Demand For New Telephones Still At A High Level

New York, July 15—(AP)—The demand for new telephones across the country continues at a high level, the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said today.

In its quarterly report to stockholders, A. T. and T. said its Bell System gained 425,000 telephones in the second quarter of 1950 to bring the increase so far this year to 835,000.

The Bell system, which operates slightly over four-fifths of the nation's telephones, now has about 34,325,000 telephones or double the number of ten years ago.

Light Damage To Sweet Potatoes

Jesse Sumner, sweet potato specialist for Pitt, Martin and Edgecombe counties, stated yesterday damage to the current crop has been slight so far.

The greatest danger to the crop in the ground now is grass growing faster than the potatoes, Sumner said. There has been evidence of fertilizer leaching during the past rainy spell. The specialist advised the use of 14-0-14 fertilizer, 75-100 pounds to the acre, if leaching is present.

Armed Services' Pay

Pay In All Branches Is Same For Each Grade; Base Pay; Provision For Dependents And Lodgings; Commissioned Officers And Subsistence Allowances

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, July 15—(AP)—Pay in all branches of the armed services—Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines—is the same for each grade. The Army will be used as an example here.

The enlisted grades are as follows, with the minimum and maximum pay for each grade, depending upon length of service:

Recruit—$75 a month; recruit, after four months—$80; when he becomes a private, in about six months—$82.50; corporal—$117.50 to $191; sergeant—$139.65 to $237; first class sergeant—$169.05 to $248; master sergeant—$198.45 to $294.

Anyone below the rank of corporal is considered to have no dependents, so he gets nothing for dependents. If, for some reason, the government fails to provide him with lodgings, he gets $45 extra for lodgings for himself.

A corporal with less than seven years' experience also is considered to have no dependents and gets only his flat pay, unless the government doesn't provide him with lodgings. Then he gets $45 extra.

For a sergeant, sergeant first class and master sergeant—no matter how much or little his period of service—and for a corporal with seven or

U.S. Tank Moves Into Battle On Korean Front

Truman Gets On-The-Spot Korea Report By Generals

Washington, July 15—(AP)—President Truman arranged to hear a direct report from the Army and Air Force chiefs of staff at 2:30 p.m. (EST) today on their trip to Japan and Korea.

The two military leaders, Gen. J. Lawton Collins of the Army and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg of the Air Force returned from their flying trip only this morning.

In Tokyo they conferred with Gen. Douglas MacArthur who is directing United Nations efforts to drive the Korean Communist invaders back to North Korea.

They also conferred with the Secretary of Defense Johnson who sat in on the meeting, along with Deputy Secretary Stephen Early, and the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Others invited included Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations.

Bradley visited the President during the morning to give Mr. Truman his daily briefing on the fighting.

The conference will take place in the Blair House, temporary presidential residence across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

The Army and Air Force chiefs came back from their trip to the Orient with word that "our troops are doing damn well there, and everything will come out all right."

Their return is expected to speed up White House decisions on what to do about mobilizing American resources.

Their optimistic report on front line developments was in contrast to an assertion from Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) that the United States "may have to evacuate Korea in the next 72 hours."

The lawmaker, a member of the Armed Services and Atomic Energy Committees, made his statement in a speech to the Pennsylvania convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Harrisburg.

Pitt's First Casualty

Pitt County's first casualty of the Korean war has been reported with the arrival of a telegram from the War Department advising the parents of Pfc. Marvin B. Mobley, of 104 East 13th St., Greenville, that he had been slightly wounded on the Korean war front.

The telegram which arrived yesterday afternoon did not state the nature of the boy's injuries nor the time nor place where the soldier was wounded. It was stated that the soldier was evacuated from Korea to Japan where he will be at the 118th Station Hospital.

Mobley, who enlisted in the army around four years ago, is 20 years old and a member of a medical detachment of the 4th Infantry Division.

The announcement of the county's first reported casualty was made in a Defense Department Bulletin issued from Washington, which gave the names of two North Carolina soldiers wounded in combat.

In addition to her son serving in Korea, Mrs. Mobley has two other sons who are serving in the army and in the Medical Department. One is stationed in Germany and the other in the States.

Chief Appointed To Head Program In Stricken Area

Raleigh, N. C., July 15—(AP)—A fruit and vegetable inspector with the State Department of Agriculture will take over Monday as manager of the program for helping farmers in five counties which recently lost their crops.

He is Grady Cooper Jr., of Dobson, whose appointment to the post was announced yesterday by John A. Winfield, department marketing chief.

Hail and windstorm destroyed many crops which it struck two weeks ago in Wake, Nash, Edgecombe, Wilson and Franklin counties. The estimated damage was $2,000,000. Nash county was hit the hardest.

Estimate Heavy Tobacco Losses

Hedrick Says 20 Million Pounds Of Leaf Spoiling

Raleigh, N. C., July 15—(AP)—Tobacco farmers in the section East and South of Kinston stand to lose at least 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco which was hit by heavy rains.

This would mean a loss of $10,000,000, figuring an average of 50 cents a pound.

W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist for the state department of agriculture, made the estimate yesterday after a survey trip through the afflicted area.

Hedrick said, however, "frankly, I regard it as a conservative estimate."

He explained that the losses could easily go over the 20,000,000 pound estimate because—with a few days of hot sun—the tobacco could ripen so fast that farmers wouldn't have the barn space to handle their crops.

Last weekend, Hedrick said, eight inches of rain hit the Pender-Duplin-Onslow-Carteret area, and five inches fell in surrounding areas.

Hedrick's estimate covers only the damage caused by rainstorms. It does not take into account the $2,000,000 losses caused recently by hail and wind in Wake, Nash, Edgecombe, Wilson and Franklin counties.

Bread Prices Go Up In Greenville

Bakers Say Upward Swing In Costs Are Responsible

Local bread prices jumped up from one to two cents per loaf today, but apparently not the result of the Korean war scare, local bakers reported.

Early shoppers in Greenville stores today found their bread as compared with yesterday's prices, while the larger one and one-half pound loaf and two pound sizes increased in price by two cents.

R. W. Shiplett, manager of the Waldensian-Pitt Baking Company, said at noon today that the upward prices were the direct result of increased labor costs and costs of materials, which Shiplett termed as having taken a steady and heavy upward swing in the past several months.

The bread price increase seemed to be general over the state, and in Washington the Associated Press reported that plans of bakeries to increase bread prices on Monday stirred a demand for an immediate congressional investigation.

Representative Flood (D - Pa) called the price boosts an "obvious attempt at war scale profiteering." He said he would introduce a resolution in the House Monday demanding an inquiry. He said the House District of Columbia Committee should move promptly to "nip in the bud" such increase.

The bakers said higher labor and flour costs make the price hikes necessary.

Babson Discusses Forecasting

Fort Park, Mass., July 14. Forty years ago this week I compiled my famous Babsonchart—upon perfecting which I have since spent nearly one million dollars. It has been used by thousands of bankers, manufacturers, merchants and investors to forecast business conditions.

When reading charts, however, it is necessary to realize that it forecasts "danger" when it is registering the highest prosperity, when stocks are going up and when full employment exists. This "upside-down" reading is what fools people.

Don't Be Fooled By Prosperity Hence, when a crash comes, there is no public warning; it comes as a terrific "bolt out of a clear blue sky" to most businessmen. In my forty years I have seen six of these, one in 1907, 1914, 1921, 1932, 1937 and 1942. When the next one comes it will again appear as a great surprise to 95 per cent of the people especially young "businessmen" who have never been seriously caught before.

The future of many businesses depends very largely on keeping in step with the market. Today there are many good arguments, for instance, for the "business" among these are the inflationary pressure, and

American Flank On Kum River Line Pushed Back; Reds Keep Bridgehead

Await Replies

Lake Success, July 15—(AP)—America and the rest of the United Nations watched anxiously today for replies from 52 U. N. members to Secretary-General Trygve Lie's call for all-out fighting aid to stem the Red invasion of South Korea.

Lie expressed his concern over the U. N. situation in Korea at a press conference yesterday. He made it clear he expects every one of the U. N. members except the dissenting Soviet bloc and communist Yugoslavia to help turn back the North Korean Reds and restore peace in that divided land.

Lie does not expect troops from every one of the 52 countries. Costa Rica, for instance was not asked because, one U. N. official said, the country's constitution forbids an army. However, they all are expected to chip in some supplies and other evidence of aid.

Solons Consider Security Needs On 'Home Front'

Washington, July 15—(AP)—Congress eyed internal and military security problems today in the light of the Korean fighting.

Senator J. J. Lee of Illinois, the Democratic leader, called for voluntary, but complete, censorship on troop movements at home and abroad.

He suggested in an interview that Gen. Douglas MacArthur be authorized by the President to clamp military censorship on front line developments vitally affecting American tactical and strategic moves.

Lucas told the Senate yesterday that it was "almost criminal" the way reports are going out on "where our troops are going and how."

The question of security at home also raised concern on Capitol Hill. Two Democratic senators—Eastland of Mississippi and Maybank of South Carolina—joined Republicans in an effort to force Senate action on a bill requiring registration of Communist Party members.

In the House, supporters lined up for action a bill that would allow the Attorney General to keep undesirable aliens locked up if their home countries won't take them back after they have been ordered deported.

Lucas said he thinks the President ought to call on news gatherers of all kinds to institute the kind of voluntary censorship that operated during the last war.

"There certainly should be censorship of troop movements," he said. "Every time such movements are publicized, it is endangering the lives of American boys."

Adm. Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations, was reported to have urged the same sort of secrecy in an appearance at a closed door meeting of the Senate Armed Services Committee earlier in the week.

The Defense Department on Thursday ordered the Armed Forces to clamp restrictions on the release of information involving troop movements to the Far Pacific. MacArthur has laid down similar restrictions within the Korean war theater.

Ban Newsmen From War Front

Army Objects To Dispatches By Two Correspondents

Tokyo, July 15—(AP)—U.S. Army authorities today abruptly told Associated Press correspondent Tom Lambert and United Press correspondent Peter Kalischer that they could not return to the South Korean war front.

Lambert, wearing combat fatigues, was notified as he was about to board a bus at the start of a return trip to the war front in Korea. He had been here briefly on leave.

Later Col. M. P. Echols, general MacArthur's public information officer, told the Associated Press bureau that "some of Lambert's dispatches had been objectionable because they gave aid and comfort to the enemy."

He cited as an example a quotation from a frontline soldier that "This is a damned useless war." Echols was reminded soldiers on all fronts in World War II made similar comment. He agreed.

Colonel Echols said there was no question of security or no factual inaccuracies in Lambert's dispatches.

The United Press office in Tokyo said Colonel Echols told that Kalischer was being prohibited from returning to Korea because his stories gave "aid and comfort to the enemy" and because "they made the Army look bad."

The bureau said it was told by Echols that it was his opinion General MacArthur's headquarters had taken action against Kalischer in a move to get all foreign correspondents to soft pedal the stories of the American defeat.

At no time had Col. Echols charged Kalischer with violating security or writing stories which were not true, the United Press bureau spokesman said.

May Not Require Allotments Cut

Washington, July 15—(AP)—North Carolina growers of edible (Virginia type) peanuts may not have their allotments cut if a national peanut acreage reduction is ordered for next year.

Rep. Abitt (D-Va) said the House Agriculture committee has approved his bill designed to aid peanut growers in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

HALF OF CROP RUINED Charlotte, July 15—(AP)—Half of Mecklenburg's estimated $2,000,000 cotton crop has been destroyed by boll weevils, County Agent George B. Hobson said today, and the other half is in danger unless growers continue using control practices.

