Defense Costs May Surpass Entire U. S. Budget For '50

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 12 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Matthews said today the cost of operating the national military establishment alone next year may exceed this year's entire national budget. That would be more than $42,000,000,000.

Matthews gave a preview of what defense planners have in mind in the way of appropriations when he said that next year the "cost of operating the Department of Defense alone could amount to as much or more than the federal budget for all purposes this year."

Matthews called Korea a "testing place for the imperialist forces of Communism." He said the fighting is not yet finished and there undoubtedly remain some costly battles to be fought and won.

Commend Work; Will Ask New Regular Term Of Court

The Pitt County Bar Association this week went on record in approving Solicitor W. J. Bundy's conduct of Superior Court cases last week and subsequently accused the Daily Reflector of editorializing against him in an "unfair and unjust" manner.

Railroads Figure Wage Demands Will Raise Rates

Estimate Billion-Dollar Cost Rise To Need 15 Per Cent Rate Hike

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Railroad industry estimated today that pending union wage demands would raise costs $1,000,000,000 a year and force fare and freight rate hikes of 15 per cent.

Stirred by the newest demands of unions representing 1,250,000 employees, the industry's statisticians contended that a boost of that size in all freight and passenger revenues would be needed to offset wage demands announced or already up for bargaining.

Trucks Collide, Cut Swath Of Destruction

Two trucks shown above (top photo), collided this morning at the intersection of Mumford street and the Bethel highway doing considerable property damage to both trucks. One truck was driven by J. B. Lewis of Greenville and was making a left turn when it was rammed by a lumber truck operated by Dallas Taylor of Williamston. The two trucks hit the light pole shown below, breaking electric power in the area. The trucks came to a stop in front of Bill Pollard's store. A parked car is in the background. (Reflector Staff Photos by Ray Hardee).

By CHESTER WALSH Two trucks, one a trailer vehicle loaded with 5,500 feet of lumber, the other an empty one-ton vehicle, collided on the Bethel highway across Tar River, near Bill Pollard's store about 10 a. m. today. Both trucks were considerably damaged. The drivers were not injured.

The investigating officer said the lumber truck, driven by Dallas Taylor Jones, 24, of near Williamston, and owned by Tillman R. Coltrane of Williamston, started to pass an empty truck owned and driven by J. B. Lewis of the Pacolus highway.

Both vehicles crashed and were hung together while the big truck's tread-marks showed that it moved 37 steps from the place where it turned off from the highway before colliding with an electric power line pole, snapping it off like a toothpick.

Naval Guns Blast North Korea Port

Similar Strike Cleared Way For Amphibious Landings At Inchon

Tokyo, Oct. 12 (AP)—Big guns of the battleship Missouri, allied warships and naval planes set fire today to Chongjin, a far northern port on the east of Red Korea.

The industrial port city of 190,000 is 34 miles southeast of Red China's Manchuria border, 49 miles from Soviet Siberia and 220 miles upcoast from the nearest allied South Korean ground troops at Wonsan.

Chongjin is about 140 miles southwest of Siberian Vladivostok, through which much Russian material is believed to have poured down to the Korean Reds by rail.

A similar allied fleet bombardment and rolling air strike pulped the Korean west coast ahead of the allied amphibious landings at Inchon in mid-September that turned the tide of war.

Pacific Talk Agenda

Amid The Speculation On What President Truman And General MacArthur Will Discuss This Weekend, This Analyst Poses Some Issues Certain To Be Talked

The forthcoming conference between President Truman and Gen. MacArthur in the far Pacific—the first meeting of these two famous personalities—is creating widespread speculation since its location and agenda haven't been made public.

It will be recalled that last August MacArthur cabled a statement to this effect to be read at the annual meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Chicago. Mr. Truman ordered him to withdraw the statement, on the basis that it confused the American position.

At the same time the President stated the official American policy. This was that the U. S. has no designs on Formosa; that we were guarding it to keep the war from spreading, and that its future as a former Japanese territory was a subject for international settlement.

The cross on this map locates the airfield in the Sukhaya Rechka area of Soviet Russia which Reds claim was strafed by two U. S. fighter planes. The field is near Vladivostok. Russia delivered a protest note to U. S. Minister-Counselor Walworth Barbour in Moscow but he refused to accept it on the grounds that it should go to the United Nations. (AP Wirephoto Map).

MacArthur is a living legend—a larger-than-life-size figure, born to command; a cartoonist's delight, with his outburst chin, his sunglasses, his crooked pipe; a supremely self-confident man with a flair for the full-blown, picturesque phrase.

West Greenville PTA Plans For Halloween Carnival

The PTA of the West Greenville school held its regular monthly in the school auditorium on Wednesday at 3:30 with Mrs. W. E. Basnight, president, presiding.

The auditorium was decorated with vases of autumn hued dahlias set in the windows, and on the president's table was a low bowl of red and white flowers.

The meeting was opened with a song and a short devotional was presented by Miss Frances Whitehurst. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. C. B. West, Jr., and duly approved. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. W. J. Stell, who had been sent a dish garden from the PTA.

The standing committees were called on for reports. The budget chairman announced a balance of $248.11 in the treasury. The membership chairman reported that there were 230 paid members enrolled in the organization. The magazine chairman reported the issuance of 12 new or renewal subscriptions to the PTA magazine.

The chairman of the hospitality committee proposed a plan whereby each family would send 25c to be used to build up a fund to finance the parties which the PTA gives for the children at Christmas, Easter and at the end of the school term. This proposal was put in the form of a motion which was unanimously passed.

Mrs. Sherman Parks, the Brownie Scout leader of the West Greenville group, announced overwhelming response to the invitation to the younger girls to join the organization. She suggested that parents who had Brownie uniforms which their children had outgrown pass them down to the present troop for distribution.

Miss Agnes Fullilove, school principal, reported that the school nurse had made a periodic check and found that pink eye and impetigo were prevalent among the children. She suggested that parents watch the children carefully for first signs of any communicable disease.

An announcement was made of the district PTA meet which is to be held in Swan Quarter on October 18.

Mrs. George Gardner's room won the attendance prize.

The projects committee reported that no new information had been obtained with reference to the purchase of a flag pole, a project that had been proposed last spring. A motion was made and carried that instead of waiting further for this, that immediate nutritional needs of the children be studied with a view to providing milk to those children who had inadequate lunches. A committee was appointed to study this problem and report its findings at the next meeting.

The rest of the meeting was devoted to plans for the annual Halloween festival which will be held at the school on Friday night, October 27. Donations for cakes, wafers, rolls, sandwiches, chili, onions, candy and drinks were made. The following committees were appointed with their chairmen:

Store, Mrs. R. C. Pierce; bingo, Mrs. Julius Whichard; fish pond, Mrs. Sherman Parks; dance room, Mrs. Claude Thigpen; movie room, Mr. Sherman Parks; corn contest, Mrs. George Gardner; doll room, Mrs. O. J. Stancill; and picture room, Mrs. C. E. Johnson.

The meeting was then adjourned.

No Celebration

NATIONAL CHEESE FESTIVAL

Learn about the marvelous cheeses, both domestic and foreign type, made right here in America. Let's be definitely cheese conscious this "Festival" month. Let's begin NOW—the fine, healthful habit of eating more cheese—for the pleasure it gives—and for the wealth of calcium, phosphorus, and proteins it contributes to our health and well-being. We offer two guides for buying better cheese—Wilson's Certified and Wilson's Clearbrook.

There's a Wilson's quality cheese for every taste. Choose from Wilson's Certified American, Swiss, Brick, Pimento, Wilson's Clearbrook, Daisies, Longhorns, Cheddars, Wilson's Ol' Fashund Natural Cheddar, Baby Gouda, Sharp Cheese Spread, Imported Swiss, and others.

"Cheese and Crackers" is one of the most popular combinations in American eating. Have it often . . . with Wilson's cheese.

"Cheese Sandwiches" with lettuce or in Club Style with tomato slices and bacon perhaps rank next in popularity. Luscious Wilson's Ol' Fashund certainly adds to their popularity.

"Cheese Ravioli"—Melt Wilson's Ol' Fashund Natural Cheddar over hot boiling water. Stir in cream, B.V. broth or light beer to desired sauce consistency. Season to taste. Pour over toast* and sprinkle with paprika. Serve hot.
*Sliced tongue, crackers, Melba toast, or toasted English muffins may be used. Nice also with grated tuna or sardines on toast under the cheese.
"Cheeseburgers"—Top your favorite burgers with a slice of Wilson's Ol' Fashund Natural Cheddar just before removing them from broiler or frying pan. Cheese will soften quickly, then serve.

Miss Dorothy Ormond Feted At Luncheon On Wednesday

On Wednesday at 1:00 p. m. Mrs. T. I. Wagner and Mrs. Hoyt Minges were luncheon hostesses at the home of Mrs. Wagner as a compliment to Miss Dorothy Ormond, whose wedding will be solemnized on Saturday night.

Upon their arrival the guests were graciously welcomed by the hostesses, Miss Ormond and her mother, Mrs. H. L. Ormond.

The rooms on the lower floor were lovely with varied arrangements of autumn dahlias and chrysanthemums in bowls and vases placed on big tables and chests. In the dining room and sun room a color accent of green and white was used.

The table in the dining room was covered with a white organdy cloth placed over white satin. It had hand-embroidered insertions and a ruffled edge which touched the floor. Large white satin wedding bells graced the center of the table. They were encircled with smilax and tied with lace ribbon and white dwarf chrysanthemums. The tongues were composed of streamers of smilax and tiny mums.

On the buffet three-branched silver candelabra flanked a silver bowl of white dahlias and were tied with the same kind of ribbon that was used on the centerpieces. Maiden hair fern added a graceful touch to the arrangement. A bridal doll dressed in white satin and wearing a veil was placed on a serving table amid a setting of smilax, bridal ribbon, and streamers of baby chrysanthemums.

The places for the guests were marked at each of the six auxiliary tables by individual white wedding bells topped with place cards and valley lilies.

From a silver platter at one end of the dining table Mrs. H. L. Ormond served turkey. From the opposite end Mrs. E. G. Flanagan, Sr., served molded fruit salad in a wedding ring shape. Assisting the hostesses in serving the accompaniments were Mrs. Charles Flanagan and Mrs. Graham Flanagan. The dessert of bridal ring ties was passed by the hostesses.

Miss Ormond was remembered with an orchid corsage given to her by the hostesses.

Mr. Russell Speaks On Happiness In The Home To PTA Group

Mr. Leon Russell was the featured speaker when the Training School PTA met on Wednesday in the new gymnasium at 3:30.

Mrs. Dink James, president, welcomed the group and presided over the meeting. Mrs. Ficklen Arthur introduced Mrs. C. A. White, who gave the meditation, using as her theme, "Happiness Begins at Home."

