Soviets Charge Airfield Strafed

Protest Note Says American Fighters Damaged Russian Airfield Near Vladivostok Sunday; Demand Punishment For Those Responsible

Moscow, Oct. 10—(AP)—Russia charged today that two American fighter planes strafed and damaged a Soviet airfield near the key Siberian seaport of Vladivostok last Sunday.

A Russian protest note was proffered to U. S. Minister-Counselor Waiworth Barbour last night by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. The note placed the incident 62 miles north of the Soviet-Korean border.

It demanded "strict punishment" for the "responsible personnel" and American assurances against such incidents in the future.

The note said two F-80 Shooting Star jets machinegunning an airfield in the Sukha, a Rechka area at 4:17 p.m. (local time) Sunday.

Sukhaya Rechka is across Novik Bay from Vladivostok and about 18 miles southwest of that important Siberian rail and shipping terminus.

"As a result of the firing, damage was inflicted on airframe equipment," the note declared. It made no mention of casualties.

Barbour declined to accept the note on the grounds the protest was a matter for the United Nations to handle.

Gromyko disagreed, arguing that since the note dealt with the firing by American planes on a Soviet installation, it was the sole concern of the two governments involved.

The note subsequently was sent by the Russians to the U. S. embassy. U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, who had been in bed with a cold, went there early this morning to inform the State Department of the Soviet communication.

It was published in Moscow papers without editorial comment.

Korea has a long common frontier with Manchuria, China, but borders on the Soviet Union for only 20 miles along the extreme northeastern tip of northern Korea.

On Oct. 3 the United States acknowledged that on Aug. 27 American planes fired by accident on a Communist Chinese airstrip in Anlung, Manchuria—far west of the scene of the alleged violation of the Soviet frontier.

The Manchurian incident was protested by the Chinese Communist government. Unlike the Russian notes, its complaint was addressed to the U. N. Security Council rather than to the United States.

The U. S. proposed that a U. N. commission be appointed to make a spot investigation of the Chinese charges, but the proposal was vetoed in the Security Council by Russia.

Yugoslavs Join Support Of Plan Curb Aggression

Lake Success, Oct. 10—(AP)—Communist-governed Yugoslavia joined today with several other small powers in support of a seven-power plan to give the United Nations General Assembly forces to combat aggression.

While supporting the plan's aim of collective security, Yugoslav Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj told the Assembly's Political Committee some of the resolution's provisions were vague. He reserved the right to suggest changes later. Australia, Peru and Brazil offered similar statements of support.

Pacific Parley

Washington, Oct. 10—(AP)—President Truman will meet with General Douglas MacArthur in the Pacific this coming weekend.

White House sources said arrangements have just been completed for a conference of the President and the Commander of the United Nations forces.

Details for the meeting have not been completed, these sources said. When details are complete the White House will have an announcement.

UNC President Gordon Gray Is Installed Today

Ceremony Climaxes Impressive Three-Day Program Of Inauguration

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 10—(AP)—Gordon Gray was formally installed today as the second president of the consolidated University of North Carolina, climaxing an impressive three-day inaugural program.

As leading educators, state and national dignitaries looked on, Gray took the oath of office from Associate Justice William A. Devin of the State Supreme Court. Governor Scott made the formal installation.

Gray, 41-year-old Winston-Salem publisher and ex-secretary of the Army, succeeds Dr. Frank P. Graham now junior senator for North Carolina, as president of the greater University.

The ceremony was held in William Neal Reynolds Coliseum at N. C. State College starting at 10:30 a. m.

Some 1,000 faculty members of the three institutions comprising the Consolidated University and students and alumni were among the vast audience for the induction. It marked the first time that faculties of N. C. State College, Woman's College at Greensboro and the University at Chapel Hill have participated jointly in an academic procession.

More than 400 representatives of colleges and universities from throughout the world and officials of the nation's top-ranking scientific and learned societies were also in attendance.

The invocation was spoken by Dr. Mark Depp, pastor of Centenary Methodist church, Winston-Salem. Music was provided by a band and glee club representing the three units of the Consolidated University.

W. D. Carmichael, Jr., acting president and controller of the Consolidated University, presided over the service here.

Other parts of the inauguration included ceremonies and speeches at the University yesterday and the inaugural sermon at Woman's College Sunday by Dr. Harold W. Tribble, president of Wake Forest College.

Starvation Or Neglect Blamed

Rockingham, N. C., Oct. 10—(AP)—Richmond county sheriff Carl Holland said today that four-month-old twin boys who died in a hospital Saturday may have starved to death or died of neglect.

The twins, a boy and girl, were children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lewis of Cordova. The sheriff said Lewis is an unemployed textile worker.

Board Appoints Ass't Collector

The Board of County Commissioners last night appointed B. L. Tucker, Winterville mayor, as assistant tax collector for the county to succeed the late E. W. Braxton who died last month.

The commissioners made the appointment at a special meeting of the board.

Tucker is at present Mayor of Winterville and is also instructor in the veterans farm training program at the Ayden school. He was appointed to serve for 30 days and thereafter at the pleasure of the board.

The commissioners also canvassed and approved the ballots in a special Griffon school district election. The vote was for issuance of $30,000 in bonds for remodeling and renovation of the white school in the town.

A special registration was held prior to the last Saturday election. Out of 168 persons registered, 121 voted for the bonds and one opposed.

Eighth Million Dollar Sales Day

Well, the Greenville Tobacco Market has done it again. That's right, the local market recorded its eighth million dollar day Monday when sales on the Greenville market went to $1,010,471.64 for a total of 1,702,804 pounds of leaf sold.

The sales yesterday brings the total leaf sold for the past 31 selling days to 49,460,358 pounds with an average of $39.17. The cash paid out to Pitt's farmers during that period amounted to the grand total of $29,056,923.82.

More than one million dollars above last year's entire selling season has already been paid out to local farmers selling on the Greenville market.

With floors clearing daily prices remain higher per grade than they were last year, it was reported today.

Negro Students Refused Entry

Judge Rules College Law Facilities Are 'Equal'

Greensboro, Oct. 10—(AP)—Four Negro students have been denied admission to the University of North Carolina Law School in a ruling handed down in Middle District Federal Court here.

Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes, in ruling against the students yesterday, said that facilities at the Negro law school at North Carolina College were equal to those at the University, and in some instances superior.

Floyd McKissick, Sol Revis, James Leasit and J. Kenneth Lee filed suit against the University and the State Board of Education, in which they charged that facilities at the Negro school were inferior to those at the University.

Attorneys for the students held that the Negroes were being denied their civil rights guaranteed in the 14th amendment of the federal constitution.

Hayes said the court concluded that the Negroes had not been denied equal protection of the law, nor had they been discriminated against in being denied admission to the University.

C. O. Pearson, associate counsel for the Negroes, said yesterday that plans had already been made to take the case to the U. S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. Pearson said the case would probably be heard by the three-judge court at Asheville.

Democracy Funds Harder To Get, Asserts Chairman

Collection of money from county Democrats for sponsoring the First Congressional District political rally next Wednesday is becoming increasingly hard to get.

County Party chairman John G. Clark reported this morning he and the precinct chairmen have been busy during the past few days getting enough of the Democratic coin to make the rally a success. It isn't easy to come by, he stated.

However, he thought the money for the barbecue dinner to be held after the rally will come in soon enough.

The rally will mark the first time the county has been host to the 14 in the District. Several major political lights, past, present and future, will be present on the program. Included are Senators Graham and Hoey, former Senator William Umstead and senatorial candidate Willis Smith. State Party chairman Everett Jordan will preside.

Forming Of Industrial Body Talked

C-of-C Directors Discuss Organization Of Development Corporation

Discussion by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce in its meeting last night centered around the formation of an industrial development corporation in Greenville which will enhance the work of bringing new industries to town.

The industrial committee of the Chamber reported it will hold a special meeting sometime in the near future to discuss the tentative formation of such a corporation with interested representatives of civic clubs.

Chairman J. Edmond Waldrop stated several civic clubs had become interested in such a project and would back it. No date was set for the proposed meeting.

The corporation, if and when it is formed, will continue the work of the latter-day Greenville Industries, Incorporated, which was instrumental in bringing the Full Fashioned Hosiery Company here.

The corporation would have as its sole duty the finding or providing of suitable space and real estate for new industries interested in locating in Greenville and its environs. There would be no operating cost other than the original charter and the yearly payment of franchise fees thereafter.

The committee also reported it is still pushing the location of three garment manufacturing concerns which have shown interest in coming here. At present no definite action has been taken concerning their operation in Greenville. The committee is investigating various sites where they could be located.

A report from the agriculture committee, chaired by Hugh Winslow, stated this year's Junior and Purebred Swine show at the Fair was the most successful of any before it. There were twice as many pigs entered as there were last year by 4-H Club and FFA boys.

The committee also reported it had been discussing the possibility of sponsoring a beef cattle fat stock show. There has never been one in Pitt County, the farmers having to show their cattle for sale at other shows in surrounding counties.

Such a show would be held in the spring of next year, the committee reported. If it is feasible.

The 17 directors present voted to renew the Chamber's sustaining membership in the Pitt Fair Bureau for 1950-51. It also voted to contribute to the annual Merchant's Association Christmas program.

Other business concerned the authorization by the membership committee of increasing the financial and manpower backing of the Chamber. That includes bringing in new members and bringing back old ones.

ROKs Smash Opposition, Take Key City Of Wonsan

Car Turns Over, Occupants Escape Serious Harm

Several persons escaped possible serious injury or death when the car shown above turned over on a rural road near Lang's Cross Roads. Damage to the car, as reported, was over $400. First Cavalry Foot Troopers Run Into Fierce Resistance Just North Of 38; Uncounted Hundreds Surrender After Bitter Battle

Tokyo, Oct. 10—(AP)—South Koreans captured the prize Red Korean port and arsenal city of Wonsan today after smashing the heaviest opposition they have encountered above parallel 38.

To the southwest, U.S. First Cavalry foot troopers ran into fierce resistance just north of 38.

The cavalry's advance with tank, artillery and air support was slowed to a crawl against log pilbox positions set up before the war. This is the line the Communists insisted was for "defense" but which was used as starting blocks for the Red invasion of South Korea June 25.

Wonsan is about 106 miles north of 38 and 96 miles almost due east of the Communist capital, Peking.

It was the center of oil refining in Korea before repeated B-29 strikes smashed its industrial facilities. The port has one of the best natural harbors in the country. A peninsula jutting northward on Wonsan's east side was once a Japanese naval air station.

Wonsan had been red-pencilled, Communist prisoners, as a North Korean forces hoped to make a major defense effort.

But it fell after day and night fighting, street by street, before the rapidly advancing liberators.

Snipers and some heavier teams remained to be cleaned before the city is secure. Allied censors thought the mop-up work complete some time Wednesday.

