Amerasia Case Is Said Being Probed

Secret Federal Grand Jury Reportedly Looking Into Affair; Witnesses Before Senate Group Testifying; Forrestal Indicated As Delaying Action

Washington, June 8—(AP)—A congressional source said today that a secret federal grand jury is looking into the 1945 Amerasia case in New York.

The source, who asked not to be named, said the grand jury has called many of the witnesses who have appeared before a Senate committee which is looking into the secret documents case.

The Senate group is centering its attention on the question of who delayed arrests in the affair.

It is reported to have received secret testimony that the late James V. Forrestal probably advised delaying them.

A source in close touch with the Senate inquiry into the secret documents case told a reporter the testimony came from Assistant Attorney General James M. McInerney, chief of the Justice Department's Criminal Division. The source asked not to be named.

Forrestal was secretary of the navy at the time the case broke five years ago. Later he became secretary of defense. He was killed last year in a plane crash from an upper floor of the Naval Medical Center at nearby Bethesda, Md.

The information about the testimony regarding Forrestal came to light in the wake of still another authoritative report that the committee got testimony yesterday that former presidential aide James K. Vardaman may have tried to delay prosecution in the hotly-disputed Amerasia case.

Vardaman emphatically denied it to a reporter last night.

McInerney's testimony was taken by the committee last month at a series of sessions behind closed doors.

An informant said McInerney first told the committee he seemed to recall that Forrestal had asked the Justice Department to delay the arrest of the six persons accused. They were taken into custody by the FBI in June 1945.

Later this informant said, McInerney testified that he had located a note from Justice Department files which indicated that Forrestal did make such a request.

The Baltimore Sun, in a story from its Washington bureau, said today it has information that Forrestal's reported action may have stemmed from a desire to avoid friction with Russia about this country's trusteeship rights over islands seized from Japan.

It said Forrestal reportedly suggested delaying the Amerasia arrests until after the United Nations conference then going on in San Francisco.

Mobile Highway Post Office Is Victim Of Blaze

West Jefferson, N.C., June 8—(AP)—A $20,000 mobile highway post office and its contents were completely destroyed by fire today near Laurel Springs. The blaze started when the motor of the vehicle caught fire after a climb up a long hill.

The operators of the vehicle said the fire began in the rear of the truck and was completely out of control by the time the post office could be stopped.

No estimate could be made on the loss of mail.

The vehicle which was destroyed operated as a highway post office between Greensboro and Boone. The service was begun in February, 1949. The mishap took place about 9:15 a.m. when the truck was returning from Boone to Greensboro.

They Talk Of Peace

Two Widely Divergent Angles In Current Discussions Of Peace Outlook; Use Of Power As Deterrent Russian Aggression, And Disarming; Soviet UN Tactics

Peace talk, from two widely divergent angles, has been a leading theme in Washington for some days.

Many top officials, from the President down, have been saying that the outlook for peace is better now than for some time because rearmament is progressing so satisfactorily. The military strength which the Atlantic Pact nations are developing will act as a deterrent to Russia if she contemplates an attack, they say.

But Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, in the proposals recently made public, suggested that new negotiations be commenced to bring the armaments race under control. Then yesterday a bi-partisan group of 11 senators and representatives proposed that Congress advocate an immediate special session of the United Nations General Assembly to stop the armaments race.

Dean Acheson, Secretary of State, yesterday expressed sympathy with Lie's proposals and gave assurance that the United States would continue its four-year effort in the United Nations to find some method for effective armaments con-

No Countywide Runoff As Smith Declines Bid

Although the voters of Pitt County will have to go to the polls again June 24 to vote for a senator, there will be no countywide race to consider at the polls.

W. Jasper Smith of Bethel stated this morning he would not demand a runoff vote between himself and Frank M. Kilpatrick for the House of Representatives. Kilpatrick led Smith by 150 votes. Sam O. Worthington led the ticket for the other seat.

Smith stated he had filed with the elections board chairman on Monday pending a decision to run. He said he wished to thank his friends for their support in the campaign and first primary but had decided not to make a second race of it.

The only runoff in the county will be for constable of Beaver Dam Township, incumbent Alton Joyner received a plurality over his two opponents, Sidney O'Neal and Larry Worthington, but lacked a majority by 19 votes. Joyner polled 114 votes while O'Neal was getting 77 and Worthington 56.

The difference between the Soviet attitude and our own and other Western governments' attitudes toward the United Nations is that the Soviet government uses it as an instrumentality for whatever kind of maneuver it wishes to indulge in at the time; whereas we do our best to carry out the purposes of the charter.

Winchester, Mass., June 8—(AP)—Thabla Abis and Aba Sabample Abof Thabe Nabew "Ab" Laban-guage Wshibich Abis Drab-inguabing Fabarabents Crabazaby (Translation: This is a sample of the new "Ab" language which is driving parents crazy.)

The teen-agers in this and several other Boston suburbs are indulging almost exclusively in this jabber-wocky. And the grownups—teachers included—are going Dabaffaby (daffy.)

The kids rattle it off a mile a minute, even sing in the "language." The popular song, "music music, music," gets the treatment under the title Mabusabic, mabusabic, Mabusabic.

Here's how the "language is talked: The syllable "Ab" (pronounced "Ab") is inserted before each sounding vowel, and before "Y" at the end of a word. In each case the "Ab" is accented. Teachers say some of the more proficient youngsters speak it as rapidly as they do English.

Eisenhower Says There's A Limit To Defense Cost

New York, June 8—(AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that huge military expenditures are necessary but "if unwatched, may dangerously bleed the economy and even destroy what we seek to protect."

Eisenhower made the statement in a speech prepared for the 196th commencement exercises of Columbia University, which he heads.

He told the Columbia graduates that "stupendous military expenditures," though "essential for the country's safety," are one of the major problems to be faced in the future.

Eisenhower recently said before a U.S. Senate appropriations subcommittee that our military budget had been trimmed as far as was wise—even too far.

He said at that time that he might have added a few hundred million dollars—not more than $500,000,000—to the proposed budget for arms, if he had his way.

However, before the committee he also listed a healthy economy as an essential for national safety.

Gen. Eisenhower said today that the danger of wrong answers to the nation's own problems is as critical as the danger from "world revolution, with an announced purpose of destroying the American system of government."

He listed among the problems the graduates must face: "The growing and, apparently, un-

Plans Progress For County Fair

Manager Norman Y. Chambliss of the Pitt County Fair announced today that plans are rapidly progressing for the annual American Legion Fair which will be held this fall during the first week in October.

Chambliss said the emphasis will be laid on making the Fair "truly an agricultural event" and added: "Yes, we have been working on the 1950 event since the day the 1949 successful Fair ended last October. Pitt County is strictly rural, and we propose to stage even a better Agricultural Fair than we staged last year. All of the agricultural leaders of Pitt County are cooperating with us 100 per cent."

"This year we expect to have additional exhibits from the schools Greenville and Farmville in the way of home economics; we expect to have as many as thirteen home demonstration clubs exhibiting with us, as well as 4-H clubs, vocational agricultural schools, junior swine show, cattle, poultry and industrial exhibits. The people of Pitt County can depend upon us to produce an up to date agricultural Fair that they will be proud of."

S. C. Winchester, county agent, will serve as general director of exhibits for the men's division, and Miss Jean Steele, home demonstration agent, will serve as general director of exhibits for the women's division, and their respective assistants will serve in various capacities.

Pitt ABC Sales For May Decline

Sales for Pitt County ABC stores in May suffered a drop of more than $17,000 as compared with the previous month of April, a report from the Pitt Board revealed today.

The report listed sales for May as being $77,899.20, while sales for April were $95,650.55.

Wm. Remington Is Indicted By Jury

New York, June 8—(AP)—William W. Remington, government economist, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on one perjury count for denying he ever was a member of the Communist party.

The indictment was presented to federal Judge John C. Clancy.

It charged that when Remington was asked on May 25 whether he ever had been a member of the Communist party, he replied: "I never have been."

The grand jury charged that Remington's answer was "untrue in that the defendant had been a member of the Communist party."

Farmers Can Buy Spuds For Feed

Irish potatoes to be used for livestock feed are again available to the farmers of Pitt County, it was announced today by Secretary James T. Meredith of the local PMA office.

The tentative period for the sale of the surplus Irish potatoes for livestock feed is to be continued through July 15, according to the directive on the potato sales received by the local office.

The spuds will be sold through the period subject to terms and conditions set out by the government. They may be obtained in bulk for one cent per hundred weight provided they are picked up at the point of government purchase.

Prospective potato buyers should notify Pitt PMA office as soon as possible that they wish to buy. The local office, in turn, will notify the buyer when and where he can pick them up.

Three Pitt Tobacco Men In South African Market

Three Pitt County men are among the handful of Americans who are at the present time helping to operate the South African tobacco business.

Lloyd Mills of Greenville, Pat Ruffin of Farmville, and Z. E. Edwards of Farmville are in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia where they are key men in the tobacco industry which disposes of approximately 110 million pounds of leaf which is annually grown in the country.

Mills is a sales manager for the market, Ruffin is a buyer for the Imperial Tobacco Company and Edwards is an auctioneer.

The Reflector today received a letter from Lloyd Mills along with the below photo.

The Greenville tobaccoist said the 110 million pounds of tobacco being grown in Southern Rhodesia are sold in two warehouses which are operated on the same selling system used in eastern North Carolina. The only difference, he says, is that tobacco in Southern Rhodesia is placed on the warehouse floors in bales rather than packed loose.

