UMT Proposal Likely 'Shelved' Until Next Year

President Not To Press For Controversial Measure At Present Time

Washington, Aug. 17 — (AP) — Congress appeared likely today to leave on a self at least until next year a request from the Defense Department for standby legislation to require military training of the nation's youths.

President Truman gave second-hand backing to the request for prompt approval of a bill calling for six months of continuous training and another six in related activity for young men between 17 and 20.

But the White House made it clear, before Secretary of Defense Johnson submitted his request late yesterday, that Mr. Truman will not press for such legislation this year.

The President has repeatedly asker for Universal Military Training —commonly called UMT—but he has been quoted by White House spokesmen within the past few days as not wanting to jeopardize other defense legislation by pressing for it now.

Johnson proposed that Congress put the MT law on the books at once, but that it give the President authority to say when program shall start. He said the military could not now divert to UMT the trained officers who would be needed as instructors for some 850,000 youths annually.

The Secretary, who said Mr. Truman approved his request, made no estimate of the program's cost. Recent official estimates, have placed it at about $2,000,000,000 a year.

The bill which Johnson submitted to the Senate and House Armed Services committees would divide the proposed training into two phases. After six months of continuous paid training, youths could elect a number of courses, including active duty or service in reserve or National Guard units.

Senator Gurney (R-SD), senior Republican on the Senate committee, expressed some doubt as to whether UMT could be approved this year. He said it is his personal feeling that Congress should stay in session long enough to do so.

New Victims In Fire Are Found

Tadoussac, Que., Aug. 17—(AP)—The charred wreckage of the St. Lawrence River cruise ship Quebec, which burned here Monday night, gave up another body today. This brought the death toll to five.

Last night the fourth body, believed to be that of a woman, was recovered. The fifth was located not far away by a wrecking and salvage crew working over the burned hulk of the 7,000-ton vessel from which more than 400 passengers and 150 crew members disembarked amid smoke and flames Monday evening.

GI Allowances

Washington, Aug. 17—(AP)—Senate and House committees today approved legislation aimed at providing $85 to $125 a month for the support of families of enlisted servicemen in the three lower grades. The man himself would pay $40 of the total.

The Senate Armed Services Committee and a House subcommittee both made the same approach to the problem. This was by amending present pay regulations to provide "quarters allowances" for privates, privates first class and corporals in the army and similar grades in the other services.

Luxury Liner Smoulders At Pier

The 7,000-ton cruise ship Quebec lies smoking at her dock in Tadoussac, Quebec. The 22-year-old vessel, owned and operated by the Canada Steamship Lines, burned to the waterline after racing aflame in the St. Lawrence river to land its 475 passengers and crew members. Three persons are reported missing. Operators of the Quebec said she was a "complete loss." (AP Wirephoto).

Tried In Vain

Halifax, Aug. 17—(AP)—The Halifax county health officer says he tried in vain to get a two-year-old polio patient admitted to a hospital in eastern North Carolina.

Dr. Robert F. Young said yesterday that Jewel Faye King is in a hospital at Portsmouth, Va., because he was unable to get her admitted to a North Carolina hospital nearer than Greensboro.

"I spent an entire morning calling hospitals in the eastern section of North Carolina, including Raleigh and Durham, in order to find a bed for an acute case of poliomyelitis," the doctor stated.

Polish Diplomats Seek Sanctuary

Break With Warsaw Regime, Ask To Stay In America

Washington, Aug. 17 — (AP) — Three top diplomats of the Polish embassy in Washington have broken with their Communist government, quit their jobs and asked for the right to stay in the United States.

The government is investigating their cases. In the absence of evidence that any of them has been a Communist, officials speculated that all three probably will be granted asylum. The three are:

Janusz Zoltowski, who resigned about two months ago as minister and financial counselor—the No. 2 post at the embassy.

Stefan Rogozinski, embassy counselor who also quit about two months ago.

Wladyslaw Nizinski, who resigned as second secretary of the embassy about ten days ago.

State Department officials said today all three had written letters asking asylum in the United States.

Zoltowski is a veteran employe of the embassy under a series of governments going well back into Poland's non-communist days.

Rogoinski and Nizinski came to the United States after the war but neither is regarded at the State Department as a communist.

Firemen Battle Early Morning Fire In Store

Origin Of Blaze In Back Part Of Evans Street Super Market Not Known; Much Stock And Equipment Believed Lost

By ROY HARDEE

Greenville firemen early this morning battled a mysterious fire of unknown origin for more than two hours at the W. C. Elks supermarket located on Evans street.

An alarm was turned in around 1:15 and when fire equipment arrived on the scene, flames were licking their way out from under the roof in the back with heavy clouds of black smoke pouring from the building. The entire area around the fire was blanketed with a layer of smoke.

As firemen broke down the rear entrance door they were greeted with a roaring mass of flames, which was confined to the rear storage section of the building, but was rapidly eating its way towards the front portion of the building.

The flames died down somewhat as streams of water from two large hose lines were brought into play, but a smoldering fire which could not be reached for some time, because of smoke and intense heat, hampered the firemen in checking the course of the fire.

The exact origin of the fire was not known at once. Damage was to the back storage room and the ceiling of the main part of the building.

All of the stock and other items stored in the rear of the building was believed to be a total loss, while the damage to electric meat freezer boxes in the back part of the building was not known.

The building had been closed on and off for the past several months, because of illness on the part of its operators.

Today it was learned that Mr. Elks had planned to reopen his business on Saturday of this week.

Dulles Asked To Be UN Delegate

Acceptance Rules Out His Candidacy For Senate Post

Washington, Aug. 17 — (AP) — John Foster Dulles said today President Truman has asked him to be a delegate to the United Nations general assembly and that he will not be a candidate for the Senate in New York.

After a talk with the President, Dulles read reporters a brief statement announcing his acceptance of the U.N. appointment at the President's request.

He said he will continue as Republican foreign policy consultant to Secretary of State Acheson .

Dulles read reporters this statement:

"The President has asked me if I would be available to serve again on the U. S. delegation to the general assembly of the United Nations which will meet in mid-September.

"I have told him that I would.

"At this critical time the supreme task is that of making the United Nations into an effective instrument for peace and justice.

"The opportunity to help in that is one that I welcome even though it excludes my running again for the United States Senate from New York.

"My service with the U. S. delegation will also emphasize how vital it is to continue bi-partisanship in relation to foreign policy."

Youth Prevented Disastrous Fire

Stantonsburg, Aug. 17—(AP)—A 17-year-old boy who drove a blazing oil truck away from a bulk oil plant shortly before it exploded was credited with saving this town from a disastrous fire.

Ralph Wainwright saw the truck burning at the nearby bulk oil plant when he went to work at his father's filling station Tuesday morning.

He quickly drove the truck away from the plant and jumped out seconds before it exploded.

Override Opposition To Considering 'One Army'

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 17 — (AP) — The European assembly's general affairs committee today overrode British Laborite and Scandinavian opposition and voted to take up Winston Churchill's proposal for a unified European army to guard against Soviet aggression.

The 28-member committee voted 19 to 6 with three abstentions to examine proposals for a European defense convention, a unified army and defense minister.

All 15 member nations of the consultative assembly — the lower house of the unofficial parliament of Europe—were represented in the vote. It broke a two-day deadlock and gave the go-ahead to further elaboration of Churchill's proposal made last week.

Former French Premier Georges Bidault, chairman of the general affairs committee, disclosed the vote at a news conference. He declined to reveal which delegates opposed the committee's final decision, or to comment on rumors of a walkout.

The committee drafted a three-point agenda for its subcommittee on security and instructed it to stick within assembly statutes prohibiting debate on strictly military matters. This compromise on procedure satisfied at least one Swedish delegate — Liberal Bertil Ohlin—who cast his vote with the majority.

Approve Truman Tax Boost Plan As First Step

Washington, Aug. 17—(AP)—The Senate Finance Committee today unanimously approved President Truman's "first installment" $5,000,000,000 tax boost, to help finance the Korean war and to arm America against Communist aggression.

The legislation, which may go to the President's desk by Sept. 1, puts the nation's tax laws virtually on a wartime footing.

It boosts individual income taxes by about $3,000,000 meaning increases of up to 20 percent for the 50,000,000-plus taxpayers. Corporations will pay $1,500,000,000 more a year.

Servicemen's Benefits

Not All Of The World War II Benefits Are Now Available; The Big Ones That 'Got Away'; Actions Likely By Congress; What Korea Vets Will Be Getting

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 17—(AP)— For men who volunteer or are drafted into the armed forces now, there are a number of veterans' benefits but not all the benefits which World War II veterans got.

For example: No one who joined the army, navy or airforce after July 25, 1948—even those now fighting in Korea—can get these benefits which World War II veterans got:

1 Loans on a home, business or farm guaranteed by the veterans administration; 2 Schooling at government expense; and 3 Unemployment pay which ran $20 a week for a maximum of 52 weeks for unemployed veterans of the last war.

Still, men in the fighting in Korea, when it's over, will have been truly veterans exposed to as much death and danger as those who served at home or abroad during World War II.

Congress will have to decide whether to restore World War II benefits for the veterans of Korea, or those who go into the armed forces now but may serve at home.

Under the present system, these are the veterans benefits for a man who entered the armed forces since July 25, 1948:

1 Government insurance, called National service life insurance. He can get up to $10,000 worth. He buys it at so much a thousand, depending on his age. It's term insurance. For example: A man of 21 pays 65 cents a month for each $1,000 of insurance up to the $10,000 limit.

If he dies in service, the insurance goes to his survivors. If he leaves the service, he can continue the policy at the same rate or convert it to a permanent policy.

2 Disability pay. He gets compensation from the government if he's disabled by sickness, injury or wounds, but since this is considered peacetime, the amount of compensation would differ according to the place and circumstances of his sickness, injury or wounds.

For example: If he were in an area of hostilities—meaning Korea right now—and was totally disabled, he'd receive $150 a month, or the full wartime compensation.

If he were totally disabled by an army truck accident in this coun

Thirty Thousand Enemy Troops Open Central Front Attack Toward Taegu

Red Koreans Massacre 32 U. S. Prisoners In Newest Atrocity

BY HAL BOYLE

With U. S. First Cavalry, Korea, Aug. 17—(AP)—Thirty-two American prisoners with hands tied behind their backs were shot dead today by Red Koreans on a hill of Waegwan just before a U. S. patrol reached the spot.

The Reds tried to kill 37 prisoners in all. But five lived to tell the story. They said the communists also massacred the wounded as they lay moaning on the ground.

This was in the area that was bombed yesterday by 98 B-29s in the heaviest air raid of the war. Killing of prisoners in this fashion is typical retaliation for such an assault.

The execution of the prisoners was on Hill 303, which was captured by the Reds this morning.

Their bodies were found on a ridge recaptured by the Fifth Cavalry this afternoon. The American prisoners were killed only two hours before troopers re-took the ridge.

The Americans seized the ridge at 6:30 p. m. (3:30 a. m. eastern standard time.) The hill had been fought over for three days.

The 37 Americans were mowed down by bursts of gunfire.

Three North Korean prisoners were taken after a sharp fight nearby. One of them was positively identified by an American survivor—Cpl. James Melvin Rudd of Salyerville, Ky.—as a member of the squad of killers.

This prisoner denied he had taken any part in the action. Regimental officers said he would be sent back with a recommendation that he be tried as a war criminal.

On the way back from the front we met the prisoner and Cpl. Rudd on their trip back for joint questioning. With Rudd was another survivor—Cpl. Roy L. Day, Jr., of El Paso, Tex.

Cpl. Rudd said he was saved because he was lying on the ground and a soldier standing near him was killed and fell across him.

His buddy Cpl. Day, also escaped injury although a bullet ripped through his belt and another through his pants leg.

"Our patrol kept coming and the gooks got scared," Cpl. Rudd said. "They started to leave but some of our boys were moaning and groaning so the gooks came back and shot the wounded—as many as they saw. Then they took off north over the hill towards the river."

Pour Through Mountain Passes 15 Miles North Of Emergency Capital; Only 2 South Korean Divisions In Their Path; Americans Stage Push Further South

Tokyo, Friday, Aug. 18 — Thirty thousand North Koreans opened a massive drive on Taegu on the central Korean warfront Thursday.

The Reds poured through steep mountain passes 15 miles north of the South Korean emergency capital. They were east of the Naktong river.

Only two South Korean divisions stood between them and Taegu. South Koreans controlled the mountain pass roads.

The Communists poured out of the B 29 bombed area west of the river. They jumped off from an area between Waegwan and Kunwi.

Their attack started a few hours after U. S. Marines and the 24th infantry divisitn struck a new allied blow at the 12,000 man Red bridgehead on the east bank of the Naktong river near Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

The Marines had been pulled out of the South coastal area where they had made advances on Chinju. They were ordered back 20-odd miles to the east and then shunted northward for the Changnyong attack.

The U. S. 25th infantry division took the Marines' places in the coastal line just west of Masan, southern port which is 27 airline miles east of Pusan.

It was on the north central front, north of Taegu, that the Reds were making their most dangerous threat, however.

The sudden thrust was described by U. S. 8th army headquarters as the "most serious one to the United Nations in Korea."

U. S. based a massed bombing attack on 98 B-29s Wednesday which was aimed to slow the Red offensive.

AP correspondent Leif Erickson at 8 th army headquarters in Korea said the North Koreans were attacking with between 25,000 and 30,000 troops.

In the path of the invaders were two South Korean divisions.

The sudden outburst to the North developed after U. S. Marines and the U. S. 24th infantry division jumped off with a counter attack in the Red's Changyong river-crossing bulge in a bloody effort to drive the enemy back across the Naktong.

The Marine-Army attack roared up a steep hill near Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

The Changnyong fighting was fiercest of the war.

AP correspondent Don Whitehead said the Marines advanced over a savagely contested slope.

