Acheson Said To Have Assured No Veto To Be Used

U. S. Attitude Toward Red China In UN Discussed With Trygve Lie

Washington, May 30 — (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson is reported to have assured Trygve Lie that the United States will not use the veto to keep Communist China out of the United Nations.

This restatement of American policy appeared today to have been the principal firm development in the meetings held by Lie, the U.N. Secretary-General, with President Truman and Secretary Acheson.

Diplomats familiar with the substance of yesterday's "confidential chats" indicated they produced little in the way of definite understandings promising to ease cold war tensions.

The impression among diplomatic authorities is that Lie, on his recent mission to Moscow and other capitals, was given no commitments by Stalin.

On his return to Lake Success last week the Secretary-General expressed guarded optimism and told reporters he found the Soviet leaders still have faith in the U.N.

This feeling, American officials said, appeared based on a generally friendly attitude shown by Stalin and Andrei Gromyko and Foreign Minister A. Y. Vishinsky rather than on any firm promises that Russia might be ready to talk compromise.

The U.S. attitude on the point of admitting Communist China, which was restated to Lie and Byron Price, his American assistant, was thus outlined authoritatively.

1. The decision whether to admit the Peiping regime in place of the Nationalists is the most urgent issue facing the United Nations, in view of the Soviet bloc walkout from U.N. agencies.

2. Until it is settled, Lie's proposal for periodic level meetings of the council to try to settle some cold war issues is largely academic. Besides, this government wants to give the idea further study.

On admitting Communist China, the U.S. will not vote a decision by the Security Council nor follow the Soviet walkout example. It will not "lobby" with other members to block the Peiping representatives and will accept the decision by the requisite seven of the 11 council members.

Long-Remembered Day For Detroit Road Violators

Detroit, May 30 — (AP) — Memorial day 1950 will be a day long remembered by 18 Detroiters.

They began jail sentences of from five to fifteen days today—convicted of speeding, driving recklessly or drunken driving. And they can't drive again for at least 60 days by court order.

They brought to 137 the number sent to jail by traffic judge John D. Watts in his "get tough" campaign—that began after he gave everyone a week's warning a month ago.

Only one state, California, tops Michigan's 20 traffic fatalities since the Memorial Day week-end started Friday. But Judge Watts points out Detroit has contributed only one of the 20—he wasn't a Detroit.

Trygve Lie's Mission

His Time Limit On Making Result Of Pilgrimage Known; Responsibility Lie Assumed In Going Over Heads Of UN Delegates; China Heart Of Difficulty

By SIGRID ARNE

It remains to be seen what the result will be of the so-called "save the United Nations" pilgrimage just made by the U. N.'s top officer, Trygve Lie.

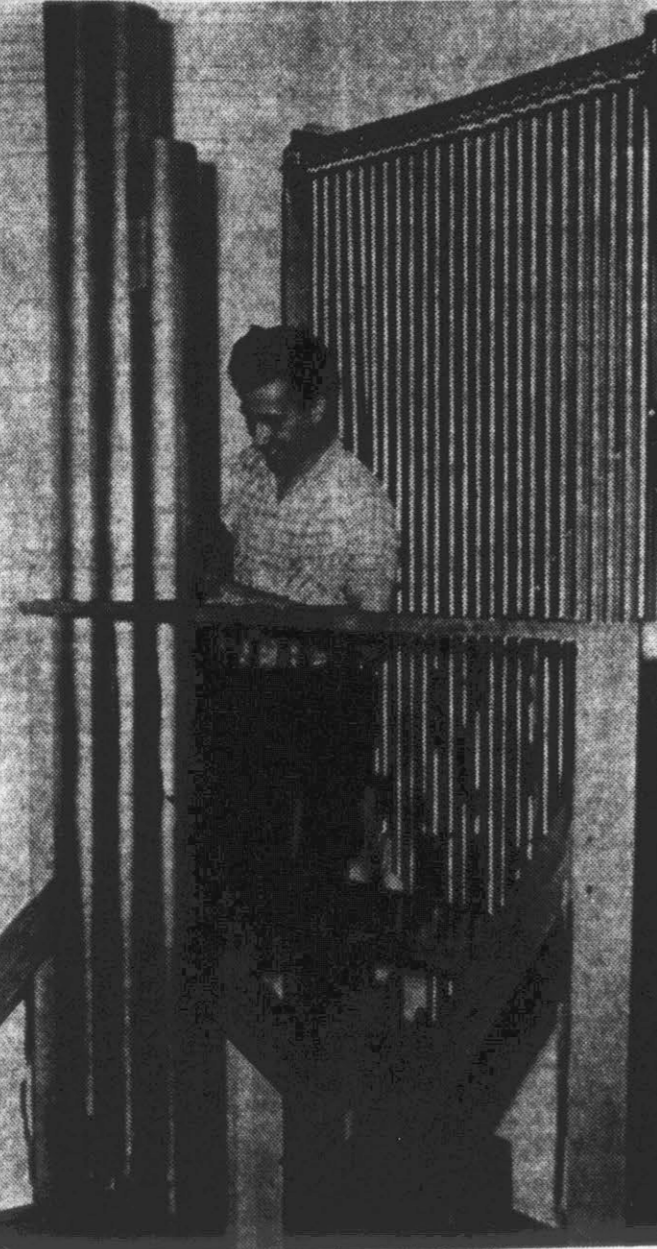

He has given no indication of what the top politicians of the United States, Britain, France or the Soviet Union told him. He has said it will be two or three months before results of his conversations can be judged.

This time limit, itself, is an indication of the problems which he must have talked over with the world's top leaders.

Right now the U. N.'s most aggravating problem is the Soviet Union's refusal to take part in U. N. affairs until China is represented by delegates from the Communist regime.

Since January the Soviets and their satellites have refused to sit in any meeting of the various branches of the United Nations attended by representative of the Chinese Nationalist government.

Installing Chimes For New Organ

Here, the chimes for the large new organ now being installed in the Austin auditorium at East Carolina Teachers College, are being worked on by one of the crew of workers on the job. The chimes will be worked in conjunction with a clock to be mounted on the top of the building and will toll every quarter hour. A system of loud speakers will carry the sound of the chimes.

German Youth In Berlin Disperse

Program Of Ideological Indoctrination Reaches End

Berlin, May 30 — (AP) — Weary young Germans marched home today by the hundreds of thousands from the Soviet sector's Communist rally, leaving Berlin to worry about its next crisis in the cold war.

The dispersal of 500,000 Communist-controlled "Free German Youth" (FDJ) got underway with the same military precision that they had shown in parading last Sunday up the rainswept Unter den Linden amid Red banners and cheers for Stalin.

The six-day program of ideological indoctrination—almost like mass hypnosis—produced its final slogan last night when East Germany's Communist Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl shouted to torchlight processions in mid-city:

"Our youth will one day tear down all zonal barriers and restore the unity of Germany."

But the top slogan of all, repeated time and again by youthful German lips, was:

"We will fight alongside the Soviet Union."

"For peace," they added.

Both sides in this East-West propaganda outpost claimed a victory last Sunday. Then the 500,000 paraded but the previously-threatened invasion of allied-occupied West Berlin failed to materialize.

The official Soviet organ, Tagliche Rundschau, claimed that Germany's younger generation had been decisively won over to the "international peace movement" sponsored by the Soviet Union, and had been alienated from the "western imperialist warmongers."

The anti-Communist Daily Telegraph said "Berlin showed anew its determination to defend its freedom against all threats."

Parsons Winner At Indianapolis

Indianapolis, May 30 — (AP) — Johnny Parsons won the 34th annual 500-mile Memorial Day race today with an assist from a rain storm.

The handsome Van Nuys, Calif., American Automobile Racing Association champion for 1949, had set a record breaking pace until a down pour stopped the race at 340 miles.

Only one previous Memorial Day race, in 1926, had been stopped by rain and it went 400 miles.

Joint Session Of Churchmen Here

Members Of N. C. Methodist Boards Convened Monday

Members of the executive committee of the board of education of the North Carolina conference of Methodist Churches, and the board trustees of the Methodist church camp, Camp-Lee, met here for a conference yesterday.

The meeting was occasioned by the recent death of the Rev. J. G. Phillips, who was executive secretary of the board of education of the North Carolina conference, and a member of the board of trustees of the camp.

The two boards met in a joint session yesterday morning, and yesterday afternoon the executive committee of the board of education met to consider the appointment of a successor to replace Rev. Phillips.

Although no successor was named, a camp committee composed of T. J. Collier, Rev. J. J. Garlington of Conway and Rev. F. C. Heden of Aberdeen were appointed to continue preparation to open Camp Don Lee during June as scheduled.

Rev. A. P. Brantley of Goldsboro is chairman of the board of education of the conference, and Rev. T. M. Grant of Rocky Mount is chairman of the board of trustees of the camp.

Official Count Shows Pitt Vote Was Only 9,988

Elections Board Tabulation Is Little More Than 1,000 Under Record

Official tabulations of Saturday's Democratic Primary showed today that Pitt County turned out a lower vote than was indicated last week by opinions voiced prior to the voting.

The official tabulation, as reported by the Elections Board, and Board of Canvassers this morning was 9,988 voters registered and voting. This figure is a little more than 1,000 votes lighter than the campaigns of 1950 and 1936.

J. Henry Harrell, chairman of the Elections Board, said this afternoon he was surprised that the vote was so light. He said he had thought it would be a record vote, higher than the 11,000-odd votes cast in the two previous primaries. Other persons contacted last week voiced the same opinion, some thinking the vote would go over 12,000.

The highest vote in any race Saturday was for the sheriff's race in which 9,809 ballots were cast. That race was won by incumbent Fuel Tyson over his opponent and former sheriff, Sam Whitehurst.

The senatorial race showed Willis Smith leading Senator Frank Graham by exactly 500 votes. Smith tallied 4,519 to Graham's 4,319. Smith's official plurality in the county is one less than was reported in unofficial returns Saturday after the counting began.

Harrell voiced an opinion as to why the vote was lighter than expected. He said he thought the reason was that no Republican primary—which is held on the same day as the Democratic. The vote would have been 600-700, minimum, more ballots, he thought.

The Elections Board and Canvassers' board registrars of each precinct met at the courthouse to tally an official count of the primary vote at 11 a. m. today. They reported Olla Ray Boyd, Beaufort county's present candidate as polling more votes in Pitt than the two front-runners' opponents, Robert R. Reynolds of Asheville. Boyd polled 450 votes in Pitt, more than in any other county, to Reynolds' 387.

Returns in the other county and state races were not totaled by the two boards but this morning indications were that the figures would not substantially alter the face of the unofficial voting results as reported yesterday.

Wrecking Winds Sweep Across Part Of Texas

Greenville, Tex., May 30 — (AP) — Wrecking winds, a small tornado, hail, driving rains and a brilliant lightning display slammed across north and east Texas last night, causing one death.

The heaviest damage apparently was at Greenville and the nearby villages of Peepel, Tidwell and Jacobie, where trees toppled, crops were damaged, and barns and out-buildings bowled over.

Tyler, in east Texas, also suffered heavy property and crop damage. Dallas and Fort Worth were lashed by wind, hail, rain and lightning.

