Reveal June Goals For Re-Arming

High Command Wants Two Million Servicemen; More Planes, Ships

Washington, Oct. 13—(AP)—The military high command is driving for an armed force of 2,100,000 men, 62 air groups and 906 Navy ships by next June.

And officials are working on a plan aimed at a substantial increase in those figures for future years.

These goals were disclosed last night by Gen. Omar Bradley in a recorded broadcast (CBS).

Noting that current defense moves carry a "price tag" of $25,000,000,000, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said that a new program now being prepared is "going to cost more money and take more efforts and more men in uniform."

This will be submitted to President Truman for presentation to Congress as soon as it is ready, Bradley said.

He did not say how much money will be needed, but he said he had asked a group of Detroit industrialists recently if they would be "willing to face an annual bill of 30 to 40 billion dollars for defense if it were necessary."

Secretary of the Navy Matthews said yesterday at Omaha, Neb., that the cost of operating the national military establishment alone next year may exceed this year's entire national budget. That would be more than $42,000,000,000.

Bradley's forecast of a 52-group Air Force by next June is four groups more than has been previously disclosed. A group is a variable unit—about 75 fighters down to a few bombers. The target of 2,100,000 men in uniform is a 50 per cent increase over the nation's armed strength before the Korean war broke out last June 25.

"We are building this force as rapidly as possible, as fast as men can be trained and trained, and as ships can be de-mobilized," Bradley said.

Barkley Defends Acheson Record In State Dept.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 13—(AP)—Vice-President Barkley says "no one in the nation is more conscientious than Secretary of State Acheson."

"There is not an able, more conscientious or more loyal man in the United States today," Barkley told a Spokane audience last night.

Democrats "not only are responsible for the shape we are in today, but are proud of it," he said.

To the Republican critics of the Administration's action in Korea he said "if it is fair to say Truman blundered into war in Korea, it should be fair to say he blundered into a wonderful victory."

Barkley is on a political tour.

Police said men hidden in ambush fired on a truck hauling about 35 workers to the plant shortly after 7 a. m. today.

Ten of the injured were released from an infirmary after treatment, seven remained as patients and one may lose an eye.

Truman Departs For Parley Site

Presidential Plane Out Over Pacific; Good Weather; Wake Island Hinted Probable Scene Pacific Meeting

Enroute to Hawaii with President Truman, Oct. 13—(AP)—President Truman flew out over the Pacific toward Hawaii in good weather today enroute to his momentous conference with General MacArthur.

The high strategy meeting this weekend on the Korean conflict and Asian Communism generally was expected to be somewhere beyond Honolulu.

The site of their first face-to-face parley may be announced late today, Presidential secretary Charles G. Ross said.

Presidential party members have been saying the meeting will be held at Wake Island. It will cover the final phase of United Nations actions in Korea, including reconstruction and rehabilitation of that war-torn country, and strategy to counter increasing Communist threats in the Far East, including the menace to Indochina.

Mr. Truman left on the Independence at 3:13 a. m. (EST) from Fairfield-Suisun air force base, 60 miles east of San Francisco, after a brief conference with Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and other members of his official party.

The President devoted a good part of last evening to visiting litter cases.

Special Term Lightens Superior Court Docket

Judge Grady Praises Jury But Loses Meaningful Blast At Last Week's Venire; Over Sixty Cases Disposed Of

By JOHN SPINKS, JR. Judge Henry A. Grady, silver-haired dean of the North Carolina Superior Court system, yesterday wound up the two-week special term of court for the county with a soft-spoken but meaningful blast at last week's venire of jurymen and women.

The blast came about when he dismissed this week's jury with a judicial pat on the back. Grady, who is now retired from the regular court bench but who hears many cases as a special judge, stated:

"I wish to congratulate you on your work this week. You've turned everybody loose who should have been turned loose and you've convicted everybody who should have been."

He added, "I can't say that for last week's jury."

He referred to the 63 members of last week's venire who provided food for editorials in several state newspapers by handing back "not guilty" verdicts for persons indicted for drunk driving.

From the bench last week, but not directed at the jury, Grady told Solicitor W. J. Bundy it looked as though no convictions could be obtained in Pitt for the indictments.

Yesterday, too, the judge congratulated Bundy for his conduct of the two weeks of court that saw over 60 cases cleared from the docket. He told the Solicitor he (Bundy) was not responsible for entering lesser pleas for drunk driving cases.

Grady stated he himself had recommended lesser pleas being made since many of the juries for the week were over overly long. He stated in effect he thought a plea of charges less than the original indictment would speed up the proceedings, thus clearing the docket of the cases.

This week's court was entirely different from the first one. Convictions were returned in almost all of the cases. Only one person was termed not guilty and he for a relatively minor offense — worthless check of small denomination.

The only case heard by the jury that ended in an impasse concerned a drunk driving indictment against in eastern Asia. However, Chinese intervention in Korea now would precipitate a big scale war, and horse sense says that China definitely doesn't want that.

And why doesn't she want it? Because she is too vulnerable. Her immediate fear must be the loss of her Manchurian industries through allied bombing.

The most important industrial area in all China lies in Manchuria. It's true that the Russians removed huge quantities of machinery right after the world war, but there has been considerable rehabilitation. And the bulk of China's heavy industry is in Manchuria, including her arsenals.

College Assumes Festive Air For Homecoming Day

Campus Decorated For Annual Event; Extensive Program Arranged

Following a custom of several years' standing, students at East Carolina Teachers College have decorated the campus for Homecoming Day for Alumni Saturday, October 14.

Under the direction of Alexander E. Livesey of Rocky Mount, president of the Student Government Association, various organizations have vied with each other in producing original and colorful displays on the porches and facades of dormitories and in decorating a series of floats for a parade at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Attracting chief attention at present is an eight-foot Pirate in papier-mache, which guards the entrance to Jarvis dormitory. A swashbuckling figure with conventional eye patch and costume in the college colors of purple and gold, East Carolina's pirate bids fair to be a main eye-catcher on the campus on Homecoming Day.

Events on the program staged for alumni will begin with a meeting of the Alumni Council with President Mildred Harrison Bullard of Wilson presiding. Other alumni officers who will attend will be Ella Moore, Rocky Mount, vice president; Dean of Women Ruth White of East Carolina, treasurer; twenty chapter presidents; and four district vice presidents, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Bennett, Burlington; Mrs. Annie Blanche Spear, Kingston; Mrs. Hazel Kimrey Way, Wilmington; and Mrs. Betsy Hutchinson Bradford, Charlotte.

Included on the program will be a luncheon for alumni, an organ recital by George E. Perry of the faculty, a one-act play by the Teachers Playhouse of the college, and a parade led by the College Band along the campus airways.

Climaxing the day's activities will be a football game between the East Carolina Pirates and the Cata-mounts of Western Carolina Teachers College, who will meet in a North State Conference contest at the college stadium here.

British Seaman Held In Theft At Royal Palace

London, Oct. 13—(AP)—A British seaman was accused tonight of breaking into Buckingham Palace and stealing a dispatch box.

He was identified in an official statement from Scotland Yard as Douglas Honro, 36, of London.

The announcement came a few hours after the police confirmed press reports that a diplomatic box which vanished from the Palace turned up early today in a nearby garbage can.

Denying London newspaper reports that the box was broken open and important secret papers stolen, Scotland Yard said it was recovered intact. The police also asserted the box contained no state secrets.

Watson Tag Day Slated Saturday

The Junior Women's Club will sponsor its annual Tag Day for the Watson Memorial Fund on Saturday.

The Watson Memorial Fund drive is designed to raise funds for the project which was adopted by the Junior Women's Club shortly after the death of the late Dr. T. M. Watson, outstanding pediatrician of Pitt County.

The amount of money spent each year for the medical and hospital expenses of indigent children has grown steadily, and increasing support is needed to finance the many requests that are made.

In addition to the medical attention which is given to the underprivileged children of the county, much badly needed equipment has been purchased for the children's wing of the hospital.

This project has won state recognition for the local club and its members work enthusiastically and tirelessly to increase the scope of their activities in aiding in county child welfare work.

