Politics Leading Topic On Eve Of Primary Election

Street Corners And Stores Echo To Discussions Of Main Events

Politics was the topic of conversation on practically every downtown street corner in Greenville and other Pitt county towns today, and at the filling stations and stores in the rural sections of the county.

The local citizens have been prognosticating the outcome of tomorrow's balloting in what has become one of the most active election years the county has witnessed in some time.

Receiving principal attention in the street corner and country store gatherings were the senatorial race, which apparently is narrowing to a Smith-Graham affair, and the tie-offs race in which Ruel Tyson and S. A. Whitehurst are seeking the Democratic nomination.

Running secondary in the conversations has been the four-cornered race for the two Pitt county seats in the House of Representatives of the General Assembly.

Most of the amateur politicians along the town streets and in the rural sections of the county are predicting a heavier vote than is average for Pitt county. Some of the street corner estimates of tomorrow's balloting run as high as 13,000, while others range from 10,000 up.

Pitt county cast approximately 8,000 votes in the 1948 Democratic primary.

Casual Note In Fire-Fighting

A heavy-set young man ambled into Biggs drug store late yesterday afternoon, leaned on the counter and patiently waited to be asked for his order.

When Alton Daugherty who works in the drug store asked the man what he would have, the man replied in an unusually calm voice, "How about a cup of water, Bud? My car's on fire."

Alton thought the man was joking, but he filled a cup with water and handed it to the stranger. The man took the water, slowly walked to the door and to a waiting car outside. He got into the car carefully poured the cup of water on the smoking back seat of the automobile, got out and closed the door.

Returning to the drug store counter, he said to Alton, "Thanks for the water. How about a coke now?"

Sixty Countries Want To Share In Point 4 Plan

State Dept. Reports Extent Of Interest As Senate Votes For Aid Bill

Washington, May 26—(AP)—About 60 countries and dependent areas want to share in the "point four" program of U.S. help provided for in the foreign aid authorization now passed by Congress.

State Department officials reported this today, following the Senate's 47 to 27 vote of approval for the $3,120,550,000 aid bill.

The vote, late yesterday, gave President Truman his first major victory of the year in the field of foreign policy.

Republican Senate leaders fought unsuccessfully to block final action on the bill with an attack on the $35,000,000 point four plan to benefit backward areas of the world with American technical aid.

The Senate voted to accept a Senate-House conference agreement on the foreign aid measure. This action sent the authorization bill to the White House for Mr. Truman's expected signature.

Congress must still act on an appropriations bill supplying the money. In this connection, the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA), which administers the aid program, reported it would have $277,000,000 left over from the current fiscal year ending June 30. This is $127,900,000 more than had been previously estimated as a carryover.

The Senate Republicans let it be known they will carry on their fight against the point four program, so-called from its position in Mr. Truman's budget.

Crowded Street Car Enveloped By Flames; 33 Persons Perish

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—A wall of fire enveloped a crowded street car after it struck a double trailer gasoline truck last night and 33 persons perished in the flames.

Thirty others were injured, at least three critically. About 20 remained in hospitals. Many of the dead and injured were Negroes.

The spreading flames from the thousands of gallons of gasoline in the huge truck set fire to eight two-story buildings and several automobiles. No bodies were found in the wrecked buildings, but more than 100 persons—mostly Negroes—were made homeless.

The accident occurred near the end of the evening rush hour—6:30 p. m. near the heavily populated 63rd and State street district, on the city's south side.

The crash and deep roar were followed by black smoke and billowing flames that surged along State street like rolling flood waters.

Panic followed the crash. Witnesses said the car crashed into the northbound truck. Gasoline poured out of the torn sides of the trailers, spilling and spraying over the street car into the street.

The truck driver perished in the cab of his truck. It was loaded with between 7,000 and 8,000 gallons of gasoline.

Only a few of the dead passengers were identified. Many were burned beyond recognition. One was believed to have been the motorman, Paul Manning, 42.

The conductor escaped by jumping through a rear window. About 15 passengers escaped in the same manner, many of them with clothes aflame. The rear doors on the street car jammed and the Chicago transit authority ordered an investigation.

The crash occurred as the street car—one of the new stream-lined cars—moving south in State street swung suddenly to the left to enter a switch back siding in a vacant lot on the east side of the street.

A flooded underpass at 64th street had made it necessary to re-route the car.

Witnesses said the car crashed into the northbound truck. Gasoline poured out of the torn sides of the trailers, spilling and spraying over the street car into the street.

The month-long Cancer Crusade in Greenville and Pitt County is winding up its operations for funds this week, headquarters officials reported yesterday.

Since April 24, when the drive got underway, township chairmen and their individual canvassers have exerted their efforts to solicit $4,500 from county persons in order to reach the quota for the first time in the local Cancer Society's history.

To date, a little over $4,000 has been donated by the people through township canvassers, directly to Cancer headquarters, and through the individual banks placed in stores and other public places throughout the county.

Wednesday County Chairman James Jenkins, of Greenville, sent out cards to all chairmen to finish their "mopping up" operations in their sections. He reported yesterday that when all the money is turned over to Treasurer W. H. Woolard the quota would be short by about $400. As yet all chairmen have not sent in their collections.

Smith Raps Silence By Graham On FEPC Vote

Raleigh, N.C., May 26—(AP)—Senatorial Candidate Willis Smith asserted today that Senator Frank Graham refused to tell other southern senators recently how he stood on a motion to limit debate on proposed FEPC legislation.

Smith contended that as a result of Graham's refusal, the legislation will be brought before the Senate again.

Southern senators recently defeated efforts to consider the FEPC legislation when the motion to limit debate failed to get the 64 votes it needed.

If the motion to limit debate had carried, it would have been harder for the southerners to stage a filibuster against the legislation.

At the time the Senate was considering the issue, Graham was ill, suffering from a virus infection.

"Dr. Graham's failure to take this stand for the south and for southern traditions is indeed a dagger in the back of southern democracy," Smith stated. "All the talking he has done about being against FEPC is in vain. I have known all along that he favors FEPC. This proves it."

Farmville Police Chief Is Facing Three Charges

Farmville, May 26—Three warrants were served on Chief of Police L. T. Lucas Wednesday, charging he violated three laws when he killed a dog several weeks ago.

B. O. Taylor, owner of the English setter, charged, "was with cruelty to animals, wanton destruction of personal property and firing a gun within 200 yards of a residence."

Lucas appeared before the town commissioners at its May meeting to state his case. He said he had received a call from a person in the neighborhood, saying the dog was "acting queer."

Lucas said he investigated and found the dog in the front yard of Taylor's home with "a queer look in his eyes." He said he killed the dog because he thought it was mad.

The commissioners took no action in the matter. Lucas was not taken into custody but bond will be arranged for him.

Challenge Free Vote In Germany

Western Powers Dare Soviet To Clear Way For Unifying Country

Bonn, Germany, May 26—(AP)—The three Western powers challenged Russia today to clear the way for unifying Germany by consenting to completely free all-German elections tied in with guarantees of full individual freedoms.

The time element of the statement of the three Western high commissioners to the Russian command in Germany was significant. It was issued while world attention was focused on the rally of 500,000 Communist-led German youth in Berlin. Soviet propaganda belabors the theme that only Russia is sincerely committed to German unification.

The West German government, giving the proposal its full support, welcomed the declaration.

"Every proposal which is made with the aim of establishing German unity in freedom will find the undivided support of the government," a spokesman said.

Three identical letters of the United States, British and French commissioners were sent to Gen. V. I. Chulikov, Soviet commander in Germany. Enclosed was a statement of the three Western foreign ministers which said the West agreed that with formation of an all-German government "the four powers should immediately address themselves to a peace settlement."

The letters proposed this program:

- 1. A freely elected all-German government.
2. Individual freedom of movement, freedom from arbitrary arrest and detention, freedom of association and assembly, freedom of speech, press and radio throughout Germany.
3. Freedom of action throughout all Germany for all democratic political parties.
4. Independence of the courts.
5. Prohibition throughout Germany of political secret police and police formations which are military in character.
6. Assurance of German economic unity through action by an all-German government on such matters as currency and customs, and through four-power agreement on such matters as a halt to reparations from current production and limitations in industry.
7. Surrender in accordance with German legislation of any industrial enterprise in Germany whose ownership or control was acquired after May 8, 1945 (the end of the war) by or on behalf of any foreign power, unless the acquisition had four-power approval and such acquisition or interest is subjected to German law.

The members of the school board discussed the state school insurance program with representatives Joe S. McCracken and T. B. Windbourne of the insurance division of the state government.

No definite action on the matter was taken by the school board at yesterday's meeting. Board Chairman J. B. James presided at the meeting.

The Daily Reflector will stage its customary election night party on Saturday night. A large scoreboard for Pitt County's 50 precincts will be placed in front of the Reflector office, and the results of the county's balloting will be posted as they are received by the newsroom.

Arrangements have been made with radio station WGTC to carry the election party beginning at 7:15 and continuing until the county returns are complete and the outcome of the senatorial race and other contests is evident.

A portion of Evans Street in front of the Reflector will be roped off for the protection of the expected crowd.

Berlin Communist Rally Appears Losing Its Edge

Berlin, May 26—(AP)—Britain's Berlin commandant predicted today Russia's big weekend propaganda show—the rally of Communist-led young Germans—would end in a "clear victory for the Western Allies."

As Maj. Gen. G. K. Bourne made the prediction, British armored cars staked themselves out within gunshot of the hot-spot mid-city sector boundary for which Britain is responsible.

The Communists gave every appearance of not looking for trouble during Sunday's six-hour parade in the Russian sector. Their leaders called on the "Freie Deutsche Jugend (Free German Youth)" for "order and discipline," and issued this command:

"Under no circumstances overstep the (Russian) sector boundary. Be watchful against all provocateurs who want to mix in with your ten-person groups. Follow the orders of your friends, the people's police, and help them in their difficult task. Dear young friends, the aim and purpose of our German rally in Berlin is to demonstrate German youth's will for peace before all the world. The imperialists and their German henchmen will attempt anything to disturb our peace demonstration through provocations. Our best arms against that are to keep order and discipline. Don't let yourselves be provoked and drawn into thoughtless actions."

Lots Of Ballots

Raleigh, N.C., May 26—(AP)—The State Board of Elections has shipped 1,410,000 ballots to the 1,990 precincts in North Carolina for tomorrow's primary elections.

It is said the 1,410,000 figure was arrived at by sending each precinct 25 per cent more ballots than the number of persons registering for the Democratic primary.

Charmed With Words

Senators Apparently Have A Failing For High-Flown Language; One Day When The Dictionary Had A Workout; Example Of Distress When Definitions Asked

Washington, May 26—(AP)—Senators seem to charm themselves and one another with what they have to say. They sit there, talking or listening to one another for hours.

