County Welfare Dept. Money Is Being Stretched

Synopsis Of Budget Indicates Expanded Program And Extra Services

(Editor's note: The following synopsis of the budget of the Pitt county welfare department and the services rendered by the department was written by K. T. Futrell, Pitt county welfare officer.)

By K. T. FUTRELL
The report on the activities of the Pitt County Department of Public Welfare shows an expanded program with more services to the people of the county than any preceding year.

The County Welfare budget earmarks $60,220 for public assistance grants, through such funds as those for Old Age Assistance, Aid to Dependent Children, and Aid to the Blind. On the basis of this as compared to the $41,925 set aside for welfare administrative purposes in the county, it has been claimed that the Welfare Department would have to spend 70 cents for each dollar granted to the needy aged, dependent children, or blind.

However, figures received here from the State Board of Public Welfare in Raleigh show that the $6,200 in public assistance funds represents only the county's share of such funds. Actually, State and Federal funds are available for matching purposes in such amount as to raise the total of public assistance funds for Pitt County in the coming year to $450,000. In addition, Pitt County appropriates for hospitalization, sanatorium care, and general relief, $34,765.

Such a total is arrived at through a rather complicated formula involving average payments per person and percentages to be furnished by both county, State and Federal governments. In general, however, it may be said that for each county dollar used in Public Assistance grants, North Carolina puts up one dollar, and the Federal government puts up six more.

Some State and Federal funds are also supplied for administrative purposes; and E. Eugene Brown, director of the Division of Public Assistance of the State Board of Public Welfare, through whose office the locally-administered assistance funds are supervised, estimates that this year, Pitt County will receive for administrative purposes, $17,224 from State and Federal funds.

Thus, it can be seen that the Pitt County Welfare Department will actually be spending for administration only 8.6 cents for each dollar of the total amount of public assistance administered, 5.1 cents of which will be paid by Pitt County, and 3.5 cents by the State and Federal funds. This would seem to put a different light on the situation from the previous figures, and points up the long-standing arrangement whereby Federal and State agencies provide much of the actual money for public assistance with the county retaining the responsibility for the administration of those funds.

In another light, the actual cost of county welfare administration is considerably lower than even these figures indicate. For it should be remembered that the services of the Welfare Department begin, rather than end, with financial assistance programs.

A host of non-financial services, consuming 30 per cent of the workers' time, are rendered by the county department, and a great deal of the administrative cost of the department can be traced to salary and travel costs for the personnel who render these services. In one month alone, March 1950, Pitt county had 98 individual children receiving services from the Welfare Department, ranging from psycho-

Big Tobacco Field Shows Evidence Of Damage By Rain

This picture was taken from the top of the railroad overpass on the Grimesland highway early this morning, showing conditions of "flopping" of tobacco on about seven acres of land. The leaves have been drooping steadily since heavy rains began last Wednesday. Damage to the crop cannot be estimated until market time comes, but most farmers will say it's a condition not to be desired. The leaves may not be a total loss, but their market value will be decreased a great deal. (Staff photo by Roy Hardee).

Pitt Crops Damaged By Heavy Rains But Nearby Counties Suffer More

According to widespread reports throughout the county on rain damage to crops during the past week, Pitt County is not half as damaged as other surrounding counties.

Although many of the tobacco fields have plants that are flopping and cotton fields that are inundated, damages in percentages are about half as low as the counties of Edgecombe, Lenoir and Martin. Cotton has been hit hardest, according to a countywide report from Arden Tucker, farm supervisor of the Blount-Harvey Company. In the areas around Pateolis and Grifton the cotton fields have been inundated during the past week, Tucker said.

At the present time, he said, it looks as though cotton farmers are going to have a hard time making a crop this year. With boll weevil operations at their all-time high before the rains came last Wednesday, the damage will be all the more great since farmers can't dust the crop.

County tobacco agent Sam Weeks reported the worst tobacco damage in the county was in the Clay Root section of the south portion of the county. There the Clay Root swamp flooded Monday, thereby inundating many tobacco fields. Most of the plants thereabouts are flopping, Weeks said, as they are in other widespread areas of Pitt.

The Associated Press reported the estimated damage to Pitt's tobacco is seven to eight percent. In Martin County, crop damage was reported at 10 percent of the total exposed worth. Lenoir County was hit about the same as was Pitt, reports show. With more rain forecast for today and tomorrow, farmers can expect more damage to follow that of last week and the three days of this week. With tobacco, the leaves may very well "come back up," provided there is not too much sunning on it. Estimates of the current damage to the county crop have ranged all the way from "a total loss" to "a little bit."

However, farmers should not be too apprehensive about their tobacco as yet, county agents state, at least not until the majority of the rain stops and resulting damage can be judged accurately.

Bond Issue Proposal By City Opposed In Report

Easterling Warns Borrowing Capacity For True Emergency Would Be Badly Strained If New Indebtedness Incurred

W. K. Easterling, assistant director and secretary of the North Carolina local government commission, has advised the city of Greenville against the proposal to issue $400,000 in bonds.

Mayor W. S. Stafford earlier had requested Easterling to study the present indebtedness of the city of Greenville and give an opinion on the possibilities of the city's issuing $400,000 worth of bonds for building a swimming pool, doing street work and making other permanent improvements in the city.

In his letter of reply, Easterling wrote, "that Greenville school district may have to issue its bonds for a sum of $1,000,000 or more, or that even Greenville should undertake to issue another $400,000 of bonds at this time I am of the opinion that Greenville's bonds would be removed from the bank eligible list which would result in a pretty severe penalty."

FEPC Bill Dies

Washington, July 12—(AP)—The Senate today killed off all chances for action this session on the Administration's controversial Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) bill.

The vote on a petition for cloture—debate limitation—on the motion of Senate Democratic leader Lucas of Illinois to bring the bill before Senate was 55 to 33. This was nine less than the 64 required to enforce a limit on debate.

Under a rule adopted by the Senate last year, the vote of 64 Senators, two thirds of the full membership, are required to check off debate.

The action was taken after less than one hour of floor discussion on a petition signed by 46 Senators, both Democrats and Republicans.

prises slightly over 95 per cent of Greenville school district and the district issued $25,000 of new bonds last year and for all practical purposes the debt of the district is a debt against property in the city of Greenville.

Easterling added that although he was not aware of any plans for borrowing money for the purpose of financing school building construction in Greenville, such money if necessary would be a debt against school district.

"Assuming therefore," Easterling wrote, "that Greenville school district may have to issue its bonds for a sum of $1,000,000 or more, or that even Greenville should undertake to issue another $400,000 of bonds at this time I am of the opinion that Greenville's bonds would be removed from the bank eligible list which would result in a pretty severe penalty."

He said it would mean a difference of from one-half to one per cent interest cost on the city bonds. The city, with its tax rate already having advanced from $1 to $1.50 in the past four years, Easterling wrote, "and a gross debt already about 17 per cent of its assessed valuation would not be conserving any margin of borrowing capacity for emergencies if additional bonds were authorized at this time."

Over 5 Inches Of Rain In 12 Days

Little More Than Half-Inch Fell In July Of 1949

Rainfall in the Greenville area was heavier the first 12 days of this month than during the entire month of July last year, Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U. S. Department of Commerce, reported today.

Weather Bureau records show that little more than one-half inch of rain (.58 of an inch) fell in the Greenville area during July of a year ago.

Rainfall here during the first 12 days of this month (not including today's precipitation) totaled 5.12 inches, Weather Bureau records show.

Only one of the rains this month was of the "washing type," and that was yesterday, when water in the downtown section of Greenville approached curb level at the Daily Reflector corner, Third and Evans street.

Tar River in this section is slightly above its normal level of five to seven-foot level. The stream was slowly rising at noon today.

Whenever upstate rains indicate unusual rises in eastern Carolina rivers, the U. S. Weather Bureau observer at Raleigh usually notifies the Greenville Tar River observer of prospective danger of floods.

Information received here today was that the Roanoke River at Weidon shows no sign of approaching flood stage. The government observer at Raleigh said the flood stage in Roanoke River at Weidon is 31 feet. That river today was at the 15-foot level and showed little sign of rising.

Defenders Retreat To South Bank Of Kum River; Hope To Stand Until Help Arrives; Possible Entry Of Red China In Fighting Looms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Powerful North Korean Communist forces behind a hard-hitting tank spearhead smashed into American lines today and drove the defenders to the Kum river's bank, where they hoped to stand until more help comes from overseas.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the Communists threw their first, third and fourth divisions against outnumbered American battalions in the drive to the Kum river. The Americans fled to the south bank, holding positions 11 miles north of Taejon which has been emergency capital of South Korea and key American defense center.

The North Korea Communist radio in Pyongyang broadcast that 700 Americans were killed and 200 captured in a trap south of Chochiwon when the Reds launched their drive to the Kum. It said much U. S. material was destroyed or captured. Pyongyang broadcasts frequently are highly exaggerated—but there seemed no question that American forces, awaiting a buildup that may take weeks, had suffered heavy casualties.

While the United Nations worried that the war would spread, a report arrived from Korea that a division of troops which might be Chinese Communists landed below the American lines on the east coast. The report came from Phillip Potter of the Baltimore (Md) Sunpapers. He qualified the identification of the troops as "tentative." There is no official reference to the presence of Chinese troops on the Korean peninsula. Potter said some North Koreans killed in an air raid last week were wearing Chinese Communist uniforms, and that a division of North Koreans formerly operated with the Chinese Communists in Manchuria.

On the Korean front a U. S. spokesman reported "particularly intense" action in the American sector and rising Red action on the left flank of the South Korean army sector. The spokesman said allied air forces steadily pounded Communist troops, a southward, has held up enemy strategic movement in the strategic area behind Communist lines.

