

Final Approval For Local REA Loan

Bonds For $910,000 Allocation From Federal Agency Cleared By N.C. Local Gov't Commission

A final stamp of approval was given this morning to the Rural Electrification Administration loan to the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Greenville utilities bonds for the $910,000 allocation from the federal agency were cleared this morning by the executive committee of the North Carolina Local Government Commission in Raleigh.

Superintendent Martin Swartz of the Utilities Commission said the approval of the bonds by the Local Government Commission gave the green light to have the bonds printed, and it means bids for the rural electrification project of the Greenville utilities will be called for in about 15 days. The project which is to be undertaken by the local Utilities Commission will supply electricity to approximately 2,500 homes in the rural areas of Pitt, Beaufort and Craven Counties which already have applied to the Greenville Utilities Commission for service.

The project will necessitate the erection of approximately 300 additional miles of rural lines on the local system, Swartz said, and the project is expected to cost approximately $300,000.

The final approval of the REA loan to the Greenville utilities came today exactly ten and one-half months after the request for the loan was filed with the federal agency on December 30, 1949.

The approval of the Local Government Commission today meant the money is available and advertisement for bids on the contract for the project may be started immediately. "This was the last hurdle we had to go over," Swartz commented. "Work will start immediately after the contract is let because some of the material for putting up these new lines is already on hand."

Members of the Utilities Commission met last night and discussed the matter of the project's approval. They did not know the approval was forthcoming from the executive committee of the Local Government Commission today. The members of the commission in the meeting last night expressed concern over the possibility that the delays in receiving all the necessary approvals for the loan during the past ten and one-half months may mean the project will cost appreciably more than was anticipated at the time application was made for the allocation from the Rural Electrification Administration.

Swartz emphasized that the amount of the allocation which was made to the Greenville utilities by the REA does not mean the local Utilities Commission would spend all the $910,000 which has been allocated. "We will spend just what is necessary to carry out the project which has been approved," he said. The remainder of the allocation, he explained, will remain with the REA to be used sometime in the future if further expansion of the local utilities rural lines is desired.

Invalid In Wheel Chair Sentenced

Los Angeles, Nov. 15—(AP)—A wheel chair invalid, Stanley D. Hill, 34, is under sentence of one to five years in San Quentin Prison for second degree robbery. He was denied probation yesterday.

Previously he pleaded guilty to the robbery charge, stemming from a liquor store holdup July 10, 1947, when he was shot in the neck and paralyzed.

Hill was arrested again last March and accused of driving the car when another man robbed a market messenger.

Uncomfortable View

Prominent British Military Analyst Concludes Chances Of Peace And War Are Closely Balanced... Almost On A Knife Edge; Fears Results Of Future War

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Captain Liddell Hart, internationally known British military analyst, states in a studied estimate of the global crisis that "the chances of peace and war are closely balanced—almost on a knife edge."

That is one of the conclusions in Liddell Hart's outspoken new book, "Defense Of The West" (William Morrow and Co., New York). Amplifying this uncomfortable appraisal, he says:

"One may doubt whether any government wants another war, but it is hard to see how it can be avoided if the present tension persists. The Iron Curtain that now divides the world fulfills its name all too well in preventing peaceful communication, but it is only a tin curtain in other respects. A large extent of it has no strength as a military barrier, and it is not sound-proof against the roaring of either side of it."

Delegation Asks Utilities Act On Smoke Complaint

West Greenville Group Before Commission; Board Points To Studies

A delegation of approximately 20 people who live in the area near the Greenville power plant last night appeared before the local utilities commission to petition the commission for relief from a smoke and ash condition which the delegation said is being caused by the power plant.

Charles Whedbee, one of the spokesmen for the group of citizens, told the commission. "This is a delegation of citizens and property owners of West Greenville who are here to request and petition the commission to do something about a situation which is not only deteriorating the value of property in that section, but also is a health menace."

Whedbee and other members of the delegation said smoke from the utility plant is covering the residential area, blackening the houses, deteriorating the property and making a health menace not only to the residents of the section, but likewise to the children who attend the Third Street School. The delegation asserted the situation has become progressively worse during the past few months.

One spokesman for the delegation said smoke settling at times during the day would cause a person to choke and gag walking a short distance from the sidewalk to the house.

The delegation said particles of ash covered the porches of the houses in the area practically every day and some dust even seeped into houses which are weather-stripped.

Chairman J. Roy Martin of the utilities commission and Commissioners Dr. K. B. Snow, W. H. Woolard, John G. Clark, and J. B. Kittrell assured the delegation that the utility plant was taking every step feasible to eliminate the smoke and ash which was coming from the plant.