AP Correspondent Jack MacBeth reported from the 24th infantry positions Thursday night that the army doughboys had reached their objectives. They are on the Marines northern flank.

MacBeth reported the doughboys were digging in for a possible counter-attack from 12,000 Reds in the bridgehead during Thursday night.

The Marines were withdrawn 27 miles from their Korean South coastal gains and moved to the Naktong river line to meet the attack.

The Marines spearheaded a new American offensive in advance of the Reds' kickoff.

They hit hard and fast at a craggy Changnyong hill and had clawed their way part of the way up it at dusk.

They had been ordered out of their southern front positions before Chinju to make the Changnyong charge.

In the South they had pushed to within sight of ruined Chinju in a sweep rest from Masan, South coast port 27 airline miles west of Pusan, No. 1 allied port.

Their coastal place was taken by the U. S. 25th infantry division.

Truman Accepts Philippine Offer To Help In Korea

Washington, Aug. 17 — (AP) — President Truman, tacitly accepting an offer of Philippine troops to fight in Korea, expressed pride today that soldiers of the United States and the island republic "will again stand shoulder to shoulder against the forces of aggression."

His statement was in a message to President Elpidio Quirino thanking him for placing a regimental combat team at the disposal of General Douglas MacArthur.

A regimental combat team ordinarily numbers 4,000 to 5,000 men.

Only yesterday, Secretary of Defense Johnson announced the United States had accepted an offer from Thailand to put 4,000 men on the fighting front in Korea.

Probing Belvoir Fire And Robbery; Accounts Saved

Continued investigation of the robbery and fire at Dupree [illegible] store in Belvoir yesterday revealed yesterday afternoon that only the accounts owed by customers were saved when the building went up in smoke.

Yesterday afternoon members of the sheriff's department and Greenville police department were able to get through the debris to the two safes which had been opened before the fire started. In the smaller safe, which had not been locked, were found most of the bills.

Elmo Dupree stated this morning he thought they had been lost along with all the merchandise in the store. However, he said, the business is "a whole lot better off now" for finding the accounts.

The robbery, which occurred between two and three yesterday morning, resulted in a cash loss of only $50. However, the fire, which has not been determined as accidental or arson, burned up close to $20,000 worth of merchandise. The building, which was a total loss, was valued at $10,000, Dupree said.

Concerning clues to the possible identity of the safe cracker, Sheriff Tyson and Deputy Loyd Manning and police fingerprint expert S. B. Dorsey are continuing their investigation Manning reported today there were several clues uncovered but wouldn't comment on [illegible] the safe was blown open or jimmied, Manning would not say.

It wasn't until 4:30 yesterday afternoon that anybody could get close enough to the safes to determine anything. The fire didn't die down until that time and canned goods were popping throughout the day, due to the heat of the fire.

Dupree stated he thought the fire was done on purpose "to keep me in the house or at least away from the store." He said he at first thought it was started by burning glycerine but today thought the person had set fire to a quantity of DDT. "The person definitely started the fire," Dupree said. "It wasn't done accidentally."

J. T. Dupree, county commissioner and co-owner of the store, didn't learn of the fire until yesterday afternoon when he returned from a commissioners' convention at Wrightsville Beach. Contacted this morning, he agreed with his brother that with the finding of the accounts, the outlook is somewhat better.

Both men plan to rebuild the store and gas station on the same site. "We're going to begin a new building just as soon as possible," Elmo said, "as soon as the old one is cleared away." He stated it would be built of concrete block and not of frame construction as the other one was.

Interruption

First Cavalry Division Headquarters, Korea, Aug. 17—(AP)—The telephone at headquarters rang. It was Capt. Herman west of Miami, Fla., calling from a frontline command post.

"Captain West reporting, sir," he said.

"Go ahead, captain," the headquarters officer said.

West began his report, then paused, "Pardon me a minute, sir."

Firing could be heard over the line. Then West's voice came back:

"We just had a little firefight outside our command post. I just got myself a 'gook.'"

British Warship In Brief Fight

Hong Kong, Aug. 17—(AP)—The British destroyer Concord and Chinese shore batteries fought a 30 minute gun duel today in the second clash between British warships and Red artillerymen on the approaches to Hong Kong.

After the Concord battle it was officialy reported the navy frigate Whitesan Bay exchanged fire Aug. 2 with gun emplacements on Lingting Island.

No Combat Duty Slated For Sole Surviving Sons

Washington, Aug. 17—(AP)—The army said today that sole surviving sons of families which have lost sons or daughters in the armed service since the start of World War II will not be required to serve in Korea.

Any sole surviving sons now in Korea may apply for a transfer to non-combat areas. Applications also may be begun by members of their families.

Sole surviving sons who are on duty in the army in non combat zones will not be transferred to a combat zone if they or their families submit a satisfactory application.

All theaters and army area commanders have been advised of the policy.

It is somewhat similar to the policy laid down in the selective service act of 1948, which exempted sole surviving sons from induction.

The 1948 act provided that, where one or more sons or daughters of a family was killed in action or died as a result of service-connected wounds or illness, the sole surviving son of such a family should not be drafted.

Guarding Pohang Base

An American soldier keeps watch from a fortified ridge overlooking burning village in the Pohang area of the Korean front as he covers comrades (center, under gun), patrolling hillside. A full South Korean division has been moved to this northern front to help hold important Pohang airfield, now out of operation due to Reds advance in the area. (AP Wirephto).

Enough Votes To Defeat Veto In House Mail Bill

Washington, Aug. 17—(AP)—With enough votes behind it to override a presidential veto, a bill ordering two city mail deliveries a day moved to the Senate today. It may die there of neglect.

The bill would set aside Postmaster General Donaldson's order of last April cutting city mail deliveries to one a day and curtailing other postal services.

Although the Senate Post Office Committee has unanimously approved a companion bill, the Senate's leadership has not seen fit to put it on the program for debate. There were indications that the bill would not be given a go-ahead but would be allowed to wither away in the Senate.

'Barbarous' Bombing

The Mass B-29 Attack On North Korean Troop Concentrations Is Likely To Be Protested By Malik; Comparison With A-Bomb In Similar Blow Considered

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The unprecedented B-29 attack upon North Korean troops concentrated in a 26 square mile area Northwest of Waegwan doubtless will set military experts to figuring feverishly.

It was the first time B-29s ever had given close-up mass support to ground forces, and the first time they ever had been assigned to blanket a great area in a direct blow at hostile troops.

Inevitably the experts will aim to figure how the results of such bombing would compare with the use of an atomic bomb on the same area. They may find that an atom bomb, employed in such manner as to produce its greatest efficiency, would have done more damage.

However, they also may find that regular quarter ton bombs, if well placed, will do more damage than the A-bomb unless the latter is exploded so as to produce its maximum efficiency.

In any event, this mass bombing may be expected to produce a howl from the Communist camp. Moscow already had been branding Uncle Sam as a barbarian because of bombing in Korea.

Soviet delegate Jakob Malik, who now is presiding over the U. N. Security council, has a resolution before that body charging the United States with the "inhuman, barbarous bombing of the peaceful population of peaceful towns and populated areas." Russia calls on America to stop this alleged bombing immediately.

It will be strange if Malik doesn't use the latest bombing as the text for another hot protest.

I never hear such absurd allegations without thinking of a statement made to me in England during the late World War by Lt. Col. Paul Tibbets of Miami, Fla., one of America's air heroes and wearer of the purple heart. We got onto the subject of bombing areas, and Tibbets said that before his first raid he was sick with thoughts of the civilians who might suffer from his bombs.

"That feeling probably dates back to my training days," he said. "We had it hammered into us constant-

The South Carolina tobacco market opens much earlier than they do in North Carolina. Sales have been going on there since about the middle of July and the price at which it is sold proves it does not pay the farmers at least to sell on the early markets. The South Carolina farmers don't grade their tobacco, but sell it in the rough. The average of just a fraction over five cents does not indicate that it pays to sell it this way. Nothing pays better than to cure fully and neatly grade tobacco for market.

Surprise Shower Given For Miss Smith

Tuesday at 11:30 a. m. Mrs. Jim Groome and Mrs. Charles Stokes entertained at a Coca-Cola party in honor of Miss Peggy Rose Smith, bride-elect of September, at the home of Mrs. Groome's mother, Mrs. H. H. Duncan.

During the refreshment course the bride was presented a surprise kitchen shower in which she received many useful gifts. The hostesses remembered Miss Smith with a corsage of white pon pons and gifts in her chosen crystal and china patterns.

Sixteen of the bride's friends were present.

Trinity Church Is Setting For Harris-Younts Nuptials

High Point.—Saturday at seven o'clock in an impressive ceremony at the Methodist church in Trinity Miss Molly Frances Younts and Bill Lloyd Harris of Greenville were united in marriage. Officiating minister was Reverend A. C. Gibbs, church pastor.

Music for the wedding was furnished by Mrs. Faye Teel of Greenville, soloist, and Max Shoaf of High Point, pianist. Tall baskets of white gladioli and fern against a background of greenery formed the nuptial setting with white tapers in branched candelabra giving soft illumination.

Bridal attendants were Miss Betty Jones of Trinity, maid-of-nonor, Miss Carolyn Phillips, cousin of the bride from Kingsport, Tennessee, Mrs. Fred Lambeth of High Point, Miss Ann Weaver of Durham and Miss Jane Lewis of Stantonsburg, bridesmaids, and Miss Phyllis Younts, sister of the bride, junior bridesmaid.

Orchid marquisette was used to fashion the dresses worn by the four bridesmaids with berets of matching material and cascade bouquets of yellow gladioli florets completing their costumes. The maid-of-honor wore aqua marquisette with matching headdress and carried a bouquet of cream-colored gladioli florets. The yellow marquisette chosen for the dress of the junior bridesmaid with which she carried a bouquet of orchid pompoms, completed the pastel color scheme.

R. E. Harris of Greenville served as best man for his brother while groomsmen were Carlton Harris, also a brother of the groom from Greenville, Jack Teel Jr., Greenville, Jesse Lamm of Kinston and George Morris of Winston-Salem.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, D. R. Younts, was lovely in her wedding gown of white marquisette over white satin. The deep yoke of the dress was edged with chantilly lace and the lace was repeated as a border for the full train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was worn with a tiara of lace and satin appliqued with seed pearls, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white flowers centered with white orchids.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Younts chose powder blue crepe with harmonizing accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Harris, mother of the groom, wore grey crepe and also pinned pink roses at her shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris left after the ceremony for a northern wedding trip, the bride wearing a coral linen suit with black accessories and the orchid from her wedding bouquet.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Younts of Trinity, is a junior at East Carolina Teachers College in Greenville, and will resume her studies in September. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Harris of Greenville. He attended State College in Raleigh and now holds a position with the National Supply Company in Greenville where the couple will make their home.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included many from Greenville, Greensboro, Chapel Hill, Winston-Salem, and other towns in the state.

Final pre-nuptial courtesies for Miss Molly Younts and Bill Lloyd Harris, who were married last Saturday evening at the Methodist church in Trinity, included the traditional cake cutting Friday night following the rehearsal and a buffet dinner earlier in the evening.

Hostesses at the cake cutting were Mrs. Dallas Younts, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. J. O. Wilkie and Miss Carrie Phillips of Greensboro, aunts of the bride, who entertained at the D. R. Younts home in Trinity.

Receiving at the door were Mrs. Wilkie and Mrs. Younts, who introduced the guests to the receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Younts, parents of the bride, the bridal couple, and Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Harris, parents of the groom. Miss Bertie White presided at the bride's book.

White gladioli and asters were used in profusion throughout the home to form an effective setting for the party. The dining room table was covered with a cloth of white lace and centered with the three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by a garland of white sweet peas and greenery. The cake cutting was completed by Mrs. D. R. Younts, and punch was served by Mrs. M. R. Harris. Assisting in refreshments were Mrs. John Payne and Mrs. G. T. Gunter.

The guests, numbering approximately seventy-five were limited to the wedding party, the two families and close friends.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Younts, parents of the bride, entertained at the buffet supper which preceded the wedding rehearsal. The guests for this event at the Younts home in Trinity were members of the bridal party.

Arrest Driver In Truck Wreck

The driver of a 1950 model pickup truck which was wrecked on the New Bern highway Tuesday night was arrested by State Highway patrolmen on charges of driving drunk, it was learned today.

Kenneth E Allen, age 27, of Washington, N.C., was arrested by Cpl. John Laws and Dick Chadwick as the result of an investigation of an accident which Allen had around 9:30, it was stated.

The truck, according to the officers, ran off the roadway and turned over on its right side. Allen was not injured in the accident but the truck was damaged to an estimated $400.

Takes A Loss On Nickel Coffee

Alliance, Neb., Aug. 17—(AP)—Restaurant Owner Rex Myers got tired "of people telling me I can make a shilling on a cup of coffee at a nickel."

So for four hours yesterday, Myers sold nothing but coffee. He even furnished free nickels for the customers.

Afterwards a banker and an auditor were called in. They figured the cost of labor, materials, cream and sugar and came up with a figure of 6.486 cents a cup.

Elizabeth City Band To Play At Lost Colony Site

Manteo, N. C. — Elizabeth City's famous high school band under the direction of Scott Callaway will come here on Friday August 18 to take part in the 363rd anniversary celebration of the birth of Virginia Dare. A feature of their appearance to honor the memory of the first child of English parentage born in the New World will be a concert from the stage of the Waterside Theatre where Paul Green's symphonic drama The Lost Colony is presented each night, except Monday, during July, August and until Labor Day each year.

The musical group which has become famous throughout America under the sponsorship of Miles Clark is one of the most publicized bands in the world. Only last Sunday a Baltimore newspaper devoted a full page spread to the organization. The band has also been written up in some of the leading magazines of the nation including Holiday.

Each year since the Lost Colony's premiere in 1937 the band has had a role in the annual celebration held here in honor of Virginia Dare. The musical program planned for this year's celebration is greater then in any previous year.