Mr. Russell, following the devotional, made an impressive talk on the same general theme. He emphasized the fact that character education and spiritual development begin in the home. "Everything worth while begins in the home," suggested Mr. Russell and he added that it was disastrous for parents to act on the assumption that the school should provide all the child's education, the church all the child's spiritual training, or the community all the child's planned recreation. The home should provide a great part of all the activities and training the child needs for maximum growth, Mr. Russell suggested.

In touching on the subject of the relationship of parents to religion, he concluded that there was no real happiness in the home apart from a sincere religion. He suggested ways by which parents could lead the child to sense a real spiritual experience and to understand and inculcate Christian principles in daily living.

Following his talk a panel discussion followed during which time parents asked questions and contributed remarks pertaining to religious training in the home. Mrs. Tyson Bilbro concluded the program with a prayer for parents.

Mrs. James then conducted the business meeting which followed. Mrs. Dorothy Johnson read minutes of the last meeting which were approved and recorded. Mrs. J. O. Howard, publications chairman, announced she had received 16 new subscriptions to the PTA magazine.

A proposal was made for a Halloween party and it was decided to have one this year under the auspices of the PTA. Members were appointed to work out the details of the plan.

Mrs. F. B. Haar was appointed chairman of the clothing chest, which was established last year as a reservoir for the teachers to use in providing wearing apparel for indigent students.

An urgent need for racks to hold the children's bicycles was presented and discussed. An announcement of the district meeting to be held in Swan Quarter on Wednesday, October 18 and members were urged to attend.

Miss Dora Coates announced that on October 24-25, the college branch of the ACE was bringing Miss Ruth Tew to the campus. Miss Tew will bring a collection of children's books which will be placed on display at the Training School, and during her two-day visit, Miss Tew will read from the books to the children and provide any information about obtaining and using them in school and at home. The parents are invited to visit the school at this time and see Miss Tew's demonstration.

The meeting was then adjourned.

Red Oak News

"It's October, and the orchards are in red and gold, and the nights with dew are heavy, and the morning's sharp with cold;

Now the garden's at its gayest with the salvia blazing red, and the good old-fashioned asters laughing at us from their bed; Once again in shoes and stockings are the children's little feet, and the dog now does his snoozing on the bright side of the street."

Thanks to Edgar A. Guest for the lines above. It is October and new life is springing up all about us in Red Oak. We have just recently had a food booth at the fair which netted us a neat sum of money which has been applied on the carpet fund. The carpet is already on the floor and it is truly beautiful.

We had a most enthusiastic meeting at the church last Monday night and when all of our present resources were pooled we had eight hundred sixty-six dollars. That leaves us less than five hundred dollars to raise on the carpet.

If there are any of our members who were not present at Monday night's meeting and who have not made a donation on the carpet, and who would like to do so, an opportunity will be given to them at the Sunday morning services at 11 o'clock. We had planned to borrow enough money to finish paying this bill, but it looks like now that if every member will just do all they possibly can, that the bill will be paid in full by October 20.

It is on October 20 that we will have our annual Harvest Sale and Supper. This is a very enjoyable occasion for the Red Oak folks and their friends from far and near. A delicious supper will be served and Mr. Reginald Austin, jovial auctioneer from Scotland Neck will auction off to the highest bidder the produce that will be donated by the members to sell. Make your plans now to attend.

A group of Red Oak Merry-Makers will present a program over Station WOTC next Monday night, October 16, from 9 till 9:15 o'clock. Piano and accordion music, and good singing will be given by a group of talented musicians. Tune in and enjoy this program and hear about the Harvest Sale on Friday night, October 20.

Circle No. 1 will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Allen next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Let's have 100 percent attendance.

Little Jimmie Allen is recovering nicely from an attack of polio suffered about six weeks ago.

Red Oak is going to get new pews. At the meeting Monday night it was voted to install these pews at the earliest possible date. Milton May, chairman of the church board, will appoint a committee Sunday morning to look into this matter.

The present pews have been in use at the church for around sixty-five years. They are hand hewn out of fat lightwood and are very uncomfortable in comparison to the modern day pews. We hope all our friends and members will rally be-

Ballard's X Roads News

Mrs. Annie Flanagan was hostess on Friday evening at the meeting of the Women of the Presbyterian Church at the church.

The Bible study was led by Mrs. G. S. Nichols taken from the Prayers of Nehemiah, the study closed with a prayer by Mrs. Annie Flanagan. The program topic, "Missions in the Home," was presented and discussed by the group.

The president, Mrs. W. B. Crawford, gave a short report on the district group meeting of the Women of the Church held in the Leggett's Church and presided over the business session at which time it was voted to present going away gifts to one of the members of the Sunday School who has to be in the hospital for an extended time.

Assorted iced drinks and cookies were served as refreshments.

The September meeting of the Ballard's H. D. Club was presided over by the vice president, Mrs. Jack Tyson. The meeting opened by singing "Come Ye Thankful People Come," followed by repeating "The Club Collect" in unison.

The officers for the new club year were elected, Mrs. J. F. Tysch, president; Mrs. L. R. Jones, vice president; Mrs. E. W. Mills, secretary; and Mrs. L. E. Turnage, treasurer.

Miss Steele, the home agent, asked all the members to attend "Achievement Day" program on the afternoon of Tuesday, Oct. 31, at Memorial Baptist Church in Greenville.

The demonstration for the afternoon on "Better Care of Floors" was then given by Miss Steele assisted by Miss Ann Parker.

During the social hour Mrs. H. D. Moye, the hostess, served delicious refreshments from a lovely decorated table.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Liley of Norfolk, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Brown and C. F. Liley of Gatesville; Darius Hill of Sunbury, Miss Ann Turnage of Farmville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Morris of Gates County were recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Tyson.

our nation began, there are literally millions of qualified voters who never take the time to go to the polls.

The voting precincts of Greenville township have been redistricted recently in an effort to make it even less trouble for the people to get to the polls to cast their ballots. The books will open Saturday for a complete new registration of the people in Greenville township.

Those who already are registered will be required to re-register in the proper precincts to comply with the changes in the precinct boundaries. Those who do not re-register will not be allowed to vote in the coming November elections.

Voting is not only a privilege as some people like to think, but likewise it is a responsibility and an obligation. Those who shirk the duty of casting a ballot on election day are neglecting their responsibility for good government.

The registration books will be open at the polling places Saturday and for the following two Saturdays in this month. Between Saturdays the books will be open at the homes of the registrars.

Every eligible citizen should make sure his name is placed on the registration books, and that he takes part in the November election.

News Behind The News

By ROGER WARREN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—When the Bureau of the Census completes and releases the racial break-down of the population of the District of Columbia some time between now and the end of the year, it is expected to show a large increase in both the number and percentages of Negroes.

The blunt consequence of this situation is that votes for residents of the District are further away than ever. The potential number of Negro voters would be so large that it would be a dominant factor in local politics. Southern Congressmen may be expected to filibuster until the Potomac freezes over to prevent residents of the capital from ever having the vote.

MIGRATION—The increase in the ratio of Negroes in the capital has been caused by a migration of white families to suburbs and a migration of Negro families into the District.

During and immediately after World War II, as those who were stationed there then will recall, Washington was one of the most jammed cities of the country. Houses were subdivided and the subdivisions subdivided. Basements were converted into apartments. Hundreds slept every night in hotel lobbies and Union Station.

With the end of the war, Washington, like most major cities, was treated to enormous building projects in its suburbs. Most of this building was put up in nearby Virginia and Maryland. Thousands of acres of farm land were dug up to make space for foundations for apartments and small homes.

JOBS—White families now occupy most of these new homes and apartments. Many dwellings have been rented and sold to newcomers from Missouri and other states, but most of them have gone to people moving outside of the District lines. As these people moved out of old, cramped and run-down quarters, colored families moved in. There has been some new building for colored families, but the total units are small compared with the number that have moved into the capital city.

Government jobs, plus the availability of some kind of living quarters, have fostered a large migration of Negroes from the Southern states. In moving from another state to Washington, a colored man or woman loses the right to vote, which he or she may never have exercised anyway. If one can get a government job, he enjoys equal pay for equal work with other employees, short hours, usually air-conditioned working space, protection of the Civil Service Commission and other advantages. The increase in Negroes in government jobs provides opportunities for others in operating stores and services catering to them. Washington is also a leading educational center for Negroes and many families move to the capital so their children can attend special schools and colleges.

VOTES—Curiously, as the Negroes move into the District and lose their votes, those families, mostly white, who move to the Virginia and Maryland countryside gain the franchise. The fact that a move across the line again makes a man or woman a voting citizen may be a contributing factor to the migration. The size of the dual migration is indicated by the preliminary Census figures on the total population. The population of the District itself rose from 663,061 in 1940 to 792,234 in 1950, an increase of 19 per cent. The population of the metropolitan area outside the District lines rose from 304,894 in 1940 to 660,115 in 1950, an increase of 119 per cent. In other words, that part of the metropolitan area outside the District is now almost as large in population as the District itself ten years ago.

THOUSANDS—Both the District and surrounding areas are due for a further increase soon. Requests by government agencies for additional personnel to meet the present emergency provide for approximately 20,000 new jobs. About half of these would be in Washington. Of these 10,000, a few would be recruited in the capital, but the remainder, plus their families, would mean another 30,000 residents in the area. These would require goods and services, creating jobs and opportunities that might attract many thousands more.

The 20,000 would be only a beginning. Creation of organizations to apply price controls, rigid allocations and priorities, rent controls and other regulatory measures would require additional thousands.

HOUSING—Those that get there first may not have as much trouble in finding housing as the bureaucratic migrants did during the last war. Washington papers now carry long columns of ads for rental properties, and the offerings of new houses in the real estate sections are as plentiful as those in other large cities, and the payments just as easy. But 10,000 more families would easily wipe out present vacancies.

Even the early arrivals may find it necessary to travel long distances, because a large part of available space is far into Maryland and Virginia. As in every other large city, bus service has been expanded and, like everywhere else, fares have gone up.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

When a business executive takes over a mechanical job, things begin to pop. To prove that statement, I have a story about one of the First Vice Presidents of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company in Greenville, Hoyt Minges.

Representatives of the Woman's Athletic Association at East Carolina Teachers College approached Hoyt with a request for a Pepsi-Cola machine for Fleming Hall on the college campus. The girls wanted the fountain type, that will dispense Pepsi in paper cups.

Since Hoyt had closed the deal with the girls, he considered it his duty to install the machine personally when it arrived. Assisting Hoyt was Pepsi-Cola's ace mechanic, Jimmy Bullock. In spite of Jimmy's influence, Hoyt blundered enough to fill today's column.

When Jimmy and Hoyt entered Fleming Hall they followed the customary practice of shouting "Man on the hall!" Upon hearing this, all the girls scramble for cover, which left the boys without an audience until a few of the girls could get dressed.