Delinquents Top N. C. Draft List

Tar Heels Slow In Registering Will Lead Eligibles

Raleigh, N. C., July 15—(AP) The Deputy State director of selective service has urged all delinquent Tar Heel draft registrants to clear up their records with local boards as quickly as possible.

Col. Thomas H. Upton said yesterday that the name of a delinquent registrant is put at the top of the list of men eligible for induction into the armed forces.

He said a registrant is delinquent if he fails to return his selective service questionnaire, or if he fails to comply with any order from his local draft board.

North Carolina has been instructed to have 610 draftees in uniform not later than Sept. 30.

Meanwhile, all North Carolina Army and Air Force recruiting stations were ordered to go on a seven day week basis.

Capt. Joseph M. Pearson, head of the Raleigh recruiting area, said the order came from the third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga. He said the order was for the stations to remain open on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays until further notice was issued in response to mounting phone calls and inquiries received daily at the stations.

Elections Board Ousts Madison Board Members

Asheville, July 15—(AP)—The State Board of Elections today ousted A. E. Leake as chairman of the Madison County Elections Board and Sam E. Davis as a member of the Swain County board.

Percebe Ammons, Mars Hill, was named to replace Leake in Madison and Roy O. Martin was appointed Davis' successor in Swain.

Both actions were taken at a meeting of the State Board here today. The board completed a two-day hearing on the removal proceeding against Leake in Marshall yesterday.

The hearing on the Davis matter was held in Bryson City last May 10, but the board had delayed its decision until today.

Davis was charged with being incompetent by reason of public drunkenness, carrying concealed weapons and buying votes.

Korea Commander Troops Dig In At New Positions; Hold Firm At Center; No Red Tanks Seen South Of River; Attempted Crossings Smashed; Heavy Toll For Invaders

Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker (above), a tank expert from Texas, has taken command of ground forces in Korea. Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said Gen. Walker has established an advanced command post in the South Korea battle area. (AP Wirephoto).

Tokyo, July 15—(AP)—An Army spokesman in Korea said tonight the American left flank had been pushed back from the Kum River to a new position by attacking Communists.

The advanced headquarters spokesman said the U.S. troops were holding firm at the center northwest of Taejon, but had been moved back generally west, somewhat from Taejon, the emergency capital.

Northward, midway to Chongju, 50 miles from Taejon, South Korean forces gave some ground.

The spokesman said no Red tanks had been seen south of the river. But several were seen on two north-south roads west of Taejon.

Some Red soldiers were seen advancing under heavy mortar fire. Associated Press Correspondent William R. Moore at advanced headquarters said in a dispatch timed at 10:52 p.m. (7:52 a.m. EST).

Moore said the Red self-propelled 76 millimeter guns were believed to have been brought into use.

Earlier Moore reported from Korea the Americans had stabilized their positions near the Kum River toehold grabbed by the Communists earlier in the day.

Four Red tanks were destroyed attempting ferry crossings of the river. As far as was known here no tanks had crossed the shallow stream.

The Communists apparently were trying to drive a wedge between the American right flank and South Korean troops defending a sector 10 miles south of Chongju.

Heavy fighting raged in that sector. The South Koreans were holding their own in this battle. Moore said in a dispatch received here at 10 p.m. (7:52 a.m. EST).

Moore said there was relatively little fighting during the day around the Samgo foothold seized by the Reds. Some of these waded the shallow river to reach the south side, where they held on tenaciously.

The Red bridgehead was established by large forces of infiltrating troops carrying considerable equipment and covering an extensive area.

Some estimates, Moore said, were that between 1,000 and 2,000 foot soldiers made the initial crossing. They apparently spread rapidly over an extensive area.

There was little available information on the situation in the center of the Kum River line. But evidently American forces there were holding.

Small arms in the hands of U.S. soldiers repelled three attempted crossings by Communists in boats. An attempted crossing Friday which the Americans smashed was made by about a company of Red soldiers trying to walk across the ruins of a blown bridge.

Safe-Cracking In Bethel Reported

Nothing Taken From Store As Robbers Fail Enter Safe

An attempted safe-cracking some time last night was discovered in the store of M. O. Blount and Sons in Bethel by employees of the firm early this morning.

Sheriff Ruelson, who investigated the break-in with Bethel police, reported they found an axe, crowbar and hammer which had been used to break off the safe's combination and hinges. Entry into the store was through a removed panel of the back door. It showed evidence of having been jimmied off with a crowbar.

Nothing was taken from the store after the robbers failed to enter the safe.

Assisting Tyson and the police were Captain Dorsey of the Greenville police department and deputy sheriff Duke Andrews. Tyson stated no trace of the person or persons was left after he or they left the store.

The break-in occurred sometime after 10 last night, Tyson said.

Remember Dead In Buying Bonds

Pineville, W. Va., July 15—(AP)—"That's for Kenneth Shadrick" Wyoming county residents are saying today as they buy a U. S. saving bond.

Pvt. Kenneth Shadrick of Skinfork was the first American foot soldier killed in the Korean fighting last week.

Nolan E. Isom, editor of the weekly Independent Herald and radio news commentator thought of the slogan "That's for Kenneth Shadrick."

It's effective. Bond sales in the county almost doubled in one week.

Our Proving Ground

The Champ Is Taking A Beating In The Early Rounds Of Korean Fight; No Question As To Outcome; Resources Of Soviet-Led Asiatics; Aid From Western World

By DEWITT MACKENNIE

President Truman speaks for many men when he says Americans never have had the tar licked out of them, and predicts that the Korean Communists will be driven back.

However, don't overlook that many a ring champ takes a terrible beating in defending his title. That's about what has been happening to GI Joe in South Korea as he has battled against heavy odds.

There is no reason to doubt we shall win in the long run, but we already have learned by tough experience that we are up against a well organized and powerful fighting force. And in this fact a gauge to measure the strength of other Red military machines in the great Asiatic theater.

Soviet-led Asiatic communism has at its call many millions of trained and equipped soldiers, a lot of whom are seasoned veterans. First to mind, of course, come Manchuria and China with almost limitless manpower. To these must be added Russia's Siberian armies. And Red forces long have been fighting in Indonesia and Malaya.

All these troops could be thrown into action should Asia unhappily prove to be the major battleground.

between the two ideological worlds. And in this sense Korea may be the proving ground on which we shall learn what the future holds for democracy.

Already the Western world is confronted with what may be many a disconcerting discovery that the West has no exclusive claim to skill at arms. Perhaps more to the point, Korea is demonstrating that Russia over a long period has been doing a very thorough job of organizing and training its satellite fighting forces.

With a decisive battle being won in the Kum River area of South Korea, Washington is said to have been quietly informing other United Nations members that their ground forces would be summoned in Korea. And yesterday U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie called on all members who have supported the pledge to stop the Red aggression to send effective combat forces to aid in the fighting. He stressed ground forces.

Appropos of this need for aid, the London News Chronicle says editorially:

"The news from Korea is bad, and will continue to be bad for some time."

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Rouse, bride-elect's parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Hicks, of Walstonburg.

Blairs Are Back Elks Convention

By CHESTER WALSH Charles E. Blair, past exalted ruler of the Greenville Elks Lodge and a delegate to the 89th session of the Grand Lodge convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, at Miami, Fla., returned here Thursday. Mrs. Blair accompanied him.

An outstanding feature of the Elks' convention, Blair said, was the resolution providing for raising more than $1,000,000 a year to be used by the Elks' National Service Commission for the members of America's armed service units, hospitals and fraternal centers in the event of an all-out war. The Grand Lodge also voted to immediately provide $2,500,000 should a national emergency arise.

Joseph E. Kyle of Gary, Ind., was elected grand exalted ruler. Elks lodges now have 1,016,000 members. Thirteen thousand Elks and members of their families attended the convention. 1,568 lodges were represented at the convention. Delegates from every state in the Union, and Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Canal Zone and Guam were there.

Retiring Exalted Ruler Emmet T. Anderson presided over the convention. Governor Warren of Florida and Mayor Wolforth of Miami welcomed the delegates. Crowds estimated at over 100,000 witnessed the Elks parade Tuesday night. The Greenville delegate quoted the Grand Exalted Ruler as making in his opening speech an attack on communism. He declared "that those Americans—natives or adopted—who seek to foster the spread of communism here are traitors to their country and to mankind."

A memorial service in reverent remembrance of departed brothers was held Wednesday morning.

Organ Recital For Kiwanians

By CHESTER WALSH An organ recital by Mrs. Rudolph Willmann featured the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night. Dr. Rudolph R. Willmann, director of music at East Carolina Teachers College, and Mrs. Willmann, were special guests of the club.

After supper and a brief business session the Kiwanians went to Austin auditorium on the college campus. Dr. Willmann and Mrs. Willmann explained the intricate mechanism of the console and the thousands of pipes in the new organ, one of the largest and most modern in this part of the state.

Mrs. Willmann played the following selections: "Toccata" in F-Major (by Willmann); "In Summer" (by Stebbins); "Canyon Walls" (by Clokey) and for her finale three hymns, "The Old Rugger Cross," "Come Ye Faithful" and "Beautiful Saviour."

President Tige Gardner presided over the supper meeting of the club. Secretary David C. Moore, Jr., reported about the officers' and directors' meeting at the Country Club last Wednesday night, when directors James Ray Pittman and Roscoe W. Shiplett were hosts at supper.

Four Kiwanians, Bill Whedbee, Joe Tatt, Glenn Scott and Roscoe Shiplett had birthdays and they donated a nickel for each year of their age to a special Kiwanis fund. Announcement was again made about the Roanoke Rapids Kiwanians coming here Thursday night, July 20, to be supper guests of the Greenville Kiwanians and both groups will be guests of Business Manager Russell Filley at the baseball game at Guy Smith Stadium that night. Ed E. Rawl, chairman of the Inter-Club Relations Committee, will be master of ceremonies.

Women Marine Veterans Called On To Volunteer

Washington, July 15—(AP)—The Marine Corps today called on its women veterans to volunteer for extended active duty within the United States. A defense department statement said the initial quota of volunteers will include a limited number of enlisted women and small numbers of Lieutenants and Captains from the women Marine reserves. The first contingent of women veterans returning to duty east of the Mississippi will go to Camp Lejeune, N. C., the Marine Corps announced.

Future Trips To Polls By State Prisoners Ended

Raleigh, N. C., July 15—(AP)—From now on, prisoners confined in prison camps and state institutions will not be escorted to the polls for registration or voting. That was the word yesterday from Dr. Henry W. Jordan, highway commission chairman. The prison system doesn't have the facilities or personnel to permit eligible prisoners to vote under guard supervision on a statewide basis, Dr. Jordan explained. He added that the possibility of prisoners being subjected to coercion in casting their ballots was an important factor in setting the new policy. During the recent senatorial primary, 22 prisoners serving terms for misdemeanors at the Crasby Prison Camp in Buncombe county voted under guard supervision.

Baboon . . .

(Continued From Page One) This is very important to remember. It means that business firms to be successful should have their executives consist of both young and old—as well as men and women. Younger people have more energy, are more susceptible to new ideas and do not become set in their ways as we older ones do. This is especially important at the present time as our nation is in a truly New Era which we older ones do not like but which the younger ones—who knew not the "good old days"—are adjusted to and are content with. One more thing for me personally to think over in this connection:—

When recently going over my records of income these past forty years I find that—even before taxes—it was at its maximum when I was only 80 years old. Apparently, I have been slipping a little ever since. This should be a warning to middle-aged readers!

