Chicod Ruritan Club Has Ladies Night Meeting

The Chicod Ruritan Club held its first Ladies Night meeting November 6 in the Chicod lunch room.

The program consisted of the welcome extended by Mr. Alton Gardner, president of the club. Mr. Wiley Ray Hardee gave the invocation. Mr. F. H. Hodges introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Sam Bundy, of Farmville. Mr. Bundy congratulated the newly-formed club and listed several pointers for making the club a successful one. He urged the group against discouragement through the years.

Mrs. Leota Tyson entertained the group by accordion playing and by giving some humorous readings.

She then led the group in singing of familiar songs.

The senior class served a "Thanksgiving Supper" to the fifty-five people present.

Musical Program For Lion's Club

The Greenville Lion's Club at their regular weekly meeting last night had a program of group singing and piano solos.

Group singing was directed by Dan Vornholt of the East Carolina faculty and several piano solos were rendered by Ralph Bowen.

John Biggs was in charge of the weekly program.

Reports from the dance held by the Lion's club last Thursday revealed that it was a big success and the prospects that the club will sponsor an annual dance are very likely. The exact number of tickets which were sold was still being tabulated but it was estimated to run over 1,000.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
A DISTINGUISHED "PROFESSOR"
The president of a church college has written this interesting account of a campus workman:
"One of the valuable members of our own campus community was an Italian bricklayer who for thirty-five years was a living demonstration of joy in one's work. He was employed by the college in 1911, after temporary service to a construction company as watchman on a campus building project. He was under strict orders to let no one pass, and in the light of this commission he refused one evening to admit the president of the college and some guests. The president was so impressed by this fidelity, even though it seemed a little overdone, that he promptly gave Angelo Santoro a full-time job.
"Over the years, doing all kinds of work as if it were some high privilege, the light shining from something within himself in delightful and moving ways, this Roman Catholic workman taught the campus community, the majority of whom were Presbyterians, a lot that both John Calvin and John Knox never quite made clear. His remarkable portrait now hangs beside the pictures of the men and women the college is glad to honor—as it should. He was one of our best 'professors.'"

All That Money, But Where Are The Kids?

North Carolina is spending millions of dollars a year on new school buildings and better physical plants for the school system. Other millions are being spent on teachers' salaries in an effort to attract the best possible educators to the public schools of the state.

Yet while all this is being done, thousands of youngsters throughout the state who should be in schools are staying away from the classrooms. Some of this absenteeism on the part of the school-age youngsters is due to poverty and the fact that the youngsters don't have enough clothes to wear to school. On the other hand there are hundreds upon hundreds of children in the state who stay out of school because of the indifference of themselves or their parents toward education.

The so-called compulsory school law in North Carolina which theoretically requires school attendance for all children between the ages of six and fourteen, is compulsory in name only. In Pitt county, for example, there is no agency which devotes a great deal of time to the matter of compulsory school attendance. The welfare department has been charged with the responsibility; but funds have not been made available for a truant officer to carry out the work, and the other department work consumes the time of the employees of the welfare department. A few years ago money was provided for a county truant officer, but the project was soon dropped because it proved ineffective.

In Pitt county if a parent decides his children should stay at home and work instead of attending school, the children usually stay at home, and nothing much is ever said about the situation. The result is that the children fail to get even the fundamentals of education which have become so vital to successful living today. Local school officials have indicated they believe failure to attend school is responsible for a large number of young men who have not passed the mental exam given by the selective service. That one item in itself has been costly to the state and to the nation.

A bill providing for truant officers is to be proposed in the coming General Assembly. The idea behind the bill is sound indeed. No matter how much money North Carolina spends on its schools and educational system, the money will mean nothing if the children of school age do not take advantage of the facilities.
Compulsory school attendance long has been opposed by a relatively few individuals throughout the state who probably will continue to oppose any efforts to enforce the school attendance law. The money spent on the school systems, however, will only bring dividends if the benefits of school are received by the children.

Continued Progress Doesn't Mean Jumping Overboard

Governor Scott seems determined that his go-forward program is to continue to go-forward during the coming General Assembly with more expenditures specifically designated, and the matter of raising the funds for these expenditures ambiguously defined.

If North Carolina could afford all the improvements the people of the state would like to have, things would look rosy. But in the state government, just as in the national government, we can not expect to get anything that we will not eventually pay for. The people of the state are watching with wide eyes the improvements which are being made in various categories of the state services. There are many who are in favor of continuing to appropriate money for things without first finding out where the money will eventually come from to pay the bills. There are others in the state, who try to keep in mind that North Carolina, although it is seeing a lot of improvements, is just beginning to pay for the things it already has obtained on credit.

The state, just like an individual, should not stretch its credit too far in these times of high prices, high income and high taxes. We hope the prosperity will continue, but the business cycle has its ups and downs.

With all the spending the state has done in the past two years, and the indebtedness it has assumed, a lot of money is going to be needed to keep up the payments. As one Pitt county expressed it, the state would soon look like a pair of worn out overalls if a financial pinch should come and money was not available to maintain the improvements already made.

The Reflector is confident North Carolina will continue to go forward, but care should be taken to see that the state does not get too far overboard in its spending spree.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The most striking change in the next Congress and in national politics generally for the next few years will be the utter loss of power which a few labor leaders and propagandists at the Capital have exercised for almost twenty years around the White House, on Capitol Hill and with local organizations of both major parties, but especially with the Democrats.

It is natural to associate this decline in influence and prestige with the astounding showing of Senator Robert A. Taft in such a typical state as Ohio, for there organized labor overplayed its hand spectacularly.

It deliberately made him the symbol of its effort to become the dominant group in American politics. But in many other contests, including local, county and state scraps, it is obvious that the mass of workers themselves did not rally to their bosses' command.

MYTH—Rarely has the ancient myth of the effectiveness of a particular voting bloc been so violently exploded. It will be many years, perhaps, before the politicians and officeholders will cringe before and obey a noisy lobby as they have here and at state capitals in the last two decades. And the same consideration applies with equal force to such groups as the farmers, the veterans, radical elements and similar pressure organizations.

