American Armor Drives On Toward Manchurian Border

Allies Say 'No' To War Machine For Germany

No German National Army, War Industry Or General Staff Agreed Upon By Atlantic Treaty Nations

Washington, Nov. 1—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today the North Atlantic treaty nations are agreed that there shall be no German national army, German war industry or a German general staff.

He made the statement in telling a newsconference that the North Atlantic defense ministers have agreed on the importance of German participation in the build-up of western European defenses.

Acheson voiced confidence that a council of deputies and the North Atlantic Military committee will be able to work out details for using German forces, a point the defense committee failed to agree on in its three-day meeting here. Acheson declared, too, that there is no question of a delay in the defense plans.

The defense ministers deadlocked over French insistence that only small German units be accepted in the proposed combined European defense force, and that these operate only under a unified European organization which has yet to be agreed upon.

Acheson reported that an extraordinary amount of progress has been made in defense preparations in the last two months. Noting that the treaty nations have some very tough problems to work out, he declared that the failure of the defense ministers to reach agreement did not mean there was any crisis.

The United States apparently has put its foot down and told France she must make some concessions on the German rearmament question.

Today the Council of Deputies of the Atlantic pact organization, a working group of the top level council of foreign ministers, and the military committee, composed of the military chiefs of staff, set about devising some plan acceptable to all. The task of the two committees was to coordinate the military and political angles.

Three Yaks Downed In Air Battle; Russian-Built Jets In Action; U.S. Tank Column Pushing Toward Yalu Boundary City Of Sinuiju

Seoul, Nov. 1—(AP)—American armor rammed roughshod over rallying Reds in northwest Korea today and thrust within 19 air miles of the Communist Manchurian border.

Overhead, Russian-built jet fighters, flying at almost the speed of sound, were battled to a draw by slower U.S. Mustangs. Apparently neither side lost any planes in the dogfight, a spokesman said.

The swift ground thrust to Charyongwan by a tank column of the U.S. 24th Division came after fierce Communist counterattacks along the Chong River were repulsed Tuesday night.

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters said the column was pushing toward the Yalu River boundary city of Sinuiju against lessening resistance. Sinuiju is across the Yalu from Antung, big Chinese Red airbase in Manchuria.

Earlier Wednesday, three Russian-made Yak planes were shot down by U.S. F-51 Mustang fighters and a B-26 light bomber .The fighters got two, the bomber one.

One American F-80 jet fighter was downed by Red anti-aircraft fire.

Red Korean resistance along most of the northern battlefront was stiff. Communist cavalry swept down on allied forces.

Cavalry had not been used to any extent earlier in the war. The Red Koreans who invaded South Korea June 25 were equipped with Russian-made tanks, field pieces and automatic weapons.

The use of cavalry in the Orient harks back to the Mongolian hordes that swept across the Asian plains centuries ago.

A second Chinese Red regiment officially was reported in action in Korea. U.S. 10th Corps headquarters said the regiment had been identified in northeast Korea.

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the U.S. 10th Corps, of which the Seventh Division is a component, told correspondents that attacks in the northeast would be made in strength to determine just how many Chinese Communists stood in the way.

Guardsmen 'Mop Up' Resistance In Island Revolt

Puerto Rican Death Toll Mounts; Governor Promises Quick Clean-Up

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 1—(AP)—National Guardsmen continued to mop up resisting pockets of rebellious Nationalists today in the wake of a mounting death toll from the worst revolt in Puerto Rico's history.

Police put the number of dead at 33—23 Nationalists, nine policemen and one National Guardsman. They said 35 had been wounded in the outbreaks in 10 Puerto Rican centers.

Governor Luis Munoz Marin said the revolt by anti-United States rebels would be cleaned up in a day or two. He termed it a "conspiracy against democracy, helped by the Communists."

Police and Guardsmen maintained a cordon around the San Juan home of the Nationalist leader, Pedro Albizu Campo. Shots fired from upstairs windows kept the troops at bay, but no arrest warrant has been issued for the 63-year-old rebel.

One man was shot to death last night while trying to break through the police blockade around Albizu's house. Another man was killed and five persons—including two children—were wounded in a police-Nationalist gun battle when a rebel group barricaded themselves in a barber shop in San Juan's working class section.

National Guardsmen with planes and tanks yesterday drove the rebels from the two strongholds they had established in Jayuya and Utuado, neighboring towns 50 miles from San Juan. Reports continued last night, however, of scattered shootings in other parts of this U. S. island territory of 2,149,000 people in the Caribbean.

Trygve Lie Re-Elected In Assembly

Named Secretary-General For New Term Despite Soviet Bloc Threats

New York, Nov. 1—(AP)—The U. N. General Assembly today extended Secretary-General Trygve Lie's term for three more years despite a Soviet bloc threat not to deal with him.

By a vote of 46 to 5 with 1 abstentions, the assembly supported the United States position that Lie should be kept in office as an expression of confidence for the way he handled the Korean case.

Before keeping Lie in the $40,000 a year job the assembly rejected a Soviet resolution to toss the matter back to the Security Council which had failed to agree on a candidate after a month of consideration. The vote on the Russian proposal was 9 in favor, 37 against and 11 abstaining.

An Iraqi resolution to refer the issue to a seven-member committee for a two week study also was rejected. The vote on this was 15 for, 37 against, and 7 abstaining.

The assembly action came after a day and a half [illegible] Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky led the Russian bloc's opposition to Lie charging that the Norwegian was a stooge of the American State Department.

U.S. Delegate Warren R. Austin declared the assembly could not allow Russia to punish Lie because the secretary-general had supported the U.N. action against the North Koreans.

Vishinsky resumed his fight against Lie this morning, even though it had become apparent by the tone of the debate that the Norwegian had enough backing to be retained.

Assembly President Nasrollah Entezam of Iran suggested that the members vote by secret ballot or the [illegible] solution but said this could not be done if any delegation objected. Chile objected, and the vote was by a show of hands.

Corporate Earnings Continue To Mount

New York, Nov. 1—(AP)— Corporation profits are pouring forth in a record flood—51 per cent greater for the last quarter than in July, August and September of 1949—under the shadow cast by threatened enactment of an excessive profits tax.

The Korean war merely added a snappy fillip to the earnings gain already underway. In the second quarter, before the war, profits were running 43 per cent ahead of 1949's like period. The third quarter gain of 51 per cent was in spite of a hike in the corporation income tax from 38 to 42 per cent.

But retroactive excess profits tax could whittle 1950's corporate earnings—now seemingly headed for an al-time record — down below the previous record of 1948, when company bookkeepers do their final figuring in March, 1951.

A compilation made today by the Associated Press of the earnings of 486 corporations in all fields of business showed these totals:

1950 third quarter $1,711,279,763.

1949 third quarter, $1,129,795,589.

Increase: 51 per cent.

Many companies this year took the increased 1950 taxes out of their third quarter earnings. Otherwise, the profits over the hot months might have appeared even larger in comparison with last year's.

TALKS NEW CARRIER

Washington, Nov. 1—(AP)—Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.) proposed today the immediate construction of a new 60,000-ton aircraft carrier designed for A-bomb flights from its deck.

Special Term Of Court Scheduled

Due to the early adjournment of this week's term of Superior Court, Solicitor W. J. Bundy has scheduled a special term beginning Monday, November 27.

The term will be for the trial of criminal cases. Judge W. I. Halstead of South Mills will preside. There will be no Grand Jury except for jail cases occurring in the meantime.

Bundy scheduled the special term, the third this year, after approval by Governor Scott was granted yesterday. This week's calendar will be tried at that time almost in its entirety except for a rearrangement of Monday's cases. Calling for a third special term came about when two weeks of court were halted after their beginning when Judge Chester Morris became ill.

He adjourned court during the September term midway through the week. Court was adjourned yesterday morning when the judge was taken home after being ill Monday afternoon.

FOOD FOR TITO

100-Gallon Still Is Destroyed By ABC Officers

Pitt county ABC officers captured and destroyed a newly-constructed liquor still near the Ayden-Calico road in the Venters Crossroads section of Pitt county yesterday afternoon.

The still was a 100-gallon "pot" type copper still, but was not in operation. Indications were that the still had been operating for only a short period of time. A total of 1200 gallons of fermented sugar and corn meal mash was found at the site of the still.

It was being heated by oil burners with a pressure tank. Also found near the still location were 6 one-hundred pound bags of sugar and thre bushels of meal. The meal and sugar were turned over to the Pitt county home and county jail for their use.

Umstead Thinks National Debt Will Never Be Paid

Raleigh, Nov. 1.—One of the amusing, and at the same time enlightening, episodes of the recent Democratic cavalcade over the state was the conversation between William Umstead, former United States senator, and Waldo Cheek, commissioner of insurance. The scene was in Umstead's car enroute home from Tarboro, with Cheek in the front seat with him, Secretary of State Thad Eure and your reporter on the back seat.

