Begin Organize Defense Program

Organizational Plans For City And County Civil Defense Program Laid Down; State Plan Adopted; Operating Staff Named At Meeting

Organizational plans for the city and county Civil Defense program were laid down last night during the first such meeting since World War II.

Civil Defense chairman J. H. Rose met with Mayor W. S. Stafford, several members of the board of aldermen, two other mayors of Pitt towns and representatives of the professions and other groups in Greenville.

As stated by Rose, the meeting was called to "consider the needs of the county and the measures to be taken to provide the protection and services of all types needed in case of war."

The chairman stated at the outset he was not going to "play at war" during the current emergency as did many towns and cities during the recent war.

"The organization of Civil Defense at this time is to prove to our enemies that we are willing to fight," Rose said. "We will have many duties if total war comes" but "we should not play with war like we did before when there is really no danger."

The program, as outlined last night, will bring together several little groups to work as a coordinated unit, each with its assigned task if an emergency should arise. The duty of each will be assigned as more work is done on the program.

Mayor Stafford pledged the city administration to the program of defense as did Mayor pro tem Walter Dail of Ayden and Mayor pro tem of Winterville Station Ross.

The persons present moved to accept the state plan for defense of towns and cities. As set up by director E. Z. Jones, the staffs of all cities will be composed of four directors and an operating staff of five.

Police Chief Guy Langston was elected treasurer of the town's defense and Mrs. Chester Walsh was elected secretary.

The four directors will compose the Special Staff under the chairman. They will individually be in charge of mutual aid, evacuation, transportation and communications. D. H. Conley was appointed director of transportation and Hartwell Campbell will direct communications.

The operating staff will be broken down as follows:

1. Health, Welfare and Special Weapons—Dr. Fred Brooks, chairman.
2. Law Enforcement, Fire Service, Plant Protection and Warden Service—Ruel W. Tyson, chairman; Guy Langston, George Gardner, committee men.
3. Shelter Protection, Engineering Services (Utilities), Rescue Services—Martin Swartz, chairman.
4. Air Raid Warning, Liaison with Military—C. A. White, chairman.
5. Administration, Training Services, Personnel Services—Dr. J. K. Long, chairman.

It was decided not to establish an aircraft warning center at the present time. That will be worked out later when the need arises.

Rose played down the work of Civil Defense in saying there is "nothing spectacular" about anything that will have to be done.

"I don't want to be too slow, but I don't want to be silly about this thing," he stated.

Forty-six persons attended the meeting, representing all phases of county clubs and organizations.

Greenville aldermen present were Yank Howell, Heber Tripp, Robert went into action, to be followed by others.

Had any Nation intervened in Korea without the sponsorship of the U. N., it very likely would have precipitated a major war. As it is, the success of the U. N. volunteer forces under General MacArthur has been so sweeping that their victory in South Korea seems assured.

Moreover, while potentialities still are dangerous, well informed American officials express the belief that Moscow is getting set to dismiss the Korean affair with a shrug of the shoulders as a minor matter.

To this appraisal one might add that Russia isn't turning away empty handed, because a further economic load has been headed on Uncle Sam's shoulders. That is an integral part of Soviet strategy in its cold war against the west.

UN Diplomats Slow To Speak On Malik Offer

No Quick Verdict; Prefer Action By Russia Instead Of Words

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—United Nations diplomats shied away today from a quick verdict on new Russian peace and atomic control statements branded as propaganda by the U. S. State Department.

Interested but cautious, and careful not to appear to reject any really sincere Russian olive branch, they pleaded for more time to study a declaration by Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik to a group of Maryland petitioners yesterday.

The declarations were made public by a Soviet delegation spokesman at about the time that delegates were going into an afternoon U. N. assembly session where speakers harped on one theme—Soviet words are not enough, Russia must prove its intentions by acts.

Although U. S. delegation members declined comment here, the State Department in Washington early last night said its indictment of Malik's proposals was framed after consultation with the delegation members.

Malik's spokesman announced that the Maryland delegation, which had distributed a peace ballot in that state similar to the Soviet-supported "Stockholm peace petition," but not connected with it, presented four questions to the Soviet diplomat and that he answered "yes" to all of them.

The questions, headed by John Wertheimer, a 25-year-old Baltimore student, asked Malik if he would pledge Russia would not use the atom bomb first; whether Russia favors general disarmament and outlawing of atomic weapons under a U. N. control system; whether Russia agreed to a peace negotiation meeting between top leaders of the Soviet Union and the U. S.; and whether Russia favored free exchange of ideas and information between the two countries.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White told Washington reporters that a U. N. atomic control plan is not in operation today because the Soviet rejected it, that the U. N. is the proper forum to negotiate on world problems, and that if Russia quit jamming the Voice of America radio there would be an immediate exchange of information.

Malik's statement, said White, "smacks of the Stockholm peace petition." He added:

"We have had enough of words. What is needed now is action to give practical effect to these expressions of good intention."

Open Hospitals For Servicemen

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.) said today the Armed Services will reopen three hospitals to care for wounded returning from the Korean front.

Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services committee, said they are the Army General Hospital at Valley Forge, Pa., the Murphy General Hospital at Waltham, Mass., and the Percy Jones General Hospital at Battle Creek, Mich.

The Selective Service director expressed this view in a copyrighted interview (U. S. News and World Report), in which he also:

1. Said the manpower pool of 1,400,000 classified as I-A ought to give us 500,000 before June 1.
2. Predicted that draft boards will be calling on 19-year-olds before the end of this year.
3. Forecast that the program to re-arm America "will last a generation."

Torrential Rain Kills 100 People

Casablanca, French Morocco, Sept. 26—(AP)—A sudden torrential down-pour in the mountains region of Sekrou last night brought death to about 100 persons, it was estimated today.

Authorities estimated damage at about $2,000,000.

First Frost

The first frost of the autumn occurred in the Greenville area last night, Mrs. Carl E. Malden, observer of the Department of Commerce Weather Bureau here, reported today.

The first frost last year occurred on October 1, when the temperature was down to 43 degrees.

Highest temperature here yesterday was 57; lowest last night, 41 degrees; and at 8 a. m. today the mercury stood at 47 degrees.

Korean Future

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—The United States is speeding up diplomatic action on Korea, to match new battlefield successes of advancing United Nations military forces.

Informed sources said last night that the U. S. delegation at the U. N. would begin informal talks at once with other delegations about the immediate future of Korea.

Top priority will be given to discussion of how far the U. N. armies will go—whether they will stop at the 38th parallel which once divided the U. N.-sponsored South Korean republic and the Russian-backed North Korean territory.

This question, President Truman has said, must be decided by the United Nations. Either the 11-nation Security Council or the General Assembly could make the decision. The United States may seek to put the matter before the Assembly, where the Russians do not have the veto they have used previously to block Council action.

Scott Sees Need Of Higher Taxes

Raleigh, Sept. 26—(AP)—Increased taxes will be needed to take care of the state's budget for the next biennium, Governor Scott told newsmen today.

The governor, who has been attending meetings of the Advisory Budget Commission hearing heads of state institutions request funds to operate during the coming biennium, said there was a "feeling that just a little more (revenue) has got to come from somewhere."

Scott pointed out in answer to questions that the needed revenue could be obtained by eliminating present exemptions to the sales tax.

Scott asserted that some of the sales tax exemptions "are special privilege exemptions."

Scott also said that the state could increase its revenue by removing the present $15 maximum sales tax payment on a single item.

"I never did think it was right," the governor said in discussing the sales tax maximum.

Scott made it clear that he did not favor placing an ad valorem on land and that he would prefer to see income tax exemptions lowered rather than remove sales tax exemptions on food.

Credit Training For Survival Of Crash Victims

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 26—(AP)—American officials today credited excellent survival training with a major role in the escape of 16 U. S. military men from the Labrador Wilderness after their B-50 bomber caught fire and crashed.

Brought to Goose Bay for medical treatment yesterday, the men had spent three days in the chilly wasteland before a Royal Canadian air force search plane spotted their smoke signals.

Supplies were dropped and a medical officer parachuted to the scene. Later a helicopter and Canadian amphibious plane teamed up to recover them and fly them to Goose Bay.

Hershey Thinks Can Reach Goal Without Strain

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey says he believes President Truman's goal of 3,000,000 men in the armed services can be reached without drafting men over 25 years old.

The Selective Service director expressed this view in a copyrighted interview (U. S. News and World Report), in which he also:

1. Said the manpower pool of 1,400,000 classified as I-A ought to give us 500,000 before June 1.
2. Predicted that draft boards will be calling on 19-year-olds before the end of this year.
3. Forecast that the program to re-arm America "will last a generation."

Pitt Draft Board Lists Twenty-One Delinquents

The Pitt County Selective Service Board yesterday declared 21 registrants delinquent because they did not report for pre-induction examinations last Wednesday.

Most of that number are residing in the county at the present time. Others had previously registered with the local board but moved away from the county and did not answer the notification for pre-induction.

All 21 will be notified to report to induction centers on October 27. Board Clerk Selma Evans stated if they do not report then their names will be turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for further action.

Appearance in court usually follows that.

The board also listed the names of six delinquents who did not report to induction centers September 20.

Navy Transport Plane Down; 22 Are Missing

Tokyo, Sept. 26—(AP)—A Korean-bound C-54 transport plane plunged into the sea with 51 persons today. Twenty-eight were rescued, 22 are missing and one body was recovered.

The big plane crashed on take-off from a southern Japan airbase about a half mile from the end of the runway. General MacArthur's headquarters said it carried 43 passengers and a crew of eight.

The circumstances were similar to the crash of an R-3-D—the navy designation for the C-54—on a takeoff from Kwajalein Island, a week ago. Twenty-six navy personnel, also bound for Korea, perished—one of the navy's worst air disasters in the Pacific.

Justice Jackson Rules Top Reds To Keep Freedom

Says Jailing Them Would Violate American Rights, Become Martyrs

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court has ruled that 10 U. S. Communist party leaders must remain free for the present because jailing them would violate American rights and might permit them to claim martyrdom.

He reasoned they could claim they were martyrs if they were jailed now and the Supreme Court later upset their conviction for conspiracy to overthrow the government.

Jackson late yesterday signed an order which continued their freedom on bail. It will remain in effect until the high court disposes finally of an appeal which the 10 men are expected to file shortly.

Jackson said in effect that the harm they could do free is less than the damage to American freedoms that would result from jailing them now.

The government, contending that the men "should not be let large in this hour of national crisis," had urged Jackson to deny their application for continued bail.

"There is a very practical aspect of this application which must not be overlooked or underestimated," Jackson declared in turning the government down.

"That is the disastrous effect on the reputation of American justice if I should now send these men to jail and the full court later decide that the conviction is invalid. x x x

"The worst they can accomplish in the short time it will take to end this litigation is preferable to the possibility of national embarrassment from a celebrated case of unjustified imprisonment of Communist leaders."

"Under no circumstances must we permit their symbolization of an evil force in the world to be hallowed and glorified by any semblance of martyrdom."

The justice said he was "not naive enough to underestimate the trouble-making propensities of these defendants," but he indicated he expects the Department of Justice to keep a close watch on them.

Eleven Communist leaders were convicted in New York last October of conspiring to advocate violent overthrow of this government. But only 10 applied for continued bail. The 11th, Party Secretary Eugene Dennis, is already in jail. He is serving a year for contempt of Congress.

French Outpost Is Abandoned In Face Of Attack

Saigon, Indochina, Sept. 26—(AP)—The French army today announced the abandonment of a second outpost on the China-Indochina frontier—Pakha, commanding an entrance to the Red River delta.

An official announcement said forces had been withdrawn from Pakha, which had been under attack by communist-led Vietminh guerrillas, because "our interest in this position is not worth the sacrifice of human lives."

The Vietminh attacked the post after overrunning a small Foreign Legion garrison to the east at Dongkhe. The French said later they would not try to hold Dongkhe, which had been burned and abandoned by the guerrillas.

Pitt Draft Board Lists Twenty-One Delinquents

The clerk stated if the board is unable to contact them before the end of the month they will be turned over to the FBI for action.

The six were part of a contingent ordered to report straight to induction because at that time no pre-induction centers had been set up.