Martin told the delegation, "we are just as sympathetic with this situation as we can be. We have been trying to do something about it for a long time and we hope to continue to make some improvement."

Commissioner Woolard told the group the board of commissioners has been seeking the solution to the smoke and ash problem in that particular section of the city, but "we haven't found anyone who has located."

The commission pointed out that a smoke elimination engineers have recently visited Greenville and studied the situation at the power plant to see if any improvements could be made to alleviate the condition.

Engineer H. B. Lammers, chairman of the Coal Producers committee for smoke abatement surveyed the area and the plant briefly and advised the commission that it is likely that only a portion of the ash and smoke settling on the residential area is coming from the power plant. He suggested that part of the ash could be coming from switch engines along the railroad or other plants in the city.

An engineer of the Pratt-Daniel company and Combustion Engineering company who inspected the smoke precipitators at the utilities plant reported the equipment which has been installed is taking out between 80 and 85 per cent of the fly ash from the smoke which comes

Explosions And Fire In Refinery

Port Arthur Tex. Nov. 15—(AP)—A series of seven explosions tore through the vast Gulf Oil refinery early today leaving a circle of fire around the highly volatile area where gasoline is finally processed.

Three persons were injured one critically. Several hours after the initial blast firemen were still unable to determine if any workers were trapped in the encircling blaze.

"There might be still other men in there," said Frank Grossman Port Arthur News reporter. "It can't get in there to find out."

Shortly before 6 A.M. (CST) the fireman on duty at the Port Arthur Fire Department said the flames "are now under control." He said he was not allowed to give out any details.

Firemen from Beaumont, Orange Port Nees, and Port Arthur combined forces. The out of town firemen were delayed reaching the refinery because of a heavy low-hanging fog over the gulf coast area.

Santa To Parade Here December 6

There are only 32 more shopping days until Christmas. The Yuletide festival occurs this year on a Monday.

The Santa Claus and the pet parade, an important holiday event in Greenville every year, will be held this year on Wednesday, December 6, at 3:30 p.m. Executive Secretary Cora S. Powell has announced.

Charles A. White, chairman of the Committee on Christmas Plans for the Greenville Merchants' Association, has called a meeting of the committee to be held in the association's offices, second floor, City Hall, tomorrow morning at 10 a.m. A working program will be scheduled.

The pet parade when Santa Claus comes to Greenville each year is one of the most popular events of the year. Secretary Powell recalled that when gasoline went on a rationing schedule in 1942, when World War II was getting into full swing, and cars and boats were not permitted to enter a parade, the idea of a pet and children's parade was carried out. The parade has grown in popularity each year and it is an outstanding event of the Christmas celebrations for Greenville and Pitt County. Thousands of persons witnessed the parade last year.

There were between 250 and 300 children participating in the 1949 Santa Claus parade which included horses, ponies and pets of all kinds and children on decorated bicycles.

This year the Greenville High School Band and the East Carolina Teachers College band and the C. M. Eppes Negro High School band will participate in the parade this year. Other features of the Santa Claus parade will be fire fighting equipment, with Santa Claus aboard, and probably some National Guard military equipment.

Concerning the prospective pay raises, W. W. Speight, local attorney, stated similar office holders in surrounding counties were receiving the maximum pay already. He stated the judge and solicitor in Rocky Mount Recorder's Court were not doing any more work than are Greenville's judge and solicitor and are being paid the maximum salary allowable under the law.

Taft will head the committee which will contact the respective county and municipal officials for the pay raise. The committee will contact the County Commissioners at the December meeting and the Board of Aldermen of Greenville and Town Commissioners of Ayden either in December or at a later meeting.

Killed was Willie Bell, of Fifth street, Greenville, who was riding in the back seat of a car operated by Lawrence Brett Hagan of 1104 W. Fifth street, Greenville. The man's age was given as about 75.

According to Investigating Officer Delton E. Perry of the Bethel patrol office, the car driven by Hagan was headed in the direction of Robersonville, having just come through Stokes. The lumber truck was traveling toward Bethel on Highway 33. The truck struck the car on the right side as both reached the intersection. The car went off the highway into a yard on the left. It did not turn over.

The truck fully loaded with lumber, kept going until it went off the right side of the highway into a yard some distance from the car. Nearly the entire load of lumber shifted at the time of the impact and spilled onto the highway.

The driver of the truck was listed by Patrolman Perry as being James Albert Smith, age 33, of Route 2, Washington. The truck was owned by the N. N. Meece Lumber company of Washington.

