Community Chest Drive Date Is Set

H. L. Hodges Jr. Heading Campaign; Goal Is Same As For Last Year

The Greenville Community Chest will begin its annual drive November 7, seeking $10,200 for allocation to eight charitable and youth organizations.

Heading the drive this year, which requests the same quota as in 1949, is General Chairman Howard L. Hodges Jr. He succeeds Badger Johnson as drive chairman, the latter being named to the board of directors this year.

Working under Hodges will be 150 Greenville citizens who will solicit the funds from the employes of business firms in town, organizations, warehouses and private citizens. Together the drive workers will approximate 1,200 working hours during the Community Chest week.

The organizations which will benefit from the Chest this year are the same ones who have been financed in their year's programs from past drives. Numbering eight altogether, they are: Boy Scouts (white and colored), Girl Scouts (white and colored), the Teen Age Club, the Emergency Charity Fund, the Service League Thrift Shop, and the Kings Daughters.

The Boy and Girl Scouts and the Teen Age Club are organizations which the allocated funds are designed to help through their youth programs in building citizenship for the future. The Chest contributes to the latter three agencies for work devoted to the welfare of the indigent and unfortunate.

The 18 directors of the Chest this week went on record in stating the underlying purpose of the Chest drive. They reported:

"The success of any Community Chest plan is the response of its citizenship—first being the group of voluntary workers who make up its organization, and, second, sufficient contributions from business and individuals to meet annual budgets. "Based upon past achievements and with full confidence in its citizenship, the Greenville Community Chest stands ready to continue to bring the benefits of this plan to the community over many continuing years."

Destroy Biggest Still In Wilkes

Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Federal agents blasted Wilkes County's "biggest" whisky still into a smoking heap of splinters and torn steel yesterday.

It may have been the largest distillery ever destroyed in Wilkes, officers said. At least, it was tops for the past 20 years.

The still, located in the county's Northeast corner, had a mash capacity of 9,000 gallons. It had been in operation since April, authorities believed.

Same Weather

The wind today was coming in from the northwest. It had a chill on the edge of it and indicated that colder weather is in the offing, the local U. S. Weather observer said.

The highest temperature recorded in the Greenville area yesterday was 75 degrees. Lowest last night, 53, and at 8 a. m. today it was 60.

For the same day last year the weather was just about the same. The highest temperature was 66 degrees. The lowest that night was 57 and at 8 a. m. next day the mercury stood at 51. Incidentally, it was raining here a year ago yesterday and today.

The European Theatre

Relative Strategic Values Of Asia And Europe Apparently Settled; Immediate Needs Of Europe To Come First; Far East Not Forgotten In General Policy

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

While we still await details of the Truman-MacArthur conference, it seems clear that an important—perhaps the most important—issue revolved about the relative strategic values of Asia and Europe to the defense of Democracy.

That is to say, if both theaters couldn't be fully defended at the same time (and they couldn't) which must be taken care of first?

There are two schools of thought in this matter. High quarters in Washington, although recognizing the threat in Asia, maintain that Europe presents the greater immediate danger. MacArthur, while not disputing the European menace, has emphasized the gravity of the Far Eastern threats.

Former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill summed up a widely held Western viewpoint a couple of days ago in addressing his conservative party. He bluntly warned the west not to get too deeply involved in Asia's difficulties because the danger from Communism in Europe is much greater.

"Hopes of reaching a peaceful settlement with Russia have been improved by what has happened in Korea," said Churchill. "The Soviet

Dewey Di-Vests Himself Of Presidential Hopes

Four Pitt Medical Men Sign In Draft

Forty Pitt Countians Report To Raleigh Monday For Induction; Pre-Induction Exams For 103 Set For Oct. 27

Pitt County's Selective Service Board registered four doctors yesterday during the one day slated for national registration of all men in the medical, dental and veterinary professions.

Of the four were two medical doctors, one dentist and one veterinarian. All received their training through government education programs instituted during World War II.

Contrary to information received by the draft board last week, implying all medical men under 50 years of age would register, a directive last Saturday outlined several stipulations to be met that cut to a minimum the expected number of registrations.

The directive stated (1) the man must have received all or part of his training under government training programs; (2) must have been deferred during the war; (3) must have served less than 21 months in the armed forces; (4) must be 50 years old or under. All those stipulations had to be met before the man was required to register. Hence the small number.

The board announced today that Pitt's first contingent for future duty with the armed forces will report to Raleigh next Monday for induction. The contingent numbers 40 men, all of whom received pre-induction examinations in Raleigh during September.

When they report to Raleigh they will be dispersed from there to different units of the armed forces and the respective induction centers.

The board this week is sending out a call for pre-induction exams to 103 men in the county. Those who answer will report to Raleigh October 27 for the mental and physical tests.

Appropos of this Korean angle President Truman has stated that he and MacArthur "discussed the steps necessary to bring peace and security to the area (Korea) as rapidly as possible in accordance with the intent of the resolution of the United Nations General Assembly and in order to get our armed forces out of Korea as soon as their United Nations mission is complete."

Apparently it was agreed that most of the American strength in the Far East shall be shipped to Western Europe as soon as the Korean job is done. John M. Hightower, AP diplomatic expert in Washington, says it isn't questioned in the capital that the withdrawal from Korea will result in a European buildup.

Well, now, just what is the significance of all this? Just why should it be thought better to concentrate defense in Europe rather than in Asia? Doesn't the Far East present

Political Pay-Off Charged In N. Y. Election Battle

Demos Claim Dewey Nominated After Hanley Was 'Bought' For Big Sum

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 17.—(AP)—New York's bitter election campaign erupted today with Democratic charges that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was nominated by the Republicans for a third term after a "pay-off" to Lt. Gov. J. R. Hanley.

The Democrats based their charges on a letter released by Hanley yesterday, in which the lieutenant governor said that "if I will consent to take the nomination to the United States Senate, I am definitely assured of being able to clean up my financial obligations within 90 days."

The Democratic candidate for governor, Rep. Walter A. Lynch, immediately accused Governor Dewey of participating in a "heinous crime." He charged that Hanley had been bought off to give up his own candidacy for governor and to run, instead, for the Senate.

The 74-year-old lieutenant governor had been assured of the Republican gubernatorial nomination until Dewey changed his mind. Dewey had been assured of the Re-About retiring, Dewey announced Sept. 4 that he would seek a third term.

Lynch claimed that Dewey stood "convicted by his own running mate of bartering one of the highest offices in the gift of the people for his own personal gain as though it was a commodity in the market place."

He contended that, as a result of the disclosure, Dewey "would have to be impeached" if re-elected Nov. 7, and that Hanley "could never be seated" in the Senate.

Hanley had a secretary distribute copies of the letter to news-men after he had held a news conference to deny what he said were "absolute falsehoods" in a "whispering campaign" against him.

Asked about the letter at a campaign stop, Dewey said he was "delighted" to see these smear attacks head-on.

Hanley wouldn't reveal to whom he had sent the letter. Democrats said it was delivered by messengers to Republican Rep. W. Kingsland Macy of Suffolk County at Saratoga Springs. Macy was there to attend the GOP state convention Sept. 6-7.

At Batavia, in western New York, Congressman Lynch charged in a speech last night that Hanley had been bought off by Wall Street bankers to give up the gubernatorial nomination to Dewey.

"The amount of money involved here is $70,000," Lynch asserted. He did not elaborate.

Advise Haste In Storm Warnings

Miami, Fla., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Storm warning headquarters, alarmed by slow preparations for a dangerous storm containing 110 mile winds, advised South Florida residents today to rush all emergency hurricane precautions.

Hurricane warnings, already flying over the gold coast area from Palm Beach and Miami to Marathon in the Florida keys, were extended southward to Key West and up the Gulf Coast to Fort Myers at 10 a. m.

Eisenhower Once Again Is Dark Horse Of 1952 Race

Washington, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower once again has become a presidential possibility for 1952 and the big threat to all other would-be candidates, Republican or Democratic.

That is true despite the general's statement that he has not changed his mind about staying out of politics.

To Washington political experts it is apparent that the plug Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York put in Sunday for Eisenhower as a 1952 Republican presidential candidate has three important results:

1. Whether he likes it or not, General Ike definitely has been shoved into the 1952 political picture and will stay there unless and until he takes himself out just as definitely.

2. Dewey's pledge to work for the popular soldier-educator makes it rough on any other Republicans who may be hopefully eyeing the White House. Dewey lost as the GOP presidential candidate in 1944 and 1948, but he still is head of the Republican party and still has a lot of influence in it.

Mr. Waldrop stated that on November 1st the Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury Department will launch a nationwide drive among industries to increase employee participation in the Payroll Savings Plan for regular and systematic purchases of Series E bonds. A bond campaign also will be held in agricultural sections among farmers.

The county chairman stated that due to the war in Korea and threats of war in other parts of the world individual citizens in the nation are being called upon to work together for promoting the well being of the nation during a critical period. It is important to the welfare of the nation that the savings bonds program be supported by our citizens not only to back up our fighting men in Korea but to help stabilize our economy on the home front.

Patrolman Dick Chadwick, investigating officer, reported that a dump truck operated by Jarvis Randolph Anderson of 105 Ridge-way Street, Greenville, ran off the shoulder of the highway after it came to a abrupt stop and toppled over into a ditch. The truck was hauling asphalt at the time. Anderson told Chadwick that he approached the rail road crossing at about 30 miles per hour when he heard a train whistle and applied his brakes. The truck then went onto the shoulder of the road and toppled over. No charges were brought against the driver.

Two additional reports of accidents were listed by the office as occurring last week.

Allied Columns Driving On Pyongyang; 20 Miles To Go

Civilian Boss

Lake Success, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The United States proposed today that the United Nations appoint a supreme civilian boss to direct Korea's multi-million dollar economic rebuilding.

He would be known as the U.N. "agent general." His functions would be equivalent to those Gen. MacArthur has exercised in the military sphere.

The proposal is embodied in a U.S. resolution submitted to the U.N. Economic and Social Council today by U.S. Representative Isador Lubin.

An American spokesman said the U.S. has no one in mind for the job, but there was considerable speculation here that the job might be offered to MacArthur himself. The spokesman said he could not say whether the plan had been discussed with the general.

The agent general would deal only with rehabilitation and would not have any authority over Korea's political future. That already has been entrusted to another U.N. commission.

Airliner's Crash Kills 23 Persons

One Man Aboard Survives Wreck In London Suburb

London, Oct. 17.—(AP)—A twin-engine airliner smashed into a London suburb today, killing 23 of the 29 persons aboard.

British European Airways said an engine failed shortly after the plane took off from London for Glasgow. The plane, a Dakota, was attempting to return to London.

The air line said it carried 24 passengers, including one infant, and a crew of five.

"As far as we know all have been killed except one adult, either passenger or crew," a spokesman said. "The aircraft was completely burned out."

The survivor, a man, was taken to Edgware General Hospital. One report said the craft caught fire in the air, hit a house top, then plowed through a wall into a garden. One wing still teetered atop a house.

The crash was in suburban Mill Hill, a middle class residential area. One eyewitness expressed belief the fuel tanks exploded. He said: "No one could get near the plane, it was burning so fiercely, but I understand some of the passengers must have been thrown out because some bodies were taken away."

"As it sailed over the houses one wing came off and struck a house. The plane crashed across the narrow road—Highwood Ash—and landed in the garden of a nearby house."

The fuel tank blast "set fire to the shrubbery and trees but not to the house."

Pitt Saving Bond Sales Are Good

County U.S. Savings Bonds Chairman, Mr. Waldrop, announced today that according to the monthly sales report from Allison James, state director of savings bonds in Greenville, sales of Series E, F & G bonds in Pitt County for the month of September totaled $36,843.75. Of this amount $30,843.75 was in Series E bonds; and $6,000 in Series G bonds.

