Twenty-One Soldiers Live To Tell Of Brutal Massacre

Survived Because A General Dared To Penetrate Communist Territory To Check Report Prisoners Had Been Killed By Reds

By DON WHITHEAD
 Suncheon, North Korea, Oct. 23—(AP)—Survivors of the Suncheon tunnel massacre were saved because a Brigadier General dared to push into Communist territory to check a report that American prisoners of war had been killed by North Korean Reds.

At least 68 American prisoners were slain by their Red guards Friday night near the Suncheon railway tunnel, 10 miles north of here.

They had been led from a train into nearby fields, under the pretext that they were being taken to a camp.

The guards machinegunned them. Sixty-six prisoners on the spot. Two others died during the night of their wounds. At least 21, many of them wounded, lived through the hour-long massacre. Had Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen of Cleveland, Ohio not been so persistent many of the wounded undoubtedly would not have survived the bitterly cold night.

This is the way the atrocity was discovered:

As assistant divisional commander of the U. S. First Cavalry Division, Allen decided Saturday to drive by jeep from Pyongyang to Suncheon to check on the progress of the task force driving north. This task force from the first cavalry division had gone north to line up with American paratroopers who had dropped near Suncheon.

I went with them.

At Suncheon we heard the report of a massacre at a railroad tunnel. No one had any specific information and this appeared to be just another rumor. But Allen was determined to run it down.

"I'd never feel right about it," he said, "if we don't do all we can to find out about this."

The general stopped at the headquarters of the South Korean Sixth Division and requested a guide to the tunnel.

At that time, there were no troops in this area.

The South Korean provided a guide and we headed for the tunnel. A South Korean Colonel found the first seven bodies. Men who had starved to death had been laid beside the railroad track.

And then we began finding the survivors and the bodies of the men murdered by the Koreans. Allen directed the job of getting litter bearers to carry the wounded across the ridge.

Asia's Forgotten Man

Both East And West Are Becoming Conscious Of Asia's Countless Underprivileged Peoples; To Advance, World Must Replace Their Primitive Ways Of Life

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Both the Western and the Eastern worlds finally are taking practical cognizance of the fact that there are in Asia countless millions of terribly underprivileged folk whose condition is a deterrent to stability.

The Moslem states of Asia and the Middle East now are uniting to alleviate the sufferings of this class within their own countries. This follows the decisions by the United States and the British Commonwealth nations to inaugurate general relief measures for the hunger-stricken areas of Asia.

These moves have, of course, been stimulated by the knowledge that underprivileged peoples are subject to political exploitation and thus are liable to fall prey to Communist propaganda. The position was well summed up at an 11-nation Islamic economic conference just concluded in Tehran.

Ghulam Mahomed, Pakistan finance minister, put it like this: "The common man has so far hardly figured in the economic or political thinking of Moslem countries, but nevertheless it is he who

Big Mo In Action

The Department of Defense released this picture in Washington with the following caption: The USS Missouri bombards Chong-Ji, Korea, with her 16-inch guns. This is the first time the USS Missouri has traveled so far north on a bombardment mission. Chong-Ji is approximately 120 miles from the Russian base of Vladivostok and 39 miles from Soviet border. Purpose of the mission was to cut the lines of communication between northern and southern part of Korea. The Missouri's action against Chong-Ji, North Korean city apparently referred to, took place October 11. Maps show Chong-Ji approximately 140 miles from Vladivostok and 60 miles from Russian border. Ceremonies On Courthouse Lawn And Activities In Various Schools Will Mark Observance In Greenville Tuesday

United Nations Day will be celebrated in Greenville tomorrow by a worship service, a program at noon on the courthouse lawn, and by various activities in the individual schools of the city.

A union worship service for United Nations Day has been arranged by the Greenville Council of Church Women of which Mrs. Dink James is chairman. The services will be held at 10:30 at St. Paul's Episcopal church. Taking part in the program will be Rev. Leon Russell, Rev. L. W. Topping and Rev. H. G. Haney. At noon the bells of the various churches in Greenville will ring for several minutes as reminder of the United Nations Day celebration and the prayers for peace which are being offered all over the United States in commemoration of the fifth anniversary of the founding of the international organization.

In the various Greenville schools there will be individual programs for the students in celebration of United Nations Day. At the Third Street school an assembly program for all the students is planned for 9:30 and will include talks on the history of the United Nations, the new U.N. buildings which are under construction, and the freedom bell. A play will be presented by students of the fifth grade who will represent member countries of the United Nations.

New Source Of Power Is 'Good For 400 Years'

Grand Forks, N.D., Oct. 23—(AP)—A new source of power, big enough to operate American industry 40 years was described today at the University of North Dakota.

The power source is a new gas from lignite, perfected by the U.S. Bureau of Mines, in cooperation with the university.

Lignite is a black-low-order coal which is about 35 per cent water.

The United States has 9,000,000,000 tons. That's one-quarter of all our coal still unmined.

The Bureau of Mines is today putting the finishing work on a new $750,000 laboratory, the only exclusively lignite laboratory in the country, to give industry answers to technical questions. The cost already is low enough to compete with coal shipped long distances.

Heading the work are Drs. A. C. Burr, John C. Holt and W. H. Oppelt, for the Bureau, and Dr. L. G. Harrington, for the University.

The secret of gas-making is a red-hot steel bottle, about 18 feet high and nearly ten in diameter. The bottle has an inner lining, forming a corridor close to the red-hot outer wall. This corridor is filled with high-pressure steam. Lignite, fed in at the bottle top, slides down the corridor.

There, heat and steam convert most of the coal into gas, known to industry as water gas. This single bottle makes enough gas daily to furnish power for electricity to a town of 10,000.

Pitt's Weekend Highway Toll Has Six People Hurt

Three Automobile Accidents, One Hit-And-Run; One Driver Arrested

Six persons were injured in two highway accidents investigated by State Highway patrolmen over the past weekend. The total for the weekend period ran to three, one being a hit and run accident on the Farmville highway which resulted in no personal injury but considerable damage to two cars, the operator of one is still being sought by patrolmen.

On Saturday night about 11:15, three miles south of Ayden on NO 11, two cars were in collision resulting in injuries to three persons and charges of driving in a careless and reckless manner being filed against one of the drivers.

Patrolman R. C. Holt of the Ayden Patrol office gave this account of the accident. One car driven by James Henry Mabey, negro, of Winterville Route 1, was headed in the direction of Grifton as was a car following behind him driven by Robert Eugene Price, age 23 of Grifton Route 1.

The Price car rammed into the back of the Mabey car doing considerable damage to both cars. However the crash ruptured the gasoline tank on the Mabey car setting the vehicle afire. The occupants in the car escaped with only minor injuries. The car was a total loss, Holt stated.

Price told the investigating officer that he was traveling about 40 miles per hour at the time of the accident. He further stated that the car in front of him was stopped or stopping at the time. Price was arrested on charges of careless and reckless driving.

The injured list: Eugene Price, minor cuts and bruises, treated at Pitt General Hospital and released; Mayhew Gaskins, age 20, of Ayden facial injury and cuts on nose and upper lip. He is still in the hospital, the Patrol report shows. Also William Whaley, age 18, of Winterville, minor cuts and bruises. None of the other occupants required hospital attention.

Aluminum Likely To Feel Controls

Washington, Oct. 23—(AP)—Aluminum—important in the building of aircraft—appeared likely today to be the next strategic material to come under government controls.

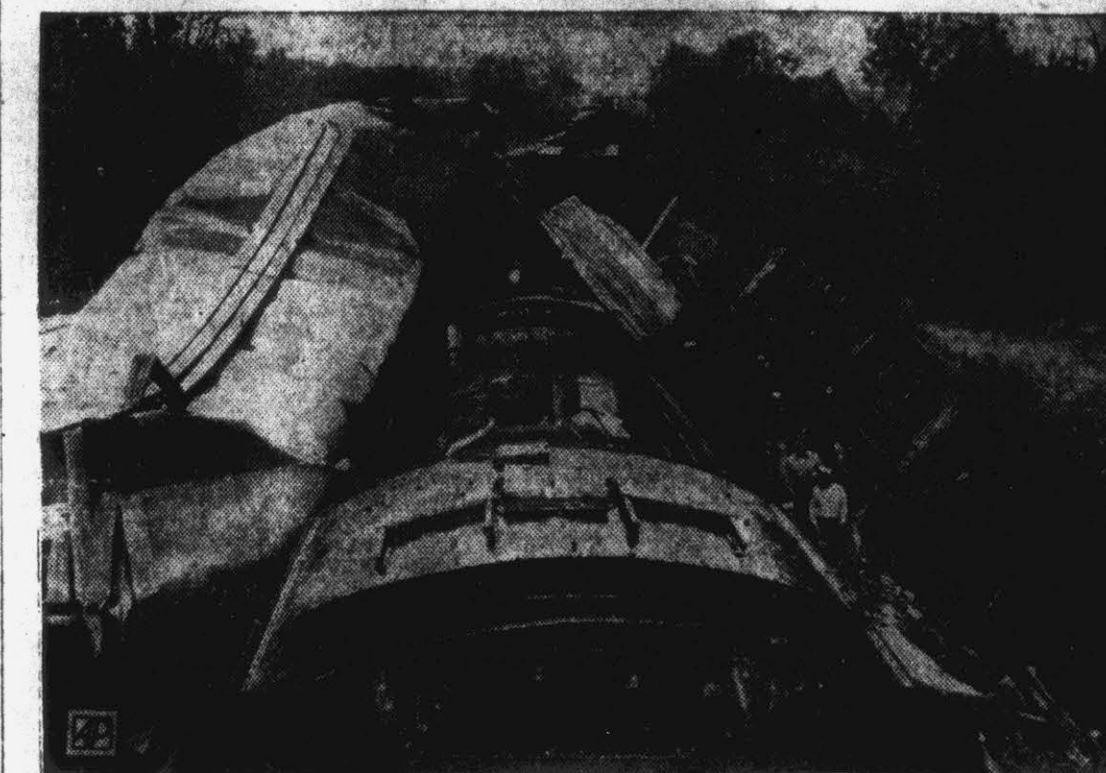

Officials said last night that an order now being drafted by the National Production Authority (NPA) for probable issuance within two weeks, either will contain or will be closely followed by restrictions on use of aluminum in non-essential products.