Perry stated that Bell apparently died of a head injury. His body was found stretched out in the rear seat of the new automobile.

Injured in the crash were: Hagan, the driver, who suffered minor cuts and bruises, and Catherine Hagan, 30, who was taken to Pitt General hospital. Perry said that she was not believed to be seriously injured, but no report had been received from the hospital. The driver of the truck was not injured.

Parts of the car were found 45 feet from the wreck while the same distance traveled about the same distance before coming to a stop.

Both drivers told the patrol officer that they were traveling at a rate of about 30-35 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

Investigation by the patrolman revealed that a "stop" sign which should have been in place on the Robersonville highway, the road which the Hagan car was traveling, had been removed. It was believed that road workers had taken the sign down when the shoulders of the highways were being repaired.

A "stop" sign was on the other side of the intersection, and the other "stop" sign was on the ground near where it once had been erected.

Both Patrolman Perry and Coroner Griffin H. Rouse stated this morning that investigation of the accident is not complete as yet.

It was learned that Bell was on his way to a Virginia Veterans hospital for treatment.

The accidental death brings to 15 the number of persons killed on Pitt's highways in the last 11 months.

Bar Association Approves Higher Court Salaries

The first step in an effort to hike the salaries of judges and solicitors of Pitt's lower court system was accomplished last night when the Bar Association passed a resolution recommending the action.

With the backing of the county bar a committee will appear before the respective governing bodies of the towns and also the County Commissioners to request the salary raises.

A resolution accompanying the salary hike resolution, pertaining to setting up a General County Recorder's Court, was referred back to the investigating committee for further study.

Both resolutions were presented to the members of the Bar by Hoover Taft, chairman of the committee which for the past month has been investigating the feasibility of pushing both resolutions.

The salaries of all judges and solicitors of the county court and recorder's courts of Greenville and Ayden will be raised to the maximum if the resolutions of the Bar are enacted.

At present county court judge receives $1,500 and the solicitor gets $1,200. Requested raises are $1,800 for the judge and $1,500 for the solicitor. The judge of Greenville Recorder's Court now receives $1,800 and the solicitor gets $1,200. The maximum would be $3,000 for the judge and $1,800 for the solicitor.

In Ayden Recorder's Court the judge would be raised from $720 to $1,500, and the solicitor from $840 to $1,200.

All salaries are for one year's work. Under the present system the judges and solicitors are allowed to practice law on the side or pursue other businesses.

Passage of the salary resolution received little argument. It was generally agreed that the judges and solicitors of the courts are underpaid and receive just enough to keep them running for the office.

With more pay, it was pointed out, the office would receive more respect and open the field for competition for the office.

Resolution number two, pertaining to the setting up of a general county court, received enough debate, pro and con, to send it back for further investigation. The opinion of several attorneys who talked against organizing the court was that if it were set up there will be no need to ask for pay raises of the judges and solicitors of the present smaller courts.

Concerning the prospective pay raises, W. W. Speight, local attorney, stated similar office holders in surrounding counties were receiving the maximum pay already. He stated the judge and solicitor in Rocky Mount Recorder's Court were not doing any more work than are Greenville's judge and solicitor and are being paid the maximum salary allowable under the law.

Seoul, Nov. 15—(AP)—Red battalions smashed back South Korean troops at two widely separated points on the United Nations line last night and today.

Attacking communists drove the Republic of Korea (ROK) Eighth Division back four miles near Tokchon on the western front.

The attack, in battalion strength began Tuesday night and continued Wednesday morning. By noon the ROK Eighth Division had withdrawn to the south bank of the Taedong River four miles east of Tokchon. This is on the right flank of the U. N. western front.

On the extreme northeastern front six tank-led North Korean assault battalions tore five holes through the ROK Capital Division line late Tuesday. The South Koreans counterattacked closing the gaps, the U. S. 10th Corps said.

Violent red assaults were continuing in the area 30 miles southeast of the Soviet border. But, a spokesman said "no ground was lost."

These communist attacks were in sharp contrast to lack of opposition encountered by other U. N. troops advancing carefully in north Korea's bitter cold.

American troops reached the shore of North Korea's two largest lakes, the Tuman and the Taedong. They sent patrols inside the enemy's war city of Yongbyon and probed the city in front of their lines. The British Commonwealth 27th Brigade advanced half a mile and patrols entered Pakchon on the northwest front.

They found well-prepared abandoned defenses, with Chinese communists ready to have left them. Some points were abandoned so hurriedly that supplies and individual packs were left behind.