No injuries were reported in the tornado which battered two farm houses near Pilot Point in Denton county. The twister demolished a half dozen barns and other out-buildings and blew down telegraph poles along the T and P-Mkt tracks to Sherman.

Up-To-Date Air Force Is Being Built In Red China

Hong Kong, May 30 — (AP) — Mounting reports from South China indicated today that an up-to-date Air Force of perhaps 75 jet aircraft is being added to the Communist war machine.

The planes have been spotted all the way from Shanghai to Hainan Island off South China.

Estimates of Communist air strength vary even among foreign news whose job it is to know what goes on behind the bamboo curtain. Their guesses place the Chinese Red air strength at 200 to 400 planes, of which 25 to 75 are jets.

Along with the growing Chinese Communist air strength come these significant developments:

1. The Reds are building new air fields and re-conditioning old ones all along the China coast.

2. Jet planes have been reported as far south as Canton. These are described as Soviet LA-95, DG-38 and YAK 5 models.

The newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po in a Canton dispatch quoted a "Communist source" as saying that Liu San-Pin, chief of staff of the Chinese Red Force, and a party of Soviet advisors had set up headquarters at Amoy. Their purpose, the Hong Kong news; per said, is to supervise the air reconstruction program in South China.

But why are jet planes and radar stations appearing as far south as Canton and Mainan? Do the Chinese Reds have something in mind than just Formosa?

Observers feel the answers are not far off.

North Carolinians Still Await Word On Runoff

Raleigh, N.C., May 30 — (AP) — North Carolina today still awaited word on whether there would be a runoff primary for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

The word would have to come from Willis Smith, Raleigh lawyer who ran second to Senator Frank Graham in last Saturday's four-way primary race. Graham had a lead of about 50,000 votes but failed by about 12,000 to obtain a majority. That gave Smith the option of calling for a runoff.

Smith, busy conferring with supporters, wasn't ready to say what his intentions are. He has until June 12 to notify the State Board of

'Massacre'

By The Associated Press

Accidental deaths in the nation's four-day Memorial holiday climbed about the 400 mark today.

Traffic accidents took the heaviest toll and Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, said "slam-bang driving" and "mass indifference" had turned the holiday into a "massacre."

The council had predicted 290 persons would be killed on the highways before the holiday ended at midnight tonight, but by eleven o'clock local time the toll had already reached 269, with the big brunt of homeward bound movement set to come.

Fatalities totaled 415. In addition to the traffic deaths, 55 persons were killed by drowning and 91 in miscellaneous mishaps—fires, airplanes crashes, explosions, falls and other accidents.

Last year 413 people were killed in the three-day Memorial day week-end.

Stassen Favors U. S. Offensive

Urges Cold War 'Attack,' Rather Than Negative Approach

Carbondale, Ill., May 30 — (AP) — America should take the offensive in the cold war with Russia, Harold Stassen said today.

The University of Pennsylvania president spoke at Memorial Day services on the campus of Southern Illinois University.

"It is absolutely necessary that in the social and ideological and economic struggle we begin to attack, rather than sit back with a negative, defensive, wait-for-the-dust to settle policy," Stassen declared.

"There is graver danger today of war coming to the shores of America from a foreign source than at any time since the War of 1812."

"This is true because in these last five years we have been losing the cold war struggle with the ruthless rulers of Russia in the Kremlin."

Three "salients" for the cold attack were listed by Stassen: "First, tighten up our defense against subversion and espionage at home, permit no one to remain in a crucial, critical position in either the diplomatic or economic battlefield who has in the past been a coddler of Communists or an associate in Red causes."

"Second, embark upon an affirmative program in Asia, under the leadership of an able administrator similar to Paul Hoffman in the Marshall Plan in Europe."

"Third, carry on an extensive information program to the people beyond the Iron Curtain, using every ingenious method, including the suggestion of Dr. Robert Millikan, the eminent scientist, of floating balloons scattering literature in the cities of Russia."

Had To Oil His Ancient Auto Every Five Miles

Los Angeles, May 30 — (AP) — He didn't have to get out and get under, but Russell Cornelson of Louisville, Ky., had to oil his car at least every five miles coming across the country.

Cornelson, who arrived here yesterday, was driving a 1901 Oldsmobile. It took him six weeks. He would have been here sooner only—

"In dust storms you've got to oil this thing every mile. And did I see dust storms!"

The car's maximum speed was 10 miles an hour, but it averaged nearly 40 miles per gallon of gas.

Oil Depot Blaze Out Of Control

North Bay, Ont., May 30 — (AP) — A fire raged out of control in an oil storage depot here today. Scores fled their homes when explosions rocked the area and a heavy pall of black smoke darkened the sky.

Big gasoline drums hurtled through the air with each explosion at the Imperial Oil Company property on the western outskirts of this Northern Ontario city. Containers of Naphtha burst into flame.

Police said they feared the main storage tanks might blow up and shower flaming fuel over the community.

Correction

The unofficial tabulation of Pitt County votes of Saturday's primary as it appeared in yesterday's Reflector carried an error of 500 votes in the race for House of Representatives.

The error was made in copying the vote from the Third Street school box which showed Worthington receiving 788 votes in that box instead of 288. Other than the fact that the error showed a larger vote for Worthington who already had enough votes for nomination, it did not change the standings of the other candidates.

The corrected totals, however, reveal that Frank M. Kilpatrick received within 21 votes of a majority as announced Saturday night instead of the necessary 146 as stated in yesterday's Reflector.

CAP Alerted In Jet Crash; Pilot Turns Up Unhurt

Planes Of Local Unit Stood By For Search; Wreckage Yet Unfound

The crash of an P-9-F Panther jet plane some 18 miles north of Lake Mattamuskeet last night brought an alert from the marine base at Cherry Point to the Greenville-Washington Civil Air Patrol unit stationed here.

This morning 12 civilian pilots of the local unit stood by at the Pitt-Greenville airport awaiting orders from Cherry Point to assist in the search for the pilot who was believed to have bailed out of his jet plane before it crashed.

The pilot of the plane was found unhurt this morning, however, before the local flyers were called to join in the search for him. He was found by a helicopter from the Cherry Point marine air station Alligator Lake in Hyde County. The Cherry Point public information office stated the pilot's parachute was sighted from the air.

The marine air station notified Commanding Officer Tommy Sellers of the local CAP unit shortly before midnight last night, and requested the members of the local unit to stand by to join in the search this morning.

All planes of the local unit were standing by at the Pitt-Greenville airport this morning, Sellers said, along with 12 pilots of the unit. The pilots who were at the airport were Ray MacKenzie, J. B. Joyner, Harvey Smith, Paul Scott, Vernon Tyson, Mrs. Jackie Tyson, Dick Palmer, Tommy Sellers, Hugh Stokes and Bob Corey, all of Greenville, and Harvey Mason and Marvin Mason of Washington.

In addition to the pilots, a number of the cadets of the local CAP unit reported to the airport this morning to aid in the search if necessary.

Cherry Point, N.C., May 30 — (AP) — The pilot of a jet plane which crashed last night was found unhurt today. He was identified as Lt. A. M. Pierpont, a Navy pilot, of Quonset Point, R. I.

A helicopter from the Cherry Point Marine Air Station, sent out to search after his plane was reported missing last night, reached Lt. Pierpont near Alligator Lake in Hyde County, the Public Information Office here reported. Lt. Pierpont's parachute was spotted from the air.

The PIO had reported earlier that the wreckage of Lt. Pierpont's plane had been located by search planes. Examination of the wreckage, however, revealed it was from an old crash.

Just what happened to Lt. Pierpont's plane could not be learned immediately.

The Public Information Office said Lt. Pierpont was to be brought to Cherry Point before he is returned to Quonset Point.

Bids Opened For Pitt Road Work

Motor Company Safe Is Entered And Cash Stolen

An Estimated $350 Taken From Wagner-Waldrop Firm; Third Such Theft

Robbers last night forced their way into the Wagner-Waldrop Motor Company located at the intersection of the Farmville-Ayden highway and looted the safe of around $350 in cash.

Indications were that the robbery possibly occurred after the heavy rain storm which fell in the Greenville area last night as footprints were found at the scene of the crime. If the robbery had occurred before the rain the rain would have washed out the prints.

The company is supposedly protected by a high metal wire fence which encloses the entire rear of the building.

Officials at the company said they believed the robber or robbers gained the entrance into the back portion of the building by climbing the wire fence and then breaking a window out in the washroom.

From the back machine shops the robbers took an electric drill and several other tools, and drilled the combination of the safe. The drill broke in the middle of the operation and a punch was used to complete the job.

The drilling and the punching failed to set off a set of tear gas tubes which were located behind the combination in case of an attempted robbery. The robbers took the container with the money estimated at $350 and left. They did not bother any of the other articles in the safe nor did they take the $2,000 in checks which were also in the safe.

Nothing was misplaced in the building.

The robbery marked the third time which the local motor company has been entered by robbers in the past two years.

In September of 1948 the company was broken into and around $300 was stolen then. No one was ever apprehended for the break-in.

Again in 1949, about the same time this year, Wagner stated, an attempt was made to enter the safe but the robbers did not succeed.

The company safe is located in the private office of the company's owner. The safe is about eight feet tall and three feet wide. A wooden wall blocks view of the safe from the street.

The robbery was not discovered until employees came to work this morning.

The contents of the safe were insured, Wagner stated.

Greenville police officers were busy this morning working on the case, with fingerprints being taken from the safe. The officers did not reveal if they had any clue to the robbery.

Dog Not Shot In Yard Of Owner

The dog which Lt. T. Lucas, Farmville Chief of Police, shot recently was not shot in the front yard of owner B. O. Taylor's home as was erroneously reported in last Friday's Reflector.

Lucas stated today the dog was "not within 10 blocks of the Taylor home."

The Chief told the Board of Commissioners at its May 2 meeting he shot the bird because he thought it was mad. Taylor has since then sworn out three warrants against the Chief.

Acheson To Report

What The Secretary Of State Tells Congress Tomorrow Will Be Basis Of Much Debate In Months To Come; Decisions To Be Made; Many Problems In Europe

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, May 30 — (AP) — Early in May Secretary of State Acheson went to Europe. Tomorrow he will make a report in person to Congress on what happened overseas.

It was an important trip. And when the Secretary finishes talking there will be the usual criticism and praise if Congress reacts as it does to most things.

If you had to sum up what Acheson will say it probably would go like this: "Boys, we're up to our necks in a long fight with Communism and we may as well get used to it and do what we can to win."

Then for a long time to come Congress will have to be making decisions. So if you read carefully what Acheson says and what it means you'll be better prepared to understand what will happen in the future, based on his talk to Congress tomorrow.

Communists Are Ordered To Join Tribute To Dead

Anzio, Italy, May 30—(AP)—For the first time since they took office three years ago, the Communist mayors of Anzio and Nettuno, famed beachhead towns of World War II, took part today in a tribute to American war dead. Townspeople said citizens' committees had ordered the two mayors to take part personally in the joint Italian and American Memorial Day services at the U.S. military cemetery of Anzio and Nettuno.