Robert C. Goodwin was named, meanwhile, to the key job in mobilizing the nation's labor force to meet needs of the expanding defense program. Goodwin, 44-year-old, is a former labor leader.

County's First Contingent Of Draftees Departs For Service

Pitt County's first contingent of young men were sent by bus to Raleigh this morning for dispersal to Army induction centers and their first taste of military life under the new draft.

All 39 of the white and colored men were in the first group sent to pre-induction center in Raleigh for physical and mental examinations. The contingent numbers 21 white men and 12 colored. All are from Pitt county.

Now that they are officially in the nation's military service, the group will remain in the Army's olive drab and sun-tan uniform for a period of 21 months, unlike the 1940 draft which called for one year's service.

Heretofore, the draftees' names have not been published, due to an order from the selective service office in Raleigh. Publication was prohibited pending reports on those men who passed the examinations given in September.

Those Pitt men being inducted today are: James Conrad Hart, Norris Lee Eason, Herman Spell, Jr.,

Atom Scientist's Trail Disappears In Finland

Helsinki, Finland, Oct. 23—(AP)—If Britain's missing atom expert Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, has left Finland for Russia, he went without any passport.

Official sources disclosed today that the passport of the Italian-born scientist, whose disappearance was reported Saturday, still is in the custody of the Finnish Ministry of Interior.

The Stockholm correspondent of the Rome newspaper Il Tempo reported yesterday that Pontecorvo sailed Sept. 2 aboard a Russian ship from Finland to Leningrad. Italian newspapers earlier had reported that he and his family had slipped off to Russia while on vacation from England, where Pontecorvo had worked for two years at the British atomic research plant at Harwell.

The scientist was described by European colleagues as a leading researcher in tritium, basic element of the hydrogen bomb.

Pontecorvo arrived here on Sept. 2 by air from Stockholm without the required Finnish visa. He was given a provisional entrance permit.

To Review Case

Washington, Oct. 23—(AP)—The Supreme Court today agreed to review the New York conspiracy conviction of 11 top Communist leaders.

The Court set December 4 to hear arguments by lawyers for the Reds and for the government. It then will take the case under consideration for final decision.

The principal point at issue involves the constitutionality of the 1940 Smith Act. That law makes it a crime to advocate or teach overthrow of the government by force and violence. The Communist leaders were convicted of violating the act.

Observers said the ROKs, who can make 30 miles a day in forced marches, were capable of reaching the Yalu river on the border sometime Tuesday.

(General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo was non-committal. A spokesman said only that the army "had several estimates of when allied troops were expected to reach the Manchurian border.")

On the North bank of the river, Red China troops guard Manchuria. The desperate Red Koreans were fleeing northward so fast that they no longer could hold all their allied arms along with them.

Any POWs were escaping to the safety of allied lines. Other prisoners were massacred by the Reds in a brutal last show of defiance. Sixty-six Americans were found machinegunned 40 miles north of Pyongyang, the fallen Red capital. Two others died, but 21 survived the ruthless slaughter.

Five hundred South Koreans were reported murdered at Yonghung, on North Korea's east coast. An army intelligence officer in Tokyo said the Red Koreans had put up "no organized resistance in the last 24 hours."

Fleeing Reds were reported turning inland in their retreat before the advancing United Nations forces. Officers said they were entering an area dotted with ancient walled cities.

They will not offer much defense a spokesman said. "With what we have learned already we can take care of these without any trouble." The spokesman said American forces had learned much in assaulting the walled city north of Taegu in Southeastern Korea.

Air attacks "will take care of them," he explained. But ground assaults may be necessary to flush out all enemy resistance.

As the allied tide rolled northward the bag of Red Korean prisoners swelled past the 120,000 mark, the equivalent of 12 divisions. United Nations forces captured 26,000 North Korean troops in the past 24 hours.

Able To Handle Red Guerrillas

Washington, Oct. 23—(AP)—President Syngman Rhee of the republic of Korea says his government's army can handle any guerrilla problem remaining after defeat of the North Korean Communist forces.

And when peace is restored, there will be no question but that North and South Korea will be a unified whole, Rhee said in a telephone interview with the magazine U. S. News and World Report made public today. Rhee spoke from Seoul.

Big Man In Government

Towering Cyrus S. Ching Is A Big Man In More Ways Than One; Experienced In Labor Relations; His Beginnings; Many Years Of Service For Americans

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 23—(P)—Cyrus S. Ching seems big as a cloud but he never looks like rain.

He's one of the biggest men in the government; sucking on a pipe, his hair mussed, he's 74, weighs 230, stands six feet, seven inches.

The big jupiter face, minus a beard has an amused and happy look, as if he had just swallowed a planet.

The amusement probably comes from recollections of his salmon fishing; he belongs to a very exclusive Canadian club where every year an Indian guide paddles him around to catch salmon.

President Truman recently appointed him chairman of the new wage stabilization board, a spot not likely to be very amusing.

Although he has plenty of savvy in labor relations, he'll probably need all of it if the government start slapping controls on wages. (Before it went home this year, Congress set up an economic program to combat inflation. This calls for an economic stabilization administration and a wage stabilization board.)

(If price controls are imposed by the government, wage controls have to be applied at the same time. Ching will be key man in wage controls.) Ching was born a Canadian, on Prince Edward Island, but didn't like digging potatoes on his father's farm.

In 1909 he was in Boston, driving a street car. He began learning some labor lessons there, watching relations between the car men and the company.

He seemed to do all right. He drove cars by day, studied law by night, got a law degree from Northwestern University, was made an assistant to the president of the company in charge of personnel problems, and became a U. S. citizen in 1909.

In 1919 he went to work for the U. S. Rubber Company. Did pretty well there, too. Started in on labor relations, in time became director of labor and public relations, and kept the job till 1947.

Meanwhile he filled a lot of jobs for the government. While in one of these government jobs—as a member of a special board investigating the coal dis-

Judge Reconciles Family In Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court today, a dramatic and near-tragic turn occurred in the trial of Roy Terrell, 31-year-old Negro, on the charge of assaulting a female, Bernice Terrell, his wife, with his fists.

The defendant's wife testified that on October 10, while they were in bed, her husband beat her. In a reply to a question from Judge J. W. H. Roberts as to why he whipped her, the woman testified that she had found a love letter in his pocket from a "girl friend up north." She said she woke him up and told him about finding the letter and that "he smacked me." She handed the letter to the judge. He turned it over to Solicitor Eli Bloom and he read the love missive with dramatic effect.

Judge Roberts commented after the reading, "Roy, you ought to get some extra time for carrying a letter like that around with you for your wife to find." The defendant was silent. The judge gave the letter to Roy.

His Honor asked the wife if she wanted her husband back. She couldn't decide right away. "I'll give him 30 days on the roads, because a man can't go around whipping women, or, if you want him back I'll fine him. You two go in that other room, talk things over, and let me know what you do." They were reconciled and the judge fined the husband $15. They left the courtroom together.

Errol Flynn Is Married Again

Monte Carlo, Monaco, Oct. 23—(AP)—Movie actor Errol Flynn was married "for the third and last time" today in an 18 minute civil ceremony in the Monaco city hall. Actress Patrick Hymore was the bride.

The couple said "I do" before mayor Charles Palmaro as more than 100 guests watched and a crowd of 3,000 chattered excitedly in the city hall courtyard.

Johnson-Langley Vows Spoken October 7 In Private Ceremony

In the home of her pastor, Dr. H. G. Haney, minister of the Eighth Street Christian Church of Greenville, Miss Jane Cooper Langley was united in marriage to Charles Harold Johnson of State College and Starkville, Mississippi, in an impressive early evening service Saturday, October 7.

The bride, attired in a green suit with black accessories, was given in marriage by her father in the presence of her immediate family.

Mrs. Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Langley of Greenville, graduated from Greenville

High School and attended East Carolina Teachers College.

Mr. Johnson, son of Mrs. Ellen M. Johnson and the late James E. Johnson of Philadelphia, Miss. is a student at Mississippi State College where he is a junior in the school of Business and Industry, a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity, Pi Delta Epsilon honorary fraternity, and editor of the forthcoming yearbook, Reville.

The couple will make their home in the Colonial Heights subdivision of Starkville, until completion of Mr. Johnson's curriculum at State College.

Hobby Show Will Be Held Friday In Fund Campaign

In the interest of the World Student Service Fund to aid needy foreign students, the YMCA and the YWCA of East Carolina Teachers College will stage a Hobby Show Friday, October 27. Patricia Williams of Wilmington and Gene Hart of Kingston, presidents of the two organizations, are being assisted in arranging the show by a group of students headed by Evelyn Kornegay of Albion and Ernest L. Sylvant of Snow Hill.

Displayed in the Wright auditorium at that time will be exhibits representing leisure-time employment, both collective and creative, and special interests of both students and faculty members. The Hobby Show will begin at 8:00 o'clock Friday evening.

A small admission fee will be charged and will be used for the World Student Service Fund. In a drive to raise money for needy students and educators abroad, students at East Carolina collected last year $267.48. The WSSF drive for the 1950-1951 drive will begin Tuesday morning of this week at noon, when Diana Dent, traveling WSSF secretary for the YMCA, will speak at a chapel service in the Austin auditorium.

The Hobby Show will be staged this year for the first time by the YMCA and the YWCA as part of the annual WSSF drive. All who are interested may attend.

pute in 1948—Ching received special attention from that well known acid-penman, John L. Lewis.

Said Lewis of Ching: "In attendance is Ching, a truly remarkable man, who sees through the eyes of United States rubber."

This seems not to have wiped the grin off Jupiter Ching's huge face. Not all labor leaders have the same acid feeling toward him, so it's said.