And when one of them slips in a high-level word, the others usually nod and never bat an eye. This week it was different. All in one day they had dictionary trouble and trouble with one another.

Senator Aiken, the mild and kindly Republican from Vermont, was reading from a memorandum by the government's budget bureau. What the man who wrote the memo was trying to say was this:

If the senate wiped out a certain minor government agency, the people there would be unhappy and pretty shaky about finding another government job. That would have been the simple way to say it.

But the budget bureau wasn't simple, so what he actually said was this: If the agency was wiped out, the workers there would suffer an "exacerbation of that sense of isolation and insecurity."

At that point Senator Cain, the Washington Republican—who used to be a paratrooper, landed on his feet. He told Aiken he wanted to know how to spell "exacerbation" so he could look it up in a dictionary.

Aiken had to spell it twice for him. In a wink and a nod Cain was back on his feet with information. He said the dictionary said:

"Exacerbation: the act of exacerbating or the state of being exacerbated; increased severity, as in the symptoms of a disease."

He might have added, but didn't that the dictionary also says exacerbate to irritate or make bitter. So, apparently, the budget bureau man meant the workers would be irritated if they lost their jobs.

The Senate had hardly passed through this semantic crisis when Senator Tom Connally, the Texas Democrat who has some white hair and a lot of sarcasm, got up.

He asked the Senate to approve President Truman's joint four program—giving skilled American help to backward countries. Right there Senator Taft got on his feet to protest.

That, the Ohio Republican, is a fast talker but hardly a match for Connally. Taft said he thought Connally was asking the senate to approve the program as a "matter

Long-Time Naval Officer On Wild Six-Month Binge

Los Angeles, May 26—(AP)—What would make a Navy officer, with 19 years of honorable service, rifle a ship's safe of $19,000 and then blow it all in a wild six month binge with a blonde?

government funds and desertion from the U.S. Navy.

What made the 42-year-old officer do it? "Domestic trouble started me drinking," he said, "and drinking magnifies all troubles. That kept on until I felt like I was cracking up."

He served most of the war on the battleship Idaho in the Aleutians, Gilberts, Marshalls, Saipan and Guam campaigns.

In March of 1949, he said he offered to resign his commission but was retained because of his record. A native of Marion, Tenn., he first enlisted in the Navy as an apprentice seaman.

He said he expects to wind up in federal prison but the idea doesn't seem too bad.

RELIGION'S BEST ARGUMENT

There are many reasons why people have religious doubts. Some people are skeptical regarding religion because they believe that if they make any religious pretensions they will have to live up to them, and this will mean a change of ingrained habits which they do not intend to make. A few people—a very few—have genuine intellectual difficulties. Still others lack the will to believe, and, after all, believing involves the exercise of the will as well as the exercise of the brain.

But most people who entertain doubts about religion do so because they have observed that many of the advocates of religion do not live up to their pretensions. The parent who pretends one thing and lives another makes skeptics and scoffers of his children. The church official who is one thing on Sunday and something quite different on Monday is a living witness in the eyes of some people to the futility of religion. The pious fellow who will not pay his bills causes the ungodly to guffaw in a most disconcerting fashion.

The truths of the Christian gospel do not depend for their validity on the uses people make of them. Though all men be hypocrites, God's truth stands secure. Nevertheless the sincere believer still remains the best argument for religion.

What Will You Do

In Tomorrow's Primary?

The people of Pitt county always have been independent voters when it comes to the Democratic primary. They always have resented and rejected the attempt of outside groups to select for them the officials to represent them in local, state and national governments.

This year, as in past election years, the people of Pitt county are faced with a candidacy which is fostered by the "upper crust" of the Democratic party of the state. However, never before have the people of Pitt county and North Carolina had thrust upon them such pressure from the President of the United States to elect a particular man from this state to the United States Senate.

The Reflector is sincerely and honestly opposed to President Truman's trying to tell the people of North Carolina what candidate they should send to the Senate. The president has left no stone unturned to coerce the people of the Tar Heel state to elect Frank Graham to the Senate. He has helped foster the campaign, he has openly asked for Graham to be sent back to the Senate, and has gone so far as to present special favors to North Carolina from the federal government in an effort to entice the people of the state to elect Graham to the Senate.

By the same token, we don't feel that Governor Scott should drop the affairs of the state to travel hither, thither and yon in North Carolina to make campaign speeches for Graham or any other candidate—at the taxpayers expense, too. We are sure in the interest of good government the governor should not have allowed his subordinates to go to the northern liquor distillers to solicit funds for Graham's campaign.

It seems to us it is all part of a master plan to take the control of politics in North Carolina from the people of the state, and to place it in the hands of a coalition of state and national party big wigs to do with as they please. If such a thing comes about, it will be many a year before the people of North Carolina can wrest from these party czars the affairs of our own state.

There is no denying that Senatorial Candidate Willis Smith has his own group of supporters as well as Graham; but those behind Smith are the people of North Carolina who believe the federal administration should return to more sober policies in government rather than continuing headlong down the road toward Socialism behind the careless paces of President Truman.

The people behind the Smith campaign are the farmers who want a good sound program for the support of farm produce rather than the fantastic Brannan plan which in effect would only serve to make the farmers more dependent upon the federal government, and make their economy more insecure.

The people behind Candidate Willis Smith are those people who have in mind better government for the state and nation; not a small group which is seeking to weld together a political monstrosity which will control North Carolina politics for another quarter of a century.

Tomorrow the people of Pitt county, along with the other people of this great state, will exercise their precious right of selecting their own government officials.

The election of Willis Smith to the United States Senate will mean the people of this county and this state have stuck by their desire to do their own thinking. They will have named a man who will watch after the interest of all the people of North Carolina in the halls of Congress.

On the other hand, however, if Frank Graham is elected to the Senate, we fear the federal administration, rather than the people of North Carolina will have gained another representative in the Senate.

Although we have esteem for the personal integrity of Frank Graham, we fear that through his recent political alliances, he will be forced to represent in the Senate not the majority of the people of our state, but small group of men who are seeking far reaching political powers at the expense of the people of North Carolina.

Mother Goose Has A Commercial Rival

Today, columnist Hal Boyle removes the mask of anonymity from a fertile source of radio jingles. We confess hesitancy as to deciding whether he had in mind the performance of a civic duty or just thought Mr. and Mrs. Public would like to know more about Myron Mahler.

Radio's singing commercials are, on the whole, appealing to the ears of their listeners. Too appealing, perhaps. Or maybe it is the repetition that engraves their melody on the receptive mind.

At any rate, it's the height of something or other when one of those jingles plows back and forth in the mind of the carefree pedestrian or the happy motorist. Sometimes it can be maddening.

The end result will probably be reached when a mother croons one of those commercials to her fretful baby and they replace nursery rhymes among the toddlers. Mother Goose is up against some rough competition.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, May 26—Although the final report of the Tydings Committee will try to refute Senator "Joe" McCarthy's charges of Communist infiltration of key federal agencies, Democratic members will ask President Truman to name a commission of distinguished Americans to review their work in an effort to restore popular confidence in the government's integrity, especially the State Department's.

Administration friends on the Senate Investigator body realize that any anti-McCarthy conclusion will be regarded as a "whitewash" in many quarters.

Even if it should be accepted by public opinion generally, they believe it important to convince all the people that every effort has been made to eliminate Reds and perverts from policymaking posts. It would also be a smart stroke, politically.

RESPECT—"We knew at the very start that McCarthy had nothing," explained a prominent member of the Tydings group, "but admit that at one time there was a bad situation, but it has been cleaned up."

"However, for fear any lingering suspicion should destroy respect for and belief in the federal government, especially the State Department, we think there ought to be a review by men and women so impartial, independent and non-political that their judgment will be accepted as final and conclusive."

It is understood that Mr. Truman has already given tentative approval to the suggestion. Among those mentioned as possible members of the public jury are Herbert Hoover, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Dr. Vannevar Bush, Cardinal Spellman, James A. Farley, although these are only typical names.

CONTROVERSY—A backstage controversy has developed within President Truman's official family over the question of removing "Ike" Eisenhower from the 1950-1952 political scene by naming him as director of the new European Board of War and Economic Strategy under the North Atlantic Pact. A central body to be headed by an American was provided for at the recent London conference of Secretary Acheson and Foreign Ministers Bevin and Schuman.

Mr. Acheson has intimated that he prefers Robert A. Lovett, former Under Secretary of State, for this extremely important assignment, if he will accept. The two were associated here for some time during the war, and Mr. Lovett made an exceptionally fine record as an administrator. He also fits into the pattern under which a civilian will be given the job.

EISENHOWER—But the Pentagon crowd, headed by Defense Secretary Johnson and Under Secretary Early, are understood to favor General Eisenhower. They argue that the head of the board must possess the diplomatic and political qualities which "Ike" revealed when he led the allied forces in Europe. He showed a peculiar ability to reconcile differences and disputes among his commanders and even such superiors as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill.

More politically minded than Mr. Acheson, Messrs. Johnson and Early are attracted by the idea that their plan would remove a possibly dangerous Republican presidential nominee from the 1952 field.

When it is pointed out that the Columbia professor could resign in time to reenter 1952 politics, and that his new post would provide him with a buildup, they reply that he could not afford to quit.

In their opinion, he would leave himself open to the charge that he was more interested in political advancement than in winning the "cold war." Moreover, they suspect that "Ike" would like this kind of work.

He is not happy with his Columbia position, according to his friends, and it is said that certain university officials would not mind if he left. They agree with his own conclusion that his Army background did not train him for running a school.

CUT—Anxious consumers' deferred dreams of a sharp cut in excise taxes will not be realized at this session unless President Truman agrees to a compromise which Capitol Hill politicians have quietly cooked up among themselves. In view of the pleasant politics involved in their scheme, it is believed that he may go along.

The House Ways and Means Committee has eliminated nuisance levies that mean a revenue loss of

No Labor Trouble Here

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Last fall when Wife Rachel and I went to New York for the Carolina-Notre Dame football game we noticed that the New York night club floor shows had a new flavor. Almost all of them feature the use of strobolite. Tonight at Marie Wallace's dancing review, we'll see strobolite again.

Special flood lights are required for the strobolite effect. When normal lights are turned off, the special lights are turned on. These lights will reveal anything painted with a special strobolite paint, but nothing else. Those of you who saw the Kiwanis minstrel were seeing strobolite for the first time in Greenville. Remember the scene that featured the skeletons?

Strobolite is spectacular, because the special paint does not show under normal light. Therefore, a stage setting may be changed in a second by the switching of lights. Scenery and costumes may be painted with ordinary paint, and then painted over again with strobolite paint.