Ballentine Calls On Farmers To Better Utilize State Resources

Killer On Way To Life Behind Bars

John F. Green Being Taken To State Prison Today

By CHESTER WALSH John Frank Green, 21-year-old Negro, started a long journey this morning—handcuffed and shackled—on his way to State Prison in Raleigh to serve a life sentence in hard labor for the slaying of his wife with a glass bottle, an icepick and a hammer. At the same time Green orphaned his two small children.

John Frank Green, "cocky and impudent" the night police officers arrested him for the murder of his wife, changed his demeanor during his incarceration in jail.

A police officer quoted him as saying when arrested "if you are looking for (the slain wife)—I'm band—the man that killed her—I'm the man!"

In Superior court last week Green's attorneys, Kenneth G. Hite and William Watson, appointed by the court, submitted a plea of accessory before the fact of murder in the first degree.

Solicitor Dick Bundy accepted the plea and the court approved it and sentenced Green to serve his natural life at hard labor in State Prison.

Testimony was that Green, who was separated from his 17-year-old wife, went to her mother's home on Pitt street and attacked her. It was stated that he tore all of the woman's clothes, except one garment, from her, that he struck her with

Premier Of North Korea Now Sees 'Danger' Signs

San Francisco, Oct. 13—(AP)—The Chinese Communist radio today quoted a speech by Korean Red Premier Kim Il Sung saying "serious danger hangs over our motherland."

The broadcast from Peiping, heard here by the Associated Press, said Kim made the address Wednesday in Pyongyang, the Communist Korea capital.

It appeared to be the Red leader's first real acknowledgment that his Russian-sponsored regime faces defeat. Previously, he had defiantly expressed confidence of "final victory."

"Our Peoples army defending every inch of its land is forced to retreat," Kim was quoted today. "Now our motherland is in a very dangerous position. Serious danger hangs over our motherland."

"The United States imperialists continue their aggressive offensive against our Korea in order to turn our motherland into their colony and our 30,000,000 people into their slaves."

Agriculture Commissioner Addresses Pitt Group On Keeping Pace With New Methods

Winterville, Oct. 13—North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine last night told a group of young Pitt county farmers and their wives, "We don't want to discard any crop we have been successful in producing, but we must put to use the poorly developed resources we have at our hands."

Ballentine was the principal speaker at a banquet honoring the young farm men who have completed their course of training in the Winterville, Veterans Agricultural training course. Approximately 115 people attended the banquet which was held in the Winterville school cafeteria.

The commissioner of agriculture challenged the young farmers to preserve and develop the vast natural resources of their area, and to keep pace with the new farming methods and better farming practices.

"Before we develop our resources, we need to know what they are and how to use them," Ballentine told his audience. "We can no longer live on the exploitation of our resources. It is up to us and the generation after us to utilize our resources and preserve them for those who come after us. We must put into better use the resource we haven't used well."

"Today we are just beginning to witness the results which are coming from agricultural research and the contribution which money in research will mean to agriculture. I am sure we have only begun to scratch the surface. The tools of

Promise Inquiry Into Dried Eggs

Seattle, Oct. 13—(AP)—The dispute over 700 tons of Chinese dried eggs on the Seattle waterfront has prompted two Congressional committees to promise investigation. Rep. Hugh Mitchell (D-Wash) reported last night.

In addition, the American Federation of Labor, through President William Green, has promised the Seattle local of the Packinghouse, Poultry and Egg Workers Union it will conduct a separate inquiry.

Representative Mitchell said he was informed by Reps. Tom Steed, (D-Okla.) and Graham Barden (D-N.C.) that they plan an immediate investigation. Steed is head of the House subcommittee investigating effects of imports on American employment. Barden is chairman of the House labor and education committee.

The eggs imported from Communist China nearly fill a huge waterfront warehouse floor. They are consigned to Eastern interests where they are to be used by bakeries.

Hiss Appeal Is Taken To Court

New York, Oct. 13—(AP)—Alger Hiss, former state department official, went before the U. S. Court of Appeals today to seek freedom from his perjury conviction and a five year prison sentence.

He has been at liberty in $10,000 bail since he was found guilty last January of falsely denying he slipped secrets to a prewar Soviet spy ring.

Spectators jammed the small courtroom for the opening of the hearing on his appeal. Others packed the corridors outside.

Wake Island's Bosses

Maybe You've Heard Of This Spot Of Land In The Pacific; Do You Know Who Has Charge Of It Now? Took Quite A Bit Of Questioning To Find Out

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 13—(AP)—We finally woke somebody up about Wake Island. Took some banging on the door, though.

All we wanted to do was find out who had charge of it. Navy? Interior department? Who? Finally found out. You'd never guess.

You know Wake Island. Out in the Pacific. Place where President Truman and General MacArthur, it's rumored, will meet this weekend.

The U. S. owns it. Took it from Spain in 1898. Just a dot in the ocean about 2,000 miles from Tokyo, 4,300 from San Francisco.

Was a navy coaling station one time: 4 1-2 miles long, 2 1-2 miles wide. Pan American Airways set up an airfield there in 1935.

It really got on the map and into the news on Dec. 8, 1941 when the Japanese attacked it, one day after attacking Pearl Harbor.

Remember it? Brigadier General (then Major) James P. S. Devereux and a handful of Marines defended it 14 days before they had to surrender.

Then this week, after President Truman said he'd meet MacArthur some place in the Pacific, we heard it rumored that the "some place" will be Wake.

My office heard about it. We called one of our men at the Navy department and asked him if the Navy has charge of Wake.

He checked and called back and said "nops" that the navy people thought that maybe the Interior Department has charge of Wake.

We called our man at the Interior department. He checked there and called back. "Tops" he said. The Interior people seemed to think Navy had it.

But Navy had said no. That somebody got the bright idea maybe the CAA has charge of it.

Still No Evidence Of Amphibious Landing; ROKs Thrust North From Wonsan; North Korean Installations Battered; Increasing Resistance On Road To Capital

Tokyo, Oct. 13—(AP)—Thirty-seven bombing warships, South Korean ground forces and allied planes backed away today at Red Korean supply lines from Soviet Siberia on the blazing new northeastern coastal fighting front.

There still was no evidence of an allied amphibious landing along the heavily bombed coast.

But the South Korean infantry (ROKs) made it a three-platey attack with an unexpected thrust north from captured Wonsan, port on the Sea of Japan.

Expected to swing west across the peninsula toward the Red capital, Pyongyang, the ROKs hit straight up the coast instead. Across the peninsula, allied drives toward Pyongyang moved steadily ahead—but fighting was tougher.

The ROKs were 120-odd miles from the 130-mile-long northeastern coastal strip where the United Nations bombardment fleet led by the battleship Missouri poured fire and steel ashore Thursday and Friday in continuing big gun and carrier plane assaults.

The ROK troops were powerfully supported by fighter planes and the U. S. cruiser Rochester, a detached unit of the roving heavy bombardment fleet.

To map high strategy on what appears to be the final phases of the Korean war, General MacArthur prepared to leave Tokyo early Saturday for his weekend Pacific rendezvous with President Truman.

President Truman was flying across the Pacific to the meeting place—believed to be Wake Island, the Korean east coast ground fighting front. AP Correspondent William Jordan reported the South Koreans pushed three miles north of Wonsan Friday against light resistance.

Fighter planes and artillery smashed Red pockets ahead of the ROKs.

Jordan said intelligence officers predicted stubborn resistance south of the next objective they listed—the big chemical center of Hamhung and Hungnam, 50 miles north of Wonsan. Hungnam is one of the world's largest producers of ammonium sulphate. Plants at nearby Hamhung once turned out nitric acid for the Japanese war machine.

In their advance through the hills northwest of Wonsan, the South Koreans captured three Russian-made 40 mm. anti-aircraft guns and large quantities of small arms and ammunition.

On the other fighting fronts, allied spearheads met increasingly heavy resistance in their push toward Pyongyang, the Red capital near the west coast. Two Red divisions were reported racing from the Ongjin peninsula to help the defense of Kumchon, 75 miles southeast of Pyongyang.

American spearheads within 65 miles of Pyongyang were at grips with Red troops. An estimated 30,000 Communist fought south of them and two Red divisions were reported moving in from the west.

A field dispatch Friday from AP Correspondent William J. Waugh sketched these developments:

Three U. S. First Cavalry Division columns and British and Australian soldiers moved against Kumchon, about 75 miles southeast of Pyongyang.