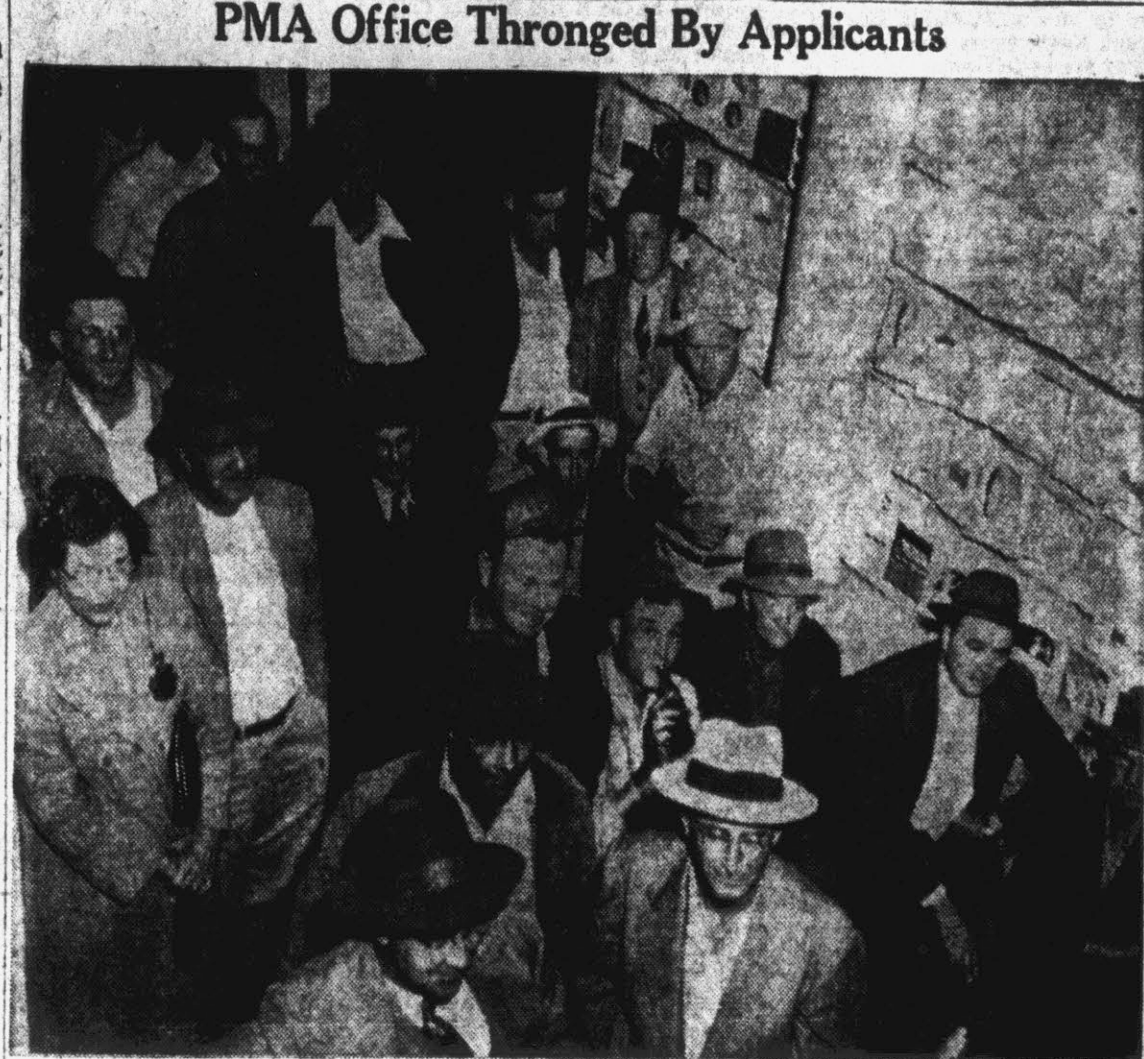

Meanwhile, the 54 Pitt men who passed the examinations in Raleigh numbered 37 white and 14 Negroes. Completing the 54 originally ordered to report to Raleigh from this board were three transfers to other boards in the state.

Following are the names of the men who did not report last Wednesday for pre-induction exams:

Union Talks Pay Hike With Alcoa

May Accept Ten Per Cent Increase As 'Down Payment'

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26—(AP)—The powerful CIO United Steelworkers talked wages with the steel's biggest aluminum maker today as the union braced itself for an all-out fight for more money and increased benefits from the steel industry.

The Aluminum Company of America has offered its 45,000 workers a 10 per cent wage increase. The USW represents 20,000 of those employees. The union has not indicated whether it will accept the proposal.

Alcoa said the offer will not deter any of the nine unions with which it has contracts from demanding further increases at contract re-opening time—November 1.

For that reason the USW may accept the offer as a down payment on a new wage demand.

A spokesman for the AFL Aluminum Workers already has indicated this will be the policy of his union.

On another front, the huge CIO steel union started a campaign to make every worker in the basic steel industry join—or give up his job.

The USW asked the National Labor Relations Board to hold union shop elections among 80,000 workers in 17 plants of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation in four states.

Eighty Are Trapped In Underground Fire

Driver Pinned In Wrecked Truck

Apparently Went To Sleep At Wheel; Man Slightly Hurt

Creswell, England, Sept. 26—(AP)—A raging underground fire trapped and killed at least 80 men today at the Creswell coal mine.

Caught behind a wall of flame from burning rubber and timber roof supports, they were choked to death by gas and fumes.

Another 120 men crept to safety on their hands and knees.

An official death list issued this afternoon contained 80 names. Earlier, estimates of the toll had ranged from 83 to 90.

Smoke and intense heat drove back rescuers and hope for the trapped men was abandoned at 1 p. m. (7 a. m. EST), when the fire had been burning for nine hours.

The decision to give up rescue attempts and seal off the burning section was announced by Sir Hubert Houldsworth, chairman of the East Midlands Division of the National Coal Board.

He said a check showed that 80 men were missing.

More than half of the approximately 200 men working in the mine when the fire flared escaped, crawling through dense smoke and rubber fumes to reach the main shaft.

This afternoon Sir Hubert and the miners' union, in a joint statement, said despite rescue efforts "it was not possible to rescue any of the trapped men."

A long moan went up from waiting wives and children of the trapped men when the decision was announced.

It May Take Years

Even If The Government Can Force Communists To Register. There Are Many Legal Hurdles Which Consume Much Time; Weakness Of The Law; No Sure Success

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—Here is a step-by-step explanation of why—under the new anti-communist law—it may take the government years to make communists register, if it ever can do so.

In the first place, this law is aimed at two groups: communist "action" organizations and communist "front" organizations. And the law itself explains what it means by both:

1. A communist action organization is one which is directed and controlled by Moscow, as part of a world-wide communist conspiracy, and secretly plans to overthrow this government by force.
2. A communist front is run by a communist action organization, although perhaps concealing its true purpose, and may even have members who are not communists but may be innocent of its nature.

But who's going to decide whether some organization is a communist action group or a communist front? The law says that a five-man board of control, a five-man board to be appointed by the President.

This board won't go out looking for communists. It will decide

Seoul Said A Flaming, Smoke-Fogged City Of Horror; Great Destruction; Columns From Southeast Beachhead Speed Northward To Trap Reds

By the Associated Press
General MacArthur announced the liberation of burning Seoul today while tank-led allied columns raced from the southeast beachhead in Korea to trap great numbers of fleeing Communists.

The U. S. 25th Division carved 30 miles into Red-held territory Northwest of recaptured Chinha in a drive towards Kusan aimed at pocketing Red forces in Korea's southwest corner.

BULLETIN
Seoul, Sept. 26—(AP)—An Army spokesman tonight said U. S. troops south of Seoul had made contact with First Cavalry tanks speeding up from the old southeast beachhead.

Another flying column further north was reported about 25 miles from a line-up with American forces coming down from the Inchon-Seoul second front.

Front line dispatches said Seoul is a flaming, smoke-fogged city of horror. They told of great destruction in the 500-year old South Korean capital as a force of 5,000 Communists fought far and wide.

Allied action was described officially as a mopping up operation. The capital, with a normal population of 1,000,000 had been in Communist hands three months. Its capture was the greatest victory of U. N. Forces against the North Korean Communists, who invaded South Korea June 25.

As the city fell, its Red garrison was reported fleeing northwest toward the 38th parallel where the Communists might make their next major stand.

Associated Press correspondent Stan Swinton said the U. S. 25th Division has been ordered to mop up all southwest Korea. After jumping off from Chinha, a spearhead of motorized infantry and tanks was expected to reach Korea's west coast near Kusan within 48 hours. This would seal off Communists South of parallel 36 in the west.

The U. S. 24th Division swept through captured Yongdon and advance units were reported halfway to Taejon, rail and highway junction on the west route to Seoul. The armored column and infantry units of the 24th had dashed more than 40 winding road miles from Kumchon since that town fell to the allies yesterday.

An Eighth Army spokesman said aerial observers had spotted United Nations troops on the outskirts of Chonan. Chonan is 25 air miles south of Osan, where U. S. Seventh Division troops from the Seoul-Inchon beachhead were last reported. The troops were not identified but might be elements of the U. S. First Cavalry Division.

Seoul is a burning city of horror, AP correspondent Don Whitehead reported. "It is a bonfire of all the bitterness and hate of war concentrated into one city." He added:

"The Reds chose to defend Seoul. And the Americans are not sparing a single building in which the Reds had established defenses."

"Struck by street, Marines are nearing the heart of the city behind flame-throwing tanks, heavy artillery and air bombardment." He said Seoul was not being spared. The Marines were fighting block by block while Communists resisted from ridges and rooftops, wherever they could make a stand.

Reaction Is Too Mild

While Support Mounts For America's Proposal That The United Nations Keep Peace-Enforcing Unit On Hand, Soviet Soft Talk May Mean New Attack

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Support is mounting among the Democracies for America's proposal that every United Nations member maintain a special unit in its army subject to call by the U. N. for enforcement of peace.

This of course amounts to the creating of a United Nations army which, in its totality, would be a powerful military machine. It would provide the strength to make the peace organization fully effective.

Without this the U. N. must be impotent in the face of any crisis which could only be dealt with by force.

The Korean war is a fair illustration of the point. General Omar Bradley chairman of the joint chiefs of staff declared the other day that this campaign has become one of the most significant in all military history because it marks the birth of a new power in the world:

"Armed action by the United Nations."

Garden Luncheon Honors Mr. Grier And Miss Ormond

Mr. Tom Grier and Miss Dorothy Suggs Ormond, whose wedding will be solemnized in October, were honored at a luncheon on Saturday at 1 p. m. when Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hannah and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Dunn, Jr., entertained at their country home.

The couples who were invited guests were welcomed at the entrance to the garden by the hosts and the honorees. Miss Ormond was wearing a corsage of red rose buds and Mr. Grier had a boutonniere of a single rose bud.

The bride's table in the garden was covered with a ruffled white organdy cloth. At one end was a punch bowl made from a block of ice with flowers and fern fronds around the scooped out hollow. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn served punch as the guests assembled.

At the other end of the table was a miniature wishing well, entwined with ivy and flowers and holding rice, which was showered upon the bride couple by the guests as they made their wishes.

At a side table, baskets of garden flowers were used as decorative touches and a red and white checked cloth covered the table. There Mr. and Mrs. Hannah presided over chafing dishes from which the guests helped themselves.

A two-course barbecue luncheon was served to the couples who were close friends of the honorees.

Garden Party Given For Brides-Elect

Mrs. F. B. Haar was a charming hostess at a garden Coca-Cola party on Saturday when she entertained for Miss Frances Kittrell and Miss Dot Suggs Ormond.

More than forty-five guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. J. H. Rona. They were presented to the honorees, their mothers, Mrs. J. B. Kittrell and Mrs. H. L. Ormond and Miss Janice Ormond.

Mrs. Haar invited the guests into the garden, where informal tables and chairs were arranged for conversational grouping. From a large table by the outdoor fireplace Mrs. K. B. Pace and Mrs. F. L. Blount served assortments of sandwiches, pastries and sweet dainties. Coca-Colas were nestled in a wheelbarrow of ice, and Mrs. Charles Braswell and Mrs. Sterling Hudson opened and passed them to the guests.

Miss Kittrell and Miss Ormond were recipients of attractive remembrances from the hostess.

One Bullet Of 7 Hit His Victim

One bullet of seven shots fired from a rifle by David Daniels Jr., 19-year-old Negro, took effect in a leg of John Morris, 30-year-old Negro of New Bern, Saturday night near Washington and First Streets. The victim was not seriously wounded.

In Police Court Monday, it was testified that Morris, a tobacco factory worker, went to Daniels' home, 100 South Evans Street, and threatened him with a big knife and then left the premises.

