Typical Scene Of Shopping Rush On Dollar Day

Shoppers Swarm Into Local Stores

Merchants Apparently Well Pleased By Big Turnout That Started Early Today; Stores Crowded Despite Broiling Sun

Sunny skies and dollar day bargains brought shoppers out in droves today as Greenville merchants staged one of the biggest dollar day sales in the city's history.

As early as 8 o'clock this morning shoppers already had appeared on the streets in large numbers and were gathering in front of stores awaiting the 9 o'clock opening.

Many stores, however, were forced to open their doors fifteen to twenty minutes before the 9 o'clock hour because of the large crowds.

In some places mobs blocked the sidewalks waiting for the stores to open.

Mrs. Cora Powell, secretary of the Greenville merchants association, reported shortly before noon today, "All the stores seem to be happy over the dollar day, and all of them seem to be as crowded as can be."

Dr. J. Whitehead, Jr., president of the Greenville Merchants Association, said the dollar day appeared to him one of the most active ever held here.

All the merchants contacted by the Reflector today seemed well pleased with the dollar day crowds.

For the most part the merchants reported heavy traffic through the stores since opening time this morning, although there were a few merchants who said they thought this dollar day would not prove as heavy as last year.

As the sun broiled down on the streets of Greenville the temperature rose to 90 degrees at noon and apparently was on its way to even higher readings in the early afternoon hours.

The shopping was still going at a brisk pace during the noon hour today although it had slackened somewhat from the rush which came shortly after the stores opened.

Many merchants expressed the opinion that shoppers would begin another rush on the dollar day bargains at mid-afternoon.

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—Because everybody there has a right to put in his two cents worth—and does—Congress is usually pretty slow moving and awkward.

That's Democracy at work. And congressmen were told many times. And congressmen, when there's no danger, have the sweet luxury of talking as long as they like.

But in a time of danger, such as we're in now Congress can't afford to be slow, because the very danger means that Democracy is being tested and must show it can work.

At this moment Congress is being very awkward with the way it's going about giving President Truman the kind of economic controls he asked for. If it winds up being slow, too, we may all suffer.

Maybe this will explain what is meant: About the middle of July, after we saw we were up to our necks in Korea and in poor military shape it was generally known President Truman would ask for controls to stop inflation and pay for re-arm-

Bigger Earnings For Large Firms

But New War Taxes May Cut Back 1950 Total To Normal

New York, Aug. 3—(AP)—American corporations are making money faster than ever before, but new war taxes may cut back the 1950 total to well below record size.

A compilation by the Associated Press of earnings of 450 corporations in virtually every field of business shows profits were 43 per cent higher in the second quarter of 1950 than in the same period last year.

The year 1948 stands as the record-breaker for corporate earnings, and 1949 was only slightly below. Thus the second quarter this year is running well ahead of the 1948 record.

Higher corporate taxes for defense needs plus an excess profits tax would cut back 1950 earnings considerably below the 1948 record. Earnings also would be held down by rationing and price fixing.

The 43 per cent jump in second quarter profits to $1,625,040,257 brought earnings of these 450 corporations for the first six months to $2,865,308,269. That is a gain of 24 per cent over the first six months of 1949.

There are three points to keep in mind when looking at the profits picture:

1. All this money was earned before the Korean war started.

2. It shows a remarkable recovery from the let-down earlier in the year during a period of strikes and price reductions.

3. The profits look bigger by comparison with the first half of 1949 when a recession was taking hold of the economy.

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—Issuance of a policy on the deferment of skilled, essential workers from military duty may be considered this afternoon by the National Security Council.

The council, of which President Truman is chairman, is the top-level tribunal on decisions affecting the security of the nation.

The Defense Department yesterday postponed issuance of a statement defining an "interim" policy on excusing National Guardsmen and other reservists from military service because of their essentiality to defense industry.

Government sources said today the postponement was ordered because it was decided the question was of such importance as to warrant review by the cabinet-level council.

Philadelphia, Aug. 3—(AP)—The recent Boy Scout Jamboree at near-by Valley Forge left a problem in many Philadelphia area back yards.

Scouts from southwestern states, particularly Texas, brought hundreds of horned toads—known scientifically as lizards—to the jamboree to swap with other Scouts.

Apparently they traded many of them without advising the new owners how to care for the reptiles.

Dozens of the strangers have been sent to the Philadelphia zoo. A few will be kept for exhibition purposes others shipped to zoos and dealers in climates where they will have a better chance to live.

Bowling Green, Md., Aug. 3—(AP)—The Bowling Green volunteer fire company's baby contest Aug. 16 is being planned down to the last detail.

Seven experienced baby-sitters will be on hand.

And there will be a booth manned by trained personnel of a diaper service, to deal with all eventualities.

Reds Claim 200 U.S. Prisoners

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Communist radio at Pyongyang said today North Korean forces captured 200 American soldiers and 200 prisoners.

Field dispatches have reported U.S. troops and South Korean units pulled out of Andong on the northern front in an orderly withdrawal to new defensive positions.

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Motor Vehicles Department's report of highway accidents for the 24-hour period ending at 10 a.m. today:

Injured—30
Killed to date—507
Killed to date in 1949—453
Injured to date—6701
Injured to date in 1949—5194

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—North Korean forces were surprised by American withdrawals up to 18 miles in three days along Korean battlefronts, a briefing officer at General MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

He said this "indicated the enemy intelligence sources appear to have deteriorated."

The Communists have "lost most of their preponderance of tank strength" through their own losses and the American build-up, the officer said. He refused to indicate what the present ratio is.

However, there has been no indication that Communists on the front line have received tank replacements.

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Senate Finance committee moved swiftly to put the bill in shape for quick Congressional action.

He predicted it will come later, with stiff rates on abnormal business profits. And he added: "If we get into a real war, we're going to have the most drastic taxes this country has ever seen. This tax bill is just to get ready for the big one."

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance committee moved swiftly to put the bill in shape for quick Congressional action.

It voted:
A 10 per cent manufacturers excise on television sets, to collect $42,000,000.

A 10 per cent manufacturer's levy on home freezers, for another $8,000,000.

A boost in the slot machine tax from $100 to $150 a year for each machine in operation. The slot machine operators would risk $5,000,000 additional into the treasury till.

The committee is yet to act on Mr. Truman's major tax increasing proposals.

Scandal For Profiteers

Lucas Says Nobody Is Going To Get Rich At Expense Of The G.I.

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—Senate Democratic leader Lucas said today that, although there may be no immediate tax action against profiteering, the American people can be assured "nobody is going to get rich at the expense of the G. I."

"We are going to take the profits out of war," the Illinois Senator said.

Lucas made his statement as Democratic leaders prepared to ram through Congress a tax-boosting bill, probably near the $5,000,000,000 size President Truman proposed and without an excess profits levy.

An immediate excess profits tax was not recommended by the President, Lucas said, in the interest of speeding the "first installment" tax hike to passage.

He predicted it will come later, with stiff rates on abnormal business profits. And he added: "If we get into a real war, we're going to have the most drastic taxes this country has ever seen. This tax bill is just to get ready for the big one."

Senate Pushing Big Money Bill

Gain Speed On Final Appropriation Items

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Senate picked up speed today as it turned to the last items in a $34,755,000,000 bill financing most government agencies for the year ending next June 30.

After nearly four weeks of speaking, the lawmakers arranged to meet an hour earlier than usual under a procedure which promised swift action on the remaining amendments to the big money bill.

Three hours of debate were set aside for two proposals designed to add $89,000,000 to the measure for health and shipping expenditures. It was agreed that each senator would be limited to five minutes speaking time on each subsequent amendment.

The agreement was reached late yesterday after the expected vote on a proposed 10 per cent across-the-board slash in non-defense expenditures got sidetracked by a wave of speeches.

Most previous economy efforts had failed.

One $10,000,000 item for construction of a new senate office building was trimmed out of the bill. But the senate appropriated an additional $38,070,000 for the Marshall plan, increased the point four program from $10,000,000 to the $26,900,000 asked by President Truman, and made several lesser boosts as well.

Controls Would Take Immediate Effect If Cost Of Living Index Goes Over 'Limit'

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—The house voted tentatively today to put wage and price controls into effect automatically whenever the Labor Department's cost of living index advances five per cent above what it was one year ago.

Administration forces offered only token opposition to the house adopted by voice the cost-of-living amendment offered by Rep. McKinnon (D-Calif.). It could reverse its stand later when the economic control bill comes up for roll-call votes.

The McKinnon amendment is similar to one proposed to the senate banking committee by Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.). It would put wage and price controls into effect automatically whenever the Bureau of Labor Statistics living cost index advances five percent above what it was last June 15.

It would remove the proposed standby authority which would let President Truman decide when to impose wage and price ceilings.

W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources board, made a special trip to the capitol today to urge senators to give the President a free hand in putting the wage-price-rationing curbs into effect.

The BLS price index covers prices of food, clothing, fuel, services, and other necessities of life for moderate-income families in a selected group of large cities.

New index figures covering the June 15-July 15 period will not be available until the end of this month. However, Ewan Clague, director of the BLS, gave senators evidence today that the next index will show an increase.

Clague said a preliminary check of retail food prices indicates a general increase of two to three per cent during the month ended July 15. He attributed advances mainly to higher meat prices.

He told the senate banking committee that the preliminary food price checks covered four cities as of mid-July.