By switching the light, the entire setting can be changed immediately. Costumes may appear to be dancing on a stage with no people in them—all sorts of tricks can be played on the audience.

Tonight at East Carolina's Austin auditorium you can get a better idea of what strobolite can do by attending the annual spring review of Marie's School of the Dance. Marie will use strobolite costumes and scenery in the review, which has as its theme, "The Past, Present, and Future."

"The review will begin," Marie told me during a rehearsal, "in a sentimental mood." At that moment she spun around and yelled to her students, "Children, please be quiet, I'm trying to talk." She spun back around and said, "And it will end in that same sentimental mood."

As Marie described the program, I was impressed with the theme. "Who dreamed this up?" I asked her. "Well," she said modestly, "I did." The first phase of the review consists of a backboard look on childhood. The dances characterize a child's play, pleasures, and tribulations.

This theme is continued with the second phase, "Present," in which Al Smith and Mary Dunn Beatty do the featured dance. For a look at the "future," the program will again hit a sentimental note. A hope for peace is the keynote of the "future."

The review will also feature a routine that gives the audience the feeling that they are seeing television. Dick Stokes, of station WGTO, will narrate the activities.

The review is being sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and all proceeds above expenses will go to the Greenville high school band.

And I thank you.

usual course of voting like citizens rather than being herded in blocks and counted in advance. Graham will get a larger farm vote and Smith a larger labor vote than early prophets had predicted.

The Negro vote is uncertain only as to size. It will be practically solid for Graham. There are more Negroes registered than ever before, although less than the 250,000 set by Negro leaders as their goal — probably just about half that. Belief is general that Negro registrants will vote more nearly their full strength than will the 900,000 or more white Democrats. The Negro vote may swell totals above the half million mark. If that occurs the Graham lead will be increased.

Then there is the item of money — or lack of it. Everywhere your reporter went he heard complaints about how much money was being spent "by the other side." There was more talk about money in the Piedmont than in other sections. Whether that is because the Piedmonters are more cash-conscious, or because the campaign is drawing to a close is matter for speculation. Financial statements filed showed that Smith has spent more than the other candidates.

Despite the sums reported (and nobody is naive enough to believe the statements represent more than a fraction of spending) several persons interviewed in Guilford, Forsyth, Stokes, Rockingham, Caswell and Person counties recently said "there isn't much interest in the campaign." That may mean a light vote, unless the local organizations have enough money to bring indifferent voters to the polls.

There will be wide disagreement with the foregoing conclusions, and conditions may change greatly. That's the way it looks here now.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, N. C.

Here are some predictions on results of the Democratic primary Saturday:

Frank Graham will lead the senatorial ticket, with Willis Smith a close second. Robert R. Reynolds will run a poor third and Olla Ray Boyd an insignificant fourth. No candidate will get a majority and a second primary between Graham and Smith will be necessary to determine the nomination.

The total vote will be slightly under half a million, probably around 475,000. That means 50,000 to 75,000 more than were cast in the first primary for governor two years ago. The vote will be spotted as to size. A few counties expect smaller totals than last time, but most of them anticipate fifteen to twenty percent increase because of heated local contests.

Graham's majorities will be heaviest in the far west, Smith's in the east, with the central area holding spotlight as the real battle ground. In that respect the situation has not changed within the past two months.

These predictions are based on information gathered from visits to many strategic points throughout the state, personal interviews on their home grounds with political leaders of every shade of opinion (including Republicans) as well as with city business men, farmers, filling stations operators and newspaper folks; and by double-checking against each other the claims of the campaign headquarters.

They are made with tongue in cheek, because some of the interviews date back three weeks or more. A lot could have happened within that time to change local situations, and a great deal can happen between now and Saturday night when the polls close. It is significant that headquarters claims deal more approximately $1 billion dollars, as against the $695 million proposed by the White House.

Due to intra-committee log-rolling and back-patting, there is no hope that they will comply with the presidential demand that this deficit be compensated for by new taxes or increases in present rates. Too many powerful interests—industries, oil and mineral, tobacco, cooperatives etc.—would be hurt thereby.

STRATEGY—So, the new Doughton-George plan is to reduce the total of excise cuts to about $700 million, provide additional revenue of around $300 million through innocuous changes and defer any major revision of the tax structure until the next Congress.

The underlying idea is to satisfy the customers, who have postponed purchases in expectation of lower prices, and offend as few important people as possible.

Some White House political advisers are urging Mr. Truman to veto this strategy. Then, they point out, he can charge in the fall elections that Congress refused to provide relief for the "little fellows" because they would not tax the "big interests." But the danger in that argument is that he will be criticizing a Democratic Congress, not a Republican one.

Business Today

By KLMER ROESSNER
Before training the sales force, you may have to train your management and supervisory personnel, says D. H. Bowles, personnel director of the Charles Stora Co. Bowles reveals the program his firm has had for several years, for training and re-training management to lay a groundwork for training on the selling front.

Many of the techniques he describes are adaptable to single stores as well as chains. One of the devices the Charles firm uses is a permanent quiz program — a combined written and oral questionnaire for each selling and non-selling department. A management candidate is assigned to a certain department for a definite period. When the store manager considers the trainee ready, the personnel office is notified, and the questionnaire is administered and rated. If the trainee passes, he's considered eligible for transfer to another department; otherwise he remains where he is.

This procedure eliminates much of the guesswork about the readiness of a management candidate for promotion or re-assignment. Not only management trainees, but even experienced store managers come under the program. They assemble each year in groups, often for a two-day series of conferences, with the personnel choice presenting, discussing and demonstrating personnel techniques. Each store manager then gets a chance to practice some of the techniques, such as how to interview.

To further help store managers, the personnel department worked up a "New Employee Check List," which lists the things to be taught a new worker. This is placed in the hands of one person known as the Training Representative responsible for induction training in each store.

Store managers were also coached in how to train department heads, which is the designation for a top salesperson selected to be responsible for the physical condition of his department, as well as completeness of stocks.

The managers were also trained in how to conduct demonstrations themselves, including such teaching methods as internal fashion shows, blackboard talks and individual conferences.

Charles also maintains in each store a library shelf of printed material on merchandise, salesmanship, etc. which floor personnel is invited to read. The firm also reports that its commission plan for salespeople has been valuable in increasing production.

SHENANIGANS IN THE EXCISE SITUATION?

That's what the National Retail Dry Goods Association is asking in its current bulletin. "We get the impression there is considerable stalling in Congress," reports this spokesman of retail-dom. Congressmen seeking re-election would find it embarrassing to vote against such relief, but to cut out a billion or so of revenue would not find favor with the President, especially since military appropriations are likely to be stepped up, NRDGA reasons. "In this situation what a relief it would be to many hard-pressed Congressmen to be able to say 'I would have voted for excise relief but the bill did not come before the Congress,'" the association comments.

HELPS SMALL EMPLOYERS SET UP HEALTH CARE

One of the larger insurance firms (Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., Boston, Mass.) helps its smaller policy-holders set up health care for employees through a consultant-nurse system. Small plants are encouraged to share the services of an industrial nurse who the insurance company helps find and train. Each firm pays the nurse only for the time it needs her.

ADD FURNITURE STORE TO NEW SUPERMARKET TYPES

Another furniture "supermarket" has opened up in New Orleans this time. Customers entering the store are given memo pads on which to write their selections after browsing with or without a salesman. Under this system fewer salesmen are required, thus enabling reduced prices on merchandise, management of the new store says.

YOU CAN GET RESUME OF INSTALLMENT LAWS

A new edition of its resume of laws in all 48 states on the filing and recording of retail installment sales contracts is being distributed by Commercial Credit Corp., First National Bank Building, Baltimore. It's in the form of a larger chart giving facts about contracts in each state, recommending types of contract to use, interest rates and time limits allowed, etc.

Hal Boyle's Column

New York—(AP)—Myron Mahler worked his way through college acting as a county fair barker for a trained mule act. He also sold horoscopes, corn cures and hair curlers.

But all the while he dreamed of writing the Great American Novel.

Today, at 36, Myron Mahler is a success. He writes singing commercials for the radio. This talent for turning out musical jingles has helped make him vice-president of an advertising agency.

And who is worrying about the Great American Novel? Not Mahler. He is content to have been a pioneer in a bold new art form that has swept the United States like virus "X."

"Jingles have permeated the life of America in the last 15 years," said Mahler, a slender, intense man with a scholarly air. "Today there are literally thousands of them on the radio and television."

"The singing commercial is becoming the great American folk music. Children now sing them as if they were popular songs."

They become so accustomed to them that some children's digestive apparatus is thrown out of gear if their favorite jingle is suddenly removed from their environment. When a program time is switched, desperate mothers write in asking to buy a phonograph disc of a jingle, explaining: "Our Johnny refuses to eat his cereal since you changed your program hour."

"This reaction amazes even us a little," said Mahler with considerable satisfaction.

Some adults complain singing commercials cause them indignation, too, but for a different reason, and even kindle vague homicidal impulses.

"At a party people come up to me sometimes and say, 'I'd like to kill you,'" laughed Mahler. "But they are usually just joking. Often they ask me to sit down at a piano and play my jingles for them."

Two radio stations in the Metropolitan area ban singing commercials entirely, but Mahler feels they are going against the trend.

"Frankly, I think jingles are here to stay," he said. "I don't believe there is any danger of their being used to death. Surveys show that many people regard them as the least objectionable kind of radio advertising. And nothing gives a product recognition value quicker than a good jingle."

Jingle writing has become a profession, and a number of people make more out of them than the average author does from a novel.

"The pay for a successful jingle may range anywhere from $50 to several thousand dollars," said Mahler. "Two men who wrote a jingle about a soft drink are supposed to have made $25,000, plus royalties, from it."

He himself got into the business by accident. One of his ad firm's clients wanted a singing commercial. None of the jingles submitted by professional writers suited him.

"I thought I could do better myself," he said. "So that night I went home and composed one. It was accepted, and it's been on the radio ever since — for six years."

Mahler says the air time of the average singing commercial is about 20 seconds. The only equipment necessary to write them is a stop watch, a sense of rhythm, a small knowledge of music, and a feeling for words. "I usually compose mine at the office now," he said gravely. "I beat them out on a toy xylophone."

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Her colleagues in Congress and newsmen who "cover" Capitol Hill are going to miss Congresswoman Mary T. Norton (D-NJ) next January. Mrs. Norton, whose calm, matronly demeanor hides her shrewdness and deep understanding of civic affairs, state and national, announced her retirement recently on her 75th birthday. She has been a member of Congress 25 years.