Further testimony was that Daniels took his rifle and went to look for Morris. He met him at First and Washington Streets. "He was coming one way, and I shot at the ground to scare him," Daniels testified.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts fined Daniels $75 and ordered the rifle confiscated and disposed of according to law. The court also fined him $25 for discharging firearms in the city.

Judge Roberts gave Morris 12 months on the roads, suspended on payment of $150, for assaulting Daniels.

Daniels also was fined $15 for assaulting John Lee Walters, Negro, with a deadly weapon—a shotgun.

It May Take . . .

When the 30 days are up and they haven't registered, the Attorney General can, for instance, ask the board to declare the American communist party an action organization and to order it to register.

He'll have to offer proof, which undoubtedly will mean documents and witnesses. If the party leaders didn't appear before the board to defend themselves, the board could declare the party an action outfit and order them to register.

Once the board ordered the party to register and it ignored the order, the leaders and the members could be tried, jailed and fined.

But assume the leaders appear before the board to defend themselves and the party. This trial—or, rather, examination—might take months.

(The trial of the 11 communist leaders in New York took nine months. But there the government had to prove only conspiracy to teach overthrow of the government.)

But under this new law the government may have to prove not only such a conspiracy but prove too that the party is controlled by

Officers Of Sunday School Class

But say the board hears all the evidence, decides the communist party is an action organization, and orders it to register. Does it have to do so immediately?

No. It can appeal to the U. S. Court of Appeals, asking the court to rule that the board's order is illegal and its decision wrong.

If the Appeals Court uphold the board, the communists still can appeal to the Supreme Court. And all this legal sparring might take three years or more.

Suppose the Supreme Court upheld the board's order for the communist party to register. As explained, if they then didn't register, the communists could be arrested and tried. But—in an arms race; our military expenditures are at near-wartime levels; but despite all this, Americans are generally living well.

Suppose just before the Supreme Court gave its ruling, the party suddenly dissolved and bobbed up under a new name. Would the government have to start the whole business all over again with the new party?

Not only has our economy grown, American money provided the impetus for European recovery. Western Europe is reportedly averaging a 80 per cent increase of industrial production over 1938, the last peacetime year.

The strength of our capitalistic dollars has never been more manifest.

We can freely admit that the distribution of our wealth is not perfect . . . there are many inequalities, nevertheless it is constantly improving and provides a source of unspoken amazement by advocates of "isms" in other lands.

To us, free enterprise looks mighty good. It is surprising that the example of strength it has set is not sufficient to influence the economic policies of governments who have seen it work and who rely on its success for their survival—but doggedly persist in schemes that have failed them.

Strength for the Day
By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE HARVEST
It is always interesting to see how Christians and non-believers base such different conclusions on the same evidence. To Christians, the world has always been filled with indications of God's presence. In the wonders and beauties of nature and in the richness of human personality, Christians see the results of God's power and love. The non-believer, looking about him at the same world, sees none of these signs.

This fact should not cause alarm or doubt to the Christian. Any teacher knows that some pupils can read a book from cover to cover without having learned or understood a word of it. Unmusical people can sit through a concert with no enjoyment or comprehension of the sounds which are flowing around them. We all know people who seem to listen when others talk but actually hear nothing of what is said because their minds are elsewhere.

But these are not hopeless cases. Pupils can be taught to read intelligently. With guidance, people can learn to appreciate and enjoy music. Everyone who can hear may follow a conversation if he will pay attention. Similarly, there are millions of people who need and want to know of God's presence in the world, if we will show them. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few."

What Are The Reasons Behind Draft Rejectees?

Apparently health and education are no better in Pitt county than they are in other places in North Carolina.

Of the 136 men who last week were called for pre-induction examinations by the local draft board, only 54 passed the mental and physical exams; that is slightly over 39 per cent.

More than 60 per cent of the 136 men who answered the first call were found physically or mentally unfit for military service. We here in Pitt county boast that our educational system is as good as that of most other counties, and better than the educational system of many counties in the state. Too we have taken pride in our health program and the physical fitness of our people. Yet our percentage of draft rejectees is as high as other counties.

From all parts of the state men are being rejected by the hundreds because they are mentally or physically unfit for military service. North Carolina is gaining the same reputation for unfit men in this emergency that it gained in World War II when our rejection rate among draftees was exceedingly high.

It is a little late to do anything about the men who already have been found mentally or physically unfit for military service, but we should intensify our educational and health programs in the state to prevent a recurrence of the same conditions in the future.

From the reports of pre-induction centers, we are able to draw one of several conclusions. Either North Carolina is more illiterate than most people like to admit, or many men who are answering the draft calls are intentionally flunking the mental exams and getting by with it. Either North Carolina's physical condition is much worse than we had believed, or the examiners somewhere along the line are falling down on the job.

It would be a good idea to have some competent group determine the real reason before the business of the draft goes on much longer.

'Decadent' Capitalism Still Has A Kick

Our "decadent" capitalism still has a kick.

American manufacturing capacity is estimated at least fifty per cent greater than 1940 and actual production is more than sixty per cent above ten years ago.

In terms of advancement for the welfare of the individual, there is overwhelming evidence that despite vast commitments of foreign aid, Americans are living better than ever.

Heavy taxes and super-spending by government have been unable to stop this trend, discouraging though these economic drains may be.

True, there was no effort to liquidate the national debt in times of prosperity; there is inflation; we are unwilling participants

National Whirligig
News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The November elections and control of the next Congress will not be decided by the American people's reaction to such grave issues as the Korean struggle, the overshadowing conflict between the United States and Russia and rearmament, if recent primary and election results are any criterion. Both full-time and part-time statesmen on Capitol Hill are reeling from their reading of the returns.

Grassroots and sidewalk checkups with the constituents, hurriedly made because of the confusing voting pattern, seem to corroborate this theory. The folks in cities and rural areas, both Democrats and Republicans, are not nearly so interested in the doings of the Achesons, Maliks, Vithinkis, the heroes and villains on the world stage, as they are in their local, bread-and-butter problems.

IMMUNIZED—The Korean affair is unpopular and senseless, in their opinion, but they want to and expect to win it after our false start. They recognize the gravity of the Moscow menace, but they cannot believe that the so-called democratic and civilized nations can be conquered or destroyed through Communist assault or conspiracies.

Having survived history's most tragic depression and war, they have a deep and sometimes cynical faith that the current "crisis," like the others, will touch them only lightly and pass away. Indeed, their psychology seems so acclimated to a continuing "crisis" atmosphere that they have become immunized.

DANGER—Almost every segment of the population is working, making more money than ever before and spending it as if they expected the flow to go on forever. They grouse about the prospect of higher taxes, other people's higher wages, possible shortages, another round of rationing, but this discontent is offset by money in their pockets and the bank, and by a greater sense of social security.

Republican strategists admit, off the record, that this happy-go-lucky attitude, which amounts to political apathy, constitutes their greatest danger at the polls. They fear that even the confusion and admitted mistakes at Washington will not lead voters to turn out the "ins."

CONTESTS—Two recent contests involving controversial figures and grave issues have disconcerted the professional politicians and forced a revision of their campaign plans. On the basis of these returns, they will wage a down-to-earth and visit-the-voter battle.

In Maryland, Senator Millard E. Tydings won re-election overwhelmingly, although his opponents felt they had an excellent chance to defeat him. They based their strategy on his chairmanship of the Senate committee which investigated the McCarthy charges against alleged "Communists and fellow-travelers" in the government.

They branded his report as a "whitewash," especially his inquiry into the Amerasia case. They linked this indictment with the reminder that his father-in-law, Joseph E. Davies, had been Ambassador to Moscow, and had eulogized Stalin and the Russian system in his famous book entitled "Mission to Moscow."

CONTRASTING—As against the Tydings triumph, Governor William Preston Lane barely obtained re-nomination, and lost the popular vote to an almost unknown Baltimore lawyer. Governor Lane's offense was that he had imposed a 2 per cent sales tax to build schools and roads neglected by his predecessor. The fact that Tydings and Lane ran on the same ticket, which necessitated an epidemic of vote-splitting, emphasizes their contrasting fate.

LOCAL—In Massachusetts there was an equally illuminating outcome.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, who was dropped as Chief of Naval Operations because he opposed openly scrapping of the super-carrier United States. In the Truman-Johnson "economy" wave, ran for the Republican nomination for Governor. He emerged a poor second to former Lieutenant-Governor Arthur W. Coolidge, a fourth cousin of the former President by that name.

Mr. Coolidge, like his famous relative, has always "stuck to his Yankee knitting." Admiral Denfeld, who led the fight against weakening the Navy and liquidating the Marine Corps, suffered from reminders that he was such an alien that he had not paid state income taxes for many years.

Five senatorial incumbents retired in the primaries attribute their defeats, in part, to neglect of local affairs while they remained on Capitol Hill to play their large or small part in the enveloping world crisis.

"HONORARY"—President Truman's friends are not too happy over a recent British bulletin describing him as an "honorary Socialist." The letter, which is read widely in Washington, is issued from London by the Union for Democratic Action.

U.D.A., which is headed by Reinhold Niebuhr, is comparable to the Americans for Democratic Action, the Roosevelt family's favorite political organization, in this country. It is decidedly pro-Labor and ultra-liberal.

