Tobacco Export Prospects Seen Very Favorable

Hutson Says Larger Foreign Purchases Planned; Supplies Abroad Low

Myrtle Beach, S. C. June 5—(AP)—Favorable conditions for export of the 1950 flue cured tobacco crop were reported here today.

J. B. Hutson, executive director of Tobacco Associates, Inc., said in a message to the organization's board of directors that Great Britain is planning to make larger purchases than had been expected heretofore and that supplies of American flue-cured in Europe are low.

With these factors plus "a growing preference for U. S. flue cured tobacco a favorable marketing season is anticipated," reported Hutson, who is in Europe making a survey of conditions. Directors of tobacco associates—which works to boost exports of flue cured tobacco—met here this morning in connection with the annual convention of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association.

The afternoon program for the Warehousemen was highlighted by a report by James E. Thigpen, director of the tobacco branch of the U. S. department of agriculture.

At its final session tomorrow, the Bright Belt Association, composed of Warehousemen from the five flue cured tobacco producing states—Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida—will act on proposed regulations to improve tobacco conditions.

These are some of the proposed regulations:

- 1 Warehousemen or their employees would be kept from speculating in tobacco or from financing speculations by other persons. 2 Warehousemen would be kept from publishing false claims about the prices of tobacco sold in their warehouses. 3 Overcrowding of tobacco would be reduced by requiring a minimum space of six inches between ends of rows and warehouse walls.

W. T. Joyner of Raleigh, N. C. general manager for the Association, told the Warehousemen that if the regulations are adopted they can be enforced by the Association's board of governors.

Warehousemen, he said, have the choice of regulating their industry for the benefit of tobacco growers or of seeing it regulated by the federal government.

The proposed regulations would leave the setting dates for opening of the flue-cured belts to the Association's board of governors. The board is expected to meet at Raleigh before July 1 to fix these dates.

Winston-Salem Group Asks New Census Count

Winston-Salem, June 6—(AP)—Winston-Salem's Over 100,000 Committee today demanded a U. S. census recount of the city's population.

Chairman Reginald Marshall said the group had overwhelming evidence that Winston-Salem has thousands of persons who have never been counted.

The count here, as announced by the district census supervisor, was 87,262.

The committee carried its fight directly to Washington, asking Congressman Thurmond Chatham to intercede to prevent the Federal Government from listing what appears to be an inaccurate figure for Winston-Salem while the census is still being taken in such competitive neighboring cities as Greensboro and Charlotte.

Reds Losing Ground

Communism Failing In Nearly All Countries Where Free Elections Staged Since April, 1948; Japanese And Belgian Election Results; Other Focal Points

By CLARKE BEACH

The results of the Belgian and Japanese elections bore out this fact:

Communism has been losing ground in nearly all countries where free elections have been held since April, 1948.

The Japanese Communists lost two of their three seats in the House of Councilors. The Belgian Communists lost six of their 12 seats in the house of representatives.

In the Belgian elections in 1946 the Communists won 23 seats in the House. Two bad years followed while the non-Communism world watched Communism grow throughout Europe. They came close to winning control of France and in April, 1948, they seemed on the verge of sweeping political victory in Italy as the elections approached.

Some diplomatic officials here confess that they had almost lost hope that the Reds could be prevented from taking over Italy and France. What might have happened after that, they shudder to think. But the Italian electorate in that year gave a thumping victory to the anti-Communist Democrats. The

Commissioners In Session Monday

Fill Vacancy In Home Demonstration Agent's Office; Approve Request For Special Term Of Court In October

The Board of County Commissioners yesterday hired Miss Ann Parker, a native of Northampton, Parker, to fill the vacancy in the Home Demonstration Agent's office. Miss Parker will replace Miss Verna Belle Lowery, assistant agent, who left the Pitt office to become Agent in New Hanover March 1.

The new assistant agent is a graduate of East Carolina and for the past three years has been home economics teacher in the Nashville high school. Miss Parker was recommended to the board by the North Carolina Extension Department. She will assume her duties July 1.

At its monthly meeting yesterday at the courthouse the commissioners voided previous action concerning a request of the governor for a special criminal term of court in July.

After a consultation with county attorneys and the district solicitor, the request authorized in a previous meeting was voided because of the difficulty in getting jurors and witnesses during the summer crop growing months.

Instead, the board approved a request for a special two-week term in October, beginning on the second of October, and approved a request that Judge Henry Grady of New Bern preside over the term.

The board approved nine claims for reduction in property tax valuations by citizens who met the board of equalization and review during May. The nine are: J. A. Elks, M. D. Lanier, Dennis Harris, V. S. Harrington, D. J. Whitchard, J. S. May and D. L. Turnage. Five requests for a reduction were turned down. They are: Sylvester Wilson; J. D. Boyd; Marshall L. Evans; Mack Pollard; Farmville; and J. M. Hart, Grifton.

The board authorized Commissioner J. Vance Perkins to appoint a committee of three freeholders to investigate the loss of turkeys owned by William Langley, Greenville Township. Langley alleged the turkeys were destroyed by dogs. Perkins was ordered to have the freeholders report to the board with recommended action concerning any Three weekend accidents occurring on Sunday were reported today by the Greenville State Highway Patrol office.

One of the accidents took place on the old Ayden road, between Renston and Ayden, about 3:00 Sunday afternoon, but was not reported to the Greenville Patrol office until this morning.

The car was operated by Willie Junior Carmon, colored, age 23, of Route 1, Winterville.

The driver told Patrolman Dick Chadwick that a tire came off his car causing it to get out of control.

The vehicle turned over, landing on a stump, causing considerable damage.

Another accident in the Ayden sector Sunday resulted in an estimated $250 damage to a car operated by Earl Roudine, colored, of 1401 South Lee Street, Ayden.

The driver told Patrolman Chadwick that it was raining and he was meeting another car, when it came on his side of the road, forcing him to go off the side of the road. Since the road was slippery, the man stated that he lost control of the car and turned over.

The driver was not sure, but he thought that the car turned over two times at least.

The driver of the other car was not known.

No one was injured in the accident and no charges were brought against the driver.

The intersection of a rural road and Highway 222 was the scene of a third accident Sunday night. A car driven by John Ashley Briley, Route 1, Stokes, age 19, was traveling east on Highway 222, about two miles west of Falkland, when a car driven by Guy Wilson Moore came out from a side road in the path of the Briley car.

Briley stated that he applied the brakes, but struck the right rear and side of the car causing damage estimated at $186, with about $90 damage being done to the Moore car.

Moore told Patrolman D. E. Perry, who investigated the accident, that he did not see any cars coming on the road and that he stopped for the stop sign before entering the highway.

Perry did not charge the drivers but they had warrants issued against each other on a careless and reckless driving charge, he said.

Chester, Penn., June 6—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson said today he is convinced that "the sinister forces of Communist imperialism" should be stopped short of war.

Top Communists In Japan Purged By Government

General MacArthur's Order Of Action Promptly Followed Up By Gov't

Tokyo, June 6—(AP)—General MacArthur, angered by Japanese Red attacks on American soldiers, ordered 24 top Communist leaders purged today and the Japanese government swiftly followed his command.

The government promptly notified the 24 members of the Communist party central committee they have been barred from politics.

Seven of them will vacate parliamentary seats. All will be prohibited from party membership or any other political activity. They will be barred from positions of influence in other activities.

The swift move which MacArthur ordered in a letter to Premier Shigeru Yoshida will cost the Reds their principal public speakers and most effective leaders. Technically they also will be prohibited from guiding party affairs or writing.

Notification of the purge by the government was made in a series of telegrams and special delivery letters to the Reds. They were dispatched after the cabinet discussed MacArthur's letter at a special meeting.

National police, who took steps to guard against possible retaliatory action, arrested two union leaders for their alleged part in the Memorial Day demonstration during which American soldiers were attacked.

The arrests led to speculation that MacArthur's letter may be a springboard to stronger measures against the Communists.

The government, in the wake of today's elections which saw Yoshida's pro-occupation liberal party retained in power, already had announced its intention of outlawing the Communist party.

An occupation official said MacArthur's order does not provide for dissolution of the Communist party. MacArthur's letter said the occupation had "excluded from public affairs" the militarists who launched the nation on its "adventure in conquest and exploration."

"The guiding philosophy of this phase of the occupation has been protective, not punitive," MacArthur said. He added:

"Recently, however, a new and no less sinister group has injected itself into the Japanese political scene which has sought through perversion of truth and incitation to mass violence to transform this peaceful and tranquil land into an arena of disorder and strife."

Filming Stopped By Grasshoppers

Idyllwild, Calif., June 6—(AP)—Filming called off on account of grasshoppers.

That was Universal International Studio's plight today after a horde of the pesky insects took over a western location spot here. County officials were unable to send out plans to spray the area because no crops were involved.

There was no confirmation that the movie might be titled "hopalong grassy."

Pace Tells Cadets West Must Rely On Its Science

West Point, N. Y., June 6—(AP)—Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., said today the western allies must rely on "highly scientific ground troops" to meet the numerical superiority of "potential enemies."

