is he happy? Does he have any regrets over giving up his throne?

Shortly before the hour of screening the Duke did show up—wearing an ageless smile, a jaunty red polka dot bow tie, and a gray striped flannel suit. The years have touched him lightly. He will be 56 next month, but he still has an air of timeless youth.

He said he was sorry the Duchess couldn't come.

During the showing of the film the Duke poked light-heartedly about his acting ability.

"My, I look so old," he laughed at one point.

Afterward I joined a group chatting with the Duke. I told him what my fellow workers wanted to know about him, and he seemed genuinely pleased at their interest.

"I certainly am happy," he smiled, "although the world today is not a very happy place."

"What do you miss most now from your days as King?"

"I don't miss being King, but I do miss my country and working for it," he said. "I never have an idle moment. The day is not half long enough—even when I'm not writing."

The Duke has been busy the last three years writing the story of his life from the end of the First World War to the crowded days of his abdication. It is now appearing in Life magazine.

"We are leaving for France next week," he said. "There I'm going to complete my book." The expanded memoirs are to be published next fall by Putnam's.

The Duke has found an author's life isn't an easy one.

"It's hard work—this writing," he grimaced.

The Duke declined to comment on world political events or the progress of the cold war.

"I'll leave that to others," he said. "I keep my fingers crossed."

The Duke no longer keeps a stable of horses and rarely rides. But he has kept in excellent shape by golfing.

"Outdoor life is my greatest pleasure," he said. "I enjoy the country—and my bad golf. I shot an 85 recently. My golf is a little better than it was in the 1920's."

"But I'm always pleased to break 90—and he grinned as he added—"that goes for a lot of people."

His other hobbies are hunting and reading—chief history.

Many people in today's world of doubt live by secret fears. I asked the Duke what he was afraid of. He thought the question odd.

"This morning I was most afraid of my dentist, but he's a wonderful dentist—didn't hurt at all," he said. "Really, I'm not scared of anything."

How does he feel about life? "To be happily married as I am—I call that a good life," said the Duke.

And, smiling pleasantly, he left to go back to his hotel to join the woman for whose love he gave up the rulership of one-fourth the globe and one-fourth the world's population.

Thirteen years after his abdication this Duke who was once a King is still quite a man—and a prince of a guy to meet.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Remember the old jingle, "leaflets three, let it be," as you go about outdoors this summer. It will help you to recognize poison ivy and poison oak. The Public Health Service says these plants are responsible for about 350,000 cases of skin poisoning every year. Poisonous plants are among the most common and annoying of summer hazards.

Department of Agriculture experts tell me very few persons "have a sufficient degree of immunity" to protect them from poisonous plants and that many do not recognize them when they come in contact with them.

Poisoning by these plants is largely preventable, says the experts. The main thing is to become "poison-ivy and poison-oak conscious." Poison ivy grows in the form of climbing hairy vines, shrubs trailing on ground, erect shrubs without support. It grows along fences, pathways, roads, clings to stone and brick houses, climb trees and poles. Sometimes it's partly hidden by other foliage.

Leaves vary from one to four inches, are green and glossy in summer, red and russet in spring and fall. Its white, waxy berries resemble those of mistletoe. Its leaves always grow in clusters of three—and only one three-part leaf leads off from each stem node. They are never in pairs. Poison-oak is similar to the ivy. Another plant to shy clear of is poison sumac, a shrub or small tree which may grow as high as 20 feet. The poison sumac is distinguished from the non-poisonous by loose, drooping clusters of white berries.

First symptom of plant poisoning, itching sensation. Then comes a rash, swelling, maybe blisters. Time between contact and first symptoms varies from a few hours to a few days. If you knowingly have contacted poisonous plants, wash affected skin with soap—yellow laundry soap is best—rinse thoroughly, repeating several times. Then wash with rubbing alcohol. If a rash appears, calamine lotion will give some relief. If rash is severe, see a doctor.

The experts say the irritating poison from these plants can be carried by clothes or animals, by smoke from the burning of such vegetation, by the fur of a dog that has run in it.

Find Destroyer Of Polio Virus

Cincinnati, May 19.—(AP)—A substance in human milk, the identity of which is still unknown, has been established as a destroyer of the virus of poliomyelitis.

The report came yesterday from Dr. Albert Sabin, director of infantile paralysis research in Cincinnati's Children's Hospital.

Dr. Sabin said that one thing which led to the discovery of the properties of human milk was the experience in a Canadian Eskimo settlement.

There were 275 cases of the disease. Twenty per cent of the victims became paralyzed, and 14 per cent died, but in no case did a child under three years old, when children normally are being nursed by their mothers, become paralyzed.

He said it first was determined that immunity with which all babies are born was not the contributing factor. Then it was found that human milk coats the mouth, throat and digestive tract to set up a barrier to the polio virus.

That, it was explained, was of no particular importance since it is by way of the mouth that the polio virus enters the human system.

Continuing the studies, 30 Cincinnati mothers were asked to give both blood and milk specimens. The human milk was mixed with polio virus and injected into mice. Mice which received the mixture survived without paralysis while those which were inoculated with only polio virus developed paralysis.

Rule Alcoholism Fatal To Logger

Franklin, N. C., May 19.—(AP)—A Coroner's jury has ruled that Grady Ray, 43-year-old logger, died of alcoholism yesterday. On the jury's recommendation, four Macon county men were released from custody in connection with the death.

Craig Stepp, in whose yard Ray was found dead, Theodore Wood, Frank Wright and George Owens, were released.

The inquest verdict was brought in late yesterday.