The total figures for North Carolina's 100 counties were as follows: Series E bonds $2,208,694.50; Series F $147,223; Series G $374,000, totaling $2,729,917.50. The E bond sales in North Carolina for September were 10.5% higher than total sales for August.

Mr. Waldrop stated that on November 1st the Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury Department will launch a nationwide drive among industries to increase employee participation in the Payroll Savings Plan for regular and systematic purchases of Series E bonds. A bond campaign also will be held in agricultural sections among farmers.

The county chairman stated that due to the war in Korea and threats of war in other parts of the world individual citizens in the nation are being called upon to work together for promoting the well being of the nation during a critical period. Belt-Tightening Said Ahead For American People

Washington, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The man in charge of mobilizing the nation for the huge rearmament program says it will mean that Americans must work longer hours, pay still higher taxes and endure "cuts and sacrifices" in their living standards.

And while it may be possible to avoid general wage and price controls if scarce buying slacks off, W. Stuart Symington said last night "we are now getting organized x x x for such price and wage action as may be needed."

An assurance came today from a top agriculture department official that there is no need at present for price controls on farm commodities.

Ralph S. Trigg, the department's production and marketing administrator, said in an address prepared for delivery in Atlantic City, N. J., that "we most certainly do not want to put on any controls which are not absolutely necessary."

Trigg added that while stocks of nearly all farm products are now ample to take care of the nation's needs, "if the world situation got much worse and all out economic mobilization was necessary, then of course all bets would be off."

Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources board has been designated by President Truman to coordinate the mobilization program. In an interview with the Magazine U. S. News and World Report made public last night, he reiterated administration warnings against any letdown in the national effort.

"I hope and trust the American people will realize that the essential threat, which is the strength of the growing Soviet war machine and the unpredictable but clearly aggressive intention of its leaders, will in no wise be diminished by the clearing up of the situation in Korea," he said.

A hint that some cutback in automobile production may be forthcoming came from William H. Harrison, chairman of the National Production authority (NPA) and one of the top men under Symington.

After meeting yesterday with leaders of the Auto Industry, Harrison said they showed a "willingness to absorb any necessary impact on production that military needs might require."

Communist forces fled everywhere before the many geared allied juggernaut. They abandoned huge stockpiles of supplies and ammunition.

Red troops were abandoning by the hundreds.

Transport and supply problems slowed the allied advance more than the enemy. But these rapidly were being solved. Allied supply planes were landing at the Sinmairk airstrip, 46 miles from the red capital.

"No doubt we will be there in a week," Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, U. S. Eighth Army commander, told war correspondents.

The commander of the ROK First Division was more optimistic. If all goes well, said Gen. Falk Sun Yup, the south Koreans will be there in three days.

"We don't intend to stop now," Falk said. "The men are tired but they don't care as long as they

The Long Pull Ahead

Top Men In Government Plan No Let-Down After Victory In Korea; 'Normalcy' Is Still Something Far In The Future; Drastic Controls For Defense Needs

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Now that this country with its allies is winning in Korea, are you thinking: "As soon as we mop up there, we'll get back to normal here?"

It's not what the top men in government are thinking. You hear none of that talk here. And there's no evidence to support that. On the contrary.

The top men here are looking for a long pull, building up defense, maybe imposing new and even tougher government controls.

When he reached Hawaii last week President Truman made it clear he wants no let-down. He may have more to say on that in his speech tonight.

He indicated, though, that he fears some members of Congress, once the Korean shooting is over, will want to cut down defense spending.

Of course, the less the government spent on defense, the less need there'd be for government controls over things like materials, credit, buying, or wages and prices. And taxes wouldn't have to go higher.

But one of the men most responsible for planning the government's program, W. Stuart Symington, made it clear last night that he looks for more government controls, not less, and tougher ones.

Symington, chairman of the National security resources board, is one of the President's right-hand men, one of his closest advisers. The President put him in charge of the defense program, or, rather, the production program.

He was interviewed by U. S. News and World Report, a weekly magazine on his views about the future. They were made public last night. They are not soft. They hold out no hope for an early end to controls or re-arming.

He wants higher taxes and stiffer curbs on credit to reduce the danger of inflation which follows when people have plenty of money to spend and the goods on which they can spend it get scarcer.

"The government gave a good illustration of its thinking last week. It imposed controls on credit buying on Sept. 18. Even though how victory in Korea seems certain, last week the government revised that Sept. 18 controls and made them stiffer.

Mrs. J. K. Long Relates Joys Of Cross-Country Car Trip

Among the estimated 400,000 people who traveled as tourists this past summer was one Greenville citizen who, in company with three young friends, took a trip to Mexico and California.

Mrs. J. K. Long, wife of the registrar at East Carolina Teachers College, started out in early July to travel by car to Mexico and wound up by going all the way to California. She accompanied three young college girls, Miss Carolyn Dunn from Winston, Miss Mary Hill from Wilmington and Miss Josephine Hoyt from Washington.

The party left North Carolina and stopped first at points in northern Florida. Enroute they visited "The Cloisters," nationally famous hotel at Sea Island, Georgia. Crossing the northern part of Florida they touched at Tallahassee and Pensacola before striking the famous Spanish Trail which they followed to Mobile, Alabama. This route marks a famous trail made by Spanish conquerors in their early American discoveries.

The travelers had three glorious days of sightseeing and food-sampling in New Orleans, the metropolis of the South. They enjoyed the tasty Creole dishes for which Antoinette and other Louisiana restaurants are particularly famous. They made an interesting tour of the St. Louis cemetery—an unusual burying ground where corpses are placed in tombs and vaults built on top of the ground as a protection against the marshy delta land. They spent hours in the Vieux Carré and toured the magnificent campus at Tulane University.

"We were able to envisage the colorful history and charm of life as lived two centuries ago by Spanish and French residents," said Mrs. Long about New Orleans. "It was an impressive place and one with which we were thoroughly entranced."

In Baton Rouge, the State Capital, they visited the main government building which is topped by an observation tower from which they viewed the city. This building is notable as the tallest building in the South and was constructed during the regime of Huey Long, whose tomb is found in a plaza in front of the edifice.

After stopping in Houston and San Antonio, Texas, they boarded a Pan American clipper for Mexico City. Here they spent five days at the Hotel Geneva, touring the Mexican metropolis and surrounding environs.

They visited Chapultepec Castle, originally the home of Emperor Maximilian and his consort Carlotta but now a famous museum. They explored the Pyramid of the Sun, an Indian worship shrine erected to the Sun Goddess centuries ago and restored to its former splendor through excavations.

At the Shrine of Guadalupe, the tourists witnessed the sight of cripples and sick Mexicans who flock to the shrine as a source of healing. They spent one day at Kochimilco where the Floating Gardens are located.

At Cuernavaca Mrs. Long made purchases in the shopping district for which the place is famous, while at Tascos they observed the hand manufacturing of beautiful silver jewelry. Tascos is the center of the silver mining industry of Mexico.

They took a trip up a mountain trail by burro and saw native peasants at work in home and field. Their standard of living is very low and poverty, filth and disease are prevalent.

When the travelers reentered the States at Laredo, Mrs. Long had to be vaccinated for smallpox. She was without a doctor's certificate stating that she had had a recent inoculation, and it is a customs law that anyone entering the U.S. from Mexico has to be immunized.

They crossed the deserts of Arizona and New Mexico by driving at night to avoid the heat of the desert-sun. When they reached Los Angeles, they stopped over for three days and nights of sightseeing and fun. While there they visited Warner Brothers Studios, over which they expressed much disappointment; were spectators at the radio show "Welcome to Hollywood"; and saw the musical "Finian's Rainbow" with the original Broadway actors taking the leading roles. They also viewed the famous Pasadena Playhouse, the place where many stars got their first start in dramatics, and the renowned Rose Bowl. They also visited many famous missions found in this part of the state.

The most beautiful scenery during their trip of more than 9,000 miles was found along the scenic highway between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Here they drove along the crest of the Santa Lucia Mountains, with the rolling Pacific on one side and lush valleys on the other.

The most impressive single view was seen as they approached San Francisco at twilight. They caught a panoramic sight of the setting sun reflecting its golden rays across the rippling San Francisco bay.

In this part of California the weather was cool and the hotels in San Francisco had their furnaces fired. While here they enjoyed with epicurean delight the foods and restaurants for which the city is famous. They toured Chinatown, the largest Chinese settlement outside of Asia, crossed the Golden Gate bridge, the longest single span suspension bridge in the world, and visited the University of California at Berkeley.

When Mrs. Long and her friends departed from San Francisco, they headed southeast again for a trip through Yosemite National Park, found in the picturesque Sierra Nevada Mountains. They were disappointed in the famous Yosemite falls, which at this time of the year were more like a curtain of mist rather than a cascade of water. To quote Mrs. Long, she said, "Here I felt shut in by granite walls. Everywhere I looked there were towering jagged peaks on either side of us."

They left Yosemite through Tioga Pass, a narrow, winding road which

B and PW Club Active In All City Activities

During this National Business Women's Week members of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club are about to convince some people that after all it isn't a man's world.

Women who are members of the Business and Professional Women's Club in Greenville really do boost their businesses. When you want your nails manicured, need that leaking roof on your house repaired, or want to buy a new car, you're likely to refer your situation to one of Greenville's many business women. Let's take a look at the Club members, for examples. The ideal situation is claimed by Cosmetologist Mattie Hobbs at Ideal Beauty Shop. And do you remember the day you needed the heating system looked after? You possibly tried to call Mrs. Letchworth at Riddle Roofing and Heating Company. And phone her you could because Mrs. Ruth Meeks, service representative at Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company had been right on the job.

Many newcomers to our city will verify the fact that Mrs. Cora Powell, who is employed by the City of Greenville as executive secretary of the Merchants Association, is a real booster.

Several owners and co-owners are active in the Club: Mrs. Alton P. Baker, Owens Beauty Shoppe; Mrs. Beale Combs, Combs Rulane Co.; Miss Evelyn Latham, Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio; Mrs. J. H. Letchworth, Riddle Roofing and Heating Company; Mrs. A. B. Whitley, Whitley Wallpaper Co.; Miss Augusta Williams, MiLady Beauty Shop.

Do women have managerial ability? It's demonstrated by Miss Mary Belle Eldridge, office manager for Tadlock Mutual Agency; Mrs. Edna Jenkins, office manager for Probation Officer Ada Jones; Mrs. Kate Reynolds, District Manager for Avon Cosmetic Co.; Mrs. Louise Carrigan, manager of Diana Shop; and Mrs. Bertha Sutton, business manager for LeAnn Beauty Shop.

Various county and state agencies employ a large percentage of the members of the local B and P W Club. Mrs. Susie Ragdale is the retired Deputy Clerk of Pitt County Superior Court. The Pitt County Board of Education is represented in the Club by Mrs. Floyd Hendrix and Miss Alya Ray Taylor, both vocational home economics teachers and Mrs. Beecher Flanagan who is a teacher. Mrs. Sara M. Proctor is case worker for Pitt Welfare Department.

Teachers employed by the city are Mrs. Georgia Franklin and Mrs. C. J. Goodman and the high school librarian who is city employed is Mrs. Margaret Farley. Pitt County and the City of Greenville are joint employers of Librarian Irene Heeter and Assistant Librarian Doris Lee.

Production Credit of Pitt County has as its bookkeeper Miss Inez Whitman. Miss Elizabeth Deal and Miss Alice V. Wooten are bookkeepers for Pitt General Hospital.

Office Manager and Secretary Mrs. Ruel W. Tyson and assistant home demonstration agents Anne M. Parker and Helen Hicks are employees of the North Carolina Extension Service and Pitt County.

The State Highway Commission is represented in the Club by a stenographer and bookkeeper, Miss Anne Laurie Askew and Mrs. Bratha R. Abee, respectively. Miss Audrey Bottoms, Miss Mildred Huff, both interviewers, and Miss Jane Gay, stenographer, are from the local office of the Unemployment Compensation Division of North Carolina.

