Senate Sees Sure Vote For Emergency Bill On Controls

Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Senate Administration leaders said today support by Republican Senator Ives virtually clinches passage of a bill giving President Truman authority to invoke wage-price controls and rationing, when he sees fit. Democrats in charge of the measure said they figure the New Yorkers' warm backing of the bill—already made clear—will rally enough GOP votes to assure a comfortable margin on the final ballot expected next week.

Maybank (D-SC) floor manager of the measure. Maybank predicted defeat for an amendment by Senator Taft (R-O) which would knock from the bill a provision giving the President a free hand to decide whether and when wage-price rationing controls should be imposed. Taft's proposal is to let Congress make those decisions later. The Ohioan, chairman of the senate Republican policy committee, told the senate yesterday there is no need for such controls now. He added that if Congress is going to authorize them, it should at least retain the right to say when they should be used. Mr. Truman did not ask for wage-price-rationing authority, but he has said he would be glad to have it if Congress also gave him full discretion as to whether and when to use the power.

The President also has said the time for all-out mobilization is not in sight. Taft said the bill would give the President "complete and arbitrary dictatorial power over the entire economic life of the country." Ives, a member of the senate banking committee which drafted the bill, minced no words in replying to Taft, although he did not mention the Ohioan by name. Ives said: "Adoption (of the Taft plan) would impair the effectiveness of such controls as we may now authorize the executive to impose at once; it would serve as a handicap to efforts to curb inflation. x x x "It could deprive the executive of the capacity to act in the event of a sudden critical emergency when immediate action would be imperative; it would deny the reality of the great peril which threatens the nation."

Spaak Backs Churchill's Unity Plea

Warns Risking Destruction By Inaction; Defense Pacts Are Insufficient. Strasbourg, France, Aug. 12—(AP)—Belgian Socialist leader Paul-Henri Spaak warned Western Europe today to speed a unified defense or risk destruction of its civilization. The Brussels and North Atlantic pacts are "just so much ink and paper," the president of the European consultative assembly told a news conference. The Belgian leader unqualifiedly supported Winston Churchill's proposal that Western European government combine their forces under a single command as a bulwark against Russian aggression. A British Conservative party spokesman said today that Churchill will present his proposal—already endorsed by the assembly—to the British House of Commons when it meets in special session Sept. 12. Spaak noted that the experience of two world wars had shown the Allies the advantages of a unified command. He added that in those conflicts such unity was adopted only after "military miracles"—the Battle of the Marne and the Battle of London—enabled the Allies to carry on. He asked: "Can our civilization base its existence on a third performance of a miracle?" Joining Churchill's declaration for positive immediate action under one defense minister, the Belgian leader said: "With all the warnings we've had, and all the time that's been given us, if we cannot solve our problems and if we are attacked without being ready, then our responsibility before history will be overwhelming."

Reds Reinforce Battle Line Across Nakdong River; Pohang Fight Eases

Says Russia Is Aggressor In Korea

Former Vice President Henry A. Wallace sits at Mutual Broadcasting System microphone in New York during radio interview in which he said "Russia is clearly the aggressor" in Korea. The 1948 Progressive Party presidential candidate who recently resigned from the party after it refused to support the U. S. stand in Korea, said that Russia actually is at war with the U. S. in the Korean fighting. (AP Wirephoto).

U.S. Units Roll Northward From Southern Front To Meet Mounting Threat; Embattled Pohang Is Half Held By Reds; American Officers Confident City Can Be Recaptured, Air Base Saved

Max Desfor reported from Pohang that American tanks led a South Korean patrol into the center of the city without drawing serious fire. A few enemy troops quickly disappeared, Desfor said. He reported there was no Communist fire hitting the airstrip. Along the Nakdong River line 24 miles west, allied forces hurled back two new Red thrusts across the Nakdong River in the Waegwan area near Tegu. In the Changnyong area to the south, the Reds set up a road block between Yangsang, eight miles south of Changnyong, and Miryang, 16 miles to the east. This was considerably south of the 24th Division's position. Erickson said the evident purpose was to drive against the 24th from the east while it was fighting a frontal attack along the Nakdong. Col. John (Mike) Michaelis, who commanded the main task force in the drive toward Chinha, led the reinforcements northward. The 24th Division Friday whittled down the bridgehead and gained more than a mile along the three-mile front in an attack that carried one Yank column to the river. Allied aircraft continued to blast troop concentrations, convoys and gun emplacements behind the frontlines, from the southern sector to Pohang. Fighter planes flew more than 350 sorties in close ground support Friday, an Air Force summary reported. Continued heavy Communist thrusts at night has resulted in the unusual assignment of F-80 jets and F-51 Mustang fighters to night patrol work, a headquarters spokesman reported. During Thursday night light 24 bombers flew a new record total of 48 night missions against enemy Red defenses. In addition to the B-29 attack on Najin other big bombers hit key communications targets. More than 20 main rail and highway bridges were bombed Friday. A Navy patrol bomber caught 10 small steam vessels off the North Korean coast between Wonsan and Masudan and left them all in flames the Navy reported.

Special Tax Exemption For U. S. Fighting Men

Congress Appears Ready To Extend Special Privileges To Men In Fighting Areas In Preparing New Tax Bill. Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Congress appeared agreed today that GI's fighting in Korea shall pay no federal income taxes, and that the taxes of their officers shall be reduced. A special exemption for servicemen in areas of hostility will be written into a new tax bill asked by President Truman to raise $5,000,000,000 a year as the "first installment" of the Nation's payments on the Korean war and America's rearming against Communism. The decision on fighting men's taxes was made yesterday by the senate finance committee as it unanimously approved an increase of about $5,000,000,000 a year in taxes on personal income of over $6,000,000 taxpayers. The committee now has approved the major items of the President's tax program. It has followed his main proposals, but the bill when completed may fall some millions short of raising $5,000,000,000 at the present rate of national income. Senators George (D-Ga.) and Millikin (R-Colo.) said they expect the measure to sail through the senate. George is committee chairman; Millikin is the senior Republican. The bill may reach the White house by Sept. 1, unless Congress becomes tangled in an argument over whether to impose an excess profits tax on corporations.

Solons Ask Arms Aid For Formosa

Knowland Sees Room For Move In Acheson's Statement. Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Several lawmakers called today for speedy military aid to bolster Formosa against the same kind of Communist assault that struck Korea. Senator Knowland (R-Calif.) said Secretary of State Acheson's statement there is ample room within present American policies to give military help to the Chinese Nationalists ought to be followed immediately by the shipping of supplies to Chiang Kai-Shek. "All it takes is the will of the executive department to move badly needed equipment to Formosa," Knowland told a reporter, "it ought to be done now so that we won't face the problem of trying to supply troops there after the assault has started, as we did in Korea." Acheson told a news conference yesterday there has been no change in the U. S. policy of preventing both a Communist attack on Formosa and Nationalist attacks on the mainland. He added that there is ample room within present policies for military aid to the Nationalists. In a review of the world situation, Acheson praised Gen. Douglas MacArthur as a "tall and inspiring leader," adding that he shares MacArthur's confidence of victory in Korea.

Services Calling More Reserves

Army And Air Force Add 59,000 To Number Being Called. Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—The Army and Air Force are calling up 59,444 more reserves, boosting to 121,444 the number they will summon for active duty within the next two and one-half months. The Air Force, hinting at additional future calls, said last night it expects to put 3,000 officers and 42,000 enlisted men into active service by early fall. It spoke of this number as an "initial requirement." The Army announced it is ordering 3,444 male reserve officers to active duty by October 6. Last week it called for 42,000 reserve enlisted men to report during September and October. The Air Force is summoning mostly officers of the rank of captain or below and enlisted men with special military skills. The Army wants 7,862 captains and lieutenants plus 1,682 medical, dental and veterinary corps officers up to majors and lieutenant colonels. As an initial step toward adjusting the rank of officers already on active duty to those being recalled, the Air Force said 5,000 will be considered for temporary promotion to the grades of captain and first lieutenant. It also announced the grounds on which reserve officers and airmen called up may apply for delay. These included: 1. Persons enrolled in educational institutions. 2. Those engaged in research and scientific activities. 3. Hardship and dependency cases. Appeals to recall orders may be made to the Air Force.

Worthington Is Named To N. C. Exchange Board

Sam O. Worthington, Greenville attorney and Pitt County representative to the North Carolina General Assembly, was elected to the Board of Controllers of the North Carolina Exchange Club at last week's convention at Wrightsville Beach. Worthington, one of Greenville's delegates to the convention, was one of six elected to the board. His term of office will expire in the summer of 1952. This year, the convention rearranged the terms of office of its controllers. Three were elected for two year terms and the other three for one year each. Formerly, six have been elected for one-year terms. Bill Higgins, also of the Exchange Club, was Greenville's other delegate to the convention. He will represent the club at the national convention in September.

U. S. Envoy To Russia Silent On World Affairs

Berlin, Aug. 12—(AP)—U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk refused to comment on international affairs when he arrived by plane today en route to western Germany for a five day vacation outside the Soviet Union. The retired Admiral said he could say nothing at all about Russian affairs. Not even to mention the present political atmosphere in Moscow. Some junior staff members of Kirk's Embassy, who accompanied him on the holiday flight, remarked afterward that "Moscow seems to be the calmest city in Europe." They added that the outward life of Moscow had not seemed to change in any respect since the Korean war broke out seven weeks ago.

Pets Rationed?

Newark, N.J., Aug. 12—(AP)—Dogs and cats may be rationed as household pets in Newark. The city commissioner is studying an ordinance limiting a family to not more than one dog and one cat. The legislation was recommended by city health department officials who believe that for sanitary and health reasons no household should have a lot of pets. The ordinance, which comes up for public hearing and final passage Aug. 23, provides a penalty of a fine up to $200, 90 days in jail or both.

Charge Man With Placing Hacksaw In Cell At Jail

Police arrested Norwood D. Conway, 31-year-old painter, yesterday and charged him with aiding and abetting in a planned escape of a prisoner. Police Chief Herbert Wooten said Conway is charged with placing a hacksaw blade in a cell at the jail in the City Hall occupied by Ernest L. Byrum Jr. and Rudolph Manning who are charged with robbing the VFW Social Club. Samuel R. Grantham, charged with other offenses, also occupied the cell when the hacksaw blade was discovered. Conway will be tried in Police Court Monday.

Transit Strike Paralyzes City

St. Louis, Aug. 12—(AP)—Residents of St. Louis, the nation's eighth largest city, had no bus or streetcar service today. The state seized public transit system was forced to discontinue operation last night because of a wildcat strike by union operators seeking higher wages. Ironically, the strike was started despite use of a state law passed three years ago to prevent disruption of public utility services. It also was staged in defiance of Gov. Forrest Smith and leaders of the union, an AFL street and railway motor coach unit, representing some 3,100 workers. The tieup paralyzed this city credited with a population of 852,253 in preliminary census figures. Business houses said they lost thousands of dollars in business, as the strike grew and shoppers were stranded during the evening rush hour. Hospitals, factories and other establishments made arrangements to transport their employees to and from work in their own vehicles.

A Sudden About-Face

The President Has Frequently Asked For Emergency Economic Controls, And Each Time Congress Said No; Now, They're The Ones Insisting On Action. By JAMES MARLOW. Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—If it weren't so serious, it would be comical. Year after year President Truman asked Congress for power to slap on price controls and rationing, if needed. Year after year Congress coolly ignored him except for shouts of "police state" when he made the request. Now, in the present serious situation arising from the Korea shooting, Mr. Truman carefully avoided asking for stand-by controls on prices and rationing. But Congress appears certain to give him the power to use when he sees fit. In fact it's insisting he have the unasked power. On July 25, 1946 when Congress passed a bill that scuttled the OPA, Mr. Truman said he signed it into law with "reluctance." Then when OPA folded and prices began their zooming climb, Mr. Truman began to worry about a bust a-coming. On Nov. 17, 1947 he asked Congress for stand-by power to impose price

Changed Dates?

Raleigh, N.C., Aug. 12—(AP)—Tobacco warehouse leaders tonight discussed the possibility of changing opening dates on flue-cured tobacco markets which haven't begun 1950 sales. The Board of Governors of the Right Belt Warehouse Association has been called to meet here to take up the matter. Association President Fred S. Royster of Henderson said unusually late crops in the Georgia-Florida and Carolinas border belt, causing a delay in sales in those areas, led to the meeting. Among questions the board will discuss is whether buyers and government graders will be available from the Georgia-Florida belt for the scheduled opening of the eastern North Carolina belt on Aug. 12.