Axis Sally Must Serve Her Term

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today that Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars must serve 10 to 30 years in prison for broadcasting Nazi propaganda during World War II.

The white haired 49-year-old former actress was convicted more than a year ago in Federal District Court here.

Miss Gillars was arrested nearly five years ago when American soldiers entered Berlin.

Before the downfall of the Nazis, her smooth voiced radio shows became known to millions of GIs. She was the supposedly glamorous radio siren who taught them the haunting strains of "Lili Marlene" which became the World War marching-fighting son of the American infantry.

There was no immediate statement concerning whether she would appeal today's decision to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The Maine-born woman, who at one time appeared in minor Broadway acting roles, admitted broadcasting to the Germans. But she contended throughout her trial that she always loved the United States.

Invitation

Raleigh, N. C., May 19.—(AP)—Governor Scott has invited the governors of South Carolina and Virginia to "come to our party."

The party in this case is the May 21 World Premiere here of "Bright Leaf," Warner Brothers' film of the cigarette machine's effect on a tobacco industry.

The film is based on the book of the same title written by Foster Fitzsimmons, University of North Carolina drama instructor.

Scott invited Governor J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Governor John S. Battle of Virginia to bring their wives and come to Raleigh for the occasion.

Expects Surplus In General Fund

Raleigh, May 19.—(AP)—State Auditor Henry Bridges thinks the state's general fund will show a surplus of about $5,000,000 on June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

He said yesterday that at the close of business the day before, the fund had a balance of $14,795,246. This does not take into account, however, outstanding checks against the state which haven't been cashed.

General fund revenues during this fiscal year were estimated at $136,000,000.

He estimated the general fund, besides the $5,000,000 surplus, would benefit by about $2,000,000 in reversions of unexpended money.

He added, however, that the budget for the next fiscal year was based on an anticipated surplus of $9,000,000.

Kinston Blanks Robins By 2-0; Play Twin Bill Tonight

Eagles Wrap Up Victory With Outburst In Second; Teams Play Double-Header Here Tonight

Manager Walter Millies and his Kinston Eagles handed out their first white washing job of the season last night by defeating the Greenville Robins, 2-0, behind the five-hit pitching of Lefty Leo Groeschel.

The Eagles wrapped up the victory with two runs in the second inning. Singles by Minarcin and Brigham and a base on balls issued to Lequesne loaded the bases. LaHan's single scored Minarcin and Brigham also scored when Catcher Bakris dropped Paul Strausser's throw-in from centerfield.

Groeschel, who went the route for the Eagles to register his first win of the season over the Robins against one loss, held the Robins to five hits, two of which came in the ninth frame.

Big Joe Guidice, leftfielder of the Robins, collected three singles in four trips to the plate to pace the Robins' attack.

Since Jones started on the mound for the Robins, giving up eight hits, Finky Witt pitched the final frame allowing one hit. The loss was charged to Vince Jones, his fourth of the year and his first against the Eagles.

John Minarcin with a double and a single and Ray Rosenwinkel and pitcher Groeschel with two singles each, paced the nine-hit attack off two Greenville hurlers.

The Robins and Eagles meet here tonight in a twin bill, with the first game slated to get underway at 7:00 o'clock.

Democrats Face Republicans For 'Baseball' Game

By ARTHUR EDSON
Washington, May 19—(AP)—The Democrats play the Republicans tonight in what some humorist has called a baseball game, and a senator will be in the lineup for the first time in the history of this congressional contest.

The senator: Harry P. Cain (R-Wash.). He will pitch, more or less.

Confronted with this situation, the Democrats have done their best. Rep. Smathers of Florida, a hero of other congressional ball games, defeated Senator Pepper in the primaries.

Which caused Rep. Harris (D-Ark.), the Democrats' manager, to announce:

"Don't underestimate this fellow. Smathers is hotter than Pepper." Everybody laughed, congressional humor being what it is.

The tall, husky Smathers, by the way, may be the best hitter on either club. This doesn't mean he's any Babe Ruth. But he can hit a ball as far as the outfield, since congressional outfielders usually hold a committee meeting on every fly ball. Smathers is a potential home run king.

Whether Senator Cain can stop Senator-to-be Smathers remains to be seen. If Cain can't, maybe the other Republican pitchers—Glenn Davis of Wisconsin and Corbett of Pennsylvania—can get the job done.

The Democrats have assembled quite a pitching staff, but the fact remains that they usually rely or fall with the efforts of Don Wheeler, a one-time school teacher from Alma, Ga.

Wheeler is a pretty fair pitcher. But he has one weakness: He gets tired. The Democratic policy has been to allow Wheeler to pitch until he gets weary, run in a sub until the Republicans catch up and then put Wheeler back in again.

This isn't according to baseball law, but if Congress can't change a law, who can?

Incidentally, no matter who wins, the ball playing congressmen will have done their good turn for the day. The game is sponsored by the Washington Evening Star. The money goes to the summer camp fund for underprivileged children.

Bobby Jones Is 'All Right' After Long Operation

Boston, May 19—(AP)—The condition of former golf king Bobby Jones was described as "all right" today after a five-hour long operation to correct a spinal ailment.

A Lahey clinic spokesman reported that "everything went nicely" during the long operation yesterday, but that it would be a few days before doctors could determine whether the surgery was successful.

The operation to relieve pressure on the spinal cord was performed at the New England Baptist hospital by Drs. Gilbert Horrak and James L. Poppen.

Dr. Frank Lahey, the clinic's head, recommended the surgery after an examination showed pressure caused by a bone "up near the base of the skull."