An intelligence spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters said he had no idea why the Chinese were abandoning their positions.

A U. S. First Corps spokesman on the western front said "Chinese are using North Koreans as a screen to fight U. N. troops while Chinese Red prepare stronger defense lines to the rear." He said Chinese officers are reorganizing remnants of the North Korean Army into effective fighting units.

There was no explanation of why little or no opposition was encountered around the great Changlin and Pujon reservoirs. Defense of these two vital dams earlier had been cited as one probable reason Chinese Red troops poured into Korea.

Parka-clad U. S. Marines winding through gorges so narrow that their artillery could not follow took Hagru at the southern tip of Changlin reservoir without opposition.

On the northeast the U. S. Seventh Division's 31st Regiment hauled its guns and supplies on sleds to the northeastern shores of Pujon Reservoir.

Steps Toward Unity

While Far From Complete, Unity Among Western European Nations Is Closer Than Ever Before; Three Paths; Organizations Developed For Accomplishing Goal

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 15—(AP)—This is a refresher if you've lost track of the various steps taken toward unity in Western Europe. That unity is far from complete.

But it has moved in three directions; economic, political, and military. And while the nations may set up little groups to work toward unity, they also are members of larger groups seeking the same thing. The memberships overlap. Here they are:

Economic — The three Be-Ne-Lux countries — Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg — on Jan. 1, 1949, set up an economic union to permit free trade among the 20,000,000 people in their area. No complete trading unity yet. Working at it. The three countries worked out this plan as early as 1944, started it in 1948.

OEEC. The Organization for European Economic Cooperation started in July, 1947 among western European nations to decide what they needed, or could do without, under Marshall Plan aid. The Marshall Plan still pumps them aid. OEEC still operates. It has made some progress to-

Food Price Index Climbs Sharply

New York, Nov. 15—(AP)—The Dun & Bradstreet Wholesale Food Price Index climbed sharply this week to $6.58—highest since September 26 but still well below the year's high of $6.69 on Aug. 29.

The index compared with $6.52 last week and was 15.8 per cent above the year-ago level of $5.66. The index represents the total cost at wholesale of a pound each of 31 foods in general use.

Federal Rent Control Outlook Still In Doubt

Washington, Nov. 15—(AP)—A difference of opinion between congressional leaders left in doubt today the future of federal rent control.

Under existing law federal controls expire on Dec. 31 of this year except in areas which take positive action to keep them on until next June 30.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the House Banking Committee told newsmen recently he believes the control program must be continued by law beyond Dec. 31, with some changes.

Spence already has announced tentative plans for the Banking Committee to hold hearings, perhaps later this month on an extension bill.

But a different view was stated yesterday by chairman Maybank (D-SC) of the Senate Banking Committee.

Addressing the National Association of Real Estate Boards meeting at Miami Beach Fla. Maybank said his committee will not consider a rent control bill at the session of congress starting Nov. 27 except for local controls where needed, Maybank added he opposes extension of the federal program into next year.

Spence was not available for comment on Maybank's speech but committee aides said it would be a waste of time for the house committee to draft a new bill if the senate committee won't even consider it.

History Of Communistic Philosophy Presented At Chatham Book Club Meeting

Mrs. T. M. Watson graciously welcomed the members of the Chatham Book Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on East Fourth Street. A setting of lovely fall flowers, a served a desert course with coffee and nuts.

Mrs. Carl Adams, president, welcomed the members and guests, Mrs. J. Coburn and Mrs. Raleigh Lee. The club was invited to attend a Garden Club showing of flower arrangements Friday afternoon at a Women's Club and to the White House Conference for Children and Youth at the Courthouse Friday night.

Mrs. Adams presented Mrs. Rufus Stark who told the club about the growth of Communism in Russia. She used the book "The Great Globe" by Wm. C. Bullitt, who served as ambassador to Russia in 1933-1 and to France in 1934-6.

Communism is a system of social organizations in which goods are held in common. A system of social organizations where large powers are given to several political units. A system of social organizations involving common ownership of means of production and some equality in the distribution of the products of industry.

Fulton Sheen has written of the philosophy of Communism as follows: "Many think that Communism is just an economic theory in which production is for use rather than for profit—or it is a defense of the worker and the disinherited, or it is a form of collectivism opposed to individualism of the Western world. Basically, Communism is none of these. It is a complete philosophy of life. It seeks not only to dominate the periphery of life but to control man's inner life as well. It has a theory and a practice; it wishes to be not only a state but a church judging the conscience of men. It is a doctrine of salvation and as such claims the whole man, body and soul and in this sense is totalitarian."