One column fought slowly up the main highway toward Kumchon, and was four miles south of that base Friday morning after an artillery

Joint Hostesses Compliment Dot Ormond At A Luncheon

Carrying out a wedding bell motif in table appointments and floral arrangements, Mrs. L. T. Shotwell and Miss Muriel Shotwell were gracious hostesses at a luncheon to compliment Miss Dot Ormond, who will be married on Saturday.

In the entrance hall where the guests were welcomed, a console table was arranged with a crystal bowl holding mixed garden flowers. In the living room an orchid color note was emphasized in the choice of flowers for decorative touches on the mantel and tables.

Pale lavender dahlias, interspersed with graceful ferns, were placed in a low antique china bowl. On either side were lovely antique overlay glass lustres flanking this mantel centerpiece.

In the dining room, the table was set for ten guests. The centerpiece was a cluster of wedding bells in various sizes. They were made of tulle and tied with bridal streamers. Old fashioned nosegays made of fern and dainty flowers in pastel shades filled the bells.

The bells were placed around an antique castor which was topped by two tiny chimneys.

The place cards were individual small bells with the names painted in silver on white satin ribbon.

A three-course luncheon was served by the hostesses. After-dinner coffee was passed as the guests gathered in the living room.

Miss Ormond's corsage was an original arrangement made to resemble a wedding bell. This was composed from a white calla lily filled with African violets. She was also remembered with a gift, a hand-painted invitation to her wedding framed in gold leaf.

Vivian Ann Smith, of Petersburg, Va., has lived a soldier's life for the past two years being at four different camps with her soldier father and mother. She suffered a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron and as a result she was weak and rundown until HADACOL helped relieve these deficiencies.

Here is what her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Smith, said: "Vivian Ann lived a soldier's life as we were at four different camps in two years. These changes apparently had a great deal to do with making the child ill and irritable. She was just skin and bones until seven weeks ago. I really had just about given up hope for her. Her skin was the color of chalk and she would not eat. She was fretful all the time and it made us all unhappy to see her suffering. We heard how much good HADACOL had done so many and now after six bottles she has gained 12 pounds. She has color in her cheeks and her disposition is perfect. She sleeps well. No one can imagine what a change it has made in all our lives."

HADACOL is Wonderful in the way it has helped thousands of folks whose systems were deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron. HADACOL is so different because HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body—to the heart, liver, kidneys and lungs.

Give remarkable HADACOL a chance and if you don't feel better with the first few bottles you take—you get your money back. Only $1.25 for Trial Size, Large Family, or Hospital Size, $3.50.

Dr. Haney Speaks To Fireside Club

The Fireside Club of the Eighth Street Christian Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Picklen Arthur at 8 p.m. on October 10. Co-president Mlo Smith presided.

Following the devotional, which was given by Robert Moye, Dr. Haney spoke to the group on the importance of the study of the Bible by young people. He said that everyone needs a philosophy of life based on the fundamental truths found in the Bible. He encouraged each one to "open the Bible" to his children. He concluded by reporting an article which appeared in the Christian Century, written by R. Frederick West, Prof. West conducted an experiment among students of both church and non-church colleges to find out how much college students know about the Bible. The results were alarming.

During the social hour games were enjoyed. Mrs. Arthur and the assisting hostesses, Mrs. A. W. Harris, Mrs. Richard Forrest, Mrs. Guy Forrest, and Mrs. J. W. Tetterton served delicious refreshments.

Third Street School PTA Has Meeting

The Third Street School P. T. A. met for its regular October meeting in the auditorium of the school.

Mrs. W. L. Whedbee, president, opened the meeting with a message from the state president, in which special emphasis was placed on increasing memberships and getting more members to subscribe to the national magazine. The state president, in his message, also urged good attendance at the October district meetings.

Mrs. Sam Northrup, program chairman, presented students from the fourth grade who gave the devotional and program. Using as the October program theme, "Happiness Begins in the Home," the students centered their Scripture, song-singing, and program on this topic.

Following the reading of the twenty-third Psalm and the reading of two hymns by the student group a play was given which had been written, directed and enacted by the pupils.

The play was written by Ronita Respass, Patricia Smith, Betty Sue Stator and Patsy Moore. It depicted a typical evening in the Smith household, in which cooperation, recreation, and happiness were revealed in family living. The play was an interpretation of what happiness in the home means to those who had a part in the production.

Those who took part in the play were Ronita Respass, Huey Harrison, Patricia Smith, Frances Mayo, Lonnie Stator, Gene Adams, Patsy

Nelson - McLawhorn Vows Spoken In Private Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Almata Marie McLawhorn, daughter of Mrs. Mary J. McLawhorn and the late Johnnie R. McLawhorn of Ayden to Elmer Theophilus Nelson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Nelson of Greenville took place on Saturday night, September 30, in a quiet ceremony at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Windham in Greenville. Only a few relatives and friends were present.

The couple were unattended and Moore, Dickie Holbert, Ann Rook, and Betty Sue Stator.

The secretary, Mrs. Joe Moye, then read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved and recorded. A note was read from Mrs. Vance Arnold in which she thanked the PTA for a gift that was sent to her during the hospitalization of her son.

The treasurer, Mrs. Mary Moore, reported a balance of $82.14 in the treasury.

A motion was made and carried that parties for the children during the year would be planned and executed by the children with the grade mothers assisting them.

The membership chairman reported that 98 homes were represented in the local organization, with 151 parents enrolled as paid members. Mrs. Linwood Worthington's second grade won the prize for best attendance at the meeting.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Troy Dodson, Ways and Means chairman, who presented plans for the annual Halloween festival to be held on Friday night, October 27.

Mrs. W. L. Whedbee volunteered to serve as kitchen chairman, while Mrs. Glenn Scott offered to take charge of the program to be presented in the auditorium. Donations were called for and received for chicken salad ingredients, cakes, sandwiches, wieners, rolls and drinks. The students and teachers are to plan the recreational program in the individual rooms.

A fine response was shown to Mrs. Dodson's request for volunteers and suggestions for the Halloween program.

The meeting was then adjourned by the president.

control of the municipal or county governments, the committee chairman has not revealed, but the findings of the committee should bring the people to a harsh realization of the extent to which the underworld is controlling our way of life.

The investigating committee, up to the present time, apparently is tending strictly to its business of uncovering the rackets rather than playing party politics with its findings. That is as it should be. But when all the findings of the committee are revealed, the federal government should take steps to remedy the unhealthy situation caused in government no matter which party lines it hurts. The findings of the crime investigating committee could easily be changed into another red herring hulla-balloo as was the investigation of communist activities within the government.

There are some who will try to turn the crime investigating committee report into a smear campaign, not only to degrade individuals, but to keep the real significance of the report from coming to the forefront, and to protect the rackets and their masters.

The crime investigation report will be of vital importance to the individual citizens of the country. The action which is taken on the report could well determine whether the rackets will gain further control of government on its various levels.

News Behind The News

By ROGER WARREN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Fears that Indo-China may become the next Korea—and suddenly, too—permeate the Pentagon and the State Department. The rainy season will end in a few days, the rice harvest will be in by the end of October, and 200,000 well-trained Red Chinese troops are poised north of the border. Russian ships have been unloading heavy material at Chinese ports nearest to Indo-China.

The Indo-Chinese Communists, members of the Viet Minh under Ho Chi Minh, intensified military activity this week and succeeded in throwing back the French forces in the north. The Communists pretty well control the northern border with China as a result of a series of bloody victories. Thus they have opened the gates for the Red hordes from the north.

WORSE—For many reasons, the situation in Indo-China may be much worse than it ever was in Korea. The uplands are covered with jungle growth, making infiltration easy. There are few north-south highways, making it difficult to bring up reinforcements. It is hard to tell friend from foe. Ho Chi Minh has many adherents along the coast of Viet Nam, making it difficult to tell pro-Communists from anti-Communists. The language of Viet Nam, Annamese, is a tonal language like the Chinese to the north; the people resemble the Chinese. Thus it is difficult to distinguish a Viet Namee from a Chinese. This would abet infiltration of Chinese Reds.

"DOC LAP"—Defense of Indo-China is made even more difficult by the ideological situation. Since the war, there has been a rising tide of demands for independence throughout Asia and Indonesia. India and Pakistan have won independence from the British; Indonesia has won independence from the Dutch. Throughout Malaya the cry of "Merdeka" is heard; in Indo-China it's "Doc Lap." Both mean "independence."