Tank-led North Koreans plunged south behind mortar and artillery barrages, drove American forces out of Chochiwon with presumably heavy casualties and pushed them back seven bloody miles to the Kum in what was described as U. S. headquarters as an orderly withdrawal.

The Americans who fell back were exhausted and bitter. Front dispatches said they talked gloomily of encirclements and infiltrations by the Reds, and of the Communists' superior armaments and striking power.

By the Americans it was the beginning of their second week of ground action—a period of dogged delaying tactics and retreat before powerful forces armed plentifully with Russian material, including monster tanks.

On the central front the Reds pushed south Korean forces back five to ten miles, presumably around Chinchon, 50 miles southeast of Seoul. Thirty miles to the east, the North Korean 15th infantry division believed to have assembled and trained in the extreme north of North Korea, made its appearance, reportedly with a large number of Koreans who previously fought with Chinese forces in Manchuria, a U. S. communique said.

Draft Quota For N.C. Is 610 Men Before Sept. 30

Raleigh, N.C., July 12—(AP)—North Carolina's first quota under the new draft law is 610 men in uniform not later than Sept. 30.

That was the word passed to State Selective Service headquarters late yesterday from Washington.

Col. Thomas H. Upton, deputy state director of Selective Service, estimated that 1,800 men will have to be examined to obtain the 610-man quota.

Drafting will start with 25-year-old, non-veterans, he said. However, the colonel declared that so few men are expected to be obtained from the 23- to 25-year-old group that "we may have to dip down into the 22-year-olds in this first batch."

McCarthy Says Charges Proven

Offers Statements That Loyalty Files 'Stripped'

Washington, July 12—(AP)—Senator McCarthy today sent to President Truman signed statements which he said prove that State Department personnel files were deliberately stripped of derogatory data in 1946.

McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, told a news conference the statements were signed by one present employee of the State Department and three former employees. One of the former employees, McCarthy added, now is an FBI agent.

McCarthy produced photographic copies of the statements which he sent to the White House.

The Wisconsin lawmaker also produced a copy of a letter from FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover. McCarthy said this letter proves Senator Tydings (D-Md) did not tell the truth when he said June 21 that an FBI study of 81 State Department loyalty files disclosed nothing to sustain charges by McCarthy that the records had been tampered with and "denuded."

Tydings is chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee which has been investigating McCarthy's contentions that the State Department harbors Communists and Red sympathizers.

Over Half Of Spuds Purchased By Govm't

Raleigh, N.C., July 12—(AP)—The government purchased 3,767,000 of the estimated 5,520,000 bushels of early commercial potatoes grown in eastern North Carolina.

Of these, according to figures released yesterday by the Federal State Departments of Agriculture, 3,111,000 bushels were sold for resale or dumped. Resale potatoes are bought by the Agriculture Department at support prices and then sold for one cent a bushel to eligible buyers. They may not be resold to the government.

Figures were based on reports as of July 1, near the end of the marketing season. It was estimated that 24,000 acres of early Irish potatoes were harvested this year, the same as last year's harvest, but far below the 10-year average of 33,750 acres. The crop of 5,520,000 bushels is 11 per cent more than produced last

Keeping Cautious Watch On Anglo-Soviet Talks

Washington, July 12—(AP)—The American government was reported today to be following with deep caution as well as intense interest the progress of Anglo-Soviet talks on possible steps to end the Korean war.

So far American officials have shrouded in silence whatever behind-the-scenes role they are taking in this diplomatic sparring.

The next move in the diplomatic exchange appeared to be up to Russia, following the talks yesterday between Deputy Foreign Minister Oleg Gromyko and Britain's ambassador in Moscow, Sir David Kelly. It was assumed here that Kelly, responding to an earlier opening left by Gromyko, had given some indication, if not a concrete proposal, of the kind of action the West would like Russia to take to help bring the Korean crisis to a close.

Selection Of Gordon Dean For AEC Post Approved

Washington, July 12—(AP)—Senators expressed general satisfaction today with President Truman's selection of Gordon Dean, 44-year-old California attorney, as chairman of the atomic energy commission.

The White House announced the appointment yesterday. The post of permanent AEC chairman has been vacant since February 15, when David E. Lilienthal resigned.

Senators action on the appointment of Dean, who has been acting chairman since June 30, is not required. Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) ranking Republican member of the Senate-House energy committee, coupled his approval of Dean with the observation that Mr. Truman's delay in making a chairman's appointment was excusable.

Overseas Duty Will Be Delayed

Draftees To Get 14 Weeks Of Training And Post In U.S.

Washington, July 12—(AP)—The Army said today that draftees will be given 14 weeks of training and then will be assigned first to posts within the United States.

Later, some will go overseas but a spokesman said the number going over "will not be large nor happen soon."

The spokesman also said that if the first call for 20,000 draftees has the indirect result of bringing in large numbers of volunteers a second draft call may not be needed to bring the army up to its present ceiling of 630,000. However, he did not discount the possibility that the ceiling might be raised.

The present strength of the Army is 593,000.

Selective service said it will have the first draftees proceed and on their way to induction centers in mid-September.

From there, the Army plans to send them to training centers at Ft. Dix, N. J., Ft. Knox, Ky., Ft. Riley, Kas. and Ft. Ord, Calif., for the 14 weeks of basic training.

Generally speaking, the Army said, inductees will be sent to the center nearest their home. They will get the same training as enlistees and volunteers and will be given the same opportunities for advancement.

On completion training, each draftee will receive a week's furlough before his assignment to a post in the United States.

Discuss Street Equipment Bids

The street committee of the Greenville board of aldermen met this morning with Mayor W. S. Stafford to discuss specifications for equipment which is to be purchased for the street department.

The committee called for bids on a roller to be used in pitching city streets, a one and one-half ton truck and a one-half ton truck.

Money for the purchasing of the equipment for the street department has been provided in the 1950-1951 city budget. Mayor Stafford said bids for the equipment will be received until noon of August 3, and will be opened at the meeting of the board of aldermen which is scheduled for the night of August 3.

Bids already have been received for equipment which is to be purchased for the police department and are to be opened at the August meeting.

Mixed Pride, Anxiety

Setbacks For American Soldiers In Face Of Tremendous Odds Not Disheartening; Question Of Time Before We Can Strike Back; Current Stabilizing Operation

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Most of us, I imagine, are reading the war news from Korea with mixed emotions—with vast pride in the gallant job being done by our boys against tremendous odds, but with grave anxiety over how long it may take to provide sufficient troops and equipment to overcome those odds.

We are agreed, I hope (for if we aren't we ought to be), that this is exactly the situation which we should expect in this early stage of the operation. Under a huge handicap we are undertaking to counter the carefully planned aggression of a powerful and well trained army, fully equipped with up-to-date weapons by the Russians.

Therefore, being forewarned, we accept with respect but understanding resignation when we are told that the North Korean Communists have flung the American line back in the strategic Kum River region of South Korea. It was a blow of great strength, powered by an estimated 80 Russian-made tanks, some of which were 60-ton giants.

Korean maps are a bit confusing, I'm afraid. But we can sum up the position roughly by pointing out that the Kum River has been the Yanks' major defense line north of the city of Taejon—central South Korea—which has been a U.S. field headquarters. General MacArthur gave us a useful interpretation in his communique yesterday, when he said:

"American forces... are continuing their action to stabilize the situation by stopping the North Korean offensive above the Kum River."

That's a stabilizing operation. And that's the sort of thing which we must expect to continue for a long time while we are mobilizing military strength and getting it onto the fighting front in Korea. Our men will meet with many crises like the present one while reinforcements and equipment are being rushed from distant points to South Korea.

For that reason the next few weeks are likely to be days of heroic struggle against great odds for our fighting men. The odds are a foregone conclusion right now, but we have a right to expect that they will decrease steadily and not present a repetition of the experience of the lost U.S. battalion in the fighting last weekend. 'Pork Barrel' Costs

Will Any Member Of Congress, Who Likes His Job, Vote Against A Pork Barrel His Constituents Want For The Sake Of Real Economy? Lawmaker's Proposal

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, July 12—(AP)—Foster Furcolo went to Yale. So his Arithmetic ought to be all right. And it really came in handy for him, as this story will show.

He's a young man, 39, serving his first term in Congress, in the House as a Democrat from Massachusetts. After two years here he learned what people who have been around longer take for granted.

It's this: That every year, just as surely as little boys get measles, member of Congress do two things: They preach less government spending and vote for the "pork barrel" which means spending.

"Pork barrel" means things which cost the taxpayers money but please the folks back home where the votes are: Things like dams, flood control works, river and harbor improvements, post offices.

Some times the pork barrel items may really be necessary for the benefit of the home folks; sometimes, maybe not. But to get them, the home folks put plenty of pressure on their senators and representatives.

Of course, members of both houses and senate do the economy preaching. But the Senators seem to make

Johnston And Byrnes Win In S.C. Primaries

Columbia, S. C. July 12—(AP)—J. F. Byrnes will be the next Governor of South Carolina, and Sen. Olin D. Johnston will go back to the U. S. senate.

South Carolina Democrats decided that yesterday, in this state the nomination is equal to election. Byrnes had an overwhelming majority, eliminating the necessity of a runoff July 25.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond conceded the state's Democratic U. S. Senate nomination this morning to Johnston.

Indicate Excise Tax Cut Dropped

Washington, July 12—(AP)—Administration leaders were reported today to have decided to put aside the $1,010,000,000 excise tax slash-bill, pending developments from the Korean war.

One source, who is familiar with tax matters, told a reporter the agreement was reached after conferences of leading Congressional Democrats, with representatives of the Administration.