In a prepared speech for graduation exercises of the U. S. Military Academy, Pace said:

"Our army, as I hardly need remind you, not only is outnumbered tremendously by the ground forces of our most dangerous antagonist but is also at a disadvantage qualitatively in certain categories of equipment, most notable in tanks."

The army secretary added: "we and our allies can never hope to compete with our potential enemies in numbers and masses of ground troops and weapons of a conventional type."

Because of this, Pace said, "the army must depend to a great extent upon intensive scientific research and development." This development must be "directed at equipping our ground forces and the ground forces of our allies with such advanced and superior weapons that they can overcome the overwhelming numerical advantage of our potential enemies," he added.

Termining the possibility of Western Europe being overrun as "the greatest present threat to civilization," Pace said:

"The best way to prevent such a catastrophe is to be prepared to meet these masses of heavily mechanized ground forces with smaller numbers of highly scientific ground troops equipped with revolutionary new weapons."

Pace said the nation is keeping up its superiority in scientific land warfare, and that as a result, "it may well be that tank warfare as we have known it will soon be obsolete."

Whitewash Charge Has New Support In Senate

Washington, June 6—(AP)—Senator Ives (R-NY) said today there is "accumulating evidence the administration is trying to whitewash the State Department" on Communist charges.

Ives' attack on a current senatorial investigation came amid reports that President Truman is ready to set up a special panel to take over part of the work of a senate foreign relations subcommittee which has been looking into charges made by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Chairman Tydings (D-Md) of the subcommittee inquiring into McCarthy's charges was mum after a reported discussion of the matter with the President yesterday.

The special panel would take over the job of examining loyalty files on persons accused by McCarthy

The officers were elected from a group selected by the nominating committee which submitted the list to the club for approval.

The report was made by Dr. E. B. Aycock and the floor was then opened for nominations.

The slate of candidates stood as presented by the committee and the voting was carried out by secret ballot.

Puerto Ricans In Air Crash Were Farm Workers

Miami, Fla., June 6—(AP)—The 62 Puerto Ricans plunged into the Atlantic Ocean in the crash of their C-46 transport plane were among more than 5,000 migrant workers being flown to the United States to help in crop harvests.

Irving H. Mansfield of Millville N. J. treasurer of Westair Company, said that firm had contracted to transport "in excess of 5,000" Puerto Ricans from their native island. Some of the job is being done by sub-contractors.

"We had plane loads yesterday going both to Michigan and New Jersey for agricultural harvests," Mansfield added. "But it is my understanding that the plane crashed in Michigan."

Bus-Born Baby Named 'Queenie'

Fayetteville, N. C., June 6—(AP)—A woman who gave birth to a child on a Queen City Trailways bus reported today she had named the baby "Queenie."

The baby was born yesterday to Myrtle Melvin, a Negro. The mother was attended by Marty Britt, 19 year-old waitress, the only other woman on the bus, which also carried 33 paratroopers.

Philanthropist Dies In Hospital

Winston-Salem, N. C., June 6—(AP)—Mrs. Hattie M. Strong, 85 well-known philanthropist and ardent friend of education, died at Baptist hospital here today after an illness of three months. She was the widow of Henry Alva Strong, President of Eastman Kodak Company for many years.

Until her last illness, she had been actively interested in promoting and encouraging the education of young people. As founder in 1929 of the Hattie M. Strong foundation for student loans, she is credited with having enabled more than 3,300 young men and women to secure a college education.

Manager John D. Thomas said that none of the workers had been injured from the unexploded shells. The project is on a former target range.

Summer Session Opens At ECTC

East Carolina Teachers College began the first term of the 1950 summer session this week with a peak enrollment of approximately 1200 students. Dr. J. K. Long, registrar, announced this morning that registration will close at 4:30 p. m. on Thursday, June 8. Until that time, final figures for the term will not be available.

The number of students present on the campus is already, according to Dr. Long, the largest enrollment for a summer session in the history of the college.

Students spent Monday moving into the dormitories and arranging class schedules for the term. Registration was held in the Wright building from 8:30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. Members of the faculty and administrative officers, including Dean Leo W. Jenkins, director of the summer school, Dr. Long and F. D. Duncan, business manager, were present during the morning and the afternoon to consult with students.

Class work began this morning at 8:00 o'clock. Enrollment in several departments was so heavy that arrangements to secure additional faculty members are now in progress.

All women's dormitories—Fleming, Jarvis and Cotten Halls—have been opened to provide living quarters for women students. Wilson Hall, men's dormitory, is being used for men students. A number of students are commuting or are living in the city for the summer months.

Find Dud Shells At Housing Site

Fort Bragg, N. C., June 6—(AP)—Fifteen duds have been discovered at the scene of a $12,000,000 housing project here.

Manager John D. Thomas said that none of the workers had been injured from the unexploded shells. The project is on a former target range.

Two Yugoslav Traitors Given Stiff Sentences

Belgrade, June 6—(AP)—A Yugoslav military tribunal gave two confessed traitors stiff hard labor sentences today for plotting with the Russians to overthrow Marshal Tito's government in 1948.

Both of the defendants were sentenced to 20 years in prison and deprived of their citizenship rights for five years.

They were Branko Petricevic, 36, a former major general, and Vlado Dapcevic, 33, a former colonel.

The verdicts finding them guilty of crimes against the people and state of Yugoslavia, and of military espionage were returned after a day of deliberation by a three-man court. Their trial had lasted four days.

The Court Decisions

The Intricacies Of Supreme Court Decisions; Their Language And Limited Application; The Case Of The Texas Law School And Oklahoma University

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, June 6—(AP)—When Supreme Court justices hand down a decision, it's always in writing. And that's all there is. That's the end of it.

If a decision doesn't seem quite clear to you, that's your tough luck. You can't go and ask them to explain. They don't explain their written decisions to anyone afterwards.

To laymen—and often to lawyers—the decisions of the court are not always so clear-cut that anyone reading them can say positively what is meant. There are two reasons for this:

1. The language the justices use. They don't always write well. Sometimes their language is not only long-winded, involved and clumsy but seems so rubbery it could mean different things to different people.

2. The justices themselves repeatedly have said they try to give decisions as narrow as possible. That is, they try to say what the constitution means only in some particular case before them.

When another case comes before them—similar to but slightly different from the first case—they say what they think the constitution means in that one.

So over a period of time they may

Mixed Reactions To High Court's Latest Decisions

Many Leading Southerners Term Segregation Rulings 'Far Reaching'

Atlanta, June 6—(AP)—Consternation, elation and outright defiance were the South's mixed reactions today to the U. S. Supreme Court's latest rulings against segregation.

Many leading Southerners termed the decisions "far reaching," and withheld comment until they can determine just what the affect will be.

The Supreme Court yesterday ruled:

- 1. That a Negro law student must be admitted to the all-white University of Texas. It held the separate facilities offered Negroes are not equal.

2. That Negro graduate students at the University of Oklahoma must not be made to sit apart from white students in classrooms.

3. That railroads must not segregate white and Negro passengers in dining cars.

None of the decisions bans segregation, as such, in general; each ruling dealt with a specific case.

Reaction depended on where the spokesman stood. For instance, Georgia's Gov. Herman Talmadge, who took up his father's mantle of white supremacy, was indignant.

"As long as I am governor, Negroes will not be admitted to white schools," he declared.

The managing editor of a Negro newspaper, the Atlanta World, was jubilant. Editor W. A. Powles said the court's edicts "certainly will be a means by which the South will join in the parade of democracy."

Dr. T. S. Painter, president of the University of Texas, said the Negro, Heman Marion Sweat, will be admitted "if that is the order of the U. S. Supreme Court as interpreted by Attorney General Price Daniel." Daniel did not say what his interpretation would be.

Dr. George L. Cross, president of the University of Oklahoma, said the ruling "knocks out all segregation in graduate schools at Oklahoma University." But he added he doesn't think it will mean a great influx of Negro students next fall.

South Carolina's Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, candidate for president in 1948 on a States Rights ticket, said in a statement:

"These decisions are the fruits of the campaign President Truman and his cohorts have been waging against the South for many months. x x x it is apparent that they are a part of the effort to destroy states' rights in this country."

President Samuel Higgins of Allen (Negro) University at Columbia, S. C., said the decision in the educational cases "sets forth the spirit of American democracy."

Pleasing arrangements of garden flowers were used as decoration in the room in which the guests were received. The mantel was banked with ivy entwined with sweet peas, centered with a miniature bride and groom. The honoree was presented with a corsage of white carnations.

The guests enjoyed card bingo. Mrs. Eugene Jones, mother of the honoree, won the prize for high score.

Miss Jones was remembered with many lovely gifts.

Dinner Honors Miss Howard And Mr. Lupton

Guests were greeted at the door by the hosts and hostesses and then were invited into the dining room by Mr. and Mrs. Vance S. Harrington. The table was lovely, decorated in the traditional bridal motif of green and white. The centerpiece of magnolia blooms and madonna lilies, showered with gypsophelia, was flanked on either side by five branched candelabra holding burning tapers, decorated with tulle and gypsophelia.