Cheek in apparent innocence and good faith asked Umstead how long he thought it would take to get the national debt paid off. Umstead almost lost control of the car as he jumped an inch or two off the seat, and turned to Cheek with a look of amazement and said: "My friend, I have never heard a more foolish question in all my life. You are the first person I've met who has the slightest idea the debt ever will be paid."

He went on to explain that the debt had been increased this year, even before the Korean situation developed, and that only an insignificant token payment had been made on it since outbreak of the late world war, although the period since the war saw the national income mount to unprecedented heights.

"If you can't reduce indebtedness in times of great prosperity, how can you expect to pay it off when conditions are not so good?" he asked.

Cheek and Umstead continued the conversation, reaching the conclusion that we (the people of the United States) had just as well learn to live with that debt and teach our children and grandchildren as best we can how to get along with it.

Meantime, the secretary of state and the newspaper man in the back seat just listened and learned.

Describes Life In Homeland

Young Speaker Believes U. S. Aid Saved Greece

Declaring that the United States' Marshall Plan aid contributed largely to driving the Communists out of control in Greece, Sam Nixon, a 12-year-old native of that country, last night painted a tragic picture of conditions as he knew them in Greece.

Young Nixon, who has lived in this country for about three years, spoke to the Naval Reserve unit here in one of their regularly scheduled talks on some of the world's trouble spots.

Paul Nixon, the boy's father, who has lived in Greenville for a number of years, contributed to the question and answer program by describing conditions in his homeland. He declared the nation will shortly institute a compulsory military training program that will eventually take every 21-year-old into the service.

At present, Nixon said, there is a large standing army but it is expected to double its strength. He expressed the opinion that to do so will probably take all the males of the seven-and-a-half million population.

He stated he doesn't know how the country can "get back on its feet" if it is to maintain the proposed army.

Concerning communism Nixon, who is proprietor of Dixie Lunch here, stated Russia's form of communism is no worse than Marshall Tito's doctrine as expressed by Yugoslavia's nationalism. He said one was as bad as the other.

Prior to introducing both Nixons, Lieutenant Commander Jack Foley, program chairman, spoke briefly on Greece's history. In describing Communist activities in Greece he said if the Soviets controlled the country, it would have far reaching effects on Marshall Plan aid in Turkey.

"Complete Communist subjugation of Turkey might be accomplished with little or no difficulty," he said, provided Greece is overrun.

Young Nixon joined his father in Greenville since the last war when his mother and two sisters came to make their home here. He was enrolled in the public schools here and now speaks fluent English.

In Greece, he said, the Communists did not try to invade the

Nehru 'Rode A Tiger'

Former Soft Approach To Communist China Has Failed Him; Evidence Of Aggressive Intent Manifest; Even India's Security Clouded; Policy Shift Ahead

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Communist China's invasion of little Tibet must be a sharp reminder to India's Prime Minister Nehru of the Chinese proverb that he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount.

Nehru, who is regarded by many as the potential leader of Asia, has been pursuing a largely neutral course in the conflict between the democracies and the Communist bloc .He has been advocating admission of the Peiping government to membership in the United Nations.

Consequently Red China's march on Tibet has come as a jarring surprise in New Delhi, which had understood that the differences between Tibet and China would be settled diplomatically; and on top of this jolt comes word of the invasion of Northern Korea by considerable Chinese Communist forces.

So the Indian government is now faced with the necessity of overhauling its policy towards Communist China. Apparently the present policy is based on unwarranted hope or on a misconception of what the Peiping regime really stands for.

India's statesman has been working on the erroneous belief that the Red Chinese government is of the Nationalist variety and that General Mao, its head, has already become an Oriental Tito. Peiping itself long has been putting out propaganda calculated to convey this impression.

This is a position which would be calculated to please India. Nehru and his followers hate imperialism, and the prime minister has been fighting it most of his life. Nationalism has become the absolute byword in India, as it has in most of the rest of Asia.

What India, and the rest of the world, must recognize is that the Chinese mainland with its population of some 500,000,000 and its great armies represents the heart of the Red regime in Asia.

It is from Chinese territory that the fresh invasion of Korea has sprung. The Communist-led revolt in French Indochina is being fed from the continental reservoir. It is from China that attacks on Malaya, Burma and other territories may

Excess Profits Tax

Some Of The Arguments Revolving Around A Major Question Awaiting Congress; Average Earnings; Claims For Refunds; An Odd Inflationary Note In Law

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 1 — (AP) — This gives some of the arguments over a major question Congress must tackle when it returns this month:

To keep them from profiting too much off the defense program, should the regular corporation tax on business firms be increased or should they be placed under an excess profits tax?

Right now the regular corporation tax on a firm is 25 per cent of the first $25,000 of earnings and 45 per cent on all over that.

Congress could increase this regular tax any way it wished. For example, by making firms pay a flat tax of 65 per cent on all their earnings.

So much for the regular corporation tax. Now for the excess profits tax. It's too complicated to be explained fully here. Here is an outline:

During the World War II years of 1940-45 corporations had to pay an excess profits levy. This was ended with the war's end in 1945. It went this way:

To find out what could be considered its average earnings and, therefore, what could be considered in excess of the average, the law said:

A firm would figure its average yearly earnings for the pre-war years of 1936-39.

Then during the war years it paid a flat 40 per cent tax on each year's earnings that did not exceed the 1936-39 average, plus an excess profits tax of 95 per cent on all earnings above the average.

After the war each firm was entitled to a refund of 10 per cent so that the excess profits tax actually figured out at 85 1-2 per cent.

But firms could get other refunds, making the tax less than 85 1-2 per cent for various reasons. For example:

A company made one kind of product in 1936-39 but changed to another after 1940; or a company might have been flattened by a flood or strike some time between 1936-39, thus bringing down its average earnings for that period.

In the latter case the firm which had small earnings in 1936 would be at a disadvantage when, getting on its feet after 1940, it had to

Hallowe'en Party Hugh Success

If noise and hilarity is any indication of a good time then the Hallowe'en carnival sponsored by the Grifton P. T. A. on Friday night went over big. Beginning at 5:30 with a supper in the school cafeteria and then continuing with a program in the auditorium, this was presented by each grade in school. Miss Hazel Patrick was program director. Next in order were the fishing ponds, tulip beds, bingo and hot dogs and drinks to keep everyone in a jovial mood.

Principal Albert Tyson reports the entire evening a success in fun and finances as well.

Allred-Tyson Vows Spoken In Candlelight Ceremony

MRS. HAROLD ALLRED

Miss Elvira Smith Tyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Benjamin Tyson of Farmville, became the bride of Harold M. Allred of Washington, D.C., son of James Grover Allred of Sanford and the late Mrs. Allred, Sunday afternoon, October 22, at four o'clock in a candlelight ceremony in the Farmville Baptist church. The Rev. E. W. Holmes officiated.

A wrought iron candelabra with bronze candles centered the altar, which was banked on both sides by white wicker baskets of bronze chrysanthemums, and Oregon fern, making an impressive setting for the ceremony.

Prior to the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Chester Langley, organist, and Mrs. Rosemary Holmes Turnage, vocalist, sang, "The Sweetest Story Every Told" and "Because."

The couple entered the church unattended. The bride wore a new grape gabardine suit and matching hat, with a pink plume, and a matching blouse. She wore a white purple-throated orchid at her shoulder.

The ushers were Curtis Flanagan and Charles Edwards.

Mrs. Tyson chose for her daughter's wedding a grey crepe dress with black accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip to western North Carolina. They will make their home in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Allred attended Campbell college and for several years has been bookkeeper at the Farmville Furniture Company. She is a former member of the Junior Woman's Club and has been very active in the work of the Baptist Church. Before going to Washington, Mr. Allred served as manager of Paramount Theatre.

The bride was honored by many lovely parties, given by the following: Mrs. Bernice Turnage and Mrs. R. P. Wheless; Mrs. T. E. Joyner Sr. and Mrs. T. E. Joyner Jr.; Mrs. C. Hubert Joyner, Mrs. Charles Fitzgerald, Mrs. Arch Flanagan and Mrs. Curtis Flanagan, circles of the Farmville Baptist Church, Mrs. George Davis, Junior Sunday school class and others.

Sans Souci Club Meets With Mrs. Wooten Tuesday

The members of the Sans Souci Book Club were guests of Mrs. Frank Wooten, at her home on West Third Street, Tuesday afternoon.

After the president, Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, presided over the business, Mrs. J. T. Cheatham, program chairman, presented Mrs. W. L. Hall, who gave the program of the afternoon, a paper on "MacArthur."

Mrs. Hall gave an interesting sketch of the life of America's most controversial general—as a soldier, executive and family man. Douglas MacArthur was first in many things: namely, first in his class at West Point, youngest division commander in France in World War I, the youngest superintendent West Point ever had and the youngest major general in the Army.

The club was delighted, as a group, to learn more of this great general, who has distinguished himself by being the first American ever to become a field marshal in another nation's army and the first American commander to fly the United Nation's flag.