Sun Glasses Save Eyes

By BETTY CLARKE
AP News Service Beauty Editor
 If you've been getting frequent headaches this summer, and attributing them to heat, hard work or diet deficiency, you'd better check your eyes. Perhaps you've been using them a lot in bright sunlight without the protection of sunglasses.

MISS SUNGLASSES . . . She wears "sun lashes", gay specs with plastic eyelashes.

Sunglasses are necessary to prevent a loss in your eye's sensitivity to light, says Dr. Robert H. Peckham, associate professor of research ophthalmology at Temple University. Dr. Peckham, who was a member of the Army-Navy Vision Committee during the war, says that "this loss of sensitivity to light results in a drop in visual acuity—sharpness of seeing—particularly at night." It is greatest the night after exposure to sunlight which uses up the visual purple—a chemical on the retina of the eye that is needed if you are to see faster than the eye can restore it normally.

Researchers have found that whenever you are out in the bright sun for an extended time between the hours of 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. in the northern zones and between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. in southern zones, you should wear glasses. It is possible to lose from 50 to 90 per cent of night vision ability after prolonged unprotected exposure. The National Safety Council states that two-thirds of the automobile accidents occur after dark—many of these due to people with reduced "night vision."

Dr. Peckham says it is not necessary to buy expensive sunglasses—he claims the inexpensive glasses are just as effective and will not affect normal vision. He has determined that the density of color is the most important factor in sunglasses, since the purpose is to reduce the glare of reflected sunlight and in some cases, artificial light.

Sunglasses vary according to the purpose, he explains. During the war the Navy chose dark grey, the Army different shades of green and the Air Force brown-grey and sage green. Dr. Peckham suggests greenish-yellow, yellowish-green or blue-green lenses for flying and the beach; brownish grey lenses for mountain-climbing, skiing or snow shoeing; flesh-colored and "smoke" lenses for people such as green-eyed redheads who are hyper-sensitive to sunlight. Amber lenses are effective around beaches and for flying but should never be used while driving since they distort color perception of traffic lights. Sunglasses should never be worn at night.

Alfalfa Crop Is Paying Dividends

College Station, Raleigh, July 12—"Never worry when you do the thing right" is the advice that Willie Chavis, Negro farmer of Route 6, Raleigh, gave a group of farmers who assembled to see him conduct an alfalfa harvesting demonstration.

Before starting to mow the alfalfa, Chavis told the group just how the crop had been grown. He said he began last fall by turning under a heavy growth of lespedeza, applied lime at the rate of two tons per acre disked the land three times, and added 800 pounds of 2-12-12. He used inoculated, certified seed at the rate of 25 pounds per acre and covered the seed in a firm bed.

"After doing all this," he said, "I left it to the season."

After a brief period of questions from the visitors, Chavis then grabbed the reins, spoke to his mules, and began cutting his fine crop of hay. Each time he made a round the farmers stopped him to ask more questions. They stayed to watch him cut the entire plot.

According to W. C. Davenport, Negro county agent for the State College Extension Service, the seeding of Chavis' one-acre plot cost about $39.25—far less than a ton of hay would cost him on the retail market. Chavis figures on a minimum of four cuttings this season, with not less than a ton per cutting. He plans to seed another acre and a half in alfalfa this fall.

Davenport says that farmers in every community of Wake are now growing alfalfa and are highly pleased with the results.

Hundreds of chinchilla ranches are now stocked with the descendants of 11 chinchilla brought to the U. S. from the Andes in 1923.

Lives Right

Los Angeles—(AP)—Want to live to be 101? Then "don't ever get angry or lose your temper." The advice comes from Princess Taisambie Du Fea, of the Pute Indian tribe.

The princess, who is 101, was among 125 persons over 50 who turned up at a lecture here on the subject "how to stay young and enjoy the years ahead."

"Every time you get mad you poison your system and shorten your life," she said. Her creed: "Think right, live right, help those who need help."

Still Hunt Tombs Of Cleopatra And Alexander

Alexandria, Egypt—(AP)—Where are the tombs of Alexander the Great and Cleopatra? Both are believed hidden under the historic city of Alexandria, founded by the Macedonian conqueror in 332 B. C. nine years before his death.

Repeated searches for their burial places have proved fruitless. But archaeologists haven't given up hope. One story has it that Cleopatra's contains a solid gold bath.

Archaeologists, on the basis of previous discoveries, believe that Alexander, conqueror of the known world of his time, lies buried somewhere beneath the streets of Alexandria's present Gabbary district—now a cotton business center.

Israeli Capture Arab Looters

Beer'sheba, Israel—(AP)—Arab infiltrators from the Egyptian-held Gaza strip are continuing to cross into Israeli territory despite a strengthening of frontier forces. In a single week-end, Israeli patrols captured 68 Arabs in a series of clashes between here and the Gaza strip. Two Arabs were wounded. One donkey was killed.

Israeli authorities claim most of the Arabs seek to enter Israel for "murder and looting." Many Jewish farms are raided almost nightly. Marauders make off with cattle and farm supplies and kill or wound Jewish defenders. Arabs also often try to run convoys from Gaza through Israel to Jordan territory.

Facing Shortage Of Crematories

LONDON—(AP)—Another thing Britain is short of these days is crematories. British cremation experts are welcoming a Health Ministry move letting them build six badly-needed new crematories but they say it's a short step indeed toward solving their dilemma:

1. New crematories for the dead are well down on building priority lists until Britain gets up enough homes and schools for the living.
2. The number of Britons who prefer cremation to burial keeps rising steeply month by month.

Pet Show Is Set For Children By Recreation Body

There has been a sharp drop in attendance at the Greenville playgrounds because of rain, but the playgrounds have been open as much as possible the past week, director Bill Kitrell said today. When it rains the Recreation Department would like for the parents to urge their children to go to the Curb Market in West Greenville, where the children can play checkers, cards ping pong, and other indoor games, he said. Two playground supervisors will be at the curb market at all times.

Each week each white playground is planning to have a pet show. There are prizes for the smallest dog, the smallest cat, the largest dog, the largest cat, the prettiest dog, the prettiest cat, the prettiest pony, the oddest pet, the most original pet, and the grand winner of all pets.

Friday, all playgrounds, white and colored, will have a party furnished by the Recreation Department, and there will be free swimming once this week for each white playground.

On Wednesday afternoon all the children at the colored playgrounds will go to see the midget game at Eppes High school diamond.

Cotanche and West Greenville playgrounds will meet for a girls' softball game on Thursday morning.

The following schedule is for West Greenville playground:
Thursday morning—Girls' softball game with Cotanche Park.
Thursday afternoon—Pet show.
Friday—Playground party.

Miss Norman, supervisor of Charles Street playground announces the following schedule:

Thursday—Softball (boys)
Friday afternoon—Playground party.

Saturday morning—Marble tournament.

Martha Gilberts art schedule for visiting playgrounds is as follows:
Wednesday afternoon—West Greenville playground.
Thursday morning—South Greenville playground.

Thursday afternoon—Fleming St. playground.

Friday morning—North Evans playground.

Friday afternoon—Cotton mill Hill playground.

James P. Elks Now In Navy Training Center

James P. Elks, seaman recruit USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Elks of route 1, Grimesland, N. C. is undergoing recruit training at the world's largest Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

Upon completion of his training the recruit is assigned either to units of the Fleet or to a service school for specialized training.

Early explorers, amazed at the size of footprints they found in Southern Argentina, called the place Patagonia, or "land of the big feet."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures
PLANNED FOR EXPANSION, this house can be built with second floor unfinished, and garage and breezeway can be added later. When completed, this four-bedroom and two-bath dwelling has a large family capacity. One of its features is a divided bathroom on the first floor with a washstand in each section, giving it many of the advantages of two baths. A turning open stairway distinguishes the long living room. This is Plan No. 2528 by Herman York, architect, 199-33 Kenos Ave., Hollis 7, N. Y. The house covers 1,056 square feet without garage and breezeway and plans call for a full basement. The main portion of the house is 40 1-2 feet wide, making it suitable for average lots.

Will Present Evidence Of Red Activity At Chapel Hill

Washington, July 12—At least one North Carolina House member plans to turn over to the House Un-American Activities Committee evidence of renewed Communist activity in Chapel Hill, seat of the state university.

The member, who preferred not to be identified, said he would ask the committee to investigate reports that the Carolina District, Communist Party, U.S.A., had contributed a sheet denouncing President Truman's decision to aid South Korea, to university dormitory rooms.

The mimeographed sheet, the report said, was signed by the type-written signature of "Junius Scales, as chairman," and was entitled the "Truth about the Korean War Crisis."

The sheet also called on the American people to demand withdrawal of United States armed forces from Korea and Formosa, and contained "other subversive, false and un-American statements," the House member said.

Meanwhile, all Tar Heel members of the House were receiving copies of a resolution in which the tenth district members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in North Carolina, meeting in Lexington, attacked the issuance of the leaflet and expressed their support for the President's action.

CONGO NEEDS MEN

Charlotte, July 12—(AP)—The Gastonia farmer who wants to sell an eye so that he can buy treatment for his crippled daughter may be able to "strike it rich."

At least, R. B. Neelands will be on that particular radio show in New York next Friday. His trip is being sponsored by employees of Eastern Air Lines here.

Neelands recently offered to sell one eye. He said he needed money to finance treatment for his 15-year-old daughter, June, who has been unable to walk since last September. Doctors say she has a spinal malady.

Neelands, who was gassed in the first world war, is unable to work regularly.

City Wants Fund Church Rejected

Winston-Salem, July 12—(AP)—The city of Winston-Salem wants $623,598 which the states Baptists turned down.