Kiwanians Plan Winter's Work; Endorse Bloom

By CHESTER WALSH

The Greenville Kiwanis Club's officers and directors had their monthly business meeting at the Country Club last night. James Ray Pittman and Roscoe W. Shiplett were hosts to the group at a steak supper and all of the "trimmins." President Tige Gardner presided.

The officers and directors unanimously endorsed Eli Bloom for the office of lieutenant governor of the Seventh Kiwanis Division.

Eli Bloom, chairman of the minstrel committee and J. Edmund Waldrop, chairman of the Underprivileged Child Committee, made gratifying reports. Plans were made for holding the annual "charter night banquet" with the ladies as special guests between October 20 and 27.

The Wilmington Kiwanis Club sent an invitation for members of the Greenville club to participate in an inter-club Kiwanis meeting at the Ocean Terrace Hotel at Wrightsville Beach on Wednesday, August30.

Dr. H. Glenn Haney, vice-president, will entertain the Kiwanis officers and directors at supper in September and President Tige Gardner will be host in October.

Announcement was made that the Greenville club will be well represented at the Carolinas Kiwanis District convention at Spartanburg, S.C., October 15, 16 and 17.

Those present last night, in addition to the hosts, James Ray Pittman and Roscoe W. Shiplett, were President Gardner, Secretary David C. Moore, Jr., J. Bryan Brown, V. A. Merritt, J. Archie Rogers, Ed H. Williford, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, and John C. (Red) Clifford and Chester Walsh Judge J. W. H. Roberts and Wyatt Highsmith dropped in during the meeting.

Discuss School Equipment Needs

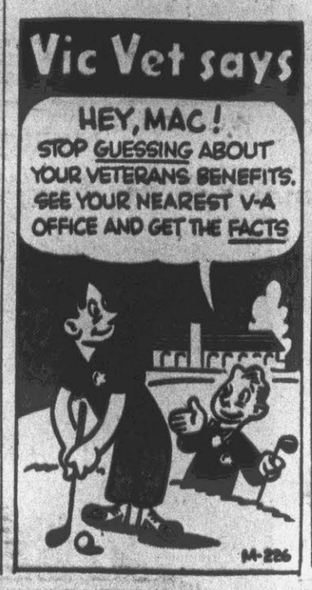

Mars Hill, Aug. 17—(AP)—North Carolina school superintendents holding their annual conference here discussed construction and equipment of modern school buildings today.

This afternoon, the 450 members of the conference were scheduled to inspect new school plants in the Mars Hill area. They will attend a banquet at Mars Hill College tonight, with Clifton W. Beckwith of the Attorney General's department as principal speaker.

Yesterday Dr. Edgar Fuller of Washington, D.C., executive secretary of the National Council of Chief State School Officers, proposed a non-partisan national board of education in an address to the conference.

He said the National Council is sponsoring legislation for creating a national board of education of 11 laymen. They would be appointed by the President, with not more than six men from one political party.

Other speakers yesterday were J. P. Booth, superintendent of Kinston city schools, and Julia Wetherington of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Smith-Eagles Family In Second Annual Reunion

The second annual Smith-Eagles family reunion was held yesterday afternoon at the Farmville swimming pool and playgrounds with nearly 200 members in attendance for the affair.

Connor Eagles of Greenville presided over the gathering and welcomed the two families back again for their second reunion.

Eric Copeland of Durham welcomed new members of the family, while respects were paid to the departed members of the clan by Mrs. Elizabeth Eagles Smith.

An interesting sketch of the early history of the first members of the Eagles family to settle in North Carolina revealed that in 1837 Richard T. Eagles came to Crisp to live after leaving Maryland. There he opened a small country store which is still operated by a descendant, Joe Eagles.

The first reunion was organized by Mrs. Margaret Eagles Copeland, of Durham and Fountain, and Mrs. Thelma Yelverton, of Fountain, supported by Connor Eagles of Greenville.

The idea spread to all parts of the family, and on August 17, 1949 the first family reunion was held in Farmville with 160 present.

The Smith-Eagles tie was brought about by the marriage of Theophilus Randolph Eagles, a Civil War veteran, to Bethiah Smith Edwards, following the Civil War.

The register kept at the reunion yesterday revealed that 163 persons registered but it was believed that many more did not sign the book, pushing the total around the 200 mark. Counties which were represented yesterday included, Edgecombe, Wilson, Pitt, Greene and Wayne. Many of the visitors came from out of state such as Florida, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Connor Eagles stated that the affair was a wonderful occasion for the children to meet and know their distant cousins and for the new members to adjust themselves to the family.

At the close of the hearing of the minutes of the last meeting, the giving of the family history and other matters, a spread supper was placed on picnic tables in the playground hut. All types of food ranging from barbecue, fried chicken, with all the trimmings was to be found on the tables.

One little girl, Rosemary Eagles of Greenville, summed up the supper by saying, "I declare, I never have seen so much good food in all my life."

Maximum Price Supports For Major Crops In 1951

Washington, Aug 17—(AP) — The government will support grower prices of major crops in 1951 at maximum levels permitted by law.

That level is 90 percent of parity. Parity, a standard for measuring farm prices, is declared by law to be equally fair to producers and those who buy their products.

The government could drop the supports to 85 per cent of parity next year.

But the international situation being what it is, secretary of agriculture Brannan has decided to keep supports high to encourage big crops.

The first formal announcement of a 1951 support program may come within a few days for wheat.

The winter wheat portion of this grain crop will be seeded in the fall. Hence, the department will announce the support program soon to encourage increased plantings over this year's crop.

Other crops to be supported at the 90 per cent parity rate include cotton, corn, rice, tobacco and peanuts. Formal announcement of rates for these crops may not come until after the first of the year. Because they are not planned until next spring.

The current wheat support rate averages $1.99 a bushel at the farm. Next year's rate is likely to be above $2, because the parity price probably will be higher. Parity prices rise and fall with corresponding changes in prices farmers pay for goods and services.

In all likelihood, the government will set higher production goals in 1951 for cotton, corn, rice and peanuts as well as wheat. It is anxious to maintain reserves for possible spread of the Korean war.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

A BASIC DOCTRINE

The doctrine of the atonement is basic in Christian faith, but it is sometimes hard for believers to understand.

Perhaps we understand it best if we divide the world into its component parts. Atonement is at-one-ment with God. The atonment was Christ's sacrifice of himself upon the cross. The New Testament consistently holds that because of his death on the cross, reconciliation between God and man was effected. The death of Christ on the cross brought into concord the relationship between God and man, which up to that time had been broken and chaotic. "By his stripes we are healed." "Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures." "Him who knew no sin he made to be sin on our behalf; that we might become the righteousness of God in him."

These are the Scriptural statements of this great truth. What does the atonement mean in plain, twentieth century English? It means that sin is a thing of such terrifying consequence that God was willing to undergo an infinite sacrifice Himself that the power of sin over men's hearts might be broken. The crucifixion of Christ represents the malignancy of sin, the love of God, and the earnestness with which God is seeking after the sin-ridden soul of man.

In the atonement we experience the cleansing of our souls in the righteous sorrows of God.

Will Someone Wake Up The Commissioners?

From some sources the city of Greenville is being criticized for not sending a fire truck to the fire in Belvoir Tuesday night as soon as a call was received.

The criticism is unfair and unwarranted. A truck from the Greenville fire department did go to Belvoir to assist in keeping the fire from spreading to other buildings. With the facilities available, there was little the fire truck could do to prevent the destruction of the building which was already ablaze.

The loss at Belvoir which is expected to reach $50,000 is another evidence that the county commissioners should take some steps to afford some fire protection for the people of the county. For at least three years people from all sections of the county have pleaded with the commissioners to purchase fire equipment which is suitable for fighting rural fires.

The only thing the people of the county have gotten from the commissioners is the same old line: "We'll take under advisement." Well, they've had it under advisement for a long time. From their apparent indifference to the importance of the situation, it seems they want to keep it under advisement rather than spend any of the county's money to give the people a protection which is desperately needed.

The commissioners have contended that it would cost a vast amount of money to purchase enough trucks to cover the county. They are correct; but if such a program were started, it could be built gradually from year to year. And the people would have the benefit of the use of a portion of the trucks while awaiting the day when the county would have reasonable fire protection.

The commission last year set up a $10,000 emergency fund from which $7,000 was supposed to come for the purchase of a fire truck equipped for rural fighting. The year's business has been closed out, and still the county has no truck.

The commissioners apparently hope the people will continue to place the burden of fighting fires all over the county on the towns which have fire departments. That is the way it has worked for at least a quarter of a century, while the people in the towns paid the bills for fighting fires all over the county. The county has never paid anything to the towns for answering calls.

Just last year the various towns of the county which have fire departments tried to reach a working agreement with the county commissioners. It proved fruitless.

Even though the towns of the county are anxious to do all they can for the people who live in the rural areas, it is not the responsibility of the towns to wear out their trucks chasing fires throughout the rural sections.

Farmville has one fire truck. Tuesday night that one truck went to Belvoir and stayed for several hours. What would have happened in Farmville had a fire broken out during the time the truck was away? It could be of very little value in fighting fires in Farmville while it was more than 11 miles away.

By the same token, Greenville needs its trucks in town to protect the property here from fire loss.

Rural Pitt county needs some fire protection. The acquiring of it is the responsibility of the county commissioners. They have fiddled around with the responsibility for the last three years without doing anything but take it "under advisement."

If the people of the county don't put a spark under the seats of the county commissioners, chances are hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of rural property in Pitt county will go up in flames while the commissioners are still snoring in their valley of indecision.

They're Fiddling While Rome Burns

Men on the scene say Western Europe is pretty much demoralized in the face of potential Russian aggression. They say the spirit is much the same as that of France when the Nazi war machine began to roll.

News reports reflect indecision and wrangling in the European Assembly over preparing a central command for their military effort. At a time when any positive action, whether right or wrong, would represent progress toward strengthening their defenses, men who should tremble at the weight of their responsibility and are quibbling . . . doing nothing.

It is most disheartening.

Potentially, the West is stronger than anything Russia could muster. But "potential" weapons or preparedness are of little use in a showdown. That potential must soon be turned into something more real, and soon, or it will be too late.

West Europe needs leadership, and from all indications, that leadership must come from the United States.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Ranking Democrats' personal concern over party prospects of making a good showing in the November Congressional elections is highlighted by the amazing manner in which Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, majority leader of the upper chamber, has repudiated President Truman's "fair deal" legislative program, and virtually abdicated his post in recent weeks

Mr. Lucas faces a skilled and able opponent in former Representative Everett P. Dirksen of Peoria, who was mentioned as a possible Cabinet member if Dewey had been elected in 1948.

Aside from the Korean debacle and the general collapse of the Truman-Acheson foreign policy, conditions in the state are not too propitious for the likable and energetic Mr. Lucas

ANTI-BOSS—He has never been especially popular with the Chicago machine When he first ran for the Senate, during the Nash-Kelly regime there, he advertised himself as an anti-boss candidate. He circulated the state with thousands of copies of an article which this columnist had written for "Collier's."

It was entitled "Bosses a Dime a Dozen," based on LaGuardia's smashing rout of Tammany Hall and the downfall of Tom Pendergast, Mr. Truman's political godfather.

Although the isolationist spirit is said to be vanishing in the Midwest, it has been supplanted by a reported disgust with the Truman-Acheson reverses in the "cold war."

The Chicago Tribune doesn't sell a million copies a day simply because of its comic strips. Moreover, Southern Illinois is described as a "chronically depressed area," and Mr. Lucas cannot afford to lose any downstate votes.

FAVOR—So, in obedience to the impulse for political survival, Majority Leader Lucas has virtually scuttled the White House.

Although it endangered his own chances, he deferred Senate consideration of a new FEPC law to help Claude Pepper in the senatorial primary in Florida. As the event has demonstrated, it was obvious that this political delay blocked any action on that question at this session. That was the last favor he did for his party's President.

But Mr. Lucas has given pain to his old Senate crony, Mr. Truman, in many important respects. Although he has not joined the pack publicly demanding Dean Acheson's ouster, he has expressed dissatisfaction with the conduct of foreign affairs, and has refused to defend the Secretary of State.

He has denounced the Brannan, two-price, farm program. In fact, he has said that even the present system of graduated subsidies may eventually break down any plan of agricultural aid because of its cost and consequent resentment among consumers, especially in Chicago.

HOSTILITY—When the American Medical Association listed him as a White House "stooge" in the battle for national health insurance, he quickly disassociated himself from that proposal.

He let it be known that, partially through his efforts, Truman's socialized medicine bills had been "bottled up in committee." He gave assurance that they would not become law if he could help it. He has not tried too hard to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act.

In view of Speaker Sam Rayburn's known but unacknowledged hostility to Mr. Truman's domestic and foreign policies, it is doubtful if any Administration in modern political history was so bereft of sympathetic leadership and support on Capitol Hill.

HAPPY—Although Democratic National Chairman William Boyle Jr. cannot afford to admit it, he is secretly happy over the prospective breakup of the Socialist and Progressive Parties. He figures that the withdrawals of Norman Thomas and Henry A. Wallace from active politics will mean votes for his side in the 1950 and 1952 contests.

Neither of these independent and abortive organizations had any reason for being, save for the personal appeal of Dr. Thomas and Dr. Wallace. Many Democrats cast their votes for Mr. Thomas out of admiration for his keen mind and generous spirit, ever since Franklin D. Roosevelt began to break the two-term tradition. Some Democrats voted for Mr. Wallace before he started to follow the Moscow line in foreign affairs.

It is extremely doubtful if either man took any ballots from the GOP. Thus, their bowing out will mean some accretion to the Democrats, and in a tight state or district next fall, these slight gains may mean the difference between winning and losing for the Truman-Boyle forces.