After the exchange of books, the hostess assisted by her sister, Mrs. Pettigrew, served a delicious salad course with coffee.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

TODAY'S GREATEST NEED

Tom Paine said, more than 150 years ago, that it was within the power of the nascent American Republic to start the life of the world over again.

If that was true 150 years ago it is more true today. In spite of the discouragement of present-day conditions—moral, political, economic, and military—there thrills in the heart of every deeply believing Christian the conviction that affairs in this world could change over night. Instead of going into ruin we could march into centuries of unparalleled glory and progress.

The truth of the matter is that we are in the chaos of this present hour because we have put God out of human life. This movement began in the Renaissance, was augmented by the Enlightenment of the 18th Century, and was deepened and confirmed by the 19th. century skepticism. And it has left us a generation without a soul.

What we need is not some new scheme or a more powerful bomb. What we need to recognize is that God created the universe, that He still controls it, and that it is ruin for us to try to rule our affairs apart from his consent and guidance.

Let us get that in mind, and the whole current of our times will change. And we can begin to change it.

More Pay For The Legislators

Pitt county voters as well as those all over North Carolina should begin thinking on the five constitutional amendments which will be voted on by the people of the state in the general election November 7.

This is the first of three editorials in which The Reflector will discuss the five amendments which will be decided in the balloting next Tuesday.

First of all we would like to discuss amendment number three which would provide more compensation for the members of the North Carolina General Assembly while that body is in session every two years. For years it has been apparent that the legislators who go to Raleigh every other year to serve in the General Assembly have been doing so at their own expense because the compensation they receive from the state hardly covers their expenses in Raleigh. It lacks a lot of making up for the income they lose by leaving their businesses back home.

The members of the General Assembly at the present time receive $10 per day for a maximum of 60 days while the legislature is in session. When the legislature is in session more than 60 days, and it usually is, the members of the body have to stay in Raleigh at their own expense to serve the interests of people of their own counties. In some instances the General Assembly has stayed in session as long as four months, but the members still received the $10 per day for the first 60 days and nothing more for the remainder of the session.

The per day compensation for members of the General Assembly is too low at the present time, and the maximum period of time for which the compensation is paid is too short. The constitutional amendment which was passed by the General Assembly and will be voted on November 7, provides for a compensation of $15 per day for the legislators for a maximum of 90 days during the regular biennial session and the same per day payment for a period of time not to exceed 25 days should a special session of the General Assembly be necessary.

With prices what they are these days, a member of the General Assembly can hardly keep his hotel room in Raleigh, eat his meals and smoke a package of cigarettes or a couple of cigars for less than $15 per day. While in Raleigh he is serving the people of his home county and the people of the state as a whole, and the legislator is entitled to at least have his reasonable expenses paid while he is doing so.

The constitutional amendment which proposes the necessary limited compensation for the members of the General Assembly is one which has been needed and is needed at the present time. The Reflector urges the people of Pitt county to vote for the adoption of the amendment rather than allowing it to be defeated as similar amendments have been defeated on at least two occasions in the past.

An Example Of What Can Be Done

The accomplishment of the Stumpy Point School of Dare county in winning national recognition from Freedom Foundation, Inc., for outstanding work in an American way of life project should serve as an inspiration for every school, large and small in North Carolina.

It was in a little school room in Dare county where four grades had the same teacher, that the 15 students began a project which brought their school into the national limelight. The students and their teacher, and later other students of the Dare county schools and the other teachers, put a lot of time and effort into their project. They had no money to put into the project, and asked for none, because they used their own ingenuity and the resources they had at hand.

Stumpy Point school competed with the largest and most progressive public schools in the nation and ended in the top group of schools. The students and teachers of the Stumpy Point school overcame the disadvantages of being in a small school by putting forth a great deal of effort. The same thing can be done in and is being done in small schools throughout the state.

Nevertheless, there is a great deal of room for improvement in our schools throughout North Carolina. Some of the improvement will come with better physical plants for the schools, some will come with more money to be spent on the school program; but there is a lot that can be done at the present time in the individual classrooms by greater efforts on the part of students and teachers.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—As a means of keeping the American people informed on the Administration's national and international plans and policies, the system of conducting presidential press-radio conferences installed by President Truman has become farcical. The system is responsible for the steadily diminishing flow of accurate, complete and informative news about White House doings.

Even under Chief Executives who came to dislike and resent semi-weekly interrogation, especially Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt, reporters were able to make inquiry about matters affecting the lives and prospects of their millions of readers.

They were not regimented or tagged, for they stood in a general group in the President's private office. They could—and did—ask pertinent questions, and sometimes it took courage to ask them, if they were of an embarrassing nature.

QUERIES—The old system was so informal that even a cub reporter newly arrived at the Capital dared to raise his voice, and it so happens that these young and fresh minds thought up more vital, bread-and-butter queries than their more elderly colleagues.

If the head man evaded or brushed aside one of these questions, another correspondent used to continue to press for a more satisfactory answer. This is permissible, provided it is not carried beyond limits of respect and decorum.

Presidents often refused to give any reply. But, as often as not, the tone and manner of the presidential refusal was as productive of news as a specific answer. There were times when they actually deceived us, taking refuge behind the belief that it would be damaging to the public interest—or their own—to tell us the truth. But the truth usually caught up with them sooner or later.

THRILLS — Anyway, this catch-as-catch-can method was responsible for obtaining a fairly large and reasonably honest supply of information which the public has a right to know under our system of government.

In this connection, it should be noted that, if there is a single American institution which amazes and thrills foreign correspondents when first assigned to cover Washington, it is the Presidents twice-a-week conferences with representatives of the press, the radio and magazines.

"I wouldn't have believed it, if I hadn't seen it," is a typical comment.

IDENTIFICATION—Mr. Truman reorganized this free-and-easy design after a few encounters in which it was obvious that he was not as well informed on certain major problems as his interviewers were. He apparently made the change for self-protection.

The meetings were transferred to an auditorium in the State Department Building, where the reporters are seated before the President, who stands at the front of the hall. When they wish to propound a question, they must stand up, give their name and their newspaper, radio or magazine connection.

This identification seems gratuitous and unnecessary, for nobody may attend these sessions until he has been investigated thoroughly and issued credentials by the White House Secret Service. These official cards carry his photo, height, weight, color of eyes and his fingerprints. They must be renewed periodically. So, by their very presence, the hundred-odd men and women are responsible and accredited individuals.

SCOLDING—But this gold-fish bowl performance has an insidiously restrictive effect on the flow of news. Strange as it may seem, especially the younger members of the corps, many of the group are too shy to get to their feet and put a tough question to the President of the United States. This is especially unfortunate because so many veteran bureau heads send younger members of their staff to these sessions.

Mr. Truman has made matters worse by scolding, lecturing and ridiculing questioners who touch a sore or vulnerable point. Nor has the process of identification improved the relationship between him and his interviewers. Recently, he denounced in bitter tones the reporter of a newspaper which strongly supports his foreign program.

He was upset because the newsman wanted to know whether he and MacArthur had discussed and reached an agreement on the future status of Formosa. Mr. Truman confused the interrogator with a colleague whose press association constantly challenges the wisdom of the Acheson policies.

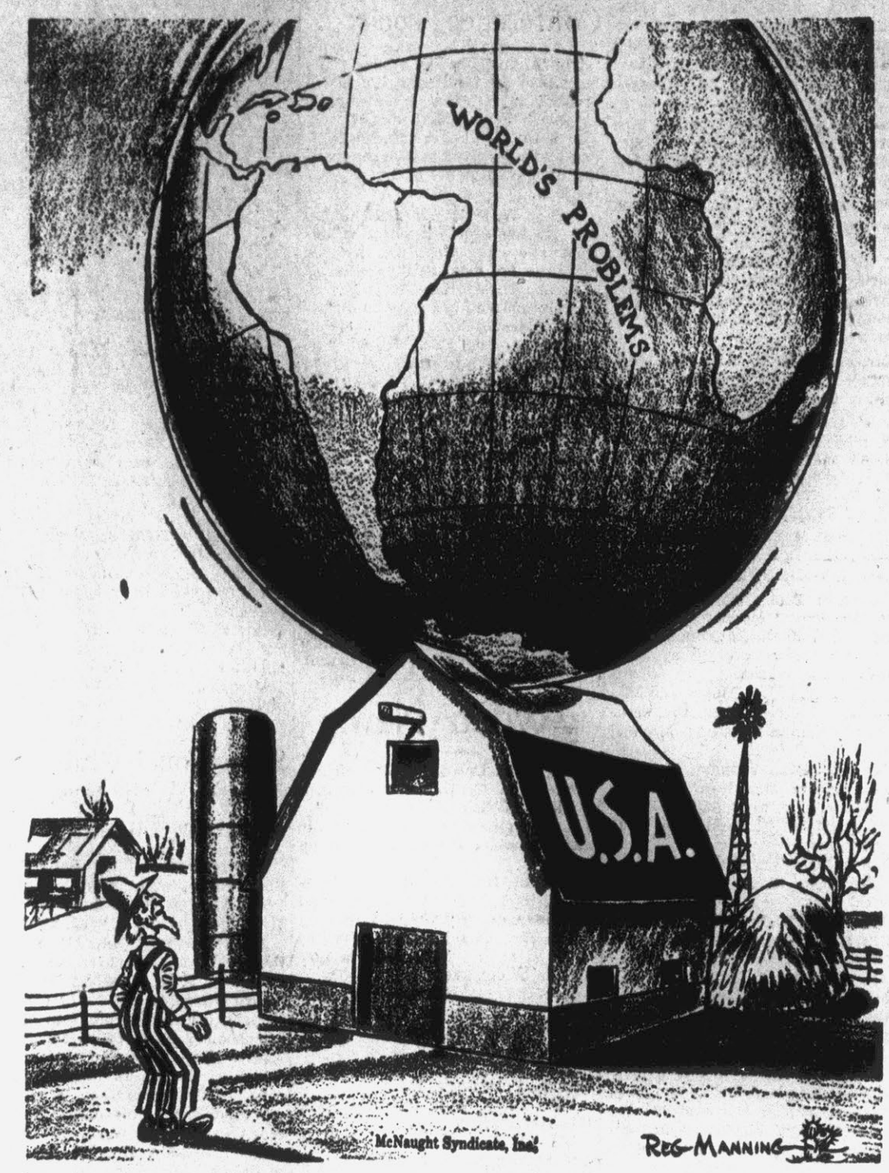
Except for these two highly unsatisfactory meetings a week, White House news is written by reporters regularly assigned to the President at home and on trips. They try to do an honest, workmanlike job, but, in asmuch as they must depend on members of the presidential family for information other than routine handouts and speeches, they find it advantageous to treat the bigwigs somewhat sympathetically.

