Visiting Dairymen View 2,300 Pounds Of Holstein

That animal causing those men in the picture to back away from the fence is Nock-dair Cottie Longfield, 2,300 pound Holstein bull that has sired at least 100 Pitt county heifers. Owned by John Webb, of Carolina Dairy, he is used on Webb's Harvey Dairy farm for breeding purposes. The 11 1-2 year-old bull is being examined by a group of the visiting dairymen from counties of eastern North and South Carolina which gathered on the Harvey farm yesterday for a dairy demonstration. Cabinet Officer Said Once Allied With Red Cause

Plan Probe Of Solon's Claim Oscar Chapman Associated With Reds

Washington, Sept. 6.—A charge that secretary of interior Oscar L. Chapman was once closely allied with "the Russian Soviet cause" appeared headed today for an early Senate investigation.

Senator Schoepel (R-Kan.) made the accusation in a senate speech last night. He said the cabinet officer had associated with Communist front groups and may have left them only to preserve his official position.

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) announced he would order an immediate inquiry by the senate interior committee he heads. Chapman, he added, is "anxious" to testify and Schoepel will be invited to attend.

"We'll let the chips fall where they may," O'Mahoney said. Democratic Senators had termed Schoepel's accusations "politics."

Schoepel told the senate Chapman's record "is replete" with "references which show conclusively the strong and close personal alliance between the Russian Soviet cause and the present secretary of interior."

O'Mahoney said Schoepel's charges were similar to ones checked in 1948 by a house labor subcommittee which, he said, gave Chapman "a clean bill."

Schoepel coupled his attack on Chapman with a broadside against persons pressing for statehood for Alaska. He said he favors statehood for both Alaska and Hawaii "but not as adjuncts of the department of interior. I do not want to wake up and find a so-called American Quisling doing a job that might be serving the purposes of Soviet Russia."

He accused Alaskan Governor Ernest Gruening and Delegate E. L. Bartlett, who represents the territory in Congress, of having been instrumental in hiring to lobby for Alaska statehood a former public relations counsel for Communist Poland. He identified the lobbyist as John Hampton Randolph Felts.

Pohang Falls; Reds Throw 84 Tanks Into Battle; Taegu Thrust Stopped

Auto Rams Cart; Pitt Now Has One-A-Day Accident Rate

Pitt county chalked up its 35th highway accident in the past 35 days last night when the car shown above rammed into a horse and cart on a rural road near Pactolus. Neither the driver of the car nor the occupants of the cart suffered injuries. W. S. McDowell has been charged with driving in a careless and reckless manner. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Favorable Weather Returns For Air Support; Big Tank Battle Looms On North-eastern Front; Yongchong Recaptured By Allied Counterattack

Tokyo, Thursday, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Allied troops retook Yongchong Wednesday in a counterattack that stopped Red Korean thrusts at Taegu and regained some lost ground.

But the Reds threw 84 new Russian-made tanks on the Northern and Eastern Korean battlefields where new U. S. 47 1-2 ton Patton tanks made their appearance a few days ago.

A big tank battle seemed imminent with the allied side having some demonstrated advantage through air support.

Weather unleashed U. S. bombers and fighter tanks. By dusk tanks were knocked and seven attack.

Night fighters and bombers continued the attack Wednesday night. But the allied eastern sea anchor line on the 120-mile Korean war-front had collapsed. That allowed Communist troops and tanks to spew toward Taegu, hub of the northern and western front, and southward toward Pusan, chief allied port in the southeast.

Pohang, No. 2 allied port on the Sea of Japan, fell to the Reds. Allied fire bombs in Wednesday's air attacks set the city afire. It has changed hands twice in the 10 weeks old war.

Yongchong, a major battle goal 26 miles east of Taegu, was seized by Communist guerrillas Tuesday. It was retaken by an allied counter-attack Wednesday morning.

American aerial observers told AP correspondents that the Taegu highway junction was held hands late Wednesday.

Correspondent Erickson said Taegu was calm while battles flamed to the east and north of it.

The rail hub is the largest city left in the allied sector of Korea. The allied east wing first fell Tuesday and Kigye, nine miles northwest of Pohang.

Reds poured through that hole toward Yongju, 18 miles southwest of Pohang.

But that important rail and road junction was saved by stiffening allied defenders who shoved back the advancing Reds Wednesday.

The Communists moved two miles nearer to Taegu down the Kumhwa "Bowling Alley." They took the town of Tabu and held positions 10 miles north of the allied supply center.

These advances, and grinding American gains west of Yongsan, 32 miles south of Taegu, cost the Reds 2,038 dead and wounded in the 24-hour period ended at noon Wednesday. General MacArthur reported the Red losses in his war summary.

A U. S. 8th Army communiqué Wednesday night reported that allied forces fighting eastward of Yongchong and northward of Kigye, "were halting the Communist exploitation of its breakthrough south of Kigye."

Correspondent Erickson in Taegu said allied aerial observers were unable to tell how far north of Yongchong the main Red Forces were. But pilots reported they did not see any significant Communist troops in that area.

Pilots reported Pohang burning furiously but said the airfield six miles south of the port city was still in allied hands.

British troops, including the King's "Ladies from Hell" scouts, one of Britain's most famous fighting units, got their baptism of fire Tuesday night in repelling Red patrols eight miles southwest of Taegu. The British, from Hong Kong, took over the left flank of the U. S. first cavalry division.

Russians Declare Bomber Unarmed

Charge Plane Downed By U.S. Fighter Planes Was On Training Flight; Claim Two Other Planes Were 'Eye-Witnesses' Of Aerial Attack

London, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Russia asserted today that a bomber shot down by a United Nations fighter patrol Monday was an unarmed Soviet plane on a training flight.

The charge was made in a statement to the United States broadcast by Moscow radio.

The statement claimed the plane carried "neither bombing nor torpedo armament."

It said the plane was flying "from Port Arthur to the area of Hai-Yun-Tao Island, part of the frontier of Port Arthur military base and situated 140 kilometers (about 87 miles) from the shores of Korea."

The note declared the plane "without any grounds or pretext was attacked and fired on by 11 fighters of the United States military air force."

The note said two other Soviet planes, which were on the same training flight, were "eye-witnesses of the attack."

It added that the Soviet two-engine plane fell burning into the sea eight kilometers (five miles) south of Hai-Yun-Tao Island.

The note denied completely the U. S. report on the incident, which claimed the Russian plane was shot down when it fired on an air patrol screening a U. N. naval force in waters west of Korea at approximately the 38th parallel.

Moscow claimed the United States gave this version to the United Nations to "conceal this totally unjustified attack on a Soviet plane."

Many Attended Dairy Field Day

South's Advantages In Dairying Field Cited In Talks

Dairy farmers of eastern North and South Carolina counties met at the Harvey farm just outside Greenville yesterday for a dairy demonstration and field day conducted by the Ralston Purina Company.

Between 250 and 300 dairymen, most of them from this section of the state and several from counties of South Carolina, listened to lectures by company representatives, interspersed by examination of Harvey's herd and its production record.

Although the field day was more or less a commercial venture by Purina, the program included talks by Pitt's farm agent and the State College Extension Department dairy specialist. Together with three company representatives they centered their talks and demonstrations around better production methods for the older dairymen and those just getting started in the milk producing field.

County Agent S. C. Winchester began the day's activities with a talk yesterday morning on pastures and silage. He based his talk on the production of the Harvey herd which is owned by John Webb of Carolina Dairy, and how it has improved its fluid milk capacity during the years on improved pasture recommendations.

Following Winchester's talk, Purina's local representative Lyle Leichter presented the herd's profit and loss record for the past three years. (Webb's cows were chosen for the field day, which was the first of such a large scale nature in North Carolina, because of following recommended pasture procedure, the herd has made an outstanding record since the war years.)

Other talks on the morning and afternoon program included dairy specialist R. R. Rich of the Extension Department, H. D. Guthrie, company dairy specialist for the southern area, and R. P. Oliver, company sales manager for the south Atlantic states.

Oliver brought out the fact that it is necessary for dairymen to regulate their breeding programs to

Elect Officers For Pitt YDC

J. B. Spilman, Jr., re-elected president of the Pitt County Young Democratic Club last night at Respass Brothers, will serve as chairman of the county delegation at state YDC convention next week in Asheville.

Uran Cox was named alternate chairman. A caucus of the delegates, with present indications of the full voting strength of eleven attending, will be held in Asheville when the entire vote will be cast with the majority with the "unit rule" prevailing.

Other officers elected at the supper meeting were Miss Ann Parker, vice-president, and Allan Powell, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Paul Jones, of Farmville, Frank Kilpatrick of Ayden, and Sam Worthington of Greenville will be honor guests at the Saturday morning breakfast session in honor of Democratic nominees next week at the convention hotel, the George Vanderbilt, in Asheville. Incidentally, Billy Turner, formerly of Greenville, is the Vanderbilt manager.

Announcement was made of the first congressional district rally to be held next month with a probability of Greenville's being chosen as the site.

Dr. Martha Pingel reported that several of the college YDC members were planning to attend state convention in Asheville. Joe Connelton is president of the college chapter.

Mayor Confers With Langston

Guy C. Langston recently appointed chief of police of Greenville was here this morning for a conference with Mayor W. S. Stafford. Langston is scheduled to officially take over his duties as police chief Monday morning.

Stafford today termed his conference with Langston "very satisfactory." The mayor said he and Langston discussed preliminary matters which needed to be straightened out before Langston takes over his new duties as chief. He will give the oath of office Monday morning by Clerk of the Court David T. House, Jr.

The mayor said this morning he doubted that Langston will attend the regular meeting of the board of aldermen which is scheduled for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the aldermen's room at the city hall.

Stafford said only routine business so far is slated for action by the aldermen tomorrow night.

City Is Scheduled To Mail First Tax Notices Today

The city of Greenville today was slated to mail out the first 1,000 tax notices to property owners of the city for the collection of the 1950 tax levy.

City Clerk J. O. Duval said the group mailed today will be the first of approximately 5,000 notices which will be mailed to people who own property in Greenville. He said he expects another 1,000 notices to be ready for the mails by the end of this week, and the remainder will be mailed as soon as they are prepared.

One per cent discount is being offered on all city taxes paid during the month of September. In October a discount of one-half of one per cent will be offered, and during the month of November, December and January the tax collections will be for the net value.

A penalty of one per cent will be added to unpaid taxes in February, another one per cent penalty will be added in March, and an additional one-half per cent penalty will be added to the unpaid taxes each month until paid.

The city tax rate for the 1950-51 fiscal year is $1.50.

Duval said in mailing out the tax notices it is possible for someone who has already paid his 1950 taxes to receive another bill. He said the duplication of bills sometimes is unavoidable because the bills already are in transit when the payments are received by the city. A bill received after the city taxes have been paid should be disregarded, Duval stated.

Horse And Cart Struck By Auto

Slow-Moving Cart Is Demolished And Horse Killed

Three persons escaped possible death or serious injury last night when a car crashed into the rear of a slowly moving horse and cart on a rural road about one mile from Pactolus.

The horse was killed instantly while the two occupants of the cart as it was demolished. Neither of two persons on the cart were injured although they were shaken up. The force of the impact sent the horse some 15 feet from the side of the road. The cart was turned into kindling wood in the crash. One of the largest pieces of the cart which could be found was about two and one half feet long and a couple of inches in width.

The car was driven by W. S. McDowell, of Chestnut Street, Greenville, who also was not injured in the crash McDowell stated last night that he rounded a curve in the highway, and came upon a cart without lights on the rear and struck it. The driver also said that he tried to pass the vehicle in an effort to avoid hitting it but an oncoming car prevented him clearing it.

Highway Patrolmen Cpl. John Laws and Dick Chadwick, investigating officers, arrested McDowell for driving in a careless and reckless manner.

President Considering Apology For Comments

Marines Stunned By Truman Blast

Fighting Men Told Of President's Caustic Remark

By BILL ROSS

With U. S. Marines in Korea, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Battle weary and begrimed Marines were stunned, confused and profane when told today of President Truman's remark that they have a "Stalin-like propaganda machine."

"Did he say that?" queried a Marine sergeant who has been on the Korean front line 32 days.

The sergeant happened to be a veteran of World War II Pacific fighting and a squad leader on the battle for "No-name ridge" in the Nakdong river bulge two weeks ago.

"He should have been up some of those damn Korean ridges with us," put in an enlisted leatherneck. "Maybe they were just propaganda too."

Most Marine officers were reluctant to comment on the Presidential letter. The officers took the position that a spirited vocal outburst on their part might put a crimp in their relationship with other American fighting forces in Korea.