Importance Of Pensions The above makes me believe that the rage for pensions may be a good thing for stockholders as well as for wageworkers. Unlike many wage increases, which come wholly out of the stockholders or those who

Pensions may be an excellent investment for the company because they should keep the organization viable and give the younger and more effic ones something to look forward to. In my column next week I will discuss how the Present Outlook appears to me. This will be after a trip to New York consulting some very important people. Read it carefully. It will be short but will represent much work on my part.

Britain of course already is fighting Communist forces in Malaya, and France long has had a sizeable war on her hands in Indo-China. Naturally the Western powers must guard against being lured into massing their forces in the Far East, thereby weakening their power in other parts of the world.

However, as things now stand we must go ahead with the Korean fight until the Reds are evicted, unless mediation between Russia and the West should develop. The U. S. State Department has declared that the minimum condition is for the northern Reds to quit fighting and withdraw to their own territory.

Still Active On 90th Birthday

Mr. Asa Jones, above, celebrated his 90th birthday recently. Mr. Jones has lived in the Clay Root section of Pitt county all of his life where he has been engaged in farming. Even at the age of 90, Mr. Jones is still active. He is the father of Mrs. C. T. James of Greenville.

Present Awards To Underwriters

Two members of the Pitt County Life Underwriters Association were presented with awards from the National Association of Life Underwriters yesterday at a noon day meeting held in the Old Towne Inn.

Around 25 members of the association were on hand to see Robert Humber, noted world traveler and speaker give Phil Goodson, Sr., and Henry Brown the awards. The men obtained the citations for their general service and work over the past year in the insurance field.

Following the luncheon, the assembled insurance men from all over Pitt county and some other counties heard Mr. Humber speak. The speaker termed the insurance business as that force which looks after the protection of the assets of the community. "You men look after the interest and protection of each and every individual whom you come in contact with," Mr. Humber said. "A person must know his subject and live the job to make a success of it. You should be proud to be a part of an organization which is rendering such a service," he said in closing.

President Henry Brown presided over the meeting and told of his trip to Goldboro to a district convention of the life underwriters recently. He told the members of his plans to appoint a committee to plan the programs for the club for the remainder of the year.

Ecuador Revolt Leaders Caught

Quayaquil, Ecuador, July 15—(AP)—A revolt broke out here this morning but its leaders were quickly arrested by government troops.

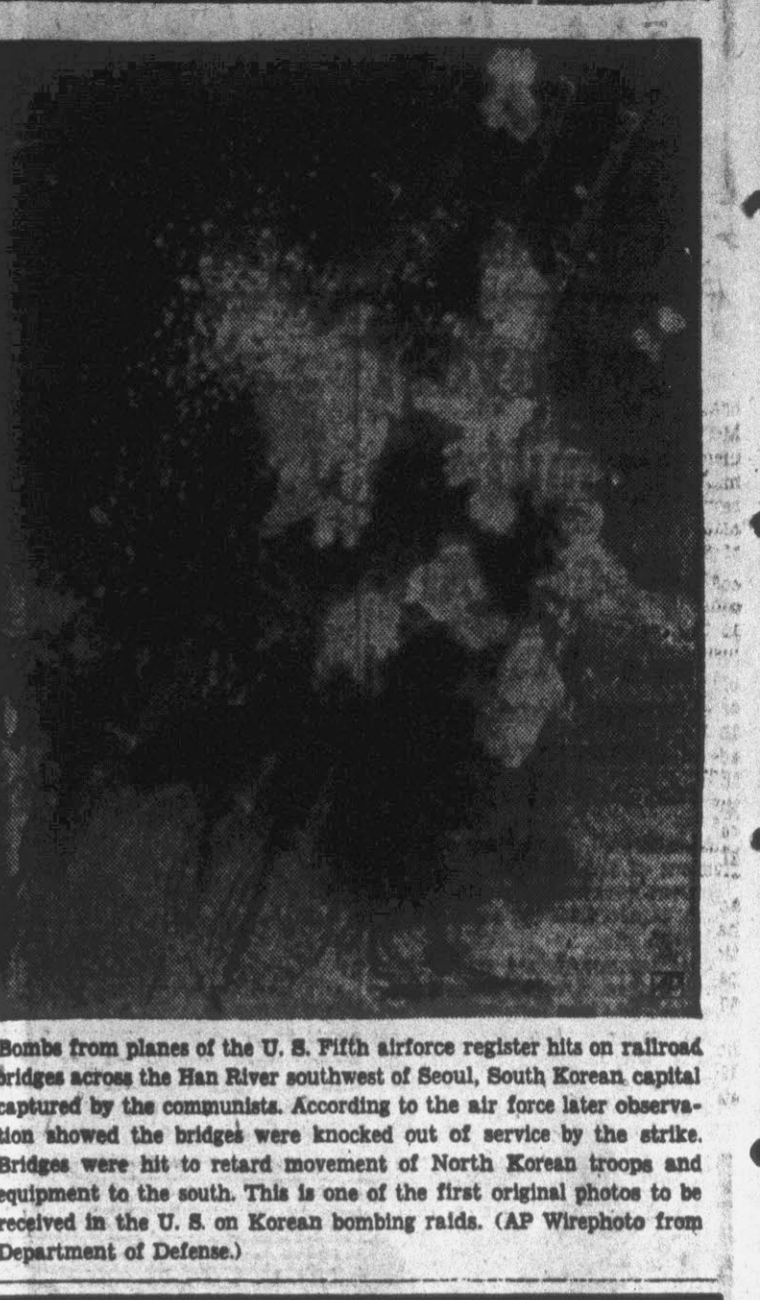

The rebels cut communications in a swift move before dawn. They also distributed leaflets claiming the revolution was nationwide. There was no immediate news as to the situation in Quito, the capital.

Pitt Memorial Hospital To Be Completed In September

Later Opening Date Is Due To Change In Original Plans

By ROY HARDEE

Barring any unforeseen delays or change in plans, the Pitt County Memorial Hospital which has been under construction for the past 17 months will be completed and ready for occupancy by the middle of September.

A spokesman for the hospital construction firm said today that at the present time the hospital is just about 90 per cent completed.

The original date for completion of the building was set for late July or early August, but a change in the plans of the building and the addition of nurses' class rooms in the basement of the hospital, and the building of a nurses' home, has caused an extension of time to be given to the contractors.

At the present time, all of the actual construction on the hospital has been finished with the exception of first floor plastering and painting, and minor installation of equipment.

The modern $1,400,000 120-bed hospital was started in February of 1949, is a fireproof, four-story structure built of brick and cement. R. G. Kendley, general supervisor of the construction job, stated that the work is proceeding right on schedule and should be completed in around six weeks, in time to meet the deadline.

He said that some changes were made in the original plans for the building in the basement section. Instead of a large section being left unfinished, it was decided to convert the area into ten or twelve large class rooms for use by the student nurses who will be trained under the hospital program.

The pent house at the hospital is now being converted into sleeping quarters for the interns who will be on duty at the hospital. These units will be partly completed by the construction deadline, it was stated by workmen.

The top floor of the four-story building is complete and ready for occupancy as soon as the hospital equipment can be installed, bids for which have not yet been let. The third floor was listed as being about 95 per cent finished and the second floor around 85 per cent also; the first floor and basement about 85 per cent complete overall. Early Data On County Is Sought

By J. L. JACKSON

Facts concerning early churches, schools, banks, towns and other historical data are being assembled for use of a Pitt County Historical Association.

Many of the leading citizens of the county have expressed their interest in the formation of such an organization for the purpose of preserving for future generations, facts of historic interest that will be irrevocably lost unless some concerted effort is made for their collection and preservation.

Let's get busy and prevent what is known to our older people from dying with them. Get them to tell such facts as ought to be preserved, to some one who will write them down, or preferably write them for themselves, so that they may be available for others.

Old letters that are stored away in trunks and boxes and have not seen the light of day for many years may have valuable information in them.

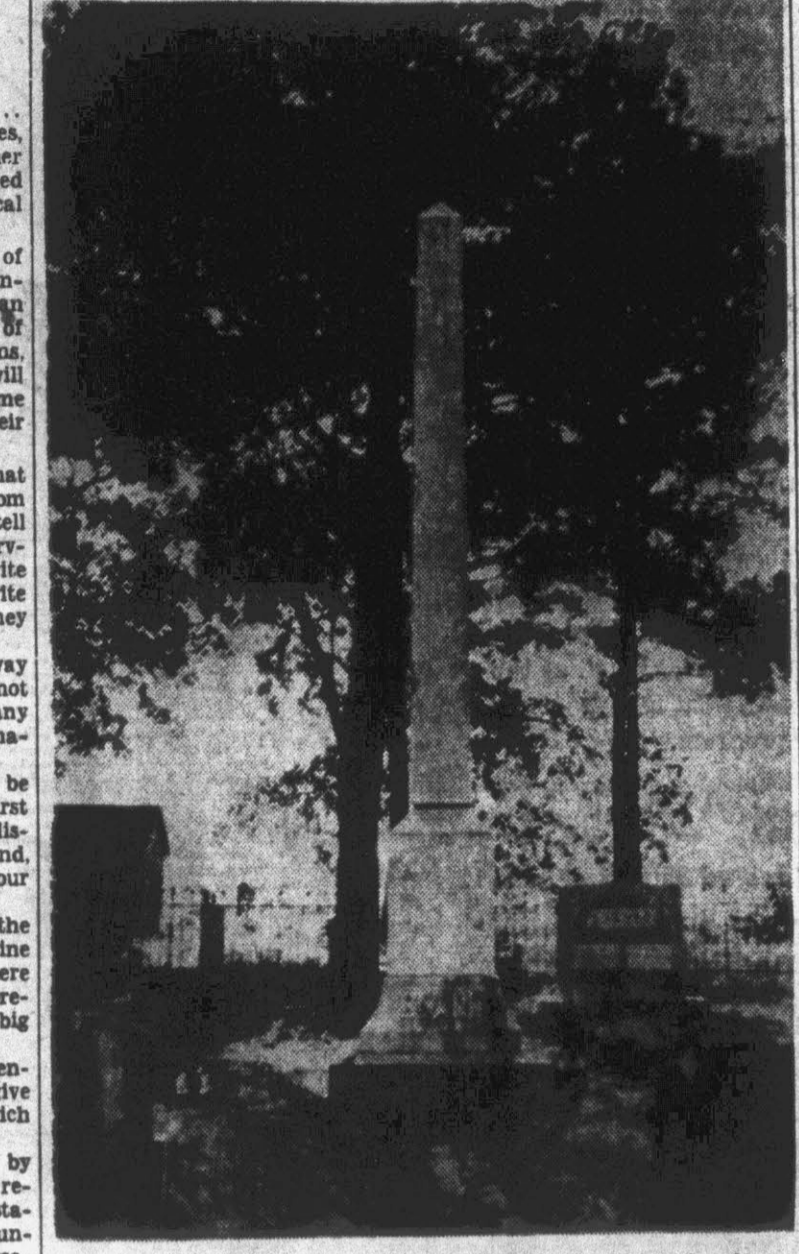

Some other things that might be mentioned are water-mills, first steam-mills, stores, cotton gins, distilleries, and industries of any kind, and old customs of the past in your community.

There may yet be some of the equipment used in the turpentine industry still in existence. If there is it should be collected and preserved, since that was one of the big industries of the past.

Many other things might be mentioned, but this is enough to give some idea of the broad field which is to be explored.

Following is an Act passed by the State Legislature in 1871 reviving an Act passed in 1786 establishing an academy in Pitt County. This is a sample of the treasures waiting to be found.

Heroic Deed At Ft. Fisher Recalled In Poem Honoring Christopher Bland

Here in Hancock's church yard, two miles east of Ayden, is where Christopher Columbus "Kit" Bland was buried in 1917. Bland in later life was known as Elder Bland of the Primitive Baptist church and was an active minister for more than 40 years. During the Civil War he lost a leg while climbing the mast to re-rally the Confederate flag which had been shot down by Union naval artillery off the coast of Fort Fisher below Wilmington. (Staff photo by John Spinks, Jr.)