Hoyt managed to blow four fuses before he made the proper electrical connections. Also, a wrench slipped out of his hand and landed on his lip, leaving evidence of the accident. The blow on the lip didn't hurt much, but what the girls said to him did. All during his conversation with them, they said "Yes, sir," and "No, sir" to him. Hoyt is 26 years old, and it was a terrific blow to be addressed with such respect. When he left Fleming Hall, he felt five years older. All children should be trained to respect their elders, but it's a hard blow for a young man to be referred to as "Sir." Frankly, I hope to avoid appearing that old.

Haggard from the job, Hoyt left Fleming Hall, proud of the efficient installation he had made. That night, just as he was settled in bed, the phone rang. It was one of the girls at Fleming Hall. "Mr. Minges," the voice said (the "Mister" hurt him, too), "Fleming Hall is flooded with Pepsi-Cola. Not only is the place flooded, but the Pepsi is hot!"

Hoyt's impulse was to say, "Pull out the electric cord and swim." However, Hoyt simply suggested that the machine be disconnected.

Early the next morning, the machine was put in perfect working order, and there were no reports of drownings in Fleming Hall. Hoyt's injuries are mending fast, but it's my guess that Jimmy Bullock will install the next machine unassisted.

And I thank John Spinks for the tip to this story.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

OF RELIEF ROLLS (Greensboro Daily News)

The Daily News several days ago questioned the statement made by North Carolina Department of Public Welfare spokesmen in asking the Advisory Budget Commission for a $36,000,000 annual budget that relief rolls are growing and that more money will consequently be needed to take care of them.

Now comes what we take to be official information to justify such questioning.

At Chicago the American Public Welfare Association has released figures showing that relief loads in 23 cities which the association surveyed dropped 8.7 per cent during the first 60 days of Korean hostilities. Rising employment was given credit for the drop. And the full impact of the Korean hostilities and the tightened world situation is merely beginning to be felt as the draft takes hold and rearmament spending gets under way. The already tightening labor market is expected to be tight as a drum by next Spring.

The Daily News believes wholeheartedly in social advancement and in state and nation meeting their social obligations and responsibilities. That belief, however, does not preclude our wonderment as to official talk about growing relief rolls and more funds to meet them in the light of economic conditions all about us.

With the manpower situation getting tighter all the while over the rest of the country and relief rolls having dropped perceptibly in 23 cities surveyed in all parts of the nation since the Korean crisis developed, North Carolina surely is not an isolated spot where these developments are unknown and relief rolls continue to move up instead of down. Human beings who truly qualify for relief ought to be adequately provided for; but that does not mean justification for these expanding rolls now or in the foreseeable future.

FOR ACADEMIC FREEDOM (Kinston Daily Free Press)

Inauguration of Gordon Gray as president of the Greater University of North Carolina on Tuesday, culminating a three-day program of ceremonies, marked a significant period in the life of the University and of academic freedom in North Carolina. The theme of the entire inaugural program was based on academic freedom.

Dr. Harold Tribble, new president of Wake Forest College, opened the program at Greensboro Sunday. Festivities continued on Monday at Chapel Hill with a number of important dignitaries being heard. The inaugural on Tuesday, with President Gray's significant address, was offered at the State College Coliseum at Raleigh, and bore out with even greater emphasis this all-inclusive theme of academic freedom.

President Gray emphasized the importance of the University in this modern age, paid tribute to the consolidation program under which the three major units function and pledged impartial administration, dedicated to the highest ideals and traditions of the Greater University. He paid eloquent tribute to the faculties, the trustees and to the State in general for the leadership attained in education by North Carolina and issued a ringing challenge to even greater service in the years ahead.

One phrase from his remarks is particularly significant in this fear-cursed and confused world—"We will attempt to guarantee the search for truth and the protections which an open mind should enjoy."

President Gray has sounded a challenge which should appeal to all free men everywhere, and especially to those dedicated to the highest and best in education and progress in North Carolina. With him at the helm, we are confident the Greater University will press onward, not only to maintain its great leadership in the South, but to even greater realms in achievement in the Nation and the educational world.

The Voice Of The People

Editor, Daily Reflector,

Several days ago the regular notice of draft delinquents was published in your paper. In fairness to one of those listed, Boyce Harrington of Ayden, I would like to furnish this information.

In 2 or 3 days after the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, Boyce Harrington was in route to Japan aboard ship with jet gas for U. S. planes. He has never received notice of reclassification from 4A to 1A and the notice of reclassification has never been mailed to his home in Ayden.

Boyce Harrington has been in the regular U. S. Merchant Marine for six years, so it can not be said he is a regular delinquent. He will certainly be available and ready to serve when he is notified. Respectfully,
Mrs. J. L. Harrington

RESOLUTION

Whereas, an editorial appeared in the Daily Reflector, a newspaper published in Greenville, on the 5th day of October, 1950, criticizing the Court for the manner in which certain cases were disposed of during the week of Special Term of Pitt Superior Court which convened on October 2nd, 1950, with His Honor H. A. Grady, Judge Presiding, and, in effect, charging the Solicitor with failure to faithfully discharge the duties of his office; and

Whereas, it is the opinion of the Pitt County Bar that said editorial was written without investigation and in ignorance of the true facts in respect to the cases disposed of and the reasons for their disposition; and

Whereas, that all that was done tended to meet squarely the ends of justice;

Now, therefore, be it resolved

1.—That the editorial referred to was unfair and unjust to the Solicitor and to the able judge who is presiding over the Special Term of Court.

2.—That we have the utmost confidence in the Solicitor and commend him for the fearless and able manner in which he prosecutes his docket, his fairness and for his full appreciation of the responsibilities of his office.

3.—That the secretary of the Pitt County Bar be directed to send a copy of this resolution to Honorable H. A. Grady, to Honorable W. J. Bundy and to the Daily Reflector.

Business Today

By ELMER BOESSNER

Because buying has been so largely anticipated, and armament orders will not reach large volume for several months, the present situation looks like an interlude in the march of inflation, the October letter of New York's National City Bank suggests.

A Korean victory is in view earlier than had been expected, but won't itself bring any considerable modification of armament demands, the bank's economic experts believe. They feel that the more influential reason why the scramble for commodities has eased, is that urgent demands, especially in lines which will be little affected by armament needs, are becoming satisfied. The rush to buy during the summer was as intense as any this country has ever known. But as the bank letter points out, all such buying movements lose momentum after a time anyway. The new purchases run ahead of final consumption, stocks and commitments are built up, and businessmen begin to see that some of the extra sales may be at the expense of future demand. A woman may buy a dozen extra pairs of nylons or 50 pounds of sugar, but she then tends to use up her hoard, especially in these days of small homes without much storage space. A family may rush to buy a new refrigerator, auto or even a house, but those items it had intended to get anyway, so the extra sales have not really increased consumption in many cases, but merely have advanced the time of it.

For their part, Detroit's auto makers seem inclined to discount an appreciable near-term effects of curtailed steel supplies. At least for the next six months they expect to maintain their present record-breaking production, or stay very close to it. The auto men expect that new steel capacity will offset much of the forthcoming armament requirements. More worrisome than steel to the auto makers right now is manpower. That's getting a little tight in industrial areas like Detroit.

WHAT IS THE SCORE ON MANPOWER?

With some manufacturers boosting pay voluntarily to keep workers home, how serious is the manpower problem?

Judging from comments of Arthur Motley, assistant U. S. Employment Service director, at a recent American Management Association meeting, manpower is not really in seriously short supply yet, but will be if full mobilization becomes the ticket, rather than the present program of partial mobilization.

At present, there are still about 2,500,000 workers unemployed, even though some of these lack industrial experience. Nor, as Mr. Motley points out, is the expansion currently contemplated more than a small part of that which occurred in the early 1940's. Also—not only is the present work force larger, but it's superior to that of 1940. Then, many of the unemployed had become "skilled rusty," and others had never had a job in private industry. Today, workers have been using their skills and are accustomed to industrial discipline.

The problem, judging from Mr. Motley's analysis, is one of advance planning and of training workers in their utmost skills, to utilize manpower to its fullest extent, rather than raiding work forces in other plants.

TEACHES EMPLOYEES LETTER WRITING

Writing good business letters is considered so important a part of business by the Hickok Manufacturing Co., Rochester, N. Y., that it has instituted a 12-hour "letter writing clinic" as part of its employee training program. The suggestion came from the company's junior board of directors. The company pays time and a half overtime for hourly employees who stay after hours to take the letter-writing and other courses. The course is compulsory for all supervisors who deal with customers, especially those handling orders. But stenographers also take the course.

Hal Boyle's Column

Korea, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The tall young American had been 69 days behind enemy lines after his squad had been destroyed in a machine gun ambush at Koshang.

For two or three nights he had been hiking across the mountains hoping to reach Taegu.

"I was hopelessly lost," said Lt. Joseph Hicks of Cobden, Ill., "and my strength was about gone."

He met two South Korean peasants and by gestures let them know he was starving. He had eaten nothing but a bowl of rice and two rice balls in nine days. The two men led him into a small home. A third man entered the room and the first two disappeared. Hicks never saw them again. But the third man saved his life.

He wasn't an impressive looking figure—slender and mild of face. But heroes come in strange packages. For the next 60 days the young South Korean risked his own life, the lives of his family and the life of his village to hide the lost lieutenant from Red troops.

And all his own life Hicks will wonder why he did it. "He had nothing to gain by it," said the lieutenant. "He was well to do. He had six children. He knew that if the enemy found that he was hiding an American they would kill him and his family and burn down the village as an object lesson. And it would have been the easiest thing in the world for him to have turned me in quietly. No one would have known."

Of this obscure patriot—his name can't yet be disclosed—could have given Hicks some rice and sent him on to make a foolish break for safety through North Korean lines massed along the Nakdong River. Instead he told him by sign language it was impossible to get through.

"He hid me in a hole near the ancient temple of Heinsa," said Hicks. "The next day he explained I couldn't stay there. It was too dangerous."

"The Reds, figuring the Americans wouldn't bomb the temple, were keeping four to six hundred troops there every night, then moving them on toward the front the next day."

So his new friend took Hicks 1/4 miles into the hills and helped him camouflage a hideaway under a rock. Although he had been hired by the Reds as a civilian detective to guard the Heinsa temple, the South Korean managed once a week to bring rice to the lieutenant and tell him how the war was going.

"I was safe at night," said Hicks, "but I had to keep a sharp lookout for Red patrols during the day."

He stayed there more than a month. Then on a dark and rainy day his friend came and explained by signs the Reds were searching the area for American stragglers. "Bang-bang!" he said using the standard South Korean description of the enemy. He helped Hicks find a new hide-out three miles higher in the mountains.

"I had no blankets and it was too risky to build a fire at night to keep warm," Hicks said.

