Township Voters 'Turn Out In Drove' For Registration

Voters in Greenville Township took a belated heed of the new registration for the November 7 election and, as one registrar stated "turned out in droves" to register.

Through Saturday, the last day of registration, 3,268 persons had had "their names signed on the new books with one precinct not reporting a two-week total. The number that registered Saturday and during the weekdays since last Tuesday approximate about twice as many who had registered prior to that date.

Highest number to register was in Precinct No. 2, Courthouse, when registrar John R. Barker signed 1,132 persons. He stated there were about 1,500 names on the precinct's old books.

Barker registered 497 during the three Saturdays and 635 during the days between.

Elections Board Chairman J. Henry Harrell stated this morning he was very gratified at the number who turned out for registration since last week. He stated he thought the number was "pretty good" considering the fact that never more than 3,600-3,700 township voters ever turned out at the polls.

He said the old books contained a good bit of "deadwood" which tended to make the present registration even better than had been hoped.

Most of the registrars signed more names on their own hook than

Island Police In Political Clash

Puerto Rican Extremists In Gun Battle With Authorities

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Oct. 30—(AP)—Nationalists and police clashed at two points today on the southern coast of the island, and some dead and wounded were reported, authorities announced.

The outbreak began at a police station in the city of Ponce. Police said Nationalist party agents tried to storm the station and lost four dead. Three police were reported wounded.

A group of 30 police left Ponce for a village near Penuelas to search for hidden arms at the home of the Nationalist party president's mother. The police were met by shots and returned the fire. Some dead and injured were reported.

Home For Aged Campaign Raises Total Of $6,000

A total of $6,000 has been raised in the drive for The King's Daughters' Home, according to a statement today by Mrs. Clara Moyer Shackell.

The campaign recently got under way to raise $25,000 for the purchase of the Vines House and equipping it as a home for the aged. The project will be county-wide and citizens from all parts of the county will be requested to contribute.

Once the home is acquired and equipped the project will be self-supporting.

According to the sponsors the establishment of such homes in other places has filled a great need and a survey of Pitt county reveals a hike need here for some place where older people, who are alone, can make their home.

U. S.-Canadian Pact

The Tightening Bonds Of Partnership Between The United States And Canada; New Treaty May Portend Formation Of World's Most Powerful Combination

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

That Canadian-American economic pact which has just been signed in Washington is the sort of thing from which dreams are built.

Looking ahead through the years one can believe that potentially it may be the forerunner of a partnership representing the world's most powerful combination.

This agreement is a renewal of the World War II partnership under which the two nations pooled their economic resources for common defense. The pact provides that skills, raw materials and finished products will be shared in building up American and North Atlantic defenses against the threat of aggression.

Peace-minded folk of course hope that the need of the pact in the defensive sense won't be long lived. However, past experience has shown that many of the features of such a treaty continue even after its formal termination.

That was demonstrated in the case of the original economic pact which has now been revived. Many of the war-time provisions which it inaugurated have persisted.

Why should this be so? To me the came to the polls to register on Saturdays. Mrs. Rosa H. Brown, registrar of Precinct No. 4 (West Greenville School) stated she registered many persons last week and more turned out at the polling place that she had expected. They were waiting for me when I opened up Saturday," she said.

Many persons have since Saturday asked if they could register for the election. The registrars' answers were usually that they would have to wait until the next registration—"the books closed Saturday night," they said. The next general registration will be for the primary in 1952.

Saturday of this week will be challenge day for the election which follows on Tuesday. At that time the registrars will be at their precinct polling places to accept all challenges to names on the books.

Coastal Storm Hits California

This mass of debris was blown into the street at Oakland in one of coastal California's worst storms. No one was hurt in Oakland. But elsewhere along the coast, the storm brought death to one person and injuries to scores. Property damage was heavy (AP Wirephoto).

Accidents on Pitt County highways soared over the past weekend with the reporting of five accidents, resulting in the arrest of two drivers.

No one was injured, but heavy property damage was inflicted to automobiles involved.

A car operated by Paul J. Crandall, colored, of Chicod, turned over on the new Simpson highway shortly after noon Saturday when the driver stated he lost control of his car. Damage to the car was estimated to be about $100 by Patrolman Paul C. Whitley, investigating officer.

Stray livestock on the highway was the reason given for an accident on the New Bern highway Saturday, which damaged a car operated by Edward Rodgers, Negro, of Route 1, Greenville. The driver told officers he dodged two mules but a third struck his car. The mule was injured and damage to the car was estimated to be about $75.

Two accidents, one on the new Pactolus road and the other on the old Pactolus road late Saturday night, resulted in the arrest of two Negro brothers on charges of operating a motor vehicle without a driver's license. Patrolman Paul C. Whitley stated he was called to a wreck on the Pactolus highway about midnight and found that a car driven by George Horton, Route 7, Stokes, had collided with a car driven by Nelson Hopkins, of near Greenville. Horton was charged with driving without a license. About $100 damage was reported done to the Horton car, with about $300 damage to the other. Whitley stated the accident occurred as Hopkins attempted to make a turn at the same time Horton attempted to pass.

While still at the scene of the first accident the patrolman was called to another accident on the old Pactolus highway, which involved the brother of the man whom Whitley had just arrested.

A car driven by James Holten, Route 5, Greenville, ran into the Cannon Swamp bridge when the driver stated, he was forced into it by a car he was meeting. About $200 damage was reported to the car. Holten also was arrested on charges of driving without a license. Both will be tried in County Court at the next term of court on November 14th.

The fifth accident over the weekend came yesterday afternoon about 4:30 on the Brick Kiln Road, just off the Grimesland highway.

A car driven by Jessie C. Artis, Negro, turned over when the driver met another car in the center of a curve, forcing Artis to turn over. Damage to the car was reported by Whitley as being about $200. No charges were brought against the driver.

Tibetan Troops Reported In Retreat Along Border

New Delhi, India, Oct. 30—(AP)—Tibetan troops were reported today to have retreated in the face of Chinese Communist invaders to within 200 miles of the mountainous capital of Lhasa.

India's representative at Lhasa advised his government here that the defending troops abandoned Lho Dzong (Lohunchung) on Oct. 22 and Shoshado on Oct. 27 and fell back to Pemba Go.

A government spokesman here said the caravan journey from Pemba Go to Lhasa usually required a month but could be made in two weeks.

Earlier the Kalimpong correspondent of a Calcutta newspaper, "The Statesman," reported the Chinese Communists were believed planning a three-pronged drive on Lhasa, from both the northeast and southeast, as well as other advances into eastern Tibet and into the north of the remote Himalayan Lama-ruled country.

The Indian government spokesman added that Tibet has asked India for any diplomatic assistance it could give specifically for the "continuance of the good office" which India has made available in the past.

The Statesman's correspondent in Kalimpong reported the Communist advance units were in the 15,000 foot Dugma Pass, about 360 miles northeast of Lhasa.

Child Welfare Meeting In Pitt County Nov. 17

By CHESTER WALSH

An important meeting of Pitt county citizens will be held at the courthouse in Greenville Friday night, November 17, at 7:45 to consider projects and activities under way on behalf of the county's children and youth.

It will be a grass-roots meeting preliminary to the Midwinter White House Conference on Children and Youth, similar to many now being carried on throughout the United States among civic and public officials and many interested individuals. Mrs. L. E. Ballard and Cora S. Powell, co-chairmen, are sponsoring the conference. Plans provide for surveying available facilities for strengthening the lives of children and young people and discuss the still unmet needs of Pitt county in this field.

Mrs. Ballard was named to head the White House Conference progress report meeting in Pitt county by the North Carolina Conference for Social Service, which was designated by Governor Cherry in 1948 and has since been re-named by Governor Scott to coordinate the state's part in the nation-wide conference.

The White House Conference, slated for Washington the week of December 3, was called by President Truman and will be the fifth such conference held at 10-year intervals at the request of United States presidents since Theodore Roosevelt asked for the first one in 1909.

Local meetings, similar to the one planned in Pitt county on November 17, are being organized by the North Carolina Conference for Social Service, under local leadership, all over the state.

Point System In Reservist Duty

New Plan To Guide Army's Handling Of Enlisted Reserves

Washington, Oct. 30—(AP)—A new point system, based on age, previous service and the number of dependents, is to guide the Army's handling of its reserve enlisted men.

Announcement of the new plan was one of two weekend developments affecting such men. In the other, the Army announced that it is making no more mandatory calls for enlisted reserves except for a limited number of medical and counter intelligence specialists.

Both developments apply only to enlisted reservists, not to officers. The point system is to be used in determining (1) which reservists among those on active duty will be sent overseas and (2) the order in which additional reservists would be ordered to active duty in the event of possible future call-ups.