Clague said the figures "lead me to expect a total increase of the same general magnitude as from May to June (mid-month in each case)—that is, two to three per cent for food."

The BLS index issued last month showed an increase of 0.9 per cent from mid-May to mid-June for all the items covered. The index on June 15 was 170.2 per cent of the 1935-1939 average, which is taken as a base or normal period figured at 100.

Marines And Army's Second Division Assigned Positions In Perimeter; Reds Building Up For Heavy Assault Against Carefully Chosen Line

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—U.S. Marines and the Army's reinforcing Second Infantry Division troops rolled into the combat area with Pershing tanks tonight to join the showdown battle for southeast Korea.

They were assigned to positions supporting deployed American troops, who had withdrawn on some fronts up to 18 miles in three days for their big stand on shortened lines.

The lines were in the general area of the winding Nakdong river in spots chosen deliberately by American commanders for their climactic holding action.

A big buildup of enemy forces on the holding front near Chinju was observed by a 24th Infantry tank reconnaissance force. This force fought its way almost to Chinju before wheeling and returning to American lines in the hills 40 miles west of the main U.S. port of Pusan.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported from the front that tank probing forces fought into rear element of Communists.

It was the deepest penetration made yet by an American force into the Red lines and surprised the enemy in a roaring road battle.

The task force ran through machinegun fire all the way out but brought back captured enemy documents, maps and Russian-made equipment. The loot was considered important by intelligence Whitehead reported.

Five Sherman tanks and four armored cars were abandoned by the Americans as they withdrew to road positions four miles southwest of Chinju, about 40 miles west of Pusan.

The Americans pulled out after the Reds had got behind them and cut off the tanks. The Red Koreans stopped the first tank and the last one with immobilizing tactics. The tank crews and most of the armored crews escaped.

The Americans then fanned out to the north and south and fought back to the main U.S. defense position near Wonsung village, about 16 miles northwest of Chinju.

Associated Press Correspondent O. H. P. King quoted Maj. Gen. John E. Church, 24th division commander, as saying the daring tank foray was fortunately timed. "Our attack stopped them from getting underway," Church said.

Leif Erickson, Associated Press correspondent at U.S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea, said the big withdrawal of allied troops in the west and north put the defenders on a line of their choice, the Nakdong river.

The fall back, he said disengaged hard-pressed American forces while the newly arrived Second Infantry division and elements of the First Marine division were being deployed. The new arrivals in the battle sectors have the heaviest arms yet to be brought into combat on the allied side.

On the new consolidated front the Americans and South Koreans face the Communists on virtually equal terms in division strength. There were five American divisions and five South Korean divisions facing an estimated nine to 10 North Korean divisions.

Erickson said, however, the United Nations still lacked enough power to embark on any real counter-offensive. He said there would soon be more carrier-based planes to help break up the long supply lines the Communists now must maintain.

Reports State Is Paving Highways At Record Rate

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The State Highway Commission is paving roads at a record rate.

Commission Chairman Henry W. Jordan reported yesterday that from March 31 through June 30 the commission surfaced 1,045 miles of roads and stabilized 1,411.5 more in the $200,000,000 secondary road program.

That, he said, was more paving than the commission has done in any other three-month period in its history.

Dr. Jordan reported that this, added to the work done before March 31, made up 19.8 per cent of the paving and 16.3 of the stabilization set by Governor Scott as his goal for secondary roads.

In the first 18 months of the Scott Administration, the chairman said, surfacing was put on 2,375.8 miles of secondary roads along with several hundred new miles on other highway systems.

He declared that if good weather holds up, this will become the state's biggest roadbuilding year. Work is under way on about 800 projects, largest number ever in progress at one time, he added.

Although a detailed cost report has not been prepared, Chief Highway Engineer W. H. Rogers Jr. estimated the average cost of the new secondary roads at $12,000 to $14,000 a mile, compared with an original estimate of $18,000.

Dr. Jordan said the state's primary road betterment program is advancing at full speed and will not be slowed by the secondary program.

High Prices And Low Sales Noted

Raleigh, Aug. 3.—(AP)—High prices and low sales was the trend of the South Carolina and North Carolina Border Tobacco belt as markets opened for the third day of the season.

Observers expect sales to continue light until farmers finish harvesting the crop which is later than usual. Quality of leaf offered the first two days was somewhat low due to inclement weather.

After the record-breaking high in prices paid on an opening day Tuesday, averages tapered off slightly yesterday. Most lug grades showed increases over Tuesday's prices, but primings weakened while cutters and nondescript were fairly steady.

Fair to fine lugs, low and fair primings, fair cutters and nondescript made up the bulk of yesterday's offerings, with the general quality below that of the opening day.

Eleven South Carolina markets yesterday averaged $55.15 for a total of 3,383,258 pounds, while the eight North Carolina markets sold 3,516,656 for an average $58.24.

Bandit 'Served' Bank Customers

Branson, Ia., Aug. 3.—(AP)—A bank robber who calmly waited on customers during his holdup operation was sought in South Dakota today after he chartered a plane for part of his escape.

The Branson office of the Morningstar Bank at Sioux City was robbed of $70 by an armed man who accosted Bank Manager Ollie G. Smith yesterday afternoon.

Hours later the trail of the daring bandit ended at Elk Point, S.D. Authorities say he used a car and a chartered plane in his flight.

Smith said the bandit pulled a gun and tied him to a chair in the back room.

When two customers came the robber coolly cashed checks for them, Smith related.

Ward Hill, one of the customers, said the stranger told him: "The regular man is not feeling too good, and although I'm on vacation, they sent for me."

The bandit left with the money in a paper sack. The car he used was later found at the Sioux City Municipal Airport about 15 miles from Branson.

Chief Prison Supervisor Is Asked For Resignation

Raleigh, N.C., Aug. 3—(AP)—The No. 2 official in the State Prison Department which has been hit by two resignations in the top ranks recently, has been asked to step out.

Chief Prison Supervisor J. G. Sawyer disclosed yesterday that Acting Prison Director H. H. Honeycutt had requested his resignation.

The move came on the eve of a highway commission meeting at which the appointment of a director was expected to be considered. The appointee would succeed J. B. Moore, who resigned July 1. Honeycutt was named acting director when Moore moved out.

Dr. Henry W. Jordan, commission chairman, has indicated the choice might be made between Honeycutt and John Gold Winston-Salem police chief.

And Honeycutt's request followed by a day the decision of Kyle Matthews, veteran prison official, to resign. Matthews is now in vacation leave before going off the payroll near the end of this month.

Honeycutt said it was felt Sawyer had been too closely associated with Moore.

"We didn't think that Mr. Sawyer would be so much help to us," he told newsmen. "We just thought it would be the best for the organization. He was closely associated with Mr. Moore."

Sawyer said he first learned of the request—contained in a "little old letter" on his desk—when he returned from lunch.

"This is the worst kiss-off I've ever had," he said. "This is the first time in all my 52 years I've ever been asked to resign from a job."

Thankful That Throat Was Cut

Plentywood, Mont., Aug. 3—(AP)—Roald Lutness is thankful his brother cut his throat.

Here's why: Roald got hit in the adams' apple with a baseball. The blow partially paralyzed a part of his breathing apparatus.

Roald's brother, Bernard, took a paring knife and cut a slit in the injured windpipe. A rubber tube was inserted in the slit, allowing a new intake for the life-giving oxygen.

Then Roald was driven 25 miles from his farm to the local hospital where a doctor praised the amateur surgery.

Bernard explained that most of the technical knowledge for the surgery came from his wife. He said she once trained three months to be a nurse and that it was she who inserted the tube after the incision was made.

Teacher Salary Hike Aired Today

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 3—(AP)—The issue of whether North Carolina School teachers might get an extra pay boost was scheduled for airing before the State Board of Education today.

Top officials of the North Carolina Education Association were slated to appear at a board session to push for a contingent pay increase promised by the 1949 legislature.