SIGNIFICANCE—Partisan politics aside, the two men's abandonment of overt political independency and third-partyism may have a larger significance. It may be interpreted as substantial confirmation that the two-party system is here to stay.

If Mr. Thomas, a realist, and Mr. Wallace, a fanatic, cannot promote or foment a large-scale rebellion, who can? Moreover, the times have never seemed more propitious for philosophical insurgency. If the worst depression and the worst war in history cannot propagate disgust with the two ancient and honorable political organizations, what can?

So, like it or not, the Democrats and Republicans, along with the biblical poor, will be with us always.

It Never Fails—

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Considering the fellowship that prevails in America, it's hard to realize that there is a war in progress elsewhere in the world. The example of fellowship I have in mind is yesterday's softball game between the members of the Farmville Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Greenville JC's.

It all started two weeks ago, when Dave Whichard III arose at the regular JC meeting and suggested a hot-dog and softball party with Farmville. In nothing flat the suggestion was converted into a complete program, with Ben Rouse as chairman.

Bob Ross and I arrived late, but in the eyes of the JC's, just in time to relieve two of them in the outfield. After one error out of one attempt handled, our team was content to let me watch.

Ordinarilly, in reporting a sports event the score is of utmost importance. In this game, however, nobody seemed to care what that score was. Farmville was content to play until they got ahead, and then quit. The Greenville team had different ideas, and I suppose you would say the official score was 5-4, Greenville.

After the game, Howard Hodges had a complaint to make to anyone who would listen. "Let me take you back," he said, "to the JC meeting when President Bancroft Moseley appointed committee chairmen. I was appointed coach of the softball team. So what do you think he did this afternoon? He pulled his rank on me." (Both Howard and Bancroft were Naval officers in WW II).

In response to the whot-hoppened question, Howard confessed that Bancroft had yanked him out of the game. Bancroft was on hand to defend his decision. He explained, "Two men were on base. The ball was thrown to Howard, who should have made one put-out. What did he do? Dropped the ball, and both runs scored. He was so interested in watching the men run the bases that he thought he was a spectator."

Then Howard picked up the story again. "In nothing flat," he continued jokingly, "the team was in a panic, so he called me back in to take charge."

As coach, Howard wanted to point out one player, Bob Russ, whom he put in to relieve the pitcher, Ford McGowan. Bob went in, a man reached first, so Howard yanked him out. The interesting angle is that Bob was only pitching while Ford got a drink of water.

The JC's were sparked by such aces as Charlie Horne, Don Calloway, Johnnie Lautares, Jimmy Warren, H. L. Lewis, Polly Williams, John Spinks, Bill Taylor, Bob Russ, Alan Powell, Bancroft Moseley, Ed Harris, Howard Hodges, John Saleed, Dan Saleed, and Bob Russ.

After the regular game the Greenville team played Farmville in a twilight game. By this time most of the Farmville players had gone so we loaned them a few. In fact, Johnny Lautares was so eager that it was hard to determine who he was playing for. He pitched an inning, retired the side, rushed in to catch for the other side, but yanked off his gear when it came time for him to bat.

Overall, it was the kind of game that suits everybody. Both sides can claim a win, and neither can dispute it.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau — By LYNN NISBET — Raleigh, N. C.

GREENSBORO — The advisory budget commission discovered that Greensboro has several "firsts" in the list of state controlled institutions of higher education in the entire country. Woman's College of the University of North Carolina has the largest enrollment of any exclusive woman's college in the United States, about 2400, according to Chancellor Edward K. Graham. At that, it has some 700 to 800 fewer pupils than the other major state institution located at Greensboro. A. and T. College (Agricultural and Technical college for Negroes) had last year a regular term enrollment of 3,111 with summer school attendance of 1300 or more.

BIGGEST—A. and T. has several claims to primacy, according to President F. D. Bluford. It is the largest land grant college for Negroes in the United States, is second only to Howard University at Washington in total enrollment among Negro institutions, and ranks fourth among North Carolina colleges, being exceeded only by the University at Chapel Hill, State College at Raleigh and Duke University at Durham. Other pertinent facts gleaned from President Bluford's brief report are that nearly 75 per cent of the student body is male, slightly more than 25 per cent made up of women. Eighty-eight per cent of the students come from North Carolina, the other twelve per cent mainly from states farther south with a few from the north and a scattering number of foreigners—Puerto Rico leading in this bracket.

FAMILY—Despite the contrast in student bodies, aims and objectives both Greensboro institutions are definitely in the "family" of North Carolina supported colleges and universities. If, as some students and alumni have felt, they once were treated like stepchildren, that accusation cannot apply now. Take a glance at the record, as presented to the budgeteers.

A. and T.—First call of the budget commission's western tour was at this institution. Full membership of the group, along with Assistant Director of the Budget D. S. Coltrane, several members of his office staff and four or five trustees participated in the discussions and tour of the campus. Carried on the budget books capital account two years ago at a little over a million dollars, with nearly nine millions appropriated by the past two legislatures for permanent improvements, the physical plant is estimated to have a present day value of at least fifteen millions. Annual maintenance and operation budget approaches half a million dollars.

NEEDS—The building program is well along, something like half the prospective buildings being in contract stage or better—two or three of them completed. Showpiece is a new men's dormitory with capacity for housing more than a thousand students. Actually, it is a three-in-one dorm, the several wings being joined together. Two girls' dormitories and a science building have been completed. These additions do not meet demands of the fast growing college. A classroom building is desperately needed, and an agricultural building is second on priority list. These buildings with essential equipment make up about 40 percent of the six million dollars proposed permanent improvement beyond current allotments. There is also immediate need for additional and better qualified faculty members.

DEMAND—Emphasis was given here to impressions gained at other Negro institutions visited, that Negroes are taking advantage of educational opportunities provided by the state to far greater extent than ever before and quite likely to greater degree than their white fellow-citizens. A. and T. College teaches a lot of subjects, but primac is accorded agriculture and in that department there is evidence of applied common sense to realize the long time objective of full facilities for Negro students.

W.C.U.N.C. — The budgeteers were offered a change of menu at Woman's College of North Carolina University. They were taken on a tour of the campus, which is customary. They were shown some buildings scheduled for demolition to make way for new structures, which some of the visitors thought were too good to be torn down.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

USING THE A-BOMB
(New Bern Sun-Journal)

We don't use the atom bomb in Korea. But we would in a big war. So, says a leading commentator. People once more are asking as they did five years ago: Is the A-bomb inhuman?

From the moment we dropped the bomb on Hiroshima in Japan, the cry went up in many places that we had committed a morally indefensible act. Many linked the new weapon with the poison gas and still untried germ warfare as a fiendish device too horrible even for total war. Talk of outlawing the bomb has been common among statesmen and cab drivers. This year the Russians are seeking to capitalize on this natural revulsion that millions all over the world feel toward the A-bomb. But Russia isn't concerned with its inhuman character; merely with the fact our atomic arsenal is bigger than hers.

Arthur H. Compton, brilliant scientist who helped make the bomb, does not agree with those who put the A-bomb in a special category of evil. His viewpoint is worth attention. To him this super explosive differs largely in degree rather than in kind from other bombs. The A-bomb kills by blast, in intense burning, by crushing and smothering people under shattered buildings and other structures. Thousands die from the indirect effect of the destruction—fires that rage unchecked, the failure of vital city services, the loss of key medical personnel and so on.

But the same results, somewhat less compounded, can be achieved piecemeal by other war bombs. The saturation raids on German cities and the famous B-29 fire raids on Japanese centers did vast human and property damage. Only death by radiation is new with the A-bomb. Yet at most perhaps a fourth of the fatalities in Hiroshima and Nagataki resulted from radiation.

Compton thinks not. He does not acknowledge any real distinction, aside from its admittedly colossal destructive force, between the A-bomb and other types.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Since the big corporations are doing it, it may profit executives of small businesses to re-examine their manpower potential in of view of possible consequences of the Korean war. An employer with only one or two workers is well justified in making a searching examination of the status of his personnel.

Most important questions are how many employes are likely to be drafted and when. Ages are, of course, a clue to the future of many employes.

But due to quirks of human nature, the answer to questions to those in the draft-age group may be misleading. For reasons psychologists may be happy to explain, the employe with a bum heart is most likely to answer, "Sure, they're going to draft me," while the perfect specimen is likely to say, "Naw, I won't be drafted. I had an aunt who had nodules." (Please don't write in asking what nodules are. we do not know.)

We hate to suggest medical examinations for all employes with in the draft age, because that can be expensive. But an employer should know how many of his employes may suddenly be called to the armed services.

The draft is not the only threat to stabilized personnel. There is the outside possibility that labor direction will come. A veteran who was instructed in radar at government expense may possibly be ordered to hie himself to the nearest labor-hungry electronics plant, regardless of his age and procreative record.

Most important is the lure of higher wages in armament plants. A salesman or a division chief who has been content to work for kopeks in days gone by may find it both patriotic and profitable to sell his talents to a manufacturer of planes or tanks.

In short, no business man can afford to be caught short in the employment market. He can afford to take nothing for granted. Even his female employes may be subject to direction, or to draft in the auxiliary services. He ought to know where he stands, now while there is still time to do something about it

MANY ARE MAKING KILLING IN NYLON

The cost of nylon yarn has not been raised.

Labor costs for handling nylon have gone up little if any.

Yet the National Retail Dry Goods Association conducted a survey of the nylon market and found that nylon prices quoted by hosiery mills have gone up as much as 30 per cent on unbranded goods; that prices on unbranded lingerie have gone up considerably; that all manufacturers have a moderate supply of nylon on hand for blouses and neckwear but that "it will not go into the same price range as in the past;" that nylon shirt prices have gone up; that open market gloves have gone up in price; that there have been price advances in nylon sweaters and that prices of nylon curtains and draperies have risen.

Bright spots: No change in prices of nylon corsets and brassieres are expected, and nylon piece goods has not yet advanced in price.

PERFUME HARD, BUT COLOGNE EASY TO IMPORT

If travelers in France buy perfumes they may get stuck. Under American trade mark rules, travelers can bring back French perfumes which have been trade marked in this country only under conditions set by the trade mark owners.

Travelers, if they ask for it can get a 7-page mimeograph telling just what and how many bottles of perfume they can bring in within their duty-exempt limits, and which bottles they have to scrape labels from. This is new. The old regulations ran to 32 pages. Thought you'd like to know.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

Naktong River Front, Korea—(AP)—How does a patrol scout feel while operating behind enemy lines?

"Worries," said Sgt. Carl D. Martin of Seagoville, Texas.

That pretty well sums up the attitude of most of the quiet heroes who have been slipping across the Naktong river to gather information on North Korean troop movements.

To Martin, member of the 5th Cavalry regiment's reconnaissance platoon, his assignment is just another odd job to do for the army he has served in eight years. We had made three trips over the river when I talked to him recently—two by night and one in full daylight.

"I just don't remember the exact date," he said a little wearily. After men have been at the front for a while they no longer measure time so much by days and nights as by events that make for each separate calendar of his own—the death of a buddy, a letter from home, a trip back to the rear where maybe, if they are lucky, a surprise steak dinner and a couple cans of cold beer may their night's sleep out of danger doubly relaxing.

As the dust covered sergeant of the platoon's patrol sorties several of his men were bathing in a creek under a tree that shielded them from the harsh sun. An expression almost of tenderness came over Martin's face as he watched them shouting and laughing like schoolboys.

"You know some of those kids are awful young," he said. "But they have stood up something wonderful under this work.

"We are supposed to be going only on recon missions and not to look for fire fight. But they usually turn out to be combat patrols. Once you get across that river you can't call the police if you get into trouble. And there aren't any traffic cops to give you the green light or the red light."

On that first trip the platoon went alone and went six miles beyond the heavily guarded river line. Each man carried only a cartridge belt, a couple of bandolies of ammo and minimum field rations. They took turns packing the four radios they had brought along to report their progress back to headquarters. The radios weigh 32 pounds each.

"Since then we have operated with the South Koreans," said Sgt. Martin. "They're very good soldiers. We go over by boats after sending a few men across to scout the landing area."

That is an eerie and lonely night mission. And it always holds the possibility that the men may become separated, get confused and begin shooting at each other in the darkness. Such a mishap is made more likely because the Americans in line with the South Korean soldiers who speak the same language as the enemy and are therefore hard to distinguish in a post midnight march.

"But the real fire fight we were in was Tuesday when we went across in daylight," said Martin. "We were after prisoners and we grabbed six. One was a messenger on the beach who said 18 other North Korean soldiers were sleeping near there.

"We found five. But then the South Koreans with us said there were about 180 enemy on our right and 300 others on out left. They began hitting at us with machine guns and mortars."

Martin praised the leadership of the platoon commander under whose orders they fought a skillful withdrawal 2,000 yards to the river, which some crossed by swimming and others in engineers' boats. But they brought back their prisoners—which had been their assignment.

The casualties were one American and four South Korean dead. Two of the South Koreans were lost by drowning. Pvt. Wilfred Robindoux of North Adams, Mass., risked his own life in a futile try to rescue them.

In the regiments near the command post I found the platoon commander, Lt. Paul J. Kelly of Grafton, W. Va., completing report of the action.

"It isn't easy to get prisoners in this war," he said. "Neither side wants to get captured. Some North Koreans have exploded grenades against their bellies rather than be taken."

As I looked into his dark intelligent eyes I could see why Sgt. Martin, who is married and has a 3-year-old daughter, was so willing to follow him in battle, and I could understand what a regimental officer means when he said:

"I didn't have the heart to test that fine boy's luck twice in a row by sending him out today on another mission like the one he just came back from. He is the first to bring in six prisoners."

Washington Letter

By PANE EADS

Washington.—Even in his day George Washington described his home at Mount Vernon in nearby Virginia as a well resorted tavern. Through the years it has been a mecca for visitors. Schoolboys and diplomats, housewives and service men continue to trek out to the serenly beautiful estate overlooking the Potomac at the rate of 750,000 a year.