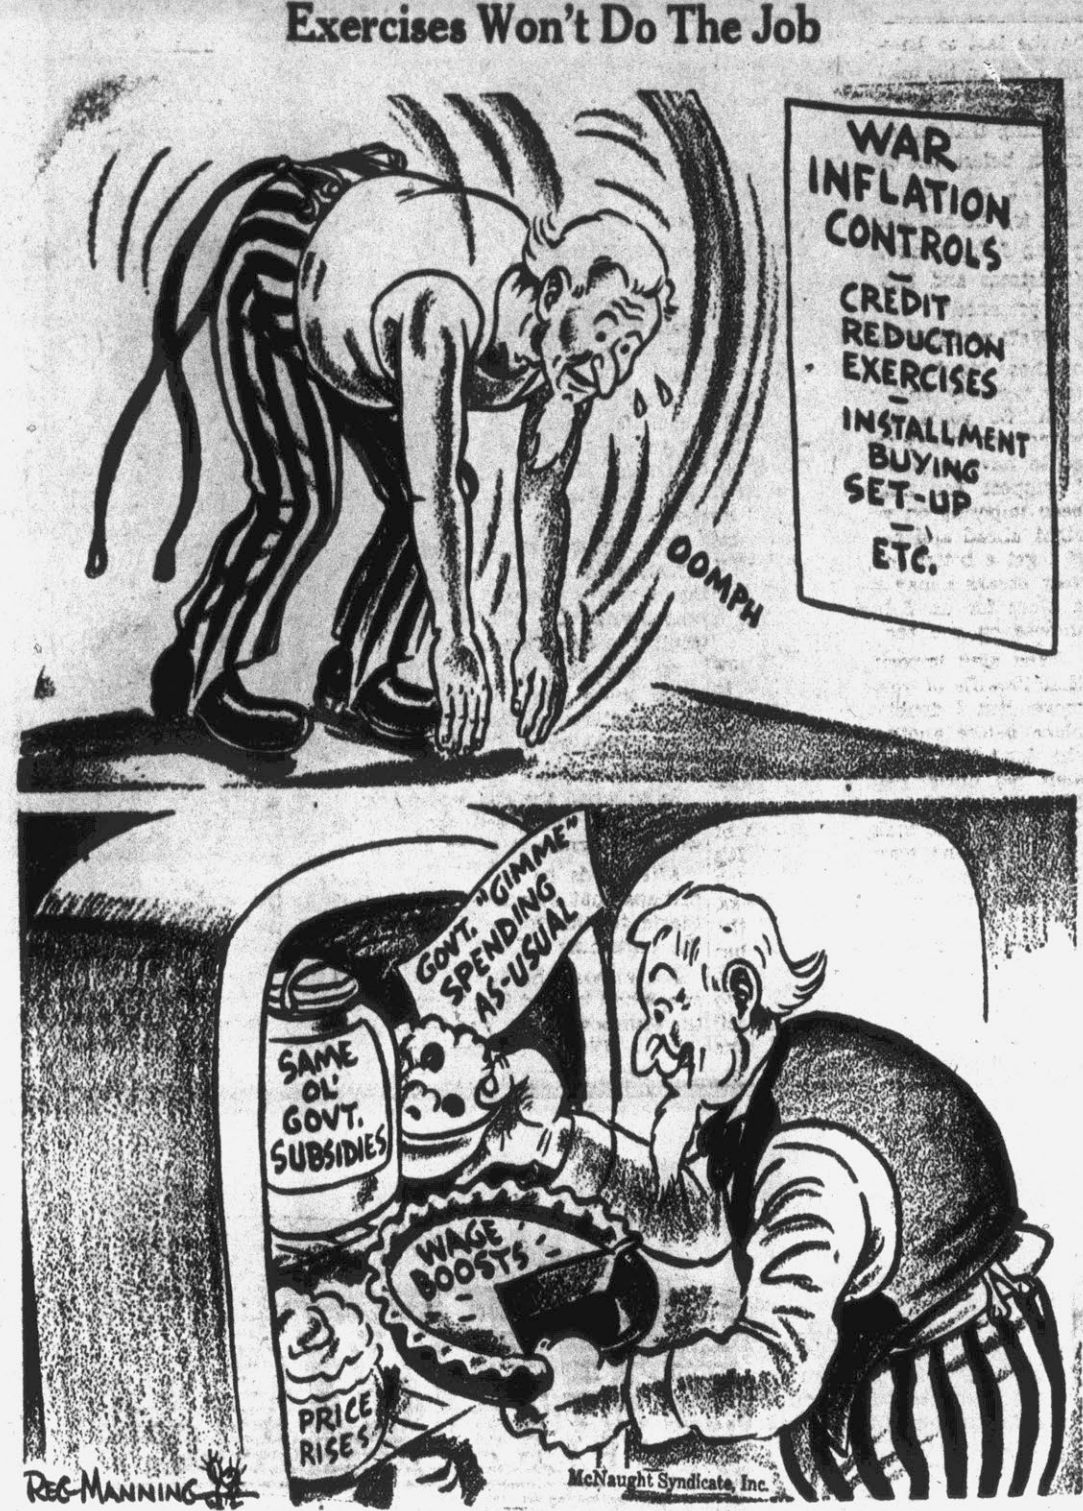

The current article points out that recently "Labor Party officials have really been pushing the view that the United States is one of the most progressive countries in the world, and Truman something like an honorary Socialist." Then it adds:

"Suspicion of Wall Street remains profound in some quarters, and is revived every time the realities of the present-day world force a closer alignment of Britain and America."

Selected Shorts

WELCH, OKLAHOMA, WATCHMAN: "Many observers felt the government's attack upon business might have been stirred up by Economic Planners who want to scuttle our free enterprise system. The system encourages bigness but only if bigness can be more efficient than smallness and can win the approval of the consuming public without which, of course no company can grow. If industries were to be broken up simply on the grounds of bigness, our advance as a nation would be seriously slowed down and our national security critically weakened."

LEWISTOWN, PENN., SENTINEL: "Those who like the form of government that we inherited from those who founded the United States of America might keep their eyes on the pressure groups."

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

worried by rumors that Secretary Greenville, like any other town of this size, has its social set that can be called the upper 400, or the Country Club set. But frankly, I don't think Greenville is a town for social climbing.

This analysis of Greenville's society came to mind when I saw a report by Elise Morrow about the Green Book in Washington, D. C. Every year a committee, whose membership is of course kept secret, meets to decide who will be eliminated from and added to the Green Book, which is Washington's Social List or Register. This thing actually is printed, and hostesses look upon it as law when it comes to knowing who to invite to a social function.

The next issue of this book will be October 1st, but word is already out that General Harry H. Vaughan will be eliminated from this issue. Vaughan, the President's military aide, wasn't kicked out of the White House because of his embarrassing part in the deep freeze case last summer, but the incident did mark him out of the Green Book.

Every Senator and Representative, no matter how sorry, is in the Green Book. However, outside of Congress and the President's cabinet, it takes more than a title to make the publication. The October issue will also be missing the name of Louis Johnson, who resigned as Secretary of Defense, just as the printers were listing those whose names begin with a "J." If his resignation had been a day later, he would have been an error in the book for a whole year. Publication was delayed a day to include the name of General George C. Marshall into the cabinet section, to replace Johnson.

The editors of the book were of State Dean Acheson would resign if Johnson did. Since his name begins with an "A," elimination of his name from the book would have meant backtracking several pages.

An easy way to be dropped from the book is to move out of town. Henry Wallace and Alger Hiss were dropped for leaving Washington, just in time to miss being dropped for other reasons. Drew Pearson, who raps other members in the Green Book in his daily column, was dropped several years ago, but seems to be holding up well in spite of this doubtful disgrace.

Greenville needs plenty of things for its improvement, but a Green Book is one thing we can do without. The Greenville hostess seems to have no trouble deciding who to invite to her parties without any book for reference. And I thank Elsie.

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Raleigh, N. C.

FOUNDATION—George R. Ross, director of conservation and development, and Miles Smith, chairman of the C and D committee on commerce and industry, are working on a scheme to utilize private funds in the efforts to bring new industry to this state. The idea is essentially the same as that back of the several "foundations" at units of the university. The business foundation at Chapel Hill; the agriculture, engineering and textile foundations at State College; the home economics foundation at Greensboro — to mention just a few—have done splendid service to the state in supplementing salaries and other costs of research and training at these institutions. Official announcement is expected in a few days of an unusual contribution to the agricultural work at State College.

CO-OPERATIVE—The university foundations do not supersede or displace any functions of the institutions. They supplement state funds and increase efficiency by enlarging scope of the work. The same basic idea is to be carried into the plan for private business co-operation with the state department for the purpose of bringing new investment capital into North Carolina's industrial development, whether that capital be from home folks or outsiders.

ENCOURAGING—Chairman Smith has contacted several of the large banks and has been pleased with the response to the idea. One of the most encouraging features has been the enthusiastic interest on part of the bankers, tempered by their traditional caution to make sure the funds would be safeguarded and not be susceptible to manipulation for political advantage. Stated another way, the prospective contributors to such supplemental fund have no idea of just turning over to the state a few thousand dollars to be used without check or recourse. The donors expect to have considerable voice in how the money is spent, even to the point of having substantial voice in selecting personnel and projects.

PRECEDENT—There is precedent for this plan, not only in the university foundations, but also in past experience of the commerce and industry division. The plant now operating at Salisbury for manufacture of light weight aggregates from clay, is there because the brick and tile folks supplemented state funds last year to send engineers to Ohio to find out how the job could be done. Other instances might be cited of specific co-operation between private and public fund to promote industrial enterprises.

CO-ORDINATION—Co-ordination is just as important as co-operation. The tentative overall plan for joint use of public and private funds contemplates that the state will devote major effort to bring new industry to North Carolina, letting the various sections and communities within the state do their own scrapping as to specific location. Exception to that rule would be the instances in which some particular chamber of commerce or business firm (like a power company or railroad) had originated a project. The state in that event, would lend every possible assistance to close the deal for the specific location.

BUGS—There are some round edges that will have to be smoothed off and some bugs will have to be gotten out before the idea can be made fully effective. Similar bugs bothered the university foundations a great deal at first and some are still present. Upon the whole, the college foundation plan is working splendidly. There is no reason to think the difficulties involved in effectuating the state-private cooperative projects in the division of commerce and industry are insurmountable. At any rate, Miles Smith and George Ross are both well pleased with progress to date.

SENIORITY—Action of the congress in recessing until November 27 instead of adjourning sine die, makes it practically certain that Senator Willis Smith and eleventh-district Representative Woodrow Jones can be sworn in as members of the 81st congress. The six week seniority thus obtained instead of having to wait until the 82nd congress convenes on January 3, will in many respects be equivalent to two full years of seniority when it comes to committee assignment rating.

UN GAINING IN PRESTIGE (Henderson Daily Dispatch)
Step by step the United Nations organization is gaining in power and prestige as it faces and tackles world problems that are dumped into its lap. Russia's effort to sabotage this recognized movement for universal peace has thus far failed, and as of now shows no indication of success immediately, if ever.

Role of the UN in the Korean war has been decidedly to its credit. At no time did it attempt to sidestep the challenge when hostilities began. While the burden of resistance to North Korea's invasion, inspired and forced by Russia, fell upon the United States, other nations have furnished such assistance as they could, and by so doing have committed themselves flatly to faith and cooperation in this world effort toward ultimate permanent peace.

The UN has gained the respect of all nations. Those few which are still not recognized as members are striving with all their might to meet the requirements for affiliation. Communist China is an example. The Mao regime there has thus far won the favor of comparatively few of the great powers. But that government is extremely anxious to be admitted, and not alone, it may be reasonably assumed, because Russia wants another ally at the council tables. Chief reason is that the United Nations is doing things and going places, if the same wisdom that has characterized its functions hitherto is permitted to continue.

Franco Spain would like to be recognized as a member, and so would Germany and Japan if they had independent and unrestricted governments that could speak for them, as they may have in the not too distant future.

Confidence and cooperation are the essential elements that must play a big role in the continuing progress of the organization. It is of some significance that not a single nation has withdrawn from the UN since it was established. On the other hand, a goodly number have been admitted during these five years. Only fly in the ointment is the attitude of Soviet Russia and that government's unwillingness to cooperate, because to do so would slow down its program for world domination. That very aim is one of the problems that must be dealt with and which must be blocked, if humanly possible.

Meantime, the collective efforts of free, peace-loving nations are advancing. It has been and still is a difficult road to travel, but at least UN is not static. It offers the world's one best hope for survival of modern civilization.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the toughest problems of the period ahead may be the shortage of executives.

Reporting on a three-months survey of American industry that took him into almost every state, Sheldon Coleman, general manager of the Coleman Co., of Wichita, told reporters that while material shortages was the number one problem of industry today, manpower shortages may soon overtake it.

General manpower shortages can be overcome by the recruitment of women, older and younger men and others not working, by the lengthening of hours and by the introduction of man-saving machinery. But the recruitment of executives for expansion and to replace the annual losses by death, illness and retirement is subject to no easy formulas.

The problem is being aggravated by government requirements. The civilian administration is, in some instances, desperate for seasoned executives. Unable to use higher pay as a blandishment, it can use only titles and appeals to patriotism. The latter is thoroughly effective. The military administration has both titles and patriotism to use and, completely effective, the draft and reserve call-ups. Corporations are now losing some of their best men to both civilian and military services and the loss will increase.

As a matter of fact, while our crops of corn and cotton have been increasing, our crops of seasoned executives have been suffering. The material has been coming along, better than ever. But the seasoning process has been interrupted.

Beginning in the year 1941, the men who were the most likely material for executive positions were being drawn into the army. A good many were lost because those with executive ability, where it was recognized, were moved into the officer corps, where casualties were higher. Most of them, by far, survived, but when they came out in 1946 they were without years of experience. Running a company in the army is far different than running a company in the tool business, for instance.

It was a common complaint among older executives after the war that they were ready to retire, but had to stay on until new executive material had been seasoned.

Business has been rapidly "bringing along" the veterans and those who have come of age, business-wise, since the war. And today, just as there is need for more executives to operate new plants, new production lines and new enterprises, and to replace those getting old, the draft and the need for talent in government and in the military—as well as a bit of high-level piracy—is creating a fresh shortage.

Many an old duffer is resigning himself to another five years at his desk.

A-BOMB EFFECTS ON REALTY IS TOPIC
The effects of the atom bomb on residential value trends will be one of the principal topics of the eastern conference of the Society of Residential Appraisers when it meets in the Hotel Commodore in New York, New York, incidentally, is 4,663 miles by air from Moscow.

Residential values, especially in the east, have been greatly affected by fear of the bomb. Values have gone up considerably outside bomb range of assumed "target areas." In some areas outside New York but within commuting distance, selling prices of homes have gone up as much as 20 per cent in recent months.

Values also fluctuate with international events. Peaceful utterances from Russia depreciate values; rumblings by Stalin send them up.

HOARDING WAVE FELL IN AUGUST
The wave of panic buying was much shorter than generally supposed, according to Department of Commerce figures.

July, of course, was a frantic and somewhat disgraceful month. But the dollar volume of retail sales in August, adjusted for seasonal factors and trading-day differences, were 1 per cent less than in July. In view of price rises, consumers bought considerably less real goods in August than July.

Figures by the Controllers Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association confirm this view. Among department stores doing more than $1,000,000 in sales a year, sales in July were 30 per cent over July, 1949. Sales in August were 1 per cent above August, 1949. That's small considering that one well-promoted sale often increases a department store's monthly sales by more than that.

Hal Boyle's Column

Korea—(AP)—Sometimes it takes two wars to get to know a general.