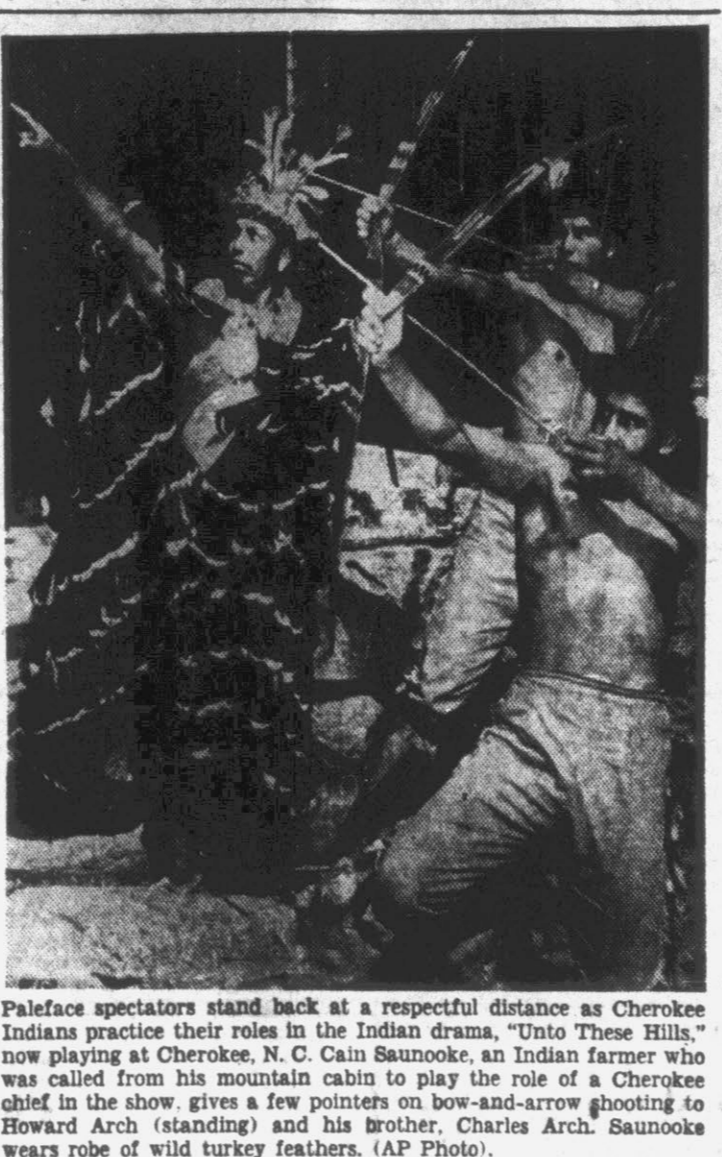

C. M. Abernethy of Lenoir, NCEA president, and A. B. Gibson of Laurinburg, vice president, were to confer with the board.

The last legislature, after raising teacher salaries 29 per cent, approved an additional raise at the end of each fiscal year of this biennium provided "the revenues and surplus of the general fund permit."

At the end of the fiscal year on June 30, the general fund had a balance of more than $13,000,000, according to assistant budget director D. S. Coltrane.

But, Coltrane also told Governor Scott, more than $12,000,000 of the balance would be needed to balance the budget for this fiscal year. The teachers, he added, is only about $800,000—not enough to provide the pay increase.

Arraign Prisoner For Jail Slaying

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 3—(AP)—A 24-year-old ex-convict was arraigned on a murder charge in municipal court here today in connection with the fatal beating of a cell-mate in the city jail Tuesday night.

Charles W. Cranford, Jr., of Winston-Salem was charged with murder last night in the death of General Lee Smith, 42, of Greensboro.

Cranford reportedly beat Smith because he was in the cell that Cranford said was his own. Shortly after the beating, Smith was taken to a local hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Detective Captain W. R. Burke said Cranford was jailed for violating the prohibition law about 10 minutes after Smith had been arrested for drunkenness.

Officers said Cranford's record showed 47 arrests and listed several terms he had served on the roads. He was under suspended sentence for assault with intent to kill at the time of the beating.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
MOST THINGS NEVER CHANGE
In one of Moliere's plays, a doctor makes the statement that the liver is on the left side of the body and the heart is on the right side. When someone challenges this statement, the doctor's reply is "The organs used to be placed as you say, but we have changed all that."

This was a satire, of course, on certain people of Moliere's day who were quite confident that they had discovered something absolutely new and transforming. We live in a day when so many new things have been discovered that some people have the idea that everything old is wrong and everything new is right. Speak to such people about religious beliefs which have been held through the ages and they smile and say, "But we have changed all that now. We have something better."

There is a new approach to education today, and while it may have certain advantages, the plain truth is that college authorities frequently have to test entering students to make sure that they can read. There is a new approach to the study of alcohol, but the old truths about beverage alcohol, namely, that it turns a good man into a bad, a wise man into a foolish man, and a sober man into a dangerous individual, are the realities of which people have been painfully aware for centuries.
Most things in life never change. This is hard for a "progressive age" to admit—but it's true.

Will Rump Sales Win This Year?

Is the eastern tobacco belt going to be faced with the extremely controversial issue of rump sales again this year?

That is a question which is uppermost in the minds of many tobaccoists and many growers in this section of the state. Last year the rump sales were widespread in this belt. There were some markets which persisted in having the rump sales even over the protest of the State Farm Bureau and were forced to discontinue the sales only after a court restraining order.

The Reflector for one is proud of the fact that a rump sale was not operated on the Greenville market even though the other markets were adding the extra sets of buyers which represented only a portion of the tobacco purchasing interests. And at that, these rump sets did not have representation from the major domestic companies. We're not trying to pin a medal on the chest of the Greenville warehousemen for gallantry in action. It's true that Greenville announced that it would have an extra sale on its schedule if it had full representation from the major companies. But when the buyers from the major companies did not show up for the extra sale, the officials of the Greenville market declared not one basket of tobacco would be sold by a rump set of buyers. The sale was abandoned in the interest of the farmers.

The records of the markets which persisted in having rump sales show that the farmers which allowed their tobacco to be sold on rump sales did not get the full price for their leaf compared with the price which was received by the farmers who sold on floors where there were full sets of buyers. In the case of the rump sales, the markets which operated them boosted poundage and their warehousemen's income at the expense of the farmers.

The farm organizations of the state recognized this fact and attacked the rump sales as bad for the farmers.

There is no compromising the fact that the major tobacco markets in this section are in a cut-throat battle for the tobacco of the farmers. The competition is becoming more heated with each selling season, and the tactics are becoming more extreme. We have seen that the tactics have not altogether been carried out with the farmers' benefit in mind.

The Greenville market has refrained from operating rump sales which may have cost growers thousands of dollars. The Greenville market has kept the interest of the growers in mind and in practice although it is evident from the market reports that it has meant a loss of poundage to the Greenville warehousemen.

We feel sure the actions of the Greenville tobacco board of trade in the future will be for the best interest of the farmer as it has been in the past. The Reflector urges the tobacco farmers of this section to keep in mind the markets which have sought to protect the interest of the growers when they market their tobacco.

We urge the farmers to sell their tobacco in Greenville where there is full representation on all of the five sets of buyers, and where the market is being operated to insure the farmers' getting the highest possible price for their tobacco. Greenville is not a market which is being operated to produce additional revenue for the warehousemen at the expense of the farmers.

A Good Appointment For Civilian Defense

Mayor Stafford's choice for the chairman of the local civilian defense committee was wise indeed.

J. H. Rose who was appointed by Stafford to head the local civilian defense organization is a man who is well qualified for position. He did an outstanding job with civilian defense during World War II, and he was recognized as a leader in the movement not only locally, but on a statewide basis.

The effectiveness of civilian defense, however, is like many other efforts which come with wartime conditions. It depends upon the cooperation of the people for its success. The details of the defense organization for Greenville and Pitt county have not been worked out yet, but they will be in the near future. There will be places in the organization for many men and women, young and old to help keep the home front intact in the event of an all-out war.

The civilian defense organization is a very necessary part of the nation's war effort. Cooperation with the program is vital to the nation's security. When you are called on to cooperate with the civilian defense program, do not hesitate to do so.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—"Old Bob" Doughton's successful, one-man fight against lowering the federal tax on the so-called "economy cigarettes" will pour annual, additional revenue of $152,500,000 into the tills of makers and retailers of the "big four" brands alone.

It will also add that extra amount to the annual bill which American smokers pay for "taking a treat instead of a treatment," "walking a mile" for that you-know-what brand and lighting the fag "that satisfies."

It is doubtful if any member of Congress in recent years has performed such an excellent dollars-and-cents service for his important constituents as had the 84-year-old North Carolinian, who heads the House Ways and Means Committee.

HORATIO—His single-handed, behind-the-scenes achievement explains why almost every new member asks for assignment to this legislative unit, in the hope that some day he may be able to service his wealthy and influential clients back home as well as "Muley Bob" makes out for his tobacco bloc down in the Carolinas, Georgia, Virginia and the flue-cured belt generally.

If ever there was a Horatio at the tobacco patch, or road, drying barn, auctioneer's stand, manufacturing plant and corner drug store, where "cigs" are grown, dried, processed and sold, it is stubborn but lovable "Bob" Doughton. Right now he would not swap his job for the Presidency or the Speakership. It is possible to argue that this boosting of prices, especially since everybody is doing it, has become an academic question because of the new and heavier taxes which the Korean "war" and anti-Russian preparations will entail. The government will require more rather than less money, and reduction of nuisance and other levies is out for the duration.

COMPETITION—But tobacco specialists doubt whether the "big four," for competitive reasons alone, would have dared to raise their prices overnight, and seemingly in concerted fashion. If the tax on the "economy brands" had been cut to only 4.9 cents per thousand from the seven cents now imposed on all brands, regardless of their retail selling figure.

Under the proposed reduction, the cheaper varieties would have retailed at a nickel less than the "big four." Treasury experts originally estimated that increased sales would have meant more rather than less revenue for the government, and statistics seemed to bear them out.

Had Mr. Doughton not have been able to force both Treasury statisticians and committee members to change their minds and votes, the "big four" would have been confronted with sharp competition from the independents.

In that event, it is doubtful if the manufacturers of the more popular brands would have dared to increase costs. With take-home pay for millions of smokers sure to decline because of steeper income taxes and higher living costs, they might have shifted to the low-cost article. That is what they did in World War II.

INCREASE—The breakdown details of the new increase have certain interesting aspects, especially for chain-smokers whose addiction to the weed never leads them to count the costs.

The "big four" upped the price by 19.4 cents per thousand cigarettes. It was given out that the increase is a (four-tenths) of a cent a pack, although it was actually 388 cents.