To placate the Indo-Chinese, the French divided the country into three states. These are the Kingdom of Cambodia, in the fertile rice lands in the southwest; the Kingdom of Laos, in the west and the northwest; and the State of Viet Nam, the boomerang-shaped east coast. Viet Nam is ruled by Bao Dai, the former emperor who now styles himself the "Head of State." All three states are members of the French Union. While this division satisfied some aspirations for doc lap, the French still rule.

WLY—This situation offers a ready opportunity for the wily Ho Chi Minh. Through three radio stations his guerrilla forces captured from the Japanese at the close of World War II—he even hired Japanese technicians to keep them working—and through his agents, he shouts only for independence. He never mentions Communism.

Over the air he cries, "Kill the French! The Frenchman has two shirts. He sleeps with a white woman. He owns a car. Kill the French and these will be yours!"

The fact that he never talks about Communism poses a baffling propaganda problem for the French. To point out that French rule is better than Russian rule is futile because most of the people do not even know what a Russian is. To aver that self-government by degrees is better than Communism is just as bad, because few know what Communism is. Almost any line of reasoning and argument can be devastated by two words—doc lap.

FORCES—The number of soldiers Ho Chi Minh has at his command is not definitely known, but there appear to be at least 30,000 well-armed men, many trained by the Chinese Reds. In addition to the 200,000 Chinese that may be only waiting a signal to cross the border. Arrived against these forces are approximately 30,000 French regulars, 18,000 Foreign Legionnaires, 40,000 African Goums, 45,000 Indo-Chinese regulars and up to 50,000 native irregulars. The French are getting some military supplies from the United States.

Maintenance of this army half way around the world from Paris is a heavy burden on the French. It takes about half of the total military budget and the costs so far have exceeded the total of American Marshall Plan aid to France.

HELP—France would like help from the United Nations. But as long as Chinese troops do not march in the United Nations may regard it as a local affair outside of its power to intervene. Because of that, China may not interfere officially. But because the Viet Minh control the China border and because of the rugged nature of the country, China could infiltrate troops by the thousands, making trained, well-armed fighters the core of hundreds of battalions. Perhaps at this moment Chinese troops are moving down through the jungles disguised as Viet Namees.

EMPIRE—No matter what international technicalities exist, the United States may find itself in this war.

A glance at a map shows why. Indo-China is in the heart of a great area that includes Siam, Indonesia, Malaya and the Philippines. From Indo-China, the forces of Communism could spread out through a vast and rich empire, an empire that is struggling the tortuous path from foreign domination to democracy. Communist conquest in Indo-China might cause Burma to fall to the Reds with only a little struggle. Indo-China is only 700 nautical miles from the Philippines and hundreds of small boats constantly sail between the islands and the mainland, and between Indo-China and Indonesia. Red propagandists, Red fighters and Red weapons could spread out through the area and it could be only a matter of time until that part of the world would be lost to Communism.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

It wasn't too long ago when you could count the number of television sets in Greenville on your fingers and toes. But the Carolina-Notre Dame football game came into Greenville from the Norfolk TV station clear as a bell for three-fourths of the game. Afterwards, the World Series baseball games came in fairly well.

For a few days everybody you saw raved about television, and with tobacco money around and business booming, the TV sets began to spring up in Greenville. By now there must be between twenty and thirty in town. Even the town's poor people, like Wife Rachel and me, have toyed with the idea of going TV. "Which had you rather have," I asked W. R., "a washing machine or a TV set?" With our new daughter missing up clothes like forty, that was a foolish question. W. R. knows that she'll get neither anytime soon, but she's level-headed enough to pick the washing machine when the time comes.

In my opinion, her decision would be wise. If I had plenty of money and time enough to spend waiting for good TV reception, I'd say that three hundred bucks in TV would be a good investment. But until TV gets better in Greenville, it's not worth the price to me. Granted, TV is clear as a bell at times, but you have to wait for those times.

The boss and I went to the New York World's Fair in 1939. Eleven years ago we were televised at a display booth of one of the electric companies. At that time TV seemed to be just around the corner. Of course WW II was the set-back. But peace time has meant great progress for TV. If we wait a while longer, the progress will no doubt bring TV into the question for Greenville.

Some of the TV programs I've seen weren't worth a cent. But it stands to reason that the programs will improve when TV gets within reach of more people. The advertiser will be more willing to spend his money for TV commercials when more people will see them. However, there are numerous good programs on the air now. And commercials, believe it or not, are very entertaining. One of the leading dog food companies rehearsed a dog to dash like mad for a dish of their food. They rehearsed exactly 12 times, but when the program went on the air the dog turned his nose up at the food. This incident is an exception to the rule. Most commercials are very effective.

Anyone can make this prediction and be safe: We'll have TV in our living rooms before we know it. And I thank you.

Raleigh, N. C.

STATESVILLE — Congressman Bob Doughton served Democracy with music in the Iredell county courthouse, and then fed Democrats something more substantial at the hotel a short time later.

The ninth district rallies are all day affairs. Other districts start their meetings in mid afternoon and rush to get through before sundown. Mr. Doughton starts at ten o'clock in the morning—fusses around about missing so much of the morning, and goes until well after the noon hour.

ADHERENTS—The Democratic caravan picked up for this, the fourth rally in the 1950 tournament, two or three recruits. Other engagements prevented Clyde Erwin, superintendent of public instruction, and Waldo Cheek, commissioner of insurance, from joining the official party at the far western rallies. They were on hand, here along with most of the oldtimers.

SPEECHES — The atmosphere of Iredell, only county in the ninth district which has never gone Republican against Mr. Doughton since his original nomination in 1910—which incidentally was affected here — is conducive to Democratic speaking. All the main speakers took a little bit of extra time. Governor Scott getting particularly enthusiastic in reciting the accomplishments of the party during the past half century, with special emphasis on recent history and immediate prospects. Congressman Doughton himself spoke more briefly than usual, but got in some good punches. Such as "elections are not won at rallies, but in the precincts," and "everybody makes mistakes, but when the Democrats make a mistake it is exceptional; when the Republicans do it they are running according to rule."

PURPOSE—The campaign orators go around to these meetings to make speeches, but the folks who come to them do not attend for speech-making. They come to meet their friends from other counties, to see the top state officials and candidates, and to gain encouragement for carrying on the party fights in their counties. So it was here that what the people were most interested in was off-side conversation around the courthouse.

WOMEN — The ninth district holds the record for attendance of women, despite the fact several counties were not represented. When the women were asked to stand it looked like about a third of the audience arose.

POLITICS—Of course the major theme at these rallies is Democratic party politics. Back of that is just as keen interest in intra-party scraps for such offices as speaker of the house of representatives, candidates for governor and other state offices two years from now. Governor Scott commented that the entire council of state is running for governor, and added "I'm for every one of them."

SPEAKERSHIP—Several counties in this district are in the border group, apt to go either way as between Democrats and Republicans in November. For that reason, candidates for the house of representatives are wary about committing support for a speaker until after the election. Perhaps for the same reason they seem a little more interested in status of the avowed candidates. Since they have to wait so long to pick sides, they are more concerned about being "right" when they do make a choice. The speakership contest is still in the unsettled stage, but sentiment seems increasingly favorable to Frank Taylor of Wayne for the post.

CONGRESS—This is the one district in North Carolina where there has been no question about who will be congressman for the past forty years. The question now looms as more important than that who will be the next governor. Mr. Doughton is 87 years old, came very near resigning from the ticket a few weeks ago, and almost certainly will not be a candidate again. Each of the nine counties has from one to a dozen hopefuls who would like to succeed him. For that reason a good many of those attending this rally were fishing and sending up trial balloons about prospective support for the nomination in 1952.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

AMMUNITION FOR THE 'DRYS' IN KEFAUVER'S DISCLOSURES (Richmond Times Dispatch)

Are the Kefauver Crime Committee's revelations as to tieups between criminal gangs and the legal liquor business apt to spark another drive for national prohibition? Doris Fleeson writes from Kansas City in her syndicated column that she thinks it may do so.

She speaks of the disclosures by the committee of "the extent to which the underworld has moved in on the legal liquor business, wholesale as well as retail, in America."

a fact for more than a decade and a half, the reaction could be severe.