City officials plan to make their request formally to the State Medical Care Commission. If granted, the money would go to State Hospital.

The Baptists rejected the grant for Baptist Hospital here on the grounds that it would violate the principle of separation of church and state.

Mayor Marshall Kurfess said the Medical Care Commission recognized the need for hospital assistance in this area when it made its offer to the Baptists. He said city officials hoped Winston-Salem would receive credit for the $1,300,000 now being spent in enlarging and renovating City Hospital.

Town Constable Is Also Preacher

Yolo, Calif.—(P)—This is a good little town. It ought to be: Rev. Joseph Belle, pastor of the Yolo Community Church, has been elected constable. The minister polled 11 of 21 write-in votes. And it was all very much a surprise to Rev. Belle.

He had neither announced his candidacy nor campaigned.

But he has the $5 a month job of preserving law and order. The pay is low because the Yolo County Board of Supervisors turned Yolo law enforcement over to a deputy sheriff three years ago and they cut the constable's salary to $5 to discourage anyone from running. Rev. Belle says he'll give the job a try.

Mountain Youth Have Camp Asset

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, July 12—One of the delightful side-trips arranged for newspaper folks attending the state press convention last week was the fried chicken dinner at Camp Schaub, the 4-H Club camp at Waynesville. Many of the visitors did not know that such facilities existed.

The structures consist of one large of land adjoining the Mountain Test Farm and the city limits of Waynesville. The land was bought in 1945 and while installations are not yet complete, there are facilities for 175 campers now. Construction underway will increase capacity to 360.

The structures consist of one large building used for dining hall and well equipped kitchen, twelve cabins, two wash houses and a swimming pool. The pool is about complete, but water has not been turned in. A large playground is being graded and will be used for baseball, tennis and other games.

The land was purchased by contributions from citizens in nineteen counties, with substantial donations from Champion Fiber Company and Ecusta Paper Corporation. Private gifts, supplemented by allocations from public funds of several counties, provided the buildings and equipment. The State of North Carolina has no money in the camp.

Its establishment and operation is a co-operative venture of the people of the nineteen counties, and there is enough credit to go around. Mention should be made of the special efforts of R. H. Shoffner, district farm agent for the western

Aborigines Take Bodies Home To Tribal Funeral

DARWIN—(AP)—Body-snatching on a fairly large scale is going on in Darwin under the noses of authority. The bodies—or rather the bones—are being snatched for a very different purpose from that of grave robbers of the past.

They are being quietly removed by aborigines from orthodox graves in the Darwin aboriginal cemetery. Aborigines dig up the skeletons in the dead of night and whisk them away for tribal burial in the wilds of Arnhem Land. This is a huge aborigine reservation east of Darwin.

All North Australian tribes have their own funeral rites and burial customs, and they are uneasy about the white man's burials in public cemeteries. That is why they are always eager to take out their dead brothers bones.

Tree Infestation Reward Offered

Hemet, Calif.—(AP)—Folks hereabouts are giving every citrus tree they pass the once-over. The Hemet Valley Citrus Control District has offered a $25 reward to any person reporting a red scale infestation on fruit trees. Citrus shippers reject infested fruit.

But it's doubtful anyone will get rick by looking. Only four cases of red scale were discovered last year.

More Unrest In Railroad Labor Ranks Recently

By CLARKE BEACH
 WASHINGTON—Railroad labor is having more troubles than it used to—more strikes and less joint action among themselves in their dealings with the railroad owners. The Railway Labor Act, as amended in 1934, was followed by almost unbroken peace for 12 years. Then major strikes began in 1946. The worst strike year of all was 1949, when railroad employees were idle because of strikes 31 per cent of their total working year.

Between 1935 and 1944, the annual total was less than .01 per cent. The rail strike time-loss compares favorably with the total for all industries, in which working time lost through work stoppages in 1949 amounted to .59 per cent. But the increasing strife is leading some of the carriers to say that the Railway Labor Act is now obsolete and should be replaced by entirely new legislation. Many of them are giving approval to Sen. Donnell's (R-Mo.) bill to outlaw railroad strikes and to compel carriers and labor to submit unresolved disputes to arbitration.

Railroad labor is solidly opposed to the Donnell bill. It says the Railway Labor Act is workable as ever and that the present unrest is temporary. The design of the Railway Labor Act is to delay strikes and to require cooling-off periods while the national Mediation Board examines the issues. If the board's findings are not accepted, the dispute is taken to the White House. The next step is the appointment of an emergency board by the President to see what it can do to bring peace. There have been times when the President himself has finally conducted the mediation procedure.

There is more and more of a tendency to force the White House to go through all these processes until the issues have been weighed by the highest authorities. By this tactic the unions are able to argue their cases on the highest governmental levels. The carriers, if constrained by the findings of the

Local Guardsmen Participate In Maneuvers

The cannoneer pulls the cord on the No. 2 gun of Battery C, 690th Field Artillery Battalion, at Fort Jackson, S. C., where the Greenville unit is participating in July maneuvers of the 30th "Old Hickory" Infantry Division of the North Carolina-Tennessee National Guard. Battery C is commanded by Capt. James B. Tyndall of Greenville, and the 690th is commanded by Lt. Col. Wiley C. Rodman of Washington.

GI Bill Now Six Years Old; Many Vets Benefited

June 22 marked the sixth birthday of the GI Bill, a law designed to help World War II veterans get back into the swing of civilian living. During the six years the act has been in effect, a majority of the state's estimated 385,000 World War II veterans have benefited by one or more of its three major provisions.

Those provisions are education and training at Government expense; Government-guaranteed and insured loans for homes, farms and businesses; and a readjustment allowance program to help tide veterans over luring periods of unemployment or slack self-employment.

Here's the record of the Bill in North Carolina to date, as reported by the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Winston-Salem. Some 185,000 ex-servicemen and women, at some time or another, have attended school or trained on the job or on-the-farm under the law's educational provisions. All together, the veterans spent a total of about 2,500,000 months in the classroom, at the work bench and on the farm, or an average of about 15 months of training per veteran. Slightly over four percent of all the veterans who have been in training—or around 17,000—have exhausted their entitlement to further GI Bill training.

A little over $150 million of GI loans have been obtained by 32,875 World War II veterans during the six years of the GI Bill in this state. Of the loans, 29,236 were for homes, 905 for businesses, and the remaining 450 were for farms and farm equipment. Veterans in North Carolina have turned out to be good loan risks. Only five-tenths of one percent of the loans were defaulted to the extent that the VA had to make good the guaranteed and insured portions.

Although the third major benefit of the bill—readjustment allowances for unemployment and self employment—ended for most veterans on July 25, 1949, a few eligibles are still drawing those benefits. Approximately 200,000 of the state's veterans drew readjustment allowances totaling some $80 million during the six years.

 Chicago (AP)—William Acland was standing in the lobby of a near north side hotel when he saw a gun-bearing robber enter the place. Acland headed for the cocktail lounge on the run. He fell, started to roll and kept on rolling into the barroom—an entry that made quite an impression on the customers.

It is estimated that there are 420 different varieties of grapes.

Voice Of France Seeks To Enter Iron Curtain

PARIS (AP)—The Voice of France is sounding louder, clearer and further every day in its role as a cold war weapon. For some 150 hours every week, multiple transmitters of Radio Diffusion Francaise—which means simply "French Radio Broadcasting"—hammer at the iron curtain with broadcasts of news, music and culture.

And the men who run the government-controlled radio are now blueprinting even more. Russian-language broadcasters are to be added to those already going out in Czechoslovakian, Polish and Hungarian.

In addition, French Radio broadcasts shortwave programs daily in English, Spanish, Italian, Arabic and Dutch, as part of a general effort to tell the world about France and its problems.

A "scarecrow" that looks like an owl has been developed to keep developed to keep birds out of fruit and berry patches.

First of the Fine Cars in Value

This one Telescopes your Timetable

Of course you recognize it.

Who doesn't know that those four Ventiports, that graceful sweep of fender-chrome, mark ROADMASTER—best of all the Buicks, unquestioned "big buy" of the fine-car field?

But have you tried it?

Have you matched this sweet-stepping bonny against the tall hills, and the call of the straightaway?

Ever tooled it across town — and seen how Dynaflo's quick surge and smooth take-off slip you through traffic with minimum of foot-motion and maximum of timesaving?

Ever known the good feel of a light and easy wheel, swinging almost at a finger's touch — the soul-satisfying lift in a big 152-hp Fireball engine just waiting for the release your toe-pressure gives it?

Ever sampled that famous Buick ride—steady, level, unperturbed, soft with the special gentleness of coil springs on all four wheels, sweetly restful in both front and rear seats?

There's no reason, really, to wait longer for such satisfying experience.

There's a Buick dealer near you. He delights in showing off ROADMASTER. He'll arrange — unless all his demonstration cars have been snatched away from him by eager buyers—to put you behind a ROADMASTER wheel.

Why not see him now — to find out what's finest in today's fine cars, and how little it takes to buy one?

Only Buick has Dynaflo* and with it goes!

Schoendienst Is Hero Of Hour After National Leaguers Take 4-3 Victory

Pafko, Jansen, Blackwell And Shotton All Shine In Overtime Struggle; But Schoendienst Called His Shot And Made Good

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—Red Schoendienst... Andy Pafko... Jerry Jansen... Ewell Blackwell... These are the names on everybody's lips following yesterday's National League stimulating 14-inning 4-3 victory over the favored American Leaguers "in the greatest of all 17 All-Star games."

Maybe you'd better add Manager Burt Shotton, Ernie Slaughter and Ralph Kiner. For they, too, sparkled as the victory-starved Nationals won for the first time since 1944.