One field officer, asked for his views, replied:

"I think it is very unfair to ask me to comment on such an unfair statement."

Waits 26 Years Before Acting On Desertion

Los Angeles, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Roland Glendening, 47, is not a man to make a move in haste.

The garage operator was married in 1924 in Wheeling, W. Va. Eight days later his bride disappeared from his Pittsburgh, Pa., home.

Twenty-six years passed. Then recently a letter arrived informing him that his wife would not contest an annulment suit if he would file it.

Yesterday Glendening went to court only to learn he waited too long. The judge said he should have filed the suit within four years of the marriage and denied a decree.

Glendening's going to try again, and this time without delay. His lawyer said he's preparing a divorce suit which will charge desertion.

U. S. Casualties

Washington, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The defense department said today that 8,863 American casualties in the Korean war had been reported to the next of kin through Sept. 1.

This was an increase of nearly 2,000 over the 6,886 for the period ended August 25.

The latest summary showed 599 listed as killed in action, 3,366 wounded, of whom 83 have since died, and 2,898 missing in action.

Of those killed in action, 465 were in the Army, nine in the Navy, 97 in the Marine Corps and 28 in the Air Force.

Disturbed By Reaction To Statement On Marines; Confers With Staff; Protests Pouring Into His Office

Washington, Sept. 6.—(AP)—President Truman is considering sending a letter to the Marine Corps League in an effort to stem the furor and bitterness arising from his cracks about the Marine Corps.

It was learned today that Mr. Truman is disturbed by the reaction to his assertions that the Marines are the "Navy's police force" and have a "propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's."

He conferred at length about it with members of the White House staff this morning.

Protests were pouring into his office over his statement, made in a letter to a congressman who had suggested that the Marines have representation on the Armed Forces Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It was learned that the White House meeting discussed the advisability of a letter. Some of Mr. Truman's staff urged a blanket apology to the Marines.

The Marine Corps League opened its annual meeting in Washington today. Rank and file members were hopping mad at Mr. Truman. Some talked of throwing him out of membership in the league.

But national officers were trying to hush the whole thing up.

National Commander Clay Nixon, who was demanding yesterday that the President apologize, told reporters today that he wants to consider it "a closed issue."

Nixon said a resolution had been proposed to "throw the President out of the league, and things of that sort," but that he would try to quash anything along that line.

'Preventive War' Idea

Some Of The Arguments For, And Against, America's Starting A War To Insure Future Peace And, Some Say, Our Own Salvation; Our Policy

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Preventive war:

Secretary of the Navy Matthews, speaking publicly, suggested this country should be willing to begin a war to insure peace.

For this he got his knuckles rapped by President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson.

And the President himself in his broadcast last Friday night said this country is against a "preventive war."

But what Matthews said publicly was only what some other top men in the government have spoken of privately.

And since Matthews broke the idea into the open, members of Congress have talked of "preventive war."

What is a preventive war? No one has defined it but it could be summed up this way:

That when this country feels it is ready, it should attack Russia to block it once and for all from taking over the world, including us.

Critics of the "preventive war" thinking have called it "immoral" and contrary to the American tradition of peacefulness.

They can argue this way:

For this country to resort to an attack on Russia to settle the differences between the two would be a resort to force and violence.

It would mean this country was plunging the world into blood and death probably for millions.

It would be a rejection of civilized and intelligent efforts—at least on our part—to iron out problems by trying every last peaceful method.

We have an obligation, as an enlightened nation, not to use violence except to defend ourselves against attack.

And although so far we have proclaimed our willingness—and shown it in Korea—to stop the use of force on any nation, we would be guilty of using force in a so-called preventive war.

On what grounds would this country be justified in making a preventive war on Russia, since it would mean firing the first shot? Those in favor of it could argue this way:

We're actually at war with Russia

Selective Protection

An Explosive Thesis Put Forward By MIT Professor That Americans Should Be Graded For Admission To A-Bomb Shelter On Basis Of Their Import To U. S.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Professor Clarke Goodman, Massachusetts Institute of Technology Scientist, advances the highly explosive thesis that Americans should be graded for admission to atom bomb shelters "on the basis of their importance to the United States."

The Professor explains that "we can't build shelters for everybody, and that selectivity is necessary because 'some people are more important than others.' Whether we look at this proposition from the standpoint of making a choice between Communists or between individuals in a given community, we come up against the problem of who is to decide on the grading in this question of life or death."

He reminded of an incident in World War I. During the height of the German submarine campaign a Japanese convoy was proceeding through the Mediterranean with Australian troop ships. They were carrying both soldiers and women nurses to the fighting in France.

A German submarine registered a direct hit with a torpedo on one of the transports, which quickly started to sink. The Japanese Admiral in command gave the order:

"Save the men first, and then the women!"

A young Japanese officer on the bridge with the commander said to his superior:

"You mean sir, save the women first and then the men?"

"No," snapped the Admiral. "The allies need troops; they have plenty of women; save the men first."

So the order was executed in that fashion, but fortunately they managed to save both men and women. However, such good luck couldn't be expected in the atomic selectivity because, as the Professor says, we can't build shelters for everybody. Somebody would be inflicted with the tough job of choosing sides.

And what a job! Let us hope we never come up against any such decision. Still, Professor Goodman indirectly has given us what should be a useful reminder. That is to check and see whether we are contributing all we can to the general welfare in these difficult times.

Certainly a lot of us would be expendable if it came to making a choice for atomic shelters. But

Joint Hostesses At Tea Honor Miss Smith

On Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock Mrs. J. Ludlow Williams and Mrs. H. R. Ebert were hostesses at a charming sit-down tea in honor of Miss Peggy Rose Smith, a bride-elect of Saturday.

Upon arrival the guests were greeted at the door by the hostesses and then invited into the dining room for refreshments. The home throughout was decorated with seasonal cut flowers, and in the dining room the table from which refreshments were served had a center floral arrangement of white gladioli interspersed with fern. On either side of the centerpiece were holders with white candles tied with tulle.

Guests served themselves from the tea table over which the hostesses presided, and Miss Smith was given a white bridal corsage.

After the social hour the honoree was presented with china in her chosen pattern as a gift from Mrs. Williams and was remembered with a gift of silver from Mrs. Ebert.

Women In The Church

Opportunities in the field of missions at home are being offered by the Methodist Church to fifty young graduates who are chosen as the first "U. S. 2's" (missionary service in the U. S. A. for two years). The U. S. 2 plan is sponsored by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the denomination. Although most of the work calls for women, a limited number of young men will be included in this group. Types of work are teaching in home missions schools, group work in community centers, kindergarten and nursery school work, and social-religious work in rural and city projects. Rural church and community workers and nurses will be recruited. Candidates should have a bachelor's degree, high scholarship, practical skills, ability to work with people, and good health. Persons interested should write the Department of Personnel, Board of Missions, 150 Fifth Ave, New York 11, N. Y.

Christian youth leaders should not depend on outward displays of piety or on preaching evangelism. Miss Edith Lesley Sewell, a London social service worker, told a conference of European Christian youth leaders at the Austrian Evangelical Youth Center, Villach, Carinthia, today, while society in general shows "apathy toward morality and religion," young people are faced with the basic problems of sex and religion, said Miss Sewell. She warned evangelism can only be relevant to young people if its leaders sincerely live by the Christian gospel.

Vellore Christian Medical College and its associated Hospital in Vellore, South India—institutions operated by two score Christian missionary boards of the United States, Canada and Europe—expects to raise one million dollars for new buildings and equipment during the next five years. The College and hospital have long been noted for the training of women doctors in surgical and obstetrical care, and in the new program it will train both men and women for the medical and nursing professions. Its new equipment will enable it to meet the degree requirements of Madras University with which it is now affiliated. Miss Florence Taylor, dean of the School of Nursing, and Miss Annamma Mathews, teachers of nursing arts at the College, are now in the United States.

Mrs. Harrington And Mrs. Miller Compliment Frances Kittrell At Coffee Hour

On Tuesday, September 5, Mrs. Walter Harrington and Mrs. John Miller, Jr., of Williamston, complimented Miss Frances Kittrell, bride-elect of the early fall, at a coffee hour held at the home of Mrs. Harrington.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Miller and Miss Kittrell upon arrival. The home was lovely with arrangements of early fall flower decorations in the living room. In the dining room the table was covered with a white cut work cloth and white California asters, gladioli and similar were used as table appointments. The honoree was presented with a corsage of white thums and tube roses.

Mrs. Harrington invited the guests into the dining room for refreshments. Seated at the table was Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, who served frosted coffee to the guests. Mrs. E. S. Flanagan and Mrs. Travis Flanagan served sandwiches, nuts, mints, and bridal cakes.

The honoree was remembered with a silver vegetable dish as a gift from the hostesses.

This program is the first in a series this year centering around the general society theme for the year, "Thy Saving Health Among All Nations." As an introduction to her talk, Mrs. Kittrell introduced Harper Darden, who sang two selections, accompanied at the piano by Miss Frances Aman. Mr. Darden used as his first number the society hymn of the year, "Thy Saving Health Among All Nations." In conclusion he sang an old Methodist hymn entitled "The Great Physician."

Miss Lill Wilson, the Spiritual Life leader, gave a detailed account of some of the meetings and devotionals she attended at Lake Junaluska during the past summer. Among the many interesting speakers she heard were Rev. Martin Neimeoeller, a German Methodist pastor who classed himself as "Hitler's private prisoner" as he was especially selected for persecution and suppression due to his wide influence among the Christians in Germany.

Seventeen members of the circle were present at the luncheon and there were two visitors, Mr. Darden and Miss Aman.

Alaska, Hawaii Assured Truman Supporting Bills

Washington, Sept. 6—(AP)—President Truman today entered the fight to obtain Senate passage of Alaskan and Hawaiian statehood bills before adjournment of this session of Congress.

E. L. Bartlett delegate from Alaska, and Joseph Farrington, delegate from Hawaii, announced Mr. Truman's decision following a call at the White House.

They said the President assured them he will "use every possible influence" to get a vote before adjournment.

They told newsmen Mr. Truman authorized them to make the statement.

Taft Sees Lack Of Clear Sight

Washington, Sept. 6—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) declared today the Truman Administration is like a man who can feel and see "but has no brain in his head to put together the various sensations and develop a consistent course of action."

"This country," he said, "is badly in need of an Administration with clear principles on foreign policy, military policy, economic policy and some ability to direct a practical, common-sense program in accordance with fixed principles."

Taft, the Senate GOP policy chieftain, suggested in his weekly newspaper column to newspapers in Ohio, where he is seeking reelection, that only a Republican Congress could provide "some kind of consistent action from an Administration divided within itself."

His attack followed up a fresh volley of criticism leveled at the Administration by another Republican, Senator Knowland of California.

Knowland, taking the Senate floor late yesterday to blast Far Eastern policy again, said that Chinese Communists five years ago had cold bloodedly shot to death an unarmed American army officer.

Knowland suggested that if Congress had known earlier of the incident it would have had a major bearing on Far Eastern policy.

Winds Up Watermelon Season

David Bilbro, five-year-old grandson of Mrs. D. W. Hardee of Greenville, gets set to enjoy one of the last watermelons to be found this season. Even if the season is nearly over, the lad finished the slice of melon in short order and wanted to know if there was any more. Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee.

Sixteen new members joined the staff of East Carolina Teachers College at the beginning of the 1950-1951 term, which began Monday of this week. Dr. McNeil is a graduate of Iowa State, Cornell, and the University of Iowa, from the last of which she holds the doctor's degree. She comes to East Carolina from Phoenix College in Arizona.

Dr. Ed J. Carter, a native North Carolinian who has a doctorate from the University of North Carolina and has been connected with North Carolina public schools both as teacher and administrator, replaces for the 1950-1951 term Dr. Allan S. Hurlburt, director of the department of administration and supervision, who now has a year's leave of absence to work with the N. C. State Department of Public Instruction. Dr. Carter is head of the department of education at Murry State College, Kentucky.

National diamond grading examinations for the Registered Jeweler assure you of better diamond values. A Registered Jeweler knows the facts about scientific diamond grading and must observe the American Gem Society's standards which protect his customers from purchasing low grade diamonds.

its actions?

Ask other groups whether an emergency exists, and we believe you will get answers which differ greatly from those which come out of official Washington.

Ask the soldier who is slopping around in the mud of Korea, crouching under his steel helmet praying the next exploding shell will not rip his body open. He'll tell you there is an emergency. Ask the families of the five Pitt county soldiers who have been named in the casualty lists from the Korean front. They will tell you there is an emergency.

If you want to, ask the young man who has been called to give up his job and leave his wife and child or children to go into military service. He'll tell you that this is an emergency.