And a few I've met—why I doubt if I could understand them if they fought through all the wars of eternity and I were condemned to report each of their battles.

They are those who regard one war only as a stepping stone from which to leap to another war and win another star. They are generals who basically don't regard an army as something to protect a country. They regard a nation as something to support an army.

There aren't many like that in the American Army but in my ignorance I once thought they all were. I thought all privates were heroes and every general was a frustrated Napoleon who secretly yearned to put all mankind in uniform under his own command so he could launch a defense war against the planet Mars.

It was the second World War and an acquaintance with Omar Nelson Bradley that taught me a general can be brilliantly able in battle and still warmly human and kind—that he can hold absolute command over thousands of men and remain humble and questioning of heart.

And one of the few things in after days I shall remember with any pleasure about this bitter footnote to world peace called the Korean war is that it gave me a chance to understand another fine general better.

He is Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commander of the First Cavalry division. I certainly had him tabbed wrong in the last war.

I knew him then as the Chief of Staff for Gen. George Patton in French Morocco, Sicily and France. I thought him cold and methodical, skilful in supervising the details of planning and executing battles but utterly colorless—a perfect foil for Patton.

Other correspondents tended to the same view. But there is a difference between being a chief of staff and a troop commander. Gay has shown in his present post the same quality of homely simplicity and feeling for his men that made Bradley himself so popular.

Gay's blue eyes and lanky frame are familiar to every soldier along his own battlefield. For more than 60 days his cavalrymen helped stave off the Red drive to seize Taegu, more days of continuous battle than any other division has seen.

And at every critical moment Gay has been on the danger spot in person. He often rode through mortar and sniper fire to get there. The troops under such fire themselves like a general like that.

Gay once commanded a troop of horse cavalry in Mexico as a young lieutenant and he knows how the men feel. Once I met him almost speechless with anger. He slashed at a bridge railing with the steel-bladed, leather-covered riding crop many old-time cavalrymen still carry.

An officer moving up to counterattack had over-cautiously ordered his battle-loaded doughboys to dismount from their vehicles at the base of a long hill instead of riding them to the top.

"He ought to know better than that," said Gay. "They can't climb that hill without getting tired, and tired men can't fight their best."

There are three other pictures of the general I like to remember.

There was the time he gave the crispest battle summary I ever heard. Looking up past the shears of a Korean barber who was giving him an outdoor haircut in his command post, he said in his midwest twang:

"Well, one enemy division is trying to surround us and we are surrounding another enemy division, and right now I don't know who has got who by the tail."

There was the time he borrowed a shotgun and joined a task force from his own division in the breakthrough at Tabu. He knocked out an enemy soldier on the ride. He wouldn't talk about it but he looked pleased as a schoolboy that "the old man" had been able to show his soldiers he still could handle the job at their level.

And there was the time he told me:

"You know some people have an idea professional soldiers like war and want war. That isn't true. I have a son plotting a fighter plane over here. I know what war means."

That may be why he is the kind of general he is.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—"R" has nothing to do with oysters. "Oysters are edible the year around." Mark D. Hollis, an assistant surgeon general of the U.S. Public Health Service, announced on the recent opening of the traditional oyster season. "But they are fatter, more palatable and more plentiful on the market during the months which contain the letter 'R'." It is only coincidental that those months are the months in which the oyster is more palatable.

He says the tradition probably originated in the Old World, where the species is somewhat different from the oyster we know in this country. Old World oysters' babies are fertilized and grow within the shell of the parent oyster. Before birth they begin to develop shells. "If the Old World oyster is eaten at this stage of incubation, the large number of almost microscopic baby oysters, each developing a shell, impart a gritty quality to the meat," Mr. Hollis explained.

Because the reproduction period of all oysters is in the summer, he said "early settlers in this country avoided placing New World oysters on the menu until later in the year."

Mr. Hollis said, however, that even after our forefathers discovered that the North American east coast oyster fertilizes its eggs in the sea water outside the parent shell, oyster consumption continued for the most part to be a "winter activity."

"Partly responsible for this," he explained, "was the fact that only until recent years have refrigeration facilities been developed whereby oysters can be preserved in warm weather while being transported from the coastal growing areas."

Even with modern refrigeration, people still hold off eating the shellfish till the "R" months. Mr. Hollis thinks, however, the advent of the frozen oyster available throughout the year may change this custom.

DOUBLE WEDDING

By Adelaide Humphries

Chapter 9
"Get your glad rags," he told her. "We'll step out in style for a change. Some place where they soak you just to sit down and where there is real music for dancing. How about the Rainbow Room? I hear that's a neat spot."

It was the most expensive "spot" in town, Stephanie knew. She and Grant had often gone to the Rainbow Room. It had been one of their favorite places. The food was excellent, the music perfect, and Grant had not had to consider the expense.

She could not know that Sandy had mentioned going there tonight mainly because he wanted to take her, just once, to the sort of place she had probably frequented when she had been married to that other husband of hers.

He could not help, now and then, falling back into that morose bitterness. He had been making a good stiff fight against such dark moods since they had come to stay at his uncle's, but he could not always put up a gay front.

He knew that Stephanie was as unhappy here as he had been at the Lake. He knew she did not like the apartment any too well—nor his uncle, either.

She had made a brave pretense, but Sandy had not been misled. He realized, too, that their surroundings did not suit her. Stephanie did not fit in against such a background. She stood out against it, if not defiantly, obviously.

He supposed it was not her fault. She did not mean to be a bit superior. As in her almost snobbish attitude toward poor old Quent. He knew she did not intend to be snobbish. Stephanie was never unkind, and it was not her fault that she could not see his uncle's sterling qualities that far outdid the grosser ones that blazed more brightly.

He was sorry, however, that Quent knew that Stevie did not like him. There was no doubt that his uncle knew it. It hurt the more because it was evident that Quent admired Stevie's cool levelness. At first he had tried to get under that cool skin, but more and more lately, the old boy had simply kept out of the way.

He was not fooling Sandy. Sandy knew that his uncle did keep queer hours, but he also knew that he now stayed out later and longer than he might have had his nephew and his wife not been living with him. Stevie's attitude, although she would be the last to know it, had practically driven his uncle out of his own home. He had told Sandy that morning that he had decided to go south before the holidays.

"If I can get me a reservation, that is," he had added. "And if you young folks won't mind celebrating Christmas and New Years without my presence."

"We'll probably have to spend one of those big days with Stevie's mother," Sandy had replied. "Maybe both. So you'd have to celebrate without us in any case. If you wanted to have in your own cronies, as I suppose you might had we not been imposing on you, you could go right ahead and count us out. And if I get a better job before another year breaks I may be able to locate a place for us. I feel we shouldn't impose on you too long, Quent."

"You ain't imposing, boy! I know that I'll wife of yours would like to move. But I doubt if you'll find a place before another year. I know she don't like it here too well—nor your old uncle, neither. Now, now it's all right!" He stopped Sandy from having to make some kind of denial. "I ain't blaming Stevie. It's just that she's used to more stylish surroundings; more stylish folks, too, I guess. I haven't had the pleasure yet of meeting up with her ma but I wouldn't be surprised but what that lady is somewhat to blame. Parents are likely to spoil their kids, especially when it's one and all they got. If I was a parent, mebbe I'd do the same."

"Stevie's mother comes from as ordinary plain honest stock as you and I," Sandy's nice mouth had worn its set line. He would have liked to give Stevie a good sound shaking to wake her up.

"It's mighty decent of you, Quent, not to blame Stevie. She doesn't really know, yet, what life's all about. She takes it too seriously. For instance, she doesn't understand why I laugh at things rather than let them get me down. I suppose both of us must just give her time," he concluded wondering how much of that important element he must allow.

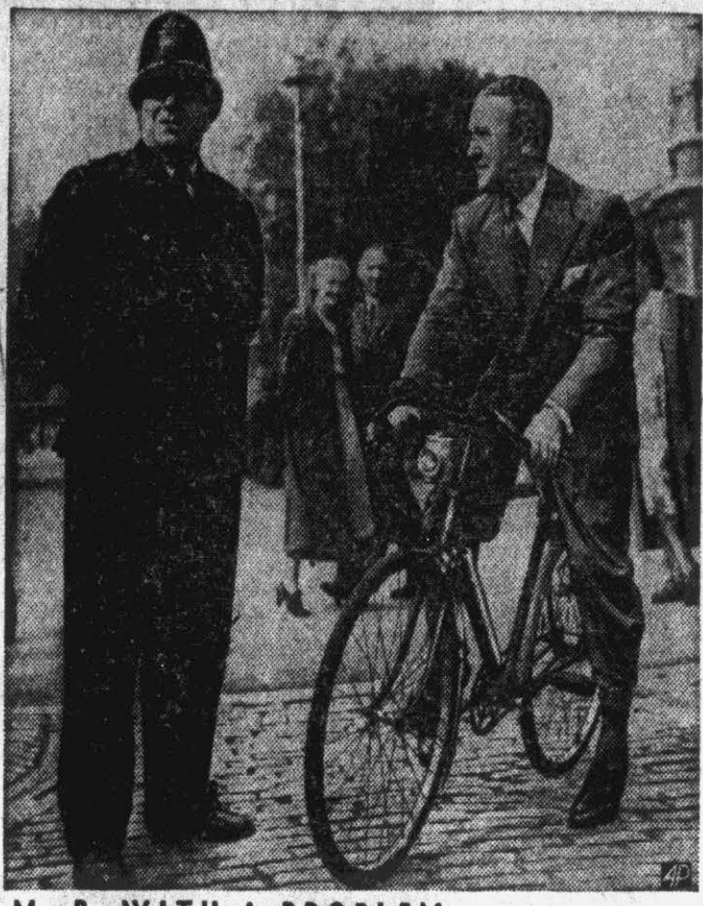

He had thought that the month which had already passed should have been enough. If she didn't know how she felt by now, how could she ever find out?

He supposed he would have to allow more time. Hard as it was, he would try. Anything worth fighting for was worth fighting for until the end.

As to when the end would come—well, Sandy supposed somehow he would recognize it when it arrived.

Afterwards he was to think that perhaps that evening, when he took Stevie to the Rainbow Room, was the beginning of the end.

For almost the first person they saw, when he and Stephanie entered the Rainbow Room, was Grant Hale. (To be continued)

UMT Regarded As Necessary By Rotary Speaker

B. WYATT BROWN
Many good things have accrued to the benefit of the United States and the United Nations from the Korean War which has about a week of mopping up left to be done, according to Dr. A. D. Frank, East Carolina Teachers College History Department head and frequent civic club speaker, in his remarks on the Korean situation last night at the Rotary Club. Dr. Frank sees Universal Military Training for the youth of the United States as highly desirable and the inevitable if the United States wants to negotiate with or fight with Russia.

At some length Dr. Frank explored the possible entrance of others than North Koreans in the present conflict when action goes north of the 38th parallel. He holds that it is almost certain that United Nations forces will go north of the 38th parallel. Russia would have come in when the United States had only a token force of eight hundred men in the war, Dr. Frank gave as his opinion. Chinese Communists are no lovers of Stalin and are really wanting some of the North Korean experience; hence, they will not enter the war, the speaker reasoned.

Pursuing further the possibility of Russia's going to war with the United States, Dr. Frank cited the fact that the U. S. has improved its advantage over the Russians as to manufacturing potential—"it is by manufacturing potential that wars are calculated today."

The U. S. advantage is greater than in 1940. "I am of the opinion Russia is not coming in" to help the North Koreans; "China is a bigger threat," declared Dr. Frank.

Next the speaker made some observations as to what is going to happen in the next few years. With the Korean experience having shown the military weakness of the U. S., universal military training is coming if the U. S. wishes to deal with any success with the Russians. "You cannot deal with Stalin without a strong military machine." At this point Dr. Frank spoke of how "sentiment" of the democratic heritage had caused the U. S. to dissipate its armed strength following World War II.