Babson Discusses Our Foreign Policy

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 11—The country is disappointed by setbacks in Korea and alarmed at the possible prospect of a third World War less than five years after the second. Even if we do succeed in Korea, it will not cause enthusiasm among us—only relief. For all thinking Americans know by now that the Russian objective is subjection of the whole world. So, of course, any "peaceful" solution of the Korean problem can only be temporary. For Russia's policy is to divert America's attention from her strategy, disperse and scatter U. S. troops as thinly as possible over the globe and to attack all "soft spots" everywhere from without and or within. Past Stupidity. We may be our own worst enemies. We have been blind and foolish and some among us have even committed treason. Who on behalf

Many Participated In Thursday Events

Consider Closing Swimming Pool May Act August 19 Unless Attendance Shows Increase. The Greenville swimming pool will close on the 19th of this month unless the attendance picks up next week, it was announced today by Heber B. Tripp, chairman of the Greenville recreation commission. Already a cut has been made in the staff at the pool. However an adequate staff will be kept on duty until the pool is officially closed. Night swimming at the pool will be discontinued after the 12th. Saturday, Tripp also reported that there have been numerous requests made to the City Recreation commission for permission to use the Cotanche Park fireplace at various times. The public is invited to use the fireplace and tables there at any time they desire. Tripp stated, "but we will appreciate it if they will call the office so that necessary arrangements can be made." There are two fireplaces at the park and recently new tables and benches have been built there, Tripp said. "The only reason we ask that people phone before using the park is to avoid crowds doubling up and not being able to use the park as it should be."

Canine Veterans Are Unobligated

Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Privately-owned "war dogs" which saw service during World War II have no obligation to return to active duty, the Army said today. Many dogs were loaned to the army by their owners during the war. They were used to guard depots and to go on patrols. Patrol dogs were taught to know Americans but to bite at the enemy. Some of them became ratter fierce and had to be "de-trained" before they became tame enough to return to their homes and civilian life. Three legged race—Charles Johnson; William Dyer and George Elias. 50 dash — John Allen; Robert Weir. Broad Jump — James Holiday; James Forbes. Teachers To Ask Reconsideration

NCEA Directors Vote New Appeal To Budget Officials. Raleigh, N.C., Aug. 12—(AP)—North Carolina school teachers are going to carry on their efforts to get a contingent pay increase promised by the 1949 Legislature. Directors of the North Carolina Education Association, meeting here yesterday, voted to ask state budget officials to reconsider a decision to hold up action until next year. An NCEA delegation will confer with Governor Scott on Tuesday. The directors adopted a resolution expressing "keen disappointment at the action of the Advisory Budget Commission by which the teachers of North Carolina were deprived of the balance of the 1949-50 salaries." The resolution, addressed to Governor Scott, Assistant Budget Director D. S. Coltrane and the Budget Commission, asked them to seek a formal interpretation by Attorney General Harry McMillan of the contingency provision of the 1949 appropriation law. It was learned reliably Thursday that McMillan was prepared earlier in the week to tell the Budget Commission he thought the increase should be paid.

Two Reds Accept Surrender Offer

With U. S. 25th Division In Korea, Aug. 12—(AP)—Two North Korean lieutenants walked into American lines today waving "safe conduct passes" and surrendered. American planes have sprinkled the passes liberally over enemy lines. They are invitations to surrender. The two lieutenants were the first North Koreans to use them. Heretofore few Red officers have been taken prisoner and none surrendered voluntarily.

Secret-Stealer Slashes Wrists

London, Aug. 12—(AP)—A man charged with stealing a briefcase full of British atomic secrets was held in a hospital today after he slashed his wrists in his jail cell. His condition was described as "not serious," but a preliminary hearing on the theft charge, scheduled for today, was postponed pending his recovery. He is William Ralph Wakeham, 35. The briefcase full of atomic secrets was stolen earlier this week from Frank M. Greenlee, an official of the Supply Ministry's atomic energy production division at the new British atomic plant in Risley, Lancashire. Greenlee left the briefcase and a suitcase in his train compartment at Euston station for three minutes. When he returned they were gone. The baggage was recovered and Greenlee reported today, after an examination of his papers, that all the secrets were intact.

Churchill's Next Job?

Famous Statesman May Have Talked Himself Into Post Of Leading West European Defense Efforts; His Qualities And Record; He Has The Confidence Of All. By DEWITT MACKENZIE. Versatile Churchill may have talked himself inadvertently into another job which will rival his historic leadership of Britain during the later war. The famous statesman yesterday introduced a formal motion in the European consultative assembly at Strasbourg for a unified European army—subject to proper democratic control—"to defend the West against Russia. He didn't say so, but such a historic development naturally would call for a director of supreme capabilities and possessing the confidence of the whole Western world. Who could fill that place? Two days earlier former French Premier Paul Reynaud gave the assembly more than a hint of what is in some minds. He declared that what Europe needs is a single defense minister. Then pointing dramatically to Winston Churchill, a few seats away, Reynaud added: "It would not be necessary to look beyond this assembly to find him." Should Churchill be called to fill such an unprecedented position he would of course bring to it quali-

Longest Talker

Fort Lee, N. J., Aug. 12—(AP)—A contest to find the woman who could talk the longest spontaneously ended last night after half an hour—at the request of the judges. Mrs. Arthur Frazer of New York City was declared the winner of the Falgouters Amusement Park. Competition after chattering for 30 minutes about recipes and hints on child care and reciting part of a novel.

Next President

Lake Success, Aug. 12—(AP)—Sir Glauwyn Jebb, of Great Britain, will become president of the U. N. Security Council Sept. 1, succeeding Jakob Malik of Soviet Russia. The presidency is rotated among the 11 nations holding seats.

Ohio Educator Named To AEC; Others Named
Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—President Truman yesterday nominated T. Keith Glennan, Cleveland educator, as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.
The 44-year-old president of Case Institute of Technology was named to the vacancy of the five-member commission left by the resignation of Lewis Strauss last April.
Mr. Truman also named three new members to the AEC's general advisory committee.
Their appointments are not subject to Senate confirmation. The three are:
William Frank Libby, professor of chemistry at the University of Illinois.
Eger V. Murphree, vice president in charge of research and development for the Standard Oil Development Co., Summit, N. J.
Walter G. Whitman, professor of chemical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
They replace three members of the advisory committee whose two year terms were up. Under the procedure, members of this committee are asked to serve for only two years.
Those replaced were Dr. Enrico Fermi, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg and Hartley Rowe.

Texan Takes On Commies With .45; Now Misquoted
Tokyo, Aug. 12—(AP)—The Communist Peiping radio yesterday said a rambunctious Texan (who went AWOL from his medical outfit to fight in the front lines) is a prisoner of the North Koreans.
The broadcast, heard here, identified him as Pvt. Reuben K. Kimball of Baytown, Tex.
Reuben K. Kimball tried to get into a frontline outfit, but failed. Then he went AWOL from his medical outfit in Pusan and showed up at the front around Taejon, where the fighting was tough. He protected a party of newspaper correspondents by knocking off North Korean snipers. Kimball went into action wearing cowboy boots and a .45.
A purported Red interview quoted Kimball as identifying himself as a member of the 805th Medical Evacuation hospital at Pusan, 23 years old, a former truck driver, boxer, wrestler and speedway driver. That fitted the Kimball who went AWOL to fight. The rest of the interview didn't. It said:
"I thought it was a peacetime army. We got fooled. That was all. None of us ever reckoned on doing any fighting. And then, there we were, in the middle of a war with real guns and real soldiers shooting—and shooting straight, too."
These quotes aren't like Kimball. In one afternoon he showed front line troops how to handle everything from a .45 to a tommy-gun, and tossed a few grenades to boot.

HEADS MOBILIZATION
Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 12—(AP)—Charles A. Cannon, president of the Cannon Mills Company of Kannapolis, is head of a mobilization committee set up by the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute.

The Quaker group has been meeting here this week.
The cholera rate in Japan has been reduced 86 percent since the beginning of the occupation.

Board To Study Railroad Strike

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP) President Truman today stepped into the labor dispute between 26 short-line railroads and workers represented by 18 non-operating unions.

He signed an executive order setting up an emergency board to investigate differences which the President said threatened to deprive the country of essential transportation service.

Mr. Truman's action has the effect of preventing a strike for a period of 60 days.

Under the order each of the carriers involved will be given independent consideration in the investigation of the complaints involved.

