U.S. Troops Escaped Red Death Trap

Lightning Advance By ROKs Probably Saved Huge Amphibious Attack

By STAN SWINTON
Wonsan, Korea, Oct. 26—(AP)—A lightning ground advance by South Korean troops—faster than United Nations commanders dared expect—probably saved a 50,000-man amphibious operation from running into a death trap.

Today that 50,000-man force, spearheaded by the U.S. First Marine Division, began prosaic landings at Wonsan, more than 100 miles behind those still advancing South Koreans.

It now can be revealed that only a military miracle prevented what might have been the blackest page in U.S. military history.

The marines and 20,000 U.S. Seventh Infantry Division doughboys were to have stormed ashore on Oct. 20. The miracle happened when the South Korean Third Division, in a breath-taking advance which strategists believed impossible, captured Wonsan on Oct. 9.

Those troops immediately discovered that Wonsan was a death trap set by the Reds, who had anticipated landings from the sea.

An estimated 3,000 floating mines guarded the sea approaches. A shifting sandbar would have stranded the assault boats offshore. On the beaches was an elaborate network of trenches. In front of these were barbed wire fields.

General MacArthur, Rear Adm. James H. Doyle, commander of the amphibious operation, and Vice Adm. Arthur D. Struble, U.S. Seventh Fleet commander, decided on the Wonsan invasion at a Tokyo conference. They realized it was a calculated risk.

But American officers now concede the landing place was selected on the basis of inadequate and incorrect intelligence. The task force was at sea before the full extent of the death trap could be appreciated.

Rear Adm. Allen T. Smith of Detroit, commander of U.N. blockade and escort forces, said the Wonsan minefield actually was the most intensive in military history—made of Soviet Russian mines—brilliantly laid with Russian equipment.

A slender channel was cleared into the invasion beaches. But nearly 80 percent of the estimated 3,000 mines still menace navigation.

Two Injured As Auto Struck Cart On Pitt Road

Patrolman Ernest Guthrie is shown yesterday afternoon as he investigated a car and cart accident on the Pactolus Highway which seriously injured two Pitt countyans. The car, operated by Samuel R. Gordon, of Washington, struck the cart on the right side of the highway as both were traveling towards Washington. The car traveled about 201 feet from the point of impact going over an embankment and into a field. Gordon is being held on charges of driving drunk and careless and reckless driving. Truman May Call Back Lawmakers

Decision Not Reached; Seriously Thinking Of Campaign Speeches

Washington, Oct. 26—(AP)—President Truman may call Congress back before its scheduled return Nov. 27, but he said today he has not yet reached a decision.

He said if the call is made it would be to give Congress a little more working time on a whole list of things, including an excess profit tax, rent control extension, and statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

Mr. Truman discussed the possibility in a White House news conference that covered a wide range of topics.

The new 82nd Congress does not meet until Jan. 3 nearly two months after the Nov. 7 elections.

Mr. Truman said he has taken up the matter of recalling Congress with Vice President Barkley, but would talk it over with other party leaders before making a decision. He said he would announce his decision when he reaches it, whether it is before or after the elections.

Responding to other questions, Mr. Truman said:

1 He does not expect any trouble in western Europe this winter. A reporter had remarked that some people in Holland were anticipating war in a few months.

2 He said he was having occurred in Soviet Russia. Gordon Dean of the atomic energy commission had been asked at a press conference Tuesday whether he knew of any more atomic explosions in Russia, and he replied "the President hasn't seen fit to make any more announcements beyond the one he made last year."

3 That Gen. Douglas MacArthur knew in advance of this country's plan to drop the atomic bomb on Japan. A spokesman had said that writer John Gunther had reported otherwise. The President said that was not true. He added he gave the order to MacArthur and the General issued the order to drop the bomb.

4 He is seriously considering making one or two campaign speeches but said he probably will not leave Washington for it. He said National Democratic chairman William Boyle had urged him to make several speeches before the election, but that he had not made up his mind.

Soviet Announces Reds Cross Border Of Tibet

Russian News Organ In Berlin First To Report Chinese Actually Have Entered Tibet; Claim Inhabitants Oppressed

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Berlin, Oct. 26—(AP)—The Russians announced today that Chinese Communist forces had crossed Tibet's frontier early Tuesday.

"In the early morning hours of Tuesday, a formation of the Chinese People's Army crossed the Tibetan frontier," an announcement in Tagliche Rundschau, official newspaper of the Soviet control commission in Germany, said today.

It was the first word that the Red Chinese actually had entered Tibet.

The Peiping radio yesterday announced that Chinese Communist forces in South China had been ordered to advance on Tibet. The Chinese Reds had been hinting at an invasion of Tibet for several months.

Tagliche Rundschau said:

"In the summer of 1949 reactionary authorities of Tibet under pressure from their English and American advisers had proclaimed their detachment from China. This was not the wish of the Tibetan people, but was designed to serve Washington in its efforts to convert Tibet into a military attack point against the democratic peoples of the Republic of China."

The Soviet control commission's organ declared:

"The command to the Chinese People's army is clear. Three million inhabitants of Tibet must be freed from imperialist oppression and the national defenses of the western frontier of the Chinese People's Republic must be strengthened."

District Jaycees Meet In Farmville

Quarterly Session Counts Nearly 110 In Attendance

Farmville, Oct. 26—Approximately 110 Jaycees representing ten Junior Chamber of Commerce organizations met here last night for the quarterly meeting of district eight of the North Carolina Junior Chamber.

President Bob Rouse of the Farmville club presided at the meeting held in the high school cafeteria, and District Vice President James F. Roe of Goldsboro presided during the business session of the meeting.

Sain O. Bundy, principal of Farmville school and noted after-dinner speaker throughout North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, addressed the Jaycees last night with a talk entitled "Everything Will Be All Right If..."

Bundy congratulated the Jaycees for the outstanding work done by their organization in the various communities throughout this section, and urged them to continue to take advantage of the opportunities for community service.

In addition to Farmville, the towns represented at the meeting were Greenville, Goldsboro, Kinston, Washington, Vanceboro, Havelock, Morehead City, Jacksonville and Mount Olive.

The Jaycees discussed the distinguished service award which is presented annually to an outstanding young man in each community by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and also the business matters which will head the list of discussions of the quarterly board of directors meeting in Charlotte Nov. 18 and 19.

Harry Stewart of Raleigh, one of the national directors from North Carolina, discussed with the Jaycees the national convention which was held last summer in Chicago and the 1951 convention which is planned for Miami in June.

The Morehead City club officially requested the support of the other member clubs in the district in making its bid to be chosen as the site for the 1951 Miss North Carolina contest.

An invitation from Goldsboro to hold the next quarterly district meeting there was accepted by the group.

Both District Vice President Roe and National Director Stewart congratulated the members of the Farmville club for their work on the meeting which was termed by the officials as "the best quarterly meeting ever held in district eight."

Bob Hope's Unit Greeted Marines

Wonsan, Korea, Oct. 26—(AP)—Comedian Bob Hope today greeted U.S. Marines landing at Wonsan. Hope and his troupe entertained 3,000 servicemen in an underground hangar. A 500-pound dumb bomb and two burned-out, Russian-made planes were removed from the hangar before the start of the show.

Surprise Action

Charlotte, Oct. 26—(AP)—The Board of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development today approved a plan of the Virginia Electric and Power Co. to construct a $30,000,000 dam at Roanoke Rapids and "respectfully requested" the Department of Interior to withdraw its opposition to the private construction of the dam.

In a surprise reaction to yesterday's public power vs. private power squabble before it, the Board unanimously adopted the pro-private power resolution just five minutes before the four-day meeting adjourned.

It was sponsored by Eric W. Rodgers of Scotland Neck, Halifax County.

Tax revenue from a private dam at Roanoke Rapids would go to Northampton County, Halifax County and the State of North Carolina.

Principals Meet For Discussion

Principals of the county schools met Tuesday for a discussion of elementary education and how it may be improved.

Leading the discussion was Miss Annie Lee Jones, supervisor of elementary education in the county schools. She pointed out three specific programs which lead to a better balanced curriculum and discussion centered around them.

One program is the continuation of formal reading instruction to the pupils, at least through the eighth grade. In past years reading tests have been given to pupils of the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th grades to see what progress they have made. Beginning this year the tests will begin with the 6th grade pupils and all grades through the 11th.

Another program pointed out by Miss Jones was correlating the different phases of the classroom curriculum. In that respect the teachers should arrange their schedule of instruction so that one course leads into the teaching of another without an abrupt break.

The third program is for the teachers to encourage pupil participation in the classroom, letting them plan and organize the program in which all take part.

Chairman Podie H. Hodges, principal at Chitot, presided over the monthly meeting. He announced that a reading consultant will visit the county November 14 to advise city and county teachers of all levels on better methods of teaching reading, particularly in the secondary level.

She is Miss Julia Tessler, employed by Scott, Foresman and Company, book publishers, and is being sent throughout the state by the State Board of Public Instruction.

Drunk, Reckless Driving Charged

Two Men In Cart Seriously Injured; Remain In Hospital

Charges of driving drunk and reckless in a careless and reckless manner have been filed against a Beaufort County man, as the result of an automobile and cart accident at Pactolus yesterday afternoon, which seriously injured two persons.

Thomas Ray Pilgreen and son, Basnight Pilgreen, are in Tayloe Hospital in Washington with serious injuries. Doctors at the hospital today stated that Pilgreen senior is suffering from a fractured skull, possible other injuries and is still unconscious. Doctors termed his condition as being critical. His son, Basnight, was held at the hospital last night for observation, and this morning examination revealed that he was suffering from concussion and possible internal injuries. He was not believed to have suffered any fractures.

The accident occurred about 4:20 yesterday afternoon at the intersection of the Pactolus highway and a dirt road on the outskirts of Pactolus.

Both the mule-drawn cart and the automobile, driven by Samuel Randall Cordon, age 57, of Washington, were traveling in the direction of Washington on the right side of the highway.

Cordon told Patrolman Ernest Guthrie that he pulled out to pass the cart, striking the cart in doing so.

Allied Unit Gains Red China Border

Patrols Of Sixth ROK Division Reach Yalu River; Reports Of Chinese Communist Support Closely Investigated

Seoul, Oct. 26—(AP)—An Allied spearhead reached Red China's Manchurian border tonight. South Korean patrols raced unopposed to the south bank of the Yalu river, in the center of the uneasy frontier between North Korea and Manchuria. They were the first U.N. troops to complete the long thrust up the mountainous peninsula.

Other elements of the same division—the Republic of Korea (ROK) Sixth—were reported under attack by Chinese Communists some 50 miles to the south. There was no high Allied confirmation, however.

A U.S. Eighth Army spokesman said "there is no evidence of overt or open support of North Korea by the Chinese Communist army."

Two Chinese prisoners, he said, were in North Korean uniforms. The Eighth Army command was making an intensive investigation. One prisoner had reported that 20,000 Red Chinese troops had crossed into North Korea from Manchuria. The other had reported the Chinese were attacking.

The spokesman made it clear that all U.N. forces, including American, can operate anywhere in North Korea that strategy dictates. There had been reports that U.S. troops might be stopped short of the Manchurian border.

And on the east coast, the U.S. Marine First Division spearheaded a 50,000-man landing force at captured Wonsan port.

The Korean Military Advisory Group (KMAG) reported that the honor of being the first U.N. force to reach the Manchurian boundary fell to the Seventh Regiment of the ROK Sixth Division.

The division, kicking off from Kojang 18 miles south of the border, entered Chosan at 5:50 p.m. (3:50 a.m.) and sent patrols three miles further north to the winding Yalu.

The report that Red Chinese troops had entered the fighting came from ROK army headquarters, which attributed it to a Chinese Communist prisoner.

A South Korean spokesman reported the Chinese prisoner said three Chinese Red battalions were

U.S. And Canada Agree On Mutual Controls System

Washington, Oct. 26—(AP)—The United States and Canada agreed today on a six-point program of cooperation in production for defense.

Similar to an agreement in effect during World War Two, it provides among other things for swapping technical knowledge and for a coordinated system of controls over distribution of scarce raw materials and supplies.

The State Department, in announcing the agreement, said it expects the understanding "will greatly increase our industrial mobilization potential and will enable us better to prepare ourselves for any military emergencies which may arise."

Fairly Mild Effects

General Public Has Not Yet Felt Economic Pinch Of Defense Program; Some Business Fields Affected; Main Problems And Action Taken To Solve Them

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 26—(AP)—Except for these things—income tax, buying a home, buying goods on installment— you probably haven't felt the touch of the defense program.

That is, if you're not a businessman. The government has cracked down on some business fields. But all in all, what the government has done so far in its defense work is fairly mild compared with what may lie ahead.

Since this defense program may last a long time, the government has three main problems on its hands:

1 It has to see that certain materials needed for armaments go into armaments, even though civilians do with less of their usual goods.