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.

"Twas Christmas Eve of Sixty-four;
And from the ships a mighty roar
Throbb'd amid the fatal smoke
That fill'd the land and sea, and woke
Fort Fisher's men to manly deed
And mighty work to crown their breed
With added glory to hand down
To those who love their high renown.

"Numberless wars in many times
Of many peoples of all climes,
Have furnished men to stir their pride,
Heroes who fought and lived or died,
But never one in any cause
More truly earned sincere applause
Than Christopher Bland of Company K,
Who glorified his gallant day."

Those are the first and last stanzas of a poem written in the early 1920's titled "Kit Bland of Fort Fisher." Authored by Andrew J. Howell, of Whiteville, it commemorated one of the more heroic deeds of the Civil War performed by a Pitt County private of the Confederacy while stationed at beleaguered Fort Fisher below Wilmington.

Between the two stanzas the poet describes how Christopher Columbus Bland, in later years a Primitive Baptist minister in Ayden, climbed up the staff twice to raise the Confederate flag after being shot down by the Northern guns during the siege in the days around Christmas-time, 1864.

But what the author fails to write about, and of prime importance to the man Bland, was that he ascended the staff a third time. Bland's captain, William Brooks, had asked for a volunteer to replace the tattered standard. And in the poet's words:

"Kit Bland, all honor to his name,
Who courted no official fame,
But bore a humble private's part
With courage true and loyal heart,
Seized the flag and climbed aloft,
And at death and danger scoffed
Till he had fixed it in its place
Again to cheer the warrior's face."
Twice Kit Bland ascended the staff, attached the Stars and Bars, and twice he climbed down to resume his post behind the guns. The third time he mounted the staff, jerked off his neckerchief and lashed the flag to it, the Union guns shot his leg completely off.

For 52 years after that Christmas Eve of the last year of the war, Kit Bland lived in Ayden, walking around on an artificial limb and a peg leg. Sometime after he was "paralyzed out" of the Confederate army, he became a Baptist preacher in and around the present Ayden where he rode the circuit of churches from the '70s to 1912 when he experienced a nervous breakdown. From then until his death in 1917 he was inactive in the ministerial role but remained active physically, regardless of his handicap.

Before his discharge from the army, the Yankees took him prisoner and placed him in an army hospital at "Point Lookout," exact whereabouts unknown. There he was discharged when Lee surrendered at Appomattox and returned home.

What is ironic about Bland's heroic flag-lashing deed is that he later married Ocella (Betsy) Boyd, from Edward Mill in Beaufort County. That girl was a direct descendant of Betsy Ross, the creator of the original 13-colony flag. That Private Kit Bland was replacing the flag that represented a direct rebuff to the one his future wife's ancestors made may never have entered his mind in later life when harking back to his deed of late '64.

However, that that Confederate emblem was shredded and finally shot down a third time by Yankee guns provided a rebuff to Bland's efforts. It also provided a historical rebuff to those who were fighting under it. At any rate, Bland saw his duty and performed it, regardless of the outcome or his thinking in later years concerning the paradoxical nature of it.

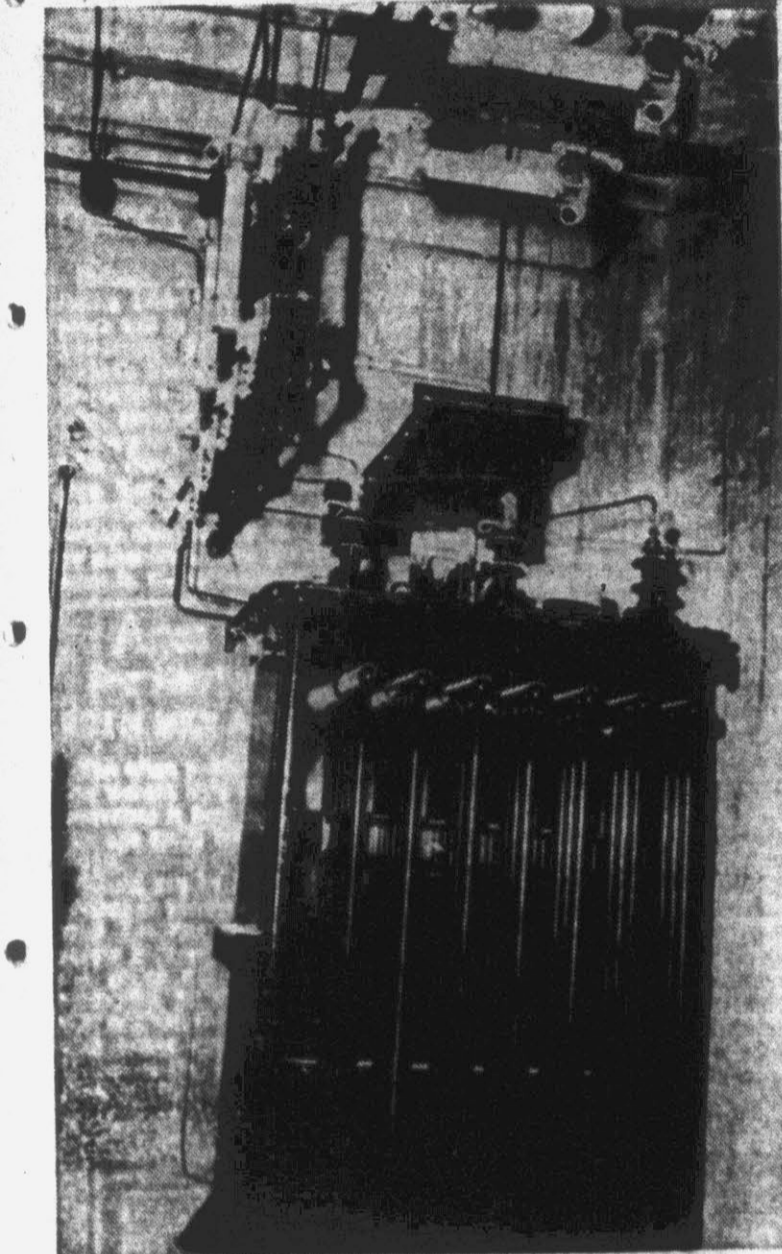

Mrs. W. A. Craft, who now lives in Ayden and is a granddaughter of Christopher Bland (nobody knows how he came to be called Kit in the army), describes him in his later years during his ministry as a tall man, very handsome, one who carried himself erect at all times, and who wore his white teeth every waking hour, even though he was working in the field. Soon after he got out of the army Bland married, and between 1866 and 1893, Betty bore him 12 children. One of his children was T. L. Bland, founder of the Bland Hotel system throughout the South, among which hotels are Durham's Washington Duke and the old Bland Hotel in Raleigh.

Mrs. Craft's mother was Carrie Virginia, born in 1875, the fifth child of the marriage, who married Charles Aldridge. The only living child is Mrs. T. R. Lee, of Kinston, the former Dora Ernestine Bland, born in 1879.

Although Christopher Bland was an ardent supporter of his chosen denomination, he was championing the bit to enter the first World War when England got into it. Mrs. Craft, who lived around his home until she was married, said he was perfectly sure himself that he could handle any military duty given him to do and was provoked at the family when they urged him not to volunteer again. From that it would be safe to assume he was still fired up from his duty in the War.

Sometime in the early '20s the State Historical Society erected a monument to his memory commemorating in stone what Howells' poem of the same period had done on paper. It stands today a monument to the courage and daring of a dead day.

The sea that Christopher Columbus surveyed is currently washing away Fort Fisher. But that Kit Bland's act was performed on the heights above the ocean will live as a tribute to the present proponents of that day and time. Christopher Columbus Bland may well have taken his courage from his namesake of four centuries before.

All of the electrical current which will be required to run the new hospital when it starts operation will come through the units shown above. The transformer rooms will carry as high as 30,000 volts at its peak, officials state. The unit is located in the basement of the hospital.

The foundation has been poured for the two-story nurses home which is being constructed some 200 feet behind the west corner of the hospital.

The home is being built to house resident nurses and student nurses who will be trained at the hospital. The building will be 170 feet long and 45 feet wide.

When completed it will appear as a companion unit of the hospital for it is being constructed of the same materials and will be finished in brick.

Included in this home will be a large living room, lounges, kitchen, and rooms for the nurses and staff personnel. On the top floor will be a laundry, 25 double rooms for staff members, four rooms for superintendents and quarters for the director of nurses. The home will be heated by a boiler located in the building, and will have ample storage units, baths and toilets.

The roof of the building will be of concrete slabs with a covering, the same as the hospital. The private rooms will be tiled with asphalt tile, plaster walls and tiled baths.

An area of some three acres around the building will be terraced, having parking space to accommodate eleven cars, and walks.

Work is expected to proceed rapidly on the nurses home provided that no hold-up is encountered in obtaining materials. Mr. Watkins, local superintendent, said that most of the materials have been ordered and part of the structural steel has arrived with the remainder expected to come in next week, having already been shipped.

He expressed concern that possibly the war threat in Korea might tie up some of the materials, although the orders have been placed.

The tentative date for completion of the nurses home is around November 1.

Total cost of the project, for construction is about $85,000 with an additional $40,000 to be spent for equipping the place.

The plumbing in the nurses home will be done by C. L. Russ and Company of Greenville, while the electrical work will be handled by the Thompson Electrical Company of Raleigh. Several sub-contractors will work out under the contractors in building the roof, tile work and some other portions of the building.

An Act to Appoint Trustees To The Pitt Academy In The Town Of Greenville

Whereas, by an act entitled "An act for establishing an academy at the place heretofore called Martinsborough, in the county of Pitt, and altering the name of Martinsborough to that of Greenville," Richard Caswell, Hugh Williamson, William Blount, John Simpson and others were appointed trustees of "Pitt Academy" in the town of Greenville with certain powers to them and their successors; and whereas at this time no such body of trustees to said academy is in existence, whereby the powers and purposes of the aforementioned act can be exercised and put into force as therein prescribed; therefore,

Section 1. The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact, that William M. B. Brown, John S. Taft, German Bernard, Tilman R. Cherry, Marcellus Moore, William H. Tucker, John S. Smith, William J. Evans, James B. Cherry, Louis Hilliard, Simon B. Wilson, and John G. James, be and they are hereby appointed a body corporate as trustees to the said academy, with such rights and powers as are conferred by the aforementioned act upon the original trustees therein named and their successors.

Section 2. That the act entitled as in the preamble named is hereby revived and declared to be in force so far as to give effect and continuance to the objects and purposes of the said act, and to clothe the trustees appointed by this act with the rights and powers conferred upon the original board.

Section 3. That the trustees aforesaid may hold their first meeting at such place and time as they may appoint.

Section 4. That in the event of the death, resignation or removal from the county, a quorum cannot be held to fill vacancies in the board of trustees, then a less number in meetings assembled shall have power to fill such vacancies.

Section 5. That this act shall go into effect from and after its ratification.

Ratified the 4th day of April 1871.

The foregoing act of the General Assembly of North Carolina revived an act introduced December 5, 1786 and passed December 14th of that year. The original act of incorporation named the following trustees: Governor Richard Caswell, Hugh Williamson, William Blount, John Simpson, James Armstrong, James Gorham, John Hawkes, John Williams, Arthur Forbes, Benjamin May, and Reading Blount.

How long did this school function? Who were some of the teachers? These and other questions we would like to have answered.