In both these determinations, the first men to be chosen would be those with the fewest points, within desired military specialties.

Points-called service credits—are to be credited under the system as follows:

One credit for each year of the reservist's age over 20, one for each year of reserve service, two for each combat award he has received, four for each year of active federal service, four for each year of overseas service and eight for each dependant.

The Army said that some men with the highest service credit scores probably will be relieved from active duty within three months, but stressed:

"There will be no establishment of a quota for relief from active duty on a worldwide scale, nor will there be any mandatory overall relief score."

The reactor, described as resembling a "brick burning oven," will be used for research and student training. It will be nonexplosive and encased in concrete from four to six feet to prevent seepage of radiation. It will use a solution of fissionable uranium 235 salt as fuel. This will be supplied by the AEC. The mixture gives off heat and radiation. From the latter atomic radiations can be produced for use in treatment of disease and medical research.

The apparatus will be housed in a special laboratory which will cost $200,000, Back said. Funds for the laboratory have been donated by the Burlington Mills Foundation. The college will pay the cost of building the $100,000 reactor.

Total Of 2,099 Facing November Draft In State

Raleigh, Oct. 30—(AP)—A total of 2,099 young men will be ordered to report for army induction during November, state selective service headquarters reported today.

Inductions to meet the state's November quota of 2,099 will get underway Friday. Some 52 men will be ordered to report for induction at Raleigh, 975 to Charlotte and 708 to Fayetteville.

Selective Service headquarters also reported that 3,875 men will be ordered up for pre-induction physical and mental examinations during November to fill the December quotas of 1,240 men.

Of these, 1,120 will be examined at Fayetteville, 1,675 at Charlotte and 1,375 at Raleigh.

Admits Unsolved Murder In 1926

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 30—(AP)—Hamilton county Sheriff Rex Richey said today a 75-year-old mountaineer has confessed the slaying of a Chattanooga attorney on Signal Mountain 24 years ago.

Richey said Taylor Lee Dempsey signed a statement admitting he shot James Scott after he heard Mrs. Dempsey "talking with him about getting a divorce." The statement added that Dempsey burned Scott's mountain cabin three years after the slaying because the crime "preyed on my mind."

Extent Of Help Not Yet Known

Gustaf VI New King Of Sweden As Father Dies

Takes Royal Oath Today; Nation Mourns Passing Of Democratic Ruler

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 30—(AP)—Gustaf VI today was proclaimed "King of the Swedes, the Goths and the Wends," the first new ruler to ascend the ancient Swedish throne in nearly half a century.

He succeeds his father, 92-year-old King Gustaf V, whose death yesterday after a reign of nearly 43 years plunged the nation into deepest mourning.

To all effects and purposes the son, born Prince Oscar Frederick Wilhelm Olaf Gustaf Adolf, has been Sweden's monarch since his father's death. But at colorful ceremonies today in the cabinet council room of Stockholm's royal palace he took the royal oath pledging himself to adhere strictly to the constitution and to rule "as a righteous king and gracious father of the Swedish people by a legal, just and mild government."

The new queen, British-born Louise, is the monarch's second wife. She is a sister of Earl Mountbatten and a great-granddaughter of England's Queen Victoria.

The new crown prince is a blond, curly-haired, foot-year-old boy—the Prince Carl Gustaf. His father, the new ruler's eldest son, died in an airplane crash in 1947.

Meanwhile the body of Gustaf V lay in Drottningholm palace, where he died. His democratic rule had been one of the longest in Europe and the longest in Swedish history.

He had suffered from chronic bronchial catarrh for several years and took a sudden turn for the worse on Friday.

The date of his funeral will be set by his heir. It will take place after 10 days but not later than November 12, an official announcement said.

The death of the monarch plunged his country into deepest mourning. Flags were at half staff. Newspapers were black-bordered. Movie and theater performances were cancelled. Mourning masses were held in all churches and bells tolled throughout the country.

Russian Demands Issue Be Kept From Assembly

Lake Success, Oct. 30—(AP)—Russia's Jacob A. Malik demanded today that the Security Council keep trying to elect a new secretary-general of the United Nations instead of tossing the problem to the veto-free general assembly.

Mis demand was made at a closed door session of the council as a final move to delay almost certain approval of a 14-nation resolution calling for a three year extension of Lie's term by the assembly.

A session of the assembly has been called for tomorrow to act on the American backed plan to extend Lie's tenure.

Part Of The Machinery For Smoking Out Communists Is In Action; Congress Didn't Vote Funds For Task Of Enforcing Registration Of Communist-Front Groups

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 30—(AP)—The government machinery to smoke out Communists—under the new anti-Communist law—is grinding away.

But some of it is going to have to grind very slowly and it will be some time before the smoke gets very thick.

Under one part of the law the government is supposed to round up Communists who are aliens and deport them. That's been started.

But the slow part of the law covers a different part: making Communist action and Communist front outfits register with the government.

Congress passed the law before it went home in September. And the law said Communist action and front organizations would have to register as such within 30 days after the law went into effect.

Those 30 days were up last week. No one seriously expected the two groups to register and for a simple reason. The law says:

A Communist-action outfit is run by Moscow and secretly plots the overthrow of this government while a Communist-front is simply a tool of a Communist action organization.

It seemed hardly likely that the Communist party, for instance, would voluntarily step up and admit it was a Communist-action organization, under the meaning of the law.

And a Communist-front could hardly be expected to admit it was one, since the purpose of a front is to do the Communist party's work while concealing that purpose.

The government would have to do the proving. Knowing that, Congress set up machinery. If after 30 days were up and neither kind of outfit had registered, the attorney general had to take the next step.

He'd have to file a complaint with a brand new government agency—the Subversive Activities Control Board—that such and such an organization was a Communist action or front group.

President Truman created this five-man board last week, with Seth W. Richardson, a Republican, as chairman. Richardson had been chairman of the government's loyalty review board, which passed on

School Faculty Members Honored At Tea By Mrs. Rose

On Saturday afternoon between the hours of 4:00-5:30, Mrs. J. H. Rose was a gracious hostess at an informal tea at her home on East Tenth street.

The tea honored faculty members of the city schools. Guesting the callers at the door was Mrs. Rose, who presented them to Miss Frances Wahl, Miss Agnes Pulllove and Miss Laura Foley, principals of the Training school, the West Greenville school, and the Third Street school respectively.

The home was lovely throughout with arrangements of chrysanthemums in fall pastels. Mrs. K. B. Pace received at the door of the dining room where guests were served from a beautifully appointed table. Centering the table was a silver bowl holding yellow and orchid chrysanthemums interspersed with fern. This was flanked on either side by three-branched silver candelabra holding yellow taper.

Mrs. J. D. Messick poured tea from a silver service placed at one end of the table and Miss Lenna Rose and Terry Flanagan assisted in serving the accompaniments which were placed on silver platters.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Knott Proctor. Guests were members of the faculty of the three elementary schools and the high school.

Women In The Church

The Wall Street Journal recently quoted with editorial approval a remark once made by Mrs. Norman Hubbard Hastings, of the General Federation of Women's clubs: "What this country needs is more parents who do not expect the church and the school to take the major responsibility for the rearing of their children." Commented the Journal: "That does seem more important than the five-cent cigar."

Miss Harriett M. Newhall, graduate of Syracuse University and of the New York School of Social Work, has been named child placement supervisor in the Displaced Persons Department of Church World Service, 214 East 21st Street, New York City. She will have the placing of some thousands of children who will be coming from Europe under the DP regulations. She will be serving all the major Protestant denominations. This is no new work to Miss Newhall, for she recently spent three years in Germany as director of DP operations under UNRRA.

Women members of Jewish congregations of the Midwest Synagogue conference are going to be permitted to vote and hold administrative office in their local congregations. Heretofore they did all their religious work through the sisterhoods. But they are barred by ancient laws from conducting religious rites.

An inviolated Christian woman, who chose to remain anonymous, has written the following prayer which thousands of Protestant church women, at the suggestion of the United Council of Church Women, will use in special services on "World Community Day," Friday, November 3: "O God Our Father, Father of each one who dwells upon this earth, grant to us thy bewildered children, who have turned from Thee—a full realization of what Thy love might mean. Clear the mists of distrust, fear and suspicion from all our hearts and fill us with trust in Thee. Give us the power and wisdom to learn how we may live together as in one world and the deep assurance that through Thee, this can be done. Help each one to become a channel through which Thy spirit of love, of understanding, and of hope may pour into this confused and troubled world to bring all peoples into Thy peace."

Hallowe'en Plans Going Forward At Training School

The Training School P. T. A. is holding a Hallowe'en carnival at the school on Tuesday beginning at 5:30 in the afternoon.