2 With everyone working, money plentiful and some goods, which the money would buy, getting scarce, the government has to move against inflation.

3 At the same time, because a big armament program is expensive, the government has to find the money to pay at least some of the cost.

What follows are the steps taken by the government so far to handle all three of those problems:

1 Income and corporation taxes were raised, starting Oct. 1. This will help pay defense costs and, taking some of the spending money out of people's hands, hold down inflation a bit.

2 Buying one or two-family homes has been made tougher because now you have to put down a larger first payment and pay up faster. This is intended to curb some of the spending urge, too, while channeling materials into defense.

3 Buying things like cars and household appliances has been made a little tougher; Larger down payment, pay-up faster. Here again the purpose was to cut down on spending.

All the rest of the points listed here were steps taken to be sure certain materials were available for military needs.

4 Rubber—Manufacturers will have to use less pure rubber, more synthetic. This will save the natural rubber supply.

5 Manufacturers must reduce their

Asia's Fresh Worry

Tense Continent Has New Room For Concern Over Announcement Red China On March Into Tibet; India Uneasy Over Another Borderland Taken By Reds

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Asia, still tense from repercussions of the Korean war, has a fresh worry in the radio announcement from Peiping that a Chinese Communist army finally is on the march to take over Tibet—"roof of the world."

The broadcast from the Red Chinese capital said the purpose of the expedition was to free the Tibetans from imperialist oppression. Precisely what is meant by "imperialist oppression" isn't clear, since the Tibetans for untold centuries have lived in near-isolation in their arid among the world's highest peaks.

We shall be more precise—if more precise—if we say that Peiping apparently is in process of reinstating Tibet under Chinese rule. The country was incorporated in the Chinese empire during the Mongol conquest in the 13th century. She declared her independence after establishment of the Chinese Republic in 1912, though China never has recognized that status.

Recently the Chinese Communists have been boasting that they have liberated all China, excepting Tibet and the island of Formosa, which is seat of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government. And now Peiping apparently proposes to remove Tibet from that category.

True, there is a Tibetan delegation now in New Delhi, India, enroute to Peiping to discuss the status of their country with the Communists. So naturally it is given to wonder whether the Peiping broadcast might be calculated merely to put high pressure on the mission and get its members into a frame of mind for concessions.

However, it should occasion no surprise if Chinese forces are moving on Tibet. Should the invasion take place its main significance would lie in the fact that another country had become a victim of armed force, even as in the case of Korea.

The repercussion on Asia in particular and the world in general would be great.

From the military standpoint, Tibet isn't a great plum, because of its isolation among almost impenetrable

Large Audience Views Amateurs

Amateur Night, annual talent show presented by the Community Recreation Class at East Carolina Teachers College, attracted last night an audience which packed the Austin auditorium and left standing room only for late arrivals. The program of vocal and instrumental music, dancing, and acrobatics pleased more than 1500 people who were present and who applauded the numbers enthusiastically.

Honors for the best performance of the evening went to a men's quartet composed of Francis Gay of Raleigh, Robert Odum of Greenville, Charles C. Self of Greensboro, and Robert C. Selby of Dudley. An instrumental trio composed of Ernest Black and Bernard Ham of Portsmouth, Va., and Malcolm Wester of Goldsboro won second place with the selection "When I Grow Too Old To Dream," and Allison Hearne of Greenville and Patricia Vaughan of Tarboro shared honors for third place.

The show was sponsored by the Community Recreation Class of the department of health and physical education taught by Dr. Charles DeShaw. Eli Bloom, Greenville attorney, acted as master of ceremonies. Judges were Dr. Richard C. Todd and Dr. Austin D. Bond of the college faculty and Hogan Watkins, Greenville senior.

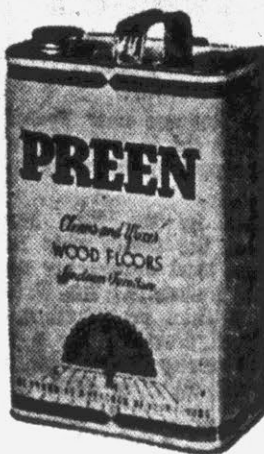

Thomas R. Swain of Durham acted as chairman of the committee which arranged the events of Amateur Night. Robert Klutz of Dudley was program chairman. Others who assisted with planning and staging the show included Henry T. Hood of Waccamaw, Jack Britt of Fairmont, and Cecil Winslow of Hertford.

Among special numbers on the program for the evening was a guest appearance of the Men's Glee Club of the college, recently organized under the direction of Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of the department of music. The group of approximately fifty men students gave its first program at Amateur Night.

The United States flag did not get its finishing touches until 1912 when the last two stars, representing Arizona and New Mexico, were added.

Old-fashioned, time-honored but still "tops" is Wilson's delicious "Certified" Pure Pork Sausage with apple slices. Our flavorful sausage is an appetite tempter at any meal. Long a breakfast favorite, it comes nobly to the dinner table, too!

Apple slices afford the perfect contrast in color, flavor and texture to set off those luscious, juicy-browned, Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage Patties. Be sure to ask for "Certified"—the finest money can buy!

So Tempting!

IT'S THE SAUSAGE SEASONING!

Elite Sausage Apples are a delightful dinner time treat of choice, protein-rich pork, finely ground, and seasoned just right to be tantalizingly good!

ELITE SAUSAGE APPLES

Just to be festive choose:

1 or 2 Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage Rolls*

Shape into patties at least one-half inch thick and slightly larger around than the apple slices to be used. (Allow a one pound sausage roll to serve 4.) Cook slowly on top of stove in a heavy skillet turning often, draining off and saving the flavorful drippings as they collect. It will take about 20 minutes cooking to thoroughly cook sausage to a nice rich brown.

Cook slowly. Place browned patties between 2 apple rings (or half apples if apples are small ones) which have been simmered tender and clear in sugar syrup (1 cup sugar to 1½ cups water). As you serve, garnish with mint if possible.

*If you are using Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage Links, brown 1 link for each cooked apple slice. Sandwich 2 links between every 2 apple slices, and serve hot.

These drippings are fine for frying and cooking.

Mrs. Truman And Perle Mesta Enjoyed Musical

New York, Oct. 26—(AP)—Mrs. Harry S. Truman, Miss Margaret Truman and Mrs. Perle Mesta enjoyed a number of personal chuckles together at yesterday's matinee of the musical "Call Me Madam."

Mrs. Mesta is American minister to the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. The show's star, Ethel Merman, cavorts as the American woman ambassador to the mythical Duchy of Lichtenberg.

There's a singing line in that show that runs "Harry won't get out—he's got squatters' rights."

Mrs. Truman's shoulders shook with laughter.

Talking on the phone to "Harry," Miss Merman remarked she had "wonderful news—Margaret got a notice."

Miss Truman, a singer, laughed out loud.

As for Mrs. Mesta, the play bears quite some resemblance to her real-life diplomatic role. "She's a wonderful actress," was Mrs. Mesta's only comment at intermission.

Strength for the Day

AT THE BEGINNING
Psychiatrists today frequently complain that their patients are afflicted with a sense of guilt.
As a matter of fact, this sense of guilt is evidence that the patient is trying to cure. This guilt is the first step in the direction of repentance, and repentance is that purging of the soul which is necessary before one starts to live a full and purposeful life. A neurotic person, therefore, overcomes by a sense of guilt, is simply stalled or bogged down in his attempt to achieve a full and healthy personality.
So if you are filled with a sense of guilt about some particular matter, or about your life in general, just be sure that your face is at least turned in the right direction. A sense of guilt is not unwholesome unless one remains in that mood. Let it be a springboard, a beachhead—anything you want to call it, provided it means pushing forward to a wholesome and purposeful objective.
Realization of guilt is the first step toward the correction of a disordered personality. The full correction will be achieved through repentance and faith.

Another Milestone Of Progress

Another milestone has been reached in the Greenville tobacco market's selling over 60 million pounds of tobacco this season. The goal was set by the warehousemen and it has already been reached.
Greenville is continuing to grow and so is its tobacco market, both in the number of pounds of tobacco which is being sold, and the number of dollars being paid to farmers. The market so far this year has sold about five million pounds of tobacco more than it did last season, and it has paid out approximately $7,000,000 more than it did during the 1949 season.
The increase of both poundage and the prices on the Greenville market mean a great deal to the economy of Pitt county, and to the prosperity which the county is enjoying and will enjoy in the time to come.

Watch For The Mule Also

Pitt county drivers are bad enough under ordinary circumstances, but now another hazard has been added to the county's highway traffic... that of stray livestock.
During this season of the year when the farm mules are not being used to any great extent, there usually is an increase in the number of animals which manage to get free of their pens and roam the county's highways. During the past two days there have been reports of two highway accidents which were caused by stray mules. Although the accidents have not resulted in the deaths of any people, there has been extensive damage to the vehicles involved, and two mules killed and another injured. The loss of the mules in itself represents no small loss in the term of property damage.
The farmers of the county would be protecting their own property as well as the lives of the people who travel the highways if they will take time to see that their stable lots are in good condition to keep in the livestock. On the other hand, the motorists must be on the alert for this new highway hazard which has become a major problem in the past weeks.

Make The Punishment Fit The Crime

Russia's proposal to classify the use of atomic bombs as the greatest crime against humanity sounds typical of the Red propaganda which the people of the world have heard since the close of World War II.
Russia would have the United Nations brand as a war criminal the first government which ordered the use of the atomic bomb.
The Reflector agrees with the viewpoint expressed by Australian Delegate Percy C. Spender, who contends that aggression is the greatest of crimes against humanity and that the use of the atomic bomb to repel aggression should be recognized as justified.
All of the people fear the use of the atomic bomb because of its recognized destructive power and its lasting after-effects. There can be no question about the death, destruction and suffering the bomb will cause if it is again put to use in warfare. Nevertheless, from a practical military point of view, the A-bomb has a limited number of uses. It should be effective against industrial targets and against large concentrations of military personnel and equipment. Otherwise the expense of the bomb itself would hardly justify its use against lesser targets.

The crime of aggression is the crime which should be punished. A nation which is beset by an enemy and has to fight for its very existence should not be questioned in its decision to use the atomic bomb if necessary to maintain its freedom and independence against the hordes of the aggressor.

If a nation fears the use of the atomic bomb, it should not send its armies on a mission of aggression. The nations which would be aggressors should expect to pay the price for their greatest crimes.

While a feasible plan for a partial international disarmament is desirable, the Russian proposal appears to be another hoax designed to entice free people to drop their guard and make them easier prey for the communist plan for dominating the world.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—An apparent revolt on the agricultural front menaces Democratic candidates for Congress, and casts a shadow over President Truman's 1952 reelection chances. The uprising is especially impressive politically because it was Mr. Truman's unexpected triumph in the farm area which enabled him to defeat Governor Thomas E. Dewey two years ago.

The twin issues behind the prospective desertion of the Administration are Communism and Brannanism. Although the principal seat of disaffection is Henry Wallace's state of Iowa, repercussions may endanger the Democrats in such places as Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Colorado and California. Although not so violently, the same questions agitate the voters in those states.

PLEDGE—Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire lighted the political flames on the prairies when he charged on the Senate floor that the National Farmers' Union had fallen under the domination of Moscow-minded fellow-travelers, if not outright Communists, and that they controlled the organization's major policies.
Mr. Bridges cited as partial proof the fact that the Iowa Farm Union, a branch of the national body, had endorsed the Stockholm Peace Pledge, which is the Kremlin's counterattack against all our program of European aid and rearmament. He also noted that the National Farmers' Union was an annex of the Democratic National Committee, and that President James G. Patton was a regular White House conferee.
As the CIO has supplanted the Truman-Boyle political organization in such states as Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, providing funds, literature and speakers for reelection of Democratic Congressmen, the Farmers' Union performs the same task in agricultural regions, according to Mr. Bridges.

MOVED—Mr. Bridges did not brand President Patton as a leftist, but he did maintain that he had made no effort to purge his organization of Communist officials and influence. Mr. Patton denied the allegations, but he immediately moved to offset the Yankee Senator's arraignment.

Although he had never tried to chastise or eliminate the left-wingers after the speech, and demanded hurriedly to Iowa after the speech, and demanded that Fred Stover, head of the Iowa branch, be kicked out. Mr. Patton was deeply concerned over the Iowa situation because the Democrats' senatorial nominee is Albert P. Loveland, former Under Secretary of Agriculture. He opposes Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper.

Mr. Loveland was expected to be the Administration's star performer in the agricultural section, and his fate to be a test of farm sentiment toward the Brannan, two-price program. As Secretary Brannan's No. 1 aide, he had been an enthusiastic supporter of the scheme, which also happens to be the Farmers' Union's "baby."