Supt. Charles C. Wall says, however, that 1941 was the peak year, with 900,000 visitors.

Mount Vernon was set up as a national shrine by the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association founded in 1853, by Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham of South Carolina. Under her guidance, vice regents in each state raised funds for the purchase of a 200-acre tract, including the mansion, wharf and all subsidiary buildings, from Col. John A. Washington, Jr., great grand nephew of General Washington, in 1858. Structural restoration has progressed as documentary evidence has been gathered and evaluated.

"The association, whose regent is Mrs. Thomas Powell of Providence, R. I., refurnished the house with period pieces," Mr. Wall told me. "But year after year, by purchase, donation and bequest, the furnishings that were at Mount Vernon at the time of Washington are being acquired.

"The wallpaper in the hallway, where people can touch it, has to be changed at least once a year," Mr. Wall said. "Actually, however, the only thing that can wear out is the modern flooring in places where there is continuous motion. Out of doors, we try to give people absolute freedom of movement and minimum supervision. Thus the traffic is dispersed over a wide enough area so the turf can take it."

Currently the association is engaged in rebuilding the greenhouse, which with its flanking servants' quarters was destroyed by fire in 1835. Washington built the greenhouse in 1785. A visitor once described it as a "complete green house which at this season is a vast, a great source of pleasure. Plants from all parts of the world seem to flourish in the neatly furnished apartment and from the arrangement of the whole, I conclude that it is managed by a skilful hand but whose I cannot tell—neither the general nor Mrs. Washington seem more interested in it than the visitors."

Terror Spreads In Indo-China As Reds Wage War

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

Saigon—The Communist led Vietminh are today employing wholesale political assassination in a calculated drive to disrupt organization of the French sponsored state of Vietnam.

Ho Chi Minh's terrorists have designed Rao Dai government officials as their leading targets. The strategy is to rob the infant Vietnamese government of key members and to frighten others away from official service.

Terrorists have wounded two Vietnamese cabinet members and shot down several newspapermen within the last weeks in Saigon itself. The most recent victim is the Deputy-Governor of General Vietnam who was killed at his desk in the provincial capital, Hue. The assassins escaped in each case.

Only the attacks on prominent individuals are published. But in towns and villages all over the country Vietminh is applied.

The Vietminh Radio recently disclosed that during 1949, in South Vietnam alone, 2,335 "spies and enemy agents" were killed, and 1,633 others wounded. The broadcast said 213 villege officials were "suppressed" and 104 others formed to quit.

In the Indochina war, the French also use mass terrorism. Whole villages are sometimes razed on flimsy evidence that they have harbored Vietminh or are accountable for some local Vietminh operation. The taking of hostages is practiced by both sides.

Priority objective now is security. French forces are being augmented by a Vietnamese national army and expanded police agencies.

Powers of police have nominally been turned over to the Bao Dai government. However, the French have maintained their own police security forces which work closely with the Vietnamese.

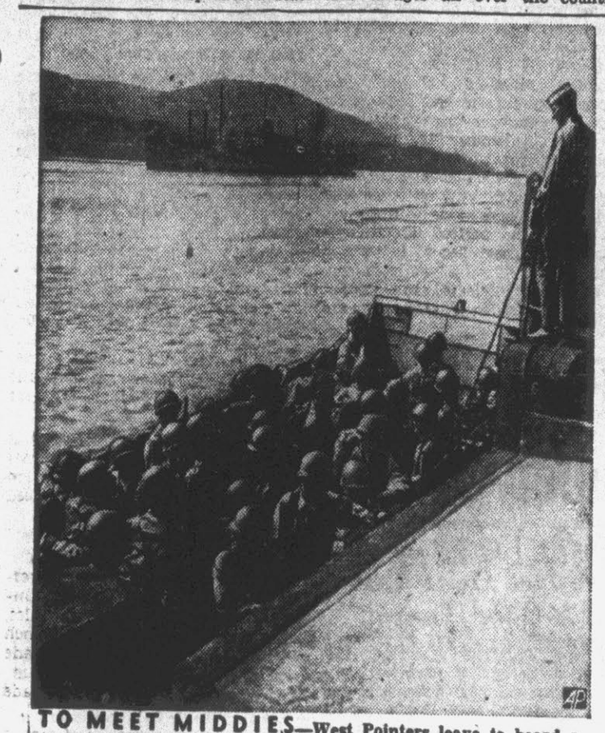

To date, the well organized Vietminh underground works effectively even in Saigon, principal stronghold of French power in Indochina. Bombs are thrown almost nightly into the city's crowded cafes to warn the populace that the Vietminh are omnipresent. Killings occur on busy streets with bystanders making no effort to halt the escaping assassins.

The Vietminh terrorists have been helped in their work by at least the tacit cooperation of the people. Many of them are in open sympathy. Others fear retaliation.

No quarter is asked or given and no holds are barred by either side. The Vietminh have publicly marked the top police officials of the French and Vietnamese Surete for execution. Some of the sentences have already been carried out.

The French and Vietnamese Surete won their most important victory recently. The leaders and most of the Vietminh terrorist organization for Saigon were rounded up in a single day's raids. Valuable files were taken as well as weapons and propaganda material.

The Vietnamese Chief of Surete, Nguyen Van Tam, found his own dossier the most interesting among those seized. He was scheduled to be assassinated before July 30.

Move Prisoners As Mob Gathers

Danbury, N. C., Aug. 17—(AP)—Two Negroes, charged with beating a Sandy Ridge filling station operator Tuesday, were being held in an undisclosed jail today after being removed from the mob-threatened Stokes county jail here last night.

State Highway patrolmen who led Albert Lee Jones, 32, of Madison and Adam Staples, 34, of Martinsville, Va., through an angry group of citizens collected outside the jail last night, said they were afraid the mob might try to take the pair from the jail.

The two Negroes are charged with holding up Reuben Zigler at Sandy Ridge Tuesday night, beating him and robbing his filling station. They were arrested near Madison late yesterday afternoon. Another man and a woman, supposed to have been involved in the robbery, were not apprehended.

Patrolman W. C. Moricle said after they robbed Zigler, the group fled. They later wrecked their car, and held up three other persons who stopped to investigate the wreck.

Confessed Killer Is Moved Again To Another Jail

Waynesville, N.C., Aug. 17—(AP) Curtis Shedd, 30, of Walhalla, S.C., has been moved to the Waynesville jail where he has signed a third confession in connection with the slaying of another Walhalla man and his two daughters.

Solicitor T. D. Bryson said Shedd was brought from Bryson City to the jail here yesterday. Bryson also said Shedd had confessed to the slaying of John Boyter of Walhalla, and his two doughters, Jonnie Mae, 14, and Jo Ann, 8.

Shedd is scheduled to be tried in Macon County Superior Court at Franklin on charges of first degree murder in connection with the deaths of the two girls. Their father was killed near Salaloh, Ga.

Propaganda Plea

Washington, Aug 17— (AP)—Rep. Gathings (D-Ark) called today for something stronger than the "'Taint so'" line of defense against Russian propaganda.

"The Russians tell the most outlandish lies about us," he said, "and about all we do is yell 'taint so, taint so!"

"What we ought to do," Gathings told a reporter, "is to ridicule these lies and laugh the Russians right out of the picture."

"They can't stand to be made ridiculous," he said. "Let's take the offensive in this propaganda."

Trout Keeps Detroit Ahead As Loop's Hottest Pitcher

Oldest Player On Tiger Squad In Line For 'Comeback Of The Year' Honors; Pitched And Batted Victory Over White Sox

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Loquacious Paul (Call Me Dizzy) Trout, the hoosier nobody wanted in 1949, is keeping the Detroit Tigers on top in the chase for the American League pennant.

Currently the hottest pitcher in the loop, the oldest player on the Detroit Tiger squad is in line for "comeback of the year" honors in the majors.

The 35-year-old righthander from Sandcutt, Ind., regulated to the bull pen throughout the 49 season and the early part of the '50 campaign, today boasts a 10-2 won and lost record. A newly developed fork ball has helped him.

Old Diz gained his 10th triumph last night when he pitched and batted the Tigers to a 6-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox. It was his sixth consecutive win and the fifth straight time he went the distance.

It was an important victory for the Tigers since Cleveland and Boston each swept doubleheaders and the New York Yankees defeated Washington.

The Indians received excellent pitching from Jesse Flores and Mike Garcia as they defeated the St. Louis Browns, 3-0 and 2-1. The Red Sox pounuded out 11-3 and 12-7 verdicts over the Philadelphia Athletics. The Yankees won 9-4.

Philadelphia's runaway Phillies widened their National League margin to seven games over Boston, setting back Vern (no-hit) Bickford and the Braves, 5-1. The New York Giants mauled the Brooklyn Dodgers, 16-7. Pittsburgh handed the St. Louis Cards their fourth straight defeat, 5-3. Chicago's Cubs earned a 12-inning 4-3 win over Cincinnati.

Trout not only held the White Sox to five hits, but highlighted Detroit's six-run second inning with a single that scored two mates. A crowd of 50,262 saw him score what proved to be the winning run.

Flores, making his first start for the Indians, distributed only four hits to the Browns in the opener. Garcia gave up five in the nightcap. The double win moved the Tribe into second place, three games behind Detroit.

Bob Kennedy and Larry Doby knocked in the first game's runs against Al Widmar. Manager Lou Boudreau's two-out single in the ninth drove in the winning run in the second.

Phil Rizzuto collected four hits as the Yankees capitalized on five Washington errors for their victory. Tom Ferrick, third New York hurler, was the winner.

Bobby Doerr batted in seven runs, five in the first game as the Red Sox made it 18 consecutive Fenway Park victories over the A's who Haven't won there since Sept. 12 1948. One of Doerr's four hits was a grand slam homer.

Tonight's Games

Rocky Mt. at Greenville (2)
Kinston at Wilson (2)
Goldsboro at New Bern
Tarboro at Roanoke Rapids

The scheduled doubleheader between the Rocky Mount Leafs and the Greenville Robins at Rocky Mount last night had to be called off on account of rain. This means that the Robins and the Leafs will play only 19 games this season instead of the 20 scheduled as the two teams only meet once more in Rocky Mount, that being the 31st of the month when there will be a doubleheader played.

However, the postponement of the games last night found the Robins seven and one-half games out of first place, they gained a half game on the New Bern Bears who lost 9-4 to Goldsboro and remain two full games ahead of fifth place Wilson Tobs who split their twin bill with the Kinston Eagles.

The Robins and the Leafs are scheduled to play a twin bill out at Guy Smith Stadium tonight with the first game of the bargain bill getting under way at 7:00 o'clock. The first game will be a seven-inning affair while the second game will be a nine-inning regulation contest. Jim Lewey and Vince Jones will do the hurling in tonight's doubleheader.

Many trick questions are often asked about baseball. Some of them are right amusing at times.

On one of the quiz programs sometime ago, the question was asked "How many outs are there in an inning of baseball?" The man answered "three" without hesitation. The announcer said the answer was wrong, explaining that there were six outs in one inning. Three outs comprise only one half an inning, and being technical, it does take six outs to complete an inning.

What inning in baseball are the most runs scored? An article in a sport magazine recently stated that more runs were scored in the eighth inning than any other. Most people, according to the story, felt that it was the seventh inning. The article explained that there are many seven inning pitchers who weakened in the eighth, and when the weakening occurred, runs came across the plate.

Is it permissible for a man to take one strike at bat while hitting left handed, and then turn around and take the next strike right handed? Sure, it is all right to do so. However, one may not change batter's boxes while the pitcher is in the act of throwing to the plate.

Is it permissible for a pitcher to pitch three innings, go to the outfield and play three innings, and then return to the mound again for the last three innings? Yes, the pitcher can play any position so long as he never leaves the ball game. However, when a pitcher goes to the mound, he must pitch to at least one batter before he can be removed.

Why does a left handed batter have the advantage over a right handed batter? There are a couple of good reasons which one can see off hand. In the first place the batter is standing nearer first base, and when the ball is hit, he has less distance to run and more chance to beat out a hit. The second big reason is that with a man on base the chances are that the first baseman will be holding the runner on the bag. Thus, there is more open territory through which the ball may be hit for a base knock. Another reason which is practical is that there are more right handed pitchers than left handed. A right handed batter usually hits better against a southpaw.

PLAYING TWO GAMES

Ormondsville will play host to the Goldsboro All-Stars on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, games starting at three o'clock.

The Department of Agriculture says there are about 1,850 farmers' mutual fire insurance companies in the U. S.

Ransom Hopeful Next Golf Win Is Put In Books

Baltimore, Aug. 17—(AP)—Henry Ransom hopes they'll put it in the record books if he wins the Eastern Open Golf tournament starting today.

The tanned, greying Texan won the Tam O'Shanter "World" championship on Monday.

"The Professional Golfers Association records showed I had won only two other tournaments since 1937 and that's the way it was written up," says Ransom.

But it's not so, he continued, and reeled off:

"I won the Long Island Open in 1945 when I was in military service, the St. Paul Open in 1946, the Texas PGA, the Texas Open in 1947, the Seminole Open in 1948 and 1949, and the Wilmington, N.C., tourney last year."

He added "And I haven't been playing in tournaments since 1937 as they said. I was a golf course pro in Texas until 1942 and started playing a couple of tourneys a year then."

All of which besides setting the record straight indicated Ransom doesn't want to be overlooked in the Eastern Open which is being held for the first time over Mount Pleasant Course.

"In the Wilmington tourney Bobby Locke and Cary Middlecoff were second and in the Seminole I beat Locke and Ben Hogan—all the best golfers," he recalls. "In the St. Louis Open I set a new record with 20 under par, beating Lawson Little by a stroke."

Middlecoff and Little are among the 135 entries for the 72-hole Eastern which winds up Sunday. Locke, Sammy Snead, Jimmy Demaret and Dutch Harrison are the only big names of the active golfers missing.