Ask Inquiry Into Business Reform

Washington, June 6—(AP)—The Association of Better Business Bureaus was invited today to undertake "investigation, action and reform" of improper advertising and sales practices in the retail men's clothing trade.

Increasingly hot competition for business has brought a "few isolated cases" of dishonesty, said Paul D. Gilbert, president of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers.

Gilbert invited delegates to the 36th annual better business meeting to take on a clean-up job, declaring that "fraud, deceit and trickery can undermine our political existence."

Expert Watch and JEWELRY Repairing 5 Day Service J. W. Whitley SASLOW'S

"The advancement of truth in advertising and integrity in business is one of our strongest weapons against the enemies of democracy," the South Bend, Ind., clothier said.

"Untruthful advertising is a contributing factor to the (public's) distrust of a business man of advertising generally, and of the system of business on which democracy stands."

Gilbert listed these as among the current abuses which, he said, have invited public disbelief and harmed legitimate merchants:

1. Inaccurate price comparisons, such as a $100 suit for $39. "Too many such claims are 'gross exaggerations and an insult to the judgment of the American people.'"

2. Misuse of "the magic word of nylon. Much merchandise is on the market which contains some nylon and lot of acetate. Too often, the nylon is included for misleading advertising and labeling purposes only."

3. Some cases of "wholesale" selling from factory to consumer. Gilbert said he is confident that inquiry will show "the consumer is being misled in the value being received."

our European allies as a waste of money. We disagree with that viewpoint, and hope the majority of our lawmakers also disagree. America's fate is too entwined with the rest of the world to stand aloof. On the other hand, we would not want to do without our Senators Byrd and Taft, nor the other able men who have similar views. There is much good they can accomplish in their special fields besides providing a core of opposition that can provide reasoned debate . . . and ultimately, reasoned policies of international conduct.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, June 6—The Administration's anti-trust thrust against the bulb-and-lamp branch of the General Electric Company, judging from the evidence of Congressional mailbags, seems to have aroused more public resentment than the attempt by the Department of Justice to dissolve the Atlantic and Pacific food chain.

The rising cost of food, as against the relatively low rates for lighting equipment, may account for the contrasting public reaction. What even the critics on and off Capitol Hill do not realize is that this action reflects the anti-business attitude of the Truman-McGrath group more than similar moves against the Aluminum Company of America, the du Ponts, General Motors and a long series of other anti-trust indictments.

FINDING—In a proposed finding submitted to a federal district court at Trenton, N. J., based on almost ten years of litigation, the government asks that General Electric be forced to divest itself of half of its bulb-and-lamp holdings, including plants which make Christmas tree ornaments. When G. E. files its answer, the court will rule, and then the case will move along to the Supreme Court.

Inasmuch as that body, since its reorganization by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, has declared in several recent cases that "big business itself is bad," regardless of its practices, there is not much doubt about the outcome.

INTEREST—The G. E. case commands unusual politico-legal interest because of the strange fact that the government does not contend that the corporation has engaged in unfair or anti-customer practices at any time or place.

The youthful assistants of Attorney General McGrath, many of whom are fresh out of law school and utterly unversed in business management, concede that G. E. has been an exceptionally well-behaved institution. Objectively, they do not cavil at its conduct.

They admit that it makes excellent products which light up America. They agree that its prices are low in every line.

Grudgingly, they remember enough of their economic studies at Cambridge, New Haven or at Rex Tugwell's Columbia University to assent to the proposition that volume production and cheap distribution costs are chiefly responsible for this nation's industrial primary in peace and war time.

POWER—But although General Electric has never used its power for malice purposes, or shown any intention of so using its commanding position in this field, Attorney General McGrath contends that the mere possession of so much power, through its marketing and licensing agreements and control of certain sources of supply, operates against the public interest.

"Hitler," explained one of his aides while discussing the G. E. situation, "started out as a benevolent dictator for Germany. But look what he did when he obtained supreme authority."

Attorney General McGrath smiles warily when irreverent interviewers suggest that the same simile might be applied to his former Senate colleague, Harry Truman.

PUZZLING—Perhaps the most puzzling factor in this anti-trust offensive is the indifference of the government's legal lamps to the question of the enforced disposition of G. E.'s multi-million-dollar holdings in this field, assuming that the courts agree to the federal insistence on a corporate breakup.

When they are asked if they have made any preliminary surveys to discover whether any other corporation is able or willing to enter this business, if and when G. E. is forced out of half the field, they reply blandly:

"We haven't the least idea. That is not our worry. In fact, it might prejudice our case if we started a hunt for another buyer."

SHRUG—When these cap-and-gown lawyers are reminded that, in view of heavy taxes and the Administration's pro-labor policy, it is extremely difficult for an entirely new company to finance and operate a mass-production industry from scratch, they shrug their shoulders.

That happens to American industry does not interest them half so much as satisfying their anti-big business ideologies before similarly minded judges, save for about ten per cent of the nation's judicial establishment.

British diplomats at Washington have undertaken a definite offensive to offset Capitol Hill and editorial criticism of their country's "socialistic" government. Unlike most of his predecessors Ambassador Oliver Shewell Franks, K. C. B., C. B. E., appreciates the value of American good will and favorable publicity.

He has just returned from a speaking tour of the supposedly isolationist section of the United States west of the Rockies. He and Lady Franks set out, oddly enough, on the day that Senator Kem of Missouri offered an amendment to the ECA bill, providing that no funds be appropriated for the benefit of a "socialistic" regime.

About the same time mustachioed Charles Campbell, the extremely able and likable press secretary at the Embassy, moved his office from the stately and remote Embassy far out on Massachusetts Avenue to the ninth floor of the National Press Building in the heart of downtown Washington. He wants to be nearer the so-called "molders of public opinion."

LINES—Charles has already coined two clever lines from the British standpoint. "Our system works well for us," he says, "but it is not an export product," meaning that socialized medicine and government ownership of key industries are not necessarily desirable on "this side of the pond."

Our attitude toward your prosperity is like Marie Antoinette's, who said, "Let them eat cake." For if you aren't able to afford cake, we won't even have crumpets.

Webster says that a crumpet is "a flat soft leavened cake made of batter cooked on a griddle or spider."

Selected Shorts

WAKEFIELD, MASS., DAILY ITEM: "The late Samuel Gompers probably was the most level-headed and sincere labor leader the country's workers ever had."

"He held that the worst crime an employer could commit against his workers was to fail to make a profit."

FREDERICKSBURG, TEXAS, STANDARD: "Many years before Christ, Plato wrote his Republic in which he advocated a Utopian existence. Though men were to work little, they were to be heavily regulated to become mere wards of the state. Even Plato admitted that such a situation could exist only in Plato's mind or in Heaven."

EUREKA, KAN., HFRALD: "Socialized medicine will fix it so that little Johnny will have to wait six months to get an engagement with the dentist. Which, when he hears about it, will make little Johnny in favor of socialized medicine."

IBERIA, MO., SENTINEL: "We know what makes a wild cat wild! For 16 governmental bureaus are working against each other in efforts to save and preserve our wild life!"

The Girl He Left Behind

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The average man, I suppose, keeps his family finances confidential. But not me; I don't care who knows that Wife Rachel and I have a joint bank account, and both of us write checks whenever the notion strikes us, without consulting the other. We can do this only because it takes a major catastrophe to give us the notion.

One of those catastrophes has occurred. It all started during an innocent game of bridge with Bob and Martha Ross. Bob is manager of the Nehi Bottling Company in Greenville, and the company has a new merchandising program that involves a water pistol. If you buy so many Nehi Orange drinks, you can get the pistol at a special price.

Like me, Bob is very hard to awaken in the morning. Martha had tried every device without success, until one day Bob made the mistake of bringing home the water pistol. The inventor of this pistol has struck it rich, for it exceeds all others ever produced. Its range is 30 feet and it will shoot 200 times on one load of water.

Realizing the efficiency of the pistol, Bob jumps right out of bed when Martha threatens him with it every morning. This has solved Martha's problem, so immediately Rachel decided to get a pistol.

Here's where the family finances enter the picture. "Jack," W. R. said yesterday, "do you have any change?"

"No," I replied, "are you out of cash?"

"Yes," she said, "but I won't need over a dollar at the most."

It so happened that I remembered the story about the water pistol, and naturally concluded that Rachel was going to use the money for buying one.

When I asked her, she admitted that was what she had in mind. If I refused to give her the money, she'd just write a check.

Should I go to the bank and stop payment? This matter required a quick decision.

A useful citizen, I concluded, should get up early enough to make it to work on time. And a considerate husband should by all means relieve his wife from the burden of yelling him out of bed every morning. An electric alarm clock solved the problem for a few days, until I learned to get up, walk across the room, turn it off, and get back in bed—all without waking up. If an electric alarm clock wouldn't do the job, what else would? Nothing, but the 200-shot water pistol.