STUCK—Mr. Patton failed utterly in his attempt to oust Leftist Stover. The Iowa group stuck by the alleged pro-Moscow sympathizer, who is one of the leaders of the Progressive Party. He has remained with this avowed Communist organization, even though Henry Wallace resigned because of its opposition to U.S. policy in Korea.

Mr. Patton hopes to unseat Mr. Stover before the election, although without much chance of success. For this revelation of the truth of the Bridges charges is said to have led Iowa farmers to desert Mr. Loveland because of the pro-Moscow leanings of his principal political supporters.

The Democrats had anticipated an easy victory over Senator Hickenlooper because of his failure to prove his case against David E. Lilienthal, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Truman carried the state by 29,000 in 1948. But current betting favors the incumbent. Naturally, the Republicans are highlighting the Stover-Loveland alliance, with its ideological implications, in every embattled farm state.

FOOD—Mr. Loveland has been forced to repudiate the Administration's farm program and his own official attitude in order to combat growing hostility. Like Senator Lucas in Illinois, Monroney in Oklahoma and numerous other Democratic nominees, he finds many major Truman policies unpopular back home.

"We can't live forever," he tells startled farm groups, "with a farm program that keeps meat, milk, dairy and poultry products stored in caves away from the people. Supporting prices of perishables worked during the war, when we were guaranteeing industry it would not lose its shirt in war production."

"Now we're piled up between $25,000,000 and $350,000,000 worth of government-purchased meat, milk and eggs, taken off the market to sustain the price. We can't live forever with a program like that. We must make available to the people, in one way or another, this supply of food."

Although Mr. Loveland never mentions the Brannan plan by name, he endorses the general principle of letting prices fall under the law of supply and demand, and compensating the farmers for losses with government payments.

SCOTLAND NECK, N.C., COMMONWEALTH: "The Department of the Interior is insisting on competing with the Virginia Electric and Power Company for the right to build a dam across the Roanoke River at Roanoke Rapids. Here is a definite attempt on the part of the government to be one of the players instead of being willing to sit back on the sidelines and control the rate situation for the benefit of the people."

DILLON, S.C., HERALD: "If the American way of living is not the best, no other nation has been able to prove it."

First In Line At The Box Office

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Of all the radio programs on the air, it's hard to beat a capable sportscaster doing a play-by-play of an interesting game. By the same token, there's nothing worse than a sorry one.

In our state a good example of a capable sportscaster is Jim Reid of Radio Station WPTF in Raleigh. Saturday before last wife Rachel and I listened to Jim at intervals while watching the Carolina-Wake Forest game in Kenan Stadium. A nearby fan saw I had a portable radio and quite naturally assumed that I was listening to the State-Duke game, since we were watching Wake Forest-Carolina. When I told him I was tuned to the game at Carolina, he gave me that "you're crazy" look.

The sportscaster from the press box can always see better than a spectator who's sitting low at one end of the field, plus the fact that he's trained to pick out the key blocks and tackles, which some spectators miss.

During the game on that Saturday Jim Reid pulled a trick which is a common practice among sportscasters. During a station break Carolina ran a play from scrimmage. When Jim came back on the air, he announced the play just as if it were happening at that moment, when actually the team was huddled for the next play.

My vote for radio's most colorful sportscaster goes to Bill Stern, sports director of the National Broadcasting Company. On a key play of one of Notre Dame's games, Bill described the beginning of a touchdown. Sitko was carrying the ball, he said, but realized half way during the play that it was not Sitko at all. Instead of admitting his mistake, he excitedly said that Sitko had lateraled the ball to another back—the man who had the ball all along.

Aside from covering athletic events, Bill Stern has a Friday night show on NBC called the Colgate Sports Newsweek, which consists of yarns Stern spins about sports events and personalities.

Typical of Bill's stories is the one about a student at Georgetown who was no great football player, but whose personality served as a morale booster for the whole team. Coach Lou Little liked the boy and when his team was ahead Lou would put him in near the end of the game. Lou noticed that the boy walked arm in arm with his father on the campus, and admired him for his devotion to his father.

During this particular season the boy's father died. A few days after the funeral the boy was back to school, in time for the game of the year, against Fordham. "Coach," he said, "I want to start the game against Fordham. I think that's what my father would have liked most." The coach replied, "OK, son, you'll start, but you'll only be in there for a play or two. You aren't quite good enough, and you know it."

Lou started the boy; in fact, he never took him out. Lou had never seen such an inspired player—he led the team to victory. After the game, Lou commended the boy, who explained: "Coach, remember how my father and I used to go about arm in arm? My father was totally blind. This afternoon was the first time he ever saw me play." And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau

By LYNN MISBET

Raleigh, N. C.

DIFFERENT—It has been noted that while the routine is very much the same, there is something different at each of the congressional district Democratic rallies.

The fourth district meeting at Raleigh had its contribution to these differences. It was the first one Governor Scott has missed, and the first at which every member of the council of state was present. The governor was making some speeches in the western part of the state. Fact that the rally was held a few blocks from the capital permitted state officials who otherwise could not have gotten away to keep office appointments until meeting time and then join their fellow Democrats at Wake county courthouse.

OTHERS—There were still other firsts. Mrs. D. A. McCormick, vice chairman, returned from Europe just in time for the state executive committee meeting Saturday and this was the first district rally she had attended. Representative Harold Cooley was late and the rally did not get underway until 20 minutes after scheduled time while waiting for the congressman to visit a soda shop. When it did get started it moved swiftly and smoothly and was perhaps the shortest of the ten rallies held to date.

ATTENDANCE—Fewer than average number of people attended, and if there had not been for some state officials and employees from other districts, the audience would have been much smaller. Every county was represented, but Wilbur Bunn of Wake, who was host to the affair, was the only county chairman to answer the roll call.

WOMEN—Women officials had better attendance record than the men, and percentage of women in the audience was higher than usual. Mrs. B. B. Everett, who has carried the burden of the campaign in absence of Mrs. McCormick, handled that part of the program here and is scheduled to complete the itinerary of district meetings by carrying through at Reidsville and Greensboro. Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. C. M. Meakin added their pleas for fuller participation of women in politics.

JURY—Senator-nominate Willis Smith was on home ground and he referred to numerous jury speeches he had made in this court house. Then he turned to the jury box, observed the twelve men sitting there and said he was glad he didn't have to depend on that jury, because he was sure they would never reach an agreement. The "jury" had among its members Jonathan Daniels, Thad Eure, Leroy Martin, and Baxter Durham.

COOLEY—Congressman Cooley reported on observations and experiences during his recent trip to Ireland and the middle east. He said he was surprised and disappointed that among the delegates representing 36 nations at the Dublin conference, only the Philippine delegate had a kind word for the United States. To the contrary, spokesmen for Middle Eastern countries pointed accusing fingers at the United States with the statement that no nation had a moral right to destroy food while millions of human beings were starving. Some what facetiously he said he had never thought he would have to defend the American farm program in Dublin. (As ranking member and chairman of the agriculture committee Cooley has had large part in farm legislation for many years.)

What Other Papers Are Thinking

HOARDING COAL (New Bern Sun-Journal)
Hoarding has been roundly condemned by the press of the nation. But, as a Chicago Daily News editorial points out, there is one exception to the rule—coal. "Hoarding" coal now will actually increase, not decrease, the available supply.

Coal is one item that can be stocked to the limit of storage capacity, while the industry can perform maximum service to the nation at the same time, the Industrial News Review explains. The explanation is simple. The industry can produce only as fast as the nation's transportation facilities can move the produce away. In winter, heavy demand, weather conditions and other such factors intensify the lead on all carriers. Consequently, the stocking of coal now by all types of users will make it easier for the coal industry to provide us with all the coal we need, and of the quality we need.

Coal is plentiful. However, stockpiles throughout the country are now only about half as large as they were in 1942. In some cases, coal may be called upon to fill part of the needs usually met by other fuels. In any event, the part of wisdom is to fill bins before the heavy winter demand puts in an appearance. The American coal industry is the most efficient in the world. Due to mechanization and advanced methods, the individual minor can produce much more each shift than his foreign counterpart—and, in return, receive a wage that would seem unbelievable abroad. The industry is the bulwark to the economy in peace—and a source of national strength in war.

UNFOUNDED IS IT? (Williamston Enterprise)

Spokesmen for the National Association of Manufacturers say the proposed excess profits tax is unsound. That's a kind of tax little folks know little about, but they do know about payroll taxes that are taxing food out of their children's mouths. And they are of the opinion that payroll taxes are just as unsound as excess profits taxes but for some reason, payroll taxes exist and excess profits taxes do not exist.

The association says, in part, "One of the vicious elements in an excess profits tax is that it hampers the growth of new and small business."

Now, that is really a good one. It is one of those rare occasions where that organization ever offered to cry over the welfare of small business. But the old gang will throw up any old curtain to protect itself from public view.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Revived proposals for a manufacturers' excise tax have brought forth diametrically opposite views from two business groups. A National Retail Dry Goods Association committee has emphatically disapproved such a tax, while the Mail Order Association of America prefers such a tax to an excise tax at retail.

Under a manufacturers' excise tax, a uniform tax would be levied as the manufacturer sold the article. It has usually been proposed as a substitute for the current excise tax on furs, jewelry, luggage, etc.

From a governmental point of view, a tax at the manufacturers' level has several points to recommend it. The government gets its money earlier, it deals with fewer non-paid tax collectors, and it collects even if the article is never sold.

Mail-order men prefer a manufacturers' excise tax to a sales tax because the latter complicates the work of compiling catalogs and because the tax, starting the buyer in the face along with the price, retards sales.

On the other side of the question, NRDA sums up its objections thusly:

1. Retailers would in all probability not want to be placed in the position of taking a mark on the tax added to their cost, which would result in cutting the purchasing power of the consumer.
 2. It is a regressive tax falling hardest on the lower and middle income groups and therefore inequitable.
 3. It is a hidden tax; thus the consumer is unaware of the fact that he is paying it.
 4. Accordingly, it will be much more difficult to repeal such a tax if the time should be propitious, and it would, as a result, become a permanent feature of our tax law.
- It is the probability of markons which concern the consumer. In normal merchandising practice, a percentage is added to his cost by the wholesaler and the retailer, and a manufacturers' tax would be as much of the cost of an article as the materials and labor that go into it. Thus, by the time an article reached the consumer, the consumer would be paying $1.40, $1.60 or more for each dollar in tax.

Some retailers might try to compute markons on a basis of cost price less taxes, but they would be soon engulfed in complicated calculations. In the liquor business, both state monopolies and private retailers calculate markons on actual cost without trying to separate taxes from profits.

TOWN WON'T ACCEPT

When zinc ore near Franklin, N. J., runs out in 1953, the town doesn't expect to become a ghost town.

Warned by the New Jersey Zinc Co., the town's only large employer, local dealers are seeking new industries. It's already signed a shirt manufacturer to a contract providing for a new plant to employ 200 persons, and is working on c. or deals.

Hal Boyle's Column

Seoul, Korea—(AP)—Letter to Frances:

Start dusting out the kitchen right now and shove our twin beds and the radio into that beautiful room. Fill up the icebox. Stock the pantry with all the wonderful foods in the world. Put in a direct telephone line to the grocery store. And you'd better get down that beaten up old textbook on cooking you salvaged from college.

Thank heavens, they taught you more about cooking than about international law and the history of early Roman band instruments.

For you and I are going to live in our kitchen the entire first month after I get back from Korea. We are going to explore that cookbook page by page and menu by menu. I'll phone the grocer and say:

"Just send over everything you've got on your first shelf today. Tomorrow send over everything on the second shelf. The next day send over everything on the third shelf. And when you run out of shelves just let me know."

All you'll have to do is cook—I promise. Never mind about the dishes. When they get dirty I'll lie in bed and sail them out the windows at the pigeons—and buy you some more.

This may sound like a pretty dull postwar honeymoon to you. But later we can go to Bermuda, Florida, Shangri-La or Sheephead Bay. First I want a chance to get as tired of homecooked food as I now am of canned army chow.

That is a major ambition right now with many American troops over here. And that is a good sign that the shooting is about over in Korea—the big shooting I mean. For there's an old army saying that a war is won when the soldiers spend more time griping about their chow than worrying about their personal safety.

The American army has lived up again to its boast that its troops are the best fed in the world. Its field ration in the Korean campaign had more variety than in the last World War. But unlike in Europe there weren't so many cows around to provide fresh meat for the boys by walking suicidally in front of a cook's rifle. And because of the lack of sanitation the army was hesitant to use many native fresh grown vegetables.

That probably avoided any large epidemic. But it has a lot of mess sergeants going around now with hurt looks. Because no matter how much nutrition or vitamins are built into a can, the customers get tired of reading the same old labels after more than three months. And some have been unkind enough to imply that the mess sergeants simply empty the cans in the daytime and then fill them up again at night.