Four-Way Play For Conference Title Is Planned

Greensboro, N. C., May 19—(AP)—Wake Forest, Clemson, Virginia Tech and a fourth team to be chosen will meet in a double-elimination series here May 26, 27, for the Southern conference baseball championship.

Opening games will pair the Southern division teams, Wake Forest and Clemson, against the northern division representatives. Pairing will be made this weekend. The fourth team, on the basis of present standings, likely will be George Washington.

Plans for a Wake Forest-Clemson series today and tomorrow at Laurinburg to determine the southern representative have been abandoned. Instead, Wake Forest, the league's defending champion, and Clemson, at the top of the present southern division standings with Wake Forest, will compete at Greensboro the following weekend.

Close Race For Women's Bowling Loop In Progress

A close race is in progress in the Women's City Bowling league between first and second place teams as the competition heads for the wire during the next two weeks.

The Lucky Strikers are currently leading the four team league with a record of 20 wins and 10 losses. They lead the Slickers by two games as a result of Wednesday night's bowling. With only six more games to roll the Slickers are in a position to take the lead provided the Strikers have a bad night next week.

In Wednesday's play the leaders took two games from the Lady Luck team while the Slickers dropped two to last place Wildcats. Margaret Clark presently leading the 20 bowlers in high average, hit her highest game Wednesday when she bowled an even 200. That game added to her other two a total 431—highest three game score for the league.

The Strikers have the highest single game score in addition to three games. With a single game high of 646 and a three game high of 1796, they are currently the class of the league with scores that will be hard to take down.

Besides Margaret Clark's 130 individual average, the others in the top ten are: Ann Heap, Lady Luck, 126; Charlotte Mills, Slickers, 123; Frances Cassick, Wildcats, 123; Edith Nisbet, Lucky Strikers, 122; Lillian Thomas, Slickers, 117; Nina Baker, Lady Luck, 113; Eloise Warren, Lucky Strikers, 113; Eloise Porter, Lady Luck, 108; and Eleanor Norris, Wildcats, 108. All averages are based on 24 or more games bowled.

Outfielder Dick Wakefield Probably Will Wind Up With National League

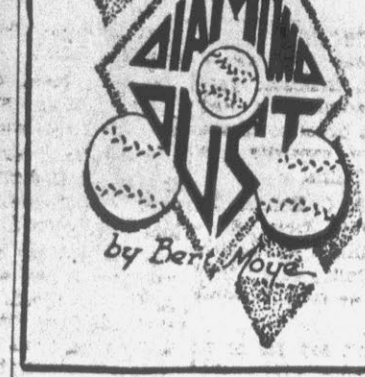

New York, May 19—(AP)—Outfielder Dick Wakefield, center of a controversy that twice went to the commissioner's office, probably will wind up playing in the National League.

There were strong hints today that the 29-year-old prodigal would be waived out of the American League and snatched up by a club in the older circuit which needs an outfielder. The Yankees put Wakefield back on the pay roll yesterday but told him to sit tight at his Ann Arbor, Mich., home until he had further word where he's going.

"The Yankees do not want Wakefield," Arthur (Red) Patterson, club secretary, said in announcing the player's reinstatement. "He will not be asked to return."

Wakefield accepted the news placidly, with only mild hints of his earlier threats to quit the game because he may not be wanted.

The Yankees suspended Wakefield because he failed to report to the Chicago White Sox after being traded to that club for cash and outfielder Johnny Ostrowski.

Sidelights—The Kinston Eagles in shutting out the Robins last night registered their first white-washing job of the season although the Eagles themselves have been shut-out three times already this season. . . . The shutout was the 13th in the Coastal Plain League. . . . The loss by the Robins was their second two-run loss this season. . . . It marked the first win of the season for the Eagles over the Robins. . . . This was the tenth loss away from home this season by the Robins who have been victorious on four occasions, two of them against the Eagles. . . . In seven of the nine innings in last night's contest the Robins had men on bases but lacked the necessary power to hit when his would have resulted in runs and a possible victory. . . .

The two games to be played between the Robins and the Eagles tonight here at Guy Smith Stadium will both be nine-inning games. According to the league by-laws when a game is halted before a regulation game of four and one-half innings are played, the two teams in their next meeting must start where the game was interrupted and complete a full nine inning game. The two teams were attempting to play a twin bill here in their last meeting when rain halted proceedings after the Kinston Eagles had been retired in the first frame. Game time tonight is 7:00 o'clock and Ray Keys will be on the mound for the Robins in the opening contest.

Herb May, who performed both in left field and at third base for Rocky Mount and the Jays a couple of years ago, is playing first base and batting in the cleanup position for the Sanford Spinners of the Tobacco State League this year. . . .

If you want to read a fine story about a man who has meant a great deal to baseball, read the story which begins in this week's Collier. It's called "My Baseball Story" by Ed Barrow, the man who built the Yankees. The Collier's editors proudly proclaim it as "The baseball right." Ed Barrow's story is more than the thrilling history of a man unique in baseball. It's actually a baseball history set down by one who made it.

Bucky Harris Has Nats Doing Things To League

One-Time Last Place Club Stirring Up Quite A Rumpus In American Race; Now Closing In On Loop Leaders

By RALPH BODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bucky Harris, the Yankee cast-off who never has finished last, has his Washington Senators stirring up quite a rumpus in the American League pennant race.

Harris, back at the Washington helm for the third time, has guided the Nats to nine victories in their last 12 starts and to within a game and a half of the league-leading Yankees.

Bucky, fired by the Yanks after leading them to the pennant in 1947 and third in 1948, inherited a last place club after spending 1949 at San Diego in the Pacific Coast League.