Each grade has been busily occupied for the past few days arranging the games and entertainments to be offered in its room. The pupils have made plans to make the classrooms gay with decorations and to have only the best in entertainment.

The three first grades are cooperating on the fishponds, where unbelievable things can be caught with a pole or rod and reel, depending on the kind of fisherman one is. The second grades will vie for contestants whose aims are good at pinning the tail on the poster cat. In the third grades there will be guessing contests and doll exhibits.

Much fun will be offered in the fourth grade rooms when the potato sack races are run, and the Indianapolis Speedway Classics will be far less exciting than the auto races that will tempt young drivers. Apple bobbing will provide pleasure for young divers in the fifth grade rooms, while the sixth grades' house of horrors will cause shivers and chills.

A bowling alley will be found in the seventh grade rooms, where enthusiasts of the sport can "mow 'em down" to their heart's content. Sharpshooters can test their skills in the shooting gallery set up in the new eighth grade and there will be plenty of guns for everybody.

Sandwiches, cakes and drinks will be on sale in the corridors during the evening and families can come prepared to have their supper, which will be a break for the mothers. Admission to the game rooms will be five cents and all refreshment items will sell for a nickel also.

The feature attraction of the evening will be held in the new gymnasium promptly at eight o'clock, at which time all game rooms will be closed. Admission to the entertainment here will be a dime for adults and just a great big smile from the children.

At this time more than a dozen of Greenville's most cooperative and stylish fathers will model the very latest fashions, hot off the boards of leading fashion designers. Also present for the amusement of the spectators will be the Tumblers, agile acrobats from the college.

As the concluding feature of this program, a promenade for the children take place, at which time a committee will pass judgment on the kids' costumes and prizes will be awarded to the most attractively costumed boy and girl.

Throughout the evening anyone can learn what the future has in store for him by visiting one of the fortune booths, to be erected in the patio between the new wings of the building. Here gay canvas booths will be found, gaily decked out with lights and bunting. Here soothsayers and palmists will be on hand to reveal the future.

There will be fun and bewitching pleasure for everybody! So do not forget the time, place or day for this promising Hallowe'en carnival.

The P. T. A. of St. Raphael school held its annual Hallowe'en carnival on Thursday evening, October 26, at the school. Supper was served beginning at 5:30. Delicious chicken salad sandwiches, hotdogs, doughnuts, cookies, candy, and cold drinks were served.

After supper, bingo and a variety of other amusements were enjoyed. At the end of play, several cakes and a baked ham were given away for various prizes.

The colorful event of the evening was watching the children dressed in all kinds of Hallowe'en costumes. The Hallowe'en carnival was planned by a special committee under the leadership of Mrs. Roy T. Tripp.

The P. T. A. and the teachers of St. Raphael school would like to take this opportunity to give special thanks to the committee and everyone that participated in helping make this a successful Hallowe'en carnival.

The Wilder satire will be given at 7:30 Friday evening in the auditorium of the Flanagan building. The public is invited to attend.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the department of English is the director of "The Skin of Our Teeth." Others taking part are Mrs. Agnes Barrett, Dr. Sterling Tracy, Elizabeth Walker, Stanley Reasco, Ruth Lambie, George E. Perry, Dr. L. F.

Works By Art Teachers Shown In Exhibition

Original watercolors and examples of the graphic arts by a number of teachers of art in colleges and public schools of this country are now on exhibition by the East Carolina Teachers College department of art in Room 202 of the Austin building. The collection was made by Dora Clriot, director of the department. Those who are interested are invited to see the display, which will continue through November 4.

Miss Clriot has announced that a collection of watercolors by California artists will be on display in the Austin building from November 7 through November 19. This exhibition will also be open to the public.

In the present display of works by teachers of art are examples of watercolors, lithographs, woodblock and linoleum prints, pencil sketches, and other types.

Calvin Haddock Jr. Funeral Held Today

Funeral services for Opl. Calvin C. Haddock Jr., who died in Denver, Colo. October 15 from injuries sustained in an auto accident, were conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home this afternoon at two o'clock by Dr. H. G. Haney, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, and burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Christian Science Service

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson sermon in all Christian Science churches and Societies on Sunday, October 29.

Golden text: Proverbs 10:29. "The way of the Lord is strength to the upright; but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity."

Among the citations comprising our lesson sermon, are the following from the Bible: "Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? he retaineth not his anger forever, because he delighteth in mercy." (Micah 7:18).

And from the Christian Science Textbook by Mary Baker Eddy: "The destruction of sin is the divine method of pardon. Divine Life destroys death, Truth destroys error, and Love destroys hate. Being destroyed, sin needs no other form of forgiveness." (Page 339).

Students and Faculty Members Participate In Recent Show

Students and faculty members at East Carolina Teachers College participated in a Hobby Show Friday evening, October 27, at an exhibition sponsored by the college YWCA and YMCA. The project was designed to show interesting leisure-time activities of those on the campus and to raise funds for the annual World Student Service Fund Drive now being conducted by the two organizations. Proceeds will be used to aid needy foreign students and educators.

Evelyn Kornegay of Albion and Ernest Sylvant of Snow Hill served as co-chairmen in charge of arranging the show. Others who assisted included Margaret Lietman of the Library staff, faculty advisor of the YWCA, and Gene Hart of Kinston and Patricia Williams of Wilmington, presidents of the sponsoring organizations.

On display in the Wright auditorium were examples of the creative activities of those whose work was shown. Painted figurines, tatting, afghans, tooled leather, plastics, handmade musical instruments, textile painting, and rag dolls in various costumes were included.

In interests of collectors were shown in exhibits of religious books for children, prints showing the history of art, bronze horses and pictures of horses, specimens of moths, pitchers, Japanese lacquers, brooches and pins, and silver souvenir spoons from various states and countries.

Wide Radio Use In Northern Area

Yellowknife, N. W. T.—(P)—This is the country where radio men deliver babies by remote control, and bears may be shot from the window of the transmitter station.

The big 50,000 watt station of the Canadian Army Signal Corps at Yellowknife, key station in the army's northern network, they hardly bother mentioning happenings such as these. It's old stuff for northern radio men.

The radio network is called upon to turn its skilled hands to everything from delivering babies to whether conditions in the Mackenzie river valley, the "cradle" of North American weather. This report is relayed to Washington, D. C., where it is a key factor in making up continental forecasts.

Radio reception in the north is exceptional, the army men report. On one occasion they had a complaint from Philadelphia because a small set used here was interfering with Philadelphia police radio. The transmission traveled a couple of thousand miles in spite of the fact it was not supposed to be powerful enough to be heard over horizon.

Former Syrian Military Chief Is Assassinated

Beirut, Lebanon, Oct. 30—(AP)—Col. Hennawi, former Syrian army commander-in-chief, and leader of a short lived military coup in Syria, was shot dead today in Damascus.

Hennawi, a storm center of Syria's complicated plots and counterplots had survived a number of previous attacks upon his life.

It was Hennawi who led the revolt against President Husni Zayim a little over a year ago and sent Zayim to the firing squad. Zayim himself had seized the power in a coup a few months before.

At the time of the elections in Syria last December, Col. Hennawi was ousted as commander in chief by troops under the command of Col. Adib El Shisheki.

High Air Moving Like Big 'River'

Rio De Janeiro—(AP)—Discovery of a stream of air travelling eastward at faster than hurricane speeds, at 33,000 feet altitude, is announced by the Brazilian aviation company, Panair do Brasil.

The air speeds are reported to range from a low of more than 100 miles an hour to nearly 200. Panair says it has found this stream above southern Brazil and that it has reason to believe the stream girdles the earth.

The announcement says this air stream is like a river. The width varies and has been measured at more than 400 miles. The depth is not given. Panair calls it the "jet-stream."

The announcement states that airplanes can use this stream to fly eastward, and that its location will be charted so that high altitude planes do not try to buck it. Presumably the stream is not turbulent, that is, a plane in it would be in smooth air.

stream, because it is higher than usual cloud levels. Panair says that it has found a cold spot directly above the equator where the air is 140 Fahrenheit below zero. The spot's altitude is about twelve miles. It is the coldest place found in a line of measurements from Rio De Janeiro and London.

New Liquid Kills Roaches and Ants

New Way to Kill Pests Discovered by Scientists
ROACHES are the most difficult household pests to control, and they can be brought into any home from the market in a bag of potatoes or other groceries.

Science has just come forth with a new discovery that kills cockroaches and ants, and that stays effective for months. It is called Johnston's NO-ROACH coating.