One veteran says the government ought to issue fresh stonachs each time it asks a soldier to fight in another war. And a middle aged lieutenant colonel complained the other day:

"Army chow is all right to fight on—but nobody was ever meant to live on it."

Everyone is talking about what he wants for his first big meal when he gets home. Naturally most want fried chicken or a half-foot thick steak so tender it will melt if you just frown at it. But I want an All-American meal, and I want it ready the moment I step in the front door. Here's what you do:

Mash up a bucket of Idaho potatoes. Fry three of the prettiest feathered chickens in New Jersey. Poach four dozen gleaming white Connecticut eggs. Ice and crack open a peck of Chesapeake Bay oysters. Peel five pounds of New Orleans shrimp and an overgrown Maine lobster.

Broil half a Kansas steer and barbecue a side of pork from Iowa. Bake a bushel of great red Washington apples. Freeze a tubful of vanilla ice cream, melt down a Wisconsin cheese and stew a gallon of rice in Maryland tomatoes.

Slide me a lard bucketful of fresh fruit salad—with Oregon pears, California oranges, Arizona avocados, Texas grapefruit—and dripping with Florida lemon juice. Toss me another lard bucketful of all the wonderful fresh leafy vegetables that grow in America.

Now take all this and have the janitor help you dump it in the bathtub. Pour in five gallons of cold Vermont milk. Then go away and let me alone for five hours.

That's the kind of meal I want to level in. I want to take off my clothes, climb into the bathtub and lie in it. I want to rub it under my arms and into my hair. I want to squish it between my toes. I want to feel what real food is like. And after that you can give me any old snack left in the refrigerator and I won't mind.

If all this sounds a little crazy, dear, it may be because I just came back from chow. Yes, we had Vienna sausages again.

Your loving husband, Harold.

Washington Letter

By FRANK CAREY
(For Jane Eads)

Washington—The "sun furnace"—hot enough to make a fire brick boil like butter on a griddle—is one of the newest tools of science.

Such a device—employing the radiant energy of the sun to produce high temperatures in a small area—is being used in Navy-sponsored research at Rockhurst College, Kansas City, Mo. Essentially the instrument consists of a huge mirror which traps the sun's rays and focuses them on an object.

One objective of the studies is to develop new materials able to withstand very high temperatures under various conditions. The sun furnace can produce temperatures of at least 4,000 degrees (the temperature at which fire brick will melt)—and Rockhurst scientists say the upper limit remains to be determined.

Dr. William Conn of Rockhurst has reported to the Office of Naval Research (ONR) that there are many advantages of a sun furnace.

Substances can be heated under very pure conditions. They also can be heated with great speed. For example, a temperature of 3,000 degrees is reached in 10 seconds. Also, a variety of experimental conditions is available.

At Rockhurst, mirrors of various sizes have been employed, the largest 120 inches in diameter. Any mirror used is mounted on an axis parallel to the axis of the earth. An automatic mechanism turns the mirror so that it tracks the sun along its path in the sky.

The researchers report that they've been able to melt, by solar energy, all solid materials which can be heated in air—without burning up—including so-called "super-refractories" like porcelain.

They also produced "many glasses and well-developed crystals of exceptional hardness."

Furlough For Servicemen Is Out Of Red Cross Hands

Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, executive secretary and home service officer of this Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has asked that the public be informed that the Red Cross does not have the authority to grant furloughs and leaves of servicemen in the battle areas of Korea. She said that she has had several inquiries by wives or mothers of servicemen who are serving in Korea whether they could get a furlough for their respective husbands or sons. "There is a mistaken idea that Red Cross applies for furloughs for men in the armed forces so they can come home to be at the bedside of an ill member of the family. It is true that in many cases furloughs will be granted or rejected on the basis of the information provided the commanding officer through the Red Cross, but the final decision rests upon the discretion of the commanding officer of the serviceman and not upon the Red Cross. Information received from the Red Cross will have been obtained through the efforts of the home town chapter, from the family physician, and/or others. This information will be necessary for the commanding officer to consider in making a fair and honest decision."

Mrs. Taylor stressed that beyond supplying the reporting service, and in some cases assisting the service

N. C. Employment So Good Some Will Lose Jobs

Raleigh, N.C., Oct. 26—(AP)—Employment is at such a high level in North Carolina now that some workers at the Employment Security Commission are going to lose their jobs.

This was revealed today by Commission Chairman Henry E. Kendall. "Due to budget curtailment and sharp reduction in claims loan in the central office, 32 employees of the commission have been given notice that their services will end at the end of this month," said Kendall.

He added that efforts are being made to place the workers in local ESC offices and in other jobs.

Gunmen Try Duplicate Oldtime Stage Robbery, But Driven Off

N. C. Agriculture Is Program Topic

"Prophesy of Plenty," a documentary radio program on the state's agricultural resources, will be broadcast over Station WGIC at 10:15 a.m. Saturday as a part of the Series "The Silent Siren," according to County Agent S. C. Winchester, member of the county radio committee.

This program, produced by the North Carolina Department of Agriculture under the leadership of Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, is the first of two programs on Agriculture. "No Sale" is the title of next week's program to be given at the same time over the station.

"Prophesy of Plenty" presents a panoramic view of the development of North Carolina as an agricultural state. Many Tar Heels will be surprised to learn that North Carolina is lagging in its production and marketing potentialities. The state was an early leader in agricultural production. It now stands fourteenth. The present lag is less cause for alarm than it is opportunity for a far-reaching program of reform, according to the Department of Agriculture and the sponsor of this Series, the North Carolina Resource-Use Education Commission.

This program will help farmers set the stage for an action program for any county in North Carolina and help them to realize a greater income from the land, our most important natural resource.

"Darn right I was scared," said Eugene Coatney, the 25-year-old driver of the truck.

"It was about 7:30," he related. "I guess I was going about 25 or 30 miles an hour down grade when this big Cadillac pulled alongside me. There were three men in it. A guy in the front seat pointed a gun at me and told me to pull over."

"I speeded up and got ahead of them for a little ways. Then they fired two shots. They struck right behind the door in the bed of the truck."

Construction In N. C. Shows Drop

Raleigh, Oct. 26—(AP)—Building construction in North Carolina dipped to a seven-month low last month.

The State Labor Department reported September's construction work totaled $8,950,141 in a monthly report released yesterday. This figure compares with $16,300,000 for August's record-breaking total.

The building level is expected to remain on a low level because of the more stringent credit restrictions recently put into effect by the government.

September's total included $4,911,845 spent for building 600 new houses and apartments at an average estimated cost of $7,443 each. The number of dwellings authorized was 33 per cent under the August figure while the estimated construction cost was up 5.5 per cent.

Non-residential building totaled $3,950,184 last month while additions, alterations and repairs amounted to $977,210.

my shots hit the trunk of the car. Another broke the rear glass. I guess the other one went wild."

Coatney, who served three years in the South Pacific in World War II, has been driving the truck, a contract carrier for the past two months. The truck picks up mail at Gunnison and Montrose and takes it to Salida for delivery to trains.

Big Demand For Beef Exceeding

Washington—(AP)—U. S. prosperity still produces a strong demand for beef. But the supply has not kept up with the demand, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Main cause, the department says, is the fact that it takes a long time to build up a breeding herd to produce more beef. Many growers are now building up their herds. To do it they must hold back calves that might be sold for beef to add to those herds. Thus, their attempts to get more beef actually reduce the supply.

The department thinks it will be many months before supplies in the United States are adequate.

Names Date His Herd Of Cattle

Champaign, Ill.—(AP)—C. S. Rhode, University of Illinois dairyman, offers cattlemen an easy way to remember the age of their cows.

His formula is to call all calves born in one year with names starting with the same letter—Alice, Timmer for all heifers born in 1950; Bonnie, Barbara, Belle for those born in 1951. And so on down the alphabet and through 1975.

New York Trade Center Thriving

New York—(AP)—International commerce and travel by sea and by air is thriving in New York. Customs officials reported $21,740,907 in revenue from duty and other trade charges at New York for September. The figure for September, 1949, was $13,667,683.

They listed 105,506 passengers arriving from and 60,223 going abroad during the month, and compared this to 91,706 arrivals and 52,826 departures in September last year. This September more passengers, 36,386, flew abroad by plane than sailed by ship, 28,192.

First American School In Iceland

Reykjavik, Iceland—(AP)—With two teachers already arrived from the United States, the first American school in Iceland will open at Keflavik airport this winter.

There are now between 500 and 600 Americans in Iceland, and with improved living quarters available more and more of them are bringing their families in. One hundred and four children are living with their parents at the airport, most of them of American parentage but a few of American-Icelandic parentage, since several Americans employed at the field have married Icelandic girls.

Now that the school has been established, it is anticipated that more families will be brought to Iceland.

Story Of Human Pain Remains Big Mystery

PAIN! — Still a Mystery

By EDWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

New York—The mystery of pain is explained in a new book "Principles of Internal Medicine." (Blakiston Co., Philadelphia). It tells the entire story of medicine almost wholly in language that even a doctor must read slowly to understand.

The pain section is much clearer to laymen, possibly because even today scientists know little about pain.

The book says that the nerves that carry pain are different from those conducting cold, touch and pressure. Exactly what these pain nerves are is not known. They may not even be special nerves, but some sort of a combination.

At least two pain-nerve pathways are identified. One carries "bright, pricking" pain that is likely to make you limp.

This pain travels through some of the thick nerve fibers. When you burn your skin the pain is carried by a different set of nerves. They are smaller and they carry the pain sensation more slowly. The differences in speed are small fractions of seconds only.

This dual pathway for pain does not tell much of the puzzle, because each nerve is made of two thousand fibers.

Pain is due in part to the kind of tissues and their arrangement. What would cause pain on your skin does not hurt intestine or the membranes that hold them.

A cut in a muscle does not cause much pain. But strong solutions getting into muscles, for example in a hypodermic, cause severe pain. Muscles are most likely to hurt when they are rigid, a condition that doctors call spasm or cramps.

Arteries and veins, but particularly arteries, may find needle punctures very painful.

One of the worst pains of all, from the heart condition known as angina pectoris, is a sensation of aching and burning, which doesn't stop for even an instant. It is due to lack of enough oxygen in heart muscles.

Finally there are emotions. Most pain is partly emotional. The emotions are apt to make it hurt worse.

Scott Emphatic In Denying Any Political Plans

Charlotte, Oct. 26—(AP)—Governor W. Kerr Scott says: "I'm going back to the farm and stay there."

He added emphatically that he will not be a candidate for United States Senator or any other public office after he leaves the Governor's chair in early 1953.

"I have been in public life for 33 years and I believe that is enough."

The Governor told newsmen that he had no immediate new plans for the state, that "everything seems to be rocking along pretty good."

Scott was in Charlotte to address the State Board of Conservation and Development.

Grange Master Albert Goss Dies

New York, Oct. 26—(AP)—Albert S. Goss, 68, Master of the National Grange, collapsed and died last night shortly after addressing the 19th annual Herald Tribune Forum.

Goss, in his address, had pledged the aid of farmers to the national mobilization program with a proviso that reasonable prices be assured them.

A native of Rochester, N.Y., the farm organization leader lived in Washington, D.C., where he had appeared at many hearings to present Grange views on national farm policy.

He was a frequent visitor at the White House during both the Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

In 1933, President Roosevelt named Goss a land bank commissioner of the Farm Credit Administration, a post he held until 1940.

He became chairman of the executive committee of the National Grange in 1924 and later became master. His fifth two-year term as master would have expired Nov. 26, 1951.

During World War II he was a member of the labor-management committee of the War Manpower Commission, and was a member of the War Mobilization and Reconversion Advisory Board.

In Washington last night it was learned that Henry Sherwood of Pine Plains, N.Y., will become acting head of the Grange until a master is selected at the Grange's national convention opening in Minneapolis Nov. 15.

Hanoi Gets News Despite Censors

Hanoi, North Vietnam—(AP)—To find out what is happening around the corner, people here tune in BBC, London. French, Vietnamese and foreigners regularly depend on distant foreign broadcasts to pierce the local blackout on information imposed by the French army and Vietnamese government.

As Hanoi is nearly isolated and only 50 miles from the center of Vietnam resistance and 100 miles from Red China, people here grasp avidly at every bit of military news. Wild rumors sift rapidly through the city. Eventually word gets around how French military operations are going in the surrounding countryside despite efforts to block information when it is considered unfavorable.

Hanoi's newspapers—one French daily and four Vietnamese language dailies—must submit their copy beforehand to Vietnam government censors who wield a blue pencil with a heavy hand.

Isolated Monastery Can Look Back On 1400 Years

Mountain of Moses, Egypt—(AP)—Deep in the desert wilderness of the Sinai peninsula, some 40 Christian monks are carrying on a 1,400 year tradition of quiet worship in one of the oldest and strangest monasteries in the world.