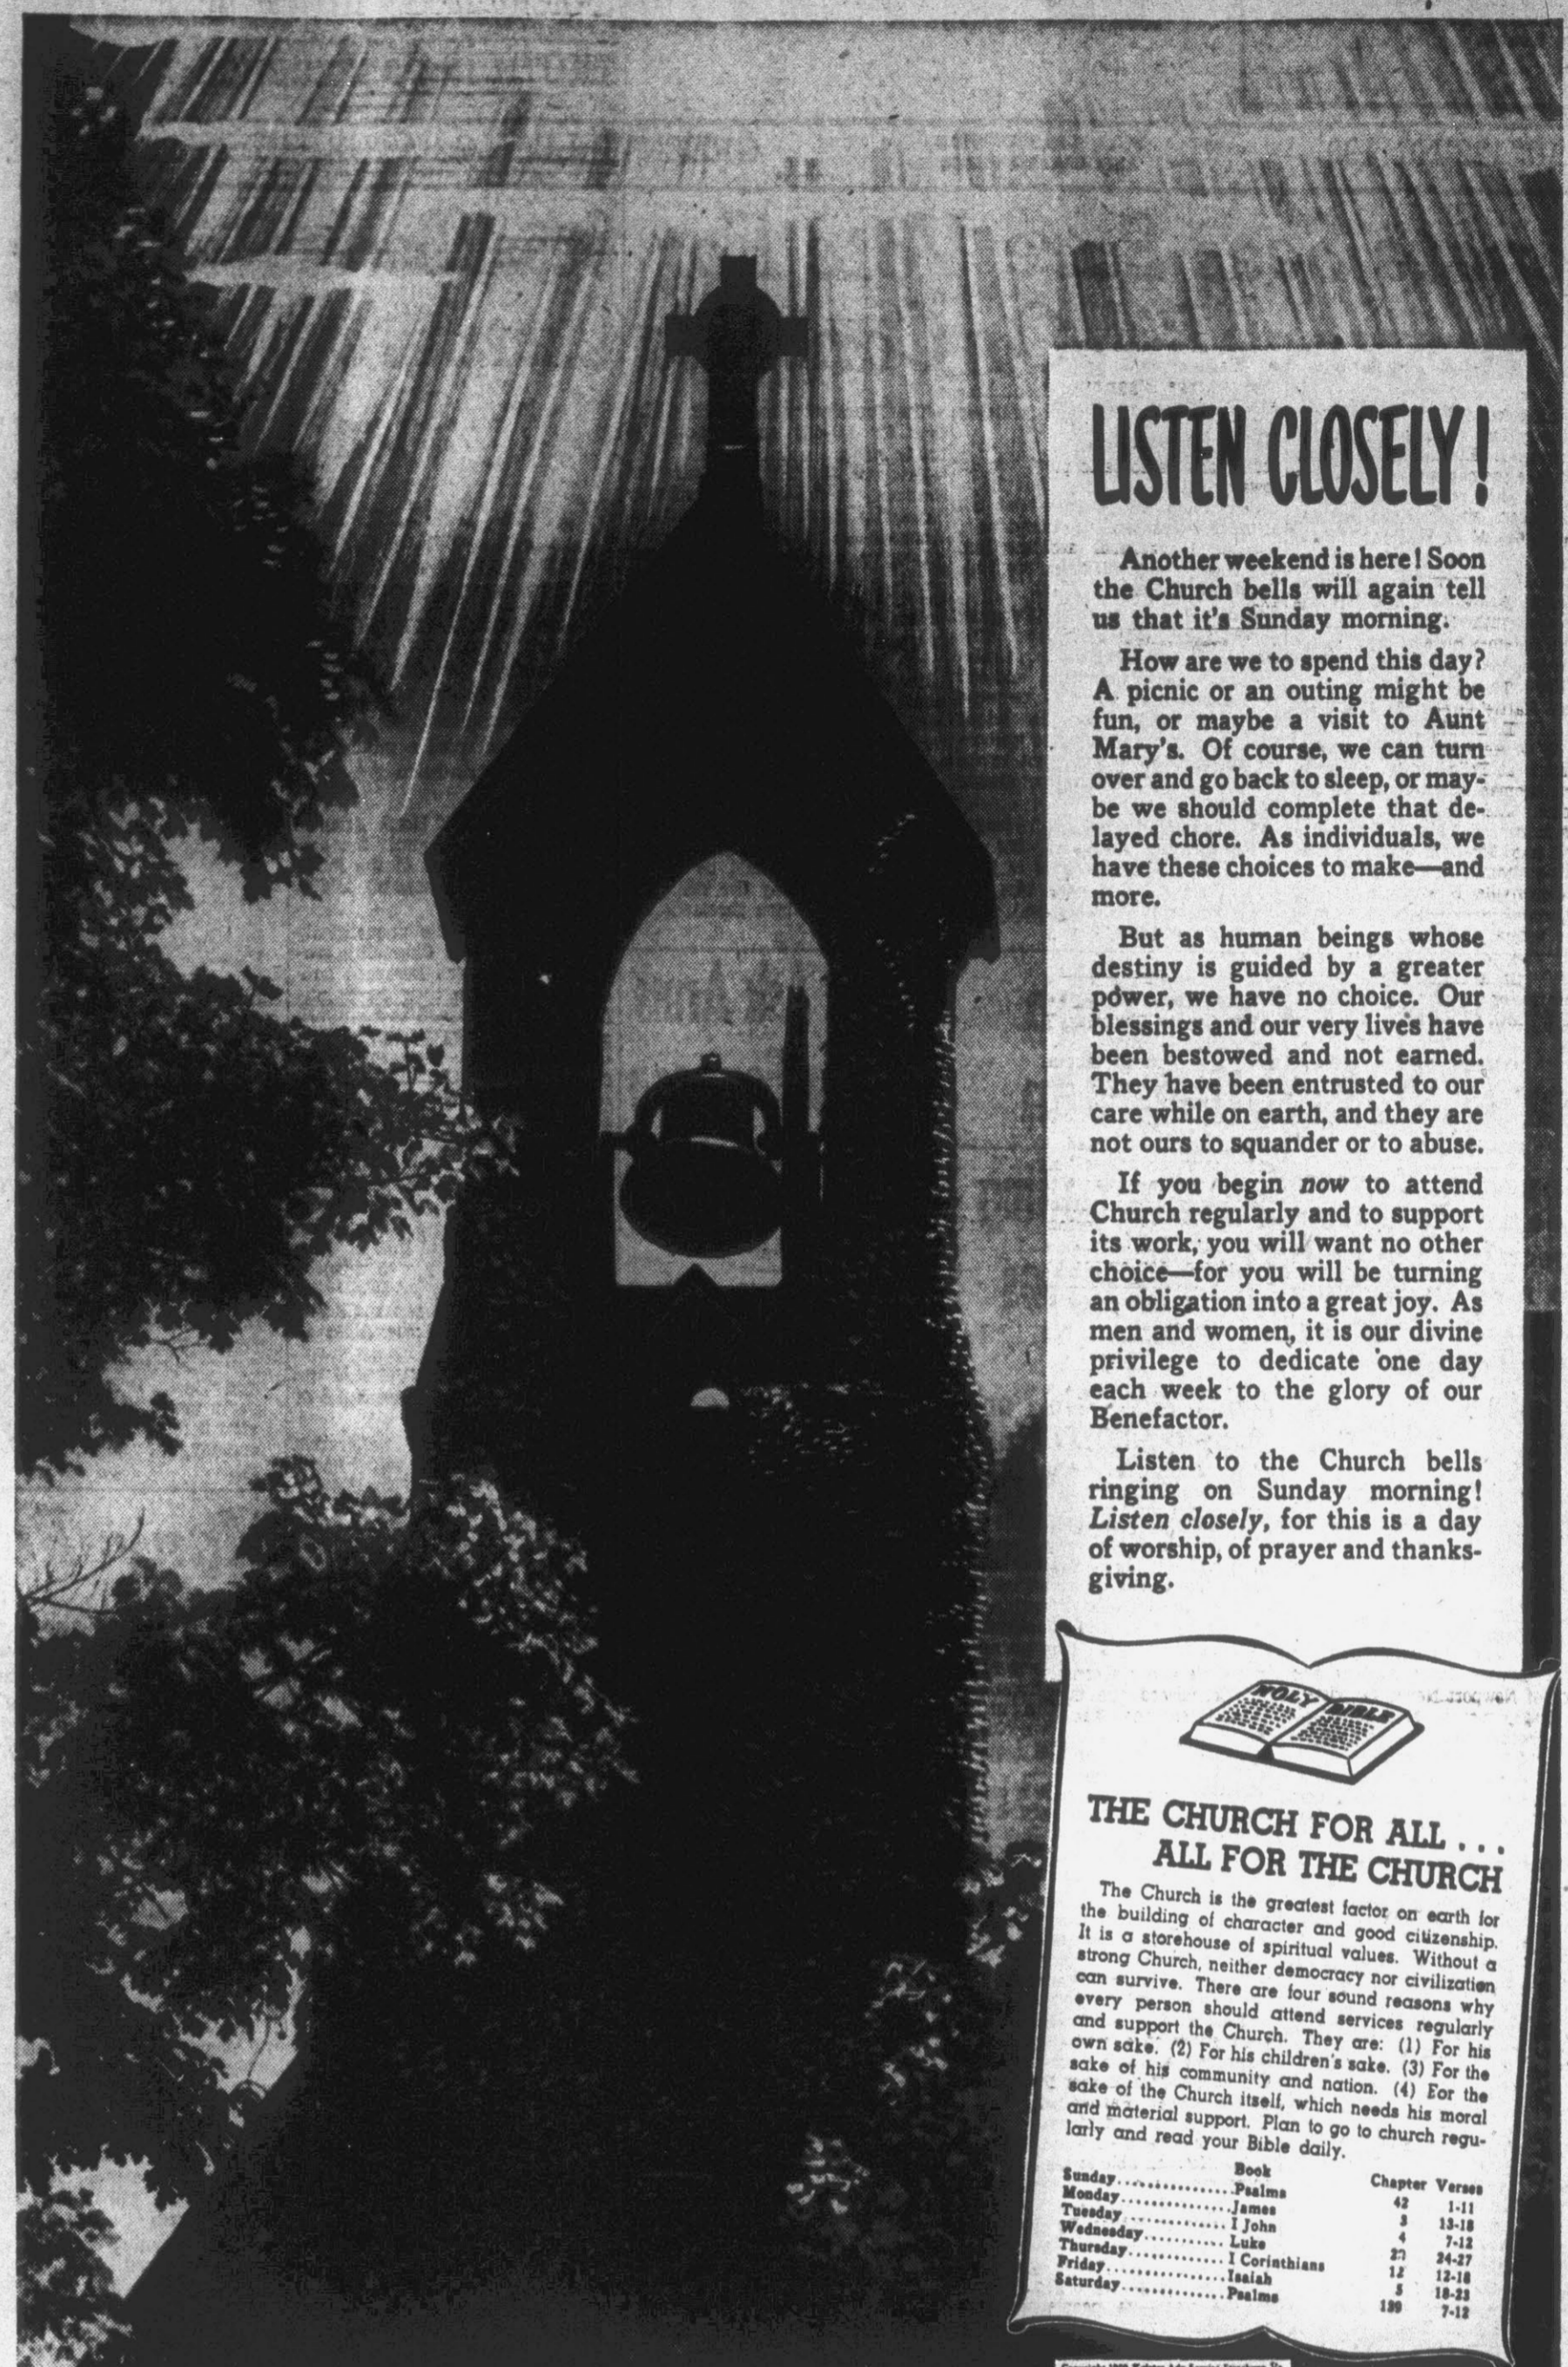

The railroads are: Atlantic and East Carolina Railway Co., Barre and Chelsea Railroad Co., Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad Co., Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Railway Co., Chicago, South Shore and South Bend Railroad, Columbus and Greenville Railway Co., Copper Range Railroad, Denver Union Stockyards Co., Des Moines and Central Railway Co., El Paso Union Passenger Depot Co., Escanaba and Lake Superior Railroad Co., Galveston Wharves, Huntington and Broad Top Mountain Railroad and Coal Co., Lancaster and Chester Railway Co., Meridian and Bigbee River Railway Co., New Orleans and Lower Coast Railroad Co., Old Point Comfort Joint Agency, Rio Grande Southern Railroad, St. Johnsbury and La Mobile County Railroad, St. Lake Union Stock Yards Co., Sioux City Terminal Railway Co., Stockyards District Agency of Chicago, Tennessee Railroad Co., Texas Pacific-Missouri Pacific Terminal Co., of New Orleans, and Winona Railroad Co.

Umstead To Assist Attorney General In Epps Trial
Raleigh, Aug. 12—(AP)—Attorney-General Harry McMullan announced today five lawyers will help in the Epps segregation case.
At stakes is whether Harold T. Epps, 23-year-old Asheville Negro, and seven other Negroes, are eligible for admittance to the University of North Carolina's law school.
McMullan said that helping in the trial will be former U. S. Senator William B. Umstead of Durham, Major L. B. McLendon of Greensboro, Attorney General Ralph Moody, and Walter F. Brinkley, a member of McMullan's staff.
The suit originally was filed by Epps and Robert D. Glass, 26, of Belmont, who were students at N.C. College in Durham. They were joined by six other students.
McMullan said today Epps re-applied for admission to Chapel Hill June 22 after receiving his law degree from N. C. College. Last week it was announced that Epps passed his bar examination.
The case is scheduled to begin Aug. 28 in U. S. Middle District Court in Durham.

House Finds 54 Persons Guilty Of Contempt
Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—The house has voted contempt of congress citations against 54 witnesses who defied the Un-American Activities committee by refusing to answer questions about communism.
The entire proceeding took only about an hour.
This brought to 56 the two-day total of citations voted by the house upon recommendation of the committee. The citations will be referred to the Justice Department for court action. Conviction for contempt of congress carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.
Four of those cited were identified by the committee as scientists who worked on the wartime atomic bomb project. Another was Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, a communist newspaper.

Highway To Cost Over $1.7 Million
Virginia Beach, Va., Aug. 12—(AP)—The Ocean Highway between Virginia Beach and Nags Head, N. C. is expected to cost $1,725,934.
That's according to specifications tentatively approved for the 55.3-mile highway.
In any event, four constructing firms, three from Virginia and one from South Carolina, are assured of sharing in the project.

Stored Cotton Is Being Sold
Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—The Agriculture Department has sold 572,355 additional bales of 1948-crop cotton, stored under farm price programs.
The sales were made on the basis of offers opened July 27.
Since last fall, 1,184,526 bales of 1948-crop cotton stored under farm price supports have been sold.
Demand for this cotton has been particularly strong during the past six weeks.

LISTEN CLOSELY!

Another weekend is here! Soon the Church bells will again tell us that it's Sunday morning.

How are we to spend this day? A picnic or an outing might be fun, or maybe a visit to Aunt Mary's. Of course, we can turn over and go back to sleep, or maybe we should complete that delayed chore. As individuals, we have these choices to make—and more.

But as human beings whose destiny is guided by a greater power, we have no choice. Our blessings and our very lives have been bestowed and not earned. They have been entrusted to our care while on earth, and they are not ours to squander or to abuse.

If you begin now to attend Church regularly and to support its work, you will want no other choice—for you will be turning an obligation into a great joy. As men and women, it is our divine privilege to dedicate one day each week to the glory of our Benefactor.

Listen to the Church bells ringing on Sunday morning! Listen closely, for this is a day of worship, of prayer and thanksgiving.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

WHAT'S THE LATEST WRINKLE?

The young lady who lets misplaced vanity keep her from wearing the glasses she needs, does not escape the penalty.

There is no surer way of creating "crow's feet", wrinkles and other signs of age, than the constant squinting of the person who needs glasses but doesn't wear them.

So foolish to pay this penalty, when today's colorful glasses can actually add to your appearance. Let us show you how!

Library Notes
The Sheppard Memorial Library announces the addition of the following books to its collection:

"Going to Jerusalem," by Willie Snow Ehrbridge. A mixture of the gay and the serious in this report on the author's visit to Jerusalem and other Middle East places with her husband, the United States representative on the United Nations Palestine Commission.

"Roosevelt in Retrospect," by John Gunther. A famous writer gives us a picture of Roosevelt, both the story of his life and his complex character. Considered the most objective in treatment that has appeared so far.

"On the Wisdom of America," by Yu-t'ang. The Chinese philosopher ranges through American literature and quotes and comments on the expressions of everyday philosophy he finds there.

"John Adams and the American Revolution," by Catherine Bowen. A biography of our second president from his boyhood to the signing of the Declaration of Independence. By the author of "Yankee From Olympus."

"Debby," by Max Steele. A character study of a mentally arrested woman by a North Carolina writer and winner of a Harper Prize.

"The Other Father," by Daura Hobson. A novel depicting the late maturing of a man who has never in his life been able to see any viewpoint but his own.

"All This Is Louisiana," by Frances Parkinson Keyes. By the author of several novels with settings in Louisiana. Photographs and descriptive text giving a good picture of the state—its people, customs, agriculture, industry and recreation.

"Immortal Lovers," by Frances Winwar. In her usual romantic manner the author re-creates the love story of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning.

Circle No. 1 of Red Oak extends an invitation to all members of Circle No. 2 to meet with them on Sunday evening, August 13, at 7:30 at the church. They urge every member to be present at this meeting as final plans for our revival will be made.