Prices are good on the African market, according to Mills. The average is approximately 60 cents a pound in American money.

"The market has two sets of buyers and sells about 800,000 pounds per day, or five thousand piles," Mills stated in his letter. There are two firms there which make cigarettes, he relates; the tobacco is much like ours and "the cigarettes aren't too bad."

Salisbury, Mills says, is a very nice town which has about 30,000 white inhabitants and approximately the same number of natives. The living conditions are very good. He expects to be in South Africa until September.

In addition to the three Pitt County men who are working with the Salisbury market, Mills mentioned Herman Crawford of Everetts, auctioneer; Graham Day of Timberlake, auctioneer; and Russell Bullock of Vass, an auctioneer.

Extended Draft Has Favorable Report By Senate Committee

Washington, June 8—(AP)—A three-year extension of the peacetime draft act was recommended to the Senate today by its armed services committee.

The present draft act is due to expire June 24.

The Senate bill would continue the president's power to order actual inductions of youths between 18 and 26 years if he found that necessary.

It also includes an amendment by Senator Russell (D-Ga) to require racial segregation in any of the armed forces if this is requested in writing by any person drafted.

Under direction of President Truman all of the armed services—army, navy and air force—have been gradually eliminating segregation of whites and Negroes.

The Russell amendment apparently would require separate racial units for draftees who requested it.

The Senate bill differs widely from one previously passed by the House and on which Senate hearings were held.

The House bill extended the present act for only two years instead of three asked by the administration. It also gives Congress control over actual inductions. Men could not be drafted until the lawmakers declared a national emergency or to meet manpower needs by concurrent resolution.

The Senate committee acted behind closed doors and a report on actual votes was not immediately available.

Before the committee acted, the chamber of commerce of the United States had issued a statement urging extension of the draft act for three years and giving the president power to order inductions.

Doomed Man Has Life Spared By Governor Scott

Raleigh, N. C., June 8—(AP)—Governor Scott today spared the life of Frank Scriven, 18-year-old Wilson county Negro slayer who was to die tomorrow in the State's gas chamber.

The governor's office announced that Scriven's death sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment. The youth was convicted of killing his common-law wife with a butcher knife.

The announcement said the decision was based on the prisoner's youth and on "doubt of his mental competency."

At his trial, Scriven said he wanted to die quickly and that he did not want his case appealed to the state Supreme court. The appeal however, was taken to the court and on May 24 the high court affirmed his conviction.

New Program Of Insuring Pitt Schools Discussed

As a result of Monday's meeting of the county school board, a new program of insuring county school buildings may be underway.

Meeting with the members were both private insurance agents in Pitt County and also agents representing the State of North Carolina.

The state agents presented a plan whereby the insurance on public school buildings may be obtained from the Public School Insurance Fund. That fund was made possible by a law passed by the 1949 legislature and is managed by the division of insurance of the State Board of Education.

At the present time the schools and outbuildings in Pitt are insured by private insurance companies, the amount approximately $3,000,000. Under the state insurance plan, as presented Monday, all the 70-odd buildings in the county school system will be insured for 100 percent of coverage and not less than 75 percent. Private companies have set no minimum on the amount of coverage guaranteed the schools as has the state. The board members took no immediate action. Chairman Joseph Moyer said his board was waiting to examine the figures in an effort to get the best policy offered by both groups.

Previously, the county school board had requested the separate school district boards to advise it as to how much coverage all buildings in their district would need. These recommendations were subsequently presented to the county board for study. However, the individual district does not have the final word on how much coverage its building will have.

The policy of insurance as outlined by the state group will involve into a blanket policy covering all buildings.

The board members were presented with a request from the Grifton district board for a bond election for renovation of one of the school buildings. Action was held for a later date pending submission of the request to the County Commissioners.

Truman Departs Today For Home State, Speeches

Will Talk On Foreign Policy In Missouri After Asking Nation's Prayers

Washington, June 8—(AP)—President Truman leaves today for two Foreign Policy talks in Missouri, after the nation's prayers for the wisdom to "obtain peace in the world."

"Never in the history of the country has a servant of the people— and that is what the President is— needed your support and your prayers as does the present occupant of the White House," Mr. Truman told a church gathering here yesterday.

In solemn words, he related something of his feeling at this time of his country's "tremendous possibilities" in the cold war.

No man, he said, no matter "how great or how informed he may be" is capable of filling the presidency in the manner "in which it ought to be done." He called it "the greatest job in the world."

Standing in the pulpit of the Augustana Evangelical Lutheran church, he told delegates to the 91st annual synod.

"All any man can do is to do the best he can in the interest of all the people of the United States." Religious people, "a President said, "are the greatest support a free government can have."

Mr. Truman takes off at 4 p. m. (EST) in the "Independence" for St. Louis. He cancelled his usual Thursday news conference to work at his desk until departure time.

He speaks first at the University of Missouri at Columbia at 11:15 a. m. (EST) tomorrow at commencement exercises. He will be awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and a Phi Kappa key.

His other prepared address on Foreign Policy will be delivered Saturday at 3 p. m. in St. Louis at the dedication of Jefferson Park.

All of his visit to Missouri, however, will be "a series of speeches." Even his own staff "doesn't know how many 'off-the-cuff' talks he will make in a round of social affairs in connection with the annual reunion of the 35th division in St. Louis before he returns to Washington early Saturday night.

Jail-Bound Man Has A Send-Off

Los Angeles, June 7—(AP)—Five hundred sign-waving sympathizers sang songs and listened to speeches on an airport tarmac tonight in a 30-minute farewell demonstration for jail-bound Dalton Trumbo.

The screen writer took off for New York to join John Howard Lawson. The two members of the "Hollywood Ten" will fly to Washington tomorrow to begin jail terms Friday. They were convicted of contempt of Congress for refusing to state whether or not they were Communists.

Fifth Survivor

London, June 8—(AP)—A fifth survivor and another dead crewman of a United States B-29 bomber were plucked from the North Sea today, nearly 24 hours after their flaming plane plunged into the water.

This left four U. S. Air Force men still missing from the crash, off the Norfolk coast of southeast England. Five of the 11 crewmen have been picked up alive and two dead. Ships and planes pressed the hunt for the men still missing.

A Royal Air Force rescue launch found the fifth survivor, who was injured and suffering from his long stay in the cold water.

An Active 10 Years

Supreme Court Has Been Giving Decisions To Bolster Civil Rights Of Negroes For Many Years, But The Last Ten Have Been Featuring Some Important Ones

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, June 8—(AP)—You may have the impression that the U.S. Supreme Court has suddenly become very active about handing down decisions to bolster the civil rights of Negroes.

Actually, the court has been doing this for years. But some of its biggest decisions have been made in the past 10 years, particularly in the past few.

The court has been following a principle laid down by the court in 1896: that when Negroes are segregated, they must be treated equally with whites. That's at the heart of all the decisions.

The 1896 court said segregation as a principle is all right. The court since then hasn't attacked the principle as a principle. Nevertheless, its decisions wipe out segregation bit by bit.

The decisions since 1896 have covered several fields: voting, education, property, and travel on trains and buses. This will give a roundup of the main rulings in the past 54 years.

Voting In the South the Democratic primary election is the important one, not the general election which follows it. That's because the South is mostly Democratic. The Republicans are weak.

In the Democratic primary the voters choose one of several Democratic candidates to face the Republican in the general election.

Since the Democrat is almost always a cinch to beat the Republican, this makes the primary the real election. Starting after the Civil War reconstruction era, the South has tried to keep Negroes from voting in the primary.

But in 1957, again in 1952 and again in 1944 the court stepped in and told Texas—and therefore the rest of the South—to stop barring Negroes from the Democratic primary.

(In 1949 the U.S. Court of Appeals told South Carolina's Democratic to stop barring Negroes.)

In the South now Negroes are voting in far larger numbers than ever before.

Property In 1917 the court said states couldn't have laws to make whites and Negroes live in separate sections, although it had to repeat this

Cory-Smith Vows Spoken In Fountain Thursday, June 1

A wedding of simplicity and dignity was solemnized in the Fountain Presbyterian Church Wednesday, June 1, at 11 a. m. when Mrs. Glendon Smith of Fountain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Smith of Benson was married to Reverend Philip Marion Cory, son of Mrs. Eva Frances Cory of Detroit, Michigan, and the late Edward Dana Cory of Savannah, Georgia. Reverend A. G. Courtenay, former pastor of the bride, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Prior to the ceremony Mr. Wyley Yelverton presented a program of organ music and Mr. Lynwood Polard, soloist of Tarboro, sang Grieg's "I Love Thee." "O Perfect Love" was sung as a benediction and the traditional wedding marches were used.

The church was decorated with pink gladioli and white feverfew in pedestal baskets, Oregon fern was used as a background.

Mrs. Smith was escorted down the aisle by Mr. Parilla Hudson her uncle who also gave her in marriage. She wore a two piece dress of navy blue nylon trimmed with white pique and lace. Her close fitting hat was of blue straw and trimmed with small flowers, and she carried navy blue accessories. A triple strand of pearls a gift of the bride-groom was her only ornament and a purple orchid at her shoulder completed her ensemble.

The brides only attendants were her twin daughters, Sara and Sandra, wearing identical dresses of navy blue and white with sheer white wristlet gloves and hats of natural straw with navy blue velvet trimming. They walked down the aisle together carrying dainty colonial nosegays of mixed flowers tied with satin streamers.

Earl Trevahon was best man and ushers were J. L. Peele, Leslie Yelverton and W. R. Harris of Fountain and Lloyd Clifton Smith of Benson, brother of the bride.