They are Greek Orthodox monks of the rule of St. Basil. The weather-worn monastery of St. Catherine in which they live is built around the spot where God is believed to have spoken to Moses from a burning bush.

The ancient monastery, built like a Roman fortress, was built around the "chapel of the burning bush" about 545 A.D.

The chapel itself is believed to have been erected about 337 A.D.

by St. Helena, mother of Emperor Constantine the Great.

Pilgrims have traveled the desert route to this isolated monastery for centuries. The trip is not an easy one, however, and there are few visitors.

The monastery was one of the chief centers of Christian pilgrimage during the time of the crusades. Crusader's coats-of-arms are engraved on the medieval masonry, along with inscriptions in Greek, Latin, Arabic and Russian.

The great Moslem prophet, Mohammed, is said to have granted the Christian monks a covenant whereby their lives and property were secure under Moslem rule.

The monastery library is a treasure-trove of thousands of ancient and valuable manuscripts.

Another Month For Reserves To Get Orderly Call

Washington, Oct. 26—(AP)—It may be a month or more before reservists gain the full benefits of the "orderly" call-up procedure laid down by Secretary of Defense Marshall.

Defense officials said today that until the three services perfect their machinery to carry out the new system, reservists may be called to active duty on one month's notice.

The minimum 30-day notice was the only part of General Marshall's directive that took effect immediately upon issuance Monday, defense spokesmen said. They added that this was actually being granted already in most cases.

Officers of the army, navy and air force also interpreted the new policy to mean that reservists who have taken their physical examinations but have not yet reported for duty will be required to go ahead on schedule, if their service says they are needed.

Defense spokesmen estimated that it would take about two months for the armed forces to work out details of the broad policy laid down by Marshall.

This policy orders each service to revise its reserve list, combining out those who are unlikely to be available for active duty because of age, health or employment in key or critical positions.

Each service was also ordered to estimate its manpower needs six months in advance. Once the revised lists and manpower schedules are ready, the services will be able to carry out that part of the directive which provides a minimum of four months between the time a reservist is told he may be called and the time he is definitely ordered to report.

The reservist will actually have a minimum of five months warning, because the new policy provides that he must be given one month in which to settle his personal affairs after he receives firm orders to report.

Asks Emotion In Writing Stories

Winnipeg—(AP)—Canadian authors do not express enough emotion in their stories, says Mrs. Margaret Lee, herself a writer and secretary of the Manitoba branch of the Canadian Authors Association.

Mrs. Lee, who writes under the pen-name Madge Ford, attributes this failing to a tendency toward the English style.

"Most Canadians sell their good manuscripts to American markets and they should write accordingly. Americans have a freer manner of expression," she says.

Postal Deadline

Washington—(AP)—Christmas deadlines for service folks are almost here, the U.S. Post Office Department warns. To reach those in Japan and Korea packages should be mailed by Nov. 1. For other remote areas by Nov. 15.

Air mail at 90 cents a pound might get there if mailed later. But for usual mailings the post-office won't give you much hope after the deadline.

Usual parcel post limits are in force. Maximum weight is 20 pounds. Length and girth combined should not be more than 100 inches. And they should be well packed and wrapped. They have a long way to go.

Father Held In Death Of Infant

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 26—(AP)—David L. Butler, 25-year-old Air Force sergeant from Florence, S.C., was in jail today after police said he admitted abusing his month-old son two weeks before he died.

Detective Capt. Lewis Miller said no charges had been placed against Butler pending completion of the investigation and receipt of an autopsy report.

The child, John Edward Butler, died Friday at Concord, N.C., home of Butler's wife. Dr. F. R. Adams treated the baby at Concord and said he was suffering from broken ribs, a brain hemorrhage and a throat injury.

Miller said Butler, stationed at Maxwell Air Base here, admitted he "mashed" the child's head and body and stuck his finger down the infant's throat about Oct. 7.

The detective said Butler, a six-foot, 150-pounder, insisted he didn't know why he did it.

Nervous and needing a shave, Butler interrupted his questioning several times to ask for a razor so he could shave, Miller said. He finally got his shave, the detective added, while another officer watched him.

Hospital records show the child was treated here from Oct. 7-12. The Butlers have another son, Miller said, who is three years old.

India Preparing Citizenship Law

New Delhi, India—(AP)—Acquisition of citizenship in India and its disownment by Indians overseas will form part of a bill to be introduced in the budget session of Parliament early next year. The bill will cover acquisition of Indian citizenship by three processes: Decent and birth, naturalization and registration.

Persons born in India or who attained the age of 21 after inauguration of the constitution on Jan. 26, 1950, will acquire Indian citizenship automatically. Certain categories of migrants from Pakistan after the qualifying period also will become Indian citizens automatically by naturalization.

Non-Indian wives of Indian citizens will have to register themselves to acquire their husbands' nationality.

Disowning of Indian citizenship by overseas Indians is intended for cases like Ceylon where Indian settlers will have to disown Indian citizenship before acquiring Ceylonese nationality.

The forerunner of the Stars and Stripes was the Grand Union Flag. To represent the unity of the 13 Colonies and their hope that reconciliation with Britain still was possible, this banner had on it the British Jack and 13 red and white stripes.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complaints of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 60 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Growing by Reading, Meditation ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Boggs

Scripture—Acts 17:10-15; Philippians 4:8-9; I Timothy 4:12-16; II Timothy 3:15; 4:13

Jealous Jews in Thessalonica had created an uproar when Paul and Silas preached in the synagogue, so the brethren sent them to Berea at night.

In Berea the Jews were more noble than those in Thessalonica, and received the word with readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily.

When the Thessalonian Jews heard that Paul was preaching in Berea, they came there also and stirred up trouble, so that Paul was sent to Athens.

Do the things ye have learned, received, heard and seen, Paul wrote the Philippians, and "God shall be with you."

MEMORY VERSE—Philippians 4:8.

Growing by Reading, Meditation

REFLECT ON "THINGS OF GOOD REPORT," SAID PAUL

Scriptures—Acts 17:10-15; Philippians 4:8-9; I Timothy 4:12-16; II Timothy 3:15; 4:13.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. HOW WE may grow in grace through good reading and meditation is the theme of our lesson today. Probably more people in the United States can read and write—in proportion to the population—than in any other country of comparable size.

This seems to have come about because printing was invented before the United States came into being as a nation. Persons in all walks of life in our country read. What we read, however, is more important than the number of books we peruse. When we are in trouble, we turn to the Bible and read passages like the 23rd Psalm, or other like verses, which remind us of the goodness of God and His help in time of trouble.

If we grow into the habit of reading the scriptures and meditating on them, we will be immeasurably helped in our daily living. Our thoughts have a wonderful influence on our daily conduct.

Books that stimulate thinking along high moral lines—"good literature"—should help us to be-re by night. In Berea, which was a city in Macedonia on the road to Thessalonica, he received more courteously, and there they "received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so."

Many believed, including "honorable women which were Greeks, and of men, not a few."

When the Thessalonian Jews heard of this, they came to Berea and stirred up the people there, so that the brethren sent Paul away again, and he sailed to Athens.

Writing to the Philippians while he was a prisoner in Rome, he sums up the fruits of reading and meditating on the scriptures.

"Finally, Brethren," he wrote: "whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

"These things, which ye have both learned, and received, and come better parents and teachers and our children to have high ideals.

There are many distractions for the average person in this modern world. The automobile which tempts us to go places—night-seeing and visiting friends; the radio, so many programs on which are given over to stories of crime and violence—but not all, of course. We get much good over the air. Now television, and the movies—which are not always elevating.

We must be selective in our looking and listening to these marvelous inventions of our age.

Our story starts with Paul leaving Thessalonica, where he had been preaching, teaching and reasoning with his hearers. Much good had been done, but the "Jews which believed not," the temple authorities, probably, who were envious, gathered together "fellows of baser sort" and got them to stir up the city. Not finding Paul, they took his host, Jason, into custody for a time. The brethren sent Paul to Be-heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you."

"Think on these things"—honesty, justice, purity, loveliness, and those of good report—"and try to live them, and truly 'the God of peace shall be with us.'"

To Timothy he wrote: "Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity."

"Meditate upon these things; give thyself wholly to them; that thy profiting may appear to all." And again to Timothy, in his second epistle, he wrote: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

One more word Paul wrote to his "beloved son," Timothy, asking him to bring to him "the cloak that I left at Troas with Carpus . . . and the book, especially the parchments."

Paul wanted to read these manuscripts and meditate on them, even as he prepared for death.

New House Of Commons Is Dedicated Today By King

London, Oct. 26.—(AP)—King George VI opened the new House of Commons building today, dedicating it "as a sign to the world of our faith in freedom."

The King spoke in Westminster Hall, another section of the great Palace in which Parliament meets, because one of the freedoms of the House of Commons—that of meeting without interference from the monarch, banned him from the building itself.

Crowds lined the railings outside the building.

Members of Parliament themselves began arriving before dawn. Two were waiting outside the building before big Ben struck six.

Speakers and presiding officers of 28 other Parliaments in the British Commonwealth of Nations attended. Ministers, members of Parliament and many "old grads," no longer members of Parliament but invited back for the day, had entered the chamber through a fire-blackened arch of battered stones.

It is called "Churchill Arch" as a memorial to the wartime Prime Minister and was built of stones salvaged from the wreckage of the old building, which was blitzed in 1941. After the session, crowds of lawmakers and their guests moved on to Westminster Hall to hear the King.

N. C. Fugitive Is On Loose Again

Birmingham, Oct. 26.—(AP)—James B. Wilson, a 140-pound fugitive from a North Carolina prison farm, slugged his way out of a train that was taking him back yesterday and escaped again.

Wilson, 30, was a convicted burglar. He escaped from a prison farm near Raleigh, N.C., about two months ago and was captured recently at Baton Rouge, La.

C. L. Miller, fugitive officer for the North Carolina State Prison Farm, was with Wilson on the train when it stopped here late yesterday. Miller said he unlocked Wilson's handcuffs so he could read a

Fighting Marine Reservists Pass Up Old Jests And Heroics Of Last War

By BEN PRICE

With U. S. First Marines off Korea, Oct. 24—(Delayed)—Marine reservists, now catching up with this war, have a grim little gripe among themselves.

It goes like this:

"Somebody ought to set up a system for the number of wars a guy has got to fight—say three wars to a man and then he can go home and pick up the pieces of his life."

That leaves one more war per man for most regulars and reservists alike. And with grunts of resignation you hear them talking of going to Indochina.

After President Truman promised material aid to the French in Indochina, and in view of the French defeats, the Marines are convinced that they will be in the jungle again shortly.

This is the first time in this war that I have been with the Marines. As an ex-Marine, myself, I can only sit and compare notes with the Marines I knew in World War II.

These are not the "gung ho" or hell-for-leather Marines of five years ago. Perhaps they are the deadlier fighters for it.

There is a grim realization that they have a job to do. And that they will do it with all the efficiency possible with the least loss of life to themselves.

War is not a subject of jest anymore.

They are perfectly aware that a man can expect to survive just so many battles. It is in their eyes and in their conversations.

The heroics of the last war are missing.

Perhaps the most moving of all changes is to be found in the ward-room of this ship, the USS Pickaway enroute to a bloodless landing near Moscow.

Under similar circumstances in the last war the conversation inevitably was of girls, girls, girls. With a little urging the Marines would haul out their pictures.

Now the pictures are of wives and children. But no longer are they flashed freely. These pictures are true in peace and which now perhaps are shattered.

The longing for home was deep in the last war. But it was overshadowed by the great adventure.

Now it is stepped for these men in bitterness. They now know that adventure is dirt and disease . . . and death.

As professional or semi-professional fighting men they realize that there is a job to do and they are doing it. But underneath there is a belief that they can not should not be expected to do it all the time.

There is considerable unhappiness among the reservists over the way many were shoved into combat without an opportunity to brush up on latest techniques and to get in physical condition.

Aboard this ship, with one battle already behind them, are men who, during the first week of August, were peaceful citizens thinking mostly of putting their kids in school.

There are men aboard this ship who arrived in camp one day and

Cooling Comfort For Wintertime

Minneapolis—(AP)—The problem of keeping comfortable this winter in one of proper cooling rather than heating, says Dr. Waldo Kilever, director of research of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company.

The human body is a heat machine constantly shedding extra heat to maintain an inner body temperature of 98.6 degrees, Dr. Kilever says. The body radiates heat to the surrounding walls more quickly as they become colder. More heat is therefore needed within the house to slow down the rate of cooling, he explains.

Lose Two Homes On Same Site

Eldred, Ill.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fullerton and their son, Paul, are wondering whether the third time's the charm or whether they should find a new home site.

