Draft Of 20,000 Men Now Planned

Army Considers Opening Of Induction Centers To Handle Draftees As Well As Flow Of Volunteers; Hershey Says 60 Days Necessary

Washington, July 11—(AP)—Draft machinery to produce the 20,000 recruits asked for by the Army was in motion today, while military leaders sought steps to carry already trained troops to back the defense of Southern Korea against invading Communists.

The Army said it is studying the possibility of opening induction centers to handle the draftees as well as the flow of volunteers yesterday's call-up is expected to produce.

Army officials explained, however, that induction centers may not be necessary, unless the enlistment volume increases considerably.

The Army now has four training divisions strategically located to tap the country's principal population centers. They are the Fourth Infantry Division at Fort Ord, Calif.; the Ninth Infantry at Fort Dix, N.J.; the Tenth Infantry at Fort Riley, Kans., and the Third Armored Division at Fort Knox, Ky.

Army officials said that an immediate decision about setting up induction centers could be delayed as Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, said it would take about 60 days for his reactivated organization to provide recruits the Army could start turning into soldiers.

The call for 20,000 men—the Army said it wanted them "at the earliest possible date"—would indicate that few would be inducted in any one community on the first go-around. For example, a draft official in the District of Columbia figured it would mean about 100 from the city of Washington.

Gen. Hershey said that if the draft call goes as high as 300,000 men he believes the men can be provided from among those registrants who are 22 years of age or older.

The draft law permits drafting of men 18 through 26 (18 year olds must register but can't be drafted until they are 19) and the plan is to take the oldest eligible first.

However, since so many of the 24 and 25 year olds are exempted from the draft because of service in World War II, the accent at the start will be on those who are 22 and 23 years old.

The "greetings" to service will be issued, as in the last war, through the local draft boards. These now number 3,600.

President Truman has not yet made use of his new powers to call the reserves or the National Guard to active duty.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, had an appointment with the Senate Armed Services Committee (9:30 a.m. EST). In advance of his appearance, there were reports that the military establishment will want shortly a 100,000-man increase in the armed forces.

One senator estimated the initial cost at $350,000,000, based on a flat $3,500 per man per year.

In another move indicating urgency, Gen. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff, left last night to confer in Tokyo with Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

June ABC Sales Are Below May

The bootleggers in Pitt County either did a land rush business in June or else money was scarce, for receipts at the Pitt county ABC Stores fell below the sales for the month of May.

A report from the local ABC store today reported the sales for the month of June as being $77,898.40 as compared with sales of $77,899.45 for the month of May. The drop amounted to $1,911.50.

Drafting 20,000 Men

Decisions On A Day-By-Day Basis; Procedure Of Selective Service Similar To That of 1941; First To Go; Why The Older Men (25 To 26) Will Lead Parade

Washington, July 11—(AP)—Everything seemed so much the same except for the civilian suit the general wore—that one of the newsmen said in a kind of tired way: "This is where we came in."

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, head of Selective Service, had called a news conference yesterday at 3 p.m. to talk about the draft. He had been head of Selective Service in World War II and has been ever since.

He sat at the same kind of table, leaning his elbows on it. He had the same crew haircut. Behind him, as in other days, stood an American flag. And, as usual, Lt. Col. Irving W. Hart was close beside him.

Hart, who has been Hershey's public relations officer for years, wore his uniform. So did Hershey's other aides. And, as usual, the room was stuffy and packed with newsmen.

Hershey seemed a little more relaxed than he was during the last war. But then, of course, he was tussling up to his neck in a war. And today's fighting hasn't reached the stage of world war.

Bank Of Aurora Taken Over By Guaranty Bank

Local Firm Adds Aurora Bank And Bayboro Branch In New Expansion

Washington, D. C., July 10—Maple T. Harl, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, today announced that all deposits of the Bank of Aurora, doing business in the town of Aurora and the town of Bayboro, North Carolina, are being taken over by the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, Greenville, North Carolina.

Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will advance approximately $1,300,000 in cash to make the transfer possible. Until the transfer is completed the depositors of the Bank of Aurora may continue to do business as usual at the bank's Aurora office and at its Bayboro branch. Chairman Harl assured the depositors of the bank that no depositor will suffer a penny loss, and there will be no interruption to their banking service.

In a statement by Harl released through Robert N. McLeod, supervising examiner for this district, the chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation declared that the Bank of Aurora has become overextended and its liquidity impaired. In cooperation with Gurney P. Hood, commissioner of banks of the state of North Carolina, and after consultation with W. H. Woolard, president of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, Greenville, the following plan was worked out:

1. The Guaranty Bank and Trust Company will assume all deposit liabilities of the Bank of Aurora.

2. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will advance in cash an amount sufficient to cover all deposits of the Bank of Aurora taken over by the Greenville Institution, and as security for advances made by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation it will take over all assets of the Bank of Aurora for orderly liquidation.

3. The Guaranty Bank and Trust Company will establish branch offices in the present home office and the Bayboro quarters of the Bank of Aurora.

The plan has the full approval of Mr. Hood, and the North Carolina Banking Commission. A resolution agreeing to the sale has been passed by the Board of Directors of the Bank of Aurora. Mr. Woolard and his executive committee have approved the purchase and the establishment of branches of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Greenville, in Aurora and Bayboro. The mechanical details of the transfer may take a few days, Mr. Harl said, but business in the meanwhile will continue as usual at the Bank of Aurora.

Also in the statement Chairman Harl declared, "The Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Greenville is one of the oldest and most stable banks in North Carolina. It has a history of continuous operation since 1901. It is well managed. It will provide excellent service to the depositors whose accounts it is taking over, and it will continue to provide the benefit of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to those depositors."

President Woolard of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company in a brief statement said, "The Bank of Aurora is being operated without any interruption and the transfer will be made as soon as proper arrangements have been made."

Vote Arms Aid

Washington, July 11—(AP)—The House Foreign Affairs committee today approved a $122,500,000 program of military aid to non-communist countries. It also called for creation of a Far Eastern Defense pact patterned after the Atlantic treaty.

Chairman Kee (D-W.Va.) said the committee voted unanimously to approve the Senate-passed arms aid bill, which differed only in language from the House version.

A proposal for establishment of a Far Eastern pact among the nations of the Pacific also won the unanimous endorsement of the committee. It will be urged in the committee's report sending the bill to the House.

Kee told reporters there is a chance that the House will be able to vote on the bill and send it to President Truman for his signature by this week-end.

Report Eighteen Bound And Shot

Atrocities By North Korean Captors Are Repeated

An American Base in South Korea, July 11—(AP)—Front line reports tonight indicate 18 American soldiers have been bound and slain by their Communist North Korean captors.

The executions all apparently took place in the field, in most cases not long after the victims fell into Communist hands. U.S. fighting men expressed anger over the manner of the killings.

Allowances were made for possible duplications in the battlefield cases reported. In each instance the type of wound, nature of the bindings and other distinguishing marks were sifted by reporters making the count to try to avoid duplications.

Lt. D. C. Gates of Jolmerville, Tex., was the first to report the atrocity slayings of bound prisoners. He said GI's were slain after having surrendered. Their hands were bound behind them. The bodies were in an area where a see-saw battle raged.

Then came Associated Press Correspondent William R. Moore, who found two more in a front-line area. The markings on the bindings of these two bodies were different from those described by Gates.

The two Moore's found had been shot in the forehead. The seven Gates reported were hit in the face by bullets.

An Army doctor, Capt. Donald Duerk of Long Island, N.Y., reported seeing three bound bodies at an aid station. At least one of these victims had been shot behind the ear. He said the bodies were found in an area captured by the Americans.

Pfc. Jack Higdon of Owensboro, Ky., reported seeing three soldiers' bodies bound with ropes and with bullet holes in their faces. All previously reported had been bound with cloth.

Pvt. Donald Odle of Portsmouth, Ohio, said several days ago he saw four Americans surrender to the Communists. One was shot immediately. He did not know what happened to the others.

Pfc. Arthur Allyn of Fort Meyer, Va., said he had seen the bodies of two soldiers at an aid station. Their hands bound behind their backs with belts. They had been shot in the throat.

Nothing New On Draft Front For Pitt Countians

There is nothing new on the draft front for Pitt County.

Associated Press reports this morning carried the story that 64 Selective Service boards in the state would be reopened. However, there has been no word for the sub depot in Kinston as to what the local board shall do. At present the board is still officially inactive.

Mrs. J. T. Williams, registrar of the local board, reported she has had no word from either Kinston or Raleigh concerning the board's status. Until that time comes, she said she will continue to register anyone who is of draftable age.

Newsman Killed On Korean Front

Tokyo, July 11—(AP)—Two American correspondents were killed on the Korean war front Monday.

A regimental adjutant reported their deaths to field headquarters. Presumably they were Ray Richards, correspondent for the Hearst newspapers, and Cpl. Ernie Peeler of the Tokyo Stars and Stripes.

International News Service here was informed that the report came from a regimental adjutant identified as a Captain Downey.

He reported the bodies were not recovered because fighting still raged around the outpost where the newsmen were killed.

Heavy Vote For S. C. Primaries

Columbia, S. C., July 11—(AP)—A sharp U. S. senate race and a four-cornered governor's contest drew apparently heavy voting in South Carolina's Democratic nominating primary today.

Cloudy weather and occasional showers failed to dampen the ardor of early voters who turned out in force in urban areas. A turnout of 350,000 was predicted.

Gordon Dean Is Announced Next AEC Chairman

Formal Appointment By President Expected Shortly; Pike Approved

Washington, July 11—(AP)—President Truman today chose Gordon Dean, now acting chairman, to be chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The White House announced that Mr. Truman has decided on Dean, who has just started a new three-year term, and will make the formal appointment shortly.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters the naming of an AEC chairman does not require Senate confirmation.

Dean has been acting chairman since the expiration of the term of Sumner T. Pike on June 30.

Pike's nomination for a new term was approved yesterday by the Senate, after considerable controversy.

Mr. Truman's decision to make Dean permanent AEC chairman still leaves one vacancy on the Commission. This nominee will serve for five years. There has been no indication who might be appointed to this place, which would bring the AEC to its full five-member strength.

One name mentioned in cloak room gossip was that of Wilson M. Compton, 59, president of Washington State College, but it was just as quickly discounted by other sources.

Compton, an economist, is a brother of Atomic Scientist Karl T. and Arthur H. Compton.

Pike, Mr. Truman's choice for the second longest AEC term, won Senate confirmation hands down yesterday. Although his triumph had been conceded privately in advance by opponents, the 84 to 24 vote in favor was considerably more lopsided than anticipated.

Thirty eight democrats and 17 Republicans voted for the 58-year old Maine Republican, while five Democrats and 19 Republicans opposed him.

The vote rejected a 5 to 4 recommendation of senate members of the joint congressional atomic energy committee that Pike be permanently retired from the post he first took under a recess appointment from Mr. Truman on October 28, 1946.