Son Of Baseball Great Is Killed

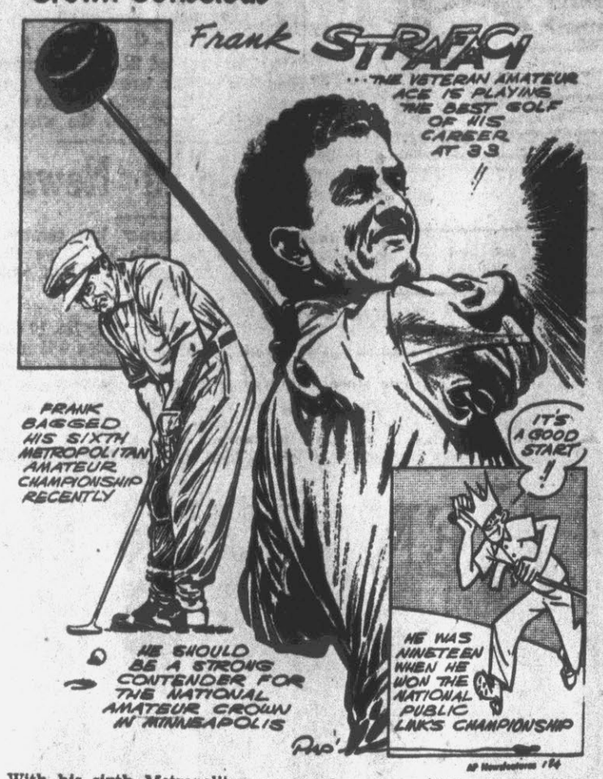

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 17—(AP)—Christy Mathewson, Jr., 42-year-old son of the baseball Great, died yesterday of burns received in a gas explosion at his ranch.

Mathewson, a retired Air Force Lieu. Col, was installing an electric diswasher Tuesday when the explosion occured.

During World War II he was on duty with the War Department and served in England. In 1933 he lost a leg in an air crash in China. His wife was killed in the wreck.

Crown Conscious

With his sixth Metropolitan amateur title safely tucked away in his golf bag, Frank Strafaci is confidently looking forward to the National amateur championship at the Minneapolis Country Club. Frankie has won many important golf championships but the National crown somehow or other has eluded him.

Strafaci was most impressive in winning the 1950 Metropolitan title, being 14 strokes under par for the 130 holes required to clean up the field. This able scoring over the demanding Apawamis course indicated that the little battler is playing the steadiest golf of his career. At Apewamis, Frank played stronger and smarter golf than he has shown in his many years of tournament play.

It was 14 years ago that Strafaci crashed the golf picture by winning the National Pplic Links title. He won the North and South title twice and the Metropolitan at frequent intervale. At Pebble Beach in 1947, Frank reached the quarter-finals only to be defeated by Johnny Dawson. Last year in Rochester, he again reached the round of eight where he was defeated by Willie Turnese. This year, with a wealth of experience behind him and at the peak of his game, Strafaci hopes to realize his dream and capture the big one.

Redskins Defeat Rams In Season Opener, By 17-14

Los Angeles, Aug. 17—(AP)—Washington's Redskins and Los Angeles Rams turned each other's miscues into scores last night, and the Redskins won 17-14.

The season's opener, a charity-exhibition, drew a memorial coliseum turnout of 90,135 fans—claimed by the sponsoring Los Angeles Times as a new professional attendance record.

Bob Waterfield, veteran field general of the Rams, sent the Redskins off into the lead by fumbling on his own nine-yard line two minutes after the game started. Sammy Baugh passed to Bill Dudley for a touchdown on the next play.

In the next quarter, Baugh bobbled a pass from center deep in his own territory, then tried to toss to George Thomas before he was snowed under. Fleet George Sims of the Rams cut in, took the ball on the 25 and crossed the goal untouched. Waterfield converted.

The Rams made their last tally on a strange play. Norm Van Brocklin passed to Bob Boyd on the 15. Boyde went five yards and dropped the ball when tackled. Washington recovered, but the officials ruled Van Brocklin was roughed. The 15-yard penalty took the ball to the seven, and Tommy Kalmanir galloped across on the next play.

Glenn Davis, Army's one-time Mr. Outside, making his pro debut, averaged only 2.83 yards in six times with the ball. The Redskins kept Eddie Le Baron, star of the all-star game in Chicago, on the sidelines most of the time. His kicking average 43 yards, but he tried only one offensive play—a pass that was intercepted.

Gastonians Win Baseball Crown

Gastonia, N. C., Aug. 17— (AP)—Gastonia is the new North Carolina American Legion junior baseball champion. It will represent the state in the regional tournament beginning here next Monday.

Gastonia won the title here last night by defeating Scotland Counuty 2-1 in the seventh game of their best-four-games championship series.

Trade 'Hunch'

Brooklyn, Aug. 16— (AP) — Jackie Robinson, famed Negro second baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said today "I won't be surprised if I'm traded to some other club before the start the 1951 season."

Robinson gave this opinion amid indications of rising tension on the Brooklyn team, such as can be expected on a championship club favored to win the pennant but now lagging six and a half games behind.

"I can't tell you any more," Robinson said to an Associated Press reporter. "It may be no more than a hunch. I've just got the feeling that's all."

Greenville High School Football Practice Is Officially Started

Greenville high school football practice got underway yesterday morning when about half the expected squad reported to Coach Boley Farley.

Only 24 boys reported for the first day of practice, with the rest of the expected squad working in tobacco and other summer jobs. They are expected to come out next week or the week following.

With the summer sun burning down on Third Street School playground, the squad is right now in the beginning stages of practice. Yesterday's and today's drills consisted mostly of running, passing and kicking. There will be no rough work until the rest of the team reports for practice.

Farley is optimistic this year—more so than last. He said this morning the high school team will have a better year than that of 1949. He bases that opinion on the fact that most of the Northeastern Conference teams are expected to be more evenly balanced as to talent.

"There won't be any runaway team this year in the Conference," the coach said. "I think Kinston, Elizabeth City, New Bern and Greenville will be pretty evenly matched this year."

Farley indicated today he expects most of his trouble in the gridiron wars to come from Elizabeth City. "They've got most of their starters back this year and are going to possibly be the team to beat."

Greenville has lost its entire starting backfield of last year through graduation and most of its line, too. However, the coach thinks that by September 15, the first game, he can whip what material he has into a working unit that will give trouble to any team on the schedule. He indicated he won't have to go far to beat last season's record of three wins, six losses and one tie.

At present Farley hasn't weeded out his particular players as to the positions they'll play. Expected backfield men, however, are Bobby Perry, Leon Moore, John Sideris, Billy Wooten, Walter Goor, Kent Lee and Eddie Farley. Those are the ones who have reported so far.

In the line, he has John Aman, Jack Garrison and Wiley Gardner, ends; Milton Foley, Fletcher Murray, Wallace Conway and Mac Crawford, tackles; Charles Hufstetler, Anwar Joseph and Joe Roland, guards; and Jimmy Cheatham and Louis Howe, centers.

Greenville's first conference game will be with Edenton on September 15 in Edenton. Following that will be a game with Hertford there the next week. First home game for the locals will be October 10.

Right now Farley is trying to arrange a home game for September 8, four days after school opens. He doesn't know yet who the opponent will be but thinks he can get some team, whether a conference foe or not, to open the Greenville schedule a week early.

Greenville, Farmville Jaycees In 'Called Game'

Softballers Of Both Squads Invoke Special Rules . . . Final Score Not Quite Certain, But They Had A Good Time

A softball game yesterday afternoon between Greenville and Farmville Jaycees ended in a tie and was called because of increasing darkness.

The game, which began about four o'clock, continued until 7:30 because of a specially invoked ruling that no person could eat supper until he had played one full inning.

Because of several heated arguments between players of both teams, the umpires, and the scorekeeper, the final score stood somewhere in the neighborhood of five runs apiece.

All attending members of both squads, hastily gotten together for the inter-town contest, participated in the doings and added their respective voices to the heated wrangles concerning whether or not a man was safe or out.

Many huddles around the pitcher's mound, reminiscent of football season, were the main reason for the length of the game. Greenville Manager Howard Hodges, Jr., called a huddle after each out to look over the situation in an effort to play the next batter as strategically as possible.

Greenville had a lead of 5-4 in the last inning but Farmville tied it up in its half to send the game into extra innings. Greenville pitcher Ford McGowan, the last of six or seven used by the local squad, managed to strike out the last Farmville batter to keep the count at 5-all. By an agreement between both teams, with the umpires dissenting, the game was called at that point.

However, after supper was eaten, the game was resumed by teams consisting of directors of the Greenville club and the remaining Farmville players against the remaining Greenville players. The one-inning affair was a continuation of the wrangling before supper and finished in a scoreless deadlock.

Having played two tie games—the last one went in the book as a completed affair—both clubs packed up and left, each insisting the other club had bought the umpires who threw the game to the other side.

It could not be determined last night as to whether a rubber game will be played to decide the winner of the series. It was generally conceded that if a third game is held, it will be next summer and on a neutral field.

Devoted Detroit Fans Would Avoid Use Of 'Dizzy' In Naming Paul Trout

Detroit, Aug. 17 —(AP)— Why Paul (Dizzy) Trout should have the handle "Dizzy" has not been understandable to some devoted Detroit Tiger fans.

A group has petitioned writers and broadcasters to avoid use of the name, especially in view of Trout's recent record.

Nothing is likely to come of that. Good-humored Old Diz has been "dizzy" here ever since his clown days as a youngster in the Tiger camp years ago.

However, Sports Editor Lyall Smith of the Detroit Free Press, quoting Trout, today reported the name's origin, at least.

Dizzy got it, 'tis said, when he played for Terre Haute in 1935.

"I got it the day I ran under an awning out in left field when it started to rain," Trout is quoted. "When they revived me, I discovered the awning was just an 'ad' painted on the brick fence. I've been 'dizzy' ever since.'

Feels Sorry For 'Tired' Goldfish

Asbury Park, N.J., Aug. 17—(AP) Mrs. William Guillium, who feels sorry for tired fish, says a court ban will be sought against the goldfish-racing interests.

The new sport, which you might call fishtakes, began in an amusement pavilian on the boardwalk of this seaside resort.

The track is made of several parallel, transparent water-filled tubes with a live goldfish in each. Plastic fishes with big jaws pop up at one end of the tube to scare them—and they're off!

Mrs. Guillium, who heads the Monmouth County Chapter of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says the racers are overworked and in danger of becoming groggy.

But Herman D. Post, who designed the game, says "the fish are required to do something that is only natural, and that's to swim."

He said tired ones are benched in a rest tank.

Phillies Making A Mockery Of Pennant Race

Philadelphia, Aug. 17 —(AP)— The Philadelphia Phillies are fast making a mockery of the National League pennant race.

Manager Eddie Sawyer's "whiz kids" are seven game ahead of the field today And they have been increasing their lead the hard way, beating the challengers.

At the rate the flag hungry Phils are traveling they could win the senior circuit championship by the biggest margin since 1944 when the St. Louis Cardinals won by 14½ games.

In the past two weeks, the Phillies have won nine of 13 games with the four teams directly behind them. The log looks like this:

Won three of five from St. Louis; two of two from Brooklyn; two of four frm New York; and two of two frm the Boston Braves.

SEWAGE LOAN

Washington, Aug. 17—(AP)—The Housing and Home Finance Agency has approved a $60,580 loan for a $1,445,000 sewage treatment works program at Raleigh, N.C. The program will include treatment plants and outfall sewers on two Neuse River tributaries, Crabtree and Walnut Creeks.

Tobacco State League Is Cut To Seven Clubs

Fayetteville, Aug. 17—(AP)— The Class D Tobacco State Baseball League began operating today as a seven-team circuit.

The league's Orphan Annies went out of existence last night after the league decided it could carry the club no longer. The Annies lost to Lumberton 8-0, in their farewell game.

The Orphan Annies, formerly the Smithfield-Selma Leafs, had been operated by the circuit as a road club since July 16, when the Smithfield-Selma operators turned in their franchise.

League President Arthur T. Moore said the league decided to drop the team after efforts to get it back in operation at Smithfield-Selma fell through.

Dog Racing Set For Labor Day

Morehead City, August 15.—The Morehead City racing commission has granted the Carolina Racing Association a Labor Day matinee dog racing program for the first time in the track's history, it was announced today.

The Morehead City dog track operates nightly, except Sunday. The matinee has been approved for 2 p.m. It gives the track a double-header racing program for the first time.

County 'Building Bee' Creates New Public Park In Only 2 Days

By DON WILLIAMS
AP Newsfeatures

Charleston, W. Va.—Remember the old-fashioned house raising or corn shucking where the entire village turned out to help one another? Well, that's how Kanawha county got its new public park—in two days' time.

Altogether, some 400 workers took part. The skilled laborers were furnished largely by the labor unions. So-called white collar people rolled up their sleeves and did much of the common labor with pick and shovels. Half a million dollars worth of earth-moving equipment was made available without charge by dealers and contractors.

A carnival atmosphere prevailed. Pitchmen sold souvenirs, loudspeakers blared cheering music. And many of the thousands of spectators who flocked by special trains and buses to watch the operations became so enthusiastic that they doffed their coats and ties and turned to themselves.

The result: A baseball diamond, picnic areas, shelters, fireplaces, playgrounds, dance pavilion and other recreational facilities, located on an 825-acre tract near the Kanawha airport in Charleston

By fall two fishing ponds will be ready for use. The dams have been built and the pond beds dug. All that is necessary now is the rainfall. The state conservation commission will furnish the fish.

They call it Coonskin Park. This seems appropriate, because Kanawha county lies in the mountainous area where Daniel Boone blazed pioneer trails. And the Coonskinners—wearing canvas duckbill caps instead of the homemade headgear of the early settlers—demonstrated the same pioneer spirit in building themselves a park. They billed the blitz project as "Operation Coonskin."