Two years ago, a fire destroyed their home near this small southwestern Illinois town. They lived for several months in a tent until their new home was built. But it was destroyed by a fire, too.

Nehru By-Passes His Warning Bell

Lucknow, India—(AP)—A tiny bell sounded as Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru completed 30 minutes of an address before the Institute of Pacific Relations here.

The prime minister, with an embarrassed smile, shut off the alarm bell on his wrist watch. He had set it so he wouldn't speak too long.

Even so, it took him another ten minutes to conclude his speech.

Singapore—(AP)—Singapore police said they will not permit gun-packing "shadows" for wealthy citizens.

Rumors Say Trygve Lie And Stalin Had Quarrel

Lake Success, Oct. 26—(AP)—posals was for periodic high-level United Nations headquarters today discussions to settle outstanding differences in the Kremlin between Prime Minister Stalin and Trygve Lie led to Russia's vetoing of the bluff Norwegian as U.N. Secretary-General.

Lie spent a week in Moscow last May during a swing around the world's great capitals trying to sell a 10-point peace plan designed to solve East-West differences.

His trip was widely denounced in the United States as toadying to the Russians.

Exactly what happened when Lie met Stalin in the fastness of the Kremlin has been a closely guarded secret for more than five months.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik, however, let some of it out last night.

He told a closed meeting of the Security Council, gathered to try and agree on a new secretary general, that Lie had declined to adopt some amendments suggested by Stalin and Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov to the peace plan.

Malik said the Soviet leader wanted the changes to weaken what he called the "pro-American bias" of the plan. He did not explain how the plan showed such a western orientation nor what the amendments were. Key point of the pro-

Lie declined to comment on the revelation. He was reported to feel that Malik's remarks were made in a supposedly private meeting and were not intended for public distribution.

Another high U.N. official pointed out, however, that Lie had sent Stalin a copy of his proposals long in advance of the Moscow trip. The Soviet leader gave no indication they displeased him, this official said, but issued the official invitation for the journey.

He also declared that the plan sent to Moscow was merely a draft version and subject to change.

The disclosures of Stalin's differences with Lie came as the Security Council was deadlocked over voting him another term.

Rubber Trees Grow In New Jersey

AP Newsfeatures

PARAMUS, N. J. — Experiments in New Jersey are teaching planters in the Far East how to grow rubber trees. The greenhouses of the U. S. Rubber Company here are kept at temperatures like those in the tropics so that chemicals used to nourish the plants can do their stuff. What is learned about growth problems is passed on to the men who have charge of the company's big plantations in Malaya and Sumatra. Seeds and soil are shipped to the greenhouses from the same plantations. Experts seek earlier bearing trees with bigger yield, longer life for trees and less disease. Accurate measurements must be taken for the tests to be most effective. Hevea trees are found best, but others are tested in the laboratory.

SOIL from the tropics usually is poor. It is used in tests.

STERILE SAND is used too in tests for fertilizers.

INNOCULATION of roots is an important process.

DISTILLED water is used to keep chemicals pure.

COMPARISON—Results of the experimental work can be spectacular. All of these plants are nine months old.

EUPHORBIA trees also yield rubber. Mevea is better.

Austerity Diet Is Aid To Health

San Francisco, Oct. 26—(AP)—The most serious form of hardening of the arteries is being partly controlled in England by the "austerity diet," a British authority on heart and blood vessel diseases, says.

Dr. George Pickering, professor of medicine at the University of London, said last night that since rationing began in 1939 and England went on a low fat diet, deaths from arteriosclerosis have decreased, especially in elderly victims of diseases.

CHARGES VANDALISM AT TOBACCO FACTORY

Officials of the Imperial Tobacco Company complained to police about vandals hurling objects and breaking out window glass at the factory on Atlantic Avenue. Police are investigating.

The total capital invested in the U. S. gas industry totaled nearly six billion dollars in 1948.

Demo War Chest

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 26—(AP)—North Carolina's Democratic party has received $25,000.83 to help get its candidates elected in next month's general election.

So far the party has spent $5,524.26 of the sum, leaving a balance of $19,476.57.

State Democratic chairman Everett Jordan filed a party financial statement yesterday with the Secretary of State's office. The statement took 45 pages of legal size stationery to list contributors to the party's coffers.

Bride Is Saved By Quick Action

Oxford, N. C., Oct. 26—(AP)—A bride of 30 minutes was saved from serious injury near here recently when the bridegroom snatched a blinding wedding veil from her head.

The veil caught from a lighted candle as Mrs. Lewis Pendleton Gibson of Norfolk, Va., walked by a table in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prazier, Virginia Va., route 2, where a reception for wedding guests was under way.

She's Fearless Except When Spider Is Near

Croydon, Eng., Oct. 26—(AP)—Fearless Olga Frei, 21, skipped onto the stage of the Croydon Empire

Theater last night.

Smiling as ever, she leaned back against a big soft board—as she had done every night for months—and stood calm while a blind-folded knife thrower hurled knives and hatchets around her body.

Half-way through the act, she blanched and sank to the floor in a swoon. The audience screamed. Carried to her dressing room and revived, Olga explained: "I felt something on my leg. It looked like a spider. I am terrified of them."

Assured there were no spiders present, Olga and knife-thrower Hal Denver went on with the act.

Doctor Orders Flynn To Rest

Nice, France, Oct. 26—(AP)—A U.

S. Navy Doctor today ordered Errol Flynn to bed for five days to give his bruised back a chance to heal.

The 41-year-old actor slipped and fell on a rain-swept dock Tuesday night while boarding a motorboat with his bride, the former Patrice Wymore of the movies. They were bound for Flynn's yacht, the Zaca, anchored off Villefranche.

Flynn's injury was described by the Navy Medicos who examined him as painful but not serious.

East Carolina's Cagers Show Well Against Pros

Hornets Took 66-49 Game; Russell Leads Individual Scoring With 17 Points; Pros Were Pressed Throughout Contest

By BILL LLOYD

A spirited East Carolina quint put on a good pre-season show last night before falling, 66-49, to the Grand Rapids Hornets professional club in an exhibition tilt in Rocky Mount.

Sonny Russell, the Pirates all-conference forward, led last night's individual scoring as he pumped in 17 field goals and 3 free throws for 17 points.

George Glasmack, former All-American at Carolina and star center and president of the Hornets, combined with Fritz Nagy, another ex-UNC star, to lead the National pro club to their hard-earned victory.

Glasmack pitched in five field goals and two charity tosses for 12 points, while Nagy hit on six shots from the floor and added a free throw for 13 points.

The pros, with such All-Americans as 7-foot-1 Elmore Morganthaler, center reserve for Glasmack, and Blacky Towery, 6-foot-6 forward from Western Kentucky, handling the backboards were never headed in the game, but were hard-pressed by the local collegians throughout the affair.

This year's East Carolina freshmen crop turned in fine performance last night, led by 6-foot-3 Charlie Huffman, a towering forward from Thomasville, who poured in six points.

The pirates' terrific floor game was sparked by Center Toddy Fennell, and Guards Len Bauer and Richard Blake, sophomore who played on last year's frosh squad.

John Postas, Pirate sophomore guard from Franklin, N.J. who also turned in a beautiful floor game, suffered a sprained ankle in the closing minutes of the first half last night, and had to leave the game.

Phantoms Given Brief Respite In 9-Game Schedule

Greenville's Phantoms get a rest this weekend with an open date on their nine-game schedule.

Coach Parley's charges have taken things fairly easy this week because of bad weather, but the Phantoms settled down to some serious work yesterday in preparation for their home game with Spring Hope here next weekend.

Timing and brush-up of their offensive maneuvers was stressed by the varsity men yesterday, with the reserves holding a lengthy scrimmage session.

Finishing their scoring game sputtering all season long, the regulars put much emphasis on both running and passing patterns in yesterday's practice.

With their open date this weekend, the Greensies will have time to round some of their injured regulars into shape for next week's clash.

Fullback Leon Moore has been bothered with a bad shoulder for the past two weeks, but the scrappy line-plunger should be at top strength for the G-men's next encounter.

Both the Phantom starting tackles, Wallace Conway and Fletcher Murray, also have been bothered with minor injuries in the past two games, but this week's rest should bring the two outstanding linemen up to top playing form, along with flankman Wiley Gardner.

Next week's game with Spring Hope will be the third non-conference for the Phantoms have met this year.

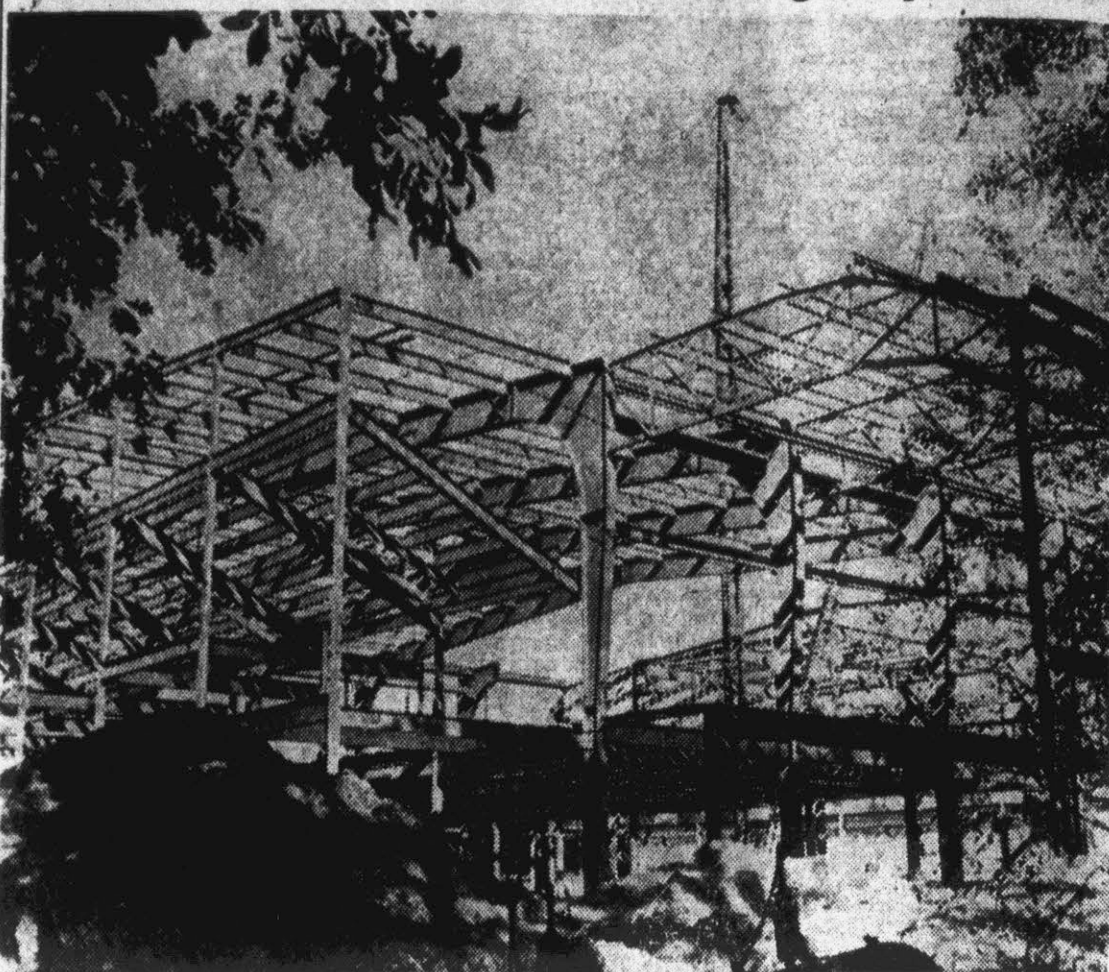

The Farleymen have been successful in all their outside games this season, defeating Hertford here, 7-0, and then trampling over Scotland Neck in the same week 45-0. The Phantoms will face a more formidable foe in Spring Hope, however, as the Nash county eleven has a commendable record of four wins against one loss thus far this season.

Baby Deacs Are Favored Tonight

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 26—(AP)—Led by left-handed T-Quarterback Johnny Steele, N. C. State College's Baby Wolfpack takes on Wake Forest's freshman football team tonight.

The Baby Deacs, slightly favored, average about 207 pounds per man on the forward wall. State's forsh average slightly over 200. The game is scheduled to start in local Riddick Stadium at 8 p. m.

New ECTC Gymnasium Is Taking Shape

East Carolina Teachers College's new gymnasium is beginning to take shape. The steel superstructure (shown above) has been erected and bricks are now being laid. The excavation for the swimming pool is complete and the concrete has been poured. Tiles will be added later. Seats located on the west side of the building are outlined in the photograph; those near the swimming pool will be collapsible and will be built later during the progress of the project. The new gymnasium, located near Tenth Street, will be completed within a year, according to present expectations. The work is progressing satisfactorily, and no unusual delays in construction are anticipated by contractors. For basketball the gym will have a seating capacity of 2,200. Invading Marine Eleven Boasts Power They Lacked Last Season

An undefeated, once tied Cherry Point Marines eleven invades East Carolina's college stadium here Saturday night, and a top-notch gridiron spectacle will be in the offing for local football followers.