But the politicians can not have an emergency—at least not until after November. In spite of their tearful pleas for patriotism and their promises to do everything to keep American fighting men from being killed, their actions are speaking louder than their words.

In their speeches national defense comes first. In their action the grand old game of politics is getting their full attention; and so far as congress and the administration are concerned American boys will have to keep losing their lives until after November and the election.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Top-level officials in the State and National Defense Departments, as well as key members of Congressional committees dealing with diplomatic and military matters, would be knocked off their complacent chairs if they could hear private British and French reaction to muttered demands that "they get in and fight alongside Uncle Sam in Korea and elsewhere." Perhaps they have heard these official and unofficial mutterings.

When a minor but curious member of the Truman Administration recently asked a British Embassy attache about England's rearming of Russia the frank and realistic Englishman replied:

"I don't and can't defend it. But may I point out that we have just increased the length of service of conscripts from eighteen to twenty-four months, while you don't have real conscription at all? May I also note that we have more men fighting in Burma, Malaya and on guard in other unsettled areas than you have in Korea?"

SACRIFICES—The reaction—it might be called resentment—of the French is similar. It should be noted here, however, that these representatives of London and Paris are not bitter. They see our viewpoint, but they think that we fail to appreciate their attitude and contribution.

France, for instance, has twice as many soldiers in Indo-China as we have sent to Korea as of today. Like Britain, the French also have a stern system of conscription.

In proportion to their resources and population, the men of London and Paris think that they are making as great or greater sacrifices than the United States.

BAYONETS—Premier Pierrot also grumbles because his country's military pledges have not been fully publicized here by the White House, the State Department or the Pentagon.

At recent councils for formation of a European Army, he says, France has promised to raise and maintain, with some help from us, twenty divisions—ten in France and ten in Germany. Paris can equip and support about one-third of these units, counting on us to provide for the other two-thirds.

In short, both the British and French want to see American bayonets as well as dollars gleaming in the suns of Alsace-Lorraine and the Rhine Valley.

FORUM—Providing a national forum for General Douglas A. MacArthur to air his embarrassing, anti-administration views on Formosa was no mere accident on the part of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Although Secretary Louis A. Johnson had hoped for an invitation to address their national convention, the VFW's preferred a message from MacArthur.

As former commander of the American Legion, the West Virginian has never been popular with these overseas veterans. The two groups quarreled violently in the early days of the Roosevelt Administration, when it was charged that Mr. J. showed partiality to the Legionnaires as Under Secretary of War.

He supported the severe cuts which F.D.R. made in veterans' pensions and allowances, while the VFW favored milder curtailments.

CRITIC—A severe Johnson critic on Capitol Hill has been Representative James E. Van Zandt of Altoona, Pa., former head of VFW and still a power in its inner circle. It was Mr. Van Zandt who precipitated the B-36 investigation that led to Congressional surveys and demands for strengthening the military establishment.

Mr. Johnson has never forgiven him for that enterprise, which was warmly commended by Carl Vinson, the Georgia Democrat who heads the House Armed Services Committee.

DOGHOUSE—In fact, the unhappy Mr. Johnson is not too popular with the present American Legion hierarchy. He and former Commander Paul V. McNutt, who claims to have more influence with World War I doughboys than the Cabinet member, have frequently clashed as rivals for the presidential or vice-presidential nomination.

In fact, the likable and amiable Secretary of National Defense is today the loneliest man in Washington, which can be an awfully lonely doghouse for a man who, like Mr. J., craves publicity, public esteem and the presidency.

ACHESON—Although Capitol Hill Democrats, including men who think they have the presidential ear, agree with the demand for a Johnson fadeout, they defend Secretary of State Dean Acheson and favor his retention. The difference is reflected in their private and public comments, and in campaign speeches back home.

They maintain that, in view of the weakness and corruption of the Chiang Kai-shek regime, the U.S. had no alternative to withdrawing support from him. They cite the billions we gave him, and blame him, not Mr. A., for their misdeeds. They point to the Marshall Plan, the Truman Doctrine and the general anti-Russia containment program as constructive achievements.

In the last analysis, however, they back Acheson because it is difficult to single him out as the sole architect of our foreign misfortunes. Any Secretary of State is a shifting and shadowy political target. On the other hand, anybody who can count on ten without using his fingers can balance Johnsonian "economy" against our present military anarchy.

CATCALLS—The American people just even in the midst of tragedy.

Whenever a baseball player at Griffith Stadium here makes a bum throw, or whenever a pitcher is being knocked all over the lot, the new outcry from the bleachers is: "Send him to Korea!"

President Truman, who recently attended a Detroit-Washington game, heard the Korean catcalls,

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Many is the time that I've told you that Wife Rachel is the best cook in town. Yesterday marked the end of the third year of our marriage, and during those years W.R.'s good cooking has netted me 25 pounds in weight. Quite often I have wondered how many pounds I would have gained if W.R. were not gifted with the ability to read. This question arose last night when Rachel was cooking supper. One of the dishes was cheese souffle. Even Greenville's best cook has to refer to a cook book now and then; in fact, during the creation of that souffle, W. R. kept her nose closer to the book than to the stove.

"Hey kid," I said, "suppose you couldn't read a cook book, what kind of a cook would you be?"

Her reply was, "Maybe if I couldn't read a cook book we'd miss a meal now and then, and maybe your last summer's pants would fit."

This reply put an end to the personal side of our cook book, but we continued to discuss the married man's figure, and later covered the bald head.

The question for discussion was, does the average man after he is married care about his figure or the loss of hair? The conclusion is yes, because statistics show that there were 23,562 men's girdles sold in the United States last year, and my guess is that at least one-fourth of these were sold to married men. Of course you have to consider that a great percentage of these were sold in Hollywood. Bing Crosby, Jack Benny and Bob Hope are three steady girdle customers.

The average married man is confident about his status with his wife. Whether it's conceit or family pride, he has little fear of losing her. Therefore, many make no effort to keep trim or keep their hair. However, the majority exercise religiously and shed a tear with every falling hair. Any man who admits it is called a sissy, but men have plenty of vanity.

At this point of the discussion I told Rachel, "OK, I admit that men are vain, but there is no comparison between us and women. Every pound over 110 puts a grey hair in a woman's head. Even women who are too thin dread gaining a pound. They've heard so much about the dread of weight that they think it's a sin to gain a few pounds. And the ironical thing is that men like women who weigh more than the ideal weight, women's standards."

After all of that spell, I discovered that W. R. wasn't even listening. Instead, she was engrossed in the great cook book. If this keeps up I'll be bigger than Jack Benny, Bob Hope, or Bing Crosby, but so help me, I'll roll down Evans Street before I buy a girdle.

And I thank you.

CROSSED—Publicity recently given to availability of electric power, or lack of it, in North Carolina indicates that wires are crossed somewhere. The crossed wires may be as much political as electrical. In either event they can cause short circuits and make sparks fly. Governor Kerr Scott has insisted in numerous public speeches, in press conference interviews and in private conversation, that North Carolina has a desperate shortage of electric power. Somewhere in his statements is almost always included the qualification that he is talking about "public power"—that is electricity generated by government financed and operated plants. He has often referred to North Carolina as a "desert in the public power field."

PLENTIFUL—Meantime other state agencies, local chambers of commerce and industrialists interested in development of the state are boasting that electric power in North Carolina is plentiful and relatively cheap.

STATE—There is, for instance, a new booklet sponsored by the division of commerce and industry of the department of conservation and development, designed to attract new industry to North Carolina. That publication, paid for by tax money collected from North Carolinians, says at one place: "In fuel power and water power—both vital to industry—North Carolina holds high rank among the state, and is the center of a Southeastern power province whose resources are more than sufficient to meet its own power requirements. In this state, power is cheap, plentiful and widely distributed." At another place, the state publication says: "North Carolina is forging ahead of the national average for rural electrification. Eighty-three per cent of the state's farms had electric power (as of 1950), and the program to extend electrical facilities throughout the rural areas of the state is a continuing and steadily advancing one."

MUZZLED—That information, however, is not presently available to the public from the tax-paid publication. The books have been printed and delivered to the department of conservation and development, but they can be obtained only by agreeing to a under note that the material cannot be used or published until "officially released." Appropriate questions would seem to be: "Why the hold-up? Why the muzzling? If the statements are true, why not release them? If they are not true, why were taxpayers socked with the cost of printing them?"

PUBLISHED—No such restriction upon publication can apply to the Manufacturers Record of Baltimore, long a recognized champion of and authority on industrial development of the South. The current September issue of the Manufacturers Record features North Carolina. It is replete with authoritative data about progress in all fields—agriculture, manufacturing, and social. In the section devoted to electric power the Baltimore magazine puts North Carolina in high place.

QUOTES—On pages 88 and 89 appear these statements: "North Carolina ranked second in the South in electric power output in 1949." "Editor's note: Texas was first, with the TVA states of Alabama and Tennessee running behind North Carolina." In that year production for all purposes totaled 10,010,400 kilowatt hours, and the major portion of this originated from fuels rather than from water power at hydro-electric plants. The power companies operating in the state are fully aware of the necessity of keeping ahead of demands, and evidence of this may be found in the expansion programs that the two major power companies, Duke Power Co. and Carolina Power and Light Co., have underway."

EXPANSION—Development is traced during the past forty years, with emphasis on expansion programs begun immediately after World War II. The story sets out that Duke plans for 1947-50 call for investment of $100,000,000 while Carolina last year spent $18,000,000 with a like amount scheduled for this year.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

RE-ASSURING

(Greensboro Daily News)

Action taken by the State Highway and Public Works Commission at its Thursday session should go far toward dispelling the apprehension caused by Raleigh gossip that the MacCormack report, recommending badly needed prison reform in Tarheelia, was being walled off with less and less official favor and might wind up in a pigeonhole.

Specifically the commission passed a resolution instructing newly named Prisons Director John M. Gold (after due study to proceed with putting into effect at the earliest possible date as many recommendations proposed in the MacCormack report as may seem practical and suitable to more efficient operation of the prison system at this time.)

It will be noted that the resolution is directed at the more

"efficient" operation of the prison instead of the highway system, of which it is presently an adjunct or appendage, and we trust that the significance of that wording is as deep as the differentiation and priority which it seems to infer. While "efficient" is not the ideal adjective for use in the correction, we hope that it too will be stretched to paramount human values and rehabilitation which in the long run will prove less costly and pay off more handsomely.

Clearly the resolution not only gives Prisons Director Gold the green light but instructs him to proceed in accord with his study, his observation, his judgment and the responsibility which both the commission and Governor Scott have assumed is his to get things done in this long neglected field. There are many recommendations in the MacCormack report which can be done promptly, and which we are now assuming will, as for the heart of the report, i. e., its recommendation that the prison system be separated from the highway department and be placed, along with other correctional agencies, in a new State Department of Correction, that will require legislative action. Here is where gubernatorial leadership and legislative intelligence and social understanding will have to assert themselves.

What Mr. Gold thinks of this proposal will be interesting to note. True, the prison director is accountable to the highway commission, which may not be enthusiastic about giving up any of the prerogatives presently entrusted to it. But at the same time the freedom of choice and the exercise of judgment and responsibility which have been repeatedly assured him ought to warrant the expectation that he will speak his mind when the proper time comes upon the most meaningful change of all.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Merchandising counselors are quietly advising client retailers to dispose of goods originating behind the Iron Curtain. Better try to sell out, without fanfare, stocks of Czechoslovakian glass, Russian furs and caviar, Polish hams and other articles from Communist lands and better be cautious about future orders, they advise.

So far, there have been no major consumer boycotts of Iron Curtain products, or even very much buying resistance. But a sharp worsening of relations with Russia could provoke trouble for retailers. Hysteria could lead to accusations that merchants handling such goods were pro-Communist. Such charges could be more costly to a business than being stuck with boycotted goods.

The advice to avoid Iron Curtain goods has been prompted by the boycott of such wares by East Coast longshoremen. President Truman has indicated he will act to end this boycott if the situation gets bad enough, since he feels that it is the job of the State Department, not of the A.F.L. International Longshoremen's Association, to set foreign policy. However, the speed with which the boycott spread and the support it gained from other unions and the public shows a latent resentment against Soviet trade which could easily be fanned into action against retailers.

In New York, two retail workers unions, one C.I.O. and one A.F.L., are opposing the sale of merchandise made in "Communist slave labor factories." One of the unions has been opposed to the sale of such goods since 1947 and has threatened to protest to a chain of stores with which it has a contract if Soviet or satellite goods are handled. There have been no protests because the chain declined to handle such goods.