From 1925 to 1931, and since 1940 he has been a member of the Advisory Council on Industrial Relations of the National Industrial Conference Board.

In the 1933 depression year he was a member of the National regional labor board of the National Recovery Administration.

President Roosevelt in 1941 appointed him a member of the National Defense Mediation Board.

In 1942 and 1943 he was a member of the National War Labor Board (Among other things, as a member of the National Association of Manufacturers, he was on the NAM's immigration committee in 1933.)

Not all his jobs for the government—while he still retained his connections with U. S. Rubber—are listed here.

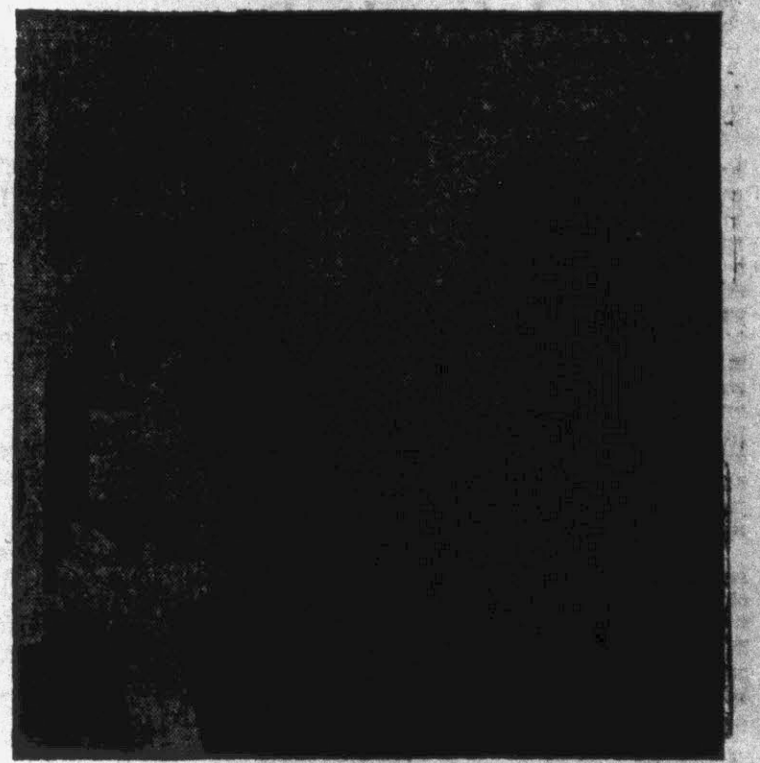

Testing Ground

Tehran, Iran, Oct. 23—(AP)—Premier Ali Razmara and U.S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady have signed the world's first point four pact, allocating $500,000 for technicians and equipment to develop Iran's backward farms.

Iran will thus become the first testing ground of President Truman's program to help underdeveloped countries help themselves.

About 20 American farm and public health experts will be brought here by next spring to set up some 10 village training centers to teach peasants more modern farming methods and sanitation practices.

New Liquid Kills Roaches and Ants

New Way to Kill Pests Discovered by Scientists

ROACHES are the most difficult household pests to control, and they can be brought into any home from the market in a bag of potatoes or other groceries.

Science has just come forth with a new discovery that kills cockroaches and ants, and that stays effective for months. It is called Johnston's NO-ROACH coating.

It's just as simple and easy to use as it looks. You paint the coating on surfaces frequented by roaches and ants, woodwork near the sink, baseboards, garbage pails, window and door sills. When these crawling pests come in contact with this invisible, odorless, stainless coating they slowly become paralyzed, turn over on their backs with legs waving in the air, and die. Then the coating stays effective for months to kill any strays that get into the home and that walk over it.

Science has seen to it too, that this product contains no DDT, no sodium fluoride, and no phosphorus. Johnston's NO-ROACH is not a contaminating spray, or a messy powder. It is colorless, and may be brushed just where you want it, without having to move all your dishes and pots and pans.

Prices are 8 oz. for 89c, pint for $1.49, and a quart for $2.98.

Egyptians Claim Central Market

Alexandria, Oct. 23—(AP)—Egypt's cotton market has replaced the American exchanges as regulator of world cotton prices. Ahmed Hilmy Bey, government cotton commissioner, said.

In an address to brokers and traders on the Alexandria Cotton Exchange floor he said:

"The Egyptian market has become the central market and the prices reigning here are the expression of the play of supply and demand abroad as much as at home.

"The relative interdependence which existed between Egyptian and American prices no longer exists."

Probation After Death" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, October 22.

Golden Text: James 1:12. "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him."

Among the citations comprising our Lesson Sermon, are the following from the Bible: "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." (Rev. 22:14) And from the Christian Science Textbook by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual, they must near their broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the broader interpretations of mortality may be put off."

Strength for the Day
By EARL L. DOUGLAS

CAN WE BE NEUTRAL?
We are coming to see that no nation today can be neutral when world struggle is threatened. A few nations try to stay on the fence, but they soon fall to one side or the other. The world has become so much of a neighborhood that our neighbors cannot be struck without our feeling the blow. Political and military neutrality are impossible in the modern world.
And moral neutrality has always been impossible in any age. Jesus urged men either to make the tree good and the fruit good or else to make the tree corrupt and the fruit corrupt. He decided, he said. In the great eternal issues you cannot stay perched on the fence. Decide for God or for Satan. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." More than a thousand years before Jesus' day, Job had said to the Isrealites, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."
The most certain guarantee of a drab personality and an inglorious career is an attempt on the part of anyone to be morally neutral in a world bristling with moral challenge. We've just got to take sides. There is no point of neutrality in the great struggle going on in the world between good and evil. If we refuse to choose, we have already chosen. Neutrality is surrender.

Another Good Team Being Neglected

Have you seen the Greenville Midget football team in action? If you haven't, you've missed one of the best brands of football that is played in this section of the state.
Most football fans are prone to look for the thrilling games and the smooth play among the college teams; but these Midgets field a team which, but for size, could put most any college squad in the shade.
There are a comparatively few Greenville football fans who have seen a Midget football game this season, but most of those who have witnessed one game have become ardent fans of the youngsters. The boys on the team must not be over 13 years old or weigh more than 110 pounds to be eligible for Midget competition. Coach Bill Kittrell has molded his Mite squad into a well oiled football machine which makes up in spirit, competitiveness, and ability for what it lacks in the way of brawn.
For good hard football which affords thrills galore, The Reflector suggests that the football fans in this area not neglect the Greenville Midget games when they make up their list of contests to see.

The Unanswered Questions

For the most part, people in the United States are considering the fighting in Korea over. . . . Over except for the mopping-up operations which may take a number of months and cost hundreds of additional American lives.
But where do we stand and what shall we do with our armed forces after Korea has been made secure? Where and when will the next communist thrust be made? Will the United Nations forces advance next into Indochina to help the French in their battle against the communist forces from the back country?
These are questions which have partially been answered, and which partially remain unanswered in the puzzle of the world picture. We may be sure at least that our preparedness program in the United States will continue for some time, and that even our victories in Korea will carry with them little incentive for a slow-down of our military preparedness. The leaders have at last realized that a long range defense program is necessary under the present world conditions, and that no immediate change in these conditions is likely to divert our program. The people, too, have accepted the large scale military program as the only facility immediately available to maintain peace and our own security. They are not anxious to return to a wartime economy so soon after World War II, but they realize it is necessary at least for the time being.
What the communists will do in their next bid for world conquest can only be guessed. We may be fairly sure they will continue their jobs here and there to keep the world conditions unsettled while they play for time. What the United Nations will do with Korea or after Korean affairs have been somewhat settled remains to be seen.

The American people, in any instance, must equip themselves mentally to accept the long-range military preparedness program into which we are entering. It will mean many changes in our economy and in our daily living; but in so doing, we must remain ever observant to see the government does not become too powerful and out of control of the people at large.

New Campaigns To Preserve Life

Highway signs which read "Be Careful Death Is Permanent" have begun to appear about the entrances to Greenville where they are being erected by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in its safety campaign.
The Jaycees have taken cognizance of the terribly high accident rate and death toll which have been suffered on the Pitt county highways. Likewise the Greenville Business and Professional Women's club is carrying out an active campaign in an effort to reduce the county's highway accident rate.
Through these concerted efforts of individual civic organizations, steps are being taken to keep the people of the county ever aware of the infamous reputation the county has gained through highway accidents. The campaigns are continually reminding the people of the danger which lurks on the highways. Whether the safety campaigns will pay dividends in the reduction of Pitt county's accident rate remains to be seen.
Nevertheless, the efforts which are being made by these two organizations are steps toward a concerted safety campaign which the county has long needed. The Reflector hopes it will not be long before the Jaycees and the B and PW club will be joined by other civic groups throughout the county in the safety campaign.