Mayor Malvino Vecchiarelli of Anzio and Mayor Mario de Franceschi of Nettuno rubbed elbows with high ranking American and Italian officers on a speakers' stand facing the graves of 7,862 GIs killed on Italian soil in the war. A huge American flag dominated the scene.

The ancient trade route over the Himalayas from India to China was put back into use during World War II. Experiments are being carried on to grow truffles in the U.S. Man has eaten truffles for thousands of years.

Lessie May Corey Becomes Bride Of Alton Thomas Joyner

Miss Lessie May Corey of Robersonville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lloyd Corey, Sr., became the bride of Alton Thomas Joyner, also of Robersonville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, in a double ring ceremony solemnized Sunday afternoon, May 21, at 4:00 o'clock at the Eighth Street Christian church in Greenville.

Dr. H. Glenn Haney, pastor, officiated. Prior to the exchange of vows a program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Clarissa Brooks May of Winterville, soloist, who sang "Oh, Promise Me," "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and "The Lord's Prayer," and Miss Myrtle Manning of Robersonville, organist.

The bride was escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore an ankle length gown of chantilly lace featuring a portrait neckline with off the shoulder bertha, appliqued with satin, and fitted bodice, with a full circular skirt. Her fingertip veil was attached to an open crowned bonnet of silk illusion with lilies of the valley and velvet bows. She wore short chantilly lace mittens and carried a white prayerbook topped with baby white orchids, and showered with lilies of the valley.

Miss Sylvia Corey, sister of the bride, was Maid of Honor. She wore a white ankle length gown of daisy embroidered chiffon, lined with orchid, styled with cap sleeves, peg pockets, and featuring a V-neck with a roll collar and full skirt. She used short orchid taffeta mittens and carried a nosegay of mixed spring flowers. Her hat was of matching taffeta and chiffon.

Mrs. John Lloyd Corey, Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown was of white chiffon lined with peach taffeta and styled like that of the maid of honor. She wore a hat of matching chiffon and taffeta, mittens and carried a nosegay of mixed spring flowers.

Miss Doris Johnson of Robersonville, sister of the groom, and Miss Ann May of Raleigh and Winterville, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of white chiffon, lined with aqua taffeta, styled identically to those of the Maid and Matron of Honor. They also wore mittens, matching hats, and carried nosegays of mixed spring flowers.

Ushers were Joe Johnson, brother of the groom, John Lloyd Corey, Jr., Allen G. Corey, and Loyall Corey, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. John Lloyd Corey, Sr., mother of the bride, wore a street length dress of dusty rose crepe, with black accessories, and she wore a corsage of lavender camellias. Mrs. Arthur Johnson, mother of the groom, wore a navy dress, with navy accessories, and she wore a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Corey, Sr., parents of the bride, entertained at a reception at their home. Mrs. A. B. Etheridge of Robersonville, introduced the guests to the receiving line consisting of the bridal party. The house was beautifully decorated with mixed spring flowers. In the dining room, Mrs. Bert Whitehurst of Stokes served lime ice punch, and Miss Frances Tucker of Raleigh served bridal cakes. Mints and mixed nuts were also served. They were assisted by Mrs. Cecil O. Bilbro, of Greenville, Mrs. Wilbur Briley, of Stokes, and Mrs. Tom Langley of Washington. Miss Helen Etheridge of Robersonville and Miss Myrtle Manning of Robersonville, presided over the guest book. About 150 guests attended.

After the reception the couple left for a southern wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a white Palm Beach suit, with white and navy accessories, and the orchid corsage from her bridal bouquet. After their return they will make their home in Greenville.

Mrs. Johnson received her education at Stokes high school and attended East Carolina Teachers College. Mr. Johnson is a graduate of Robersonville high school. After serving 18 months overseas in the Army, he attended Strayer business school of accounting in Washington, D. C., and will graduate from East Carolina Teachers College in November. He is employed by Page-Barbre Insurance agency in Greenville.

On Saturday night immediately following the Johnson-Corey wedding rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Corey, Jr., entertained the bridal party and members of the bridal couple's families at a cake cutting.

The table was covered with a linen cloth and was centered with a bowl of larkspur, flanked with white tapers in crystal holders. On one end of the table was placed a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. On the other end was the punch bowl. Mrs. Andrew Carrigan, of Greenville, presided at the punch bowl. After the bridal couple cut the first slice of cake, it was served by Mrs. Cecil O. Bilbro, of Greenville. Mints and nuts were also served.

As trees grow old, less food and water is carried to vital parts, leaves become smaller, rounds heal slowly and more branches die.

Union-Banned Miner Is Back In Good Graces

Canton, Ill., May 29—(AP)—A coal miner banned from his job by the United Mine Workers' Union after attempting a back to work movement during the coal strike was back in the union's good graces today.

He is Lloyd H. Sidener of Canton, former president of UMW local 7455. Sidener was ousted from his union office and fined $50,000 by his fellow unionists on a "dual unionism" charge.

Sidener said he was told yesterday by Clarence Campbell, superintendent of the United Electric Coal Companies mine where he worked that the union local had dropped the charge and the fine. "He told me that they had notified him I was welcome to return to my job at my pleasure," Sidener said.

Acheson To . . .

(Continued from Page 1) 1952." This has been interpreted as assurance to the Europeans that they still can look to the U. S. for help when the Marshall plan ends. That, of course, will get a lot of debating in Congress all by itself. If each country tries to have a big—and balanced—military force of its own, that will take more money than if this happened: One country would try to have a big supply of land troops; another, a big supply of airplanes; another, a big supply of ships. In other words; by mutual agreement they could work out a balanced defense. The Ministers talked of doing just that. That, of course, would bring the Atlantic pact signers closer together than they have ever been in history. If they could get that close together, the next question is: why can't they get together a little better economically, instead of cutting one another's throats economically, such as by trade barriers? The Ministers talked of that idea, too. And so on. Acheson has quite a lot to report. Whether this country goes along on what the Ministers talked of depends on Congress

The People Are Getting Much Needed Rest

Well, what next, Mr. and Mrs. Voter? Now that the steaming hot senatorial campaign has subsided, at least for the time being, the people throughout North Carolina are mulling over the results of Saturday's election. They're trying to guess whether Candidate Willis Smith will call for a second primary.

No one knows just yet whether June 24 will see the people of North Carolina go back to the polls to make their final selection, or whether Graham's 40 per cent of the votes in the first primary will be enough to secure the senate seat for him for the next four years.

During the next few weeks, however, the opposing camps probably will spend their time seeing how much financial support they can garner should there be a second primary. One thing sure — it took a whale of a lot of money to finance the first fiery campaigns. Some observers estimate expenses by the two candidates ran well over the million dollar mark.

The second primary, if it materializes through Smith's call, promises to be just as hot as the first; but in the meantime the people of the state will have a few days of much needed rest from political ballyhoo.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, May 30—The spadework for semi-permanent American financial aid to Western European and other nations overseas has already been started by the State Department and Paul Hoffman's ECA in cooperation with such firm allies of the Truman Administration as the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

It begins to look as if the "cold war," with the United States providing the bulk of the economic and military reinforcement for the democratic powers, will become a political asset for the party in power at Washington, whether it be Democratic or Republican.

For there is no prospect that this country will or can withdraw from the anti-Russian coalition now, even if the GOP should take over Congress and the White House in the next few years.

COMMITTED—Like so many other Roosevelt-Truman reforms and adventures, our underwriting of world recovery and resistance to Russia has become so deeply embedded in our politico-economic structure—or will be by 1952 when the Marshall Plan is supposed to end—that no Administration would dare to or could afford to reverse this policy.

Indeed, Secretary Acheson committed us to permanent sponsorship and protection of an American union with Europe at the recent conference of Foreign Ministers at London. That is the real, overall meaning of the report he will present to Congress tomorrow on his European mission.

APPEAL—He will do so with greater confidence because, regardless of certain politicians' distrust of this assumption of greater and more permanent responsibilities, he knows that he has the backing of both labor and the nation's top industrialists.

The cash-and-carry value of government-financed exports totalling $15 billion or more in only four years has a definite appeal to manufacturers as well as to the workers.

WARN—Labor's economic experts associated with the ECA organization here and abroad have already begun to warn that any curtailment of these funds would create tremendous unemployment in the United States. In their speeches and bulletins they point out that the proposed termination of Marshall Plan machinery in 1952 would have a disastrous effect on American workers and farmers.

The principal exponent of this theory is the extremely able Boris Shishkin, former head of the A. F. of L.'s economic staff at Washington. He is now director of the ECA's European Labor Division, stationed at Paris. He has strong support for this viewpoint from Robert Nathan, formerly with the Commerce Department and the War Production Board, but now an economic consultant for Philip Murray's CIO.

This attitude marks a sharp reversal from organized labor's traditional position, which has been one of complete economic isolation. Ever since the time of Sam Gompers, the workmen's leaders have urged high tariffs to keep out cheaper and job-destroying goods, as they then saw it.

Inasmuch as the purpose of the Marshall Plan is to rebuild foreign factories, shipping and other productive facilities, labor is now fostering future competition with its own products in every field.

STATISTICS—Disregarding these long-range possibilities, Economist Shishkin recently presented the current employment effect of the foreign recovery program. "Labor's Monthly Survey," issued by the A. F. of L., had previously estimated that subsidized exports provided jobs for more than 3-million workers and farmers in the United States. The report was entitled "Is Your Job at Stake?"

Based on statistics from the State and Labor Departments, the A. F. of L. document estimated that ECA furnished employment among various categories of workers as follows: Farmers, 800,000; metal trades, 250,000; machinery, 350,000; automobiles, 125,000; textiles, 240,000; transportation, 240,000; trade, 290,000; services, 110,000.

DEPENDENT—Including those whose livelihood is dependent on balancing imports and the general business activity stimulated by this subsidized commerce, it is figured that almost 4-million Americans derive their pay checks from Marshall-Acheson Plan money.

Any foreign policy or program presented to the voters in this bread-and-butter form will be difficult to defeat at the polls or in Capitol Hill, especially when the bigwigs of industry and finance and transportation enjoy commensurate benefits.

BENEFITED—A statistical map based on export figures provided by State, ECA, Labor and Commerce shows how almost every region, with the exception of New England and Florida, has benefited from this outward flow of goods. These documents will make excellent campaign propaganda next fall. Here is the breakdown:

Middle Atlantic and Middle West states: Machinery, steel, coal, agricultural equipment, meat, automobiles.
South and Southwest: Tobacco, cotton, oil, naval stores.
Far West: Wheat and corn.
Coast: Oil, aircraft, lumber, apples, canned fruits and vegetables.

A Lesson For Us

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
ANGELS AND DEMOCRACY
One of the great troubles about communism is that it levels everything down; nothing is leveled up. All that communism distributes is poverty.
We should examine carefully most of the fancy schemes advanced for the alleviation of human suffering. Most of them are based on the conviction that the people who hold property acquired it unjustly and should be deprived of it. It is, of course, a disconcerting social fact that about fifteen per cent of the population of the country own eighty per cent of its property and securities. The simple method many people propose for changing this situation is to take values away from the people who have them and give them to people who do not have them.
Democracy gives everybody a chance. In a democracy, the ladder of achievement is open so that the humblest boy may climb to dizzy heights if he has the ability to do so. In other words, democracy would insure everyone the right to achieve to the utmost of his powers, while all forms of collectivism would level everyone down to the achievement of the inept.
There are great spiritual implications in these two systems. In spite of what reformers may cry to the contrary, but it would appear that the angels are on the side of democracy.