Applications To College Continue

A total of 606 applications for admission to East Carolina Teachers College have been received from freshmen and transfer students according to Dr. J. K. Long, registrar. Of this number 224 are men and 382 women.

Dr. Long stated that applications were still being received each day and that a limited number of rooms were still available in private homes in town. However, dormitory space was filled at the beginning of the summer term of school in June.

At present, the college is expecting a record breaker in the fall enrollment, according to President John D. Messick. However, plans are being made to expand the plant within the next two years to accommodate the entire enrollment on the campus. President Messick recently made a request for an additional women's dormitory, when the State Budget Commission made a tour of the college plant.

Present Political Trends
Months ago Senators Taft, Knowland, and McCarthy, among others, called attention to the danger in the Orient and the need for protective action. Today the President still appears loath to reorganize the government on a non-partisan basis. There is still a failure to appoint the best brains and ability in the country to the most important administrative positions. Also there is a general feeling in Congress that all of Russia's friends have not been cleaned out of government departments.

If a real emergency develops in the near future, we have reason to believe that price, wage and material controls will go into effect immediately. Yet, it looks as if necessary action would be delayed if possible until after the coming Congressional elections. If controls come again, we should let our Congressmen know that we want good judgment and restraint on the President's appointees to control jobs.

The American people know now that they were pushed around by quite a few political crockpots of questionable loyalty during World War II.

Outlook For Commodities And Houses
The transportation of foodstuffs great distances and possible losses of food-carrying vessels is always to be anticipated under war conditions. Therefore, no curtailing of crop production need be expected in the next year. A sharp crackdown on civilian consumption can be expected before the summer is over. Now may be a good time to buy an automobile; but there is no reason for now hoarding foods, clothing or shoes. There will be some inventory accumulation in business; but not on a large scale.

The Korean war will tend to make prices fairly firm for the present. This applies especially to foods and livestock. The latter may drop in late summer or early fall. Grains will tend to drop too unless weather or war developments interfere. Industrial materials will rise moderately. This applies to metals, textiles, and building materials. Real estate, especially residential, could have an earlier slump than now anticipated because of an expectation among younger men of being drafted. This could curtail home purchases. All of these are of necessity short-term price trends, subject to the "risk of war." If great amounts are now thrown into defense, our government must cut civilian spending. If not, we are in for more inflation. We all know how dangerous that is.

Public Welfare News

The Public Welfare Program is a public service available to all people. Its services are numerous and each individual problem represents some phase of assistance. In every instance it is the responsibility of the agency to determine how the agency's services may best be used to meet the needs of those who are in need of help. In some instances the help that the individual requests may not be available but at any rate he is given an opportunity to bring his problem into focus and through the analyzed experiences and available resources of the agency may have a chance to find for himself some solution to his problem.

The local Department of Public Welfare is one of Pitt County's most important and necessary agencies. Its purpose is to render the best possible service in helping to meet the needs of the people in the community.

Henry L. Brown Kiwanis Speaker About Red Cross

Henry L. Brown, well known insurance man and chairman of the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross, was guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night.

He made an interesting talk about the Red Cross and the humane functions it performs in peace and war time and during periods of disaster. He urged support of the next Red Cross fund drive. Charles Wilkinson had charge of the program and introduced the speaker. President Tige Gardner presided.

James Ray Pittman and Roscoe Shiple announced that they will entertain the Kiwanis officers and directors at supper at the Country Club next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock.

Guests included Brantley Speight, well known farmer, Bill James, son of Judge Dink James and Sam D. Bundy of Farmville, a past govern-

Appoints New Director Of Religious Activities

A new position of director of religious activities has been created at East Carolina Teachers College, according to President John D. Messick today. Robert L. Holt, a specialist in religious activities, will join the staff in the fall as head of the new department of college work.

Mr. Holt is a graduate of Mars Hill College and received his masters degree at Wake Forest College. At present he is completing work on his Ph.D. at Duke University. Other graduate study was done at or of the Carolina Kiwanis District, and others.

Southwestern Theological Seminary Prior to his study at the Seminary Mr. Holt taught English and Bible at Wake Forest for two years while doing graduate work and preaching in rural churches.

As director of religious activities at East Carolina, Mr. Holt will teach courses in Christian ethics and will work with the various religious organizations on the campus. He will also assist with freshmen orientation and will teach courses in marriage and family.

Churchill's Next . . .

in the emergency Churchill disclosed a leadership which has recorded his name in history. So now it perhaps isn't strange to find the European consultative assembly—lower House of the unofficial Parliament for a united Western Europe—raring him mentioned in connection with the projected army.

A highly controversial aspect of this army proposal is that West Germany be rearmed as an essential for defense against an attack from the East. This idea is a reversal of the mighty oaths the Allies took at the end of the war that Germany shouldn't be allowed again to rearm. France has been particularly hostile to it, and Germany herself has viewed the project with disfavor. German political chiefs haven't forgotten how the military clique took over power in days gone by.

So it is of more than passing interest that West German delegates should have been present in the assembly when Churchill spoke and that he should have welcomed them. He went further, and asked the assembly to "assure our German friends that we shall hold their safety and freedom as sacred as our own."

That speech might strike a note which would make Reynaud's suggestion come true.

A Sudden . . .

Then this summer came the crisis in Korea and the realization that this country had to go into a big re-arming program, with the government spending far more billions than it had thought of a few months ago.

So Mr. Truman asked Congress for higher taxes, to pay for the re-arming and cut down some of the Americans' spending power, and he asked for control over buying-out.

He didn't ask for controls—direct or stand-by—on prices or rationing. But suddenly prices began to shoot up.

Around the country people began to worry that unless the government had power to step in and control prices, the whole economy might end in the ashcan.

They told their congressmen how they felt. And now Congress is going to pass a law giving Mr. Truman authority to step in when he pleases and slap controls on prices and wages and even impose rationing.

He said he'd accept the authority if given him. But he still hasn't asked for it, not since back in 1949.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
RAISING THE DEAD

An English minister has recently written a book telling fellow ministers how to prepare their sermons and how more effectively to present the gospel. His book bears the significant title, "Thirty Minutes to Raise the Dead."

The parsons come in for a good share of criticism in every generation, and those of us who wear the cloth know only too well that we deserve, probably, more criticism than we get. But that does not alter the fact that the pew is equally culpable with the pulpit because religious standards are not higher, religious work not more vigorous, and religious enterprises not more successful.

The apostolic church which grew by leaps and bounds 2000 years ago was made up of a few groups of very humble people. With the exception of the original apostles, we know almost nothing about big names and outstanding leaders among these. The church in its most vigorous period of growth advanced more through the efforts of the laity than through the efforts of the clergy.

"Thirty Minutes to Raise the Dead." That's a task which many ministers confront every Sunday morning. If you happen to be one of the corpses, do what you can to help along a resurrection. Get behind your minister and the projects of your church.

A New Truck, But No Fireman

The city of Greenville has purchased a new fire truck to give additional fire protection to the taxpayers of the city. The $7,871 invested in the truck is a lot of money, but at the same time if the truck is properly handled it will be worth many times that much to the city.

We believe too, that the decision to keep the old truck for emergency use rather than trade it in at a very low price was wise.

There is just one thing which seems left undone. There are not enough men on duty at the fire department to take all the trucks to a fire if they are needed.

With the new fire truck at the station Greenville has five trucks, a trailer pumper and an emergency rescue truck ready to roll at any minute. The hitch is there are only three men on duty at the station to handle the six trucks and the trailer. There is an additional fireman on call and two more off duty at all times; but in case of fire, it would take a few minutes for these firemen to get to the station to handle equipment.

The first few minutes of a fire are important. Greenville has adequate fire equipment to fight fires. We now need enough paid firemen on duty at all times to be sure enough pieces of equipment will roll.

During the past decade Greenville has grown in area as well as in population. For the most part the city departments have grown accordingly. The fire department, however, has been neglected in the manpower category.

In 1941 there were two new men added to the full time payroll of the fire department. That gave the city three men on duty and three men off duty at all times. Greenville's fire department is still operating with the same number of paid firemen it had nine years ago.

We are aware that money has not been appropriated in the current budget to hire additional firemen. But we think the city administration should add at least two men to the paid force of the fire department as soon as possible.

An Essential Factor For World Organization

Winston Churchill has asserted that only by building up a strong military force in Western Europe during the next two years can the free nations of the world hope to prevent a third world war.

The World War II leader of Britain has asserted in the presence of the other European democracies what many have thought, but few have dared say.

Churchill has proposed a unified Western European army—a thing which has never been realized even though it has been the dream of many farsighted leaders of the continental countries. What Churchill has proposed is an army made up of forces of various nations to be controlled by an international organization for the prevention of aggression. It will be an international police force, at least as far as Europe is concerned.

After the first world war the League of Nations became the hope of the freedom loving peoples everywhere. But without the means of enforcing international law, the League proved ineffective in coping with aggression, and soon fell apart.

Since the end of World War II the freedom loving nations of the world have banded together in a more closely knit international organization than many thought possible. The nations have shown themselves more willing than ever before to delegate to an international authority a portion of their individual sovereignty for their mutual protection. We have witnessed it in the renewed efforts to maintain an international federation of nations through the United Nations. We now may see how willing the individual nations are to place their combined military might under the control of an international organization.

For many years the world has needed a strong international organization of nations. But for years we have seen that a strong organization has been impossible without a military police force.

If the proposal of Churchill is adopted by the European Consultative Assembly, even in the face of the threat of communist aggression, it will be another major step in the realization of an international organization which will stand up under the stress of severe world crisis.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—"Why don't we stop pussyfooting at United Nations meetings," asks C.F. of Charlotte, N.C., "and name Russia as the aggressor in Korea? Why preserve the fiction that it is merely a struggle between two Korean factions? If that is true, it is a civil war, and we have no right to intervene."

Answer: Our delegate to the United Nations, Warren Austin, has come pretty close to this in accusing Russia of assisting the invaders. The sturdy Vermont has chafed under the restrictions imposed upon him by President Truman and Secretary Acheson. He realizes that Malik is winning the publicity battle by constantly assailing our role in Korea as "imperialistic."

AFRAID—However, the White House and State are hesitant to single out Moscow for sole responsibility, although Messrs. Truman and Acheson have said as much in private and public remarks. Diplomatically, however, to attribute the attack on South Korea to the Soviet would be tantamount to declaring that a state of war exists. Mr. Truman still prefers to regard our intervention as "police action."

Washington's public admission of the facts would, under U.N. charter, lead to a demand for Russia's expulsion from the international body, and a resort to sanctions as a penalty for her aggression.

Although U.N. members have shown a willingness to join us in the localized warfare, they would undoubtedly refuse to engage in coercive measures against the Kremlin. They are afraid of military retaliation.

C.F.'s proposal would also shut the door to a possible settlement of the Korean controversy by compromise, inside or outside the U.N. Washington's viewpoint is that "while there's life in the U.N., there is hope."

SKIRMISH—"Will Korea settle anything, even if we drive the invaders back behind the 38th parallel?" is the blunt but significant question from T.M. of Charleston, S.C.

Answer: Yes and no. Idealistically and diplomatically, an American or, if you please, a United Nations triumph will show that the non-Communist nations are willing to fight against Russian aggression that violates its peaceful pledges. It will uphold the lofty principles on which the U.N. was founded.

But, unless Moscow enters into the struggle on a large scale, which is extremely doubtful, it will not demonstrate that the U.S. and the U.N. are strong enough to check outbreaks elsewhere, or a general Soviet onslaught against Western Europe, the Balkans, the Middle East or Asia.

In a sense, it will be an empty victory. For Korea is relatively unimportant in the approaching struggle between Russia and the free nations. It is only a minor test and skirmish. And, unless we can back up our guarantees and principles with superior might, U.S.-U.N. declarations of international good will are not worth the paper they are written on.

That is a pessimistic answer. But its virtue is that it is realistic.

EXEMPTION—Many World War II veterans have written to ask whether there is any possibility that, despite their relatively advanced ages (27 to 35) and their possession of dependents in the form of wives and children, they may be drafted for service in the present crisis or in another global conflict.

Answer: As the law now stands, men who served ninety days in the recent war are exempt from further duty, unless they are members of the organized reserves. They will not be called unless the United States is dragged into another struggle of major and world-wide proportions.

Even in the present difficulty, however, it is obvious that we cannot depend on draftees whom it will take eighteen months or two years to train. It would be an easy, oversight matter for Congress to repeal the exemption based on ninety days' service. Already there is some talk of that.

SELECTIVE—But the process of picking veterans is general selective. The first wanted are the unmarried in the 21-25 age groups, and then bachelors from 25 to 30. After that will come the married but childless, and then, if necessary, married with a minimum number of dependents.