There is more to the longshoremen's boycott than has appeared in print. Joe Curran, president of the union, has won the upper hand over an active Communist faction and he is determined to crack down on Communists wherever he can. The International Fur and Leather Workers Union is strongly leftist. Its president is Ben Gold, for 30 years a leader of the Communist party, from which he resigned last week solely to be able to file a non-Communist affidavit. He still believes in Communism. Irving Potash, manager of the New York Furriers Joint Council, is one of the eleven Communists convicted of conspiring to overthrow the government. Not only is the union about as red as they come, but many of the employers have shown sympathy with the Communists, possibly moved only by a desire to get along with the union.

So when Curran's longshoremen refused to unload Soviet goods, which were largely furs, they were costing Gold's men jobs and creating losses for their employers. The boycott had no immediate effect on the Russians. They had already been paid for their goods.

The boycott is moving to be a bonanza for American fur farms and Canadian trappers. A year ago the American farms were near bankruptcy. Since the boycott on Russian furs, American pelts have gone up in price. In last week's auctions in New York, ranch mink sold 20 per cent above July prices.

MERCHANTS URGED TO GET OUT VOTE

Seven thousand retailers and chambers of commerce have been invited to join the "get out the vote" campaign by the National Retail Drygoods Association.

It has mailed literature asking merchants to inform themselves fully about candidates and issues, to see that friends and employees register and vote, to become a leader in non-partisan get-out-the-vote committees, to urge other groups to participate in the drive, to devote time and energy to the drive, and to use promotional material for it.

The N.R.D.G.A. is offering window blow-ups, envelope stuffers, counter display signs and mounted posters at low prices.

SWEDISH IMPORTERS LISTED IN DIRECTORY

A Directory of Swedish Importers met such heavy demand that the B.C.A. Office of Small Business has reprinted the booklet. It lists Swedish firms' interest in importing American and other foreign goods. Copies are available from the B.C.A., 800 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C.

WHERE TO LOCATE AVAILABLE PATENTS

Q—From time to time I read of big companies offering to license their patents to others. How can I find out more about these patents?—M.A.M.

A—In every public library large enough to have a business section, you will probably find a copy of the Registry of Patents Available for Licensing and Sale, published and kept up to date by the Patent Office. For further details of a patent, send the number and 25 cents to the Commissioner of Patents, Washington, D. C., or write directly to the company offering the patent. You'll have to make arrangements for using the patent with the company owning it.—E.R.

Hal Boyle's Column

By BEM PRICE

(For Hal Boyle)

With U. S. Second Division, Korea — (AP) — Thousands of North Korean refugees were prodded down a dusty road today to get them off the main supply route to the fighting front.

South Koreans and U. S. military police were doing the prodding.

There must have been 5,000 to 7,000 of the homeless—stretched out in single file over ten miles of road.

They were the innocent bystanders of a war in whose making they had no part. And it didn't help their understanding to be boosted along—at times by force.

Unable to make one aged and bewildered Korean understand that he and his ox must move to the side to make room for a truck, an MP just pushed him over, then flailed the ox to one side with the butt of his carbine.

To their credit, though, I saw other MP's passing out cigarettes and occasionally cans of rations.

One dust-caked GI handed an aged woman a candy ration from his pocket. She said her thanks and moved on.

These people were refugees from the fighting around Yongsan. Driven from their homes, they walked down the nearest road away from danger. The army decided they should walk back. They were being herded back to Yongsan and then north to shelter where presumably they would be in nobody's way.

The column was made up of old men, women and children. One of the few young men in the column trudged by, head down, with an old woman strapped to his back. She had been shot through both feet.

One by one they staggered by, heads bent against the swirling dust from passing trucks.

Even the very small children, boys and girls alike, were carrying loads big enough to stagger an average man.

All were in rags. Their faces were greenish under the dirt. They talked very little. On occasion, some raised their faces for a moment, deadpan.

Under a broiling sun they walked, "Mizu, mizu," Japanese for water. Some dropped out of the column to fill hats, buckets, anything, with water from the rice paddies.

I saw several of the very aged, bent beneath tremendous loads, drop by the wayside to rest. When uniformed Koreans decided they had rested enough, they ordered them to move.

Washington Letter

By FRANK CAREY

(For Jane Eads)

WASHINGTON—A Navy dentist says a good tooth powder could be obtained from the sea—and he recommends that natives of coral islands use it.

Lieut. Edward C. Mitchell says a fresh coral could be heated in the ovens that natives use for baking bread and then finely ground. He added that the natives could use wooden sticks for toothbrushes.

Mitchell and several other scientists conducted research on coral at the Naval Medical Research Institute here and reported their findings in "The Military Surgeon" journal.

They first tested the possibilities of using "burnt coral"—the powder used by natives for whitening their buildings.

Mitchell, while stationed in Samoa, noted a lot of stained teeth among the natives and figured that "burnt coral" might be a help if it proved acceptable for use.

Burnt coral is made by placing fresh coral on burning logs in a pit. This is left to smoulder for approximately a week.

The researchers found that while the powder hindered the growth of certain mouth germs and was even less abrasive to teeth than some commercial products—it had a distinct drawback.

As prepared by the natives for use as a whitewash, burnt coral consists largely of calcium oxide. When this is combined with saliva, a chemical called calcium hydroxide is produced. And this is irritating to the lining of the mouth.

Just about this time Mitchell was assigned back to this country, and he hit upon another idea: Maybe if you heat fresh coral just right—without burning it—the natural calcium carbonate it contains will not be changed to calcium oxide.

That's the way things turned out. And it was found that the proper temperature is just about the same as that produced in native baking ovens.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

AND HE DIDN'T GRUMBLE

A man who owns a greenhouse was dismayed some months ago to discover that he had experienced about $600 worth of property damage at the hands of thoughtless, reckless boys. Fortunately, he was insured against such loss, and within a few days he received a check for the full amount. He took this check to the local Boy Scouts' headquarters and made it as his personal contribution to that organization. "The Boy Scouts are an organization," he said, "to make boys good citizens and keep them from vandalism."

The man who did this was not an educated man. In fact he came from a central European country only a few years ago. By diligence and much prudence, he was able to build up for himself a profitable little business. Certainly when the boys damaged his greenhouse and destroyed many of his plants, he would have been justified in appealing to the legal authorities. And certainly he would have been justified in accepting for himself the check which covered his damages. But he brushed all this aside. He believes in America. He admires this free land where people can get somewhere through honest effort. He believes in every organization that promotes good citizenship.

Most of us would have pocketed the $600 and would have done so grumbling. New Americans sometimes teach us very helpful lessons.

Greenville Welcomes The College Students

Greenville's largest single industry has resumed its operations after a lay-off of several weeks. Already we are seeing more people on the streets, and evidences of more purchasing in the downtown stores.

We are speaking of course of East Carolina Teachers College. The freshmen have arrived, and the upperclassmen are returning day by day for the beginning of the fall term at the end of this week. The people of Greenville extend to the returning students and to the new students a hearty welcome to this city which becomes a part of the life of every student who enters ECTC.

The college has become a vital part of Greenville, not only from the standpoint of a business, but from the educational and cultural standpoints as well. This fall the student body of ECTC is expected to number 2,800—the largest in the history of the school. The college has shown rapid growth in the past few years, and may be expected to continue to grow.

The Reflector joins with the rest of Greenville and Pitt county in welcoming back the ECTC students and wishing them all possible success during their school year.

Politics As Usual

The War Must Wait

Politics as usual. That seems to be the policy of the officials of the federal government from the President down through congress in this election year of 1950.

With the touchy international situation and the Korean war, these days seem to be anything but what we would call "normal times." Yet as the war clouds become more dense over most of the world, the solons and the members of the administration are coasting along on what they term officially as a "non-emergency" basis.

They have declared that "if an emergency existed we could do this" or "if there were an emergency we could do that" in connection with the nation's defense program and war effort.

So far the government has failed to impose domestic controls which would seem wise, or to move the mobilization to the place it should be. Both Democrats and Republicans are resting on their fat haunches awaiting the passing of November before they take any definite action which would protect our country and preserve the lives of perhaps thousands of our fighting men. The congressmen and members of the administration are not undertaking any measures which they fear may cost their respective parties any votes at the polls in November.

There is no emergency. They are going on with politics as usual.

But what about this emergency which official Washington refuses to recognize in

New Drugs 'Abolish' Sickness While You Still Have A Disease

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(AP Science Reporter)

Chicago, Sept. 6—(AP)—A physician told today of chemical magic that abolishes sickness, while you still have a disease.

The magic is in the hormones cortisone and ACTH. They are famed for bringing relief of pain in rheumatoid arthritis. But the wonder hormones have a far greater medical significance, Dr. Peter H. Forsham of Harvard University Medical School told the American Chemical Society.

With them, physicians have a chance to abolish the distress and symptoms of disease at will, and give you a better chance to fight disease, he said.

In pneumonia, invading germs produce a violent inflammatory reaction in your lungs. Fluid and pus flood the delicate air spaces, breathing comes hard, and you run a high fever.

"On ACTH or cortisone, the entire reaction will vanish. And while pneumococci (germs) still crowd the lung, the cells no longer react to them. It is obvious that sickness has been abolished while the disease is still present," Dr. Forsham said.

Conquest of the disease, aside from help of antibiotics depends upon the build-up of antibodies, which will arise within 10 days, whether or not you received the hormone. The hormone spares you pain and debilitation.

"In fact," Dr. Forsham said, "any of the acute and some of the chronic diseases with an inflammatory or allergic background are thus controlled."

The hormones have stopped infections or allergic conditions of the eye in their tracks before they could damage the eye or cause blindness, he added. In one eye disease, sympathetic ophthalmia, injury to one eye leads to an allergic flare-up in the other eye, and may blind it, too. But the hormone protects the good eye until the injured one is healed.

A strangling form of asthma can choke you to death, by constriction of sensitized bronchioles, or tiny air passages. ACTH stops the reaction, and lets the passages expand again.

The wonder hormones speed wound healing, slow down the rate of bodily processes by acting on the thyroid gland, but at the same time increase brain activity and usually give a sense of well-being, Dr. Forsham added. Injuries are more likely to be localized, because the hormone works against a chemical that allows harmful agents to spread among body cells. The stomach juice, pepsin, is increased, leading to better digestion of body building food.

Two Indictments Against Moore Awaited By Jury

Raleigh, Sept. 6—(AP)—The Wake County Grand Jury was expected to receive the bills of indictment in the J. B. Moore case today. Two bills drawn up yesterday charge Moore, former state prison director, and one of his subordinates, with misuse of prison labor and embezzlement of state-owned materials.

Moore, who has denied the charges since they were made public, resigned his prison post July 1. He was succeeded Aug. 15 by John Gold, Winston-Salem police chief. Named with Moore in the bills is A. W. Livengood of Winston-Salem, former prison maintenance foreman who was fired several weeks ago.

Solicitor William Y. Bickett, in drawing up the indictments yesterday, announced he had summoned 17 witnesses for the Grand Jury investigation.

They include several prisoners, SBI agents James Powell and James R. Durham, Jr., and Jesse Helms, news director for local radio station WRAL.

In one bill, Moore and Livengood are accused of conspiracy to commit embezzlement, and embezzlement. In the second, they are charged with conspiracy to misuse prison labor, misuse of prison labor, and using state vehicles for private purposes.

The bills are outgrowths of allegations that Moore used state-owned materials and prison labor in building a garage apartment at his Raleigh home.

Few Surprises In Primaries Of Nat'l Interest

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Senator Pat McCarran won easily in his race for renomination in Nevada's Democratic primary yesterday.

The 74-year-old, three term veteran rolled up almost a three-to-one lead over George Franklin, Jr., 34-year-old Las Vegas lawyer and World War II bomber pilot.

With 217 of 324 precincts counted, the unofficial tally was: McCarran 12,720; Franklin 4,614.

Attorneys Kendrick Johnson of Reno and George Marshall of Las Vegas were locked in a nip and tuck struggle for the Republican senatorial nomination and the right to oppose McCarran.

The count in 217 precincts out of 324 was 3,294 for Johnson and 3,753 for Marshall.

In Utah, the second western state to hold primaries yesterday, businessmen Wallace P. Bennett of Salt Lake City won the Republican senatorial nomination. Rue L. Clegg, Salt Lake City attorney and state senator, conceded to Bennett shortly after midnight.

The count with 743 of 953 precincts reporting: Bennett 28,117; Clegg 6,673.

Bennett will face Democratic Senator Elbert Thomas in November. Thomas had no primary opposition.

Those were the races that attracted the most interest nationally. Republicans and Democrats also picked Senate, House and state house candidates in the two states.