By the time I had gone through that chain of thought I decided that Rachel deserved the privilege of buying the water pistol. In fact, I think I'll go down town and buy it for her. And early tomorrow morning I'll regret doing it.

And I don't know whether to thank Martha Ross or not.

If an electric alarm clock wouldn't do the job, what else would? Nothing, but the 200-shot water pistol.

By the time I had gone through that chain of thought I decided that Rachel deserved the privilege of buying the water pistol. In fact, I think I'll go down town and buy it for her. And early tomorrow morning I'll regret doing it.

And I don't know whether to thank Martha Ross or not.

ELECTIONS—Folks are election conscious right now. More North Carolina Democrats participated in the recent primary than in any other election. The $19,000 votes cast in the senatorial primary shattered the previous record of 516,000 in 1936. What is more, it topped the 618,000-plus cast for Franklin Roosevelt in the general election of 1936 when he was coming up for a second term. If the usual differential between primary and general election totals holds this year November will see more than a million votes cast for candidates of all parties in the general election.

CONSTITUTION—The constitution of the United States adopted in 1787 with amendments since and the constitution of North Carolina adopted in 1868 with subsequent amendments, deal with elections in very general terms. The federal constitution provides that the time, place, and manner of holding elections for United States senators and representatives shall be fixed by the states; but congress may alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators. The original constitution decreed that senators should be elected by the legislatures; but the seventeenth amendment, declared ratified on May 31, 1913, provided for election of senators by the people. The constitution of North Carolina sets out that elections ought to be free; and, for redress of grievances and for amending and strengthening the laws, elections should be often held. The federal constitution fixes length of terms for president, vice-president and members of the congress; the state constitution fixes terms for primary executive and legislative officers; both lay down broad principles governing qualification for office-holding and exercise of the franchise. Within the limits of these general provisions the congress and the general assembly have enacted numerous laws affecting conduct of elections.

STATUTORY—Most of the confusion occurs with respect to applying these statutes to practical operations. The federal constitution fixes age limits for president, vice - president and members of the congress, but neither the constitution nor congressional act to date set voting age. Majority of the states fix that age at 21, but some permit 18-year-olds to vote. On national level there is practically no recognition of political parties and nominating procedure. In most states the nominating processes of political parties are more important than general election results. Since 1900, for instance, Democratic nomination in North Carolina has been equivalent to election. On national level Democratic nomination for president has been equivalent to election since 1932.

QUIRKS—This condition brings about some queer quirks in the selection of governmental executive officers. Some states, and in North Carolina five counties, use the convention method of nominating candidates. In most states and in 95 North Carolina counties the popular (?) primary does the nominating. That raises the question of which is most democratic and which system affords most free expression of the will of the people - which is the essence of democracy. A great deal has been said about the "smoke-filled rooms" around conventions and a small group of self-styled political bosses picking candidates.

Commerce Department figures show that there are 3,896,000 businesses operating in this country, and that the great majority of these are classifiable under the head of "small business."

We can't help but wonder whether the congressional committee now investigating "monopolistic trends" has had an opportunity to scrutinize these enlightening statistics. Even the steel industry, target of censure by the Fair Deal-CIO coalition, cannot be classed as a monopoly, since the industry's largest company controls only about one-third of the nation's ingot capacity.

But facts have never yet deterred a politician looking for a target. We suggest that the foes of "big business" in Congress curb the expansion of the most gigantic business of all, the Federal government.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

GAMBLING NEWS (Editor and Publisher)

A bill aimed at hampering bookmakers' operations by prohibiting interstate transmission of gambling information about horse races and dog races was approved last week by the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

This is a dangerous bill regardless of the high ideals and motives which prompt it.

This legislation would be an outright invasion of our cherished freedom of information and freedom of news transmission in this country. It would set up barriers at state lines preventing dissemination of news across those invisible borders which legally could be disseminated within the state.

It makes little difference, in our opinion, what type of news is prohibited. In this instance it happens to be gambling information. It might just as well be a ban against interstate transmission of stock tables, or commodity market data, or Federal Reserve figures which are used in some places as the basis for payoff in the numbers racket.

The point is that one category of news will be classified as taboo—untransmittable from one state to another. Once we start to classify information erecting barriers against different categories then we will have taken a big step toward destroying the First Amendment.

SERPENT IN THE GARDEN (Richmond Times-Dispatch)

Every Garden of Eden has its snake, and the Elysian Fields of the Fair Deal is no exception. This serpent is none other than Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, who had the political audacity to tell a group of businessmen recently that apprehension over the concentration of power in "big business" is unwarranted. "There is no area of public debate," he said, "in which is found more plain bunk."

He also made the unorthodox remark that the concentration of power in labor is far more absolute, and the increase of concentration more definite, than in the management end of industry. Secretary Sawyer cited some figures which would seem to refute the contention of the Fair Dealers that "in the good old days" the small businessman had a chance he doesn't have today. He said that in 1900 there were 21 business firms for every thousand of our population; in 1949 there were 26 per thousand.

Commerce Department figures show that there are 3,896,000 businesses operating in this country, and that the great majority of these are classifiable under the head of "small business."

We can't help but wonder whether the congressional committee now investigating "monopolistic trends" has had an opportunity to scrutinize these enlightening statistics. Even the steel industry, target of censure by the Fair Deal-CIO coalition, cannot be classed as a monopoly, since the industry's largest company controls only about one-third of the nation's ingot capacity.

But facts have never yet deterred a politician looking for a target. We suggest that the foes of "big business" in Congress curb the expansion of the most gigantic business of all, the Federal government.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Business continues to be good at all levels. Very good, in fact. It will continue at a high pace through June, with some let-up in production anticipated in July when many industries shut down for vacation.

As pointed out here previously, the present high levels are propped up in large part on credit. The government is going deeper into debt to finance its budget, and that's just what Mrs. John Public around the corner from you is doing too. Business loans declined so far this year, but businessmen too are expected to start borrowing more heavily for seasonal needs in a few weeks.

That's the current situation. Studying it, two questions must strike anyone interested in the state of business:

1—How long will the boom last?
 2—Are we going into an overall inflation?

The questions are interdependent. Our experience the past four years has been that inflationary rumpus of prices invariably have been followed by recessions. On the other hand, if higher prices can be avoided, good business may continue for some time.

Here are the current arguments re the prospects for continued boom:

PRO: There seems no signs immediately ahead of slackening in demand for houses and autos, two of the most important sectors of activity.

Construction activity set a new record in May; 23 per cent ahead of a year ago. Not only home-building but construction of highways, schools and other institutions is booming. Business spending is above expectations too. The government's accelerated stockpiling program is intensifying demand. Payrolls are higher; employment has improved too.

CON: The boom in installment buying of autos, homes, TV sets, etc., is merely advancing consumption, not expanding it. Consumers will have to take a breather soon and catch up on their payments. Exports are down and may continue to decline. Farm purchasing power has been reduced. Those bullish on business prospects also say that present high levels are partly only a catching-up of demand after the recent steel, coal and other strikes.

On the prospect of inflation, businessmen are equally divided. Certainly a number of prices have been moving up at all levels, with non-ferrous metals and building materials especially buoyant. The government's deficit spending is obviously inflationary. Foodstuffs too are generally more expensive than last year, especially meat. But—argue those who consider the present movement a bulge rather than a new inflation—capacity to produce goods has increased in the past four years to the point where sharp competition will stem any inflationary push. That's the situation: still at cross currents. It pays to watch it, and we'll keep you informed, particularly if the currents get noticeably strong on either side.

HOW TO SOLVE DOWNTOWN PARKING DILEMMA
 Coral Gables, Fla., has come up with a plan to alleviate the downtown parking congestion that plagues communities everywhere.

The American Society of Planning Officials reports that Coral Gables will lease vacant downtown property from the owners on long-term leases (50-90 years), will pave the spaces and install parking meters.

The city won't pay cash for the leases but will give the owners 35 per cent of the revenue. Nor will the plan remove the property thus acquired from the tax rolls. Instead, the city assumes the tax responsibility, and makes payments out of its share of the parking revenue.

GOVERNMENT, OTHER BUSINESS AIDS AVAILABLE
 You can get a copy of a new "finding" guide to wartime German patent applications from the Office of Technical Services, U.S. Department of Commerce, Washington 25, D.C.

You can get an "Economic Development Atlas" showing recent economic changes in various regions of the country, from the local field office of the Department of Commerce, for 75 cents a copy, or from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

You can get an illustrated booklet on "Package Engineering," with technical data on corrugated box design and construction, and a packaging questionnaire to help you analyze your packaging program, from Hinde and Dauch Paper Co., Sandusky, Ohio.

AFTER-HOURS ORDERING DEVICE FOR SHOPPERS
 A famous New York housewares store, Lewis and Conger, is now using a new device which enables passers-by to order items displayed in windows after store hours and on holidays. The new "window salesman" uses a sound-recording tape to take orders. (The device is made by L. A. Darling Co., Bronson, Mich.)