He was confirmed for a regular term April 9, 1947, and served continuously until last June 30 when his term expired while the nomination was still tied up in the senate.

Appoints Board To Probe Issues In Rail Dispute

Washington, July 11—(AP)—President Truman today named the members of an emergency board that will investigate the threatened strike of railway conductors against the Pullman Company.

The President created the board last Thursday, thus delaying the walkout for 90 days. The Order of Railway Conductors originally had set the strike to begin today.

The conductors are demanding a general overhaul of their contract with the Pullman Company, which operates sleeping cars on most railroads. Among the demands is one for a cut in the number of hours worked month.

Ernest M. Tipton of the Missouri Supreme court, was named chairman of the fact finding board.

Plans for the 1950 Community Chest drive, held in the fall, got underway during the weekend when the board of directors held its organizational meeting and election of officers.

Heading the Chest this year will be new president L. S. Ficklen of Ficklen Tobacco Company. Ficklen moved into the presidency from the vice president's position last year.

Other officers for this year are: E. E. Rawl, vice president; Tom Wilson, secretary; and John W. Overton, treasurer. Both Wilson and Overton held the same positions in 1949.

President Ficklen stated no definite plans were made during the meeting. Plans for the drive, which usually comes in September, will be mapped out in later meetings. The goal this year has not been set. Last year a quota of $10,200 was successfully raised.

The directors of the Chest elected for a three year term expiring January 1, 1953 are: Reynolds May, J. B. Kittrell, John G. Clark, E. E. Rawl, Badger Johnson and Mrs. W. S. Best.

Retiring directors are Mrs. J. H. Blount, R. M. Garrett, R. V. Keel and Bob Thompson.

Besides the election of officers and directors, the group reviewed the work during the 1949 drive and commended Badger Johnson for his work as campaign chairman and Howard Hodges as chairman of the special gifts committee.

House Vetoes Proposed Reorganizing Agencies

Washington, July 11—(AP)—Rallying to a call of "no socialized medicine," Congress has killed President Truman's plan to create a department of health, education and security.

Americans Are Forced Back As Red Tanks Power New Heavy Offensive

Tri-County Area To Soon Get Extra Power; Contracts OK'd

By action of the Board of Aldermen and Utilities Commission, persons living in the rural areas of Pitt, Beaufort and Craven counties will get electricity in their homes in the near future.

At a called meeting by Mayor Stafford, at the request of the Commission, last night, the Aldermen voted unanimously to approve the REA contracts for the requested loan of $910,000 made by the Commission six months ago.

Prior to last night's meeting, which was attended by eight of the Board, the Commission had given its full approval to the contracts and resolutions calling for extension of Greenville Utilities' electric power to upwards of 1,700 residents of the three counties.

After a brief discussion among members of the Commission in the presence of the Aldermen and Utilities' engineer L. E. Wooten, of Raleigh, the contracts were signed.

Wooten, who is employed by the Utilities Commission, for the program, explained the proposition to the members of the Board. He said most of the construction in the state in the use of REA funds was done by engineers from outside the state. They are better equipped for such jobs, he said, and experience has shown they can do the job cheaper and quicker than can municipal utilities' construction crews.

City Attorney R. B. Lee, before the vote was taken, outlined the progress of rural electrification in the county and those of Beaufort and Craven. Present rural lines were constructed under a loan of $88,000 received several years ago.

Lee urged the Board to approve the contracts because having begun the work in outlying areas of the three counties, "you can't stop now. If you're not going to serve your territory, you ought to get out and let someone else serve it (a private power company)."

The vote was taken on the motion by Alderman James E. Collins.

Peurifoy Named U. S. Ambassador Nominated For Post In Greece; Would Head Mission

Washington, July 11—(AP)—Under Secretary of State John E. Peurifoy was nominated by President Truman today to be ambassador to Greece. He also will head the American aid mission to that country.

Peurifoy has had charge of the State Department's Security and Loyalty program which has been under attack by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The White House announcement of Peurifoy's new assignment, however, gave no explanation for the shift of jobs.

The nomination must be confirmed by the Senate. That raises the question whether Republicans might seek to block the appointment in view of the controversy over McCarthy's charges that the State Department is a haven for communist sympathizers.

Peurifoy, a South Carolinian, is a career diplomat.

Mr. Truman nominated Carlisle H. Humelsine of Maryland to succeed him as under secretary of state.

Noted Hollywood Figure Is Dead

De Sylva had been in ill health since suffering a heart attack nearly five years ago.

Directors Of Community Chest Drive In Meeting

London, July 11—(AP)—Britons, groaning under the world's highest taxes, were told last night they can pay more—and may have to.

The warning was given by the nation's money and tax boss, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps, in reply to House of Commons suggestions from Conservatives that tax gathering has reached its limit.

Britons now pay 40 per cent of their national income in taxes.

Sir Stafford agreed he has reached "near the limit of direct taxation on incomes."

"But that does not mean," he added, "that we have reached the limit of taxability. There are indirect taxation, death duties, and many other ways by which taxes can be raised."

"If it were the question of an emergency the situation would be quite different."

Bradley Quoted As Saying American Forces Will Have Ground Troops Of Other UN Members Beside Them

Washington, July 11—(AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley was quoted today as saying American forces in Korea will be joined by ground troops from other members of the United Nations.

Chairman Tydings (D-Md.) said Bradley gave that information to the Senate Armed Services committee during a two hour, closed-door session. Tydings would not name the other UN members.

Pressed with questions from reporters, Tydings would say only that other members of the UN have offered ground forces and that these offers have been accepted.

He declined any comment when asked specifically whether Chinese Nationalist troops would go to Korea. The Chinese Nationalists have offered some 30,000 men.

The state Department has maintained a cool attitude toward that offer on the theory that use of Chinese Nationalists might invite intervention in Korea by the Chinese Communists.

Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, was called before the Senate group to give it an up-to-minute report on the Korean situation.

In advance of his appearance, some informed Senators said they understood a 100,000 man increase in the American Armed Forces was planned, to cost an initial $350,000,000.

More Taxes For Britain Hinted

It's too bad that it has taken another war to put the United Nations on its feet. But it's a grand thing that the peace organization had the courage to stand up to its obligations when the crisis came.

The forthright and fearless manner in which the U.N. has met Moscow's sponsored Northern Korea's aggression against her sister state likely saved the organization from the fate of the League of Nations. The League, which started out with such great hope and promise, died because it lacked the nerve to deal with similar cases of aggression.

And it did take two-fisted courage for the Security Council to pursue its rightful course in the face of fierce opposition from the powerful Communist bloc headed by Russia. Failure to stand squarely up to the Korean issue would have been a wide-open invitation to more aggression.

But, says somebody, this action has further emphasized the division of the peace organization into two blocs—the Reds and the democracies. The Russian bloc might withdraw from the U.N. altogether.

Well, that certainly is a contingency which must be faced. Should it happen the democracies probably would label it as "regrettable"—but a lot of 'em would smile when they said it and they would carry on.

You will recall that last April 27 former President Herbert Hoover made a speech in New York calling for the scrapping of the U.N. organization and the setting up of a new one with the Communist countries shut out. He declared the need was great for a dynamic "new united front" against "crawling Red imperialism."

This proposal by Mr. Hoover has come to be known as "Hoovering the U.N." Should the Soviet bloc now walk out in anger, it would achieve its same result.

Whether Moscow will pursue such a drastic course is a matter of some speculation. There are indications now that the Russians may refuse to sit in the U.N. assembly when it meets on September 17. This abstention would be due to the presence of Nationalist China who, the Soviet claims, no longer has a right to membership, which should go to the Republic of China.

Sixty-Ton Monsters Join Armored Spearhead In Smash Through U.S. Lines; Taejon Appears Goal; Ten American Tanks Destroyed, Two Disabled

A Communist power drive sparked by 60 tanks, some of them 60-ton Russian built monsters, smashed through American defenses today and threw U. S. troops back close to Kum river defense line.

A field headquarters spokesman said the Reds were using most of their infantry strength for a new general offensive pushing determinedly on Taejon. The Kum river is the last major defense line before Taejon, heretofore identified in dispatches as U. S. field headquarters. Mention of this has been omitted from late dispatches.

Despite American Air blows Monday which by official count knocked 65 Red tanks out of action, the spokesman said that on the American front alone the Reds were using 80 tanks. He recalled that a few days ago the Communists were reported to have 15 divisions totalling 75,000 men in the invasion drive.

The push was reported to have driven the Americans out of Chochiwon, five air miles north of the Kum river. The spokesman acknowledged that the Americans withdrew to prepared positions under pressure "all along our front line."

A communiqué from headquarters of Gen. MacArthur, U. N. commander said U. S. forces were trying to halt the offensive along the Kum river last major defense line the American front alone the Reds were using 80 tanks. He recalled that a few days ago the Communists were reported to have 15 divisions totalling 75,000 men in the invasion drive.

The field headquarters spokesman said the Reds are using infiltration tactics good as any he had ever seen. He said they "infiltrate by dressing in civilian clothes and move behind our lines at night."

The MacArthur communiqué said U. S. forces blunted the drive of one enemy column eight miles northwest of Chochiwon on the south bank of the Miho river, a tributary of the Kum river. This drive had penetrated to about 25 miles northwest of Taejon. Additional Red troops and armor were reported concentrating in the sector, and a field headquarters spokesman said the situation was still "fluid"—that is, constantly changing.

Official reports reaching Tokyo said Americans gave up Chochiwon, 22 miles northwest of Taejon.

This apparently was the area of the new Red offensive which started early Tuesday, Tokyo time.

Eleven tanks, some of them 60-ton Russian made monsters, spearheaded the new assault, knocking out some American machinegun and light artillery positions. At least two American tanks were knocked out.

Associated Press correspondent Tom Lambert at the front was unable to give the location of the battle because of Security regulations, but presumably it was north of the Kum river, about 13 miles north of Taejon, emergency capital of the South Korean Republic.

Front dispatches said the tanks burst out suddenly, heavily camouflaged with tree branches.

With a see-saw battle raging along the west Korean front, U. S. and South Korean troops got sledge-

Report Work Of ABC Officers

The yearly report on the activities of the Pitt County ABC law enforcement officers for the year ending June 1950 was released this morning by the local office.

The total number of arrests made by the officers in the year was 126. Fines which were collected on conviction amounted to $7,122.31.

The county officers destroyed a total of 64 liquor stills in various sections of the county, destroying an estimated 16,935 gallons of mash which was the equivalent of about 1,411 gallons of illegal whiskey.

Illegal whiskey seized and destroyed other than that captured in raids of the stills totaled 503 gallons.

Seized in the raids were two cars and two trucks which were sold.

Officer J. M. Ward reported that in addition to the number of raids listed his officers had aided the Beaufort and Lenoir County ABC officers in numerous raids which had been highly successful. These were not included in the report.