It's just as simple and easy to use as it looks. You paint the coating on surfaces frequented by roaches and ants, woodwork near the sink, baseboards, garbage pails, window and door sills. When these crawling pests come in contact with this invisible, odorless, stainless coating they slowly become paralyzed, turn over on their backs with legs waving in the air, and die. Then the coating stays effective for months to kill any strays that get into the home and that walk over it.

Science has seen to it too, that this product contains no DDT, no sodium fluoride, and no phosphorus. Johnston's NO-ROACH is not a contaminating spray, or a messy powder. It is colorless, and may be brushed just where you want it, without having to move all your dishes and pots and pans.

Prices are 8 oz. for 89¢, pint for $1.69, and a quart for $2.98.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

HOW CAN WE MEASURE CHARACTER? Character is gauged not so much by what we do, as by why we do it.

There are three honest men. One is honest because honesty is the best policy. A second is honest because he is afraid of the consequences should he be dishonest. The third is honest because the idea of dishonesty is repulsive to him and contrary to his moral principles. Is there any doubt as to which of these three men has the most commendable character?

Some people remain temperate because liquor costs too much. There are boys and girls who live decent lives because they are not particularly tempted to live lives of the other variety. All of us, probably, are guilty of keeping our eye on the mirror as we drive our cars, in order to make sure that, if we happen to jump beyond the speed limit, the man on the motorcycle will not sound his whistle and wave us over to the side of the road.

Someone has said that character is what a man is when he is in the dark.

The gauge of character is motive. You are living a good life? That's fine. Now why are you living it? The answer to that question is important.

That Season Again

With the return of dry Fall weather we are again reminded of proper precautions against woods fires. Every year at about this time there's a lot of dry leaves and grass that can react like tinder to the barest spark. The fire may damage or destroy valuable trees, seeds and seedlings, soil-binding undergrowth and small game refuges.

Left on the face of God's green earth is a desolate scar of blackened, needless destruction.

The price of carelessness with fire is far too high for the possible advantage of haste or distraction.

Too Rich A Diet To Remain Healthy

We particularly admire today's cartoon by Reg Manning. Everybody talks about inflation, is afraid of it, but plays around with inflationary practices as though they were duds.

The few economic curbs thus far imposed aren't enough to meet the danger, but folks who run up against those curbs say they're "ruinous."

Prices keep rising, and we tacitly encourage it; families stretch their credit to the breaking point, with no demerits; more and more money is thrown into circulation with a shrinking percentage drained off.

It's a good season for savings bond buying, and opening of savings accounts and purchasing of insurance policies. Eventually Uncle Sam is going to wake up and scoop off some of the cream. It's getting a little bit too rich for our welfare.

A Record That Is Nothing To Boast About

With nearly seventy million voters eligible to cast a ballot expert observers are looking for a "record" forty-two million turnout in the non-presidential election this year.

We're always ready to welcome a record, but it's no great cause for boasting in this case.

If Americans are going to continue telling peoples of other countries that they should vote, Americans should practice what they have been preaching. You can't sell the idea that there's a right and an obligation in voting unless you act as though you believed it yourself.

When only sixty percent of the eligible voters go to the polls, and this turnout is acclaimed as a "record," there is room for thanksgiving that it was not a fifty or a forty percent turnout, and the trend up "up."

Becoming Aware Of Facts Of Mobilization

Bit by bit the facts of mobilization are coming home to the consciousness of the American public. One at a time, the various processes are being applied and the startled cries of those immediately affected are heard. They'd been warned what to expect, but from all indications it went in one ear and out the other.

More people are coming to realize that "life as usual" is out the window for a long time to come; some cannot quite grasp what portends.

The latest warning by government experts came Saturday when they said most young men from 18 through 22 during the next five to ten years probably will have to spend a couple of years in military service.

Drastic, isn't it? But this is only one phase of the mobilization effort which involves so many factors they cannot be now listed.

No, life isn't going to be the same for a long time; nobody knows for just how long.

Our people have accepted responsibilities of leading the free people of the world; that calls for a national effort equivalent to 1942-45. We didn't have much choice in the matter then or now.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Solicitor General Nathan Perlman has persuaded Secretary Dean Acheson to postpone any challenge of a California court's decision that certain civil rights provisions of the United Nations Charter supersede and virtually nullify state and national laws affecting the lives and properties of minority groups living in this country. This will be the key issue when the next Senate resumes debate on ratification of the so-called Genocide Treaty and other international agreements.

This peculiar and provoking question arose when the California Circuit Court of Appeals declared unconstitutional a law preventing Japanese from owning land in that state. The jurists held that it violated Articles 55 and 56 of the U.N. Charter, which guarantee the freedom of minorities with respect to ownership of property and other civil rights. The State immediately appealed the decision to California's Supreme Court.

Many other commonwealths, especially in the South, are interested parties for fear that U.N. guarantees may be cited by aggrieved individuals as superior to state laws affecting the colored race. So, the attitude of the Administration has become a matter of grave concern in legal and political circles.

REINFORCEMENT—Both President Truman and Secretary Acheson hold that neither the U.N. Charter, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights nor the Genocide Treaty can invalidate state or federal laws on such questions as freedom of individuals, the press, radio, the screen, equal rights for women etc., even though treaty is supposed to be the highest law of the land.

Secretary Acheson, last July, sent a stiff letter to Mr. Perlman, asking him to intervene as a friend of the court to set forth the Administration's interpretation. California law officers welcomed this reinforcement. But they have been amazed at the government's failure to enter the case.

The explanation is that Mr. Perlman thought it unnecessary at this time. He prefers to wait until the California Supreme Court has acted, for it may upset the lower body's decision. If not, he would intervene when an appeal is taken to the U.S. Supreme Court. He agrees with State, however, that neither the United States nor the states have surrendered their sovereignty to the international organization.

TREATY—Regardless of the outcome of the California litigation and the Administration's negative attitude toward the legal prominence of international agreements, the California controversy may endanger Senate ratification of the Genocide Treaty that was passed over at the last session.

This convention was designed to punish future imitators of the Nazi leaders, who proclaimed their plan of exterminating the Jews and other racial minorities in Germany. But many eminent lawyers, including the American Bar Association, maintain that its provisions are too extreme, especially Section B of Article II.

Clause provides for punishment of anybody who causes "serious bodily or mental harm to members" of national, ethnical, racial or religious groups. It does not specify that only those who try to wipe out a whole race or vast portions of the population shall be indicted and tried. It merely says that any harmful act, physical or mental, against "members" shall be considered an international crime. That covers a lot of ground, legally, socially and politically.

It might endanger the owners and operators of restricted residential areas, hotels and town or country clubs. It could almost certainly be used against certain Southern states which make no bones about the purpose of restrictive election laws.

LIST—The Genocide Treaty, incidentally, was recently ratified by the necessary number of twenty nations, and it is now in general effect as a body of United Nations law, although not applicable to countries which have not yet approved. Oddly, the identity of the ratifying nations will furnish a new argument for opponents of the convention.

No important power except France, which is no longer a first-rate nation, has given its approval. The list of the countries voting in the affirmative is suggestive and significant, as it is in forthcoming Senate debates. Here it is:

Australia, Ecuador, El Salvador, Ethiopia, France, Guatemala, Haiti, Iceland, Israel, Liberia, Norway, Panama, the Philippines, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Cambodia, Ceylon, Costa Rica, Hashimite Kingdom of Jordan, Korea, Monaco, Saudi-Arabia, Turkey, Vietnam.

Not a single one of these nations has the power to enforce observance of the treaty, if a great power refuses to abide by its provisions.

APPOINTMENT—Like Franklin D. Roosevelt, President Truman finds that it is impossible to satisfy his labor friends. Here is the comment of Labor, the railway brotherhoods' weekly, on the appointment of W. S. Gifford, former A.T.&T. head, as successor to Lewis Douglas at the Court of St. James:

"There is no reason to cheer the appointment. ... There isn't a more extreme reactionary in America than Gifford, and he's about as well qualified to be Ambassador to Great Britain as the writer is to be Pope of Rome."

"At that, he is as progressive as his predecessor, who had more 'culture,' but when needed, could always figure out why the reactionaries were right."

Also rape Secretary Acheson as sponsor for Mr. Gifford.

Selected Shorts

REDKEY, INDIANA, TIMES-JOURNAL: "The same high taxes and inflationary prices which are figuratively breaking the backs of many businesses also have a lot of farmers on the ropes."

KNOXVILLE, IOWA, EXPRESS: "What this country needs instead of fewer big businesses, is a lot more of them, decently run for the benefit of the workmen, the public and the consumers, which, of course, they have to do or they will not be big very long. In fact they would not be a business of any size very long if they were not run right."