During the spring the experts didn't rate the Senators much chance of improving their position. But Harris, with a long managerial record that includes tenures with the Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers and Philadelphia Phillies besides New York and Washington, said, "I've never finished last, and I don't intend to start now."

"Give me some pitchers to go with Ray Scarborough and we will surprise a lot of people."

Well, Bucky is getting the help he wanted with emphasis on Sid Hudson who won only eight games and lost 17 last year.

The 32-year-old right-hander who pitched side-arm last year but who now is pitching in his customary overhand fashion, turned in his fourth victory yesterday as Washington downed Chicago, 7-3. He aided his cause with a triple in the sixth.

The Boston Red Sox knocked Detroit out of a first place tie with the Yanks by outslugging the Tigers, 13-12, in a wild game at Detroit. The Yanks and St. Louis Browns had an open date.

The Red Sox piled up an 11-1 lead, thanks to a seven-run barrage in the fourth inning, but the Tigers came back with six in their half of the fourth and nearly pulled the game out in the ninth.

Grifton Defeats Ayden Nine, 4-2

Grifton, May 19—Grifton's Bulldogs clinched their 1950 baseball season yesterday afternoon with their first win over Ayden in four years. The score was 4-2.

Ruben Ewell again pitched the Bulldogs to a win. The ace pitcher in Coach Albert Tyson's mound staff has been the leading hurler this year with only one loss for the distaff side of the ledger. Ewell gave up five hits while his mates were collecting nine off four Ayden pitchers.

Starting the game for the visitors was A. L. Worthington and he was relieved in the third by Manning. Manning lasted but one inning, being relieved by Williams in the fourth. Teddy Bullock entered in the seventh and pitched the remainder of the inning.

Ewell and his catcher, J. T. Price, were the hitters for Grifton with two hits for three and four times up. Manning collected two for four for Ayden.

Grifton's record at the end of the season now stands at seven wins and six losses.

The line score:

Grifton 000 040 x-4 9 4
Ayden 010 010 2-5 1

Batteries: Grifton—Ewell and Price; Ayden—Worthington, Manning (3), Williams (4), Bullock (7) and Lang, Edwards (4).

Savitt Leads In Tennis Tourney

Greensboro, N. C., May 19—(AP)—First-seeded Dick Savitt of Cornell University led the way into today's quarter final round of the 4th annual Seigefield Tennis championships.

Savitt ranked 18th nationally, won two matches as play opened yesterday. He defeated Don Skinkle of the University of North Carolina, 6-2, 6-4, and Randall Jarrell of Greensboro, 6-1, 6-2.

product was sold only in that state, the law would not apply to him, even though he had 50 or more employees.

But—the law definitely would not apply to anyone with less than 50 employees, whether or not he was in interstate commerce.

And—the law would not apply to any state, city or town government. Nor would it apply to any non-profit, fraternal religious or social organization, no matter how many employees they had.

How would the law be carried out? This way: A man could complain to the FEPC if he felt he was discriminated against in a job because of his race, color or religious belief.

If, after an investigation, the FEPC thought the complaint had merit, it could ask the employer to stop discrimination and hire the man. If the employer refused, there would be a hearing.

If then the FEPC was convinced the employer was wrong, it could order him to hire the man or rehire him with back pay if he had been fired.

If the employer refused, the FEPC could get a federal judge to order the employer to obey the law. This federal judge would be in the district where the employer did business.

The employer could still refuse to comply and fight the case all the way up through the federal courts to the Supreme Court for a final decision on whether the law was constitutional or should be thrown out. If the FEPC bill in the Senate ever became law, there would be many court fights.

(The bill passed by the House is different from the one now before the Senate. Under the House bill the FEPC wouldn't have any power to order an employer to do anything. All it could do would be to ask him to stop discriminating.)

Its taste has made it the World's Most Famous Beer

Many things create that distinctive, delicious taste in Budweiser. One of the most important is ingredients—choicest hops, rice and best barley malt, bought at premium prices. Another is the costly lagering process, which gives Budweiser much, much longer-than-average aging. When you order, say, "Give me Budweiser—nothing else."

By ROY ESSOYAN
Pearl Harbor, May 18—(AP)—Two U. S. airmen indicated yesterday they had admitted a Red charge of spying in order to escape from 18 months of captivity in communist North China.

Marine Sgt. Elmer C. Bender, 27, Cincinnati, and Navy Chief Electrician's Mate William C. Smith, 32, Long Beach, Calif., said they were better "than we could possibly have expected."

But they wouldn't say yes or no at a press conference when asked if they had signed confessions that they were American spies. The communists in announcing their release May 3 said they confessed.

"As far as statements we made while we were up there," said Bender, "we were cut off entirely and the best way to get out was through our own efforts."

Asked what was meant by that, Smith said it was a long story and "I will explain it all later." When a reporter asked them, however, what means were used to get "confessions," Bender replied:

"There were no means, so called. But it was that they gave us the idea that we were to be there from now on. We were shut off from home. We had no news from home. The longer we stayed, the longer it looked as if we were going to stay."

The two were captured Oct. 19, 1948, when their light plane was forced down by engine trouble near the North China port of Tsingtao. The city then was a U. S. navy anchorage and they were on a training flight.

They left Tsingtao May 3 on the British steamer Huanan, reached Hong Kong Monday, and were flown to Pearl Harbor, arriving on Tuesday night.

Several times during their long captivity they were moved from one village to another.

"We were very depressed all through last summer," Bender said. "The longer we stayed there the longer it seemed we were to stay."

Not that they were treated badly. "We ate as well as the Chinese did," Smith observed. He added that their captors "went out of their way to give us as much as they could of all that they had."