Wives and daughters of the workers turned their hands to feeding the hundreds of men and boys. Barbecued steers were served up wholesale. Food, milk and soft drinks were contributed.

The job, including the construction of a mile and a quarter of trail-type park road, was completed on schedule. A dance was held at the pavilion on the evening of the second day. The physical work was done in two days. But weeks and months of planning laid the groundwork.

The wooded tract was acquired several years ago by the county. But county officials could not lay their hands on sufficient funds to develop the area.

The Charleston Gazette started the ball rolling. The newspaper plugged the plan for weeks with feature stores. Pledges of voluntary cooperation snowballed.

A group of officials from Oneida county, N.Y., arrived on the second day of "Operation Coonskin" on a tour of airports in the east. The comment of G. Carl Morse, chairman of the Oneida County Board of Supervisors, was:

"Astounding."

NOW KIDS HAVE FUN in the new Coonskin Park.

How British Expert Sees Four New Russian Jets

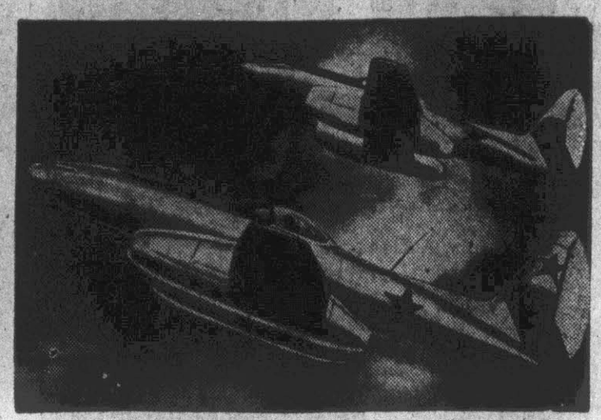

AP Newsfeatures
Here is an artist's conception of four new Soviet jet planes. Appearing in the September issue of "Flying" Magazine ,the drawings are based on information said to have been smuggled to England from Soviet-occupied territory. They are described by Charles W. Cain, British aviation authority. Aboveis Lavochkin single-jet interceptor with 45 degree sweepback on wings. Power comes from an axial flow jet. Its speed is about 600 miles per hour.

MIKOYAN JET FIGHTER has a forty degree swept-back wing, and its curved trailing edge is designed to avoid interference from hot jet gases. The single-piece canopy has 360 degree visibility and is positioned far forward on the nose to give all-around visibility. The a rocket or recoilless cannon position. Estimated span is 35 feet 6 inches and length 40 feet 2 inches. This jet is estimated to have a top speed of over 625 m.p.h.

LAVOCHKIN TWIN-JET NIGHT FIGHTER has "a modern, rakish look," reports Cain. Its estimated span is 41 feet, length 45 feet. Overall size is estimated as approaching that of the American Lockheed F-90, although the gross weight may be considerably less. The thin, low wing has under-slung axial-flow jets probably based on the 1944-45 German Junkers and BMW turbines, and the nose contains a radar scanner. Armament may consist of two or four heavy cannon. Top speed is estimated at about 650 miles per hour.

LAVOCHKIN TWIN-JET FIGHTER has jet pods mounted beneath its wings. "Flying" says it is a day fighter which can do 600 m.ph. Four cannon are mounted in its nose section. "Span is estimated at 42 feet and length at 38 feet. The plane seems fairly conventional both as to wings and tail surfaces. It is probably fitted with seat ejection. The first Soviet ejection seat trials were conducted in 1947 and it is believed that all new Soviet fighters are now being fitted with ejection seats."

Harvest Is Over, And Big Feasts Are Spread For All

When the last leaves have been placed in the curing barn, and the fields stand empty with stripped stalks, there comes the lull between the harvest and the opening of the tobacco markets where the rewards of the weeks of hard work are repaid.

It is along this time each year that many of the Pitt county farmers pause in their daily routine, to show their gratitude for the work which has been rendered by their loyal farm workers.

It has become a custom on many farms for the "boss man" to hold a large feast for his workers, with the best of everything for them.

This is the time in Pitt County now. From all parts of the county there come reports of barbecues, chicken stews, and weiner roasts around the now nearly deserted barns, as dusk settles over the land.

As a person motors along the highways, small bands of people gathered around the barns offer evidence of the companionship being created by the gesture.

A typical scene was enacted on the Avery farm near Greenville recently. Herman Avery, who owns a large farm near Greenville, and who supervises two other farms, held a regular feast for all of his farm hands at his home. There was nothing to be desired, as the tables were amply filled with plenty of everything.

Following the dinner, spread in the shade of large trees, the men gathered around in small groups to rehash the season which had just about come to a close. Meanwhile the ladyfolks were clustered around the remaining food, carrying on the usual line of familiar gossip.

But as always happens, all good things have to end; so shortly after the completion of the meal, the farm workers returned to the many tasks to be found on any farm.

Previously the colored farm hands had been treated to the same display of food stuff by Mr. Avery.

So in a simple means, the farm owners express their appreciation for work done over the year.

Families Gather For Picnic Banquet When Harvest Is Done

Around this time of the year in Pitt county many farm owners have their farm workers to come together for a "feast" as a token of their appreciation for their fine work rendered over the past year. Here a portion of the workers on the Herman Avery farm near Greenville are shown as they took part in a dinner given by Avery on his farm recently. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Still Blown Up; 2 Men Arrested

Pitt County ABC Officers J. L. Taylor, Claude Manning and J. M. Ward, together with Alcohol Tax Unit Officers E. A. Bennett and Carl Churchill seized and destroyed a 50-gallon steam distillery in the Pugh section of Craven and Pitt County yesterday afternoon.

The area is located about ten miles northeast of Grifton.

The still was in operation and two Negro men, Willie Louis Pugh, age 29, and Jesse Lee Pugh, age 17, were arrested at the still. Officers reported that the two Negroes gave them no trouble when arrested.

As the officers began to search around the still they came upon a stew pot filled with freshly made chicken stew which was just being cooked.

Destroyed when the still was blown up was 100 gallons of fermented mash, 50 gallon wood still, one copper condenser, and two cases of one-half gallon fruit jars. The raid also netted nine gallons of freshly made "bootleg" whiskey. A 50-gallon drum boiler was also destroyed.

Both of the two defendants were given a hearing before U.S. Commissioner Mrs. Matilda Turner in New Bern and released under bond of $300 for appearance in U.S. District Court in October.

High U. S. Officials Believe Russia Is Ready To Take Over North Korea

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Aug. 17 — (AP) — Many of the best informed American officials now believe Russia will openly grab off North Korea—above the 38th parallel—rather than let a victorious U.N. restore peace and unity to the country.

It is assumed here that the precise steps to be taken have been under negotiation between the Soviet Union and Communist China. It is also assumed they will act jointly when the time comes.

Administration officials, however, give little credence to reports which have come mainly from Chinese Nationalist sources that Russian Vice Premier V. M. Molotov has been in Peiping, Red Chinese capital, negotiating with Premier Mao Tse-tung and other officials on this and related problems.

Whether Molotov has or has not been there, the belief of responsible authorities here is that the Soviets and Chinese must be deeply involved in fateful talks at this time, concerning not only Korea but Formosa and other Far Eastern political questions.

Increasing evidence of the buildup of U.N. power in Southern Korea, it is believed, must now give the Russians and the Chinese virtual proof of the determination of the U.S. and other countries associated in the Korean struggle to drive the invaders out of the south. In other words, the Red strategists must now decide what means they will use to deal with a victorious U.N. coalition in Korea whereas up to this time they may very well have counted on a Communist victory.

For the U.N. the prospect of eventual success in South Korea has already raised the question, thus far unanswered, as to what U.N. forces should do when they reach the 38th parallel. Should they then stop short on the theory that the invader has been driven out of South Korea? Or should they drive on in the belief that only by crushing the Communist military power can real peace be established in Korea?

There is widespread belief here that the latter course is the only defensible one. This belief, however, is based on an assumption that neither Russia nor Communist China will become directly engaged in the Korean conflict.

If the Russians, perhaps in collaboration with the Chinese Reds, reoccupy Northern Korea which the Soviet left about two years ago, the whole problem for the U.N. powers will take on a new color. They will then have to decide whether to accept Russian domination of Northern Korea as a fact to live with, or whether to try to drive the Red occupation forces out—which would mean fighting with Russia directly and which appears to be an unlikely course.

Speculation over Soviet-Chinese policy toward Formosa is much less definite. Mainly official Washington is trying to figure out why the Chinese Reds have not attacked the island yet—with the period of favorable weather for an amphibious operation about at an end.

Fink Reelected Union President

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 17—(AP)—C. A. Fink of Salisbury, who has been president of the State Federation of Labor for the past 13 years, is in for another term. He was re-elected at the close of the annual state convention here yesterday.

Fink defeated P. M. Taylor of Durham, 125 to 75.

The nomination of candidates for the presidency, rather than the election, provided all the fireworks in yesterday's session. At one point, it completely disrupted the convention.

The confusion started when E. R. Williamsoon of Durham, editor of the Labor Journal, was nominated for the office. Lou Rhodes, Southern AFL director who was presiding, ruled Williamson ineligible on the grounds that he was not under the jurisdiction of a local. Williamson supporters put up a fight until the chair's ruling was upheld by a convention vote.

Also re-elected yesterday was vice president R. B. Robertson of Asheville. James W. Lazenby of Salisbury was named secretary-treasurer, and S. C. Jones of Burlington was re-elected sergeant-at-arms. The Rev. A. D. Owens of Reidsville and J. D. Stoner of Salisbury were elected chaplains.

Britain's Death Rate Is Lowered

London—(AP)—The death rate in Sngland and Wales in 1948 was the lowest ever recorded, but the cancer toll is increasing. The Registrar General's statistical review of the year just published here shows deaths at 468,645, a rate of 11 per thousand of the civilian population and a decrease of 46,946 on the previous year.

Previous lowest rate was 11.4 per thousand in 1930, when deaths numbered 455,427.

Deaths from cancer accounted for 79,432, or 16.9 per cent, compared with 15.1 per cent in 1947 and 13.9 per cent in 1938.

INCLUDING THE SINK

Chicago—(AP)—Burglars broke into Harry Schrober's house. They took a phonograph, a mattress, a garbage burner, a wash basin and the kitchen sink.

Housing Aid By Italian Govm't

Rome—(AP)—A $40,000,000 homebuilding assistance program designed to ease Italy's war-born housing shortage was approved by the Parliament on the eve of adjournment for the summer vacation.

Under the measure, $16,000,000 will be available to private builders during the remainder of 1950 and $17,000,000 a year during 1951 and 1952. The measure specifies that houses or apartments have a minimum of two and a maximum of five rooms (in Italy the kitchen and bath are not counted as rooms.)

Persons owning adequate living quarters are excluded from the benefits of the measure.

Plans For Third World Conflict

London—(AP)—Edwin Bell, 74 has joined Britain's Civil Defense Corps and begun a refresher course showing air raid wardens how to deal with atoh bombs.

He's getting ready for his third war. He was senior air raid warden a suburban Wimbledon during the Nazi blitz and headed a group of volunteer wardens in London during the Zeppelin raids in World War I.

No Calories In New Sweetener

Chicago—(AP)—So you bulge where you want to dip, but you're a complete slave to your sweet tooth. Then a new synthetic sweetener may help you win the battle with your waistline. Abbott Laboratories has started production of a substance called Sucaryl Sodium. It contains no calories or carbohydrates and is designed for the million or more diabetics in America and countless people on weight reducing diets.

Unlike saccharin, another sugar substitute, Sucaryl does not lose its sweetening properties when heated in cooking, baking or canning. Pies, preserves, puddings and canned fruits can be added to low sugar or sugar-free diets.

The Food and Drug Administration has authorized the sale of Sucaryl without prescription. Abbott said exhaustive clinical tests on three generations of rats showed it has no harmful effects. Abbott also said it lacks any bitter aftertaste. However, the company said sodium salts are excreted relatively slowly and persons with severe kidney disorders will be advised to take the synthetic in moderate amounts and under a doctor's supervision. Various research is under way for using the synthetic in canning and baking foods for specialized diets.

Bull Calf Groomed For Rocky Mount Stock Show

One of Pitt's calf entries in the Rocky Mount stock show August 30 and 31 is Sam the bull calf shown above. Sam is a community bull in the Calico community, bought through the county agent's office for use in serving the cattle of the community. Above he is shown with Elmer Lee Leary, left and Richard Leary, Jr., center, who will handle him at the show. In the foreground is colored farm agent Dennis Dupree who was instrumental in obtaining the calf for the community. (Photo by John Spinks, Jr.).

Sam, the bull calf, will be ready for the Rocky Mount stock show August 30 and 31 as one of the county entries.

The 10-month-old bull was bought in December for use in serving the cattle of the Calico community and is kept by Richard Leary, colored farmer. Of the Biltmore stock on the Asheville farm, Sam was bought through funds of the county agents' office.

Presently, he is being groomed by Leary's two sons, Elmer Lee and Richard, Jr., and both will handle him at the stock show.

The Rocky Mount pure-bred event is one of two held each year for stock of surrounding counties. In the past, Pitt has brought home most of the prizes for cattle owned and shown by county farmers and 4-H boys.

This summer's show is expected to attract 100-odd heifers and bulls from Pitt, Martin, Edgecombe, Nash Greene and other counties, both for show and sale.

The Leary boys have brought home first prizes last year and the year before after showing stock they had raised. This year, with the help of the colored farm demonstration agent, Dennis Dupree, they expect to do the same thing with Sam.

Seek Protest To Russian Imports

Asheville, Aug. 16 —(AP)— The North Carolina Federation of Labor was asked today to request North Carolina's two senators "to protest against importation of slave-made products from Russia to the detriment of our American labor."