Arkansas is voting next month on whether to re-enact State-wide prohibition. If it does so, it will be the first State to bring back prohibition since the eighteenth amendment was repealed in 1933. There appears to be a fair chance that the "drys" will win in Arkansas.

Oklahoma voted the same way a year ago, but Oklahoma had State-wide prohibition already, and its citizens merely decided to keep it. Arkansas tossed aside its prohibition law 17 years ago, but if it flops back next month, that will be the signal for the prohibitionists to start similar drives in other States. Virginia is on their list, although not one of the first scheduled to feel the pressure.

to bring back prohibition, and that they will seek their objective by first drying up the individual States, if they can.

Hence the revelations of the Kefauver Committee have played directly into their hands. Those revelations show that liquor, crime and politics have been mixed into an unholy brew in certain areas. We in Virginia are fortunate in having perhaps the best-controlled liquor system of any State, but conditions elsewhere are furnishing ammunition for the advocates of prohibition.

"Unless the liquor industry and politicians who are supposed to regulate it promptly accept the challenge to clean house," Miss Fleeson writes, in her column, "public reaction against the Kefauver disclosures is bound to be intense. It is in this angle of the crime committee's work that the Senators themselves had not quite expected when they left Washington."

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 One of the curious things about credit controls is that they often stimulate credit buying.

This week several builders reported that, since the controls on housing credits were first imposed, they have been rushed by people who want to buy houses.

In certain areas and in certain lines, credit sales of articles listed in the new Regulation W have increased.

The explanation is simple: People believe that present controls are merely a warm-up for more stringent controls to come.

They are right.

The new curbs on housing are somewhat tougher than the original restrictions, but there is still a possibility they will be tightened. Coming tightening of bank credit will also affect home building. With higher reserve requirements, bankers will be more cautious about financing builders.

HOME IMPROVEMENTS ALREADY CONTROLLED
 The National Retail Dry Goods Association is warning members that a lot of things not named in Regulation W already come under its restrictions. Among things under controls, it says, are paint, wallpaper, venetian blinds, window screens, window frames, storm windows, interior and exterior lighting fixtures, floor tile, asphalt tile, attic fans, water pumps, installed oil or electric heaters, shingles and cabinets. These come under the head of "residential repairs, alterations or improvements," and as such require 10 per cent down and 30 months maximum maturity.

ENCYCLOPEDIAS NOW IN SUPERMARKETS
 Drugs and automobiles have been sold in supermarkets and now it's encyclopedias. A New York firm (Summit Encyclopedia Publishers, Inc.) is marketing a 16-volume set through 3,000 supermarkets. Each volume sells for 79 cents in the East 89 cents in the West.

86.3 PCT. OF U.S. FARMS IN ELECTRIC MARKET
 In the year ending June 30, 471,880 farms were electrified—hence became markets for electric appliances and devices—according to the Rural Electrification Administration. There are still 800,000 farms without electric power but the number may be greatly reduced in the current fiscal year.

The total number of farms with electricity is 5,053,876, or 86.3 per cent of all U.S. farms.

INDUSTRIAL CAPACITY FAR AHEAD OF 1946
 The extent to which industry is geared to meet rearmament demands is indicated by a survey by Mill and Factory. Of 300 companies polled, 26 per cent have increased production capacity by 100 per cent or more in the last ten years, and 53 per cent have increased capacity by lesser amounts. Twenty per cent report no increase and only one per cent report a smaller capacity.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ED CREAM

(For Hal Boyle)

Camp Lejeune, Oct. 13—(AP)—You know it's only practice. You know the shell bursts aren't real, that there aren't going to be any casualty lists. And yet—

Your scarp tightens and your fingernails gouge your palms as you watch the Marines train for combat on the fields and beaches of Camp Lejeune.

A big tank lumbers out of the underbrush, its machine guns coughing. In your foxhole, you aim your bazooka—try to hold it steady. The loader, crouching beside you, slaps you on the rump by way of saying "ready."

One last squirt through the sight. Then you squeeze the trigger: kerplowie.

There's no kick against your shoulder but the sudden explosion deafens you for the moment. You hardly notice your dud rocket bounce harmlessly off the tank.

"Right between the eyes," a captain calls out cheerily. "You'd have stopped that baby dead in its tracks. How'd you like a commission?"

He's kidding, naturally, but your laugh comes slowly. You have a dim notion, for the first time, of what it may be like to be in Korea. Suppose the tank hadn't been firing blanks? Suppose you had missed with the bazooka?

Go to Camp Lejeune, a 200-square-mile tract carved out of the swamps and sagd dunes of the North Carolina coast, and you'll see how a Marine gets to be a Marine—how a man is trained for what may be the life-or-death task of storming tomorrow's beachheads.

It's a pleasant place for such a grim occupation. The trim brick Georgian buildings are handsomer than you usually see at a military post. The autumn days are pleasant at Lejeune—though the sun is merciless in summer and mildew flourishes in the damp air.

Lejeune is battle-educating two kinds of men now: recruits fresh from basic training at Parris Island, S.C., and reservists filtering in from all parts of the country. It's a rugged life for all of them.

Here you'll see flabby ex-sergeants grunting through an obstacle course that would tire a professional scrotd. They aren't flabby for long, though. A few weeks of Marine training and the cold muscle tone comes back. "It was pretty tough at first," gasped James Kane of Dorchester, Mass., "but you get back in the swing of it."

Fred Bareky of Houston, Texas, had hardly any trouble. "I've been farming since I got out of the Marines," he grinned. "That's pretty good training for an obstacle course."

Kane and Bareky are reservists, like most of the men at Lejeune these days. The camp was stripped of men for Korea and other training bases, and the big influx of recruits is just beginning.

But in spite of the temporary manpower shortage, you quickly see why Camp Lejeune, home of the Second Marine Division, calls itself the world's most complete amphibious training base.

On Coney Island-like beaches, Marines in ducks and antracks swarm ashore under the critical eyes of officers who have gone through more eventful landings on the hot sands of the Solomons and the blood-drenched shores of Tarawa.

Here in an open field, across the state highway from a hot-dog stand, tight-lipped recruits swarm over the edge of a make-believe ship in to make-believe landing craft, their field packs flapping. A surprisingly mild-mannered officer growls out directions for this "dry net" drill:

"Tighten chin straps . . . left leg over first . . . keep your feet . . . well apart . . . jump clean into the landing craft . . . keep your eyes on that net . . . don't waste time . . . when the time comes, you may not have any time to waste."

You rarely hear officers bawling out recruits at Camp Lejeune. You'll even find—if you can believe your ears—hear grizzled sergeants address the men as "old timers." As in the Army, the old days of "treat-em-rough" are fast dying out.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—As many kids as went to high school 35 years ago, but are the youth today getting enough education to cope with the problems of the next half century?

That is a major question to be considered by the National Commission on Life Adjustment Education for Youth meeting in Chicago Oct. 18. This commission, together with the U. S. Office of Education, has launched a nation-wide movement to "adapt public education to the needs and opportunities of all youth in our changing world."

The "score" on the above question is given in a pamphlet being published for educational leaders and community groups.

"Fifty per cent of children born in any year quit school before high school graduation," the pamphlet says. "Ninety per cent of our youth have the ability to graduate from high school. Fifty per cent have the ability to profit from at least two years of education beyond high school."

Dr. J. Dan Hull, of the Office of Education, serving as commission chairman, says that while the U. S. spends about a billion dollars a year on its high schools and more than 7,000,000 youths go to high school, "laymen and educators know that many changes are needed if our schools are to prepare youths to meet the dangers to our democratic institutions."

"To protect these institutions," says Dr. Hull, "schools must help youth to become better citizens, better workers and better family members." Some of the suggested goals for a good school are listed in the new pamphlet, which is titled "Good Schools Don't Just Happen." One recommends the elimination of "hidden costs."

"The extra costs of class dues, rings, yearbooks, activities and laboratory fees are more than many pupils can afford to pay to attend a public high school," the booklet says. "Twenty-eight per cent of the families in the community have incomes so low that they find even essential expenditures difficult to meet, 30 per cent of the pupils who drop out leave because of financial and personal reasons."