Two church employees are among the membership: Miss Gwen Miles, director of Religious Education at Memorial Baptist Church and Miss Novella Exum, secretary for the Christian Church.

Members of the B and P W C of ten do business with Miss Martha Lee Cowell, assistant cashier, and Mrs. F. A. Jordan and Miss Margaret Register, bookkeepers, at the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company.

When Mrs. Pattie C. Mizelle, observer for the N. C. Weather Bureau, forecasts colder weather, Mrs. Callie Williams who is clerk at Scott's Dry Cleaners finds that the cleaning business increases. And when the pipes burst, Mrs. Lela Hoell, secretary and bookkeeper at Russ Plumbing Co. stays mighty busy.

Women from many businesses and professions find fellowship in the Club, and two members who are the only persons representing their profession are E.C.T.C.'s Dean of Women, Miss Ruth White and Bap-

So long as the public rural school term is only four or five months, instead of eight or nine it is not worthwhile to look further for the greatest need of the South as regards her future development. The greatest need of southern agriculture is education.

Arthur Senior 4-H Club
The Arthur Senior 4-H Club met October 12 at Arthur High School. The business meeting was conducted by our president, Larry Lewis. The business was turning in our record books.

After the business, the program was turned over to Miss Helen Hicks and Mr. J. J. Goodman. They showed us a slide on "Boy Dates Girl." We learned many "do's and don'ts" or dating from it.

After the slide, we discussed it, and also discussed our dating problems.—Reported.

AAUW Names New Officers

At the first meeting this year of the Greenville branch of the American Association of University Women, held last Monday night in the Flanagan auditorium of the college, Mrs. Walter Krausnick was chosen as temporary acting president, Mrs. Bill Dole was elected vice-president, and Miss Emma Hooper, treasurer. Miss Alice Wooten remains as secretary.

The meeting was devoted mainly to business. The branch having lost some of its officers, by removal from the city or from other causes, the hour was given to the selection of new officers and a discussion of plans for the year.

As chairman of the International Relations Committee, Mrs. Krausnick reported on the activities of the committee. Growing out of her report was a vote to sponsor again the Peace Study project in the Eppes High School and contribute five dollars for the award to the winning papers.

It was voted also to cooperate in the observance of UN Day, Oct. 24, which is being planned by the Jaycees and supported by a number of other organizations. Mrs. Krausnick will act for the AAUW.

The branch decided to retain as its main project for the year the Foreign Fellowship Fund in which it has been much interested, and asked Miss Marguerite Austin to serve as chairman of a committee to make plans for further money-raising activities for the fund.

Mrs. D. S. Spain, Jr., state secretary of the AAUW, who will attend the state workshop at Shelby this week-end, along with the state president, Mrs. R. L. Humber, was asked to bring back a report from that workshop to the next meeting here the third Monday in November.

Future Homemakers Have Creswell Rally

The Greenville chapter of Future Homemakers of America is taking a lively interest in the rallies that have been held this year. There have been only two meetings of the high school FHA group and there is a total membership of sixty-three.

The first rally of this school year was held Sept. 29 at Bethel. This was a county rally and there were approximately three hundred girls present. Greenville had the largest number represented, with fifty-five members, one chapter mother and one advisor attending.

On Saturday, Oct. 14, a district rally was held in Creswell. There were an estimated six hundred girls present. This was an all-day rally and the business was discussed during the morning session, which included the main address, "Your Life Counts," by the Rev. Paul Nickens, pastor of the Baptist Church of Plymouth. An election was held for the first district parliamentary and historian of the FHA. Kathryn Woodard of Scotland Neck won the election and Betsy Castello was elected as her alternate. Toddy Smith presided over the meeting.

At lunch the delegates were served a delicious meal in the school, which was enjoyed by all.

A talent show was held during the afternoon with participants from many chapters taking part.

Lions Club Hear Langston Speak

Chief of Police Guy C. Langston was the featured speaker at the weekly club meeting of the Greenville Lions Club held last night at the Woman's Club.

Langston who came to Greenville to accept the position of Chief of Police, was formerly associated with the Highway Safety division of the North Carolina Motor Vehicles department.

Langston's talk dealt with the many problems that the police departments have to cope with in the performance of their duties. He stressed the vast difference between law enforcement of today and twenty years ago.

"Police departments are now looking for younger and better qualified men to become officers," he said. The main reason for this is that with the modern crime prevention methods being used now an officer must be schooled prior to becoming an efficient officer. "You can only teach an older man so much, while men between the ages of 24-35 can readily learn what they should know," the police chief pointed out.

"Then changing to a subject which most people in Greenville are in one way or another familiar with, the chief spoke on the traffic problems in Greenville. "We are working on the traffic conditions in the city and I feel that we are making steady improvements," Langston said. "When you have a traffic problem you must first find the cause, and work from there. That is what we have been doing with the various traffic bottlenecks in Greenville. We have found that on Saturdays the pedestrian traffic is the largest cause of traffic tie-ups in Greenville, and steps will be taken to eliminate this."

Touching briefly on the new record system set up by the local department at the police station, the chief told the business men present that if in the near future an employer wants to check the records of a person applying for a job, for law violations, they could do so by calling the police department.

Ellers-Caldwell Vows Spoken In Candlelight Ceremony

MRS. WILBUR ELLERS

In a quiet candlelight ceremony at the Immanuel Baptist Church in Greenville, Sunday afternoon October 1 at 2:00 p.m. Miss Peggy Ruth Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Caldwell of Wadeville, N.C., became the bride of Mr. Wilbur "Buster" Ellers, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ellers of Greenville.

The bride and groom entered the church together. The Rev. J. A. Neilson, pastor, officiated using the double ring ceremony. Preceding the service, Mrs. Howard Bodkin, organist, presented a program of wedding music which included Ave Maria by Bach-Gounod, Intermezzo by Brahms, I Love You Truly by Carrie Jacobs Bond, and To A Wild Rose by MacDowell. Miss Carolyn Eisele, soloist, Statesville, sang Because and Ah Sweet Mystery of Life. Mrs. Bodkin softly played Traumeri by Schumann as the vows were spoken before the beautifully decorated altar. Mr. Tommy Ellers, brother of the groom, sang the Lord's Prayer during the Benediction while the couple were kneeling before the altar.

Ushers were Mr. Jule Forbes, of Wilson, N.C., and Mr. William Auld, of Wilmington, N.C.

The bride was dressed in a navy suit with pink accessories and wore a corsage of natural hybrid orchids. Mrs. Caldwell, mother of the bride, was dressed in black with white accessories. Each wore corsages of yellow pompons.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ebern Allen after which the couple left for a short wedding trip.

Mrs. Ellers is a graduate of Mt. Gilead High School, Mt. Gilead, N.C., and is now a junior at East Carolina Teachers College. Mr. Ellers is a graduate of Greenville High School and is associated with Person-Garrett Tobacco Company of Greenville.

As The Reflector has said before, Eisenhower still looms as the possible compromise candidate who may bring together the liberals in the Republican party and the people of the Democratic party who are not in accord with the overall program which has been fostered by President Truman.

News Behind The News

By ROGER WARREN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Jesse Larson may be a man to keep a political eye on. Without ever having made an overt grab for power, the former boy mayor of Chickasha, Okla., has become the boss of 20,000 government employees and the master of a billion dollars a year in government spending as Administrator of the General Services Administration.

He's 46, young for a high post in government, and if his political roots were in a state with more electoral votes than Oklahoma there would probably be a lot of talk in the Willard cocktail lounge about him as future presidential material.

PARLEYED—Mr. Larson really began his empire-building career in 1947 when he took the job of Administrator of the War Assets Administration. It looked like a slippery stepping stone if ever there was one. The chief function of the job was winding up its affairs. And it was thankless, because the inevitable complaints about disposing of surplus government property were beginning to pile up to embarrassing heights. For those reasons, almost nobody else wanted what looked like a ticket to political doom. But the former artillery colonel took it and parleyed it into power.

When the WAA had dwindled in importance, plans were made to lump it with a number of other small agencies, including the Federal Works Administration, into a central administration. Mr. Larson, instead of being merged out of the government, was merged in. President Truman nominated him to be chief of the omnibus bureau—the General Services Administration.

HOUSEKEEPING—In addition to the WAA and FWA, General Services included the Public Building Administration, the Bureau of Federal Supply, the Bureau of Contract Settlement, National Archives and several subsidiary bureaus.

General Services is referred to as the "house-keeping department" of the federal government. It's that and a lot more. It runs all the public buildings, moves other bureaus from office to office at will, buys warehouses and paper clips, rents space for expanding agencies, and is in charge of the program to scatter key agencies as a precaution against atomic attacks.

It has $1,000,000,000 a year to spend. Of this, $750,000,000 is for stockpiling of critical materials. Other agencies determine what's needed, Larson's men buy it. It controls the spending of $100,000,000 a year through General Services contracts; it spends $90,000,000 a year on 3,000 items, from swivel chairs to electronic machines, used by other agencies, and $60,000,000 a year for consolidated purchases for other agencies. For example, it buys all the anti-freeze used by government cars and uses this mass purchasing power to get lowest prices.

AUTHORITY—Mr. Larson got further powers under the Defense Production Act, signed September 8. President Truman delegated to his agency responsibility for installing additional equipment in government plants and government-owned equipment in private plants; for buying metals, minerals and other raw materials, over and above stockpiling, for the purposes of the act, and for guaranteeing loans to contractors and subcontractors when necessary for the national defense. Mr. Truman also gave his "house-keeper" authority to dispose of surplus property no longer needed for defense so it looks as if some day Jesse Larson will be back where he was five years ago—in the government junk business. Curiously, he is now buying up some of the same things he sold a few years ago—aluminum for instance.

RESPECT—There are several reasons for the Oklahoman's rise to power. One is that he never appears to be grabbing for it. His attitude is that of a private in the ranks, never volunteering but always willing to accept, as a duty, any new responsibility thrust upon him. It works, perhaps because it is refreshingly different from the attitude of most Washington bureaucrats.

Another reason is that he gets along with Congress. He is a big man, over six feet, broad-shouldered and bearing a shock of jet black hair. He doesn't look like the kind of bureaucrat that can be rattled easily, and he isn't.

The records of countless hearings at which he has been questioned show that he thinks fast on his feet. He deftly avoids the little traps so many Congressmen love to set; he is never baited into saying something antagonistic. He appears to prepare himself by learning his subject fully and he treats each Congressman with respect and without servility. As a consequence, he is treated with respect and usually gets what he wants.

ARMY—Mr. Larson was born at Mill Creek, Indian Territory, on June 22, 1904. He attended the University of Oklahoma but left before graduation to take care of the family's ranching and dairy business when his father became ill. He continued the study of law privately and was later admitted to the bar. In 1929, then 25, he was elected mayor of Chickasha. As a member of the National Guard, he was inducted into the federal army shortly before Pearl Harbor, rose to lieutenant colonel, and commanded the 160th Field Artillery Battalion in the landings in Sicily and at Salerno. He was wounded at the crossing of the Volturno and was returned to the United States for recovery and assignment to the Artillery School at Fort Sill, where he was made a full colonel. The Army loaned him to the WAA as an attorney, and he was assistant general administrator when he was given the seemingly dead-end job of Administrator in 1947.

CORVALLIS, OREGON, GAZETTE TIMES: "The administration's efforts in behalf of the CVA are supposed to be temporarily halted because of the war. Oh Well—

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If you've been reading this column for any length of time you know that the one organization I plug hardest is Alcoholics Anonymous, the group which has done most to cure chronic alcoholics. Every time I write about AA, I give the history of my experience with the group, with the hope that I have picked up a few new readers who haven't heard it. Almost two years ago when I was a student at the University of North Carolina I was taking a course in public speaking. One day a guest of the class was James Street, the famous author of such best sellers as "Tap Roots," "The Guntlet," and "In My Father's House." Street, himself a member of AA, told the class about the group. Before he found AA, he wandered from one newspaper job to another, between drunks. When he "went dry," as the AA's put it, he was able to write books, which had always been his real ambition.