This Investigation Could Be Scorcher—Or A Dud

Men in public office do a wonderful job of protecting the security of other men in politics. And men in politics do a wonderful job of keeping in public office the men who will protect them.

Take for instance this talk of a senate investigation of gambling and organized crime on a national level. It would be quite enlightening to the people of the United States if the members of Congress would go at this investigation the way they have gone after the red herring chases and other similar probes.

The only hitch seems to be that a thorough investigation of organized crime in this country might show a close connection between the organized rackets and the organized politics in many sections. It could be extremely embarrassing for the Democrats, the Republicans, and the various factions of the two groups collectively. Likewise it probably could prove embarrassing for some of the politicians individually, to say nothing of the legal ramifications a thorough investigation would hold in store for the members of the organized crime divisions of the country.

Yes, it would be fine to see a knock-down, drag out congressional investigation of crime in the United States. But its reality seems remote, considering that accusing fingers sooner or later probably would be pointed at too many of the ones doing the investigating.

Memorial Day—1950

Today millions of Americans across this broad land paused from their daily tasks to pay homage to the men who have given their lives for the United States on the battlegrounds of this country and in foreign fields.

The thought and prayers of these Americans also turned to the millions of other living Americans who, after answering this nation's call to arms, have returned to their homes to live in the victory and peace they and their fallen comrades have won.

Following the War Between the States, May 30 was set as Dedication Day—a memorial to the men of the Union army. After the first global conflict of the twentieth century, May 30 was named Memorial Day in honor of all the veterans of all the wars of this nation.

Memorial Day of 1950 finds the world divided into two factions, separated by the Elbe river and two philosophies of government. The two factions are teetering on the narrow line between peace and war.

Today America offered prayers for its gallant men. And while America prayed that never again would its youth have to engage in armed conflict, its diplomats maneuvered to secure the peace which has been so recently won on the battlegrounds; and the nation's industrial facilities ground out new and more destructive weapons of war.

Americans prayed for peace today, and

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Until television reaches the telephone, there'll always be instances like this:
Wednesday night J. C. Clifford telephoned me to give me a column idea. There's nothing I appreciate more, but at that time I was already 15 minutes late for the bridge club, and had to drop by Austin auditorium after I left home.

"Jack," Mr. Clifford said, "there was a colt born down here on Harding Street, and I thought you might want to write a column about it."
"I certainly would," I replied. "And I really appreciate your calling to tell me about it." But that didn't close the conversation. "And a week ago there were some rabbits born down here," he added. After I thanked him again and thought the conversation closed he added, "and some dogs, too."

By this time I expected to hear that elephants, lions and tigers had been born on Harding Street. When I went to see the "daddy" and "mother," Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Riddick, I could easily see that there's plenty of room for more animals, and before this project of theirs is complete, there might be lions and tigers. Meanwhile, there are four ponies, 90 chickens, 10 rabbits, and a Toy Manchester dog, with a pair of canaries arriving this week from Espy, Pa.

The Riddick house is located on a lot 150 feet by 210 feet, which allows plenty of room for their hobby. In addition, they have a six-acre plot on the Pactorus highway, where two of the ponies and most of the 90 chickens are located.

"How do you like your husband's hobby?" I asked Mrs. Riddick. Her answer denoted that it's as much her hobby as his. "I like it fine," she said, "Now Forrest talks about the animals all the time, instead of plumbing supplies." (Mr. Riddick is manager of Eastern Carolina Supply, a plumbing and heating wholesale house.) "I don't know a thing about the supplies, but I do know something about animals."

When Mr. Riddick bought the new colt's mother (for $375) the order had already been placed with the stork for the baby colt. All orders have to be placed 11 months in advance. Mr. Riddick plans to breed the mother again, and eventually sell ponies. "But I'll never sell the first one I raise," he says.

Beauty, the mother of colt, considers her new son private property. As we approached the new colt, he was lying on the ground. When Beauty saw us coming, she nudged the colt to get up, and the two of them stalked away. "She's foolish about that new colt," Mr. Riddick said. When he attempted to put a halter on Little Dampie, the new colt, Beauty raised such a fuss that Mr. Riddick gave up the idea. "I think she would have kicked me," he said, "and before the colt was born she ate out of my hand."

The Riddicks entertain the children in the neighborhood with their colts. Sometimes there are as many as 15 children in their spacious yard, riding colts. Their son, Eddie, following in his parents' footsteps, at five, he's already catching all the bugs he can find and storing them in glass jars.

And I thank Mr. Clifford, who led me to the column.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, N. C.

?????— Question marks dotted the capitol scenery Monday and Tuesday. Will there be a second primary for the United States senate between Frank Graham and Willis Smith? Can Smith overcome the commanding lead run up by Graham last Saturday? How many of the 600,000 Democrats who voted then will return to complete the nominating job on June 24? Can either or both get enough money to carry on the fight four more weeks? While most of the people asking these questions are simply curious, the answers are being seriously sought in conferences throughout the state since Sunday morning.

NEW START — Most people with whom you reporter has talked agree that if a run-off is authorized it will be in all essential features an entirely new campaign. From beginning it was recognized this was a contest between Graham and Smith, with Graham having odds-on advantage. But it was also believed that in a second primary the Bob Reynolds vote would be important. All that figuring was hypothesized upon a total vote of less than 500,000 (most forecasts were for 450,000) with Reynolds getting from ten to fifteen percent of the total. The total went above 600,000 and Reynolds share was considerably less than ten percent. So, if a run-off is held the contest will be what the lawyers call a "de novo" action with Graham and Smith as principals and everybody else ignored, and with odds approximately the same as when the first primary campaign started.

EXPERIENCE — There will be an experience record for information. Size of the vote Saturday proved the people are interested. It proved that wisecracks don't know as much as they thought they knew about popular interest in government. It proved that a great many North Carolinians vote their convictions without letting anybody know how they voted; and it also proved that thousands of North Carolinians can be voted in blocks through pressure from outside. Two predominantly Negro precincts in Raleigh proved that. The vote in one was approximately fifty to one for Graham.

VOTERS—More people, almost a hundred thousand more, voted last Saturday than had ever participated in a Democratic primary before. In fact, Senator Graham's vote alone was comparable to the total in some previous primaries in which several candidates were involved. Biggest vote ever given before to any Democratic primary candidate for the senate was the 247,365 votes for the late Josiah William Bailey in 1938. Senator Graham got fifty thousand more than that high figure. At the same time, Willis Smith, though far behind Graham, got almost if not fully as many (depending upon final official tabulation) as the highest ever accorded any previous candidate. It is interesting to note that Willis Smith vote last Saturday was substantially more than that given Kerr Scott two years ago in his run-off with Charles M. Johnson for the gubernatorial nomination. Official returns gave Scott 217,620 votes, while unofficial returns now indicate a Smith vote above 245,000. Senator and former Governor Clyde Hoy held the all-time record until now for Democratic primary votes for major state office. Hoy's 266,354 in the run-off with Ralph McDonald (214,414) for governor in 1938 has not been approached until Senator Frank Graham copped 30,000 more last week. In the heated race for the senate two years ago J. M. Broughton won a 24,000 margin over W. B. Umstead with a vote of 207,981—nearly thirty thousand less than were cast for Smith last Saturday. All these factors must be considered by the strategists in deciding whether to have a second primary this year. It boils down to this, on basis of Saturday's voting: More North Carolinians wanted Willis Smith for their senator than had ever wanted anybody else; but, fifty thousand more wanted Frank Graham. Which choice will a second primary confirm, is what worries the folks running the campaigns.

CONFUSING — Screwball and confusing features of the campaign continued through tabulation of the vote. Traditional political policy is to claim everything, concede nothing. Respective camps followed that policy and all claimed they would win in the first primary. Off record confidential talks with attaches of the several headquarters elicits information that were honestly surprised in a lot of instances. The Graham folks really thought they had Mecklenburg; Smith led there by 4,000 or more. The Smith folks really thought they had Gaston better than two-to-one over all contenders. They led Graham, but fell considerably short of majority in totals. These two big counties afford a sample of what occurred in many others throughout the state.

NAMES—There were amusing incidents as well as serious events last Saturday. Take congressional races in two districts. Hamilton C. Jones, representative from the tenth, won renomination. But in the adjoining eleventh district there is a Hamilton-Jones second primary between Charles Hamilton of Gastonia and Woodrow Jones of Rutherfordton. One newspaperman in Raleigh says he is pulling for Hamilton because he doesn't want to Jones in congress. That would call for identification by name or district every time the representative appeared in a news story.

NO POLITICS—Here's a non-political item. It is learned that directors of the Lost Colony symphonic-drama-pagant on Roanoke Island have authorized borrowing $10,000 to open the show this year. Physical property, including water-side theatre and stage equipment, is being hooked to secure the loan. But actual security is personal endorsement of some backers, whose names are worth more at the bank than physical collateral of the Waterside Theatre.

ENTERTAINMENT—The Cherokee pagant is also having financial trouble getting ready to open early in July. Information is that handicaps will be overcome in both the far eastern and far western shows, and that during July and August visitors from far points as well as home-folks will have opportunity to see both presentations of history and romance which have built North Carolina.

How to stem the tide of rising expenses, and reduce the number and size of markdowns, are the chief problems facing retailers at this time, analysis of the 1949 Merchandising and Operating Results released yesterday by the National Dry Goods Association, indicates.
The erosion of retail profits last year, from 3.8 per cent after taxes in 1948 to 2.7 in '49, can be traced directly to:
Operating expenses, which increased to 31.8 per cent of sales from 30.1 in '48.
Markdowns, which rose to 7.5 per cent compared with 7 the previous year. They were especially severe in the case of specialty stores. These retailers took markdowns amounting to 8.7 per cent as against 7.6 the year before. Since the markdowns occurred largely in apparel, smaller stores—who lean more heavily on soft goods than do the bigger fellows—similarly took a licking in this department. Smaller stores had markdowns amounting to 8.6 per cent compared to the nice lean 7 per cent of the year before.
Retailers had to resort to cut-price sales in women's apparel and piece goods more than other departments. The only exceptions to the downward trend in women's departments — and they're significant ones — were suits, blouses, skirts and sportswear.
The significance is that women have been turning more and more to suits as an economy move. When a woman buys a suit, she has the basis for several costumes. When she buys a dress, as trade experts point out, she has a dress.
How to reduce markdowns? One way, obviously, is to limit stocks, but that's risky because you may reduce sales as well as markdowns, and there's no profit in that. But there are two possibilities:
1—Swim with the tide. If your customers are wearing suits, that's the line to push—and plenty of accessories with them. You won't sell as many suits as dresses, but a suit is a higher-ticket item, and can serve as the basis of more accessories than do dresses. But be alert to any change in trend. If women get tired of suits and want dresses soon, don't keep pushing suits.
2—Reduce those returns. You'll cut operating expenses too, as well as cut down the number of soiled or otherwise stale garments that must go on clearance racks. One way to reduce returns, is to get the customer to take more time to try on and satisfy herself before the orders.