The Democrats' failure to grasp this fact partially accounts for last week's many surprising upsets. President Truman and National Chairman Boyle virtually turned over the conduct of the off-year campaign to labor unions in the industrial areas, and to the National Farmers' Union in the agricultural sections. They thought they could hitch-hike to victory with this team, not only this year but also in 1952.

UPSET—Labor professionals like William Green, Philip Murray and John L. Lewis are privately upset by their rebuke, although they will not admit it publicly.

They will try to rebuild their political throne by proclaiming that the workers must renew the movement for election of a friendly Congress and President, and for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

But close analysis of the returns in unheralded contests indicates that the men in the shops do not share their leaders' fears and hysteria.

LETTERS—As a sidelight on the average workingman's attitude toward the Taft-Hartley Act, and as an explanation of why its senatorial author came through so handsomely, it may be worth while to publish a few letters from union members that came to me during the recent campaign. They are typical of many which this writer has received.

The correspondents are in such separate communities as Woonsocket, R.I., San Jose, Cal., Pasadena, Tex., and Columbus, O. They ask that their names not be used, inasmuch as they are union cardholders. I publish them just as written in pencil, pen and ink, and in a sincerity that cannot be questioned by Messrs. Green, Murray and Lewis, or their political allies.

Incidentally, I deliberately withheld publication during the campaign, lest it appear that their use then was an attempt to influence the outcome in Ohio and other states.

BENEFITS—"I am a worker," says the Rhode Island man, "and have been a leader of a local union for many years, and it is my opinion that the Taft-Hartley Law is far better than the old Wagner Act. Since it has been in effect, union members have increased, and we have collective bargaining. We have the right to strike, better working conditions, union shops and other benefits.

Under the Taft-Hartley Act, the worker is better protected. The worker was supposedly protected by the company and the union leaders under the Wagner Act. But he could not appeal his case to the labor board without the aid or consent of the union, which he can do under the Taft-Hartley Law. Many workers do not understand this.

"The Democrats do not like the law because labor votes politics. Labor leaders do not like it for two reasons. First, they do not like the anti-Communist oath. Second, they are not free to spend the workers' dues money for political purposes etc."

COURT—"You say you are puzzled as to why the labor people do not like the Taft-Hartley Law," writes the Pasadena unionist. "Well, the big ones do not, but I will tell you that we fellows who work, and especially those of us in a supervisory capacity, do like it. And want it to stay.

"It keeps us from being tried in a union hall by 'kangaroo court,' and, after being condemned, being thrown out of the union and out of our job. And in this way it protects us from demands by the business agents that we lead the job with all the men we can put on, or else!

"It is the only thing we have that keeps us from being tools of the union, and allows us to work for the company that pays the bills. Without the protection of this law 'labor bosses' would dictate whom we voted for, whom we worked for, how much work we did, how we think, or we would have no chance of working at all, because we would be subject to a trial by union members, and our card taken away from us."

REGULATION—"Why is the official voice of top labor circles so hostile to Taft-Hartley?" echoes the San Jose correspondent. "Very simple. The top labor brass—Lewis, Beck, Murray etc.—having fought their way to the lucrative top of the pile in their own heavy-handed way, unfettered by rules and regulations, just don't want to be regulated.
"As a debating syllogism would put it, the bosses don't want regulations. T-H proposes to regulate, therefore the bosses are again 'it,' no matter how necessary the law may be."

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Last night I rushed around the supper table to help Wife Rachel to her chair. W.R. wasn't surprised; she knows that I do that occasionally at home so I won't forget when we go in a restaurant. The model husband, I suppose, would pull the chair three meals a day for his wife. This could be dangerous, though, because that type of husband might be too sleepy one morning and pull the chair at the wrong time. Frankly, I'll stick to this practice reasons only for public appearances.

This chair-moving incident reminded me of the broad topic of manners. There's one type of person who could be called a killer. In the lobby of a movie theater, or in a football stadium, this character walks all over you. If you are well-mannered, you'll probably say, "Pardon me," even though it's obviously his fault. To dip the climax, without saying a word, this killer looks at you with a cold stare as though you are a penny waiting for change. Most people will say with emphasis, "Pardon me, it was my fault!" but dopes who don't are hard to take.

If you made a study of it, you could probably tell how long a man's been married by seeing him with his wife. If he always walks around the car to open the door, you can bet your life they're newlyweds, unless he's one of the few men who never slips. It's a known fact, however, that 75 per cent of the men sooner or later slip out of the door-opening habit.

When you see two married couples walking down the street, with the two men abreast and the two women abreast, you know that the marriage is at least a year old. At five years or more, you'll even see couples traveling in cars with the men in the front seat and the women in the back. At that stage the men are always talking sports or business, while the women are talking about other women.

One of the early occurrences of marriage is reading at the table. This starts in the early stages—probably in the first few months. Anybody who can wait until after Sunday morning breakfast to read the Sunday funny papers is well-mannered. In this case, I'll forget the manners rather than wait until after breakfast for the Sunday funnies, which are truly one of the greatest pleasures of life.

And I thank you.

OVERLAPPING—Who has authority to order a special term of superior court in any North Carolina county to be held in December? What authority will the judge presiding over a December court have in those cases where the governor has previously approved the exchange of districts among regular judges, or where a special judge has been assigned to hold a regular term of court? These and numerous other questions arise out of ratification of the constitutional amendment transferring authority for calling special terms of court and assigning judges from the governor to the chief justice of state supreme court. There will be no confusion when the new system gets to working. In fact, there may be less confusion than has existed in the past because the new plan more nearly recognizes distinction between executive and judicial functions. In the transition period there may be instances of vital concern to people convicted of crime and deprived of their liberty by action of the courts.

EFFECTIVE—The doubtful situation comes about because of the effective date of the constitutional change. In every act submitting amendments to the constitution, the legislature said they should become effective when certified by the governor to the secretary of state. There will be no trouble with respect to the other four amendments ratified last week—waiver of indictment in some felony cases, additional judges, safeguarding retirement system funds, and better pay for legislators. The change in authority for calling special courts and assigning judges might prove vitally significant for defendants convicted of crime and deprived of their liberty. Here's why: The statewide vote will be canvassed on November 28. That day or within the next day or two the governor can certify ratification of the amendments, and they will become controlling as basic law of the state. Before that the governor has authority over the courts; after that the chief justice has.