Another recommendation is that the school program cover all youth. It is pointed out that 70 per cent of the drop-outs say they could not get along in their subjects, that teachers were interested only in bright pupils, that the subjects seemed to have little value for the solution of life problems. Still another suggests greater stimulation of civic interest and competence of youth in the community.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

IMPROVEMENTS
 The workmen are busy repairing the street in front of our house these days. They have been at it now for two weeks. While they were breaking up the old pavement with pneumatic drills and steam shovels, this was naturally one of the noisiest neighborhoods in town. Now that they are filling and grading, the work is quieter, but very dusty. When they finally put on the asphalt surface, we can all enjoy the aroma of hot tar for a few days.

Despite all the noise, unpleasantness, and inconvenience—many of us cannot get into our driveways—none of the neighbors seem to complain at all. Passing motorists sometimes start to drive through and have to back out; some of them are quite annoyed. But the people who live with it every day make no fuss at all. The old road was rough and full of holes. Probably we don't mind the construction now because we think of the pleasure and comfort that we will get from the new surface.

Most real changes for the better involve some inconvenience for somebody. People with no vision or imagination see only the present mess and fuss about it. But those who can foresee the future gain don't object to a little present sacrifice.

"Wait Until After Election"

The "wait until after election" attitude which has been prevalent in our federal government's approach to our domestic problems is likely to extract a heavy toll from the people.

Even though it shouldn't be that way, it will be the people who pay in higher prices and an unbalanced economy for the conditions resulting from the inactivity of the federal government in regulating the nation's economy as it should be.

Prices have risen steadily since shortly before the Korean crisis came to a head late in July. Wages have begun to take hikes in an effort to keep a balance with the increasing prices of consumer goods. Just as happened in the beginning of World War II, our whole price and wage structure is getting out of line and the confusion is becoming more wide-spread almost every day.

Even though the administration has been aware of the need or some controls in the nation's economy if we are to keep on an even keel, the order of the day has been "wait 'til after election." When the politicians get through playing politics and get all they can from the people, they will be willing to turn their attention again to the problems of the nation. Until that time, however, the politicians from the top man to the lowest appointive officer in the federal government have indicated they don't care much what goes on. Their principal interest lies in the vote which will help elect themselves or the person who keeps them in office.

The people of the United States realize that many mistakes were made during the early '40's when we were gearing our economy to a war effort. The people thought surely the government officials would place the welfare of the nation at least on an equal plane with personal ambition when this new emergency arose. It seems, however, that again the people have misjudged the politicians they have elected to federal offices.

The attitude which has been taken by the politicians is plainly contrary to the interests of the people of the country. They have shown they have time for the nation's welfare only after they finish playing politics in the November election.

As The Reflector has said before, the nation probably will be better off if in the coming election and one thereafter we rid ourselves of the political parasites in the federal government who can find time for the country's welfare only after they are through playing politics.

We May Be Surprised At What Crime Controls

Senator Kefauver, chairman of the senate investigating committee which is probing the nation-wide racketeering, says the facts turned up by his committee show rackets are practically in control of many local governments, and their influence extends well into national government circles.

Joe Uncertain

New York, Oct. 13—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, who finished the 1950 baseball season in a blaze of glory, is not sure he will return to the New York Yankees next year.

DiMaggio, discussing his ailments of the past season, said yesterday, "I finished strong, felt better than I had all season and really felt great in the series."

"But I can't be sure about next year. I'd like to know how my health is going to be. I don't want to go through 1950 all over again."

The Yankee star who earned $100,000 this year also said he saw no reason for taking up contract negotiations at this time.

Junior Pam Pack Defeats Locals By 19-7 Margin

Washington's Baby Pam Pack scored twice in the fourth quarter yesterday to down the Greenville J.V.'s, 19-7.

Quarterback Joe Smith led the Washington passing attack with Ends Wayne Woolard and Bobby Rhodes doing most of the receiving. Coach Stan Terrill's junior Phantoms crossed pay dirt first in the opening minutes of the first quarter, when Guard Bobby Nunn recovered a Washington fumble on a kick return on the Pam Pack 28-yard stripe.

On the next play, Doug Morgan spotted End Frank Brooks in the end zone for the score. Morgan ran the extra point, giving the Phants an early 7-0 lead.

The juniors from Washington came back fast in the second stanza to score as Rhodes blocked a Greenville punt on the 19-yard line. On the next play from scrimmage Halfback Reggie Asby passed to End Wayne Woolard in the end zone for the marker.

An offside penalty nullified Washington's extra point, and the Phants led at halftime, 7-6.

Washington blocked another Greenville punt on the opening play of the final quarter, with Center John Blount recovering on the Phantoms 11-yard mark. Quarterback Smith passed to Woolard in the end zone on the next play, the Pam Pack taking a winning margin, 12-7.

End John Rhodes recovered a Greenville fumble on the Phantoms 18 in the waning minutes of the game to set up the final Pam Pack score.

Quarterback Smith, on three consecutive quarterback sneaks, crossed the goal line from the five, and then passed to Rhodes for the extra point, icing the game for Washington, 19-7.

Brief Workouts Close Pirate Preparedness For Homecoming

By BILL LLOYD
A brief signal drill and checking of blocking assignments today will conclude East Carolina's workouts for their homecoming game with West Carolina here Saturday night.

Coach Bill Dole sent his Pirate charges through an afternoon and night session yesterday, with the accent on brushing up of pass patterns, timing of offense plays, pass protection and punting and place-kicking under pressure.

A lengthy drill on pass protection was held in the afternoon workout, with the offensive line being made up of Frank Maennle and Dwight Shoe, ends, Dennis Smith and Bill McDonald at tackles, George Graybill and Jesse Aldridge at guards, and Buck Wilson doing the pivot chores.

Halfbacks Jack Benzie, Bill Darby and Jack Britt worked on the timing of the Pirates' ground attack, along with Johnny Smith, who has slipped into a starting role at fullback this week. Smith is also expected to double up with linebacker duties in Saturday's Catamount clash.

Tackle Buck Hardee worked on kicking extra points in the afternoon practice. Hardee has kicked good on nine out of 13 attempts this season, and has one 17-yard field goal to his credit. Bill Darby also got off some beautiful kicks during the punting drills.

In the session under the stadium lights, Quarterback Roger Thrift limbered up his pitching arm for Saturday night's aerial circus, as the Pirates took an hour-long workout on pass patterns. Ends Frank Maennle and Dwight Shoe, and Halfbacks Jack Britt, Jack Benzie and Bill Darby were on the receiving end of Thrift's tosses.

End Ed Tanner and Guard Mickey Berman are still on Pirate injury list, and will miss Saturday night's action.

West Carolina's Catamounts are expected to arrive in time this afternoon to take a brisk workout before tomorrow night's scrap.

Two Teams Tied In Bowling Loop

Women's Bowling League

College View Cleaners	9 6 800
Double N Restaurant	9 6 800
WGTO	7 8 466
Carolina Cleaners	5 10 333

College View and WGTO went all out Wednesday night to take three games from their opponents, and in the shuffle College View moved into a first place tie with Double N and the radio team pulled into third.

College View actually took Double N to the cleaners in unseating them from a lone first place, the position it had held for three weeks running. The first two games were fairly close and, except for the handicap by the victors, would have been closer yet.

One reason, possibly, for the triple loss by Double N was it had only three bowlers instead of the usual four. One line was blind throughout, those scores reverting to the ones bowled by Audrey Leggett last week and all were under 100.

No records were set by either team. They were left to WGTO to set in its games with Carolina Cleaners. The radio girls set a new high for single and three games in rolling 690 on the third game and a total of 1,871 for the three. Formerly, their Wednesday night opponents held the records on scores of 614 for a single and 1,718 for three.

Ayden, Farmville Meet; Others Go Outside Loop

Ayden's defending Coastal conference champions battle their Pitt County arch-rivals this afternoon as they play host to Farmville's Red Devils at Ayden.

Kickoff for this afternoon's game is 3:00 p.m.

All-conference Teedy Bullock is expected to fill the air with passes to Ends Willis Manning and Mac Whitehurst. Ayden's all-league flankman, in this Coastal conference "family" battle.

Bullock will be aided by the powerhouse running of B. L. Byrd and Darrel Worthington at halfbacks, and Mac Hardee at fullback. Linemen Gregg Davis, at center, Troy Jackson at tackle and Walter Meeks at guard will make up the forward wall that faces the Red Devils.