ECTC Student To Attend FTA Meet In Washington

Margaret Ann Powers of St. Paul, N.C., president of the Robert H. Wright chapter of the Future Teachers of America at East Carolina Teachers College, will attend the Fifth Annual Institute of Organized Leadership to be conducted on the campus of the American University, Washington, D.C., July 24-August 18.

She will be one of approximately 100 students from schools and universities of the nation who have been chosen to attend.

The institute offers a four-week course of study designed to equip officers of educational groups to give dynamic leadership in keeping with the Victory Action Program of the united education associations of this country. Dr. Paul F. Douglas, president of the American University, and Dr. Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the National Education Journal, will serve as institute chairmen. In addition to courses, the institute will give those attending an opportunity to participate in many events of the national capital's sesquicentennial anniversary.

Miss Powers has been active in FTA work on the campus here since she entered East Carolina in September, 1949. She represented the college FTA at the North Carolina Education Association meeting this year, and will serve as president of the East Carolina chapter during 1950-1951. She is a graduate of the Barker Ten Mile school and of Mars Hill College. At East Carolina, she is specializing in social studies and English.

Kiwanis Club's Directors Hold Important Meet

A review of the Kiwanis Club's activities for underprivileged children featured the directors' and officers' meeting at the American Legion Home last night. Ed Williford, one of the directors, was host to the group at a barbecued chicken supper. President Tige Gardner presided.

Reports of the Underprivileged Child Committee and the Scholarship Committee were gratifying. The Kiwanis Club is sponsoring several deserving students at East Carolina Teachers College and they are making good. It was stated. Funds for this Good Samaritan work are derived from the proceeds of the Kiwanis Club's annual minstrel show at the college, under direction of Ed Bloom.

In addition to President Gardner, officers and directors are Dr. H. Glenn Haney, vice-president; Arthur Tripp, past president; Secretary David C. Moore, and directors J. Bryan Brown, V. A. Merritt, J. Archie Rogers, Ed H. Williford, D. H. Conley, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, James Ray Pittman and R. W. Shiplett. Committee chairmen at the meeting were Ed Waldrop, underprivileged child; Jesse R. Moye II, scholarship; and Chester Walsh, public relations.

Police described the missing man as about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, weighing about 135 pounds. They said his family was alarmed over his prolonged absence. Information concerning his whereabouts should be phoned to the Greenville police department.

College To Participate In Columbia U. Project

East Carolina Teachers College was recently designated as one of eight colleges and universities in the United States which will participate in a citizenship-education project sponsored by Teachers College, Columbia University. The project is financed by the Carnegie Foundation and has as its basic purpose the finding of ways and means to strengthen citizenship in the nation. The eight educational institutions chosen as centers for the project represent as many states in this country.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina went to New York during the last week in April where, along with representatives from the seven other schools chosen for work in the program, he participated in work relating to the project. The committee is a plan for various activities designed to arouse local communities, boards of education, groups of citizens toward initiating steps for citizenship-education in their own schools and communities. Other work of the committee included plans for creating interest in citizenship-education throughout

Strength for the Day

SUSPENDED BY A HAIR
We often hear the expression, "The sword of Damocles." This Damocles was a flatterer in the court of Dionysius I of Syracuse. The king got tired of his constant praise and of his never-ending stream of prophecy that happiness would always come to the royal house. Dionysius therefore seated this Damocles at a royal banquet with a sword suspended over his head by a single hair. Hence the expression, when one expects troubles, that he is living under the sword of Damocles.
The constant flatterer, the never-ceasing prophet of happiness and prosperity! The purveyor of Pollyanna radiance and hopefulness! How these people get on our nerves! Nobody or course likes the wet blanket, the kill-joy. But the people who go to the opposite extreme, gushing out their happiness over everything that happens, their pleasure over life as it is, their confidence in the coming of the kingdom, prosaic folk who have to meet life's realities every day and take them as they come.
A good round of applause for Dionysius of Syracuse, the king who got fed-up on Damocles. We can only hope that the sword suspended over the head of the apostle of sunshine caused him considerable apprehension.

The Second Primary
Will Hold Important Issues

The people of Pitt county and North Carolina are faced with another two weeks of senatorial campaigning. The announcement of Candidate Willis Smith that he will go through a second primary with Dr. Frank P. Graham for the Democratic nomination will bring out again all the activities which have settled somewhat since the first primary, May 29.

There have been and there will be a large number of Graham supporters who will denounce the second primary as deplorable and uncalled for. However, The Reflector thinks it is in accordance with the Democratic principles which we have known to have the nomination for the Senate seat be decided by a clear majority vote.
We also are of the opinion that the people of the state, now that the maze of local campaigns has been cleared by the first primary, should seek out the real issues involved in the senatorial decision before casting their votes on June 24.

The first primary campaign on the part of both camps was beclouded through emphasis on personalities rather than issues. We hope the second primary campaign, no matter how hard-fought, will stick to the real issues which mark the differences in the things for which each of the two candidates stand.
The nomination of a Democratic senator from North Carolina is a matter which is of vital importance. Each voter should leave no stone unturned to be sure of what type program he is endorsing when he makes his mark beside the name of a candidate in the second primary.

Another D-Day For American Forces

Tuesday was the sixth anniversary of D-Day, but it passed almost unnoticed by the columns of newspapers throughout the country.
On June 6, 1944, the Allied troops began the task of retaking Europe foot by foot from under the heel of the Nazi conquerors. It was a great day for the people of the United States, but even greater for the people of England and the people of the western European countries.
The big news on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the event, however, was the signing by President Truman of a bill which will provide more than three billion dollars to aid the recovery of private enterprise of European nations, and to aid the development of the backward countries of the world.

The forces of the United States, in June of 1950 as in June of 1944, are destined for the task of liberating the peoples of foreign lands. Only the forces now being used are dollars rather than explosives, and the liberation is to be from poverty, disease and ignorance rather than a ruling military might.
The three billion dollar outlay by the United States government can be a great step in the promotion of peace, good will,

and higher living standards among people all over the world.
Its possibilities for improving conditions of the world are almost unlimited, provided the expenditures of such funds do not reach the point where they slay the goose which lays the golden egg—private American enterprise and individual tax paying citizens of the United States.

We've Been Lucky, But It Could Be Serious

It has happened again. The Greenville firemen and fire equipment have been delayed in reaching the scene of a fire because joy riders who also were going to the scene of the fire refused to obey the city ordinances.

Greenville has been fortunate in that the delay of fire equipment in arriving at the scenes of fires has not yet caused the city a serious loss. But if the traffic congestions continue to hamper the firemen's efforts to reach fires, a blaze which might have been controlled may get out of hand and cause heavy losses to the people of the city.

The ordinances are on the city books which call for the punishment of people who refuse to give firemen the right of way through the city streets when the fire alarm is sounded. The police department apparently has had difficulty in enforcing the ordinances.

If the city administration would make a concerted effort to have the ordinances enforced, however, The Reflector believes the firemen would have little traffic trouble getting to fires.

News Behind the News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Friendship and sentiment for the United States in the Far East has dropped from its early postwar peak to the lowest level since Commodore Perry forced open the ports of Japan in the middle of the 19th century, according to returning diplomats, newspaper correspondents and business men with Oriental experience and connections. From Korea to Mandalay the Reds are making headway by capitalizing on our mistakes.

These reports confirm the confidential statements of two of India's foremost statesmen during their recent visits here—Prime Ministers Pandit Nehru of India and Liaqat Ali Khan of Pakistan. Despite the extraordinary honors showered on them by the White House, they returned home even more determined than before to have no part in our "cold war" with Russia.

Contrary to Secretary Dean Acheson's thesis, which also happens to be the viewpoint of Professor Owen Lattimore, they fear that their lands might become actual battlefields if the current feud between Washington and Moscow blazes into a shooting affair.

WRONG—Our basic trouble, although it is admittedly easy to oversimplify this problem, is that we have backed the wrong horses too many times and in too many places. We have given our moral and material support to ancient and outworn regimes that are associated in the native mind with imperialism, commercialism and colonialism.

We have ridden along with Chiang Kai-shek in China, Dr. Syngman Rhee in Southern Korea, Bao Dai in French Indochina, President Elpidio Quirino in the Philippines. Where their establishments have not been corrupt, they have been selfish, and utterly out of sympathy with their people's new demands.

Despite all our financial and military assistance, Chiang has been defeated and virtually exiled. When Dr. Rhee held elections last week under the insistence of Washington, his party suffered a stinging setback. Bao Dai is an expatriated playboy from Monte Carlo, and sits on his puppet throne only with the support of French arms. Quirino is a ward politician.

TARRED—Our historic and current alliance with Britain, France and The Netherlands has led us to underwrite the reimposition of their colonial rule among a billion Orientals who demand their independence, whether we like it or not.

We are tarred with the same brush, despite many evidences of our friendship for them. We have suffered the same loss of "face" that the Europeans did when they were driven out of this vast area in the first few months after Pearl Harbor.

In our case it happens to be Stalin instead of Tojo who is the victor in the conflict between East and West, and the Russians are making the most of this kind of propaganda.

PROPAGANDA—In fact, we are in worse repute because it is American arms and money which equip their forces and finance their traders.

In every propaganda bulletin and radio broadcast, as State Department reports and recordings show, the Russians hammer on the theme that the "foreign masters" could not afford to remain in the Orient, and would not enjoy military superiority. If it were not for the reinforcement we give them through the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic Pact and other postwar help.