The western voting shared political interest with behind-the-scenes maneuverings in New York State as Republicans and Democrats opened party conventions.

Rep. Walter A. Lynch, 56-year-old lawyer, appeared to be assured of the Democratic nomination to run against Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

The veteran Bronx congressman picked up important support in an eleventh-hour switch of James A. Roe, Democratic leader of pivotal Queens County. Roe swung to Lynch after giving early support to Judge Charles W. Froessel of the State Court of Appeals.

Upstate forces led by Daniel P. O'Connell, Albany county leader, threatened a fight in support of their gubernatorial choice, Oscar Ewing, Federal Security administrator.

On the Republican side, leaders waited for Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley to make up his mind about running for United States senator against the prospective Democratic candidate, Senator Herbert H. Lehman.

Hanley withdrew from the governor's race Monday and asked Dewey to change his mind about retiring and run for a third term. Dewey, agreeing, urged Hanley to take the Senate nomination.

The Dewey turnaround revived speculation that he might try for the presidency again too, despite two previous defeats.

General's Son Is Badly Wounded

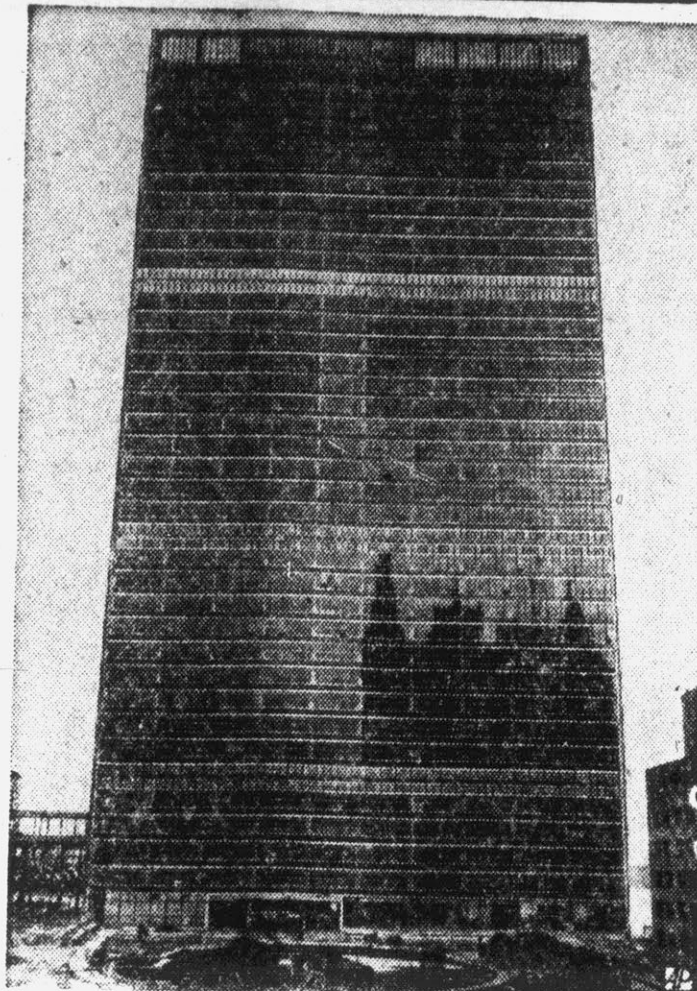

Masan Front, Korea, Sept. 6—(AP)—Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, 25th Division Commander, last month proudly pinned First Lieutenant's bars on his son, William M. Kean.

On the last day of the month Lieutenant Kean was badly wounded by a mine at the front. He was evacuated to a base hospital in Japan.

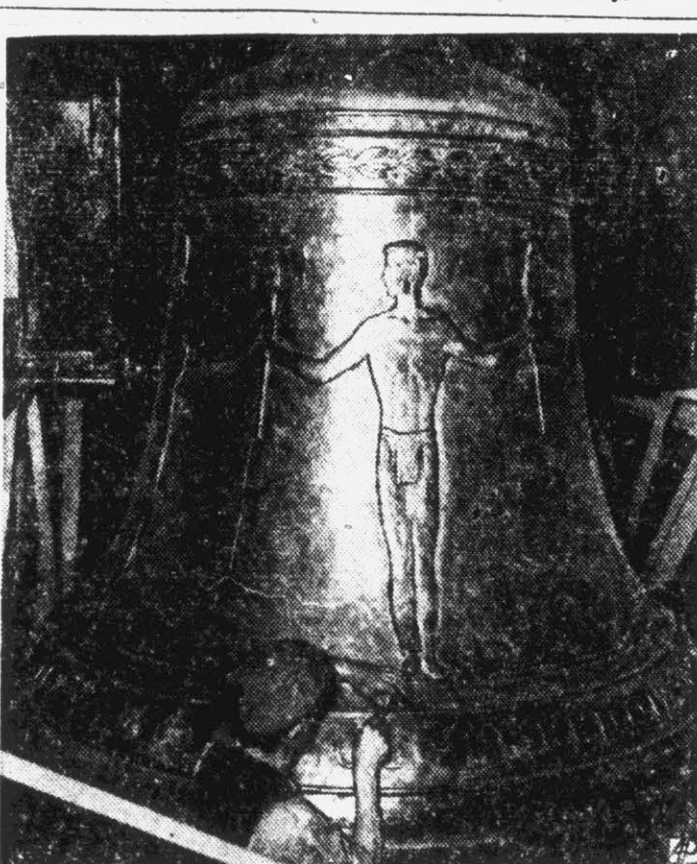

Word from the hospital today was that he would live. News of his wound had been withheld at the Army's request.

Preliminaries In Beauty Contest

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 6—(AP)—The Miss America contest begins in earnest tonight, with the first of three preliminary competitions.

The 54 beauties, who represent 46 states, four cities, Canada, Alaska, Puerto Rico, and the Hawaiian Islands, will spend three evenings demonstrating what they can do with bathing suits, evening gowns, and brains.

On the basis of points earned for beauty, poise, personality, and talent, 15 finalists will be chosen to compete for the crown now held by Jacqueline Mercer of Arizona. With the crown goes a $5,000 scholarship, a new automobile, and several moving stage and radio contract offers.

Pays Heavy Fine For Petty Theft

Los Angeles, Sept. 6—(AP)—For petty theft of a can of condensed milk and 20 cents worth of soup meat, Emanuel MasChetto, 63, a laborer, was fined $100 yesterday, and ordered to bank his savings of $6,800.

When arrested outside a market July 8, he had $6,800 in bills tied up in a rag. He claimed he hadn't paid for the groceries because he felt ill and had to get out in the air.

U.S. Chalks Up New High For Holiday Toll

Chicago, Sept. 6—(AP)—The nation's violent death toll for the Labor Day weekend was a record 565.

A breakdown of the accidental deaths showed: 389 killed in traffic mishaps; 78 drownings, and 98 deaths caused by accidents of miscellaneous nature.

The record toll compared to the previous high of 550 over the 1949 Labor Day holiday. The traffic fatalities were under the 435 predicted by the National Safety Council and also under last year's all time high of 410.

Ned H. Dearborn, council president, decried the traffic death count "the most encouraging holiday traffic record since the war."

The count covered a 78-hour period—from 6 p.m. last Friday to midnight Monday. California led the country in fatal accidents—45, followed by New York and Texas, each with 32. Three states, Delaware, Maine and Wyoming, had no accidental deaths.

Orientation Program For New Students Under Way

East Carolina Teachers College began Tuesday morning the twenty-second annual orientation program for freshmen and students transferring from other colleges. Approximately 700 first-year men and women assembled in the Wright auditorium at 9:30 for the first student assembly of the 1950-1951 term.

Welcoming the newcomers to the campus, acquainting them with various phases of student activities, and preparation of schedules for the fall quarter are among chief items on the agenda for the next two days. Upperclassmen are arriving on the campus daily to begin work. Classes will begin Friday, September 8, for all students.

Speaking to a large group of new students assembled in the Wright building, President John D. Messick directed attention toward academic work and the student's choice of a course suited to his interests and capabilities. Dr. Messick emphasized elementary education, citing the shortage of teachers for the lower grades. He urged those fitted for such work and interested in its potentialities for service to the state and nation to consider the field in deciding on a course of study.

"Be good citizens on the campus," Dr. Messick urged. Abundant opportunities for enjoyment and for individual growth and development—social, religious and intellectual—are offered at East Carolina, he stated. He encouraged the young men and women present to avail themselves of the best features of college life.

Others appearing on the morning's program included Dean Leo W. Jenkins, Dean of Women Ruth White, Dean of Men W. E. Marshall, and Registrar J. K. Long. Alexander E. Livesay of Rocky Mount, president of the Student Government Association, who was unable to be present, sent a message of welcome to the new students. Group singing was led by Dr. Karl V. Gilbert, with Elizabeth Drake at the piano.

During the afternoon, conferences with faculty counselors in the departments of instruction were conducted.

Police Made 135 Arrests August

Acting Police Chief Herbert E. Wooten will submit his report of police activities for the month of August to the Board of Aldermen at the regular meeting Thursday night.

One hundred and thirty-five arrests were made during the month. Seventy of the defendants were white—61 males and three females. Sixty-five of those arrested during the month were Negroes—54 males and 11 females.

The chief's report states that 270 complaints were investigated and 19 accidents were investigated.

There were 28 violations of road and driving laws; 24 arrests for drunkenness; 10 aggravated assaults; 10 other assaults; nine arrests for gambling; eight for disorderly conduct; six for burglary; six for violations liquor laws; nine for driving while drunk; seven arrests for larceny; three for sex offenses; two for offenses against family and children; two for embezzlement and fraud; two for forgery and worthless checks, and 11 miscellaneous offenses. Total revenue in Police Court for August was $2,305.85, out of which the city received $1,539.55, the report shows.

Potato Crop On 'Lord's Acre'

Manheim, Pa., Sept. 6—(AP)—The "Lord's Acre"—land donated by farmer Noah Kreider to further the work of the East Fairview church of the Brethren—yielded 400 bushels of potatoes as its 1950 crop.

The 400 bushels of potatoes were harvested in two hours yesterday as 52 members of the Mennonite church pitched in to help Kreider in the annual fund-raising project. The potatoes were planted and cared for by Kreider with the seed potatoes and fertilizer provided by the Church's Men's class.

The potatoes will be sold in neighborhood stores in 10-pound bags with the proceeds going to various church charities and welfare projects.

St. Louis, Sept. 6—(AP)—You've heard of pens that write under water? Well, here's a match that will strike after its striker has been under water. In other words, it's a striking strip on a safety match book that will not deteriorate from water or perspiration.

Universal Match Corp. of St. Louis says its chemists worked 15 years to perfect the new water resistant striking strip. You can dip it in water, shake it, and strike a match. Or you can keep it under 100 per cent humidity for six months and then strike your match. However, you can't strike a match under water.

Crusading Teacher Plans Work In Ockracoke School

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 6—(AP)—Nora Edmundson's battle to better conditions for North Carolina school kids has transferred from the mountains to the coast.

Next stop in the 70-odd-year-old school Marm's pilgrimage is Ockracoke, she informed Governor Scott yesterday.

Miss Edmundson is the red-haired mountain school teacher of Lower Elk. The only path to her school and the mountain community around it was the meandering Road of the 99 Fords. The trip could be made by jeep by an experienced driver in good weather. Usually, however, it was a case of mule-drawn sled or just plain walking.

Last winter Miss Edmundson went over her local and Watauga county school board authorities and wrote directly to Governor Scott about the conditions her students had to endure.

What the well-dressed Scot wears when he goes to war is illustrated by this Highlander who arrived at a South Korean airfield with the first contingent of British troops. He carries a sub machinegun, side arm, knife (instocking), bed roll, cane, tam o'shanter and pipe. (AP Wirephoto).

Not long after, the highway commission moved in with road machines and fellow Tar Heels sent school supplies, clothes, and toys.

Last month Miss Edmundson, who migrated up through Georgia, received her reward. Her school went into the limbo and her students were transferred to a consolidated school. Miss Edmundson was informed her services were no longer wanted.

She was passing through Raleigh yesterday and dropped in to see the Governor. He was out of town, so she dashed off a personal note. In it she informed him she will teach on the outer banks at Ockracoke.

"Before I started HADACOL I had aches and pains of neuritis in my shoulders, my back and arms. I could hardly move without having those terrible aches and pains. The aches and pains are completely gone. I recommend HADACOL to all my friends."