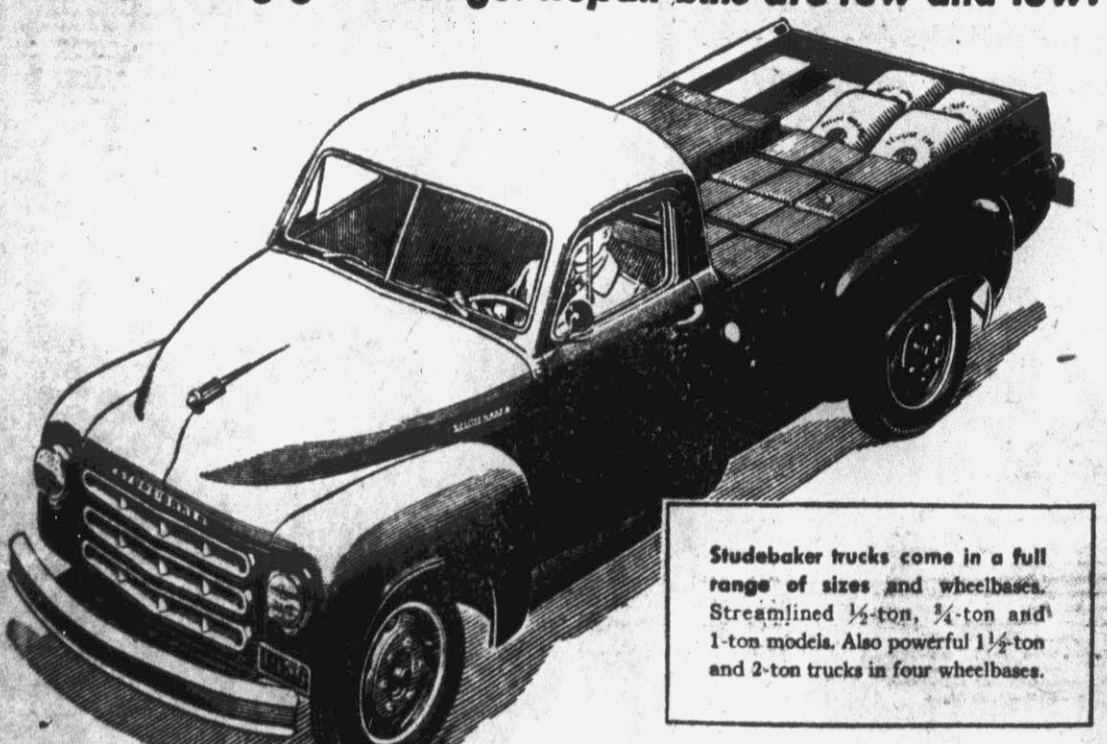

He predicted that some of the people in his audience would be writing letters before long protesting universal military training.

STUDEBAKER TRUCKS...NOTED FOR LOW COST OPERATION!

Parents will dislike the idea but it will not hurt the boys for the few years they are trained, Dr. Frank stated.

Then Dr. Frank pointed out some of the beneficial results of the Korean fracas to date. Foremost he listed renewed confidence in the United States by nations all over the world who wondered if the United States would continue to let Russia swallow small countries at will. The United Nations organization has come out with a strengthened position.

Whereas Russia walked out of U. N. at the beginning of the Korean conflict, they observed the growing strength of the U. N. and have come back for fear their own position would be weakened by withdrawal.

During the Korean War Dr. Frank thinks that U. S. behavior in the U. N. of being willing to be investigated and Russia's refusal has helped the U. S. position in the world.

Dr. Frank cited as his personal opinion that as much as he disliked communism the United States must agree to seat the communist Chinese delegate, for the communists are the representative government of China today and not Chiang in Formosa.

Guests of the club last night were all Rotarians from other cities: Leroy Rollins and W. J. Raspberry of Farmville, J. A. Rickert of Washington and Lebrun Spence of Melbourne, Florida. Knott Proctor, chairman of the program committee, presented the program. Floyd Hendrix, club president, presided.

Playwright's Son Takes Own Life

Woodstock, N. Y., Sept. 26—(AP)—Eugene O'Neill, Jr., 40-year old son of the famous playwright, killed himself yesterday in a fit of despondency after a broken engagement.

A classical student and a teacher of drama, literature and ancient Greek, he chose a form of suicide traditional with the Roman stoics. He sat in his bath and opened the veins of his wrist with a razor. Ulster county coroner Ernest O. Kelley listed the death as a suicide.

Before O'Neill died, the coroner said, he staggered downstairs. His body was found on the lower floor by a neighbor who came to call. The house is located in an artists and writers community in the Catskills Mountains, North of New York City.

State Police, who searched the house later, said they found an unsigned note reading: "Never let it be said that O'Neill failed to empty a bottle. "Hall and farewell."

Friends said O'Neill had been in depression since Ruth Lander, an artists' agent, had broken off her engagement with him last Saturday. "Everyone knows about my engagement being broken," Miss Lander said after learning of the death. "I'm very sorry, very unhappy, and broken up about the whole thing."

The marriage was to have taken place next Saturday.

Legal Technicalities Arise To Prevent Prosecution Of Theft

Miami, Fla., Sept. 26—(AP)—Legal technicalities arose today to block prosecution of young women who, authorities say, orally admitted taking more than $100,000 from the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., counting room by concealing coins in their brassieres.

Eight young women held in the case were released on instructions from Dade County Circuit Judge George E. Holt, who set a habeas corpus hearing for today and ordered the girls freed in custody of their attorneys.

Assistant county solicitor Michael F. Zarowny said the girls admitted stuffing rolls of quarters in their brassieres in the counting room where streams of silver came daily from pay station phones. They admitted carrying as many as four $15 rolls of quarters in their brassieres at a time, he said. (Each roll weighed 12 3-4 ounces.)

Why there were no guards to check on the incoming cash and how the girls managed to convert some of the silver into currency and bonds without arousing suspicion was not explained.

James M. Phillips, district manager of the telephone company, said that on advice of counsel he would not sign a complaint. Phillips said he couldn't swear to the sum taken nor to the time it was taken.

With that development, Zarowny said, the girls refused to sign statements they had made earlier in the day.

"The only thing we've got is a confession," he said. "We can't introduce that until we establish a crime and we can't establish a crime because there is no way to tell if the money was taken, nor how much."

Fourteen persons, including the girls, their husbands or boy friends, were rounded up after I. Ray Mills, public safety director in suburban West Miami, reported finding suitcases stuffed with nearly $5,000 in an automobile at the West Miami home of one of the employees.

Nation's Bankers Told Savings Can Solve Inflation

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—Most of current inflationary problems would be solved if the American people would save more and spend less, A. L. M. Wiggins told the nation's bankers today.

Wiggins is chairman of the Bank of Hartsville, S. C., and the Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville Railroads. He spoke at the 75th annual convention of the American Banking Association.

Some 7,000 Bankers and their wives have come to town to discuss the problems facing bankers. Thus far the dangers of inflation and ways to combat it have been heavily stressed.

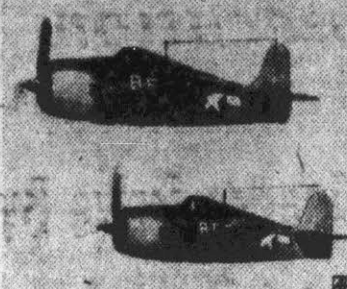

Wiggins declared that the needs of increasing savings are greater now than ever before and, in particular for increased purchases of government savings bonds.

Commenting on available methods of curbing inflation, Wiggins said:

"In the general credit field, it has long been recognized that an effective control of loans to business may be used to dampen inflationary pressure. Speculative loans and other loans to finance unneeded material and supplies have no place in an inflationary economy. Increasing interest rates on loans has long been regarded as a deterrent to excessive borrowing. However, this is an area in which there is less freedom of action under the realities of our present large national debt, and its ownership, than would be possible under other conditions.

"So long as the commercial banks have 41 per cent of their assets in the form of U. S. government securities, for which, in the public interest, an orderly market must be maintained, there is a severe limitation on any action that may be

Union officials have not yet commented publicly on the company's move. Contract negotiations which have been underway for the past several weeks were scheduled to continue today with federal conciliators sitting in. The deadline for reaching an agreement is tonight.

Frank T. Devyver, vice president of Erwin Mills, said the announced increase would total approximately $1,500,000 annually.

Severe Penalty Is Given Driver

Adrian V. Gilson, 36-year-old bricklayer, was convicted in Police Court Monday of driving a motor vehicle while drunk. Judge J. W. H. Roberts gave him six months on the roads, sentence suspended provided Gilson pay $300 fine and costs (costs are about $20) and pay into the court $75 for Mrs. Ruby T. Deans for damage to her automobile. The defendant made arrangements to pay up.

Police testified that Gilson was driving while drunk on the Bethel highway and that his car collided with Mrs. Dean's truck in the parking lot at Resque Brothers' barbecue stand. The arresting officer testified that Gilson was helplessly drunk and that he had to be taken bodily from his car and deposited in the police car. The defendant did not testify.

Gilson was not guilty of a charge of driving after his driver's license had been revoked for driving drunk some time ago.

Unified Control Teacher Training Colleges Proposed

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Sept. 26—Governor Scott injected into budget hearings for the state's three Negro teacher training colleges Monday the matter of consolidating them under one board of trustees. The governor's question, propounded to Dr. J. W. Deabrook, president of Fayetteville State Teachers College, brought on considerable discussion.

Previously Dr. E. D. Williams, president of Elizabeth City State College, and Dr. Francis Atkins, president of Winston-Salem State Teachers College, had presented their cases to the advisory budget commission. Drs. Williams and Atkins joined in the discussion precipitated by the governor's question. All agreed that a central board might be advantageous, but would have some drawbacks.

There was not much support for the idea, which developed as debate progressed, for including the Negro colleges at university level—North Carolina College in Durham and A. & T. at Greensboro—in the consolidation program. Point was made that objectives of the university level institutions and the teacher training colleges were not the same.

Implied, but not brought into the open, was the idea that if consolidation is to be attempted it would be better to put all six state teacher training colleges—three white and three Negro—under one board, and integrate the Durham and Greensboro units into the Greater University system.

That idea has been battled around for years without ever coming to point of real issue. It has considerable merit, but there are many impediments in the way of full effectuation.

The teacher training colleges, especially the Negro schools, face a more immediate problem. That is the matter of broadening the scope of work, permitting courses other than those leading directly to teacher training. It was noted that there is an actual surplus of Negro school teachers, and there seems little point in continuing a program designed wholly to train more teachers.

John H. Cook, Fayetteville attorney, and W. E. Horner, Sanford newspaper man, both former legislators and currently trustees of the Fayetteville college, argued for broadening the base of instruction so that the college could teach practical nursing and other courses to fill demands of state service—instead of being confined to training elementary school teachers for a field that is already full.

It was pointed out that teacher colleges for whites have courses for high school work, and one at least (ECTC) is giving courses not directly designed for teacher training. The next legislature will be asked to broaden the scope of the Negro colleges or to make provision for special training courses in music, art and other subjects which current budgets do not permit although allowed under the charters of the colleges.

Necessity for such development makes more important the idea of unified board control, with special work assigned to each unit—just as the consolidated university plan provides for certain courses at Chapel Hill and Raleigh without duplication.

Questions and comment by Governor Scott and members of the budget commission indicated definite purpose to eliminate duplicative work at all state institutions.

Huks Battling Filipino Troops Close To Manila

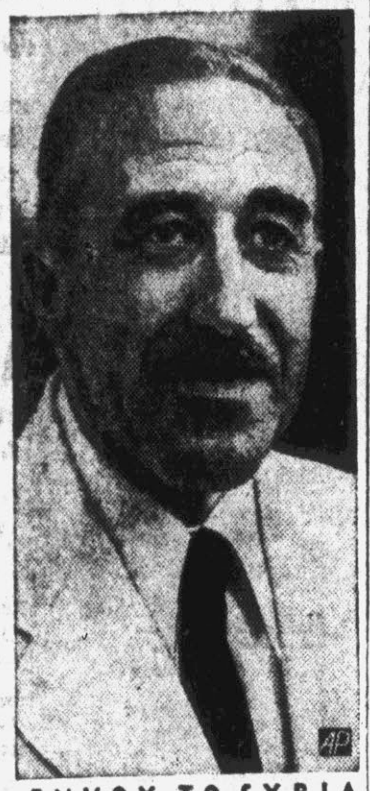

Manila, Sept. —(AP)—A battle between an estimated 800 Communist Hukbalahaps and government troops was reported raging tonight less than 20 miles south of Manila.

Reports said the fight opened at dusk at the town of General Trias in Cavite province.

The Huk raiders were observed moving toward the town about 4 p. m. Reinforcements of one company of army troops and two companies of constabulary were dispatched to join local police.

Government forces have been able to prevent the Huks from entering the town.

A column of Huks has been active in the area south of Manila the past 10 days.

Protest Increase In Phone Rates

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 26—A rate increase request by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company drew a protest yesterday from a group of Eastern North Carolina business and civic leaders.

The group told the State Utilities commission the telephone firms rates are high enough and that the company has failed to provide satisfactory service.