EXAMPLE—Take the situation where the governor some months ago approved exchange of judges between districts for the full six months tenure. How is that affected by the amendment becoming effective around December 1 for courts scheduled in December? In event of special terms ordered, or regular terms canceled, by the governor—will his order hold after the amendment is integrated into the constitution? What would be the chance on appeal of a person convicted in a special term of court or sentenced by a specially assigned judge in December, when the court had been ordered by the governor before the change was effective?

SOLUTION—Governor Kerr Scott, Chief Justice W. P. Stacy and Attorney General Harry McMillan are giving serious thought to these questions. Most obvious solution as of now seems to be for the governor and the chief justice to get together and agree upon procedure, and then for both to sign appropriate orders—the governor signing before the amendment is certified and the chief justice afterward.

LEGISLATION—It is unlikely

TRUCK AND PUBLIC OPINION (Greensboro Daily News)
Statistics gathered by the State Highway Commission, in conjunction with the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, give factual foundation to the growing charges, especially from the driving public, which are being leveled at trucks and truck operators in North Carolina.
The six of the Tar Heel study, conducted on the highways of the state, is the double-barreled revelation that violation of the legal load limit is on the increase and that 40 per cent of the single-unit trucks and 51 per cent of the truck combinations travel faster than their legal limit of 45 miles an hour. It is highly pertinent to note that the heavier truck combinations, the sort that are over and anon jackknifing on our highways with an increasing toll of life, limb and property, are the worst offenders as more than half of them were actually clocked exceeding the speed limit.

The first thing that the public is likely to ask, in the name of its own safety and the millions of dollars it is putting into its roads, is what the state is doing and proposes to do about this established situation. The immediate need is obviously for laws, the enforcement of which will be the first thing that the public is likely to ask, in the name of its own safety and the millions of dollars it is putting into its roads, is what the state is doing and proposes to do about this established situation. The immediate need is obviously for laws, the enforcement of which will be the first thing that the public is likely to ask, in the name of its own safety and the millions of dollars it is putting into its roads, is what the state is doing and proposes to do about this established situation.

We are assuming that mounting public criticism, irritation, indignation and apprehension will make it relatively easy for such legislation to get by the 1951 General Assembly in marked contrast to the concessions which the truck interests secured two years ago. Even a very powerful lobby ought to meet its match, and then some, in the upsurge of public opinion which the truckers themselves, failing to note what happened to the railroads with their long-standing public-be-damned attitude, seem to be doing their utmost to generate.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The dollar volume of Christmas sales this year may smash all previous records—including that of the lush year of 1948. In the opinion of merchandising authorities, retail sales in the month of December may easily pass the fifteen billion dollar mark for the first time in history.
Such a possibility seems highly reasonable. In 1948, the best year so far, December retail sales, according to Department of Commerce figures, totaled $13,194,000,000. Last December, they fell a little short of that, totaling $12,846,000,000.
Sales this year before Korea were running around a billion dollars a month above the 1948 marks, and since then have been running two billion more. Sales in August this year were almost as high as they were in December, 1948.
If sales merely maintain the gains since June, they will be above fifteen billion in December. But there will be added psychological factors.
There's already a lot of thinking and talking along the lines of "Let's have a really big Christmas while we can." Consumers are conscious of the fact that income taxes may be higher next year, that shortages will become serious, and that the international situation can become grimmer. There are gnawing fears that Christmas in 1951 may not be a too cheerful event, with taxes higher, controls and regulations weighing heavy, and more members of families in training camps or on foreign shores. This is building up an "eat, drink and give presents" psychology which will be reflected in retail sales.
There are some inhibiting factors, of course. Withholding taxes are higher and by December many families will realize the necessity of saving toward March 15 tax payments. Credit restrictions—as intended—will kill or postpone many sales. But almost no shortages will be felt during the Christmas buying season. Christmas stocks are already on shelves or in local warehouses.
Weighed against tax and credit limitations is the fact that personal income is the highest it has ever been and is increasing. It reached an annual rate of $228,300,000,000 in September, and the rates of wages, employment and dividend declaration since then appear to have increased. Even after taxes, people will have more money to spend. Looking back to 1948 again, we find that income in September was, at annual rates, eleven billion dollars higher than in September 1948.
Note that all figures are for dollar volume, and part of the increase in buying over both 1948 and 1949 reflects only higher prices. But there still appears to be a large part that reflects an increase in the physical volume of goods.

CAR DEALERS TO GET OPERATIONAL REPORTS
A series of periodical bulletins giving auto dealers "the average experience of dealers in all parts of the country, representing all makes of cars," to present accurate pictures of dealer operations in all lines of operations is being sent to members of the National Automobile Dealers Association. It will enable dealers to learn whether they are doing better or worse than average.
HIGHER LIQUOR TAX FACES OPPOSITION
In the scramble for new taxes to pay for rearmament, Congressional leaders are talking about an increase in the tax on liquors. Such a move, however, will meet realistic opposition. Under present taxes bootlegging has been rising and higher taxes, offering moonshiners a higher margin, would compound enforcement problems for the Treasury.
The South Carolina State Tax Commission reports that state liquor tax revenues have dropped from twelve to nine million dollars a year largely because more consumers are turning to cheaper corn likker. A rise in federal taxes would probably have similar consequences in other states.

MANUFACTURERS BUILD INVENTORIES FASTER
Retailers' inventories continued to rise in September, according to Department of Commerce figures. However, the rate of rise tapered. Dealers increased their stocks by a billion dollars from July to August, on a seasonally adjusted basis, but the rise from August to September was only $600,000,000. Manufacturers' inventories, which did not increase from July to August, rose a billion dollars from August to September.