Schoendienst was the big hero, of course. It was his home run into the upper deck of the left field stands in the top of the 14th that broke up the three hour and 19 minutes overtime struggle—the first extra inning affair in All-Star competition.

Schoendienst, like the immortal Babe Ruth, called his shot. "I'm going to end this thing right now," he told teammates Walker Cooper and batting practice pitcher Murry Dickson as he selected a bat. "Watch me hit one into the upper seats."

The scrawny-looking 160 pounder from St. Louis has hit only three home runs all season in 73 games. In 1946 he went through the entire season without hitting any home runs.

Schoendienst, a personal Shotton pick because of his defensive wizardry and his ability to fill in at either second, third or short, was batting right-handed against southpaw Ted Gray of Detroit. He is a switch hitter. It was his only time at bat during the game.

Pafko saved the game in the bottom half of the 12th with a sensational catch of pinch hitter Tommy Henrich's terrific clout that appeared labeled "home run" the instant the ball left the bat.

Jansen pitched near-perfect ball in a five-inning tenure, the longest National League stint by one pitcher since Lon Warneke hurled four innings in 1934. He allowed only one hit—a handle-hit single—and struck out six in shutting out the American Leaguers from the seventh through the 11th inning.

Blackwell came close to matching Jansen's performance, holding the American leaguers to a lone hit in three shutout innings. The long, lean Cincinnati right-hander kept the near-capacity Comiskey Park crowd of 46,127 home limp from exhaustion when he wound up things by forcing the great Joe DiMaggio to slap into a game-ending double play.

Rain Again Halts Welterweights

Philadelphia, July 12.—Rained out two nights in succession, lightweight champion Ike Williams and George (Sugar) Costner will try again tonight to get in their scheduled 10-round non-title scrap at Shire Park.

But before fight time, Costner may have a batt' with the scales. The Negro welterweight from Camden, N. J., weighed 146 pounds at Monday's original weigh-in. But since the fight has been postponed more than 24 hours, he and Williams will have to step on the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission scales again.

According to contract terms, Costner agreed to come in at 148 pounds or lower. He weighed 146 Monday but is believed to be considerably above that figure now. He'll have to dry out early today to take off extra poundage. Weight was of little concern to Williams. The Trenton Negro was 143 on Monday, an all-time high for him.

Should it rain tonight promoter Frank Palumbo said the card would be rescheduled sometime in September or be cancelled all together if a good date cannot be obtained.

Name U. S. Team In International Tuna Cup Event

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Four veterans and three newcomers were named today to make up the U.S. team in the International Tuna Cup matches at Wedgeport, Nova Scotia, Sept. 13-16.

Veteran members are John Manning of Beverly Hills, Calif., Dr. Leon Stors of Worcester, Mass., Tony Hulman, Jr. of Terre Haute, Ind., and George C. Thomas of Los Angeles.

The newcomers are C. F. Johnson of Hendersonville N.C., Alfred Glassell of Houston and Robert Besch of Toledo.

The United States anglers won the trophy in 1948 and retained it in the 1949 competition. Teams from the British empire, Cuba, Chile, Brazil, Argentina and the United States will compete in the seventh annual meet as will a combination team from Sweden and Denmark.

Solid Steve . . . . .

Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox can thank his lucky stars that he had the wisdom to sign O'Neill after he had been released from his coaching post with the Cleveland Indians. When Joe McCarthy gave up as manager of the Red Sox, Cronin had a capable pilot to step up and take over O'Neill had managed the Cleveland Indians and the Detroit Tigers. In 1945, he piloted the Tigers to a pennant and then led the club to victory over the Chicago Cubs in the World Series.

Cronin had to create a job for O'Neill when he brought him into the Boston organization. He signed Steve to supervise the Red Sox scouts in the Midwest. But when Kiki Cuyler died last February and left a coaching job vacant, O'Neill moved into the picture as an aide to Manager McCarthy. McCarthy asked for O'Neill and Cronin promptly assented to the move.

O'Neill has never been out of a baseball job since he joined the Elmira club of the New York State League as a rookie catcher in 1910. Jovial, and an easy mixer, the smiling Irishman has a good word for everyone. Even when he was replaced as manager in Cleveland and Detroit, Steve walked out on the best of terms with his former employers. There'll always be a job in baseball for the likes of Steve O'Neill.

Shotton Beams Despite Lusty Boos From Fans

Chicago, July 12.—(AP)—The little old man in grey slacks, white shirt and polka-dot tie stepped out of the dugout.

Lusty boos from some 46,000 fans thundered out of the Comiskey Park grandstand.

The little man just stood there. Suddenly, he took off his blue Dodger baseball cap and held it in his hand.

The boos continued. But Burt Shotton, 65-year-old manager of the National League All Stars, broke into a wide smile.

He beamed for three minutes, just standing there, as if waiting for his picture to be snapped. Then came a ripping of applause.

Shotton, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, replaced his cap, stepped jauntily back into the dugout and directed the senior league's All Stars to a sparkling 14-inning 4-3 win over the American League All Stars.

The boos came from the Chicago crowd because several days previously Shotton had tried to replace Outfielder Hank Sauer of the Chicago Cubs and the fans' starting choice in the country wide poll, with his own Brooklyn player, Duke Snider.

What the fans didn't know was that before the game started Sauer went to Shotton and grabbed his hand. They had their pictures taken, with Shotton heaping praise on the Cubs' slugger and quipping—"I'll even kiss the big lug—nobody's mad around here."

The Nationals were jubilant after winning for only the fifth time in the All Star series.

But you would have thought the cocky, jesting American Leaguers were still the victors. There was no gloom in their quarters.

Joe DiMaggio, who missed being named as a starter for the first time in years, was the only dejected player in evidence. He ended what may be his last All Star assignment by hitting into a double play to close out the game in the 14th round.

Double Jinx For LaMotta In His Title Bout Tonight

By MURRAY ROSE
New York, July 12.—(AP)—Middleweight champion Jake LaMotta bucks a double jinx tonight when he defends his title against unbeaten Tiberio Mitri of Italy in Madison Square Garden.

For the second straight time the Robins were forced to cancel play out at Guy Smith Stadium due to rain. The game last night scheduled between the Robins and the A's had to be cancelled when the city was visited by a heavy rainfall about three o'clock yesterday afternoon. That brings to nine the number of twin bills facing the Robins at the present time. One more day of rain and your columnist will change the name of this column to "Diamond Mud."

Business Manager Russ Filley celebrated his 45th birthday Monday and Manager Randy Heflin had a party for him at his house that night. Incidentally, the birthday cake contained nine candles. The number of years each candle represented is unknown to the writer. Anyway, congratulations, Russ, old boy, on your 45th birthday.

President Roy Dissinger stated yesterday afternoon that in all probability the playing field out at Guy Smith Stadium next season will be protected with a canvas covering. This is a mighty fine idea and will enable the Robins to play several games which otherwise have to be called when a shower visits the city during the afternoon.

Too much money has caused Manager Bill Herring of the Toos to send Outfielder Bob Gregory to Whiteville on a 24 hour recall. No club in the league can have a total player payroll exceeding $2,600 per month. To exceed this limit is illegal. Adding his roster payroll, Manager Herring found that with Outfielder Gregory on the list his total reached $2,615, or a few bucks over the limit. Manager Herring has also announced the signing of Boothe Crimsley, outstanding young athlete who starred with Stantonburg High School in all three sports. The deal was made after the release of Gregory. He will be used as a utility outfielder at the present time. . . . Following a long period of negotiations, the Kinston Eagles have secured rookie outfielder O'Neill Crimsley from the Roanoke, Va. farm club of the Boston Red Sox. . . . Manager Joe Antolick of the Tarboro A's is one manager in the league who is not worried over the draft situation. Genial Joe stated: "If and when the draft starts again it looks like Tarboro will win the pennant by default. Most of the other clubs will have their boys in the armed services instead of the baseball field. Won't bother me much as practically all my kids are under 19 years."

Official attendance figures in the Coastal Plain League, as released from the office of President Ray H. Goodmon in Williamston, reveal that through June 30th there has been a decrease of 45,662 paid attendance at Coastal Plain League games, as compared for the same period last year. Through June 30, 1949, there were a total of 284,070 paid attendance in the CPL, while for the same period this year 238,608 have passed through the turnstiles.

The figures reveal that there are only three towns in the league which have shown an increase in attendance over the past season—Roanoke Rapids, Wilson and Tarboro—while the attendance in the other five towns has showed a marked decrease. Through June 30th the Roanoke Rapids club was leading the league in attendance with 43,285, an increase of 8,515 over the past season for the same period when 34,771 had turned the stiles. The Wilson club is second in league attendance with 40,737 paid admissions; an increase of 4,261 over the '49 season with 36,476 paid admissions. The Tarboro club with 20,640 paid admissions shows an increase of 2,896 from last season when only 17,744 had witnessed the A's games.

The Kinston club, currently in sixth place in league standings, has suffered the greatest loss in the number of paid customers with 23,164 less than for the '49 season. Last season the Kinston club was leading all the other clubs in the league in attendance with 45,948 paid customers, while for the same period this year only 22,784 have witnessed the home games of the Eagles. The Goldsboro club through June 30 has had a decrease of 12,789 fans. Last year the Goldsboro club had 33,789 paid customers, while for the same period this year they have had 21,000. The Rocky Mount Leafs, who until a few days ago were leading the league, have had 12,286 less paid customers this season than they had a year ago. Rocky Mount, which was second in league attendance last year this time with 44,243 customers, have had only 31,957 for the same period this season. The Greenville club is 10,304 behind last year's figures with 35,645 having paid last year and only 25,341 for the current season. The New Bern Bears for the current season are 2,591 behind last year's attendance figures, when 35,454 had turned the stiles at the park last year while for the current season they have had 32,863 paid customers.