It was in 1924 that Stalin installed himself as dictator. He introduced a series of 5 year plans in which the government took over all phases of industry. "Every Russian lives in fear," continued Mrs. Stark. "The Soviet government believes in a communistic creed, which it teaches to all its children, for which it prepares them to live and die. That is the Marx-Lenin-Stalin creed which denies God and claims to be based on scientific fact; but is based on the assumption that the establishment of Communist dictatorship throughout the earth and the abolition of private ownership of the means of production will end all war, civil and international, and so improve the nature of all men in all nations and all men will live without a state in perfect freedom and happiness."

Mrs. Stark gave the club members much to think about in the way she presented her subject and in helping us to realize the growth of Communism in the world.

Books were passed and the club adjourned.

One of the most pleasant receptions of the season was given on Tuesday evening from 10:30 to 12 by Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Forbes at their home on Evans street, in honor of the Best-Forbes bridal party, at 11 o'clock the guests were ushered into the tastefully decorated dining room, pot plants and chrysanthemums being used and served by Mesdames Fred Forbes, E. A. Moyer and C. S. Forbes with chicken salad, pickles, sandwiches biscuits and coffee. After the delicious refreshments were enjoyed, the guests returned to the parlor and gathered around the handsome library table upon which had been placed a large, beautiful wedding cake mounted with very unique miniature bride and groom. Here the most interesting part of the evening took place for the destiny of all lay in the way they sliced the cake, where to cut a coin and be frought with riches, or the ring and become the next lucky party or the thimble and be forever doomed to become an old bachelor or old maid. Miss Olive Gaston, cut the coin, Miss Sophia Sadler, the ring and Mr. S. T. White the thimble. The bride-to-be having been pleasingly toasted after much merriment and expressions of congratulations the party bade good night to the host and hostess.

Miss Spearman Feted At Coca Cola Party

At the home of her mother on Eastern street, Mrs. Pete West was hostess at an afternoon Coca-Cola party in honor of Miss Catherine Spearman, bride-elect of November, on Saturday.

The home was attractively decorated with fall chrysanthemums in shades of yellow and white. On the dining room table, from which guests served themselves to drinks, sandwiches and various accompaniments, the centerpiece was a floral arrangement of the same kind of flowers.

At the conclusion of the refreshment hour, the honoree was surprised with a shower of attractive kitchen gifts which were brought in by the hostess in a kitchen wastebasket.

Miss Spearman was given a corsage of yellow mums upon her arrival and was also remembered with a gift of china in her chosen pattern.

Approximately twenty guests were present, among which were Mrs. T. J. McKim of Wilson, Mrs. H. H. Pope, Sr. and Mrs. H. H. Pope, Jr. of Robertsonville.

Dinner Is Given For Family of Mrs. Cox

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Cox of Winterville gave a barbecue and chicken dinner at their home Sunday, October 22 for the immediate family of Mrs. Cox. Those present were: Mrs. W. K. Hurst, mother of Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Mary Dell Seymour and children Lois Ann and Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brown and daughter Ruby Earle, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Clark and two daughters Gwen and Phyllis all of Greenville, Miss Donnie Mae Hurst of New Bern, Mr. Dallas Hurst of Mt. Rainier, Md., Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Hurst and son Kenny of Norfolk, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hurst and Mrs. Lizzie Hurst of Robertsonville, Mrs. Annie H. Savage of Oak City, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cox of Newport News, Va., Mrs. Ralph Crawford and son Billy of Greenville, Ronnie Cox of Winterville.

Rev. and Mrs. E. G. Cole and daughter Doris were special guests.

Also at this dinner were four generations of the late W. K. Hurst family: Mrs. W. K. Hurst of Greenville, Mrs. George D. Cox of Winterville, Mrs. Ralph Crawford and son Billy of Greenville.

After this entertaining and interesting program the president presided over a short business session. Books were passed and the club adjourned to meet next with Mrs. W. H. Dall.

The large number of guests present added much pleasure to the occasion. These guests were: Mesdames H. L. Rivers, M. L. Wright, T. H. Boykin, H. L. Hodges Jr., E. B. Ficklen, Leon Russell, and M. K. Blount of Greenville; Mesdames Clarence Jeffreys, Felix Harvey III, and Bill Page of Kingston; Mesdames Jim Hackney and William Percival of Washington and Miss Jessie McMullan of Edenton.

Lector Club Hears Review Of South Pacific Musical

On Tuesday afternoon the Lector Club met with Mrs. Charles Flanagan at her home on East Fifth street.