REALISTIC—In the same vein is the Kremlin's dining that the United States has no concern for the lot of "the downtrodden people" of the Far East and India, and that they should place all their reliance in "Uncle Joe."

These are not the jeremiads of Administration critics. They are not the partisan statements of McCarthy supporters or admirers. They are the realistic reports of practical observers who regard the situation in the Far East, insofar as the United States is involved, as "one of the great tragedies of modern history."

SHAKY—Although Japan remains solidly and apparently loyally within the American orbit, it is largely because the former enemy country is still under military rule. For obvious reasons our position there becomes more shaky every day that our stay is prolonged.

The Comies have raised the cry that the "Americans should get out," with the result that General MacArthur's security officers and officials of the domestic regime contemplate even stricter regulations against Red trouble-makers.

Our departure and withdrawal of financial support, however, might prove dangerous. For one thing, evacuation of air and naval bases would mean the loss of our one sure anti-Moscow bastion in that area.

Without our economic aid, which keeps the Japanese on a bare subsistence basis, and especially if Communist China withholds raw materials from the island factories, Japan might have no alternative except to cast her lot with Stalin's revolving Axis. Japanese energy and skills, linked to the vast resources of China and Russia, would soon make her a formidable power again, whether allied with the Communists or not.

ASSIGNMENT—These are the current fears and thoughts on the Far Eastern problem at the White House and the State Department. Neither President Truman nor Secretary Acheson can afford to discuss them openly. But National Defense Secretary Johnson, General Bradley and John Foster Dulles are not converging on the Orient within a few weeks to sample Tokyo tea.
Their assignment is to discover just how threatening conditions have become in the Far East, and what the United States can do now to check the anti-American movement.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Tuesday's column told the story of a man (me) who's so hard to get up in the morning that his wife is going to buy a water pistol and shoot him out of bed.

Before the story was published, I thought I was the hardest sleeper in the country. But I can no longer claim this distinction. Yesterday Mrs. Ed Ricks saw Wife Rachel in the grocery store, and told her the story of her husband's brother, Victor, who used to live with Ethel and Ed.

Since Victor is about my age (36), Mrs. Ricks was reminded of him when she read in the column that I can sleep through almost any racket. Victor can do the same things.

Mrs. Ricks isn't the bashful type, so it didn't take her long to get serious with her brother-in-law. "Listen here," she would say sternly, "you've got to improve. I don't mind calling you 10 times, but more than that is too much."

Victor agreed with Ethel that something had to be done about the situation, but the next morning he'd be equally as hard to arouse. At the time he was working at the Pepsi-Cola plant, from four in the afternoon until midnight. With that schedule he'd go to bed after lunch, "just for a nap."

Ed and Ethel are both proficient bridge players. In fact, they have discarded Culbertson's honor-point bidding system for the new 30-point plan. They play often at night, and now then Ethel will play in the afternoon while Ed is busy at his service station, Rick's Service Center.

Ethel would take off for a bridge game at three in the afternoon, and leave Victor in bed, still in the process of taking "just a nap." It was a shame to wake him up an hour before work, not to mention the fact that it would be useless anyway. He'd go right back to sleep after she left.

So Ethel tried moving the alarm clock away from the bed table, across the room to the dresser. But Victor soon developed the same talent I have. He learned to get up, walk across the room, shut off the alarm, and get back in bed without missing a wink of sleep.

Every day that Ethel played bridge Victor would be late for work. Ethel had to devise a plan that would work even when she was gone. After considerable thought, she hit on an idea that worked every time. She would set the same clock on the dresser, and in the same manner, Victor would walk across the room and cut it off, without waking up.

Ten minutes later another clock would go off, only this one made almost enough noise to awaken the dead. Ethel had put the clock under the bed, and under a dish pan. The alarm was amplified by the dish pan.

By the time Victor found the clock he was fully awake. The next day he had to find it in a new place, which worked again. By the time Ethel had worked the plan twice, Victor was all for it. It's so much better, he decided, to get to work on time that maybe it's even worth searching the house for an alarm clock with a dish pan over it.

And I thank Mrs. Ricks.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

LEADERSHIP—Elevation of Louis V. Sutton, president of Carolina Power & Light Company, to top place in the Edison Electric Institute, means that another North Carolinian has assumed high leadership in a nationwide field. The Edison Institute is the national electric utilities organization, and its president is recognized spokesman for the entire industry. North Carolinians have long been accustomed to their fellow citizens taking to places in government. As ambassadors, cabinet members and other high administration posts, chairmanship of powerful congressional committees and elsewhere Carolinians have had large part in government.

BUSINESS—Tarheel leadership in business and professional circles has been less widely publicized, but no less influential. The National Association of Manufacturers, the American Bankers Association, the American Bar Association, the National Cotton Council and other powerful groups have prospered under administration of North Carolinians in recent years. The tobacco stabilization corporation and the warehousemen for the entire bright leaf area have North Carolinians currently at their head, and N. C. addresses blanket rosters of directors in nearly all the big business organizations in the country.

DEMOCRATS—As soon as the second primary is out of the way the state Democratic organization will begin plans for the fall election campaign. Under the plan of organization the state chairman is required to name respective chairmen of the twelve congressional, twenty-one judicial, twenty-one senatorial and twenty-six senatorial district executive committees. (Seven districts embrace just one county each and the county executive committee functions.) State Chairman Everett Jordan said he hopes to get around to these appointments in a few days.

STATE—The organization plan also requires that as soon as practicable after the state convention the chairman shall call the state executive committee into session for purpose of selecting a chairman and vice-chairman. These meetings have usually been held in late July or early August at Raleigh. Incumbents are Everett Jordan of Saxapahaw, chairman, and Mrs. D. A. McCormick of Robeson County, vice chairman. So far as has been learned there is no sentiment for changing the officials and unless such feeling develops during the next few weeks Jordan and McCormick are expected to be continued. Numerous changes were made in committee membership at the recent state convention, but a substantial majority of the committeemen were carried over.

TAXES—Tax collectors are becoming more conscious every month of "loafs" through which a great many dollars due national, state and local governmental units have slipped away. The present excellent condition of the state treasury is due largely to stoppage of leaks in sales and income tax collections by the revenue department. North Carolina many years ago abolished tax payments as a requisite for voting—but it did not abolish taxes, not even the poll tax. Every male citizen between 21 and 50 years of age is supposed to pay poll tax; and every person who owns property in excess of $300 worth of household furniture is supposed to pay taxes on basis of equitable ad valorem appraisal. Poll tax is not a requisite for voting, and failure to pay taxes is not a crime. But—failure to list poll or property for taxation is a crime.

RESPECTING BASIS WITH THE CZECHS but because, as our note delivered in Prague yesterday stated, Czechoslovakia "has made it clear that it is no longer interested in maintaining normal diplomatic relations." The Czechs have manifested this attitude by demanding, as the Rumanians have done, that we cut down our diplomatic staff. We retain, as the State Department says, a "continuing confidence in the goodwill and traditional feeling of friendship of the people of Czechoslovakia toward the United States." We doubtless feel just as friendly toward the people of Rumania, but diplomatic relations become ironical when there is not good faith on both sides.

The kind of retaliation we have adopted might seem silly if it were not for one consideration. That consideration is the safety and dignity of our own representatives abroad. If we are to have official relations of any sort with nations suffering from the Communist distemper, we must have some means of seeing to it that our representatives are not humiliated or abused. Short of withdrawing every one of those representatives, the only action we can take to restrict their "diplomats" to the exact extent that they restrict ours. It may seem too bad that a Rumanian Minister or his wife or the third secretary of the legation should have to remain in the valley of the Potomac during the admittedly hot days of summer or escape that discomfort only by humbly begging permission to go on parole to some cooler spot. But we have to use the weapons we have. The relief for the situation does not lie in our hands. Normal diplomacy can be resumed whenever the rulers of the satellite or other Communist states decide to behave like civilized human beings. The prospects at the moment do not seem glitteringly bright.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

DIPLOMACY'S NEW MEANING (New York Times)
The best synonym the dictionary gives for the word diplomat is tactful. However, this definition begins to sound a bit old-fashioned. Within the space of two days the United States has directed the Rumanian diplomats residing in Washington to remain within thirty-five miles of that city unless given special permission to go elsewhere, and it has ordered the Czechs to close their consulate general in New York City. We are limiting the movements of the Rumanians not because we are afraid they will see things they shouldn't if they go more than thirty-five miles from Washington but because the Rumanian Government began this curious game by hectoring our own diplomats in Bucharest and demanding cuts in our staff there. We are closing the Czechoslovak consulate not because we would not like to do business on a self-

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Encouraged by the quick success of frozen orange juice concentrate, the frozen food packers are bidding for a larger share of the food business this year with an array of new products and some improved ones.
Frozen coffee concentrate came on the market this week in 5 1/2-ounce jars that retail for about 50 cents. This product is aimed primarily at the summer iced-coffee and dessert trade. It's easy to use for such purposes. But it's priced moderately enough in comparison to regular ground coffee so that it may hang on in many homes come cooler weather too. The housewife gets 30-34 cups from the frozen concentrate.
Other new products on or near the market at this writing include frozen lemonade mix, and new prune and apple juice concentrates.

Besides the juices, the freezers are getting an increasing share of the fish business from both the canners and distributors of the fresh variety.
Frozen milk concentrates will soon be sold in some states, too, especially deficit areas where fresh milk is transported long distances and consequently is costly. Shipping handling costs for the concentrate of course are less than for fluid milk; you don't have to ship the water content. Problems must still be ironed out before you find the milkman leaving a tiny jar instead of a large bottle on your doorstep mornings. Chief problem is that frozen milk concentrate tends to look curdled after a comparatively short period even though it still tastes sweet.