This would permit a shaping up the harbor and airport for use quickly. It was reported 50 percent of allied bombings earlier in the war, the western end of the 170 mile battlefield, the Reds stalled the line cross-border and American troops along a 25 mile front near Kaesong.

Twenty thousand other Red Korean forces blundered the ROK drive in the center of the peninsula about five miles north of the border.

The road-headed ROKs of the Third and Capital Divisions fanned out on mop-up jobs after routing the bulk of the Red Korean defenders in bitter day-and-night street fighting.

Many Reds fled north and northwest of Wonsan. Uncounted hundreds surrendered. Prisoners said other hold-out groups wanted to give up but hadn't found the opportunity.

U.S. First Cavalry troops were clawed across the border on a 25-mile front near Kaesong were 89-odd air line miles from the Red capital.

Organized Red Korean troops blocking the armored cavalry drive on the main road from Seoul to Pyongyang and the South Korean thrusts in the center of the peninsula were showing no signs of giving up.

AP Correspondent Leaf Frickson reported from western Korea that Reds held-up in their pre-war "defense" chain forced American foot troopers to fight for every yard flanking the main highway.

British and Australian troops were committed to the advancing allied force in this sector, but a spokesman said he could not say whether they were inside Red Korea yet.

In the center of the peninsula, General MacArthur's headquarters said, the Reds had their largest known force—at least 20,000 men—spotted along a 30-odd mile front between Hwachon and Yonchon.

Initial Doctors' Draft Quota Set

Defense Dept. Wants 1,522 For Army In Three Months

Washington, Oct. 10—(AP)—The Defense Department called today for the drafting of 1,522 physicians, dentists and veterinarians for the army during November, December and January.

The total includes 922 physicians, 500 dentists and 100 veterinarians.

The department acted only four days after President Truman set in motion the machinery for the drafting of medical men. The first registration date is Oct. 16.

The department's announcement said the Navy and the Air Force have indicated that they do not presently plan to make similar requests to Selective Service for the induction of the physicians and others.

Induction quotas listed for the army follow: 300 doctors of medicine by November 15; 300 doctors of medicine, 300 doctors of dental surgery or doctors of medical dentistry, and 50 doctors of veterinary medicine by December 15; 322 medical doctors, 300 doctors of dental surgery or medical dentistry, and 50 doctors of veterinary medicine by Jan. 15.

Budget Bureau Slashes Non-Defense Spending

Wife-Slayer Is Given Life Term

State Accepts Lesser Plea By John Frank Green

John Frank Green, 21-year-old Greenville Negro, was sentenced to life imprisonment this morning in Superior Court for the brutal murder of his wife, Victoria Hardy Green, two weeks ago.

Green was indicted for first degree murder after he confessed to investigating officers he had bludgeoned and stabbed his 17-year-old wife to death September 27. He has been held in county jail without privilege of bond awaiting trial.

Defense counsel Kenneth Hite and William Watson, Greenville attorney appointed by the court, entered a plea of accessory before the fact of first degree murder.

The State accepted the plea. Solicitor W. J. Bundy stated he would accept it since, in his opinion, the Negro had not had the "privileges" other persons had had. Other than that fact, he said, he would have pressed for the original indictment.

(Under North Carolina judicial statutes, the plea of accessory before the fact assures a sentence of not less than life imprisonment. The presiding judge is not allowed to lessen it.)

Other cases heard and judgments rendered: Sam Lyon, assault with deadly weapon; $50 and costs.

Jack Freedman, selling wine on election day; $50 and costs.

Eddie Dodson, driving drunk; $100 and costs, license revoked for period of one year.

Mack Clark, Jr., larceny; capias ordered.

Paul Moore, assault with deadly weapon and larceny; not guilty on charge of larceny, 18 months hard labor on first charge.

Stole Enough To Open Own Store

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 10—(AP)—Charlotte detectives said today they had discovered that a 50-year old man had stolen enough merchandise from his employer to open his own store.

They arrested Isair Murray, Negro deliveryman for 11 years for Williams and Sheriton Co., and charged him with embezzlement.

Lieut W. A. McCall said Murray had stolen $4,000 worth of wearing apparel. The officer said the garments were found in a store Murray opened recently. He said Murray admitted he had "lifted" most of the goods.

Delay Inquest On Highway Fatality

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse announced late today that an inquest scheduled for 7:30 at the courthouse tonight to investigate the death last Saturday of Billy Forbes, 24, of Crisp, in an automobile wreck, has been postponed.

William Waters, 37, of Pinetops, alleged driver of the car in which Forbes was killed, has pneumonia. The car, highway patrolmen said, collided with a truck driven by James Robert Harris, 31, of near Greenville.

Announce $580 Million Reduction, More Than $30 Million Cut Ordered By Congress After Voting The Money

Washington, Oct. 10—(AP)—The budget bureau announced today a $580,271,335 cut in non-defense appropriations—$30,271,335 more than the minimum cut Congress ordered after voting the funds.

The bureau's reductions, for the fiscal year ending next June 30, were approved by President Truman. They were spread over 31 agencies in the executive branch which shared in the $35,554,600,425 single package appropriations act to which the cuts applied.

That act made up a large part of the nearly $54,000,000,000 Congress appropriated this year before recessing until Nov. 27.

The biggest slash of all whacked $75,000,000 or half, off the $150,000,000 total voted by Congress for the federal security agency's grants for hospital construction.

Other cuts of $50,000,000 or more: Rural electrification loans of the Agriculture department, $66,427,000; reclamation and power marketing agencies of the Interior department, $6,950,000; Army engineers civil activities, European recovery program (Marshall plan) and relief in occupied areas abroad, $50,000,000 each.

The bureau said, however, the cuts will not require stopping power project work already contracted for by the Army engineers and will not cause any half or slowdown in the interior department's current power projects.

Also, it said the cuts will "limit" the number of new hospital projects which can be accepted "this fiscal year but will not necessitate delay or cancellation of any projects which already have received final approval of the Surgeon General."

Trying For Normalcy

Despite Our Uneasiness, Living In A Twilight Zone Of War And Peace, Most People Are Desperately Willing To Sacrifice Much For A Future Peace

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 10—(AP)—Do you feel that you're living in a kind of world you never knew before, a kind of unreal twilight zone between war and peace, wondering which you're heading for? I do. I guess everyone does.

All we seem to know is that we must be ready for war if war is necessary, hoping that we can become so strong and ready for war that in the end it may be unnecessary.

I felt the uneasiness strongly this past week. I spent the week on a vacation fishing in Virginia on Chickahominy Lake, near Richmond. The black bass are big and rugged there.

This great wilderness—miles of trees standing almost bare, a kind of ghostly watery world—looks as if it has looked for a thousand years, except for new houses on the shore. And it sounds that way, too.

Unseen, the frogs make a long, pained, rough, warm bellow like cows. A deer suddenly crashes through the trees, into a creek, crashes away on the other side.

And when the silence flows back again a great bass shatters it with a leap that drops him back in a shocking splash on the surface of the lake. He's gone when you look. Only the widening circles tell where he was.

This was the natural world, free of men's troubles, although it has troubles of its own: the deer is fleeing from an enemy and the savage and hungry bear made that racket lunging at a minnow.

Still, it gave the illusion of peace far from war or talk of war. And it was good to be there. But then every morning when I came in from early fishing, at breakfast I read the papers from Richmond, 30 miles away.

That jerked me back to the world I lived in. There was the news of war in Korea and preparations for war, if the big war comes.

Because here we work every day on Washington news, because it fills so much of our lives, I guess we come to think of it as something which fills everyone's life everywhere.

The Richmond papers put the picture back in focus for me. Like the front pages of papers everywhere, they gave a lot of attention to Wash-

An Effective Force

The United Nations Now Have A Choice Of Action Which Can Make The Organization Effective In Maintaining Peace Or Remain In Role Of Debating Society

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

This is a crucial moment in the life of the United Nations—one that can make it or render it impotent in the matter of maintaining peace.

That is the significance of the United States proposals now before the General Assembly Political Committee. This program is designed to give the assembly emergency powers to combat aggression.

Specifically it provides, among other things, the creation of standing by U.N. military forces. These would enable the peace organization to apply sanctions to aggression and to back them up.

In short, the U.N. is discussing whether it shall face up to the obligations for which it was created or adopt the role of an international debating society—noisy but ineffective.

But, someone demands, hasn't the U.N. just applied sanctions effectively in the case of Korea?

Yes, and John Foster Dulles, Republican advisor to Secretary of State Acheson, called attention to this in presenting the American program before the Political Committee.

was the pattern for action by the peace organization in the future. However, he said that only a series of accidents made success possible.

These accidents included Russia's boycott of the Security Council in June and her consequent inability to veto the Korean project, the presence of American troops on armistice duty in Japan, and reports from the U.N. commission on Korea.

So the American program is devised to make sure that in future the U.N. won't be dependent on a series of accidents to halt aggression.

As pointed out in previous columns, it was precisely on this point of inability to take sanctions that the late and unlamented League of Nations foundered. It lacked the courage to back up its decisions for peace, a notable example being the manner in which Japan was allowed to get away with her aggression against Chinese Manchuria in 1931.

Sanctions weren't employed because the League had no military forces of its own, and the nations which would have had to enforce sanctions feared it might cause war with Japan. So the League gave the Future Homemakers of America from 14 eastern counties will attend a district F. H. A. rally at Creswell High School in Creswell on Saturday, October 14.

Th program will begin at 10 a. m. and last until 3 p. m. Among the entertainment features will be a talk by Rev. Paul B. Nickens of the Plymouth Baptist church, and a talent show. The business will feature election of a state parliamentarian from District I for the year 1951-52. Toddy Smith, state historian, will preside over the meeting and will also give a report on the national F. H. A. meeting that attended in Kansas City. A luncheon will be served in the school cafeteria.

Miss Winfield To Present Recital
Miss Jayne Winfield, pupil of Mrs. Selby Jones, Washington, N. C., will present a piano recital this evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Woman's Club. Miss Winfield, also a pupil of Edwin Hughes of New York City, will give a program including the works of Beethoven, Schumann, Mendelssohn, and MacDowell.

Her recital comprises the October program of the Greenville Music Club and is the first in a very interesting monthly series announced by Mr. George Perry, program chairman of the club. Program in the near future include a lecture-recital on "The Flute and Flute Literature" by Miss Beatrice Chaucery and a program of Christmas organ music by George Perry. The latter program will be open to the public.

Child Suffers Burns
Little Lillian Gray Sugg, 14-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fodie Harding Sugg, is in Duke hospital where she is undergoing treatment for second degree burns suffered last Tuesday at her home. She overturned a percolator and was burned on her body by the hot coffee.

Last reports from Durham state that she is resting comfortably and recovering satisfactorily.

In general, the U. S. needs to import only special purpose oils such as coconut, palm, castor and olive oils.