By definition, you might say that AA is a group of ex-alcoholics banded together for the purpose of licking their drinking problem, and helping others do it. The group meets once a week and will make every effort to help a fellow alcoholic get and stay sober, provided the alcoholic wants help. To me, the main strength of AA can be described by saying: (1) when an alcoholic finds AA, he has found a group that understands his problem as no non-alcoholic can. Every member of that group has been in the same boat, and (2) he has a new mission in life: going sober, and helping others in his same condition go sober.

Following my association with Street, I wrote three columns about AA. Shortly thereafter, I attended a meeting of AA in New York with Greenville AA's. At that time there was no group in Greenville, but several Greenville people had joined the New Bern group and summer before last they attended meetings there every Thursday night. Trips to New Bern continued until December, when AA was organized in Greenville. The Greenville group meets every Tuesday in the AA club room over Drum's Hatchery on West Fifth Street. Recently the Greenville club has met with the Tarboro group on several occasions. The real Daddy of AA in Greenville is of course the New Bern group. Saturday, October 21st, the New Bern group will celebrate its second anniversary, and the public is invited to the event. The banquet celebration will be held at the Centenary Methodist Church at seven o'clock. Tickets can be obtained for $2.00 by writing AA, Box 312, New Bern.

The three featured speakers will be Virginia T., Secretary of the Alcoholics Foundation in New York, John P. L. of Philadelphia, and S. K. Proctor, Executive Director of the N. C. State Alcoholics Rehabilitation Program. The banquet is limited to 300 plates, so if you're interested in the meeting, you should write immediately for a ticket. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, N. C.

DIVERSIFIED—Democrats attending the eighth district rally at Lexington were newly impressed with the diversity in that sprawling area represented in the congress by Charles B. Deane. The variety includes physical and economic geography, with striking contrast in political affiliation of its citizens. Geographically the district runs from the southeast corner of Scotland county, ninety miles from the Atlantic ocean, to the northeastern corner of Wilkes, within twenty miles of Tennessee and Virginia. The district is 200 miles long, includes coastal plains, piedmont and mountain lands. Economically, it has a every type of manufacturing, farming and commerce known to the state. No finer peaches can be produced anywhere than those coming out of the sandhills orchards of Montgomery and Richmond counties; and the best apples are gathered from the mountain orchards of Wilkes.

UNUSUAL—There are other unusual features about this eighth district. Until two years ago it did not have a daily newspaper published within its boundaries, and there is but one now—The Lexington Dispatch. Two high-way commissioners reside in the eighth congressional district—George Coble of the sixth division and Otis Poole of the seventh—and both were at the rally. So was Lieutenant Governor H. P. Taylor, also a resident of the district.

LOYAL—Congressman Deane paid tribute to the loyalty of eighth district Democrats, and several pieces of evidence supported him. The meeting at Lexington was the longest of the five held to date, running well above two hours. But the audience showed no restlessness or desire to leave. This was in contrast with most of the others, especially the tenth district meeting at Morganton where more than half the crowd left before adjournment. W. E. Horner, publisher, who ran against Deane in the primary, set off the loyalty note when he pledged complete support for the entire ticket. He was joined in that appeal by Senator Frank Graham who was defeated in the primary this year, and former Senator William Umstead, who lost out two years ago.

HANDBOOK—The Democratic Handbook, prepared by state headquarters to aid local party leaders in campaigns against Republicans, has several amusing errors. It was gotten up, which accounts for some of the mistakes. In the first place the North Carolina flag adorning the front cover is printed backwards—the letters NC and the dates running toward the staff instead of from it.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TEACHERS SEEING THE LIGHT (Henderson Daily Dispatch) In an address at the classroom teachers banquet in Goldsboro the other evening, Dr. James Millar, director of the Good Citizenship Foundation of Portland, Oregon, advised those in his audience to "fight Federal aid to education as a corrupting influence on the American way of life." For that the believers in education without government meddling can thank God and take courage. It is the first utterance of the kind directly from an educator that has come to our notice. Assuming that the teachers are seeing the light on this question, there is room for hope. The speaker had observed firsthand results of the state-church school coalition in England, Germany and Italy. His conclusion was that America should brace itself firmly against any such alignment here. Those who have higher regard for the American educational system than merely what they can profit from it personally should have no trouble in discerning the peril in Federal aid. It would ultimately bring about prostitution of the schools to political manipulation. There is no such thing as Federal aid—to anything—without Federal meddling, if not straight out control. It is that way in road building, in agriculture, in health, relief and hospitalization. It could not be otherwise as to the schools. Dr. Miller told the teachers that "in this most crucial period, Americans must recover their self-reliance, self-control, self-respect and self-sacrifice," and challenged them to work to that end. Because they have surrendered, so much already to handouts, subsidies and sustenance, Americans are witnessing today the gradual encroachment of centralized dictation and regulation in many phases of their everyday living. To that extent—and in ever-increasing degree—they are giving up their individual liberty, and are in the process of selling their birthright for a mess of pottage. The socialist planners know whereunto they have set their hands and have no thought of turning back until and unless they are literally thrown back upon their ears by a determined and vehement revulsion of popular sentiment and conviction. It can only be hoped that Dr. Miller spoke to a sympathetic audience that received his warnings and admonitions in good faith. Unless the school teachers are willing and able to see through this poison bait being handed to them by a scheming group of power-thirsty bureaucrats, the rising generation may arrive at maturity with a distorted conception of what democracy is and what its benefits are to citizens generally.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The number of businesses in the United States has grown phenomenally, but the growth has not been entirely due to economic expansion. Part of the increase in numbers has resulted from a subdividing process under tax and labor pressures.

There was a total of 3,958,200 operating businesses in March this year, according to the Department of Commerce's latest count. This compares with 2,156,450 in 1940.

The increase in number has been far faster than the increase in population. In the last 10 years the population increased 15 per cent; the number of businesses increased 84 per cent.

There is no way to tell how many of these new businesses are a result of the general economic expansion and how many are a result of the subdividing process, but the latter group is probably sizable.

This subdividing process is rarely the splitting up of larger businesses. More often it is the creation of new businesses, instead of using the older methods of expansion.

In the old days when a firm was ready to enter a new territory, it established a branch. Today it is much more likely to persuade someone else to start a franchised agency. The branch would not count as a single business; the agency would. Many of the larger companies have created scores of new business firms in this way. Large appliance manufacturers have dozens of affiliates which were created to act as distributors. These, in turn, have fostered the formation of other firms to act as franchised retailers.

PAYROLL TAXES LABOR The basic reasons for this amoeba-like increase in the business population are the facts that payrolls are taxed and that it is increasingly expensive to deal with labor.

A corporation pays a 1 1/2 per cent tax on its payroll for social security; often there are state taxes in addition. Dealing with labor often requires expensive negotiators, check-offs, pensions and welfare benefits, in addition to the actual outlays involved, often require accountants, book-keepers and clerical help. When a company's business involves warehousing and selling, as well as manufacturing, and when its activities extend into the realms of many unions and many regions, the cost of merely maintaining labor relations, not including pay increases, can become a heavy burden.

But when others can be induced to set up new businesses to carry out certain functions and, in doing so, assume the responsibilities of payroll taxes and dealing with labor, the original company can save money and escape troubles. And inducing others to set up agency companies often eliminates the need of raising additional capital.

SERVICES BY CONTRACT, NOT BY EMPLOYEES This trend to avoid the heavier responsibilities of employees has manifested itself in other ways.

Companies hire window cleaning, delivery, protection and many other services instead of hiring employees to perform them. Building owners contract with management companies; sales companies hire autos and drivers instead of buying cars and employing men.

It may profit established companies to explore the possibilities of dropping some services and having them done by contract; of disbanding part of their sales organization and make a contract with a sales company; or of turning over other functions to specialists or new firms created for the purpose.

Even though the cash savings are small, life savings in headaches may be great. TV SET CHANGES AFFECT APPROVALS In the hullabaloo about the introduction of color television, one important fact should not be overlooked: the underwriters' approval is automatically voided when a signal change is made in a receiving set. This may involve set owners, retailers and service companies in insurance and local laws. Changes may also void service contracts and manufacturers' warranties.

POWER OF DOLLAR ESTIMATED AT 66.7c If the dollar had a buying power of 100 cents in consumers' goods in January, 1939, it had a buying power of only 66.7 cents in August, 1950, according to calculations by the National Industrial Conference Board. Moderate income families are paying $1.65 for what a dollar would have bought in 1939. Food prices have risen so sharply that it costs 70 cents for what 33 cents would have bought then.

NEW AND HOT HOLDER: For people who knock over highballs when dealing cards, there's a new glass holder that can be attached to the edge of card tables. It is made of copper-colored plastic on a core of steel, shaped like a coil spring. (It's by Kelcey Products, 1637 McDonald Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.)

THERMOMETER: A new thermometer for readings from minus 30 to plus 120 degrees comes in a light-eight, non-corroding case. It can be used in the case when there is danger of breaking, or removed for other uses. A spring grip prevents it from accidentally slipping from the case. (It's called a Thermicator, by Weston Electric Instrument Corp., 614 Frelinghuysen Ave., Newark 5, N. J.)

COCKTAIL: Appropriate garnish is being packed in a jar which is actually part of a bottle containing mixed cocktails. Mixes include Manhattans, martinis, old fashioned and Gibsons, each with its appropriate garnish. (They are being introduced by Cross and Blackell Co., Baltimore, Md.)

TRAY: A tray with depressions for holding various foods without dishes is being molded of boil-proof plastic in bright colors by International Molded Plastics, Inc., Cleveland 9, Ohio. It is suggested for TV snacks, buffet suppers, and meals for youngsters and the sick.

Hal Boyle's Column

Kumchon, North Korea.—(AP) —This is a city, the largest yet taken by the Americans in Red Korea, to which Communism brought nothing but destruction and an obelisk.

The obelisk, a four-sided, five-tiered concrete tower, looms starkly amid the ruins of Kumchon. Its inscriptions extol long life for Stalin, the Soviet army, North Korea's Red leader Kim Il Sung and the Communist party.

Cavalry foot troopers commanded by Lt. Col. Paul Clifford, Franklin, N.H., entered the battered and broken city early Saturday.

The Reds must have left shortly before. In several houses there were half-eaten bowls of rice and bunches of freshly picked vegetables. One of the few prisoners taken said a reinforced battalion had withdrawn late Friday night. Mud huts lie powdered into dust by Allied bombs. Their roofs of galvanized iron glint dully on the ground.

There was only a handful of civilians in the ruined city. Some said the retreating Red army had warned the population—estimated at 25,000—that the Americans would assault their women, burn their homes and steal their food.

One woman who said she was the wife of a Red soldier told interrogators that the Communists threatened to kill Kumchon's residents if they didn't flee north with the Red army.

The eerie absence of civilians made it impossible to learn the pattern of life under the Communists.

But there are a multitude of indications that the Reds had been here. Pictures of Stalin and Kim Il Sung show everywhere. There are many copies of Russian language magazines and newspapers, although it is doubtful if many Koreans read Russian. There are stocks of Russian-made military equipment. There are Communist posters galore in the Russian and Korean languages.

... and there is the obelisk, dominating the city. In the police station are files of Korean language newspapers, with pictures purporting to show atrocities by the South Koreans against the Reds.

Kumchon's ravine yards are a jungle of twisted iron and splintered wood. The remains of burned and charred freight cars stand out like ribs of a skeleton.