It Took Another War To Put The United Nations On Its Feet Again; Response To Aggression; If The Old League Had Acted: Possible Split Into Two Blocs

The Chinese Communist government.
However, the ways of the Kremlin are inscrutable. We'd better not jump to conclusions. In any event, close observers hold that even if Russia continues in the United Nations the Reds will pursue their program of studied obstruction. There isn't the slightest indication that they have any intention of cooperating with the democracies.
A good many of the U.N. delegates are happy that Russia wasn't represented in the Security Council meeting which ordered a cease fire in Korea on June 25 and the withdrawal of the invading North Korean troops. Because of the Soviet absence the order rolled through without hitch. Of course Moscow claims that the action was illegal because of the presence of Nationalist China—but legal or illegal, it is working.
Russia hasn't bolstered her stock in the U.N. any by her maneuvers. On the contrary she is stimulating defensive preparations in the camp of the democracies.

Drafting . . .

no knowledge of this Army decision when he was holding his news conference.
This story is being told like this so you'll see a little of the Washington picture as it is unfolding. Ever since the Korean crisis broke a couple of weeks ago, decisions have been made on a day-by-day basis. Selective Service gives each state

North Korean tank and troop columns above Chonan were caught in a Sunday traffic jam by U. S. planes (symbols on map) and were raked with fire bombs and machine gun fire. a quota to fill up the total of 20,000 for the country. Each state in turn gives its draft boards a quota to fulfill the state's quota. This quota of 20,000 men will be from 1-A's only.
(A 1-A is a man considered most eligible for military service because he is physically fit, has no dependents, and so on.)
In calling up 1-A's, each board, of course, under present law, can draft only men who have passed their 19th birthday but not yet reached their 26th.
In choosing from this 19-26 group, the boards start at top of the age bracket, taking first those 25 to 26, then 24 to 25, and so on down. In most cases this should mean very few 19-year-olds will be drafted to fill the Army's present need for 20,000 men.
This is a simple answer to why the draft boards are going to take men 25 to 26 before taking the younger men of 19:
The closer a man is to 26, the less chance a draft board has to induct him under present law. Why? Simply because, once he reaches 26, he can't be drafted unless later Congress upsets the age limit.
But the 19-year-olds will be there for seven years if necessary. So the boards have plenty of time to draft them, if they're needed.

Sorority Sisters 'Tested' By Belt

West Los Angeles, July 11—(AP)—Police held Walter Spiegler, 29, on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon after reporting this tale:
Spiegler gained entrance to two UCLA sorority houses by posing as a Hollywood talent scout. In each he delivered a soul-stirring lecture on the need to suffer to portray genuine emotion.
Then he stirred things up elsewhere by beating several of the sisters with a belt to test their ability to register pain.
When the girls in the second house found they couldn't sit down, they refused to stand for it. Police, duly notified, were on hand to greet Belting Walter when he showed up at a third sorority.

Rutan Speaks At Lions' Meeting

Dr. Edward Rutan, head of the English and Education Department of East Carolina Teachers College, was guest speaker at the weekly Lions Club meeting held at the Woman's Club last night.
Rutan spoke on the subject, "Communication," not in reference to present day telephone or radios but personal conversation. The topic was "Communication as pertaining to our language."
"This system has been broken badly and I am afraid it will not get back to our proper system as it was intended," the speaker said. "Language was not intended to convey ideas, but rather intended to convey feelings and emotions."
"So much of the casual communication misses the feelings and emotions," he said in referring to the usage of slang.
Reading in certain forms deals with communication, he said, giving the example of a person who sees a traffic sign but fails to observe it, thus violating the law. It has now become hard for a person to express thanks, because they fail to live with the subject or think seriously enough about it.
"We must use common sense or horse sense which is stable thinking in our communication," he said.
Preceding the program, committee appointments were announced by President Larry Averette. The president met with the newly-appointed committee chairmen following the regular meeting. The president informed the men of their duties on the committees and the work which was expected to be done by them.
The club also accepted an invitation from the Greenville Baseball Club to attend in a body one of the coming home ball games as guests

Tarkington-Whitehurst Vows Spoken In Candlelight Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Martha Vivian Whitehurst, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clayton Whitehurst, Sr., of Bethel and Robert Edward Tarkington, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Tarkington, Sr., of Windsor, was solemnized in a lovely candlelight ceremony on Saturday, July 8, in the Bethel Methodist church. Rev. N. W. Grant performed the double ring ceremony at five o'clock.

Greens and ferns made a background for white cathedral tapers in branched candelabras arranged amid baskets of white gladioli. White satin ribbon and gladioli marked the pews for the two families.

Mrs. W. J. Smith, organist, and Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst, soloist, and sister-in-law of the bride, rendered a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Whitehurst sang "I Promise You" by Lerner and Bakland and "I Promise You" by Biecker and Ball. Mrs. Smith played "To A Wild Rose" while the vows were being spoken. "Oh Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. Whitehurst as a benediction. The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessional.

The bride entered the church accompanied by her brother, George W. Whitehurst, who gave her in marriage. She wore an original gown of nylon marquisette fashioned with a portrait neckline edged with a bertha of chantilly lace and trim of seed pearl. A peplum of chantilly lace incrimed the waist and extended down the front panels of the bouffant skirt which carried in a circular train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a halo of pleated illusion and pearlized calla lilies. She carried a bouquet of white bride's roses showered with stephenotis. Miss Anne Whitehurst of Bethel, niece of the bride, was maid of honor and only attendant. Her gown was of Nile green marquisette, with a ruffled bertha, fitted bodice, and a double ruffle around the bouffant skirt which was worn over hoops. She carried a colonial bouquet of mixed summer flowers, predominantly lavender and yellow.

Richard Tarkington, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Others were Wallace Tarkington and Merritt Tarkington, also brothers of the bridegroom, Clyde Tarkington, a cousin, and Lee Whitehurst, Jr., nephew of the bride.

Mrs. L. J. Whitehurst, sister-in-law of the bride, representing the bride's mother, wore a gown of black lace and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Samuel Corwell, sister of the groom, served in place of his mother. She wore a gown of grey chiffon and a corsage of red carnations.

Mrs. Walter Clayton Whitehurst and Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst were mistresses of ceremonies.

The bride was graduated from East Carolina Teachers College and also attended Duke University and the College of William and Mary. For the past two years she has taught in the schools of Williamston.

The bridegroom attended Bingham Military Academy and Duke University. For the past several years he has been associated with the Charles H. Jenkins Company of Williamston.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Whitehurst entertained at a reception at their home in Bethel. The home was decorated throughout with gladioli, gardenias, and magnolias, and burning white tapers.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gurganus who directed them into the living room where they were introduced to the receiving line. Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Tarkington directed the guests to the dining room. The table from which individual cakes, molded ice cream, nuts and mints were served was covered with a white cutwork table cloth of Irish linen, centered with white tapers in silver candelabra and an arrangement of gardenias banked around a miniature bride and groom.

the cakes and Mrs. R. L. Bojling served the ice cream. They were assisted in serving by Mrs. Ralph Highsmith, Mrs. Mance Edmondson, Miss Ola Nell Edmondson, Miss Becky Keel, Miss Lecky McWhorter, Miss Janie Ruth Edmondson, Mrs. Grover Whitehurst, Mrs. J. D. Hemmingway and Mrs. Curtis Martin. Mr. Rev. and Mrs. Grant directed the guests into the hall, where Mr. and Mrs. Abbott McWhorter served punch from a beautifully appointed table. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown invited the guests into the middle living room where Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Tarkington presided over the register. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tadlock, Jr. received in the gift room. Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Latham.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Tarkington left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. For traveling, the bride wore a dressmaker suit of magnolia silk shantung with a natural imported straw picture hat trimmed with green velvet. Her other accessories were of matching green. Her corsage was of green orchids.

On Friday night, July 7, Mrs. Walter C. Whitehurst and Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst entertained the wedding party at a cake cutting at which time the attendants were remembered with gifts chosen for them by the bride and bridegroom. The house was beautifully decorated throughout with mixed arrangements of gladioli, shasta daisies, and fever few.

The dining room table was covered with a white Irish linen cut-work cloth, and surrounded by nosegays attached to the ribbons on the favors in the cake. Centered on the table was the bride's cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. It was flanked by silver candelabra containing aperettes filled with gardenias. After the first slice of cake was cut by the bride and groom, Mrs. L. J. Whitehurst served the molded ice cream. On the terrace Miss Martha Cromartie poured punch from a crystal bowl banked by gardenias. Miss Jenny Lee Whitehurst passed nuts and mints to the guests.

Since the announcement of her engagement Mrs. Tarkington has been entertained at bridge parties given by Mrs. George Whitehurst,

Longshore Union Nearly Riots On Bridges' Motion

San Francisco, July 11—(AP)—Harry Bridges' opposition to his own CIO union supporting U.S. action in Korea precipitated a near riot last night.

Several fist fights broke up the meeting of Local 10, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, and prevented a vote on the anti-Communist resolution. Bridges is a member of the local.

Angry rightwing longshoremen booed their international president as he led the opposition. The resolution had been offered by Phil Sandin, president of the local.

The resolution condemned North Korean aggression, pledged the union's loyalty to the United States, promised to load all war cargoes, and declared:

"We shall not join in, condone or recognize any Communist demonstration or picket lines."

Bridges offered an amendment expressing support for the United Nations "cease fire" order and asking peaceful settlement of the Korean war. Sandin said the same motion was defeated at a union meeting last week, and thus had been disposed of. Bridges' appeal from Sandin's ruling was defeated by a vote. The first-swinging started after one longshoreman then shouted: "All the Combies should be loaded into armored cars and sent to Tule Lake."

Tule Lake, Calif., is the area where Japanese nationals were interned during World War II.

Bridges recently was convicted in federal court of perjury for denying at his 1945 naturalization hearing that he had ever been a Communist. He is free on bond pending hearing of his appeal.

The Korean resolution was debated by the union last week without a vote. Sandin said it would be the first order of business when the local meets again July 19.

"They get mad first, and then find something to strike about." Dr. Hewson, an industrial psychologist with a firm of management engineers, lists six basic needs for a man to be happy in his job that never come up for labor bargaining. These are affection, a sense of belonging and recognition, independence, social approval, self-respect and variety with occasional excitement.

Prisoner Freed Early By Error

Raleigh, N. C., July 11—A Buncombe county prisoner who was released in error is going to have to return to prison to finish his time, authorities said today.

Chief prison supervisor J. G. Sawyer said Buncombe officers had been asked to pick up James Melton of Weaverville, who was discharged Sunday because of a clerical error.

Melton, under a three-month sentence on a lottery charge, entered Crayg prison camp in Buncombe on May 2, the supervisor said. He was discharged Sunday, Sawyer went on, because records in the prison office here indicated he had served his time. Sawyer explained that with gained time, a prisoner can complete a three month sentence in two months and seven days on the calendar.