Coach Elbert Moyer's injury-riddled eleven will be the underdogs for this Coastal conference contest, with Charlie Fitzgerald filling the quarterback shoes of Randy Allen, with Halfback Joe Smith doing the line-plunging. Farmville will miss the services of End Albert Cannon, who suffered a broken hand two weeks ago.

Elsewhere in the Coastal conference, South Edgecombe, who is tied with Ayden for the league leadership, goes outside of the conference, playing Tarboro tonight, while Vanceboro does likewise in playing Williamston in a nightcap. Robersonville plays the only other eleven game, as Coach Bob Lee's eleven plays host to Manteo at Robersonville.

And as soon as he gets back to Gotham, he told a Portland Press Herald interviewer yesterday, he's going after a "yes or no" answer on his 1951 status.

"Big Jawn," here for a rained-out exhibition game with Mickey Harris's all-stars, also said, "I'll play baseball for someone next year but I don't know yet who it will be."

"If they (the Yanks) don't want me, I want to find out what you have to do to stay with the club."

Bauer Sisters Are Eliminated

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 13—(AP)—Patty Berg and Betty Jameson, two veteran women professionals, put the Bauer sisters on the sideline of the Texas women's open golf tournament.

Miss Berg slammed a 3 and 1 victory over Alice Bauer and Miss Jameson fashioned a 3 and 2 victory over Marlene Bauer yesterday.

The big question in the football world this week is whether this young fellow "can pull a Purdue" against Army next Saturday in New York's Yankee stadium. He is Chuck Ortman, 188-pound Michigan back and sharpshooter from Milwaukee, who is due to return to action against the favored Army team. He was injured in the first period of the opening game which Michigan lost to Michigan State and hasn't seen action since. (AP Wirephoto).

DOUBLE WEDDING

By Adelaide Humphries

Chapter 24

He said, "I'm not going to say I'm sorry, Stephanie." Yet he wondered if he were not. That was not the way to win her; he knew he could not sweep her off her feet. And he knew, because she had merely accepted his kiss, not responded to it, that it had been merely an empty gesture.

She doesn't love me, he thought. I've known it all along. She never has; she never will.

He wished he had not done what he had. For now he was sure that there was the sound of someone in the small kitchenette.

"I don't want you to!" Stephanie replied. Her laugh was light. She could almost have thanked him for that kiss. So she said, "It's all right, Grant. I'm glad you kissed me." Another time she would try to explain why. But not now.

"I'm glad, too," Sandy's voice said behind her. His old, mocking voice, the one she had not heard in a long while.

She swung around to see him standing in the doorway. He had his topcoat on, his felt hat at the jaunty angle he wore it. In one hand was a suitcase, bulging as if it were packed full.

"Sorry, of course," he added, his mouth taking on its wide grin, "to interrupt such a love scene. Yet it is fitting that the current husband should be the unsuspecting witness when the wife decides it's the Ex she loves."

"But I—" Stephanie began. She did not care that Sandy had been a witness, but she did not want him to misinterpret what he thought that kiss, that had no meaning meant.

"Let me go on," Sandy interrupted, raising one hand in a dramatic gesture. "I beg of you. I must make a fitting curtain speech."

"Now see here—" Grant tried to put in his word. He felt like a heel; and he was not, really.

"I don't think a thing, not one impure thought!" Sandy ooked in once more. He could not let them speak their lines. This was his scene. He was the star. He had promised Mayo he would make it good.

"This is a modern triangle, my friend," he said to Grant. "The best man wins. I was walking out before you two came in. You see," he lifted the heavy piece of luggage a little higher, "bag and baggage. I meant to leave a note on the pincushion, if I could find one, Stevie."

"You can't do this!" Grant protested. An odd thing to come from him. But he knew now that it wouldn't do any good; Sandy could walk out, disappear, even turn up dead another time. His shadow—the love he and Stephanie had known—would always be between any compromise, which was all she had given Grant.

"Sandy!" It was a low cry from Stephanie. Why was he acting this way? He could not mean it.

But he did have his belongings all packed in that suitcase. And he had had them packed before she and Grant had come in.

"I'd do a real good job for you, Stevie," Sandy was saying, as if he had not heard that sharp cry. "If I could get away with it. Kill myself off, same as the first time. I mean. Make it easier, quicker, all around."

"You're joking, of course," Grant said. "Rather in poor taste, I think. What we should all do is talk this whole thing over. I think—"

"My friend," Sandy's blue eyes turned on the other man now were cold, unwavering, "I'm tired of talking and stalling and all the rest. I'm fed up. Clear to the neck. I have thought it all out and decided I'm through. For quits."

"It seems to me," Grant insisted, "that it is up to Stephanie."

"It was, but it isn't," Sandy wanted to get it over with.

"I'm not only walking out, I'm not ever coming back. No ghost from the grave again. You can get a divorce, Stevie."

"I can't let you talk to Stephanie this way!" Grant took a step toward the other man.

She stood pale and silent, not saying a word, her grave eyes wide.

"I've said it all," Sandy said. "Sorry if it didn't sound pretty. The truth seldom does. And now, if you two will kindly step out of my way—" he picked up his heavy bag once more, removed his hat from his head with his other hand, and made a low bow that swept it against the floor.

Stephanie still stood silent, her eyes staring, her cheeks devoid of all coloring. So that he almost had to push her out of his path. His rough coat sleeve did brush against her. Then he was gone.

Grant took another step, as if to go after him. Somehow Sandy's words had not rung true. But Stephanie's voice stopped him.

"Let him go, Grant. Please. I don't want you to try to stop him."

"But he misunderstood," Grant said.

"None of that matters," she broke in. All of the radiance had been struck from her eyes. That wonderful feeling was gone from her eyes. That wonderful feeling was gone from her heart. "His bag was packed. He said he had packed it before he came in. And you heard the other things he said. That he was through, fed up—that he did not want me—that he does not love me."

"That—and that alone—was all that mattered. It was what stood out above everything else that had been said."

(To be continued)

How to Use the Bible

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalm 119:1-11; Acts 8:26-39; II Timothy 3:14-17.

The Apostle Philip was sent by God to "the way that goeth down from Jerusalem to Gaza," where he saw an Ethiopian—a eunuch—riding in his chariot.

The eunuch was reading scripture. Philip asked him if he understood what he was reading. The Ethiopian said no, so Philip explained, converting him.

Coming to some water, the Ethiopian asked to be baptized. Philip inquired if he believed; he said he did, so both entered the water and Philip baptized him.

Paul wrote to his "beloved son," Timothy, to continue in the things he had learned from the scriptures.

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 119:130.

HOW TO USE THE BIBLE

READING SCRIPTURE: "MAKES THREE WISE UNTO SALVATION," SAID ST. PAUL

Scripture—Psalm 119:1-11; Acts 8:26-39; II Timothy 3:14-17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. THE BIBLE is still the world's "best seller," despite the immense output, through the ages, of secular writers. Millions of copies are printed and distributed over the globe every year.

How many read the Scriptures? That cannot be answered with any certainty. How many read it with understanding? That too is problematical. Our lesson tells us of one who read, earnestly, but not understanding what he read, was told by a messenger from God and became the first Gentile convert to Christianity.

The psalmist knew the value of Scripture reading. He says: "The law of Jehovah is perfect, restoring the soul: The testimony of Jehovah is sure, making wise the simple."

The "simple" does not mean the stupid, but those who have a childlike trust and are willing to learn.

"The precepts of Jehovah are right, rejoicing the heart: The commandment of Jehovah is pure, enlightening the eyes."

dace, queen of Ethiopia.

He was riding in his chariot from Jerusalem where he had been for worship, and as he rode he read in the book of Isaiah. The Spirit directing Philip told him to go near and join this man. Philip did so, asking the Ethiopian if he understood what he was reading.

"He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; And as a lamb before his shearer is dumb, so He opened not His mouth: In His humiliation His judgment was taken away: His generation who shall declare? For His life is taken from the earth."

Who was the prophet speaking of? asked the eunuch. Of Jesus, answered Philip. And he proceeded to tell of Jesus and His teaching; how He was killed by unbelievers and buried, then rose from the dead.

As they proceeded on their way, the Ethiopian said, "See here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?"