Harry Springer, 5608 Greer Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri:

"I had neuritis pains for quite some time and tried expensive treatments but continued to suffer. Then I read about HADACOL in the newspaper and I bought my first bottle. Within a week I felt quite a bit better. After the third bottle I had no pains or trouble at all. I was always tired and listless, but after a few bottles of HADACOL I felt like getting out and doing things. I recommend HADACOL to anyone. Right now, five of my co-workers are taking HADACOL on my recommendation."

there will be a mighty sight less chance that an atomic shelter will be needed if everybody turns too and finds useful civic service to which he can contribute.
A little inquiry will disclose many feasible contributions which can be made in conjunction with other civic minded folks. The least one can do is do all possible to aid unity and high morale. Economic stability can be promoted in numerous ways, one of which is the purely negative contribution of refusing to hoard supplies. There are numerous welfare programs which need volunteer workers. And so it goes.

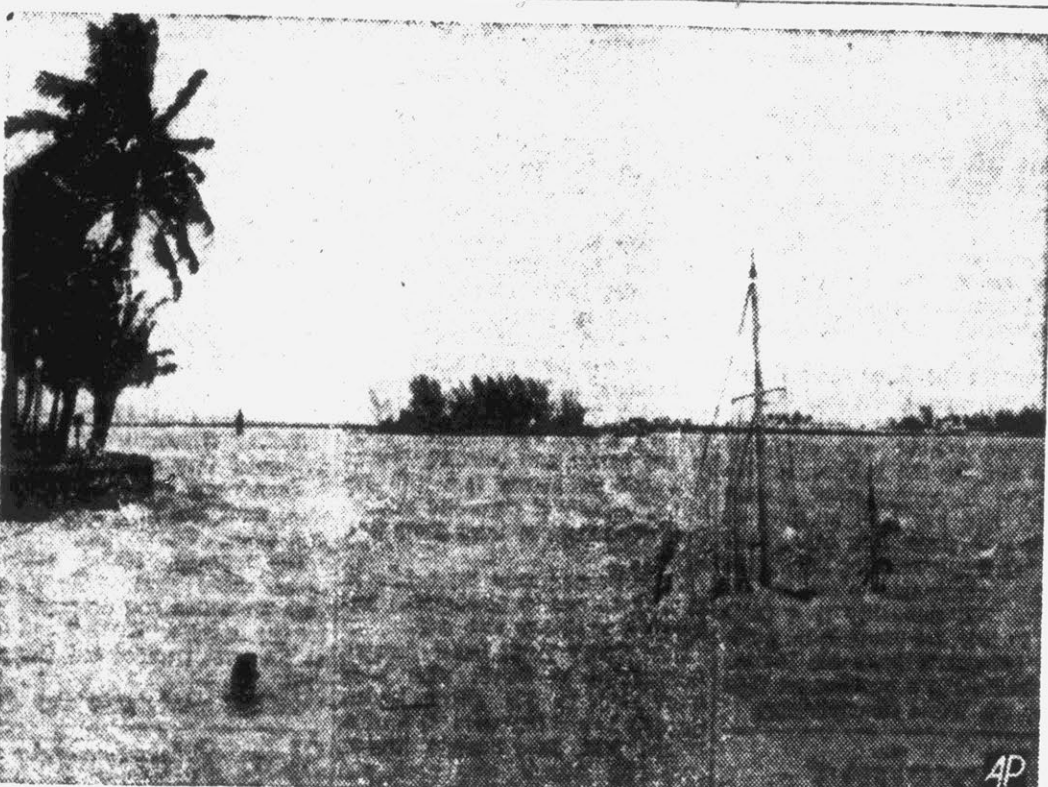

One might well take a page from the book of my friend Joseph Suozzi, who came to this country as an Italian immigrant boy sixty years ago and now is the prosperous owner of a couple of shoe repair establishments in Rockefeller Plaza. He is delving into every nook and corner he can find, looking for civic jobs he can do as his contribution to the welfare of the land which he stoutly maintains has provided him with opportunities no other country could provide.

And that still leaves unanswered the question of how important the individual is from the atomic viewpoint.

Thinking of the Long Pull?

Better Buy Buick!

If that car of yours has put its best days behind it, there's no time like right now to think about starting out afresh with a taut, new, up-to-the-minute motorcar with all its mileage still in it.

And there's no better place in the world to start than with the beauty pictured here, for a variety of reasons.

For one thing, this Buick SPECIAL is a quick-stepping Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight that's priced lower than some sixes.

For another, it's built with typical Buick ruggedness through and through—a husky that can take a lot of years without crying "Uncle!"

Then, too—this high-styled beauty is proving to be one of the most economical Buicks ever built—easy on gas, easy on upkeep, easy on you in its soft, floating, light-handling comfort.

It even comes with Dynaflo Drive* if you like—and Dynaflo means that you will never have to service or replace a friction clutch, and that rear-end or transmission servicing—even engine upkeep—are cut to a minimum.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Of course, you can't see all of this in the brief span of a trial drive.

But you can experience the good solid feel of Buick strength beneath you. You can satisfy yourself on the lightness of the controls, the utter smoothness of Dynaflo, the quick surge of Buick's Fireball power.

All such things will tell you that this is a car you'll be glad to live with for a long time to come—and you need only to ask your Buick dealer for a demonstration to see precisely what we mean.

Why not call on him soon to talk about signing up?

Spirited Workout For Phantom's Grid Squad

Coaches Pleased By Two-Hour Drill And Scrimmage Yesterday; Farley Indicates Team Will Be Tough Customers

Cold weather yesterday brought home to the Phantoms' football squad some semblance of the approaching football season and the two-hour practice provided the most spirited session the high school athletes have had since the beginning of practice two weeks ago.

Rain Monday kept the team inside and away from the field but yesterday Coach Bo Farley and assistant coaches Charles Chittin and Pete Everett held a full scrimmage which had all three pretty well pleased.

Upshot of the team's progress to date was expressed by Farley yesterday after practice when he said "We're going to give somebody a rough game."

Although he placed the verbal emphasis on a single game, he implied his Phantoms would prove tough customers to quite a few conference teams which have in the past run over his local charges.

"We'll lose some games," said the coach, "but we'll have a better record this fall than we came up with last November. The team will be not tougher than last year, mainly because a lot of the boys are back. And they're a year older."

To date, the fact of having a year's experience behind the Phantoms has dominated Farley's thinking during the two weeks of drills. Proof of the fact is in the line. In the forward wall the Phantoms will have the same tackles as last year as will be the case with one of the guard positions. Mac Crawford and Wallace Conway will hold down the starting tackle berths this season with Conway a letterman from 1949.

Joe Rowland is the only starter back at guard but he has an able accomplice at the other guard post in Johnny Mervin, 170-pound newcomer to the team.

At center experience should bear out Farley's theory too. Lewis Howe, last year's center, is back at his old position, a year's experience under his belt plus some extra weight. And the ends are pretty well settled out at present with John Aman, last year's center, and Wiley Gardner holding down those berths.

So the forward wall is set right now. All the weight is spread from the center to both sides, leaving the ends just a little on the light side. But what they lack in beef, Farley avers, the ends make up for in determined brawn.

The backfield is working out nicely, considering the fact that only one old face is present and accounting well for himself. He is Walter Goor, 160-pound halfback who ran from that spot last year. At the other half is Kent Lee, who didn't start last year, but who has developed enough this year to earn a berth on the split-T quartet behind the line.

At quarter, and masterminding the offense, will be Sid Briley, basketball center who is playing his first year as a starter. Chittin, who has been working the backs, stated yesterday Briley could very possibly become the best passer in the Conference if he continues to throw the

Games Delayed

Farmville, Sept. 6.—The Bright Belt League's semifinal playoffs will continue for another day and possibly two since neither the Farmville-Ormondsville or Macleesfield-Pinebluffs contests were held Monday and last night.

Uncommonly cold baseball weather and wet grounds called off the latter game which had to be played before Farmville and Ormondsville could finish out their series. Thus the locals didn't play last night and will probably have to postpone it 'til tomorrow or Friday night.

League ruling calls for the first place finisher to play the first game, alternating thereafter with the second place team and its game.

Farmville Manager Bonnie Allen reported this morning he had requested the Macleesfield manager to put off the fifth and final games in the two series until tomorrow night. As yet he hasn't heard from Macleesfield. However, Allen expects both deciding games to be played this week.

Larsen Wins Net Title In Upset

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—They say you're wasting your time trying to beat another guy at his specialty, but that's just what Art Larsen, the new national amateur tennis champion, did.

The skinny San Franciscan, who won the title yesterday by defeating Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-3, 4-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3 in the final, outlasted and outfought the UCLA senior to become the first left-handed ruler since Johnny Doeg in 1930.

There wasn't supposed to be a man in tennis who could beat Flam into the dirt. But Larsen did—and to make it more emphatic, he came from behind to turn the trick. When Herbie played at baseline, so did Larsen. If Herbie made a sensational return, Larsen made sure his was stupendous. That's how it went.

"I was going to give myself just about three more years to win the championship," said Larsen, a machine gunner with the 17th Cavalry Squadron during the war. "I figured if a fellow can't win it after playing in the big time for five years, he should quit."

Stars For Navy

Annapolis, Md.—(AP)—Eddie Erdelatz, making his debut as Navy's new football coach, has a number of outstanding lettermen returning. They include captain and end Tom Bakka, quarterback Bob Zastrow, tackle Paul Tetreault, halfback Frankie Hauff and fullback Dave Bannerman.

At the fullback there is a tossup between Billy Woolen and Leon Moore. Both weigh 150 pounds and will alternate from the running position. Farley hasn't decided which will start.

Clever Catcher

Jim Hegan is one catcher who takes charge of the pitchers when he is working behind the plate. He gives them confidence as he directs them. But things were not always that way with the big Cleveland catcher. Back in 1947, when Manager Lou Boudreau decided that he could do a better job of calling pitches than Big Jim a real feud was stirred up between the pair.

Hegan sizzled under the implication that Boudreau had little confidence in his judgment of opposing batters.

It was common knowledge that Hegan was on the auction block during the winter months following. And when Jim failed to sign the 1948 contract offered him by the Indians, it seemed apparent that he was due to move along. In the end, Hegan signed and, when he reported for work, had a heart-to-heart talk with Boudreau. The result of the conference was that Boudreau delegated to Hegan the authority to call all pitches and have sole control of the pitchers on the mound. That put it squarely up to Hegan and he lost little time demonstrating that he was equal to the occasion.

Except for the three years Hegan put in the service, he has been a member of the Tribe since 1941. It was Steve O'Neill who originally signed him for the Indians. He became the Indians' regular catcher in 1947 and has been as solid as a rock ever since. He's big, standing 6 foot 2 and weighing 195 pounds and presents a fine target for his pitchers. His durability is a great asset. In 1948, for example, he worked in 152 games while the Indians were fashioning a pennant on their way to the World Championship.

Men's bowling league began play last night at the Bowling Center after a three-month layoff from the alleys and the four teams served notice they will be as hot this fall as they were last winter and spring.

With two new teams entering league play, the old Industrial League has come up with a new name and half as many competing teams. Named the Classic League, Carolina Dairy and Bilbro Wholesale are the only holdovers from last season.

Additions are the teams representing Wagner-Waldrop and Hodges Hardware. Both teams are composed of members of the former Post Office and Independents team, plus other scattered keepers who bowled for other teams in the Industrial.

Last night Hodges and Bilbro took the lead in the league standings by taking two games out of three. Hodges beat Wagner-Waldrop and Bilbro took two from Carolina Dairy. Scores weren't quite as high for some of the higher bowlers as when they finished the spring league play but they will go higher as play gets into full swing.

High three-game scores last night went to Spooky Morgan of Wagner-Waldrop and S. Reid of the Dairy. Both lined 482. Following were Gene Ward, Wagner-Waldrop, 477; Dave Mosser, Hodges, 473 and Bruce Bilbro, 444.

The Classic League will continue to bowl each Tuesday night for 33 weeks. That will carry the four teams through the Christmas holidays when inter-league bowling is planned.

Sanford, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Edwin L. Gavin, prominent Sanford attorney, will open his campaign for U. S. senator for North Carolina with a rally at the courthouse here Friday evening, it was announced today.

Gavin, Republican candidate for the Senate seat held by Frank P. Graham, was nominated by the Republican state convention to oppose Democratic nominee Willis Smith in the November election.

Sanford, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox' Billy Goodman is threatening to make a runaway with the American League batting title. He now has mustered a 21 point lead over the pack with a .368 mark.

Goodman added only two points last week with 13 hits in 33 trips, but his rivals were slipping badly in the meantime. Detroit's George Kell took the second spot with .347 as Larry Doby of Cleveland skidded from runner-up to third place with .341.