Boosted by the increased enlistments due to the Korean war crisis the Flyers have a more powerful club this season than last year's team which fell before the Pirates, 24-0.

Coach Bill Dole, who scouted the Birds last Sunday, returned with nothing but praise for the Flyers who have more depth, more speed, and a much heavier line than the 1949 team.

Play-maker Tom Shepherd, a nifty 202-pounder, leads the Flyer Chicago Bear type T-formation.

Shepherd is a terrific speedster on running plays despite his weight, and is the ace aerial tosser for the Leathernecks.

Alongside Shepherd in the backfield are such line-plunging standouts as John Christiansen, another 200-pounder fullback, who is always a scoring threat for the Flyers, along with halfbacks Danny Thomopolous, a fleetfooted, and Tony Kapelowski, 190-pound scabbard.

Ends Charlie Ford, 6'4" flankman, makes an excellent target for Shepherd's tosses, and the big, 200-pound wingman teams with 6-foot-1 Robert Effert, to give the Flyers two outstanding glue-fingered glanks in their high-scoring offense.

Sam Sexton, big 195-pound All-Marine tackle last season, forms the anchor in the Flyers forward wall. Playing opposite Sexton at the other tackle slot is Lenard Caplinger, who adds weight and experience to the line with his 202 pounds.

The guard slots are held down by Tomas Dockery and Al Pacifico, two veteran linemen who also tip the scales in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. Vincent Parente holds down the pivot spot for the Marine eleven.

All in all, East Carolina's up-and-coming Pirates, will have an exciting test in seeking their straight grid victory here Saturday night.

Big Tackle Is 'Thorn' To Opposition

East Carolina's defensive line play has been greatly improved this season, and one reason for the stalwart irresistible play is Wallace Robinson, 193-pound tackle from Palmyra, N. C. Robinson has been a continuous thorn in the opponents' backfield this year, the first for the Purple and Gold sophomores. This big defensive lad will be counted on heavily in Saturday night's game with the Cherry Point Marines here. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Mrs. William T. McDaniel and her two sons of Raleigh, N. C., read an Associated Press dispatch about the heroism of her husband in the Suncheon tunnel massacre of Americans in North Korea. Major McDaniel was trapped in slaughter of his fellow-prisoners of war at the hands of their Red captors. The dispatch said that because of his heroism, "he will always be revered by the American prisoners who escaped the massacre." His wife is still hopeful that he survived. (AP Wirephoto).

All Coastal Loop Teams Will Play 'Outside' Rivals

All members of the Coastal Athletic conference go outside the league this weekend for their grid battles.

Ayden's Tornadoes, who wrapped up the 1950 circuit crown last week with a 36-6 win over South Edgecombe, travel to Tarboro tomorrow night for a scrap with Coach John Wolfe's Tars.

The Tornadoes, undefeated and untied in five games this season, rank high among 21 schoolboy clubs that still have an unblemished record this year, and will be going after their sixth straight triumph in the Tarboro scrap.

Coach Stuart Tripp's charges with Quarterback Teedy Bullock leading have rolled up 183 points in five contests this season while allowing their opponents only 19. Tarboro has tallied 119 points against their foes 24.

Two Coastal teams, who have yet to register a win this year, will go after their initial victory against outside opponents.

Farmville's Red Devils, bothered by injuries all season long, will have an extreme test in their tilt with Williamston Friday night. Coach Elbert Moye's gridders have a 0-2-1 record for the season and will meet the Martin county lads who possess a 3-2 record. Bobby Fulford, veteran tackle, will lead the Red Devils in the clash along with Sigbee Dildy, little quarterback who is playing his first year on the gridiron.

Vanceboro's luckless warriors play hosts to an unknown Richlands eleven. Vanceboro has lost five straight without a victory.

Coach Wiley Parker's South Edgecombe gridders, dismayed over last week's showing against Ayden, will be striving to get back on the winning streak after two straight defeats, as a strong Spring Hope club with a record of 4 wins and one loss invade the Pinetops stronghold.

U.S. Challengers Play Argentine Polo Champions

Buenos Aires, Oct. 26—(AP)—A 32-goal United States team will play Argentina for the Americas Cup in a polo series opening here Nov. 18.

The second game will be staged Nov. 25 and a third, if necessary, is a date to be determined. The cup is now in possession of Argentina.

The U.S. will field a team captained by George (Pete) Bostwick, handicapped at eight goals and playing No. 1; Delmar Carroll, seven goals, No. 2; George Oliver, nine goals, No. 3; and Peter Perkins, eight goals, back. Jules Romph and Lewis Smith will serve as reserves.

Brothers Coming Up

Coral Gables, Fla.—(AP)—Three members of the University of Miami varsity football squad have kid brothers on the freshman team. Co-captain and center Pete Mastellone and frosh fullback Ray are from Hillside, N.J.; varsity left halfback Frank Smith and brother Bill, who plays the same position, are from Tuckahoe, N.Y., while Sam David, varsity tackle and frosh fullback Bill are from Hollywood, Fla.

Clean Break?

Brooklyn, Oct. 26—(AP)—Branch Rickey, father of the farm system and other baseball innovations, is scheduled to make a clean break with the Brooklyn Dodgers today.

The Brooklyn Baseball Club announced a 3 p.m. (EST) press conference at which the bushy-browed executive is expected to announce his resignation as president and general manager.

He has already agreed to dispose of his one-fourth share of Dodge stock for $1,025,000. This is being snatched up by Walter O'Malley and Mrs. John L. Smith, each of whom already holds 25 per cent of the club.

O'Malley is slated to become president. Fresno Thompson, director of the Dodgers' farm system, is figured to have an inside track for the general manager ship.

Meanwhile, Rickey's own future in baseball remained a mystery.

Gorgeous Gussie Starts Earning Her Pay Tonight

New York, Oct. 26—(AP)—Gorgeous Gussie Moran, who parlayed a $2 strip of lace and a neat figure into $75,000 pro tennis contract, will start earning her pay tonight at Madison Square Garden.

The Santa Monica, Calif., glamor girl will meet Pauline Bez - Addie, a four-time National champion, in the opening feature of Bobby Figg's new net show, which will tour 100 cities.

Promoters are counting on a crowd of 13,000 although advance tickets sales have been slow. There will be no broadcast of television.

The best-of-five-set feature matches Jack Kramer, recognized as the world's best active tennis player, and pancho Segura, colorful Ecuadorian who has had a secondary role in the troupe since 1947.

Gene Ward led W-W with 484 for three and 163 for a single score. He boosted his average one pin to 153.

Dairymen Lead In Classic Loop

Classic Bowling League

Carolina Dairy	13	11	542
Hodges Hardware	12	12	500
Wagner-Waldrop	12	12	500
Bilbro Wholesale	11	13	458

Carolina Dairy came out of the bowling doldrums that have characterized it for two weeks running and walloped Hodges Hardware in three games.

In winning the three, with some help of Bilbro Wholesale, which beat Wagner-Waldrop two games, the Dairy team rose from third position into first, one game ahead of Hodges.

The three wins were not so much accomplished by excellent bowling by the Dairy but by below par games for Hodges. The losers' highest single game by a player was 151, and the Dairy went above that figure five times.

Leading bowler for Tuesday night, however, was Tyson Bilbro, who turned in a sparkling performance in leading his team to its double win over Wagner-Waldrop. Bilbro's best game was 213 in his first line and that score is only seven pins off the pace set by Bill Harrington, formerly of the Dairy, with 220.

Bilbro's three-game score was also high for the night. That total was 508, 70 pins below Harrington's score for the same.

Blame Television For Poor Crowds

New York, Oct. 26—(AP)—College football attendance is off about 2 per cent and television is catching most of the blame.

An Associated Press survey of 262 games played by 105 schools shows average 1950 crowds of 22,867 as compared to 23,275 a year ago. Last fall a similar check in mid-season reflected a 4 per cent increase.

Both the Southwest and South show an increase. The big drop is in the Far West and East. Midwest attendance is only slightly off.

"Television is too big for us," said a Louisville University spokesman. "We don't know the answer but something must be done."

Yale's business manager, William Perkins, is apprehensive although Yale has played to 124,000 in four home dates. Last year at this time they had 74,000 for two, a much better average.

"We're going to be substantially off," said Perkins. "And television is to blame more than anything else."

Yale's athletic director Luther Poling said, "Television is hurting us hard to sell something that nobody else is giving away."

Apparently there is no TV problem in the Southwest where the attendance shows a sharp 21 per cent increase. The South also is doing better business by some 7 per cent.

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laurensen

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 5
Marc stepped into the passage at the end of the car. All the state-room doors were closed except the first, which led to the porter's berth and galley. Two round, terrified eyes stared at him from a dark shadow of a face perched above a white coat.

"Hello, Cliff,"

"Oh, Lawdy, Lawdy, Mistah Jawd'n."

"Take it easy, Cliff," said Marc soothingly. "When did you find Mr. Richards?"

"Ah don't know jist when it was, Mistah Jawd'n. Ah bin up fo'wud passin' de time o' day wid Andrews, de po'tah in de nex' cah."

"See anyone around this part of the train?"

"No suh, nobody 'cept some o' de passengers up front."

"Where were you and Andrews?"

"Men's room, nex' cah fo'wahd."

"Did you see anyone go by while you were there?"

"Seems lak Ah did see de curtains swish lak somebody went by, but Ah can't be sho."

"When was that?"

"Ah don't remembah, Mistah Jawd'n. Ah wasn't payin' no 'tention."

"Have you heard anything while you've been waiting?"

"No suh, ain't bin a soun', 'cept mah teeth rattlin'."

"Now, Cliff, I want to look around before the place gets messed up."

"Yas suh, Mistah Jawd'n."

Marc walked slowly along the passageway. The train jerked gently, clicked across switch points, and moved onto a siding. He flashed his light to a case mounted in the wall above the window halfway down the aisle. It was a case with a glass door containing wrecking tools; a long-handled fireman's axe; a crowbar; a jimmy; a flashlight; but what caught his eye and brought out a low whistle was a blank space in the case. A space which, judging by the mounting clips and the marks on the background board, had held a small hand axe! The glass door to the case was held by a snap catch and stood slightly ajar. Marc gingerly pulled the door open and examined the case carefully, flashing his light along the glass and into the corners.

After completing his examination of the aisle, Marc stepped into the lounge room. A large Pullman ash tray at the opposite end of the day-voyage was covered with smoking debris. Marc picked up one cigarette which had been lit and snuffed out immediately.

Walking slowly through the lounge, he opened the door at the rear and stepped onto the observation platform. It was quite spacious. Getting down on hands and knees, he examined the floor inch by inch. A ground out cigarette butt met his eye; a crumpled page from a timetable; several round black spots in one corner and near them a piece of lint hooked into a small rust snag.

The wall of a police siren faded into silence at the station across the yard. Marc rose, brushing the dust from his clothes. Glimping up, he stepped into the lounge, strode to one of the doors, and knocked gently.

"Yes, who is it?" called a clear voice.

"Marc Jordan, Miss Joan. May I speak to you, please?"

A few seconds later the door opened to disclose Joap clutching a robe around her shoulders. Her dark hair made an attractive, tousled halo around her white face, and her big eyes, misty with sleep, met Marc's wonderingly.

"Good evening, Miss Joan. My apologies for intruding at this hour."

"That's all right," replied Joan. "Are you going to Chicago with us?"

Marc shook his head. "No, I—I—could I speak to Mr. Arnold, please?"

Joan's eyes opened wide in surprise. "Why, yes, I guess so, David?" She turned from the door and called her husband in the upper berth.

A rumpled head appeared over the edge, and a pair of sleepy eyes, full of annoyance, stared at Marc.

"Um-m. Huh? Oh, hello, Jordan. You pick a fine time to come to call!"

"Sorry, Dave. Will you step into the lounge, please? This is very important."

He turned quickly and strode back to the lounge. He twirled a lock of hair round his finger for several seconds before he was joined by Arnold.

"What's up?" demanded Arnold.

"A mess, Dave." He hesitated and then said bluntly, "Miss Joan's father was murdered tonight!"

"What?" gasped Arnold. His face turned ashen.

"Murdered," repeated Marc. "The police'll be here any moment, and Joan must know. I haven't the courage to tell her, so you'll have to do it."

"But how—"

"Never mind the details," interrupted Marc. "I'm sorry, but there isn't time. I don't know how you are going to break it to her gently, but it'll come better from you than from Anderson. He isn't gentle about anything."