NEW AND HOT
AUTO DRAWER: A steel drawer that clips to the under part of the front seat of a car to utilize the storage space there has been developed by General Steel Products Corp., Flushing, L. I., N. Y.

ANTI-BACTERIAL CEMENT: A new cement claimed to reduce bacteria count when used in dairies, swimming pools, restaurant kitchens, etc., is being manufactured (by North American Cement Corp., 41 E. 42nd St., New York).

BROOM: A new broom with plastic bristles said to outlast other brooms and hold its shape better is being marketed (by Empire Brush Works, Port Chester, N. Y.).

Hal Boyle's Column

New York—(AP)—The other day a friend said to me: "There are no more heroes." He seemed sad about it. Thinking it over later, I decided he was wrong. He just had run out of personal heroes himself, and hadn't yet found a new one.

But I am sure he will. For heroes are as necessary to the development of the mind as food is to the growth of the body. Nations need them as much as individuals. And the quality of the nation is shown by the type of men it picks for hero worship.

Every man's memory holds a catalog of personal heroes, some of which rather lose their luster as he grows from childhood into youth, maturity and old age. But this is all right, because you need different types of heroes at different ages, and there is nothing wrong in changing them to suit your own needs.

My first hero was a dog. He was named Dewey, after the famous admiral of the Spanish American War, and it rather went to his head. Dewey was a bulldog, and he had an idea that every day he had to fight the battle of Manila Bay all over again, sinking all the neighborhood dogs he could find. But he had that one quality all heroes must have: courage.

I was a lucky kid in my next hero—my father. He was big and strong and kind. He had his weaknesses, but he never did a petty thing, or sulked in his tent like Achilles. He died a dozen years ago, and he is still the big hero of my lifetime.

Others in my index of heroes were Buffalo Bill, Stonewall Jackson, Man-O-War, Jack Dempsey, and Babe Ruth. They all belonged to that period of boyhood when you worship the cult of the champion—the prime man in his field, no matter how specialized. Somehow—just lucky, I guess—I escaped going overboard for Sir Galahad or Tom Mix, the Hopalong Cassidy of his time. Galahad, I always thought, was the stuffiest knight of King Arthur's Round Table, and a terrible prig. Just a schoolboy in tin armor.

In college I ran short of heroes, and the pick of the lot was probably H. L. Mencken—or perhaps George Bernard Shaw. In those cynical days your hero's main qualification was high I.Q.

During the second world war my idea of heroism changed a great deal—heroes didn't have to stand alone upon a peak in history. Heroes, as the infantry proved, could be anonymous and multitudinous.

And I think I grew up a great deal when I realized that the main work of the world is done by quiet and earnest heroes, who live and die in obscurity. They don't know they are heroes, and there is no one to tell them that they are.

But it is a joy to discover them, to appreciate them, and to learn from them. They give you a feeling of shame, but that isn't a bad feeling to get from a hero—the right kind of hero.

Four-Day Chase Of Fugitives Is Over, Captured

Charlotte, N. C., June 6—(AP)—An ex-convict and his red-headed wife who led law enforcement officers on a four-day chase were nabbed while sleeping near Cowpens, S. C., early today.

Charles W. Brown, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said agents and Spartanburg county police collared Carl Baskin Hensley, 34, and Martha Louise Hill Hensley, about 35, before they could rouse from a bed in the home of an acquaintance.

The Spartanburg couple escaped from officers early yesterday in that city when a third man believed connected with the two was captured. Edward Clyde McAllister, 34, of Huntsville, Ala., was driving a truck behind a car occupied by the couple when taken into custody.

The Hensleys sped away and were believed at one time to be heading through North Carolina and toward Tennessee.

Cowpens is only a short distance from the North Carolina line. McAllister denied he was one of three persons who exchanged gun fire with Lt. Dainy Gerland of the Tennessee highway patrol near Chattanooga Thursday and stole his patrol car containing a machine gun and 500 rounds of ammunition.

Since then the trio had zigzagged through Georgia and then northward leaving a trail of stolen cars. Brown, who declined to name the home of the acquaintance where the Hensleys were captured, said the machine gun and ammunition were recovered.

The couple was taken to the Spartanburg jail.

The FBI said Hensley and McAllister were released two months ago from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta where they served time for transporting stolen automobiles across state lines.

Mrs. Hensley, according to the FBI, is on two year's probation ending next October for a similar offense.

Chinese Claim Lake Is 'Tamed'

San Francisco—(AP)—The Chinese Communists say they have tamed Poyang lake, which flooded about 2,500,000 acres of farming land last year and contributed to China's current famine. The lake, fed by the turbulent Yangtze, is located between Hankow and Nanking in east central China.

A Communist broadcast said more than 120,000 peasant repaired and strengthened 1,800 miles of dikes around the lake. Reds predicted this would prevent a recurrence of the floods even though flood conditions along the Yangtze are as bad as last year. Last year's floods were the worst since 1931.

Gassification In Mine Given Test

Chesterfield, England—(AP)—Britain's first mine gasworks is in operation here. Gas is being produced by the burning of coal 60 feet down in an old mine.

The seam was ignited by two incendiary bombs set off in it. Gas piped to the surface burned brightly. Samples were sent to the national coal board for analysis.

The experiment is part of the ministry of fuel's project for the underground gassification of coal. The object is to obtain cheap power from mines that are too poor to work otherwise. The gas is to be used mostly in turbines.

Favors Uniforms For Children

London—(AP)—Magistrate Frank Powell says, "Put all the children in uniforms. They will love it," he told the Marriage Guidance Council here. "It makes them feel important."

Powell, who is 59 said a uniform-youth movement would be the best way to solve Britain's problem of young criminals.

Bear Victim?

Quebec, June 6—(AP)—Police today said they were convinced that three-year-old Nicole Beaud, missing in a suburban forest since Saturday, had been eaten by bears.

A search by nearly 1,000 police, soldiers and civilians was called off.

Bear tracks were found in the vicinity where the tiny girl disappeared, eight miles north of here. There had been no reports of attacks on people by bears in the area but the police official in charge of the search, Lieut. Martin Healy, said, "We have come to the conclusion that Nicole has been devoured by bears or by a bear."

Fossil What's-It Found By Miner

Trona, Calif.—(AP)—Fossil remains of what may be a prehistoric flying fish or lizard were dug out of a tunnel at nearby Salt Wells Canyon by Zilist Rizir, a miner.

The skeleton has the wings and bones of a bat and the claws of a rat. Imprints in the stone indicate it had a scaly, fishlike skin. The fossil was sent to the University of Southern California for study.

Vance Coroner Is Found Dead

Henderson, N.C., June 6—(AP)—Newly elected Vance County Coroner A. B. Young, 55, was found dead in a ditch last night with a pistol in his hand.

Deputy Sheriff L. B. Faulkner said apparently it was a "case of suicide." No motive was ascertained. Faulkner said he was not scheduling an inquest. Young's shot body was found alongside his car.

Rev. Neilson Is Rotary Speaker

By WYATT BROWN
"There has never been a time when there was a greater need for men of Christian character," declared Rev. Jack Neilson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, in his address to the Rotary Club meeting last night on the subject "Wanted: A Man." Characterizing man Rev. Neilson quoted from religious and secular literature arriving at the conclusion that each man has some of the high and some of the low in him.

Mr. Neilson mentioned the traits one could look for if one wished to recognize the "wanted man." First strength enough to say no to a proffered strong drink, second one who takes no pride in sowing wild oats. And then right down the line including one who does not play fast and loose with God given faculties, one with convictions, faith in self, others and God, courage covering the strength to stand for what is right as well as physical courage, tolerance, control of tongue, passions, temper and self.

Further aids in identification of the "wanted man" can be found in what one's enemies say, and also by what one's enemies say, Mr. Neilson went on to say.

Preceding the program Erzell Webb, Rotary Club president, told of his having been down to the Girl Scout Camp Hardee where he had found a new playground all cleared, the grounds about the building cleared, the new buildings and plumbing just about complete. He summed it up by saying "the work is moving along splendidly due to the fine work of Knott Proctor and others."

The Rotarians indicated they are going to attend the dinner to be given at Camp Hardee for them on Wednesday, June 14th by the Greenville Girl Scout Council. The Hardee family for whom the camp is named will also be guests for the dinner. Sidney Johnson was a guest of the Rotary Club last night. Leon Russell, chairman of the program committee, presented the program. Erzell Webb, club president, presided.

Upsurge In Farm And Factory Job Openings In May

Washington, June 6—(AP)—A 1,063,000 upsurge in farm and factory job opening in May cut unemployment to 3,016,000—the lowest since April, 1949.

The census bureau, reporting this Monday, said the number of persons with jobs rose in May to 59,731,000 highest since August 1948.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer in releasing the figures, commented: "These figures substantiate other highly encouraging reports of an upswing in business activity this spring. Although the absorption of new workers is close to the record job total of the year 1948."