All told, the frozen food trade considers it has made rapid progress after its postwar setbacks when the public was disappointed in the quality of some products. Now quality is better controlled, and people who rushed into the business with more enthusiasm than knowledge have rushed elsewhere, trade leaders say.
Today frozen foods are sold in 200,000 stores compared with 3,000 only 12 years ago, and over 1,000 packers are in the business compared with the half-dozen pioneers during the '30's.

CANNERS HAVE SOME NEW COMPETITIVE ANGLES TOO
But don't think the canners are dozing while the freezing experts tickle the public's palate with new and tastier products. Canners are selling 30 per cent more fruits and vegetables than before the war and want things to stay that way. The canners will introduce more eight-ounce containers this year aimed at the needs of smaller and kitchenette cooks.

NEW AND HOT
OVEN SHOVEL: A new cooking utensil shaped like a small shovel which permits removal of hot utensils from an oven without burning hands or using pot holders is being marketed by Dor-Fle Manufacturing Co., Morgan Rd., Portland, Ore.
SUNGLASSES: Triple action sunglasses lenses which combine several components to better absorb heat and sunlight have been developed (by American Optical Co., Southbridge, Mass.).

CHANGES WILL AID TOTAL EATING
The big shares garnered by the freezers and canners will come in part from larger all-around consumption of juices, produce, etc. But there's little doubt that the business of selling fresh foods will increasingly narrow. Some marketing experts consider the term "fresh produce" a misnomer in these days when it arrives in urban centers from increasingly distant places. Even prepackaging so far hasn't done much to help fresh produce hold its flavor in its travels. And keeping a bunch of broccoli iced all the way from a far-off farm to the consumer's table is expensive.
Some interesting marketing changes will result from the further development of frozen and canned foods. Vending machines and a revival of smaller stores look like two possibilities, since you don't need as much space to sell foods from a freezer as in their fresh state.

EASIER LOAN RATE
FURTHER BOOSTS BUILDING
With home building already racing along (although now threatened to some extent by higher costs, building and loan officials are predicting lower interest rates will give construction of dwelling another boost. At the convention of the National Savings and Loan League in Chicago last week, the report was that pressure for lower rates all around is intensifying as a result of the reduction of 1/4 per cent in FHA-insured mortgage rates. That was provided by the Housing Act of 1950.

Hal Boyle's Column

New York —(AP)— Every day we wake up to a new crisis. And don't think we haven't got a grim one for today.

It's Antonio's getting short of gimps. There are plenty of old gimps, but there aren't enough strong young new gimps coming along.
A gimp is a person who earns his living sewing buttonholes.

"There are only about 3,500 buttonhole makers left in this country—and most of them are old men," said John Maxmillan Bappert, the Rembrandt in this field.

"The young people seem not interested too much in buttonholes. They seem interested in other things.

This is heresy to Bappert who recently was picked by a trades school here as the nation's outstanding buttonhole maker. His family sewed buttonholes for three generations before him in Hungary.

Bappert, a quiet, stocky man of 42, came here at the age of 13. He figures that in the last 29 years he has made 13,920,000 loops with his needle in sewing about 348,000 buttonholes. He averages 12,000 buttonholes a year.

"I do not find it dull," he said. "People think there is nothing to it. They say, 'What is a buttonhole? A buttonhole is nothing.' But it takes years of work to learn to make a buttonhole right."

Bappert supervises 18 gimps in the buttonhole department of Stuarts hand-tailoring firm. It takes him five minutes to make a 40-loop buttonhole.

He works without glasses. "My eyes are good," he said. "I can read anything—even the small print on a check."

His buttonholes are strictly for coats and vests. In 29 years he hasn't even sewn a pair of trousers in his workshop.

"Ninety percent of the trousers have slide fasteners or machine-made buttonholes," he said, "so they have nothing to do with me at all."

Despite the shortage of gimps, Bappert doubts that the fine old art of making buttonholes by hand will ever die.

"The machine-made buttonhole does not look so nice and neat," he said. "We need to teach the young people to make buttonholes."

Bappert also helps out with the sewing at home. His wife is an expert dressmaker, but he says she hasn't mastered the skill of making buttonholes.

"So far it looks like I'm going to be the last one in the family in the business," he said sadly. "I have only a daughter. My brother, who is a barber, has four children. But they are all girls, too."

When he was a small boy, his parents despaired of making a gimp out of him.

"They saw I was leaning to my left hand in playing games," he recalled. "They thought it was outrageous. They had never heard of a left-handed buttonhole maker."

"In Europe people thought it was terrible to be left-handed. So my family made me change to the right hand."

"And you know, in all the years since then I didn't see one left-handed buttonhole maker. "There is nothing impossible, but I couldn't even imagine it—a left-handed buttonhole maker. How would he do it?"

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Some 94,000 of America's World War II dead are now buried in permanent memorial cemeteries near non-mutated battlegrounds in far corners of the world. "Marshaled in final formation, they will repose in settings of dignity and impressive solemnity beneath crosses and stars, bearing a simple inscription—name, rank, unit, home state and date of death," writes Brig Gen. Thomas North in the Army Information Digest.

General North, now abroad reviewing and inspecting the cemeteries, adds that for the unidentified, the inscription reads: "Here rests in honored glory a comrade in arms known but to God."

Lt. Col. Charles B. Shaw, in charge of the Battle Monuments commission's Washington office, says the plan is to mark the cemeteries further by stately memorial chapels bearing the names of those who lost their lives in the vicinity. Altogether, there are 14 purely World War II cemeteries where dead who had rested in temporary burial places have been concentrated. About 40 per cent of the nearly 360,000 Americans who died overseas are buried in these cemeteries. The rest were brought home at the request of relatives for burial in family plots or national cemeteries. Some were buried at sea; others were lost in jungles or mountains and were never recovered.

There are eight World War II cemeteries. "In one instance," says Col. Shaw, "the dead of both wars are interred in the same cemetery. . . . Surinam, near Paris, which is the traditional site for ceremonies in which the French and United States government unite in honoring their war dead."

American cemeteries on foreign soil are the concern of the commission, an independent government agency set up by Congress in 1923. General Pershing was chairman until his death in 1948, when Gen. George C. Marshall took over. The non-paid members and the secretary are appointed by the president.

The cemeteries in England, Holland, Belgium, France, Italy, Luxembourg, North Africa and the Philippines all are maintained by the most modern and efficient devices, says Col. Shaw. Sprinkler systems have been installed to keep turf and shrubbery green. Crosses and markers are of white marble from Italy. Designs for the memorial chapels, submitted by leading American architects, sculptors and artists, have all been approved. Each chapel will incorporate a permanent roster, engraved in stone, memorializing the unrecovered or unidentified dead whose deaths occurred in the region or in the action the chapel commemorates.

Electric Power Producers Unite For Big Struggle

Atlantic City, N. J., June 8—(AP)—The nation's electric power producers have drawn into closer agreement than ever before.

It appears they are finally united for an all-out struggle against the advocates of public power.

The single thing that did the trick was a statement of principles originally drawn up in response to an inquiry from President Truman's Water Resources Policy Commission.

The statement became a rallying point for 3,000 representatives of privately-owned power companies at the Edison Electric Institute's 18th annual meeting which ended yesterday.

Private power men, who seldom have been unanimous in acceptance of previous suggestions for an industry-wide program, took to the statement of principles with enthusiasm.

Many of them saw the statement as a reply to President Truman's speech-making tour last month, during which he called for greater participation in power development.

Elmer L. Lindseth, president of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. and retiring head of the trade organization, hardly had finished outlining the program when plans were discussed to contact the private utility companies' 3,500,000 stockholders and 30,000,000 customers.

Lindseth said he told them about the principles the private industry wants the government to adopt, and why, and perhaps the taxpayers will scream loud enough to be heard in Washington.

Louis V. Sutton, president of the Carolina Power and Light Co. and new head of the institute, said he was all for a live program of educating stockholders, employees and customers in the principles right down to the grass roots.

The principles asked freedom to develop the nation's power resources without hindrance by the government. They called upon federal projects to pay tax or tax equivalents.

They objected to federal power projects giving priorities to quasi-government bodies. Equal rights for everyone at the dam head where the power is generated was what the principles asked.

If the government went along with these principles, the private power men said, the nation would have an adequate power supply, government costs would be lower and $75,000,000 annually would be added to federal, state and municipal tax coffers.

LOW BIDDER FOR GYM
 Durham, N. C., June 8—(AP)—The D. H. Pinnix Company of High Point was the low bidder at $488,622 here yesterday for the general contract for a gymnasium at North Carolina College.

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin
 from the RECTOR KITCHENS

Without stinting your budget or sacrificing nutrition you can provide good eating for your family on little kitchen-spent time, with WILSON'S MOR, that tasteful meat, so good to eat!

Today's ROASTED MOR DINNER is a family-approved roast (in either the pork or beef version). It is good enough to strengthen your reputation as a cook, though ready in a jiffy. "Time-saving, hearty eating for everyday, yet eye-appealing for company," best describes this meat-and-vegetable platter. And, my, how good it tastes! The pictured platter is MOR Pork. For MOR Beef we use a different treatment. See recipes below.