With U.S. Eighth Army, Korea — (AP) — "Big Brother" China crossed over to help out "little brother" North Korea only after both became communist comrades—and "little brother" was losing face.
Before both became communist, big brother usually stayed at home, no matter who was blacking little brother's eye.
This time China crosses the border not against a nearby bold and natural enemy such as Japan. It went against the will and hope of the United Nations, a new world organization which neither has accepted Red China nor invaded it.
A link in the chain of belief by American intelligence officers that communist nations are getting closer tonight in their network of military operations is the escape of the North Korean General Staff from South Korea.
U.N. forces killed only one enemy general officer in the campaign—at least the only one the enemy has admitted. He was a Lieutenant General Kang, reported variously to have been a Soviet citizen, a captain in the Soviet Army and a high officer in the Chinese Communist Army.
No general of the North Korean army surrendered or was captured. Only one senior colonel and two lieutenant colonels surrendered. None was captured. There finally were several mass surrenders of troops among the 135,000 taken prisoner. None gave up as units under command of their own officers.
The Big Guns either fled the U.N. advance under orders or later crossed U.S. Eighth Army lines, some in civilian clothing. A few are still trying to do that.
In the last World War, high officers of Germany and Japan either committed suicide, were captured in combat, or surrendered with their units. They fought as armies and gave up as armies.
Nazi Germany's Adolf Hitler killed himself. Red Korea's Kim Il Sung fled. What is the difference?
U.S. intelligence officers believe the difference is that the German and Japanese leaders had to kill themselves on principle or give up through failure because there was no "big brother" to offer refuge or help.
"They were basically nationalists," is the way one American officer put it.
"But the North Koreans have been largely trained in Soviet Russia or China. They were taught by the international communists. If they lost a war in their own country, their goal was to pull back to the nearest communist country and work to begin it again. They put communism above country."
And, as the defeated North Koreans withdrew to reorganize, the Chinese communists crossed the border to delay the issue. The world thus faces its first big challenge of communism fighting in octopus defense depth.
This, say U.S. intelligence officers, essentially is based on one Red country backing another

Washington Letter

by JANE EADS
Washington—Mrs. Maude Anderson, who retired in 1942 after 49 years as an auditor in the Internal Revenue Bureau, keeps busy with her birds, china painting and a 10-room house.
"I'm living every minute of my life and loving it," the spry little lady who just celebrated her 80th birthday told me. Mrs. Anderson's hobby is raising birds—canaries, finches and parakeets. She has between 100 and 200 of them, many of them prize winners. She's a charter member and secretary of the Washington Caged Bird Society and took honors at the recent show the group held here.
"I only had nine entries, and I won nine ribbons, four of them first—pretty good out of nearly 1,000 entries, I think," she said proudly. She also won a handsome gold cup first prize for her crested Yorkshire canary.
"The competition in that class was pretty stiff too," she added. She specializes in Yorkshires and has just ordered three imported from England. When they arrive she says she doesn't believe "the house will hold 'em." Sometimes people want to put birds from her, and now and then she breaks down and parts with one. "I hate to sell them; they're just like children to me," she said. "I'm not so crazy about the finches, but they're sweet and bright and chirpy in the morning. They help start the day off right. Birds are easy to take care of, but most people feed them out of many sweets. Gets them too fat to fatten."

Sometimes Mrs. Anderson pampers her birds. One of her finger-trained parakeets got out of his cage the other day. She found him in a corner, a bit fagged out.
"I fed him and put him in my pocket and he perked up right away. Birds like to keep warm. I carried him around in my pocket all day."

Mrs. Anderson's day starts at about five or six a.m. weekdays, 4:30 a.m. Sundays. "I like to go to bed early Mass Sundays. I go by myself too. I may be old, but I'm still going. I have my own teeth and my hair is brown and isn't dyed."

Mrs. Anderson started to work for the government after her husband's death. She raised her two sons and daughter, all of whom are still living with her in the big old-fashioned home she bought in northeast Washington. There are two grown grandchildren, also living with her. When she can get the needs Mrs. Anderson is going to start playing her oboe again. She started and directed a 35-piece orchestra in the Internal Revenue Bureau. When she retired so did the orchestra.

Adult Education Plans At College Progressing

East Carolina Teachers College will initiate a series of courses in adult education, effective with the beginning of the winter quarter on November 27. Dr. John D. Messick, college president, has announced that work will be offered on the campus and in towns and communities within a radius of approximately 70 miles of Greenville. The work offered will be given by ten departments of instruction, will include both credit and non-credit courses, and will be part of the program of extension courses of the college.

President Messick recently stated that the adult-education courses have the aim of serving the public. The classes, he stated, have been planned with the idea of "enriching the aptitudes and interests" of the people of Eastern North Carolina. Courses will be offered by the

He explained further that the program is designed to reach as many people as possible among those who wish to take advantage of it.

The plan to offer courses in nearby towns, as well as locally, will bring the work to many unable to attend classes at the college, he stated. Courses for credit and those which may be taken on a non-credit basis will also, it is hoped, meet the wishes and needs of various people who wish to profit by the work, Dr. Messick said.

Those who are interested in the adult-education classes are asked to get in touch with Dr. Orval L. Phillips, director of the Bureau of Field Services, East Carolina Teachers College. Both individuals and groups who are interested may receive further information from him.

A series of classes in adult education at East Carolina Teachers College which will begin November 27 will include courses in music. Shown above is a class in conducting held during the summer term at the college. Dr. R. E. Willmann, director of the department, is instructing students learning the art of conducting. Dr. Willmann has announced that the department will offer adult education courses in music appreciation, history of music, and others on demand. (East Carolina News Bureau Photos.)

Scouters Outline Coming Program

The scout leaders roundtable and the district committee of the Pitt boy scout organization met last night at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church for the monthly meeting of the groups.

The scoutmasters and assistants, under the leadership of District Commissioner Jack Dowdy, discussed plans for the scout meetings in the district for the remainder of November which will include a study of maps, compass work and exams on scout pace and stride. The program for the December meetings of the scout troops of the district will be built around preparatory work which will equip the scouts for emergency work in case of a disaster in this area.

Commissioner Dowdy welcomed to the scoutmasters roundtable Claude Christopher, new scoutmaster of the Meadowbrook Presbyterian church troop.

At the meeting of the district committee, which was presided over by District President Wyatt Brown, reports were made on the scouting activities in the district during the past month, and plans for future activities of the district were discussed.

The foreign languages department will offer work in French, and also a course in French civilization to be taught in English. Several courses in science will be taught on the campus. The social studies department will offer classes in world affairs and in history.

Woodworking and other courses will be given by the department of industrial arts. Those requiring the use of a workshop will be available on the campus or in communities where adequate facilities are available; others will be taught elsewhere according to demand. The health and physical education department is prepared to give courses in first aid and in recreation, games, or community recreation. Classes in clothing and child development will be taught by the department of home economics. The mathematics department will give courses to meet demands and interests of the public.