FLIGHT—Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and one of the ablest veterans on Capitol Hill, is the most recent Democrat to desert and repudiate President Truman's domestic program. As one who never does anything by halves, the sturdy Free Stater trampled on the party leader and prospective 1952 nominee far more spectacularly than have Vice President Barkley, Senator Lucas, Representative Mike Monroney and other Democrats up for election next month.

When Mr. Tydings' opponent, John Marshall Butler, assailed what he called the "Truman-Tydings combine," the Senator cried "unfair."

"He is hiding behind the shabby device," replied Mr. Tydings, "of linking my name with that of the President."

A Wagon On The Barn Used To Worry Us



Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Anybody who owns a dog can tell you a good dog story. Bill Dole, football coach at East Carolina, gladly paid a taxi driver fare for his dog when he was living in Fayetteville. The driver found the dog downtown, checked the city records from the dog's license number to find out the owner, and delivered Coach Dole's dog to the door. The driver not only collected the fare, but also a tip.

The other day I ran into Lyman Ormond in the Post Office and he gave me a tip on a dog story that led to today's column. He said, "The other day I walked into the Norfolk-Southern railroad station and I saw a dog sitting in a chair. It was Virginia Bradshaw's dog, a Mexican dog named Sonny Boy."

Mr. Ormond went on to say that he had seen the dog there at the office before, but for the first time the dog barked while he was there on this particular day. Upon hearing the bark, Mr. Bradshaw immediately lifted the dog from the chair to the floor. Mr. Bradshaw then explained to Mr. Ormond that Sonny Boy is totally blind, and was letting him know that he was ready to get down from the chair.

Sonny Boy is 13 years old, and for the past three years he has been partly blind. His sight was partly saved by Dr. Jim Hawes, an eye, ear, nose and throat doctor who has since that time left Greenville. Dr. Hawes worked on Sonny Boy one night from eight-thirty until twelve-thirty. The eye operation didn't last that long, but the dog is so small that it had an over-dose of anesthesia and had to be treated until the effects wore off.

For two and a half years after this operation Sonny Boy had some of his ability to see, but six months ago he went totally blind.

Despite this handicap, the dog can find his way around the Norfolk-Southern office, his home on 10th Street, and the yard. He sleeps in a chair and if he gets cold during the night he barks until he's covered up. He knows the exact location of his water and food dishes, and when he's ready for food or drink he lets his masters know by barking. Until recently, he could recognize the sound of Mr. Bradshaw's car. As you have heard, the loss of one of the senses always increases the power of the others.

About a month ago Sonny Boy got lost, but the dog catcher picked him up. He knew that Sonny Boy belongs to the Bradshaws, and that he's blind, so he returned the dog instead of impounding him. Greenville's dog owners are lucky to have a catcher that knows dogs as well as our catcher does. One Greenville lady once asked him if he knew her dog. "Lady," he said, "I know every dog in town."

And I thank you.

Daily Reflector Bureau — By LYNN NISBET — Raleigh, N. C.

BUDGET—Governor Scott told his press conference Tuesday that the biennial budget report "will be printed on time." Further than that he declined to discuss the matter. In answer to direct question as to whether the commission was making progress on the report, he said he didn't quite know what was meant by progress. Asked if all members of the commission would sign the report he said he thought they would.

TAXES—So much attention is given to requested appropriations for state services, some people overlook the fact the advisory budget commission also makes recommendations on taxation. Source of state revenue is as much a problem for the budgeteers as is its distribution to meet state needs. Close secrecy surrounds deliberations of the budget commission at this stage, and the final report is jealously guarded until released to the general assembly early in January. Enough information has filtered through the screen of secrecy, however, to indicate the governor as director of the budget, and members of the advisory commission, do not see eye to eye on some tax matters. One point of difference is the suggested additional one cent a gallon gasoline tax for city streets.

REPORT — That item ties in with the recent report of the state-municipal road commission, which recommended that the state assume equal responsibility for public roads inside corporate limits of cities and towns as it has assumed for roads outside. Governor Scott is not opposed to that idea, but insists that additional revenue must be provided before the state can do any more for the municipalities. He is opposed to taking any of presently available money from rural roads for municipal streets. The road commission, and there is reason to believe the advisory budget concurs, takes position the obligation is the same and that if no new revenue can be had that which is available should be divided on equitable basis.

LEGISLATURE— Several questions concerned prospective relations between the governor and the next general assembly. On that point Governor Scott apparently got his wires crossed a bit. He said he wasn't worried about that, because he didn't think the situation could be any worse than it was before. But, he also said he got about all he wanted out of the last legislature. During the final weeks of the 1949 assembly the governor quipped that he had "an eightieth congress on his hands." Reference, of course, was to President Truman's troubles with the Republican congress which was elected in 1946. It takes nimble brain work to keep up with these several estimates—"80th congress," "it can't be worse than last time," "I got nearly everything I wanted out of the legislature."

POWER—Switching to the issue of electric power and whether privately managed companies or the federal government should do the job, Governor Scott reiterated his oft-repeated statement that he is in the middle of that argument. He thinks the utilities have been too slow in developing power, and he thinks control of water power has ramifications far beyond the generation of electricity. He said he recognizes that private money can build the project at Roanoke Rapids quicker than federal money, but also recognizes need for consideration of over-all Roanoke valley development.

HALF TRUTHS— Further questioning elicited admission from the governor that federal and privately managed power groups were both putting out propaganda designed to further their own interests, not so much by making false statements as by failing to present all the facts at hand. One reporter mentioned that in listing federal power projects in this state, the stupendous plants at Fontana and Hiwassee were not mentioned. Nearly all the power generated at these TVA sites in North Carolina is diverted to the development of Tennessee and other parts of the TVA area.

'LOW VOLTAGE"—In course of his comments on the power issue Governor Scott coined a new name for L. V. Sutton, president of Carolina Power and Light Company and also president of the Edison Institute, national association of privately managed electric power companies. Making a play on the initials, the governor referred to the Edison Institute of which "our friend, 'Low Voltage' Sutton, is president."

HIRSUTE— The state supreme court did not hear arguments last week, so while Associate Justice Murray James had been sworn in as a member of the high court, and had occupied his office in the justice building and had performed some of the duties incident to his office, he had not actually occupied a seat on the "bench" until Tuesday morning of this week.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

N. C. CONSTITUTION AND JUDGES
(Greensboro Daily News)

One of the constitutional amendments to be voted on November 7 deals with the need of additional Superior Court judges in congested districts.

As it is now our constitution limits one judge to a district. This worked well enough in the old days, but with the growth of population and business some of the more populous and wealthy districts need more than one judge practically all the time. So special judges have been used to fill the gap.

But special judges cannot do the work in chambers of the regular resident judge. This chambers work includes all sorts of paper work, such as special proceedings, and the resident judge is often overwhelmed by it in addition to his court work.

The proposed amendment would give the General Assembly power to "divide the State into a number of judicial districts which number may be increased or reduced" and to "provide for the election of one or more Superior Court judges for each district."

The change would be in the power of the Legislature to allow the election of more than one resident judge in a district where extra judicial manpower is needed.

It could result in a reduction of the number of special judges.

The amendment is obviously needed in some districts. The only argument we can see against it is based on the apprehension that the Legislature might extravagantly empower the election of judges in districts which had no need of them.