Doby banged only three hits in 24 AB's to sag 13 points. Kell was fourth a week ago with .348.

New York's Hank Bauer dropped from third to fourth with a .340 point skid to .336. Other leaders through Labor Day were Al Zarilla, Boston, .334, Dom D'Amico, Boston, .330; Phil Rizzuto, New York, and Walt Dropp, Boston, .328 apiece. Paul Lehner, Philadelphia, .326; and Johnny Groth, Detroit, .323.

Kell and Boston's DiMaggio were double leaders in the specialized brackets. Kell was ahead in hits with 185 and in two-baggers with 42. DiMaggio was tops in runs with 118 and stolen bases with a modest 13. He also shared the triples lead with teammate Zarilla at 10 apiece.

Runaway Race In Batting Records

Chicago, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox' Billy Goodman is threatening to make a runaway with the American League batting title. He now has mustered a 21 point lead over the pack with a .368 mark.

Goodman added only two points last week with 13 hits in 33 trips, but his rivals were slipping badly in the meantime. Detroit's George Kell took the second spot with .347 as Larry Doby of Cleveland skidded from runner-up to third place with .341.

Doby banged only three hits in 24 AB's to sag 13 points. Kell was fourth a week ago with .348.

New York's Hank Bauer dropped from third to fourth with a .340 point skid to .336. Other leaders through Labor Day were Al Zarilla, Boston, .334, Dom D'Amico, Boston, .330; Phil Rizzuto, New York, and Walt Dropp, Boston, .328 apiece. Paul Lehner, Philadelphia, .326; and Johnny Groth, Detroit, .323.

Kell and Boston's DiMaggio were double leaders in the specialized brackets. Kell was ahead in hits with 185 and in two-baggers with 42. DiMaggio was tops in runs with 118 and stolen bases with a modest 13. He also shared the triples lead with teammate Zarilla at 10 apiece.

Dole And Returning Lettermen Talk Strategy

Cooling Weather Puts Fresh Tempo To Pirate Grid Drills

By BILL LLOYD

Cooling September weather was welcomed into the East Carolina football camp yesterday as the Pirates went into their fourth day of grid drills.

The morning session saw the squad spend considerable time on pass protection and defensive work for the linemen. Kicking and plays at the post rounded out the early drill.

Chilling winds gave the Pirate charges vigor and high spirits in the matinee work as Coach Bill Dole worked his squad on blocking punt returns, winding up with a spirited hour-long scrimmage.

Coach Dole, greeting some 45 grid hopefuls, including 25 lettermen from last year's team, tried several combinations in the scrimmage session, both on offense and defense.

One offensive unit included Dwight Shoe and Ed Tanner, ends; Bill McDonald and Dennis Smith, tackles; Leon Ellis, Reggie Byrd, guards, with Don McKenzie alternating. Buck Wilson was at center.

In the backfield, alternating groups were used headed by All-Conference Roger Thrift at quarterback, Jack Benzie, Bill Darby, Jack Britt, Mike Kovach, John Daugherty, and Billy Smith, at halfbacks, and Tom Swain and Johnny Smith at fullback.

Yesterday's defensive team included Frank Maennie and George Graybill, ends; Buck Hardy, Al Auerbach and Wally Robinson, tackles; Keith Melton and Bobby Hodges, guards, with Mickey Beraman, alternating. Frank Madigan and Pete Prominski did the pivot chores.

Jack Melvin, Howard McAdams, Jim Stanley, and Sandy Siler were the defensive backs.

Jesse Aldridge and Bob Bradley missed yesterday's action because of various injuries. Aldridge was out because of a throat irritation and Bradley was bothered with a leg injury.

Clear Sailing For Stan Musial

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—It looks like smooth sailing for Stan Musial in the National League batting derby. With Johnny Hopp now in the American League, the St. Louis slugger seems assured of his fourth title.

Prior to his transfer from Pittsburgh to the New York Yankees, Hopp was Musial's closest pursuer. Including games of Monday, Sept. 4, Musial was hitting .359, Hopp .340.

White, Negro Educators Discuss Plan For South

Daytona Beach, Fla., Sept. 5—(AP)—Toplight White and Negro educators worked together in private sessions today on plans to develop great regional institutions of higher learning in the south.

Ringling in their ears was a dismal but goading statement of Dr. John B. Ivey, director of the board of control for Southern education.

He told the conference that the south has one-third the nation's population and the largest proportion of young people but produces only 5 per cent of the graduate students—specialists who provide the highest type of educational leadership.

Gov. Fuller Warren, addressing the opening session yesterday, said the south needs institutions with programs "to turn out competent men and women who can become contributors to, not free-riders on, our way of life."

"This is a job of education to be accomplished only through the closest cooperation between political and educational leadership," he said.

Millard Caldwell, former Florida Governor and now chairman of the board of control, says the present job of 200 educators from 14 states and 37 institutions is "creation of graduate training and research centers in the south second to none."

Dr. J. Hillis Miller, president of the University of Florida, called Warren's address "sound as a dollar. My observation of this movement over a period of three years, during which time I've met with the Governors of Southern states a number of times, leads me to believe Governor Warren may be considered the spokesman of other chief executives of the south."

"If this is true, we've gone a long way in bridging the gap between educational judgment and planning and political action."

The purpose of the present conference, which ends Sept. 11, is to develop regional, interstate action to improve southern graduate education.

The versatility of metal furniture, combining simple modern design and good appearance with practical utility, is reflected in this inviting company day room recently completed on an army post "somewhere in the United States." Chromium-plated chairs and settees are smartly upholstered in contrasting shades of leather and surrounded by accessories for a soldier's leisure—card and writing tables, attractive photos (what—no pin-ups?), Venetian blinds and colorful draperies. Paid for by profits from post exchange operations, day rooms and recreation centers such as this have been attractively redecorated during the past few years and are in readiness for use in the present crisis.

Hit-Run Driver Tracked Down By Angry Crowd

Bluefield, W. Va., Sept. 6—(AP)—An angry crowd of 500 traced down the driver of a pickup truck after an accident in which two teen-age brothers were killed.

Deputy sheriff Herbert Humphreys said Charles Hurt, from near-by Kimball, W. Va., admitted after four hours of questioning today that he lost control of the truck when "cigarette ashes blew in my eye."

Humphreys said he would charge Hurt with manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident.

The pickup hit a motorcycle on which Curtis Davis, 17, and Earl Davis, 15 were riding to football practice at the local high school.

Credit Highway Safety Work For Lighter Toll

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 5.—(AP)—The determined efforts of State Highway patrolmen to trim highway fatalities paid off today when the Labor Day weekend ended with the state's death toll far below advance predictions.

The patrol reported that 13 persons were killed and 188 injured in 104 accidents from the time the holiday started Friday evening until 6 o'clock this morning.

This was well under the 24 highway deaths which the patrol had expected for the holiday period. The pre-weekend prediction was based on the fact that 21 persons died on the state's highways over the Labor Day holiday last year and motor vehicle registration is well ahead of what it was in 1949.

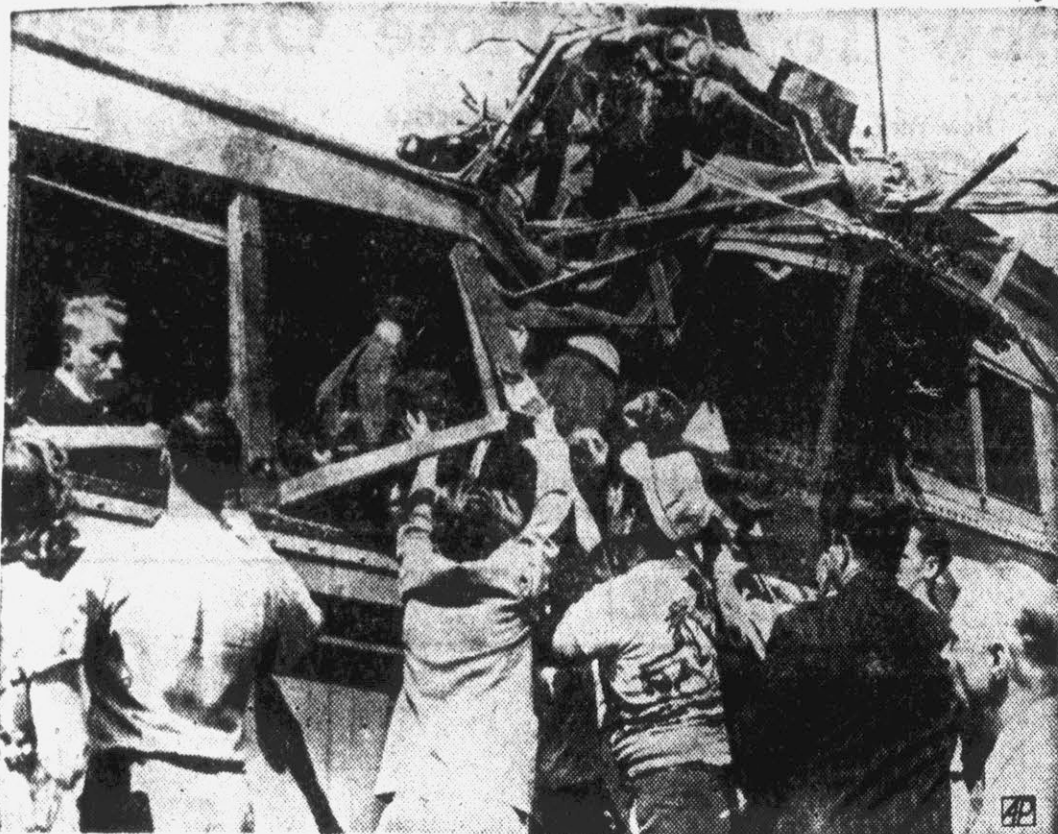

Col. James Smith, highway patrol commander, in an effort to keep the expected deaths at a low mark ordered all patrol leaves cancelled and declared that patrolmen would work 14 hours or more per day.

One Known Dead In Columbia Fire

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 5.—(AP)—A stubborn, three-alarm fire which swept through the top floor of a lower main street three-story brick building early today left at least one man dead and damage that may run as high as $100,000.

The dead man was not identified at once but he was presumed to be one of two missing roomers in the building.

Near 33 Million Students Going To U.S. Schools

Washington, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Office of Education estimated today that a record 32,903,000 students will be enrolled in the nation's schools and colleges this fall.

It said elementary schools will enroll 23,686,000 pupils, about 1,000,000 more than last year. Colleges will have an enrollment of about 2,700,000, down about 50,000.

Entering first grade will be an estimated 2,800,000 children, the agency said in a statement. That is about 200,000 under the number last year. Another drop is anticipated next year, followed by a jump of about 1,000,000 in 1952-53.

School Fire

Pinehurst, N.C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—An unexplained fire, preceded by an explosion, destroyed the Pinehurst school early today.

Lewis Cannon, superintendent of schools, estimated the damage at $325,000. The school recently had been remodeled and up-to-date furnishings placed in it. Many supplies for the new school year were destroyed.

School work will be resumed next Monday with some classes being held in the community church.

Firemen from Southern Pines, Pinehurst and Aberdeen fought the flames for more than two hours. High southwest winds carried sparks for as much as two blocks.

Chapter 22

It must have been an hour later that the lock clicked. A crack widened slowly along the jamb. Then a woman slipped into the room. She closed the door behind her and leaned against it as she faced the bed, breast heaving rapidly and disarranged black hair tumbling down over one eye.

"Agnes Sims!" Griggsby exclaimed softly in recognition.

The woman swiftly placed one finger on her lips to enjoin silence. In one hand she held the key to the door, in the other she carried a naked knife. About her waist was buckled Griggsby's own cartridge belt, the bone butt of his .45 jutting reassuringly out of the holster. Agnes locked the door and hurried to the bedside. As she bent over him, Griggsby noted her flushed face and the smell of liquor, but her eyes were bright and hard, and her suddenly pretty lips were drawn in a determined line.

"Sh-h-h!" she cautioned as she peeled back the blanket. "I couldn't come sooner. I've been trying to find a way to get to you ever since I found out you were here. You must hurry and get away before Naylor comes back. Why did you come here?"

"Nolly was worried about you," "So he told you, Naylor made me send Nolly that message."

"I thought as much. But I had other business here, too. I was looking for Jake Holcomb."

"About the stage robbery? He told Naylor he shot the man who recognized him."

"So Naylor is mixed up in that."

"Yes," she whispered emphatically, "flashing at the rope about his wrists. He's taken over Frijole Flats. They hid the loot in the wine cellar of the Full Bottle. He's turned the Full Bottle into a robbers' roost. God knows it was tough enough before!"