The English department will offer courses in speech, grammar, or philosophy. The art department is prepared to give two courses each quarter, to be chosen from the areas of clay modeling, china painting, and basketry. Music courses will include history of music, music appreciation and others on demand.

In addition to these specified courses, others may be available when needed.

Tour Of Europe Is Described To Rotary Members

By WYATT BROWN

The Rotarians were told about a tour of Europe by Misses Lillian Wooten and Mary Rose Griesp last night at the Rotary Club meeting. The young ladies avoided the usual routine report since they gave their individual impressions and reactions. What was said was delightful but was too personalized to ever be caught in the objective pattern of the news reporter.

Jimmy Brewer was a guest of the club. Ed Jones of Dunn was a visiting Rotarian. Rotarians Bill Bryan, Fitzhugh Duncan, and Badger Johnson were named as additional members of the Rotary Senior Scout Unit Committee composed of J. H. Rose, Harold Thomas and Charles Bisette. The program was presented by Karl Pace.

J. B. Kittrell at the request of Mrs. Polly Little told the Rotarians of a large number of wounded Marines from Korea being at a hospital in Camp Lejeune and needing fifty dozen sets of Christmas tree decorations to provide a tree for each ward. Each Rotarian is to bring one set of decorations wrapped like a gift to the meeting of the Club next Monday night.

The Philippine Islands were named in honor of Prince Philip, later Philip II of Spain.

You can't plow with Good Intentions

It takes more than good intentions to get your farm work done. You have to have good machines — machines that are ready to run and to keep running. That means taking care of trouble before it can happen. And that's where we come in. Bring your machines to us now. We're cooperating 100% with Farm Journal's program to KEEP 'EM ROLLING. You'll reap the benefits of this foresighted program all through the winter.

Sweet Potatoes At Season Peak

Sweet potato sales on the Bethel Auction Market last week totaled about 16,000 bushels. The prices ranged from $1 to $1.65 a bushel.

Market officials said the peak of the season was last week. Practically all of the sweet potatoes had been harvested. Auction sales are held daily, except Saturday, from 9 to 12 and from 2 to 5 o'clock J. L. Brown the auctioneer stated.

Many farmers are curing their sweet potatoes in tobacco barns and other buildings. Oil-burning tobacco barns are ideal for this purpose, a farmer said. The potatoes are stacked against the sides of the barn, with burners operating in the center. A temperature of 90 degrees is maintained until the tubers show signs of sprouting, and then it is dropped to about 65.

Farmers of three counties, Pitt, Edgecombe and Martin counties, sold potatoes on the Bethel auction market this season.

Pirate Offensive Aces Better Their Averages

By BILL LLOYD
All of East Carolina's offensive stars bettered their season's averages last Saturday night as the Pirates blanked North State, 26-0, to absorb their fourth North State victory against two losses.

All-Conference Roger Thrift passed only eight times in the rain Saturday night, and completed five of them, to increase his outstanding passing record to 108 completions in 219 attempts for a percentage of 47.9 in nine games. Thrift also tossed one touchdown pass to run his total to fifteen.

Rushing star, Johnny Smith, led the Pirates' terrific ground attack against the Panthers, carrying 12 times for 69 yards, to mount his average to 315 yards in 59 carries for a 5.3 yards per try.

Towering Frank Maennle, with his one touchdown Saturday night, took over the individual scoring

Phantoms' Drill Hit By Sickness And Injury List

Sickness and more injuries hampered Greenville's Phantoms' workouts yesterday as they prepared to close their season in Washington Friday night against a powerful Pam Pack.

Leon Moore, versatile fullback who was switched to offensive end last week, missed yesterday's drills because of a case of flu, and Coach Farley doesn't know whether the big lad will be able to go against the second-place Pam Pack Friday night.

Milton Foley, a tackle, suffered a broken collar bone in yesterday's scrimmage, and will definitely be out of the game.

Foley joined End Johnny Aman and Halfback Kent Lee on the casualty list, with Aman out with a bad ankle, and Lee favoring a bad ankle and cut over the eye sustained in the 20-14 Roanoke Rapids victory last Friday night.

With both Moore and Aman out, Coach Farley worked big Wallace Conway in the lineup as an offensive end to strengthen the Phantoms' forces for their final tilt at Washington.

The regulars who worked in last Friday night's game worked out only briefly yesterday, with the emphasis being placed in running, while the reserve squad worked in an hour-long scrimmage on offensive passing and checking blocking assignments.

Greenville will get its last chance for a Northeastern conference victory this weekend against a potent Pam Pack club, which ranks second in the conference. The Phantoms have no wins against four losses and one tie.

Disclosed that they had agreed to play Emory and Henry in the Burley Bowl at Johnson City, Tenn., on Thanksgiving Day.

Then the Cigar Bowl officials announced that Appalachian was being considered among other teams for that classic at Tampa, Fla., New Year's Day. The officials are scheduled to meet against Thursday, at which time the selections may be announced.

Appalachian wound up its season Saturday undefeated, but once-tied—14-14 by Elon. The Mountaineers' appearance in the Pythian Bowl next month will be their second. They beat Catawba in the first Pythian Bowl game last year.

Joe Bats 1,000 In Korean Visit

U.S. Seventh Division Headquarters, Korea, Nov. 12—(Delayed)—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, the New York Yankees' great outfielder, batted 1,000 today when he visited some wounded soldiers in a field hospital at Pukchong.

When DiMaggio walked into the dimly-lit ward set up in a schoolhouse, the wounded lifted themselves to take a look.

"Hey, Joe, glad to see you," one yelled.

Others grinned broadly as DiMaggio made his way along a row of cots, shaking hands and joking.

But one soldier wasn't smiling. He laid aside a comic book as Joe neared his cot.

"How's tricks?" Joe asked.

"Mr. DiMaggio, okay," the GI replied.

"Joe helped win the pennant for the Yankees, soldier," somebody said.

"Yeah, and they was damned lucky to win it," said the soldier, breaking into a broad smile.

"That's right, soldier," said DiMaggio. "You a Dodger fan?"