National Whirligig
News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Labor top chieftains now concede that the defeat of Senator Robert A. Taft will not contribute anything to repeal of the law which he sponsored on Capitol Hill.
Even with the Ohioan out of the legislative picture, the next Congress will be more pro-Taft-Hartley than any of the predecessor bodies which have refused to heed the unions' demands for repeal.
Thus the fight on Mr. Taft has become almost a life-or-death struggle for the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the United Mine Workers.
If he wins, their power and prestige will sink to its lowest point since Franklin D. Roosevelt entered the White House in 1933. Labor will lose its grip on at least 200 members of the House and 50 members of the Senate.
A Taft triumph might even persuade President Truman to shy off from pro-labor policies which have transformed his Administration into an American replica of the Atlee-Bevin regime in England.
REVERSES—The Taft-Perguson contest assumes almost the importance of a presidential election for other reasons which William Green, Philip Murray and John L. Lewis do not like to discuss publicly. Nor does Mr. Truman care to explain why he is so eager for a Taft defeat.
It is not generally realized, but organized labor has suffered terrific reverses in the 1950 primaries. It lost such advocates of Taft-Hartley repeal as Senators Pepper of Florida, Graham of North Carolina, Thomas of Oklahoma and Taylor of Idaho.
They were beaten despite the unions' vocal and financial support. Their successors, whether they be Republicans or Democrats, are committed to upholding the statute.
DEFEAT—Representative Graham Barden of North Carolina has replaced the late John L. Lewis, who was the idol of the CIO, as chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, where a repeal movement must originate.
Senator Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, chairman of a similar Senate committee, stands in danger of defeat. He is a union crony, sincerely and honestly.
Privately, labor leaders admit that they would prefer to whip Taft now than elect Truman in 1952. And there is a possibility that they may defeat the Senator, unless the Republicans and independents turn out en masse.
CHORE—President Truman has instructed National Defense Secretary George C. Marshall to forget military management details at the Pentagon and to concentrate on the organization of an international, anti-Russian police force under the aegis and auspices of the United Nations.
Mr. Truman believes that the diplomatic Virginian is the ideal man for this difficult task. In fact, his qualifications for this chore were an important factor in the White House decision to appoint General Marshall as successor to the well-meaning but blundering Louis A. Johnson.
If anybody can persuade the squabbling and reluctant UN member-nations to pool their forces, especially France, in a world army, it is General Marshall. He commands more respect and admiration abroad than any other American military figure, with the possible exception of General Douglas A. MacArthur.
Strange as it may seem, "Ike" Eisenhower runs third to these two warriors. Indeed, there are those who place General Omar N. Bradley in third place, with Columbia's president coming in only fourth.
FORCE—Neither President Truman nor Secretary Acheson can afford to admit it, but they are deeply disturbed over European nations' slowness and unwillingness to build a powerful, anti-Russian force in Central Europe. Conversations with British and French economic ministers at Washington during the last few days have actually angered the White House.
The British and French want us to finance their forces in Europe. They also want us to promise to keep at least ten divisions, 150,000 men, in that area more or less permanently.
At the same time, Paris rejects for domestic, political reasons the Truman-Acheson-Marshall demand that Western Germans be permitted to raise at least ten divisions for the proposed international army.
FORMULA—Mr. Truman knows, and he has so informed the Anglo-French spokesmen, that neither Congress nor the American people will continue to spend billions or to draft manpower for European defense unless they show more sense than they have up to now.
He has, at last, told them that we are interested in arming Western Europe only because it serves to strengthen the United States—to give us the time for preparation which we had from 1914 to 1917 and from 1929 to 1941.
It will be General Marshall's assignment to sell this idea to the British, French, Dutch etc., and then to work out a specific formula for building an army of at least fifty divisions—750,000—to stop the Russians on the Rhine.

Around Capitol Square
Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN HIBBERT Raleigh, N. C.

FIRST—There is a sameness about the district Democratic rallies being staged throughout the state, and yet each one is different in some ways from all the others. The first district rally at Greenville Wednesday was the seventh in the series, but the first to be opened with prayer. Also it was the first to be staged in a building other than a county courthouse, the affair here having been moved to the auditorium at East Carolina Teachers College when it became apparent attendance would overflow the Pitt County courtroom. There was still another first. At several previous meetings there had been mention of money and promise by counties to send into state headquarters the amount requested for the campaign fund. At Greenville John G. Clark, Pitt County chairman, handed State Chairman Everett Jordan a check for $600 in payment of the Pitt quota.
EXTRAS—Among the extra attractions provided at Greenville were organ and vocal musical selections by members of the ECTC musical faculty. Another extra was the speech by Thad Eure, secretary of state, and a legal resident of the first district. Chairman Jordan has adopted the policy of letting members of the council of state who are traveling with the Democratic cavalcade make short talks in their home districts. Attorney General Harry McMullan, also of the first district, was presented but said he yielded his speaking time to Eure.
COMMITTEES—The program took a humorous quirk when Chairman Jordan asked all members of the state committee to stand, then all members of the congressional district committee. He took occasion to comment upon the serious importance of membership on these committees, and mentioned the fact that often people are named just to do them some honor without regard to the responsibilities involved. "The district committee," said the chairman, "may have the grave responsibility of nominating a candidate for Congress." Thereupon

Congressman Herbert Bonner, who was sitting just the side and rear of the speaker's stand, squirmed in his seat, leaned over to a friend closer to the chairman and in stage whisper, audible all over the room, said, "Tell him I'm feeling fine, and there isn't likely to be any need to put a candidate on the ticket for Congress here."

TARBORO—The Democratic cavalcade moved over to Tarboro for the rally of second district Democrats Thursday. This meeting was held in the Edgecombe County courthouse and afforded several unusual incidents. Judge John Burney of Wilmington was presiding over a term of court for criminal cases, and the visiting Democrats moved into the courthouse during a period when a jury was out and there was a lull in court proceedings. Most of them were not aware that court was going on, so they milled around inside the bar, smoking, laughing and committing numerous other acts not permitted in a courtroom. The genial judge apparently did not mind, he did not cite anybody for contempt. He did call in the jury and tell them to suspend activities until 2:30, whereupon he formally recessed court until that hour. The spacious courtroom was bedecked with vari-colored flowers, and running ivy was twined around the bench and the staid portraits of former great Edgecombe lawyers on the wall. The flowers were provided by Ed Foxhall, local florist, and they brightened up the place.
POWER—It looked one time like the second district folks might be given a public debate on electric power. The proposed dams on the Roanoke River at Gaston and Roanoke Rapids are in the district. Senator-nominate Willis Smith made it clear he thinks private enterprise ought to build these dams. Governor Scott was still to speak, and some of the audience expected him to take a stand for government building. He didn't, although he did need the private power and telephone companies for delinquencies in providing facilities as fast as the people wanted him.

WOMEN—Mrs. B. B. Everett, director of the women's division of the state Democratic organization, was all swelled up with pride. She was in her home district, and hitherto the women of the district have not been very active in politics. Mrs. Everett found here that every county was represented, a situation encountered only once before in the rally series. Every county in the eleventh district had some women present at Marion. Two counties were missing in the first district meeting at Greenville; but at that, more counties had women representatives there, because the first district has fourteen counties and twelve were represented.
BARBECUE—The couple dozen folks who have traveled with the cavalcade all over the state may have gotten tired of barbecue, as one reporter said, but they don't get tired of the kind of barbecue served in the middle east of North Carolina. That is the ancestral home of the particular type of food, and nowhere else can the cooks give it quite the special tang that they put into barbecued pig in the area around Greenville, Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson and Goldsboro. So at the first and second district meetings, the visitors were well fed by experts at the art.
SLAP—It is difficult to interpret action of the State Democratic executive committee Saturday other than as a slap at Governor Kerr Scott. The committee by overwhelming vote the record will show it was unanimously placed the name of Jeff D. Johnson, Jr., of Clinton on the supreme election ballot for the gubernatorial vacancy occasioned by recent death of Justice Sewell. In so doing, the Democrats repudiated the appointment of Justice Murray James of Wilmington, made by Governor Scott last Thursday night.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THE SUN WILL SHINE (Wilson Daily Times)
In America in the days of large page lines our newspapers tried to create the impression that the world would end tomorrow. In that way they managed to sell papers. That the world didn't end didn't seem to deter the buyers. They waxed curious to see how it would end. Or when it didn't end, they turned to those more salacious stories which described the latest escapades of the divorcee. It was what the papers wanted. They had to maintain sales.
In some ways James R. Young, the lecturer, author and newspaperman who addressed the Executives' club the other night, gave the same impression. It in part touched on the utter confusion that exists in Washington. How can we, in such circumstances, beat Stalin? How can we with reason face our domestic problems. That the outlook is bleak can't be denied. But that it's as bleak as Mr. Young painted seems unreasonable. For even pool room habitués can become statesmen if the occasion demands.
In contemplating that outlook, let The Times remind you that the present, regardless of the difficulties we had later to surmount, has always been replete with crises. That's because we don't know how they'll turn out. No period in American history ever looked more bleak than 1864. Ten years later, however, the sun was shining again. Recovery had not been achieved by any means; but recovery, people could see, was on the way. At the moment we're in a year that's similar to 1864. We can only conjecture as to the outcome. But need we assume that it'll turn out badly?

If there's anything wrong with America at the moment, it's in our leadership. The Times isn't speaking of our national leadership; it's thinking in terms of local levels. What's wrong with our editors? What's wrong with our bankers? Have they surrendered to the forces of evil? Are we to take the position that labor and labor alone has the only voice and are we to acquiesce in its programs, however much we might dislike them? That's all that's wrong with us. The right people won't fight. Let the 300 who are the real leaders of Wilson show that they're made of firmer stuff, let them take up the tocsin against the socialist measures we're confronted with and other cities will do likewise. For let us bear one thing in mind: America is a great nation, but it can stay great only if those who helped to make it great will fight as they fought when they were making it great.