MYRTLE POINT, OREGON, HERALD: "The menace at home is creeping socialism. Why do Americans need to be regimented into socialized medicine when, for the cost of one package of cigarettes a day, complete protection can be obtained for your entire family?"

MARION, WISCONSIN, ADVERTISER: "We are in the midst of earth-shaking world developments and the nation is in desperate need of the advice and the vote which comes from the grass roots areas. Somehow the grass roots areas have always had a sound, sensible attitude toward national affairs—the kind of attitude which has been noticeably absent."

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN MISSET Raleigh, N. C.

CONTACT—The 1950 schedule of congressional district Democratic rallies has been completed. A reasonable question is "Was the effort put forth by state and local party leaders worth while?" The answer would seem to be a rather emphatic affirmative.

There were dividends above and beyond the purely political which justified the effort, although partisan politics was the paramount consideration. Average attendance at the formal official courthouses assemblies was above three hundred. That means around four thousand people attended the twelve meetings. At all but one of the district rallies (the fourth held at Raleigh being the exception) there was a barbecue or fish fry or some extra-curricular entertainment which attracted hundreds more people. It's a fairly safe bet that state officials and party leaders making the rounds had opportunity to contact some twenty thousand North Carolina Democrats from at least 96 of the 100 counties. Reports at the various meetings showed four counties had no representation in the audience. Chances are that in the crowds around the eating places every county was represented.

FAITHFUL—Every elective official of the state executive departments attended some of the district meetings. Governor Scott made all but two, and Attorney General Harry McMillan missed only one. Secretary of State Thad Sure has a perfect attendance record, having been present at all twelve meetings. Others making the complete tour included Everett Jordan, state chairman; Mrs. B. B. Everett, director of the women's division; Woodrow Price of the News and Observer, and your reporter for the afternoon papers. The monotonous routine of the business sections and the repetition of speeches and jokes became boring to those who heard them every day, but for each audience it was a new experience and the people liked it. The program varied from the strictly political machinery explained by Chairman Jordan to the non-political dissertation on world peace.

WORTHWHILE—Making this kind of tour over North Carolina is strenuous work. Some members of the party were disposed at times to question whether it was worth the effort and expense. The answer is a definite "yes." Besides stimulating interest in the current election and encouraging citizens to take more active part in their government, the tour provided state officials a chance to sell all parts of the state, discover how it is progressing and what are some of the most urgent needs. It also afforded opportunity for many people to see and talk with their elected state officials when most of them have little chance to see at other times.

INCOMPLETE—The speakers were attempting to sell their ideas and so they did not tell both sides of the story. Senator Clyde Hoyt claims for the Democratic party credit for all the progress made in North Carolina during the past fifty years. He did not deem it necessary to remind his hearers that Maine and Pennsylvania have advanced in the same period, too. Governor Scott repeatedly said that if North Carolina had been given the roads and electricity fifteen years ago that his administration is providing now, the state would have a population of eight million and a far higher per capita income. That led one fellow to comment that if Napoleon had had airplanes he wouldn't have lost the battle of Waterloo.

SCRIPTURE—Senator Frank Graham almost always closed his speech with a partial quotation from the Bible. Picking out a part of one verse, which is itself only a part of one sentence in Paul's great sermon in Athens, the senator quoted "And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth." The senator stopped there, but Paul did not. The apostle went on to say "and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation," etc. (Those who are interested will find the full sermon in Acts 17: 22-31.)

UNITED ACTION FOR PEACE (Wilson Daily Times)

Although to our knowledge the Geneva Assembly of the United Nations has never fully defined aggression, the organization adopted the American plan of setting up an international police force to combat it. It may prove meaningful or meaningless, depending on the fortitude of the representatives who make up the organization. For what took place in Korea was clearly aggression. Without warning one neighbor struck another. For Russia to maintain that it was an internal struggle was nonsense. At the behest of the Russians, the Northern Communists attacked the Southern republic.

Korea, however, was salutary. Had the League of Nations done the same thing when Mussolini attacked Ethiopia, we might have prevented the last war. Lacking the necessary fortitude, not only did Mussolini get away with Ethiopia, but Hitler walked into Austria. From then on it was a race between those two to see how much they could gobble up. Mussolini took Albania. Hitler took Czechoslovakia. It was only when Hitler moved against Poland that the war in 1939 broke out.

If it becomes United Nations' policy that we're to act in all cases, and if we're not dilatory as the League was in its day, we'll head off all future Korea. That doesn't mean to say that we'll stop wars. That, The Times feels, is impossible. But it does mean

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The first two weeks of the tightened consumer credit controls have been highly successful — if cutting down sales of autos and other durables is their objective.

From every section of the country have come reports that sales are off. Auto sales are definitely down. Not only can customers who can meet Federal Reserve terms get cars without radios and white-walled tires but, in some places and on some cars, they can get discounts.

Used car sales have fallen off even worse, probably because the stricter credit terms went into effect just as the annual winter off-season began. The "Smiling Irishmen" and "Laughing Louies" who run used car lots aren't grinning today.

In the home furnishings, appliance, radio and television fields, sales have also been slowed down. The television situation has been further retarded by the to-do over color.

Hardest hit have been those stores that have specialized in soft terms. The stores that have built fame and clientele on dollar down slogans are finding that 15 per cent down and 15 months to pay has not only robbed them of their fame and customers, but their slogans as well.

Curiously enough, two diametrically opposite techniques are being used by credit specialists to maintain sales volume. One is by promoting cheaper merchandise; the other by promoting more expensive goods. They can offer down and monthly payments that can fit into almost anybody's budget. By promoting higher-bracket goods, they can attract customers who can meet the stiffer terms, pay cash. "Terms anybody can afford," and "Don't worry about the size of instalments with our prices" are becoming common ad lines.

While individual merchants, with aggressive promotion, can overcome declines in sales, in general controls have curtailed sales. As the current bulletin of the National Association of Purchasing Agents comments, "Controls are beginning to bite and the teeth are being manipulated by the Federal Reserve Board."

RETAILERS FEAR GOVERNMENT BY SURPRISE

Reports that the Federal Reserve Board has been planning further controls which would make charge accounts payable within 30 days, has created confusion in many retail stores that have annually featured "Buy in November and pay in January" promotions.

The suddenness with which the FRB uncorked the latest controls has these retailers jittery. If they go ahead with these promotions, they fear their ads may be already in newspapers and in the mail when the blow comes. If they don't go ahead, they may lose sales. Several retailer organizations have petitioned the board, in effect, for more government by consultation than government by surprise.

LOW PRICES SELL BEER AND WATCHES

Two dissimilar incidents again demonstrate the effect of prices on sales.

A week ago today some 600 stores around the country put 100,000 watches made by the financially troubled Waltham company on sale at half price. Today almost all of the stores are sold out.

A study by the Research Co. of America shows that consumption of beer has never since equalled the 21 gallons per person it reached in 1913 and 1914. The best it has done since then has been 18.4 gallons in 1918. While income has tripled since 1913-14, those were the days of "the biggest glass in town for 5 cents."

SAWYER TELLS STORY WITH MORAL

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer may have a moral for small business seeking government contracts. He recently related the story of a small manufacturer who came to Washington during the early days of World War II looking for war work.

"His factory in peacetime turned out dolls," dolls with glass eyes which opened and closed," Mr. Sawyer related. "When he first described his product and plant he was told to stop wasting the valuable time of army men with jokes. He was a persistent businessman, however, and after some time found a receptive and alert man in the Signal Corps. After a discussion there he went home, changed his dies and glass-blowing equipment, and returned to Washington to become the sole supplier of the little 'peanut tubes' used in walkie-talkie sets."

NEW AND HOT WATER-REPELLER: A liquid claimed to make all types of fabric water repellent is being manufactured in pressure dispenser "bombs" and will soon reach the market. (It is by Water Repellent, Inc., a division of Spickelmeier Co., Indianapolis, Ind.)

COASTERS: Newest in coasters are those shaped like artists' palettes, hand-decorated to simulate the artists' palette. They are packaged with stirrers resembling brushes. (They are molded of Lustrux styrene by Peter Mfg. Corp., 157 E. 128th St., New York.)

CHARTS: New mariners' charts show directions of currents and give velocities. Instant readings for any hour may be obtained by moving a sliding back piece. They're now made for Vineyard-Nantucket Sounds and Long Island-Block Island Sounds, but may be made for other areas later. (They're made of Vinylic plastic to withstand salt spray and are distributed by Frank G. Dartington, Hyannis Port, Mass.)

Hal Boyle's Column

By BEM PRICE (For Hal Boyle)

Hamhung, North Korea — (AP) — It was a bare little church just around the corner from a bombed out electric plant.