In 1949 the "big four" disposed of 305 billion cigarettes. Thus, at the 19.4 cents a thousand boost, their additional revenue will be $59,170,000 approximately.

CENT—Retailers, however, cannot bother to pass on a 388 increase per pack to the individual buyer, for it would involve too much bookkeeping and other kinds of paper work required by Uncle Sam. Therefore, to make things easier for themselves, they raise the price per pack by one cent flat.

Divide 20 the number of cigarettes in a pack, into 305 billion, the number sold by the "big four" last year, and the total increased bill for smokers is approximately $152,500,000. Of this, about $59 million goes to the manufacturers, and $93.5 million to the retailers.

It has been whimsically suggested by his good friends on Capitol Hill that Mr. Doughton's nickname of "Muley Bob" be changed to "Cigarette Bob." Incidentally, he neither smokes nor drinks.

DAWDLING—The Senate's dawdling over passage of the packaged budget bill for the current year's appropriations has almost brought the executive branch of the government to a standstill. It has handicapped seriously various maneuvers for strengthening the United States in the Korean fray and in preparing for a possible showdown with Russia.

Almost every governmental department will receive additional funds for routine and emergency activities, if the measure gets through the Senate in the shape it passed the House. But there may be many changes in the upper chamber's version, and even these may undergo modification in conference committee or in subsequent House-Senate action on the conference compromise.

POLITICS—As a result, nobody in the downtown office fares to hire essential personnel, make radio contracts for the "Voice of America," engage new experts for the National Resources Security Board, Treasury, State, Commerce, Agriculture, etc. In short, weeks of delay faces strengthening of the home front in the current emergency because of senatorial indecision and politicking.

For some reason or other, although he knows the difficulties which this legislative dragging has caused, President Truman has not used his influence to speed action.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

A fellow from Ohio named Stanley A. Frankel was a Captain in the 37th Division during World War II. In the South Pacific, Stanley was busy with his duties as a company commander one morning in June, 1943, when Staff Sergeant Roger Young came into his tent and said, "Sir, I would like to request permission to be reduced to the rank of private."

It was an odd request. The captain asked Young why he had made it. "Well, sir," the sergeant explained, "my ears are going bad. I can't hear very well any more, and I don't want any of my men killed because of me."

After an examination by a physician, the captain knew that Young's ears were going bad, so he asked him if he wanted a transfer. Young said he definitely did not, that he wanted to fight with his outfit, but as a buck private he would be responsible only for himself. The captain granted Young's request and had him reduced in grade to private "without prejudice." Soon afterwards, the incident was forgotten.

Three weeks later Young's outfit invaded the South Pacific island of New Georgia. It was a great place: the vines were so thick that they almost formed an impassable wall, the insects were almost unbearable, and there wasn't enough water. As if that wasn't enough, the enemy was picking off our boys regularly.

One morning a lieutenant took 20 men on a reconnaissance patrol a mile in front of the lines. The men followed an old Japanese trail, which they thought was deserted. After falling to find enemy activity, the patrol turned back at four o'clock, planning to be in the company area before dark.

Suddenly, a Jap machine gun opened fire and two men were killed before the patrol could flatten into cover. The lieutenant tried a mass maneuver with the other 18, and two more were killed.

The patrol was trapped, and at nightfall the Japs would close in on them. In a short time I imagine the 16 doomed men did plenty of thinking. Nobody knows what Private Roger Young was thinking. He might have thought that he was only 25 years old, which is pretty young to die.

Whatever his thoughts were, Young started to crawl toward the machine gun. The Japs saw the grass move and let go with a blast that cracked in Young's left arm and busted the stock of his rifle. He let his rifle drop, but kept moving. His buddies fired blindly at the emplacement, trying to divert the fire, but it didn't work. Another blast hit Young's left leg, but he kept going. Finally he reached a shallow hole about five yards from the machine gun. It was deep enough to give him temporary safety.

Quickly, Young reached into his belt with his good right hand and pulled out a hand grenade. He pulled the pin out with his teeth, reared up and back, and threw the grenade at the emplacement. The third blast caught Young full in the face, but his job was done. The grenade blast killed every one of the five Japs in the emplacement. The 15 survivors made the rest of the trip back to the company area without trouble, and Private Roger Young didn't have to worry about being responsible for the lives of his buddies.

For this feat, Young was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor, and an Army ballad has been written in his honor.

And I thank Young's Company commander, Stanley A. Frankel, whose story I have re-written.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Raleigh, N. C.

OPTIMISTS—An elderly and fairly successful lawyer stood in the capitol rotunda listening to the noise upstairs where more than a hundred and fifty young men were taking the state bar examination. Occasionally one of the young fellows would come down stairs, and each one seemed all pepped up and happy. The older lawyer commented on the optimism of youth. "Everyone of these boys," he said, "thinks he will get rich practicing law. They have picked out a few highly successful practitioners as the standard, overlooking the hundreds of others who fail to earn a living from legal fees."

AVERAGE—That led to discussion of what is the average earnings of lawyers, derived wholly from the practice of law. The man said it was less than a thousand dollars a year. "Everyone of these boys," he said, "thinks he will get rich practicing law. They have picked out a few highly successful practitioners as the standard, overlooking the hundreds of others who fail to earn a living from legal fees."

STEEL—The idea of a steel mill in North Carolina is by no means as fantastic as some poorly informed people might think. It is one of the numerous prospects in the list of things which might be done to develop this state and contribute to national defense and overall progress. In past years the south at large, North Carolina in particular, has had small percentage of permanent installations, a lion's share of training camps. Most of these were abandoned when the temporary need was over, although Fort Bragg, Pope Field, Camp Lejeune and Cherry Point remain as major military posts. The state also derived substantial permanent benefit, direct and indirect, from Camp Butner, Seymour Johnson Field and other World War II centers. Something might result from establishment of a hydrogen bomb plant here, but for long range view a steel mill and similar permanent manufacturing plants would be worth more to the state.

DECENTRALIZATION—Shortly after the Pearl Harbor disaster a Senate committee headed by Senator McCarran of Nevada began study of plans for decentralizing (or re-centralizing) industry. One of the prime objectives was to establish steel plants outside the congested Ohio-Pennsylvania district. The committee also anticipated petting out of the Meigs Range iron ore deposits and need for new sources of iron and steel components. That led to studies in North Carolina and other states of potential sources of supply. At instance of Governor Broughton and general assembly financed a survey by the H. A. Brassett firm of possible minerals to be found in this state. Chief tangible result of that survey is current operation of coal mines in the Deep River fields of Chatham and Lee counties. Olivine as source of magnesium metal, and iron ores in quantity were discovered in western part of the state. Trouble was that cost of processing was too high. The survey for materials and processing was extended to other countries and one of the largest deposits of iron ore in the world was found in Venezuela.

What Other Papers Are Thinking
Third, we go along heartily with the idea of a one-minute duration for the films. This is also in line with the idea of maintaining interest.
Now, on our own, we wish to make a recommendation to the sponsoring group. It's this: Please don't show a film too long!
Every Christmas in our cinema palaces patrons are bored to tears by a strip of film bringing the management's Yule greetings to the audience. Fairly well done, usually with some worthwhile color in the background, these printed messages are in vogue on most screens for several weeks before Christmas. Sometimes they start about December 1.

DON'T OVERDO IT (Greensboro Daily News)
Patrons of North Carolina's 600 theaters will, some time in the future, look at a series of 52 one-minute safety films sponsored by the Governor's Advisory Committee on Highway Safety.

There are several things about this program we approve.
First, we endorse the idea of promoting "way safety" and movies can be a good medium to get the safety message before the people.
Second, we approve the idea of having a number of films. Variety is still the spice of life. People will look only at something that interests them. But more about this in a moment.

People who to the movies as much as once a week—and some go much more—are disgusted with these sentimental presentations by the time Christmas comes. And, to increase the rub, many managers keep these trailers running after Christmas.
We hope that the safety program films are not mishandled in this fashion.
Two or three days in each theater for each of the 52 films should be enough. There is going to be some duplication, because many people attend more than one movie house.
But an important and worthwhile project like this should not be overdone.

Business Today

By ELMER BOESSNER
There's been a lot of talk about scare buying, hoarding and the added buying power resulting from more and longer employment. But there is another kind of buying behind today's spectacular rise in sales. It might be called end-of-procrastination buying.
The Old Promoter has been planning to buy what he calls a new "front" for months. He had the money, but he just kept putting it off until the Korean war joined him. Then he bought his new suit.
There's a girl we know who is so opposed to hoarding that when it became an ugly word a month ago, she stopped buying sugar, coffee and nylon. In two weeks every stocking she owned came to the end of its dupontian cycle and started running. Almost apologetically, she bought six pairs of nylons.
A business man has been planning since spring to turn his car in on a new model in September. When he heard about the rush and delay in orders, he put his order in last week. A veteran is taking possession of a new house in the fall. The house is a mile beyond electric transportation. Ordinarily, he would have bought a car until October, but he's looking for one today.
These incidents can be multiplied thousands of times, perhaps millions. There's scarcely a person who hasn't planned to buy something when he got around to it, only to be shocked into buying it now.
This end-of-procrastination buying will run itself out. Hoarding of food seems to be on the wane. All we have left to worry about is scare buying, shortages, higher taxes, the draft and spies.