As a partial answer to that the Raleigh Register of September 16, 1828 carried a notice of its opening that year on September 8, under superintendent George Stokes who had testimonials from Trinity College, Dublin, and distinguished citizens of Ireland and the United States. He said the common error of rushing pupils through without sufficient foundation would be carefully avoided.

Prices were: (per quarter) beginners, $3.00; reading, writing, ciphering, English grammar, $4.00; for classical education, $7.00; board in town, $5.00, cheaper in the country.

Richard Evans was secretary, pro tem, to the board of trustees.

Greenville Academy

According to Henry T. King's "Sketches of Pitt County" there was a "Greenville Academy" incorporated in 1814. Was that the same school (or a revival of it) as the "Pitt Academy" of former years?

In 1830 there was a female academy chartered. Its incorporators were: General William Clark, Archibald Parker, John C. Gorham, Richard Evans and Absalom Saunders.

A notice in the Raleigh Register of July 7, 1831 makes this announcement:

German War Bride Is Adapting Self Rapidly

By CHESTER WALSH

"The American people are wonderful! I especially like the people of North Carolina, Greenville and Pitt County," Mrs. Ursula Drehsler McLawhorn, German war bride, said to a Greenville Daily Reflector staff reporter today.

She is the wife of James H. McLawhorn, Jr. of the Winterville community of Pitt County, now a student under the GI Bill of Rights and taking a course in automotive mechanics.

This German war bride, now residing in Greenville, is employed at Kares' Restaurant, near Five Points. She has learned English so well that few persons can distinguish any foreign accent in her language.

"It is so wonderful to be in America—among the people of the United States," she said. "People are so friendly. They are so kind. I was happy when I found out that I could come to America, and I'm happy now that I'm here. My husband and I are so happy and we have good plans for the future."

"We came to this country two and a half years ago. I met my husband in the United States zone in Western Germany. He was honorably discharged from the military forces and then rated as a civilian employe. Then we received our papers for entering the United States. We sailed from Bremerhaven-Lehe, Germany, and landed in New York. We had little trouble gaining entrance with our papers made out by the Army people.

"We came to Greenville by bus and for a month lived with my husband's people. Then we rented a farm on shares and worked that for two years. That was on the Randolph farm, on the well-known highway. We did fairly well. Then he started the GI training course in automotive mechanical work at the NYA Center, and I started to work for Kares Restaurant in Greenville.

The German war bride was 18 and her husband, James H. McLawhorn, Jr., 24, when they were married in Germany in 1948. Her people live at Rutenberg Street, 24 Bremerhaven-Lehe, U. S. Zone, Germany. Her father's name is Hermann Drehsler and he and her mother are still living at this address. There are four children, Mrs. Edga Drehsler Koehler, Miss Anneliese Drehsler, Ursula Drehsler, the war bride, and a brother,

Child Brides Are Freed By Court

"We don't want husbands. We want to go to school."

Arabs Protest Military Zoning

Jerusalem, Israel—(AP)—Arabs living in the Upper Galilee sector of Israel want the government to abolish military zones. A delegation called upon the deputy speaker of parliament. It reported 12,000 Arab residents had signed a petition saying they were suffering economically because it was almost impossible for many to move from village to village because of military restrictions.

Israel has an Arab population of 165,000. Of these, 120,000 are Moslems, the remainder Christian Arabs.

ENLISTMENTS JUMP

Washington, July 13—(AP)—The Navy enlisted an estimated 2,100 recruits the first four days of this week, compared with 1,428 for the same four days in June.

A top view of the site of the New Nurses Home to be built on the grounds of the Pitt Memorial hospital gives some idea as to the size that the two story building will be when finished. There will be 25 double rooms in the home to house the student nurses to be trained at the hospital.

With the foundation laid, workmen are shown working on the Nurses home now being built behind the new hospital. A total of $85,000 is expected to be spent in constructing the building and an additional $40,000 for equipment. In the background a truck unloads some of the steel to be used in building the two-story structure. The majority of the materials for the building have been ordered and are expected to arrive at the site in the next few weeks. (Reflector staff photos by Roy Hardee.)

A top view of the entrance to the new Pitt Memorial hospital is shown above, with the curving drives leading up to the building. In a short period of time the fields around the building have been tamed into a green mass of lawn, transforming the area into a beauty spot.

David Dail Chapman Rites Held Thursday

Funeral services for David Dail Chapman 24 were held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock from Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist church conducted by Rev. D. A. Windham, Free Will Baptist Minister of Greenville, assisted by Rev. N. W. Grant Methodist Minister of Bethel. Interment followed in the Church Cemetery.

Mr. Chapman was killed in an automobile and truck collision near Eastville, Virginia on Tuesday. He was a veteran of World War II having served in the U. S. Navy for two years. He served in the European-African-Middle Eastern Area Asiatic-Pacific area, and received a Bronze Star.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Ruth Hammoer, of Eaglesville, Pa., one daughter, Jo Anne Chapman, also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chapman of Bethel, four brothers, Lewis of Hassell; William, Tarboro, Route one; Robert and Odell Chapman of the home. Four sisters, Mrs. Charlie Mills of Bethel, Miss Nellie Chapman of Newport News, Va., Elizabeth Burdick Lee Chapman of the home. His Grandmother Mrs. Florence Mayo and a number of aunts and uncles.

Coal and Wood-burning stoves should be set on insulated metal pads.

the propaganda war. They are continuing to press their foreign broadcasts in an effort to bring favorable relations between the Soviet Union and the buffer nations of the world.

Somehow the Russian approach to the matter seems to be much more effective than the one being used by our own government even on the limited scale upon which we have been operating. Already the Russians are abandoning their drive for communism in Germany and are fostering a return to a strong nationalist nation of Germany—a nation which would once more rise to be an ally of the Russian might. Such talk appeals to the people of Germany who are and have always been extreme nationalists.

While the United States and her allies are seeking to stop the sweeping Red tide of aggression in Korea, they should not neglect the losses they are suffering in the non-shooting propaganda war.

While the government officials of the United States turn their attention to the production war machinery, they should not neglect the vital weapon of propaganda. It has proven its place in international affairs. The United States should seek greater proficiency in the art, as well as the appropriations of sufficient funds to carry out a much-needed program.

News Behind The News
 By RAY TUCKER
 Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 8308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, July 15—"Will you tell me," asks R.S. of Rapid City, S.D., with an anger and anxiety apparently shared by many other readers, "why President Truman will not mobilize Japanese and Chinese veterans who have expressed their willingness to fight the Koreans? Russia has no compunctions about using hardened satellite troops against our young and green soldiers."

Answer: Although this is a natural reaction, President Truman's stand is both correct and wise from every angle. From the standpoint of military tactics, the use of these Oriental forces might not be too helpful.

Chiang's men were so helpless against the Communies on the mainland that there is no assurance of their ability to hold the North Koreans.

The Japs have been demobilized for four years and it would take months to retrain them and instruct them in the use of our kind of weapons. They might not appreciate the call to their victor's colors at a time when they are trying to scrape a bare living from their rugged earth.

AIM—But there are even more important reasons for not relying on Sino-Japanese forces in our battles, especially in this early stage of the conflict.

Washington's principal aim at the moment is to localize the Korean struggle and to prevent it from developing into a global World War III. If we can repel the invasion of South Korea, Stalin may call off his dogs of war, awaiting a better opportunity for staging a showdown with the western powers, meaning the United States.

A mobilization of the Japs and Chinese would give him an excuse for a full-scale operation, in which he might use hundreds of thousands of Chinese Communist forces now under arms across the border in Manchuria. In fact, he may be hoping that we will furnish him this pretense by doing what R.S. suggests.

INTELLIGENCE—"It has been said," writes Mrs. G. W. of New London, Conn., "that our Intelligence Service knew weeks ago that the North Koreans were planning to invade our area to the south. Then, why did President Truman give such scant attention to such a vital Far Eastern matter?"

Answer: Intelligence did warn of a mobilization and massing of troops in North Korea. But they did not have detailed data on the strength of the enemy force. As a result, Washington felt that the invaders would engage in nothing more than border raids and harassment. We did not anticipate an all-out attack.

Intelligence was reporting simultaneously on similar thrusts being prepared along the borders of Iran and Yugoslavia, so that we did not know where to expect a breakout. Indeed, it was almost a replica of pre-Pearl Harbor days.

EXAGGERATED—Roosevelt, Churchill and their military men thought that the Japs would sweep first through Indo-China, Indonesia and Malaya, possibly hitting the Philippines also. Nobody thought they would be rash enough to bomb such a distant target as Hawaii.

Then again, National Defense Secretary Johnson and many of his associates had assured Mr. Truman that our "well-trained and well-equipped force in Southern Korea" could repulse any onslaught from the north.

Here again, as we did with respect to the Japanese, we wishfully minimized the fighting qualities of the enemy. We also exaggerated the Southern Koreans' love of the kind of democracy to which we had exposed them during our occupation.

BOMBS—Mrs. N.A.G. of Hot Springs, Ark., who had a son, a son-in-law and two nephews in World War II, one killed, one wounded and one in resultant ill health, asks why we do not drop a few atom bombs on Russia now. She believes it might deter Stalin from repeating his Korean tactics in other sections of the world. Many others make this same suggestion.

Answer: Natural as this question may be, the atom bomb is out. In the first place, we would horrify our allies, neutrals and well-disposed nations everywhere. Many still condemn us for their use at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, in view of post-war discoveries that Japan could have been defeated without these weapons.

TARGETS—Western Europe would be alienated, for their great fear is that their cities will become A-bomb targets in any Russo-American conflict. So, I predict that no matter what develops, we will let Russia be the first to engage in cosmic warfare.

More practically, the sparse and thinly inhabited Northern Korea (population only 8,000,000) is not a good target for an A-bomb. In fact, ultra-modern planes like our jets have been found inefficient because they fly too fast to be shot down the slower but more maneuverable Russian Yak fighters. Using an A-bomb in Korea would be like killing a mosquito with a cannon.

THE LAMAR COUNTY ECHO (PARIS, TEX.): President Truman continues to point with pride to the unprecedented prosperity of the country. Yes, if spending borrowed money and increasing the public debt is a logical method to produce prosperity, we should all get rich; provided we find some numbskull to lend us money under such conditions.

THE KINGSVILLE RECORD: The guy that bought Savings Bonds in 1940 can now cash in a $4 for $3 in money. But purchasing power of his 13 berries and 6 bits is $3.78 less than it was when he loaned it to Henry Morgenthau.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.
 Many times I have told you that you are missing half your life if you do not read the funnies. The strip I plug hardest is Steve Canyon, simply because there are so many people who don't read him. In order to enjoy Steve, you have to read him for about a month without understanding what's up. Then, like running into a brick wall, it'll hit you. In Steve Canyon, Milton Caniff combines all the virtues of a good strip: excellent drawing, a good plot and dialogue and a bit of humor now and then. All of his characters are rich.

Pushing Steve for a close second is Blondie, for Chick Young is the only cartoonist who never has a dull day. There are several strips that are so bad that I can't read them. Smilin' Jack just makes that category. It takes him a week to say what he should say in a day. Day after day I complain about how slow the strip moves, but still I read it. Lil' Abner is a hot and cold strip. At times it gets to the stage that I knock it off my reading list; then again, it's among the best. Right now it's at its best.

Lil' Abner is riding around in a flying saucer, but says it silly of him to waste his time doing such a thing, because there really is no such thing as a flying saucer. This talk about saucers, he says, is just a wild rumor. The three-headed pilot of the saucer says, "Have it your way. We're not here, but while we're not here let us help you. Your planet is in the same era, our planet was in nine million years ago—the Idiot era. For instance, if you give your money for something and the merchant fails to deliver, you sue him. But, if you give your vote and the politician fails to deliver, you never sue him."