"I cooked the rice he brought me during the day over a charcoal fire. That was safe enough because the charcoal did not smoke."

On Sept. 25—Hicks then had been behind the enemy lines since July 29—his benefactor came and said the Americans had made a great breakthrough. But he warned it was still unsafe for Hicks to try to escape through the chaotic Red lines.

put one of my dogtags in the note to identify myself."

Eight days later the South Korean returned after an 80-mile round trip on foot. He had delivered the note but came back with bad news.

"The Americans were afraid it was just a trick by the Reds to lure them into another ambush," recalled Hicks.

But by then the crumbling enemy line had almost disintegrated. The young South Korean disguised Hicks as a peasant. And on Oct. 4 he led the lieutenant for several miles along a road cluttered with disorganized, fleeing Red soldiers into the American lines.

Now Hicks would like to do something to repay the loyalty of his benefactor. But he is strangely helpless.

"I can't offer him money because he is well off already," said the lieutenant. "I guess I will never be able to understand why he did what he did for me. All I can do the rest of my life is to be grateful to him. And it makes me feel a little funny to realize we will probably never even see each other again."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, the Navy's only woman captain, mows the grass, cuts the weeds and tends her own kitchen garden on her hill-top farm in nearby Virginia.

Assistant to the chief of naval personnel for women, Captain Hancock also cooks her own meals, designed the house she lives in, planted trees lining the driveway, built a concrete swimming pool and likes to have her fortunes told.

All of this, of course, in her "spare time." She was director of the WAVES unit that whole service. Her job now is mostly that of adviser on affairs of Navy women. She has to keep in close touch with all branches of the service where women are assigned. She makes frequent inspection trips to WAVES installations throughout this country and in London and hopes soon to visit the some 100 WAVES at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Twice widowed by Navy dirigible crashes, Capt. Hancock is a veteran of two world wars and won the nickname of "mustang" by rising from enlisted ranks to commissioned officer. She enlisted as a yeomanette after her graduation from a Wildwood, N.J., high school.

If you are a young woman looking for a career, there are promising opportunities in the field of dietetics and public health nutrition.

The U. S. Women's Bureau says in a statement the demand for trained dietitians and nutritionists far exceeds the available supply and is expected to remain so for some years. The bureau also points out that these two fast-growing fields offer women a variety of opportunities as to type of work and place of employment.

More important, it says, both occupations "are essential to the welfare of the community and the nation, in peacetime as well as in war."

City folks are good vegetable eaters. They use, per person, about four and a half pounds a week, not counting potatoes and sweet potatoes. They spend about nine cents out of every food dollar for fresh, canned or frozen vegetables.

that calls for high commendation are: "Mother and Child" (reproduced), "Don" and "R. S. Ward." According to the titles of the artist's work, one might feel that these paintings and drawings are a record of her life.

An exhibition, which is essentially modern in technique and approach, is well worth attending. The showing continues through Oct. 21 and the galleries are open between the hours of 2:00 and 5:30. Admission is free.

State College Alumni Banquet

The Pitt County Chapter of North Carolina State College Alumni Association at a banquet at Respos-James Barbecue House last night elected M. B. Hodges president to succeed Sam C. Winchester.

Howard Moyer was elected vice-president; Milton May, secretary and Chester Walsh, chairman of the public relations committee.

W. E. Adams, director of instruction, School of Engineering, N. C. State College, of Circleville, Ohio, speaker of the evening, said some of the mighty nice things about North Carolina and North Carolina people.

He did not make an after-dinner speech, some of the members agreed, and then commented that Adams talked in a heart-to-heart manner and that his message will be long remembered. President Winchester introduced the speaker.

The State College official showed a sound motion picture, entitled, "North Carolina State College." The picture impressively described the 61 years' history of the institution.

The Pitt County Chapter unanimously adopted new by-laws and a constitution, suggested by the State Alumni Association for the purpose of maintaining uniformity among the alumni chapters. The suggestion came from H. W. (Pop) Taylor, alumni secretary for State College, Raleigh.

W. Arthur Tripp, Brantley Speight and Walter Jones compose the executive committee.

A considerable period of last night's alumni meeting was devoted to informal discussion of State College affairs. Plans were discussed for inviting other state college people to join the Pitt County Chapter.

Fire Alarm Was Sounded By Goat

Holcomb, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—A goat is credited with sounding the alarm of a $10,000 fire near this Ontario county community.

Joseph Mosher said the goat butted the back door of his farmhouse so persistently he went out to see what was wrong. He discovered the barn on a neighboring farm was ablaze.

Further Delays Threaten Color Television Plans

Washington, Oct. 12—(AP)—A threat of court action and further major delays hung over home color television today despite an official go-ahead from the Columbia Broadcasting System's method.

The Federal Communications Commission announced late yesterday that it had made final its previous tentative selection of the CBS system as the National Color Television plan. CBS immediately promised to "promote (IT) to the hilt."

But Isidor Goldberg, president of the Pilot Radio Corporation, said in New York his firm will seek an injunction to stay the FCC's action.

The action also came under fire from the Radio Corporation of America, developer of one competing color TV system ruled out by the FCC. The other was developed by Color Television, Inc. David Sarnoff, board chairman of RCA, said in a statement issued in New York that the public interest will not be served by forced adoption of a "degraded" and incompatible system.

What engineers call the incompatibility of the CBS system is the fact that its color signals cannot be picked up, even in black and white, by existing sets, of which nearly 8,000,000 are in the hands of the public.

"We regard this decision as scientifically unsound and against the public interest," Sarnoff said. "The hundreds of millions of dollars that present set owners would have to spend and that future set owners would have to pay to obtain a degraded picture x x x reduces today's order to an absurdity."

Sarnoff also hinted that RCA will not accept the FCC decision without a fight, saying:

"Regardless on what anyone else may feel called upon to do, RCA will continue its efforts to advance the bedrock principles on which the sound future of color television can be built and will be built."

In effect, the FCC's decision granting Columbia an exclusive franchise in the color television field for its system, based on a mechanical color wheel. CBS has promised to make its color patents available to everyone in the industry. The royalties involved have been estimated at $50,000,000.

Gulf Hurricane Blows Self Out

Mexico City, Oct. 12—(AP)—A hurricane, which sent ships scurrying for cover in the Gulf yesterday, then romped inland crippling communications and leveling crops, was reported today to have pretty much blown itself out.

The storm, which spent its final fury on Vera Cruz, turned south last night and was reported to have broken up in the mountains near the coast.

Art Supervisor
Visitors to the art gallery, located in Shepard Memorial Library, have found the current exhibition of paintings and drawings by Mary Trenwith Duffy admirably executed. It is the expression of the faces that strike one as being unusual. One seems to be among his own kind. Good qualities of art are apparent and mark the artist as an excellent craftsman with a flare for reproducing individual expressions and characterizations. It is no wonder that the artist has painted so many persons of prominence in the past. There is no over elaboration of detail, which of course makes for clarity of statement. The deliberate simplification and precise patterns could not have been done by an untutored painter.

Besides Duffy's oil portraits, one also finds delicate and highly realistic pencil drawings, which also indicate a skilled craftsman. The artist specializes in pencil portraits with each portrait carefully delineated and vitally characterized. Most of her work possesses a meticulous precision which is characteristic.

One finds particularly appealing the charming and happy painting "William and Mary" depicting colored children singing in church; a sensitive concept. Her work is never shrill or garish and in "Charles" especially she has penetrated beneath the mask of feature and disclosed much of the hidden secret of personality that lies beneath. The naturalness of the poses does not suggest studio arrangement. Work

Pan-Islamism Is Called Premature

Karachi—(AP)—Mirza Bashiruddin Mahmood, head of the Quadiani Muslim community, has criticized proposals for a united Islamic world, calling them premature and vague. His community believes Jesus Christ was taken down from the cross by his disciples while alive and traveled to India, where he died in what is now Kashmir.

Explaining his lack of enthusiasm for the pan-Islamic idea, the Quadiani leader declared that it was "not backed by the necessary spirit of sacrifice."

Little Cows Provide Meat For Little Buyers

Vero Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Nobby knows where the Florida "guinea" cow came from, but after 400 years it has developed a future.

W. E. Sexton is seeing to that. He crossed it with the big, humped Brahma and developed a midget strain that answers a demand for smaller beef cuts.

The "guinea" was little more than a varmint when Sexton took over four years ago. It supposedly was brought over by the Spanish when Florida was new and men still sought the fountain of youth.

It wandered the hinterlands as a wild cow through all Florida's history. Sexton got his breeder from the wilderness around Kenansville in Mid-Florida.

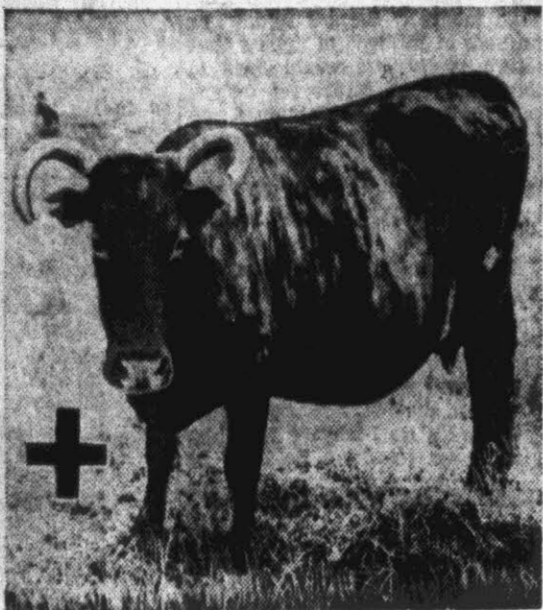

Most cattlemen were breeding for bigger and better strains when Sexton announced four years ago that he planned to produce a mid-get with the "guinea." They laughed at him. Now Sexton is doing the laughing.

His aim was to produce a veal calf that would average 250 pounds in 120 days. He cross-bred his pygmy with the big Brahma, an East Indian strain, and he is happy with the result. His midget averages 201 pounds in 120 days. It fattens on grass, not grain.

He has topped the Kissimmee livestock market three times for prices, and he is so cocksure of the future that he has organized the American Guinea Breeders Association. Sexton holds all its offices.

INGREDIENTS — A Brahma bull and one of the wild "guinea" cows of the Florida wastes.

THE RESULT — A fast-growing midget steer, grass fattened.

Superior Court Judge Henry L. Stevens placed EVANS among those who "stand up and use the constitution x x x as a shelter x x x while they scuttle the very country the constitution stands for."

Bertie Sheriff Resigns Office

Goldsboro, Oct. 12—(AP)—Sheriff Harry L. Smith of Bertie County resigned this week following recent commission board action which asked for his resignation by Oct. 10. However, indications were he would succeed himself after the November general election.