"Yes, sir," said the soldier, Pfc. Donald Edie, 17, of Port Huron, Mich. After DiMaggio had moved on, Edie said, "He's a great guy, ain't he?"

Rickey Deciding On Meyer Status

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14—(AP)—Branch Rickey, new boss of the Pittsburgh Pirates, expects to have a decision on Manager Billy Meyer's job future by tomorrow.

The announcement—awaited anxiously by Buc fans as well as Meyer—will determine whether the Pirates keep Billy for the remaining year of his contract or discard him now.

If he's fired, Meyer will collect $40,000 from the Pirates for tearing up his three-year contract.

It was the eve of the Dartmouth Yale football game in the Bowl, and Roger Walbarst, the Big publicity director, was sounding off in no uncertain terms at the scribes who had predicted that Yale would defeat Dartmouth.

"They are plain foolish," said Walbarst. "Why the Dartmouth players and the student body can't understand why Yale should be favored. Despite our unimpressive record in early games, we expect to finish strong and beat Yale, Columbia, Cornell and Princeton."

Dartmouth did go out and upset the Bulldogs, 7-0 just as Walbarst had predicted. The return of Bill

Bucs Set Sights On That Bohunk Trophy

Cries of "Get that Bohunk" have already started ringing at East Carolina, as Coach Bill Dole's Pirates began preparations yesterday for their traditional battle with Atlantic Christian in their final game here Friday night.

Previewing the scrap for Friday night, Coach Dole had only this to say.

"This is a backyard fight, and you can just throw out seasons records entirely."

Dole sent his fourth-place Buccaneers through serious paces yesterday, with most of the work being accented on pass patterns and pass defense.

Heralded Roger Thrift, who will be playing his last game of his brilliant college career here Friday night, paved the way in the passing drills, with Ends Frank Maennle and Dwight Shoe as his targets. Maennle also closes out his outstanding football record here Friday night.

Pass protection, linemen working on the sled, and windsprints also received equal attention in yesterday's spirited drills.

Five other East Carolina stars close out their careers here Friday night. They are Center Buck Wilse, Guard Leon Ellis, Halfbacks Bill Darby and Billy Smith, and Fullback Johnny Smith.

East Carolina with a 4-2 record in conference play, and an overall record of six wins against three losses, will rule as a slight favorite in the "Battle for the Bohunk," but will be minus the services of Guard Reggie Byrd and reserve end, Ed Tanner, who sustained recurrences of old injuries in last Saturday's 26-0 rout of High Point here.

Three teams in the Coastal Athletic conference close out their 1950 football schedules this weekend, while the remaining two members have two games to play.

Farmville and South Edgecombe round out the regular league schedule for all teams in the final circuit battle of the year, as they clash at Farmville Friday night.

South Edgecombe, with a 2-1 record in conference play, is settled in the No. 2 spot in the league, while Farmville's luckless Red Devils will get their last chance to improve their 0-2 last-place status.

Both teams will be on the rebound from losses suffered to non-conference foes last week, as Farmville was edged out by LaGrange, 19-18, and South Edgecombe experienced its worst game of the season, losing 40-20 to Mt. Olive.

Vanceboro is the third team to wind up its regular season of play, closing out with non-circuit Morehead City in the seaport town.

Undefeated Ayden, which has already clinched its second conference championship in a row, travels to Elizabeth City for a game with Central High there. The Tornadoes, eking a 7-6 victory over Fuquay Springs last week, will be seeking their ninth consecutive win this year against no defeats. Coach Stuart Tripp's eleven has one more game on its schedule after Friday, that with Zebulon in a Thanksgiving Day scrap.

Third-place Robersonville journeys to Rocky Mount to play Benvenue there, and will wind up its season of play on Turkey Day in a game with Central High of Elizabeth City.

Ohio State New Top Ranking Eleven; Army Is Voted Third.

New York, Nov. 14—(AP)—Ohio State tops the nation's college football teams in the weekly Associated Press poll after a tight five-club battle.

For the second week in succession the point system determined the winner with both Ohio State and Oklahoma squeezing past Army, last week's winner.

Army received most first place votes, 72, but lost out in the point system tabulation of the 308 ballots from football writers and sportscasters. Ohio had 66 firsts and Oklahoma 63.

According to the established scoring system, a first place vote counts 10 points. A second counts nine. And so on down to one point for a 10th place ballot. As a result, Ohio finishes with 2,412 points, Oklahoma 2,381 and Army 2,272.

Bunched behind Ohio State, Oklahoma and Army came California and Kentucky. All the first five received at least 2,000 points. Next for the Bears (8-0) is San Francisco.

Despite a 48-21 triumph over Mississippi State for a 9-0 record, Kentucky dropped a peg to fifth place in the standings with 43 firsts as compared to 36 for California. Kentucky has two to go, North Dakota and ninth-rated Tennessee.

The leaders with first place votes in parentheses (points figured on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis):

1. Ohio State (66) 2,412
2. Oklahoma (63) 2,381

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laurensen

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 21
Inspector Anderson sat hunched in his chair. He thumbed through a sheaf of fingerprint sheets. He was interrupted by the jangle of the telephone at his elbow.
"Yeah!" he barked. "Yeah—speaking. Who? Well, bring him up—bring him up."
The door to the office burst open and a burly cop uncereemoniously pushed a tall, flabby-looking man into the room.
Anderson glowered at the man who mopped a perspiring brow with a handkerchief.
"See here, what's the idea?" he blustered.
"Take it easy, buddy. What's your name?"
"George Miller."
"And your business?"
"I represent the Morgan Drug Company."
"A drummer, eh? What're you doing in Calumet? This your territory?"
"I'm here on business."
"So. You're here on business. What stores you visited? What business calls've you made since you been in town?"
"None of your business," replied Miller defiantly.
Anderson thumped the desk with his fist. "You listen to me, chum. You're on a spot. You better start giving some straight answers. How come you bought a ticket to Chicago yesterday, and got off here?"
"Why, I changed my mind at the last minute, and decided to work here first," stammered Miller.