EGG AND POULTRY SUPPLIES ADEQUATE
No shortages of eggs or poultry are foreseen by the Department of Agriculture. Because tomorrow's broilers have already been hatched, the supply will be constant for four or five months and because the year's crop of layers is already at work, egg supplies can neither be increased or decreased much for a year. Any rise in military demand can be met, in part, from huge stocks of frozen turkey and dried eggs, and in a decline of civilian consumption resulting from drafting egg-eaters into the army.
TAX RETURNS SHOW CIGARET DECLINE
Cigaret smoking declined last year, the Federation of Tax Administrators concluded from a study of cigaret tax payments. Cigarets sold in 1949 averaged 2,360 for each man, woman and baby, about 20 less than the year before. It's still more than two packs a week. The Federation reports that consumption was highest in Delaware, with 3,000 per inhabitant. Their statisticians must have forgotten that in 1949 Delaware did a huge mail-order export business with other states.
INTRA-STORE FORMS ARE STANDARDIZED
Five standardized advertising and sales promotions forms are being distributed to member stores by the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

The forms were evolved from a study and are intended to avert slip-ups in the procedure. They are:
An advertising request form, for buyers passing information on to the advertising department.
An advertising copy form, which makes sure copywriters get all needed facts.
An advertising proof and result report, which makes sure salespeople know what's advertised, when and where.
A post-mortem form, to collect data on results of the promotion.
A promotion job ticket, which is an envelope in which to keep all data pertaining to a promotion in one place, with a summary on the outside of the envelope.

TIME MAY BOTHER COAST-TO-COAST TV
Extension of TV network from coast to coast (expected in 1952 if war does not interfere) may be another stimulus to television but it will be a bigger problem for producers of the headline shows. The best hours for telecasting in the east are in the evening, when it's still afternoon on the Pacific slope.
Radio has solved the problem with transcribed shows or repeat live shows. But kinescoped repeats are not yet satisfactory and the cost of live repeats may be very high. Perhaps by 1952 some genius will come up with a new repeat system.

NEW AND HOT
GUN: An electric-mortar gun, said to enable semi-skilled labor to lay mortar evenly on concrete or clay blocks or hollow tile, is being introduced by Vita Labor Saving Tool, Inc., Smithtown Branch, N.Y.
NON-SKID: A new personalized memo pad has a non-skid base and won't slip across a desk while in use. (It's by Personalized Gift Co., 3760 Linden Blvd., St. Louis 8.)

CHANGEABLE: The cover of a new umbrella may be removed and replaced with a cover in a different design in two to four minutes. The maker (Eichenbaum Umbrella Co., 298 Fifth Ave., New York) offers extra covers in a wide variety of color and designs in Vinylite plastic.
BOX: Larger housewares are now being produced by injection molding, producing smooth contours and rounded corners. Newest is a washable bread box in white or red Lustrex (by Plas-Tex Corp., Los Angeles).
ALARM: Newest pocket alarm not only delivers a steady blast from horn but also flashes a blinding light in the face of an acrobat. It is about the size of a cigaret pack (and is by Novelty Corp. of America, Chester Bldg., Cleveland 14, Ohio).
CUPS: Unbreakable eye cups are being made of polyethylene (by Wheeling Stamping Co., Wheeling, W. Va.). When dropped they don't shatter, but bounce.

Hal Boyle's Column

A Forward Base in Korea—(AP)—The only people I know who love airfields are pilots. To an outsider, most airfields look alike. But they hold personalities of their own to the men who wheel planes through the skies. Just what the difference between them is, I have never been able to find out.

An airport, to me, is just a control tower, a windsock in the breeze and broad stripes of safety on which I can land and again feel mother nature welcome me through my feet.
But airfields are homes to the fliers. They like to adventure through the cloud-filled pastures of space. Once they land, however, they want to stay right on the other boys. It's hard to get 'em to drive out and see what the towns are like that the airbases are built to serve. To them, the airport itself is a complete city.

And certainly this most advanced airstrip is a wonderful and complicated community. It sends out fighter planes to deal death to the enemy and it receives our own battle-wounded and flies them out in comfort to a general hospital in Japan.
It is all done so casually and completely that a stranger could wander across the field and never know what was going on.

This airstrip lies in a valley surrounded by hills that would be called mountains in the Ozarks of Missouri and Arkansas—but just hills in Colorado.
It is much like Taftul, the famous World War II crossroads airfield outside Oran in Africa. When the sun shines it is hell swept by dust. When it rains you can take a dozen steps and the mud on your feet will weigh more than your shoes.
It is a pioneer village, built out of the need for immediate close support of the ground troops. The ground crews and fliers live in tents adjoining the field. An air control plane and the F-51 fighter planes fly to the enemy front lines in 20 minutes or so.

Transport pilots from bases in Japan fly in a welcome case of beer for their buddies in combat. But there is no parading of anybody. Often a flier who has made three missions to the front in a day comes home weary as night to find the mess hall closed. They don't open it up again for him. He eats out of a can and hits the sack—worn out.
It is strange but true that the fliers of the modern war are often older on the average than infantrymen. In the Second World War it was more the other way around.

You see many doughboys, for example, between 18 and 20 years of age. But three men in the transport plane that flew me here a week ago are all married, and among them have ten children.
But the biggest thrill the crew had came when their unarmed plane was fired on by an enemy tank in the early days of the campaign.

"We ducked into a cloud bank over a mountain and got away," said the co-pilot, Capt. Doran Kelly. "But ever since then Sgt. (Arthur) Erickson keeps a sharp lookout every time we approach the Korean coast."
"That's right," said Erickson cheerfully. "And I'm going to keep right on looking. I have something to come home to."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Mrs. Louise A. Baldwin wasn't thinking of finding a husband when she came to Washington from Mount Vernon, Ind., in 1940 to work for the government. A widow, then 38, with two daughters, eight and 12 years old, she had always wanted to work for the government. "Primarily I thought living here would be an advantage for the girls," she told me. "Also, I thought the government offered a variety of opportunities for women like myself, and a certain security. Then, the world situation seemed to be shaping up, and I wanted to be in the midst of things."

Mrs. Baldwin, working on the Mount Vernon Daily Democrat and acting as a radio correspondent for the Evansville (Ind.) Press, heard of openings for typists. She went to night school three months, took a typing course, got up to 77 words a minute. "I took my exam in Evansville on a rotary typewriter and got a job here as senior typist at $1,440 a year," she said. "I shared a $60 two-bedroom apartment with another girl for a while, but my daughter's in school and worked like fury."

Soon after she arrived, Sergeant Baldwin was advanced to another job and to help herself along she took a year's night course in international law at American University. Now, as an editor of a Federal Personnel Manual, she earns $9,300 a year; but lives in a five-room $80 apartment—a find in this overpriced town.

"I'm not at the top of the ladder yet," she insists, "that is, as far as ambitions go. I've mapped out another night school course for next fall."

Red Korean Officers Commit Hara-Kiri When Capture Near

By BELMAN MORIN
Tokyo, Aug. 3—(AP)—An American intelligence officer said yesterday that no Red Korean officers above the rank of second lieutenant had been captured.

"They invariably kill themselves before we can grab them," he explained.

This was the first high official evidence that Koreans in the face of capture are committing hara-kiri, a former traditional practice of suicide among Japanese who considered themselves disgraced.

The bag of prisoners is extremely small, the officer said. Only 17 were captured day before yesterday. He did not say how many Reds had been captured since the war started. About four second lieutenants have been taken and "five or 10 noncoms."

The fact that allied forces have retreated almost constantly probably is one reason for the small total. The officer expressed the belief that the situation would change when United Nations forces swing to the offensive.

"We are itching to get an officer commanding a tank," he said. "But so far we haven't had any luck. When a tank is hit by 2.5 inch rockets or the bigger five-inchers from the air it usually is destroyed and the whole crew killed."

The officer said the only Red tankmen captured came from damaged machines. In such cases the commander, if unable to escape, shoots himself.

He said captured Red tankmen have disclosed they have two great fears—land mines and rockets from aircraft.

"They are mortally afraid of our planes," the officer said.

He gave this picture of North Korean prisoners:

The average age is 22. Ages range between 16 and 30.

Large numbers of those taken prisoner were conscripted early this year. This indicates the date for war probably had been selected then.

These men received "only brief training" and the officer said "results can not be regarded as good."

Such troops contrast sharply with the Reds' crack divisions, at least those which had four years of training and were officered by Koreans who fought for the Chinese Communists. American officers have been frankly admiring the work of these divisions.

Fear, and not political indoctrination or deep conviction, motivates the actions of those taken prisoner, the officer said. Questioning brought out that the men are terribly afraid of their officers "and when given an order they behave like robots. They lack the ability to think and act with intelligence."

Prisoners said that when units are disorganized by such things as strafing they automatically become guerrillas. They discard uniforms and put on civilian clothes.

"Even then," the officer said, "they don't quit fighting. They go on as guerrillas or until they are put in new units."

Man-Eating Lion Finally Killed By Spearmen

Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan (AP)—Natives finally have speared to death "Asad the Assassin," a man-eating lion who killed seven humans but ran away when an angry housewife pulled his tail. Three persons mauled by the lion are in serious condition at Sources Yubu hospital.

For weeks the killer had been stalking the Zande country of Equatoria province, South Sudan. He got his name from the Arabic word for lion—"asad."