Japan Increases Oil Production

Tokyo—(AP)—Japan is expected to produce at least 2,000,000 barrels of crude oil in the 12-month fiscal period ending next March 31. This compares with 1,556,000 barrels last year occupation officials said.

Increased production comes from new wells brought in near Yabaso on Japan's west coast.

Costly Error Gives Game To Kinston By 7-6 Margin

Third Sacker Hall Threw What Would Have Been Third Out In 12th Inning Over Hallow's Head, Scoring Two For Eagles

Greenville's Robins last night gave their third game away in as many days when Third Baseman Matt Hall threw what would have been the third out over George Hallow's head at first to let the tying and winning Kinston runs score in the bottom of the 12th inning. The score was 7-6.

Greenville now holds a scant three percentage point margin over the Eagles who are in fifth place.

Hall's costly error—his second of the game—came with the bases loaded and two out. The Robins were out in front as a result of a two-run outbreak in the top of the 12th after both teams worked for two extra innings with the score knotted at 4-4.

A single by Brigham drove in Minarcin who had previously doubled to bring the score to 6-5 with the Robins in front. Then Burns was on via a fielder's choice and he could get no further than second when Lahon singled. Relief Pitcher Vince Jones, who replaced starter Ray Keys in the ninth, walked Kinston pitcher Swanson to fill the bags.

Then things exploded. Leadoff man Root hit a slow dribbler to third and Hall grabbed it but threw over Hallow's head to allow the two runs to cross.

Greenville did all its previous scoring in one inning—the fourth—when five clean singles scored four runs to put them ahead 4-0. Kinston slowly built the column up scoring a run in the second, in the fourth and another in the eighth on Badman Jones' homerun.

The Robins muffed their chances of a win in the tenth when a double out at second resulted in killing off

A meeting of all interested stock car drivers will be held Thursday night at Joyner's Garage in Greenville at 8 p.m. The purpose of the meeting will be to outline rules and procedures for stock car racing on Pamlico Race Track in Washington.

A scheduled event last Sunday on the one-half mile dirt track was washed out by heavy rains and the races were postponed to Sunday, June 11.

Promoter Carlton Joyner is anxious to increase interest in the races because this is the first time the formation of a racing association has been attempted herabouts. He urged all drivers who wish to participate Sunday to meet with him Thursday night.

Sugar Ray Wins Decision Against Robert Villemain

Philadelphia, June 6—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, the master craftsman of the ring, has a one-forty-eight interest in the middleweight crown today after doing a workmanlike job on stocky Robert Villemain of France.

But the lanky Sugar from New York's Harlem definitely would like the other 47 parts—even to the extent of giving up his welterweight title—before retiring in two years.

Robinson won the Pennsylvania version of the 160-pound championship last night before a disappointing crowd of 22,004 which paid $119,007.49 to see the fight at Philadelphia's huge municipal stadium. He displayed a variety of blows that while not able to knockout the squad Frenchman, caused Villemain to say in his dressing room:

"He's a real champion. He hits harder than any man I ever met." "It's a wonderful thrill to win the world's middleweight championship, even if it's only for the State of Pennsylvania," said Robinson in his dressing room.

"Now I'd like to be champion of the entire world," he added. And to that end, Sugar Ray said he is ready to meet Jake Lamotta, recognized 160-pound king everywhere except in Pennsylvania, anytime and anywhere.

"If Jake will fight me, we can make a deal," he said, and then laughingly added: "But if it is in Pennsylvania remember he'll be the challenger and I'll want the championship of the state."

While the National Boxing Association declined to go along with the Pennsylvania Commission in recognizing the bout as a championship affair, it ruled that the winner of the Lamotta-Robinson fight in New York June 28 must meet Robinson within 90 days.

Robinson's only defeat in 111 bouts was at the hands of Lamotta. But after that setback he walloped Jake four times.

Robinson entered the ring the 1 to 5 favorite and he won just like an odds-on favorite.

Only Referee Charley Daggert saw the bout anywhere near close. He gave 10 rounds to Robinson and five to Villemain. Judges Frank Maresborough and Harry Lasky each credited the smooth-working New York Negro with 12 rounds while scoring three for the Frenchman.

Tonight's Games

Greenville at Tarboro
Rocky Mount at Roanoke Rapids
Goldboro at Wilson
New Bern at Kinston

Now that real baseball weather has arrived in this section, maybe you baseball fans will be able to take more interest in the national pastime and attendance out at Guy Smith Stadium will pick up.

The fans who regularly visit the local park can be sure that the excitement will grow more intense as the days go by. There is a great beating of the bushes going on. Every club in the circuit is looking for power and more power.

Some of them have already added considerable strength. For instance, there are the New Bern Bears who took the game from the Robins here Thursday night and moved into second place in the league standings.

There is one thing we should remember—never play the Bears short. They have a bang-up good team with lots of power as well as better than average pitching.

The Bears will surely be in the final scramble for position in the first division and more than likely in the fight for top honors at the end of the season.

Then there is Manager Randy Heflin and his Robins, who have one of the best defensive teams in the league. They have one of the best shortstops to be found in the circuit and have a first baseman who can really hold down the sack, while Matthew Hall, playing his first year in professional ball, is one of the greatest hustlers seen on the local field in a long time.

Then when it comes to the pitching end of the game the Robins have four of the best in the circuit with Manager Heflin, Ray Keys, Vince Jones and Jim Lewey. They recently added Bobby Harrison of last year's team to their roster and as soon as Bobby gets in shape he will be hard to get around with around the circuit.

Then in Pinky White they have a great relief worker, who has shown his ability from time to time and when the going gets rough.

The Wilson Tobs, skippered by foxy Bill Herring, may be counted on to furnish considerable stiff competition before the season ends. Whether the Wilson club can secure the needed strength to start

Clever Catcher

"Sam Calderone has everything to become a good catcher," said Manager Leo Durocher. "He has a good arm and isn't afraid to use it. He's a hard worker and a hustler. I like the way he takes his cut at the plate and I feel certain that he'll be all right when he gets more work."

Calderone is a rookie backstop brought up from St. Paul, where he batted 316 in 60 games last season. Manager Durocher must have figured that Sam would help the Giants when he let the veteran catcher, Ray Mueller, go when the squad had to be pared down. In the games he has worked in the Giants' livery, Calderone has shaped up as a real find.

The Brooklyn Dodgers had Calderone in their chain for five years but let him go when there was little prospect for need of him in the immediate future, the Dodgers being well supplied with backstop stars in Ray Campanella and Bruce Edwards. In three of his five seasons as a Dodger farmhand, Sam was his league's all-star receiver. He didn't get to work much for St. Paul last season because the Saints had Ferrell Anderson, an outstanding catcher in their line-up. Calderone is 23 years old and husky enough to stand plenty of work behind the plate. It won't be long before he is pushing Wes Westrum for the first string catching assignment. Especially, if he keeps pounding the ball.

any drive toward league leadership before they are too far behind remains to be seen, but during last week they turned back the Jays on two occasions to knock them out of second spot in league standings.

The Rocky Mount Leafs and the Roanoke Rapids Jays appear to be content to rest their respective cases with the material already on hand although the Jays recently added some reinforcement to its infield with the acquisition of Frank Tepedino last week. They are also expected to add another pitcher in the near future.

From all indications, the Leafs seem to be satisfied, as well they may, because they took the league lead at the start of the season and have never relinquished it even though they have been hard pushed by the Jays on several occasions.

Then, too, the Tarboro Athletics may be in the homestretch as you can bet your bottom dollar that Manager Joe Antolick is going to get some help from the Philadelphia Athletics, the parent club. He recently acquired a veteran shortstop in the person of Elton Jackson and this should give him a much better defensive team.

Not to be overlooked are the Kinston Eagles and the Goldsboro Cardinals who in the opinion of the writer will gain strength from time to time as the season progresses.

All in all, it should be a great fight, and fans may look for competition among the eight clubs in the circuit to be much keener.

Two Softball Leagues Organized At Meeting

Two softball leagues were formed as a result of a meeting last night with Boley Farley, summer recreation director, and representatives of Industrial and Civic League teams.

At the meeting rules were drawn up at a agreed upon by the respective managers of both leagues.

Thus far only three civic club teams have indicated they will play. They are Junior Chamber of Commerce, Exchange and Lions club. Farley said he thought both the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs would either team or would combine for a single entry.

The rules set out last night call for the season to run from June 14 to about August 1. There will be two games per week on Tuesday and Thursday. All rained-out games must be played within six days after the cancellation.

No game will start before 6:15 p.m. All teams will contribute a dollar for umpires. No more than 15 players on any team, all players to sign a contract and any player participating in one game must remain on that team's squad for the duration of league play. All play will be governed by official softball rules and any protests will be ruled upon by Farley.

No player signed by any team after June 10 will be eligible for league play. The first series for determination of a league champ will be two out of three games and the finals between the two leagues will be three out of five games.

Farmville Splits Two With Walstonburg

Farmville, June 6—Junior John made up for Saturday's pasting by Walstonburg when he pitched a seven hitter their way last night, beating them 9-4.