What the records failed to show Sawyer said, was that Melton was free under bond from May 10 to June 20—which doesn't count as time served. The prisoner was turned over to custody of a Buncombe court on May 10, Sawyer explained, while his case was on appeal. Once the records didn't show that he was out on bond, prison officials thought he was being held in jail by the court, and they credited him with time for the period he was away from the prison camp.

farming and the small businesses which we have here in Pitt county.

If total war comes again soon, there will be a large number of these young men who will still be within the military service ages. Business will have to seek other people to fill these vacancies. It will be difficult to recall the older heads who carried the loads of business during the years of World War II, for age will have rendered most of them incapable of assuming again the strenuous task of running businesses under war-time conditions.

Many businesses probably will suffer from lack of experienced, effective leadership, and the nation's economy which is based upon private enterprise even in war-time, is likely to suffer accordingly.

These conclusions may sound rather harsh after the past five years of returning to "business as usual," but the people of Greenville and Pitt county as well as the rest of the country may as well begin preparing themselves for possible eventualities.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

HOUSES AND HOMES
 Architects report that great improvements have been made in American homes in the past five years. Even despite the set-back caused by a few unscrupulous builders who threw up expensive, poorly built human constructions of inferior materials, families, living in new houses enjoy comforts and conveniences virtually unknown a decade ago.

In the kitchen, properly placed units save literally miles of walking each year, while dish and clothes washers, garbage disposal devices, and improved stoves and refrigerators make preparing meals easier. Heating units are smaller but more efficient; insulation and new types of windows save fuel.

Thousands of architects, engineers, and manufacturers are working to produce better houses. But what we really need is to have millions of people working to produce better homes. The roof over our heads is important, but not nearly so important as the people under it and their relationship with one another. Juvenile delinquency, adult crime, divorce, drunkenness, mental illness—all of these can often be traced to unhappy family life.

Not everyone can improve houses, but everyone in a family can improve a home. No technical training is needed. Consideration for others, generosity, unselfishness, co-operativeness, honesty, and reverence can remodel a place to live and make it a real home.

People Regulate Law Enforcement Cost

The fact that law enforcement is no minor task even in a city as small as Greenville is borne out by the report for last year of the local police department.

The police found it necessary to arrest 1,758 people within the city limits alone. Some were taken into custody for serious offenses, and others were arrested for minor offenses; but all were arrested for alleged violations of the city laws.

Between now and July of 1951 the city of Greenville will spend approximately $89,000 to enforce law and order in the city. That means the city has to appropriate just a little over $5.32 for every man, woman and child in the city to insure the enforcement of the laws.

The expenditure is necessary, but it could be cut drastically if the citizens had more respect for the laws of the city and state.

A Manpower Problem Looms For Business

Government officials have said that the overall employment picture of the United States (which soon is expected to top the 1948 peak) will be affected little if any by the call for 540,000 men for military service.

The officials probably are right in their statement if the military demands of the United States can be met with the addition of slightly over half a million men to the armed forces. If hundreds of thousands of Chinese Communist troops are thrown into the Korean battle, however; or if the Reds begin their aggression in other parts of the world, half a million additional men in our armed forces will be only a beginning.

We are not trying to be alarmists, nor are we trying to paint a darker war picture than actually exists. We are merely pointing out the military possibilities as they have been stated by the nation's leaders.

But if the all-out war effort is demanded of the people of this nation, there will be a great strain upon the economy of the nation. Even now the wheels of industry are continuing to produce in an effort to catch up with the demand for goods which has not been met since the close of hostilities five years ago. The nation is seeing in peace time the highest employment record in its history, and there are still demands for additional workers in particular fields.

What is to happen to the large and small businesses of the country if an all-out war effort becomes necessary?

During the days of World War II there were hundreds of thousands of men who clung to their jobs for five to eight years longer than they would have normally. When the younger men returned from military service, they rapidly took over the positions vacated by the older men. The positions included rank and file jobs, and also key executive positions in many businesses throughout the country. The same thing applied not only to industry, but to

Slow Recovery In Britain Underscored

Two of yesterday's brief news items shed new light on the extremely slow recovery of Great Britain's economy from the scars of the last great conflict.

One was an announcement that soap rationing would be ended in Britain on September 10; another concerned a wildcat strike by truckers who had as one issue, a demand that truckers now receiving $14 and under (per week) be granted wage increases.

True, price controls have kept living costs below American standards; but so too, have their wage scales been kept at a level far below our accepted levels.

The question of whether the British people would have fared better without the stringent controls kept since the war, or not, is still unanswered.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, July 11—In a historic decision that may offend other members of the United Nations, President Truman and Secretary Acheson have held that neither the U.N. Charter nor the proposed Universal Declaration of Human Rights can invalidate state or federal laws affecting such questions as the freedom of individuals, the press, the radio, the screen or equal rights for women, even though a treaty is supposed to be the highest law of the land.

The Administration adopted this attitude after a California Circuit Court of Appeals had declared unconstitutional a state law on the ground that it violated Articles 55 and 56 of the U.N. Charter. The statute involved provides that Japanese shall not be permitted to own land in California.

In the opinion of the appellate body, this alien land law contravened the Charter requirement that the "United Nations shall promote universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all, without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion."

VIEW—Jack B. Tate, State's Deputy Legal Adviser, has written to Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman, asking him to intervene as "amicus curiae" on behalf of the government when the case is appealed to the Supreme Court of California.

If Attorney General McGrath agrees to this interpretation, he will uphold California's right to enact this kind of legislation. Mr. McGrath will hardly disagree, for several Charter provisions threatening federal or state sovereignty have provoked a storm of protests from all sections of the country.

The Truman-Acheson view is that the U.N. Charter applies only to "entire human groups" rather than to "specific individuals." State also maintains that, in view of our form of government, the treaty cannot be held to supersede or outlaw laws enacted by any of the forty-eight states.

GENOCIDE—This same viewpoint will apply to the Genocide Treaty, when and if it is ratified by the Senate. Leader Perez, prominent New Orleans lawyer representing the States Rights Committee at Washington, has argued that anti-Negro legislation in many southern states might be held unconstitutional under both the U.N. Charter and the Genocide Treaty.

It is understood that Britain does not relish the American interpretation, which caused a row during discussion of the Convention for Suppression of the Traffic in Women and Children. Pointing out that the states controlled the problem of prostitution except for its interstate aspects, the American representatives refused to sign the document.

Other countries which have the same federal-state relationship as the United States, and will undoubtedly follow our course, are Mexico, New Zealand, Australia and Switzerland.

ENCROACHMENT—The encroachment on federal and state sovereignty would be even more serious if and when the proposed Universal Declaration of Human Rights is embodied in a treaty, were it not for this new Truman-Acheson reservation. It is doubtful if the Senate would approve it in its present form.

Article 13, for instance, declares, "Every one has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his own country."

This provision for general freedom of movement would wipe out our system of passports and visas, and possibly prohibit action to bar entrance of Communists into the United States.

Article 20 says that "No one may be compelled to belong to any association." This would, of course, outlaw the union shop, despite laws and contracts which legalize it.

IDEALS—The Declaration has already been adopted by the U.N.'s General Assembly. It is now undergoing revision by a U.N. Commission, of which Eleanor Roosevelt is chairman.

Despite her broad attitude on international problems, she has declared explicitly that these agreements do not bind the states. She accepts State's view that they are simply a statement of ideals and principles for guidance.

REPORT—In his report on the San Francisco meeting which framed the U.N. Charter, the late Edward R. Stettinius, then Secretary of State, stated to President Truman that it did not constitute an infringement on any law providing for freedom of speech, the press, the radio, the theater and the screen. Nor can the reference to freedom of sex be regarded as guaranteeing equal rights for women.

Several U.N. member nations have peculiar and un-American ideas on these questions, and they may try to use the international body to obtain their world-wide acceptance and enforcement.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday when I walked into the paint room at Flanagan Buggy Company I caught "Colonel" W. L. Brown doing something he hadn't done since 1930. He was painting a Model T Ford. Mr. Brown carries the "Colonel" nickname because he's been in command of the paint room for almost 25 years, and before he started at Flanagan's he was painting at Ellis Carriage Works in Kinston. In all, the Colonel has been painting since 1911, which probably makes him North Carolina's oldest automotive and buggy painter.

The Model T the Colonel tackled yesterday is a 1912 Model belonging to Frank Strawn. Frank was raised near Memphis, Tenn., but moved to Greenville after marrying Helen Aman. The 1912 Model T is Frank's pride and joy. He has owned as many as six T's at a time, and still is on the lookout for more. However, his 1912 is not for sale.

A true lover of old cars, Frank is a member of the Horseless Carriage Club and the Antique Automobile Club of America. It cost him $6 a year to be a voting member. Members of these organizations drive their cars to the annual conventions and together they make a tour—forty or fifty old cars in a caravan. They give prizes for the best performance in the outfit.

Whenever Frank gets a chance, he grabs Model T Ford parts. For example, he has 12 front wheel bearings for "T's."

Although Colonel Brown hadn't painted a T Model in many a year, the experience wasn't a new one to him. The year he started work in Greenville, 1926, Flanagan Buggy Co. led North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia in the sale of Model T's. Many of those T's came back to the Colonel's shop for painting.

At top production, the T sold for around $500. Frank Strawn in recent months has sold them for prices ranging between $100 and $225.

The Colonel remembers the year 1926 as one of the best years for business during his tour at Flanagan's. Of course the years of World War II were also good ones, and in October, 1934, Flanagan's led all dealerships in the world in the sale of cars. What's more, White Chevrolet Co. pulled the same trick.

When Colonel Brown finishes the job on Frank's car it'll look just as good as any 1950 model car on the road. LeRoy Lloyd, Mr. Brown's colored helper, has 13 years' experience in the paint room, and his effort will add to the value of the job. Another important fact cannot be overlooked: The paint Mr. Brown used came from—yes, you guessed it, Edwards Auto Supply. Never accuse me of commercializing, because you'll be right.

And I thank you.

SHOP-TALK — Essential phase of any professional or craft convention is the "shop-talk" of attendants. The formal program is usually designed for special interest of the conventioners, but the real shop-talk occurs in off-side groups around the lobbies and in hotel rooms. So it was at the North Carolina press association meeting at Asheville last week.

At full open sessions John McKnight, former AP correspondent in Italy, discussed the European situation, and Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Meigsberger, commander of the eighth army in the Pacific arena during the late world war, talked about the Far East. These speeches were interesting and instructive. Probably they were not so important to most listeners as the later off-record discussions about mechanical problems and editorial policies of the newspapers.

BUSINESS — Business office, composing and pressroom problems concerned the publishers and managers. The public is not greatly interested in these matters, except as they affect legibility of printing and delivery of the papers to the subscriber.