Now recovering from pneumonia influenza which had kept her for some weeks in Bethesda Naval Hospital, she missed the large birthday party planned for her on the Hill. "Battling Mary," as she is known sometimes in Congress—Aunt Mary, affectionately, to newsmen—said her decision to retire was a "difficult one." But, she added:

"My retirement does not mean that I shall be less interested in the welfare of my country, state or district, nor shall I abandon my deep concern in the problems of labor." For 10 years from 1937 to 1947, Mrs. Norton headed the House Labor Committee—becoming the first woman chairman of a major committee. In this capacity she fought vigorously for the Wage and Hour law. She's never been active in the labor union movement. Some men resented her. In fact, the first time she presided, members staged what she called a "shut-up" strike. She broke that up by starting a quarrel.

She soon let everyone know she was well able to take care of herself, and in the House, she has always been "just another congressman." Strictly a politician in her own right, she came from the "rough-and-tumble" New Jersey political district with the backing of "Boss" Hague. She was the Democratic Party's first congresswoman when she came here in 1924. She had been the first woman chairman of a state political convention and first woman chairman of a state party. For seven years she served as unofficial "mayor" of Washington—chairman of the House Committee on the District of Columbia.

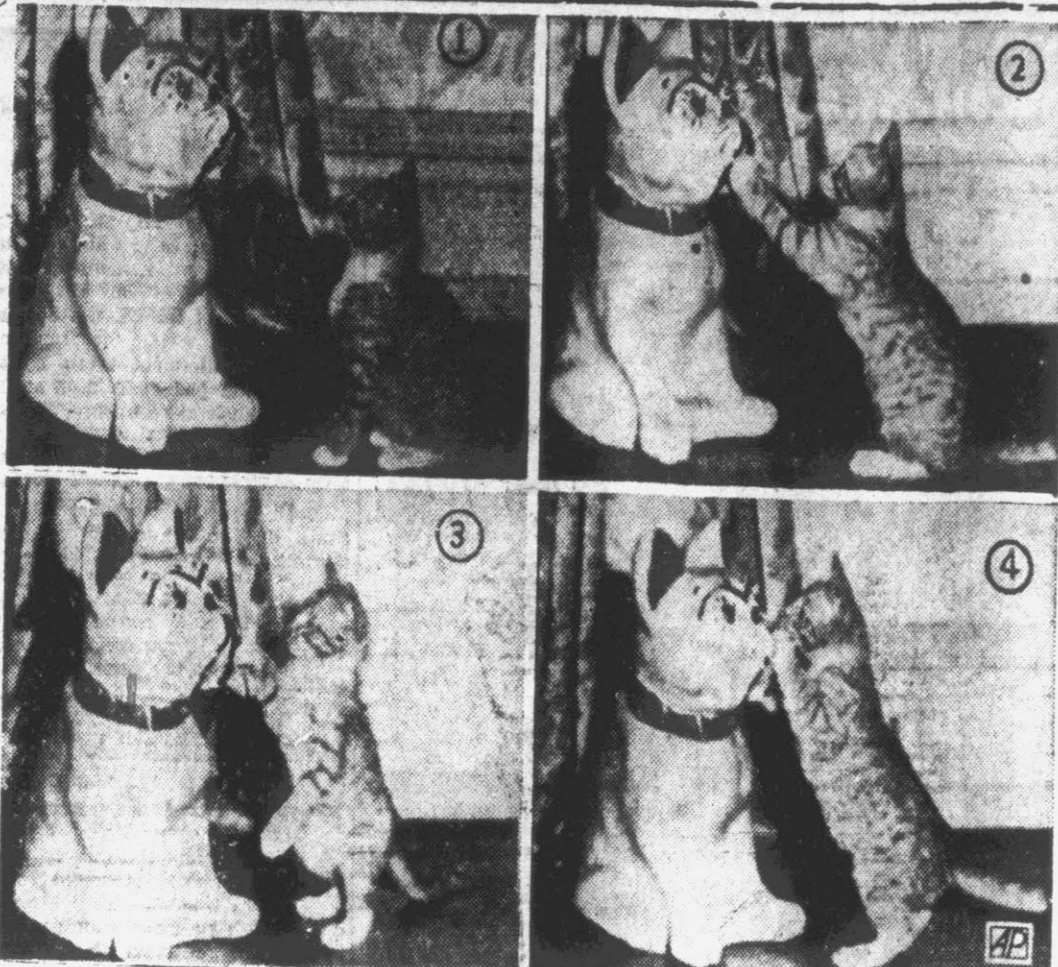

Mrs. Norton was largely responsible for passage of the bill legalizing boxing for the District, a pastime which had been banned since 1880. She cleaned up many other long-deferred issues. She put through measures to clear out alley-dwellings and slums; to legalize the sale of beer and later all other alcoholic beverages. She even favored legalized gambling as a means of curbing underworld activities and racketeering. She also introduced the first bill in Congress for repeal of the 18th Amendment, offering it in 1928 when others were side-stepping the issue. She has been a perennial sponsor of legislation to grant District of Columbia residents national representation in Congress.

Charlotte, N. C., May 26—(AP)—James Addison Jones, who rose from apprentice brickmaker to head of one of the country's biggest construction companies, died at his home here last night. He was 80 years old.

Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow, with Bishop Coston J. Harrell and the Rev. C. P. Bowles, pastor of the Dilworth officiating.

At the time of his death Jones was chairman of the board of the J. A. Jones Construction Company which he established and headed for many years. In recent years he had served as chairman of the board, turning over the office of president to his son, Edwin L. Jones. ### Primary Campaign Races Towards Finale Tonight there he laid the groundwork for the company he organized and operated as president for many years. He was active in Methodist church affairs.

His widow, seven sons and four daughters survive. Another son, Raymond Allen Jones, died recently in South America.

Raleigh, N. C., May 26—(AP)—North Carolina's Democratic primary campaign hammered toward the wire today with interest centering on the race for the senatorial nomination.

Final appeals to the voters will be made by the four candidates tonight on the eve of the voting tomorrow that will climax an intensive campaign of more than three months.

Senator Frank Graham, who is seeking nomination to the seat to which Governor Scott appointed him 14 months ago, will make two broadcast appearances tonight.

He will take part in a transcribed radio "victory round-up" to be broadcast over 17 stations. Later he will appear on a television program at Greensboro.

Willis Smith, Raleigh attorney, will complete his campaign with a state-wide radio broadcast from Raleigh.

Former Senator Robert R. Reynolds turned toward his home at Asheville, after "door-to-door" campaigning in the Piedmont. He made a radio address from Winston-Salem yesterday on his "all-American five point platform."

Asheville will be the site of the final speech of Olla Ray Boyd of Pineblow, a perennial candidate who in two gubernatorial races in recent years showed little vote-getting ability. He planned a courtesan speech in the mountain city tonight.

Graham and Smith yesterday took a rest from heavy speechmaking, although Graham was on a Raleigh radio broadcast for an interview.

The senator, who returned to active campaigning Wednesday night after a two-week illness with a virus infection, spent most of the day in his Raleigh headquarters working

Smith has criticized Graham as a "left-winger" and has said that the real issue of the campaign is "whether the people of North Carolina wish to go to the left with the incumbent junior senator or down the middle of the road with me." He has pledged that as senator he would work for a balanced federal budget, a "prosperous and sound agricultural program, continued high wages for the working man, national preparedness and armed strength to preserve the peace, states' rights and local responsibility."

TEEN TALK

Dear Judge

So you want to be a career girl? Well, then, do you know how to be an ideal career girl, and what the qualifications are that appeal to prospective employers?

Recently, Burdett College in Boston conducted a personality search among 800 high schools for the "Career Girl of 1950," and prepared a "check sheet" which high school principals used as a guide in selecting candidates. Use the list to see how you measure up. Give yourself 10 points for each quality you possess:

1. Personal Appearance . . . You don't need to be pretty to pass this test, but you must be well groomed and neat with clean skin, hair, nails and teeth.
2. Poise . . . You'll need self control to meet people easily with dignity in poise and bearing.
3. Voice Quality . . . It should be well modulated and pleasant with clear enunciation.
4. Initiative . . . Ability to do things without being told.
5. Dependability . . . Punctual, reliable, honest. The ability to follow instructions, accept responsibility and to be careful about routine tasks contributes to your reliability.
6. Loyalty . . . One who is helpful about people, who shows a genuine interest in everything undertaken.
7. Courtesy . . . Politeness, refinement. Consideration for the rights of others.
8. Cheerfulness . . . A happy disposition and the ability to take criticism graciously. You should have an even temperament.
9. Alertness and Adaptability . . . Awareness of what is going on. Intelligent response. Capacity for adjusting self readily to new people, situations, problems and changes. Tact and sincerity.
10. Health . . . Physical fitness, energy and vigor. Ability to work through an average day without experiencing fatigue.

Dance bands are making a big comeback in teen-age circles. Young moderns who have been listening to the Comos, Sinatras and Haymes boys now are kicking their heels to the latest dance empo at dance record parties. Dixieland jazz is hot news today, and the Charleston, Black Bottom and Varsity Drag of the twenties are neck-and-neck in popularity with dance fans.

One big series indicating the trend are record albums in a new series called "Here Come the Dance Bands Again" issued by RCA Victor. It includes 17 bandleaders and all time hits by fifteen composers.

There is an album of Tommy Dorsey playing Cole Porter. Vaughn Monroe plays Victor Herbert. You'll find Tex Beneke playing Hoagy Carmichael and Sammy Kaye playing Irving Berlin. Ralph Flanagan plays Rodgers and Hammerstein. Wayne King plays Bohann Strauss. Erskine Hawkins gives out with W. C. Handy's St. Louis Blues. Beale Street Blues and Memphis Blues among others. Spade Cooley gives out with Billy Hill's "The Last Round-up." "Wagon Wheels," "Empty Saddles," Spike Jones, as only Spike can, plays "The Charleston," including "Black Bottom," "Varsity Drag," and others.

There is a record for every taste and fancy and a wide variety for party lovers. There is lots of emphasis on waltz and rumba.

You can put on a fun party by giving prizes for the best Charleston or Varsity Drag dancer in your set. (If you've forgotten, ask Mom or Pop to give you a few pointers.) Play a guessing game of some of these old tunes by having the hostess play snatches from the records. Of course a perfect prize would be the record.

At one recent party an extra fillip was added to the buffet table by labeling the food menu after some of the dance favorites. One menu consisted of Tex Beneke biscuits, Larry Green Salad and Spike Jones chicken.

Substitute your favorite band leaders and songs at your own party. Your group perhaps has its favorite orchestras and songs. Surprise them with a dance band party.

Extra Teachers For Next Term

Raleigh, May 26—(AP)—The state's allotment of teachers and principals in public schools next year will be 542 greater than in the 1949-50 term.