There is no indication that life under the Reds had been any better than in South Korea. There are no new buildings. The houses are the same poor mud and lath affairs one finds in the south. There are no new roads. An air of poverty hangs over the place, age-old dilapidation which the new destruction of war and bombs cannot conceal.

Prowling Americans found nothing of souvenir value. But two South Koreans did. They proudly lugged a hamper of smelly dried fish down the main street—the spoils of war.

Communist Kumchon is a prize hardly worth the winning.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — When you want a ton of coal you call up the coal dealer. Suppose you had to order half a million tons.

In the first place, your dealer wouldn't have half a million tons on hand. And if he did have it, where would you put it? And suppose you were using the taxpayers' money to buy the coal? What would the other dealers in the area think about not getting a part of the business?

This is one of the headaches Commissioner Clifton E. Mack of the Federal Supply Service has to handle. Not only coal, but all supplies needed by the government, must be bought by free competitive bidding, giving little and big business an equal chance. Supplies therefor are bought in lots so the little man can get his share.

The Federal Supply Service has the additional necessity of accounting for every cent it spends. Every single thing the service buys has to be accounted for to Congress.

Geography is another important factor in government buying. You want a refrigerator. You buy it locally and it is delivered to your house. The government wants refrigerators for its houses, flung all the way from Oklahoma to Western Germany. Here transportation costs become an important consideration. Climatic conditions also become a factor. For example, film shipped to the Panama Canal Zone must be packaged differently from the film that is sent to Oregon.

The government also has the intricate business of testing and inspecting goods it purchases. You buy a knife to use in your kitchen. You assume it is as represented. The government buys knives for its kitchens, too, but it assumes nothing. It writes a specification for what it wants, tests the sample which is submitted and inspects the delivered product before it pays the bill.

Possible Easing Of Export Curbs On Cotton Seen

Washington, Oct. 17—(AP)—The cotton industry had a promise from the government today that it would ease its restrictions on exports of cotton later if the supply situation permits.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, taking notice of criticism from southern lawmakers and cotton growers, stood firm, however, on a department order limiting exports to 2,000,000 bales for the eight-month period ending next March 31.

Critics contended the action was depressing cotton prices at a time when growers were beginning to market this year's unusually short crop.

The restriction order was necessary, Brannan said in a statement, to protect the country against a dangerous shortage of cotton and to prevent price controls.

The secretary said he wanted to export all the cotton that can safely be shipped out during the year without resulting shortages at home. He emphasized that the 2,000,000 export quota was an "interim" allocation, subject to any increases which might be warranted later.

Brannan said the government needs to know more about the quality of this year's crop, farmers' planting plans for next year and developments in the domestic market before it can say just how much more cotton can be spared for overseas buyers.

The secretary indicated that the department will not wait until March 31 before making upward adjustments in export quotas, hinting that increases will be allowed much sooner than that if the situation permits.

The United States shipped nearly 6,000,000 bales during the 1949-50 marketing season.

It requires 50,000 horse power to provide the right amount of force for the last test supersonic wind tunnel for testing aircraft.

Resignation Of Treasurer Is Accepted Today

Greensboro, Oct. 17—(AP)—The Guilford County commissioners met today to formally accept the resignation of County Treasurer W. Clarence Johnson. Johnson submitted his resignation at a special meeting yesterday after his accounts showed a $7,500 shortage.

The shortage was first made public last Thursday following an audit of the county books. Johnson repaid the full amount Friday morning.

James A. Doggett, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, said Johnson's resignation would be accepted and no further action would be taken by the board since Johnson had already made up the deficit in full.

In a letter to the board, Johnson said he used the money—tax pre-payments—for an emergency situation that had gotten beyond his control.

Floats Featured In Homecoming Day Parade

Becky Holcomb of Grifton rode in the Homecoming Day parade staged by the Alumni Association of East Carolina Teachers College last Saturday as 'Miss Buccaneer of 1950-1951.' Miss Holcomb is a majorette with the college band at East Carolina and an active participant in a number of other campus organizations and activities. The float shown above was entered in the parade in honor of the East Carolina Pirate football squad, who Saturday night defeated Western Carolina Teachers College 36-6 in a game attended by several thousand spectators.

The float displaying the white bell (shown above) was entered in the Homecoming Day parade of East Carolina Teachers College last Saturday afternoon to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the department of business education of the college. A hundred feet of chicken wire, 6,000 white paper napkins, and ten rolls of blue crepe paper were used in the making of the attractive display. Allen Berman of Portsmouth, Va., and Jane Albrinton of Snow Hill head the Commerce club and the Pi Omega Pi fraternity at the college, respectively, student members of which made the float. Claude Altman of Dunn and Robert Chick of Rocky Mount were co-chairmen of the committee in charge of construction and decoration.

Witchdoctors In Africa Persist

Johannesburg—(AP)—Witchdoctors still operate in South Africa. Father F. Schimiek, of the Mariannhill Mission, Natal, in a book he is preparing, describes the initiation of a woman witch doctor witnessed from a hidden position by a doctor and a priest in Natal.

With howling voice and a mad dance in front of a fire mysterious ceremonies were performed on the pupil. A goat was slaughtered and the gall bladder was fastened to her hair. A live fowl was placed on the pupil's head. Neither the wings nor the feet were tied, but the fowl remained on her head as if mesmerized.

At midnight a piercing screaming began, all the fires were extinguished. The ceremonies continued until dawn.

The hold of the witch doctors lies largely in the spell called "Iquondo." If a man wants his wife to remain faithful while he is away, he has an iquondo placed on her. This does not affect the woman, but is supposed to cause any man who has relations with her to sicken and die.

A stupefying drug called "malme," is supposed to break the conscious will of victims without impairing other faculties.

As an anaesthetic, the witchdoctors use the tuber of the Udukwa plant. Using this drug, Zulu medicine men have performed intricate operations.

Eggs are rich in vitamin A, making them a good body-builder.

Army's Cadets Still At Top Of National Grid Rankings

Victory Over Michigan Strengthens Position; Notre Dame's Victory Over Tulane Fails To Impress, Sinking To Eleventh Place In Poll

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Army's all-conquering cadets cling to their position as the nation's No. 1 college football team today. At the same time, once-invincible Notre Dame dropped out of the top ten for the first time in nearly a decade.

Chopping down a strong Michigan eleven last Saturday, 27-6, for their third straight triumph, the unbeaten West Pointers strengthened their first place grip gained a week ago in the Associated Press poll.

Coches Earl Blak's Black Knights, unbeaten in their last 23 starts, drew a total of 124 first place ballots among the 275 votes cast by sports writers and sportscasters.

Notre Dame's Fighting Irish, who last week saw their 36-game non-losing streak snapped by Purdue, again failed to impress despite their 13-0 victory over Tulane. That showing helped push the Irish from 10th to 11th place.

Notre Dame has finished no lower than ninth since 1941 and almost always has been high up in the running during the season. For the first time in years not a single voter gave Notre Dame a first place ballot. The best the Irish got was third.

Army received a total of 5,837 points to lead a field that included 47 colleges. Oklahoma wrestled second place from Southern Methodist, moving up one notch on the strength of its 14-13 victory over tough Texas. It was the Sooners' 24th consecutive victory. The air-minded Mustangs, in the runner up role a week ago, slipped into third place despite their 56-0 cakewalk over Oklahoma A and M.

The big three were followed by: 4-Kentucky, 5-California, 6-Stanford, 7-Texas, 8-Maryland, 9-Ohio State 10-Washington.

Notre Dame was not the only team to fall out of the first ten. Its conqueror, Purdue, almost dropped out of sight, outsparring from a strong ninth to a nearly extinct 33rd. The Hoosiers received a dose of their own upset medicine when they bowed to unheralded Miami University of Florida, 20-14.

Oklahoma grabbed 47 first place votes and a total of 2,815 points to lose out the Mustangs by three points although the Southwesterners accumulated 63 No. 1 ballots.

Kentucky and California also went over the 1,000 mark with 1,191 and 1,200 points, respectively. The Wildcats drew nine first place nominations to one for the golden Bears from the Pacific Coast.

Miami, coached by Andy Gustafson, received staunch support to vault from 37th spot to 14th place with 170 points. The Hurricanes received 14 first place ballots. Other teams to gain No. 1 recognition included Maryland (5), Washington (4), Clemson (4), Cornell (2) and Wake Forest (1).

New York Oct. 17.—(AP)—Clemson College is the only major college football team unscathed on this season, after Cincinnati pushed over a touchdown against Kentucky last week.

Among the smaller schools, Denison of Granville, Ohio, has won three games without permitting an opponent to score.

Clemson has beaten Presbyterian, 35-0, Missouri, 24-0, and North Carolina State, 27-0.

Denison has defeated Washington and Jefferson 30-0, Otterbein, 26-0, and Wooster, 46-0.

Farley Says Phantoms Played Best Thus Far

Few Injuries For Buccaneer Crew

East Carolina's regulars received a well-deserved rest yesterday after their stirring 36-6 conference win over Western Carolina here Saturday night.

Three phases of work were stressed in yesterday's light workouts, as the Pirates began drills for their all-important game with Guilford at Greensboro Friday night.

Blocking assignments on the posts, pass defense and offense, and punting were featured in the practice.

Coches Dole's gridders came out of the Western Carolina scrap with only a few minor injuries.

Guard George Graybill received a cut over the lip in Saturday's fracas that required stitches, but the big lineman is expected to be in the lineup Friday night.

Quarterback Roger Thrift also missed yesterday's workouts because of minor injuries but the ace pass-slinger will be ready to go against the Quakers.

Sub Quarterback Sandy Siler took over the pitching chores in yesterday's workout, tossing to Ends Dwight Shoe, Frank Maennle, and Ott Alford.

Defensive standout Bobby Hodges also received some attention at an offensive flank spot.

The Pirates will get down to heavy work this afternoon.

This Friday night's scrap between the Quakers and Pirates should catch the eyes of all the rest of the conference because both teams are currently tied for third place in the standings, and the winner will definitely be a championship contender along with Appalachian and Elon.

Heart-Breaking Loss To Elizabeth City Best Game Of Season For Greenville Opines Coach; Revises Lineup

"We played our best game thus far this season," stated Coach Bo Farley today, after reviewing the Phantoms' heart-breaking, 7-0 loss to conference-leading Elizabeth City last Friday night.

"We played a good defensive game against the Yellow Jackets," continued the Phantom mentor, "but we just couldn't get started with offense."

"Our fumble in the first quarter, and that fifteen-yard penalty against us certainly was the turning point of the game, because we played them on even terms throughout the rest of the tilt," concluded Farley.

With last Friday's rough game behind them, the Greenville Phantoms began long workouts for their traditional rivalry game with the Kingston Red Devils here Friday night in the college stadium.

Coches Farley drilled his charges to sundown yesterday in preparation for their game against the North-eastern defending champs.

Several changes were seen in the Phantom lineup in yesterday's long practice due to injuries suffered against Elizabeth City.

Quarterback Sidney Briley, who turned in a remarkable game against the Jackets after being switched to fullback, was again running in the line-plunging slot, and looked mighty good.

Eddie Farley, a sub for Briley all year at the QB spot, was moved up to a starting role yesterday.

Leon Moore, the Phantoms' regular fullback, received a badly bruised shoulder in Friday's clash, and may be sidelined for this week's game.

Also on the injured list is Linebacker Billy Wooten, who turned in a bang-up game on defense against the Jackets. Wooten sustained a broken finger, and may not be counted on for action against Kingston.

Work on offensive plays and the adding of new plays were stressed in yesterday's Phantom practice, topped off by an hour-long scrimmage. In brushing up on offense, Coach Farley sought to get more punch in paydirt territory.

Pirates Second Only To Lenoir Rhyne In Scoring

East Carolina's Pirates are one of the scoringest teams in the North State football circles.

Coches Bill Dole's eleven is second only to their conference brother, Lenoir-Rhyne, which rolled to a 65-0 triumph over High Point Saturday to increase their margin over the Pirates by 21 points, with a total of 147 points.