Methodist WSCS Has Monthly Meet

The Woman's Society of Christian Service held its October meeting at the church on Monday with Mrs. Ed Batchelor, president, presiding.

In the absence of the vice president, Mrs. W. J. Stell, Mrs. Batchelor presented the devotional and program leaders.

Mrs. George Clapp, using as her theme, "We Are Laborers Together with Christ," gave the meditation.

She reported on the annual N. C. W. S. C. S. conference at Henderson in June, which she attended as a delegate from this society. Among the outstanding leaders which she heard were Bishop W. W. Peele, Mrs. Howard Powell and Miss Katherine Beery, a former missionary to India, who so eloquently pictured the needs of the church both at home and abroad.

Mrs. J. K. Long, who attended the mission school held at Greensboro in September, reported on highlights of the meeting. "The theme for this conference was 'We Seek Him Together.'" She was impressed by the earnestness and seriousness of the women who attended and by the magnitude and scope of the work of the W. S. C. S.

Mrs. F. P. Brooks, who also attended the same school as a district delegate, brought messages from Mrs. Paul Arrington, who led the study on the work in rural areas and in the small community churches.

Following these highlights, local society secretaries reported on monthly work. Mrs. Long, secretary of missionary education, announced the first mission study course dates. This study, to be held in cooperation with the women of the Christian church, will begin on Tuesday, October 17, and will last for four consecutive days. On Tuesday and Friday the study classes will be held at the Methodist church; on Wednesday and Thursday the sessions will be at the Christian church. The theme for the study is "Toward a Christian Community."

Announcements were also made about the observance of United Nations day to be held throughout the United States on October 24, and of the World Community Day service to be held at Meadowbrook Presbyterian church on November 3, at which time Miss Ernelle Brooks will be the featured speaker.

Miss Mamie Chandler, spiritual life leader, announced dates for the week of prayer and self-denial. This will be observed on October 26 and 27.

Following the circle reports, a social hour of fellowship was enjoyed when the hospitality committee served tea and cookies.

Scout Jamboree Report Is Heard By Rotary Club

Two boy scouts and two scouters of Greenville and the East Carolina Council last night spoke to members of the Rotary club on the National Jamboree held this summer, and scouting in the Pitt district.

President Floyd Hendrix last night presided at the meeting of the club, and the program was in the charge of the youth service committee.

Scouts Joe Taft and Jimmy Phelps and Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Whichard made brief reports to the club on the activities of the boys who attended the national jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa. during the past summer. Scout Executive Ralph Mosso of Wilson, head of the council organization, reported to the club on the activities of scouting in this district and urged the continued support of scouting activities by the club.

Joe Taft, Jr., who attended the Jamboree as a member of the Eastern North Carolina troop, pointed out that the gathering in Valley Forge was made up of 47,000 boys from all states of the union and 15 foreign nations. The spirit of co-operation, he said, learned by the boys who attended the jamboree, was taken back to every community.

Mrs. L. A. Moye, Maury, N. C. Mrs. Lath Morris, Mrs. F. M. Davis, Jr., Mrs. Robert Whitehead and Mr. and Mrs. Z. M. Whitehurst, Farmville, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Kittrell, Mrs. B. Guy Taylor and Miss Henrietta Taylor, Ayden, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Gaines and Miss Sue Gaines, Tarboro, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy T. Cox, Mr. Reilly Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cox, and Mr. and Mrs. Dixie McGlohon, Winterville, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bourne, Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Corbitt, Jr., Henderson, N. C.

Mrs. J. A. Staton, Mrs. C. G. Garrenton, and Mrs. Clara Roberson, Bethel, N. C.

in the nation and will be installed in the other scouts by those who attended the jamboree.

Jimmy Phelps, a patrol leader at the jamboree, told of the various displays and exhibits brought to the jamboree by the scouts from the different sections of the country and from the foreign countries.

"The jamboree," he said, "brought the boys together and made them feel like brothers. It gave them an opportunity to learn about each other."

Jack Whichard, an assistant scoutmaster of one of the jamboree troops, reviewed some of the jamboree activities. He said the jamboree took two years of planning, and brought together the largest gathering of youths ever held in the western hemisphere. In addition, it was the largest single group of people in the history of the world to be encamped in tents. "There was a great spirit of friendliness between the American boys and the boys of the 14 other nations," he declared. "And in that friendliness we hope will be reflected the work for world peace in years to come."

Scout Executive Mosso told the Rotarians there are 27,000 boys in the East Carolina Council each year who reach boy scout age. "So far this council has spent less money per boy than any other council in the southeastern United States. He pointed out, however, that last year the council showed a 50 per cent increase in the number of boys in scouting, and this year a 20 per cent increase already has been shown. "The more we can get scouting in our rural communities, the more we will grow," he declared.

Mosso paid tribute to the scoutmasters who work with the individual troops and the other scout leaders who work with the scouting movement.

During the meeting President Hendrix presented Carl Adams with a pin for two years perfect attendance at Rotary meetings.

Guests of the club at the meeting were Scoutmaster Bill Drum, Dave Whichard, Joe Jenkins, Reid Laney, District Commissioner Jack Dowdy, Dr. John Woolen of Baltimore Md., Junior Rotarian Zack Taft, and visiting Rotarians.

One of the goals of television experimenters is three-dimensional pictures. Several demonstrations of it already have been made.

Magazine Sale By Junior Class

The annual magazine sale, sponsored by the Junior class of Greenville high school, got off to a start yesterday with subscriptions totaling $238.85 being sold, while today's sales made a grand total of $662.90.

The Juniors, headed by the home-room captains, hope to top the $2,000 quota set for the class.

These captains are Jesse Moy and Mital Sue Taylor in room 25 with Nancy Proctor and Heler Stokes heading the sale in room 12. The sale in room 14 is being guided by Tom Brown and Barbara Batchelor.

Miss Frances Smith, adviser to the sale, said when asked if she had any comments, "The class will appreciate all the response the people of Greenville can give them."

The sale is made annually by the Junior class in order to raise funds for the Junior-Senior banquet and dance.

The class officers are Donald Tucker, president; Glenn Scott, vice-president; Frances Estelle Green, treasurer; and Barbara Batchelor secretary.

O'Dwyer Offers To Testify In New York Graft Investigation

New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—Former Mayor William O'Dwyer, making a dramatic plane flight back to the city, says he is available to testify in the Brooklyn grand jury investigation of gambling graft payments to police during his administration.

But he has not received any request to be a witness, he says. O'Dwyer, who soon is to take up his duties as ambassador to Mexico, arrived here by plane from Washington yesterday after a vacation in California.

He told a special news conference that he is sorry he ever had called the Brooklyn gambling and graft investigation a "witch hunt." He said he now thinks the grand jury is doing a "magnificent job." The ex-mayor declared he has "nothing but the highest compliments" for the grand jury, District Attorney Miles F. McDonald and County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz.

O'Dwyer said his charge of "witch hunt" and "Hitlerian tactics" in the probe came last July during an "emotional moment," which was "most unfortunate."

O'Dwyer who left office last Aug. 29, said that when he resigned he had no idea that the current police graft scandal would break. He said that when he assailed McDonald's handling of the probe he was upset about the deaths of two policemen.

The probe has turned up a widening scandal since O'Dwyer left. One of McDonald's revelations has been a $20,000,000 a year gambling syndicate which allegedly paid $1,000,000 a year to police for protection.

Handicapped Aid Film Shown Club

The Greenville Lions Club last night was shown a film dealing with the training and readjustment of handicapped persons over the nation.

The movie shows a person from the time they are injured and the tiresome process that they go through in an effort to regain the use of themselves in an effort to becoming self-supporting.

The movie entitled "The Come-back" clearly shows the work being carried on by the federal and state employment offices dealing with the handicapped persons and the progress being made.

John Fleming of the local employment office talked to the club briefly before the showing of the film. The program was in charge of H. B. Williams.

A report from the Blind fund campaign revealed that more than $1800 has been collected so far in the drive with the goal of $2,000 nearly filled, pending the receipt of reports not yet in.

Official plans have been placed into operation for the sponsorship of the Gene Krupa dance here on November 9 in one of Greenville's warehouses, the site which will be announced at a future date.

Guests of the club last night were Bill Mobley, Harry Thomas and John Fleming.

Elections Board Set For Nov. 7

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 10—(AP)—So far as the state elections board is concerned, everything is ready for the Nov. 7 general election.

Raymond L. Maxwell, secretary of the state board of elections, announced yesterday that 1,601,000 ballots are already in the hands of the county election boards.

Maxwell said the names of Willis Smith and E. L. Gavin, Democratic and Republican Senatorial nominees, head the ballots.

Registration is scheduled to begin at polling places throughout the state Saturday. Registration books will be open for three successive Saturdays.

Cooler Weather

The weather man predicted cooler weather for Eastern Carolina and that kind of weather is on the way. The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 81 degrees. Lowest last night, 49, and at 8 a.m. today it was 54.

The highest temperature here a year ago yesterday was 84 degrees. Lowest during that night was 61 and at 8 a.m. the next day it was 68.

There was a considerable difference in temperature in the two periods. There was little difference in the high temperature of the afternoon. It was 12 degrees cooler here last night than a year ago, and at 8 a.m. today it was 19 degrees cooler than at the same time last year.

Light Docket In Police Court

In Police Court yesterday, Judge J. W. H. Roberts gave Ben Kinton, charged with vulgar and profane language, 30 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $10 costs and pay $12 to Sylvester Wilson.

Everne Lane, colored, non-support, 90 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $7 a week to the County Welfare office for support of his child, and the court placed him on probation for three years.

Leon Davis, colored, failure to pay taxi fare, ordered to pay $15 costs and $15 for the use of Henry H. Craft, Jr.

Herbert Drewery, colored assault on a female, paid $15 and the court ordered him not to molest or be in the presence of Dollie Drewery for a year.

The case against Willie C. Blow, colored, charging reckless driving, was not pressed with leave.

Drunk: Otis H. Smith, 30 days on the roads, appealed; Bonnie R. McGowan, $15; Charles B. Allen, $15; Sam Gay, colored, $15; Lindsay Blount, colored, $15; Roland Tyson, 30 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $20; Roosevelt Roberson, colored $15.

aggressive intentions, "then they will want the protection that these proposals will afford."

After Dulles finished his presentation Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky told the committee that Russia favors some points in the American program.

The foreign minister didn't amplify this statement, which created both surprise and puzzlement. Some wondered whether the Soviet was making a virtue of necessity, inasmuch as the veto can't be used in the assembly proceedings to block any measure.

Hears Recording Of Last Rites

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 10—(AP)—W. F. Barnum of Fort Worth was unable to leave his hospital bed to attend the funeral of his wife who died Sunday.