Carolina Telephone has applied to the commission for rate increases totaling nearly $1,000,000 a year. The application affects approximately 80,000 telephone users in 40 Eastern North Carolina counties.

The protesting group told the commission the company is enjoying a reasonable profit. The commission said it would announce a decrease after hearing arguments of both sides.

Not One Astronomer Shot As Result Of The Eclipse

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—The night's eclipse began at 8:20 p.m. (EST) and lasted until 2:13 a.m. in some parts of the nation—Detroit and Milwaukee for example—the skies were fine and clear and onlookers had a perfect view. In other parts, however, great smoke layers blown from forest fires in Canada blacked out the sky.

In New York, a television show of the event was a flop. At Bluefield, W. Va., a woman who hadn't been able to see through the smoke screen called a newspaper office to ask if the eclipse had been postponed.

Scott Calls For Cape Fear Flood And Power Work

Fayetteville, N.C., Sept. 26—(AP) Governor Scott was on record today as favoring more electrical power development and flood control along the Cape Fear River.

The governor endorsed the two projects in a speech last night before a joint meeting of the local civic clubs and Chamber of Commerce.

He also called for action on halting stream pollution in North Carolina.

The governor asserted that much of the lower half of the Cape Fear River valley "has been retarded in growth and development by a shortage of electrical power, particularly low-cost, or even reasonable-cost power."

TOBACCO GROWERS Check NOW for ROOT KNOT DAMAGE

It's easy to find out if nematodes cut into your 1950 profits. Pull up a few roots in an area that didn't pay so well this year. Look for stunted roots with knots and starved-off feeder roots. If you find roots like that, there are damaging nematodes in your soil and you should fumigate with D-D before the next crop is planted.

D-D* KILLS NEMATODES!

Growers in every tobacco area in the South made profitable use of D-D this year. D-D is easy to use, economical and highly effective. Get rid of the soil pests that are choking your profits.

Start with the seed bed. In this area, nematodes are found even in virgin soil. Use D-D in seed beds this fall and in all infested fields next spring.

DiMaggio Again Is Leading Yanks In Late Pennant Dash

Joe's Booming Bat Blazes New Yorkers Into Commanding Lead; Only A Miracle Can Stop Stengel's Crew From Second Title

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Peerless Joe DiMaggio is playing the leading role again in the New York Yankees' mad dash to their 17th American League pennant.
DiMaggio's booming bat has blasted the Yankees into the commanding 3½ game lead they enjoy today. Only a miracle will prevent the Yankees from winning their second straight championship.

Casey Stengel's marauders have six games left to play and need to win only four to sew up the pennant. If they win only three the runner-up Detroit Tigers would have to take all of their seven just to tie the Bombers. Three Yankee victories would eliminate the third place Boston Red Sox.
DiMaggio has been knocking the tar out of the ball since the stretch drive began Sept. 1. The big guy has hit safely in his last 17 games and in 21 out of 22.

This terrific .391 pace has lifted DiMaggio's season average over the .300 mark for the first time this year. During this streak DiMaggio has belted out 34 hits with half of the blows falling for extra bases—eight doubles and nine home runs.
Allie Reynolds and Ed Ford, sensational rookie lefthanders, were on the mound yesterday as the Yankees turned back the Washington Senators, 8-3 and 7-4.

Reynolds scattered nine hits to hang up his 15th victory in the opener and Ford granted only seven in bagging his ninth without a setback in the finale.

DiMaggio was the big gun in both games. He drove out three of the Yankees' 15 hits in Reynolds' triumph. In the nightcap DiMaggio poked a three-run double to ignite a six-run third inning rally.

The Red Sox kept their faint hopes alive by sweeping a doubleheader from the hopeless Philadelphia Athletics, 8-0 and 3-0, in the only other American League activity.
Mel Parnell blanked the A's on three hits in the opener to post his 18th victory. Harry Taylor, recently purchased from the Brooklyn organization, shut-out the Athletics on two safeties in the finale.

The Philadelphia Phillies made some hay in their National League pennant drive. The Phils divided a doubleheader with the Braves in Boston while the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers split a day-night twin bill with the New York Giants to remain five games back.

Philadelphia now needs to win only four of its remaining seven games to clinch its first pennant since 1915. If the Phils win only three games the Dodgers would be forced to take all of their nine to tie the Whiz Kids.

Robinson Moving Up Fast For Batting Crown
New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—There's a fight brewing in the National League between Stan Musial and Jackie Robinson—for the batting title, that is.
Currently, Musial, the St. Louis slugger, holds the upper hand with a .345 average. But Robinson, the defending champion, is closing fast. The Brooklyn second baseman boosted his average four points last week to .337, while Musial, who has been hampered by a cold, slipped seven markers.

Musial has connected for 185 hits—the most in the loop—in 536 at bats. Robinson, playing seven fewer games, has connected safely 161 times in 478 tries. Figures include games of Sunday, Sept. 24.

Skip Alexander In Serious Shape
Evansville, Ind., Sept. 26—(AP)—Skip Alexander, well-known professional golfer, who was hurt in a plane crash here Sunday night, remained in "quite serious" condition today.
Only his wife and her father, W. T. Reade, of Dallas, Tex., are being admitted to his hospital room.
Alexander, 32, of Lexington, N. C., suffered a broken left leg and burns on the hands, arms and face.

Phantoms' Regular Quarterback

Sid Briley, junior on this year's Phantom squad, has taken over the quarterbacking duties and is doing a capable job at that position. This is Briley's first year on the starting team but showed much promise at the beginning of the season as a signal caller and passer and he is holding the job permanently now. ## Experts Disagree Over Louis-Charles Outcome

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—With the Joe Louis-Ezzard Charles fight only one day away, fight experts still were disagreeing violently on the outcome of the heavyweight championship bout at Yankee Stadium tomorrow night.
Gene Tunney, the only retired, undefeated heavyweight champion to stay retired, was among those on the Louis bandwagon.
"Joe will knock him out in five rounds," said Tunney.
"If Jack Dempsey is not the greatest fighter who ever lived, then Joe Louis is," said Tunney. "There is no reason to think, because Louis is 36, that he has not retained the skill and power that he had when he retired."
Tunney and others who predict a Louis victory, believe that Joe is going to catch Ezzard at least once, and that will be enough. A fighter's punch is the last thing he loses and the Bomber, even at 36, hasn't shown any signs of weakness in the power department yet.

The Charles backers, headed by fight manager Vic Marsilio, wait that Ezzard is the most under-rated heavyweight since Tunney, himself, first stepped into the ring against Dempsey.

Marsilio, a canny Judge of boxing styles, not only believes that the 29-year-old Cincinnati Negro will win, but that Charles will knock Louis out.
The bookmakers still have Louis the favorite at 1 to 2.
East Carolina's regulars took it easy yesterday after Saturday's 27-19 stirring victory over Lenoir-Rhyne at Hickory.
As a reward for their good showing, Coach Dole stressed light drills of running plays and punting.
However, today's workout will be a different story, as the Pirates settle down to serious business in preparation for their opening home game with the Hampden-Sydney Tigers here Saturday night.
The Pirates will be striving for their third consecutive win of the young grid season here Saturday night, and a capacity crowd is expected to witness the Buc's first home game of the year. Hampden-Sydney is a non-conference foe.
Yesterday's workout saw the Pirates in pretty bad physical shape since their game with the Bears Saturday.

Tackle Dennis Smith and Guards Bobby Hodges and Don McKenzie missed practice due to severe line burns sustained at Hickory, and End Ed Tanner, who missed last Saturday's game with a wrenched knee, is still on the doubtful starting list for the oncoming Hampden-Sydney encounter. Tackle Smith is bothered with a sprained shoulder and finger in addition to his burns.
The reserves who did not see action Saturday went through a lengthy scrimmage session yesterday. The Pirates subs worked mainly on their ground attack, but the aerial game also received attention. Passes figured in all four of East Carolina's touchdowns last Saturday night.

Next Two Games Will Test Duke
Durham, Sept. 26—(AP)—Is Duke on the brink of regaining its pre-World War II football powers?
The next two games should help supply the answer.
The Blue Devils face Pittsburgh in the opening home game Saturday and then go up against Tennessee's Vols on Oct. 7.

Heralded in pre-season forecasts as being "loaded," Duke looked great at times in bowling over South Carolina, 14-0, Saturday.
The Blue Devils may be even stronger than the 14-0 score indicates, for South Carolina is reputed to have one of its best eleven in years.
The South Carolina clash proved one thing for the Dukes—Billy Cox appears headed for another great season at tailback. The Mt. Airy ace hurled 32 passes against the Gamecocks—a new record for Duke in one game—and completed 13 for 138 yards.
In all, the Blue Devils rolled up 370 yards by rushing and passing for 22 first downs.

Drops Big Suit Against Walker
Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 26—A $40,000 damage suit against Wake Forest football coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker has been dropped.

The civil action brought against Walker by a former Wake Forest player was non-suited yesterday in Wake Superior court.
In regards to Dr. George W. Paschal, Raleigh physician who was co-defendant in the case, the suit was continued until Dec. 18.

S. Edgecombe Is Looking Its Best In A Long Time

South Edgecombe High School, under new tutelage of Coach Wiley Parker, won their first football game in two years last Friday.
The South Edgecombe gridgers swamped a weak Lenoir-Rhyne eleven, 53 to 0, in a highly impressive win.
Brooks Webb, wingback for the Pinetops crew, accounted for three of the scores, with End Doug Eason sharing the honors with two markers. George Pitt, Doug Whitley, and Rufus Edwards accounted for the other scores with one touchdown apiece.

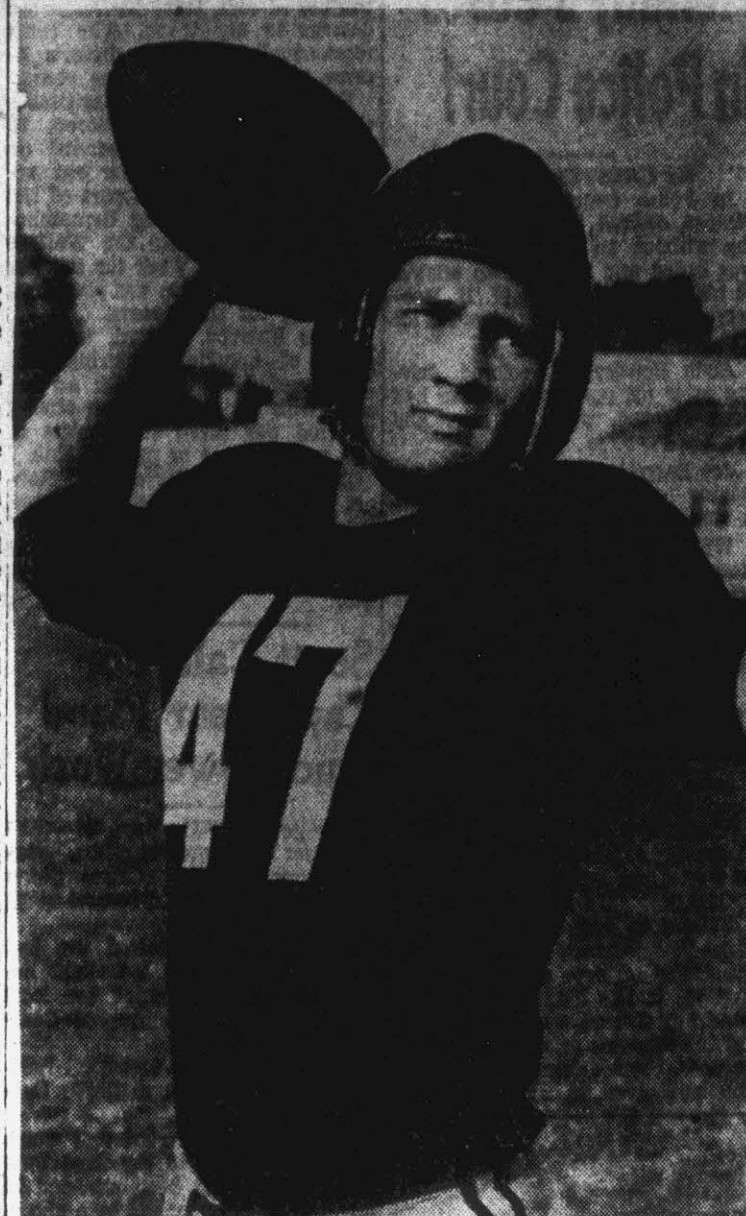

Using the Davidson type single-wing formation, Coach Parker and his Edgecombe charges looked like a team to be reckoned with in the Coastal conference this year.
Heretofore known as the doormat of the conference, Coach Parker can expect much improvement over past season's records, with such runners as Webb, Pitt, and Edwards in the lineup.