EDITORIAL—The reading public is more concerned about editorial policy and presentation of news. There were enough newspaper folk present who double in capacities of publishers and editors to prevent any group from becoming clamorous; and there is enough overlapping of duties to assure keeping the job of producing a newspaper as a single problem. The news could not have been published unless the editors and reporters provided interesting and instructive copy. CO-OPERATION—So every division of a newspaper organization must work together to get out the paper. The exchange of experiences and information in these group talks contribute to improvement of service all along the line.

VARIETY — Some newspapers pay little attention to sports; others ignore what is commonly called "society news"; still others steer away from politics as much as possible. On the other side of this picture are those which play-up these various angles. Much of the talk around Grove Park dealt with maintaining appropriate balance, so that newspaper readers would not get a lop-sided or colored picture of what is going on around them.

POLITICS—The writing members of the group were more interested in politics, and a good deal of the off-side discussions dealt with the recent primary—the causes which produced the result, and more significantly, the probable future effect of the nomination of Willis Smith over Senator Frank Graham. There were a lot of questions, very few satisfactory answers. Some felt that state progress had been retarded, others believed it had been accelerated. Nobody thought progress would stop in state development along agricultural, industrial and social lines.

WAR—The war news affected discussions. One editor had to leave the convention early because he is chairman of his county's selective service board and he had to check orders from Washington. Consensus among the

The next round of labor demands are likely to emphasize wages again. Pensions won't be forgotten, especially by those unions which have not yet won them. But the big target will be more pay.

The reasons behind this are these:

1. The cost of living has been going up again. The Department of Labor Index showed an 0.8 per cent rise between April 15 and May 15. The index for food prices was up 1.8 per cent. The next report, due late this month, is expected to show a further increase in food prices between May 15 and June 15. Since most workers think of the cost of living in terms of food, this will increase the demands for higher wages.

2. The boom which began in May is contributing to the feeling that there's plenty there for everybody and labor would like a slice.

3. Even before the boom began to be reflected in dividends, most of the large corporations were showing good earnings. Labor leaders watch these figures closer than stockholders.

4. The talk about more inflation is convincing many unionists that higher wages are necessary.

5. Threats of war are also threats of wage freezes. Unions will want to get wages up before any danger of controls.

The Korean shooting and tauter international relations will surely figure in all wage negotiations, just as they figured in the switchmen's strike. Companies with government contracts, or engaged in operations aiding the military effort, will appeal to the patriotism of their men in efforts to avert strikes.

That will not necessarily change the picture. Only a small portion of successful wage demands involve strikes anyhow, and unions which agree to submit demands of arbitration will enter those proceedings with the aura of loyalty about them. Furthermore, those companies with government contracts will be inclined to grant some demands rather than endanger production or reduce morale.

NEW TV AERIAL
 A new kind of business has sprung from television in Falls City, Neb. Two imaginative enterprisers erected a 200-foot receiving tower. Now they are offering to pipe reception to set owners for a monthly fee, eliminating unsightly aerials and reception troubles. They are also seeking permission to use telephone poles for wires from the tower to TV receivers.

Voice Of The People

July 8, 1950

The Editor,
 The Daily Reflector,
 Greenville, N. C.

Is there something rotten in our little state of Denmark?

Why was Mr. Page ousted as the Chief of Police? Is he incompetent? Is he dishonest? Does he beat his grandmother? Does he take away candy from crying babies? Does he smoke opium? Does he stick pins in beetles?

Just what is wrong with Mr. Page? The aldermen who ousted him don't seem to know, or, if they know, they aren't telling. "No comment," they say, and proceed to give the deal of the man they've booted out of office a rising vote of thanks "for the risible service he has rendered the city." If he has rendered service so valuable as to cause the aldermen to get up off their no-comments and rise to their feet in thanks, why is he getting the old heave-ho? What's wrong with the man?

The cat seems to have got everybody's tongue except Mr. Jenkins'. Amid the heavy droppings of no-comments, Mr. Jenkins rose up and said that he "had learned there were two distinct factions in the police department and two factions in the board of aldermen and that he favored the recommendations of the committee as a means of clearing up and strengthening the department."

Well, there's nothing wrong with wanting to strengthen the department, and, knowing Mr. Jenkins, I'm sure he followed the dictates of his conscience in the matter. But the question arises: Is the Department being wholesomely strengthened by putting out Mr. Page and putting in Mr. Wooten? If it is, I make a motion that we give a rising vote of thanks to the board of aldermen "for the valuable service they have rendered the city." But is the Department being strengthened, or is a faction being strengthened? I, for one, do not think that a strong department is always and necessarily an excellent thing. It depends in whose hands the strength lies. One grows tired these days of having the Kremlin pointed out as an example of this and an example of that, but at the risk of tiring whoever reads this letter, I should like to point out the obvious, i. e., that there has been a great deal of "clearing up and strengthening" of Stall's department; but does that make it holy? Does that make it good?

And what about those factions that were spoken of? Is one as pure as the driven snow, and is the other as black as sin? If so, did the angels win, or did the devils? Who is on which faction, and which faction stands for what? Mr. Wooten, elected temporary Chief, is a tidy man on a motorcycle, but how does he stack up in a faction? Is there a halo around his head? And has Mr. Page got horns?

Several of the aldermen remarked that there was nothing personal on their parts in the matter of firing Mr. Page. Well, all right. But there must be something personal on somebody's part; else why have the aldermen so bashfully retired behind their wall of no-comments and coyly refused to reveal any impersonal reasons for the action? Does Mr. Page part his hair on the wrong side? Does he bite his fingernails in great crises? Does he sing off key? What's the matter with him? I don't think most of us care who the Chief of Police is; so long as he is capable and efficient. I don't think most of us care whom the aldermen like or dislike, so long as they are conscientious in their duties. I hold no brief for or against Mr. Page, per se, or for or against any single alderman, per se. But judging from the facts in your newspaper, and from the lack of facts presented by the aldermen, a man is being done an injustice. To all appearances, Mr. Page is getting the short end of the stick.

If there is something wrong with Mr. Page, the aldermen should make it known. They should not keep us in suspense. They should give us another installment of this droll mystery. They should tell us what, and why.

Yours very truly,
 John G. Clark, Jr.

Washington Letter

By JANE EAD

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Ralph Church, who has spent much of her life teaching other women how to speak in public, will be talking in her own behalf the coming months. Recently nominated Republican candidate for Congress from Illinois to succeed her husband, who died suddenly of a heart attack this Spring, she will be busy campaigning for election in November.

President over the past year of the Congressional Club, made up of wives of the nation's lawmakers, Mrs. Church in 1947 taught the club's public speaking class and once coached the Wellesley College debating team. She has made campaign speeches during election years for the National Republican Committee. She has lectured for the past 10 years here and there on education and politics. She has definite ideas on public speaking.

She doesn't believe in oratory. She believes "sincere and ordered speech, definite structure, emphasis where it should be placed, development of points and a pleasing manner will do the trick better than all the golden words and rhetorical gestures in the bag." The more natural the speaker, the more effective the speech," she told me when she began the club's classes.

Mrs. Church first came to Washington in 1935. She was graduated from Wellesley in 1914 and became a faculty member in 1915, teaching about the development of philosophical thought in the New Testament. Mme. Chiang Kai Shek was a student. Mrs. Church's husband was a member of the Illinois state legislature at the time of their marriage in 1918. They had three children, Ralph, Jr., 26; William, 26; and Marjory, 21.

Many times, Mrs. Church has reiterated her belief that every woman in the United States should learn to think clearly and express herself freely. She tells me that 90 per cent of the women of this country could become good speakers and that enough can be done for the others at least to help them express themselves clearly.

"Women are now realizing more than ever before that they must join in the policy-making of their day," she told me. "They are also aware that before they make policies and help bring about their enforcement they've got to know how to talk about their ideas convincingly."

What Other Papers Are Thinking

GOOD GOVERNMENT SUFFERS SETBACK IN GREENVILLE (The Raleigh Times)

An affair in Greenville, N. C., illustrates one of the reasons why honest local government is so difficult to achieve.

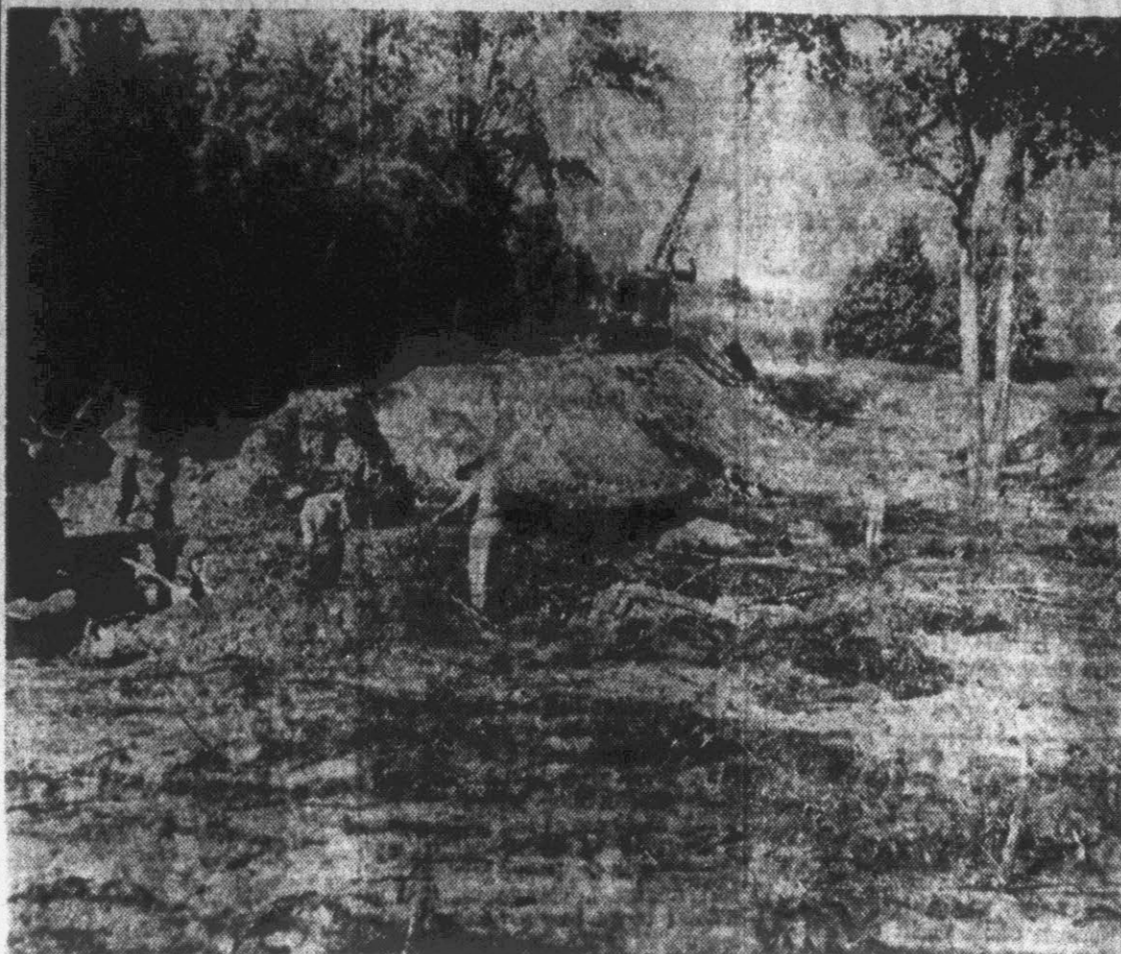

Last Christmas a young man belonging to one of Greenville's better families was arrested for drunken driving. (It should be noted here that his case is still waiting to be tried in Pitt County Superior Court, eight months after trial in police court was waived.) Immediately two city aldermen brought pressure upon Chief of Police Page to reduce the charge. He refused to do so, and then all kinds of pressure were brought upon him. The matter became so hot that a grand jury investigating the case ruled the two aldermen for attempting to obstruct justice. Meanwhile, let it be noted, the City's mayor stood solidly behind his chief of police.