L. S. Mizelle, clerk of the board, told the Goldsboro News-Argus that he received a copy of Smith's resignation Tuesday. The commission board is to hold its next meeting tomorrow.

Smith lacked six weeks completing his second term as sheriff. He is the only candidate to succeed himself in the general election, as the Republican party in Bertie did not file a slate of candidates.

The sheriff was asked to resign after the board reviewed a recent Wayne County court trial in which Smith was convicted of drunken driving and resisting arrest.

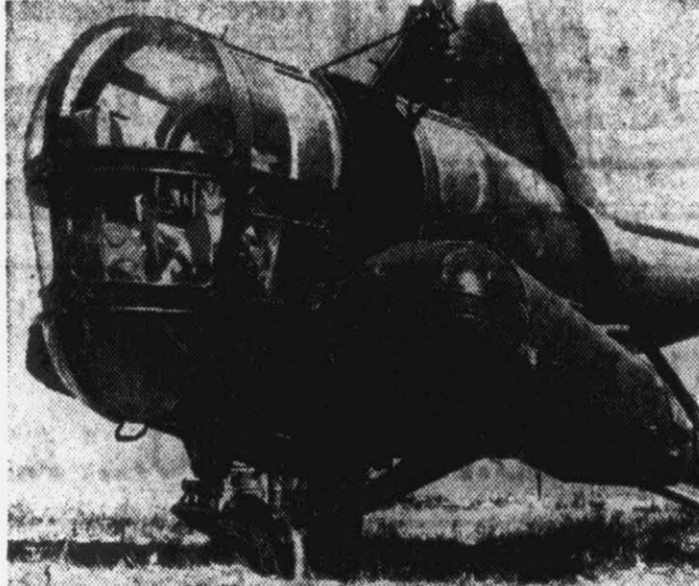

Mizelle said wording of Smith's resignation indicated that he planned to resume office after the election.

War Casualties

Washington, Oct. 12—(AP)—Announced casualties in the Korean war rose to 24,163 today—an increase of 3,407 in a week.

The total announced by the defense department covers those whose next of kin had been notified through October 6. It included 3,614 deaths, 16,289 non-fatally wounded and 4,260 missing in action.

Of those listed as missing, the department said, 311 have since returned to United Nations military units and 107 have been reported captured or interned by the enemy. This leaves 3,842 still missing as of Oct. 6.

'Peace Petition' Charges Dropped

Durham, N.C., Oct. 12—(AP)—William McKee Evans, who sought to test a vagrancy charge lodged against persons distributing Stockholm peace petitions in Durham, was acquitted of vagrancy in Superior Court here yesterday.

At the close of the evidence, the state took a voluntary non-suit which is equivalent to acquittal. The case did not go to the jury.

Evans had asked for a jury trial after a hearing in Recorder's Court in August. He was arrested in front of the county court house here by three policemen who he had asked to sign the petition.

He said at the time that he wanted

Quality Of Large Corn Crop Still Said 'Uncertain'

Washington, Oct. 12 — (AP) — The nation appears assured of an above-average corn crop this year, but the quality of much of the grain still hinges on October weather conditions.

The Agriculture Department has estimated the crop at 5,118,000,000 bushels. That compares with 3,737,000,000 last year and a ten-year average of 2,900,000,000. But there is danger, the Department said, that much of it will not mature fully before hit by killing frosts.

Immature or "soft" corn does not have the feeding value of matured grain. Neither does it keep as long.

Nevertheless, farmers are assured of enough corn and other feed grains to maintain production of meats, poultry and dairy products at high levels. In addition to this year's production, there is a record reserve or carryover of more than 900,000,000 bushels of corn from the past two big crops.

Despite the downturn in corn prospects during September, the total volume of crop production this year is expected to be slightly above the average of the past eight excellent years, the Department said.

Only soybeans and sugar beets promise record production. Grain sorghums are virtually at a record level. Many crops exceed average, including corn, oats, flaxseed, rice, hay, potatoes, tobacco, sugarcane, hops, apples, pears, cherries and cranberries.

Only slightly below average are wheat, barley, sweet potatoes, and grapes. Relatively small crops are indicated for cotton, dry beans, peanuts, peaches, apricots and pecans.

'Heil' Leads To Jail Sentence

Berlin — (AP) — A West Berlin court recently convicted Erich Waltbach, 51, on a morals charge, and gave him a one-year suspended sentence. When the judge told him he could go home now, Waltbach gave the Nazi salute and shouted "Heil Hitler."

The court changed its mind then and let Waltbach stay in jail for three more days, for contempt of court.

Israeli School Systems Growing

Tel Aviv, Israel — (AP) — Israeli school children, steadily increasing in numbers, are back at work for the 1950-51 term while authorities rush the construction of more classrooms. Ministry of Education officials estimated from 130,000 to 134,000 children over the age of five would receive instruction this year. The 1949-50 figure was 110,000.

About 17,000 Arab children also are attending schools in various sectors of Israel.

Reinforcements Reach Germany

Berlin, Oct. 11 — (AP) — Lieut. Stanton S. Eddy announced today that "American reinforcements are arriving now in Germany."

"They are reaching Germany as a flow of replacements, not in new units as yet," the commander of the U. S. Army in Europe told a news conference here.

He said the Berlin garrison probably would be the first to be increased in strength by additional troops.

Riceland Rice Vegetable Jambalaya Is Family Favorite

Famous Riceland Rice Vegetable Jambalaya

If you've never tasted a genuine Jambalaya, you've missed one of the most wonderfully delicious dishes of all time. Don't keep this famous treat from your family any longer! Serve Riceland Rice Vegetable Jambalaya tomorrow.

It's simple and easy to cook, too!

The secret of making a really good Jambalaya is to use the best quality rice—Riceland Rice, the world's most delicious rice. This perfect-cooking rice is sold almost everywhere, so if your grocer doesn't have genuine Riceland Rice, shop around—it's worth making a special effort to get. And it will make this Jambalaya and all your rice dishes extra delicious.

Riceland Rice Vegetable Jambalaya

- 1 cup uncooked Riceland Rice
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ pound mushrooms, sliced
- ¼ cup sliced onions
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 3 cups broth, stock, canned bouillon or consommé, or water
- 2 cups canned tomatoes
- ½ bay leaf
- ½ teaspoon chili pepper
- ¼ teaspoon thyme
- 2 teaspoons salt
- Dash of red pepper minutes or until lightly browned. Add mushrooms, onion, green pepper and celery. Cook until vegetables are soft and lightly browned.

Add remaining ingredients. Simmer over low heat, only partly covered, about 40 minutes or until the rice is tender. If a thicker mixture is preferred, remove cover entirely and continue cooking a few minutes longer until the liquid has cooked down to the desired thickness.

Then get ready for the enthusiastic compliments of your family! This Riceland Rice Vegetable Jambalaya will be one of your family's favorite dishes from then on!

Heat butter or margarine in a heavy skillet. Add dry, uncooked Riceland Rice. Cook, stirring constantly about 10

Riceland Rice Is Easy To Cook! Tender! Fluffy!

Chapter 23
When Stephanie came out of the hall office building it was snowing heavily.

By the time she had done her shopping the snow was coming down so thickly that it was like a screen through which everything, the hurrying, homeward-bound people, the traffic, the shadowing background, was a dim, flickering film of bygone nickelodeum days. Her arms were laden with as many packages as she could carry and walking was becoming a risky, slippery, tight-rope accomplishment. Stephanie decided she would take a taxi rather than try to board a crowded bus. Besides, it would get her home sooner. As it was, she would not have too much time before Sandy would be coming home.

Other people apparently had the same idea. All the cabs that passed went whizzing by with passengers tucked snugly in their back seats.

Here was one that just had to be empty. But no, the driver ignored Stephanie's frantic signal, driving by at such speed that she had to jump back onto the curb to avoid being splashed or run over.

She dropped one of her bundles and as she stooped to retrieve it someone else rescued it and handed it to her. She straightened up to look into Grant's laughing eyes.

"I thought it was you!" His delight that it was rang in his voice. "This is almost as bad as a London fog. Come on, Stephanie, my car's in the next lot; I'll drive you home."

Grant was the last person she would have chosen to run into, fog or not. He had driven her home a few times after she had first started working, but she had told him that she preferred to go home on the bus. She did not want it to become an established habit for Grant to be waiting outside, eager to take her home.

"This was different; she could hardly refuse had she wished. Since it would be as good as a taxi, or rather quick, she supposed she ought to be glad of the coincidence of their meeting, although she did not want to see Grant just now.

"Anything wrong?" There was a solicitous note in his voice.

"Should there be?"

"No. You look just the opposite—radiant, glowing—beautiful as always, Stephanie." Yet somehow different.

"You mean because I'm off early," she suggested. Surely he could not read the discovery she had so recently made just by looking into her face. He would have to know, sooner or later, poor Grant, but she did not want to spoil her own happiness by hurting him now. Selfish, maybe, but she would be selfish about this.

"So you are. Get fired?" He knew better, of course.

She laughed. "You won't believe me, but Miss Phipps insisted I go home early today."

"Certainly I believe you." He headed the car into the stream of slow traffic. The windshield wipers started up a gay little tune. "I knew it wouldn't take long for you to win Miss Phipps' heart."

He had to stop for a red light; he turned to look at her. "You look different, Stephanie. I didn't know what it was at first, but you look happy!"

Her eyes always mirrored her emotions. They had, at the first meeting across a crowded room, shown him the stark misery that had engulfed her. He had had the satisfaction of knowing he had been able to replace that stricken bewilderment with a calm acceptance. But he had never before seen the shining radiance that shone in them now.

"Don't you want me to be happy?" she parried. And thought: Oh, dear! now it will be up to me to hurt him, to cause him unhappiness.

"More than anything in this world." His answer was much more serious than seemed called for, even from a person as serious as Grant.

Her eyes thanked him. She knew that he meant it.

"Here we are," he said, pulling to a stop before the house. "You must let me help you with all those bundles, Stephanie."

Again she could not very well refuse, although she did not want Grant to go in with her. She had so many things to do before Sandy would get home. And this day, being special, could not include Grant.

It was as if he were the stranger now who had no part, not only in what she did, but in what she thought and felt.

Yet she did feel a twinge of guilt at shutting him out so completely. She certainly could be a little bit kind to him. Perhaps that was why, after she had unlocked the door, she asked him to come in.

"Just put those things down anywhere," she began. And then she burst out laughing. Grant presented such a comical picture with both arms full of packages. The bottom ones were continually slipping, after that long climb up the stairs, so that he had to keep shifting to balance them.

"Let me help you," she said, hurrying to his rescue. But as she reached him, he let them all go, willy-nilly, down into the seat of the big Morris chair.

Perhaps Grant had mistaken her laughter, that radiance in her eyes, her hurrying to him. Or perhaps he had heard a movement in the adjoining room. Whatever his reason, he did something totally unexpected.