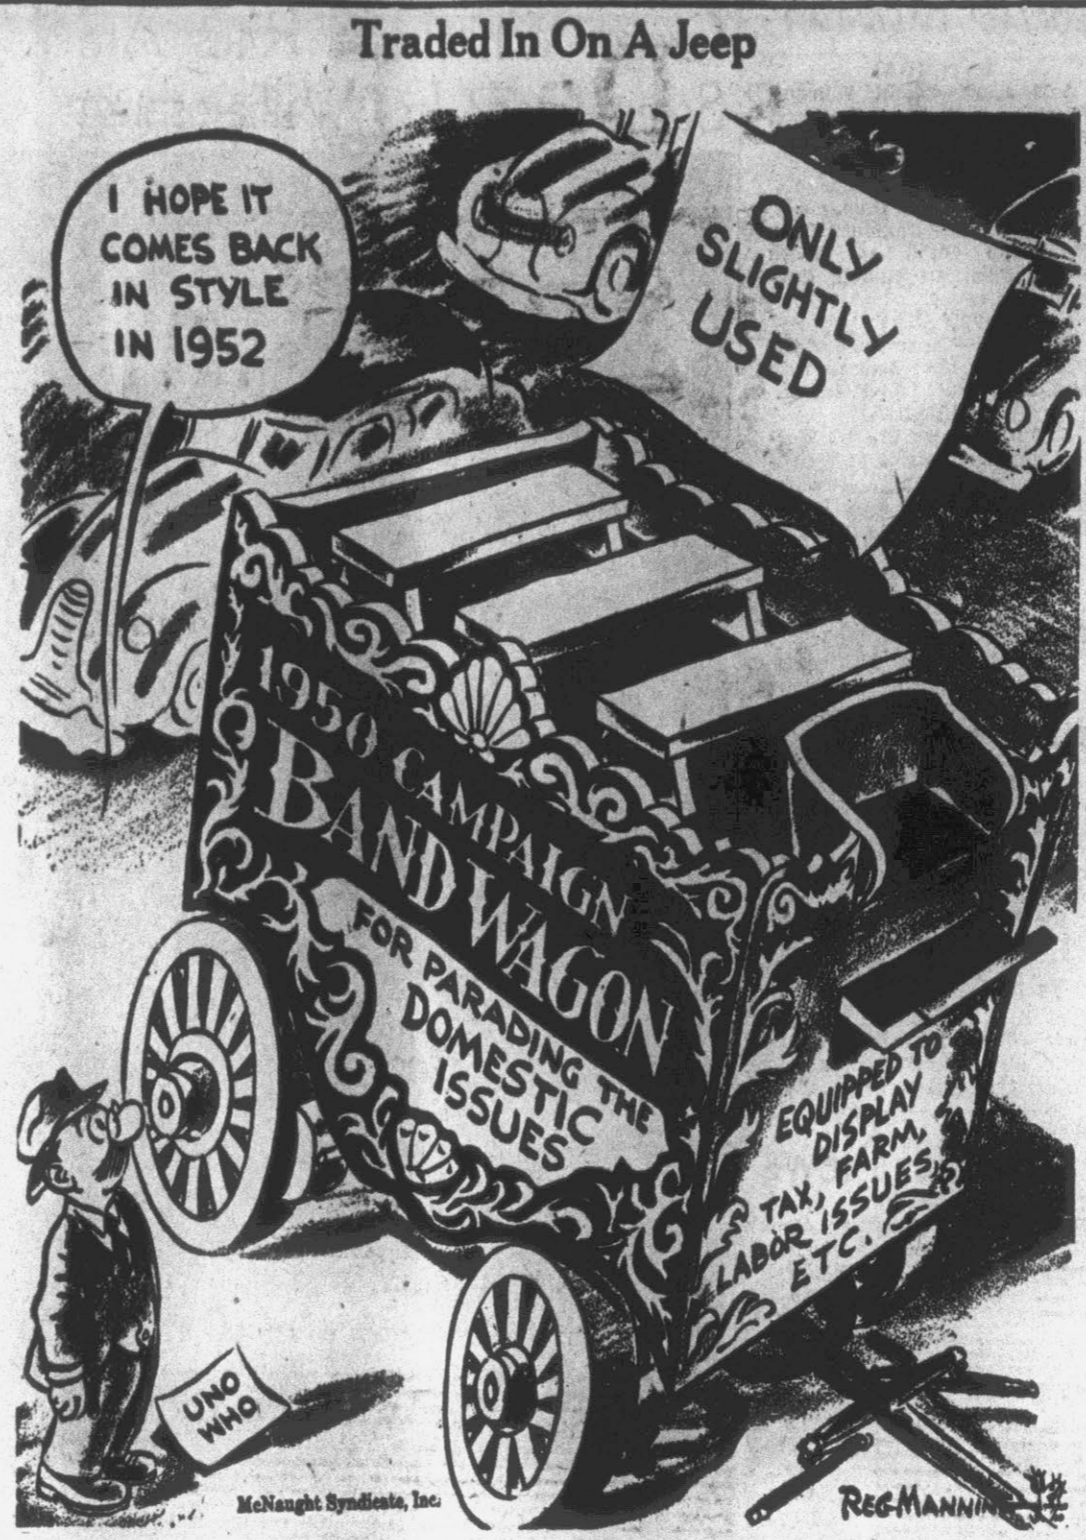

A man's occupation would also affect his status. If he is in an essential or skilled job, he will be given deferment over those engaged in dispensable labor. Of course, if total mobilization becomes necessary, all bets are off.

SECURITY—Innumerable readers want to know the status of the Expanded Social Security Bill, when the higher benefit payments will become effective and what the new grants will be.

Answer: The bill is now in Senate-House Conference Committee. That body consists of five members from each chamber, which will iron out differences in the Senate and House versions. It is believed that the measure should become law within a few weeks.

It will take some time for Social Security authorities to make final plans for administration of the act. They tell me, however, that it should be operative either October 1 or November 1.

It is impossible to list here the changes in benefits. But when the program is approved by Congress, almost every newspaper and magazine will itemize the amounts forthcoming to beneficiaries in all groups of claimants.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

How many times have your friends asked you what you think of the Korean situation? Plenty, no doubt. Yesterday I saw an item in a national news magazine that reflects what people are thinking all over the nation. From the comments I have heard in Greenville, it seems that people all over the country are thinking alike.

Last week when the 20th Infantry Battalion of the Marine Corps left Oklahoma City there was no parade. One officer said, "They're more interested in being with their families the last few hours." When the 45th National Guard division received orders, a 1st Lieut. said, "Looks like we might all get in it anyway and I'd rather go with people I know. I wish we had never got involved in this, but it's too late now and we've got to get the job done." Elsewhere in the nation, here are some of the thoughts that were expressed:

1. No questioning of the need to fight in Korea, but as much questioning of U. S. unpreparedness for it ("What happened to all that money?").

2. Shock at the apparent shortcoming of U. S. equipment, and bitter memories about the bragging we have done about our equipment.

3. A feeling that the real war had not come yet, but was probably coming.

4. A hunch that only the U. S. atomic bomb has kept Russia from starting "the real war."

5. A realization that the U. S. could fight long and hard against Russia's satellite nations while Russia sits on the sidelines. Then, when we get tired, old Joe can step into the ring.

6. An impulse to drop the atom bomb on Moscow to "end the war before it starts," as many Americans put it.

7. A new respect for Soviet fighting power, and realization that Russia can inspire her satellites to fight.

8. For the first time in living memory, the people realized that the U. S. might be devastated in an all-out war. This put people in a mood to buckle down.

No one is eager for war; everybody says it will be harder to go than it was last time. Jobs are better, bank accounts bigger, cars newer, and the nation partly knows what war is. Many veterans say, "If they want me, they know where to find me. The average U. S. citizen had to be told about the threat of Hitler, but this time he won't have to be told. Everybody knows that the Communists are aiming for something bigger than Korea—and the target includes us. And I thank you."

DISAPPOINTMENT—Naturally, they are distressed now to discover from the governor's own statements that he doesn't object to handicapped officials, but only to the folks who had previously done the picking. He seems to be saying that when the voters two years ago nominated and elected him as governor over Charlie Johnson and several others, it was a political revolution presaging progress. When the voters this year nominated Willis Smith over Frank Graham for the senate it was such a terrible insult to providence as to bring on a world war. Not many people can follow the governor to that extreme.

AIRWAYS—How many airlines serve North Carolina and how many communities have convenient access to this service? Charles Parker, state advertising director can answer that question now. He couldn't answer it a few days ago. A telephone call from Baltimore requesting this information alerted Parker and he got to looking into the situation. He found there was no airlines map for the state. Railroads were mapped. So were highways and bus lines. Water transportation were recorded. Airlines were not. They are now.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, N. C.

WRATH—Governor Scott has discovered the cause of the Korean war, and finds it to be essentially the same as causes of the civil war in the 1860's and the great depression of the 1930's. It is racial and religious hatred. In adapting that basic cause to outbreak of armed hostilities in Korea the governor stretches the point pretty thin. His interpretation is that the war came as an expression of the wrath of God because North Carolinians failed to follow his advice in the recent senatorial primary.

DEI IRAE—Latin had a word for it. They called it "Dei irae," which means the wrath of God. Old Testament prophets, particularly Elijah and Amos, often invoked the wrath of God upon recalcitrant Israelites. The New Testament philosophy got away from the idea. At Rich Square the other day Governor Scott talked to assembled members of the Roanoke Electric Membership Corporation like the ancient prophets. According to the story written by a friendly reporter and appearing in a friendly newspaper, the governor lashed out at cliques which had formerly controlled the highway, paroles and utilities commissions, and had been handpicking governors and others for years. He also hit at the group which unnecessarily brought the race issue into the past senatorial primary. "I just want to leave this with you who think for yourselves," he is quoted as saying, "whenever such thoughts are used, God has brought upon us an expression of his wrath."

SEQUENCE—The news story goes on to say the governor used as examples the race issue in the Civil War that brought on "such misery" afterwards; depression that followed Al Smith's repudiation in 1928 because of religious intolerance, and the war that followed "within a week after the primary." (Since the current episode in Korea broke out a week after June 24 and no other war started after a primary, obvious inference is the governor thinks the Korean war is punishment of everybody involved because North Carolina voted wrong.)

COMMENT—Governor Scott has not been in his office since the Rich Square speech and any comment he may have will be made later. Meantime, most of the folks around Capitol Square have been talking about his speech. Last week when the governor told the farm women assembled at State College for the annual farm-home week that they had been "sucked in" and had contributed to doing the state a grave injustice by not voting for his personally picked candidate for the senate, there was considerable serious resentment. Reaction to his Rich Square speech about the wrath of God being visited upon the world for North Carolina delinquency aroused amused surprise rather than serious resentment.

PROGRAM—Governor Scott's "Go Forward Program" challenged North Carolinians when it was promulgated some eighteen months ago. Extension of good roads electric power lines and telephone service into remote communities was a recognized need, and Governor Scott gave the overall plan a shot in the arm to speed it up. Some of the things he did and said hurt a bit—but the hurting undoubtedly did good and brought about quicker action. If he resorted to extreme statements they were passed off as necessities to meet extreme conditions. There was general agreement "within a week after the primary" that the governor had a small clique hand for too long and too completely dominated election and appointment of public officials. North Carolinians don't like handicapped officials, and they rallied to the Scott banner.

DISAPPOINTMENT—Naturally, they are distressed now to discover from the governor's own statements that he doesn't object to handicapped officials, but only to the folks who had previously done the picking. He seems to be saying that when the voters two years ago nominated and elected him as governor over Charlie Johnson and several others, it was a political revolution presaging progress. Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the sharpest shortages to develop since the start of the Korean fighting is in radio and television parts.

Inventors, builders of experimental equipment, testing laboratories and the make-it-yourself boys have swooped down on the market with handfuls of currency. There are reports that electronic manufacturers themselves have approached jobbers and retailers with offers to buy out their entire stocks on an as-is basis.

John Osenenko, electronics consultant, reports that some dealers have been tendered orders of "from one to 30,000" tubes of certain specifications. Dealers have been unable to get shipments of transformers and say manufacturers can promise no delivery date. Some have placed orders for resistors subject to a sixty-two weeks delay.

There has been heavy buying, and possibly some hoarding, of those television tubes which most frequently burn out. Dealers report difficulty in replenishing their stocks of 6C4, 6AG5, 6J6, 6SN7 and 6BJT tubes. Some have been told they cannot expect new stock before February. Speakers so far appear plentiful.

The situation appears especially critical in the Greenwich-Barclay Streets area of New York City, where electronic supply houses cluster. This is a favorite shopping place for electronics engineers and experimenters. It is assumed that engineers from electronic factories which ring New York have been raiding the market for parts for new electronic devices and for working models for government contracts. This assumption is strengthened by the fact that there is little demand for a large quantity of war surplus material on the market, most buyers demanding factory-fresh parts.