The villagers finally tracked the lion and killed him with spears. Examination of the body showed he was very large, old and—like most man-eaters, had teeth missing which caused him to turn to easily killed human prey.

Israel Reaffirms Church Freedom

JERUSALEM—(AP)—The Israeli government says it is sticking to a policy of religious freedom for all denominations in this country. This principle again was made clear recently in a letter from the office of Premier David Ben-Gurion to five Protestant church leaders.

They had protested the refusal of the Israel Broadcasting Service to permit the Hebrew portion of a scheduled Protestant religious service to be broadcast. The government replied that Protestant communities are free to use the Hebrew language in their radio-cast services as long as the content does not constitute an affront to the religious feeling or sense of propriety of other religious denominations.

The first time "Old Glory" flew over a fortress of the old world was in 1805 at the pirate stronghold, Derne in Tripoli. The flag was raised by Marines.

Anti-TB Drive In Israel Is Ended

Tel Aviv, Israel—(AP)—An international medical team working with the United Nations children's emergency fund, is winding up its work here after examining nearly 300,000 Israelis for tuberculosis and other diseases. The team, headed by Dr. Ole Horwitz of Copenhagen, Denmark, announced 177,000 Israelis had been vaccinated against tuberculosis since the health campaign was started Nov 1 1949.

CHAMPAGNE FROM ISRAEL NATHANY, Israel—(AP)—French and Israeli capitalists plan to export champagne from this little Mediterranean coastal city. A bottling plant now is under construction. The export product will be known as "Champagne-Israeli."

Lewey Pitches Three-Hitter Against Wilson As Locals Win By 2-1 Margin

Bartolozzi Singles Home Game-Winning Runs In Seventh; Tepedino Leads Hitting Attack With Three Singles; Victory Is Tenth For Lewey

By BERT MOYE
Jim Lewey got his 10th victory of the season on a neat three-hitter as the Greenville Robins edged the Wilson Tobs, 2-1, at Guy Smith Stadium before a small crowd of enthusiastic fans.

The win for Lewey was his fourth of the season over the Tobs, having bested them twice. In addition to limiting the Tobs to three hits, Lewey struck out a total of eight men and walked only two.

The Robins did all their scoring in the seventh frame. Paul Strausser beat out an infield hit, John Tepedino singled into centerfield with Strausser taking third. Tepedino then stole second. Ralph Bartolozzi then lined out a single into left field to bring home Strausser and Tepedino for the two runs.

The Tobs came back in the eighth inning to score their lone tally of the game. After two men were out, Lewey walked Ray Harbaugh and Bootie Gramsley, who went in to punch-hit for Ralat, and then Irvin Dickens lined a drive through the legs of shortstop Vince Leutatio with Harbaugh racing home. Bobby Dingler flew out into centerfield to retire the side.

The Tobs used three hurlers in last night's contest with Vann Sexton, the starting hurler being charged with the loss, his ninth of the season and his second to the Robins. Sexton gave up a total of 9 hits and both of the Robins' runs in the six frames which he worked. Milton Ralat and Mickey Hennessey finished the game as relief hurlers.

John Tepedino collected three singles in five trips to the plate and Paul Strausser, Ralph Bartolozzi and Dick Bland got two singles each to lead the 10-hit attack off the three Tobs hurlers.

The Robins begin a hard pull for the next three days tonight when they play the first in a series of three straight twin bills. They journey to Wilson tonight to meet the Tobs in a twin bill and return home Friday night to meet the Rocky Mount Leafs in a bargain bill and then play the Leafs a twin bill over in Rocky Mount on Saturday night.

Phillies' Punch

"Phillies' Punch".

By way of establishing himself as the best third baseman in the National League through his steady fielding and spectacular hitting, Puddin' Head Jones has earned serious consideration in the battle for the most valuable player award. Jones has blossomed out as a star and experts are comparing him with the great Pie Traynor, former Pittsburgh king of the corners. And the comparison is not out of place.

Big league scouts first learned of Jones through the tales coming out of the south about a strapping kid who was playing in the semi-pro Palmetto League and hitting terrific home runs that were all but waste the countryside. Johnny Nee, of the Phillies' scouting staff beat the rust of rival ivory hunters, and brought the fabulous youngster to Shibe Park in September of 1946. After training with the Phillies in 1947, Jones was sent to Terre Haute where he played shortstop and batted .307. The following season he started with Utica and moved up to Toronto to complete the year.

John Marshall And Speedy Japanese Swimmer Set To Clash In Exhibition

Tokyo, Aug. 3—(AP)—The American-Japanese three-day international swimming meet opens tomorrow but chief interest centers on three exhibition races.

They match Hiroshinshi Furuhashi, Nippon's world record holder, and John Marshall, the Australian flash of Yale University. Because of Marshall's nationality, his points will not count in the American team totals.

The meet—the third contest of its kind since the Japanese began to emerge in international sports prominence—has the flavor of a miniature Olympic games to Japan. The Japanese figure they will gain points in freestyle events and may lose them in the breaststroke and backstroke. The Japanese only recently took to the butterfly (overhand) stroke in the former event, abandoning the old sailor-style breaststroke.

Yankees Angry Over Story That Joe Is Sulking

Detroit, Aug. 3—(AP)—The New York Yankees are hopping mad about published reports that Joe Dimaggio, star outfielder, is sulking to manager Casey Stengel. "Anyone who knows Casey Stengel's reputation as a manager and Joe Dimaggio's reputation as a team player, will realize how ridiculous is any talk of a disagreement between them," George Weiss, Yankee general manager, said in a statement.

"For this reason the Yankees will not dignify the story by making any further comment on it." Joe Trimble, New York Daily News baseball writer with the Yankees, reported that Dimaggio is "wearing a cloak of martyrdom" because of his recent removal from the clean-up spot in the batting order. Johnny Mize now hits fourth and Dimaggio fifth.

N. C. Schoolboy Grid Talent Has Begun Practice

Greensboro, N. C., Aug. 3—(AP)—Forty-six of North Carolina's outstanding high school football players of last season began drills here today for the second annual all-star classic.

The game pits the best schoolboy talent in the Eastern part of the state against the cream of the Western sector. Last year the east won 20-7.

Joe Caruso of Henderson, with Jack Young of Ahoskie and Hank Madden of Wilson as assistants, is coaching the East this year. The West is being coached by George Wingfield of Reidsville, with Stan Huffman of Burlington and Wally Shelton of Mt. Airy as assistants.

Pep Is Ready For Sandy Saddler

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 3—(AP)—Willie Pep is ready to defend his featherweight title against Sandy Saddler in New York next month. The 126-pound champion from Hartford, Conn., never was in better form than last night as he gained a unanimous decision over ring wise Proctor Heinold of Oklahoma City in a 10-round non-title scrap.

Pep took charge of the fight in the first round and, although there were no knockdowns, he never was out of command. Referee Jack Walter and Judge Ken West gave him all ten rounds.

Wagner-Waldrop vs. Post Office, Third St. Sch. No. 2

Ormond Wholesale avenged a kind defeat by Scott Motors in Tuesday's games as it scored the winning run in the seventh inning yesterday to take the second game 10-9 and even the series at one win each.

And Post Office came up with a stunning victory over the front-running Wagner-Waldrop team 13-3. The underdog, by virtue of its final season standing of fourth place, got off to a slow start in the first game of the series but picked up speed in the fifth inning when eight runs crossed.

Pitcher Smith for the victors had all his stuff and allowed but five W-W hits. He scattered all three runs over the full route, the last crossing in the seventh as a result of two errors by his teammates.

Both Post Office and W-W got at it again today. If Post Office takes the second win, the finals of the playoffs will begin tomorrow. The winner of the Post-Ormond series will be the opponent. That one runs to three out of five games.

In the Scott-Ormond game, the situation was reversed from the first game of the two-out-of-three series. Yesterday Scott held the lead most of the way rather than Ormond which was the case in Tuesday's tiff. Scott shoved across a run in the sixth to even the count at 9-all. But Ormond matched that run in their half of the seventh and blanketed the motor team in the sudden-death half for the win.

Scott outhit Ormond by three hits, getting 12 to their nine. Both were fairly ragged afield, Scott committing four errors and Ormond three.

The third and deciding game in that series will be played today. Gordon, who pitched the win for Ormond yesterday, will take the mound today, making his third appearance on the hill in as many days.

TONIGHT'S GAMES
GREENVILLE at Wilson. (2)
New Bern at Roa. Rapids (2)
Rocky Mount at Kinston (2)
Goldboro at Tarboro (2)
O-O-O

There will be big doings in Rocky Mount's municipal stadium Saturday night. A Rocky Mount booster club has been formed to sponsor a program to be known as "Appreciation Night" for the Rocky Leafs when they meet an old rival, The Greenville Robins, in a double header.

"Appreciation Night" will honor the Leafs in general for winning 1949 pennant for Rocky Mount—and incidentally the permanent raising will be part of the ceremony—and two of the Leafs in particular: Jim Reges and George Griffin. Red Oak's contribution to the Leaf effort in organized baseball. The booster club, originally intended to claim 100 members in order to promote an attendance of 5,000 at the program Saturday night, has now far exceeded the first 100 and now it has set its goal as 500 members.

Ray Goodman, president of the Coastal Plain League, will be a guest that night to watch the pennant-raising, and he will toss out the first ball when the opener gets underway.