But such an abuse of power need not occur and could be cured by democratic processes.

On the whole we favor the amendment because we think it is necessary to bring the State out of the horse and buggy era and up to date in the important matter of the number of judges and their allocation.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Rarely has American business entered the pre-Christmas shopping season with more uncertainties and more worries than it is doing this year.

Here's a quick run-down of the problems the average merchant faces today:

1. Will government priorities permit suppliers to ship goods ordered?

2. Will transportation congestion permit delivery to stores on time?

3. Will it delay deliveries to customers?

4. Will customers begin to feel the bite of higher withholding taxes and slow their buying?

5. Will Congressional action toward higher taxes frighten customers into making smaller gift purchases?

6. Did scare buying in July cause me to build inventories too much?

7. Worse, did it frighten my competitors into building such large inventories they will be forced to undercut my prices?

8. Will I be able to get additional temporary help if needed, and will those I have hired in advance be working elsewhere when I call them?

9. Will the cutback in home building cut buying of home furnishings?

10. How deeply will instalment controls cut down sales?

11. What will coming charge-account controls do to sales?

12. Will plans for promotions be upset by sudden new controls?

13. Will late deliveries and higher taxes next year swell the ratio of returns?

14. Will rises in prices of foods and other goods leave customers with less money to spend with me?

15. Will snap strikes in transport and other industries hit trade?

Individual merchants may face special problems in addition to these.

To the eternal credit of the American business man, he is going ahead with vast and gay promotion, with Santa Clauses and store parties, with festive decorations, with spectacular show windows, with spirited advertising—just as if none of these problems will diminish the total results.

Perhaps that's one reason why they won't.

PENSION PLANS MAY PROFIT EMPLOYERS

When organized labor began its strike-studded round of demands for pensions, it didn't tell the large corporations, "This is for your own good."

But it now appears that it may have been.

Manpower shortages are developing and labor piracy is increasing. But men who have built up pension rights are unwilling to abandon them for other jobs.

This is especially true of men who have long been with a pension-paying company, and these men may be expected to be the best trained and most valuable.

Pension plans have been roughly estimated to cost a company 8 cents an employee hour, or around $160 a year. This may prove to be a cheap price to keep skilled men.

FERTILIZER BAGS MAY GO FANCY

Packing grains and flour in attractively printed cotton bags that can be reused by farmers' wives to make clothing has paid off in increased sales. The same kind of sacking can be used for fertilizers, preliminary tests by the Department of Agriculture indicate.

The Southern Regional Research Laboratory stored 30-day-old 5-10-5 fertilizer in vat-dyed and printed cotton fabric bags and found that after 30 weeks the fabric was in good condition for reuse. After washing, of course.

SALES RISE 8 PERCENT, PROFITS UP 25 PERCENT

Corporations are doing all right by themselves.

Department of Commerce figures show that their margins as well as their profits are increasing. Sales rose 8 per cent during the second quarter but their profits rose 29 per cent.

Profits rose from an annual rate after taxes of $17,400,000,000 in the first quarter to $22,200,000,000 in the second quarter—an all-time record. Taxes were estimated at the new, higher rate.

Indications are that third-quarter rates will be even higher.

Hal Boyle's Column

By TOM LAMBERT
(For Hal Boyle)

With U.N. Forces, North Korea —(AP)—The road to the Manchurian border lies narrow and dusty and uneasy.

From Sinanju on the steel-blue Chongchon river it winds across small valleys yellow with ripened rice. Then it climbs, curving through hills beautiful with autumn colors.

It runs east toward Kujang along the Chongchon. Occasionally it retreats from the river bank through passes gorged in some distant ice age in the mountain spine of Korea.

The road runs through undamaged villages. In these the shrill shouts of "mansei" — live 10,000 years—resound with the march of allied troops.

But in villages shell-pocked or bombed and dying in flames, the greetings are less effusive.

The road runs past the leavings of the Red Korean army—Russian-made tanks and trucks and guns and shells.

These are the signposts of concern. How many more guns and bullets lie off the road—unseen, hidden but ready for use?

And the columns of people in white civilian clothing trudging along the road, cheering and waving South Korean flags. The straight young men with quick eyes. Were they in enemy uniform only a few days ago and shooting at allied forces? Are they not, perhaps, the same ones who snipe at night at allied bivouacs?

Who knows? One cheering, flag-waving crowd of Koreans bore down on a British column the other day. To a man they denounced Communism roundly. But a South Korean officer went about his business — and picked out 30 Red Korean soldiers.

And how many more, like these "civilians," are roaming free, knowing where guns and bullets are hidden?

In places the road is deserted; in others it is packed with men and weapons moving north. In rear areas the movement is as rapid as the road permits. In forward areas it is tense. The enemy—not the road—sets the speed of advance . . . and sometimes retreat.

The road shows itself even where it cannot be seen, around the curve and over the hill. A thin, powdery column of dust hangs in the cold sharp air, marking the route. The dust clogs the throat and reddens the countryside. It lays a thin, reddish-grey film on everything.

It is a poor road, a miserable road by American standards.

It is a road of threat, dangerous and menacing to the men who must travel it. Like a prisoner marking off on a calendar the expiring days of his sentence, Americans mark off the miles they gain daily toward the border.

It is a road of promise, a beacon to peace. At the end of this road to the border, the doughboys believe, lies the end of the Korean war.

Washington Letter

By JAMES J. STREBIG
(For Jane Eads)

Washington—The king size or nautical mile and the knot have been adopted for all United States aviation—domestic as well as international and military flying. The Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) has alerted fliers and industry for the change, scheduled to be in effect July 1, 1952.

The nautical mile is 6,080.2 feet. A knot means speed stated in nautical miles per hour. (Knots per hour is a redundancy abhorrent to mariners). Presently both the statute mile, 5,280 feet, and the nautical mile are in use. But the trend to the nautical mile and the knot has been growing steadily since early in World War II.

The nautical mile always has been used in ocean travel. It was determined to be one minute or one 21,600th of a great circle. There are 60 minutes in a degree and 360 degrees in a circle. Thus navigators had a simple method of working out courses on charts figured in degrees, minutes and seconds.

The earth is not a perfect circle, so some countries figure the nautical mile a bit differently. The British "admiralty mile" is 6,080 feet, or 2 2-5 inches than the mile accepted by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Navy, the Air Force and the CAA. The French mile is 6,076.2 feet.

None of that will concern American aviators. They will use the Coast and Geodetic Survey nautical mile. They will find it easier to compute distances on aeronautical charts. And of course it is easier to say knots than miles per hours. Nautical miles have been traditional for naval aviators.

Since the first international airline operators used flying boats and had to meet certain marine standards (such as a ship's bell), use of the nautical mile was a natural step. This continued into the landplane era for practical reasons—it was the accepted standard of ocean navigation.

America's hundreds of thousands of private fliers are likely to welcome the change-over with something less than enthusiasm. It will mean a shift in their thinking from the statute mile in effect on th highways to nautical miles in the air.

Commend Work By Consultant

The "Daily News" of Washington, N.C., carried in its columns Friday, October 27, an editorial commending the work of Mrs. Dorothy W. Perkins, speech and hearing consultant in the department of education at East Carolina Teachers College. Mrs. Perkins was principal speaker that evening at a study group of the Parent-Teacher Association of Washington, held in the John Small school there.

Entitled "Worthwhile," the editorial comments:

"The 'Daily News' wants to take this opportunity to recommend the work of Mrs. Dorothy Perkins very highly. . . .

Police Return To Old Station After 'Walkout'

Beersheba, Israel — (AP) — The municipality of Beersheba—gateway to the Negev desert wilderness of Southern Israel—once more has police protection.

Policemen who walked out and locked up their station 78 days ago are back at the same old stand.

They quit the town because they said they had no place to live and demanded proper quarters for police administration.

Yehezkel Sahar, inspector of police, said the present arrangement was temporary. He added that the government had now allocated funds for providing adequate housing for police officers. Beersheba has a population of more than 6,000. Soldiers patrolled the streets after the dozen or so policemen had walked out.

Airplanes Have Slide Fasteners

Akron, O.—(AP)—The slide fastener has taken to the sky. According to the B.F. Goodrich Company, its pressure sealing fasteners are used on the B-47, the heavy B-36 bomber and the Navy's P2V patrol bomber to reduce the time formerly needed for replacement or repair of aileron or tail surfaces.

It's almost as easy to zip on a new aileron or tail cover as it is to put on a raincoat, explained aeronautical engineers. Mechanics previously had to remove, then replace a row of screws to repair or replace the covers.

Pacific Coast League's Dream May Get Assist

Baseball's Bigwigs May Excuse Triple-A Circuit From Talent Grabs By Major League Clubs

Cincinnati, Nov. 1—(AP)— Baseball's bigwigs may assist the Pacific Coast League today in its announced desire to be a draft dodger.