Abner explains, "Natchery! A polythubus promise is just campaign art-tory. We expect to be swindled out of our vote. But if someone swindles us outa money—we fights back. Money is worth something!" Whereupon the three-headed pilot says, "A perfect example of the Idiot era."

When the flying saucer flew over a building and the passengers saw bathing beauties taking a sun bath, Lil' Abner commented, "Yo' claims us earth folks is in the Idiot era, and yet our gals is smart nuff to get themselves up so cute that boys kin hardly keep themselves from grabbin' and klestin' every one they sees."

The saucer pilot questions, "Why do earth boys have to keep themselves from grabbing and kissing the girls they see?"

Abner answers, "Becus th' gals would have 'em arrested."

"Why?"

"Becus nice gals don't want t'be grabbed an' kissed."

"Then why do they get themselves up so cute?"

"Becus they wants boys to want to."

The pilot again exclaims, "A perfect example of the Idiot era."

Al Capp's illustrations of the Idiot-Era make sense. They also make his strip very interesting, if only for a short time. And I thank you.

 Raleigh, N. C.
 FLY-TRAPS—The plant commonly known as "Venus Fly-trap" but entitled to the more dignified botanical name of Dionaea Muscipula, has attracted attention of scientists and laymen. According to the great Darwin it is the "most wonderful plant in the world," and according to Dr. B. W. Wells, famed botanist of Raleigh and State College, it is confined largely to the southeast corner of North Carolina. Because it is unique in characteristics and limited in its habitat, the Venus Fly-trap has been lately subjected to deprivations of those who would capitalize upon its rarity. The same reasons have led the North Carolina Garden Club to seek protection of this unusual plant.

GUARDIAN—Fifteen years ago the Garden Club adopted it as the club flower, and as late as the state garden club meeting in Winston-Salem in May of this year the club adopted a resolution providing that the "Garden Clubs of North Carolina foster necessary legislation to protect the botanical varieties in North Carolina, with particular reference to the Venus Fly-trap." This resolution and the proposed legislation was sponsored mainly by a Chapel Hill group headed by Mrs. H. R. Totten, Mr. and Mrs. Roland McClamrock and others.

INDIGENOUS—Among the peculiarities of this plant is that it cannot be successfully transplanted. It will not thrive outside its natural elements in the peccosins of southeastern North Carolina. Efforts of scientists and laymen to transplant and domesticate the fly-trap have failed. Results in every instance, even when large quantities of peccosin muck has been used, have been the same.

DEMOCRATS—With no contest in sight at the State Democratic Committee meeting on July 25, party leaders are concerned only about getting a quorum. Chief purpose of the meeting is to elect a chairman and vice-chairman for the ensuing two years. To date there is no sign of opposition to continuing the present officers, Everett Jordan of Alamance county and Mrs. D. A. McCormick of Robeson county. The secretary, appointed by the chairman, is Cliff Blue of Moore.

QUORUM—There is some question about whether it will require 112 members present in person or by proxy to constitute a quorum, or if 109 members will do the job. The committee is composed of 18 members from each congressional district, a total of 316. Then the three officials, together with the two members of the national committee and state YDC president, a total of six, are ex-officio members. If a majority of the 322 voting members is required for a quorum there will have to be 112 present. Some parliamentarians hold that majority of the members elected by name from the districts will suffice.

WOMEN—The Democratic plan of organization sets out that the executive committee shall consist of nine men and nine women from each congressional district. Seven of the districts observed this ratio, but five failed to recognize the requirement for an equal number of women members. The second district has ten men and eight women; so does the fourth. The fifth district named only seven women, the sixth district only four, and the eleventh district five. Consequently, of the 216 elected members 131 are men and 85 women, and the ratio of total votes, including ex-officio members, is 125 men to 97 women. It is not anticipated that serious question will be raised or point of order made about this discrepancy. It is probable that women attending the district caucuses in connection with the next Democratic state convention may seek to equalize the membership as required by the plan of organization.

The plant withers and dies within a very short time. Further result is that the novel beauty is lost to the wild state and nothing gained for the home yard.

HAWKERS—In spite of this fact many North Carolinians, and perhaps residents of other states, have been beguiled into buying potted specimens of the plant, from hawkers traveling in trucks painted up to resemble those used in carnival shows. If these potted plants live a week the purchaser is lucky. Garden clubbers are trying to stop this exploitation of a unique North Carolina flower. They have double motive in these efforts. In the first place, purchasers are being cheated. More important, the ruthless depredations on native habitats may result in complete destruction of the species, just as other rare specimens of animal and plant life have been destroyed through selfish commercialization.

CAVEAT EMPTOR—In view of these facts, based on scientific knowledge and experience, Roland McClamrock suggests the hawkers' trucks should carry one more line of decorations reading "Caveat emptor," which means "let the buyer beware."

What Other Papers Are Thinking

EXECUTIVE SESSIONS (New Bern Sun-Journal)
 Some thirty-five of the state newspapermen met in Chapel Hill recently to declare, among other things, that "it is an established journalistic concept that news is public property." That statement was in the nature of a preamble to an expression on serious threats to the right of the public to that public property.

"The agency which has done more than any other to further this truth in the eyes of the public is the Associated Press," said the gathering. "This agency, however, needs the diligent support of all newspapers and newspapermen, and a constant guard is needed against barriers of censorship of news, whether it be in the city hall, courthouse or capitol."

The gathering went on record as being unalterably opposed to any censorship or barrier to news, however indirect, through the so-called "off-the-record" press conferences or statements of public officials and by the news-strangling device of "executive sessions" of public officials, agents or organizations.

Since those in that gathering were newspapermen, and were not discussing the importance of full information on public matters to the public, that phase of the question was not mentioned in the resolutions. The primary right of the public to that type of news which is most often involved in off-the-record conferences and executive sessions is the fact that matters of vital concern to the general public—the business of the public—is being handled and disposed of.

Here in America, no matter how much confidence we have in our elected officers we do not delegate to them our right to know fairly and fully all that is going on. We can only judge their stewardship by knowing their attitude on public matters. Those who favor executive sessions are usually afraid for the public to know details concerning their service.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Korean fighting and the high level of military preparedness is rapidly stepping up the volume of government contracts.

It's now easier for companies, especially smaller firms, to share in this business.

Available at field offices of the Department of Commerce are daily synopses of invitations to bid on purchases to be made by the Department of Defense and the General Services Administration.

Beginning next week there will also be available weekly lists of companies awarded Army, Navy and Air Force contracts of $25,000 and over. Hitherto, only contracts of $50,000 and over have been listed. Most of the contractors become immediate prospects for materials, components, tools, machinery, packaging and services.

These guides to business opportunities are also available at chambers of commerce, trade associations and state development and industrial commissions. While Commerce Department is unable to put individual companies on mailing lists for this information, it is making it available to banks that agree to make it available to the public.

NOTE: Banks not already doing so can render public services and call customers attention to business opportunities by arranging to get this information. Contact Commerce field offices.

In addition to these lists, Commerce field offices have two services for contract-seekers. Open for inspection is a Government-Procurement Manual showing what the government buys, listing the 800 buying offices that make government purchases, and telling how purchases are made. Also available for reference are selected U. S. government specification indexes to assist businessmen to determine what specifications their products must meet.

YAM BREAKFAST FOOD CONSUMER TESTED
 Alabama Polytechnic Institute, having already produced a sweet potato candy and sweet potato snacks, has now produced a sweet potato breakfast food, called Alabama.

Furthermore, the breakfast food has been consumer tested by the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, which reports that a fairly large segment of testers say they would buy it if it was placed on the market. It's made with sweet potatoes and wheat bran.

These products were invented to increase consumption of sweet potatoes. Seems the average American ate 26 pounds of yams a year in 1909 and only 14 pounds in 1949.

OLD PROMOTER PLANS RADIO-ACTIVE PAINT
 The Old Promoter ambled in today with the eager expression of someone seeking fresh fish money.

"There are millions in atoms!" he said. "Standard Oil is already using radio-active trace materials in its pipe lines to signal changes in grades of oil. Goodrich has invented a radio-active golf ball. You can find it in the rough with a Geiger counter."

"Now my idea is a radio-active paint. If you keep losing your glasses, paint them with my paint and your Geiger counter will help find them. If you keep losing money out of your pocket, paint the edges. Paint your dog's collar and you can find him when he runs away."

"Wait a minute!" we said. "Suppose when you lose your glasses, the Geiger click-click leads you to your dog, your neighbor's golf-ball, Standard's pipe line?"

"Invest," said the O.P. "However, I'll give you an option on 100 shares for a cigar."

He was careful when he left, puffing away.

AGRICULTURE BULLETIN EXPLAINS INSURANCE
 Farmers Bulletin No. 2016, published by the Department of Agriculture, may be useful to insurance salesmen. It explains the principles and uses of insurance farmers might be interested in—fire, windstorm, crop, hail, liability and life. It could be used to convince farmers they need more insurance.

NEW AND HOT KITCHEN ACCESSORY: A new kitchen accessory is a wooden box. The top may be used as a cutting board. Opened one way, it's a cullery drawer. Opened another, a slicing machine pops out. (It's by General Slicing Machine Co., Walden, N.Y.)

TRIANGLE: A new draftsman's triangle of rigid Vynilite plastics has five measuring scales, put on by a photographic process for accuracy. (It's by Frank M. Cox Co., 1008 Rockwell Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.)

ANTIOXIDANT: An antioxidant or age-resistor, for rubber which will not stain or discolor white or light colored rubber products has been announced (as antioxidant 2246, by American Cyanamid Co., Bound Brook, N.J.)

SERENADE: An alarm clock that awakes sleepers with "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning" and "I Love You Truly" will be on the market by fall. The manufacturer (Semca Clock Co., 30 Irving Pl., New York) is also introducing a clock with faces on opposite sides for use on night tables between twin beds.

BAG: A zippered, Vynilite plastic bag for keeping travelers' clothes unsoiled and unwrinkled while hung in a car is being produced (by Princess House, 261 Fifth Ave., New York 16). A man's model holds three suits; a woman's model holds six dresses or three suits. The bags are made in five colors.

SLICER: A kitchen device which, at one stroke, cuts a potato into 24 pieces for french frying, is being introduced (by Burns Mfg. Co., 208 E. Water St., Syracuse, N.Y.).

STAND: Portable electric drills may be mounted firmly on work benches with a new drill stand (brought out by Federal Engineering Co., 37 Murray St., New York 7). The stand fits almost all 1-4 and 3-8 inch drills, which may be mounted or dismounted quickly.

Hal Boyle's Column

New York —(AP)— Even the blind and the halt among America's veterans want to help their country in the Korean crisis.

Disability hasn't dimmed their sense of patriotic duty.

This observation comes from a lady who works for the Veterans Administration in Boston. She wrote me a letter on how veterans feel about the present situation in the Far East, and I think it is worth passing on, because I feel it is typical.

"Here in Boston," she wrote, "we have a number of amputees, general blind veterans and others with more or less serious disabilities, helping other veterans with their problems. We also have many men who have seen service in both world wars.

"Most of them hate the idea of more fighting. Most of them feel that war is not inevitable. Not one of the men—or women—I've talked to wants to go back in service, if it's possible to avoid it.

"However, they all think that Korea is a testing ground, and that the United States is perfectly right in backing up its promises with force. Most of them feel that if it develops into World War III—well, better now than later.

"Most of them are ready to go back into service, if the government says they're needed—and that includes the amputees and the blind vets, who feel they can be of use behind the lines, just as they are of importance now to the Veterans Administration because of their training and experience; and because of their understanding of the difficulties encountered by other disabled veterans.