Buying has had a sharp impact on prices for new parts. As one buyer remarked, asking prices are now aimed up to list prices—a commentary on the normally wide difference between list and actual prices in this market.

CREDIT BUYERS URGED TO BEAT DEADLINE
With prospects of consumer credit controls being reimposed, perhaps sooner than you think, some credit houses are reported to be telephoning customers urging them to make purchases while they still may be contracted at easy terms.

The telephone solicitation is said to be highly selective, with calls being made only to those old customers who have steady incomes and a record of prompt payments.

RISE IN BUYING
PRECEDENT FIGHTING
Additional proof that the current yave of buying started before the North Koreans crossed the 38th parallel appears in the Department of Commerce report on retail sales by independent stores for June.

Independents' total sales were 13 per cent higher than a year ago. All major groups showed gains, the lumbering-building-hardware group being 38 per cent above last June and the automotive group 36 per cent. Grocery stores were up 2 per cent and the furniture-household-radio group 10 per cent. The only major groups to show declines were fuel dealers, jewelers, book stores and photographic stores, although a few more sub-groups were also off.

AUSTRIAN MARKETS LISTED IN ECA BOOK
To assist small American businesses hoping to sell products abroad, the ECA is publishing a "Directory of Austrian Importers of ECA-Financed Commodities." Importers are listed under the commodities they import. Copies of the 50-page directory may be obtained from the ECA Office of Information, 800 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C.

FIGHTING FORECAST DIDN'T COME OFF
"Want to buy some stock in a coal furnace business I'm promoting? asked the Old Promoter as he walked into this office, unannounced as usual.

"Why coal?" we asked.
"Oil shortage," he replied. "Back in 1925 President Coolidge's Oil Conservation Commission reported that America's oil supply would be exhausted in seven years. Do you realize what that means? We've been out of oil for 18 years and didn't know it."

Because he had a twinkle in his eye, we gave him a cigar instead of a heave-ho. He's a nice old man and entitled to a spoon of forecasters.

Hal Boyle's Column

(Editor's note: Columnist-War Correspondent Hal Boyle wrote the following as the first of two columns he planned to explain what patrolling along the Naktong River is like for an American soldier. Before he got to write the second, Boyle suddenly shifted himself from the Naktong to Bohang, where the fighting was hottest. Hal is on a roving assignment in the war zone and may get time later to write the planned second column on Naktong patrols.)

By HAL BOYLE
—(AP)—On the Naktong River front there are two stretches of no-man's land.

One is on the Allied eastern side where the Americans and the South Korean soldiers are holding defensive positions.

The other is on the western side where the Reds have been trying to mass enough armor and men to cross the river in power and win the war by driving the United Nations troops backward to the sea.

Thus on both sides of the river there is a kind of small twilight zone that doesn't wholly belong to either.

In it you may find foe against foe—playing a small but deadly game of hide-and-seek. They are the men on patrol duty trying to find out what the enemy is up to.

People who have never been to war tend to picture a defensive river line as a current of water flowing between banks solidly lined with troops; with tanks firing volley after volley at each other in continuous carnage. But it isn't that way at all. If it were, the two opposing armies might just about wipe each other out in course of a busy morning.

For all their weight of metal, armies don't like to commit themselves too soon. They like to know what the other one is up to before they decide what they will do themselves.

So each stays back from the river's edge and hides as much as it can to keep its secrets.

It is quite possible that you could ride or walk for miles along either side of the river battlefield and never be challenged or even know an army was near.

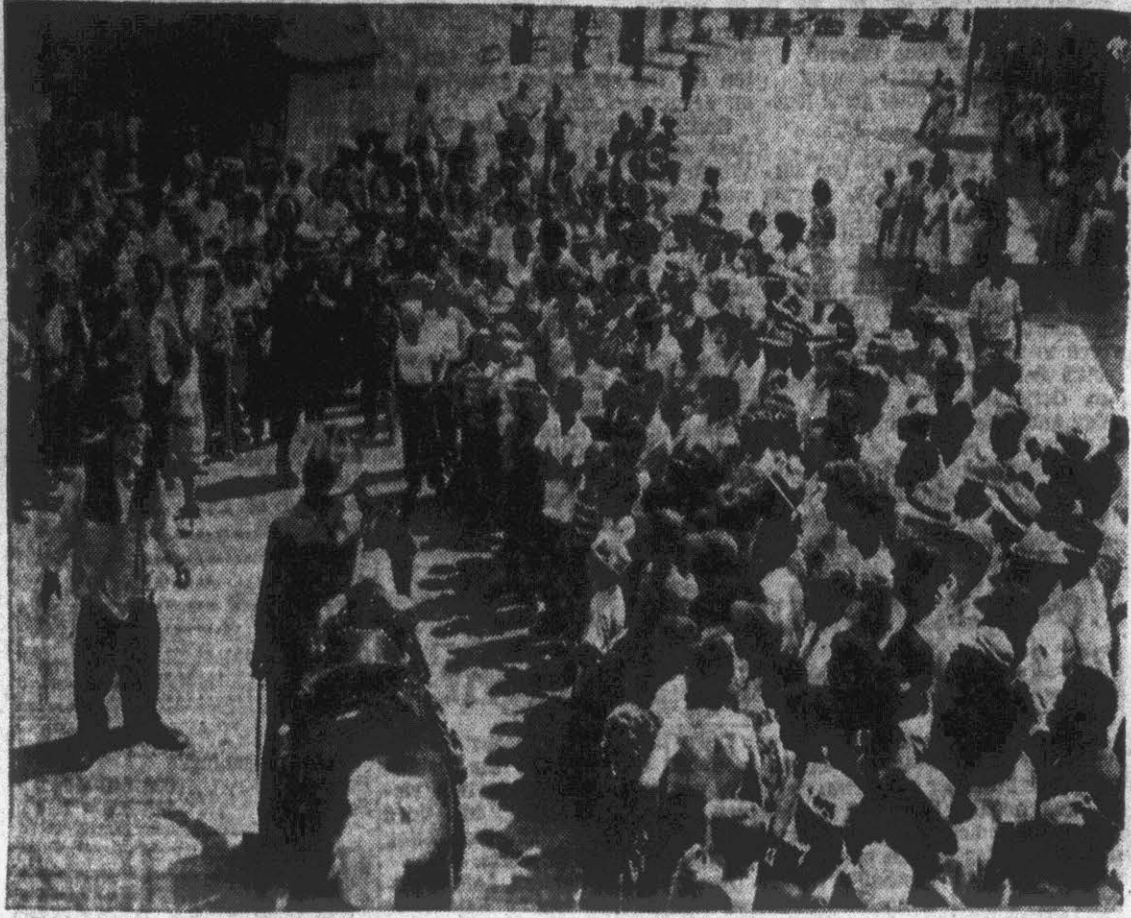

You probably would notice, however, an uneasy stillness in the air. And of course there is also the possibility you might be ambushed at once, cut in half by machinegun fire or blown up by a mortar shell. And it could happen so quickly you would get to heaven without even knowing just who or what put you on the escalator.

It is in these lanes of tense quiet along the river that the two opposing armies send out little feelers to test each other's muscle.

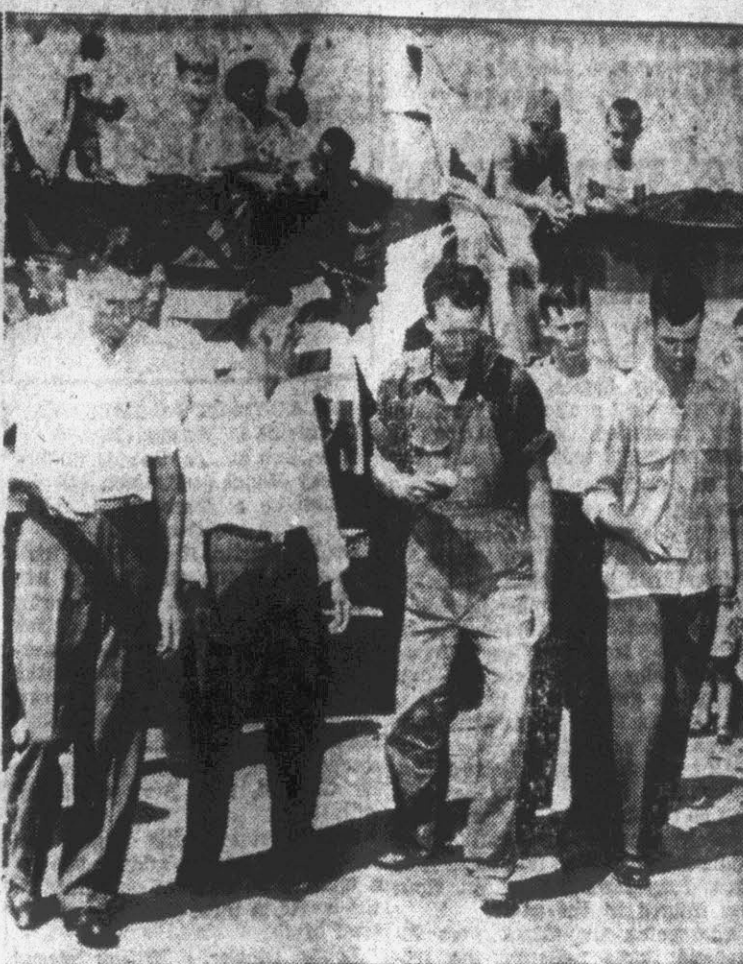

The villages are usually deserted. The untended rice paddies go on growing, the cicadas shrill in the trees, careless of mankind, and the birds find something yet to sing about. Little else that is alive in this area cares about making a sound.

That is by day. And a man might take his best girl placidly fishing in a rowboat on the river and never come to harm. The armies are behind the ranging hills except for an

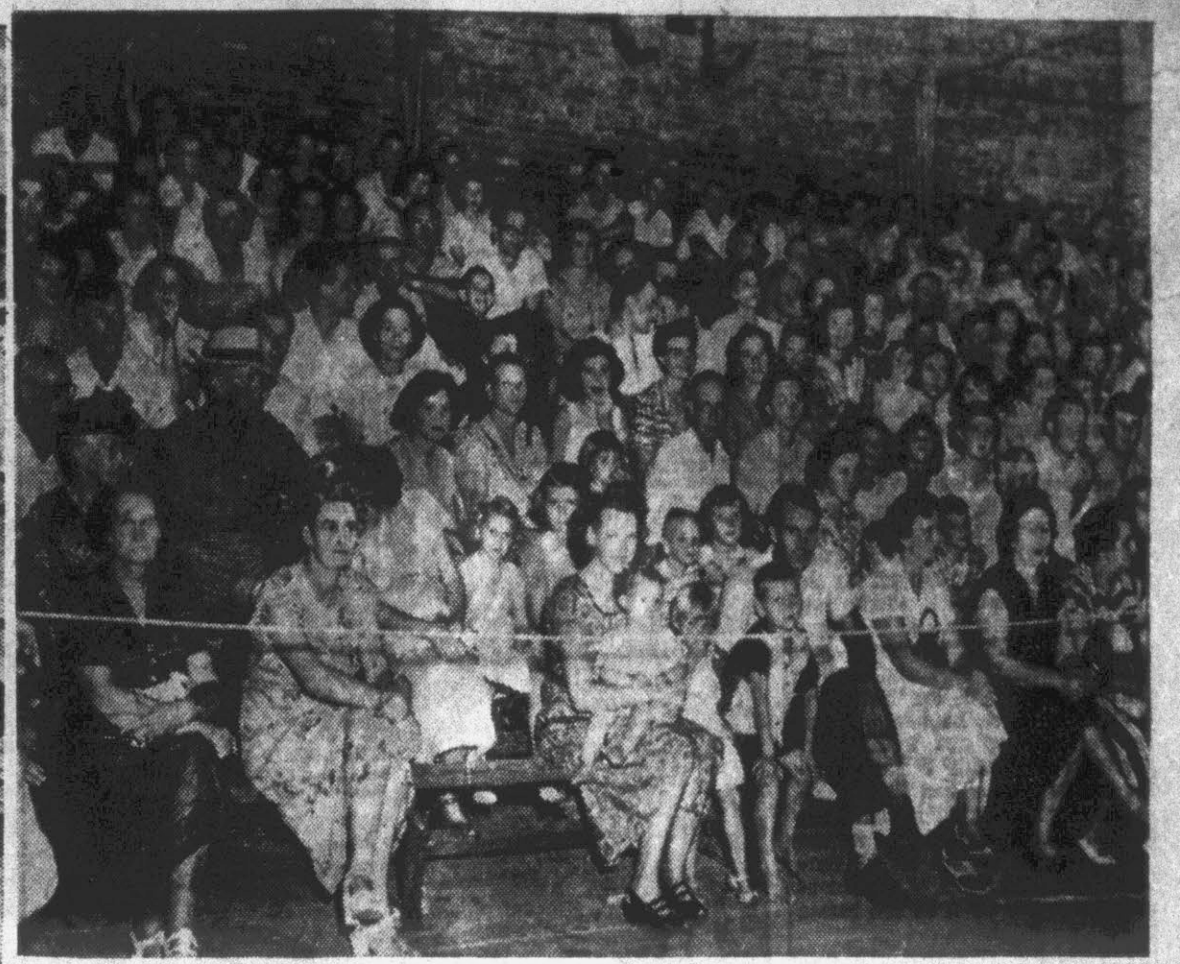

Greenville's Farmers Day Event As Told By Pictures

An overall view of the street on which the outdoor events were held for Farmers Day shows the large crowd which was present. The crowd watches one of the performers go through his act while the clowns keep the children laughing. An estimated 1500 persons watched the outdoor events.