STORES BRING UP BIG GUNS TO BATTLE FOR BUSINESS
One of the significant facts revealed by the report on retail operating results for 1949, is that the sizable decline in sales some observers had predicted was largely fought off by vigorous promotion efforts. The stores increased publicity expenditures to 4.2 per cent of sales in 1949, compared with 3.9 the year before. For the second consecutive year they bought more newspaper space, while maintaining expenditures on other media close to 1948 levels.
Actual dollar sales in the typical store dropped off only 6 per cent in '49 which means unit sales were off even less. All in all, last year was pretty good for retailers at that despite the public's spectacular forays into the auto and housing markets.

DRUG MEN ATTENDING TO INDUSTRIAL HEALTH NEEDS
Drug men are finding a new market in the special medical supply requirements of industry. For example, oilproof bandages have just come on the market. Another development is antibiotics that remain effective in the presence of grease and cutting oils. The usual penicillin ointments do not. Soap men are also using synthetic detergents now to make hand cleaners work faster and more effectively.
BUSINESSMEN GO BACK TO THE CLASSROOM
Another evidence of the growing attention colleges are giving to the further training of business executives (not the future ones, but those already at work) is visible in the new graduate course for business men. Columbia University will offer next Fall. The new course will give high-level specialized training in advertising management to a carefully screened group.

Hal Boyle's Column

New York—(AP)—It happened in an after time.
An old, old man and a small boy walked slowly, hand in hand, across a green field loud with meadowlarks.
They came to a weathered stone sunk deep in the grass. Once there had been a name upon the stone, but wet chisels of rain through the years had chipped it away. And the moss had crept up. The man beneath the stone was now anonymous to any passerby.
A yellow butterfly suddenly fluttered near, and the boy ran to grab at it.
"Don't step there, son," the old man said gently.
"Why not, Grandpa?"
"Because someone is buried there."
"Who?"
"My grandpa."
"Your grandpa, Grandpa?" said the bewildered boy. "Do you have a grandpa, too?"
"Well, I did. Everybody has a grandpa at one time or another."
"What was your grandpa like?" asked the boy. "He must have been very old. Did he have a white beard?"
The old man laughed.
"No, he was young—about the same age as your father."
"You're joking, Grandpa," said the boy. "Grandpas are always older than people. They can't be younger. I know that."
"You see, my grandpa died young—long before I even was born," replied the old man, patiently. "He was killed fighting in a war."
"A war—what's a war?"
"When there is fear between people, it—"
"What is fear?" interrupted the small boy.
"Never mind. I'll tell you about that some other time," said the old man. "Today I'll just tell you about war. Long, long ago before the world became united, different groups of people used to get mad at each other or afraid of each other and they would kill each other. until they got tired of killing. Then they would stop and rest. That is what a war was."
"Were there many wars?"
"Oh, thousands . . . thousands. My grandpa was killed in the last war."
"When was that?"
"It was back in 1945. Let's see—why that was 105 years ago."
The old man knelt, unwrapped a small parcel of flowers, and placed them against the sunken headstone.
"Why did you do that?" asked the boy.
"This is Memorial Day," explained the old man. "Once a year, just to show they hadn't forgotten the men who died in the wars, people used to come and decorate their graves. The custom has pretty much died out in the last 50 years, but I like to keep it up."
"But if your grandpa was in a war and killed people he must have been a bad man," said the boy gravely. "Why do you bring him flowers—if he was bad?"
"He wasn't bad—war was bad. He did what the other men of his time felt they had to do."
"What did they kill each other with in wars?" asked the boy.
"Oh, they used guns—they looked like that branch over there," said the old man, pointing at a dead limb that had fallen from a nearby tree. "They'd point the gun at somebody, and it would go bang-bang and kill him."
The small boy walked over and touched the branch. He picked it

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Pipe-smoking weather-tanned Dr. Gardner Bump was furiously preoccupied. He bowed me to a chair in his crowded office. Photographic equipment, K-rations, sleeping bags, mosquito netting and car tools were piled on the floor. People barged in and out. Dr. Bump bustled back and forth. The phone rang. He said:
"Yes, the bastard (European game bird) does a series of interesting spring dances . . . Hee like the desert grouse here . . . Yes, dances are usually associated with mating season . . . Oh, the grouse and their babies! Well, some say they bring water to them on their feathers. There are many theories. Got to go now."
He hung up. Constantly checking his watch and papers on his desk, he gave me a hasty fill-in on his projected trip to the Near East. He hopes to get some game bird species that will take to the semi-arid lands of western states to fill the need for better hunting. Many native game birds have not survived over-grazing and man's sail-tilling.
It's a two-man, six-month safari sponsored by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Dr. Bump, foreign game expert for the service, and his son Robert, an undergraduate at Cornell, are going to Turkey, Iran (Persia) and neighboring countries . . . son at dad's expenses, not taxpayers'.

Dr. Bump will study 30 or more game-bird species known to live on sparse desert cover in southwestern Asia. These include four species of bustard, seven of chukar partridge, three of francolin, nine of sand grouse. He feels that one of the sand grouse may be all right to introduce in the depleted Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada desert range. More like pigeons than grouse, they feed largely on desert seed and include non-migrant types believed capable of settling down.

The ring-necked pheasant, the Hungarian partridge and a chukar partridge now becoming plentiful in Nevada are successful introductions of the past. Dr. Bump doesn't know yet how two species of grouse, introduced last year from Lapland to 10,000-acre Outer Island in Lake Superior, will make out. Mrs. Bump went with him on this trip. An amateur ornithologist, she raised several thousand ruffed grouse for New York State, where for 16 years Dr. Bump was in charge of the Conservation Department. "She's as much a nut on the subject as I am," Dr. Bump confided.

The Near East investigations this year, Dr. Bump explains, will not be concerned with game birds that would be difficult to control once introduced. They must not be competitors with native species, nor likely to become an economic liability," he said. "It'll be 10 to 20 years before they'll be good hunting material."

Overall Condition Of Tobacco Crop In Pitt Showing Promise

Regardless of the critical condition of Pitt's tobacco plants three or four weeks ago, the present condition of the fields gives promise of a good crop when the leaves are cured.

Tobacco Agent Sam Weeks said today the overall condition of the tobacco fields is good and the crop is "coming along nicely." The drought of a month ago that caused many farmers to fear a shortage of plants to go into the fields, has now been forgotten. Plants are growing fast at the present time, although some may be a little behind schedule, he said.

However, farmers should be on the alert to damage caused by aphids and bud worms, Weeks pointed out. He said he had seen the presence of aphids in several fields throughout the county already. Plants were seriously damaged last year by the plant lice but no damage was estimated.

Weeks urged farmers to begin dusting or spraying now when the aphids are few in numbers. The use of one percent parathion dust, the same dust used for plant beds, is effective as is the use of TEPP spray.

The aphids first appeared in Pitt fields in 1946, but the damage was not widespread. In 1948 the crop received its worst damage of any previous year. The leaves lose weight, due to attacks by the lice, resulting in poor quality leaf for market.

Bud worms are now present, also, in the fields, Weeks said, and they should be poisoned immediately. Using arsenic lead with corn meal for bait is the most effective remedy. Six heaping tablespoons to a peck of meal, applying a pinch of the bait to each bud, will be sufficient for the entire season, provided there is no rain immediately after application. The baiting should be done in the morning before the buds close, Weeks said.

The worms are present this year in greater numbers than in any previous year. They are actually corn ear worms and will be attracted to the arsenic lead when mixed with the corn meal.

License-Makers On Night Shift

Raleigh, May 30—(AP)—The state's growing motor vehicle population is going to put the central prison license tag plant on a night shift.

Because of increasing registrations the motor vehicles department is ordering 1,200,000 sets of license plates for 1951. Prisons director J. B. Moore said the extra shift would be needed to get production to the desired level.

A tractor mow can cut 23 much hay in 10 minutes as 10 men in a day.

Ready To Trade License Plates

Raleigh, N. C. May 30—(AP)—Motorists having on their vehicles two 1950 license plates on which the paint is peeling were asked by the motor vehicle department today to exchange the tags for new ones.

The exchange will be made without cost to the motorist either by mail from the Raleigh or upon application to any branch office in the state. Where paint is peeling on the front plate only, the department did not request motorist to make an exchange.

Tag Day Set To Help Negro Boys

Members of the Negro Civic League and church organizations of Greenville have been granted permission by the city board of aldermen to conduct a tag day June 3 to raise money for the Negro boys midget league.

George Garrett, chairman of the Negro league committee for the tag day, said the money obtained from the effort will be used to purchase uniforms for the midget team. Equipment for the use of the team during the summer months will be provided by the city recreation commission.

Garrett pointed out that the purpose of the effort to organize the midget teams for the Negro boys of the city is to give them something to do during the summer months rather than having them roaming the streets and playing near the river.

Bicycles Should Be Registered Police Station

Police Chief Lester D. Page issued a warning yesterday about bicyclists not having city license tags on their wheels. A city ordinance provides that owners of bicycles shall be registered at the police department; that a metal tag containing a number must be attached, and that the registration shall be recorded.

Police investigation revealed that numerous stores and other business places which use bicycles for delivery service have not registered them according to the city law requirements. Authorities stated that the city ordinance provides that unlicensed bicycles may be impounded for 30 days.

Chief Page's warning today was to businessmen who own bicycles for delivery service to have them registered and avoid embarrassment.

Turns In Badge As Protest Over Lack Of Support

Danbury, N. C. May 30—(AP)—A 39-year-old Stokes county deputy sheriff today turned in his badge as a protest against the lack of public support in enforcing law—especially in the liquor field.

"Too many people do not actually stand for law and order but ask special privileges and favoritism when I try to enforce the law," Ralph J. Shelton of Peter's Creek said.

He was appointed a deputy three and one-half years ago and has served since that time under Sheriff Joe Helsabeck. The sheriff did not seek re-nomination this year.

Deputy Shelton blasted the liquor business, which he described as "growing by leaps and bounds," as being at the root of the law enforcement trouble in Stokes county.

Truman Expected To Ask Congress For Arms Fund

Washington, May 30—(AP)—President Truman is expected to ask Congress this week for about $1,225,000,000 to finance American arms shipments to 14 foreign countries.

The State Department and Budget Bureau have recommended this amount as necessary to bolster American policy in the cold war. The money would be for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

President Truman is scheduled to submit the request to Congress on Thursday.

The sum is slightly less than the $1,238,600,000 appropriated by Congress last year for arms shipments to 13 friendly nations.

Guardsmen Keep Vigil At Plant

Morristown, Tenn. May 30—(AP)—Tennessee National Guardsmen stood guard today at the strike-bound American Enka Corporation's Rayon plant.

They converged on Morristown by plane and motor convoy yesterday to stem violence in the nine-week-old strike. They guarded plant entrances during shift changes as some workers passed through CIO picket lines.

Reverse Twist In 'Rat Pack' Crime

Long Beach, Calif. May 30—(AP)—"Rat pack" attacks—teen-agers assaulting their elders—had a reverse twist today.