The request was made by Halsey B. Leavitt, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate from North Carolina, in a telegram to the federation which is in session this week in Winston-Salem.

Fish Contests Get Exemption

Washington, Aug. 16 — (AP) — President Truman today signed a bill exempting from the federal lottery laws non-profit fishing contests sponsored by recognized organizations.

The Post Office Department has ruled that, under the present law, fishing contests are lotteries, and information about them is barred from the mails.

Says Eisenhower Is Top Choice

Fort Worth, Texas, Aug. 16—(AP) —Henry Zweifel, Texas Republican executive committee chairman, said today party leaders in seven of the 11 southern states indicate that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is a top choice for the GOP nominee for President in 1952.

Zweifel said the poll placed Eisenhower ahead in Texas, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Oklahoma and North Carolina.

A menu change is in order

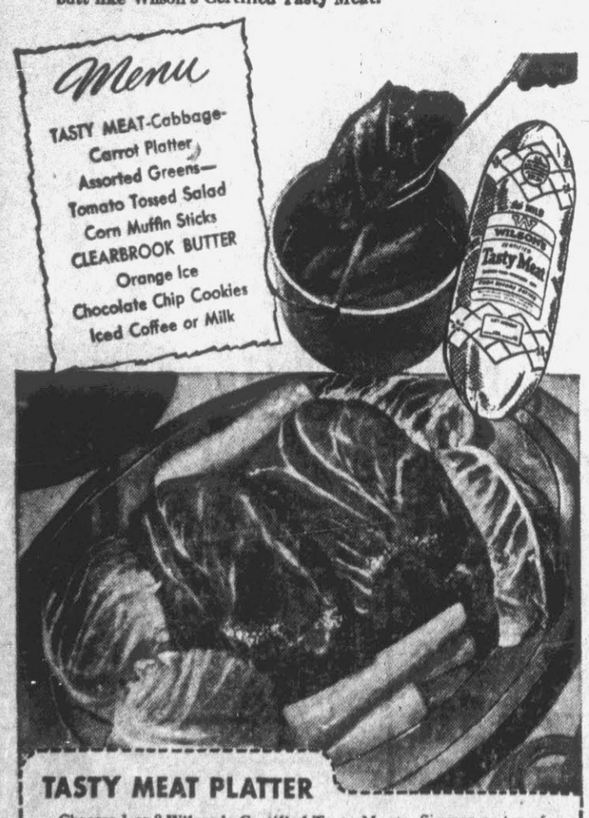

Likely your family is "FED UP" on cold meals and salads by now and would welcome a hot platter for a change. May we suggest Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat teamed with the garden's new cabbage and carrots?

Cooked in the COOL of the morning or in your insulated oven, even the kitchen remains cool.

For ease of cooking and downright goodness, you'll find this platter trio is among the most popular of all smoked pork shoulder butt menus, especially when it's a choice butt like Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat.

Menu

TASTY MEAT-Cabbage-Carrot Platter
Assorted Greens—
Tomato Tossed Salad
Corn Muffin Sticks
CLEARBROOK BUTTER
Orange Ice
Chocolate Chip Cookies
Iced Coffee or Milk

TASTY MEAT PLATTER

Choose: 1 or 2 Wilson's Certified Tasty Meats. Simmer on top of the stove according to directions on cellophane casing. Or cook in water to cover, in a covered kettle, in a 275° F. oven for about 2 hours.

If to be served at once, remove Tasty Meat to a serving platter and allow it to cool slightly while you quickly boil the vegetables tender in the meat's cooking liquor.

If Tasty Meat is cooked in the morning, let it cool off in the cooking liquor, then refrigerate. In this case, at serving time heat up the cooking liquor to boiling, add vegetables and cook tender, adding Tasty Meat just long enough to heat through. Never let the liquid boil after the meat is added.

The RANGE DOCTOR

by OSCAR J. FRIEND

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 8

The Circle Bar outfit lay west of town, a wide section of triangular shape which ran back into the foothills of the Horseshoe Range. Sunday forenoon Logan and Griggsby rode out.

Logan was beginning to like this country. This particular region was lush and fertile, reminding him more of his native Missouri land. Throwing back his shoulders, he drew such a deep breath of the clean air that his saddle creaked.

"Smells good, eh? But you're going to have to swap that kelly for a wide-brimmed hat if you don't want to sunburn your tonsils," Griggsby said dryly. "Where'd you learn to ride that good?"

"In Saint Louis. I got special permission to train with the police cavalry for exercise. I knew a range doctor couldn't ride trolley cars to call on patients."

"Smart lad. We'll get you a good horse of your own from Solomon Trent."

Logan saw a black dot spiraling in low sweeps in the distance, and he shaded his eyes with his hand.

"Hello!" Griggsby went on as his sharp old eyes discerned the vulture. "Looks like Trent's lost another horse."

"You mean that buzzard flying low?"

"Yes. But flying buzzards just clean up the carrion. It's the two-legged buzzards prowling this range that we have to worry about. I'm figuring to talk with you considerable on that subject, son, when we have the time. We've got to doctor this range just like you're going to doctor the sick folk on it."

This was the first hint Griggsby had given of this nature, and Logan picked it up. "Meaning what?"

"I'll tell you tomorrow. Look over yonder to the right. See that tall tree in the gap? It marks the entrance into Pelham's valley, a couple of miles north of Circle Bar land. George Pelham's a queer duck—tubercular, I understand. You might be able to do him some good with the latest ideas on consumption."

"I know this is rough country," pursued Logan, stubbornly adhering to his original line of thought, "but in spite of a lax sheriff you don't have to worry about bad actors when men handle them in the summary fashion Overstreet handled that crooked card sharp, do you?"

"I reckon not," said Griggsby noncommittally.

"Then what—"

Griggsby pulled up his horse and turned in his saddle to face Logan squarely. "Look, son, I wanted to ease this to you gradually. There are other ramifications besides individual polecats running wild on rampages. This is a big country with a big future. We hope to bring a railroad through here yet, for one thing. I have to be careful how much I agitate things in the paper. Already we've given other folks ideas. within recent months a foreign outfit has moved in—a land development company, they call themselves. But I think they foresee a boom here and are to grab all the land they can. Not only do they want to control the right-of-way, but they mean to take over the entire range and make a single cattle empire out of it.

"If I'm right, that means range war. The various folks here will fight to keep their land. They don't want to be crowded out, cheated of their homesteads, forced to accept a mere pittance for their holdings, have to move on. And these land grabbers won't work in any other way. They'll lie, they'll cheat, they'll steal they'll kill to gain control. You ought to know what land grabbers are."

Logan's face hardened. "I do," he said through stiff lips. "But how do you know this land development company is of that calibre?"

The editor sighed. "Bob, you don't like to remember what happened up in Blue Eagle, but you're crowding me. Do you know who killed your father?"

Logan looked at him soberly. "Not for certain. It was either Charles Hohner or his field man, John Naylor. They were both there."

"Exactly. It's been nine years, but I'm afraid the past is catching up with us. This new outfit in Gila City is called the Hohner Land Development Company, and the local manager is a man named John Naylor. Let's ride on."

He jogged his mount into motion and trotted along the trail. Logan sat there like a stone statue for a long space, his eyes fixed on the receding back of the man who had befriended him on an ugly day nine long years before. His hands clenched the saddlehorn until they ached, and his face was troubled. Then he set spurs to his horse and thundered after the editor in a mad gallop.

Barton met them at the corral gate. Manlike, he led them into the house through the kitchen, where the appetizing aroma of cooking food engulfed them in a sensory wave.

"James Henry Barton!" exclaimed Mollie, trapped with her hands in a mass of biscuit dough. "You know better than this!"

"Don't mind me, Miss Barton," Logan said. "Remember you caught me in my shirtsleeves with a saw I didn't know what to do with."

She laughed prettily. "So I did, which makes us even. This is my sister, Betty."

Logan turned towards the stove where a second girl was hastily closing the oven door on a pair of simmering pies. He looked and continued to stare at a bewitchingly rosy face with the lovelies blue eyes, surmounted by a glorious plie of ash-blond hair. She hurriedly wiped her hand on her apron and offered it to him, and he bent over the delicately-tapered fingers in his best bow.

"You're improving," Mollie said critically. "But Betty has that effect."

"Ignore her, Dr. Logan," advised the younger sister, although blushing to the tips of her pretty ears. "She's a jealous creature."

"Don't forget I saw him first," was Mollie's mock-warning as she pursed her lips to kiss Griggsby.

"Don't hold yesterday's awkwardness against me," Logan begged. "I can do much better today."

"Well, sir, prove it," Mollie challenged, holding his gaze and promptly putting out her hand.

Insiders Would Replace Sec.s Acheson, Johnson

(From the Reflector's Washington Bureau)

By ROULHAC HAMILTON JR.

Washington, Aug. 16 — Strong sources within the Administration are urging President Truman to replace Secretary of State Dean Acheson with Chief Justice Fred Vinson and Defense Secretary Louis Johnson with former Army Secretary Gordon Gray, it was learned today.

Mr. Truman has indicated he has no plans for replacement of either Johnson or Acheson, but he is nevertheless under considerable pressure from some of his top advisers to name new heads of the nation's military-diplomatic organization.

The President's advisers were reported not to be unanimous in favoring Vinson and Gray, former Winston-Salem newspaperman and incoming president of the University of North Carolina, for the two top Cabinet posts, but the proposal nevertheless has strong backing.

Another group of presidential advisers are urging him to replace Acheson with W. Averill Harriman, his veteran trouble-shooting roving ambassador, and to name a Republican, Rep. James Wadsworth of New York, as his secretary of defense.

White House sources said today that currently the President appears to look with more favor on the Harriman-Wadsworth proposal, assuming he does decide to replace Acheson and Johnson, but it was recalled that he has the highest opinion of Gray as an administrator and has kept him under tremendous pressure to remain in the Administration, despite his acceptance of the university presidency.

Gray thus far has remained adamant in his refusal of a number of offers, but some sources here believed that in view of the international situation, he might be persuaded to accept the defense secretaryship, at least on a temporary basis.

Require License For All Peddlers

A misinterpretation of the revenue act applying to North Carolina veterans has caused many of them to pay penalties for not having licenses to peddle merchandise.

The misinterpretation has come about because many vets thought the act stated no veteran who wished to peddle goods had to have a license. The act states that any disabled vet may do so after applying to the county commissioners for a privilege license which is issued free of charge.

Ronald E. Mintz, deputy collector of revenue for Pitt and Craven counties, stated this morning the department is beginning to crack down on such practices, particularly now that tobacco markets have opened and the peddling business is booming.

Heretofore, Mintz said, the state department of revenue has been pretty lax in its dealings with veterans as peddlers. Not too much investigation has been done on the issue. This season, however, all peddlers on the Greenville market and other markets in the state will be and have been investigated for possession of licenses.

Besides disabled veterans, the law applies to blind persons and widows with dependent children. The person must also be a bona fide resident of North Carolina for a period of 12 months in order to get the license.

Penalty for non-possession of a license is $25 per day for each day the person is engaged in the business. Each day is considered a separate offense, Mintz stated.

It was the heaviest air attack of the war. Fighting slowed in the Changnyong sector. North of this area, a Red force of two or three battalions crossed the Naktong at Hyonpung, 12 miles southwest of Taegu. South Koreans repulsed an attack south of Hajang in the Waegwan area. Shoe, Nearly 90 Years Old, Given Local Woman

Most people discard old shoes and are glad to get rid of them, but Mrs. L. W. Parrish of Greenville is the proud possessor of probably one of the oldest shoes in Pitt County.

It is shoe which was given her Tuesday by her father, James W. Bartholomew who is now 90 years old The shoe is a baby shoe which is from the first pair of shoes Mr. Bartholomew had.

The tiny high-top shoe is made of leather with leather heel and sole. It measures five inches long and four and one-half inches high.

The sole of the shoe is attached to the upper portion with tiny wooden pegs, and the toe of the shoe is capped with a solid copper plate.

Although age has done away with whatever color the shoe was, the sole and heel are in good condition; and the top which has become a grayish color is in good condition except for a tear by the tongue.

The shoe was custom made during the days of the Civil War, Mrs. Parrish said. It is sewed along the seams with cotton thread.

Railroad Unions Call Two Strikes

Washington, Aug. 17—(AP)—The Trainmen and Conductors unions today called strikes on two short line railroads beginning next Tuesday, to last until midnight Saturday, August 26.

The walkouts were ordered on the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad, with headquarters in Chicago, and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad, Pittsburgh, effective at 6 a. m., August 22.

A spokesman for the unions said the strikes will directly involve 5,000 workers, and will indirectly idle perhaps 50,000.

Free Swimming At Local Pool Set Next Week

Contrary to previous announcements that the Greenville swimming pool would close on Saturday of this week, Chairman of the City Recreation Commission Heber B. Tripp announced today that the pool will remain open and free swimming will be offered to the boys and girls, and adults alike next week.

The Recreation Commission is sponsoring the move to keep the pool open instead of closing it as had been announced previously. Recently attendance at the pool had taken such a drop that it was planned to close the pool unless attendance picked up. A cut in the staff was announced last week.

Free lockers will be furnished the swimmers next week, Tripp stated but they must bring their own towels.

Tripp said that he hoped the number of people using the pool next week would justify keeping it open.

And—There is always a bed for a man with a service-connected disability, whether emergency or not.

A veteran with a non-service-connected disability, who is not an emergency case, can get a bed when there's one available for him. But this is true only for war veterans. Which mean:

Some of the men fighting in Korea went into the army since July 1948. They are in hostilities. When they become veterans and have a non-service-connected disability, they can get a hospital bed. But—

Suppose you're drafted now and serve 21 months in this country, are discharged, and later develop a non-service-connected disability. You can't get a VA hospital bed. Why? You're not a war veteran, or a veteran of hostilities.