"The fact that these men—and women—are not rushing to recruiting offices to sign up for another hitch doesn't mean a thing. Most of us have responsibilities that we didn't have ten years ago. We're all older, and we know only too well that war isn't a picnic. That also, by the way, seems to be the attitude of most of the kids who are signing up.

"The reason a lot of them don't follow the stories of the Korean fighting too closely is that they know too much about fighting—first-hand. They don't talk about the news for the same reason a family watching one of its members die of cancer doesn't talk too much about the victim's agony.

"It doesn't mean a lack of sympathy or interest—just a realization that talk is cheap, and action is what counts."

I think this woman's letter—she requested that I not use her name—sums up the way most Americans, old or young, feel today about Korea.

There is a great yearning for peace, a great wish that the is-rise raised by the North Korean invasion had never arisen. But there is also a full-hearted determination to see that issue through, because what we stand for as a people is at stake.

Somehow, I wish Joe Stalin in the Kremlin could read that Boston woman's letter—and understand the sentiment behind it. It might give him something to ponder—an insight into how the American democracy operates.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
 WASHINGTON — The scorching battle between the State Department and Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) has smoked over an honest-to-goodness success story of the kind that most Americans like to read about.

It has to do with general John E. Peurifoy, a fellow who only a dozen years ago was running an elevator in the U. S. Capitol building and drawing a weekly paycheck of less than $40. "Jack," as he is called by friend and foe alike, has climbed high and fast in those 12 years. He's only 42 years old now, stocky and boyish-looking, but he's the State Department's deputy undersecretary in charge of personnel and the Department's loyalty program.

Within a few weeks, if all goes according to schedule, Mr. Peurifoy is expected to be "Mr. Ambassador," representing the United States in strategic Greece. His salary then will be about $15,000 a year, and that could be just a beginning if he cares to stick around in the diplomatic service. But Jack appears to have been bitten by the political bug.

It wouldn't surprise his friends if after a few years abroad he went back to his native South Carolina and began shopping around for an opening in the political ranks there. For one thing, he's a close friend of former Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes, who is well entrenched in the higher echelons of South Carolina politics. Jack was climbing up the State Department's ladder in a hurry when Mr. Byrnes was bossing it and he's likely to be remembered as a "handy man" to have around," the politicians agree.

Mr. Peurifoy has already convinced veteran reporters he's a handy man. At his news conferences he's never ducked a question and he's had some lullus tossed to him. He's always available to reporters for private chats. Recently he stood up and slugged toe-to-toe with Senator McCarthy in the word battle over whether there are Communists in the State Department.

Tumor Weighing 59 Pounds Taken From Abdomen

Sayre, Pa., July 15—(AP)—A 60-year old woman was reported "doing nicely" today after an operation during which a 75-inch, 59-pound tumor was removed from her abdomen.

Surgeons at Robert Packer hospital disclosed that the operation was performed yesterday. The surgeons declined to permit publication of their names or of the woman's name.

The 59-pound tumor is not a record, a hospital spokesman said, adding that there are records of a 66 pound tumor having been removed at Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn. The spokesman described the tumor as an ovarian cyst and said it had been growing for about three years.

Story Reversed By Hunted Lion

Fort Lamy, French Equatorial Africa—(AP)—French cameraman, A. Mahuzier, wanted some shots of a hunter killing a lion. He got just the opposite. When his safari finally cornered a lion Marcel Vincent, the hunter, fired and wounded the lion. He had then two bullets left in his gun. He went closer and fired into the air to frighten the lion out again. This left him one bullet. Vincent fired his last shot and missed. He then slung his rifle and ran for the nearest tree. He didn't quite make it and the lion was on his back. The rest of the safari turned up then and finished off the lion, but two hours later Vincent died.

DEATH TOLL RISES
Dayton, O., July 14—(AP)—Death toll in an Air Force B-50 bomber crash near Lebanon, Ohio, yesterday has been raised to 16, Wright-Patterson Air Force base officials reported today.

The black arrows on this map show the routes of North Korean invasion forces driving American and South Korean troops back to the Kum river. Along the river is the last major defense line (jagged line) before Taejon, provisional capital of South Korea. Unofficial reports placed the main Red drive in the Chochiwon-Chongnan area. LET US BE GLAD

It is a beautiful sight to see a profusion of flowers brightening the landscape with brilliant colors. In a well-kept garden or in some remote meadow or woodland an array of blossoms will not fail to win our admiration.

So great is the love of flowers in the human heart that since the beginning of time men have written of their beauty and sung their praises. Gardens grace most of our homes, and where room or climate does not permit, we cultivate blossoms in small containers in our houses.

And what are these fragile things of beauty that gladden our hearts? We can seek the advice of a botanist or an organic chemist, but even then we know that a flower is just one more of God's creations—just one more of the millions and millions of pleasures that He has given us.

For these and all our blessings, let us be glad. Let us go to Church this Sunday and next, and sing His praises.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Rain Put Early Halt To Farmville-Pinetops Tilt

Downpour In Top Of Fourth Breaks Up Game With Pinetops Holding 2-1 Advantage; Doubleheader Planned Later

The rains came in the top of the fourth inning last night to halt the Farmville-Pinetops game at the Stadium with Pinetops holding a slight 2-1 edge.

The game that was originally scheduled to be played in Farmville was transferred to Greenville in the absence of the Robins. It was Farmville's "home" game and attracted the better part of 200 fans, mostly from Farmville.

Pinetops scored its two runs in the top of the third when Kovalchick, the pitcher, beat out a grounder deep to short and advanced to third when M. Webb, the leadoff batter, doubled to right. Both scored when B. Webb got on when a grounder to first skipped over First Baseman Thrift's head and Rightfielder Berry threw high to the plate in an effort to cut down the runners.

Farmville tallied its lone run in the third when Lou Colie, second baseman, crossed on Mauney's double to left. Prior to that Colie had gone on to second when the shortstop threw high over the first baseman's head for the attempted put out.

Norman Clark started the fore-shortened game for Farmville and gave up three hits. The balking out-felder, who attends classes at East Carolina when not at the game of baseball, had his fast ball working nicely and struck out two men in the first when the side was retired in order. He walked one.

The umpires allowed the contest to go on in spite of a fairly heavy shower that halted for half an inning before coming down in earnest. The fans milled around the grandstand for half an hour before being notified the game was called. A doubleheader will be played at a later date.

Score by innings:
Pinetops 002-3 3 2
Farmville 001-1 2 1
Batteries: Pinetops—Kovalchick and C. Cobb; Farmville—Clark and Hardee.

CUBS VS TIGERS

The Cubs of Third Street came from behind to take a close 6 to 5 win over the Tigers of the Training School. The Cubs scored three times in the fourth to gain the lead which held up although the Tigers gave them a scare in the final inning when they scored once and needed only one run to tie. David Bray was the big gun for the Cubs with a single, double and triple in three times at bat. Garner got the only two hits that the Tigers were able to muster off the Stoneham and Roebuck.

BRAVES VS CARDS

W. Greenville's Cards came back to defeat the Braves who earlier in the week had taken a win over them. Taking advantage of several serious misplays by the Braves and hitting hard and opportunely, the Cards led throughout the game and won going away 8 to 2. Bill Taft was the only Brave who was very successful against the fireball pitching of Gene Hudson who allowed only four hits and struck out twelve. Taft got two for four, Carter with a single and two doubles and Jimmy Hendrix with two singles led the Cards.

ROBINS VS WILDCATS

The Third Street Robins scored eleven times in the first three innings and managed to hang on to a 12 to 11 win over the Wildcats of the Training School who fought back and lacked only one run in the final innings of tying the score. Hudson Miller for the Robins got two triples and a double to lead his team at bat. Pock, Nichols and Robinson got two hits each for the Robins. Roy Martin was the only Wildcat to hit safely twice.

Schedule for Monday

Tigers vs. Indians, 9:00.
Bulls vs. Yanks, 9:00.
Dodgers vs. Cards, 2:00.
Red Sox vs. Robins.

Curt Simmons Is Out Of Lineup; On Guard Duty

Philadelphia, July 15—(P)—Curt Simmons, the $65,000 bonus pitcher who made good, won't be around to help the Philadelphia Phillies in their pennant drive during the first two weeks of August.

Instead of taking his turn on the pitching mound, young Curt will be on duty with the 108th field artillery battalion of the 28th division at Indiantown Gap, Pa. from July 29 to August 12.

It's a two-week tour of National Guard duty Curt has been serving for the past three years. But this will mark the first time Simmons will be lost to the club during a pennant fight.

The Phils now are one game ahead of the St. Louis Cards and Simmons, a 21-year-old lefthander from Egypt, Pa., leads the team's pitchers in victories with 11 and in strikeouts.

HEADS NEGRO TEACHERS

Greensboro, N. C., July 15—(P)—J. L. Moffitt of Durham was elected president of the North Carolina Negro Agricultural Teachers Conference at its annual meeting here yesterday.

When Bob Lemon Is On Mound, Indians Have Ten Men On Field

By JACK HANDB

Associated Press Sports Writer
Cleveland is coming strong with Bob Lemon, top pitcher in the majors, showing the way. Good pitch, good hit. That's the story of Lemon, high man on the Tribe totem pole.

When Lemon works, Manager Lou Boudreau feels he has 10 men on his side. The former infielder is an extra man on defense, one of the best fielding pitchers in the game. At bat, he's a dangerous long-distance slugger with a .278 average; three home runs and 14 runs batted in.

Years ago they decided Lemon couldn't hit enough to make the majors as an infielder or outfielder. But Tommy Byrne will carry the bruises on the three-run homer he hit last night for the rest of the season.

Fifth Win Since 1942 For Allen

W. L. Allen, multi-winner of the Country Club golfing championship, this week beat Erzell Webb for his fifth win since 1942 and his second over runner-up Webb.

Allen, who has won the trophy in '42, '45, '47 and '48, this week clinched the 18-hole match on the 14th hole when he was out in front enough to close it out. The outcome was a 5 and 4 victory for the five-time winner.

Both golfers were evened up at the sixth. Then Allen took that one and also the seventh and eighth, the latter on a birdie. They saved the ninth and at the turn, Allen was three up.

Meanwhile, among the other flights, Herbert Waldrop, who recently won the H. A. White Memorial Trophy (President's Cup), beat out Howard Porter one up to win the second flight. The other flights are now in the semi-final stages.

Ironically, it was Waldrop who beat Allen for ownership-for-a-year of the President's Cup. The outcome was a 2 and 1 victory for the two-time winner. The last victory for Waldrop in the competition which began in 1923 was in 1927.

The President's Cup matches this year are the first since 1948.

Cards Concerned Over Brecheen And Stan Musial

St. Louis, July 15—(P)—The pennant-driving and injury-ridden St. Louis Cardinals worried today about the condition of two of their stars—Stan Musial and Harry Brecheen.

Both were retired from last night's game with the Philadelphia Phillies. Musial with a wrenched left knee and Brecheen with a sore pitching arm.

Musial left the contest in the seventh inning after he had slipped in loose dirt while running to first base. It's the same knee that sidelined him for four days earlier in the season.

Wagner-Waldrop hung onto its half-game lead in the league race by downing winless Bilbro Wholesale, 21-4.

In addition to a 25-hit attack by the victors, Bilbro added to its own undoing by committing eight errors. Dave Mosier again took the number one position and set the Wholesalers down on eight hits.

This, too, was a slugfest. Hudson, leftfielder for W-W, knocked two homers in addition to a double. Mosier abetted his pitching by getting a four-bagger, a double and two singles in five trips. Leggett also got four for five.