The new allotment totals 27,258 teachers and principals in the 172 local administrative units. This is the largest allotment in the history of the state's nine-month school term.

C. D. Douglas, controller of the State Board of Education, released the figures yesterday. The allotment is based on average daily attendance in the state's elementary and high schools.

Douglas said the average daily attendance for the first seven months of this year was 798,800, compared with 771,400 in the corresponding period of the 1948-49 term.

Berlin, May 25—(AP)—Red police posted guards along the Russian sector boundary today to keep some 100,000 "free German youth" (FDJ) marchers, in east Berlin, from straying to the west.

"You should be. Listen."
 Then the judge explained that old Munro had discovered an excellent dam and reservoir site near the cabin on Antelope. He had decided to organize a ditch company, advertise good farm land, bring in settlers. But he had required more cash than he had in his own bank account to carry on the promotion.
 "Get to the point, judge," Joe said impatiently. "What's all this ditch and dam stuff got to do with my opinion to Connie Hale?"
 "Cool off, Joe. Before the man who put up cash to back your father's land scheme would make the loan, he asked for big security. So your father signed over a power of attorney on all his rangeland to this man who backed him. And so long as your father doesn't show up to change that power of attorney, or is legally shown to be dead and you his heir, the man who holds that power of attorney controls all rights to Munro land."
 Joe slumped down in his seat. A baffled anger filled him. Crossed up by the law itself. What would Connie think of him when she discovered the option was no good? He muttered as much to the judge. The latter smiled wisely. "She won't hold it against you," he consoled Joe. "She'll know you just made a mistake."
 "I'm makin' too many mistakes around Connie," groaned Joe. He stood up and told the judge he was heading for Connie to warn her of the illegal option and the rustler plot.

 A door that opened into gambling rooms from the bar swung open and Pack Rogan stepped out leisurely. He halted abruptly at sight of Joe.
 Joe spoke to the judge. "A month's pay against ten cents that there stands the man who holds that power of attorney." And he sidled his hand toward his gun.
 Judge Boots, rising hastily, put his hand on Joe's gun arm as Rogan approached. "Easy," he whispered. "Remember he was within his legal rights to require that power of attorney from your father."
 "We had trouble this morning to on Antelope. Pack Rogan's standin' in my road."
 "You young fool. You can't shoot him down without cause."
 Rogan, making no move to draw a gun on Joe, moved toward them gracefully.
 Shaking off the judge's restraining hand, Joe stepped away from the table to confront Rogan. But the latter, smiling genially, nodded to the judge, then eyed Joe.
 "Let's quit bullin' around," he said. "I got mad up there this mornin' about that Monty McDevitt. But I'm all over it now. Your father was one of my best friends, Joe. Will you shake on that?"
 The judge cut in smoothly. "Joe's upset, Pack. He just found out about the legal details of the ditch company. Power of attorney and such."
 "Don't lose no sleep over that, Joe. We'll take care of your interests all right. And he stood smiling and waiting with hand outstretched.
 "That," Joe said deliberately, "is what I was afraid of."
 Rogan's smile vanished. His hand dropped to his side. The judge said hurriedly, "Now, gents," but the admonition was not required. Rogan smiled again. The dangerous moment had passed.
 The door to the theater swung open. "Last call for the show, gents!" bawled the announcer.
 Rogan smiled at Joe and slapped the judge on the shoulder.
 "Let's take it in," he said. "Do you good. This Nevada Kate is one high kicker. And she has six frisky gals from Frisco with her. Come as my guests. You should see her dola' that little number fom Gay Paree."
 The big smoky dance hall was thronged with guests and female entertainers at the tables. Other booths and tables were on the balcony which ran around the rear and side walls.
 A bouncer, who looked large as a range bull in his tight blue suit, led the way up the rear stairway

Much Guesswork Eliminated For Migrant Worker

Washington, May 26—(AP)—Uncle Sam has taken much of the gamble and guesswork out of job hunting for the migrant farm worker.

Several hundred thousand such workers move from area to area—usually with their families in trucks, trailers, or campers—searching for work in such crops as wheat, corn, cotton, grapes, fruits, vegetables and other crops.

Often in the past such workers would strike out in search of work without knowing where jobs were open. Frequently they would run out of money. Then local relief agencies had to help them get food and gasoline to start out in search of work.

Federal and state employment services now have worked out an elaborate reporting service which supplies such workers with up-to-the-minute information on employment opportunities.

The information includes (1) Where workers are needed, (2) how many will be needed, (3) how to the balcony, guided them along one wall toward the glowing footlights, and finally pulled aside a curtain on a booth that directly overlooked the stage. With a bow, he ushered the three men inside. They took seats around the table.

Pack said proudly to his guests, "We've doubled our business since Kate and her gals went on the night bill. Nothing like good-lookin' women to run up profits! Don't blame the boys for wantin' her."

Joe could see Kate standing in the small dark space. A tall man appeared suddenly at her side and put his arm familiarly around her slim waist. Impatiently, she tried to brush him aside, but he grinned and merely tightened his arm.

The man was Pecos Shay.
 Across the stage, Pecos Shay stood in the wings. He was looking up into the box.
 Kate tossed her head and laughed. As the curtain began to fall, she broke into the last steps of her dance.

Joe was determined to come to grips with Pecos Shay before the curtain barred him from his quarry. It was a ten-foot drop from the box down to the stage, but Joe chanced it.

 Nevada Kate attempted to halt Joe, but he headed for the dark space in the wing where Pecos Shay had stood.
 "Shay!" he barked. "Shay—come out!"

Shay stepped out swiftly with drawn gun. He shot at Joe, and the bullet broke a plaster flower vase to bits. Kate tried to swing between the two gunmen. For Joe had now whipped out his Colt.

Joe thrust the entertainer aside so roughly that she almost fell over her high-heeled dancing slippers.
 Shay was retreating across the stage toward a rear wing.

"The man in black!" Joe yelled, going for Pecos Shay. "Who's the man in black? Talk fast, Pecos!"
 Pecos showed his teeth and answered with a second shot.

long the work lasts and where the next job may be, (4) what kind of place there is to live in, (5) how much food will cost.

Workers may obtain maps showing approximate harvest dates of main harvest areas and routes to be taken. It also shows the location of employment offices along the routes—54 in California alone—where traveling workers may obtain latest job news, the maps even give telephone numbers of such offices which are open only during summer.

The U. S. employment service is advising migratory workers that they should not start out on the road without a job.
 "You can reduce expenses and increase earning out in advance where you are needed—and when," the agency advises.

There are four major streams of migratory workers. All start in the south and move northward as the season advances.

One moves up the Atlantic seaboard to harvest truck and fruit crops. Another moves northward from Texas into Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas to help harvest wheat and other small grains.

A third is called the "intermountain" stream, moving from Arizona and New Mexico into the Rocky Mountain states to harvest sugar beets, potatoes, alfalfa hay, vegetables and fruits.

A fourth travels northward from California and Arizona into Oregon, Washington, Nevada and Idaho, to help harvest fruits, vegetables, cotton, oranges, grapefruit, sugar beets, potatoes, melons and hops.

Have You Been Misled?

Just Ask Yourself This Question Could Any Man With His Background Be Guilty As Charged By His Opponents?

HERE'S FRANK GRAHAM'S LIFE IN BRIEF...

Frank Porter Graham was born in Fayetteville, N. C., on October 14, 1886, the son of Alexander and Katherine (Sloan) Graham. He was one of nine children.

His father, also a native of Fayetteville, served in the Confederate Army during the Civil War, was founder of the public school system of Fayetteville, and headed the schools of Charlotte from 1888 to 1913. The elder Graham is called the father of the graded school in North Carolina, and was the first to include a full program of high school subjects in the curriculum.

Frank Graham was graduated from Charlotte High School, and in 1909 was graduated from the University of North Carolina with the Bachelor of Arts degree. He spent a year in the Law School of the University, taught in the Raleigh High School for two years, returned to the University for another year of law and served as secretary of the YMCA. He received his law license from the State Supreme Court in 1913, but never practiced. In 1914 he was appointed instructor in history at the University. In 1916 he took his master's degree at Columbia University.

Marine in World War I

When the United States entered World War I, Graham succeeded in enlisting as a private in the Marine Corps after being turned down three times because of weak eyes and his small size. He was a first lieutenant when he was mustered out of service in July 1919. A brother was killed in action in France at Belleau Wood.

Frank Graham returned to the University of North Carolina after the war as assistant professor of history, and for one year held the position of dean of students. In 1921 he was made associate professor. He spent the following year in graduate study at the University of Chicago, where he won the two-year Amherst Memorial Fellowship.

Studied Abroad

After a year in Washington, D. C., where he studied at the Brookings Institute and the Library of Congress, Graham went abroad to pursue research at the British Museum and the University of London, and to attend sessions of the League of Nations in Geneva.

He returned to North Carolina in 1925, and two years later became a full professor at the University. In June of 1930 he was elected as the 11th president of the University of North Carolina, and in 1932 he was elected president of the consolidated Greater University of North Carolina, which includes, in addition to the Chapel Hill unit, the State College at Raleigh and the Woman's College at Greensboro. He was appointed U. S. Senator on March 22, 1949, by Governor Scott to succeed the late Senator J. M. Broughton.

Frank Graham was married on July 21, 1932, to Miss Marion Drane, daughter of the Rev. Robert Brent Drane of Edenton, N. C.

Presbyterian Elder

He is an elder in the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church.

'Rump' Tobacco Sale Issue Has Quiet End; Warehousemen Meet

Kinston, N.C., May 26—(AP)—The last echo of last year's heated fight over the "rump" tobacco sales issue has died out.

Rocky Mount warehousemen who look a walk from the Bright Belt Warehouse Association over the issue marked their return by attending the East Carolina Warehouse Association's annual meeting yesterday.

East belt association membership carries with it membership in the Bright Belt Association, which is made up of warehousemen from the entire flue-cured tobacco area. The "rump" sale battle began when Rocky Mount and other markets tried to increase the number of sales they operate. The Bright Belt Association's board of governors attempted to prohibit extra sales which did not attract what it defined as an adequate set of buyers. The Rocky Mount warehousemen won a legal battle which went to the State Supreme Court, and the association abandoned its effort to halt the extra sales.

J. C. Eagles Jr. of Wilson was elected president of the Bright Belt Association. He succeeds George Knott of Kinston. H. I. Johnson of Tarboro was named vice president and Alton Boswell of Kinston secretary-treasurer.

A lot of people have to eat crow—figuratively. But Dr. F. M. Acreé (left) and Charles L. McCormick (right) of Greenville, Miss., are having to eat it—actually. This is the penalty for their Washington county Boy Scout organization losing to neighboring Tunica county in a membership campaign contest. Tunica's scout leaders feasted on turkey. (AP Photo).