The toughest part in any baseball game is taken by the umpire. He has few friends, he is the object of many pointed remarks, and he sometimes feels like a step-child on the field.

But the umpire plays an important part in the game. Without him, one could imagine what the game would be like. Close decisions in close games makes the umpire a marked man.

But a sense of humor can make or break an umpire. Many of them have that humorous side, and on many occasions a violent argument has been stopped simply by some wise crack of the man in blue.

Many umpire stories are worth repeating. A batter was at the plate and he swung at a curved ball which broke down and out. It was of course strike one. The pitcher came back with another in practically the same spot, and the umpire yelled "strike two." The batter turned around and said "you missed that one." The umpire said "we are all even now since you missed the first one." The argument stopped right there.

On another occasion a big league batter stood at the plate and the pitcher breezed a fast one down the slot which the batter thought was wide of the plate. He took the pitch with the bat on his shoulder. The umpire bellowed "strike one." The batter turned around and said "Blankety blank you certainly missed that one. Coolly, the umpire said, "I wouldn't have missed it if I had have had the bat in my hands."

Another argument was nipped in the bud. Dizzy Dean when he was with the St. Louis Cardinals always had his share of troubles with the umpires. One hot day he was telling on the mound, and the ump wasn't calling them to suit Dizzy. Finally, he strode up to the plate as the umpire called "time." He borrowed the umpire's broom, carefully swept off home plate, then took his finger and made a little gulley around the plate. Then he turned to the umpire and said, "You blind so and so, take a good look at home plate. I know you haven't seen it before all day." The umpire looked, and said Mr. Dean, the heat is getting you; perhaps a little rest on the bench will cool you off—bye, bye, bye, Dean." Thus Old Diz was chamed from the game. The men in blue must run the game.

Dissinger Believes In Younger Players As Spark For Ball Club

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.

Take an incessant love of baseball, add it to the desire to see late teenagers start in the game, mix those with the desire to make money plus giving the community pride in its baseball club and you come up with a full course dinner that best personifies the great American game of baseball.

And that in a nutshell best typifies the owner of the Greenville Robins.

Roy Dissinger has been in the game for 20 years at the present writing and will remain with it for the next 20, and longer, if he has anything to do with his own longevity.

Those 20 years are just about the majority of the years the man has been around, at least that's his story. He claims to be 27—"that's my baseball age," he says with a grin that suggests nobody should ask a baseball man his exact age. The grin states also if one asks that particular question, he won't get a particularly exact answer.

But regardless of his age, the man with the already-receded tanned forehead has been around long enough to acquire two ball clubs of his own, plus the player options of three others in North and South Carolina.

But before he broke into direct ownership, the man from Connecticut began his baseball career with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1930 as chief scout for the New England area. Continuing in that capacity, he became head of the Cards' talent schools throughout the country.

While heading those camps from year to year, Dissinger filtered out such great names of the present and past game as Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter, Whitey Kurowski, Terry Moore and Eddie Kazak. All five present a front that any team can take pride in owning. But that the prospect—conscious Dissinger dished all of them up to the Cards' laps through the years is something else.

From the talent schools, Dissinger was sent to head the business office of the New Orleans Pelicans in the Southern Association. During his first year there—1946—he just missed being named Manager of the Year for minor league clubs for some unknown reason.

Anyhow, one of the main reasons for the honor was the drawing the Pelicans made at the box office that year. More than 400,000 paid admissions were received during the season in addition to 80,000 during the spring exhibition series. Neither figure reflects the extra number of ladies admitted free or the kids in the Knothole Gang who were also gratis patrons. 1946 was the greatest year New Orleans had at the gate, to say nothing of the box office sales.

From New Orleans Dissinger became a free agent and went out on his own hook. He obtained exclusive player rights of the teams at Anderson, South Carolina, Hammond, Louisiana, and Mooreville, and late last year and early this year bought the franchises to the Greenville and Lumberton clubs.

The man thinks Greenville's rise from last place to the present second position is natural—"and wonderful"—and he has every reason to believe they'll climb into first place before the season is over. And he has a point to make in believing such.

"The only way to have a close-knit club is to supply it with young and eager kids who want to advance in the game. There's no percentage in bringing so-called "money" ball players in here those guys that are too old to get any kick out of the college try, he stated the other day during one of his frequent visits here.

Dissinger continued in that vein, asking to take a look at the Winston-Salem Cards. "They've got a crew there that averages about 20. All kids for the most part. They want to play ball for a long time and know if they make good in the minor leagues, they'll move up. If the same thing is true in Greenville. If I can supply the team with the necessary players when they're needed, we'll have a club that wants to and can win the championship."

That's what he intends to do. By shifting his players around among his clubs, he can do the same thing for all five teams just as those clubs could if they were a part of some major team's farm system.

As to what effect the much-thought-of war might have on his clubs, Dissinger said, of course, it would hurt much more all minor league clubs than the majors. And when he says he hates to see the war come along because of what it will do to baseball, he isn't meaning it in a mercenary or self-righteous way.

He thinks that to take a boy out of his first year's baseball uniform, when he has been playing good ball for a club, will ruin his chances in the game later on. "That is to say nothing of ruining his life in other phases too," he added.

But regardless of the lowering war clouds, the Robins' president plans to continue his personal talent schools next year. Right now he is making plans for the biggest training camp he has ever conducted. It will be held at Melbourne, Florida, next February and March and will be supervised by Randy Hefflin.

Concerning the Robins' playing manager, Dissinger will go at any length to keep him, outside of standing in his way of heading back to the majors. And that possibility, Dissinger thinks, is highly probable. "Hefflin has developed the club into what it is now and has been the major factor in getting into the first division. We don't have any sore arms on the team and that is a result of Randy's training. He works 'em hard when they need it, which is most of the time when you're playing in this league."

ROY DISSINGER

Tam O'Shanter Golf Play Opens At Crack Of Dawn

Chicago, Aug. 3—(AP)—The $75,000 Tam O'Shanter Golf Jubilee became a milk wagon Derby today. The main batch of 250 pros was forced to tee off at daybreak.

There was such a last minute rush of entries that promoter Geo. S. May had to revise his schedule for the first two days into a dawn-to-dusk affair.

With the exception of exempted players who were automatically awarded berths on the basis of past records, the hordes of less fortunate pros were to tee off at the unheard-of hour of 6 a. m. While rosters were crowding they started off on an 18-hole qualifying jaunt for 56 places open in the all-American tourney bracket.

So large was the field that extended qualifying trials were also set for tomorrow morning. The 56 qualifiers and 20 hand-picked pros begin 72-hole medal play for the all American poe of gold Saturday.

Meanwhile, the women and the men American opened fire today. In all, more than 400 players were ready to uncork the biggest bombardment in golf history.

After today's early birds got started, the nation's best women pros and amateurs followed in their first round of tourney action. The bumper to bumper procession is expected

LAST CHANCE

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE

Chapter 5

Crouching down behind the plate, "Rock" nodded impulsively as the thought slid through his brain. Just three more outs, that's all.

He flashed the signal to Straw for one close inside to the left-handed Tiger who was in the batter's box. Al Straw gave the acknowledging nod, went through his full wind-up and pitch. It was close inside, but not close enough. "Rock's" heart stood still, and then it started to beat again as he saw Sanger move over a few steps and set himself. A moment later he had that ball in his glove for the number one out.

"One gone!" "Rock" roared and held up a finger. "One gone. Now for two!"

Hunching down once more, he flashed the signal for a slider to the right-handed batter. It came over beautifully, and the albatross took it with his club on his shoulder. He took the second pitch, too, out this one the plate umpire called a ball. On the third pitch the batter tried to check his swing, but the ball hit the handle and dribbled down toward third. The Lions' third sacker was in like a flash and his throw to first was five steps ahead of the runner for the second out. "Rock" tossed his mitt a few feet in the air and let out a howl of joy. This was the kind of baseball he loved. This was real ball.

THE PHANTOM

THE PHANTOM AND HERO LEAP OVER THE SPERMEN INTO THE HANU VILLAGE!

"Oh, God! He's killed himself! He'll never play ball again!"

Slowly, painfully, carefully, "Rock" felt himself being pulled back from the black depths. He seemed to be hearing bells, to feel silver chains around him, pulling, pulling ever so slowly. He wanted to lie there, to be alone. But those bells and those chains would not let him.

With a groan of effort, "Rock" opened his eyes. A face seemed to swim before him. A face of an angel. And it was from her mouth that the bells were pealing.

"Rock, Rock, Darling. Please wake up, please, for my sake," they seemed to be carolling.

"This must be heaven, Angel." "Rock" grinned feebly. "But I can't come just yet. I've got a ball game to finish first. Got to get that foul ball before it goes into the stands. Got to make it!"

But the silver bands seemed to hold him down as he struggled feebly to rise and he saw that the arms of the angel were about him.

"Be turned frantically to the intern in the ambulance speeding toward the hospital. "Doctor, how is he? Will he be all right? I can't lose him now!"

"Don't worry, Miss Lee," grinned the intern. "This fellow's not called 'Rock' for nothing. He'll have to stay in the hospital for a few days so that we can check up on his concussion, but I don't think he's done himself any serious damage."

"Thank heaven!" cried Bettv. "Heaven," murmured "Rock" as he lapsed into unconsciousness again. "Where have I been up to now?"