The small buildings nestled beside the broad concrete highway running from Hamhung to the Sea of Japan. A cross on top marked the building as a place of Christian worship.

Curiosity impelled us to enter — two correspondents and a former Korean law student from Seoul.

We had expected to find it empty; religion rides rough seas in Communist countries. North Korea had had five years of Red rule.

To our amazement, we heard the rich, resonant tones of an organ. Its sonorous notes filled the little room.

Then young voices lifted in a hymn.

Our eyes adjusted to the dim light. They took in an ancient pump organ, four bare benches and a pulpit.

A young man was seated at the organ. Ten little girls lined the benches. None was more than 12 years old.

The organ music and the singing stopped. The young man looked up, a question in his eyes. The girls looked up, too — and, like little girls everywhere, giggled.

Through our Korean friend, we asked them to continue.

The music resumed, ever so softly. The organist nodded. The children began singing again. There was no mistaking the hymn. Their young voices rolled it out, clear and strong.

"Rock of ages, cleft for me . . . Before the hymn was finished, a scuffling intruded from the rear of the church. Through the door came an old man.

He extended his hand. The singing stopped.

The old man reached into a discolored briefcase and drew out a book. He began to read in Korean.

Our Seoul friend said the old man was reading from the New Testament.

Another man entered. He went from window to window with a mouthful of nails, tacking in window panes which had been removed to safeguard them during the fighting for Hamhung.

Our Seoul friend, San Ku Lee, began talking with the little gathering.

He talked to them of democracy . . . of the blessings it could bring to people . . . freedom from fear . . . freedom of religion . . . They listened avidly — the organist, the ragged old man, the little girls.

The chilly October sun cast the pattern of a cross on the floor.

Then the two churchmen began talking. Lee translated for us.

This had been a Methodist church. During the Red Korean regime the Communists had banned reading of the Bible. But they had permitted singing.

But, Gulbenkian replied, his art collection would not be subject to estate taxation by Great Britain anyway. He was sorry, he said, but he supposed he had better just send the collection to the United States for a short time, not for the full two years.

Then the gallery legal staff went to work, got the Budget Bureau to approve an Internal Revenue Code amendment and secured the assistance of Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee. Since the legislation concerned the raising of revenue, it had to clear through that committee.

The bill became law Sept. 1, 1950. It provides that when a non-resident foreigner lends an art collection to the National Gallery, it shall not be subject to estate taxation in case the owner dies while it is here.

Washington Letter

By CLARKE BEACH (For Jane Eads)

Washington — It took an amendment to the U.S. Internal Revenue Code to allow the National Gallery of Art to borrow the famous Gulbenkian collection.

The shrewd and fabulous old man, Calouste Sarkis Gulbenkian, a naturalized British citizen, has oil holdings in the Middle East and many other parts of the world. Some financiers believe he is the richest person on earth. He is a native of Armenia, lives in Paris and Lisbon.

After he had agreed to lend his art collection to the National Gallery for two years or more, Gulbenkian raised the question of estate taxes. Under the Internal Revenue Code, this country would have taxed his estate for any property of his in this country at the time of his death. As the collection is worth at least several millions, the tax would have been very heavy. He is 81 years old.

John Walker, chief curator of the gallery, pointed out to Gulbenkian that a death tax agreement signed in 1946 between Great Britain and the United States provides that if one government taxes a citizen's estate, the other government will not tax it.

But, Gulbenkian replied, his art collection would not be subject to estate taxation by Great Britain anyway. He was sorry, he said, but he supposed he had better just send the collection to the United States for a short time, not for the full two years.

Then the gallery legal staff went to work, got the Budget Bureau to approve an Internal Revenue Code amendment and secured the assistance of Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee. Since the legislation concerned the raising of revenue, it had to clear through that committee.

The bill became law Sept. 1, 1950. It provides that when a non-resident foreigner lends an art collection to the National Gallery, it shall not be subject to estate taxation in case the owner dies while it is here.

ALFOL
 BUILDING BLANKET INSULATION

THE BEST INSULATION IS AIR
 WHEN ALFOL PUTS IT TO WORK!

AIR—free—plentiful—is the real heart of most materials used to insulate against heat loss in winter and heat increase in summer. Most insulating materials hold "bubbles" of AIR—but ALFOL Aluminum Foil Building Blanket literally "boxes" AIR in—seals it against moisture or vapor and prevents ruinous condensation within your walls.

When ALFOL is applied, the area between the studs becomes a series of sealed-off AIR SPACES completely enclosed by reflective surfaces of aluminum.

Call or write for a sample, and you'll quickly see why ALFOL costs less per square foot of area treated—costs less to ship, handle and install.

Storm Swollen Rivers Of West Threaten Lowlands

Portland, Ore., Oct. 30—(AP)—Storm swollen rivers that drove 2,000 persons from their southern Oregon mountain valley homes piled seaward today. Their crests threatened new flooding of downstream lowlands.

Two persons have drowned and one man was missing in the week-end flooding. Scores of Oregon-California borderland towns and cities were isolated. Many rural families were marooned.

The rivers burst their banks early Sunday when an overnight deluge dumped 3 and 4 inches of rain into headwaters of streams swollen by four previous days of Pacific-bred storms.

Oregon National Guardsmen were on duty at stricken Myrtle Creek and on alert orders at Roseburg.

Red Cross flood relief volunteers sheltered about 1,000 last night in the Eugene, Ore., area where Sheriff Tom Swarts had issued a general evacuation order for all Willamette River lowlands in Lane County. Some were taken from their homes in rowboats to shelters in nearby Springfield and Eugene.

Another 1,000—perhaps more, the Red Cross said—had scurried yesterday to higher ground along the Umpqua River Valley. The Red Cross at Roseburg, Ore., center of the stricken sector, said these had been housed at Winston, at isolated Myrtle Creek and at Roseburg.

Miss Truman In Television Debut

New York, Oct. 30—(AP)—Margaret Truman made her singing debut on television last night.

"I loved it," the President's concert singing daughter said after the telecast. "Everybody was so nice to me—and I had fun."

Miss Truman, on the air six minutes, sang two songs as a guest artist on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" (CBS) variety show.

The studio audience of 750 gave enthusiastic applause to her offerings—"O'er the Hill," a hunting song from the American Revolutionary war period by Francis Hopkinson; and "My Johann," by Edward Grieg.

In the studio audience were Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and a group of 27 friends of Miss Truman.

The President and Mrs. Truman were reported to have tuned in on the program in Washington.

The program was carried to 19 cities as far west as Omaha, Neb. CBS estimated the audience at 10,000,000.

Indian Summer

Summer weather prevailed in this part of the state during the weekend and today, with a clear sky and sunshine during the day and a waning full moon at night.

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 80 degrees. Lowest last night, 56, and at 8 a.m. today it was 57 degrees.

A year ago yesterday the highest temperature was 87 degrees. Lowest that night, 56, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 62 degrees.

More than an inch of rain fell here a year ago yesterday, Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, reported.

 the loyalty of government workers. It's the job of the board to take up the attorney general's complaint. But this amounts to what is practically a court trial: witnesses, evidence, cross examination of witnesses.

Say the board held the Communist party to be an action group. The party then could appeal through the U.S. courts all the way up to the U.S. Supreme Court to overthrow the board's ruling.

All this will take time, much time, maybe two to four years before the Supreme Court finally hands down a decision. So far, Attorney General McGrath has made no complaint to the board.

There hasn't been time for that yet. Besides, in its haste to get out of town after passing the law, Congress neglected to vote any money for the board.

So at this moment the board has no office, no definite staff, and no money.

Observers Claim Record Off-Year Vote November 7

Washington, Oct. 30—(AP)—High registrations in many key northern states and several in the South led state officials and party chairmen today to predict a total vote on Nov. 7 of better than 42,000,000.

That would be a record for a non-presidential election.

These same sources, using official registrations in a few and estimates in most states, place the number of persons eligible to vote this year at 69,954,478 a record.

The potential voter-eligibles—persons 21 and over—is estimated by the Census Bureau at 96,753,000 as of July 1, 1950. The actual vote is always far below this figure.

While the 42,000,000 vote estimate seems high to many political experts, the Democratic National Committee says unofficially it looks for a vote far above the previous mid-term record of 37,304,380 cast in 1938, if the turnout this year is normal in proportion to population growth.

The total vote in the last off-year, 1946, counting the highest vote in each state for governor, senator, or all House candidates, was 35,874,568. This was an increase of 5,849,641 over 1942, but 1,429,812 under the 1938 record for an off-year.

The record presidential vote was 49,820,312 in 1940. In 1948 it was 48,133,680.

The estimated registration of 69,954,478 this year compares with 66,811,617 for the last presidential election, and 59,669,696 in 1946.