He took Stephanie in his arms. He held her there. He kissed her, long and hard. Then he let her go.

It happened so quickly that Stephanie did not know what was happening. Her eyes were wide and staring. But that kiss had done nothing to her heart. It had not meant anything at all!

Naval Training Center Busy Again Making Youngsters Ready For Fleet

By ED CREAGH
Great Lakes, Ill., Oct. 12—(AP)—“Your eyes are right. Your pants are tight. You had a good home but you left—“Sound off, one, two, . . .”
You’ll hear this chant, and a hundred variations of it, on the shores of Lake Michigan these days as the Bluejackets march through the sharp autumn air.
But the thousands of boys—all volunteers—do much more than drill. The U.S. Naval Training Center is making them ready for active duty with the nation’s expanding fleet, just as it trained more than 1,000,000 young men in World War II.

Training is fast in these uncertain days. Fourteen weeks of basic training has been cut to 11. Your son, or your neighbor’s, won’t do much loafing if he comes to Great Lakes. But he will learn a lot about seamanship, about democracy and about himself.
You’ll see a change in him a few hours after he gets off the train. The Navy will give him a close-cropped haircut, a knit wool watch cap and a temporary uniform—dungarees. He won’t get his regular uniform for about a month. It has to be tailored to fit him.
“The average age of these boys is 18,” says Capt. Melvin L. Nuttine, who heads the recruit training command. “We give them the most fundamental training regardless of their future assignments. From there they will go on to service schools or direct to the fleet.
“Here we help a boy adjust to living in a group . . . teach him the fundamentals of Navy life—and of democracy . . . instill in him a pride in himself and in his service . . . help him develop a desire for self-improvement.”
Today’s Navy aims at being like a good father—firm but not harsh. The sailor is neither pushed around nor coddled.
Barracks are spotless. The boys sleep in double-decker bunks—not in hammocks any more—and the bunks had better be made right. Recruits wash their own clothes. If they don’t know how, petty officers teach them how.
In training, there’s more emphasis on how-to-do-it movies and other training aids than on drill. But theory is followed by practice. You see a spectacular demonstration of this at the fire fighter school.

Here, soot-stained recruits in oil-skins, looking as if they’d just come up from a coal mine, charge through intense heat toward gasoline fires that spurt flames and black smoke high into the air.
Many are scared at first. But they learn quickly that the flames—which could be disastrous if uncontrolled on a ship—can be kept at bay and easily quenched by water sprayed through 10-foot-long hooked pipe applicators.
“It gives you confidence and teaches you to use the equipment,” said Donald Ott of Philadelphia, “but you never lose your respect for fire. It wouldn’t be healthy.”
Ott, incidentally, is a veteran of overseas service with the 82nd Airborne Division. He’s not the only man to transfer from another service to the Navy. Harvey W. Walters of Rochester, N.Y., is a Great Lakes “boot” after four years as a marine.

“There’s a good future in the Navy,” Walters said. “I have to think of that, with a wife and two children. My daughter started school the day I left for Great Lakes.”
But most trainees are still going through the storm and stress of growing up. And that accounts for a curious bulletin board you’ll see in one of the recreation halls. It’s covered with letters like this one, from Denver, Colo.:
“Dear . . . I am going to marry Chuck. Now, damn it, leave us alone. Thank you, Hazel.”
That story begins with a sad-faced boy who thought the world had come to an end because his girl friend back home had met someone else.
“He wasn’t the first to cry on my shoulder for the same reason,” says Mrs. Martha Thomas of Lake Forest, Ill., a civilian recreation director. “We saw the need for doing something about it so we organized a club of jilted sailors. We call it the ‘Dear John’ club.”
“The boys hold meetings and compare experiences. They post the ‘jilt’ letters on this bulletin board. Pretty soon they’re all laughing together instead of feeling sorry for themselves. It does wonders for morale.”

Popcorn Packing Idea Wins Award

Philadelphia, Oct. 11—(AP)—Popcorn is a pretty good substitute for excelsior—saving as much as 75 per cent in mailing costs—says a New York shipper.
The idea of using popcorn in packages won an award yesterday for Harold Frick at the Society of Industrial Packing and Materials Handling Engineers Exposition.

Rosselini Sues Senator Johnson

Rome, Oct. 11—(AP)—Roberto Rosselini announced he filed suit in Rome today against U. S. Senator Edwin C. Johnson, charging the Colorado Democrat made a derogatory remark about him at a cocktail party in Rome last night.
Rosselini said Johnson had called him a scoundrel in the presence of five Italian newspapermen.
Johnson has been in Italy on a tour sponsored by an American Air Line. He left for Paris this afternoon.

Draft Quota For N. C. Estimated

Raleigh, Oct. 12—(AP)—North Carolina may have to supply between 1,200 and 1,300 of the 40,000 draftees asked by the Army for December, State Selective Service headquarters said Wednesday.
O. S. Slaughter, manpower chief for the Selective Service system here, said he estimated the figure after the Army made its December call Tuesday.
Earlier, 1,335 Tar Heels were called in September, 1,336 in October and 2,099 for November, Slaughter said. The December call raises the state’s total draft call since the Korean war started to around 4,350 men.
Slaughter added that “we’re going to have to call up more men for each draft now.” He explained that many college students are included in the calls, but a great number of them are requesting deferment.

Translating South's Resources Into New Riches Discussed By Dr. Carter

In its agricultural riches and its possibilities for industrial development, the South is truly America's number one economic opportunity, Dr. Edward J. Carter, chairman of the department of education at East Carolina Teachers College, told members of the Faculty Lecture Club of the college. Salient points in his address "Turning the Nation's Resources Into Wealth" which occasioned discussion by the audience included the implications upon government of use and management of our natural wealth, a suggestion for broadening the education of engineers to include a study of biological environment, and the role of the public schools in resource-use education.

J. O. Derrick, president of the Faculty Club, presided at the meeting, which was the first in a series of six to be held during the 1950-51 term. Dr. Hubert Coleman, program chairman, introduced the speaker to the audience of more than forty members and guests.

"In recent years," Dr. Carter said, "we have begun to realize the South's possibilities and to awaken to the task of reshaping her destiny." However, he continued, "in order to balance our economy, all of our people need to learn how to use our resources efficiently. It will be an educational process."

Dr. Carter cited facts and figures to show that the South, rich in raw materials, exports to other sections for manufacture much of what it produces. It also imports, he said, many food stuffs that could be raised at home. The result, he stated, is a comparatively low standard of living.

In spite of vast research by sociologists, economists, and others, he said, the average man is not getting full benefit of their investigations. "The writers know," he stated, "there is a fortune in the woodpile, but they haven't been able to tell the owner," partly because the layman does not understand their language. The schools must teach the proper use of resources, Dr. Carter stated, from the lower grades upward. "Practical information on nutrition, health, clothing, housing, and the proper utilization and conservation of our resources should be made available to all our people," he maintained. "This should be begun as early as possible in the life of the child."

The responsibility of developing industrial resources and still preserving "environmental balance" was emphasized by Dr. Carter. The relationship of food supply to population, land use and management, water supply and waste disposal, and the conservation of non-renewable mineral resources must be understood, he said, if man is to live in balance with his environments and "get along with what he has."

Warning against exploitation of resources and waste of natural wealth, Dr. Carter said, "There are, let us remember, alternative political and economic systems. There is no alternative to the law of natural equilibrium. Any political or economic system that wishes to survive had better square off to an honest start by taking its peace with the inevitable. If private enterprise chooses to do this, it will have my modest backing. I would rather live under the private enterprise system, no matter how meager my share of it, than range the galleries of the most gloriously Utopian anti-hill I can imagine."

Forgetful Lady Still Forgetful

Signal Hill, Calif., Oct. 12—(AP)—City Clerk Heber Chapman came upon this letter in his mail today. "I am sorry, but I forgot when they took the dog census last year about a puppy my son has. I am enclosing $3 . . ."

Seems the lady is still forgetful, though. The letter wasn't signed, and didn't contain $3, Chapman said.

Millworkers Still On Job Though Contract Ends

Durham, Oct. 12—(AP)—The 7,000 employes at Erwin Mills plants here at Erwin and Cooleemee continued work today, although their union contract with the company expired at midnight last night.

The employes authorized representatives of the Textile Workers Union of America to extend the work contract for a few days, in order to reach an agreement.

Indications are that a settlement is near, and that there will be no work stoppage. Negotiations have been under way since last August in which the union is seeking a flat 15 per cent wage increase, readjustments in work loads, and a pension plan.

Pay Homage To Chris Columbus

Miami, Fla., Oct. 12—(AP)—About 350 dignitaries from every nation in the Western Hemisphere assembled here today to pay homage to Christopher Columbus and boost a proposed multi-million dollar inter-American cultural and trade center.

Keynoting the goodwill get-together will be Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer's address to-night.

Orders Wife To Attend Church

Portsmouth, Ohio, Oct. 12—(AP)—A municipal court judge has ordered a Portsmouth housewife to attend church every Sunday for a year—or spend 30 days in jail and pay a fine of $10 and costs.

The unusual sentence was imposed on Mrs. Violet Copley, 36 after being convicted on an assault and battery charge before Judge Kenneth Cranston.

A neighbor had charged that Mrs. Copley struck her with a toy ball.

bat. Mrs. Copley elected to attend church for the next year.

Phone Bringing School To Home

Cleveland, Oct. 12—(AP)—A telephone brings third grade classes to the home of Ann Idorne, 10, whose legs are paralyzed.

Through a direct telephone circuit to Central School in suburban Euclid, Ann sits in her wheelchair and participates in classes and assembly programs.

When Ann recites, her voice is heard in the schoolroom over a speaker on the teacher's desk. An amplifier enables her to hear what is said in the classroom.

Hadacol Helps Arkansas' Oldest Timber Estimator

He Suffered Deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

B. J. Chandler, 518 Lacer Blvd., in Hot Springs National Park, Ark., will be 85 years old in October and is believed to be the oldest timber estimator in Arkansas. He feels better now than he has in a long time since HADACOL has helped him relieve deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.

Here is Mr. Chandler's statement: "I suffered with aches and pains in the shoulders, hips and knees. It was almost impossible to sleep and I had lost my appetite. HADACOL has done me more good than anything else. I have taken about 35 bottles of HADACOL. The pains have been greatly reduced."

Why HADACOL Gives Such Fine Results

HADACOL does not just bring symptomatic relief—HADACOL now makes it possible to actually relieve the cause of aches and pains in the shoulders, legs and arms, certain nervous disorders, and a general run-down weakened condition due to such deficiencies in your system.

HADACOL not only supplies deficient systems with extra quantities of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin but also helpful amounts of important Calcium and Phosphorus—elements so vital to help maintain good health and physical fitness.