However, yesterday afternoon relatives, friends and Barnum's minister, the Rev. Warren Johnston, gathered in his hospital room and Barnum listened to a full phonograph recording of the services.

Mrs. Barnum, 80, was a well known Bible teacher in the Methodist Church.

Shah Of Iran Is Engaged To Wed

Tehran, Iran, Oct. 10—(AP)—The 30-year old Shah of Iran announced today that he is engaged to Harry Saroya Estandari, 19 year old half-European daughter of an Iranian tribal leader.

An official court communique announcing the engagement gave no date for the wedding. It will be the Shah's second marriage.

Phone Company Asks Rate Hike

Raleigh, Oct. 10—(AP)—Norfolk and Carolina Telephone Company of Elizabeth City has asked the State Utilities Commission for permission to increase its rates $82,000 annually.

A hearing is scheduled Thursday morning. The company serves about 8,290 telephone users in the Elizabeth City area.

Trying For . . .

(Continued From Page One) ington and Virginia have a lot of problems of their own, problems and conflicts which interest the people of Richmond and Virginia, also, and affect their lives. So room was made on the front pages for them, too.

Which is another way of saying, I suppose, that people outside Washington are interested in a lot more than just what happens here, although we here may forget that.

But the front page of a Richmond paper or a paper anywhere tells pretty well the kind of lives we're leading now.

The people are much concerned with what's happening close to them, very much concerned and interested, and concerned and interested about what's happening in Washington and the rest of the world.

And as they go, not knowing whether their road leads to war or eventual peace, they still try to live in this twilight zone the same kind of normal lives they had in any usual peacetime day.

Several people who knew I was from Washington asked me if I thought we were going to have war with Russia. I told them I didn't know and didn't know of anyone in Washington or anywhere else who could answer that.

The question, of course, came out of a yearning for some kind of certainty about the future, even if the answer had been the certainty of war. But I heard little talk of Washington or government or Russia or war.

I got the feeling — and you who read this miles from Washington will know the answer better than I — that people are trying to live their lives normally willing to make great sacrifices if necessary to have in the end a peaceful world, not talking a great deal about the future.

An Effective . . .

more ways than one that they are behind the effort to build the college. The college at the present time is receiving from the people of Greenville more support, both financial and moral, than at any time since it opened its doors over 40 years ago.

ECTC is receiving more of the type of support it deserves from the people of Greenville. In ECTC we have an institution of which to be proud, and with the proper support the institution will continue its growth.

The members of the stadium committee in raising the funds for the athletic scholarships have rendered not only a great service to the college, but a service to the people of Greenville as well. Those who contributed to the scholarship drive are doing a great deal, not only for the college and its future, but for the future of Greenville and Pitt county as well.

How Big Business Figures Its Books

Are you among those who believe that profits and dividends to stockholders are among the biggest items in the ledger sheets of industry?

Some organized groups and uninformed speakers would have you think so, but the fact is that they are among the smallest.

As an example, here's a breakdown on a 1949 financial report of a corporation which is one of the most successful in the world . . . having a $5.7 billion income in 1949, and manufactures a multitude of items.

About fifty percent of the total income went to supplies; a shade over 26 percent went to employees; 10-percent-plus went to government for taxes; a shade under two percent was set aside for depreciation; about six percent went to the owners of the company (comprising 434,000 stockholders); and finally, the remaining five percent was retained for use in the business.

The owners received only about a fourth as much as the workers, and not much more than half as much as government. Yet, as a matter of fact, the corporation had a better profit record than the average big business of this country.

Next time you hear bitter denunciation of "capitalistic industry" remember that you are getting only one side of the picture. A version that overlooks the whole story of production and its sharing of profits for all who are associated with it in any way.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

By ROGER WARREN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—The proposal to decentralize governmental Washington will be pushed with renewed vigor when Congress resumes sessions next month. There is a lot of Congressional sentiment for it and it only needs a low growl from the Kremlin to get it started.

Initial plans are already prepared and all it needs is $140,000,000 to start it. A lot of Congressmen believe that it would be better for the government to spread Washington across the countryside than to let Joe Stalin do it.

TARGET—Plans now drawn call for building four groups of governmental buildings outside the range of atomic damage, assuming that downtown Washington is a prime target.

They do not propose, as some have concluded, the building of government suburban towns. The government would simply erect the buildings and assume that towns would spring up around them. They would, building priorities permitting.

The plans do call for the linking of these new government buildings with each other and with the rest of Washington with government-financed highways. The government may also add water, sewage and other facilities if the states and counties could not provide them.

SECRET—The plans are secret. Every detailed plan is stamped "Restricted" and showing them to an unauthorized person would cause the culprit to lose his government job if not his freedom.

The General Services Administration which has charge of the project, isn't afraid of Russian spies. In fact, once work is started, the buildings can probably be located by asking any taxi driver.

What the GSA is afraid of is real estate speculators. If the sites became known before the government got an option on them, the land values would double and triple.

But here is a clue: Administrator Jess Larson told the Senate Appropriations Committee they would be within commuting distance from Washington. Forty minutes or an hour away, he said.

VALUES—The decentralization plan is not, as has been erroneously reported, a scheme to protect government job-holders. While it would not be politic for it to say so, the GSA regards government workers as expendable. The plan contemplates leaving 80 per cent of government workers in target areas.

The chief purpose is to reduce the possibilities of the effectiveness of an attack.

That has two values. If the proper units are scattered outside of Washington, the government can keep functioning even after an atomic blast. In addition, once the Russians hear that key agencies are hidden in the rolling Maryland and Virginia countryside, they will be less tempted to slip Washington an atomic mick.

SCATTERED—The plans, as of today, call for placing essential units of the Executive Office of the President, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the FBI, the Central Intelligence Agency, State Department and Congress in the scattered suburban buildings.

When Mr. Larson included the legislators in his plans, Senators were quick to jump to their feet and declare it was their duty to the nation to remain at their posts.

Nevertheless, the Senators listened to his proposal with keen attention and one brought up the matter of building an atom-bomb shelter in the proposed new Senate Office Building.

SPACE—The GHS has another argument for starting this dispersal as soon as possible. Government office space is at a premium now, and some 20,000 additional employees have been requested by defense agencies.

The only way the government can get more office space is to cut the square-foot-per-person ratio (it's now 110 square feet per worker), to put offices in warehouses, to condemn several office buildings now nearing completion, or to build more temporary shacks.

The temporary buildings, or "tempo," which now line the Mall are nearing the end of their usefulness and already their upkeep exceeds that of office buildings.

But building the dispersed buildings now, the government can house the 20,000 expected government workers and provide space for from 17,500 to 20,000 more now in tempo.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The other night Charlie Horne asked me how it was possible to have a new daughter and write about her so seldom. My answer: "It ain't easy!" Since Nancy is one month old today, I have an excuse to put her in print again.

Instead of ordering a boy or a girl, Wife Rachel and I ordered a normal baby, and that's what we received. However, if we had ordered a boy and got Nancy, it wouldn't have mattered. We're not sending her back, and she's not for sale. We've had several attractive offers, like $20,000, but they were not considered.

People ask us how Nancy is, and we say, "Fine. She sleeps all day and howls all night." If it's a parent who asked, they reply, "All of 'em do that."

When a few grandparents are around and it's Nancy's feeding time, it becomes a contest to see who'll get the job. All of us offer to do it, strictly as a favor to the other, but all the time we are hoping to win out. Believe it or not, there are also plenty of people around to change pants. Nancy is currently using ten dozen diapers a week, so there are numerous opportunities in this respect.

One of the most interesting aspects of new parenthood is the advice you get from other parents. They give you a five-minute summary on how to raise children. Oddy enough, you usually pick up something useful with every one of these lectures.

The average new baby, so they tell me, lets you get just enough sleep to keep you going. Every other night they keep still long enough to let you get enough sleep to last until two nights later. You wake up in the morning feeling like a truck hit you, but with plenty of energy to play with the baby if she wants to play.

They say that all new babies look alike. They mean all new babies but Nancy. She looks like W.R. The only thing of mine she has is big feet, but it's nice to know that the thing of mine she has will usually be covered with shoes, at least I hope so.

The arrival of a new baby can completely change the atmosphere of a household. If you think your home is happy, wait until the baby comes. Honestly, I think a new baby would melt the biggest bully in town.

About the only thing that remains the same around our house is that the same bills come in every month. But don't believe that three can live as cheaply as two. Nowadays there are new oils coming in that we never heard of before. But let me repeat: Nancy is not for sale.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, N. C.

UNDERPAID—Governor Scott is plugging hard for the constitutional amendment providing more adequate compensation for members of the general assembly, and other speakers with the Democratic caravan making the district rallies have put in a good word for the proposal. Secretary of State Thad Eure adds his bit through preparation of a mimeographed sheet, which has been mailed to every candidate for the legislature of both parties and other political leaders, showing that at present forty states and four territories pay their legislators more than does North Carolina. When the pending amendment is adopted and the new pay scale is made effective, North Carolina will still be paying less than twenty states and two territories, and the Tarheel will still be less than the average for all states. Furthermore, this is the only state which makes no provision for travel pay of legislators, according to Mr. Eure's findings.

BARBECUE—Several years ago Stag Ballentine, then lieutenant governor and now commissioner of agriculture, suggested that for North Carolina at least the emblem of the Democratic party should be changed from the donkey or mule to a pig—because of the contribution barbecued pig makes to the political meetings throughout the state. Now comes a writer in the News and Observer proposing that if congressmen want to make a hit with the officials following the current tour of Democratic district rallies, they should switch from barbecue to fried fish or steamed oysters. That reporter overlooks the main objective of these meetings. Neither the party leaders are seeking to please the dozen or so officials and newspaper men who make all the rallies. The appeal is directed to the thousands of voters who attend the rallies from throughout the district. And each time there is a different crowd, except for the official group. Not only do Tarheels like barbecue, but it is the easiest food to serve to several thousand people.

SPEECHES—The traveling reporters would like to have a change in the speeches, too. Point is, the speakers are not directing their appeal to the reporters—but to the hundreds of people in the audience who had not attended previous meetings, and probably will not attend another during the year. One state official commented that it would be a lot easier for him and his colleagues if the meetings were set up on a two-a-day and get through with the business in half the time. Then he remembered that the itineraries was not designed to serve his convenience, but that of the people in the districts.

COMPETITION—Mecklenburg county ABC stores are faced with serious competition this fall, not from bootleggers and private liquor stores in South Carolina, but from special elections in the city of Charlotte. Six or seven Saturdays have been "killed" for ABC business by reason of special elections on bond issues for schools, parks, street and sewer work, auditorium, and similar community projects. State law requires the stores to be closed on election days, and since there are no ABC stores in Mecklenburg outside the city of Charlotte, that means no sales at all on the election Saturdays. Naturally, Saturday is the big day for liquor selling, most people who drink the stuff at all using more when they are not on regular work schedules. One Mecklenburger interested in legal control of liquor with profits for tax reduction instead of bootlegger income said the successive Saturday special elections reduced ABC sales $25,000 to $75,000 each time. Advance buying cuts down the total loss, but his opinion is that if the elections were scheduled for mid-week it would not materially affect the number of votes cast and would cut down bootleg activity and out-of-county buying liquor. The situation has further anomaly in that all the elections call for additional tax levies while legal sales of liquor contribute to tax reduction.