In comparison with the year 1948, the Coastal Plain League, through June 30, 1950, has had 87,262 less paid customers than it did in 1948 when at this time that year a total of 325,870 fans had witnessed Coastal Plain League contests.

Legion Softball Team Is Defeated

Exchange Club and American Legion provided the only action on the Civic League front yesterday and Exchange proved they were better ducks at the game of softball on a wet field than the Legion.

The outcome of that muddy affray was a 9-3 win by Exchange.

The victors took the game by bunching their hits—and runs—in two innings while the Legion was collecting lone tallies in the second, fourth and sixth frames. Exchange banged out hits enough for a six-run second and three more runs crossed in the sixth.

Although the Exchange Club played seven ringers rather than their own men yesterday, the win goes into the record book for the time being.

Although he was playing on the losing side, Les Turnage pitched 11-hit ball and banded out two triples and a single for the day's best marksman. Kittrell got a four-bagger for Exchange plus a single to lead his team.

Score by innings:
American Legion 010 101 0-3 10 1
Exchange Club 060 003 x-9 11 2
Batteries: Exchange—Kittrell and Sawyer; Legion—Turnage and Williams.

Boys League Baseball

Only one game was finished yesterday in the baseball leagues. The Tigers of Training School went down to their second defeat in a row, bowing to Third Street clubs by a 7-6 margin.

The Cubs scored a run in the bottom of the ninth after the Tigers had tied the score in their half of the frame. Mac Roebuck led his team at bat while Duff was the batting spark for the Tigers. Joe Moye stood out defensively for the Cubs.

Due to the fact that many of the boys are leaving the teams to work on the tobacco market, two teams in the Boys' League have had to reorganize. The two teams that follow played this morning at the regular time.

Bulls—Bobby Nunn, Billy Jordan, Bob Watson, Doug Morgan, Eddie Farley, Ray Taylor, Bobby Perry, Glenn Scott, Dallas Evans, Jesse Moye, Leroy Quinlan and Bobby Conway.

Yanks—John Sideris, Viley Gardner, Sid

Property Owners Warned Vacant Lots Overgrown

Alderman Heber B. Tripp today called the attention of all property owners to the fact that many vacant lots in Greenville are now becoming overgrown with weeds and tall grass. Tripp pointed out that the tall grass and weeds which are to be found in many sections of the city are ideal harboring spots for mosquitoes, rats, snakes and insects.

In addition to the dangers which the lots offer, they are also unsightly, the alderman pointed out.

There is a city ordinance which calls for the cutting of all weeds and tall grass on vacant lots.

Urges Expansion Of Blood Banks

Boston, July 12—(AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall wants the collection of blood for peace and possible war expanded.

The president of the American Red Cross said the blood is needed to meet demands in civilian medical practice and to serve as a bulwark against a major disaster or national military emergency.

Speaking at a Harvard dinner last night, the general said:
"The possible need of blood for our military forces is no longer a vague, shadowy possibility. It is a concrete fact."

"A national emergency would call for quantities of blood beyond estimate," he said. "There is only one source—healthy American people."
"And it must come voluntarily. Not even totalitarian states have ever been able to procure blood by government fiat."

"Our people are always quick to respond to an emergency. The difficulty has been to make them recognize the emergency before it is on us in full blast."

The Red Cross now collects about 12 per cent of all the blood used in the United States. The general said that in case of an emergency it could increase its share of production four fold.

Raleigh, N. C., July 12—(AP)—Claude Shackelford's fate was scheduled to be discussed today in the office of Feroles Commissioner T. C. Johnson. Nothing definite was expected to come of the meeting.

Shackelford missed death in the gas chamber by nine minutes June 30 when Governor Scott ordered a five-day reprieve.

Scheduled to meet with Johnson were Bryon Haworth, Shackelford's attorney, Guilford Deputy Sheriff Herman Burrows, and the two relatives of the condemned man who obtained the state "rich stayed his execution."

Shackelford was sentenced to death for alleged raping 10-year-old Shirley Ann Hunt. The reprieve was granted on the strength of a statement signed by the victim and her mother, Mrs. Willie Hunt, saying the "true story" was not told at the trial.

Later the girl and her mother claimed they signed but did not read the paper. They declared the two men who asked them to sign it told them only that it was "something that would save Claude's life"

Purchased Puppy Because His Mother Could Play The Piano

Grimesland, July 12—Would you buy a dog just because you saw his mother playing a piano in a stage show?

Well, Ben F. Buck of Grimesland is quite proud of his talented pet named Boogie Woogie, and he says he decided to buy the dog when he saw the dog's mother playing a piano in a stage show in Washington, D.C. about four years ago.

Although Boogie Woogie hasn't quite mastered the art of playing a musical instrument, he has a repertoire of other tricks which he performs at the command of his master. Boogie Woogie is a bull dog, and is fond of a little red wagon which is equipped with harness so he can pull it around most anywhere he goes. He sits up, "reads" a newspaper, runs errands to the grocery store and post office for his master, and rides children in the wagon.

Probably the most astounding trick the dog can do is stealing a tooth pick from his master's mouth. Mr. Buck holds a toothpick in his mouth, and at his command Boogie Woogie will leap, grab the end of the toothpick in his teeth and land back on the floor—all without biting his master.

Buck has had several opportunities from various companies to use Boogie Woogie in commercial shows, but all Boogie Woogie's performances have been gratis. But even in the amateur status, the dog leads anything but a dog's life.

For one thing, Boogie Woogie has never slept outdoors a night in his life—or even in the dog house for that matter. He sleeps in the house in a baby crib equipped with mattress, pillow and all. Boogie Woogie received his "formal education" in entertaining when he attended a dog school for six months to learn many of the tricks he now performs.

Liquor Sales Of June Still Down

Raleigh, N. C., July 12—(AP)—ABC store liquor sales last month bucked a six-month trend of declining sales, according to ABC Chairman Robert Winston.

June's sales, he said yesterday, were down one per cent compared with those of June, 1949. For the last six months sales had been running nine per cent under sales for the corresponding month last year.

Winston said that if ABC stores had been permitted to remain open June 24, the date of the primaries, sales would have been up an estimated six to seven per cent compared with last June.

The upward trend was attributed by Winston largely to cutting off of bootleg sources in dry counties, a pet project of the ABC chairman.

June sales, including Rowan and Catawba, ran up to $3,433,723, or $400,000 better than the $3,033,723 sales total of the previous June.

Rowan and Catawba Counties did not have ABC outlets in June, 1949.

Ruth Is Symbol of Family Loyalty

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buecher

There was a famine in the land of Judah, and a man named Elimelech took his wife, Naomi, and his two boys, and went to live in the land of Moab where they found food.

After the deaths of Elimelech and his sons (who had married Moabite women), Naomi decided to go back home. One daughter-in-law, Ruth, refused to part with Naomi, but went to Judah with her.

When they arrived in Bethlehem, Ruth went into the field belonging to Boaz, a relative of Naomi's husband, to glean grain after the reapers in order to provide food for herself and Naomi.

Boaz proved a good friend to Ruth, telling his reapers to leave some extra sheaves for her to take home, so Ruth returned to Naomi laden with grain. MEMORY VERSE—Galatians 5:13.

STORY ILLUSTRATES HAPPY HOME RELATIONS

Scripture—Ruth

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. IN THE crowded conditions of today's living, home relations are often strained. Mothers and fathers and their married families with children do not always live happily together in too small quarters. Mothers-in-law have been themes for jokes since the beginning of time. Every woman who becomes one is supposed to turn into a virago, meddling continually, with the affairs of her sons—or daughters—families and making everyone unhappy. One seldom hears jokes about fathers-in-law, but as a matter of fact, fathers do not always add to the family harmony by being cordial to in-laws. This being the case, it is very rewarding to read the sweet Old Testament story of Ruth and her mother-in-law, Naomi. Of course there are millions of such relationships between mothers and sons' wives, but they are not often publicized. The real moral of this story is supposed to be that of toler-

er's house," she said. "The Lord deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me. The Lord grant you that ye may find rest, each of you in the house of her husband." So saying, she kissed them, but both wept and said to her, "Surely we will return with thee unto thy people." No, said Naomi. She was too old to marry again and have sons, and even if she did, the youngsters would take years to grow up and the daughters-in-law could not wait for them. The young women cried again, but Orpah kissed her mother-in-law and went her way back to her own people, but Ruth clung to her mother-in-law, saying, "Treat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God: where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: the Lord do so to me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me."

Pot Luck Grows On Trees

POTS GALORE — At saint's tomb and (above) in trees.

AP Newsfeatures

NEW DELHI—If you want pot luck, come to Delhi. A Moslem saint who died 750 years ago is still dispensing it.

The saint, Sheikh Syed Ali Bakr Rahim Tusi Wahidri Wakala Shah, is credited with helping a Moslem conqueror, Muhammad of Ghur, reach the throne of Delhi in 1192—through pot luck. Lots of people believe he has helped them, too.

Legend has it that Ghur, having met with difficulties in his attempt to conquer Delhi, asked the saint for blessings. The saint asked Ghur to bring mud pots to be blessed. Ghur did so and, favored by good fortune, found himself on the throne.

The saint died and was buried in the royal fort. The fort walls collapsed, but the pot luck seekers still come.