"Hah! It looks mighty fishy, seeing as what happened."
Miller looked at him in surprise. "What happened?"
Anderson's jaw sagged open in amazement. "Where you been? Don't you even read the papers?"
"No, I didn't see a paper yesterday."
Anderson stared at him suspiciously. "All right, bud, I'll tell you. A man was murdered on your train just before it got to Calumet. Then you up and skip. See what I mean?"
"Good Lord! Murder! And you think I did it!" he gasped.
"I think lots."
"But I didn't do it, I tell you. I didn't do it!" Miller whispered wringing moist hands.
He was interrupted by the rattle of the door, and Marc Jordan entered.
"Well, well. A party. Anyone I should know?" he asked cheerfully.
"Our fat-faced friend, George Miller," he says his name is. A drummer, Morgan Drug Company.
"How do you do?" Marc cordially extended his hand to Miller.
The interruption restored some of Miller's composure.
"You fellows are trying to pin something on me. I demand my right to consult a lawyer before answering any more questions."
"Really, I don't think that'll be necessary," said Marc soothingly. "You aren't accused of anything."
"Say," interrupted Anderson, "where you been the last two days? You're not registered at any hotel, or did you use a phony name?"
Miller squirmed in his seat. "No, I didn't stay at a hotel. I stop here frequently and keep a room on Elm Street. It's more convenient."
"You must admit, Mr. Miller," Marc continued, "that your actions do appear puzzling. How'd it happen that you left the train at Calumet instead of going on to Chicago?"
"I've told the policeman," replied Miller stubbornly. "I had some business to attend to here."
"Personal business, Mr. Miller?" asked Marc casually.
Miller hesitated. "Can I rely on your discretion if I tell you the whole story?"
"You better tell the story and take a chance on the discretion," said Anderson dryly.
"Well, you see, my wife is jealous, very jealous. Unfortunately, she learned some time ago that I've a friend in Calumet. A very good friend—in fact, a lady friend. Whenever I go on a trip my wife comes to the station to see that I don't buy a ticket to Calumet. The only way I can fix it is to buy a through ticket and get off here."
"This 'lady friend' of yours, who is she?"
"What difference does it make to you?"
Anderson banged the desk with the flat of his palm. "Brother, I'm—"
"Jerry!" Marc interrupted sharply. "Nix!" Turning his head, he favored Anderson with a slow wink. "His reluctance to disclose the lady is understandable."
Anderson waved his hands in a gesture of defeat. "O. K., Joe. Take him out. Leave your name and address at the desk, and don't try a run-out powder."
As the policeman and Miller departed, Marc shook his head at Anderson.
"Jerry, will you never learn? Let the fly tangle his own feet in the molasses."
Stepping quickly to the door, he hurried down the stairs. Miller turned up the street to the right, and Marc followed. Suddenly he turned into a large ten cent store. Marc reached the door in time to see him heading for a row of telephone booths. Noting that one next to Millers was empty, Marc slipped into it as a coin clanged into a slot. Concentrating intently, he listened to the faint metallic click of the dial. Soon the faint murmur of conversation came to his ears.
After several minutes, Miller clicked the receiver back on the hook and left the store. Marc dropped a coin and dialed a number. A clear voice came promptly to him over the wire, "Johnsons residence."
Marc gasped softly. "May I speak to Mrs. Johnson—again?" he asked.
After a brief pause an impatient voice answered, "Yes, George, what is it?"
"Dorene," mumbled Marc into the palm of his hand, "did I tell you to keep your mouth shut?"
"Of course, you stupid fool!" snapped Mrs. Johnson. "I'll pick you up tonight as I told you. Now get a grip on yourself. They haven't a thing on us. Don't call me again. You'll get us both in trouble. Good-bye."

Milestone in a Career!

We see it happen over and over again—and it's one of the greatest satisfactions we enjoy in this happy business of selling Cadillac cars.

It's when a man comes into possession of his first Cadillac—and we see the wonderful things it does for him.

We see his happiness as he places his order—not as the result of a sudden inspiration, but because he has gradually reached the conclusion that he has earned the right to enjoy the unquestioned best.

And then we see him on that happy day when his car is available for delivery—and he settles himself so proudly behind the wheel.

He's a little quizzical, we sometimes note. Could it be, he wonders, that he has been anticipating a bit too much? And then he's out in the street—headed for home the long way 'round.

Those are thrilling days that follow.

There's the first long ride with the family... the first trip to the office... and the time he learns, in an emergency, that his car is worth its whole price in safety alone.

And then, almost before he knows it, the odometer registers a thousand miles—and he's back to tell us all about it. And, perhaps, to grumble a little bit at giving it up—even for a little while!

Yes, it's a priceless privilege to watch all this. Makes a man feel that he's doing good.

State Paroles Commissioner Dr. T. C. Johnson announced today Deaver was one of seven prisoners released on parole by Governor Scott.
Deaver was convicted in August, 1932, and sentenced to die for slaying Isa Hester. The sentence, upheld by the State Supreme Court, was later commuted to life imprisonment by Gov. J.C.B. Ehringhaus. Deaver escaped Aug. 27, 1934, Dr. Johnson said, but was returned to prison Sept. 5, 1935.

Officers Of Credit Association Confer In Rocky Mount Meet

Directors D. F. Hardison and Alton Gardner and F. L. Little Jr., secretary-treasurer, who constitute the executive committee of the Greenville Production Credit Association, have just returned from a district credit meeting of association officials held at Rocky Mount. Mr. R. B. Rayford, assistant secretary-treasurer, also attended this meeting.
In addition to the annual review of credit policies and procedures, the conference considered the probable effect of the international situation on farm prices, labor and equipment; also the credit regulations which have recently been promulgated by the government in connection with national defense.
F. L. Little Jr. said: "While the outlook for demand and prices of farm products is good, farmers should remember that the cost of production will continue as high or probably higher than it was in 1950, and that good farm management and practices are more necessary now than ever."

R. C. Briley Aboard Flagship Of Fleet

Potato Growers To Meet Friday At Washington

Irish potato growers of this area are invited to attend a meeting in Washington Friday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the government's potato program. Meeting time is two o'clock at the agricultural building.
The meeting is sponsored by the Farm Bureau of the State and is a continuation of similar meetings held for potato farmers through the potato growing east.
As stated by R. Flake Shaw, vice president of the State Farm Bureau, the organization has been asked to conduct such meetings in order that the farmers may obtain a better understanding of the Irish potato problem.
Shaw stated the program has not worked out effectively since the price support program has been in effect. The meeting, therefore, is an effort to inform the farmer how the program can work for his benefit on a national basis.