ROASTED MOR DINNER (PORK 'N' VEGETABLES)

With a knife, score the tops of:
 2 Wilson's MOR Pork meats

Stud with cloves. Prepare a sauce by blending:
 1/2 cup firmly-packed brown sugar 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, and
 2 teaspoons flour 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Then stir in:
 1/2 cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and 1 tablespoon vinegar

Stir and cook to a nice sirup (217°F.). Spoon over meat. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.), 20 minutes. Baste with sirup several times for flavor and glaze. Serve hot with a vegetable border of buttered onions and glazed carrots to six.

ROASTED MOR DINNER (BEEF 'N' VEGETABLES)

Cut 3 crosswise slashes halfway through:
 2 Wilson's MOR Beef meats

In each cut insert:
 onion slices, cut 1/4 inch thick.

Let onion stick out on top, as it will. Place the two cakes of meat together to form a long loaf in a shallow pan. For a flavorful glaze, spread top with a mixture of 1/4 cup finely minced onion, and 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar

Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.), 20 minutes. Serve with French-cut canned green beans as a border.

SMOKY JOE

By W. F. BRAGG

Chapter 22
As the buckskin drove into the cleared space around the chuckwagon, he saw punchers racing toward saddled night horses, picked out on the grass or tied to the wagon wheels.

Near the fire, Joe could see the cook striving manfully to save his Dutch oven and coffee pot.

Flinging himself off the panting buckskin, Joe grabbed the cook and yelled above the thunder of the runaway herd, "Get into the wagon or they'll tromp you to death!"

Joe raced around the rear end of the wagon. Not far away he saw a small white tent outlined in the darkness. And struggling with a pony, he discovered Connie Hale. When he seized her in his arms, she tried to fight. But he toted her to the rear wheel of the chuckwagon.

Joe boosted Connie up the wheel, then followed. The old cook was crouching on the high seat. He gripped an old black powder rifle. Joe whipped the rifle from the cook's hands. He slid over the front of the wagon and braced himself on the broad part of the tongue where it joined the running gears.

When he could see the face of the leading steer, he began firing. Joe knew the roar of the gun would have small effect in splitting the horned front of the stampee, but he counted on the red spouts of flame from the barrel and the sharp smell of burning black powder to swerve the cattle from their destructive course.

A bullet hit the lead steer between the eyes and it sprawled over the end of the tongue. A half dozen animals, following closely, tongues lolling, piled up on the quivering body of the leader.

The main charge split, went streaming past the chuckwagon. Then nothing remained but the smell of dust and blood and the racket of the run receding into the night.

The three climbed down shakily from the wagon, wide-eyed men and trembling girls.

"Thank heaven," the cook said huskily, "there's coffee in the wagon. And water in the dry camp keg."

"Well Connie," Joe said sheepishly, as though he blamed himself for this destruction, "I feel like I'd just come through a Texas tornado."

"Tornado?" Connie responded. She came up to the fire, pulling the blanket tightly around her form. "That's putting it mildly." Tears came suddenly into her dark eyes. "I wonder what jumped them off the bedground. They seemed so contented."

Long John Hale was the first man of the crew to return. He came in at a run, a slabsided old ranger with spiky gray beard on his sharp chin, and a rosy mustache beneath his beak of a nose.

Sliding off his sweat-streaked horse, he took his daughter into his arms in a mighty bear hug. "We were all so locoed," Long John confessed, "that I was a mile down the flats and ridin' fer leather before I remembered I ever had a daughter. We got 'em stopped two miles on in a mill. But we won't know till day what the loss is. And what happened to you, Connie?"

She indicated Joe, who had remained over on the other side of fire while father and daughter embraced. Long John stalked around and pounded Joe on the back until the latter coughed.

"Munro," he said, "I don't know where you come from, but yuh sure arrived in time."

"I'm glad," said Joe. Then he asked Long John, "Didn't Whisperin' Johnson tell you about what happened to us tonight in Rawhide Gap?"

Long John blinked his eyes. "Whisperin' Johnson? Say, Joe, I haven't seen that old galoot since he come to get you, south of Cheyenne."

So Whisperin' Johnson had disappeared. Perhaps he had encountered that gang of stampedes. Or the old cowboy might have been run down by the cattle.

Joe sought to borrow Long John's horse to start an immediate search. But another tragedy of the short grass trail checked him. Four of the Bar Sixty-Six trail crew came into camp. One was stumbling along afoot in spike-heeled boots, for his mates were using his horse to pack a dead man.

"Yarbo," groaned Long John, "Lon Yarbo. As good a lad as ever took on with me. He was standin' night guard when the critters stampeded!"

"The cattle didn't run him down," growled one of the punchers. "Lon was shot off his horse."

The night hawk brought in the cavy of spare horses. Joe was given a moment. Long John said they'd carry the buckskin with the outfit when they rounded up the herd and runaway ponies.

"We'll make a tally, come daylight," Hale ended. He turned and stared at the quiet figure under the wagon, rolled in a blanket. "We'll try somehow to get the hounds that killed young Yarbo."

"And maybe Whisperin' Johnson," Joe added solemnly. He had mounted and sat looking around the camp. "I reckon," Joe went on slowly, "that you'll be short cattle when you make the tally. This is the start of that beef rustlin' Pecos Shay talked about down in Rawhide Gap."

He was turning his horse and heading away from the camp when three horsemen came up from the direction of town on a gallop. The stumpy leader was Shorty Dike. He spotted Joe, checked his horse and went for a gun. But Joe beat Shorty to the iron. Long John and the Texans came running from camp.

"I'm wantin' you for murder, Joe Munro," Shorty snapped.

"There's a fresh one waitin' for you in camp, Shorty," Joe answered calmly. "I'm either headin' out of here without trouble, or we might as well cut loose."

Long John Hale added grimly, "Joe Munro is ridin' clear." The guns of his men supported his words. Joe shrugged, said to Shorty, "I'll be seein' you again," and headed for the mountains.

KNEE PANTS OPTIONAL
London—(P)—A Boy Scout recruitment committee held out an inducement to British men who may be thinking about becoming scoutmasters: They don't have to wear knee pants. "Shorts do not suit everybody," said the committee, "and no one can do good work while feeling slightly ridiculous."

Robins Hit, But Picked Up Only One Run Against A's

Locals Rapped Twelve Hits But Drop 5-1 Decision; Strausser Has Four For Four

By BERT MOYE

Manager Randy Hefflin's Greenville Robins dropped their second game of a two-game series to the Tarboro Athletics here last night by a 5 to 1 score.

The Robins connected for a total of 12 base hits off George Atzert, six of them being infield hits, which were able to turn into only one run, this being in the fifth frame when Bruce Robbins led off with a triple into left center field and Johnny Tepedino brought him home with a single into right field.

The Athletics scored in the first frame to go out front 1-0, when Billy Carr reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second, and Red Bock's timely single into left field brought him home.

An unearned run in the fourth inning provided sufficient margin for the A's. With two men out, Marvin Donaldson walked and raced to third as Lautato led Drake's line drive through his legs out into right field. Jackie Jackson's single to left scored Donaldson.

The A's came back in the eighth frame to sew up the game with three runs on five hits and which saw Vince Jones, the Robins' starting hurler, sent to the showers. After Dal Orf had flown out to left field, Billy Carr and Red Bock came through with successive doubles with Bock scoring Carr. Al Crotts followed with a single into right field to plate Bock and when Marvin Donaldson singled into short right field, Crotts advanced to third, later scoring on Jackie Jackson's single into center field.

George Atzert went the route for the Athletics, scattering 12 hits to the Robins, who were unable to hit when a hit would have easily scored a run. The win for Atzert was his fifth straight of the season and his first over the Robins.

Paul Strausser with four singles in four trips to the plate had a perfect night at bat and led the 12-hit attack off Atzert. Bruce Robbins with a triple and a single and Johnny Tepedino with two singles were the only other Robins to get more than one hit off the bespectached hurler.

Vince Jones, who had faced the Athletics on two previous occasions, with a record of one win and one loss, suffered his second defeat at the hands of the Athletics as they pounded him for seven hits and all five runs in the seven and one-third frames which he worked. Ray Keys pitched the remainder of the game, holding the visitors scoreless on three hits.

Billy Carr and Red Bock with a double and a single each and Jackie Jackson with two singles led the 10-hit attack off the two Robins hurlers.

The locals travel to Roanoke Rapids for a game there tonight but will be at home on Friday and Saturday nights, playing the Jays here on Friday night and the league-leading Rocky Mount Leafs here Saturday night.

Tonight's Games

Greenville at Roanoke Rapids
Goldsboro at Kinston
New Bern at Wilson
Rocky Mount at Tarboro

Here is a brief resume of what the Robins have done in the first 48 games of the current season: Wins a current record of 22 wins and 26 losses they have won five games from Tarboro, two from Rocky Mount, one from Roanoke Rapids, five from New Bern, four from Kinston, three from Wilson and two from Goldsboro. On the other hand they have lost six to Goldsboro, five to Roanoke Rapids, four to Rocky Mount, three each to Kinston, Wilson and Tarboro; and two to New Bern. Two of their wins have been shutouts against Kinston, while the Eagles have whitewashed the Robins on two occasions.

Eight of their losses this season have been by one run, four by two runs, one by three runs, two by four runs, two by five runs, one by six runs, three by seven runs, and one each by eight, nine, ten, thirteen and fourteen runs.

In the win column they have won six by one run margin, two by two runs, six by three runs, two by four runs, one by five runs, two by six runs, and one each by seven, nine and twelve runs respectively.

Thirteen of the contests have been won at home and nine have been won away from home. They have lost twelve games at home and fourteen on the road.