REVENUE—The item of general fund revenue derived from liquor sales has perhaps been played up too much, but it cannot be ignored. From Columbia comes a story that South Carolina authorities are perturbed over the drop in revenue from cigarette and whiskey taxes.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Even before the Korean buying panic erupted, the building-materials industry was enjoying an inflation of its own. Now it's one of the first areas to run into a spell of deflation.

Some types of lumber have been marked down 10-15 per cent recently, and further cuts are expected to follow the anticipated cut in home building.

In fact, Thomas Holden, head of F. W. Dodge Corp., the building-industry's leading statistical agency, believes that there will be a definite surplus in construction materials in 1951. He points out that prices soared because the building industry was already in a big boom when the Korean-born buying panic erupted.

When prices start sliding, big order backlogs have a habit of suddenly evaporating. Mr. Holden reminds, a phenomenon which also is occurring in the automobile, appliance and furniture trades at this moment. Panic creates a fictitious demand.

The first price cuts in the building-materials field have been more noticeable at mill than at retail lumberyards. But pretty soon, trade authorities predict, you'll be able to call up your favorite yard and order Douglas fir 2x4's or whatever you need, at a little lower charge.

How long that will last, this department refuses to predict.

WHAT'S A STORE'S BEST MONEY-MAKER?

What's the best money-maker in a department store? A top merchandising executive of one store (Jacome's, in Tucson) recently opened up and reported he finds the cosmetics and toiletries department is one of the most profitable. One secret of success with such a department, he said, is to put it front where women must pass it on the way to make other purchases.

BE CANDID ABOUT FINISHES

How durable is the so-called "durable" water-repellent finish on rainwear?

Well, it's more durable than non-durable finishes, and will last through several cleanings, but it's not actually durable. If you want to be precise about it.

That's the case with a number of other new finishes now appearing in clothing fabrics. Such recent developments as shrink-resistant finishes, crease-resistant ones, etc., all are excellent contributions to improving our wardrobes, and to make strong selling points.

But at the same time, some of the professionals at the recent convention of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists, warned that sellers should be completely candid about these new finishes, and tell consumers about their limitations as well as their advantages. SERVICE DEPT.

SHORTAGE HEDGE

For any retailer of durable goods, whether bedding, autos, furniture, appliances, or what, a service department means an excellent hedge against the possibility of recurring inflation-shortage crises in the immediate years ahead.

Even if serious shortages do not occur, the fact that price trends are upward increases the value of goods consumers already own, and encourages them to repair, renovate and generally use them longer. If supplies do tighten seriously, then a recognized service department with an established niche in the community may mean the difference between having something to sell, or curtailing operations drastically.

For merchants who already have service departments, that means improving and building them up. For those who don't have them, that means carefully exploring the methods of operating and promoting one—a good one—perhaps in collaboration with someone already experienced and capable in this field.

Hal Boyle's Column

Korea—(AP)—A young American officer has returned safely after spending 69 incredible days alone behind Red lines.

With no weapon but his courage Second Lt. Joseph Elbert Hicks, a 25-year-old platoon leader from Coden, Ill., stoically endured every hardship rather than surrender.

"I would rather have starved," he said grimly.

And perhaps he would have starved except for a loyal young South Korean who brought him food and saved his life by moving him from one mountain hideaway to another whenever danger of capture grew near.

For security reasons this native patriot cannot be identified now. But he risked the lives of himself and his wife and six small children to help the American.

"He is the only reason I am alive today," said Hicks gratefully. "I had to depend on his thinking and initiative rather than my own. And we could talk to each other only by gestures and by drawing pictures on the ground with sticks."

Hicks who served with the Marines in the last war, looked like a storybook hermit when he came down out of the hills after nearly ten weeks. His black hair fell to his shoulders. He had a thick matted beard. And only thin tatters of his fatigues uniform still clung to his 6-foot-1-inch frame.

The first six days of his ordeal he had nothing at all to eat. The rest of the time he had lived almost entirely on rice. But he made a rueful discovery:

"Why, I've gained weight!"

But Hicks was far below his normal 175 pounds when his adventurous saga began. For more than three weeks he and his men had been fighting desperate delaying withdrawals in concert with the rest of the remnants of the shattered American 24th Infantry Division.

They were among the heroes who came out of the siege of burning Taejon alive. And they still had the lonely mission of making further defensive stands to give the army time to rush reinforcements from Japan and America.

In the early hours of July 29 Lieutenant Hicks and his platoon were in a pitifully small force assigned the impossible task of outpost Kohchang, a city 50 miles southwest of Taegu, the provincial capital.

The vanguard of several Red divisions rushing south trying to seize the vital port at Pusan simply flowed around them, encircled the city and blew up the river bridge behind them on the escape route to Taegu.

Hicks fell back to the river, divided his men into squads and waited until his own squad was almost over to the far bank before starting across the stream himself. On the other side they were caught in a rice paddy by Red machinegun fire and all were killed, wounded or captured except Hicks.

"I escaped by crawling into a small road culvert," he said. "It was almost filled with water and there was only about four inches between the water and the ceiling of the culvert. I stayed there until dark with just my face out of the water so I could breathe."

Enemy troop convoys rolled over the culvert as Red patrols prowled about. A bright moon was shining when Hicks crawled out. And there were so many enemy moving through that he had gone only 300 feet before he had to hide again—this time under a roadside strawpile.

"It overhung a ditch," recalled Hicks, "and I sat hunched against the ditch wall under the straw without food for six or seven days. I kind of lost track of time."

He finally emerged when heavy enemy traffic slowed and there was no full moon to keep him from travelling at night. He was so weak he fell while trying to cross the road. He crawled to a stream and drank the first water he had had since his canteen went dry four days before.

That revived him. He got a meal of rice from a peasant hut, then walked for two nights across the mountains. But enemy troops grew more numerous as he approached the Nakdong river. He couldn't get through. It was then he met the young South Korean. On his advice Hicks hid out in the hills.

The Korean brought him rice every few days and kept him posted on war developments by a crawling map on the ground. Twice he found the lieutenant fresh hiding places when searching Red patrols probed near.

Hicks donned a white robe and a peasant straw hat. He marched for several miles with his friend past retreating enemy stragglers. Then he met some South Korean police who took him to an American command post.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Helen Bullock is one of those rare persons who wakes up in the morning and says to herself, "Oh, goody, I'm going to work."

That's because she's always had jobs that were "right up her alley." For 10 years she was archivist of colonial Williamsburg, Va., coordinating historical, architectural and archeological material with American culture.

She catalogued all the Thomas Jefferson papers at the University of Virginia, which Jefferson founded and at the Library of Congress since leaving the University in 1941.

Now she is taking leave of her job at the library as assistant in the manuscript division, where she'd had charge of all presidential papers from John Adams to President Andrew Jackson, to take on a new job . . . this one more pleasing to her than any of the others.

She will be chief of the historical branch of the "younger and eager, small and growing" National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings. This is a private philanthropic research project sponsored by more than 60 learned societies, with headquarters at the American Institute of Architects office in the capital's historic Octagon house.

The council sponsored the National Trust for Historic Preservation of the U. S., which was incorporated by Congress in 1949 as a private non-governmental holding body for sites, buildings or objects significant in American history and culture. Its job also is to arouse public opinion when loss or destruction of important historic sites and buildings is threatened.

David Finley, director of the National Gallery of Art, is president of the council. Gen. U. S. Grant III, president of the National Park and Planning Commission, is president of the trust.

"If I had sat down and dreamed up the kind of job I most wanted to do, I couldn't have dreamed up one which would please me more," Miss Bullock told me. "I'm keen about it. I'm not interested in historical buildings as such, however. What I'm interested in is the whole business of preserving the things that mean something in the American culture."

What Other Papers Are Thinking

PUBLICLY PLACED OBSTACLES

(Greensboro Daily News)

Judge Henry A. Grady gave what from this distance appears to have been a deserved reprimand to jurors in Pitt County Superior Court who failed to convict a single defendant charged with drunken driving.

In open court Judge Grady declared: "You can't convict a man in this county for drunken driving. The jurors don't want to take a man's driver's license away from him."

The jurist, it is related in press dispatches, voiced his criticism after six cases of drunken driving came up for disposal. As summarized, one case was continued, four were terminated in the defendants pleading guilty of lesser offenses, and in one case the principal did admit a drunken driving charge and have a $100 fine and revocation of his license meted out to him. His must have been an aggravated offense indeed, though, since he submitted in the light of what had been happening to other defendants. Or could it have been that he was without legal advice or knowledge?

Where these defendants were allowed to submit to lesser charges, which would not result in their deprivation of license, the State itself, through the solicitor, had to be a party to alteration of the charges. Evidently Judge Grady was convinced that conviction on the more serious charge could not be secured and the court was thus willing to get the defendants for what it could. Due recognition of the realities involved does not answer the question, though, of whether the State should not have pressed the drunken driving charges anyway, left the responsibility up to the jury, and then given the court fuller opportunity for reprimand or dismissal if the verdict were sharply out of line with the evidence.

Any way one looks at the exhibit, however, it shows the difficulties facing law enforcement officers and the obstacles to protecting life, limb and property on the highways when the public itself, with jurors representing its attitude, places those obstacles. It is too bad that a jury composed of persons whose cars have been hit or whose loved ones have been killed or injured by drunken drivers could not have the opportunity to pass upon these potential killers whom some jurors will not convict because they do not wish to deprive them of their driver's licenses.

Notre Dame's Standing Has Swift Drop In Football Poll

New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—The mid-west's post-war stranglehold was broken today and a wide open battle shaped up for National college football honors.

Four-time champion Notre Dame plummeted to tenth place in the weekly Associated Press poll while Army took over as the No. 1 team in the country.

The midlands, which have furnished the mythical titleholder nine of the 15 times since 1936 and continuously since the last war, were out of contention.

Their best showing in the top was No. 9, held down by the Purdue team that splintered Notre Dame's reign with a 18-14 victory last Saturday at South Bend.

The stoutest challenge to Army's position came from the Southwest, which put three unbeaten titans—Southern Methodist, Oklahoma and Texas—on the Cadets' heels.

Here's the latest rundown of gridiron might, with every section represented:

Army, SMU, Oklahoma, Texas, Kentucky, Stanford, California, Maryland, Purdue and Notre Dame.