The pots they bring are painted white to attract attention from the saint. They are placed on the branches of trees or near the tomb.

ance in international marriages. Naomi was a Hebrew woman—Ruth a Moabite, and Boaz was likewise a Hebrew. At that time the judges in Palestine ruled that no Jew should wed a Gentile. This moral for the tale has largely been forgotten. At any rate, we can learn a lesson of love and harmony as well as in race relations. "Once upon a time, when the judges ruled," there was a famine in the Hebrew land. A certain man named Elimelech took his wife, Naomi, and his two sons, and went, therefore, into the land of Moab, which lay east of the Jordan, where there was food. Both sons eventually married Moabite wives, but Elimelech died, and then both the sons followed him to the grave, leaving Naomi and her daughters-in-law—Orpah and Ruth—widows. Bereft of her husband and both sons, Naomi decided to go back to her own people. Both daughters-in-law accompanied her part of the way to Judah, and then Naomi prepared to part with them both. "Go, return each to her mother's house," she said. "The Lord deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me. The Lord grant you that ye may find rest, each of you in the house of her husband." So saying, she kissed them, but both wept and said to her, "Surely we will return with thee unto thy people." No, said Naomi. She was too old to marry again and have sons, and even if she did, the youngsters would take years to grow up and the daughters-in-law could not wait for them. The young women cried again, but Orpah kissed her mother-in-law and went her way back to her own people, but Ruth clung to her mother-in-law, saying, "Treat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God: where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: the Lord do so to me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me."

Atomic Defense Method Studied

Raleigh, N. C., July 12—(AP)—Special methods by which North Carolinians may protect themselves against possible atomic warfare are being studied by a member of the state board of health.

Steve Marsh, on the board's industrial hygiene staff, is taking a radiological monitoring course at the Illinois Institute of technology. The five week course, which began this week, is sponsored by the National Security Resources board. Marsh and his staff recently completed a state-wide survey of certain types of X-ray installations to help insure that the public is protected from harmful amounts of radiation.

He was named to attend the Illinois course by L. C. Rosser, executive vice chairman of the state Council of civil defense, who received Marsh's recommendation from Dr. Roy Norton, state health officer.

Smog City, U.S.A.

Los Angeles, July 12—(AP)—This hurts. From Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, Mrs. C. L. Carlisle has received a letter addressed to her in "Smog City, U.S.A."

It was written by her husband, a doctor for Arabian-American Oil Co., who wanted to see if it would reach her. Delivered without hesitation.

Burmese Take Up Playing Marbles

Rangoon—(AP)—There's money to be picked up from off the city's streets if one is a straight-shooter of marbles. Marble shooting is the newest daytime fad to hit cosmopolitan Rangoon.

It was introduced by bored chauffeurs while awaiting the clock to show the homegoing hour. And everybody's doing it now. The law forbids gambling on the street, but the police don't interfere with the players. They're shooting marbles too.

MINIATURE RAILROAD

Canon City, Colo.—(AP)—A miniature railroad has been built on the rim of the Royal Gorge of the Arkansas River, not far from the high suspension bridge crossing the canyon. The railroad has a station, trestles, tunnels and 1 1/2 miles of track for its streamlined train.

IT'S DEATH, MY DARLING!

By Amelia Reynolds Long

Chapter 18
By the time we had to leave for the inquest, Uncle Raoul still had not returned.

Lee explained somewhat lamely to the sheriff and the coroner that his father had been called unexpectedly to New Orleans; and much to our surprise, no protest was made by either of them over such unorthodox behavior on the part of a witness who was to have been called upon for testimony.

Cousin Jeff, as usual, saved the situation.

"If Raoul was unable to sleep and went for a walk," he began, "he may have gone as far as the main road. If he did, it's just possible that he may have been struck and injured by a passing car. I'd suggest that we call the local hospitals, and make a check-up. Do you want me to do it, Pick?"

"Oh, yes," she cried eagerly, welcoming anything that gave promise of action. Then she asked with a new fear in her voice, "Cousin Jeff, you don't suppose he—has he may have been . . . ?"

"No, of course not," he reassured her. "If anything like that had happened, the coroner would have known about it. Do you want to come with me now while I telephone?"

She followed him without a word; and as though their going had been a sign of dismissal, the others gradually drifted away until only Amedee and I were left.

"Peter," he asked as soon as we were alone, "when you saw Uncle Raoul last night, was he carrying any luggage with him?"

"Why, no," answered. "What made you think of that?"

"I've got half a notion that his disappearance is in some way connected with what he hinted last evening at supper about Grandfather's death," he replied. "It occurred to me that he might have gone in to New Orleans to see Duval. But he's hardly have gone without taking a bag or something."

I decided it was time I told all of my story.

"He was carrying something," I said. "But it wasn't a bag. It was your grandfather's sword."

"Grandfather's sword?" he repeated. "And this morning Aunt Delphine—Peter, we've got to find her and make her tell us where she got it!"

"Yes, she did tante," Amedee answered for me. "That's what we want to ask you about. Where did you get it?"

Her smile became happily self-satisfied.

"I got it from Raoul," she answered without hesitation.

"Did he say anything when he gave it to you?"

"No, petit; nothing at all."

"Where were you when you took the sword tante," Amedee asked next.

"Down there," she waved her hand in a vague gesture that could have included half the State of Louisiana.

We were getting nowhere at record speed. Amedee tried again.

"When did you take the sword away from Uncle Raoul?" he asked. "Last night? This morning?"

"This morning," she answered promptly. "I gave it to Peter before they could take it away from me."

"Was Uncle Raoul with anyone when you saw him?"

She didn't answer the question directly. "Raoul has gone away," she said instead. "Far away. He will never come back."

Greatly to our surprise—and relief—noting was said or either the torn scrap of paper or the silver dollar. Finally, after the coroner had expressed his professional opinion that Claude had died of a heart attack, "maybe brought on by the shock of stumbling and falling on the sword he was carrying," the five men who comprise a coroner's jury in Louisiana brought in a verdict of death resulting from natural causes.

But we had finished with one worry only to be confronted by another. Returning from the inquest, we learned from Uncle Bountiful that Uncle Raoul was still missing.

"Who saw him last?" Amedee inquired, as though he thought that perhaps this might explain something.

There was a second or two of silence, which Bobby and I broke by starting to speak together. Then we both stopped, each to permit the other to go on.

"When did you see him, Peter?" Amedee asked, turning to me.

"It must have been around two

GI's Tell Of Heavy Odds And Defeat

By TOM LAMBERT

With American Forces in Korea, July 12—(AP)—A bitter, beaten little band of GI's sprawled in exhaustion on a sunny Korean hillside this afternoon—wary survivors of one of the most savage battles fought by Americans in the Korean war.

Their bitterness was more pronounced than their exhaustion, which was almost complete. They talked of encirclements and infiltrations.

A grimy, bewhiskered, bloodshot officer gritted his teeth. "You don't fight two tank equipped divisions with 30 caliber carbines. I never saw such a useless damned war in all my life."

"Bitter though they were, this GI band had fought a gallant delaying action against tremendous odds.

Two days ago this handful of soldiers was part of a sizeable unit. In a morning-long battle with North Korean tanks and troops yesterday they were whittled down.

Many of the original group still are in the hills after a plunging rush from their encircled positions. But many of them—wounded and dead alike—are in North Korean hands or territory.

The battle began two days ago when the unit pushed off to attack the Reds who were battering another American outfit. The unit moved up and dug in.

"We stayed there until midnight," said Lt. Edward James of Columbus, Ga. "Then we withdrew to our original positions with the idea of fooling them."

But the alert Reds who had been mortaring the unit's position had a trick, too. While their mortars hammered the Americans, Red infantrymen sneaked into the American line. When the GI's returned to their original position they had to fight Communists in the dark for their own foxholes.

"Every time you would kill one, about 30 would come up to take his place," said Pvt. Freddy Pickens of Columbus, Miss.

Screaming and shouting but nevertheless attacking with discipline, the Reds rode into the American positions.

"My machinegun was knocked out," related Pvt. Robert Reed of Michigan City, Ind. "A mortar dropping on my position got my assistant, my medic and two riflemen. I got a carbine. That was shot right out of my hands. I got an M-1 rifle. I was moving down a creek when the M-1 was shot out of my hands, too."

Overwhelmed by hordes of Communist soldiers, the Americans retreated. Some GI's estimated an entire regiment attacked them.

Pvt. Edward Rounds, Thurman, N.Y., said they were forced to leave behind some wounded.

Other Americans completely cut off, surrendered. One exhausted soldier said:

"They captured a bunch of our men. I was on a mountain and saw them. They were marching along with their hands behind their heads, a lot of looks behind them."

As the Americans withdrew, they passed three enemy tanks which had driven a wedge in the U.S. line. Pickens said one GI had knocked out two tanks with a bazooka from 200 yards.

WILLIAMS HURT

Boston, July 12—(AP)—Ted Williams, slugging Red Sox outfielder, suffered a fracture in his left elbow in yesterday's All Star game and will be lost to the team for most of the remainder of the season, the club physician said today.