Leveling-Off In State Spending

By The Associated Press
Spending by the states has been rising swiftly since the end of the war—but there signs that it may be leveling off now.

Legislatures in eight states have completed financial plans for the next fiscal period, a year or two years. Six of them decided to spend more money. Two decided to spend less. But that is only a part of the over-all story.

Appropriations in Maryland, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Virginia, Mississippi and Kentucky went up by a total of $118,000,000.

But California's budget for the next fiscal year is nearly $193,000,000 under its 1949-50 budget. New York's new budget is $74,000,000 lower than its previous budget.

Thus the cuts in California and New York more than offset the gains in the other six states.

Will state spending across the country slide down from record height? Only 11 legislatures met or are meeting in budget sessions this year. So the question of whether state spending has passed the peak can't be answered until 1951, when most of the legislatures will meet.

There is one big economy factor in the background. The U. S. census reports that the 48 states as a whole spent more money than they received in the last fiscal year.

Reports Signing Confession To Wife's Murder

Saxapahaw, N.C., May 26—(AP)—O. T. Douglas has signed a statement admitting he killed his estranged wife yesterday. Alameda County Sheriff C. P. Moore reported.

The sheriff said Douglas was charged formally with murder at a hearing before Magistrate C. C. Bayliff. Bond was set at $25,000 and Douglas was placed in the county jail at Graham.

The elderly white man was found by a posse about noon, some five hours after his wife had been found with her throat slashed. According to the sheriff, the man was asleep under a tree less than 200 yards from the spot at which his wife was found. He was carrying a small pocket knife when arrested.

Talk About Slip Trouble!

WOMEN have been having "slip" trouble for years without complaining, but now that the sheer summer dress has become a top fashion you can see what happens. As worn at right, the slip rides up spoiling the line of the dress and leaving an unattractive gap between the knee and the hem of the skirt. On the left, a dress of the same sheer crepe is worn over a Celanese light-weight taffeta slip designed by Mary Barron with a special construction that prevents its riding up, twisting or pulling out of place. The slip has a built-up back to cover one's bra, and four flounced tucks at the hem that may be snipped off as required for length. The sheer McNettrick dresses photographed are good examples of the right and wrong way to wear a slip. With a good-fitting slip, however, as worn on the left, many different effects are possible with different colors—an idea started in Paris this season. For example, in addition to a matching slip, a quite different look is achieved with contrast such as pink or red under navy; toast under black; navy blue under a kelly green dress, and of course white underneath any color. The taffeta slips are shown in a wide range of spring shades including fresh pastels, black and white.

Hoey Neutral In Democratic Race For Senate Seat

Elizabeth City, May 26—(AP)—North Carolina's senior senator is playing hands off the hot Democratic senatorial race.

Senator Clyde R. Hoey, in a statement released here, reiterated that he is maintaining a neutral attitude to the senatorial race between Senator Frank Graham, Willis Smith, former Senator Robert R. Reynolds and Olla Ray Boyd.

J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Jr., who spoke at a Smith-for-Senate rally here last night, read a telegram from Hoey which said:

"I have consistently maintained a neutral attitude with reference to the senatorial race and have made no announcement in favor of either candidate. I stated last year in announcing my own candidacy that I would not take part in the race for the other senatorship from North Carolina and I have consistently adhered to that position. Clyde R. # Robins Win Both Ends Of Double Header Against Tobs

Bunching Of Hits Tells Big Story Of Big Night

By BERT MOYE

Manager Randy Heflin and his Greenville Robins swept both ends of a twin bill with the Wilson Tobs here last night, taking the seven-inning opener 6-3, and then came back to take the second game which was halted after seven innings of play by rain, 11-2. The double win for the Robins placed them solidly in fourth position in league standings, two full games ahead of the fifth place Kinston Eagles.

First Game

The Greenville Robins bunched together their nine hits off the offerings of Ray Parker and Manager Bill Herring to gain a 6-3 decision in the opening contest.

In the first frame the Robins scored three runs on three singles, three errors, a walk and a stolen base to take a lead which they never relinquished. Paul Strausser led off with a single, stole second, Vince Lautato was walked, Johnny Tepedino singled into leftfield to bring home Strausser. George Hallow flew out to right field with Lautato coming home. Joe Guidice singled. Robins forced Guidice at second with Tepedino scoring.

Two runs in the third on three singles and an error clinched matters for the Robins. John Tepedino walked, Hallow sacrificed him to second. Joe Guidice singled and when Matt Hall dropped a single into left field, Guidice came home.

Of the three runs made by the Tobs two of them came as the result of homers. Jim Smith socked a 345-foot homer for Wilson in the third and Sam Berry hit one for the Tobs in the fourth. Each blow came with the bases empty and each cleared the leftfield wall.

The Tobs' run in the first inning came as the result of a double by Bobby Dingler and Red Gay's line single into centerfield.

Pinky White, pitching his first full game for the Robins, did a neat bit of mound work as he scattered nine hits in the seven-inning opener. The win for White was his second of the season. He has suffered one defeat.

Bobby Dingler with two doubles and a single in four trips to plate and Sam Berry with a homer and a single in three trips to the plate led the Tobs' attack off White.

Lefty Ray Parker started on the mound for the Tobs but was chased in the fourth frame after giving up seven hits and five runs in the first three frames. Manager Bill Herring pitched the remaining three frames and allowed two hits and one run.

Johnny Tepedino with a double and a single and Paul Strausser and Joe Guidice with two singles each paced the nine-hit attack for the Robins.

Second Game

Righthander Jim Lewey held the Tobs to five hits while his teammates garnered thirteen hits off the offerings of two Tob hurlers, to register his fourth straight win of the season as the Robins took the second game of the twin bill, 11-2, in a game which was halted by rain after seven innings of play.

The Robins jumped on Mickey Hennessy in the first frame for three hits—a single, triple and a homer—and put across four runs, which was enough for the win. Vince Lautato walked and then George Hallow lined a triple into deep right centerfield to bring him home and this was followed by John Bakits' homer over the left centerfield wall to clear the bases.

Allen Draughn, who replaced Hennessy at the start of the second frame, also received rough treatment at the hands of the Robins when they came back to score four more runs on five hits.

Three more runs were added in the sixth frame on a walk, stolen base, two singles and a double.

The Tobs scored singletons in the second and fifth frames. A walk, single and fly to deep left field gave them a run in the second. A single, two errors and a walk gave them their other runs in the fifth frame.

Johnny Tepedino had a perfect night at bat in the second game, collecting four singles in four trips at the plate. George Hallow collected a triple double and a single in four trips to the plate and drove in six of the eleven runs made by the Robins.

NEW YORK—Off to hand the British what seems to be their inevitable yearly tennis trouncing are these four American women. Not since 1930 has America lost the Wightman Cup competition. Since that year, U. S. girls have won the cup 13 straight times, with time out for the war. However, it was not always so. Beginning in 1923, the two nations split the first eight meetings. Then came the American string and the odds are overwhelming that at Wimbledon, June 16 and 17, America will make it 14 in a row.

The present five-year agreement between the two loops ends next New Year's game with the big ten seeking a fifth straight win.

Dick Wakefield Sold To Minors But Refuses To Play; Planning Protest

By CHARLES C. CAIN

Detroit, May 26—(AP)—Outfielder Dick Wakefield stood firm today in his determination not to report to the minor league team which bought him from the New York Yankees yesterday.

Even a telephone call from his new team, the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific coast league, failed to sway Wakefield from his decision not to play minor league ball.

Wakefield got the news of his sale at Briggs stadium yesterday as he sat in the stands watching his erstwhile Yankee teammates in batting practice for a game with the Detroit Tigers.

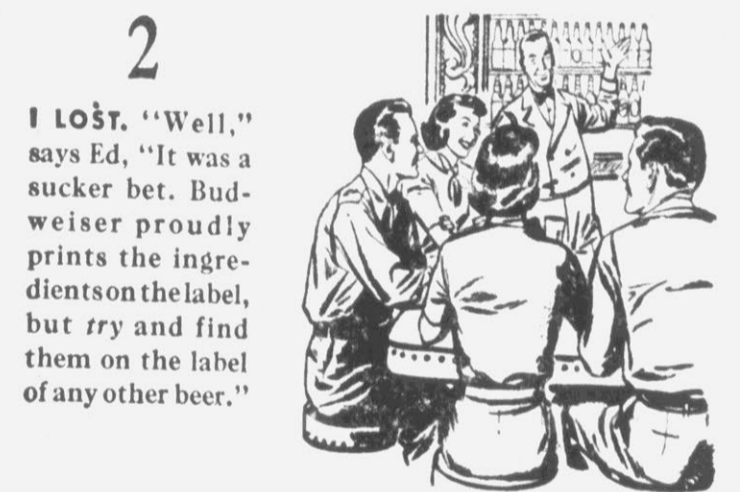

"I was very surprised, extremely surprised by it all." The former Tiger told newsmen.

Around the Circuit:—Guess you folks are wondering as to the status of Bobby Harrison and Preacher Mustian. Bobby is in town and works out regularly with the team, including taking the trips out of town. As yet he has not been signed up by the Robins due to the fact that Bobby states he is not yet in condition. However, he has come to terms with the club and the only formality left is his signing on the dotted line which is expected momentarily. That is the reason that no releases have been announced by Business Manager Russ Filley as it will be necessary to let a man go in order to take him on. . . . And speaking of Bobby, I quote from Bill Rumpf's column in Wednesday's Rocky Mount Evening Telegram: "Remember the jinx the Greenville Greenies had on the Leafs last year? Remember Bobby Harrison, the righthanded splinter, who handcourted the Leafs in every game he pitched against them? Were you glad to hear he was no longer in the league this year? He's back. . . . In regard to his status of Preacher Mustian, he was in town Wednesday to talk over the signing of his contract with the local club, but just what steps the club manager will take is unknown. Anyway, Preacher will be unable to report before the end of next week due to his studies at Wake Forest. . . . Bob Greory and Dick Mazzie, who were with the Tobs only long enough to get their gear unpacked and repacked, are on the ineligible list—as far as organized ball is concerned. Both men jumped the club. Bob Dempsey has been sent back to Atlanta by Manager Bill Herring. Bill Tompkins, Eskimo pitcher, was released through the permission of Atlanta President Earl Mann. His fortune will lie with Rocky Mount. The Leafs signed the lefthander recently. . . . Manager Walter Millies of the Kinston Eagles announces the following changes in his roster: Gene Haering, a teammate of John Minarelli's on the Hornell club of the Class D Pony League, has been optioned from the Oneonta club of the Boston Red Sox, and is filling the first base sack left vacant by R. W. Hepler. At shortstop is Kenneth Aspromonte, a rookie, also on option from Oneonta. Robert A. Penny is a new member of the pitching staff. Gone are Jerry Lahann, second baseman and Don Lajeunesse, outfielder. . . . John Pavlich, former Jay catcher, and more recently with the Raleigh Capitals of the Carolina League, is back with the Edenton club of the semi-pro Albemarle League. Edenton is piloted by Gashouse Parker, also a former Jay first baseman.