After a short business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Holly Vandyke, the hostess presented Mrs. Astor Richardson, who was the guest speaker for the afternoon.

Mrs. Richardson delighted the members with a review of the current Broadway musical "South Pacific." She gave a background of the production, explaining how it was adapted from a Pulitzer Prize winning book by James Micheners and how it was put into production. She enlivened her talk with many interesting facts and anecdotes about the principals in the cast—Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza.

Mrs. Richardson gave a plot resume of the action of the story and played several of the most popular recordings made by the original cast.

Following the program the hostess served a delicious dessert course before the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Blount Is Hostess To Sans Souci Club

The Sans Souci Book Club was delightfully entertained at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at one o'clock by Mrs. J. H. Blount at her home on Elizabeth Street.

The hostess greeted her guests and invited them into rooms made cheery with a profusion of chrysanthemums in fall colors. Luncheon was served from a beautifully appointed table centered with red roses. The buffet held an artistic arrangement of leaves, fruits and vegetables, which further carried out the Fall motif. Seated at each end of the table Mrs. H. L. Rivers and Mrs. M. L. Wright served old ham and a congealed salad while Mrs. T. H. Boykin and Mrs. H. L. Hodges Jr. assisted in serving the delicious accompaniments. Mrs. F. L. Blount and Mrs. M. K. Blount poured coffee.

After lunch the president, Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, called the meeting to order, welcomed the guests and turned the program over to Mrs. F. L. Blount who introduced her subject, the "Mardi Gras," and her guest speakers who were her daughter, Mrs. Felix Harvey III, and Mrs. Harvey's friend, Mrs. Bill Page. These young women, with their husbands, had attended the 1950 Mardi Gras celebration in New Orleans in February. Mrs. Page began this program with a short history of the Mardi Gras and then showed a movie which they had taken of the Bellingrath Gardens and mansion and the events of the Mardi Gras which took place on Canal Street on the final day of this magnificent carnival. The color and pageantry portrayed in the floats and costumes were both elaborate and breath-taking in its beauty and detail. At the conclusion of the movie Mrs. Harvey spoke thrillingly and eloquently of the fantastic spectacle as she dreamed about it in preparation for her trip, as she experienced it in company with New Orleans friends for a meal at famous Antoine's and on to the club ball; and then as she and her party, dressed in costume, mingled with the carnival throng and attended all the events that transpired up to the final coronation of Rex and his Queen.

After this entertaining and interesting program the president presided over a short business session. Books were passed and the club adjourned to meet next with Mrs. W. H. Dall.

The worst property damage caused by a flood in the United States occurred in 1927 when the vees and spread over 20,000 square miles. The property loss exceeded $270,000,000.

Literature Department Enjoys Discussion Of Short Story

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club met Tuesday, November 14, at the home of Mrs. J. E. Phelps. Mrs. J. O. Wooten, Mrs. M. N. Posey, and Mrs. T. S. Winders were assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Robert Lee Humber presided at a short business meeting. A collection was taken to buy a $5.00 TB bond. Mrs. Humber urged all members to attend the White House Family Conference on Child Welfare to be held at the Court House this coming Friday. A motion was passed to take up a collection, at the next meeting, for Christmas tree ornaments for the soldiers at Camp Lejeune. Mrs. L. A. Stroud asked that the December meeting be changed from December 16 to Tuesday, December 12. The hostesses then served a delicious dessert course.

Mrs. Jesse Moyer, program hostess, gave an interesting discussion of the short story—entitled by her own delightful humor. She began, "A short story is an impression from life." She discussed the exacting technique or composition of the short story form and read O. Henry's touching and humorous, "The Whirligig of Life, as an example of a well-written short story."

New members welcomed into the Literature Department, were Mrs. Elsie Eagan and Mrs. Joe Tabar. Visitors were Mrs. R. V. Keel, Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge, and Mrs. George P. Riegan.

Mrs. Paul Ricks will be program hostess for the next meeting, November 28.

Alumnae of the Woman's College of UNC are invited to attend a forum on "Public Opinion in a Democracy" under the auspices of the Social Science department.

These forums are held once a year and are known as the "Harriet Elliott Social Science Forum." They are annually sponsored by the WCUNC Alumnae Association, and anyone who is interested is invited to attend.

The association has obtained some outstanding men who will conduct the forums this year.

Arthur Schlesinger Jr., noted historian and Pulitzer Prize winner and now on the national board of ADA, will be one of the speakers. Mr. Schlesinger is now an associate professor of history at Harvard. Other speakers are Charles Seitzmann, head of the department of communications of the School of Education at New York University; Hadley Cantril, noted psychologist; and Robert Merton, sociologist and recognized writer.