Al-mindred East Carolina, led by Quarterback Roger Thrift, has scored 126 points in five games this season, for an impressive average of 25.2 points per game.

Leading the Pirates scoring are Ends Frank Maennle and Dwight Shoe, who are runner-ups in the state's total scoring with 24 points apiece.

Shoe, 5'11" flankman from Salisbury, has scored one touchdown in four of the five games played by the Pirates, while Maennle, the rawboned 6'3" wingman from Kearney, N.J., has scored in every game since being switched to the offensive end position.

Three other Pirate scorers rank high among the state's point-getters. Halfback Jack Britt and Fullback Tom Swain, playing their first year under the Purple and Gold colors, have crossed the double chalk line three times for eighteen points.

Guard Buck Hardee, the Pirate lineman with the educated toe, has gained his tie with Britt and Swain the hard way. Hardee has kicked true on twelve out of eighteen placement tries, and has two consecutive field goals without a miss, bringing his total to eighteen points.

Pint-sized Billy Smith has gone all the way twice from his safety position to tally two scores. Smith ran back a pass interception for 32 yards, and went down the sidelines for 58 yards Saturday night against Western Carolina on a punt return.

Johnny Smith, safety man Billy's brother, has scored once, along with Halfback Jack "Rabbit" Benzie.

Four Pennants With Four New Mentors

Columbus, O.—(AP)—The 1950 Little World Series triumph of the Columbus Red Birds of the American Association over Baltimore was the fourth for the Red Birds in the last ten years. It also was the fourth for President Al Banister of the Red Birds, and all four were won under different managers.

Burt Shotton led the Birds in 1941, Eddie Dyer was at the helm of the 1942 winners, and Nick Cully led the team to its victory in 1943. Montreal was the 1941 loser, while Syracuse absorbed both the 1942 and 1943 defeats.

Terrific, teeth-jarring tackles were made all over the field by such defensive stalwarts as Guards Al Auerback, Don McKenzie, and Bobby Hodges, and Tackles Buck Hardee, Wally Robinson, and End Cecil Winslow.

And the superb downfield blocking was even more perfect and just as vicious.

Time and time again, Guards Jesse Aldridge, George Graybill, and Leon Ellis, would pull out, along with Tackles Bill McDonald and Dennis Smith, to blast the way downfield for long gains by the Buccaneer backfield.

East Carolina's ground attack also comes in for high praise in Saturday night's tilt.

For the first time this year, the ground force came up almost to par with Roger Thrift's dazzling game.

Little Johnny Smith, the hustling 162 pound line buster from Portsmouth, Va., was largely responsible for the Pirates' running success. Smith, starting his first game this season from the offensive fullback spot, carried 12 times for a total of 64 yards, an average of 5.6 per try, before having to leave the ball because a lame leg early in the third quarter.

Truly, it was almost a perfect game for the Pirates, before a contented crowd, and an all-important win which advanced them into a third place tie with Guilford, the team they meet this Friday night at Greensboro.

Dole Says Team Played 'Best Game' For Homecoming Event

Some 6,500 Homecoming fans were away singing East Carolina's praises after the Pirates 36-6 top-sides victory over the North State's defending champs, West Carolina, here Saturday night.

"We played our best game for Homecoming," commented Coach Bill Dole, as the East Carolina grid master praised the excellent play of his Pirates.

Dole went on to say, "The fellows blocked and tackled like they were hungry. If they can keep their eagerness for contact, we will beat other folks along the way, but if they become satisfied and complacent, and lose the sight of the fact that every play starts with a block, and with a tackle, it will be a poor season, indeed."

"It would be hard for me to single out any individual star in the game for everyone on both the offensive and defensive units turned in an outstanding performance," concluded Dole.

The East Carolina pigskin czar was so-so-right!

Terrific, teeth-jarring tackles were made all over the field by such defensive stalwarts as Guards Al Auerback, Don McKenzie, and Bobby Hodges, and Tackles Buck Hardee, Wally Robinson, and End Cecil Winslow.

Bud Wilkinson Is A Poor Prophet

Norman, Okla., Oct. 17.—(AP)—As a football coach, the University of Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson ranks as one of the best. As a pigskin prophet, handsome Bud can go to the foot of the class.

"We'll be lucky to win one of our first three games," Wilkinson told newsmen just before the season started. "If a miracle happens, we might win two of them. But we couldn't possibly win all three."

Perhaps a miracle happened. Or two of them. At any rate, the Sooners have turned back Boston College, Texas A and M and Texas, the last two by coming from behind in the closing minutes.

By so doing, the Sugar Bowl champions stretched college football's longest current winning streak to 24 games and stamped themselves as one of the top three teams in the nation. They also made a colossal fiber out of their boss.

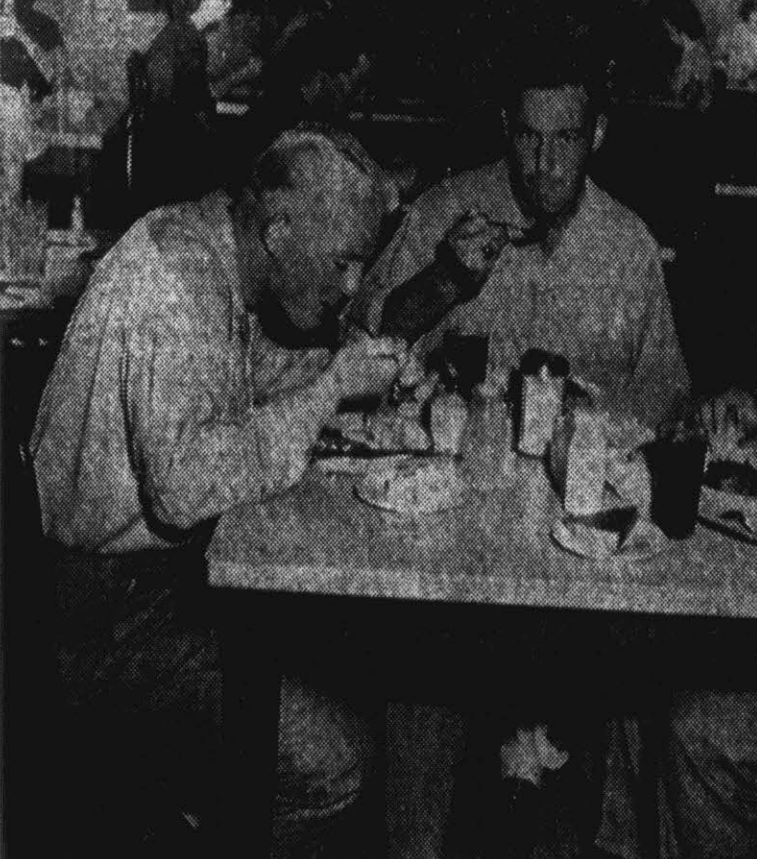

How does Oklahoma—which lost ten of last year's offensive regulars—keep on winning? Some say it's due to the fine coaching. Wilkinson will tell you it's team spirit—a "tremendous will to win."

Virginia Tech's Coach Resigns

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Robert C. (Bob) McNeish has resigned as head football coach at Virginia Tech. His successor, freshman mentor Al Learned, took over McNeish's duties today and began readying the Gobblers for Saturday's homecoming tussle here with William and Mary.

So far this year, McNeish's team has been beaten by the Quantico Marines, 71-21; the University of Virginia, 45-6, and by George Washington, 42-7.

DOUBLE WEDDING

Chapter 27

"Put a flower in your hair and a smile on your lips and let's go dancing," Grant had said to Stephanie over the phone, as he had long ago the first time he had asked her for a date.

As on that long-ago night, Stephanie did as he had asked. But as on that other time too, her heart was not smiling, if her lips were. Nor did she believe that Grant would be able to make it smile again as he had before.

This was not the first time Grant had phoned, but it was the first time Stephanie had accepted his invitation.

She might as well go dancing with him tonight and tell him that.

"I thought the Rainbow Room would be nice," Grant said. They had gone there together so often during that one brief month of their marriage. But had he forgotten that she and Sandy had gone there together too? That it had been at the Rainbow Room the three of them had met?

"Unless you'd rather go somewhere else," Grant added.

Stephanie said no, the Rainbow Room would be very nice.

It did not matter a great deal where they went.

"Shall we dance?" Grant asked.

Stephanie let him take her in his arms. It was as if he were offering her again the old serenity to take the place of the tumult that just the thought of Sandy wrought in her heart.

Grant said, his eyes looking down into hers. "You're beautiful tonight, Stephanie, in the pretty white dress. I suppose Sandy would say you looked like an Ice Princess. Or was that what he called you?"

"Ice Queen," Stephanie corrected.

"It was Sandy's way of poking fun at me for being so cool and calm. He knew it was only pretense. This ice. I am not that way underneath."

"Aren't you?" Grant asked. But he did not wait for an answer.

"Then they were of Sandy, your thoughts." That was not a question that had to be answered, either.

"I guess they've always been—and always will," Stephanie admitted.

"Even during that one month?"

"Even during that." This was not the way she had thought she would tell him. On a dance floor, his arm holding her closely, his face so near that she must see the deep hurt in his kind eyes. Yet it was as good a place, as good a way as any. She said, "You know that, Grant. You knew it all the time. During that month, too."

He did not answer for a moment. His look held hers, as if searching for a different answer.

"The ghost of your first love," he said. There was a grim note in his voice, no smile on his mouth. "Yes, I guess it was always there, Stephanie. Before Sandy Vaughn returned from the grave."

Grant had hoped that that would kill it. He had meant it when he said he was glad Sandy Vaughn was alive. He had been unable to kill a dead man, to rid Stephanie's heart of old memories. But he had not succeeded in doing that to the live one, either.

He had known it all along. For certain that night when he had taken Stephanie home and had kissed her the night that Sandy had returned to his grave again.

Leaning across the table Grant said, "All right, darling. I can take it. So please get that look of pity off your pretty face and smile again." No man wanted pity. Sandy had not wanted it; nor Grant.

"Of course you can." Her smile was genuine. An immense relief made it so. "Some day, Grant, you'll meet another girl, and she will give you all of her love, not just a splintered part. You deserve much more than that, Grant. I want you to have much more. I know you will."

"I'm not so sure." His answering smile was a bit twisted, with the irony Sandy might have summoned. Like Sandy, Grant Hale was a good sport, even when it came to losing. Perhaps, like Sandy again, he did want more than half-measures.

"Maybe there'll be a girl, maybe there won't. But as I said before, you're not to bother your head about that. The main issue now is when are you and Sandy going to get together again."

Since that night when he had walked out she had not heard one

A batter flavored with mashed bananas and flecked with nuts bakes into delicious cake-like cookies which make convenient desserts for the small family.

You'll find that popular combination, banana-and-nut, a good two-ways for flavoring cookie batters. Mellow and somewhat chewy, banana-nut bars provide sweet dessert magic for the menu, and offer entertainment insurance for those unexpected guests.

With enriched flour, bananas and nuts as the main ingredients, you can count on these delicious cookies for good nutrition, too. Score them high for essential B-vitamins, iron and other minerals needed in the daily food plan.

The method used to make banana bars is standard for cakes. Spread batter in an 8x13 inch greased pan, or if you prefer, drop by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet to make banana drop cookies. These bake in just 12 to 15 minutes.

When the baked bars or drop cookies have cooled, you might like to ice them with confectioners' sugar icing.

BANANA BARS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar

2 eggs
1 cup mashed bananas (5 medium)
1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 cup chopped nuts
Sugar icing

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with mashed bananas. Add flavoring, extracts and nuts. Mix well.

Spread batter in greased pan, 8x13 inches. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 30 minutes. While still warm frost with thin confectioners' sugar icing. When cool, cut in bars or squares. Makes 32 bars, 1x4 inches.

word from Sandy. Christmas had come and gone; a New Year had been ushered in. Spring was beckoning to any who would look and listen.