A four man committee, headed by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, was to pick up today where it left off yesterday, listening to arguments on why the triple-A circuit, biggest in the West, should be excused from baseball's annual talent grab.

The project was argued for some time yesterday in one of those smoke-filled hotel rooms, and everyone appeared a bit hazy about just what was accomplished.

Leslie O'Connor, Chicago attorney and former assistant to the late Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, spokesman for the coast loop, hazarded:

"We are making progress, that is certain. It probably will be a compromise — and compromises are damned by everyone—but I'm certain we will do some good."

Branch Rickey, Brooklyn prexy and general manager until last Saturday, turned over a new conversational leaf with a straightforward:

"I think we'll accomplish something."

And Walter Mulbury, secretary of Baseball, opined:

"We are nearer than ever to doing something for the Pacific Coast League."

Del Webb of the New York Yankees, and George M. Trautman, president of the Minor Leagues, join Chandler and Rickey in making up the commission listening to O'Connor and Coast Loop President Clarence (Pants) Rowland.

Some Injuries In Pirate Lineup From Hard Drills

Today's practice session will probably mark the last heavy drills for Coach Bill Dole's Pirates as they prepare for their big game with Appalachian at Boone Saturday night.

East Carolina's passing game received a thorough checkup yesterday, as intensive drills were set up on pass patterns and pass protection.

Jolly Roger Thrift, the Pirates' ace marksman, and Sandy Siler, Thrift's sophomore understudy, shared the pitching chores yesterday, with all ends and backs sharing in the pass-receiving role.

Ends Dwight Shoe and Frank Maennle, the Bucs' top scorers this season, turned in the best aerial-snagging jobs.

Coach Dole divided his squad into three separate units earlier in the afternoon with the defensive forces working on the sled, and the offensive unit checking their blocking assignments for Saturday night's all-important clash.

A short and spirited scrimmage session rounded out the afternoon's work with Halfback Jack Benzie looking impressive as he got off to several long runs.

Several injuries were reported after yesterday's workouts which may reduce East Carolina's full strength tabulation for Saturday's contest.

Tom Swain, reserve fullback, was still in light gear yesterday, with the big line-plunger still favoring an injured knee.

East Carolina will leave for Boone Friday morning and will hold brief workouts at Boone before Saturday night's scrap.

Penlites Advance In Bowling Loop

Nine Lives, provided the best display of pin busting ever shown by a woman on the alleys and came near to matching the best score in the Carbon League by a male. Her 214 in the third game against the Cats was 40 pins better than anything she had ever rolled before and her 174 was tops for the women of the league prior to Monday night.

But her other games were short of the third mark, thus keeping her total for the three below the 467 she had bowled previously.

Carbon Bowling League
Nine Lives	9	6	.600
Penlites	8	7	.533
Black Cats	8	7	.533
Eveready	5	10	.333

The Penlites of the Carbon League set something of a record for themselves Monday night when they took three games from the Eveready, the first time they've won a complete set since fall play began four weeks ago.

While they were at it they rang up a new high for three game score and moved into second position in the high single score bracket. The three game total was 2,006, 130 pins better than the Nine Lives' score set the first round of play. Their single game tally amounted to 696.

Leading the second place quintet was Francis Whelihan with games of 122-161-130—475. His games enabled him to notch seven pins on his old average of 126 for a fourth place figure of 133.

Meanwhile, the Nine Lives were taking two games from the Black Cats, allowing them to remain in first place by one game. The Cats, meantime, dropped into third as a result of the Penlites' effort.

None of the three games between the Lives and Cats was close. Smallest margin was 70 pins. That was in the second game with the score standing at 682-612.

Sam Brooks was way ahead of his other competitors, rolling a three game total of 531 which is higher than any effort made to date in this league. His games were 150, 200 and 181 and raised his average from 131 to 140, which is high enough to cement his hold on third place among the 20 bowlers.

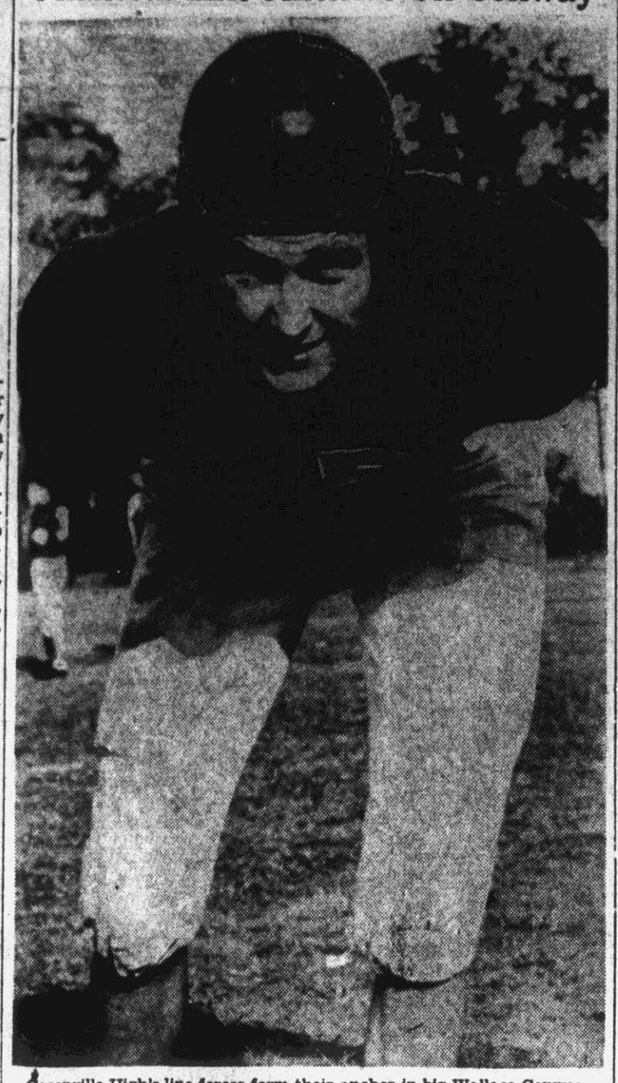
CAROLINA'S WORST GAME

Chapel Hill, Nov. 1—North Carolina played its most inept game against Tennessee last year, losing by 35-6. The two teams meet Saturday at Knoxville when the Tar Heels hope to avenge that humbling defeat.

Phantom Line Anchors On Conway



Greenville High's line forces form their anchor in big Wallace Conway, 190-pound tackle for the Phantoms. Conway is playing his last year for Coach Bo Farley's crew, and has been a season-long stalwart in the forward wall. This husky Phant may be switched to an offensive end position Friday night, as his team plays host to Spring Hope in the college stadium here. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Homecoming Contest For Farmville On Friday Night

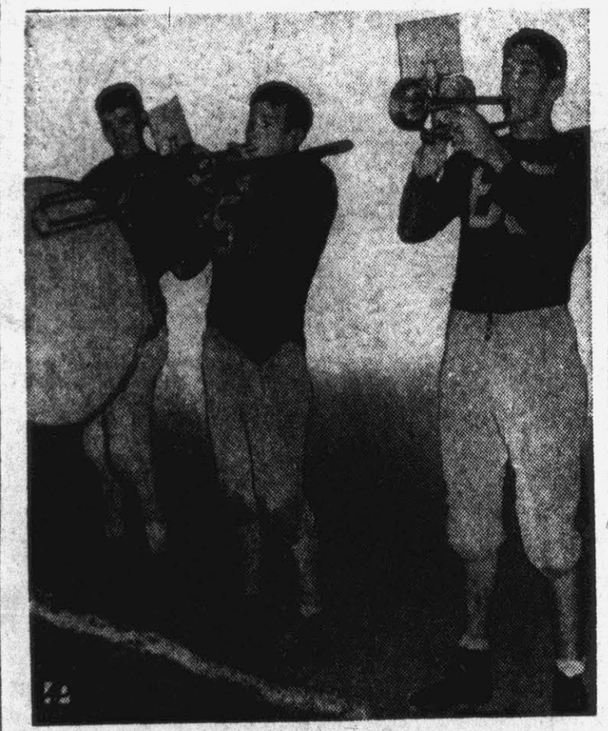
Farmville's Red Devils play their annual Homecoming tilt against Vanceboro in the Farmville athletic park Friday night with the kickoff slated for 8:00 p.m.

Coach Elbert Moye's eleven, barred by injuries all season, will be striving to get into the winners' column for the first time this year before an expected throng of returning alumni.

Farmville, with a record of four losses and one tie, will have a terrific battle on their hands with the Farm Life eleven, as both teams are currently riding in the cellar of the Coastal conference standings, and the loser of Friday night's contest will definitely slate the oottom ranks for the season.

Vanceboro has a record of three losses without a victory in the circuit. However, Coach George Woods' boys did post a 13-0 win over Richlands last week.

A gala Homecoming occasion has been planned for Friday night's game, with the Farmville high school band furnishing a display of marching and music at halftime, and will lead a procession which will include the contestants for the Farmville "Homecoming Queen."