The forum begins at 4:00 p. m. on Thursday and will extend through Saturday. The fall business meeting of the Alumnae Association will be held during the luncheon hour on Saturday.

All Pitt County WCUNC alumnae are urged to attend and any other interested person will be welcome.

Dept. Of Labor Conducting Food Price Survey In City

In an effort to determine what the average North Carolina housewife is having to pay for food each month, the Department of Labor is conducting a price survey of food stores in Greenville and other towns in the state.

The department has sent questionnaires to various stores throughout the city, both home-owned and chain, to collect information before sending out agents to list the price of foods in those stores.

The questionnaire asks the store owner questions pertaining to the nature of his operation in town. Among them are what he sells principally, how many outlets he has in Greenville, whether he operates on a cash or charge basis, approximate retail sales each year and the income level of the customers.

The information given by the owner remains confidential with the Department of Labor and only the over-all findings of the department will be made public when it is published in the average food prices of the North Carolina cities.

Forrest H. Shuford, Commissioner of Labor, stated in a letter to the Greenville Merchants Association, "We in the department believe that in beginning this project we are meeting a demand and a much felt need on the part of the people of this state. Recent surveys have indicated that moderate income families are now spending approximately 44 percent of their income for food alone and that it represents the largest single item in their expenditure pattern."

Shuford went on to state the survey will not provide a Consumers Price Index comparable to that of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. However, the sampling method will be used to arrive at the average food price for the North Carolina cities and "will be comparable in every respect" to the average food price of 56 cities in the United States as published by the Bureau.

Fountain News

The Fountain Home Demonstration Club held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. C. W. Joyner Thursday afternoon, Oct. 9th, at 2:30 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. A. Moore. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. Treasurer's report was given. Plans were made for another year; project leaders and hostesses were selected and the December Christmas meeting considered.

It was agreed to postpone the making of United Nations flag until after the holidays.

Twelve members and three visitors were present.

Following the business session our citizenship chairman, Mrs. C. W. Joyner, presented Rev. Richard L. West, pastor of Fountain Baptist Church, who discussed the United Nations organization, the problems it faces, the hopes it offers, and its need of interest and support. He emphasized that one way which every individual might lend support was through the medium of prayer.

A very enjoyable social period followed while refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The guests were Richard L. West, Mrs. Johnnie Gardner and daughter, Elaine, and they were invited to visit the club again.

Vision Congress Concludes Today

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 15—(AP)—The second annual occupational vision congress concluded today with addresses by Dr. William Westberg and Professor Paul Rust, both of N. C. State College.

The three-day congress heard talks yesterday by Dr. Lester N. Myer and John Scott of Rocky Mount. Dr. Myer is head of the Special Education Division of the Pennsylvania State Department of Public Instruction. Scott is personnel director of the Rocky Mount Cotton Mills.

Dr. Myer said it is highly desirable to check the vision of every school child. "It is advised by some vision specialists that such a check should be made annually," he said. "Others hold that it should be made biannually, and still others state that a biennial check is satisfactory."

Scott told the delegates that "industrial vision is the most important work in the field of eye care."

rected. There is one way to go about the correction. First ascertain the exact sources of the ash and smoke which are causing the trouble. Then have steps outlined to remove the ash and smoke from these sources. The Reflector suggests that the city administration and the board of aldermen secure the services of a qualified engineer to make a study of the smoke situation in Greenville and make recommendations to the city for removing the smoke menace. It would cost the city considerable money to secure the services of a qualified man to make a thorough survey, but the results of a complete survey would be worth a great deal to the property owners of the town and the other people who live here. To be effective, the survey would have to be thorough . . . not a fly-by-night job which would leave some doubt as to the source of the smoke trouble.

Something needs to be done about the smoke and ash situation in Greenville. The utilities commission has taken several steps to remedy the smoke and ash situation at the utilities plant. There is no need in its spending thousands of dollars more to eliminate another ten per cent of the smoke and ash which emit from the plant when it is doubtful that all the trouble is coming from the utilities plant. A thorough survey by a competent engineer could show exactly where the smoke and ash is coming from. Then necessary steps can be taken to remove the smoke and ash. Until a survey is made, the attempts to remedy the smoke and ash problem at its sources will be purely a hit-and-miss proposition.

National Whirligig
 News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—The two cabinet members held largely responsible for the Democrats' political setbacks by National Chairman William Boyle Jr., who usually reflects or frames President Truman's viewpoint on party matters, will eventually be dropped from the official family in preparation for the 1952 battle.