Many Teachers At Conference On Music Here

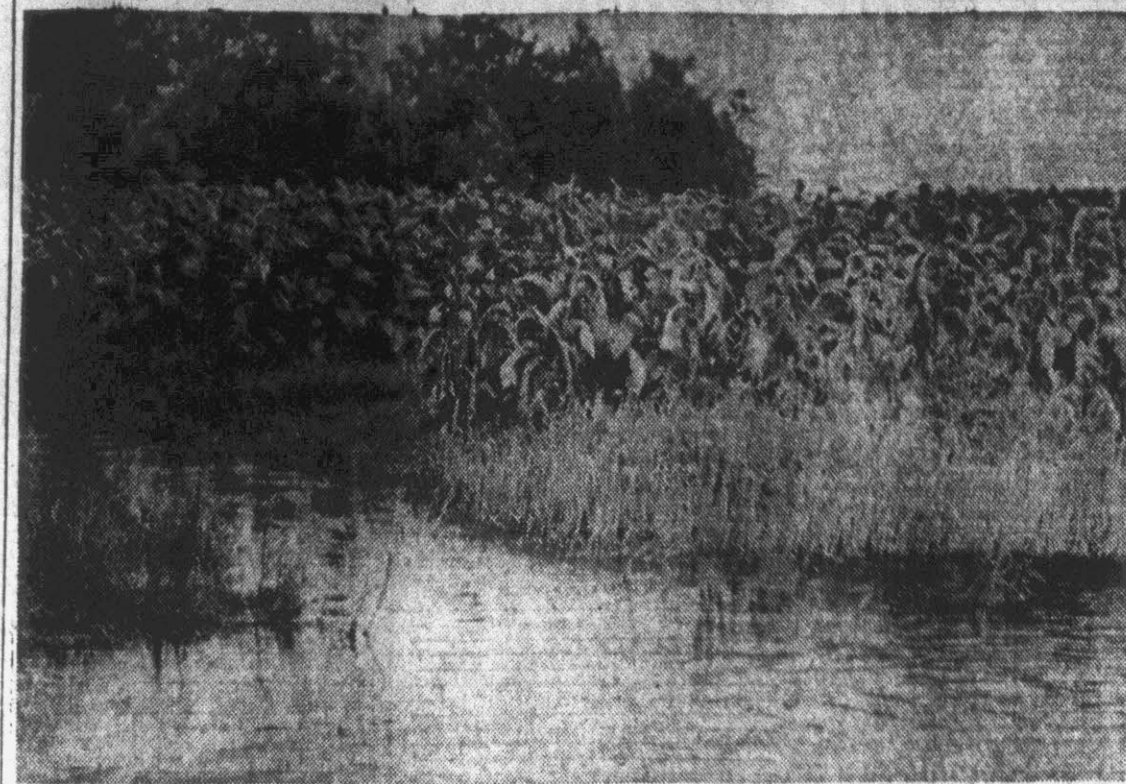

Arnold E. Hoffman, state supervisor of music in North Carolina, and Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, international lawyer and widely known advocate of a plan of World Federation, shared honors as principal speakers at a conference on "Music in the Elementary Schools" at East Carolina Teachers College Tuesday, July 11. Dr. R. R. Willmann, chairman of the department of music at the college, was director of the conference. Approximately 200 people, mostly public school teachers, attended meetings in the morning and the afternoon.

A special feature of the morning session in the Austin auditorium was an organ concert by Mrs. Marie Willmann of Greenville. The new $30,000 pipe organ just installed at the college was used publicly for the first time, and Mrs. Willmann's program of concert and religious music was appreciatively received by the audience.

Mr. Hoffman, speaking at the morning meeting, discussed a functional program of music in the elementary school. He emphasized the important role of music instruction in the lower grades and told teachers that in methods, techniques, and procedures they must be "creative." "It takes a creative teacher to teach," he said. Even the teacher who is not specially trained in music, he stated, can do much in helping pupils participate in and enjoy music. He gave numerous practical suggestions as to how music can be taught successfully in the classroom and can become a part of school life.

Also appearing on the morning's program were Registrar J. K. Long of East Carolina, who welcomed guests; Dr. Willmann, who spoke on "We Grow through Music;" Dan E. Vornholt of the college faculty here who introduced a sound-color film "You Can Make Music;" and pupils of the sixth and seventh grades of the campus Training School, who gave a demonstration of rhythm activities under the direction of Principal Frances Wahl and Mrs. Elsie Egan.

Tobacco Damaged By Heavy Rainfall

Ahlstrom of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Nathalea C. Dornbush of Pittsburgh, Pa.; and a son, Dick Cleve, Jr., of Vanceboro; three grandchildren; one great grandchild; three step-children, Mrs. J. T. Taylor, Mrs. E. E. Lancaster and Pat Weiss, all of Vanceboro, and five step-grandchildren.

Probe Story Of Attack On Girl

Members of the Pitt county sheriff's department today were continuing their efforts to establish the identity of a white man who allegedly raped a 13-year-old Negro girl in the Bruce community at dusk yesterday.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the girl was examined by a physician last night and was not injured.

The girl related to the law enforcement officers that she was attacked by a white man "about 29 or 30" when she went to a corn field behind her house to get corn. The sheriff said the girl described the man as wearing ragged brown pants and shirt. He quoted the girl as saying she had never seen the man before.

Bloodhounds were taken to the scene of the attack last night, but were unable to pick up a trail. Tyson said members of his department were unable to find a set of tracks leading from the field even though the ground was soft because of recent rains.

He said the department also was investigating the possibilities that the girl's attacker could have been one of the two escaped convicts who fled Monday from the Bertie county prison farm. The home of one of the escaped convicts is near the Bruce community.

Unclaimed Bicycles At Police Station

Police Chief Herbert E. Wooten today reported that seven bicycles—five of them girls' and two of them men's—taken up on the streets during the past year will be disposed of after 10 days. Owners of the wheels should file their claims at the police department without delay.

Five of the bicycles (girls) had the following license numbers on them: 494536, 5112502, 11620, MG-21362 and U.S. Jr., 1234. The two men's bicycles do not have license numbers, the chief stated.

Firemen Attend Farmville Meet

Farmville, July 12—More than 125 firemen from 23 eastern North Carolina towns last night attended the annual meeting of the eastern North Carolina Firemen's Association held in Farmville.

The firemen were the guests of the Farmville Fire Department at a barbecue supper served in the high school auditorium.

North Carolina Fire Marshal Sherwood Brockwell and Insurance Commissioner Waldo Cheek who were scheduled to make the main talks of the night were unable to attend because of previous engagements.

Following the supper the city officials of Farmville were introduced to the firemen by the Greensboro Fire Department and stated that both the paid companies and the volunteer fire departments were doing the very same job and there should be no difference between them. Both take the same chances and blame, he said.

Many times the people and the city officials do not appreciate the job which the fire departments are actually doing, the visiting chief said.

Twelve members of the Greenville Fire Department and Fire Chief George Gardner attended the meeting.

Funeral On Thursday For Richard C. Cleve

Richard C. (Uncle Dick) Cleve, 90, died Tuesday night at 8:50 o'clock after several months of declining health and five days of critical illness. Funeral services will be conducted at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Vanceboro Thursday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. James P. Dees, Episcopal minister of Aurora, assisted by the Rev. Sidney E. Matthews, Episcopal minister of Washington. The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to time of services.

Mr. Cleve, son of the late Edward and Lucy Richardson Cleve, was born in Vanceboro and lived there all his life. He was a Vanceboro merchant for well over half a century and was well-known throughout the community. He was first married to Mrs. Toledo Hart of Pitt County, and of this marriage a daughter, Mrs. Carrie C. Knight

County Welfare . . .

(Continued From Page One) logical examinations to investigations of non-attendance at school. These children were to be found in their own or in relatives' homes, in detention homes, correctional institutions, adoptive homes or in licensed boarding homes for dependent children supervised by the department.

The department issues child labor certificates, renders child welfare services of all types, renders family counseling services, services vocational rehabilitation cases, investigates and services juvenile court cases, arranges and supervises adoptions, and crippled children services.

During the fiscal year of 1949-50 there were 39 individuals paroled with an average of 25 active cases being serviced monthly. There were 71 individuals who entered the Sanatorium with a monthly average of 40 active cases receiving care. In addition, there were 21 persons not yet in the sanatorium receiving services. 37 sterilization cases were handled by the Welfare Department. 593 payments totalling $15,967.67 were paid through the Welfare Department by 108 individuals convicted of non-support and ordered by the courts to make regular payments to their families.

When the value of such services are considered, does it not seem that 8.6 per cent for administrative cost is not only reasonable but low?

'Pork Barrel' . . .

(Continued From Page One) and other federally financed projects that he believes are beneficial and necessary for the people of the nation and the people of his state.

But then he added a paragraph and, if you read it twice, it may occur to you that he has a sense of humor, for he said of the average Senator (Although he could have said it of the average House member, too):

"Of course, he scrutinizes such projects with an economy eye focused on real necessity and not with a political eye focused on the thought that an hour of federal money into a state means an outpour of votes for the person responsible." This raises a kind of double question: 1 Will any member of Congress, who wants to stay in Congress, be eager to displease the home folks by voting against some Pork barrel they want? 2 Do the folks back home really want economy in government? or do they just want economy for someone else but pork barrel for themselves? Purcell suggested the following be done so members of Congress can know for sure how the majority of the people at home feel: Legislatures, city and county governments and citizens committees ought to go on record as telling their Congressmen just how they feel about the pork barrel stuff intended for them and other people.

Mixed Pride . . .

(Continued From Page One) call how the combat-fatigued lieutenant summed the position up after his contingent battled until its ammunition was exhausted and then retreated:

"Ten to one is good odds. But we can't take 100 to one odds—without ammunition. x x x Just give us the stuff."

Well, in the next few weeks, while additional troops and "the stuff" are arriving in South Korea, we are going to encounter some tough going. However, we must accept this as the natural trend at this stage—a trend which our military chiefs expect will improve progressively until the tide turns and we sweep on to victory.

And is it necessary that we should go through all this? Is there no way of halting the Korean war?

Proposed that query the London Foreign Office has announced that Sir David Kelly, British ambassador in Moscow, has had a talk with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko regarding a possible "peaceful settlement of the Korean conflict."

So the possibilities are being explored. Of course an agreement between Moscow and the Western Allies would be the only way in which a settlement might be brought about. However, so long as the Reds are meeting with success in Korea the prospects of any settlement are grim.

When the time arrives that the position is reversed, then the Muscovites might agree to peace, having achieved all they could by aggression.