On Saturday Farmville and Yohn were shut out to the tune of 8-0 in a six-inning affair. Walstonburg's power hitters teed off on Yohn for single runs in the first, second and fourth, and two more in the fifth. Thereby, Yohn suffered his first defeat of the season.

But last night was a different story. The game was a playoff of Sunday's which was rained out. The Junior went the route for Norman Clark's team and pitched his sixth win against the lone loss. The win kept Farmville ahead in Bright Belt play with a record of 11 wins against four losses.

Clark and Willie Mauney provided the target practice for the locals last night with two hits in four times respectively. Mauney's extra base blow was a triple and Clark's a double. Both added singles for their night's efforts.

Walstonburg used four pitchers in managing to get the Farmville nine out enough times to call it quits. Shirley started, was chased in the second when Thorne came in to relieve him. Thorne lasted until the sixth when Griffin took over but his tosses were short lived. He went out the same inning, giving way to Etheridge who finished up.

Tomorrow Saratoga appears here in what was a game scheduled for Saratoga. However, the contest will be played here under the lights.

Fabric Drama For The Home Dressmaker

Simplicity Patterns: Sheath dress, 8252; Shirtwaist, 8248; Skirt 3157. FOUR-IN-ONE... Two coordinated cotton fabrics, designed by Dumari, make the four-way ensemble above. The sheath at

By DOROTHY ROE
 Associated Press Fashion Editor
 The smart girl who sews her own can take advantage of fabric contrast to achieve some of the season's high-fashion effects. The sheer coat over the sheath dress, introduced in Paris and popularized by U.S. designers, is one of the summer's most important styles. And it's simple for the home dressmaker to duplicate, with the aid of modern patterns and some of the lovely sheer fabrics now available at piece-goods counters.

Starting with a sleeveless sheath of an opaque fabric such as cotton broadcloth, she can produce a wardrobe of half a dozen outfits by adding separates of airy voile, organdie or even dotted Swiss.

Suppose our home-sewing fan chooses a combination of black sheath and flower-printed voile. By making a shirtwaist blouse and separate skirt of the voile she may switch combinations to make four different outfits. The sheath may be worn alone or as a cocktail or informal dinner dress. Addition of the blouse makes it a cool, dressy daytime outfit. With an overskirt of voile, it's right for the country club dance. And with both blouse and skirt, the outfit is effective for the dressiest afternoon party.

Possible Separation For School Of Medicine Seen

Wake Forest, N. C., June 6—(AP)—Separation of the Bowman Gray school of medicine and the Baptist hospital in Winston-Salem from the Baptist state convention is a possibility, Tar Heel Baptists were cautioned.

Dr. Wingate M. Johnson, professor of medicine and head of the school's private diagnostic clinic, sounded the warning yesterday at Wake Forest College's commencement exercises.

Dr. Johnson based his speech on what he termed a "joker" in a resolution adopted by the Baptist state convention in a special meeting in Charlotte last April. At that session, the convention voted to turn down a federal grant of $696,356 for constructing a wing to the Winston-Salem hospital. The convention voted to try to raise the money through contributions.

The joker in the resolution, said Dr. Johnson, was a sentence which provided that if the Winston-Salem medical school and hospital should be transferred to an independent board, "the convention will not be obligated to borrow money as provided in this resolution."

Johnson said the issue "is very likely to come up at the November Baptist convention. That is why I'm bringing it up at this time," he declared. "I'd rather get it out into the open now than let someone pop up with it at the convention."

Asked to comment on Dr. Johnson's talk, Dr. C. C. Warren of Charlotte, a member of the college's board of trustees and who offered the resolution at the Charlotte convention, replied:

"If North Carolina Baptists don't raise this $700,000, then we'll find out whether it is a joker or not. If the money isn't raised," he said, "it is very conceivable that the separation will be made."

The issue of separation of church and state was the crux of the controversy over whether to accept the federal money. "We want the hospital and medical school to go on and be one of the ranking institutions of the country," said Warren, "but we want to support it ourselves and not be dependent upon the government to do it."

He said "if we can't handle it, then we want to let it go free." He said that if the hospital and school meet under a separate board, then it could try to get funds from Washington.

Big Enough For Two Counties

Fishhook, Ill., June 6—(AP)—Robert Earl Hughes is not sure he's the fattest person in the world—he weighs 800 pounds—but he is quite positive of one thing.

He says: "I'll bet there's nobody as big as me living in two counties at the same time."

Hughes, 24, lives on his father's farm which is astride the boundary of two Illinois counties. The line separating Pike and Brown counties runs through the middle of the Hughes living room. So Robert claims he lives in two counties. Hughes was 24 last Sunday—but he didn't get any gifts of clothing. All his clothes are made to order. His chest measures 106 inches; his waistline is 8 feet 10 inches; his legs at the knees measure 33 inches.

Weekend Violent Deaths Hit 342

By The Associated Press
 The nation's violent deaths over a four-day weekend were running today more than 50 under last weekend's extended Memorial Day holiday.

The biggest decline in the toll was in traffic fatalities. In the current survey deaths on the highways numbered 199 as compared to 258 for a similar period last weekend.

The overall total since 6 p. m. last Friday was 342, the count on the morning of Memorial day since the preceding Friday night was nearly 400. The survey is being made to give a non-holiday weekend comparison with the death toll for a 102-hour Memorial Day holiday this year when 571 died in violent accidents.

This weekend's drownings—61—above the 55 reported last Tuesday morning. Deaths from miscellaneous causes today were 82 as compared to 81 on Memorial Day morning.

Dea by states in this weekend's survey (traffic, drowning and miscellaneous) included:
 North Carolina 4 0 2; South Carolina 1 0 0.

Beating Didn't Do Her Any Good

Pittsburgh, June 6—(AP)—A retired manufacturer who turned evangelist testified in divorce court proceedings he used to beat his wife but stopped "when I found out it was not doing any good."

Daniel A. Marra, ex-president of the National Torch Tip Company, appeared in court yesterday seeking an absolute divorce from his wife of 21 years, Aida.

A month ago, Marra announced he was giving up his business to devote all his time to spreading the teachings of God. He made his debut as an evangelist at Syria Mosque in Pittsburgh a week ago.

Marra charged his wife and mother of their five children with indignities. She filed a counter suit for limited divorce.

Mrs. Marra testified that she and her husband separated five times and that after a reconciliation in 1943, he gave her a silver plated fruit bowl bearing this inscription: "I pledge myself not to mistreat my wife and to bring her a gift every two weeks. If I forget, I will pay her $10."

McMullan Says High Court Decisions Apparently Do Not Affect N. C. Cases

Raleigh, N. C., June 6—(AP)—The U. S. Supreme Court's blows at racial segregation in Texas and Oklahoma, says Attorney General Harry McMullan, "will apparently have no effect on" similar cases pending in North Carolina.

In an opinion yesterday, the nation's highest court held that white and Negro students doing graduate work at the University of Oklahoma should not be segregated.

In another ruling, the court declared that Texas Negroes have unequal law facilities compared with those at the University of Texas and therefore should be admitted to the University of Texas.

U. S. Senator Frank P. Graham, when asked for comment on the cases while receiving an honorary degree at the University of North Carolina's commencement exercises, declared:

"I would like to have official reports of the cases before I comment. In Washington, Senator Clyde R. Hoey criticized the Supreme court and said the decision was 'unwise.' He predicted they would 'lead to confusion and irritation rather than to advance amicable race relations'."

Governor Scott, at Chapel Hill with Graham, had "no comment." McMullan, in a statement, wrote: "According to press reports, the Supreme court decisions x x x have not decided the question as to whether or not any kind of separation of the races in publicly supported schools and colleges is a violation of the fourteenth amendment."

"The court did not sustain the brief of the Attorney General" in which he asked the court to overrule several of its decisions "holding that segregation was constitutional as long as separate but equal facilities are furnished for Negroes." "These decisions," McMullan continued, "will apparently have no effect on the pending cases in litigation in North Carolina except to reaffirm the state and federal constitutional requirements that separate facilities must not discriminate against any group." North Carolina has four suits involving educational segregation pending.

Apparently Plan To Rewrite Part Of Arms Aid Bill

Washington, June 6—(AP)—Senators appeared ready today to take apart the $1,222,500,000 foreign arms bill and rewrite it with sharp curbs on presidential power.

First on the list, when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee completes hearings on the measure later in the week, was a section criticized by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.).

Vandenberg had the assurance of Secretary of Defense Johnson that he would go along with the rewriting of a section of the bill. Vandenberg said now is so broad that it would let President "take in the whole world" in supplying arms.

The Michigan senator said he objects to a section that would let the President transfer up to 10 per cent of the total funds to give military supplies to any nation whose defense he deems vital to the United States.

Johnson also ran into stiff objections by Senator Green (D-RI) against a section which would permit the President to give arms aid to nations outside the North Atlantic treaty group. Green said the language indicated this country might go into the business of putting down revolutions.