MINORITY MAKES DECISIONS (Henderson Daily Dispatch)
Voters of Charlotte last Saturday approved a three million dollar bond issue to build an auditorium seating 2,500 persons and a coliseum with a seating capacity of 10,000.
What Charlotte does with its cash and its credit is Charlotte's business entirely. And reference here to the election is wholly aside from the amount of money involved. It is the manner in which such things are carried out and the fact that a small minority makes the decisions. Charlotte happens to be the case in point; it might have been any other community.
What is regrettable is that less than 5,000 persons out of a registration of 36,000 voters took the trouble to go to the polls at all on an issue so important. The number who voted amounted to about sixteen percent of the eligibles. Affirmative was 3,769 and negative 2,152.
It is reasonable to assume that the other 31,000 were indifferent; certainly they were not sufficiently interested to bestir themselves to express an opinion one way or the other. So 3,769 persons out of 36,000 decided the issue of a three million dollar bond issue and debt. At this distance, we may never know, but it wouldn't be surprising if some of the very people who held themselves aloof were the first to complain about high taxes. Of course, they have no right to protest or criticize when they have the privilege of a voice in the decision and refuse to exercise it.
This is one channel through which freedom and democracy gradually slip away. Similar situations are developing elsewhere besides Charlotte. That's what gives the trend its serious aspect.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
It may pay business men to plan and act now to meet what may be the worst holiday delays in mailing and shipping since World War II. Their customers, too, may be sure of a merrier Christmas if they shop and mail earlier.
The cutback in Post Office services has already slowed most classes of mail. Since the mail load may rise to record bulk in the coming holiday season, delays may worsen. On top of that, the manpower is becoming scarce and the Post Office, which has a low wage scale, may have difficulty in recruiting temporary employees needed or, if it gets those needed, it may have to take a high percentage of "warm bodies."
The size of the armed services portends more parcels and letters to camps here and overseas. Mail to men in the forces deserves priority, even if it means more delays in civilian mails.
Express may be congested, too. There will be similar manpower problems. There has been some shift from parcel post to express; this may rise if the mail service breaks down further. In addition, express labor has demonstrated considerable unrest lately and strikes—which could be most effective during the holiday rush—could cause disastrous congestion.
Underlying the danger of congestion of parcel post and express, and raising the possibility of delay in freight, is the defense program. Production has started to rise and in another month or two freight and railroad schedules may be affected.
WHAT TO DO
Here's a check list of things business executives can do now to guard against loss of sales, greater returns of merchandise, and disappointment of customers:
1. Review outstanding orders and, where indicated, ask suppliers to advance shipping dates.
2. Set up a time table or chart, if not already done, that will automatically indicate non-arrival of goods on dates expected so immediately action may be taken.
3. List alternative sources of supply in event shipping or war orders cause non-delivery of needed merchandise.
4. Intensify promotion now for goods to be mailed to service men and to civilians abroad. November 15 is the post office deadline for mailing to assure delivery in Europe and army posts overseas.
5. Plan vigorous early shopping and early mailing campaigns now.
6. Confer with local postal officials to arrange utmost cooperation in getting packages to and from post offices. Arrange to get your mail into the post office at dull periods—if any. Remember, it's Washington, not your local postmaster, who's to blame for cut-backs in mail facilities.
7. Review your own shipping room situation to make sure outgoing shipments will be handled fastest, and that manpower will be available for rush periods. You too may have difficulty in getting efficient extra help if you delay.

8. Check your own delivery facilities to make sure they can handle the load.
9. Have plans and techniques ready to shift shipping among parcel post, express, freight and direct delivery as congestions develop.
It may also be a good idea to participate in shop early and mail early drives by chambers of commerce, trade associations and other groups.
SPECIAL DELIVERY GETS SERVICE
One of the most annoying parts of the curtailment of mail service, G. S. Tompkins, of Monroe City, Mo., points out, is the discontinuance of directory service for first class mail. This means, he says, that if an addressee moves only a few blocks away and fails to file a change of address with the post office, mail addressed to his old address will be returned to the sender.
Mrs. Tompkins points out that special delivery, registered, insured and C.O.D. mail still gets directory service, as does perishable matter and parcels of obvious value. This suggests that if senders are in doubt about addressee, or suspect the addressee may have moved, the surer (and more expensive) way is to send mail special delivery.
TELLS HOW TO MEET MAN POWER PROBLEMS
Retailers should plan now to use more women part-time workers and handicapped persons, Byres Gitchell, manpower committee chairman of the American Retail Federation, told the National Association of Music Merchants meeting in New York. (Mr. Gitchell is personnel director for Allied Stores.)
He predicted that manpower shortages would create greater problems for retailers than wage stabilization.

COATING: A liquid plastic which may be wiped, dipped, brushed or sprayed on chrome, brass, copper, silver, nickel and aluminum trim on autos and elsewhere has been developed (by Krome-Kote Co., 522 Lake Park Ave., Chicago). It hardens into a gold, tarnish-proof coating.
METER: Specialization is so high today that an instrument has been designed solely for the determination of the moisture contents of brewers' hops. It provides fast readings without the necessity of weighing the sample (says Tagliabue Instruments, 674 Frelinghuysen Ave., Newark 5, N.J.).
GATE: A new gate for farms and stock ranches doesn't have to be latched or unlatched. Driving a car against it from either direction pushes it down and it rises after the car has passed. (It's by Hawley Mfg. Co., 1130 Lockwood Dr., Houston.)

Hal Boyle's Column

With U. S. First Cavalry Division, Korea—(AP)—Hear now the tale of an American tank that floated out to sea—and floated back again!
The truant tank went away for a day while it was being ferried across the Yeongsong River near Kaesong during the Seventh Cavalry regiment's march on the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.
Engineers had no time to wait for heavy bridging equipment to be brought up so they quickly improvised a ferry by putting planking across six large rubber pontoon boats.
"The first tank that rolled on it was a 37-ton Sherman," said Capt. Art Westburg of Washington, D.C., assistant regimental operations officer.
"No sooner was it on the ferry than the mooring cables snapped. There is an 18-foot tide differential in the river that creates an 8-to-10 knot current. It took hold of the ferry and off it floated down stream.
Besides the crew of five surprised tankmen there were several chagrined engineers and about 15 frightened South Korean laborers aboard.
Bobbing and dipping as if acknowledging the cheers of a parade crowd the waterborne tank rode majestically down to the mouth of the river into the estuary and out to sea.
Along the way it passed a shoreline and several small islands still held by the enemy.
The startled Reds took a long unbelieved look at this unusual target and then joyously began banging away at it with mortars and machine guns.
"Our men weren't much afraid of being hit themselves," said Westburg, "because they could hide in the tank or under it. But they did worry that the rubber boats might be punctured. A Sherman tank wouldn't float much better than a 37-ton rock."
Word of the runaway tank had been messaged back to headquarters. An air and surface search was immediately organized.
"After all, leaving out the question of the men, a tank is worth $200,000," said Westburg. "And the Army doesn't like to have them go drifting off without at least looking for them."
He set out in a small artillery plane and finally sighted the tank, a little out to sea. Before a Navy tug could arrive to recapture the sea decided to return the footloose ferry itself.
It floated through the estuary and up the river, still bowing its gun grandly. The entrenched Reds on the banks and hills must have rubbed their eyes at this second chance at the strange target. They opened fire again even more happily.
But that gave away their positions to some Marine fighter planes. This was probably the most thoroughly protected tank in military history. Shortly after midnight the sides gently grounded the ferry about 150 feet from the point where it had begun its brief odyssey, and the hungry men aboard it leaped ashore.

The next morning, its holiday over, the tank went back to work up the road to Pyongyang.
"The engineers figured they traveled a round trip of 36 miles on the ferry," laughed Westburg. "And now they think our tanks ought to carry life preservers as standard equipment during river crossings."

Washington Letter
By HAROLD OLIVER (For Jane Eads)
Washington—Women's growing interest in politics will be reflected this year in some exciting election contests.
Upwards of 30 women are running for the U. S. House of Representatives, where nine now serve. Most of these represent minor parties. There is only one woman candidate for governor and two for U. S. senator.
But here's the main story about the distaff side in the Nov. 7 elections:
1. One woman candidate for governor has an excellent chance of being elected. She's running in normally Democratic Arizona, and she's the Democratic candidate. She is Mrs. Ann Frohmiller of Phoenix, state auditor for 24 years.
Her G.O.P. opponent is Howard Frie, radio official.
2. Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democrat now serving his third term in the House, is out for the California Senate seat being vacated by Sheridan Downey. A New Dealer and former actress, she is opposed by Rep. Richard M. Nixon, Republican member of the House Un-American Activities Committee.
3. There's an all-woman race for Congress from Utah's second district, the first in history where an incumbent woman representative was opposed by another woman wearing a major party label.
Mrs. Rvca Beck Boosene is the Democratic incumbent. Her opponent is Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, Republican national committee woman. Mrs. Boosene is serving his first term. She formerly was a Salt Lake City judge and state legislator.
Mrs. Priest, daughter of a minister, has never previously sought elective office. She lives in Bountiful, near Salt Lake. She has been national committeewoman since 1944 and is vice president of the Republican conference of the 11 western states.
4. Idaho has a woman running for Congress for the first time. She is red-haired Mrs. Gracie Priest, a Democrat. She has been elected county treasurer five times in normally Republican Canyon County. Her first district G.O.P. opponent is Dr. John T. Wood, Coeur D'Alene physician.

Forgotten Bonds May Be Worth Fortune To Her

says there are no records of the bonds. Many records were destroyed after the civil war. But the state is still searching. The Commonwealth has a reputation of always paying its debts, and Dillon says:

"If the Commonwealth owes her some money, the Commonwealth of Virginia will pay her."

Mrs. Walker thinks the state will pay and pay. At six per cent compound interest she figures the bonds are worth $250,000.

Dorton Reports On Fair Success

Raleigh, N. C. Oct. 23—(P)—North Carolina's State Fair has grown "too big for its britches."

That's the opinion of Dr. J. S. Dorton, fair manager, who reported yesterday that the exposition which ended a five-day run Saturday night was the most successful in history.

"What started out as a country state fair years ago," he declared, "has now grown into the biggest fair in the South. We just don't have the space and facilities to meet our needs."

He expressed hope that the new $2,000,000 fair grounds enlargement and rebuilding project would be completed in time for the 1951 exposition.

The exhibits and displays at the fair this year, Dr. Dorton said, were "twice better than ever before." Lack of space, he added, held down the number of commercial displays.

He estimated that more than 400,000 persons attended the fair despite bad weather two days.

Horses were first introduced in the southwest in 1540 by the Spanish explorer, Coronado. Cattle and sheep were brought by Spanish colonists in 1598.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 23—(P)—Mrs. Bonny Walker, 76 of Winton may have the Commonwealth of Virginia over a financial barrel. She has found in her attic two $1,000 bonds by the State some 85 years ago.

The date is not very legible—it could be 1861 or 1864. The important question is which.

If it was 1864, the bonds are worthless. The fourteenth amendment to the U. S. constitution forbids states from making good any obligations to finance the civil war. If the date is 1861, before Virginia seceded from the Union...

Affirms Verdict In Maragon Case

Washington, Oct. 23—(AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals today affirmed the verdict of conviction of John P. Maragon, who once had White House connections.