She fell silent upon making this admission. In the pause which followed they became aware of the sounds of many hoofs and the shouts of men outside. The building echoed with the tread of heavy feet. Agnes Sims stared at the editor through the gloom with startled eyes.

"Oh, my God!" she whispered.

"We're too late."

Booted feet came tramping up the stairs. "Mitch!" shouted Naylor's voice. "Where are you, you fool?"

The trapped pair swept the bare walls of the room despairingly. Griggsby thought fast. As Naylor rattled the door-knob he called out weakly.

"Mitch isn't in here, Naylor. When are you going to tire of this joke and let me go?" To the girl he whispered, "Stand in the corner. I'll try to keep their attention so you can slip out."

"Open this door!" roared Naylor. "Who's in there? Fred, go find Mitch."

Griggsby got back into the bed and pulled the blanket up to his chin. Agnes drew back into the corner nearest the door. Footsteps ran along the corridor. The whining voice of Mitch saying, "Agnes got me to take a couple drinks. I didn't see no harm in it."

The door quivered under the impact of a heavy body.

Many Cases Disposed Of In Tuesday County Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Pitt County Recorder's Court Tuesday, the case of John Lee Roach, Negro tenant on the Jerome Hardee farm, charged with non-support of his wife, Gloria Roach, and their six small children, attracted considerable interest.

The wife and mother, a frail woman, made an excellent witness, presenting facts and incidents clearly and with convincing emphasis, observers in the courtroom commented.

Solicitor Charles Whedbee told the court: "That woman is not educated. She is not a lawyer, but she has just stated some of the clearest points of law I know anything about."

The woman had testified that for nine years her husband gave her trouble; that he did not always provide the necessities of life for her and her children; that he had assaulted her and handled her roughly on numerous occasions. The wife and mother of six children and a baby on the way, weeping, said in response to the judge's question: "I don't want to live with him any more if I have not to put up with the bad treatment and neglect I've had all this time, especially when he's been drinking."

It was testified that John Lee Roach and his wife had practically no furniture—just some odds and ends. Further testimony was that the children—some of them of school age—did not have proper clothing.

Judge Dink James and Solicitor Charles Whedbee consulted about the case and talked it over with a County Welfare worker. The judge continued the case until September 19, pending investigation of the Welfare worker.

E. C. Worthington is attorney for the defendant. The following cases were disposed of during yesterday afternoon's session:

Assault with deadly weapon: Cleveland Sherman, colored, six months, suspended on payment of $25. Richard Roach, Jr., colored, six months, suspended on payment of $25. Dolores Gray, colored, four months, suspended on condition that she pay a doctor's bill of $16 and $15 to Oveda Clark $15 for time lost and $1 for a sweater and $40 fine.

Abandonment and non-support: George Taft, colored, ordered to pay $10 a week for his two children. Non-support: Perry Little, colored, case not proseed.

Driving drunk and without driver's license: Roy Williams, colored, six months, suspended on payment of $100 and lose driver's license for 12 months and pay $25 damage to a light pole.

Driving motor vehicle after license was suspended: Leroy Daniels, colored, 60 days, suspended on condition that he pay $25 and lose his driver's license another 90 days.

Alexander Brooks, colored, six months, suspended on payment of $50 and costs and he is not to enter the premises of a Mr. Castelle and remain of good behavior.

In the case of abandonment and non-support against Bernice Lee Ward, colored, Judge James ordered the defendant to catch up on his payments.

Cases disposed of at yesterday's forenoon session:

William W. Moore, colored, was not guilty of transporting non-tax paid whiskey.

Charles Lee Taft, colored, was not guilty of possession of non-tax paid whiskey for a part of sale.

Judge James fined Allen T. Van-nice $25 for speeding 70 miles an hour.

The case of Lynn Nichols, charged with public drunkenness, was continued. Another case against Nichols charging assault also was continued.

Theodore Cannon, colored, was not guilty of assault with a deadly weapon.

Non-support: Earl Gay, colored, ordered to pay $120 by November 1 and pay $6 a week thereafter.

Sylvester Vuk, colored, drunk and disorderly 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $50 and costs and he was ordered not to go to Elk's Filling Station for two years. Vick gave notice of appeal. Bond was fixed at $300.

Roosevelt Carney, abandonment and non-support, ordered to pay $25 now and $3 a week for support of his child.

L. T. Dickerson, abandonment and non-support, ordered to pay $100 by October 1, and make regular payments.

In the case charging Thomas Hardy, Jr. and Annie Mae Smith, both colored, with fornication and adultery, Judge James sentenced both to three months in jail, suspended on payment of $25 and they were ordered not to live together until they are married.

Duzza home, bludgeoned or strangled Duzza, his wife, an expectant mother, and their three small children, then torched the house in an effort to cover up the crime. (AP Wirephoto).

Pitt GI Was Volunteer For Dangerous Mission

Another Pitt County man has made a creditable record for himself in the United States armed forces in South Korea battling the North Korean Communist forces in that Pacific area. Associated Press dispatches stated.

Bernice L. Worthington, 22, son of Mrs. Mary F. Worthington and the late Herman Worthington of Grifton, now doing his second hitch in the U. S. Army, on duty in Korea, was one of a party of seven Americans shot by a Red Korean Tommy-gun crew.

The Americans were captured while asleep. The Red Korean woman had the prisoners' hands tied behind them and then blazed away with her Tommy-gun. She killed five and left the other two, believing them to be dead, the Associated Press dispatch stated.

Members of a volunteer patrol from the hospital who went up the mountain to rescue the two survivors included Capt. Mihm, Sgt. Charles W. Hales of Wilson, N. C. and Cpl. Bernice Worthington of Greenville and Grifton.

The Pitt County soldier reenlisted in the army about two years ago. He attended the Winterville school. He has a brother, Russell Worthington, and four young sisters.

Soldier Is Home; Served In Japan

A Greenville soldier, Cpl. Joe Etheridge, who has been stationed in Japan for the past five months, arrived home this week after being granted an inactive discharge from the armed services.

He served in the Fifth Air Force in Japan with a communications unit located out from Tokyo.

Etheridge, 21, entered the army in October, 1948, and during the following 23 months spent time in six military camps in the States. He took special radio and communication training prior to going overseas.

The former GI described Japan as being a "wonderful place, although fairly dirty. I think that it is growing and the people are adopting more of the American ways as time goes by."

"Food and other merchandise is fairly scarce in the country, but the inflated yen is being brought down to increase the purchasing power of the average person in Japan."

Prior to entering the armed forces, Etheridge worked with the Daily Reflector for a year.

He is the son of Mrs. T. A. Etheridge of 505 E. 12th Street, Greenville.

Forty-Fourth Veto By Russia Expected Today

Lake Success, Sept. 6. —(AP)—Russia is expected to cast her 44th veto today to prevent security council adoption of an American resolution urging all countries not to help the North Korean aggressors.

Russia's Jakob A. Malik has insisted since he returned to the council Aug. 1 that the U. S. resolution is merely designed to "hide and justify American aggression in Korea."

He returned to that theme at yesterday's stormy session declaring that U. S. intervention is "the real threat to international peace and security." The North Koreans, he insisted, are "fighting a just war against the Foreign invaders."

Hold Hearing On Phone Rate Hike

Raleigh, N.C., Sept. 6. —(AP)—The State Utilities Commission held a public hearing today on a $1,100,000 phone rate increase request of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The company serves 93 communities in eastern North Carolina.

Last June the company filed the rate increase request. It asserted increased costs, to finance improvements, and to provide a higher rate of return on its capital investments.

'No Disaster' In Korean Setbacks

Washington, Sept. 6. —(AP)—The defense department described the situation in the northeast sector of the Korean battle front today as "serious but not disastrous."

Briefing officers at the Pentagon said there had been no general breakthrough by the Korean Reds.

An army spokesman said the Reds had achieved important advances in the critical area between Pohang and Taegu, but that nowhere had the enemy been able to push to any place where he did not come up against allied opposition.

Warrants Drawn For Tax Evasion

Raleigh, Sept. 6. —(AP)—Warrants have been drawn against 31 eastern North Carolina residents charging them with failing to pay state income taxes. City Court Solicitor Alfonso Lloyd said today.

Solicitor Lloyd said the unpaid taxes date as far back as 1946 in some cases.

Lloyd said the warrants were drawn on information provided by C. K. Cooke of the state income tax division.

Gulf Hurricane Dying Slowly In Tampa Area

Miami, Fla., Sept. 6. —(AP)—The tricky Gulf Hurricane which caused two deaths and left more than 400 homeless whirled in dying fury near the Tampa Bay area today.

The Miami weather bureau said it was centered a short distance North of Tampa and was losing intensity.

The 7 a. m. advisory reported it was doubtful if there were any more Hurricane winds in the storm which earlier lashed the middle Florida Gulf coast with 125 mile per hour gusts.

At the same time the weather bureau warned of squalls over northern and central Florida and said there would be dangerous gales in the west central part of the state.

Acheson Favors Use Of Germany

Washington, Sept. 6. —(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today it is highly desirable to find an appropriate way for Germany to aid the defense of Western Europe.

He also told a news conference the meeting of the western foreign ministers at New York next week will cover almost every major world problem.

meet each year's demand for milk in the fall months. He stated that the cow's production record should be judged after the fifth week, running through the tenth week rather than at the initial stages of the lactation period.

Guithrie's talk brought home to the gathered dairymen a fact that many of them are capitalizing on: that the South should lead all other areas in production of milk because of the 10-12 month grazing period of which southern pastures are capable.

He stated that with an improved pasture program on the necessary southern acreages, a farmer can produce 5,000 pounds of fluid milk on each acre per year.

Reason for that is the land is cheaper than anywhere else in the nation, he said, pastures can be maintained longer than anywhere else, and the end product—milk—brings more money on the market than any other milk-producing area of the country.

Dairy specialist Rich discussed silage, stating the cheapest food to feed a herd was improved pastures. Second cheapest food, he stated, is ensiled corn or a mixture of grass and molasses, and third is hay.

As concerns Pitt County, Winchester stated it has made vast strides in the improvement of pasture lands, but needs to go even farther. At present there are 3,500 acres of improved and permanent pastures all of which are a part of the 8,000 acres of fenced land in the county.

However, he said, Pitt needs 14,500 acres of pasture to meet its growing cattle and livestock demands.

In order to increase the acreage, the farm agent pointed out four fundamentals: (1) selection of land, (2) breaking the ground, (3) liming and fertilizing, and (4) correct inoculation of seed before planting. This should be done between the middle of September and the 10th of October, he said.

Horse and Cart . . .

The cart was owned by R. I. Hill of Greenville, and driven by Roosevelt Jones, 16-year-old negro boy. A small girl, whose name was not known also was on the cart when it was hit.

The wrecked car was found a considerable distance from the scene of the wrecked cart and the dead horse. There was no evidence of tire skids around the area of the accident. The car was heavily damaged.

The accident last night brought the county's average up to one accident per day for the last month. In that time several persons have been seriously injured and one person killed. Ten accidents occurred over the past labor day week end.

'Preventive War' . . .

now and have been for a long time. The aim of communism is to take over the world, including us.

We didn't start the present war with Russia. Russia started it and is waging war on us daily, attacking us daily, although not with guns yet.

The trouble with the thinking of those who shudder at the phrase, "preventive war," is this:

They're still thinking in the old, hackneyed, out-of-date idea of war. They think that war is something waged, as it was in the old days, only with men and guns.

But, these supporters of the preventive war idea can argue, this is the real situation:

Golden Opportunity

Must sacrifice colored cafe doing good year around business. Business double in fall. Well equipped. Oldest established colored cafe in Greenville. Will sell for cash or terms. Owner has three and not able to operate all due to health. Apply Carolina Grill.

This war is being fought by Russia with men in civilian clothes. They are in every country, an organized, disciplined group of Communists in every country, working for Russia, waiting a chance to take over, ceaselessly trying to bring about collapse for others and victory for themselves.

Where they're outnumbered, the Communists act like guerrillas behind the lines. They infiltrate parliaments or strategic labor unions. They do what they can to disrupt and dismay, all aimed at final victory.

And this will never stop, so long as the Russian leadership is Communist.

Therefore—if that reasoning sound—the supporters of the preventive war idea can take the next step in their argument:

It is only sensible to recognize the reality we face. War is actually being made on us in a new kind of way: infiltration, subversion, propaganda, pressure, force if necessary, everywhere every day.

So, in recognizing that we are under attack, any attack we made in turn on Russia would not be the act of an aggressor but only the act of a people trying to defend themselves and the rest of the world.