Why These Vitamins and Minerals Come in Liquid Form

There's a very good reason why HADACOL comes in special liquid form. These precious Vitamins and Minerals are easily and quickly absorbed into the blood stream this way—ready to go right to work. A big improvement is often noticed within a few days.

Don't Be A 'Doubting Thomas'

After reading Mr. Chandler's wonderful experience with HADACOL—how can you doubt that this great new nutritional formula will help you if your system lacks Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin?

What HADACOL did for Mr. Chandler, it can do for you if you're suffering annoying aches and pains and a general run-down weakened condition due to such deficiencies.

So what are you waiting for? Don't you see that HADACOL is the kind of product you should start taking immediately!

Sold On A Strict Money-Back Guarantee

HADACOL even helps build up the hemoglobin of red blood cells (when iron is needed) to course through your body, carrying these great health-building elements to every body organ to every part of the body. No wonder HADACOL helps you feel wonderful.

Be fair to yourself! Give yourself a break! Go above such deficiencies! Why continue to drag yourself a break if you have such deficiencies and your family—when relief may be as close at hand as your nearest drugstore if your system lacks B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron. This great HADACOL is inexpensive, too—costs only a small amount a day. Trial size, only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50.

THERE'S a change of the year for your Buick, too, stalwart as it is! Hot summer driving has taken its toll—in played-out lubricants, spark timing that may have slipped off a notch or two over the many miles, a carburetor that would probably give you better mileage and snap if it were properly adjusted now for fall driving.

Point is—your Buick will feel a lot friskier in the trying days to come if you let your Buick dealer get those summer kinks out of its system now! Just drive in—say you want (1) a fall tune-up! and (2) a regular Lubricare—and see how much rewarded you are, for a small fee!

Do it this week, will you? Before the rush, you can be served more promptly.

French Army Working Fast To Fortify Area Won In Indochina

Manoi, Indochina, Oct. 10—(AP)—The French army is feverishly pushing work on a web of permanent fortification to hold 800 square miles of newly-conquered territory North of Hanoi. In a 12 day offensive just ended, six battalions—about 4,200 men—cut a swath through a triangular region of flat richlands 40 miles North of this chief city of North Indochina.

This action was south of the Caochang-Thatkhe border region where five French battalions were almost completely wiped out during the weekend by Communist-led guerrillas.

Vietminh forces dug pits and wide gaps in the road to block the French advance. They succeeded in making the route impassable for rolling equipment. As rocks from the road were strewn through the rice paddies, the French had to make long hauls to replace the filler material.

Heavy mobile guards with automatic weapons and 40 millimeter guns were used to protect the construction gangs. About 1,000 villagers voluntarily helped, hauling dirt in straw baskets to fill the holes in the road.

Army construction units have started to build 30 medieval-type brick fortresses in the new territory. Five of the main positions are along the roadside. The others are four and five miles back from the road, located to cover each flank.

The big anchor fortification will be at Thai Nguyen. Several positions already have been ringed with thick fences of sharpened bamboo sticks. Workers huddle each night in slit trenches behind these fences.

Peasants who fled and hid in the face of advancing French columns last week have now started to return to villages and are reappearing in the fields.

THE SURE MOTOR OIL

Purelube for low oil consumption! Road tests prove it!

In road tests just completed, Purelube and competitive premium-quality oils were used in stock passenger cars that ran 24 hours a day, day in and day out—over scaring desert roads, up tortuous mountain grades, in stop-and-go city traffic.

In 83,000 miles of test driving, Purelube showed less oil consumption than any of the oils tested... actually 17 per cent lower oil consumption than the average of the competitive brands. That means real economy in addition to sure protection.

Dole Sees Top-Flight Game With Catamounts

Last Heavy Practice Of Week For Pirates; Smith, Aldridge And Graybill Stand Out In Scrimmage

East Carolina held its last heavy practice of the week yesterday, in preparation for their Homecoming game with West Carolina here Saturday night.

A lengthy scrimmage session highlighted yesterday's workouts.

Coach Bill Dole expressed himself pretty well satisfied with the showing of his squad in practice, and will probably give his Pirates only light work for the remainder of the week.

Most notable change in the Pirate camp was the running of Johnny Smith, 185-pound senior, at the first string fullback slot. Smith has worked as a defensive linebacker all season, but may see plenty of action at the starting plugging position Saturday night.

Guards Jesse Aldridge and George Graybill also looked impressive in yesterday's scrimmage, and it is expected that these two will draw the starting offensive assignments Saturday night. Both have been used rather sparingly thus far this season.

Defensive Halfback Sandy Siler and End Ed Tanner are still nursing injuries and will not be counted on for service against the Catamounts. Both have knee injuries sustained earlier in the season, and have not taken part in the rough drills this week. However, the Pirates are in much better physical condition than last week when they met Mon's Christians.

Commented Coach Dole on Saturday's encounter: "Local fans will have a chance to see one of the better teams in the conference perform. West Carolina are the possessors of a well rounded attack and are a defending conference champions. It should be a top notch game."

CPL Votes 126 Games, Higher Ticket Prices

Williamston, N.C., Oct. 12—(AP)—The cost of baseball admissions is going up, too—at least in the Class D Coastal Plain League.

Coastal Plain officials, meeting in the office of League President Ray H. Goodmon yesterday, voted to raise admission prices to 75 cents per game, an increase of 15 cents. Tickets also were upped 10 cents to 30 cents for Negro fans, and raised a nickel to 30 cents for children.

The league leaders also voted to return to the old playing schedule of 128 games instead of last season's 140.

The same player classifications will be kept, each team being limited to two veterans, nine service players, and six rookies.

May 3 was announced as the opening day of the season while regular play will wind up Sept. 3.

Last season the Coastal Plain loop drew 463,000 fans, a drop of 103,000 from 1949.

Ohio State Has Iron-Clad Line

New York, Oct. 12—(AP)—When you play Ohio State in football, don't run with the ball; you'll make only three inches a try.

This statistical tidbit is offered by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, and it sounds like mighty good advice.

Southern Methodist and Pittsburgh tried to run against Ohio State. Both failed miserably. Between them, SMU and Pitt called 55 running plays and gained only 5 yards net in two games. That's an average of 2.5 yards per game—or three inches a try—the nation's top rushing defense mark.

So when Clyde Smith sends his Indiana team against Ohio State this Saturday, he'd better have the Hoosiers' passing game well oiled. His backs may not make much headway via terra firma.

What makes Ohio State's record more impressive is that Loyola of California, in second place, has yielded 37.5 yards per game—this compared to State's 2.5.

Oakland Trying Promote A Deal For Wakefield

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 12—(AP)—Strapping Dick Wakefield, once one of baseball's brightest prospects, may or may not realize his ambition to return to the major leagues next season. If he doesn't, it won't be the fault of Clarence "Buck" Laws, hustling president of the Oakland club.

Laws, whose intense interest in the sport and willingness to dip into the cash drawer brought Oakland its second coast league championship this season in the last three years, is trying to promote a deal for Wakefield.

Wakefield, an outfielder who had a small but at times substantial part in the Oakland pennant drive, is draft eligible. In the meantime, his contract is for sale. So far, no bidders. But Charley Dressen, who steered the Oaks to the top in his second season here, is in the east on a trading, buying and selling expedition.

In the Lake Superior region near Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., a man-hunt was launched Tuesday for 18-year-old Donald Cole (top), sought for the shooting of two teen-age girls. Pauline Parady (bottom), 14, was shot in the spine and was paralyzed from the waist down. The other victim is Myrna Benson, 12. (AP Wirephoto).

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy. Headaches and dizziness. # Farley Promises Lots Of Passing In Friday Game

New offensive and defensive patterns were drilled by Greenville's Phantoms yesterday as they went over the hump in preparation for Northeastern conference game with Elizabeth City Friday night.

Leon Moore, hard running fullback, stood out in both offense and defense. Backs Kent Lee and Walter Goor also stood out in the offensive maneuvers.

Coach Bo Farley promises a lot of passing against the league-leading Yellow Jackets at Elizabeth City Friday night. Quarterback Sidney Briley is expected to do most of the passing with sub Eddie Farley ably assisting in the aerial game.

Ends Wiley Gardner and Johnny Aman will be the targets for most of the passing Friday night.

In the line, Fletcher Murray has taken over the tackle position, left vacant by injured Mac Crawford, and the big tackle, along with Guard Johnny Merwin have paced the forward wall play in scrimmages all week.

High spirit ran in the Greenville camp yesterday as the squad indicated it realizes the task faced in scrapping with undefeated, once tied Yellow Jackets in an all-important conference clash.

Friday night's game at Elizabeth City will be the third conference outing for the Green Phantoms, who have a record of one loss and one tie. They have defeated two non-conference foes.

Bill Voiselle Is Sold By Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 12—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs today announced the sale of Bill Voiselle, veteran right hand pitcher, to St. Paul of the American Association. The price was not disclosed.

Voiselle came to the Cubs in December, 1949, from the Boston Braves for infielder Gene Mauch and cash. He broke into the majors in 1942 with the New York Giants. He was with the Giants until 1947, except for one year—1943—when he pitched for Jersey City in the International League.

Standout Phantom Linemen Who Will See Action

John Aman, left above, and Joe Rowland are two linemen for Bo Farley's Greenville Phantoms who will start the game against Kinston tomorrow night. Aman, an end, was the difference in the one touchdown score in the Greenville-Hertford game, catching a late fourth-quarter pass. Rowland is a guard, having earned a letter at that position last year. Both have been standouts in the Phantoms' lineplay this season. Aman is a senior and Rowland a junior. # SATURDAY'S GAMES

GAMES OF OCTOBER 14
By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

EAST

Army to wallop Michigan (Blak to Foidberg too much).
 Brown to rout Rhode Island State (By at least six TDs).
 Holy Cross to outscore Colgate (Wide open game likely).
 Columbia to defeat Yale (Linn's don't like 33-7 loss in '49).
 Cornell to crush Harvard (Big Red by big score).
 Dartmouth to nip Penn (Clayton's passing the difference).
 Maryland to rout Georgetown (Terps due to pour it on).
 Lafayette over Muhlenberg (It could be one-sided).
 Navy to edge Princeton (Tars mightier than Tigers).
 NYU to rout Brooklyn (Easy for the Violets).
 Syracuse to upset Penn State (Army softened Nittany Lion).
 Rice to edge Pitt (Owls will find Panther tough, though).
 Temple to nip Rutgers (It figures very close).
 *Night game.

MIDWEST

*Marquette to conquer Detroit (It was 24-14 last time).
 Ohio State to crush Indiana (Buckeyes have class).
 Wisconsin over Iowa (Badgers won last 35-15).
 Iowa State to beat Kansas (It figures close).
 Missouri to halt Kansas State (Wide open game in prospect).
 Michigan State over Wm. and Mary (Spartans won by 42-13 in '49).
 Minnesota to defeat Northwestern (Gophers could tame Wildcats).
 Purdue to edge Miami (Florida team on upgrade).
 Tulsa to beat Villanova (But watch out for D'Alonso).
 *Night game.