The object was to carry the egg in the spoon for a considerable distance and bring it back to your partner who would then relay the egg. However only one person finished the egg-relay race held in the street beside the McGowan warehouse on Farmers Day.

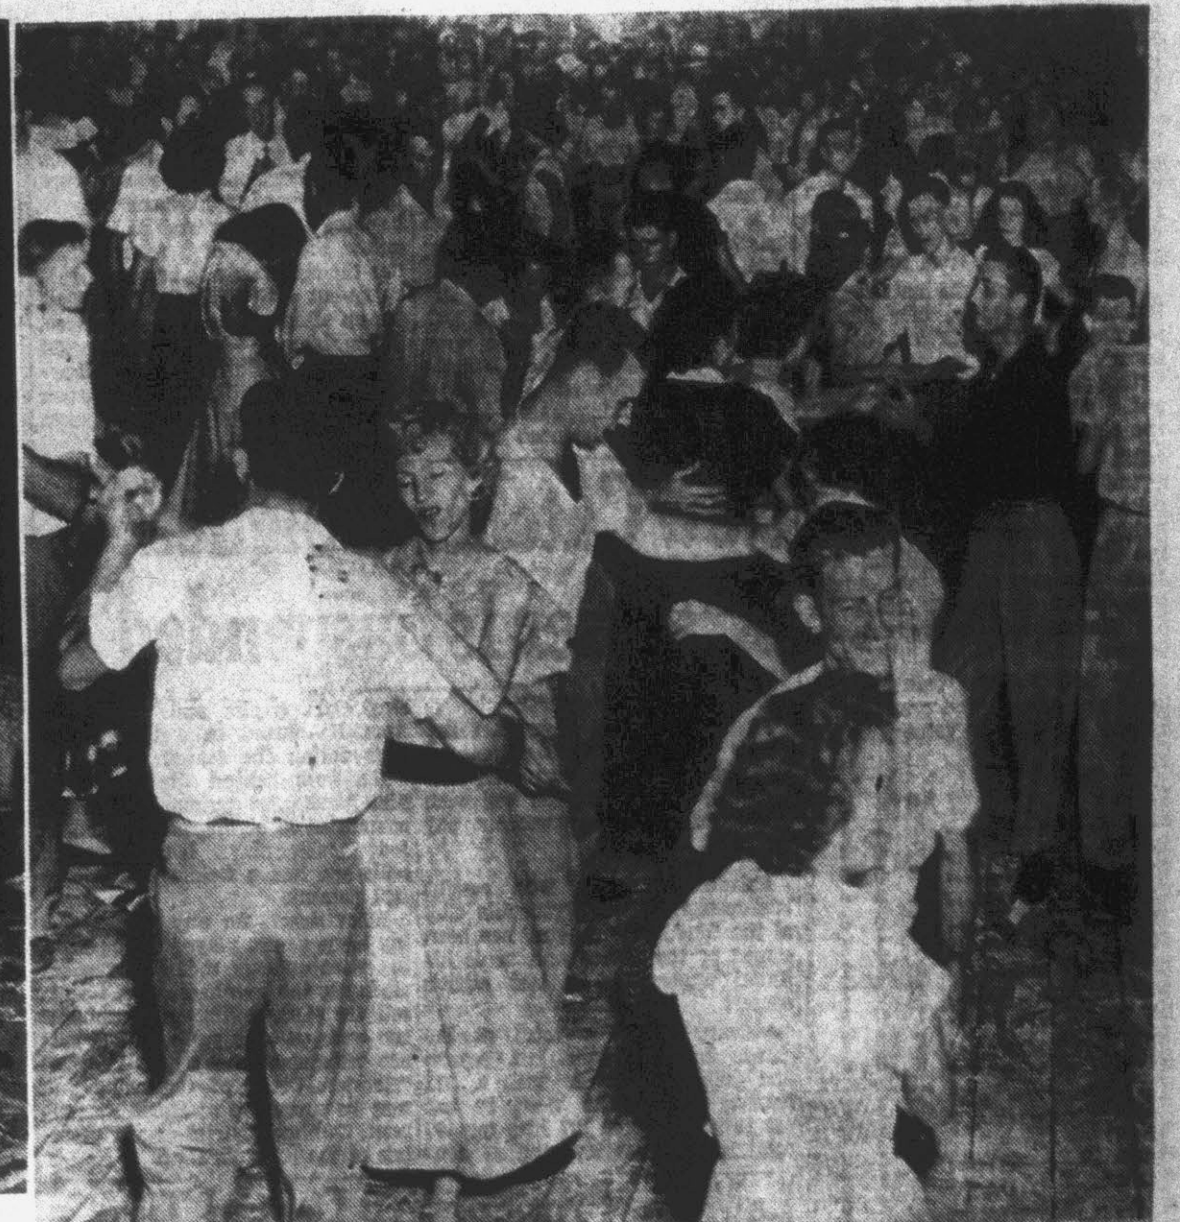

The above early arrivals at the McGowan warehouse for the Thursday night Farmers Day show and square dance were able to secure grand stand view of the events. Long before the show started the warehouse was packed with an estimated 6,000 persons.

"On your mark, get set, go!" cried the starter during the sack race which drew the largest crowd of youngsters in the Thursday afternoon recreational events which paid off in cash prizes for the winners. Because of the large number of entries, several races had to be run off.

Though it is several hours until show time, these farm couples are making sure they have a front row seat at the evening performance of the Jimmy Dickens show. To pass away the time they read the paper. Shortly after the picture was made, the empty seats in the background begin to fill up.

"Swing your partner, round you go," echoed the caller during the square dance sets held following the night radio show by Jimmy Dickens. As can be seen from the above photograph the dance floor was filled and the onlookers were packed in around them. (Reflector Staff Photos by Roy Hardee).

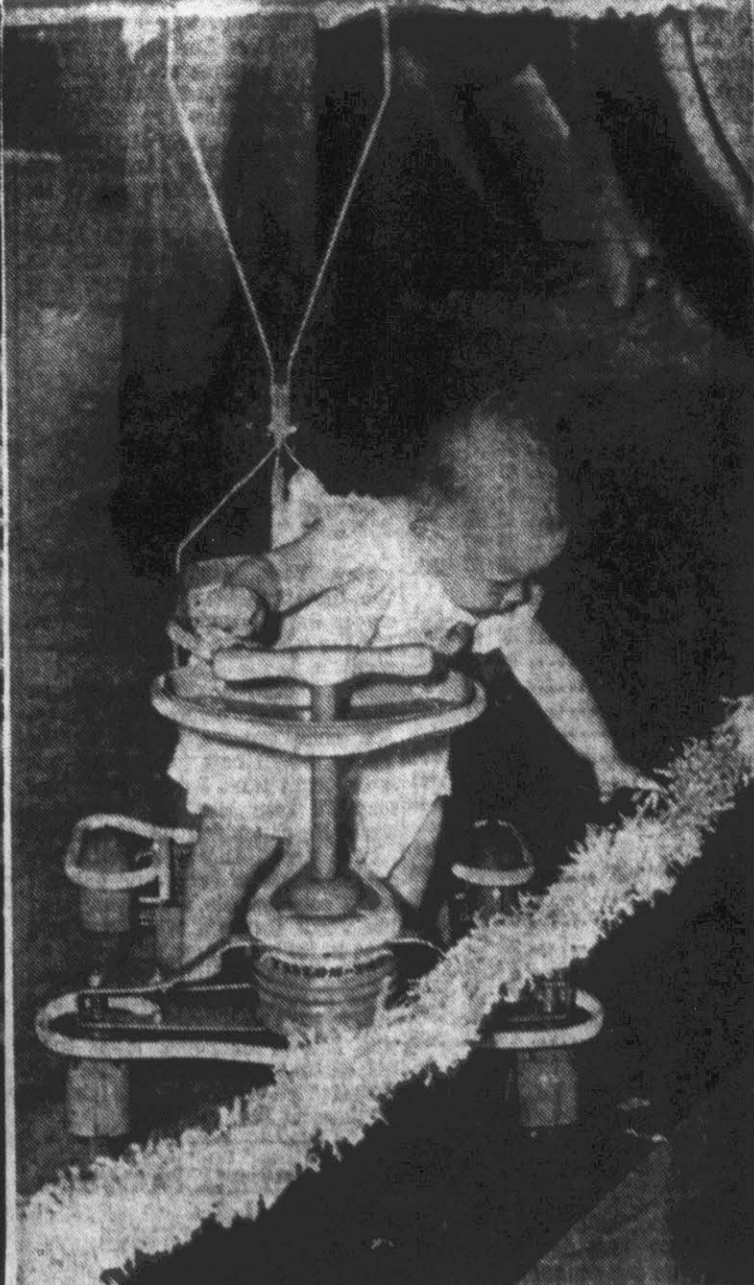

Some of the crowd which gathered around the East Carolina Teachers College Educational booth were caught by the photographer as they watched a movie being shown during the day. Such crowds as the one shown above were typical around all the booths.

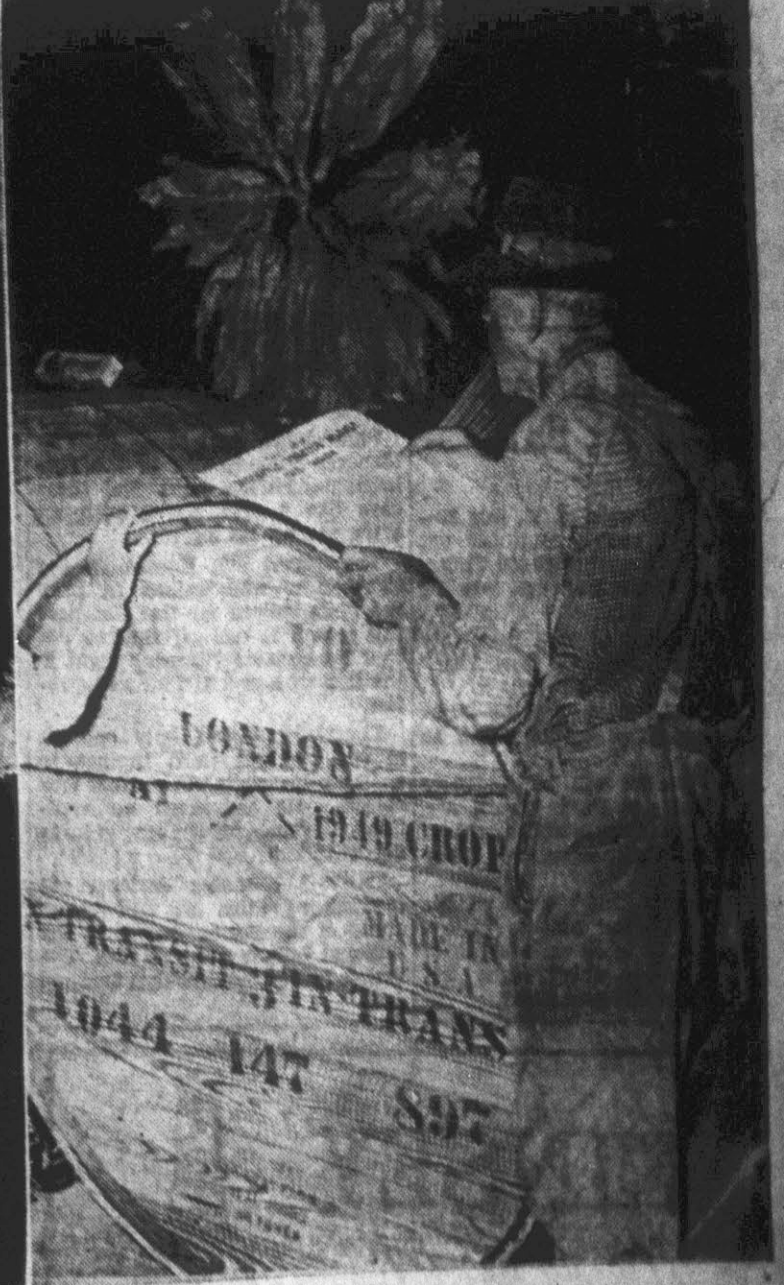

Preston Harrington of Route 3, Greenville, is mighty proud to be seated in the driver's seat of one of the many farm tractors which were displayed for the Second Annual Farmers Day. He played on the tractor, having the time of his life, while others enjoyed the many events to be found in the warehouse.