Johnson disapproved but he said he wouldn't object to having the section revised.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations group promised the committee will look over the bill with a sharp eye.

"We don't want to turn a lot of wild militarists loose without any guidance," he said.

Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass) came up with an objection to another section he said might increase the cost of the program by not requiring foreign nations to pay cash for arms when they placed orders for equipment here.

Johnson said the bill would require cash on delivery, adding that this was the normal commercial practice.

Reds Losing . . .

In nearly all the democratic countries, the Communists have been fast losing control of labor unions they once dominated. The French Communist Press has lost 1,500,000 circulation in the past year. The same trends prevail, also in the American Communist party—a loss of party membership, a loss of circulation for The Daily Worker, and loss of labor union control.

Officials here give most of the credit for the weakening of Communism in Europe to the recovery program and to the Atlantic pact, which gave promise of new security against Soviet attack. The trend against Communism had started, however, in some countries even before the Marshall plan was launched. Hordes of Red followers were disillusioned when Soviet Russia revealed her aggressive and imperialistic aims after the war.

The present loss of Communist political strength does not mean that the world Communist movement has become weak. It simply is not as strong in the Western nations as it was, and its strength is appreciably diminishing. It has given some officials the hope that, at least, the cold war will not continue indefinitely.

Probably the most optimistic of them is Paul G. Hoffman, administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration. In several recent speeches he has predicted that he will live to see the Stalin dictatorship pass into oblivion.

The area now called United States of Indonesia produced about 90 per cent of the world's pepper before the war.

Three Stray Mules Ramble On Highway Interrupt Traffic

Three stray mules on the Greenville-Winterville highway yesterday endangered traffic and slowed it up considerably until the farm animals were rounded up. They were driven to Smith Brothers' livestock plant near the baseball park.

The name of the owner of the mules had not been ascertained when the report was made to police headquarters.

The Court . . .

1. Heman Marion Sweat, a Negro, wanted to get into the University of Texas law school. Because he was a Negro, he was turned down. But there was then no Texas law school for Negroes.

To make a long story short, Texas set up a Negro law school but the court says, this was much inferior to the white law school. Further, says the court, this did not provide Texas Negroes with educational facilities equal to those of white Texas law students.

Therefore, the court said, Sweat must be allowed into the white Texas law school. But—the court didn't overturn the old decision of 1896.

Nor did it say Texas must continue to let Negroes into the white law school if Texas ever provides a Negro law school equal to that of the white one.

Yet—this decision was limited to the University of Texas law school. It seems to leave Texas free to keep whites and Negroes apart in the rest of the schools in Texas. At the same time, it broke down some of Texas' age-old policy of segregation. At least in this one school.

2. G. W. McLaurin, a Negro in Oklahoma. He applied for admission to the University of Oklahoma to study to be a teacher. He was rejected because of his race. Oklahoma has a segregation law on schools.

But—again to make a long story short—he was finally admitted after going to court. He said the constitution was violated because he wasn't given equal opportunity for education with white students.

Yet, when he was admitted, he was segregated: He had to sit apart from white students, eat apart from them, use a separate part of the library. He went to court again and his case reached the Supreme Court.

The court ruled yesterday that, by segregating him in the school, the state was interfering with his ability to study. Therefore, the court said, he was not given his constitutional right of equal protection. It ordered the segregation of McLaurin in the school to stop.

In that school, the court said, he must receive equal treatment with other students. But the court didn't rule on Oklahoma's lower schools. And the points involved in the McLaurin decision are the same as those in the Sweat case explained above.

Dramatic Group Presents Plays

The East Carolina Players gave yesterday afternoon in the Austin auditorium on the campus the first of a series of performances of plays for children, which will take them during the month of June to several towns in the eastern section of North Carolina. The Players, a group of alumni and students of East Carolina Teachers College, presented before an audience of several hundred young people of the city a group of three one-act plays, which were well received by the boys and girls who were present.

This evening the Players will appear in Littleton, and Thursday will return to Greenville for a performance at the Eppes School for Negroes in this city.

Other performances to be given during the tour will include programs at Wilson and Roanoke Rapids. The series of five appearances is sponsored by the Alumni Association of the college, and by various local organizations in the towns where the plays will be given.

The plays chosen for presentation this year are three one-act dramas by the British writer Rose Fyleman. Alton Finch, Roanoke Rapids, is the director of the group; and Helen Winslow of Goldsboro is technical director. The casts of the plays include, in addition, Geraldine Weathers of Shelby; Dorothy Thomas of Conetoe; Elmer Williams of Washington; Nell Rose Ellis of Gatesville; Joseph Conleton of Halifax; and Sam Fleming of Greenville.

Talk Of Ending No Smoking Rule

Manchester, England—(AP)—British manufacturers of cotton yarn are being urged to follow an American example and do away with "no smoking" rules in their factories. An eight-member productivity team from the British cotton yard doubling industry made the recommendation in a report on a recent tour of mills in the United States.

The members said they saw mills equipped with glassed-in cubicles where three workers at a time could go for a smoke.

Hunter Proved Weapon Deadly

ITAGOM, Sudan—(AP)—A Sudanese native went pig hunting with his bow and arrow. Another native met him in the bush. The newcomer scornfully said he didn't think the hunter's arrows were big enough to kill a pig.

The hunter, angered, said the arrows could not only kill a pig—they could kill a man. The second native said he doubted it. The hunter was right. He proved it by killing the second native with the arrow, police reported.

SMOKY JOE

By W. F. BRAGG

Chapter 20
Seating herself at the low table beneath the mirror, Nevada Kate crossed her silken legs and began to inspect her rouged and powdered face in the glass. She continued to hum her little song while Joe stood behind his curtain, not daring to breathe.

The danger became acute when she sprang away from the table, twirled so swiftly on her slippers that her gown flared out, and walked straight toward the alcove where Joe was hiding.

Since he didn't intend to be trapped again by this woman, he stepped out boldly and took Nevada Kate into his arms.

"You," she gasped, and he felt her supple form tense, then began to writhe as she fought against his embrace. "Me," Joe whispered. He walked across the room toward the table, holding Kate tightly in his arms as he did so, and placed her in the chair.

She began to weep. "You have no pity for a poor injured woman," Joe grinned. She struggled, but he tore her scarf into lengths of tough silk and tied her wrists and ankles to the sides and legs of the chair.

Kate began pleading. But he silenced her by taking the toy derringer from his pocket and laying it on the table.

"I wanted to return it," he jeered. "A keepsake you lost when you visited me in jail." Then, while her eyes blazed hatred above the gag, he bowed mockingly to Nevada Kate and opened the door leading into the hall.

"You deserve killing," he said, "but I draw the line at women, even fancy cats like you. But tell Pack Rogan I'll look him up." He was saying, when the door across the hall opened suddenly and fat Pudge Groner stepped out.

Joe held a slight advantage over Pudge because of the latter's surprise.

Pudge reached for his gun, but Joe leaped upon him instantly. Whipping up his Colt, he hit Pudge a blow on the head with the side of the barrel.

Stepping over the sprawling form Joe headed for the outside stairway. He dared not halt to tie up Pudge.

Halfway between second floor and alley level, he passed a window. Glancing through the dusty panes, he saw now that it overlooked the gambling room of the Silver Hill. But what drew Joe's sharp eyes was the sight of Rance Hale seated at one of the poker tables.

Running rapidly down the remaining steps to the alley, Joe thought disgustedly that Rance looked like a fat calf waiting for the butcher's knife.

As Joe stepped off the bottom of the stairway, a horseman turned into the alley and cantered toward him. He hoped the rider hadn't spotted him. But the rider reined in, leaned from his saddle, and asked suspiciously, "Who are you?"

Joe stepped away from the rain barrel. He said easily, "I was going in to play a little poker."

And far past the time set for a meeting at Rawhide Crossing, Joe edged his lathered pony cautiously into the straggling cottonwood timber that bounded the upper flank of the trail.

He sat humped over the saddle horn listening with both ears for sounds of the men who pursued him.

Takes Dim View Of Moral Fiber

St. Louis, June 6—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch said today "I find competence low, and growing lower, in the affairs of all mankind, and that includes us."

The financier, who has been called on by many Presidents as an adviser, made the statement in a commencement address at Washington University. "I find politics largely in the hands of self-seekers—those who give the people what they think the people want—bread and circuses—instead of painstakingly working out the processes of betterment," Baruch said.

"That is why I am apprehensive. We cannot arm against incompetence; we must extirpate it." Baruch told the graduating class that passage of a standby Selective Service Act "is the height of immorality when it is not accompanied by a mobilization of property and material interests, and prevention of profiteering." "Why youth and not profits?" he said. "This shows the deterioration of our moral fiber."

payment necessary to Lansing.

Four-and-a-half miles of paving on two county roads were approved. The roads to be hard-surfaced are the Holly Branch Road in Pactolus Township, two miles; and Old Bethel-Stokes road, beginning at Bland's Service Station and running to C. H. Briley's farm, two-and-one-half miles.