The one-time friend of Presidential Aide Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan was convicted here last May of having lied under oath to Senate investigators who were looking into alleged peddling of influence in Washington.

The government failed to convict him of lying about business negotiations with government agencies but did get a conviction on two charges.

That he lied in saying he had only a Washington bank account when he had another in San Antonio, Texas. That he committed perjury in saying he no longer was on the payroll of a Chicago importing firm when he took a temporary job overseas with the State Department. On those counts he got a prison sentence of eight months to two years.

Reds' Last Day For Registering

Washington, Oct. 23—(AP)— This is R-Day for American Communists—the last day for them to register under the new anti-Communist law.

They showed no signs of obeying and it may take years to make them. Yesterday, a spokesman at Communist party headquarters in New York indicated there had been no last minute switch in the refusal to register "party line," first announced Sept. 23 when the law was passed.

The law orders Communists and Communist front organizations to register with the Justice department or face penalties up to $10,000 fine or five years in jail.

Before these penalties can be applied, however, the government must formally establish that a group is required to register, and make it stick, if necessary, all the way to the Supreme court.

Africa Exports More Manganese

Luanda (Portuguese Angola)—(P) The present world situation draws increasing attention to Africa's manganese. Angola is at present stepping up its production at a tremendous pace.

Manganese was first discovered there in 1916 but even today the exact extent of the colony's resources are not known completely. Two of the best known deposits at Quilinhine and Guitota, east of Luanda exceed 400,000 tons for each of the reserves near the surface, are estimated at 6,000 tons. Underground reserves, however, are thought to exceed 400,000 tons for each of the deposits.

U. S. Can Pledge Quick Air Support To European Allies In Defense Parley

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Reporter

Washington, Oct. 23—(AP)—The United States probably will be able to dispatch quickly a substantial part of any air strength it pledges to North Atlantic allies at forthcoming European defense talks here.

Indeed, there are indications the buildup of United States Air Force strength in Europe already is well under way.

The explanation is that the Air Force, unlike the Army, has not been compelled to put virtually all its existing strength into the Korean war, even though air strength in the Far East has been expanded enormously since last June 25.

In the series of meetings of the military committee and defense ministers of the North Atlantic treaty organization here during the next seven days, the United States will agree to its contributions to the mutual defense against the menace of Soviet aggression—on the ground, in the air, at sea, in providing war equipment for the other 11 treaty nations.

The guess has been that eventually the United States may provide from five to ten of the 70 or 80 Army divisions of the combined Western European defense force.

United States Army officials have been working feverishly to find some way to provide the first of the divisions.

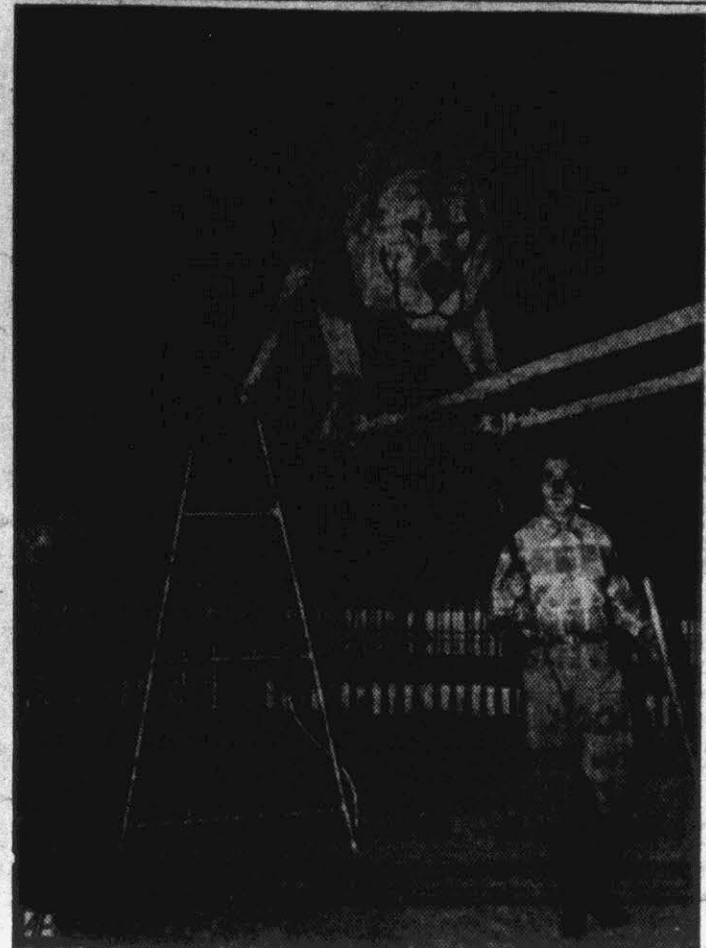

They have considered, among other proposals, plans for sending over a newly organized combat unit, like the 4th Division, recently converted from a training into a tactical outfit. Such a division would be brought up to full strength with volunteers and draftees who would be trained while on duty in Europe. An alternate (and generally less favored plan) has been to send over one or more National Guard divisions.

Of one thing, the Army leaders are certain. There is no chance of sending ten divisions now. That happens to be all the Army has anywhere—in the reserve at home, in Korea, in Europe.

The Navy is in somewhat the position of the Air Force. Even though it has built up the 7th Fleet in the Far East from an original handful of craft to a force that comprises much of the total 400 United Nations warships, it has an ample stockpile of vessels and is getting the men to man them.

The last public report on the status of the Air Force, just before the beginning of the Korean war, showed the Air Force setup included three heavy bomber groups (normally 30 planes each) of B-36s; 12 medium bomber groups (45 planes to the group) of B-29s and B-50s and approximately 20 fighter groups, part of them modern jets, part of the older World War II piston engine fighters.

Under the pressure of the Korean war and the general rearmament program called for by President Truman, the total for each category probably has increased and will grow steadily larger.

It's TIME someone did something about . . .

WE OUGHT to get more business into this town. Other places are bringing in new industries and new payrolls. Why can't we?

Sure, you can kick about business conditions. But you've got a better chance of getting action if you go to the right place. A membership in your chamber of commerce is the kicker's license that does the trick. You may not agree with everything the organization does, but, if your complaint is a sound one, you'll find plenty of support.

It is probable that your chamber is already doing something about getting new factories and businesses. If so, there's your chance to help shape the program the way you think it should be.

Basically, that's the way a chamber works. You're sure there should be more business in town. Another member thinks a civic center is badly needed. He helps you, you help him. And you, he and the community all benefit.

It's not always easy to solve every problem, but it is always easy to get help. All you need to do is be on the team. Ask your chamber of commerce executives for your kicker's license.

Twin Efficiency

Prue and Polly Ward, lovely dancing twins of the Broadway hit, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," demonstrate new carpet sweeping features—latest developments of a Brooklyn, N.Y., vacuum cleaner company. Prue, left, shows how a new nozzle operates as a rug attachment for the Lewyt vacuum cleaner. Sister Polly simply detached the hose and uses it as a carpet sweeper.

The new "101" nozzle has many advantages. As a carpet sweeper it is light, easy to store and so low-slung it will go under the lowest furniture and radiators. Home makers like the self-cleaning brush which adjusts its own height to that of the rug.

Best of all, perhaps, Polly never has to empty the carpet sweeper. When she attaches it to her Lewyt suction draws the dust and litter into the handy Speed-Sac, a disposable container inside the dust bowl.

ABC Officers Arrest Pair On Liquor Charges

Both men were released for appearance in City Recorder's Court on Monday morning for trial.

Officers making the raid were ABC officers J. M. Ward, J. L. Taylor, Claude Mannings, and Deputies L. E. Manning, J. L. Mills and Duke Andrews.

Three Young 'Explorers' And Dog Rescued In Cave

Harlansburg, Pa., Oct. 23—(AP)—Three young "explorers" and a small dog were rescued today after their flashlights failed while they wandered through the maze-like passageways of a newfound cavern.

Apparently none the worse for their 12-hour stay in the bat-filled tunnels of the cave were:

Herbert Harkless, 12; Eddie McClelland, 16-year-old son of a funeral director; Ernest Mallinak, 26, a construction company employee, and "Andy," year-old cocker spaniel owned by young McClelland.

The only note of concern was expressed by the Harkless boy, whose first comment was:

"Heck, I guess I'll have to go to school today as usual."

His mother, overjoyed at his safe return, was quick to assure him he could take a couple of days off, if he wanted to.

The plight of the three turned this western Pennsylvania town of 500 out in full force to aid in the search.

Young Harkless, McClelland and Mallinak went into the big cavern about 2 p.m., EST, yesterday to look for unusual rock and crystal formations.

The cave was first discovered a short time ago during some nearby highway construction work and in recent weeks a number of persons have visited it.

McClelland said he had gone into the cavern three times before yesterday and was certain he could find his way about.

They wandered through underground chambers, and passageways to a point about 1,800 feet from the entrance. As they started back, all three of their carbide lights failed one after another.

Left in pitch darkness, they decided to sit down and wait for rescuers.

Much of the hunger and poverty of course, is the result of conditions with which Asiatic governments find it difficult to deal. The scarcity of food is due in many instances to agricultural limitations. Many things enter into this situation—want of irrigation, primitive farming methods, lack of seed and fertilizer, inability to purchase proper tools.

In referring to primitive methods I mean precisely that. Millions of farmers are treading the same paths that their ancestors trod many centuries ago. In some areas I have seen them plowing with pointed sticks, just as was done in Biblical days.

This inability to produce adequate food crops is what America and the British Commonwealth countries propose to remedy. The idea is to help the Asiatic farmer to grow bigger and better crops. And that naturally is the logical way to approach the task, because it would be impossible to move sufficient foodstuffs from Western countries half way around the world to meet the Asiatic shortage.