The win placed Bilbro even deeper in the league basement, seven-and-a-half games behind the leaders who beat them yesterday.

Southpaw Star

Max Lanier makt. no secret of his ambition to join the select circles of 20-game winners but the Cardinals' southpaw mound ace appears to be running out of time. Lanier is 34, and at that age a pitcher isn't able to work as often as is necessary to post 20 victories in a single season.

Lanier had hoped this would be his year. He had the benefit of spring training and could start the season with the Cardinals for the first time since he took a flyer in the Mexican League. That three-year exile from the big show during what might have been his best pitching years set him back considerably. Max rejoined the Cardinals last season when the Mexican jumpers were restored to good standing by Commissioner Happy Chandler but the best he could do was to post five victories again. 1 losses.

There were times this season when Lanier has pitched brilliantly and looked like the M of 1944 when he won 17 games and he led the Cardinals to a pennant and a world championship. And then again, his aching back kicked up and he wasn't much help. Several times this season, Lanier has come through with key victories to stop the Cardinals skidding and keep them in the pennant race. If Old M.x can't realize his dream of winning 20 games, he will set for another p. ant for St. Louis. A cut of the World series melon would go a long way toward salving his feelings.

IT'S DEATH, MY DARLING!

By Amelia Reynolds Long

Chapter 21
The sheriff and the coroner arrived within the next half hour. Oddly enough, it was almost exactly the same time that they had arrived after Claude's death.

Lewis Hays, who had gone up with the coroner and the sheriff upon their arrival, came down the stairs and into the room where the rest of us were waiting. He was followed by Wilkes.

"The sheriff has to ask you a few questions," he said, addressing all of us, but looking at Pick. "He'll try to make them as brief as possible."

Wilkes stepped forward. He looked oddly embarrassed.

"Mr. Hays has been tellin' me what happened," he began with an awkward kindness I'd never dreamed he possessed. "Or as much of it as he knows about. But there are still one or two points I've got to have cleared up. To begin with, who was it discovered the—discovered Mr. Lee?"

"Aunt Delphine—Mrs. Dumont did," I said.

He nodded, and turned to Aunt Delphine.

"How'd you happen to find him, Mrs. Dumont?" he asked.

Aunt Delphine looked up at him with brightly alert eyes.

"I saw him come in."

"You saw him come in?" the sheriff repeated. "But I thought he hadn't left his room all day."

"Not Lee," Aunt Delphine corrected gently. "The other one."

"Other one!" I think the words burst from all of us simultaneously.

"What other one?" the sheriff demanded, staring hard at her.

But at the question, a veil seemed to drop before her eyes. It was as though she retreated into herself.

"I saw him come in," she said again. "Then I saw him go up the stairs, and into Lee's room. He was carrying Pere Etienne's sword in his hand."

"But who, ma'am?" the sheriff demanded.

He held our breath, waiting for the answer. But no answer came. Aunt Delphine covered back in her chair, staring up at him with a look of speechless fear.

Either the sheriff recognized the futility of pressing the matter further just then, or he had suddenly remembered something else. He turned back to the rest of us.

"Wait a minute," he said. "I thought this place was supposed to have been locked up, so that no one could get in."

"It was," Pick spoke for the first time. "I attended to it myself. Miss Piper and Miss Brennan were with me."

The sheriff glanced at Lewis Hays. "Where were you?" he demanded.

"I don't sleep in the house," Lewis Hays answered. "My room is in one of the garconieres."

"Then how'd you get in?"

"Miss Brennan came out and called me."

"But I had to unlock and unbolt the front door first," Bobby put in.

"That's right," I affirmed. "I heard her."

"Then how—" the sheriff began, when Aunt Delphine spoke again.

"He came in through the wall," she said unexpectedly. "The way Dede used to do."

The sheriff wheeled around.

"You mean," he asked, this time trying not to appear too eager for fear of frightening her once more into silence, "that your nephew has a secret way of getting in and out of this house?"

He glanced half reproachfully at Aunt Delphine, then switched to a new subject.

"That sword, now," he began. "Wasn't it the same one Mr. Claude Dumont had when he died?"

It was Pick who answered.

"Yes," she said. "It was my grandfather's sword. He'd left it to Claude, as new head of the family."

"When I was here day before yesterday, nobody seemed to know where it was," the sheriff observed.

"Who found it?"

"My aunt did."

"What did she do with it?" After one experience, he wasn't going to risk addressing any more questions directly to Aunt Delphine.

Pick glanced in my direction.

"She gave it to me," I admitted, and felt my mouth and throat go suddenly dry.

"To you?" The sheriff looked at me oddly. "What for?"

"Usually I don't believe in obstructing an officer of the law in the performance of his duty, but this time I did it."

"To give to the person it should belong to, now that Claude is dead," I evaded. "But since Uncle Raoul wasn't here at the time, it seemed to me that Lee ought to be the person to take charge of it."

He nodded, as though this, at least, fitted smoothly into the picture.

"Then that explains how Mr. Lee happened to have it," he said more to himself than to me.

Just then there was the sound of a car stopping outside, and the next minute Amedeo himself came in. He was followed by Henri, Beau, and Cousin Jeff.

Court Rules Fee For Cat's Care

Santa Monica, Calif., July 15—(AP) Mrs. Iva Le Beck earned $1 an hour for two hours a day by caring for the 23 cats, 11 turtles and one dog of her neighbor, a court ruled.

Mrs. Le Beck sued the estate of Mrs. Lily Dillon for $9,628, contending she was on call 24 hours a day ministering to the pets, doing housework and running errands for Mrs. Dillon until the latter's death in 1944. The court granted her $1,000 yesterday.

Mrs. Beck said she was omitted from Mrs. Dillon's final will, although provision for her had been contained in earlier testaments.

Testifying to the trouble and work caused Mrs. Le Beck by the pets, Mrs. Myra A. Knapp said one of the cats learned to open the refrigerator door and steal food. Another would sit on the stove and hook pieces of meat with its claws from a bubbling kettle, while a third managed to forage illicitly by learning to open the warming oven.

To Ride Niagara In Steel Barrel

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 15—(AP) Major Lloyd Hill made his last preparations today for a plunge over Niagara Falls in an 11-foot long steel barrel.

The 32-year-old Canadian veteran of World War II plans to shove off from an undisclosed point above the Canadian, or Horseshoe Falls shortly after 1 p. m. (EST) tomorrow.

If he does, he will be going against the advice of Jean Lussier of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who made the trip in 1928 in a huge rubber ball.

Lussier took one look at Hill's barrel and remarked:

"I wouldn't try it in that for $50,000."

But Hill expressed complete confidence.

"There won't be anything to it," the thin, angular riverman declared. "I've already made several appointments for next week and, after all, I'll have to keep them."

Five persons have taken the plunge over the Horseshoe Falls. Two besides Lussier lived to tell about it.

Calls Policemen

Hollywood, July 15—(AP)—Radio actor Frank Graham, intrepid detective who out-thinks and outmaneuvers quick-witted criminals over the ether waves, found burglars had entered his home while he was away.

Only electrical appliances were taken. A partially dislodged wall clock stopped at 2:28 o'clock.

Graham did what no radio detective ever stops to do. He called the police.

Smith Campaign Costs Reported

Raleigh, N. C., July 15—(AP)—Willis Smith received contributions of $5,339 and paid out $5,873.72 in his successful runoff campaign for nomination to the U. S. Senate.

The Raleigh attorney, who defeated Senator Frank Graham in the June runoff, turned in his final campaign expense account to Secretary of State Thad Bure yesterday.

Auto Industry Is Ready To Start Arms Production

Detroit, July 15—(AP)—The auto industry right now has no armament work growing out of the Korean war.

It is ready to put all its industrial might into a war job if the occasion requires. But its first must know precisely what its various plants will be asked to build.

Until that time comes the car manufacturers are making no changes in their short-term or long-range planning. They are continuing their plans to maintain high level peacetime employment and proceeding with preparations for 1951 model car introductions later this year as originally scheduled.

Such are the replies of virtually every automobile maker to numerous inquiries as to what effect the Asiatic situation may have on their peacetime production programs.

It is true that just about every automobile plant has been surveyed to determine what kind of arms production it best is fitted for. It is also true the closest possible liaison is being maintained between auto industry and military procurement.

But, industry executives say, what eventually is needed may be entirely different from what lessons of the last war might indicate. Out of all the preliminary studies and the experiences following Pearl Harbor would come a speedier conversion than was possible in the early days of the last war.

At the same time arms work is vastly different from what the auto factories currently are doing. It would take weeks to tear out peacetime conveyors and assembly lines. It would take weeks, too, to build and install wholly different types of machine tools required for armament production.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

In Police Court Friday morning, Judge J. W. H. Roberts found Thomas Hester guilty of being drunk and disorderly and assault with a deadly weapon. The court fined him $30 and ordered him not to visit Blanco Hardee's service station for six months.

Fernie L. Laughinghouse, found guilty of the same charges, was fined $20 and was ordered not to visit Blanco Hardee's service station for six months.

Dillon Focue, guilty of reckless driving and having no brakes and no operator's license, was given 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $25 and costs and he was ordered not to drive an automobile for a year.

Speeding: W. P. Bryan and James R. Langston each paid $20 for speeding.

Drunk: Henry M. Prifer, $15; Watt Smith, colored, $15.

AIR FAIR FRIDAY

Goldboro, July 17—(AP)—The 1950 North Carolina Air Fair will be held in Goldboro next week-end Friday through Sunday.

The 20,000-ton British liner Franconia is aground on the rocky Isle of Orleans in the St. Lawrence river a mile east of Quebec, Canada. Bound for Liverpool, England, with 780 passengers, the huge ship rammed into a shallow reef Wednesday night. She is listing to one side but officials said there was no danger of her rolling on her side. Tugs are removing the passengers. (AP Wirephoto).

About 40 persons were injured Thursday in this wreckage of a special vacation train and a Soo Line freight train which collided near Paynesville, Minn. The passengers, from Ohio and the eastern seaboard, were en route to western Canada on a sightseeing trip. Their ultimate destination is Seattle to attend the national retail hardware dealers' convention. (AP Wirephoto).

No Waste Talk In Korea Airlift

By O.H.P. KING

Tokyo, July 15—(AP)—The men staging the airlift to Korea think it's bigger than the lift to Berlin last year.

Whether it is or not, only official sources can say, and that's military information of value to the enemy.

I saw a part of the airlift when I returned to Japan from Korea. C-47s arrive and depart on a Korean airstrip every few minutes. Teams of Koreans with trucks unload the airplanes with a speed and efficiency inspired by the realization the cargoes will help push back the enemy.

There is no wasted talk. The emptied plane takes off even as the loaded trucks start off the strip.

Bumping a ride back to Japan therefore was easy.

While I was walking the length of the airstrip two C-47s took off. I caught a third.

Our crew of four consisted of Lt. Joe H. Copeland, Dallas, Texas; Lt. Frank B. Perry, Jacksonville, Fla.; Tech. Sgt. Dale McHenry, Fairbury, Neb., and Tech. Sgt. Charles Armstrong, Dallas.

"We make about three trips every day," McHenry said. "We certainly are piling the stuff in—it's got the Berlin airlift beat all hollow."

"But the guys gotta give credit to the fighter pilots. For the life of me, I can't see how those Comanches can keep going. Their airfields are practically useless, their railroads and bridges are blasted, and their supply lines are hit with the big stuff day after day. They can't hold out much longer."

After a pause he added: "How they've gotten so far south beats me. They must have had supply caches hidden along the way. But they're on a one-way road with no backtracking. They'll never see North Korea again."

"Those fighter pilots will turn the trick," McHenry concluded, "but it's a team operation and everybody's essential."