These three linemen of the Soddy-Daisy high school football team at Chattanooga, Tenn., miss the coach's pep talk at the half in a game with the Rossville, Ga., high school. Instead, they are "doubling in brass" with their school band for the added entertainment of the customers. Left to right: End Jack Varner, Guard Jimmy Phillips, and End Bob Snider. Sweet music may soothe the savage beast, as the saying goes, but it didn't help Soddy-Daisy. Rossville won 21 to 0. (AP Wirephoto).

New Variation In Specialization

Boulder, Colo.—(AP)— The University of Colorado football forces have come up with this variation on specialization:

The school has a large and husky crop of transfer students who aren't eligible for freshmen competition or for varsity play this year. So Coach Dallas Ward had these players welded into a potent offensive squad which gives the varsity's defensive team many a rugged afternoon. Meanwhile, the freshmen concentrate on defense and absorb the poundings of the varsity's offensive unit.

Midgets Close Out Season On Saturday

Greenville's undefeated Midgets close out their regular home schedule here Saturday night in Guy Smith stadium, as they go against Washington's neighboring mites eleven.

The mighty Greenie mites will be seeking their fifth victory of the 1950 season here Saturday, and will be out to extend their undefeated record over two seasons to 16 games.

Coach Bill Kittrell's charges should be at top strength for Saturday's encounter after enjoying an open date last week.

The Eastern Boys defending conference champs were strengthened this week as two injured regulars returned for practice, and last year's first string quarterback was welcomed back to the fold.

Halfback Bob Shackelford, who has been sidelined for the past two weeks returned to duty, along with Guard Harry White Scott.

Last year's first string signal-caller, George Sideris, also returned for service this week, to add strength at the quarterback slot.

Halfback Tommy Norris, the mites key runner, has been showing up well in this week's practice sessions, along with Quarterback Pat Sawyer, who has been throwing perfect strikes to End Tommy Saleed.

Tackle Edgar Moore and Guard Charles Hollingsworth have sparked the line play.

The midgets, under the sponsorship of the Greenville Exchange Club, have one more game remaining on their schedule, which is to be played at New Bern.

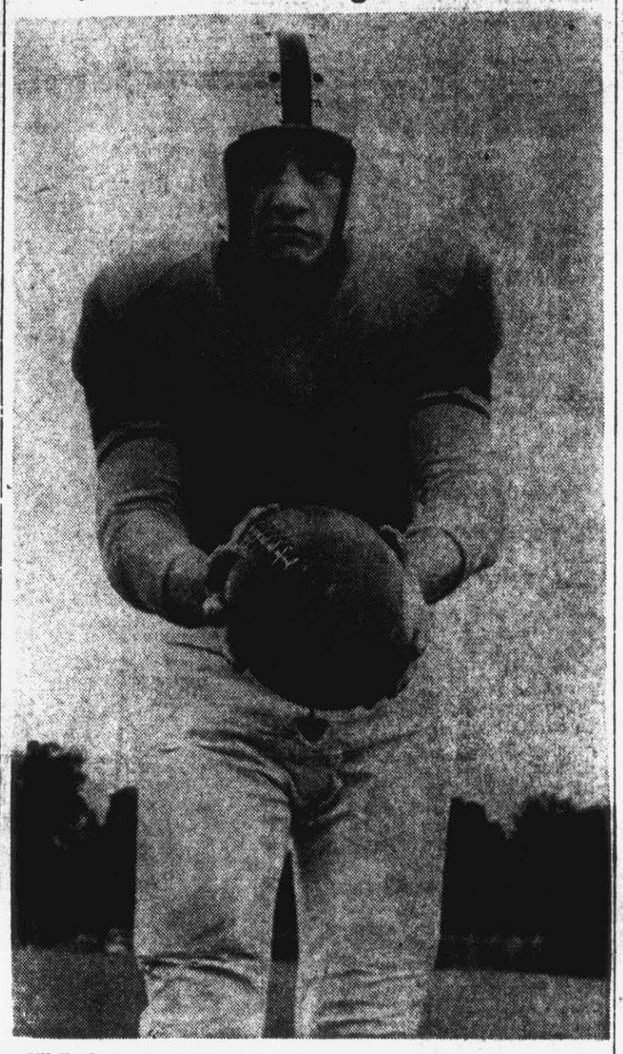
Preparations are also underway for a second post season Exchange Bowl game to be played here Thanksgiving Day with Raleigh's midget club.

Balanced Card

East Lansing, Mich. — (AP) — Michigan State's 1951 football schedule will be one of the most balanced geographically in Spartin history. Listed are three Big Ten teams, Michigan, Ohio State and Indiana; two top eastern independents, Penn State and Pittsburgh; one Pacific Coast Conference team, Oregon State; one Big Seven team, Colorado, and the two top mid-west independents, Notre Dame and Marquette.

The peony is a hardy flower. Its roots, once established, will reproduce new plants annually for years

Plays Ground Gaining Role For Bucs



Bill Darby, senior halfback from Morganton, N. C., has been a consistent leader in East Carolina's football fortunes this year. Darby, a terrific punter, has brought the Pirates out of many holes this season with his booming kicks This swivel-hipped runner also plays an important part in the ground-gaining department for the Pirates, and was a leader in last Saturday's 20-12 defeat o fthe Cherry Point Marines. He will be counted on heavily in Saturday night's headline game with Appalachian at Boone. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Phantoms Stage Long Scrimmage In Grid Practice

Greenville's Phantoms held a full length scrimmage yesterday, as they prepared for Friday night's home game with Spring Hope here.

Coach Bo Farley divided his squad in two equal ball clubs, and then sent his charges through an hour-long scrimmage in order to brush up the Phantoms offensive game.

Fullbacks Sydney Briley and Leon Moore looked good in the running department yesterday, along with reserve John Sideris, who also got off sizeable gains.

Quarterback Eddie Farley was yesterday's passing star, with Ends Johnny Aman and Wiley Gardner doing most of the catching.

Tackle Wallace Conway, a terrific seasoned lineman, was also switched to an offensive end post yesterday, and the big Phantom looked impressive at his new role.

A short punting session was also held yesterday, with Halfback Kent Lee doing the kicking. The Phantom backfield drilled on punt returns while the ends and other linemen worked on getting down field after punts, and blocking on punt returns.

Greenville will be at top strength for Friday night's game here after a week's rest. Spring Hope, the Phants foes, lost to South Edgecombe last week, 24-20.

Ohio State High On Offense, Too

New York, Nov. 1—(AP)—Ohio State, which on the record has the best defensive line in the country, emerged today as one of college football's best attacking teams, as well.

As a result of their 83-21 rout of Iowa last Saturday, Wes Fesler's Buckeyes moved up with the leaders in several offensive statistical departments.

The latest batch of figures from the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show Ohio State:

1. First among major college teams in scoring points.
2. Ninth in total offense.
3. Ninth in forward passing.
4. First in the number of scoring passes thrown.

The Buckeyes for most of the season have had the nation's best record in rushing defense. This is all bad news for Northwestern, the Ohio State foe this Saturday.

College Spirit

Durham, N.C.—(AP)—That college spirit still thrives in a troubled world was proved conclusively recently by six members of the Duke University cross-country team. The race was a run-away for Duke, so as the six runners came charging down the stretch they joined hands and sang "Dear Old Duke," the Blue Devils' alma mater song, as they crossed the finish line in a tie for first.

Gop Leaders Ask Vandenberg To Answer Truman's Address

Washington, Nov. 1—(AP)—Republican leaders appealed today to Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) to answer President Truman's single-shot political speech Saturday night.

There seemed to be small chance, however, that Vandenberg would feel physically able to take on the task of a 30-minute radio broadcast. He has been ill for months.

If he gives an expected negative reply today, the Republicans may turn to Harold E. Stassen, a 1948 presidential aspirant, for their answer to the President's Saturday night radio summation of the 1950 congressional campaign issues.

GOP National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson was reported scurrying around for the $15,000 which would be needed to hook up one network (probably Mutual) to reply to the four-network address by the President, which will cost the Democratic National Committee $50,000.

The Democratic National Committee announced last night that Mr. Truman's address, to be broadcast from St. Louis, will be carried by one of the largest radio and television hookups in history—nearly 1,200 radio and 76 television stations.

In a meeting yesterday, Republican leaders reportedly failed to agree on whether (1) it was worth the cost of answering Mr. Truman, (2) who should do it, or (3) whether the views of one Republican or three or more members of the party should be aired in such a reply.

If the ailing Vandenberg, long a principal GOP foreign policy spokesman, says he isn't up to it, other party members may be called upon. Besides Stassen, those reportedly under consideration included former President Herbert Hoover, Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, the GOP floor leader, and Rep. Joe Martin of Massachusetts, the House minority leader.

There were reports, too, that backers of Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) have assembled a $50,000 fund and are pushing him as the logical man to answer the President.

Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle Jr. called, meanwhile, for a huge vote on election day next Tuesday to put in office "men and women who will support—not obstruct—the policies to which this nation is now firmly dedicated."