Last week a bare majority of Greenville's city aldermen voted to fire Chief of Police Page after 20 years of service. The mayor, exercising his rare right, once before had vetoed the action of the aldermen. But this time they over-rode his veto in order to discharge the man who had dared to do his duty. When civic indignation inspired a public meeting about the affair and citizens demanding that aldermen voting to discharge Police Chief Page cite specific charges against him, not one of the aldermen would accept the challenge. They merely shook their heads and silently weathered the storm of the public meeting.

And there the matter stands. Many of Greenville's good citizens are ashamed of their aldermen's actions and fear for the good name of their City, as they have reasons to. But the fact remains that nowadays in North Carolina in one of the State's better towns, corruption and privilege can wreck its city government and cynically sit in cool control while its citizens fume and fuss, futilely.

The Greenville affair is disheartening to good government everywhere. It is possibly, also, another instance of the fact that the aldermanic type of government is more easily "managed" from within without having to account to the public than Raleigh's type of city management. Meanwhile Greenville's ex-chief of police is looking for a job!

Constructing A Fish Pond On Local Farm

Here is the overall view of the fish pond which is being built on Dr. Paul Jones' farm in Beaver Dam. Workmen are still clearing the waste land of trees and brush while the heavy machinery works on the dam which will back the water up over a acre and one-half of land. The pond will run along the side of a road offering an ideal setting with trees along the sides and a small island in the middle.

French Assembly Confirms Pleven

Paris, July 11—(P)—The French Assembly today confirmed Rene Pleven, member of the Small Union of resistance party, as the nation's new premier.

Pleven received a strong majority, with the official vote count at 373 to 185. He told reporters he expected to have a cabinet formed by tonight. The country has been without a government since June 24 when Premier Georges Bidault resigned.

The new Premier pleaded with the Assembly to unite behind a strong government in a time of international crisis.

Pleven had the support of the Socialists, the Popular Republican Movement (MRP), the Radical Socialists and a generous scattering of independents. The Communists formed the bulk of the vote against his confirmation.

Despite his strong support, Pleven's problems—similar to those which caused the government crisis—are only beginning. The major issue is over increases in minimum wages for low-paid workers.

Minor Leagues May Be Playing In Decisive Year

Chicago, July 11—(AP)—Is this the year—with television and widespread broadcasts of major league play—that may decide the fate of minor league baseball?

That question was raised even as the American Association National League played before a plump patronage of 49,000 in the 17th all-star game at Comiskey Park.

The two major loops yesterday waded through some new business, bringing a relaxation of the March 1 deadline for the start of spring training.

But the alarming note of the joint meeting was this report by President George M. Trautman of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (minor leagues):

The first month of play by some 444 minor league clubs resulted in a loss of one million fans. That was caused mainly by broadcasts and television of major league games in minor league territory, Trautman told the major bigwigs.

In the top three minor leagues, American Association attendance was reported 77 per cent below last year; the International League had dropped 19 per cent; and the Pacific Coast League 12 1-2.

The majors, however, did nothing at yesterday's joint session on the television-radio subject, except to name a study committee.

No action was taken on proposals by shortstop Marty Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals and Pitcher Fred Hutchinson of the Detroit Tigers, representing the players, that: There be no spring training night games; the bonus rule be discontinued; $25 per month be allowed players for expenses during the season, just as received now for spring training; pass lists for players be extended; and clubs pay expenses for an annual meeting of players representatives of both leagues.

Romance First

Washington, July 11—(AP)—Featherweight Champion Willie Pep didn't fight here last night. He was honeymooning.

Boxing promoter Goldie Ahearn was happy at the romance and looking forward to a big box office later when Willie does fight. The National Boxing Association was annoyed. Because Pep didn't show up for a scheduled 10-round bout with Bobby Bell of Youngstown, Ohio, the association suspended him.

Pep, 27, was married yesterday morning in Elkton, Md., to 22-year-old Dolores Von Frenchell. Both are from Hartford, Conn.

Raschi, Roberts Hurl Today In All-Star Tilt; 49,000 Fans

Chicago, July 11—(AP)—Yankee Vic Raschi and the Phils' $25,000 bonus baby, Robin Roberts, clash today in the 17th renewal of the All-Star baseball game at its Comiskey Park birthplace.

Although the fans' dream game has become a manager's nightmare, a sellout crowd of 49,000 is due to park by game time. The first ball is to be pitched at 1:30 p.m. (EST) with television (NBC) and radio (MBS) swinging into action 15 minutes earlier.

The embarrassed National League, trailing 12-4 in games, is a 9 to 5 underdog.

Burt Shotton, Brooklyn manager, is on the hot seat with Chicago fans because he tried to keep the Cubs' Hank Sauer out of his starting lineup. The fans, who voted Sauer into third place among the outfielders with more than 700,000 ballots, won out in the end.

Sauer, normally a left fielder not noted for his defensive skill, will be in center because Shotton doesn't want to change two outfielders.

"I don't want to break up two positions to fill one," he said. "If I moved Enos Slaughter (St. Louis) to center, then I'd have to play Sauer in right and only Ralph Kiner (Pittsburgh) would be playing a familiar position. I've got to put Sauer in center. I'm just sorry about that."

Shotton added, with a wink, that he's just instructed his pitchers not to permit the batters to hit fly balls out there.

"For all I know," he said, "Sauer may turn out to be the star of the game. I hope so."

Manager Casey Stengel of the American League stars makes no secret of his displeasure over the use of several of his pitching selections last Sunday.

After naming Raschi to pitch the first three innings, Casey was cagey concerning his pitching alignment beyond the New York Yankee right-hander.

"I don't know who I'll use after that," he said. "I may use Detroit's Art Houtteman and Cleveland's Bob Lemon—both of whom pitched Sunday."

The Robins had another doubleheader added to its list last night when the rains came and caused the New Bern game to be postponed. With games being rained out last night, there are at the present time a total of 23 doubleheaders now scheduled in the league between now and August 7. This means that in a total of the next 28 games in the league, 23 of them will be twin bills.

The Robins have a total of eight bargain bills facing them at the present time with three against New Bern, two with Rocky Mount, and one each with Roanoke Rapids, Wilson and Kinston. The Rocky Mount Leats have a total of seven doubleheaders coming up, two each with Greenville, Goldsboro and Tarboro and one with Kinston. Wilson has six doubleheaders to play, two each with New Bern and Kinston and one with Greenville and Roanoke Rapids. The Goldsboro Cardinals have five twin bills—two each with Kinston and Rocky Mount and one with New Bern. The Kinston Eagles have seven doubleheaders to play—two each with Wilson and Goldsboro and one each with the Rocky Mount, Greenville and Tarboro clubs. The New Bern Bears have seven doubleheaders as follows: three with Greenville, two with Wilson and one each with Goldsboro and Tarboro. The Roanoke Rapids Jays at the present time are better off than the rest of the clubs as far as doubleheaders are concerned. At the present time they have only two, one with Wilson and one with Greenville.

The schedule for the Robins' doubleheaders up to the present time is as follows: Friday, July 14—Greenville at Wilson; Sunday, July 16—Rocky Mount at Greenville; Wednesday, July 19—Greenville at Roanoke Rapids; Friday, July 21—Greenville at New Bern; Saturday, July 22—New Bern at Greenville; Monday, July 24—Kinston at Greenville; Thursday, July 27—Greenville at New Bern; Friday, August 4—Rocky Mount at Greenville.

Meanwhile, the Greenville club is expecting a mass turn-out to the game here tonight between the Robins and the Tarboro A's. This will mark the first time that the Robins have been able to play here since the night of July 8th, so local fans should be pretty baseball-hungry.

Baseball, down through the years, has had many famous names that included brother acts, brothers opposing one another, and so forth. Of recent seasons, the best example of this has been Walker and Mort Cooper, who formed one of the best batteries in the National League.

One of the most noted rivalries has been between Joe and Dom DiMaggio, both in the American League.

But the name Sauer goes back to more distant years and stretches right up to the modern era. It started with George Sauer, the American League batting champ in 1920 and 1922. Carrying on with the name was George's older son, Dick, of the Philadelphia Phils. Now it's up to the youngster of the family, Dave Sauer. Dave is the only pitcher in the crowd, and he made quite a name for himself on the mound at Princeton as a freshman.

This year Dave won six straight games for the Tigers. Included in his record were a no-hit shutout, and another whitewash job over the Yale frosh. And when he wasn't pitching, he played rightfield.

Varsity Coach Emerson Dickman says of the lanky 18-year-old: "He has more speed now than I had when I pitched for the Red Sox. He has a really good high hard one, and that's what you need more than anything else."

And his freshman coach, Matt Davidson, said: "He's the best prospect I've seen in 25 years of baseball." Considering that 25 years is a long time in the game it would seem that the name Sauer might be around for quite a while yet. In 50 innings Dave gave up 21 hits, two earned runs and walked only 16 batters.

Paraplegic Vet Overcame Handicap In Keeping Job

Development of a strong determination to master a long-time desire to become a gun and locksmith, plus developing strong arm and shoulder muscles has enabled a paraplegic veteran to learn the care of one variety of his favorite sporting equipment which was directly responsible for his permanent disablement.

Hal H. McColl, whose permanent home is Wilmington, N. C., moved to Winston-Salem eight months ago to receive the training he desired to enable him to be self-sufficient despite his handicap. He has resided at 1112 32nd street while undergoing his training.

Hal had to put his past behind him because it was fragments of a high explosive shell that lodged in his back only eight days before VE-day in Europe that caused immediate paralysis from the waist down and resulted in his being confined to a wheelchair.