"Haven't you heard from him? Don't you know where he is?" She shook her head once more. "But he can't do that!"

"But he has." Her grave eyes met Grant's again. "You forget. He said he no longer loved me. He said he was fed up, finished."

"But he didn't mean a word of it. Surely that little scene he witnessed wouldn't make him stay away. Not for good. Not when he finds, as he will, that there was nothing to it."

"See here," Grant leaned closer, striking the table softly with a fist. "I'll go to him, tell him, explain. Not only about that. But that I never took you away from him. Not even that other time when you thought he was dead."

"It wouldn't do any good," she said. It had been tried. Her mother had told her that she had tried it, after confessing the part she had played in making Sandy walk out. (To be continued.)

Same Tax Policy For Servicemen

The local office of the state Department of Revenue advises the same policy be followed with reference to state income taxes due by members of the armed forces of the United States that was in force and effect during World War II.

The following procedure is outlined:

- (1) Grant an extension to any member of the armed forces for filing his return and payment of his state income taxes wherein the return becomes due subsequent to his entry into any branch of the services; said extension to run for a period of six months subsequent to his discharge from service.
- (2) That in the event any member of the armed forces who would be entitled to such extension fails to apply for the same prior to or during his service in the armed forces, such oversight shall be treated as excusable negligence and such member shall be entitled to the same privileges as if he had made application in apt time.
- (3) That no penalty shall attach nor shall interest accrue on state income taxes due by any member of the armed services to whom this is applicable.

Hurricane Sweeps Over Cuba; Is Florida-Bound

Miami, Fla., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A hurricane that swept across central Cuba headed today toward the western Bahamas and south Florida.

The center of the storm, which crossed Cuba intact, was expected to strike the lower Florida Straits near or a short distance off the lower Florida east coast late this afternoon or early tonight.

At 4:30 a.m. (EST), the hurricane was 250 miles south southeast of Miami and was curving in northwesterly direction at about 14 miles an hour.

The storm lost some of its fury as it thrashed across Cuba, but the Weather Bureau here said it probably would regain its full force over water.

Skeleton Staff At Work In South Australia

Sydney.—(AP)—A party from Melbourne University has found ancient burial grounds of Australian aborigines in the northern part of South Australia.

Five hundred skeletons found at one point were estimated to be up to 900 years old.

The skulls varied considerably over the years. The most primitive type apparently belonged to a particularly ugly race, said P. Staughton, an anthropologist and a member of the group.

Staughton said man skulls showed wounds of tribal battles, others had been crushed by clubs and stone tomahawks. He explained it was an aboriginal custom to bash the heads of the dead at a burial to disperse the spirit.

City Ordinance Has Put Fairy Tale To Good Use

Cresskill, N.J., Oct. 17—(AP)—Once upon a time, all the mice got together and decided to hang a bell on the cat.

The bell would tinkle when the cat crept up on them and they would be forewarned.

All the mice thought this was a great idea. They applauded and whistled and stamped their feet and cheered.

Then a mouse asked "Who will put the bell on the cat?"

Nobody answered.

But in Cresskill, the old fairy tale has come true for the mice.

Cats have to wear not one bell but three.

Of course, the ordinance is designed to protect birds, not mice. And it has stirred up a medium-sized controversy between cat lovers and bird lovers.

The bird lovers claim the household cats cause tremendous carnage among song birds.

The cat fanciers don't like the ordinance, mainly because it also entails a $2-per-year license fee for all pet felines.

The measure, passed here by the borough council last April, is based on one adopted in nearby Tenafly 10 years ago.

Why three bells? The reasoning is that cats, being pretty clever when it comes to catching birds or mice, would learn how to move around without tinkling if they just had one bell around their necks.

"But with three bells, a cat's got its paws full," a borough official said.

Bare Facts For Forest Warden

North Bay, Ont.—(AP)—It takes courage and presence of mind to make good as a game warden. Joe Carwell, RCAF veteran who is now a game warden, has both.

On a routine patrol near a lake, he found himself confronted by a pair of sneakers and a pair of spectacles, with nothing but man in between. The man berated Joe for charging in on a nudist camp. The young warden was then aware of other naked bodies among the trees.

A blonde young woman emerged from the lake, attired only in a daring pair of running shoes, and started towards them, and Joe thought it time to call a halt.

"Listen you," he said, "I'm here legally. I'm a game warden. If you people lived like other folks, you wouldn't worry about anyone walking in on you."

With that, he made a dignified exit, looking back to see that they weren't making a fire without a permit, of course.

Funds Reduction For Nat'l Park Service Ordered

Washington, Oct. 17—(AP)—Secretary of the Interior Chapman today announced cutbacks in funds for the National Park Service.

Totalling $3,570,000, they result from a clause in the big appropriation bill for the year ending next June 30 which ordered the Budget Bureau to reduce non-defense expenditures by at least $550,000,000.

Reductions for the Park Service divide into four parts: construction programs of parkways, roads, trails, buildings and utilities, $3,200,000; maintenance and rehabilitation, $200,000; for management and protection funds, $105,000; and for administration, $20,000.

The breakdown of the reductions includes:

Construction of parkways and roads: Blue Ridge Parkway, Virginia and North Carolina, $944,000; Natchez Trace Parkway, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, $1,408,000; Colonial Parkway, Virginia, $480,400; Foothills Parkway, Tennessee, $166,800.

Of the $3,000,000 saved here, $1,500,000 will be used for the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, already authorized by Congress.

Road and trail construction: Skyline Drive, Shenandoah National Park, Va., $82,900; Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, Washington, D. C., $427,800.

Buildings and utilities construction: a $500,000 savings will be accomplished by slowing down work on existing projects. Elimination of some projects will save another $200,000.

Reduction in management and protection funds, totaling $150,000 of which Region One, with headquarters in Richmond, Va., sustains $40,750.

Maintenance and rehabilitation: $200,000, with no breakdown provided; and administration, $20,000, also with no breakdown provided.

Son Of Former Senator Robert Reynolds Dies

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 17—(AP)—Robert R. Reynolds, Jr., 37, son of former Senator Robert R. Reynolds, died in an Erwin, Tenn., hospital about 3 a. m. today of injuries received in an automobile accident Friday.

In the accident, Reynolds suffered chest injuries, head lacerations and multiple rib fractures. His physician Dr. McElroy Gasque, said Reynolds went to sleep at the wheel of his station wagon while driving to Asheville Friday night. The mishap took place on U. S. highway 23 near Erwin.

Young Reynolds was a tax attorney for the U. S. Department of Justice in Washington. He lived in Arlington Va.

Liquor Sales In State Gain Over September, 1949

Raleigh, Oct. 17—(AP)—ABC liquor sales in the state last month showed a gain of 14.2 per cent over September of 1949.

These figures, released yesterday by ABC Director R. W. Winston, included two new wet counties, Rowan and Catawba, both of which were not operating ABC stores a year ago. Not counting Rowan and Catawba, sales in other counties showed a 1.17 per cent increase over September, 1949.

Mecklenburg County led the state last month with total receipts of $757,292.55. The city of Asheville was next with $394,021.75. Then came Wake with $351,524.

Raleigh Meet By Bar Association

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 17—(AP)—The North Carolina State Bar is scheduled to hold its 17th annual meeting here Oct. 27.

State Supreme Court Justice W. A. Devin and four Superior Court Judges are slated to appear on the program. They are Henry A. Grady of New Bern, Allen H. Gwyn of Reidsville, R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids, and W. H. Bobbitt of Charlotte.

Peanut Shortage And Surplus Is Gov't Problem

Washington, Oct. 17—(AP)—Government farm officials were on something of a spot today because—contradictory as it may seem—there is both a shortage and a surplus of peanuts.

There is a short supply of the better kinds used for eating. There is an oversupply of the types used to make peanut oil.

The Agriculture Department must decide soon whether to continue rigid production and marketing controls on next year's crop. Such controls have been in effect on the 1949 and 1950 crops.

The decision would be easy if the department were allowed to set up a plan allowing an increase in production of edible peanuts and a decrease in those diverted into by-products, such as oil. But under farm law, the production control level must be the same for both types.

The department's peanut section is expected to recommend that Secretary of Agriculture Brannan keep controls in operation. The controls would have to be approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in a referendum. Such a referendum, if held, probably would be conducted Dec. 14.

The government's peanut officials would prefer to reckon with a tight supply of peanuts for candy, roasting and other direct food uses, than with a surplus of peanuts suitable only for oil.

The reason for this is that the department takes a loss on the oil peanuts. It supports them at one price and sells them to oil processors for a lower price.

Peanut oil is suitable for use in many foods, particularly salad oils, shortenings, and margarine. It competes with cottonseed and soybean oils in such uses. It competes also with lard as a frying or cooking fat.

But there promise to be plentiful supplies of the other oils and of lard to meet prospective food demands next year without increasing production of peanut oil, officials said.

Nevertheless, the government is under strong pressure to slow imports of edible peanuts to supplement domestic production.

George Raymond Whitfield, Sr., one of the oldest educators and citizens of Pitt county died Sunday night, October 15, at his home on Pitt street in Greenville. His was a lifetime of service in the field of education. For 53 years he taught, fifty of these years he worked in Pitt county. He was the founder of the Pitt County Training School at Grimesland. About 15 or 20 years he served as supervisor of Negro schools in Pitt county. Many a youth has been inspired to keep trying when the way looked dark by this pioneer. One seldom grows rich in the world's goods in the humble service of teaching, but there is a richness of satisfaction in knowing one has helped others to find and walk the path of service to mankind.

Just what do you own when you own a share of stock?

When you own a share of stock, you own a share of a business.

Take, for example, an automobile company with 5,000,000 shares of stock. Let's say you own just one of those shares. Even so, you are an owner of an interest in that company, in its factories, lathes, steel, its reputation—everything it has.

Suppose you own a share, or 10 shares, of a company in some other field—railroad, drugs and chemicals, public utility, oil, food products, aviation or anything else. Again, you own an interest in that company—its laboratories, supplies, patents, the "know-how" of its workers and managers. A lot of other people own the other shares—investors like yourself.

A single share, or 10 shares, may seem small. But the average stockholder in many of our biggest corporations owns no more than 40 to 50 shares of stock.

Regardless of how many shares you own, the stock certificate you have is registered in your name on the books of the company. It is legal evidence of the shares you own. Their number determines the extent of your interest in the company—in the profits it may earn, the dividends it may pay, the risks you have assumed.

The shares you own give you, among other things, the right to help elect the men who direct your company's policies, chart its course. These directors report on the company's operations to you, and to the other stockholders of your company.

Shares in hundreds of different companies are bought and sold on the New York Stock Exchange every business day by people all over the country. These companies are "listed." They have met certain requirements to place their shares on the Stock Exchange. One of these requirements is to publish information that is essential to an informed understanding of the company's financial condition.

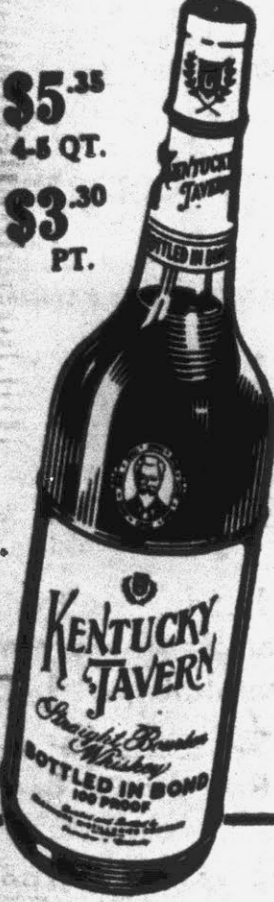

It's American to own homes, insurance policies, savings accounts and automobiles. It's also American to own stocks. Whether you own 1 share of stock, or 10, or 1000, you own a share of a business... and to that extent it is your company.