Edwin Walker, 16, told police three men kidnaped him as he left a bus, beat him, then threw him out last night after taking all his money—a dime—"so we can get some more liquor."

Glass that will conduct electricity has been developed with the idea it can be used for a wide variety of heating purposes.

Korean Election Relatively Quiet

Seoul, Korea, May 30—(AP)—Small scale terrorist raids and isolated acts of violence erupted today as South Koreans balloted for a new national assembly.

But the major disruptions promised by Communist North Korea in broadcasts from Pyongyang did not materialize. Police officials said pre-election crackdowns on about 500 suspects had left Communist elements leaderless.

Between 6,000,000 and 8,000,000 voters cast ballots to fill the 210 seats in the South Korea republic's single house. Last minute withdrawals cut the number of candidates to 2,144, representing 15 parties. More than two-thirds were listed as independents.

This was the first self-conducted election in Korea's 4,000 year history. Two years ago, the U. S. Military Government supervised the election. Korea for 50 years before the end of World War II had been under Japanese control.

Dog Catcher On Job; Takes Up 980 During Year

Enoch Elisha Jones, official dog catcher for the municipality of Greenville, has taken up during the past year 980 dogs. The dog law was passed June 1, 1949. Many of the canines were redeemed by their owners after paying the customary fee and for the dog's board for the time incarcerated.

A city ordinance makes it unlawful for any dog to run at large on the streets of the city. It provides that all dogs shall be licensed and carry tags. The registration fee is $1 for males and $2 for females at the city clerk's office.

The dog catcher said today he has 35 or 40 dogs at the city pound. Owners or others may reclaim any dog on identification and payment of a fee of $2.50 and 50 cents a day for keep. He said unclaimed dogs or unhealthy canines are disposed of by a veterinary surgeon.

Beer and Wine License Is Due By Wednesday

The local Bureau of Revenue has warned all persons desiring a beer and wine license to get it before tomorrow, May 31. After that time a penalty of five percent of the cost of the license will be charged.

The expiration date for licenses for the year 1950-51 was actually April 1, but a one month grace period is allowed without penalty. All licenses must be renewed each fiscal year.

Many persons have in the past been penalized for failure to renew their old licenses because of a misinterpretation of the law. Beer-wine licenses must be gotten by May 1, or in the month grace period thereafter. All other licenses are obtainable until June 1.

Office hours for the Bureau office in the courthouse are 8:30-5:30 on Monday, and 8:30-10 a.m. Tuesday through Friday. The office is closed all day Saturday.

Hook and Ladder To Raise A Flag

Wilmington, N. C. May 30—(AP)—A fire department hook and ladder truck was called into service this morning to aid in raising the flag on the lawn at the Wilmington City Hall.

When police officers tried to raise the flag for Memorial Day, they found the ropes hopelessly twisted. The truck was called in. It drove up on the sidewalk, raised its ladder to the top of the pole, and a fireman scurried up.

The fireman replaced the ropes with cables, and the flag was raised.

Robins And Goldsboro Are Halted By Rain At 1-1 Tie

Downpour Stopped Game In Top Of Sixth With Bases Loaded; A Walk, Stolen Base And Single By Tepedino Saves Locals From Loss

The Greenville Robins and the Goldsboro Cardinals battled to a 1-1 tie last night when rain halted the contest in the top of the sixth inning, at which time the Cardinals had three men on base with one out. The score, therefore, reverted to the fifth inning.

Goldsboro scored its lone run in the fourth inning when Bill Smith and Bill Johnson singled and Rick Ferrell's Texas Leaguer filled the bases. Jim Reiter sent a long fly to center and Smith scored after the catch.

The Robins were saved from defeat in the bottom of the fifth inning when they managed to garner their only hit off Lefty Bobby Slaybaugh and with the aid of a walk.

After Jim Lewey had been put out pitcher to first, Paul Strausser walked, stole second, and then John Tepedino singled into left field to bring home Strausser.

Bobby Slaybaugh, with a record of two wins and no defeats against the Greenville Robins this season, allowed only one hit, but was very wild for the night as he walked a total of seven men in the five frames which he worked. He struck out five men.

Jim Lewey, who was seeking his first win over the Cardinals after dropping a game earlier in the season, was touched for seven hits in the five frames, but he walked only one man and struck out five.

The Robins face a double-header with the Tarboro Athletics today playing over in Tarboro at 3:00 this afternoon and then playing the second game here at Guy Smith Stadium tonight at 7:45 o'clock.

'Floating Hotel' Considered For 1952 Olympics

London (AP) Travel officials here are thinking up a floating hotel to house hundreds of Britons planning to attend the 1952 Olympic games in Helsinki. That way they'll be able to beat the housing shortage in Finland.

Stanley Briault, travel organizer and housing chief for the London 1948 Olympic games, said today that "so many already want to go to Helsinki that an Olympic liner seems to be the only solution of all the housing and travel problems."

All the conversation concerning the fancy offers which the Washington Senators declined have had only one effect on Ray Scarborough, their much sought after mound ace. Ray figures that he must be pretty good if other clubs indicate a willingness to bid so high for him. But aside from the added confidence he feels, all the trade talk has little effect on him. He fully realizes that Owner Clark Griffith cannot afford to pay him as much as other owners might, but he is satisfied to pitch for Washington because he likes Manager Bucky Harris and the Washington fans.

Phils Upset Forecasts By Holding Down Loop

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
If anybody had predicted a couple of months ago that the Philadelphia Phils could come into Brooklyn in Memorial Day as the National League leaders he'd probably have been regarded as nothing more than a died-in-the-wool Philly fanatic.

But here it is May 30 and those Fightin' Phils are sitting on the roof of the standings, enjoying a half game margin on the defending champion Brooklyn Dodgers.

New York, May 30—(AP)—Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn is rallying to the defense of the National League batting title he held last year, but the fleet Dodger ace has quite a bit to go to catch St. Louis' Stan Musial.

Record-Setting Time Believed In Store By Racers

Indianapolis, May 30—(AP)—Prospects of hub-to-hub competition and a new record for the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race pulled a mammoth crowd through the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 11 gates today.

Speedway officials had facilities set up to handle more than 175,000 spectators.

The fastest field in the 34 runnings of the sweepstakes was capable of finishing the 200-lap contest in four hours or less at a speed of 125 miles an hour. It depended on the weather—with a possibility of showers—and whether the race was slowed by bad wrecks.

Bill Holland of Reading, Pa., missed the four-hour mark last year by less than eight minutes in setting the record winning average of 121-327 miles an hour.

Holland and Mauri Rose of South Bend, Ind., who edged out Holland for first money in 1947 and 1948, were the only former winners in the 33-car field.

Rose, co-winner with Floyd Davis in 1941, had shifted from the Blue Crown team to a front-drive car owned by the Howard Keck Co. of Los Angeles in his campaign to become the first four-time winner. It was a proved car, driven non-stop to sixth money last year by Jimmy Jackson, Desert Hot Springs, Calif.

Jackson had the only unorthodox racer in today's field, a new six-cylinder Cummins Diesel Special built as an experiment by the Cummins Engine Co. of Columbus, Ind. The slowest car in the qualifications, it nevertheless showed more speed than can be used in the race and has proved its durability in more than 800 miles of test runs.

The rest of the cars were powered by four-cylinder engines, Meyerdrakes or their predecessor Offenhausers.

It lacked only one car of being an all-American field. The exception was an Italian Maserati Chassis, fitted with a Meyerdrake engine and driven by Henry Banks of Compton, Calif., who was born in England.

Winterville Tops Lofton, Moving Into Second Place

Winterville's Tobacco County League team swept a doubleheader from Lofton Saturday and Sunday, thereby moving into second place in the league standings.

Saturday's score was a shutout, 10-0, and Winterville came back in Sunday's outing to win a close one, 4-2. Pitching for the victors was Five and catching was Odum. Sunday's battery was Clark, Kittrell, Evans and B. Odum.

Saturday's batter for Lofton was McRoy and Sawyer, and Sunday's was Warren, Lang and Sawyer.

Winterville scored three runs in the seventh inning of the second game to go ahead of a 2-1 Lofton lead. Lofton didn't score after that.

Belvoir continued its winning ways by taking two games for last-place Darden's Store. Sunday's tiff resulted in a slugfest, 15-10. Saturday's game was a wee closer with Belvoir coming out on the long end of a 6-1 count.

Pitching for Belvoir in the first game was Bell with Hughes catching. For Darden's it was Oakley pitching and Shivers catching. Sunday's batteries were: Belvoir—Coggins, Nichols and Oakley; Darden's—Harrington, Oakley and Shivers.

Belvoir scored in all but three innings. Their biggest frames were the second and sixth when they put across four runs in each. Tripp hit a homerun for the victors to put them out in front of a previous Darden lead.

Here is the league ruling on tied games in the Coastal Plain as set forth in the constitution at by-laws—All tied or tied games shall be played at the next meeting of the same clubs on the same grounds as a double-header, and if same clubs do not meet again on same grounds said games shall be canceled. . . "In the event a game is suspended because of rain, it is a regular game has been played, and the game is called, then the next time the two clubs meet on the same grounds, play will be resumed at the point it was interrupted, and the game played to completion before the regularly scheduled game." So putting the rule in plain English it just means that when Goldsboro come back here on Saturday night of this week it will be a double bill with the first game being a seven inning affair and the second one a nine-inning game. The game last night is recorded in the official records as a tie game.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gorman of West Hartford, Conn., were the weekend guests of General Manager Russ Filley of the Robins. Mr. Gorman is a former professional ball player, and is the New England scout for the Robins and the other clubs of Mr. Roy Dissinger, president of the Robins. Mr. and Mrs. Gorman both stated they enjoyed their stay here and were very much pleased with Greenville and the hospitality and friendliness of its people. They left here today, expressing the hope they could make a return visit at an early date it was the writer's pleasure to meet Mr. and Mrs. Gorman and they were both swell folks and in behalf of the baseball fans and citizens of Greenville, may I extend to both of you an open invitation to return to Greenville whenever you find time. You are always welcome.

Roy Dissinger, President of the Greenville Club, is spending a few days in Greenville watching the Robins and talking business details with business manager Russ Filley. . . Frank Tepedino, brother to Johnny Tepedino, who played with the Rocky Mount Leafs last season and more recently in the Bright Leaf League, is now holding down the shortstop position for the Roanoke Rapids. . . It can now be said officially that Steve Collins, Kinston Eagles manager last season, has been released as skipper of the Moultrie team of the Georgia-Florida League. His place was taken by George Trew from Grand Rapids. . . James (Rick) Ferrell, catcher with the Goldsboro Cardinals, is a nephew of Wes and Rick Ferrell, former American League brother battery, and George Ferrell, a Cardinal scout. . . Quoting from Herman Blackman's column in today's News and Observer we find there are 24 ex-Coastal Plain League players performing in the semi-pro Bright Belt League. . . Sam McLawhorn, who burned up the Coastal Plain a few years back is playing in the Bright Belt League. . . The players quit the Wilmington team when Manager Bull Hamons was canned. . . One of them, Peg Orent, now is with Wilson in the Coastal Plain.