Overcoming Temptation — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 4:1-11; John 6:1-15; Romans 13:12-14; I Corinthians 10:12-13; Hebrews 4:14-16.

Jesus was fasting in the wilderness when Satan came to tempt Him. Christ resisted the temptation; Satan fled, and angels came and ministered to the Lord.

A great multitude came to hear Jesus, and the Lord fed them wtih five loaves and two fishes, so that all had enough and much left over.

In his letter to the Corinthians Paul wrote that God would not tempt them more than they could bear, and would "make a way of escape."

Paul reminded the Hebrews that Jesus also was tempted, but was without sin. They, too, with His help, could resist sin.

MEMORY VERSE—James 1:12.

OVERCOMING TEMPTATION

GOD WILL HELP US TO RESIST SIN

Scripture—Matthew 4:1-11; John 6:1-15; Romans 13:12-14; I Corinthians 10:12-13; Hebrews 4:14-16.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

TEMPTATION comes to every human being. Even Jesus Christ was not free from it, as our lesson tells. His temptation is told in all four gospels.

Jesus had been in the wilderness fasting for 40 days, and he was very hungry. Satan said, "If Thou be the son of God, command these stones be turned to bread," but Jesus answered, "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone.

Next the tempter took Jesus into the Holy City and set Him on a pinnacle of the temple, saying, "If Thou be the son of God, cast Thyself down; for it is written, He shall give His angels charge concerning Thee: and in their hands they shall bear Thee up, lest at any time Thou dash Thy foot against a stone."

To this Jesus said, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

Then Satan took Him into a very high mountain and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and said to Him, "All these things will I give Thee, if Thou wilt fall down and worship me."

"Get thee hence, Satan," said Jesus then, "for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve."

The evil one was beaten then, and left the Lord, and angels came and ministered unto Him.

Thus, Jesus, having been tempted Himself, can sympathize with us, who are tempted often and are sometimes not strong enough to resist. His example helps us to stand firm in the right, and to go to Him for help, because He will understand.

Another time Jesus might have been tempted if He had not been firm in the purpose for which He came to earth. It was after the episode of the hungry multitude and the five small loaves of barley bread and two small fishes, which Jesus miraculously made to serve a multitude of five thousand or more, and had twelve baskets of food left over.

All who beheld or took part in this miracle thought that here indeed was David's successor—the earthly leader who would free them from Roman oppression and make them again a great nation. Jesus, seeing that the multitude would take Him by force to Jerusalem to have Him crowned, slipped away and went alone into the mountain.

Writing to the Romans, Paul told them, "The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness and let us put on the armor of light."

Doesn't that term, "the night is far spent," remind you of the modern phrase, "It is later than you think"? The evil time will pass, and the bright morning will come. Let us cast off the works of darkness: let us put on the armor of light; "Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness . . . not in strife and envying. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof."

To the Corinthians Paul wrote, "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."

What God asks and expects us to do in the way of moral living, He will give us the strength to do if we rely on Him.

In writing to the Hebrews, Paul referred again to Christ's temptation, to comfort us. "For we have not a high priest, which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.

"Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laurenson

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 10

His face a study in bewilderment, Anderson carefully picked a knife from its partially concealed nest among the paper cups, holding it gingerly by the hilt between thumb and forefinger.

"A kitchen knife," he said slowly.

Marc took the knife from Anderson, avoiding any contact except with the edge of the hilt.

"A kitchen knife it seems to be," he said, "and a very good one. The handle's bone, and you don't often see a circular silver hilt on a kitchen knife. Notice the blade. It's thick along the back, but the cutting edge is convex ground. That makes it possible to get a very sharp edge. Wouldn't that be a beautiful stabbing instrument! Funny it should be lying ten feet from a freshly cut up corpse!"

Anderson retrieved the knife and, fishing a small magnifying glass out of his pocket, stepped under a light.

"This knife wasn't used for no recent murder," he said, peering through the glass. "It'd take boiling water and a brush to clean blood outa the crack around the hilt. It's clean as a whistle. So what?"

Marc shook his head. "Haven't the faintest idea. Maybe no connection whatever. Better treat it as a clue, though, until we know different."

"Yeah, I suppose so. Take it along, if you like."

Marc stepped into the washroom and wrapped the knife in a towel.

When the two men came out on the platform, Cliff and a liveried chauffeur were herding a woe-begone group toward a waiting limousine.

"Remember, you guys, stick around," called Anderson.

"Come into the car, Jerry," said Marc. "There's something I want to show you."

Leading the way to the second room, he pointed to the wadded towel under the berth where he had left it. Anderson stared blankly.

"A bloody towel! Why didn't you tell me this sooner? Whose room's this?"

"Johnson's," replied Marc calmly. "I didn't tell you for two reasons: First, I was afraid you'd arrest him on the spot; second, I wanted to see if Johnson'd try to get rid of it when he came back to dress. The fact that he didn't touch it proves nothing, though. Maybe he suspected that one of us saw it. He might reason that it'd be better to play dumb, and leave it alone."

"Nuts!" moaned Anderson. "This's getting beyond me. Well, one more exhibit for the record. What did you find, Murphy?" he asked, wearily.

"No prints on the case. Not many around the car. A coupla clean prints on the outside rail towards one end. The middle's clean like a mirror."

"Murphy, will you check this, please?" asked Marc, handing him the knife salvaged from the wastebasket.

"Sure," said Murphy cheerfully, unwinding the towel and starting to work with brush and dust.

"Jordan," muttered Anderson in a discouraged voice, "I've a hunch this's going to be a tough one."

"Don't know, Jerry," replied Marc. "We don't know much yet. We haven't the slightest idea about motives. Maybe we'll gain some ground there when we check Richards' past life. These people were keeping very mum about motive. Some of them are holding back—or lying—or both. Here's an interesting point: we can tell exactly when the murder was committed. When the train passed over the crossing at Zola, it made a record on a chart in the dispatcher's office. O'Conner can tell us—almost to the second—when that was. Since the axe was found at the crossing, that ties the time down pretty definitely. Might help a lot."

"Might, at that," said Anderson. "How does it do it?"

"I don't understand how the chart works," replied Marc, "but it comes in handy sometimes—in case of murder, for example."

"It's an idea. I'll see O'Conner about it." Anderson rose slowly. "Then to headquarters. Maybe the boys have turned up something on those passengers."

"Come on, Nora," said Marc with a grin. "This's where we get some rest, and our official friend goes to work. Keep the dogs barking, Jerry!"

"Oh, go to the devil!" growled Anderson. "It still strikes me as suspicious that Johnson could be so sure of the time. Eleven-seven. That's an odd figure."

Marc shook his head. "Ask any railroad man the time, Jerry, and he will give it to you—to the second. They live by the tick of the clock. Anyone who hangs around a railroad gets the habit. See you in the morning."

During the regency of Phillip of Orleans in the 16th century, a long strip of muslin was adapted for a tie. This was not wrapped around the neck, but was sewn onto the shirt.

schools in an effort to teach the doctrine. Instead they established their own schools, which were attended, more or less compulsorily, by many of the Greek youth.

The Soviets were not in complete control of the government, therefore could not force attendance. However, the Nixons sent a young girl who was a maid in their home to one of the schools and in six weeks' time she was imbued with the Communist philosophy.

In describing that phase of the Communist control, Paul Nixon stated the Communist doctrine is "the enemy of the soul."

One of the reservists asked the boy what he liked most in the United States. His ready response was—not automobiles, thick steaks, or chocolate sodas—"the people."

come.

As a matter of fact India herself by no means is secure from Red assault. Curiously enough it was Nehru who only as far back as June declared that "Communist methods in India lead not to building up anything but to disrupting things and creating chaotic conditions."

At that time New Delhi already had recognized the Communist regime in China and the latter had been giving evidence of cordiality towards India. However, while condemning Communist methods, he did not mention China, and since then he has appeared to tread a path of conciliation.

Now Nehru is confronted with hard evidence that Peiping is playing its part in the effort to communize all Asia.

Excess Profits . . .

As a result of many provisions in the law for firms to get refunds, the Internal Revenue Bureau had a mountain of work and still has, since even now all the claims for refunds haven't been settled.

(There have been about 55,000 claims for refunds. About 15,000 still are pending in the Internal Revenue Bureau. That bureau, which collected $39,000,000,000 in excess profits taxes during the war years, has refunded about $5,000,000,000).

Some of those now opposing the excess profits tax idea argue that any higher tax on corporations should be in the form of a flat tax increase, with no refund strings attached. Some of their arguments follow:

An excess profits tax again will mean endless bookkeeping and headaches for the government and business. (President Truman doesn't argue that way. He wants an excess profits tax). And—

While an excess profits tax takes some money out of circulation, and so is a good deflationary device, it also helps inflation. For example:

A firm which has to pay, say, a 95 per cent excess profits tax—or 95 cents on every dollar over a certain amount of earnings—may prefer to spend the money rather than hand it over to Uncle Sam.