SOUTH

West Virginia to take Richmond (It may not be close).
 Florida over Auburn (Played 14-14 thriller in '49).
 Duke to rout North Carolina State (The Blue Devils are strong).
 Georgia to take Mississippi State ( Bulldogs a big surprise).
 LSU to conquer Georgia Tech (Louisiana a Southeast power).
 Kentucky to crush Cincinnati (Wildcats stronger this year).
 Vanderbilt to take Mississippi (It was 23-27 thriller last year).
 Wake Forest over North Carolina (Choo Choo has gone).
 Notre Dame to crush Tulane (Maybe by 46-7 again).
 Virginia over Washington and Lee (Cavaliers have Papit pitching).
 *Night game.

SOUTHWEST

Baylor to conquer Arkansas (Could be a tight one).
 SMU to beat Oklahoma Aggies (Rote pitching for Mustangs).
 Oklahoma over Texas (Big Dallas game of year).
 Texas Aggies to beat VMI (Might be a one-sided margin).
 Texas Tech over TCU (Tech stronger than rated).
 *Night game.

ROCKY MOUNTAINS

Colorado Aggies to beat Brigham Young (Figures very close).
 Nebraska to take Colorado (Won it by 25-14 last year).
 Wyoming to route Utah State (Might even be a shutout).

FAR WEST

California over Southern Cal (It was 16-10 last time).
 Oregon to trounce Idaho (They're not in the same league).
 Washington State over Montana (By about two touchdowns).
 Oregon State to nip Washington (Looks like a tossup).
 Stanford to rout Santa Clara (Forgot last year's 7-7 tie).
 Record: 44 Right, 12 Wrong, 2 Ties. Pct. .788.

East Carolina Eleven Keeping Pace With The Best In 'Air Age Football'

By BILL LLOYD

It's an air age ! ! !
 That remark was well stated in reference to Coach Bill Dole's East Carolina gridder's type of football. Records of East Carolina's four games this season indicate they rank along with other major passing teams such as Southern Methodist, Vanderbilt, and Nevada in the aerial world.
 Although the Pirates' passing wizard, Roger Thrift, passes and completions figures are not kept up by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, this season's Pirate passing marks should come close to breaking some existing pass computerations.

 East Carolina, in its first four games with Thrift doing all the tossing, has attempted 130 aerials, completing 55 of them for a grand total of 821 yards. That gives the Pirate twirler an average of 14.9 yards per pass, and better than 42 per centage on completions.

 These figures compare closely to SMU's record in three games this season of 107 passes, with 67 of them complete, for 837 yards, and Vanderbilt's No. 2 passing club of completing 32 out of 55 attempts for 722 yards.
 Some kind of state record was set by Thrift in last week's game with Elon, as the Little All-American contender threw 48 times, hitting on 21, for 324 yards. Thrift has completed eight passes for touchdowns.

 With Coach Dole's running offense sputtering, the Buc will rely heavily on Thrift's sure-shot arm, during their remaining six games, which leads one to believe that a team which is averaging around 30 to 35 passes per game should set some kind of record in this — the air age.

Catamounts Of West Carolina Wildlife Club Are Lacking Last Year's Power

West Carolina, last year's North State conference champions, invade East Carolina's college stadium Saturday night in the homecoming game for the Pirates.

Coach Tom Young's boys from the hills have had a pretty rough time of it thus far this season, but the Catamounts are still a potent squad.

Losses such as Little All-American Art Byrd at guard, and his running mate, Von Ray Harris, Center Hugh Constance, and two all-conference tackles, Buffalo Humphries and Dan Robinson, have dented the hopes of the Cats for a repeat champion this year.
 However, the lads from Colowhee, still boast a terrific ground attack from the single wing, with Tailback PeeWee Hamilton, 135-pound broken field runner, pacing the onslaught.

Hamilton teams with All-Conference Ralph McConnell at fullback, and Dick White and Lawrence Arney, wingback and blocking back respectively, to give the Cats a veteran backfield, which is a consistent threat to any league foe. Reserve running stars such as Paul Rogers, Bob Cunningham, Hershey Hipps, and Bob Rumbaugh add strength to the already powerful ground-gaining department.

 In the line, the Cats are heavier than they were last season, with a couple of 221-pounders at the tackle slots. Bob Greeson and Bruce Jaynes, both lettermen, fill these spots.
 Guard positions have been the hardest to fill thus far this season, with E. F. Stewart, Dan Donovan, Jim Banks, and Bill Bell sharing the line play in this forward wall spot. Center Ned Noblitt is the Cats veteran pivotman.

 The Youngmen are well set at ends with four letter winners in Bob Humphries, Stewart Brown, Bill Phillips, and Charlie West.
 Saturday night's homecoming for the Pirates is going to be a tough one, with the Catamounts still deep enough to figure among the top teams of the North State.
 West Carolina defeated the Pirates last year at Canton, by a score of 19-6.

Classic Bowling League Finds 3 In 'First Place'

Carolina Dairy	10	8	555
Hodges Hardware	10	8	555
Wagner-Waldrop	10	8	555
Bilbro Wholesale	6	12	333

The Classic Bowling League this week finds itself in pretty much of an impasse as a result of Tuesday night's league play. First position is sewed up by three teams with the fourth three games off the pace.

The knotted count came about when Hodges took all three games from Bilbro, which now is holding onto the basement, and Wagner-Waldrop took two from Carolina Dairy, last week's league leaders.

However, from a look at the line-up at the end of last week's play, the three way tie now is not a surprise. Something had to break when none of the four teams were separated by more than one game ever since the league was organized. But next Tuesday night should break it up again.

The Hardware bowlers pulled the triple win on consistent rolling by all five players. Leading the quint was Red Flanagan with 174:154:196-524 for the night's high three game score. His 196 was second best for a single.

Bob Matthews, also a Hardware kegler, rolled 205 for the single game high, adding to that 153 and 122 for a total of 480. Other games ran: Jim Lee, 358; Joe Smith, 400, and Jess Jordan, 430.

Wagner-Waldrop's double win from Carolina was a mild upset. The Dairy has managed to win at least two of its game each outing except once when the same team beat them in three. But since that time, the Dairy has become the hottest team in the league with two successive nights of three wins each.

Leading W-W in its two-game efforts were Bill Wells, the league's seventh best bowler, and Spooky Morgan with scores of 461 and 447 respectively. The Dairy's best effort was done by Bill Harrington, currently sporting the best average at 156, on a 446 total. Harry Lee Stokes placed second for the losers with 435.

Wildlife Club Selects Queen

The Pitt County Chapter of the North Carolina Wildlife Federation, Inc., at its fall supper meeting at Respass-James Barbecue House last night, selected Miss Hazel Garris of near Farmville to be its representative in the contest to select "Miss Wildlife of 1950" at the State Federation's banquet at the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh, October 16. President Claude D. Ward presided.

The chapter elected Rufus V. Keel president; Eric Whitchard, vice-president, and C. J. Goodson, secretary-treasurer.
 Clifton Stokes and J. W. Overton were elected directors for three-year terms. Other directors are S. T. White, R. V. Keel, P. C. Kemp, Henry Martin and Secretary-Treasurer Goodson. Chester Walsh is chairman of the Public Relations Committee.

The members discussed at length proposals to develop a fish pond at some suitable place in the county. The committee will continue its investigation and surveying. The sense of the meeting was that the fish pond project would cost too much money at this time.

Incoming President Rufus Keel, in a brief inaugural address, urged the Wildlife Chapter members to go out and get some new members. He advised them to explain to hunters, sportsmen and farmers and others that the aims and purposes of the State Wildlife Federation are to conserve wildlife and support the game laws.

Maryland Soph Is Top Choice

Raleigh, Oct. 12—(AP)—Flashy sophomores were coveting all over the Southern Conference gridiron map last Saturday.

This made the choice of selecting the Associated Press Conference Soph of the Week difficult, but the nod finally went to Maryland's flashy quarterback John Scarbath.

Scarbath rated headlines far and wide for his play as Coach Jim Tatum's Terrapins pulled their 57-7 upset of Michigan State which the week before had upset mighty Michigan, 14-7.

Legion Winds Up Nat'l Convention; Back UMT

By GRAHAM BERRY
 Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—After demanding that the Communist party be outlawed, the American Legion winds up its 32nd National convention today with a stand on Universal Military Training and the election of officers.
 Delegates are expected to back UMT unanimously.
 They also will learn whether their foreign relations committee will recommend that they urge the ouster of secretary of State Dean Acheson.
 This issue was to come before the convention yesterday, but after a day-long session, the committee could not agree on a recommendation.
 As for the election, word from department causes is that Eric Coker, Jr., 29, Dawson, Ga., Atr-lines executive and farmer, has the edge over his two opponents in the race for National commander.
 He is one of two World War II candidates. The other is Donald

South Greenville PTA In Meeting

The first monthly meeting of the South Greenville School P.T.A. was held last night in the school at 7:30, with the president, Mrs. Odesa Perkins, presiding. A number of appreciative parents were present.

Following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the president extended a hearty welcome to all new members and encouraged more parents to attend.
 Before the close of the business session, Mrs. Lena B. Brown, principal, gave a summary of the school activities for the year. Much interest was shown and everyone present echoed their support.
 Mrs. Hannah H. Brown, county and city school nurse, was the main speaker of the evening. She chose for her subject, "The Physical and Mental Health of Children in the Elementary School." Many questions were asked and answered. As a parting thought Mrs. Brown reminded the group that healthy minds and healthy bodies were essential for the full development of the child.

The meeting was adjourned. Open house and registration for the benefit of new members followed. New members registering were: Mrs. Malissa Mourning, Mrs. Ernie Mae Taft, Mrs. Rowena Kennedy, Mrs. Essie Pritchard, Mrs. Cardine Pettus, Mr. Robert Teale, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Wilson, Mrs. Burton and Mrs. Helen Garris.

Program Relates Resource Losses

The third radio program in the "Silent Siren" series will be broadcast over WGTC Saturday morning at 10:15. The program is titled "Heart beat" and tells the story of North Carolina's dwindling forest, soil and water resources.
 The Department of Conservation and Development, sponsor of this program, states the primary function of the department is to bring advice and services to the people and communities of North Carolina so that future abundant resources of the state will be insured. It hopes to accomplish a part of this through the 15-minute program.

The title is taken from a recent statement of George R. Ross, director of the department. He said:
 "The heart beat of North Carolina is the conservation and development of its natural resources. As within the human body, the silence of the heart is as important as the beat of the heart. Without the silence between the beats, the heart would soon wear out. The conservation of our resources is the silence necessary for their long life; the development of our resources is the beat that brings these resources to life."