Lucky Strikes Maintain Women's Bowling Lead

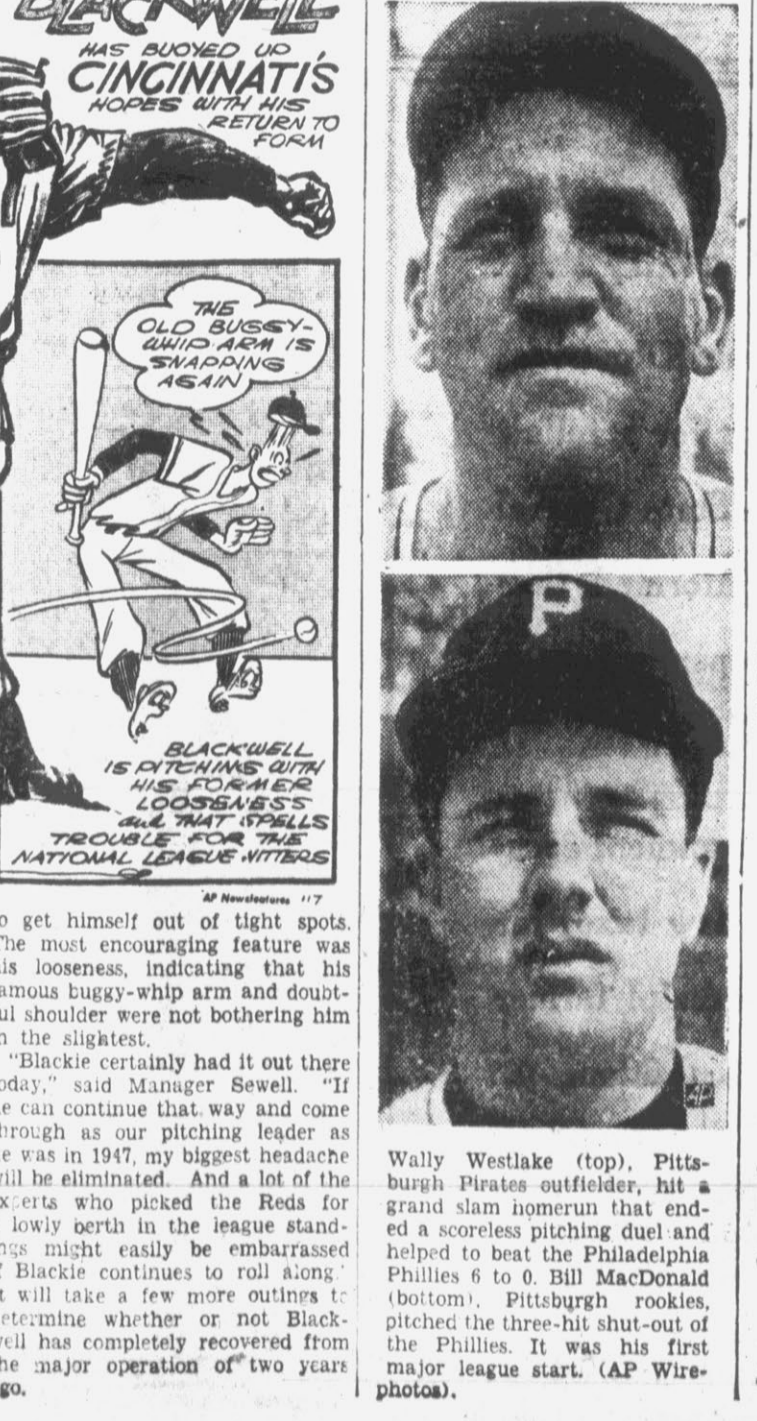

The Lucky Strikes continued to reign supreme over the other three teams in the Women's City Bowling League this week as they took into camp the Wildcats, fourth-place team, on a three-game killing.

In taking the triple bill, the Strikers increased their three-game total to 1,838, 199 pins higher than the mark they set last week to lead the league. And to add insult to injury, the three games were won regardless of a 56-pin handicap given the Wildcats. All three wins were by substantial margins.

With the other two teams, Lady Luck copied two games from the second-place Slickers, spotting the losers three pins. The Slickers, however, had one good game—which they won—and in so doing posted 10 pins on their previous single game Tarboro high score of 647. They lead the rest in that bracket at this date.

AN APPEAL TO FAIR PLAY

The opposition of Senator Frank Graham has based its case against him on four charges. Not one of these charges is true!

Nevertheless, they have hoped to confuse the people of North Carolina by repeating these same untruths over and over again. The misrepresentations, distortions and smears which have resulted have made up the main part of the campaign against Senator Graham, one of the greatest Christian statesmen in the world today.

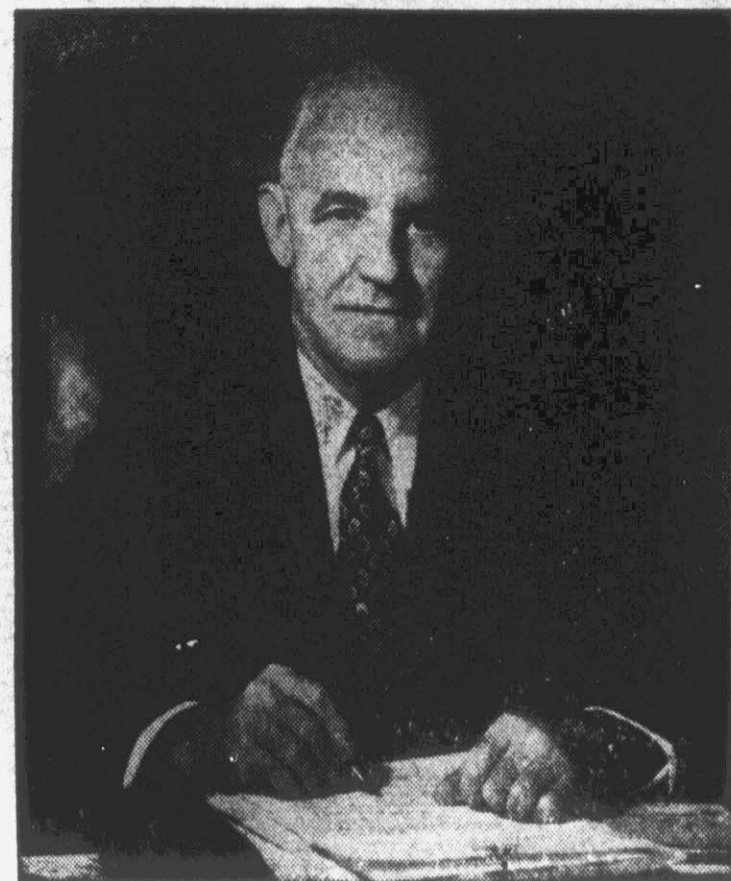

We are making this appeal to fair play because we know the people of North Carolina will overwhelmingly endorse the record of lifelong service and unselfish good will of their Junior Senator if the smearers do not succeed in their attempts to create discord and confusion.

If we are to be spared such tactics in future elections THESE TACTICS MUST NOT BE ALLOWED TO PAY OFF TOMORROW!

We ask that you remember how false the charges against Frank Graham are and that you vote on the basis of the record.

We are making this appeal to fair play because we feel that the kind of election we will have in North Carolina for many years to come is one of the crucial issues which will be decided by your votes this Saturday.

Political campaigns which are based on twisting the truth and smearing decent citizens and which try to pit one group of our people against another can greatly harm the teamwork and gradual progress which have brought North Carolina to the forefront of the southern states. This kind of campaign is an insult to the intelligence and fair mindedness of the people of North Carolina.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

They Keep Repeating These Charges.. Despite... The Facts Which Show The Charges To Be Lies

LIE NO. 1:—FRANK GRAHAM IS FOR FEPC

The Fact: Frank Graham has always fought against FEPC, in the Civil Rights Commission and in the Senate.

"We know Frank Graham is opposed to compulsory FEPC"—Sen. Richard Russell, floor leader of the southern Democrats in the Senate. "(Graham) was strongly opposed to a compulsory FEPC or any federal action involving sanctions against states or individuals as outlined by the Commission's recommendations"—Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church and member of the Civil Rights Commission.

LIE NO. 2:—FRANK GRAHAM IS FOR THE BRANNAN PLAN

The Fact: Frank Graham has consistently opposed the Brannan plan. He has been in an office where his position has been doubly important. He can be judged on his deeds in the Senate where he stood for the present parity program in opposition to the Brannan plan.

"(Graham) stood steadfastly for the parity price concept under which agriculture in America has gone forward... (His) championship of and interest in the farm people of your state has been an inspiration to those of us who have been working on the farm legislation."—Former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, leader of the senate group which has opposed the Brannan plan.

LIE NO. 3:—FRANK GRAHAM IS FOR SOCIALIZED MEDICINE

The Fact: Frank Graham has always opposed national compulsory health insurance and all forms of socialized medicine.

"It was my good fortune to work with Senator Graham in the inauguration of the (North Carolina) medical care program. As a result of that experience, I know that he is and always has been opposed to socialized medicine."—Dr. Hamilton W. McKay, eminent Charlotte physician.

LIE NO. 4:—FRANK GRAHAM HAS BEEN "SOFT" ABOUT COMMUNISM AND-OR IS A MEMBER OF COMMUNIST FRONT ORGANIZATIONS

The Fact: Frank Graham has never belonged to any organization when it was listed as subversive by the Attorney General. He has always fought Communist influences on committees and off committees. He is the only living North Carolinian who has been denounced by Radio Moscow.

"He (Graham) is a great American. He is one of the great educational statesmen in America. He has rendered great service in this country and abroad. He is as loyal as any American who walks this earth."—Sen. Clyde Hoey. "Your services as United States representative have earned for you the admiration and gratitude of your fellow countrymen and my own personal great appreciation."—President Harry S. Truman, concerning Frank Graham's work on the Good Offices Committee of the United Nations in Indonesia.

The people spreading these distortions know that they are lies. These people are not misled nor ignorant. They know what the facts are. Why then do they persist in conducting a campaign which ignores the truth and which is an insult to the intelligence of North Carolina?