For defense, Coach Parker has an inexperienced but gamely forward wall, with Center Maynard Leonard leading the way, along with Julian Council and Donald Sutton at tackles.

South Edgecombe plays hosts to their first conference foe Friday against the Vanceboro gridgers.

A complete South Edgecombe grid schedule is as follows:
Sept. 22—Beverly, here
Sept. 29—Vanceboro, here
Oct. 6—Robersonville, here
Oct. 13—Tarboro, there (nite)
Oct. 20—Ayden, there
Oct. 27—Spring Hope, here
Nov. 3—Open date
Nov. 10—Mt. Olive, there (nite)
Nov. 17—Farmville, there (nite)

Coastal Conference Triple-Threat

Coastal All-Conference quarterback, Teedy Bullock, is again this year the leading passer for Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornadoes. Bullock, in addition to being an ace passer, is a consistent ground-gainer and does the punting chores for the Ayden eleven. He is one of the most feared triple-threaters in the Coastal conference. ## Even If Louis Wins, 3 Others Made Bigger Sports Comeback

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
New York—The golf writer will tell you Ben Hogan's comeback in winning the National Open was the greatest in history.

The baseball writer will be quick to inform you of the remarkable comeback made by first baseman Eddie Waitkus of the Phillies.

The turf writer will get in his argument for Jockey Bobby Perma.

Last to be heard from are the boxing writers. If Joe Louis beats Ezzard Charles in Yankee Stadium on Sept. 27 he will be the first to have regained the heavyweight title after having retired.

Most of the boxing writers around here think Louis can accomplish something five other ex-champions failed to do. If he does the fight scribes will call Louis' comeback "the greatest in history," with many assorted adjectives added.

They will forget about Ben Hogan's near fatal automobile accident and how, despite weary legs and a playoff with Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio, he shot a blazing 69 against a 73 and a 75.

To many, Waitkus' comeback was just as remarkable as Hogan's. Eddie was shot in the chest by a deranged bobby sox fan in a Chicago hotel room a year ago June. He probably was as close to death as was Hogan.

Waitkus didn't throw a baseball for almost eight months but was wise to accept Phillie Phanatic Bob Carpenter's offer to regain his strength during a three-month conditioning program at Clearwater, Fla.

Waitkus began the season by hitting .359 in his first 10 games. He bogged down in midseason but has been brilliant around first base. Hitting around .280 most of the season he has come through with man important hits for the Whiz Kids. Recently he made eight straight hits in a double header.

Perma, injured in a spill from a horse at Gulfstream Park in Florida a year ago March, was out of the saddle some 15 months. He returned in June and was one of the most sought after riders during the recent Saratoga meeting.

The comeback of Louis will be minute compared to the accomplishments of Hogan, Waitkus and Perma. But not with the boxing writers.

Louis suffered no injury as did the other three comeback stars of sport. His is a forced comeback due to back income taxes and even if he beats Charles, his return to the ring shouldn't be mentioned in the same breath with the feats of Hogan, Waitkus and Perma.

AP Newsfeatures
NEW YORK—Back in action for the first time in two years, 36-year-old Joe Louis is aiming to regain his renowned heavyweight title September 27 at Yankee stadium against present NBA champ Ezzard Charles, 27. If Louis wins, he will be the first heavyweight ever to regain the throne. Here's how the two battlers measure up for the 15-round scrap.

Honors For All Pirates In Lenoir-Rhyne Game

By BILL LLOYD
"Our team was red hot," chanted cheerleader Jack Everett and the East Carolina students Sunday afternoon, as Coach Bill Dole's Pirates received a warm reception after their thrilling, 27-19, victory over Lenoir-Rhyne at Hickory Saturday night.

Stepping modestly before the large group that greeted the victorious Buccaneers, Coach Dole had this to say about the stirring Pirate win:
"We were very fortunate to win. It could easily have been a tie. All our boys played an excellent game."

"We aren't a finished ball club," continued the East Carolina grid master, "although we are definitely improved over last year."

Highlights of Saturday's game run tremendous.

Noticeable among the 3500-odd people that crowded the Hickory stadium were the 100 to 150 Pirate followers who attended the tilt. Quite a representative group to be so far away from the "home of the Pirates."

As for the game itself, probably the standout point was the many passes thrown by both clubs. Sixty-two to be exact. Roger Thrift, East Carolina's passing wizard, completed 13 out of 30 attempts compared to the 17 out of 32 for Lenoir-Rhyne's C. A. Frye. Both QB's are par excellence passers.

Outstanding individual play would have to go to the Pirates' big end, Frank Maennle, who probably played the best game of his college career.

Maennle, converted to end from his usual fullback slot this year, caught one touchdown pass that covered 52 yards, while setting up two more Pirate scores with brilliant catches.

Buck Hardee, who played a terrific game at his defensive tackle position, also improved on his point-after-touchdown record. The hefty 212-pound junior kicked good on 3 out of 4 to make his record now stand at six out of seven attempts.

Pint-sized Billy Smith, the 10-pound fleet-footed safety man for the Pirates came in for praise, too. Smith, brother of linebacker Johnny, used sheer determination, and strength to return a LB punt 12 yards to setup an EG scoring play on the Bears 33 yard-stripe.

Smith, with a host of Lutherans on his back, carried ball, players, and hopes on that setup return. And the game halfback put the clincher on the game as he intercepted a Frye pass and ran 12 yards, crossing the goal line with a last minute lunge.

After the game, Pirate players and followers hoisted Coach Bill Dole on their shoulders, carrying him from the field, with Co-captain Buck Wilson grabbing the game ball as a trophy for East Carolina's performance.

East Carolina plays host to a visiting Hampden-Sydney eleven this Saturday night, opening up their home schedule this season.

College Park, Md., Sept. 26—(AP) Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland, reared in modern football style, feels today like a fish out of water.

He's got no scouting reports of Navy, Saturday's opponent.

"That's one of the most important weapons we have in planning for a game," laments Tatum. Navy opens the season with Maryland, which had to show its stuff last Saturday against Georgia.

"We don't have even a movie of a Navy game to look at. And they didn't scrimmage any outside team this fall."

Maryland can't go too much by what Navy did last season. The Mid-dies have a new coach, Eddie Erd-eizat. And he's no help at all to Tatum.

"He won't even tell you newspaper fellows his probable lineups," complains Tatum.

Packs Weight

New Orleans — (AP) — Tulane boasts the heaviest football player in the South-eastern Conference as one of the biggest in the nation. He is 280-pound Jerome Hellus from Donaldsonville, La. Hellus played fullback in high school, now plays offensive guard and defensive center.

Local Lions Join Other Clubs In Blind Aid Drive

Beginning today the Greenville Lions club will join hands with more than 250 other clubs throughout the state to assist in the annual drive for funds to aid the program among the blind of North Carolina.

The club's goal this year is $2,000, the same as in past years. It will be raised through direct solicitation of business firms, organizations and private citizens by the 60 members of the local civic club.

All the money will be turned over to the Pitt County Association for the Blind to carry on its year's work. All the funds received this year will remain in the county. They are used to pay for eye examinations for all children and adults needing such, to buy glasses for the handicapped and to help pay for eye operations and treatments.

Pavement Traffic Lines Are Re-Marked In City

Police Chief Guy D. Langston reported today that the street department had re-marked the traffic lines on East Fifth street, near the Training School on the college campus.

Traffic lines have been re-marked on the pavement on Dickinson avenue, between the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad tracks and the Norfolk Southern overpass. Yellow cross-marks have been painted on the pavement and the pavement signs "stop" signs have been eliminated Langston stated.

At Five Points, a yellow traffic line has been painted in the center of East Fifth, crossing Evans street to West Fifth and that yellow line means that it is unlawful to cross over it to make a left turn.

Traffic coming off E. Fifth street is not allowed to make any turn at Five Points. This means not turn to the right on Evans street, and not turn to the left to go down Dickinson Avenue. Traffic from east Fifth street must go straight. If headed for Dickinson Avenue, it may turn at Washington and Fifth streets, Chief Langston said.

Chief Langston pointed out that East Fifth street to beyond the city limits is a 35-mile speed zone.

Residents of East Fifth street and school and college spokesmen have complained to police about speeding motor vehicles along East Fifth street.

Highway Patrol To Fill Its Ranks

The Greenville State Highway Patrol office today announced that orders have been received from Col. James R. Smith, commanding officer of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol, setting up a new highway patrol training school to fill the ranks of the patrol.

The announcement stated that the training school will be held October 30 through December 9 at Chapel Hill. The local office announced that applications of candidates will be accepted through October 10.

There will be about 25 vacancies to be filled in order to bring the patrol up to its authorized strength. The vacancies resulted recently when several patrolmen were called into military service and some resigned to enter private employment.

The training school will be conducted by the Institute of Government. The starting salary for trainees accepted for the patrol will be $2,508 a year.

Requirements for acceptance for the school are: (1) Be citizens of the United States; (2) have passed their 26th birthday; (3) weigh at least 160 pounds; (4) have completed a high school education or the equivalent; (5) be of good moral character and have no criminal record; (6) have no relative now employed by the patrol.

The applicants will be selected on the basis of open competitive examinations between 75-100 men for the six week program. Applicants attending the school will receive board and room but no salary.

All men applying for the patrol will be given a rigid medical examination before being accepted.

The highest ranked men at the end of the course will be placed on a probation appointment with the patrol while the others will be put on the reserve list.

Lions Club Gets Report On Blind

A report on the activities of the Pitt county Blind Association highlighted the weekly meeting of the Greenville Lions last night.

The report, which summed up the work carried on by the local club in the past year, was given by George Wilkerson.

Foremost in the report was that through the work of the Blind association last year 62 persons in the county who had been listed as blind because they were unable to carry on their work in a way to support themselves were removed from that category.

Over 368 separate eye examinations were given to persons needing them, but unable to afford the expense. Assistance was given to 250 other persons located in the county.

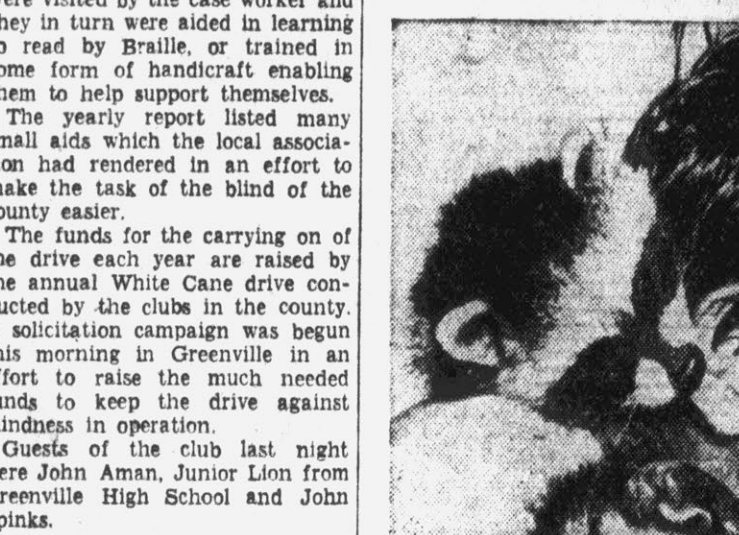

Each year the local club pays part of the salary for a blind case worker to be obtained for work in the county. Miss Jennie Manning, local case worker, was praised for the work which she has conducted in the past year. Over 278 persons were visited by the case worker and they in turn were aided in learning to read by Braille, or trained in some form of handicraft enabling them to help support themselves.

The yearly report listed many small aids which the local association had rendered in an effort to make the task of the blind of the county easier.

The funds for the carrying on of the drive each year are raised by the annual White Cane drive conducted by the clubs in the county. A solicitation campaign was begun this morning in Greenville in an effort to raise the much needed funds to keep the drive against blindness in operation.

Guests of the club last night were John Aman, Junior Lion from Greenville High School and John Spinks.

Typical of this tendency was a statement in New York yesterday by fiery-tongued Soviet deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik to a Baltimore delegation, described as the Maryland committee for peace. He said he favored a meeting between the top leaders of the United States and Russia to negotiate their differences and help achieve full peace. It was presumed that he was talking about President Truman and Marshal Stalin.