Army, recognized national champion in 1945, will risk its newly gained height in New York's Yankee Stadium against Michigan, co-champion of the big ten and tops

Dole Praises Offensive Play Against Big Elon

'Tough To Lose When We Could Have Won' Says East Carolina Coach; Will Require Films To Analyze Mistakes

By BILL LLOYD

East Carolina lost its first North State contest of the season Saturday night, with Elon the victor, 21-16, but the margin of triumph didn't come easy for the Christians.

Coach Bill Dole's charges played well, and scrapped down to the wire, before falling to an already heralded Elon eleven.

It was a great show from the spectators' standpoint, as they didn't even notice the continuous misty rain falling, as they watched the Pirates' passer super deluxe, Roger Thrift, time and time again target long aeriels to Ends Frank Maennle and Dwight Shoe, who made spectacular catches off the opponents' shoulders and on their shoe tops.

During the second quarter, Elon ran the ball only thirteen times, with the Pirates in possession the rest of the period. The Pirates threatened three times during this period before scoring a TD on Fullback Tom Swain's 10-yard run, and adding three points with less than a minute left, on a beautiful 17-yard field goal by Buck Hardee. Cecil Winslow partially blocked one Elon punt to set up one score before the Pirates bogged down on the 11.

Turning point of the tilt came after four minutes of play in the third stanza, with Elon's Fred Biangardi going over from the one-yard stripe.

Coach Dole summarized the turning point like this:

"The ability of Biangardi to pick up yardage on plunges in the third quarter was the turning point in the game, for it's hard to score when you don't have the ball."

Dole went on to say, "It's hard to

New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns, who a few months ago were dabbling with a psychiatrist, welcomed a Metropolitan Opera star into the organization today.

Blonde Helen Traubel said she's always loved the Browns and so she bought a "nice chunk" of stock "mostly to satisfy a sentimental urge."

There was plenty of unofficial word that the Sox next pilot will be Paul Richards, former big league catcher and manager of the Seattle club in the Pacific Coast League. Richards almost had the job a year ago after Jack Onslow was fired.

And Here Is Another Successful Business Man Helped By HADACOL..

He Suffered Deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

Jacob Goldberg should have been a very happy man. At an age when most men are still struggling to make a living, he was able to retire from his Chicago metal business to his beautiful 150 acre estate at Music Mountain, near Hot Springs National Park, Ark.

But at a time when life should have showered its greatest blessings on him, he met with unhappiness. He became run down through a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron and as a result food had no appeal to him and he tried many expensive ways of overcoming his discomfort.

Then he saw the blessings that inexpensive HADACOL had brought to his daughter and many of his friends, who had such deficiencies. Life is more pleasant for Mr. Goldberg today, but let him tell you about it, himself. Here is how he overcame these deficiencies:

"I was generally run down some time ago. I lost appetite and my food just did not digest. I knew I needed food but even the tastiest dishes had no appeal to me. I have been coming to Hot Springs since 1937 and now make my home in that city. Recently I just about gave up hope of feeling well and happy again. I had tried almost everything. I decided on HADACOL because it had helped my daughter and many friends. I have never regretted the decision. I am hungry all the time after taking only four bottles of HADACOL. I have back my old pep and vigor and all food agrees with me. I have recommended HADACOL to many of my friends and see the good it is doing."

Yes, HADACOL Does Help thousands and thousands of fine folks who are suffering from deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron. HADACOL is wonderful in the way it builds up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body—to the heart, liver, kidneys and lungs. Today, even hundreds of doctors are recommending HADACOL to their patients.

You Owe It To Yourself . . . to give HADACOL a chance. Refuse substitutes, don't let anyone tell you something else is "just as good." Insist on genuine HADACOL. You risk nothing because HADACOL is sold only on a strict money-back guarantee. You'll feel better with the first few bottles you take or your money back. Trial size only $1.25. Large Family or Hospital size, $3.50.

Eppes Girds For Tarboro Contest

Last week Eppes' Bulldogs worked overtime preparing for Friday's tough game with the Tarboro Rams. The Rams have been boasting their heavy line that battled Rocky Mt. to a 0-0 deadlock.

Coaches Crowder, Dantels and Eden are leaving nothing undone. Last week Coaches Eden and Crowder worked very hard developing a defense to stop Tarboro's running attack. At the same time Coach Daniels never let the backs rest. They were strengthening their pass defense and running attack, with plenty of new stuff added that is expected to boost the team's strength considerably.

The coaches announced the loss of Johnnie Jones, one of their key ends, who will be out the rest of the season with a leg injury. Jones is described as a leg of player that most coaches dream of. He does everything well. Eppes Green will probably take his place. At the present time he is doing a very good job.

There were no standouts in last week's workout. The team's spirit is very high and all the players are taking Tarboro very seriously.

Yankee Hurler Is Army 'Prospect'

New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—Ed Ford, rookie lefthander who won the World Series-clinching game for the New York Yankees last Saturday, underwent a physical examination today for army service.

The 21-year-old New Yorker had been examined in September but was deferred temporarily because doctors found a trace of some tropical germ in his system.

He won nine games for the Yankees after joining the team in July. He beat the Phillies in the fourth game of the Series, 5-2.

Pirates Open Heavy Drills For Homecoming Contest

Coach Bill Dole sent his East Carolina Pirates through a short practice session yesterday, but heavy work was promised for today, as the Pirates prepare for their homecoming tilt with Western Carolina this weekend.

East Carolina, losers to Elon Saturday night, 21-16, in their first conference loss, drilled on pass patterns for the ends and backs, while the offensive line worked on blocking assignments, and the defensive forces working separately on defense of the Catamounts running attack.

Extensive work was also placed on improving the Pirates' ground-gaining department with Fullback Tom Smaln, and Halfbacks Bill Darby, Jack Britt, and Jack Benzie, alternating in the rushing.

Western Carolina, although already dethroned from their conference championship last year, will

Fight Goes On Despite Tremor And Tidal Wave

Jakarta, Indonesia, Oct. 10—(AP)—Fighting continued on the rebel stronghold of Amboina today but there was no further word on the island's plight from an earthquake and tidal wave reported Sunday.

Amboina radio last night claimed military successes in the north of the island against invading Indonesian troops and said its forces also recaptured Piru, capital of western Ceram Island.

This was denied by Indonesian Vice Defense Minister Ali Boediardjo. He said northern Amboina was firmly in Indonesian hands while operations against the southern part of the island—which includes the capital—had been halted temporarily to allow for evacuation of civilians.

Michigan Has Score To Settle In Saturday Tilt

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 10—(AP)—If we get too high for Army Michigan's Wolverines have a score to settle with Army in the football game at Yankee Stadium Saturday.

They are determined to break the cadet's 22-game unbeaten string just as Army spoiled their own streak of victories here last year.

Michigan had a 25-game skelton going when underdog Army plastered the Wolverines with a stinging 21-7 defeat.

Michigan coach Bennie Oosterbaan said today he is not trying to get his boys "pepped up" for the New York game but he acknowledged some probably still are ranking from last year's setback.

"We met six tough western conference teams after the Army game

Independence Day For Nationalist China Observed

Taipei, Formosa, Oct. 10—(AP)—Nationalist China observed its independence today with renewed pledges to wrest the mainland from the Reds.

The occasion was the anniversary of Sun Yat-sen's revolt that overthrew the Manchu dynasty and established the China Republic in 1911.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek charged the Chinese Communist government is "a puppet regime controlled by Russian imperialism." He said large numbers of Russians have taken control of China's harbors, airfields, railways and mines.

Princeton-educated K. C. Wu, governor of this island stronghold to which the Nationalists fled from the mainland last year, predicted: "I am positive we'll be back in 1951."

Surrender Urged By Loudspeaker

Tokyo, Oct. 10—(AP)—A giant loudspeaker mounted in a transport plane is booming out surrender messages to trapped Korean Reds.

General MacArthur's ultimatum is announced daily in Korean from the plane flying over isolated Communist pockets.

The Reds are told their situation is hopeless and that they will get fair and humane treatment if they give up.

DOUBLE WEDDING

By Adelaide Humphries

Chapter 21
All that day Stephanie had gone about with a musing look in her grave eyes and a faint smile lifting the corners of her pretty mouth. For she had a brand-new feeling inside, a feeling she had not had for a long long time.

It had begun the evening before when Sandy had stalked out of the little apartment, after starting out of the window.

She could remember how her heart had hammered, her pulses raced. She had thought he was going to reach out for her, pull her to her feet against his chest, in that rough yet tender manner that was Sandy's own, that had forced her to respond with a fierce ardor, known so briefly in their first love. She had thought he was going to kiss her—and now she knew that she had wanted him to.

She could recall again the chill that had gone all over her body when he had turned away from her. Her racing pulses had subsided; her hammering heart had stood still. It was as if something wonderful, something almost unattainable had been offered to her, then snatched away. It was something more than that gift of serenity that Grant had given her. It had been full rapture—long denied—that she could have taken and returned.

She had realized all this almost as soon as the door had closed after Sandy. She had wanted to throw her arms around his neck, with abandonment, seek his lips with hers.

But she had been living within her own small secret self, shutting her heart as tightly as if enclosed within a clenched fist, letting her eyes look ever backwards, or trying, in vain, to see what lay over the horizon. When she should have been looking steadily at the present.

"If you don't mind," Miss Phipps said, from the doorway, looking down the length of her nose, "I've been buzzing you for the past fifteen minutes, Mrs. Vaughn."

"Oh!" Stephanie came out of her reverie with a guilty start to look the immediate present in the eye. "I'm terribly sorry, Miss Phipps. I—I guess I didn't hear you."

"That's a remarkable deduction," Miss Phipps snorted.

Stephanie's lovely face did not flush; she did not feel any anger. That musing look still lingered in her eyes and that warm feeling made her actually love even Miss Phipps.

"You know," she said, "I'm so happy today—and it's been so long since I've been happy—that I guess I actually am deaf."

"Humph!" It was another snort. "Oh, it's wonderful to be happy!" Stephanie said, her eyes shining now. "You wish you could share it with everyone. You love everyone. Why do you feel as you do toward me, Miss Phipps? You know I'm not what you think me—a society matriarch—wasn't that what you said? I'm just a girl, like any other, who has been all mixed up. About life. And love. And marriage. Did you know I've been married twice—no, three times I guess you'd call it."

"Three times!" Miss Phipps came on into the front office. Her black eyes were lighted with curiosity. Her prim mouth was still set in a stern line but somehow it had a different expression. "Tell me all about it."

"I was married first," Stephanie said, "to the most wonderful boy. We were so terribly in love. Too terribly, maybe. I thought love would always be like that first magic. Then he went off to war."