BECAUSE THEY ARE DESPERATE!

In the face of the record they dare not tell the facts. Their only resort is to smears and distortions in the hope they can confuse and hoodwink the people of North Carolina. But the record of Frank Graham speaks for itself despite the mud-slinging and louder than the whispering of a few desperate men.

- One of five Americans to receive the great honor and responsibility of membership on the United Nations peace panel.
- A great public servant, repeatedly called on by President Roosevelt and President Truman to work for his nation and the world in vital positions.
- Lifetime fighter for better roads and schools for all the people of North Carolina.

- President for two decades of the oldest and greatest state university in America, who fought to keep its doors open during the depression, who brought the university close to the people of the state, and who helped to consolidate it into one mighty unit.
- Public member of the War Labor Board, respected and trusted by management and labor alike for his fairness, courage and concern for the well-being of the nation.

Micah Gives Hope of Salvation

Micah painted a lovely picture of Israel when Jehovah had forgiven the people their sins: "The mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains . . . and peoples shall flow unto it."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Micah 4:1-5; 5:2-4; 7:18-20.

By Alfred J. Buescher

"And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

"But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of Jehovah of hosts hath spoken it," thus the prophet comforted his people.

"Out of Bethlehem shall come One that is to be ruler in Israel . . . And He shall stand and shall feed His flock in the strength of Jehovah," Micah prophesied.

Girl Loses Long Battle For Life

Edenton, May 26 —(AP)—Daisy Alice Ward is dead. The plucky little Chowan county girl who amazed physicians by staying alive nearly three months after receiving severe burns Feb. 27, died Thursday night at 6:20 o'clock in Chowan hospital here.

Daisy Alice, who was 14 years old, who had the sympathy and prayers of thousands of North Carolinians and Virginians, also was the recipient of $13,400 in donations to the Daisy Alice Ward fund. Physicians had said that at least $10,000 would be needed to give the girl necessary care and treatment, but long after the goal was reached money continued to pour in for the suffering child.

The fund was started after appeals by W. E. Debnam, Raleigh radio commentator, and Peter Carlton, Edenton newspaperman and broadcaster. Until money started reaching the fund about a month ago, the hospital had been footing the bills for expensive treatments. Everything that was humanly possible was being done for the girl whose entire body was a mass of burns. Some 60 persons had offered to donate skin, and six transfusers already had been made.

Hoey Addresses Postal Meeting

Charlotte, N.C., May 26—(AP)—An address by U.S. Sen. Clyde Hoey highlighted today's convention program for the North Carolina chapter of the National Association of Postmasters.

The election of officers was scheduled for this afternoon with a banquet tonight. Rep. Hamilton C. Jones of the 10th congressional district; Burris Jackson of Hillsboro, Texas, National Association of Postmasters president, and E. E. Skinner of Miami, Eastern Air Lines director of air mail, were yesterday's top speakers.

Lioness Becomes Bride Of Tiger

New York, May 26—(AP)—Zimba two-year-old lioness, became the bride yesterday of Zombie, a young tiger in a tense wedding scene at the Central Park Zoo.

While other wild animals nearby roared and snarled, the two beasts were placed in a single cage for mating purposes. In hope that the union would produce tigonlets. There are only four hybrids in the world, a Zoo official said.

Micah Gives Hope of Salvation

PROMISES PEACE AND PROSPERITY FOR ISRAEL

Scripture—Micah 4:1-5; 5:2-4; 7:18-20.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. THE WHOLE book of Micah is given us for a lesson today as it was last week. We concentrate especially, today, however, on the promises Jehovah made—through Micah—to His people if they would return to Him as their God and do His will.

Children and older folk may be moved by the music of these words of the poet, spoken so long ago and addressed to the distressed people of Israel. The picture that it gives us of a peaceful scene where no man was likely to be called to go to battle, but all the implements of war were made into instruments of peace—to serve man instead of killing him, can be subject of talk and suggestions for the younger children, and discussions among the older class members.

It is a Holy City to Christians because it was the place where Jesus walked, healed and taught, and of his trials and condemnation. To the Jewish people it is David's city, where David's son, Solomon, built the great temple, and the center of their worship. There is talk that it may be made an international city.

What was the prophecy? In Micah's words: "But in the latter days (meaning the end of the age) it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow up unto it.

"And many nations shall go up and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah to Jerusalem;

"And He will judge between many peoples, and will decide concerning strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

"But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree, and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of Jehovah of Hosts hath spoken it."

The dream of peace on earth never dies. It is as old as man himself.

Improving Oregon Inlet Postponed For A Year

SPOON Washington, May 26—Commercial fishermen along the northeastern North Carolina coast are looking forward to a $17,000 increase in their annual catch—but they won't be getting it for at least another year.

The newly enacted harbors and harbors authorization act includes a project for improvement of Oregon Inlet, which a House Public Works Committee report says will benefit fishermen in the area by being saved annually, in decreased damage to boats.

Money for the project, however, has yet to be appropriated. Herbert C. Bonner said no effort will be made to obtain necessary funds until next year, because the authorization was approved too late this year to have the money included in the new appropriations bill.

The Oregon Inlet project calls for a channel 400 feet wide and 14 feet deep from the Atlantic Ocean and through the inlet, across its sand bar. Channels 100 feet and 12 feet deep will be provided from the inlet to Pamlico Sound, Manteo and the wharves in Hill Creek near Wachese. A turning basin 200 feet wide and 600 feet long will be provided at Manteo.

The project will cost the federal government in the neighborhood of $260,000, with annual maintenance costs in the neighborhood of $100,000.

CIO Union Wins Electrical Vote Over Left Wing

Baltimore, May 26—(AP)—The CIO-International Union of Electrical Workers today appeared to have wrested bargaining rights for a majority of General Electric employees from a rival union it considers communist-dominated.

Some 90,000 workers voted at 57 GE plants in yesterday's National Labor Relations Board election and gave IUE victory in 49 units and divisions representing 66,983 employees.

The United Electrical Workers apparently carried off 47 units with a total representation of 38,137.

In the "popular vote" throughout the GE system, IUE today tallied an unofficial 52,784 to UE's 40,616. The election, however, determines representation by individual plants and not for the whole company.

With the GE results, IUE officials claimed to have lured at least two-thirds of the UE membership away from that union since its expulsion from the CIO last year on grounds of communist domination.

Among key plants won by IUE were the River Works, near Lynn, Mass., with a vote of 6,099 to 5,314; Pittsfield, Mass., 4,392 to 1,803; Syracuse, N. Y., 4,390 to 255, and at Bridgeport, 2,553 to 1,130.

Production and maintenance workers of GE's largest plant, at Schenectady, N. Y., retained UE as their bargaining agent by a 7,761 to 5,847 vote.

Atomic energy production and maintenance workers at Schenectady, however, voted 284 to 30 for the CIO union.

At Erie, Pa., GE hourly pay workers favored UE by a 6,698 to 4,378 margin.

The NLRB announced the results until 4 a. m. (EDT), when only some eight minor groups were unheard from, but it made no official tabulation. The unofficial count was based on the telegraphed returns—yet to be checked by mail returns and conceivably subject to correction.

Nonetheless it seemed clear today that the CIO union, whose drive against UE found support from U. S. Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin himself, had gained a substantial triumph in the larger locals of GE.

According to an IUE-prepared chart, 18 units with less than 100 employees went to IUE, 15 to UE. In the 100 to 500 employee category UE led 14 to 12. The rival union split even, eight to eight on units containing between 500 and 1,000 workers.

But in the 1,000 to 10,000 bracket the newer union predominated, winning nine units to none for the UE. The latter came off two to one however, in divisions with more than 10,000 employees.

NLRB officials here reported that they had been notified of no disturbances during the day's voting despite the high feelings at some localities.

Tar Heels Suing Soft Drink Firm

Baltimore, May 26—(AP)—Two Carolinas have filed suit in U. S. district court asking six million dollars in damage from the Coca-Cola Company.

George N. Mas of Graham, N. C. and his son, Frank M. Mas of Leesville, S. C. contend the soft drink concern infringed on their patents for the design of a beverage bottle, in a suit filed here yesterday in U. S. district court.

A similar suit, filed about six years ago by the "Mas" family, was dismissed two years later by Chief Judge William C. Coleman in federal court here. The dismissal was later affirmed by the U. S. court of appeals for the fourth circuit.

The plaintiffs contend, in new action, that the company fraudulently converted their design to its own use.

They asked punitive as well as compensatory damages for the income they said they have lost over a period of 13 years.

The suit claimed the company concealed and suppressed "vital evidence from the patent office and the U. S. courts."

P. F. Brock, general counsel for the company said, in Atlanta, that the claim has "no merit."

A Pleasure To Find Honest Man

Clarksville, Tenn., May 26—(AP)—When Elbert Ferrell found a badly mangled bumper on his parked car yesterday he was fighting mad.

But bitterness turned to benevolence when he found a note inside. It read—"Dear sir, I came a bit too close to your car in heading into a parking place. Send an estimate to Liberty Mutual Insurance Company of Nashville."

Ferrell said it won't cost the Insurance Company a dime. "It's a pleasure to find an honest man."

William Henry Harrison was first Governor of Indiana Territory.

Prison Term For Bad Bill Passers

Norfolk, Va., May 26—(AP)—Two North Carolina men who confessed they passed counterfeit $20 notes have been sentenced here to 18 months imprisonment.

Edward Grantly Wallace, 25, of Gastonia, and Edward Kennerly, 38, U. S. district court Judge A. D. Braks.

Wallace admitted he and Kennerly used his car on a trip through North Carolina, passing 43 notes.

Kennerly said he put up the $100 in genuine currency to get $5,000 in counterfeit bills passed three of the latter in North Carolina.

The judge said that he believed the pair had been used by someone higher up in the counterfeiting ring. He said that, considering their past clean records and frankness, he would be inclined to show mercy for the seriousness of the crime.

Howard E. Murson, a secret service agent, testified both men had told all they knew about the phony bills.

Testimony showed that Kennerly had sold some real estate in Florida and came to Princess Anne county with a large amount of cash.

I am sorry that I have not been able to see each one of you and ask for your support, but I am sure every one realizes that all farmers have been quite busy for the past few weeks. Being a farmer and business man I have tried to represent our good county for the best interest of everyone.

I feel very grateful for the confidence you have shown in sending me to the General Assembly for the past two sessions. It is upon my past record such as: sponsoring the bill for the treatment of alcoholics at Camp Butner; for the Boy's Correctional Institution for first offenders at Camp Butner; helping in all phases of Education; and, of course, spending much time with the Agricultural Program, since Pitt County is so dependent upon the success of farmers, that I am asking for your support at this time in tomorrow's Primary.