High Average For Sweet Potatoes

Sales of sweet potatoes on the Bethel auction market Friday totaled 2,341 bushels for $9,035.55. J. P. Harris, president of the Bethel Auction Corporation, reported today. A thousand bushels of the tubers averaged $1.50 a bushel.

Practically all of the day's offerings would have averaged $1.50 a bushel if the growers had properly graded the potatoes and packed the baskets to contain 55 pounds, the standard weight per basket, Harris said.

Friday's averages for sweet potatoes were the best of the season.

Market officials urge growers to dig their sweet potatoes now while the weather is good. They also warned farmers to be on the lookout for frost during the next 10 days. "If they hurry now they can get all their sweet potatoes dug and sold before frost," a market official warned today.

Syrup of Black-Draught is ideal for children needing a laxative because of irregular eating or of sluggishness due to constipation. Syrup of Black-Draught is pleasant tasting. East Carolina's Pirates scored single touchdowns in each of the first three periods Saturday night, and then withstood a sudden fourth stanza onslaught by the Cherry Point Flyers to register their fifth win of the season, 20-12, before a record-breaking crowd of 8,000 fans.

The Pirates' passing wizard, Roger Thrift, spearheaded the Bucs' third consecutive victory, as he tossed three touchdown aeriels, with Ends Dwight Shoe and Frank Maennle and Halfback Bill Darby on the receiving end.

Shoe scores first
Shoe scored the first East Carolina tally on a 14-yard pass from Thrift after the Pirates' ace quarterback had hit Darby on a toss that was good for 58 yards.

Buck Hardee kicked his 15th extra point of the year, and the score read 7-0 in favor of the Bucs after three and one half minutes of play. In the second frame, the same combination of Thrift to Darby was again good for 35 yards and a first down to set the stage for the Pirates' second score on the Cherry Point 15, as Darby made a beautiful one-handed catch of the toss.

Maennle Adds Second
After two plays, Thrift spotted Maennle on the one-yard stripe and the full flankman gathered in a perfect strike for the second score. Hardee again converted to give the Pirates a 14-0 halftime lead.

A third period gamble by the Flyers set up East Carolina's final score, as Michalski's fourth down pass to Nelson fell incomplete, and the Pirates took over on their own 49.

A plunge by Fullback Johnny Smith and two passes to Shoe and Maennle moved the ball down to the Marine 18.

Darby Registers Final Score
Three plays later, Thrift pitched good to Darby on the 10 and the Pirate scabcat, playing his best game of the season, scampered the rest of the way for the score, giving East Carolina their winning margin, 20-0.

A scrappy and heavy Flyer team was not to be outdone, however. After Hardee's attempt for a field goal failed on the opening play of

Conference Race Dragging Out To Closing Contests

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS
It looks like the battle for the North State Conference football championship won't be decided until the very final games. Appalachian, the current leader, has the best chance and Elon is right behind.

Appalachian, which has won five league games and played a 14-1 tie with Elon, went out of the conference over the weekend and defeated Tampa, 36-19.

Elon improved his conference mark to four victories and a tie by beating Western Carolina Teachers, 27-19.

Appalachian is host to East Carolina Teachers Saturday and then will play its last league game against Atlantic Christian. Elon is at High Point on Thursday, and then will face Lenoir-Rhyne and Guilford, a harder assignment than Appalachian's.

East Carolina, third with three league victories and a defeat, whipped the Cherry Point Marines, 20-12.

Lenoir-Rhyne climbed into fourth place with a 3-2 conference record by humbling Atlantic Christian, 31-7. An Saturday Lenoir-Rhyne is host to Guilford.

Catawba, a loser to North Carolina State by only 7-6 early in the season, added more prestige to the league by defeating VMI of the Southern Conference, 14-13.

This week's schedule is completed with Presbyterian at Catawba and Atlantic Christian at Randolph-Mason.

Eagles And New York Yanks Win

New York, Oct. 30—(AP)—After a shaky start, the Philadelphia Eagles appeared today to be taking dead aim on their third straight National Football League title.

The hard-hitting Eagles opened the 1950 campaign by absorbing a 35-10 wallowing from Cleveland's Browns, but they haven't lost since. Coach Greasy Neale's squad clinched for the fifth straight time yesterday, taking clear title to the American conference lead, by drubbing the Washington Redskins, 35-3.

That triumph helped to break a first place tie with the New York Giants, who were dumped into third position via a 17-3 setback from the Chicago Cardinals. Cleveland, with a 45-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers, took the runner-up spot.

Meanwhile, the New York Yanks won the "big one," earning a 38-27 decision over the Chicago Bears, whom they'd never whipped before.

Farmville Bows, 45-0, To Williamston Running Game

Williamston, Oct. 30—Williamston trounced Farmville's Red Devils Friday night by a score of 45-0 which left Elbert Moyer's eleven seeking its first victory of the year.

Williamston scored easily in all periods. All the tallies were made on the ground, mostly on long runs. The Williamston backs didn't throw a single pass and kicked only once.

Four of the touchdowns were accounted for by downfield runs of 60, 70, 35 and 90 yards. The locals scored twice in the first, second and last quarters and once in the third. Halftime score was 25-0.

Farmville led in first downs, 11 to 7, being able to move the ball freely between the 10 yard stripes. From there their attack bogged down. Once the Red Devils moved to the Williamston one but were held for downs.

Branch Rickey In Meeting With Brownies' Chief

St. Louis, Oct. 30—(AP)—Branch Rickey, currently without a baseball home, was here today for a meeting with St. Louis Browns President Bill DeWitt.

There was considerable speculation as to whether Rickey's visit to the Browns' front office will culminate in just a social call or whether it means the American League baseball club is in Rickey's future.

There have been rumors that the former Brooklyn Dodger head man might move into the Brownie organization, but they have been denied by DeWitt and disclaimed by Rickey.

Rickey also plans to see Owner Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals but thos has been labeled as "not on business."

Twenty-Game Schedule For Buccaneer Cagers

Fifteen Conference Games Lie Ahead; McCrary Eagles Newly Placed On State Season Opens Nov. 30

Twenty games, including fifteen conference tilts and one newcomer to the slate, are listed on East Carolina's 1950-51 basketball schedule, released today by Athletic Director Dr. N. M. Jorgensen.

The high-classed McCrary Eagles, semi-pro outfit from Asheboro, is the newcomer to the Pirates' schedule this year. The Eagles will play here December 9, and a return game will be played in Asheboro February 10.

Cosch Howard Porter's cagers, who looked impressive in losing to George Giamack's Grand Rapids professional team 66-49 last week, will open their regular season of play November 30 against Camp Lejeune there.

Guilford College will be the first North State conference foe for the Pirates on December 2, with the game being played in Greensboro.

is medicine destroying itself?

THINGS DRAMATIC capture the imagination, sometimes to the point of distorting the perspective. This is as true in medicine as in other fields. The sensational results with sulfa drugs and penicillin are examples.

Less dramatic, but responsible for saving uncounted lives, are the broader public health measures. Sewage disposal, swamp clearance, and water, milk, and food inspection are but a few of these triumphs.

The physician and the pharmacist have always been leaders in the field of preventive medicine. This fact led James Brice to observe, "Medicine is the only profession that labors incessantly to destroy the reason for its own existence."

The fight, however, is far from won. Diagnosis and treatment of disease are still the primary functions of the physician. The filling of prescriptions is our responsibility as pharmacists.

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Lawrenson

Chapter 8

As Cliff hurried out on his errand, Marc closed the door, and stepped quickly into what had been Mr. Richards' room. The lights were on, and a pair of blue silk pajamas were draped across the freshly made berth. A traveling case lay open on a stand, with shirts and underclothes neatly arranged. Marc pawed through the case, looked under the berth.

He repeated the process in the room beyond. This one was smaller. The berth was tumbled, and a suit and underclothes were dumped carelessly over a chair. Marc swept his flashlight under the berth. It flicked to a wadded rag stuffed in one corner. Shaking it out gingerly, he saw that it was a Pullman hand towel, streaked and spotted with blood. He thoughtfully put the towel back under the berth and continued his search. As he lifted a waste-basket under the washstand, he saw a crumpled piece of ordinary writing paper. Carefully untangling the folds, a note in fine backhand met his eye:

"Dick—Meet me stateroom 'A,' next car, at 11:30."

No signature or identification. Marc examined a collection of loose dirt in the pocket formed by the crushed paper. Then, taking out his handkerchief, he wrapped the ball of paper in it, and slipped it into his pocket.

He went to the next room, Linden's. This was a duplicate of the other except that the bed was turned neatly back, a light suit was hung carefully on a hanger and underwear folded on a chair.