Bender said the Chinese people he saw "are getting a better deal under the communists than they were under the Nationalist Government."

They saw no Russian equipment of any kind, Smith said. "The only foreign equipment we saw was American." The Reds captured a lot of equipment from the Nationalists.

When they were taken back to Tsingtao they saw Europeans in communist uniforms. They said these might have been Russians.

They never were tied up but had the freedom of whatever farm house they happened to be in. Near the end of their captivity they were allowed to walk around the villages under guard.

"Our diet was mainly starches, bread," Bender said. "Occasionally we got rice but rice is a luxury in North China. Vegetables, a little fish and hot water made up our daily menu."

Bender kept up his weight, but Smith dropped from 200 to 181 pounds.

The only work they had to do was their own washing.

Attention Drawn To Oregon Vote

Vladimir Houdek (above), Czechoslovakia's chief delegate to the United Nations, has quit his job and has asked President Truman for refuge in the United States. He said he resigned because his country is being Russified. (AP Wirephoto).

Portland, Ore., May 18—(AP)—A conservative standard bearer's vigorous attempt to unseat Republican Sen. Wayne Morse attracted nationwide attention to Oregon's primary elections today.

Challenging the veteran Morse's bid for renomination is Dave Hoover, a dairy farmer from the Crossroads community of Deadwood, who has the moral and financial support of the state's Conservative Republican leaders.

Most observers give Hoover only an outside chance, but his active campaign has aroused wide interest. The Republican nomination is generally regarded as equivalent to the election in this GOP stronghold, which has not named a Democratic Senator since 1914.

Hoover has assailed Morse as a Pseudo Republican who votes too often with the Democratic administration, the CIO and the leftists. He has billed himself as a "real" Republican who hates Communists and wants the government to stop squandering money on Europe.

Census Bureau Is Planning Reveal Tentative Count

Washington, May 18—(AP)—With the 1950 population count more than 95 per cent complete, the census bureau has decided it will have the tentative figures announced locally for cities of 1,000 or more.

The announcements will be made this month and into June.

Original plans had called for local announcements only for counties and for cities having more than 10,000 population. The bureau plans no announcements at all now for towns less than 1,000 population.

It will be mid-July before the tentative state population figures begin to be made available here. The tentative national figure is not expected to be ready at bureau headquarters until September.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND!

"I believe in high wage scales for the American working man," Willis Smith said in his formal 1950 platform.

In 1947 when appearing before a legislative committee which was then considering a 40 cents-an-hour minimum wage bill Mr. Smith sang a different tune with different words. On the proposal that the working men and women of North Carolina have a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour or $16 a week Mr. Smith said, "IT IS HARSH AND UNREASONABLE. IT WOULD WRECK THE ECONOMY OF OUR STATE."

What DOES Candidate Smith Consider a "HIGH WAGE SCALE?"

Then on April 20th of this year, for political reasons, Mr. Smith said he had changed his mind about what he told the legislative committee. He said his heart was not in it when he said that 40 cents an hour was "HARSH AND UNREASONABLE" . . . that he was merely representing the views of a client, a single industry—for a fee.

SMOKY JOE
By W. F. BRAGG

Chapter 5
Poking around in the brush back of Pudge Groner, he found boot tracks where a man had hidden. Joe wasn't certain as to size of boots that Whisperin' Johnson wore, but he would've bet a month's pay that Whisperin' had fired the stampeede shot and then knocked out Pudge.

Joe brought a bucket of water from the creek, emptied Pudge Groner's gun, then sloshed water over the fat gunhawk's head. Pudge moaned, batted his eyes, and finally sat up.

Pack was sitting up, shaking his black head, and rubbing his right shoulder where Monty's horse had struck him. He took the bucket from Joe's hand and drank deeply. Then he wiped off his mouth and reached for his smoking material before he talked.

"A lot of men," he drawled, "would want to kill you, Joe, for steppin' in the way you did just now."

"Whenever you can bring in more evidence against Monty," McDevitt than what you showed," Joe answered, "then you'll find me on your side."

"You may be right," he said, "but who fired the shot that spooked Monty's horse?"

Joe shrugged. "That," he answered, "is something I can't tell you. But there's tracks over in the brush behind Pudge and an empty cartridge shell."

Pack inspected the sign while Joe moved around the camp, getting his gear ready for the trail. His need for a horse was answered almost while he thought about it. Shorty Dike and the Wrench rider who had galloped up the creek to cut off Monty broke out of the brush. They led two horses with empty saddles, and Joe's runaway mount.

As Joe reached for his saddle and blankets, Shorty lazed in leather and cocked an eye at him. "I'll be wantin' you to ride into town with me," he said.

"You arrestin' me?" Joe asked. "No. But I'll want you to tell the sheriff all that happened here. I don't aim to let Pack Rogan put blame on me for lettin' Monty get away."

Rogan swung gracefully into his saddle of the big black that bore the brand of Stormy Munro. That aroused Joe.

"Pack—before we part company here—tell me this. You charge Monty with stealin' horses because Pecos found a Wrench cayuse in his pasture. But you're toppin' off one of my dad's horses. Looks to me like six of one and half a dozen of the other."

Pack looked down at Joe with a twist of his lips.

"While we're talking," he said, "I better point out that I have more than a neighborly claim to Flyin' O horses."

Joe frowned and waited.

"You've been away at least six months," Pack went on. "There's a lot of things happened up here that maybe you don't know about. To get square with the world, Joe, when you reach town I suggest that you have a talk with old Judge Boots. He was always your dad's lawyer. He can explain things better'n me."