Scouters Return From Camp Trip

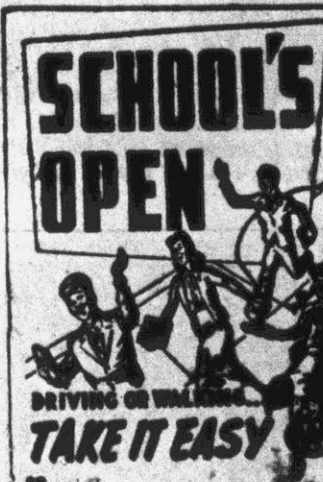

Sixteen Pitt county scouts and scouters returned yesterday from Camp Charles where they attended a week-end patrol leaders training course for scouts from Pitt, Martin, Lenoir and Onslow counties.

Attending the week-end outing from Greenville were District Commissioner Jack Dowdy, District Committeeman Bob Wolfe, Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Whitehead and Scouts Preston Jarvis and Terry Bunday of troop 36, Tommy Smith, and Bobby Harrison of troop 33, Bill Simmons, Cledith Oakley, Jimmy Phelps and Ronald Duffin of troop 30 and Edward Ola Baldere and Larry Jorgensen of Troop 188. Attending from Winterville were Ray Jackson, Bobby Cole and Graydon Tripp of Troop 300.

Camping and Activities Chairman Sherman Parks of the Pitt district and District Committeeman John G. Fleming attended a portion of yesterday's activities at the camp.

The scouts left Greenville Saturday morning and spent most of Saturday afternoon in discussing patrol organization, patrol meetings, patrol hiking and camping, and patrol projects. Saturday night they saw training films and had further discussions of scout activities. Sunday's activities were devoted to church services, a clean-up and inspection of the camp and a troop meeting.

The week-end training course was limited to patrol leaders, assistant patrol leaders and senior patrol leaders of the scout troops of the four counties, and adult scouters from the counties.

Russia Reports 1950 Industrial Production High

Moscow, Oct. 23—(AP)—The Soviet government today reported that Russian industrial production was 22 per cent greater in the first nine months of this year than in the same 1949 period.

Production during 1950's third quarter topped 1949's by 24 per cent, said a long economic report from the Central Statistical Administration of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers.

The grain harvest this year, the administration also announced, is at the level of last year, when the largest harvest in the Soviet Union's history was reported.

As Soviet Russia neared the end of its fourth five-year plan, the output of major industrial and raw materials and of fuels reportedly continued to rise.

The report indicated that the original steel production goal set for 1950—25,400,000 metric tons (55,000,000 U.S. short tons)—would be topped by a significant margin. Steel output was up 17 per cent over last year's third quarter.

Coal output increased 11 per cent, oil output 12 per cent.

Electric power production was reported increased by 15 per cent.

Russia's first postwar five-year plan ends in three months, at the end of 1950.

The report said four ministries—those of electric power stations, machine and tool industry, timber and paper industry and of the fish industry—did not fulfill their quotas for the third quarter.

Gross Soviet output for the quarter, however, was 103 per cent of the quota set by the government, and the quota for the year's first nine months also was exceeded, the report said.

THE BEST ADVICE is often more than we can bear. It takes courage to face the impact of truth, and firm resolution to form new habits to fit the facts.

Your doctor is sometimes confronted with the stern necessity of advising restrictions in your usual routine. Your favorite dessert or that comforting cigar may be denied you. There is a strong temptation to treat such advice lightly, to feel you know your needs better than your doctor.

The accident occurred about 1 a. m. at the Neuse river bridge on highway 64. State highway patrolman L. M. Burchette said the car, which was headed toward Wake Forest, left the highway, struck the bridge abutment and plunged down an embankment.

The wreck was not discovered until seven hours later.

Double Slaying And Suicide In Family Deaths

Connerville, Okla., Oct. 23—(AP)—A double-slaying and suicide is the verdict of officers in the triple-shooting yesterday of three persons in one family.

Earl Rogers returned home from his teaching job at Tishomingo and found the three victims—his wife, Lillie, 46; their four-year-old daughter, Janie; and Mrs. Rosa Rogers, 59, his step mother.

Johnston County Sheriff Everett Stewart said Mrs. Lillie Rogers shot her daughter and mother-in-law, then turned the 22-caliber pistol on herself.

Stewart said Mrs. Rogers was in a private institution a year ago and her family had considered placing her in Central State Hospital at Norman.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 23—(AP) Clarence Miller he shot his father, George Peers, 44, in the back of the head Saturday as he propped a ladder against their home to do some painting.

By FRANK TOOTHMAN
Greenville's "Mighty Mites" played their 15th consecutive game without a loss at Guy Smith Stadium Saturday night as they defeated the Selma midgets, 20-2.

James Speight, Greenville's speedy back, had a field day. Trained with the passing arm of Pat Sawyer, he scored all three touchdowns and one of the two extra points.

Sawyer Leads Aerial Attack
Quarterback Pat Sawyer led the aerial attack for the locals by completing 7 out of 9 passes for a total of 68 yards and two touchdowns. Bob Howell and Tommy Key Norris carried their share of the load by helping the mites gain 240 yards rushing.

The Riddick, Tommy Saled, Billy Johnson, David Zeller, Edgar Moore, Charles Hollingsworth and Joe Taft formed a stone wall which held Selma to 16 yards gained by rushing.

Highlights Of The Game
Bill Kittrell's squad, using the split T, proved early in the first quarter that they would not settle for a 0-0 tie with Selma as they did last Saturday night a week ago. Selma kicked off and the locals returned the ball to their own 47.

Six plays later they were on the Selma 3 yard line, and Halfback James Speight carried the pylon to the end zone. He also ran the extra point and Greenville led, 7-0.

In the third quarter on the first play from the line of scrimmage, Greenville intercepted a Selma pass on its own 42. A series of runs and completed passes set up the next score when Pat Sawyer completed a pass to James Speight for the second TD. Tommy Norris ran the extra point.

Selma Gets A Safety
A Selma punt and a penalty put Greenville on its own 10-yard line late in the third quarter. At this point, a lead pass from center went over the head of its intended receiver and out of the end zone which gave Selma a safety and two points. This was Selma's only score.

The locals scored again on a pass from Pat Sawyer to James Speight in the last quarter but they failed to make the extra point.

Fourteen Cheerleaders
Fourteen cheerleaders led the 400 spectators in a series of spirited yells, as the midgets played the game of their career. Indiana Students Still Celebrate Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 23—(P)—Nobody knew today exactly when Indiana University's screaming victory celebration will end. There was no thought of school as usual today. The cheering and marching built up to a spontaneous outburst late last night that virtually took over the town.

Co-eds in pajamas laughed off dormitory hours and joined in the milling mob. University officials made no official announcement, but there wasn't the slightest thought of holding classes today.

The last hint of normal school operations faded in last night's spontaneous celebration. A group of co-eds dashed out of a dormitory screaming "no classes tomorrow."

Before long, thousands of students swarmed into the courthouse square. Cars unloaded unbelievable loads of celebrators and were left parked in streets wherever they stopped.

Improvised torches lighted the square in one of the biggest victory celebrations the city has ever seen. It had been 44 years since Indiana had defeated Notre Dame in football.

Hill Prince just about sewed up his claim to the title of "Horse of the Year" when he romped to an impressive triumph over Noor in the Jockey Club Gold Cup classic at Belmont Park. The rugged Gold Cup test over the two-mile route cleared all doubts concerning Christopher T. Chenery's pride and joy for Hill Prince went all the way in true championship style.

Pirates' Defenses Highlighted Friday Game In Dole's Opinion

By BILL LLOYD
Roger Thrift tossed touchdown passes, and Ends Frank Maennle and Dwight Shoe, and Halfback Jack Britt caught them, in East Carolina's Friday night 26-7 victory over Guilford.

But the Pirates' defense forces came in for the top honors.

"I was impressed with the fine game turned in by the defensive team," praised Coach Bill Dole.

"They played alert, heads-up ball, and on their shoulders rest a great deal of the credit for our victory," concluded the East Carolina mentor.

Defensive Forces Standout

Such stalwart lineemen as Guard Don McKenzie, Tackles Buck Hardee and Wally Robinson, and defensive flankman Bobby Hodges held the Quakers offense at bay, as Guilford was able to muster only one score, and that by a brilliant 65-yard run by Halfback Bob Yarborough on the second play of the second half.

Linebackers Frank Madigan, and Luke Taylor, freshman who gained a starting role Friday night, also aided in keeping the Quakers' backs from scoring.

East Carolina's secondary, made up of defensive halfbacks Jack Melvin and Johnny Daughtry, and Safety man Billy Smith, stalled the Quakers' passing attack, as the Quakes were only able to complete 6 out of 14 attempts for a mere 51 yards.

Britt Scores Thrice, One Counts

Two penalties kept Halfback Jack Britt from being the man-of-the-hour Friday night. Britt scored three times, but two of his TD's were called back because of infraction of the rules. He did score on the longest play of the game, however, a pass from Roger Thrift that covered 75 yards.

Sub Quarterback Sandy Siler had almost the same kind of luck. Siler, who steps into the QB role next year upon graduation of Roger Thrift, tossed his second college touchdown pass Friday night, an aerial to Britt in the end zone, but the play was nullified because of a penalty.

Pirates Take Over Third Place

By virtue of their 26-7 win over the Quakers, East Carolina has inherited the sole possession of third place in the conference standings.

Justice Shows Old Sparkle In Pro Football

Washington, Oct. 23—(P)—Charlie Justice made his professional football debut here yesterday in a losing cause, but he accomplished enough to satisfy a big band of North Carolina rooters.