Six Years Of Hunting For Son Reported Missing During War

By ART EVERETT
New York, May 30—(AP)—The years are running out on him. His hair is whiter, his tired face more drawn. But Harry Lepselter's heart-breaking search still goes on. He is now trying to find a North Carolina soldier who might bolster his hopes.

Lepselter is the little Brooklyn waiter whose only son vanished in a bomber over France in World War II.

That was six years ago. Everybody long since gave the boy up for dead—everybody, that is, except his father and mother.

"If I thought for a minute he was dead, I would give up, too," says Lepselter. "But I know—I know he is alive. Inside me I feel it—here."

And his thin hand pats his chest over the heart.

His hopes are kept alive by rumors or reports that come to him from time to time. These send the 56-year-old man home from his work to follow up the clues far into the night.

People, whose hearts have been touched by this gentle little man's quest, write him like this from Europe:

"Hans Guschwa met Lepselter in Paris in September, 1944. . . . "He was seen with a French civilian worker in Dusseldorf by Mrs. Elisabeth Loebenstein. . . . "It is true that he was, with his real name, with an American signal troupe from the beginning to the middle of April, 1945. . . . "In January, 1946, he was seen with another man near Bayreuth (Germany) by Dieter Flegner. . . . "On Sept. 7, 1947, Lepselter was seen by Konstantin Rosentreter. . . . "On March 21, 1950, Mrs. Wally Ninin Boganosie met two young Americans in a restaurant in Switzerland. I remember very well that one of them called his friend Nat. . . . "And there the trail ends—if you can call it a trail. Staff Sgt. Nathan Lepselter is still dead as far as the records are concerned.

But his father keeps going. With each clue, he mails a new batch of photographs of his boy abroad—24,000 so far, and each one carrying a little bit of his heavy heart with it.

His best clue now, he thinks, is a report that his son was befriended in 1947 by an American soldier in Furth, Germany. The soldier's name was John H. Reed. His serial number was RA 14126985. His last known address, the War Department says, was Tuckasee, N.C.

But Lepselter's frantic letters to Reed were returned unopened. His whereabouts were not known in Tuckasee.

Observatory Of Ancients Found

Cairo, Egypt, May 30—(AP)—British archeologists have discovered an observatory used 4,000 years ago in the ancient city of Nimod, in Iraq, a Baghdad dispatch to the Arab news agency said today.

The dispatch said the archeologists under Prof. Max Mallowan, of the University of London, also had unearthed halls, aqueducts and the storehouse of a palace in the city, which was the capital of Assyria about 2,000 B.C.

The observatory, the dispatch said, consisted of three floors and a tower. At the top of the tower was a temple where King Ashur Nasserpal III performed rites as a high priest.

According to the report, the ancient Assyrians knew how to plot star movements and to calculate the days of the year.

Mallowan was quoted as saying the excavations at Nimrod would take 50 years to complete.

Hawaii Honors War Dead With Many Blossoms

Honolulu, May 30—(AP)—Millions of flowers brightened today the graves of war correspondent Ernie Pyle and 12,500 other American war dead in Punchbowl Crater overlooking this city.

It was a typically Hawaiian outpouring of reverence, expressed in the fragrant carnations and ginger, the colorful orchids and plumeria which grow everywhere here.

Someone placed two baskets of flowers—and two gardenias—on Pyle's grave. The beloved war correspondent of the "Little Guy" was killed on Iwa Shima, near Okinawa late in the war.

It was, too, the first Memorial Day for the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific. The cemetery was opened last July 9, with the burial of Pyle.

Breaking Speed Law Greenville Streets Is Police Problem

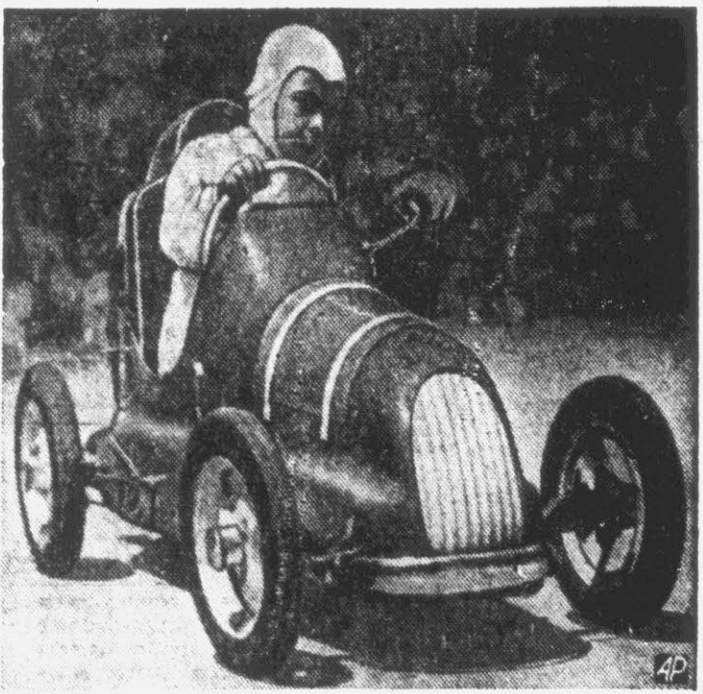

The police department continues to receive complaints of residents of East 14th Street extension and Boyd Avenue in the western part of the city about motorists using the thoroughfares for racing speedways.

Anti-American Outburst Is Led By Japan's Reds

Tokyo, May 30—(AP)—Communist-led Japanese today attacked four American soldiers in the first public fight of the occupation.

The affray touched off other skirmishes as American military police cracked down on instigators. At least eight Japanese were arrested.

Demonstrators gathered Imperial Plaza for a Communist rally, showed the American military observers with rocks. One soldier was knocked down.

One American hit was Capt. C. V. Clark of the Tokyo provost Marshal's office. The others were a Nisei interpreter and two enlisted men.

A witness said the incident began when members of a Communist youth group snatched a notebook from a Japanese pianist who was taking notes on speeches.

The Americans attempted to recover the notebook. One of the soldiers was hit and he struck back. The crowd, in ugly mood, threw rocks at Americans who forced their way into the clear.

American military police moved into the crowd as it entered Hibaya park for a second rally. They arrested at least three Japanese believed to have taken part in the first affray.

The three put up stiff resistance. Clubs and fists sang freely.

Another Japanese was pulled out of a marching column when he shouted an anti-American slogan as he passed the military police. Other Japanese tried to prevent the arrest. The Americans quickly fought clear of a hostile circle of shouting, pushing demonstrators.

The white-helmeted MPS picked up two more Japanese who tried to help their friend escape. Later the Red Demonstrators sent a delegation to nearby Marunouchi police station to loudly demand their release. Two leaders were arrested.

The first rally was peppered with anti-American statements such as: "Expel the occupation forces from Japan."

"Remember Gandhi's struggle against the British Imperialists. He did it, why don't you?"

"Thousands of workers are being fired to pave the way for foreign monopoly capital and the enslavement of Japan."

Banking Talk In Rotary Meeting

By WYATT BROWN

Three features of banking were described last night at the Rotary Club by Rotarians—Johnnie Overton, Joseph Moyer, and Herbert Waldrop. They discussed the route of a check, credit and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Interest in the banking technique was manifested by a large number of questions being asked each speaker by the Rotarians.

First Johnathan Overton traced a check which had been sent by a Greenville bank customer to a merchant in New York City. It appeared from the speaker's comments that the local bank's operations in paying the check involve a great deal of responsibility and care—each endorser accepts the check only tentatively with final acceptance at the bank of the drawer of the check.

Next Joseph Moyer talked about "credit." He mentioned the "Three C's of Credit"—Character, Capacity and Capital—as being the basis of loans to individuals. Once a bank has extended credit and the customer signed the note, Mr. Moyer said the note would be sent to the Federal Reserve Bank for discount and Federal Reserve notes issued against it.

He also made some general observations about banking. Contrasted with banks in some countries being created for government financing, the banks in the United States were organized to serve the public and "incidentally" help finance the government. "The U. S. has a dual system of banking," he said. In referring to inflation he said that was when the government let the people have their money but let it be worth half as much; the reserve situation was when the government took for taxes ten of each twenty dollars with the value of money remaining constant.

Finally Herbert Waldrop talked about the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation—FDIC. The government advanced the original billion dollars which created the FDIC. The 14,500 participating banks have paid that back and now own the financial structure of the FDIC. Each bank pays one twelfth of one per cent on their average of deposits. He said the banking fraternity expected the present five thousand top limit of insurance to be increased to ten thousand at an early date. The rate paid by participating banks will receive ameliorating treatment.

Preceding the program Knott Proctor reported that Girl Scout Camp Hardee which the Rotarians sponsor has two buildings up, plumbing in, and a field cleared; leaving only painting and clean-up to be done.

At this point J. B. Kittrell told how Knott Proctor at considerable personal sacrifice has taken off a week from his office and spent from before daylight until after dark each day working down at Camp Hardee.

The Rotarians voted last night to accept an invitation of the Greenville Girl Scout Council to be their guests at dinner the evening of June 14—Wednesday.

Jack Spain was a guest of the club. Bob Booth and Frank Kilpatrick of the Ayden Rotary Club were visiting Rotarians last night. Carl Adams presented the program. Erroll Webb, club president, presided.

Plan 'Mayflower Garden' On Site

London (AP)—A Mayflower Garden is being built on the bomb-blasted site of the old Pilgrim Fathers' church in Southwark, on the south bank of the Thames. The Pilgrim Fathers embarked from there in the Mayflower for Plymouth before sailing to America.

Sponsors hope the garden will become a mecca for American visitors in Britain when it is ready in 1951.

Cattle Rustlers Terrify Burmese

Rangoon—(AP)—Cattle rustlers have halted rice cultivation at Kodung, a large village south of Rangoon, according to the Rev. U. Otama, a Buddhist monk.

U. Otama, here to seek governmental protection for the farmers, said the village folk are considering mass evacuation of their homes.

The monk said the rustlers are kidnaping for ransom the more wealthy among the farmers. He stated the village was "terrified" beyond words.

Pioneer's Rifle Going To Museum

Cody, Wyo.—(AP)—The rifle that Buffalo Bill used in his adventures in the west will be given to the Cody Memorial Museum here in real life. Buffalo Bill was William Frederick Cody.

The rifle he used in real life as a pioneer scout in the west is now in an arms collection of Walter P. Siegmund, an official of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. The Cody museum was founded by his niece, Mary Jester Allen. Siegmund will present the rifle to the museum July 4 during the Frontier days celebration.

Quonset Huts In Handling Cattle

New York—(AP)—Quonset huts of proper size can be made into good cow cafeterias. "Steelways" says the cafeterias can cut man hours in feeding cows to as little as four hours a winter.

One hut is set up inside another with a 10-foot space between them. Clipped hay is dropped into the space. The hay is held in place by hinged wooden slats with enough space between them for a cow's nose. Movement of the slats when the cow's food dislodges hay from the space above.

Tribunal Again Refuses Review

Washington, May 29—(AP)—The Supreme court today stood pat on its refusal to review the contempt of Congress convictions of movie writers John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo.