Siding Shorty down the trail, Joe asked the deputy, "Where did Rogan pick up Pecos and that tub of lard?"

"Don't let looks fool you, Joe. Both of 'em are top men. They been with Rogan two or three months. Probably come north with a Texas trail herd. They run together when they hit town and, like Pudge just said, they don't take nuthin' off nobody."

The two riders covered fifteen long miles between the county seat and the Antelope Valley. They saw below them, along the main course of Antelope which turned eastward in a big bend, men and teams of horses toiling in the dust and heat.

"Ditch diggers," Shorty explained. "If the ditch company ever puts water on this land, we'll sure boom."

The road pointed smoothly and straight as a rifle barrel toward the boom town.

A clatter broke out down the stretch. A haze of yellow dust sped toward Joe and Shorty.

"That's a buckboard," said Joe. "I can see the wheels now and then through the dust. Headin' straight toward us."

He jumped his pony from the road, sank in his spurs, and raced to meet the approaching buckboard. For runaways were not uncommon. He turned his pony on the space of a dime as the buckboard flashed past him, drawn by two frightened, wall-eyed buckskins. He caught a glimpse of a slender driver braced against the seat, a flash of heavy hair, red gold in the sunlight. Reaching the head of the buckskin nearest him, he leaned from his saddle and seized the bit. Out on the prairie, he finally brought the lathered horses to a halt. Shorty came galloping up and helped Joe to quiet the buckskins.

"Kate," the deputy called, "what spoke'd your outfit?"

Joe turned in his saddle and eyed the white-faced but smiling woman who held the taut reins. Her red gold hair tumbled in a blaze of living fire around her shoulders.

"A bunch of town dogs, Shorty," she answered. Her voice was low and husky but musical. She eyed Joe. "Thanks, cowboy, for your help. These cayuses are not town broke yet."

Joe dismounted and handed his reins over to Shorty. "Bring in my pony," he said. "I'll drive the lady back to town."

He turned the buckboard and headed for Rowhide Gap. She sat besides him, and he was conscious now that her red gold hair exuded a scent which reminded him of crushed mountain wild flowers.

"What," she asked above the clatter of the wheels, "makes you believe I'm a lady?"

"I am just bein' polite," he said. "I'm just guess you don't know me. I'm Kate Maloy, better known as Nevada. I ate around Rowhide Gap. I sing and dance at the Silver Hill. Might get you in Dutch if you happened to have a girl in town and she saw you out riding with me."

Smith Takes Up Foreign Policies

By The Associated Press
Support of a strong national defense and a bi-partisan foreign policy were expressed last night by U. S. Senatorial candidate Willis Smith.

The Raleigh attorney, in a speech at Winston-Salem, at the same time criticized what he termed Senator Frank Graham's inconsistent policy on national defense.

Smith is seeking the North Carolina Democratic Senatorial nomination in opposition to Graham, former Senator Robert R. Reynolds of Asheville, and Olla Ray Boyd of Pinetown.

Another of a list of speakers who are substituting for Graham during an illness made a state-wide broadcast last night in his behalf. Mrs. W. T. Bost of Raleigh, former state welfare commissioner, said North Carolina needs "men of the caliber of Frank Graham in Congress."

She described him as "a man whose warmth of feeling for people and understanding of their needs have placed him in the forefront of the great humanitarians of today."

Graham plans to get back into the campaign himself with a state-wide radio address next Tuesday night. The Senator has been confined since Wednesday of last week with a virus infection.

State Rep. John W. Umstead, Jr. of Chapel Hill will make a radio address tonight for Graham.

Duly Impressed

Philadelphia, Pa. 19—(AP)—Principal Jack E. Dichter decided to impress his pupils with the historical background of the Ellwood School. There has been a school at the Ellwood site for the last 205 Years, Dichter told the children yesterday.

One little girl was duly impressed: "Have you been here that long, Mr. Dichter?"

The Farallon Islands, 26 miles west of San Francisco, have a population of 30.

"Frank Graham is as loyal as any American who walks this earth. No one would hesitate to trust him with any secret this nation might have for defending itself at any time or under any circumstances."

FIRST IN SALES!

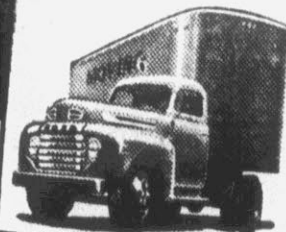

Ford Model F-5 shown, available with 95-h.p. Six or 100-h.p. V-8 in one of over 175 Ford Truck models varying from 95-h.p. Pickups to 145-h.p. Big Jobs.

FORD F-5

outsells every other truck in the 1 1/2 ton field!

The first choice of smart truckers who use 1 1/2 ton trucks is the Ford F-5. National registration figures prove this heavy duty truck has outsold every other make in its class—bar none—in the postwar period. Since the war it has outsold the next leading make by a ratio of 5 to 3. Cash in on the experience of men who know trucks. Switch to Ford and feel the difference—in your pocketbook.

FOR EVEN BIGGER LOADS, GREATER POWER—THE FORD F-6

Choose Ford F-6, rated up to 16,000 lbs. G.V.W. on 8.25-20 duals. You get a choice of V-8 or Six in three great engines, including the new 110-h.p. Six.

FIRST IN VALUE!

TEN WAYS BETTER than the 4 other leading makes in the 1 1/2 ton field!

Ford is first in sales because it is first in value. In addition to low first cost, the F-5 offers these 10 advantages over the next four leading makes in the 1 1/2 ton field.