Venezuela Under 'State Of Siege'

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 14—(AP)—Venezuela closed her borders today and suspended civil liberties following the assassination yesterday of her Acting President, Lt. Col. Carlos Delgado Chalbaud.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was clamped on the oil-rich country's 6,000,000 population after the government announced that Delgado, head of a three-man military junta which seized control of Venezuela in 1948, had died of gun shot wounds.

(The Venezuelan embassy in Bogota announced last night that Delgado had been surrounded by a score of men while driving from his home to the presidential house, and taken to a building on the eastern outskirts of Caracas where six bullets were pumped into his body.)

(An embassy spokesman said Rafael Simon Urbina led the attack and had been arrested with five or six other men. The spokesman said a state of siege had been imposed in Venezuela and that foreigners had been warned not to mix in the situation.)

First Snow

It snowed last Saturday shortly before noon, Mrs. C. E. Maaden, local observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, reported. Slight flurries drifted in and then a drizzling rain set in that continued until Sunday forenoon. Clear weather followed the weekend inclement period.

The highest temperature recorded in the Greenville area Monday was 60 degrees. Lowest last night, 30 degrees, two below freezing. At 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 34 degrees and was rising slowly. Clearer sky and bright sunshine featured today.

Much warmer weather prevailed in the Greenville area yesterday a year ago.

Grand Jury Raps Dade Gambling

Miami, Fla., Nov. 14—(AP)—A racket-busting grand jury concluded four months work yesterday with a blistering review of what it called "sordid gambling conditions" in Dade (Miami) County.

It indicted seven corporations and 53 individuals, among them the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The jury said one unidentified winter visitor "was filched out of half a million dollars in one evening in a gambling casino operated in this county."

County Court Has Heavy Docket For Trial This Term

An unusually heavy docket confronted Judge Dink James in Pitt County Recorder's Court today. Nearly all of the cases tried during the forenoon session concerned violations of traffic and other motor vehicle laws, Judge Dink James was presiding.

Solicitor Charles Whedbee said the court probably would be in session through the afternoon.

Sign Aid Pact For Philippines

Baguio, Philippines, Nov. 14—(AP)—President Elpidio Quirino and American ECA Chief William C. Foster signed today an agreement for Marshall Plan type of economic aid to the Philippines—subject to approval of the Congress of both countries.

The agreement substantially requires the Philippine Congress to enact legislation to carry out recommendations of the Bell economic survey mission.

Indict Three In Shooting Scrape

Asheville, N.C., Nov. 14—(AP)—Three Burke County men have been indicted by a federal grand jury in a case growing out of a shooting scrape between them and law enforcement officers at a still in Burke County.

Named in the indictments handed up yesterday were: Homer Mull, 40, charged with assaulting Fred Mercer of Charlotte, an Alcohol Tax Unit agent, and manufacture of non-tax paid liquor; Andrew Carswell, 26, and Roby Smith, 23, both charged with illegally manufacturing liquor.

Willis Smith States His Views Unchanged

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 14—(AP)—Willis Smith, North Carolina's newest U.S. senator, says he is still opposed to the FEPC, the Brannan Plan and socialized medicine.

Smith declared in an interview here yesterday that he had not changed his opinion against these proposals of the Truman Administration. He campaigned against them for the Democratic nomination.

Smith asserted he would make up his mind on many issues after he goes to Washington and learns more about them. These, he said, included foreign aid spending and rearmament.

Commenting on foreign aid spending, Smith declared that while the Marshall Plan had accomplished a great deal, he doubted "if we can take care of all the wants of the world."

Only Deaf Ears To Tibetan Plea

Lake Success, Nov. 14—(AP)—Tibet's appeal for United Nations assistance to repel Chinese Communist invaders appeared headed for the "file and forget" cabinet today.

No U.N. member appeared willing to shoulder the responsibility of sponsoring Tibet's plea in the Security Council. Since the remote Himalayan theocracy is not a member, it cannot present the plea directly.

The two governments most directly concerned—India, and Nationalist China—both take the attitude that Tibet is a part of China and therefore the conflict is a civil war not subject to U.N. jurisdiction.

Although both countries are highly opposed to the Red use of force against the 3,000,000 people in the mountain land, they feel that the legal niceties prevent interference.

Medical Leader Says Profession Must 'Clean Up'

St. Louis, Nov. 14—(AP)—The American medical profession must "clean its own house" or it will lose its freedom, a medical leader said today.

Dr. Hamilton W. McKay of Charlotte, N.C., president of the Southern Medical Association—second largest general medical group in the country—told the annual meeting of that organization:

"If the people can't convince themselves that organized medicine is taking vigorous steps to correct its own shortcomings, they will insist that the initiative for action be transferred to other hands."

Labrador, which is the same latitude as northern Germany, is 40 degrees colder in January.

unity. That is why their steps in that direction have not been taken hurriedly.

As a result, two nations, or three, or five set up special agreements among themselves on co-operating for better trade. And then a whole bunch of them get together for this same purpose. This is in the economic field.

The same way in the military field. A couple make an alliance. Then three make an alliance. Then the two and the three get together and make an alliance. Then a whole bunch get together and make a military alliance to protect them all.

In the political field a whole bunch get together at one crack and try to discuss their problems and work out solutions for them, although, here particularly each nation makes sure it keeps its own independence.

Red China's . . .

Chiang Kai-Shek, the Nationalist leader, has inaugurated daily broadcasts to the mainland from his headquarters on the island of Formosa. These messages call on Chinese troops not to fight against the United States and the other members of the United Nations, who are the friends of China. Yesterday, for instance, the "G-mo" broadcast:

"I wish to tell you this plainly: when Chou En-Lai (Chinese communist premier in Peking) and Mao Tse-Tung (communist president), send you to fight in Korea they do not do it for China, nor Russia."

The Nationalist broadcasts also have been calling on the Chinese troops in the communist armies to revolt where they can. And Nationalist quarters say some Mutinies have been reported. In any event, these daily messages are bound to help spread the truth about Moscow's true designs in the far east.

That time may come. It isn't in sight now. So, with each remaining independent, the nations of western Europe haggle over what they yield in their moves toward