Marc hurried away, leaving Arnold shaken, and horrified, standing in the lounge. He stepped gingerly over the obstruction on the platform and ran to meet the caravan coming across the yard.

The group was led by a short stocky man. His bare, bald head glistened in the yard light, and sharp eyes, magnified by thick lenses, peered through horn-rimmed spectacles. Tagging along behind came Nora, skirts flying, clutching her hat and darning daintily over the tracks. Marc headed them off a short distance from the train.

Good Driving Habits Are Not Observed Says Chief Langston

By CHESTER WALSH

The National Safety Foundation advises that 85 to 90 per cent of accidents are due to driver error.

and this indicates that the motoring public as a whole, with few exceptions, does not have the proper attitude and does not exercise good driving habits which are so necessary on our streets and highways today, due to heavy traffic.

This was a warning note in an after-dinner speech on "Safety" by Greenville's Police Chief Guy C. Langston at a meeting of the East Carolina Engineers' Club at the Rotary building last night.

President Martin Swartz presided. Judge J.W.H. Roberts introduced the speaker.

Engineers from the principal Eastern Carolina towns and cities were present.

Mayor W. S. Stafford welcomed the guests.

"I believe that every person who operates a motor vehicle should, while driving that motor vehicle, put their full time to the operation of it, and use it for what it was intended—as a means of transportation and not as a means of slaughtering each other on highways and streets," Langston declared.

"Man first started off on foot as his only means of transportation. Later he utilized the services of the ass and camel, and then horses and chariots. Through the ages he has advanced through engineering to the use of the modern vehicles of today. But man seems not to have progressed much in the use thereof, as national and state records on highway slaughter will show. Slaughter on the highways and injuries and destruction of public property appears to be principally due to the carelessness and recklessness of drivers."

Langston's story of the man who bought a tractor and an electric refrigerator and started to use them with only instructions on accompanying circulars was interesting. He described the man's feelings after he bought a car and found out that before he could drive it home he had to get permission (a license) from the state and then obtain an operator's license.

The speaker reviewed the good influence of the governor's advisory commission to study motor vehicle traffic and reminded that the body is to meet again this fall for consultation. Langston warned that "there will be little success of the safety program until every individual in North Carolina gives his or her time to carrying it out effectively." Before closing he declared that two out of every three traffic accidents are due to law violations.

The former member of the State Highway Department's Safety Division, in concluding his message, reminded that "every 15 minutes somebody is killed on a highway."

A social period with refreshments preceded the meeting. A short business session followed, with the special program winding up the event.

President Martin Swartz announced that the next meeting of the East Carolina Engineers' Club will be held in Kinston Wednesday, November 22. New officers are to be nominated at that time.

THIRD DRAFT CALL

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 26—(AP)—Buncombe county has received its third draft call since the start of the Korean war. Twenty youths yesterday were ordered to report for induction on Nov. 6.

Lt. Douglas W. Blalock (above), of Savannah, Ga., is one of 21 American prisoners of war who survived the massacre of 68 companions by North Korean captors near Suncheon. Blalock, 26, had been missing since August. His wife and child are now living at Heflin, Ala. (AP Wirephoto).

Fish Dish Supreme! Thrifty Riceland Rice Salmon Loaf

Salmon Loaf Made With Riceland Rice

Woman's greatest problem these days seems to be: "How to serve delicious, nourishing meals and still stay within the family food budget."

Here's the answer, as plain to see as the Riceland brand name on a package of rice: "Serve thrifty, delicious, energy-rich Riceland Rice some way—every day."

But how? Well, there are more than 200 different, delicious ways to serve Riceland Rice... as a breakfast cereal... and in all soups... and in dozens of thrifty casserole main dishes (with meat or fish or sea food or fowl or cheese or tomatoes, peas, celery, mixed vegetables, or any delicious combination of these you prefer)... and in croquettes, patties, griddle cakes... and in puddings and desserts.

Riceland Rice is the world's most versatile food-stretcher. Just keep a bowl of cooked Riceland Rice in your refrigerator. (It will keep perfectly for days and days.) Then whenever you have leftovers, mix them with cooked Riceland Rice, onion, green pepper, celery or tomatoes and, presto! you have a delicious main-dish casserole or loaf!

Or, get a can of salmon and make this thrifty Riceland Rice Salmon Loaf:

Riceland Rice Salmon Loaf

- 1 cup cooked Riceland Rice
- 1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon celery salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimento
- 4 cups flaked canned salmon

Combine ingredients in the order listed and place in a buttered loaf pan or ring mold. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 or 40 minutes. Turn onto a serving platter.

Serve loaf with buttered peas and carrots or, if ring mold is used, fill the center with this complementary vegetable mixture.

Garnish with radishes, pickles and lemon slices. Serve with cream sauce or lemon sauce.

Remember that the success of your loaf depends upon the quality of rice used. So be sure to use genuine Riceland Rice, the perfect-cooking rice that's always deliciously fluffy. It's quick and easy to cook. Here's how:

To Cook Riceland Rice: Put 1 cup of Riceland Rice, 1 teaspoon of salt and 2 cups of cold water in a large saucepan and cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and simmer for 14 minutes more, during which time the water will be absorbed, making the rice deliciously tender. Remove the lid, permit the rice to steam dry to the desired consistency and the grains will be separate and fluffy. Always use Riceland Rice for best results.

It's smart to cook more Riceland Rice than needed so you'll have some handy in your refrigerator "Riceland Rice Bowl" to serve a different way—every day.

Riceland Rice Is Easy To Cook! Tender! Fluffy!

To get the best results with this recipe and all rice recipes, be sure to use Riceland Rice. It's the world's most delicious rice—grown in the heart of the quality rice belt of America. Only the choice, perfect-cooking rice grains are packed in Riceland packages.

This quality rice is quick and easy to cook. Riceland Rice cooks deliciously tender with white, fluffy, individual grains. Most grocers now feature this better-cooking, wonderfully-delicious, packaged rice—and at economical prices. Riceland Rice costs only one-cent a serving.

Credit-Tightening Rules Deal Blow To Retail Sales

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—The government's credit-tightening blow against inflation has severely jolted retail sales around the country. Nationwide spot-check by the Associated Press disclosed today a highly variegated impact on sales resulting from stiffer installment buying terms imposed last week by the Federal Reserve Board.

One main fact stands out—people have cut back their heavy buying because they haven't got the ready cash for higher down payments or because their incomes are too low to meet the new stepped-up monthly payment terms.

That is exactly what the Federal Reserve aimed at with its new regulations Oct. 18, which tightened up the previous controls of Sept. 18 requiring heavier down payments and a shorter time to pay.

After less than two weeks of operating under the new controls, however, the picture is far from uniform. Most heavily involved in sales declines are automobiles, home appliances, television sets and furniture.

And the situation is complicated by such things as war scare buying, automobile model changeovers, color television uncertainties, war shortages, and just plain customer confusion.

For instance, television set sales in New York are reported to be on the skids with some merchants cutting prices to encourage customers, while on the west coast in San Francisco buyers are rushing to beat the Nov. 1 federal 10 per cent excise tax.

Grange Supports Street Proposal

Lumberton, N. C., Oct. 24 (AP)—The North Carolina state grange ended its annual convention here yesterday after endorsing a recommendation to turn city streets over to the state and hearing Gov. Scott criticize the State's telephone companies.

The grange endorsed the city street recommendation made by grange Master Harry Caldwell at the final business session.

Caldwell allowed that the state had "some obligations for building and maintaining streets within the corporate limits of cities and towns." But he recommended that the highway commission refrain from assuming any financial obligations for which funds weren't available unless increased funds could be provided.

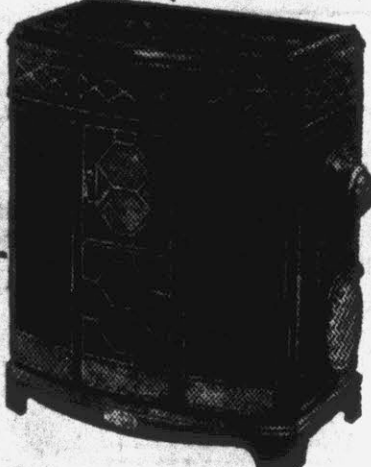

Caldwell did not make any recommendations for raising additional funds for the highway department. He did say, however, that all roads in the highway system, including city streets that may be added, should be under the complete supervision of the state highway department.

Scott, the grange man of the year, needed the telephone companies for not providing more service for rural areas.

Bottle And Knife Are Used In Public Brawl

A duel between two Negroes on North Greene street Monday night, with a bottle and a knife as weapons, attracted considerable interest for a short time.

Police arrested George Junior Dunn, 22, of Belvoir, and Roy Lee Ross, 30, of West Fifth street, and charged them with assaults with deadly weapons.

George Junior Dunn charges Roy Lee Harris with assaulting him with a knife. Harris charged his alleged assailant with assaulting him with a glass bottle.

The duellists will be tried before Judge J. W. H. Roberts in Police Court Friday morning.

Charge Negro With Larceny Of Tobacco

Greenville police arrested James Taylor, 44-year-old Negro, and charged him with the larceny of $250 worth of leaf tobacco from the Farmers Warehouse yesterday. Taylor will be tried in Police Court Friday. Witnesses against him will be J. L. Tripp, S. A. Whitehurst and Jasper tripp.

French Deputies Okay Plan For European Army

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP)—Premier Rene Pleven's plan for a unified European army as the only form in which German rearmament is acceptable to France won the approval of Parliament today.

The deputies voted 349 to 235 for the proposal, which former Premier Edouard Daladier told them during the debate was already doomed.

Declaring bitterly that "German rearmament now is a decided, if not an accomplished fact," Daladier predicted that all other North Atlantic pact nations would unite against the French plan.

Pleven's proposal calls for a West

European defense minister to run the army. He would be responsible to a council representing the participating nations and also to an international parliament. All member countries would contribute troops, including Germany.

Find Exports To China Expanded

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—American exports to Communist China, currently under investigation by a Senate commerce subcommittee, almost tripled in August.

A commerce department report yesterday showed that shipments to China during the second full month of the Korean war climbed to $8,900,000 from $3,000,000 in July. In addition, $2,700,000 in American goods went to Manchuria.

The Laotian people of northern Indochina fire crude skyrockets to ward off evil spirits.

Potato Digging Slowed By Rain

Rains over the area during the past several days caused farmers to slow up in digging sweet potatoes and the offerings yesterday on the Bethel auction market were light. Rev. J. J. Harris, president of the Bethel Auction Company, Inc., reported today.

Sales Wednesday totaled about 1,000 bushels and the price averaged from $1.30 to $1.40 a bushel. J. L. Brown is auctioneer.

Total sales for the season, which opened two weeks ago, was 25,000 bushels for an average of about $1.35 a bushel.

Market officials again urged growers to pack their sweet potatoes carefully, using uniform size, and be sure that the baskets contain 55 pounds of potatoes. Uniform pack always brings satisfactory prices. Underweight baskets and irregular size potatoes result in lower prices.

Jesse Sumner of State College Extension Division, Raleigh, who works with the farmers during the year, said each acre should average 100 bushels. It is estimated that the potato growers of the three counties, Martin Edgecombe and Pitt, will produce 500,000 bushels this year.

PAY RAISE

Franklin, Oct. 24 (AP)—Striking workers at Sterling Mills here went back to their jobs today after being granted wage increases of nine and a half to 12 cents an hour.

The workers struck almost three weeks ago.

The impact of the crash hurled the body of the mule, which was killed, a total of 91 feet, coming to rest on the dirt road on the left side. Parts of the smashed car was found 21 feet from the mule and the body of the car 12-15 feet further away.

After striking the car, the car went 201 feet, going over a steep embankment and into a field on the right side of the highway.

The two occupants of the car were found 21 feet from the point of the collision, on the left side of the highway just off the pavement. Cordon, the driver of the car, was only shaken up by the accident. He was taken to Pitt county jail where he was charged with driving drunk and driving in a careless and reckless manner. He was scheduled to be released on bond pending the outcome of the condition of the two injured persons.

For the county it was the third auto-mule accident since the first of the week. Previously the Patrol in the county had investigated two accidents which were caused by stray livestock roaming loose on the highway.

the prospect of communism taking over another country on India's borders. The threat, if any, would be political rather than military. From the propaganda standpoint, possession of Tibet would be of value to China and Russia. It would demonstrate communism's ability to carry through such a program.

Beyond that, the Communists want to institute a house-cleaning in Tibet, which is the world's only theocracy, where religion and politics are inseparable. Actually a large part of the population—estimated at about 1,000,000—is actively connected with Lamaism, which is a type of Buddhism. The Dalai Lama is the supreme politico-religious ruler.

One of the chief aims of communism is to abolish all religion, and Tibet's religious influence isn't confined to its own borders.