- (1) Up to 1,720 lbs. more payload capacity.
- (2) Up to 1,500 lbs. higher G.V.W. rating.
- (3) Up to 310 lbs. less chassis dead weight.
- (4) Widest (3 1/2-inch) rear brake shoe lining.
- (5) Highest compression ratio.
- (6) Only Ford offers a choice of V-8 or 6-cylinder engines.
- (7) Oil Filter at no extra cost.
- (8) One quart oil bath air cleaner at no extra cost.
- (9) Biggest clutch lining area.
- (10) Only Ford has worm and dual row needle bearing roller steering.

In the 1 1/2 ton field and in over 175 other models from 95-h.p. Pickups to 145-h.p. Big Jobs, Ford is America's No. 1 Truck Value. Switch to Ford Trucks. See your Ford Dealer today.

Byrnes Says U. S. Should Enact Legislation In Event Emergency

Rock Hill, S. C. May 19—(AP)—Out of his experience as World War II mobilization director, James F. Byrnes says the United States should enact right now stand-by legislation giving broad powers for military emergencies.

The director of war mobilization must have the complete confidence of the President, Byrnes said last night in a speech at an armed forces day program at Winthrop College here. "If, in a single instance, the director's decision is reversed, he cannot thereafter command the confidence of the department officials."

The 71-year-old South Carolinian now a candidate for Governor, said that the national security resources board now suggested as an alternative to his proposal does not have adequate powers. "It can only make recommendations to the President. During a war we cannot possibly find the time to consider the recommendations. That means some unknown person in the White House will pass upon the recommendations. It is much better that some official enjoying the confidence of the President and of the public should relieve the President of the burden of making such decisions. Stand-by legislation giving this authority and based on the experience of the last war should be enacted now."

The Unit 1 States won the last war "with certain government machinery," Byrnes declared, and "why indulge in certain untried experiments?"

President Roosevelt "never reversed any decision I made" as war mobilizer, Byrnes asserted. Mr. Roosevelt "made it clear he would not consider an appeal."

Byrnes, who also has been secretary of state and Supreme Court justice, said he did not expect Russia to start a shooting war any time soon.

Five Tapped For Honor Society

Five Greenville high school students were tapped for membership in the Haskett chapter of the National Honor Society this morning at a special assembly program for the high school students.

Tapped for membership in the organization were: Peggy Nichols, Joel Bunch, Jackie Sears, Doris Vandiford and Coletta Lehr.

Membership in the organization is open to juniors and seniors of the high school who have a scholastic average of 90 or above for their school work for the two previous years. The students meeting the scholastic requirements for the society are then rated on their character, leadership and service to the school by active members of the society and the faculty.

The assembly program was opened this morning with the singing of a verse of "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and a scripture reading followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The Haskett chapter of the National Honor Society was established in Greenville high school in 1947, and since that time the group has sponsored an annual college day for the school which brings here representatives of the various colleges in the area. The program enables local high school students to acquaint themselves with the curricula and other activities of the colleges.

The society also makes an annual award to the ninth grader in Greenville high school who has the highest scholastic average.

Cool Spring Gives Sweet Potatoes Better Chance

By J. W. SUMNER, Assistant County Agent

The cool Spring has been a setback to most crops but not sweet potatoes. In the past sweet potato growers have bedded early and set early. The early setting usually results in too high a percentage of jumbos and round, turnip-shaped roots. The highest yield and best quality are produced from potatoes set from May 25 to June 10. This is where the weather has helped. It has held back to early bedded potatoes, thus allowing them to be set in late May and early June.

The size can be controlled by close spacing in the row. The correct distance will have to be learned by experience, as it will vary between farmers and fields on the same farm. Assuming fall harvest, a productive sandy loam soil and 1000 to 1200 pounds an acre of 3-9-9 fertilizer containing 10 pounds of borax, averaging spacing recommendations are as follows: When set first week of May or earlier, six to eight inches, after the first week of May to the last week of May—eight to ten inches; and the month of June twelve inches.

To improve the shape and disease-freeness of early planted sweet potatoes, use "cut sprouts." Instead of pulling the plants from the bed cut them off just above the soil line and use them as if they were vine cuttings. This practice eliminates the possibility of transferring black rot and scurf (soil stain) disease from infected seed stock to the field. Use vine cuttings in June rather than "cut sprouts."

Plan to plant your sweet potatoes on broad ridge 12 to 14 inches higher than setting on lower ridges and working the soil to them so that the ridges are the desired height when they are laid by. High ridges produce high yields of quality sweet potatoes. They also provide adequate drainage throughout the year and facilitate harvesting.

Largest Number Of Graduates At Farmville School

The largest graduating class in the history of Farmville high school will receive its diplomas Monday night at commencement exercises. 42 seniors, among them 17 boys and 25 girls, will be presented diplomas by Arch Flanagan at the 8:15 exercises.

Beginning the weekend of final activities will be the music recital tonight at the elementary school at 8 o'clock. The annual commencement sermon will be delivered Sunday night in the high school auditorium. Speaker for the occasion will be Rev. Addison Hosea, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Clinton. A feature of the Sunday night program will be music by the high school chorus and glee club.

Congressman Herbert Bonner will be the speaker at graduation exercises Monday night. He will be introduced by Irvin Morgan, secretary of the Farmville school board. Prior to the address Nancy Kiltrell will deliver the annual salutatory address. After Bonner's speech, Jean Bynum will deliver the valedictory address.

On Tuesday night at 8 o'clock a piano recital will be given in the auditorium by students of Mrs. Haywood Smith, to climax the four-day program.

Music on the graduation program will be given by the band, including both the professional and recreational. "I Heard a Forest Praying," by de Rose, and "Ours Is the World," by Morgan, are two numbers to be sung by the mixed chorus, directed by Miss Alma Whitely.