Evidence Grows Red Forces Can Be Held On U. S. Lines

By LEIF ERICKSON
U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea, Aug. 3—(AP)—The day of the greatest withdrawal by United Nations forces in Korea brought the strongest evidence that the Korean Communist advance may be checked and held on the line of the defenders' choice—the Nakdong River.

The allied withdrawal to the Nakdong disengaged hard-pressed American forces while the newly arrived Second Infantry Division and the First Marine Division were being deployed into position.

On the new consolidated front the Americans and South Koreans face the Communists on virtually equal terms in division strength—for the first time.

There were elements of five American divisions and five South Korean divisions facing an estimated nine or ten North Korean divisions.

The North Korean Reds no longer may be wholly free to concentrate locally stronger attack forces with power to flank and encircle outnumbered Americans.

There may even be an opportunity for an American attack to isolate and cut up the Communist forces at the end of their long supply lines. The most vulnerable Red force would be the Fourth Division. It is in the deep south at Chlnju. But there is far from enough strength yet for the United Nations forces to embark on any real counter-offensive. There is not enough manpower to exploit breakthroughs. But the time appears near when the Communist steamroller momentum, with the advantage of surprise assault against ill-prepared and meager opposition, will be checked. The psychological effect on the North Korean forces of missing the chance for quick victory will be important.

Already there is evidence that supply and arms shortages are hurting the Reds. This is particularly true in the far south where their supply line is most extended.

Vandalism Costs Negro 75 Dollars

By CHESTER WALSH
Judge Dink James had to refer to the wisdom of Solomon in passing judgment on Preston Isler, Negro, charged with damaging personal property, in Pitt County Recorder's Court Tuesday.

Testimony was that Isler and Lawrence Brown, Negro, and two women were riding in a car with Roscoe Fields, Negro, at a rural point; and that car trouble developed and Fields stopped to make repairs. A witness testified that Preston Isler went into W. R. Ball's field and pulled up 105 stacks of tobacco while the driver was trying to repair the automobile.

"Ironically," said Solicitor Charles Whedbee said, "Fields, driver of the car, after seeing his companion pull up the tobacco stacks, went up to a tenant house occupied by Annanias Dixon, Negro, to get him to push his car off. The tenant pretended he could not get his car started, but went down to the road. He made a note of Fields' license number and reported it to authorities after he learned about the uprooting of tobacco plants."

Judge James found Preston Isler guilty of damaging personal property and gave him four months on the roads. The judge suspended judgment on payment of $50 to W. R. Ball for the damaged tobacco and $25 fine. Lawrence Brown and Roscoe Fields were not guilty.

Plan Elementary Science Session

Conferences for teachers, supervisors, and students who are interested in elementary science will be held at East Carolina Teachers College Friday, August 4, from 9:30 to 1 p. m., according to an announcement today by Dr. Harold C. Jones, of the college science department.

Miss Julia Wetherington, State Supervisor of Elementary Education, of Raleigh, will be the conference leader according to Dr. Jones. Plans are being made to conduct a number of round table discussions on subjects of interest to teachers of elementary science. Among the topics to be considered will be, "How can field trips be made more effective," and "What improvements can be made in the teaching of elementary science."

During the day, exhibits will be on display which have been prepared by teachers and pupils of elementary science. Also included in the exhibition will be materials which supplement the teaching of science in elementary grades.

A luncheon will be held in the North Dining Hall on the campus at noon with Miss Wetherington giving a summary of the morning's discussion. The elementary conference is being held at the college in cooperation with the work being offered in Workshop-Use Education throughout the state this summer.

Yep, You Did See Horses Yesterday 'Pruning' Grass On Courthouse Lawn
You saw horses on the courthouse lawn? Well, it wasn't your imagination. It was the real thing.

Wednesday afternoon in downtown Greenville is on the quiet side anyway, and such was the case yesterday when three young ladies on horseback rode up to the stoplight at the corner of Evans and Third Streets.

When the light turned to green, the lassies directed their horses to the sidewalk adjacent to the courthouse lawn. Two of the young ladies held the reins of the three horses while the third young lady dashed across the street to the post office. Upon her return the three remounted and went on their way.

The horses didn't seem to mind the short wait, and the pruning job they did to the grass didn't mar the looks of the courthouse lawn.

Maybe that metal rail around the corner of the courthouse lawn was meant to be a hitching rail anyway.

Tar Heel Girls In Washington Find Teen-Agers Are Alike Everywhere

(From The Reflector's Washington Bureau)
Washington, Aug. 3—Two Tar Heel girls, attending the American Legion Auxiliary's Girls Nation here, are learning, to their surprise, that teen-agers from all parts of the country are pretty much alike.

To 17-year-old Blanche Wilkins, of Rocky Mount, and 16-year-old Barbara Worthington, of Winterville, it's been somewhat of a revelation to find—in their own words—that girls from faraway parts of the United States are "just human—not like foreigners at all."

"We get along together just fine. It's sort of like we all were sisters," they report.

Young Miss Wilkins has been having a particularly interesting experience, as her roommate is a girl of Japanese ancestry. All the delegates are living in Mount Vernon seminary, on the outskirts of Washington, where dormitories have been turned over to Girls Nation.

"My roommate is Japanese. Her name is Cherry. I can't pronounce her last name (Yuriko Tsutsumada), but she's a wonderful person. Cherry was governor of Arizona Girls State," explains the Rocky Mount girl.

Miss Wilkins was governor of North Carolina Girls State, while Miss Worthington was lieutenant governor. The two, although very good friends, are in separate "parties" here, as each delegate was assigned to a party. The Winterville teen-ager is a Federalist, but Rocky Mount's delegate is a Nationalist.

This hasn't interfered with their comradeship, though.

Both have taken an active part in Girls Nation affairs. Miss Worthington was nominated as chairman of her party but lost out on the final count. Miss Wilkins served as a guard when the group placed a wreath on the tomb of George Washington at Mount Vernon.

They have met numerous government officials and "really learned our responsibility as future citizens," according to Miss Wilkins. Both expressed gratitude to the Legion Auxiliary for choosing them to represent "the whole, big state of North Carolina" at the Nation. They have tried to discharge their responsibility to the state by distributing folders advertising North Carolina as a vacationland.

Highlights of the Girls Nation program was today's visit to the

Austin Rejects 'Deals' On Korea

Lake Success, Aug. 3—(AP)—The solid opposition of seven nations today doomed Russia's latest move to seat Red China on the Security Council as part of a peace deal for Korea.

Six countries—Britain, France, Cuba, Norway and Nationalist China—followed the United States' lead yesterday in insisting that the Council discuss the Korean question before considering admission of Communists China to the Council, and that the two questions be treated separately.

American Chief delegate Warren R. Austin led the fight to reject any "deals" for settlement of the Korean war. He declared the U. S. will never agree that the end of North Korean aggression depends on any other issue.

As the third day of debate began today on the procedural tangle (at 2 p. m. EST) Council delegates watched with particular interest to see what India would do.

The great Asiatic nation hasn't the power to alter the outcome, but her strategic position in the East gave added significance to whatever stand she takes when her delegate, Sir Benegal N. Rau, speaks today on the agenda proposed by Russian delegate Jakob A. Malik.

The council is still tangled in debate over what it should discuss, and in what order. Some delegates hoped to get a vote on the question today.

Polio Cases Over U. S. Show Gain

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—Acute Poliomyelitis increased in the nation last week with 964 cases reported compared with 827 for the preceding week, the public health service said today.

The figures do not include Colorado, which had seven new cases the previous week.

For the calendar year, and for the current "disease" year, however, the nationwide total is below that of 1949 to date.

Thus far this year the 6,067 cases reported runs 1,135 less than the 8,202 cases to date last year. The cumulative total for the disease year, 4,947, is far less than the 7,289 reported to date in 1949, the highest on record.

The "disease" year for polio begins with the seasonal low point reached in the 12th week of 1950.

Texas reported the largest number of new cases last week, 107 compared with 111 the preceding week. That state's 1,395 cases for the calendar year thus far is highest in the country and is a gain over the 1,203 reported there in the corresponding period a year ago, also highest in the nation.

California has the next largest number of cases to date this year, 605 compared with 795 last year.

populated counties.
Recommendations set out by the State Board of Health call for one sanitarian for each 15,000 persons in a county.

At present, no specific duties have been programmed for Pate. Barnhart stated he is being "shown the ropes" by Morgan, who has been with the department for three years.

Whether Pate will take over the entire milk and dairy inspection of Pitt's 20-odd dairies has not been determined as yet. Such duties were handled entirely by Brigham when he was here as sanitation inspector and milk specialist.

Pate attended the University of North Carolina and majored in science. He was classed as senior sanitarian by the State Board of Health merit system examination prior to working in Greene County. He is married and has no children.

He Who . . .

Republican, offered a bill in the house that would give the government not only much of what the President asked but price and wage controls too.

The House began to debate all this on Tuesday.

This week President Truman said he'd be satisfied if Congress gave him power to control prices and wages. But, he said, these controls are not needed immediately. So he said he thought stand-by authority to use the controls would be enough.

And yesterday some of his Democratic Lieutenants in Congress introduced another bill, to take the place of the first one they had offered.

This bill must have been prepared in an awful rush. For one thing, six lines were dropped out of it. And—many members of the House said they hadn't even had a