Both refused to tell the House un-American Activities committee writers their 1947 Reds-in-Hollywood hearing whether they were members of the Communist party. They were fined $10,000 each, and sentenced to a year in prison.

Offers To Buy Siam Rice Crop

Bangkok—(AP)—Siam has received applications from nations all over the world to purchase its entire 1950 exportable rice surplus of 1,200,000 tons.

The Commerce Ministry said a check is being carried out of all silos throughout the country to see if additional paddy might be available to fill the great demand.

SMOKY JOE

By W. F. BRAGG

Chapter 14
 "Miss Hale" said the judge, "has gone south to meet her father. Rance, her brother, is still in town arranging details of the lease."
 "Lease? So they fell for the rust-

the cattle on?"
 "The very land you gave the option on," he said. "Flying O land. Pack Rogan, who holds the power of attorney I told you about, very gallantly informed Miss Hale that he would not take advantage of a lady in distress, that he would honor the option."
 Joe discovered that nothing so enthrals a young and active man as inactivity and frustration. Here he paced his narrow cell while, outside, he knew well enough that the forces arrayed against the Munros were becoming stronger each day.

Within a few days, the Bar Sixty-Six would release cattle on range-land watched by Pecos Shay's sharp-eyed outlaw riders. The big steal would then begin, not to be fully revealed to Texas punters of the Bar Sixty-Six until beef roundup came along in the fall.

From the talk around the jail Joe understood that he would not be around to hear about the breaking of the Bar Sixty-Six. Hard Hat Bulvane had informed him that he would soon be tried, that a quick verdict of death was expected, and that expert carpenters would soon erect a gallows in the jail yard. For in this state, legal executions were carried out in the county where the crime had been committed.

Shorty Dike, who infrequently visited Joe, proved somewhat more sympathetic than his chief, but he could see little hope for Joe.

"Maybe if I'd been in the Silver Hill that night," Shorty mused, "I would've known for sure just who fired the death shot, you or Pecos Shay. As it is, both your guns are the same caliber. As they did, if you're right, was to break both of 'em, extract four live loads from your cylinder and replace 'em with the empties from Pecos' gun."

"Pecos knows," Joe said slowly. "Sure. But Pecos has pulled out."

"And the man who fixed the guns knows."
 "Who you bettin' on?"
 "Pack Rogan," Joe stood up, and paced the cell thoughtfully. Rogan's smooth, old he went too far when he turned that Flying O range over to the girl. Rogan in every dirt deal in Rawhide County. If I was out of here, I could prove it."

"Year," Shorty said sadly, "but you are not out of here, Joe."
 It seemed plain now to Joe that he must face the truth from Rogan and Pecos Shay. The ditch company, according to boom talk promises, huge dividends in the selling of land and water to settlers. With the death of Chris Eiven and the disappearance of Stormy Munro, Rogan controlled the key to the entire situation. With both Munros dead or outlawed, Rogan stood every chance of winning an empire of grass and water.

And where were Whisperin' Johnson and Monty McDevitt? Perhaps they, too, filled nameless graves in the mountains, graves such as the one occupied by old Stormy Munro. For in these black and hopeless days, Joe became almost convinced that his father had been slain by the same man who had shot down Chris Eiven.

This conviction was strengthened when Shorty Dike at last produced the tattered calendar which he had picked out of the fireplace in the murder cabin on Antelope. The deputy brought it into Joe's cell one afternoon and spread it out on the table.

The dates had been crossed out with pencil marks. This was a common custom of the frontier, where lonely men wished to maintain a running tally on the days of the week. Joe recalled that it had been his father's habit to cross off each day when he arose in the morning. The last date marked out was the day before the discovery of Chris Eiven's body in the creek.

Fumbling around with the calendar, Shorty knocked over the water pitcher. Hurriedly he soaped up the spreading water from the soaked calendar with a bandanna. Joe sat staring at the pencil marks. All around a dull black color with the exception of the line drawn through the murder date. Joe put his finger on it. It had turned a bright blue. He looked up at the frowning deputy.

"Indelible pencil," Joe said slowly.
 "What does that mean?" asked Shorty.
 "What would you think? The killer marked off that date himself. Used the first pencil that came handy from his pocket. Maybe in a hurry. Never thought about it bein' indelible. Likely he showed that calendar far back in the fireplace, too, so's it wouldn't be burnt. He wanted you to find it."

 "Why?"
 "So's the law would figure old Munro had killed his partner. That he was in that cabin on the murder date, because he marked it off." Joe halted, and bowed his head. "But maybe he couldn't mark it off. I'm thinkin' that maybe he was already dead."
 Sheriff Bulvane only laughed when he heard about it. He swore Joe was as big a liar as his no good father. When Joe heard of this he vowed he'd break out of jail if he could find a way.

Guard Called As Violence Erupts

Morristown, Tenn., May 29—(AP)—National guard troops were ordered here today following a new eruption of violence at the strikebound America Enka corporation rayon plant.

The guardsmen were ordered out by Governor Browning in Nashville after two carloads of workers were overturned at the plant entrance. Adjutant General Sam Wallace said 300 troopers were being mobilized and would be on the move by early afternoon.

Treasure Hunters Try Modern Equipment In Seeking Fortune

Goldthwaite, Tex., May 29—(P)—Treasure hunters are digging again for tons of silver and gold which legend says lies hidden in a tunnel-pocked mountain in central Texas.

This time they are professional hunters, with modern equipment. They are boring and probing under Dry Pond, which nestles on the top of the mountain three miles northeast of here.

The nameless mountain is the site of a gold and silver mine worked by the Spaniards when Texas was part of Mexico, and under Spanish rule.

Legend-backed by some evidence—is that the Spaniards were forced to flee the mine in 1762 because of an Indian uprising. They were supposed to have hastily stored 500 Jack loads (150,000 pounds) of pure silver taken from the famous lost Bowie mine, and a burro load of gold, weighing 3,000 pounds.

The silver would be worth about $13,000,000 now, and the gold about $1,500,000. In addition, treasure hunters who have hacked and bored at the mountain hope to find the lost San Saba mine believed located somewhere in this area.

The newest hunters are two professionals and three college students. They have formed a partnership. The professionals, J. S. Fisher and J. R. Latham of Del Rio, Tex., are at the site with modern equipment, and have staked out a location. The students will join them when their classes end. They are Charlie Harris of San Antonio, Randy Evans of Texas City, and Bill Dosier of Waco, Tex.

In 1901 a foreigner came here with a map he said he bought from a Mexican. The Mexican claimed the map was taken from the body of James Bowie after that Texas hero was killed in the battle of the Alamo. The foreigner—his name has been forgotten—looked for three post oak trees which formed a triangle—one of which had a copper spike driven into it. He couldn't find them.

But later that same year Dr. J. M. Kirkpatrick of Mullin, Tex., found a copper spike in the ashes of a chimney at Mullin. The woodcutter showed him where he had cut the tree. The stump formed a triangle with two post oak still standing. Dr. Kirkpatrick began digging.

He found two copper plates with legible engravings and a hand-hammered copper box. The lid of the box bore the words "Pedro Lopez, 1762." Inside were a crucifix and a set of pearls and a Rosary. But Dr. Kirkpatrick could find no treasure. Since then dozens of parties have dug, in vain.

Radio Comedian Dies In Hospital

Boston, May 30—(AP)—Frederick Chase Taylor, radio and film wit known as "Colonel Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle," is dead.

The 52-year-old comedian died from a heart ailment yesterday at the New England Baptist Hospital. Taylor, who made the mistake of entering the stock market shortly before the 1929 crash, got his chance in radio because of a storm.

While trying out as production man in 1930, he and an announcer, Hudd Hulick, had to fill a 15-minute gap when a gale disrupted network wires to a Buffalo, N. Y., station.

The pair became partners and were heard over national networks until they broke up in 1937. The following year Taylor was featured over the Yankee Network in Town Hall Varieties, and in 1939-40 was quizmaster in the "Quizie Doodle Contest" over the Mutual network.

Among his "inventions" were an alarm clock with half a bell to wake only one person in a room and a goldfish bowl surrounded by post-cards so the fish would think they were going somewhere.

A native of Buffalo, he served in the Navy in World War I. Until about six weeks ago, Taylor had been in Puerto Rico writing scripts for the "Duffy's Tavern" radio show. He returned to his South Norwalk, Conn., home and entered a hospital for treatment of a heart ailment. He came to Boston for further treatment two weeks ago.

He is survived by his widow.

Bowen will be president of the University chapter for the next year by virtue of the highest scholastic average.

Miss Emily Alexander Is Graduate At Peace

Raleigh, May 30—Emily Jayne Alexander of Greenville was graduated from Peace College Preparatory Department in Exercises in Raleigh Saturday night.

Miss Alexander is the daughter of Mrs. Helen M. Alexander, 204 Pine Street, Greenville, and attended the Greenville High School before coming to Peace. She was a member of the International Relations Club and Rho Delta Chi Society at Peace.

Hearings Set On Small Businesses

Washington, May 30—(AP)—Hearings on bills to aid small businesses probably will be started next month.

Chairman Maybank (D-SO) of the Senate Banking Committee told reporters today that he expects some measure to be passed, although he said it may not embrace the full program recommended by President Truman.

The banking committee has scheduled a meeting for Thursday, and Maybank said a time probably will be fixed then for hearings on the legislation.

Besides proposing some technical assistance for small business, President Truman urged steps to ease financing problems.

He recommended five-year government-insured loans up to $25,000 for small business concerns, federally-chartered private banks to make larger, longer-term loans, and an easing of the credit restrictions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC).

Cites Cause For Lack Of Treaty

Asheville, May 30—(AP)—Gen. Mark Clark says the Russians want the United States "to agree on a treaty that would give them legal title to everything they have stolen in Austria."

That, he told a banquet gathering here last night, is the reason a peace treaty for Austria has never been signed.

General Clark addressed a banquet celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Asheville School.

Except for his references to Austria, General Clark stepped around discussions of international politics. "I think it is unbecoming for anyone in uniform to get up and rattle the saber," was his comment.

Cricket-Raising Now A Business In Georgia Area

Atlanta—(P)—Cricket raising is a booming business in this part of the South. Fishermen say they make fine bait. But wild crickets are sometimes as hard to catch as the fish. Those who raise them sell them for bait at a cent and a half a cricket. Breeding stock brings two cents.

George Smith, for instance, has turned his backyard chicken house into a cricket raising business. He has 150,000 breeders and possibly a total of 300,000 crickets. He hasn't counted them. They eat laying mash just as chickens used to do. But the 18 bags a week he used to buy for his chickens would feed his crickets for 10 years.

Some oaks and juniper trees live to be 2,000 years old.

Scheduled To Return From 4-Month Cruise

Scheduled to return to the United States June 26 after a Mediterranean cruise aboard the destroyer tender USS Sierra are two Greenville area men, George A. Baker, chief machinist's mate, USN, husband of Mrs. Darrel L. Baker of Bethel, and George H. Brannon, seaman apprentice, USN, of Route 4, Greenville, who will complete a four-month tour of duty with the Sixth Fleet when the Sierra arrives in Norfolk, Va.

During the cruise, crew members of the destroyer tender visited various countries in Europe, Asia and Africa.