It was not until last fall that it was determined medically feasible for McColl to enter into training under Public Law 16 (vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans) Charles A. Brown, one of the Veterans Administration's special rehabilitation officers who was working with veterans in the Wilmington area, set out to find a training opportunity with some commercial concern.

G. M. Bryan of the W. E. Beck Company in Winston-Salem took a personal interest in McColl's case after seeing how well the veteran could handle himself from a wheelchair. The remarkable strength developed in his arms and shoulders was the result of almost constant use on the bus—end of heavy fishing tackle off the docks in Wilmington and deep sea fishing crafts working out of that seashore city. Since a majority of McColl's work necessitated using fairly heavy equipment such as a drill press, milling machine, lathe and a filing machine, the shop had a welded steel special workbench of semi-circular design built. A notch to fit Hal's dimensions enables him to roll wheelchair to within easy reach of tiers of shelves and tool racks around the perimeter and the heavy equipment close to him. Special spring clips clamp onto the arms of the chair to prevent his chair moving.

The management of the shop which trained him had declared him rehabilitated last week. Hal invited McColl to continue in the shop, or they will assist him in setting up a business of his own in Winston-Salem.

Hal plans to take a short vacation at the beach before making a decision as to where he will work or go into business.

One deciding factor will be where he finally decides to build his special wheelchair home for which he has been approved by the VA. This home will have every facility to make Hal self-reliant including wide doors, ramps in place of steps or stairs, special plumbing and kitchen equipment and a specially equipped exerciser room. He may have his shop built right into the home.

Slight Drop In Attendance For Swimming Pool

With bad weather prevailing in Greenville for four days last week, attendance at the city swimming pool took a slight drop last week as compared with other weeks.

Although the attendance was only a little over a thousand, as a whole it was better than average, Cashier David Jones said. Around 500 children of the 1,000 or more which used the pool last week came in on Monday which was free swim day.

Yesterday, with threatening weather, the number of boys and girls who attended the pool was around 300.

Free swimming lessons for any boy or girl in the city are being given each day of the week except Saturday and Sunday, sponsored by the City Recreation Commission. Any child who has not signed up for the lessons should apply at the pool that they may be placed in a class.

Smallest Cotton Crop Since 1872

Raleigh, N. C., July 11—(P)—The smallest cotton crop since 1872 is in prospect for North Carolina farmers.

As of July 1, 570,000 acres were under cultivation, said a report released yesterday by the federal state department of Agriculture. This compares with 669,000 acres of cotton in cultivation in the state at the same time last year, or 34.4 per cent more, and is down 24 per cent from the 1939-48 average of 750,000 acres.

North Carolina's 1950 cotton allotment was 748,000 acres or 178,000 more than were in cultivation July 1.

Cotton cultivation throughout the nation as of July 1 was estimated at 19,032,000 acres, or 31.3 per cent less than a year ago and 13 per cent below the 10-year average acreage in cultivation at that date.

Unfavorable planting conditions including poor weather, and exceptionally heavy boll weevil infestation were blamed for the small crop.

The words to the patriotic hymn, "America," were written in 1832 by a theological student, Samuel Francis Smith to the tune, "God Save the King," which he found in a German songbook.

Hearing Date Established

The hearing on the application of this Company for an adjustment in its rates has been set by the North Carolina Utilities Commission for 10:00 a.m. September 6, 1950 at the hearing room of the Commission in Raleigh, North Carolina. The petition of the Company for additional gross revenue was filed with the Commission on June 9, 1950.

Fifty-One Polio Cases Reported

Raleigh, N. C., July 11—(P)—The state board of health has received reports of 51 cases of polio so far this year. This is the same figure reported for the period from January through June last year.

Dr. Roy Norton, state health officer, said in releasing the figures yesterday that this year's cases are well-scattered over the state. There are no localizations which might indicate the start of an epidemic, he declared.

N. C. Republican Meeting Tonight

Greensboro, N. C., July 11—(P)—The North Carolina Republican party was scheduled to map campaign plans for the November General elections at a dinner meeting here tonight.

J. E. Broyhill of Lenoir, National G. O. P. committeeman from North Carolina, said about 30 state party leaders are expected to attend the meeting.

Russia Attacks Use Of UN Flag In Korea Fighting

Moscow, July 11—(P)—The Russian government today denounced the use of the United Nations flag by American troops fighting in Korea and attacked as illegal the Security Council's sponsorship of a U. S. headed unified command for the Korean war.

A Soviet note to U. S. Secretary General Trygve Lie said the Council's resolution of July 7 taking these actions "aims at unlawfully using the United Nations flag to cover armed actions of the United States in Korea."

Such U. S. actions, the note declared, "constitute direct aggression on the part of the United States with regard to the Korean people."

The Russian note, replying to a message from Lie informing the Kremlin of the Council resolution, was published in all Moscow papers today.

It charged that the Council resolution was a "gross violation" of the U. N. charter because the Soviet Union and the Chinese Peoples (Communist) Republic were not represented at the Council meeting.

The Soviet Union, a permanent member of the Security Council, raised the same objection previously in refusing to recognize the Council resolution calling for military aid to the South Korean government.

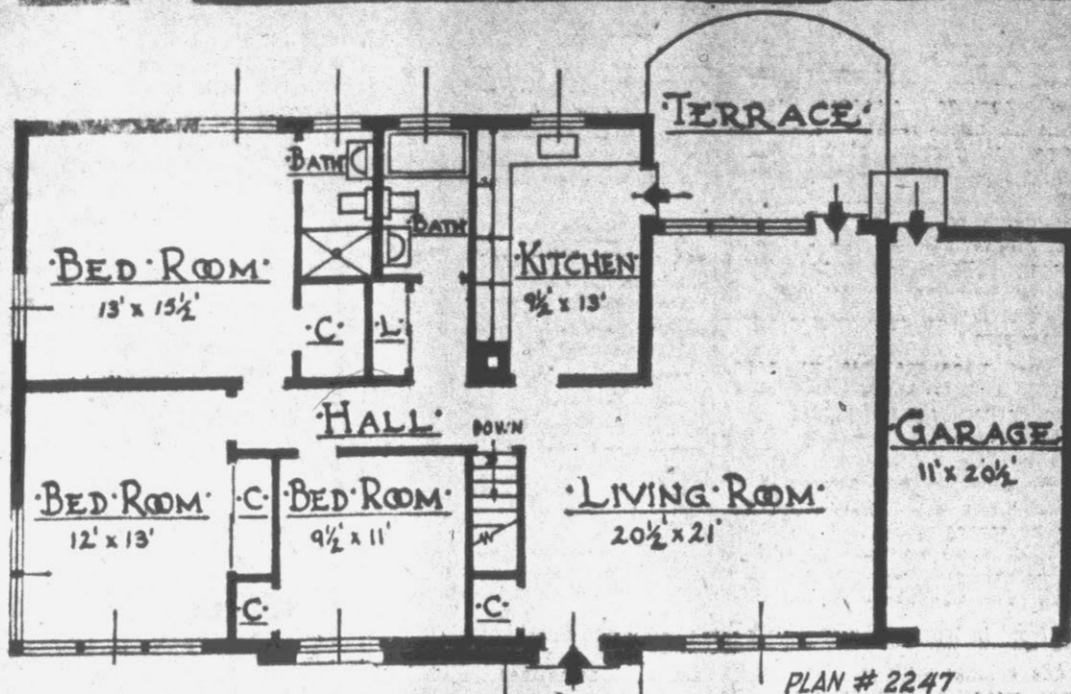

Russia, chief advocate of the Peiping government's so-far-unsuccessful campaign for U. N. membership, since January had boycotted all U. N. meetings at which the Chinese Nationalists have been represented.

Practice Alerts

Albany, N. Y., July 11—(P)—Practice blackouts, air raid alerts and other drills reminiscent of World War II are planned for New York state by the state's new civilian defense chief, Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

The former military governor in Germany told news conference yesterday he would hesitate to say when practice blackouts and air raid alerts might be ordered. But, he said, tests would have to be run to see how civil defense was working.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures SMART STYLING distinguishes this one-story house. It has three bedrooms, two baths and a front to rear living room. A fireplace chimney can be added in the middle of the garage wall. This is Plan 2247 by Laurence Loeb, architect, 408 Mamaroneck Ave., White Plains, N. Y. It covers approximately 2,240 square feet, exclusive of garage and terrace. The plan was construction tested at Holbrook Manor, White Plains, where the house on a quarter-acre site sold for $19,500 including full basement and completely equipped with refrigerator, electric range, dish washer and floor of asphalt tile. Asphalt shingles are used on the roof.

Bathing Suit Is 'Home' To Birds

Corington, Ky., July 11—(P)—William Court of suburban Lookout Heights hung his bathing suit on a clothes line one evening, intending to go swimming the next day. But when he went to get it the next morning he found two wrens had chosen the bathing suit for the place for mother wren's eggs.

Court, a kindly sort, postponed his swimming trip. That was a few weeks ago. Yesterday his kindness was rewarded when four fledglings were hatched. Meanwhile, Court bought a new bathing suit.

Propose Markers On Berlin Ruins

Berlin, July 11—(P)—The Eastern German Communist press proposed today that markers be erected on Berlin's bomb ruins reading "These houses are destroyed by American terror bombers. Fight the warmongers."

The proposal was made in the party organ "Neues Deutschland," as a feature of the Communist "peace campaign."

The largest business firm in this country in the early 1800s was the American Fur Company, founded by John Jacob Astor.

Preliminary figures indicate that 1,610,000 acres of land were reforested in Japan in 1949.

Bond Drive Lags In Pitt County

Pitt County's savings bond Independence Drive is lagging far behind expectations, a report from County Chairman J. H. Waldrop revealed today.

Waldrop said sales figures for the county total $46,649, as compared with the assigned quota of $110,000. The drive officially ends July 15. Fifty-two percent of the goal has been accomplished to date.

The Pitt County chairman today urged all persons who could to help put the bond drive over the top in the closing days of the drive. He also asked that all issuing agents submit reports of the bond sales to date to the Richmond office by July 15.

Many times, the sales reports are delayed, and the actual amount of bonds sold is not known until months later, he said.

Sale Of Saving Bonds Is Behind National Goals

Washington, July 11—(P)—A treasury report shows today that series E saving bond sales for May and June totaled $597,000,000—ten per cent less than the $654,000,000 National goal of the May 15-July 4 Independence savings bonds drive.

Officials of the treasury's savings bonds division said, however, that was no sign of a failure to reach the drive quota. There is about a two-week time lag between the time bonds are sold and the report on the sale reaches here, they explained, adding that full data on actual sales during the drive period will not be available for another week to ten days.

Senator Lucas Tries Again For Vote On FEPC

Washington, July 11—(P)—Senate majority leader Lucas of Illinois is trying again for a senate vote on the administration's fair employment practices (FEPC) bill.