Miss Phipps uttered a grunt. It was different from the snort, how-

Industrial Arts Course Expands

An increase in the number of students majoring in industrial arts at East Carolina Teachers College, new equipment for the department and plans for new quarters for class work and workshop activities are reported by Dr. Kenneth Bing, chairman of the department. The college has expanded and improved its industrial arts department in the last few years with the purpose of training teachers of the subject for positions in public schools in the state.

East Carolina will graduate, says Dr. Bing, its first majors in industrial arts during the 1950-1951 term, when six students will complete their work here. All will be qualified to teach industrial arts. At present 61 students are specializing in work in the department. This number represents an increase of 29 majors over last year's enrollment. A large number of non-majors also take courses in the department.

Elizabeth Hunt of Gastonia is the only woman majoring at present in industrial arts at East Carolina. Ann Jordan of Belhaven is working toward a minor in the department. Enrolled in a course in Industrial Arts for Elementary Teachers are a number of women students who are preparing themselves as teachers in the lower grades.

The mechanical drawing room of the department has been equipped this fall with 24 new drawing benches. These are steel structures with inclined boards offering work space and with cabinets for storing the equipment of four students. Now drawing instruments for student use have also been provided.

Would Cut Food Before Smokes

London —(AP)— Britain's little people would rather trim the food bill than deny themselves those cigarettes if a salary cut struck. Mass Observation, a commercial outfit that polls the British public on timely topics, got that result in a poll of middle class folk on this gloomy line:

ever.

"It wasn't so bad," Stephanie said. For the grunt had contained a surprising amount of understanding. "You see, I still had our love. It was like a light, or a hidden treasure. It was always with me. Until," her grave eyes saddened, her voice dropped lower, "I got word that his plane had been forced down on an island in the Pacific and the crew burnt to death when the plane went up in flames."

"Um . . . um!" Miss Phipps' utterance this time was long-drawn, shuddering.

"I thought I would die," Stephanie said simply.

"You poor thing!" Miss Phipps murmured. Her long nose quivered with sympathy. This was better than any movie she ever had wept at.

"Then I met someone else," Stephanie went on, opening her eyes again, since she found she could not bear, even now, to relive that other bad time. "He was very much a gentleman, very thoughtful and understanding and kind. He made me wear a flower in my hair and go dancing; he taught me to smile. And so I married him—thinking, of course, that the boy I loved—still loved—was dead."

"Tut-tut!" Miss Phipps made a sound with her thin lips. She was an excellent listener.

"I told him I was afraid I could never love him as I had loved Sandy." Grant had not filled Sandy's place; not even then. "It had been almost three years," Stephanie explained, "and I didn't see how I could go on alone. It was better, married to Grant. He had such a nice family. We had a dear little house. And gradually the new life began to fill that awful emptiness. We were just married one month to the day."

"One month!" Miss Phipps said. It sounded like one of those movie serials.

"I got a telegram that day," Stephanie told her. "From Washington. It informed me that Sandy was alive." She did not wonder why she was telling all this to Miss Phipps, of all people. Somehow she had to tell it, go over it, live it all, again today.

Egg Prices Are Said Heading Under 1949 Level

Washington, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The agriculture department said today egg prices during the remainder of 1950 are likely to continue lower than a year earlier. But chicken prices are expected to match last year's levels.

The agency said the flurry in egg prices which occurred soon after outbreak of the Korean war seemed to have nearly run its course.

If egg production conforms to the patterns of recent years, production will be rising soon and supplies should increase, the department said. Current supplies were said to be relatively large because large numbers of layers and high rates of lay are resulting in production larger than a year ago.

Egg prices at all levels of trade were said to be about 20 to 30 per cent lower than a year ago.

The department said current marketings of farm chickens are at or near the season's peak, and broiler marketings are probably a record.

The department reported that marketings are beginning from the 1950 turkey crop, which is a percent larger than last year's and a new record. Farm prices, which are slightly lower than last year, moved downward in September, which is contrary to normal.

Ethiopia Opens Refugee Office

Addis Ababa.—(AP)—The International Refugee Organization (IRO) has opened an office in Addis Ababa to handle 171 DFs from Western Germany. About 100 of these already have arrived in the country.

Its main task is to help in getting the arriving DFs properly placed and settled. Re-settling of agricultural DFs, due to transport and housing difficulties, is expected to present the greatest problem.

Chinese Deplore English Schools

Singapore.—(AP)—Chinese community leaders, concerned at the "migration" of Chinese students to English schools run by the government, are considering the establishment in Singapore of a multi-million dollar Chinese University, to help preserve Chinese language, culture, arts and science.

Prime mover of the scheme is millionaire Tan Lark Sye, who told the Singapore Hokkien Association a Chinese University in the colony would solve the problem of Chinese middle school boys and girls who are unable to proceed to China for a higher education.

TRAINING FOR EMERGENCY—Crew members of the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth hold a lifeboat drill while the ship is tied up at a Hudson River pier in New York.

Hospital Bids Go Above Estimates

Raleigh, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Increased building costs have caused low bids on a project at Mercy Hospital in Charlotte to run more than $78,000 above original estimates.

The State Medical Care Commission reported yesterday that estimated costs were set at $700,000, but advancing building costs caused the commission to raise the figure to $780,000.

The Mercy Hospital project calls for a new out-patient department, a 20-bed psychiatric unit, laboratory and X-ray space. Low bids alone totaled $668,579.88. Adding in contingencies, equipment costs and architect's fees, the final total was $1,104,694.65.

Commission spokesmen said if the bids are accepted, local sources in Charlotte must put up the difference between $780,000 and the total costs.

Secure Security

Camp Cooke, Calif.—(AP)—They teach every buck private that "loose lips can sink ships." This one learned the lesson well. One night a unit was drilling in the dark. A stranger passing by asked, "what unit is this?"

"None of your business," promptly replied the soldier.

And Brig. Gen. Homer O. Eaton, assistant commander of the recently activated 47th National Guard Division, continued his lonely walk, unappreciated of the unit's name, but perhaps consoled by the thought he was bawling a security conscious outfit.

Activity Nights For Students Sponsored Each Week This Year

Three "activity nights" for students at East Carolina Teachers College are being sponsored each week this year by the Student Social committee of the college. Otis Bain of Wilmington heads the committee, which is staging a program designed to encourage a more varied and enjoyable social life among students.

Special hours for recreation have been designated for Monday, Wednesday and Saturday evenings of each week. At these times students gather in the Wright gymnasium to enjoy dancing, canasta and bridge, shuffleboard, ping pong, and other games. Several "activity nights" have already been held in the gymnasium and response has been enthusiastic among students.

In addition to Bain, student members of the committee are Gene Hart, Kingston; June Pritchard, Montclair, N. J.; Ann Jordan, Belhaven; and Janet Tyson, Stantons-

Estimated N. C. Cotton Output Takes New Drop

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Estimated production of North Carolina's cotton crop has declined another 10,000 bales during the past month.

The state and federal departments of agriculture reported yesterday that the October estimate sets the harvest at 190,000 bales, the smallest since 1872.

The state's output last year totaled 466,000 bales, and the average crop from 1939 through 1948 was 578,000 bales.

Smithfield Gets New Dial System

Smithfield, N. C., Oct. 10.—(AP)—With representatives of the State Utilities Commission on hand, a new automatic dial system was put into operation here last night.

Officials of the town and Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., also took part in the change-over ceremony. Total cost of the new dial system was set at $270,000 by Company officials.

Political Writer Asserts Truman Is Losing In Dixie

New York, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Harry Truman is losing the South in the opinion of Sam Lubell, well known political and economic writer. If the GOP names Eisenhower for its presidential candidate, the South may bolt the Democratic Party in 1952, according to his article released in Look Magazine today.

The spectacular defeats of Graham and Pepper are something no Southern politician is likely to forget, continues the Look article, yet much more than the race issue is involved "A social and economic revolution is churning the South today as it hasn't since the Reconstruction days." Industrial employment has increased 55 per cent since 1939 and more than 280,000 new businesses have been opened since 1944. Instead of a militant labor movement the first fruits of southern industrialism have been a rising urban middle class that is almost Republican in its thinking. Since 1940 the Republican presidential vote in the south has risen 50% and Lubell contends that Truman in 1948 would have lost Florida, Virginia and Tennessee had the GOP and the Dixiecrats united against him.

The rising Negro vote has robbed the Democratic party of its "snob appeal," says Lubell, and has only served to stimulate record turnouts of new white registrants. Organized labor is badly divided and in the recent primaries failed to prove it could exert any strong political influence.

The allegiance of the South to the Democratic Party can no longer be taken for granted concludes Look. It isn't even inconceivable that 1952 may bring a slight no Southern alive can remember—a presidential candidate stumping Dixie for votes.

Kiwanians Going District Meeting

The Kiwanis Club of Greenville will be represented at the 1950 convention of the Carolinas Kiwanis District to be held at Spartanburg, S.C., October 15 to 17. Club President Tige Gardner announced today.

Ninety-eight clubs, with a membership of more than 6,600 business and professional leaders, will send delegates to the three-day meeting, President Gardner said.

Donald T. Forsythe, newspaper editor and publisher of Carthage, Illinois, and a trustee of Kiwanis International, will be a featured speaker at the convention.

Presiding at the meeting will be Orin F. Crow of Columbia, South Carolina, who is governor of the Carolinas Kiwanis District and Dean of the School of Education at the University of South Carolina. On the convention agenda are committee conferences, a discussion of plans for the coming year, and election of officers.

Mr. Forsythe, who will serve as official representative of Kiwanis International at the convention, is publisher of the Hancock County Journal, a weekly newspaper. He also is a director of the Marine Trust Company at Carthage and a member of the board of Carthage College, where he was active in organizing a department of journalism. He is a past president of the Illinois Press Association and a life member of the Northwestern University Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity. In May, 1949, he was chosen as first president of the newly incorporated Greater Weeklies Associates, an organization of more than 250 weekly newspapers, and he was re-elected president in April, 1950.

Delegates who will represent the Kiwanis Club of Greenville at the convention will include Eli Bloom, Judge J.W.H. Roberts, Hugh T. Smith, Archie Rogers and "Tige" Gardner.

Sweet Potato Receipts Light On Bethel Market's Opening

By CHESTER WALSH
Sweet potato receipts were light on the opening of the Bethel market today as a result of heavy rains in the sweet potato growing area within this market's range. J. P. Harris, one of the prime movers in establishing an auction market at Bethel, said.

Offerings during the forenoon today totaled about 400 bushels which sold at an average price of $1.25 a bushel. J. L. Brown is the auctioneer.

Yesterday's rain and soggy fields made digging of sweet potatoes a tedious job, growers selling on the market today said.

Market observers predicted today that with a clear sky and sunshine and some wind, harvesting of sweet potatoes will get into full swing in a few days. The Bethel auction market is expected to sell around 150,000 bushels this season.

Prices on the Bethel market last year averaged around $1.85 a bushel and sales totaled around 40,000 bushels.