Miss Arthur's door stood open. A pair of stockings were draped on a hook over the lavatory. Underclothes were laid over the top of a small traveling case which stood open on a chair. Marc quickly felt through the case, then stepped back into the aisle.

Finished with his hurried reconnaissance, Marc returned to the lounge and dropped into a chair beside Nora, whose eyes, bright with excitement, met his questioning. He gave her a slow wink, stretched his legs into the middle of the car and, tilting his hat over his eyes, studied the tense faces.

"All right now," said Anderson sharply. "I want a complete story of what went on here tonight. Don't leave anything out. Let's start with you, Mr. Johnson. When did you get on the car—and where?"

"A little after seven this evening, at the siding about thirty miles from Duck Lake. That's where Richards keeps—or rather kept—this car when he was there."

"You got to the car—how?"

"We all went together, all except Linden. Richards' summer home's next to mine. He drove us to the train in a station wagon he keeps—kept—there."

"And you, Linden?"

"I was in St. Paul on business. I rode the train, and transferred when the car was picked up at the siding."

"What were you doing in St. Paul—company business?"

"Yes—partly."

"Partly?"

"Well, I attended to some private banking business—if you must know!" Linden said defiantly.

"I must know—and will know—everything, my friend," snapped Anderson. "So you all got together around seven-thirty. Then what?"

"We had dinner."

"You ate. How long'd that take?"

"We were through about eight-thirty or a quarter to nine I think," said Johnson.

"Talk about anything in particular?"

"Don't think so. We played some bridge. Mrs. Arnold and Miss Arthur went to bed quite early. Richards and Linden went about a quarter to eleven, and Arnold and I perhaps half an hour later. Isn't that right?" Johnson turned to Arnold. "And that covers it."

"Not quite!" said Anderson dryly. "When did Mrs. Arnold leave you?"

he asked, turning to Arnold.

"About nine-thirty. A few minutes after we started to play bridge."

"Was Richards himself? I mean anything funny about his actions?"

"No," said Johnson. "He was quite cheerful, in fact."

"I thought he spent a lot of time dreaming about something," remarked Arnold.

"He was to give a talk at the Railroad Club tomorrow," explained Linden, rubbing the side of his nose nervously. "Probably had that on his mind."

"Okay," continued Anderson. "The bridge game broke up when?"

"Quarter to eleven," said Linden.

"Did you and Richards go right to bed?"

"Yes—we went into our rooms at the same time."

"You others"—Anderson turned to Johnson and Arnold—"did you go to bed at the same time?"

"No," replied Johnson. "I read a while, and Arnold went out on the platform for a smoke. When he came back we talked a few minutes, and he went to bed. I remember looking at my watch."

"What time would that have been?" interrupted Marc casually.

"Seven minutes after eleven," replied Johnson.

Anderson studied Johnson, his eyes blank and unwinking.

Bonner Hopes To Bring Peanut Bill Before House Next Session

Congressman Herbert Bonner stated in a letter recently he hopes the Abbott peanut bill will be reported out of committee during the next session of Congress.

The bill calls for larger acreages allowed on edible variety peanuts rather than a blanket quota on all types, which is in effect at the present.

It was originally an amendment to the old peanut bill, which clamped acreage controls, and was suggested by Bonner. The Abbott bill presently is a brushed-up version of the amendment.

In a letter addressed to J. E. Winslow, Greenville resident and former president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, Bonner stated he is making every effort to get the bill out of the committee for a vote on the House floor.

The letter stated Bonner had advocated such a program several years ago at a peanut meeting at Tarboro.

"At that time I got no support from the farm organization... as the program then seemingly was going along all right," he wrote.

He stated, "At the beginning of the last Congress I discussed a two-type program similar to the tobacco program with members of the House from Virginia, North Carolina and other states. Not being a member of the Agriculture Committee and knowing the value of committee membership with respect to legislation, I encouraged Mr. Abbott of Virginia to introduce the bill. I then encouraged Senator Graham to introduce a similar bill in the Senate, and gave him all the facts about the conditions existing."

"I am greatly interested in this thing, for I realize the economic condition that will exist in north-eastern Carolina unless the Abbott, the Graham or some similar bill is enacted by Congress."

Bonner continued by saying one of the snags in the part of the bill's passage will be out of the way when Congress next convenes. He is Representative Pace of Georgia who opposed the bill on behalf of his constituents who grow mostly peanuts for oil.

The upshot of the hue and cry over peanuts, according to Winslow, is that there is a possibility the manufacturing concerns will begin importing Chinese peanuts. That variety is much larger than do-estic kinds and contains more oil. According to reports on the subject, they can be shipped to this country, including tariff charges, and manufactured for less than the cost of buying and manufacturing domestic varieties.

Winslow, who originally was instrumental in "talking up" peanuts to the Department of Agriculture, described the importation of Chinese varieties as "the joker in the deck" concerning the oil variety versus edible variety quotas.

Patrolman's Intuition Is Proven Right Again

The black and silver patrol car was moving slowly down Dickinson Avenue when an old model truck approached the intersection of Dickinson and Ridgeway.

The Patrolman scanned the youthful looking driver, the experienced eye of the patrolman telling him that the driver was much too young to be driving and didn't have a license.

Swinging his car into a nearby filling station, Patrolman Paul Whitely of Greenville, observed the driver abandoning the truck and running down the street. By the time the patrolman returned to the scene the cotton-topped youth was nowhere to be found. A lady nearby pointed out to the patrolman that the youth had gone several blocks down the street.

The truck was left in the middle of the side street with the keys still in the switch. Soon, a check by City police officers who had been called to the scene, revealed the name of the owner of truck. But the owner told officers he had recently sold the truck to a local automobile dealer. Still following the chain of events leading to the runaway driver, officers found that the boy had bought the truck only a few minutes prior to leaving it in the street; and he had paid cash for the truck.

The dealer showed the records of the transaction which gave the name of the buyer to be one Philip Whitehurst, about 16, of Greenville.

After being taken into custody on charges of no operator's license and held for further questioning, the led made no statement as to why he ran from his newly-bought truck.

While the Patrolman missed the boy's age slightly he was right about his not having license, which seems to be second sense with the officers on the patrol.

British Customs Seize Gold Set For Shipment

London, Oct. 30.—(AP)—British customs officials waited today for a mysterious American couple to make the next move in a cat-and-mouse game involving $55,000 in gold.

The customs people have the gold. Half of it is locked up at the Bank of England. The other half is held under bond at London airport.

The officials seized the first half yesterday at the airport on the ground that a richly-dressed middle-aged woman—described as a New Yorker named "Mrs. C. S. Schwartz"—had tried to export it without the required treasury license. She arrived Saturday by plane from New York.

PITT — TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY

Walter Houston, Barbara Stanwyck and Wendell Corey star in the blazing action drama, "The Furies."

Two Employees Local Utilities Hurt In Wreck

Two Negro employees of the Greenville Utilities Commission were injured early this morning when the truck on which they were riding was struck by a car at the intersection of Dickinson avenue and Grand avenue.

The truck was struck by a car driven by Robert Barrett, Negro, of 717 Fleming street. Barrett is being held in city jail on charges of careless and reckless driving.

The two men, Jesse Ward and William Howard were taken to Pitt General hospital for treatment by the Greenville Fire department's rescue truck. William Howard was treated for an ankle injury and released while Ward suffered a broken left ankle and broken right leg. He is being transferred to a Raleigh hospital today for further treatment, doctors at the hospital announced. The condition of the man was reported to be good.

America now leads the world in industrial strength and developed natural resources. Canada already has uncovered vast wealth in oil, coal, and minerals, and the experts have no doubts that the potential resources far exceed anything as yet discovered.

More American money is invested in Canada than in any other foreign nation. Development will come with the growth of the still comparatively small Canadian population.

Even now a combination of the resources of the two countries presents a formidable strength. The day will come when it will be unchallenged.

All citizens interested in the welfare of youth are invited.

Dean Guy Phillips of the University of North Carolina School of Education is president of the North Carolina Conference for Social Service, and Mr. Tom Grier of Raleigh is executive secretary. Dr. Ellen Winston, the state's commissioner of public welfare, is chairman.

of the White House Conference Steering Committee in North Carolina.

Miss George Hughes, child welfare case worker for the Pitt County Welfare Department, expressed hope today that the people of Pitt county will attend the White House Conference meeting here in November.

"Each county is to report to the state what it is doing for children and youth and what still needs to be done and how it is planned to do it. The purpose of this is to coordinate the work among young people and list the objectives of various groups. We have been impressed by the fine cooperative spirit of the people of Pitt County in child welfare work," Miss Hughes stated.