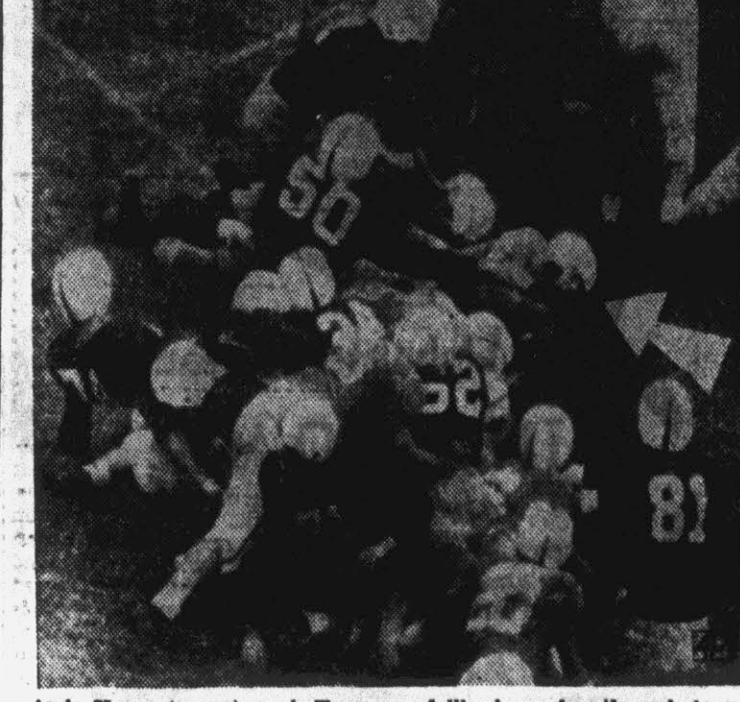

The Washington Redskins used the All America back from the University of North Carolina only sparingly. The Chicago Cardinals bounced the Redskins 38 to 28 before a crowd of 28,866.

Gilmer passed to Justice for a 27-yard gain to set up the only Redskins touchdown scored on the ground. Justice's prettiest catch came in the final period when he made a leaping grasp of another Gilmer throw. Mostly he was used as a decoy. On his only run from scrimmage he gained six yards. He returned one kickoff 27 yards.

and remain in the running for the league championship, should Appalachian and Elon falter.

Buck Hardee, East Carolina's tackle with the educated toe, with two placement kicks good Friday night, is the highest scoring leader in the state this week, without scoring a single touchdown. Hardee has kicked true on 14 out of 22 attempts from placement; and has booted two field goals for a total of 20 points.

East Carolina's entire football squad was honor guests of Wake Forest Athletic Association Saturday afternoon, for the Wake Forest-George Washington football game, which was the homecoming game for the Deacons.

Andy Kozar (arrow), soph Tennessee fullback crashes through to a touchdown from Alabama three yard line in second quarter of game in Knoxville Saturday. It was Tennessee's first score in their 14-0 victory over Alabama. THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laurenson

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 2

Richards' door banged open and he dashed through the lounge to the observation platform. A big engine clanking rhythmically, slid by on the main track. Richards leaned over the rail and waved to the grinning crew in the cab.

"Baxter!" he yelled. He pointed with mock severity to his watch.
"Where you been?"

Baxter clasped his hands over his head and shook them in greeting.
"Hi ya, Cluff!" he shouted. "Come on up and see if you can do better!"

"By heaven, I'll take you up on that," replied Richards, dropping to the ground and walking rapidly after the slow-moving train.

In the car, Miss Arthur walked slowly into the lounge and settled into a corner of the davenport beside Joan.

"Where's Mr. Richards?" she asked.

Joan chuckled. "He's gone up to the engine to play! Can't keep his hands off a throttle. And Baxter's an old pal of his."

"Your father's just a big boy," murmured Miss Arthur.

Joan studied her for several minutes of silence. "You're very fond of Dad, aren't you, Miss Arthur?" she asked.

"Fond?" A slow flush rose from Miss Arthur's throat. "I have great respect for him. Great respect." She glanced at Johnson, almost someewhat. "That's more than some people have!"

The train jerked violently, and then rolled forward.

"Goodness!" gasped Joan. "Dad's slipping. If Baxter started like that, Dad would bowl him out right!"

She was interrupted by a slight man, medium height who stepped into the lounge. His reddish brown hair was parted precisely in the middle, and he wore a severe black topcoat. He set his bag down and turned inquiringly to Joan.

"Good evening, Miss Joan," he said. "Miss Arthur—Johnson.
Where's your father?"

Joan laughed softly. "Up front, playing train. He'll be back, Cluff!"

"Yassum!" replied Cluff, trotting into the lounge.

"Take Mr. Linden's bag, Cluff. He's to have the last roomette."

He disappeared shortly with two folding tables. These he set up in the center of the car and, with a dextrous twist, spread a snowy cloth over them. He was placing the last napkin when Richards appeared. His face was smeared with coal soot, and a happy grin. Joan shook a finger at him. "Dad," she said, "you should be ashamed. You'd fire Baxter if he started the way you did."

Richards hung his head in shame.
"Bad, eh? . . . Chicken! Cluff, get that bird in here. I'm hungry."

His eyes lighted on Linden and the grin faded.

"Well, Linden," grunted Richards,
"how'd you make out in St. Paul?"

Linden glanced quickly at Richards, and then away. He shook his head.

"Credit shot, eh? I'm not surprised. You know what that means?"

Linden nodded dumbly, while Miss Arthur and Johnson watched the encounter in surprise. Joan laid a restraining hand on her father's arm.

"Daddy, please!" she said.

"Okay," he growled. He turned to Johnson. "Where's your beautiful wife? She getting coy—for a change?"

Johnson again polished his glasses before answering. "No, I wouldn't say that. She wanted a few days of rest. She's had a busy week."

"Haw! Rest? She doesn't know what it is."

Dinner dragged on, with very little conversation. Richards pitched in like a farmhand. He ended up with the whole carcass on his plate.

Dinner over, he slouched in a big chair and lit a cigar. "We'll shoot a little bridge. How about it, Joan?"

Joan shook her head. "Not tonight, Dad. I'm going to bed soon.
I may read for a while."

Richards turned inquiringly to Miss Arthur. She too shook her head.

"I don't feel up to it, Mr. Richards."

"Okay, Dave, you and I'll give these two financial wards a bridge lesson."

The rubber dragged on.
Joan rose, covering a yawn with her fingertips. "I'm going to bed," she said. "Don't play too long, Dave."

He smiled at her and shook his head. "I won't."

Miss Arthur rose, excused herself, and followed Joan.

The bridge players settled down to the game.

In the middle of a tight four heart contract played by Arnold, Cliff stepped silently into the lounge and handed Richards a bit of paper folded into a square. Richards read the note through several times. He crumpled the sheet into a wad, dropped it into the big ash tray.

He made no comment when Arnold missed a squeeze play and was set one trick. He made no comment a moment later when, neglecting to overall, he allowed Linden to get an easy one no trump contract with part score.

While Linden played the hand,
Johnson strolled to the rear door of the car and stepped out on the platform. Cleopatra, sniffing excitedly, danced to her feet and followed him.

Richards pitched his hand onto the table in disgust. "Okay, Linden," he said. "Your rubber. Hope you're happy."

"Good night. See you tomorrow."
He waved and disappeared through the door. Without a word, Linden followed him.

Johnson wandered in from the platform. "Well, game's over, eh?"

Arnold looked up from a magazine and nodded. "J. C. had enough."

Johnson selected a magazine and seated himself in a big chair against the forward partition.

rated, a plant that will manufacture and finish woolen yarns. It will provide in the first unit a payroll of $350,000 per year. The Chamber was in contact with the corporation for two months in urging it to locate here.

Fleming outlined the work of the Chamber during the past eight months, reiterating the fact that "none of the committee programs could have been carried out without the cooperation of all members working as a unit."

The Agriculture Committee has, since February 1, sponsored with the county farm agents purebred hog sales, a swine show at the Fair and instituted an artificial insemination program for the county farmers. It is now considering the feasibility of sponsoring a beef cattle stock show and sale next April for farmers of Pitt and surrounding counties.

The Civic and Public Affairs Committee has sponsored with the Fire Department a program of fire prevention in an effort to reduce preventable fires. It has sponsored advertising for East Carolina and has paid a part of the cost. It has offered its assistance in obtaining public restrooms in the city, has worked with the planning commission to remedy congested parking and traffic conditions on the city streets and has been instrumental in obtaining expanded recreational facilities.

Working through the Transportation and Communications Committee, the Chamber has continued to cooperate with the Airport Commission to get air service into Greenville, continued efforts with motor freight lines for a motor freight terminal, and continued to work for expansion of telephone service for rural and new city areas.

old head of the government's employment service, was named executive director of the office of defense manpower.

The office was set up by Secretary of Labor Tobin, to whom President Truman has delegated manpower problems of the mobilization program. Goodwin and other Labor Department officials given mobilization tasks by Tobin will continue to fill their present posts.

As director of the Bureau of Employment Security, Goodwin already had a major role in the manpower picture. His Bureau coordinates the employment services and jobless benefit programs of the states.

Thus far, only voluntary controls have been seriously discussed in connection with manpower.

Discussing the materials picture, officials who asked not to be named said, that NPA administrator William H. Harrison has been told that defense spending is now running at a rate of $18,000,000,000 a year and will hit $22,000,000,000 in the first quarter of 1951.

persons were injured when two cars were in collision at the intersection of Highway 222 and the Dupree Crossroads.

Patrolmen Dick Chadwick and

Ernest Guthrie stated that a car operated by Daniel Tyson of Route 2, Farmville going north on the Dupree Crossroads, was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Ernest Wooten of Falkland.

The accident occurred in the center of the highway, resulting in heavy damage to both cars. Investigation of the accident is not complete.

Injured: Mrs. Wooten, chest injuries; E. W. Wooten, lacerations and injured arm; Daniel Tyson, head injuries. The injured were treated at Pitt General Hospital.

County officers are at the present time hot on the trail of the driver of a blue car which was involved in a hit and run accident on the Farmville highway early Sunday morning.

Officers stated that a car driven by Rudolph Anderson of 106 Ridgeway Street, Greenville was headed in the direction of Greenville near the Kid Tyson farm at the time a blue car was coming towards him, on the wrong side of the highway. Anderson stated he pulled off onto the shoulder to avoid being hit and that the car struck him, damaging the entire left side. The driver of the other car did not stop. Anderson was able to furnish the officers with a good description of the hit and run vehicle.

Patrolmen stated that the hit-and-run car is damaged on the front and right side. Any information as to the whereabouts of the car should be given to the Patrol office in Greenville.