A market observer explained that the northern sweet potato market is depressed at this time. Local markets, he pointed out, are affected and their prices are governed by the quotations of northern markets, and local growers should bear this in mind.

The Bethel market was established for the benefit of the growers in this area of eastern Carolina, it was stated. It has storage space now for around 150,000 bushels. The Bethel Storage Company and M. O. Blount

French Force In Indochina Encircled By Red Troops

Saigon, Indochina, Oct. 10—(AP)—French troops withdrawing from a key Chinese frontier post were reported encircled today, but official sources indicated they were still fighting to cut their way through Communist-led guerrillas far outnumbering them.

Saigon, Indochina, Oct. 10—(AP)—Most of the 3,500 French troops trapped northwest of Thatkhe have been lost, the French announced tonight in a communique.

A military spokesman said "some hundreds" of the crack Foreign Legionnaires and Moroccans surrounded by Ho Chi Minh's Viet-minh fighters had succeeded in breaking through to the French post of Thatkhe, near the Chinese frontier.

The spokesman indicated the remainder still were battling along a 15-mile stretch of highway between Dongkhe and Thatkhe, but added that after five days of fighting some units may be out of ammunition.

Bad weather had grounded French planes, he explained, hampering the securing of information on the encircled forces.

The troops under attack are the garrison from Caobang, key frontier post, abandoned by the French last week, and a column from Thatkhe sent to screen them.

The French earlier had placed the encircled force at "several battalions" in size. Today a spokesman said they were outnumbered ten to one by guerrillas numbering in the "several tens of thousands."

tatoes this year. He estimated the yield at around 100 bushels per acre—about 500,000 bushels.
In addition to the standard storage houses in Bethel, there are other storage plants, some of them used for domestic purposes. This year's sales are expected to double last year's.

Another Highway Accident In Pitt

Thatkhe, meanwhile, had been reinforced by fresh French troops. The garrison there had been dangerously depleted by the attack on the column sent to screen the withdrawing Caobang garrison, but observers said the reinforcements had eased the danger to the post—one of the few points still held by the French along the Chinese frontier.

Birmingham Jail Ready To Welcome Sen. Taylor

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 10—(AP)—The welcome mat was out in front of the Birmingham city jail today. Taylor spurned the invitation. The obstacles to his entering the jail to serve a 180-day sentence were matched only by the impatience of Police Commissioner E. C. Connor to have Taylor behind bars.

"You can quote me as saying I'm going to leave no stones unturned," Connor said. "I'm going to get him."

Taylor was convicted of disorderly conduct following a scuffle with police outside a Negro youth meeting in 1948. The U. S. Supreme Court refused to review the conviction.

Taylor came here as a Progressive party candidate for vice president. Scheduled to address the meeting, he collided with police when he tried to go through a door marked "Negro entrance."

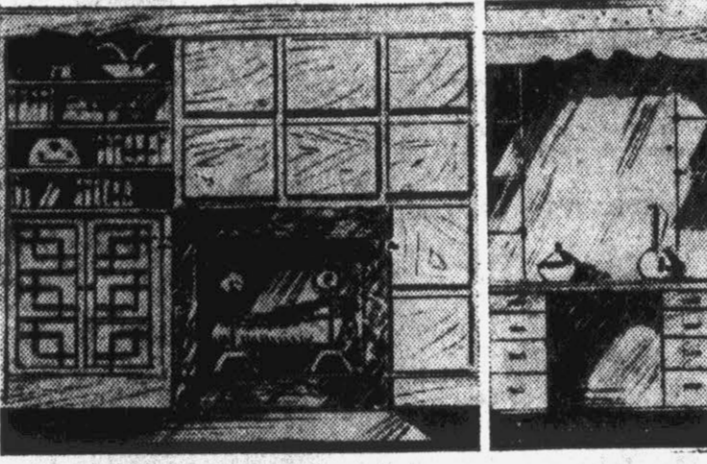

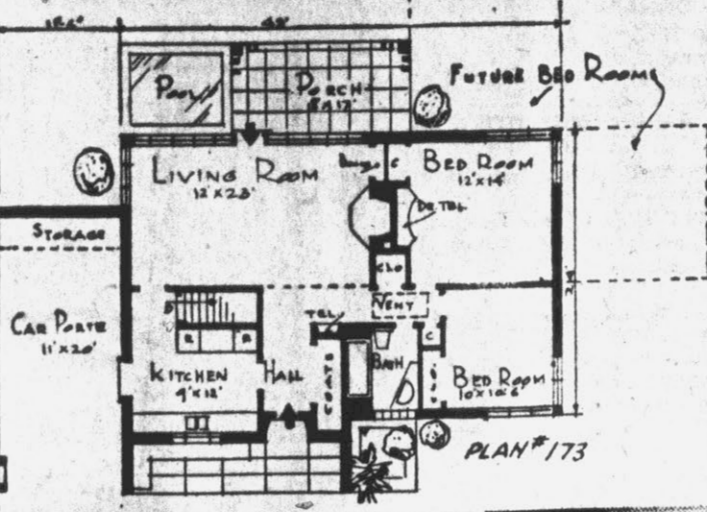

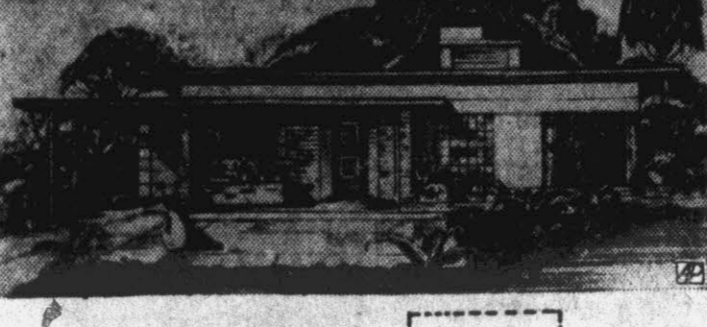

The senator said his trial would be a test of Birmingham's segregation laws. City counsel insisted the only issue was "a simple case of assault and battery" up on a police officer.

Connor said he would seek extradition of the senator to serve his sentence in the Birmingham jail. Taylor, out in Idaho, said he didn't plan to come near Alabama.

The constitution grants members of congress certain immunities from arrest while congress is in session. Taylor's term expires in January.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures
A MODERN FLAT-ROOF house of four rooms, this dwelling is planned for economy of construction with future expansion possibilities. This type of roof, well insulated, has proved cool and less costly to build. The house can be built with or without a basement and incorporates many attractive features. Detailed designs for the fireplace and built-in dressing table in the main bedroom are shown below the plan. The rear garden wall of the living room can be added by reducing the large bedroom to provide a hall. This is Plan 173 by Paul T. Haagen, architect, 380 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago 1, Ill. The house covers 1,048 square feet; car port with storage space adds 276 square feet. The car port can be enclosed for garage.

Home Of Judge Waring Is Given Brick Barrage

Charleston, S.C., Oct. 10—(AP)—The home of Federal Judge J. Wesley Waring, which has been carefully bypassed by white Charlestonians for the past several years, last night was plastered with brickbats.

The judge and his Detroit-born wife, long and bitterly assailed by South Carolinians for their attacks on Negro segregation, both escaped the barrage unharmed.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who were called by the judge refused to comment on the incident, but Waring said one brick sailed through his living room window and another tore through a screen door at the front of the house. Local police, who also came to investigate, were ordered out of the house, by the Waring.

The judge expressed belief that "someone had fired at the house, either bullets or blank cartridges."

Jail Term For Beating Husband

Kensington, Md., Oct. 10—(AP)—A 32-year old waitress drew a 10 day jail sentence in police court yesterday for beating her crippled, 57-year old husband with a switch. He ate too many eggs, she said.

The woman, Mrs. Lula May Sexton, said she struck him only after he had hit her with a tennis racket. The husband, G. Norvell Sexton, said she beat him with a switch 3-8 of an inch thick, knocked him to the floor and tried to bang his head against the radiator.

Seamen Awarded Increased Wages

New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—Representatives of 53,000 Atlantic and Gulf Coast Seamen have won a 6.38 per cent wage boost for them in negotiations, and the agreements now will go to the members for a vote on acceptance.

The increase—announced yesterday—affects 40,000 members of the CIO National Maritime Union and 15,000 members of the AFL Seafarers International Union.

Explains Delay

Seattle, Oct. 10—(AP)—It appeared to be just another routine letter containing three $1 bills and three parking tickets. Routine that is, until Seattle police took another look.

The tickets, issued September 18, were for overtime parking, parking in a prohibited area and parking on railroad property.

The sender, Paul Fitzpatrick of Seattle, apologized for the delay. He said his car was tagged on the day he unavoidably had to town.

The October 4 postmark was from Seoul, Korea.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC RENTAL OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue of power vested in the undersigned as guardian of Johnny Glenn Bell and pursuant to Section 21 of Chapter 22, G. S., the lands of Johnny Glenn Bell will be offered for rent for the year 1951 to the highest bidder for cash at the courthouse door in Greenville, N. C., on Thursday, October 19, 1950, at 12 o'clock noon.

The lands being offered for rent consist of Lots Nos. 4 and 4A of the J. B. Bell, Sr., Land Division consisting of 10.5 acres of cleared land and 14.5 acres of woods land situated in Belvoir Township in Pitt County. The cleared land has a tobacco acreage allotment of 1.2 acres.

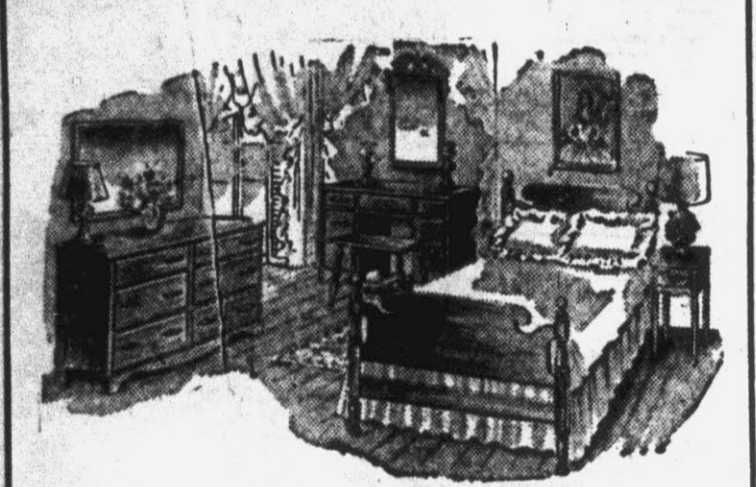

The highest bidder for the above described premises for the year 1951 will be required to pay to the guardian the amount of his bid immediately upon the announcement of the highest bidder, and if he fails to pay said cash rental immediately, said lands will be re-offered for rent at the same time and place and upon the same terms as above noted.