Three of the contests have been for extra frames with Greenville being the winner of two of the extra inning contests—winning from Tarboro 9-6 and Wilson 9-6 in two ten-inning games and losing to Kinston, 7-6, in a 12-inning contest.

They have played to date five doubleheaders, in which they split one, lost both games on one occasion, and took both ends of a twin bill on three occasions.

The pitching records of the Robins hurlers, including last night's contest, is as follows: Hefflin (7-3); Lewey (4-6); Jones (5-8); Stephens (0-3); White (2-1); Keys (4-4); and Mauney (0-1).

The Kinston Eagles have optioned a player and obtained one. Donald Bauld, pitcher, was sent out on option and John Grizak has arrived on option to the Eagles from the Class A Scranton club, where he has been up to now. . . . See where Bill Kennedy just won his second shutout for Baltimore. Pitched a 17-0 job in his debut with the Orioles, and now has a 3-1 record with that club which has made a great spurt in recent weeks after getting off to a dismal start. . . . The Roanoke Rapids Jays have released two more players, Johnny Price, catcher, and Bobby Nelson, infielder, have been given their unconditional releases by the Jays. This brings the Jays' roster to a total of 17 men at the present time. They have one man under contract who has not been added to the roster as yet. Right-handed hurler J. D. Thorne is still being carried on the inactive list of the Jays.

Could Happen Here

Several years ago a veteran American League umpire was working a game in Washington and called some very close decisions against the home team.

Late in the game, a player fouled a ball back into the stands. The umpire looked around and saw the ushers carrying a woman from the stands.

The ump turned to Coach Nick Altrock of the Senators at third base and inquired: "Did the ball hit that woman?"

In a voice that could be heard in every corner of the field Altrock replied: "Nope—you called one right and she fainted."

Southern Seniors Golf Association To Play Tournament Here On Sunday

The Southern Seniors Golf Association will play one of its eight tournaments over the Greenville Country Club course this coming Sunday. Expected participants number from 80-100 golfers from all over North Carolina and other states in the South.

Sunday marks the first time the Association, made up of golfers over 40 years of age, has played in Greenville. More, it marks the first time in the Association's history that the amateur group has played on a nine-hole course.

Beginning with a morning round golfers from all sections of the South represented by the Association, which comprises in all 13 states, will tee off for prizes awarded to the six classes of age groups. Sponsored by the Tournament Committee of the Club here, the group will compete for prizes awarded by the several merchants in Greenville.

Chairman of the Tournament Committee Dave Mosier said yesterday that the prizes to be awarded to the class champions Sunday would amount to the largest cash value of any previous awards given on the Association's annual circuit. The Chamber of Commerce is backing the one-day, closed course event. It will print a brochure on the city of Greenville and environs for the participants' information, give them a courtesy map of the course, and contribute in other ways toward making the golfers welcome to Greenville.

The executive secretary of the Association, Chester Williams of Pinehurst, was a frontrunner of the tournament when he played the local course two weeks ago. It is his official duty to examine each course prior to any tournament held on it and report same to the individual members for recommendation.

Williams reported to the members through a letter that he found Greenville's course "a fine sporty golf course with magnificent fairways to play on." He continued in his recommendation that the hospitality here was "unbeatable."

About 20 Greenville golfers are expected to participate in Sunday's tournament. In order to play, the person must join the Association at a nominal fee per year and is thus entitled to play in any tournament held anywhere in the South.

This year the interest in the Association grew so rapidly that the age limit had to be dropped from 45 years (minimum) to 40. The sixth class, or Junior Division, includes that age group—from 40-50. Class A is for 70-year-olds and over; Class B, 66-70 years; Class C, 61-65; Class D, 56-60; and Class E, 50-55.

The Association was formed in 1948 from the 1930 vintage Mid-

Southern Seniors Golf Association which was formed by a group of Greensboro golfers. It includes members from 13 states, not all of which are Southern, extending from Massachusetts to Texas. Comprising 225 golfers this year, the majority of them are from North Carolina. The next highest state in number of members is New York with seven. Most of the out-of-state members winter in Pinehurst.

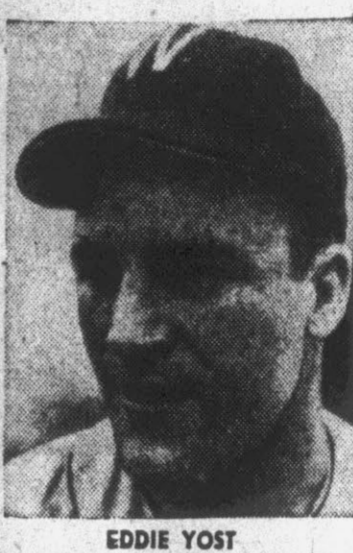

Chairman Mosier said yesterday the indications at present are that Greenville will be on the permanent itinerary of this golfing alumni.

"Most persons don't realize how lucky Greenville is to get this tournament this year. The Seniors play nothing but the best courses in the South and that they are coming here is a good recommendation for the local course," he said.

Other courses the Seniors have played this year are Mid-Pines, Southern Pines; Sedgefield; Pinehurst Country Club; and Raleigh Country Club. Those on the coming agenda are Charlotte, Fayetteville, Wilmington, and back to Pinehurst for the annual championship tournament.

The final tourney, which determines the year's champ, is played in the winter months. This year the Pinehurst affair is scheduled for Dec. 2-3. The 1951 tourney is scheduled for Alken, S.C. during the month of December. It is planned that after the champ is crowned, the golfers remaining will travel across the river to Augusta to play a round on the famous Masters course.

MICKEY HARRIS

AP Newsfeatures

Washington—Three big reasons why the Washington Senators are going so well answer to the names of Sam Mele, Eddie Yost and Mickey Harris, products of Long Island's sandlots.

Mele hit .388 in his first 21 games, including a seven-game hitting streak. He practically ruined his former Boston Red Sox mates by making eight hits in 17 efforts during a recent four-game series. The 27-year-old outfielder from Astoria, N. Y., is a nephew of Tony Cucinello, Cincinnati coach.

Yost, whose entire baseball career has been with the Senators, batted .315 in his first 29 games. The third baseman and lead-off hitter accounted for 23 runs, including five homers, during that time. He is 23 and hails from Ozone Park, N. Y.

Mickey Harris, 32, ex-Red Sox southpaw formerly from Queens Village, N.Y., showed only one win and one loss during Washington's first 31 games but he had saved four year-old outfielder from Astoria, N. Y., is a nephew of Tony Cucinello, during that time.

Detroit Hounds Yankees With Hot Series Of Road Victories

By JACK HAND
 Associated Press Sports Writer
 Cooling off the hot clubs is an old Yankee custom. Now it's sizzling Detroit that New York has dunked in chill water.

Red Rolfe's Tigers strode into the Yankee Stadium with seven straight wins and an .002 edge on first place. Unbeaten since they left home, the spirited Detroit club boasted a sizzling road record of 20-3, of .870.

This was it. The big test of the early season. If the red hot Tigers could roll over the Yankees and then knock off Boston, they would take charge of the race.

Red Sox blasted 23 hits off Brownie pitching while Joe Dobson rode home easily with his seventh win.

Little Bobby Shantz, 5-foot-7-inch Philadelphia lefthander, pitched the A's first shutout of the year, a 2-0 night victory over Chicago.

Washington snapped its seven-game losing streak, nipping Cleveland 5-4 on Johnny Ostrowski's eighth-inning homer following Irv Noren's single.

Once again Brooklyn took over undisputed possession of the National League lead, whipping Pittsburgh 9-0, while St. Louis took a bad 10-2 licking from Boston. Both were night games.

Golfdom's Select Tee Off Today For National Open

Ardmore, Pa., June 8—(AP)—Sam Snead's putter, Ben Hogan's legs and the weather were the chief topics of conversation as 166 of golfdom's very select teed off today in the 50th National Open Championship.

The first of 55 threesomes set out over Merion's 6,894 well-trapped, weed-fringed yards at 7 a. m.

Dick Mayer, young, blond-haired professional of Old Greenwich, Conn., was the first man off, accompanied by Lodie Kempa of Kansas City, the lone left hander, and Clarence Eshman of Cheltenham, Pa.

Contenders will be swining until almost dark in the opening round of this rugged 72-hole test that has broken the hearts of champions. The tournament winds up with a double-barreled 36 holes Saturday.

The weather rated top billing along with Snead and Hogan, who have been established solid favorites.

Two days of near-90 temperatures have left the broad, undulating greens hard as concrete and slick as glass. Each carpet was packed by a 10-pound roller 1 night to make sure they'd be lightning fast.

Unless there is some relief by showers, most of the pros agreed, your rounds of 71, one over par, will be sufficient to take the prize. The weather forecast was increased showers tomorrow afternoon.

Merion, where a 14-year-old lad named Bobby Jones began his big-time tournament ca. in 1916 and where he ended it in 1930 with the sport's only "Grand Slam," has been turned into a monstrous bogie-man for this particular tee party.

Five hundred tons of fresh, white sand was trucked in and dumped in to the course's 120 yawning traps. One trap is so big golfers have dubbed it "Merion Beach" and a prankster's sign "no sun bathing allowed."

Snead, golf's No. 1 capitalist who has played in nine open tournaments and never won one, has not been bothered by the roughs—so sound is his booming tee game. But the tricky greens—that's something else.

Nostradamus predicted correctly in his almanac the death of France's Henry II, causing the successor king Henri III, to forbid political prognostications.