More than 1,550 offices of Member Firms of the New York Stock Exchange are located in 378 cities. Through them investors across the country can buy or sell the securities of listed companies on any business day. From them investors can get—without obligation—the facts about stocks and bonds which are the necessary first step to an investment decision.

A. A. Wynn (center), keeper of the bees at the Tennessee state penitentiary, watches Nashville bankers count the money he saved in 14 years by hiding it in the bee hives. He made the money by producing a miniature carnival show through the years for which fellow-prisoners paid admission fees. Wynn was set free during the week-end. North Carolina State Fair Is Formally Opened By Gov. Scott

Raleigh, N.C., Oct. 17—(AP)—The 1950 North Carolina State Fair, heralded as the largest in Tar Heel history, was formally opened by Governor Scott at 10 a.m. today.

Following the opening ceremony in which Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine also took part, judging began in all departments.

The fair, which is expected to attract more than 500,000 visitors, will continue through Saturday. It lists $38,000 in total premiums.

Scores of educational exhibits and displays of commercial products fill the exhibit halls. All available exhibit space has been reserved for weeks, and many exhibitors are using tents for displays.

Heading today's program were harness horse races at 2 p.m. Also scheduled was a pony race at 4 o'clock. Tomorrow, Jack Kochman's Hell Drivers will be featured with their cavalcade of thrills.

Dr. J. S. Dorton, fair manager, predicted that all attendance records will be broken if good weather prevails.

Part of today's opening rites included the introduction of three movie horses, Flicka, Thunderhead and Smoky, who will be on display during the week.

A new feature of the fair this year, Dr. Dorton said, is a nature wonderland which is comprised of game, fish, reptiles and birds that are native to the state.

Another highlight will be the Carolina Folk Festival under the direction of Bascom Lamar Lunsford, the "Minstrel of the Appalachians."

PRESS MEETING

Wilson, N. C., Oct. 17—(AP)—Elections, a news clinic, and talks by newspapermen will highlight the fall meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association here Friday and Saturday.

I don't want to sound too smug about the whole thing, but when a bride can give her own mother some tips on housekeeping—that's news!

The Big Moment came when Mother dropped in unexpectedly after all the putting away the last week's ironing.

"Do my eyes deceive me," says she, "or have you sprung already after all the talk I've heard about a big economy drive?"

Since a newlywed's budget is a source of pride I might have sounded a bit touchy in replying but Mother wasn't to be put off.

"You know very well what I'm talking about. Those lovely blue sheets and pillow cases weren't in your hope chest, young lady."

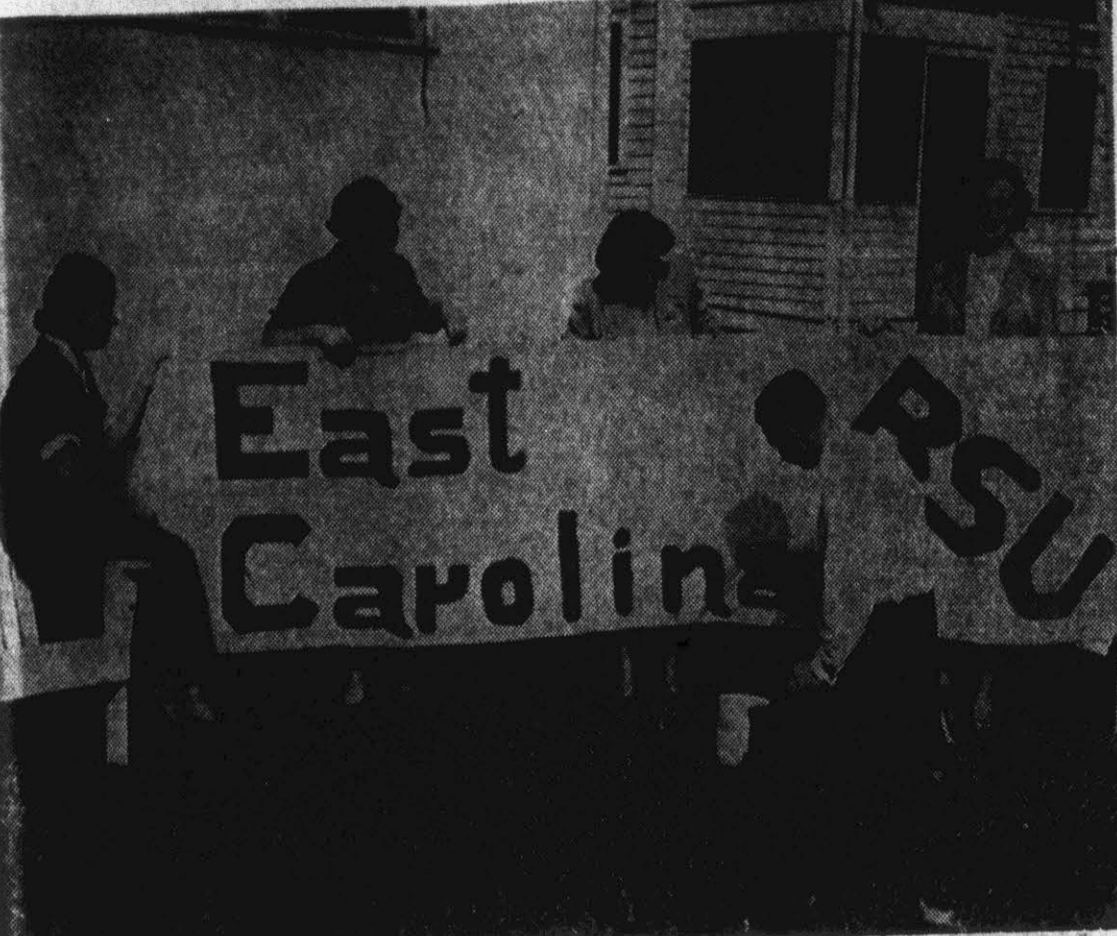

And that's where Mother got the surprise of her homemaking career because the sheets and cases had done just that . . . come snowy white straight out of my hope chest, detoured through the washing machine, and wound up in perfect harmony with our blue and gray bedroom!

With an air of "these minor miracles come to me naturally," I explained that the secret of my linen wardrobe success was as simple as the two words "dye it." It all started when I came across a leaflet outlining the simple process of dyeing bulky articles in electric washers. (You can get a free copy of the leaflet by writing: Tintex Home Economics Bureau, 485 Fifth Ave., New York 17, N.Y.) 'Til then I had always thought of dyeing in terms of the huge vessels Grandmother used to have which certainly couldn't be squeezed into today's apartments. But after the leaflet I stopped pinning for bed linens in the new pastel shades and got busy. With a few inexpensive tintex packages and the plugging in of our washing machine the young Stuarsts were in the height of fashion.

Mother got in a few washing machine ideas of her own about dyeing tablecloths to the new, colorful shades; about heavy drapes, shag rugs, bath mats and I don't know what all. Me, I'm temporarily satisfied to have shown a veteran a few new tricks!

Students Prepare For Raleigh Convention

Some members of the East Carolina Teachers College Baptist Student Union are putting the finishing touches on a banner to be used on their chartered bus to the North Carolina Baptist Student convention in Raleigh, November 3-5. "The Mission of the Church in the World Today" is the theme of this year's convention. The quota for East Carolina has been set at fifty. Students pictured above are, left to right, Alice Bullard, Wilmington; Ramona Outlaw, Winston; Doris Edwards, social vice president of the state BSU, Selma; and Janie Parker, Erwin; Clifford Adams, front, of Elizabethtown. resting. So eager were the ROKS that they ran along the road and only walked uphill or when ordered to do so.

On some roads the reds fought with their former stubbornness. But the clashes were brief and ended with the communists retreating or dispersing into the hills.

American commanders were less concerned with gaining miles than with hunting down enemy forces. They constantly deployed troops to seek out the reds.

Kumchon, captured three days ago, already was cleaned up, MacArthur's headquarters said. British commonwealth brigade elements and U. S. first cavalry units teamed up in flushing the reds out of nearby hills.

In other by-passed north Korea areas, reds were sweeping out of the hills at night at killing Korean civilians in villages.

a grave danger to the Democracies? You can bet your last dollar that Asia presents a terrible menace. However, the Far East is, relatively speaking, a long range threat as compared with western European possibilities.

To put it another way, a European upheaval would immediately involve virtually the whole western world, and would bring war to American soil. In that fierce conflict the bulk of the globe's military and economic strength would be involved. It would be a fight to a finish which would decide once and for all the issue between Communism and Demo-

Eleanor Steber To Open Concert Series Oct. 26

Eleanor Steber, "lovely to look at, enchanting to hear" star of the Metropolitan Opera Association, will open the 1950-1951 concert series at East Carolina Teachers College this fall. She will appear on the campus here in a concert sponsored by the college's Entertainment Committee Thursday evening, October 26, at 8:00 o'clock in the Wright auditorium, according to an announcement by Ellen Rion Caldwell, committee chairman.

Miss Steber, an "All American" soprano, has become in the past few years one of the most distinguished stars to sing on the radio and in recordings as well as on the opera and concert stage. She has won fame at the Metropolitan in such roles as Violetta in "La Traviata," Michaela in "Carmen," and Sophie in "Rosenkavalier." Last season she made an outstandingly successful debut with the San Francisco Opera.

As a radio star she has sung on the "Voice of Firestone" program, the Chrysler Show with the music of Andre Kostelanetz, the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, and the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts.

The sale of reserved seat tickets for Miss Steber's concert at East Carolina is now in progress. The program by the famous soprano promises to be one of the most popular given on the campus in recent years, says Miss Caldwell.

Street Department Asks Citizens Not To Put Leaves In Gutter

An afternoon's spare time and a yard full of leaves usually result in many burning piles of the varicolored product of a dying summer.

The Greenville Street Department this week welcomed the advent of cool fall weather and the chore of cleaning the streets of their leaves.

It also requested of the citizens not to rake their leaves into the street. Besides clogging the storm drains and sewers, they also present a hazard to traffic.

The teacher was held on suspicion of murder. She said she awoke and found the child strangled in a chair. An autopsy surgeon said Frances strangled on chunks of food. (AP Wirephotos).

Wants General's Views Accepted

Washington, Oct. 17—(AP)—Harold E. Stassen wants President Truman to say tonight whether he has decided to accept Gen. Douglas MacArthur's views on Pacific problems.

If he has not, the Republican president of the University of Pennsylvania declared last night, the people are justified in regarding Mr. Truman's dramatic flight to Wake Island to confer with MacArthur as "a sinful political escapade."

Suicide Attempt By Key Witness

New York, Oct. 17—(AP)—A witness, described by authorities as an important link in New York City's big gambling-craft scandal, attempted suicide last night in a hotel suite where he was being held in protective custody.

Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald identified the witness today as William Ricci, reputed payoff man for the $20,000,000 gambling syndicate headed by Boss bookmaker Harry Gross.

SOUTH DRIVE-IN

The Asiatic struggle also might decide the ideological issue. But it would be a long drawn out affair—perhaps lasting for decades. Therefore the threat to the west would be further removed, both in distance and in time.

So taking all these things into consideration there certainly is a strong argument, from the standpoint of the western powers, to be prepared to defend their own territory first.

As if echoing what Mr. Truman had said in Hawaii, Symington said: "I hope and trust the American people will realize that the essential threat, which is the strength of the growing Soviet war machine and the unpredictable but clearly aggressive intention of its leaders, will in no wise be diminished by the clearing up of the situation in Korea."

Well, if we're going to have controls, and a draft, and higher taxes, as we already have, how long will they last? A year? Two years? Your guess is as good as anyone's. But our top-ranking military men are not thinking in terms of a year or two in their plans for a strong U. S. armed force.

They're thinking of building up those forces and then maintaining them for years.