"If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest," said Philip. The man said he believed that

MEMORY VERSE

"The opening of Thy words giveth light; It giveth understanding."—Psalm 119:130.

"The fear of Jehovah is clean, enduring forever:

"The ordinances of Jehovah are true, and righteous altogether.

"More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold;

"Sweeter also than honey and the droppings of the honeycomb.

"Moreover by them is Thy servant warned:

"In keeping them there is great reward."

Gold—even "much fine gold"—does not make men happy. How many rich men have found that out. If they gain all the things money can buy, they may still be lonely, misunderstood and unhappy.

Now we come to the story of the first Gentile converted to Christianity. The Apostle Philip—one of the seven appointed to administer some secular business in the Jerusalem church—was called by an angel of God to go to the road that ran from Jerusalem to Gaza.

He hurried to do the bidding, and saw a very important Ethiopian who was treasurer to Can-

"Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Both men went into the water and this unnamed man was baptized.

St. Paul, writing to his "beloved son," Timothy, sums up the benefits of reading the Bible. "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them: And that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

"All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness.

"That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

We may not grow perfect by studying the Scriptures—that is not possible for human beings. But we can be greatly helped to that end if we study the Scriptures, understand them, and try earnestly to live as Jesus would have us.

Club Plans Observe Nat'l Business Women's Week

Sixty North Carolina Business and Professional Women's clubs will celebrate national Business Women's Week beginning Sunday for the whole of next week. Among them will be the Greenville chapter of the state and national organization. The theme of the club is "Measure Up for Full Partnership" and next week the 50-odd members in Greenville and vicinity will strive to make business and professional women mutually conscious of their slogan. It has taken two world wars to give women their place in the national economy. When the Federation of clubs was formed in 1919, Navy Secretary Josephus Daniels stated: "The country has never fully expressed its appreciation to women for the valiant work they have done in the war effort and it is now looking to all women to stand with all men in the period of reconstruction to make a better America."

This year President Truman added a capstone to that statement when he recently issued a proclamation for the women's week. He said: "I am glad that American women are rising to their opportunities for work in business and the professions. Their participation in the activities of offices, conference rooms and legislative halls is good for the country."

Last night the Greenville club held its monthly meeting in the 13th year of its organization. The program was centered around the club's celebration next week and the activities in which it will take part.

Discussion of the annual Halloween Carnival was held and the women reported their work for the October 31, event. Plans for the program of games and stunts have been in the making for several weeks with all members taking part. The carnival will be held in the armory and is designed to provide a party for all children of Greenville and its environs.

A film was presented by Mrs. Floyd Hendrix concerning the trials and tribulations of a secretary in her first job. Titled "The Duties of a Secretary," the film presented what things a secretary should consider to become a competent one. Guests of the club were Jean Johnston, Pactolus, and Ruth Whitford, Chicod, both high school students.

Pitt Has Three Auto Accidents

Three minor highway accidents were reported today by the Greenville Highway Patrol office. All of the accidents occurred on rural roads, resulting in the arrest of one driver on charges of operating a motor vehicle on the left side of the highway. No one was killed or injured in the three accidents which took place over the past three days.

Yesterday afternoon, a car operated by Dores Smith Morris of 1107 Elm Street, Greenville, was in collision with a car driven by James Frank Wooten Jr. of Raleigh. Only negligible damage was reported to the two cars.

The accident was investigated by Patrolman Paul C. Whitley. It took place on a rural road near the Pactolus highway.

Late Wednesday afternoon an accident was reported involving two vehicles. A car driven by Elbert Junior Stokes of 1505 Broad Street collided with a truck operated by Seth Theodore Porter Jr. of Route 3, Greenville. The accident occurred as the Porter car pulled onto the highway at the same time the Stokes car started to pass. Both drivers agreed that loose sand caused the Stokes car to be unable to avoid hitting the car. No arrests were made.

A warrant charging John Henry Anderson, negro, with driving on the left side of the highway was issued by Patrolmen Cpl. John Laws and R. C. Holt as the result of an accident which occurred Wednesday night on the Bell Arthur highway. Anderson's car was in collision with another car, resulting in only moderate damage. Anderson stated that he was attempting to make a left hand turn, but cut out of the path of a car following behind him at the time the other car attempted to avoid a collision.

for the Pitt County Blind Association today topped the $1,250 mark.

Lion President Larry Averette voiced the opinion that the $2,000 quota which the local club set two weeks ago will be filled. As yet, several reports have not been received and the president stated that with the other reports in the drive will go well over the top at the present rate.

The money is used to bring a case worker to the county to work with the blind and also pay for individual aid to the blind persons in the county each year.

a big glass bottle; that he stabbed her more than two dozen times with a dull icepick. In the meantime his victim's mother and grandmother in another room, were crying for help. Workers at the electric power plant heard their screams and called police.

Officers investigating the slaying said John Frank Green, after murdering his frail wife, borrowed a hammer and went back and leaned over her prostrate body, struck her with it inflicting a gaping hole in her head—to "be sure she was dead."

Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning and city Detective Lieut. M. E. Corbett took Green to State Prison today. They carried another prisoner.

He was Oren Holmes, Jr., sentenced to serve from three to five years. Holmes and his wife, Mrs. Gladys Holmes after pleading guilty were convicted by a jury of the larceny of a valuable fur coat from Mrs. Marie Smith Wallace at an Elks' Christmas party last December 29. The coat was recovered.

Judge Henry A. Grady continued judgement as to Mrs. Holmes and she was released.

Schools Emptied Fast In Practice Fire Drills

An estimated 3,300 Greenville city school children this week have been taking part in practice fire drills sponsored by school officials and the Greenville Fire Department as a part of National Fire Prevention Week.

Yesterday and today fire drills were arranged by the Greenville Fire Department at which time all of the city schools were timed for speed in emptying the school buildings.

Also as a part of the Fire Prevention Week program, in addition to the programs carried on in the individual schools, firemen demonstrated the use of fire fighting equipment found in most schools. A special demonstration of a fire truck recently purchased by the city was given to the elementary school children.

According to a statement issued Orren E. Dowd, principal of the school this was one of the best fire drills ever to be held in GHS, with the students emptying the building in two minutes, which is record. "I would like to thank the Student Government and the Traffic committee for their part in making this a drill success" commented Mr. Dowd.

What might well be a record was set by the colored school children of the South Greenville school yesterday when they filed out of their

'Probable Cause' In Rape Hearing

In Police Court today, Judge J. W. H. Roberts found probable cause in the case against Ernest Morton, Jr., colored, charged with assaulting and attempting to rape Mrs. Mary Carter, colored, at her home on Bonner's Lane on a recent Sunday.

The court ordered that he be held under $300 bail for the Pitt County Grand Jury.

The woman testified that Morton was a frequent visitor at the house where she and her husband and seven-week-old baby live. She said he went there to visit another woman; that on his last visit he assaulted her while she was sitting on the side of her bed with her baby and attempted to rape her.

The witness also testified that she screamed for help and that when her husband, Hassie Carter, came in the front door, Morton fled through the back door.

But wouldn't Russia rush to China's aid? She might, but I believe there would be no certainty of it. Russia herself doesn't want to get involved in a major war at this juncture. She might very well decide to let China fight it out by herself—a strategy which would allow the Soviet to conserve her own resources while the Western powers drew on theirs to wage war against sprawling China.

Wake Island's . . .

ican real estate, but even though the lots there might not be worth as much as in downtown Washington, we figured it ought to have a landlording place.

We didn't know where to go next but the next day our CAA man reported:

CAA people remembered they have charge of Wake, after all. Seems the Navy turned it over to CAA in January, 1949.

And CAA employs a manager who is also a U. S. deputy marshal, a title and position which makes him chief of police on the Island, too.

And then we picked up some more about the place: All that was left there after the war were a concrete airport control tower and a 5,600 foot coral runway for planes.

The CAA rebuilt this into a 7,000 hard-surface strip, with a 1,400 foot coral extension. And now it's quite a busy place for planes.

Yes, but what kind of hotel accommodations for the President and General MacArthur if they meet there?

So far as he knows, a CAA man told me, there are only five quonset huts on the place.

Then he was asked what arrangements were being made for the meeting of the two important men. "When we learned about the meeting, we gave instructions to set up a radio-teletype hookup."