Five Entries Leading In Miss Bright Leaf Race

The five leading contestants for the Greenville representative in the Miss Bright Leaf contest at the close of business of the Greenville stores yesterday were: Miss Alice Hall, 413 E. Third Street; Miss Allison R. Hearne, 310 West Third Street; Miss Iris Hodges, 411 East Third Street; Miss Dot McLawhorn, Greenville route three; and Miss Virginia Perkins, 400 Summit St.

"Girls in the nearby towns in Pitt county as well as Greenville are invited to enter the contest and it is not necessary to register," Mrs. Cora P. Powell, secretary of the Greenville Merchants' Association stated today. "Just ask friends to deposit their ballots for you."

The contest will close on Wednesday, May 24, and the winners of Greenville's Miss Bright Leaf will be announced on the stage of the Pitt Theater, Thursday May 25 at 9 o'clock.

Six Scouts Will Be Marine Camp Guests 2 Days

Six Explorer Scouts of troop 30 from Greenville left this morning for Camp LeJeune where they will be guests of the base for a two-day encampment of Explorer Scouts from Eastern North Carolina.

Scoutmaster Bill Drum accompanied Scouts Ronald Duffin, John Russell, Ray Evans, Dickie Newell, Clethid Oakley, and Jimmy Pleasant to Camp LeJeune. The Scouts were invited to the base by General Franklin Hart for the two-day outing.

While at the large Marine base, the Scouts will observe artillery firing on the beach, will have a trip to the rifle range, swim at the beach and in the main pool of the base, attend movies, and participate in various sport activities.

The encampment which began this morning is scheduled to end about mid-afternoon tomorrow.

Plan Boosted By Truman Support

Washington, May 19—(AP)—President Truman's enthusiastic endorsement gave powerful new emphasis today to a French proposal for pooling French and German steel and coal production.

The President welcomed the plan in a news conference statement yesterday, calling it the beginning of a "new outlook for Europe."

Diplomatic officials said that the project is in line with American policies for encouraging the closest possible ties between Germany and France and for increasing the total production of Western Europe.

They see this specific proposal as contributing eventually to both the economic strength and military security of the Western world.

The President said "There will be many difficult problems to solve in developing this far reaching plan" but he was certain "that the kind of imaginative thinking that went into the proposal can work out the details."

Until Mr. Truman spoke the official American attitude was sympathetic but otherwise publicly undeclared. The plan was put forward by French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman 10 days ago.

Liquor Sales In State Increased

Raleigh, May 19—(AP)—North Carolina liquor sales last month were up from those in April a year ago.

However, the increase was due to sales in two counties which were not selling liquor in April, 1949. Carl Wester, chief auditor for the state ABC board, reported yesterday that total sales in April were $3,537,801.40, about $98,000 above the $3,729,818.70 worth of liquor sold in the previous April.

Hog Market

Raleigh, May 19—(AP)—(NCDA)—Hogs steady today at $18.50 at Tarboro, Wilson, Washington, Robertsonville, Goldsboro, Greenville, Kinston and Rocky Mount. Richmond, steady at $19.

Determination . . .

There has been much speculation as to who will get this important and difficult assignment. Already three names have been prominently mentioned—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, now president of Columbia University; Gen. Omar Bradley, U. S. chief of staff, and W. Averell Harriman, ambassador at large for the Marshall Plan.

Whoever gets the assignment will face a tough task. His principal problem will be to keep all twelve member nations lined up and going full steam ahead. That calls for supreme leadership.

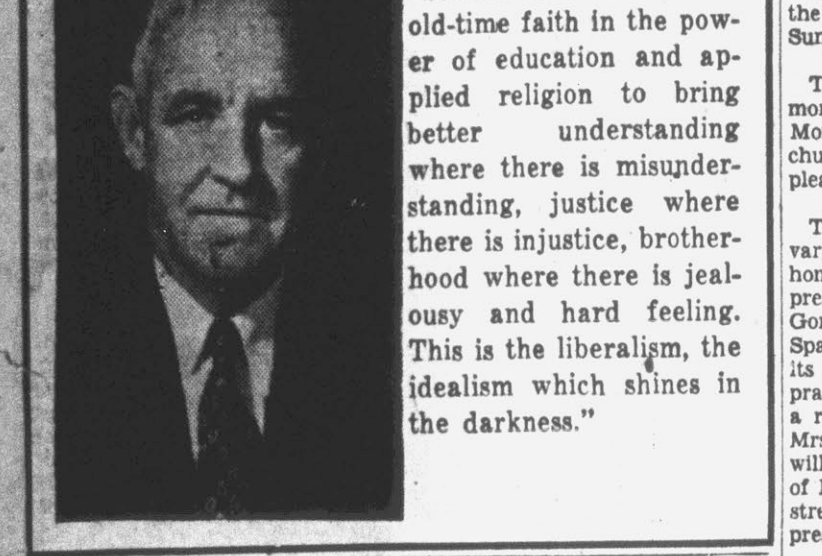

There has been a considerable disposition among some of the European nations to urge that Uncle Sam provide even greater help than he has been doing, despite his enormous contributions. Well, Sam expects to continue to do his part, but the European countries will have to face that fact under this new Atlantic arrangement each

30-Hour Week 40-Hour Wages

New York, May 19—(AP)—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers called today for a 30-hour work week—at a 40-hour pay rate—for all industrial workers.

The Independent Union went on record favoring the reduced work week in a resolution adopted at the final session of its week-long convention. Delegates also pledged the Union to fight for a guaranteed annual wage as a national industrial policy.