"I Do"

IT MAY HAVE BEEN but a decade ago, or it may have been far back in the "Twenties" . . . but sometime, somewhere, a young man stood in the soft light of a Junetime morning and repeated the words—"I do."

Since that time, he has fought—without interruption—for the place in the world he wants his family to occupy.

And it well may be that, out of the struggle, he has lost just a bit of the sentiment that used to abide in his heart—for success is a jealous master and exacts great servitude.

But not when the Junetime comes—and, with it, that anniversary of another June!

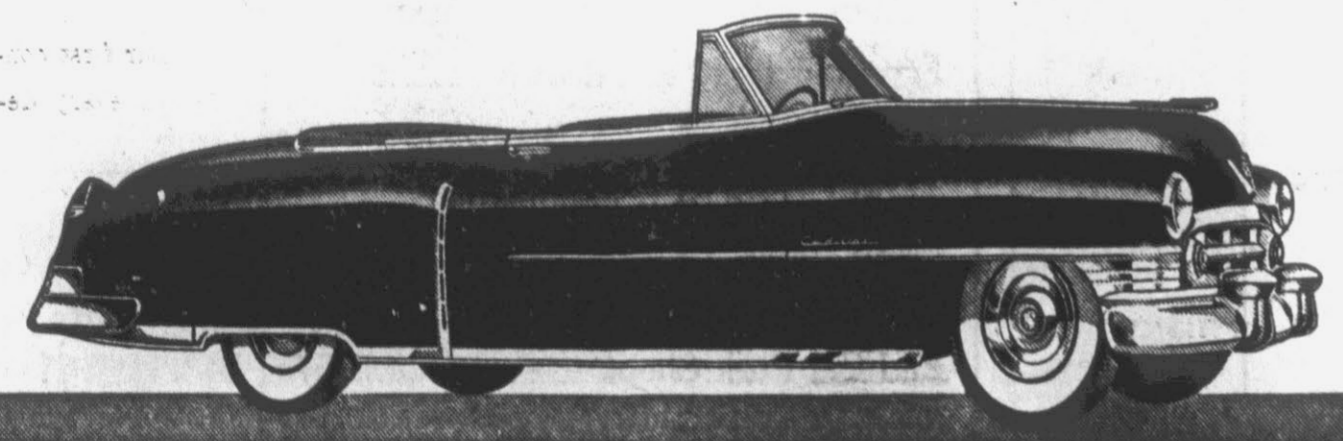

Then the work-a-day world, with its many tasks, is cast abruptly aside; and sentiment—pure and simple—rules in his heart once more.

And, because there are so many thousands of him, doorbells are ringing this June throughout America . . . and smiling boys in uniform stand, hats in hand, to deliver the proofs of remembrance. And along with the beautiful flowers, and the boxes of candy, and the countless other gifts, some of those brides of other Junes will receive the titles to new Cadillacs.

And, for them, there will be no other June like this—save one alone.

As your Cadillac dealer in this community—we've had long practice in the art of keeping secrets. Why not come see us today? You can trust us not to tell!

Large Families Becoming Rarer; South Has Most

New York, N. Y.—Although large families are becoming very rare in the United States, there were 164,000 children born in 1947 who were at least the seventh in their family, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians report. This is above five per cent of all births during the year.

The rate at which births of seventh or higher order occur has dropped by nearly 60 per cent in the past 30 years, with the decline continuing through the war and post-war years when the birth rate rocketed.

Large families are most frequent in the South, according to computations by the statisticians based on data from the National Office of Vital Statistics. Ranking first as to the proportion of large families was the East South Central section—Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, and Mississippi—where births of seventh or higher order constituted 7.4 per cent of all births among white women in the area, and births of 10th and higher order comprised 2.1 per cent of the total.

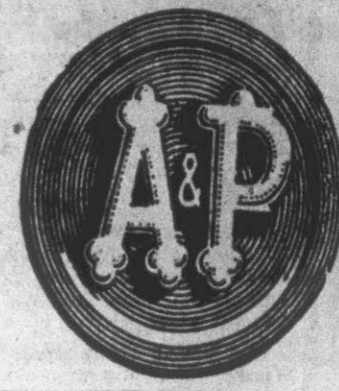

The percentage of large families was next highest in the South Atlantic and Mountain sections, and lowest in the Middle Atlantic and Pacific states. The geographical pattern shows that large families are more common in the agricultural than in the industrial areas.

"Marked variations occur, however, within a region," the statisticians note. "Large families are 2 1-2 times as frequent in Pennsylvania as in adjoining New Jersey, and more than three times as frequent in Maine and Vermont as in Connecticut. The highest proportion of white births of seventh and higher order—11.5 per cent—occurred in New Mexico, while in Nevada, also a Mountain state, the proportion was only 1.6 per cent."

Colored women, in general, bear larger families than do the white, with the proportion of colored mothers having seven or more children about three and a half times as high as for white mothers.

FOUR ON 15th
Buffalo, N. Y.—(AP)—All four of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Skinner's children were born on the 15th of a month, one on a Friday.

Critical Survey Of N. C. Prisons Will Be Discussed

Raleigh, June 8.—(AP)—The State Highway Commission was scheduled to meet today to discuss a critical prison system survey and review low bids on 43 road projects.

The survey, made public last night by Dr. Austin MacCormick, described Central Prison "a disgrace to the prison system." It is critical of most phases of the Prison Department's set up. The only kind word was reserved for the Camp Butler youth rehabilitation center, established last October.

Dr. MacCormick is executive director of the Osborne Association of New York, a foundation created to study prison systems and suggest improvements.

He was hired by the N.C. Advisory Prison Council to survey the state's prison system. In a preliminary report two months ago, he recommended that the Prison Department be separated from the Highway Commission.

MacCormick advised that the department be placed with other correctional institutions under a new state agency, a State Department of Correction.

The most glaring ills of the state's prison system, he said, are inefficiency, politics, road gangs, and lack of rehabilitation.

Central Prison, which houses 750 prisoners, is "a mediocre institution at best," state MacCormick. He said nearly half its prisoners are idle, although its industrial facilities are among the best.

He made it clear that he found

First Entry For Soap Box Derby

Robert Earl Wadford, a 12-year-old Greenville lad who attends the Training school, became the first Pitt county boy to apply for entrance in the 1950 Soap Box Derby.

Wadford registered late yesterday afternoon as he and his parents signed the acceptance papers for the set of soap box racer wheels and axles which are given to each contestant. Registration for the racing event is being held at the White Chevrolet company offices, and is open to all boys who will have reached their 11th birthday by August 13th and will not have reached their 16th birthday by that date.

Between now and July 12, Robert Earl will have to construct the soap box racer he will drive in the race for the East Carolina championship which will be held in Kinston. Boys who will carry the colors of sponsors from Greenville, Kinston, Jacksonville, Goldsboro and New Bern are expected to enter the event in Kinston. The winner of the Soap Box Derby in Kinston will be given an all-expense paid trip to the National Soap Box Derby which will be held later this summer in Akron, Ohio.

Postoffice Now Receiving Coat Paint, Repairs

The Greenville postoffice is undergoing numerous repairs inside and on the exterior, and is receiving new coats of paint on the interior.

The Grohne Company of Decatur, Illinois, contractor in charge of the work, is making good progress, a postoffice official stated today.

Repairs included work on the roof and patching plastering on the interior and replacement of a window on the Evans Street side of the building.

The amount of money being spent on the contract was not available today, W. L. Whitehurst, assistant postmaster, stated.

Repairs and improvements on the Greenville postoffice building were recommended by an inspector from the Atlanta, Ga., office.

Keeps Up Record In Recent Arrest

Police Officer J. L. Whichard has been on the Greenville police many years. He is a veteran in the service. Unusually active and vigorous for his age, Whichard has never failed to take in the man he starts out to arrest for a law violation.

Whichard set out to arrest Raymond D. Ward, 23-year-old white man of the Grimesland community at the Busy Bee Cafe, near the railroad, Tuesday night. Ward resisted. Whichard insisted. Result: Ward will be tried in Police Court Friday morning on charges of being drunk and disorderly in a public place and resisting an officer in the performance of his duty. Officers Berg and Mills assisted in making the arrest.

Mild Weather

The highest temperature recorded in the Greenville area yesterday by the local U. S. Weather Bureau observer was 86 degrees. Lowest last night was 57 and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 69.

June Snowstorm

By the Associated Press
A June snowstorm hit Montana today, dumping more than four inches of snow over some areas. Temperatures were below freezing and in the 30's over much of the state in the early morning.

Snow also fell in parts of Wyoming as masses of cold air from the Pacific and Canada rolled into the Rocky Mountain region. The cool air moved into the northern plains and the mercury tumbled in parts of the Dakotas as much as 40 degrees.

Then in 1948 in this field the court dealt a powerful blow in the Negroes' favor. This was in the case of racial covenants. That's a system by which white property owners agreed not to sell to Negroes.

If one of them tried to break the covenant by selling to a Negro, the others could go to court and get a judge to keep the Negro out.

But in 1948 the court said private property owners can make all the deals among themselves they want.

But—no longer can a judge uphold such a covenant.

That wiped out the main support of covenants. Now anytime a signer of a covenant wants to break it and sell to a Negro, no court can be used to keep the Negro out.

Travel . . .

In 1914 the court said that when state laws order Negroes and whites to be kept separate on trains, Negroes must be given equal accommodations.

In 1941 the court went a little further. It said a Negro who buys first-class accommodations on a train must get them—even if it means putting him in the white section—if the Negro section has no first-class accommodations for him.