"Boys you had better look out," could well be the title of this shot of the rolling pin throwing contest. Here one of the many ladies who participated in the afternoon events, prepares to let the missile go with deadly accuracy.

Little Miss Carlene Holt, nine-month-old daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. R. C. Holt of Ayden, wants to find out exactly what that bright thing is made of. Even though she was little and couldn't take part in much of the fun she found plenty to occupy her during the time she stayed at the warehouse.

MacDonald Worthington, of Vanceboro, who came to Greenville for the second annual Farmers Day pauses a few seconds to cast a glance at the tobacco selling schedule for the Greenville market which opens next Friday. Also in the picture can be seen part of the display set up by the Tobacco Board of Trade.

The RANGE DOCTOR

by OSCAR J. FRIEND

Chapter 1

It was late of a Saturday morning when Robert Logan got off the stuffy daycoach at Clearwater and set his two shiny suitcases down in the shade of the red-painted depot. A trifle above medium height, slender of build but with a pair of muscular shoulders which implied a youth of manual labor, he was nicely dressed in a dark-brown business suit. He carried himself with ease and poise, and there was a certain air of quiet dignity about him which seemed a bit odd in one so young.

He removed his brown derby hat and wiped his perspiring brow as he surveyed what he could see of this sprawling Panhandle town. So far he was not much impressed. The deeper he got into this Texas country the more dismal seemed the prospects. Griggsby had written him what to expect, but two thousand potential patients on a sheet of paper seemed a lot more than two thousand healthy people scattered over several hundred square miles of rangeand.

At the back side of the station six stringy, rangy mustangs were hitched to a weatherbeaten stagecoach. A grizzled man wearing lace boots and an armed express guard were busily loading express shipments, mail sacks, and the luggage of passengers on top and in the boot. Logan approached.

"Is this the stage for Gila City?" The sweating, grunting driver glanced at him and answered without halting his work. "Shore is younker."

Logan handed his ticket to the driver. "My name is Logan, and I'm stopping at Gila City. Please handle than suitcase carefully."

"Logan? Oh!" The driver's impatient attitude altered, while the express guard stared at the passenger curiously. "So you're that young medicine doctor Tom Griggsby's been expectin'."

"Yes."

Logan entered the coach and sat in moody silence for most of the twenty-mile trip. He almost wished he had not come back to this rough and tough frontier country. He should have stayed in St. Louis, or returned to Little Rock to enter into practice with his preceptor, Dr. Devere. But he couldn't have done Tom Griggsby that way.

The sun was westerling rapidly when the overdue stagecoach rumbled into town like a small avalanche. Amid the dying thunder of hoofs a cloud of red dust and the squealing of tortured brake shoes the driver pulled up before the Alamo Hotel with a flourish. Lotterers quickly congregated to view the new arrivals.

Folks from ranches and hills thronged the street, marketing and trading, for Gila City was essentially a Saturday town. Wagoners and riders rattled and jingled their way about their affairs. Everywhere was laughter, noise, color, action.

Logan descended in turn from the stagecoach and fished his suitcases from the pile of luggage built up at the edge of the sidewalk.

"Yonder's the newspaper office, Doc," called out the driver, pointing with his chin. "Just a couple doors from the hotel."

Logan nodded his thanks and made his way through the crowd. The false-fronted structure was the newspaper office, the front of which was oddly pockmarked with bullet holes. Logan noted this grim significance and raised his eyes to the screaming sign painted above in bold, black letters.

THE GILA NEWS

The Only Newspaper On Horse-shoe Range
We Gather All The News—
And We Print It

A sudden shout brought Logan's gaze back to the entrance. A gray-headed, wiry little man was hastening out. A carpenter's apron, worn with the bib down, about his waist, a pencil stub behind one ear, sawdust in his shaggy eyebrows, and a beaming smile on his face, the editor limped forward to greet the newcomer.

"Bob, I missed you. I was making so much noise myself I didn't hear the stage. Welcome to your new home, son."

A lump gathered in Logan's throat. "Uncle Tom," he choked, dropping both luggage and dignity as he held out his hands.

They embraced in a bearlike hug that caused bystanders to gawk. Word flew from lip to lip that the young doctor so prevalent in the editor's conversation had at last arrived.

Soberly Logan drew back and looked accusingly at the older man. "I thought so," he commented grimly. "Right in the middle of things and still poking your finger into other people's business. Look at those bullet holes."

Griggsby laughed, bent over to pick up one of the suitcases. "Just souvenirs from outraged victims of the Press over at Frijoles Flats. Sort of gives the office an antique air. Don't pay any attention to 'em. Come on in, son."

Logan followed into the building where he found a new partition closing off a generous front quarter of the house in process of erection. A red-headed youth was carrying tongue-and-groove stock forward from a pile of lumber in the alley.

"Excuse the mess, Bob," Griggsby apologized. "I wanted to finish your office before you arrived, but we had to get the paper out yesterday. We run every Friday like we did in Blue Eagle. This is Nolly Sims, a better printer's devil than you were. Nolly come shake hands with Dr. Logan."

Logan greeted the lad with a warmth that surprised the boy and then turned his gaze on Griggsby as the abashed stripling resumed his work. "Still championing the underdog."

"Nolly's a good boy," defended Griggsby. "He sleeps in the back room where he can watch over things for us. I'll tell you about him later. Sorry I couldn't come to St. Louis for your graduation. Where's your diploma? I want to see it."

"Just a minute," said Logan firmly. "You're practically crowding yourself out of here to build me a front office."

Often-Married, Errol Flynn Will Take Vows Again

New York, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Errol Flynn, film actor, and his fiancée, Patrice Wymore, of Salina, Kan., arrived at LaGuardia Field today from Kansas City.

Flynn said they planned to be married in a church ceremony after he returns from France, where he is to appear in a motion picture. He is scheduled to leave for Paris by plane tonight.

Asked whether his marriage to the 20-year-old actress would be "for keeps," Flynn replied: "I am perfectly sure it is."

"I hope so, I am pretty sure it will be," Miss Wymore said.

Miss Wymore plans to remain in New York for a week to "shop around for my trousseau" and close her New York apartment.

Arrest Two Tar Heels For Liquor Robbery

Mount Croghan, S. C., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Two North Carolina men were held today in connection with the break-in of a liquor store here early Thursday.

Flue-Cured Tobacco Crop Expected Larger Than 1949

Washington, Aug. 11—(AP)—The Agriculture Department issued a new forecast of the expected flue-cured tobacco crop yesterday.

The department said it expected this year's crop to run to 1,146,000,000 pounds, compared with 1,115,000,000 pounds last year. Yesterday's estimate was about the same as one issued a month ago.

The department said production prospects for all tobaccos in 1950 were practically unchanged from last month and remained at 1,933,000,000 pounds. That's about two per cent below last year's crop, but nine per cent above the 10-year average (1939-48).

A burley tobacco crop of 500,000,000 pounds was predicted. This is about the same as forecast a month ago and is 60,000,000 pounds less than last year's crop.

The department said marked improvement for burley took place in Virginia and parts of Tennessee. Prospects declined sharply in West Virginia and moderately in Kentucky.

Concerning flue-cured tobacco, the department said excessive rains in eastern North Carolina caused some losses. This damage was partly offset by beneficial effects on the better drained late planted fields, the report added.

The net result, the report said, was a decline in prospective yield per acre in the type 12 areas, while other flue-cured types generally showed moderate increases over a month ago.

Sales of type 14 tobacco have passed the peak but are continuing with fair activity, the department said. Markets are opening in the border belt, but sales are not running at capacity levels due in part to some of the crop being later than usual.

Marketing of types 11 and 12 has not started, but burning is general. Fire-cured production was estimated at 61,300,000 and dark air-cured at 34,200,000 pounds. The fire-cured estimate is 12 per cent and the dark air-cured five per cent under last year's crops.

Lance Wooten In Boston Attending Shrine Meeting

By CHESTER WALSH

Lance Wooten, 75-year-old Negro of the "Old South," "majordomo" at the Carolina Sales Corporation and one of Greenville's best known citizens, has gone to Boston, Mass. He left Rocky Mount by train late this afternoon.

"Lance," as he is popularly known among both races here, is an outstanding member of the Shrine. He is going to the New England city to attend the annual convention of the "Imperial Council of the Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of North and South America." The convention will be in session from tomorrow, August 13, until next Saturday. Lance is a member of the New Bern Oasis. He has been a Mason for many years.

He is a native of Pitt County and has lived here all of his life. He was born on the old Rountree farm. Wooten is a veritable storehouse of knowledge of important events, interesting people and those who made Greenville. His reminiscences about early days here will entertain any group. He holds a responsible position with the Carolina Sales Corporation, the company, in appreciation of his loyal services, gave him the trip to the Shrine Convention in Boston.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

Dean W. E. Marshall of East Carolina told the Exchange Club last night the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations is the world's best hope for effecting a permanent peace.

Marshall, who has made an extensive study of the FAO, stated the world-wide program is being carried on yearly through a five million dollar budget. All the nations of the world are members with the exception of Russia and Japan.

Russia, he said, has refused to join the member nations and Japan is ineligible since no peace treaty has been signed.

Describing the work of the organization, Marshall stated the United States has profited from being a member in that a better type of rice has been grown in China and imported. In return, this nation, through the FAO, has helped China save thousands of head of cattle through the use of a new vaccine developed by a FAO-paid scientist.

Also during the program, which was attended by 20 members, Sam Worthington and Bill Riggins, delegates to the recent State convention at Wrightsville Beach, reported to the group on proceedings during the 2-club convention. Riggins stated the state Exchange is backing a North Carolina doctor's polio cure. The doctor, from Reidsville, and also a member of Exchange, has cured many advanced-stage cases through the use of vitamin C.

Fear Fate Of 2 Boys On Mount

Lone Pine, Calif., Aug. 12—(AP)—Fear was entertained today for the safety of Christopher, Smith Reynolds and Stephen Wasserman, both 17, missing on Mt. Whitney, highest peak in the United States, since last Sunday.

Reynolds, son of torch singer Libby Holman Reynolds and the late Zachary Smith Reynolds, heir to the $25,000,000 Reynolds tobacco fortune, and Wasserman, son of a New York broker, had planned to return here last Tuesday. They had only two days rations.

The boys had been working at the Cerro Gordo Gold mine for the last month. Both are experienced hikers and mountain climbers.

Inyo county undersheriff Arthur Jewett said nights are very cold on the mountain and that many persons have perished while trying to scale Mt. Whitney, which towers 14,496 feet above sea level.

A party of four searchers started up the mountain on horseback Thursday and three more joined them yesterday. They were covering trails by foot today. Four of them returned last night with the report that the pair had not signed the register at the mountain top. The party had searched most of the dangerous east face of the mountain.

Revere, Mass., Aug. 12—(AP)—Children lost in this beach city are assured of lollipops at the Metropolitan District Commission Police Station.

William C. Mulvenney, who has kept the station supplied with the candy sticks for years died Thursday night.

Yesterday, Police Capt. Thomas B. Dawley was notified that Mulvenney had willed $1,000 in his care to keep lost children supplied in candy while waiting for their folks to claim them.

Claim Arkansas Named Site For H-Bomb Plant

Little Rock, Aug. 12—(AP)—The Arkansas Gazette says in a copyrighted story that "Arkansas will get the new $200,000,000 hydrogen bomb plant."

In a story written for its Saturday morning edition, the Gazette said "that was the tentative decision of Washington officials yesterday when it came to the conclusion that only Arkansas has all the necessary elements for the plant."

"These are power, seclusion, large idle acreage, fuel and labor supply," the newspaper said.

The newspaper didn't specify the authority for its statement that Arkansas had been tentatively selected for the plant.

The plant has been sought by Arkansas for the mountainous northwest or north-central part of the state.

Jakob Malik, as president, gave himself the floor yesterday, as Russia's delegate, to attack the United States in a speech designed to close out the council business for the weekend without danger of an immediate reply.

His speech was a counterattack to U.S. Delegate Warren Austin's summation Thursday of Russian responsibility for North Korea's invasion of South Korea and defiance of the United Nations.

It followed a statement of Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief British delegate, that Communist imperialism wants to swallow up all Asia and must be stopped.

The non-Communist group campaign of trying to out-talk Malik was carried on by Jebb after the Council again failed to get Malik to make a ruling on seating the South Korean representative at the Council table.