He filed a petition yesterday to shut off debate and bring the issue to a vote at noon (EST) Wednesday. He was joined by 27 Republicans and 16 Democrats.

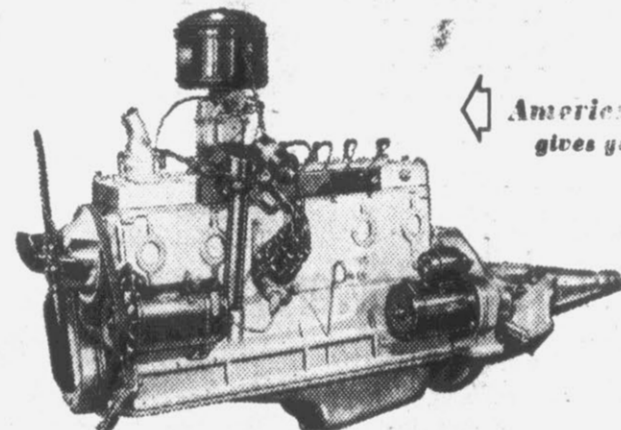

A similar move aimed at enacting laws to ban job discrimination because of race, color or creed, failed last May 19. Southern lawmakers who defeated the move then are expected generally to turn it back again.

IT'S DEATH, MY DARLING!

By Amelia Reynolds Long

Chapter 17

"I waited until Beau had gone out to the garconniere and Lee and Father were in their rooms; then I slipped downstairs. I knew that Claude was still there, because I could see the light.

"He looked up at me without rising and asked me what I wanted; but I could tell from the way he was grinning that he had already guessed.

"He refused?" I asked, the insane way you ask something that is perfectly obvious.

"He not only refused," she replied through clenched teeth, while her hands became balled fists inside the pockets of her skirt.

"That made me lose my head; and I tried to snatch the paper with Father's signature on it, that he had thrown on the desk for me to see.

"He must have suspected what I was going to do before I did it, for he sprang up out of his chair. But the paper had sort of skidded across the desk when he threw it down, and was nearer to me than it was to him. So he whopped the sword out of his belt, and made a lunge with it. I think he only meant to try to spear the paper before I could reach it; but the edge of the blade caught me across the knuckles." She glanced down at her bandaged hand.

"How- ever, I managed to keep hold of the paper, although he caught part of it under the sword, and a corner of it tore off."

"The corner the sheriff showed us a while ago," I said, thinking aloud.

"You'll never know how relieved I was when I found he thought it was Claude who had signed that paper," she said. "I supposed it was the silver dollar in Claude's hand that made him think so. But I'll come to that in a minute."

"I had managed to get the part of the paper with Father's signature on it," she continued, "and that seemed to be all that mattered just then. Claude swore and started after me still with the sword in his hand. In the hall, he caught me by the shoulder; but I wrenched myself free from him, and ran up the stairs. That was when he must have torn off my corsage, although I never realized that it was gone until the sheriff showed it to me next morning."

"Then that was when — Claude collapsed?" I asked, confident that the last vestiges of the mystery surrounding his death were now explained.

But she shook her head. "No," she answered. "When I glanced back from the top of the stairs, he was still standing there, glaring up at me. But his attack must have been coming on even then; for I remember he was swaying a little, although I thought at the time that it was because he had been drinking. Anyway, he was dead when Beau came back about half an hour later, and found him."

"Pick, just why did Beau come back?"

"He suspected that Claude had been cheating," she replied in a low voice. "When he came back, he found — Claude."

She paused for a second or two, then concluded, "As you've probably guessed, it was he who put the dollar in Claude's hand. You see, Claude had paid Father a dollar for his share of the estate in order to make the transaction legal. Beau says he must have picked the dollar up without realizing at the time that he did it; for he discovered afterwards that he had it. So when he found Claude lying there, he gave it back to him as a sort of ironic gesture, I suppose. He was doing that when Aunt Minerva appeared and started screaming."

"Pick," I asked, "why don't you tell Lewis what you've just told me? It would clear up your misunderstanding."

"It probably would," she said dryly. "But if he can't trust me without a long explanation of everything I do, he doesn't need to trust me at all."

I thought I understood how she felt, and I couldn't blame her. In her place, I would probably have felt the same way.

During the latter part of our conversation, we had been walking along the drive beside the oleanders. Now, as we rounded the turn in front of the house, we suddenly came face to face with Aunt Delphine. She was carrying a slender, gangish object which, at sight of us, she whipped quickly behind her back before we could catch more than a glimpse of it.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORVEN

"What have you got there, Tante?" Pick inquired; more, I imagine, in order to have something to say to the old lady than because she actually cared.

Aunt Delphine face assumed the expression of a willful child.

"I won't tell you," she declared stubbornly. "If I do, you'll take it away from me and give it to Lee; and it belongs to my boy."

"No, I won't, Pick promised, her curiosity now mildly aroused. "Won't you let Peter and me see it?"

Aunt Delphine hesitated; then she brought from behind her back the missing sword. Its blade was discolored almost from tip to hilt with a dark stain that looked like rust, but wasn't.

Pick gave a little gasp, and retreated a step. Aunt Delphine smiled, as though pleased with the impression she had made. Then, before I fully realized what she was about, she had thrust the horrible thing into my hand.

"You give it to Dede, Peter," she whispered. "If they see me with it, they'll try to take it away from me."

"Aunt Delphine, where did you get it?" I demanded.

But without stopping to answer, she scuttled away toward the house.

Local Recruiting Offices Are Flooded With Many Inquiries

Reinstatement of the selective service for the armed forces coupled with orders yesterday for the drafting of 30,000 men have brought hundreds of additional inquiries to the army, navy and air force recruiting headquarters in Greenville.

Sgt. James H. Raper, army and air force recruiter, said this morning, "Business is good and has been good."

He said there have been a lot of questions about enlistments, the draft and the status of reserves. Chief Gunners Mate B. T. Parrish, who today took over the navy recruiting duties in Greenville, said, "Office inquiries have increased 50 per cent since notification of the draft last Saturday." Actual accepted enlistments, however, have not increased to any great degree.

From the inquiries received by the recruiting offices one of the matters of principal concern is the status of the men in the reserves. Col. Warren G. Davis, unit instructor of the local Organized Reserve Corps, said this morning, "At the moment we have no instructions whatsoever on the status of reserves." He added that any information received by his office would be passed on to the public immediately.

As for the army and air force enlistments, Sgt. Raper expressed the belief that the area would have little trouble in recruiting the quota of 18 men it has been assigned for the month of July. He said the

Good Flow Water Five Point Well

Bennie Arnold, Grimesland well digger, reported today that he had struck a steady flow of water in the rear of the Five Points market at the 110-foot depth. With a high pressure pump, the well was flowing at the rate of about 2,500 gallons of good water an hour.

The well digger said they encountered several layers of rock about the 75-foot level. Bill Swindell, owner of the store, said he dug the deep well to provide an ample supply of water for air conditioning a restaurant and soda shop he plans to open there. Swindell recently disposed of his grocery business. He was manager of an A&P chain store at Goldsboro some years ago and operated the grocery store at Five Points during the early part of World War II until he went into the armed forces as a technical specialist. Swindell will open his new store shortly before the tobacco market opens August 18.

Asks Restoring Of 'Point Four' Program Funds

Washington, July 11 — (AP) — President Truman today asked Senate leaders to restore the full $35,000,000 he has requested for the "Point Four" program of aid to backward lands.

Senator Alexander Smith (R-NJ) told reporters after a White House conference with Mr. Truman that the Senate Appropriations Committee "probably will reconsider" its decision to cut the funds.

The committee had voted to reduce to $10,000,000 the funds to start technical aid to underprivileged countries. The money would be provided in the $34,688,000,000 single-package appropriations bill which came up for Senate consideration today.

The House, meanwhile, took up a companion "Point Four" proposal to guarantee some U. S. investments abroad. Its fate was uncertain in view of the Korea crisis.

Farmer Reports Loss Of Wallet Service Station

J. D. Vernelson, Route 3, Washington, N.C., reported to Greenville police that several days ago he changed his wet clothing in a rest room at John Rivers Service Station on East Fifth street and left his wallet there. It contained more than $450—four $100 bills, two $20 bills and a five-spot and small change and valuable papers.

Vernelson stated that when he left he forgot his wallet and that when he went back the wallet was missing. The police report states that Vernelson reported the loss of his wallet to Walter Richardson, who was on the job at the service station that day.

Presbyterians Hold Summer Assembly In Washington Today

Rev. Leonard W. Topping, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, and Rev. C. D. Patterson, pastor of Hollywood Presbyterian Church, and George Brown, a church official, went to Washington, N.C., today to attend the one-day summer assembly of the Presbyterian Church. Between 75 and 100 persons were expected to attend.

Policeman McLeod Of Smithfield Here For Visit Today

D. J. McLeod, member of the Smithfield police department and a former Greenville policeman, was in the city today visiting friends and relatives. Before going to Smithfield, McLeod was a member of the Enfield police department.

While on the Greenville force, McLeod had some unusual experiences, particularly that when a runaway mule, early on a summer day, avoided all of his would-be captors, until McLeod appeared on the scene with an ear of green corn "swiped" from the Five Points Market, on Evans Street. The mule greeted McLeod like a "long lost brother" and the policeman turned the animal over to its owner, other officers said.

Advices Caution In Tax Reduction

Washington, July 11 — (AP) — Senator Byrd (D-Va.) advised today that the Senate go slow on any tax cutting that will put the Treasury deeper in the red. His reason: the "very evident" prospect of increased military spending.

This caution came as the $1,010,000,000 House-approved excise tax slashing bill, with its hikes in levies on big corporations, found few — if any — at-out friends to stand up for it in the Senate.

A stream of witnesses parading for a week before the Senate Finance Committee developed these attitudes toward the House bill:

1. The $1,010,000,000 tax cut, on furs, jewelry, luggage movie tickets and scores of other items does not go far enough to suit those industries seeking excise relief.
2. The new taxes on business, intended to offset the excise revenue loss, would hurt the economy and deter investments, in the opinion of business groups.

One senator who had pressed for excise cuts told newsmen privately "This bill is an Orphan Annie, and never will pass."

Byrd, a member of the Finance Committee, did not take a position against excise relief, but admonished "We ought to proceed very cautiously in reducing the government's net income."

Cancel Flights By Flying Boats

Annapolis, Md., July 11 — (AP) — The Naval Academy today cancelled midshipmen's summer at sea cruises to free big Navy flying boats for transport duty.

Filipino Dimes Disappearing

Manila — (AP) — Mister can you spare a dime?

That's a silly question these days. Dimes just don't get around any more. Two months ago the Philippine central bank stopped issuing them. It was feared they were being shipped out of the country because of their silver content. Such coins are in demand in countries where paper money puts a premium on their value.