Despite current denials that they will "resign," they are Secretary of State Dean Acheson of Maryland and Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan of Colorado. Every election postmortem at the White House and Democratic headquarters attributes the disastrous loss of strength in industrial centers to Mr. Acheson's foreign policy, especially the "coddling Communists" and pro-His phases, and the return of the farm states to Republicanism to the now defunct "Brannan plan."

NEMESIS—Maryland, for instance, elected a Republican Governor with the symbolic name of Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin by the largest majority ever given a candidate for that office.

The Free State replaced the Senate veteran, Millard E. Tydings, with an unknown lawyer seeking his first public office. Although a Democratic stronghold, Mr. Acheson's own county of Montgomery on the outskirts of the Capital went Republican in both contests by 4,500.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, the State Department's nemesis, delivered several speeches in Maryland, and Mr. Tydings devoted almost his whole campaign to answering the charge that, as chairman of a Senate investigating committee, he had "whitewashed" the Administration on the question of friendliness toward fellow-travelers.

WAR—The Korean war and the Chinese problem generally were important factors. The women's vote was especially heavy, and it is believed that many mothers registered their resentment against what many apparently regard as a "useless and needless struggle" depriving them of sons and husbands for the second time in a decade.

Senator Tydings suffered from this reaction as chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Ironically, a surprise winner in Maryland was General James Devereux, the hero of Wake Island. He overturned a Democratic plurality of 19,000 in 1948, winning because of his showing in the Catholic city of Baltimore.

PROTEST—Truman Democrats' defeats or reduced majorities in such labor centers as New York City, Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit are tied definitely to anti-Acheson sentiment. Ward-by-ward surveys disclose that racial and religious groups won over by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932 and subsequently, cast protest ballots for Republican candidates.

Most spectacular example, perhaps, was Mayor Vincent Impellitteri's wrecking of Tammany Hall's and the White House favorite, Ferdinand Pecora. Here Mr. Truman even conspired with Bronx Boss "Ed" Flynn to stage a special city election by appointing ex-Mayor O'Dwyer as Ambassador to Mexico.

In the campaign's retrospect, however, it looked as if the President agreed to this politico-diplomatic coup in order to rescue Mr. O'Dwyer from the gambling scandals involving his police department. But racial, religious and conservative blocs' anti-Communist indignation overshadowed this issue as a determining factor.

Incidentally, the special prosecutor of the cops and gamblers, by appointment of Mayor Impellitteri, is Thomas F. Murphy, who convicted Alger Hiss of lying when he said he had not slipped official documents and secrets to Moscow's agents at Washington.

BELTS—The Brannan fiasco exasperated Mr. Truman in a personal way because he originally cherished it as a sure-fire scheme for winning and holding the consumers' vote in the cities and the producers' support on the farms. For a while the former Denver lawyer was a special favorite around the White House.

But the farm states that elected Mr. Truman by deserting their historic party in 1948 moved down the Democrats like corn at harvesting time. There were few senatorial or gubernatorial triumphs for Mr. Truman's men from the Mississippi to the Pacific Coast. It was in the agricultural belt that the Democrats suffered their heaviest losses in House seats.

DISOWNED—At the last minute the two-price formula was denounced and disowned by Vice President Barkley, former Secretary of Agriculture Anderson and Senate Leader Lucas, but the repudiation came too late. Mr. Brannan was yanked off the stump in the last few weeks of the campaign, but the damage had been done.

His state of Colorado, which was expected to elect Representative John Carroll, a "fair deal" torch singer and bearer, returned Senator Millikin, who ranks next to Senator Taft in White House disfavor.

Another Denverite, Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman, emerged with a tarnished reputation as a political wizard. The great public lands states so-called, where he handles such problems as grazing, power, Indians, national parks etc., showed no gratitude at the polls for his lavish bounty courtship.

CRACKED—Mr. Truman recognizes the 1952 threat in these urban and agricultural deserts. As a man who knows practical politics from Pendergast clubhouses to the White House, he understands that Democratic triumphs depend on preserving the hedge-podge alliance of labor, farm, racial, religious and liberal groups. As of now, that coalition has cracked.

And as his abrupt dismissal of former Secretary Louis Johnson shows, he can be ruthless when his personal political career is endangered.

Busy Puppeteer

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) HOWARDS, JR.

Since America is the land of opportunity, most of us hope some day to make a mint of money and retire. This matter arose yesterday at the store when a salesman was there. "One of my best friends," he said, "has made about a quarter of a million dollars in the rag business." (You'd be surprised at the demand for rags in the automotive field.) He went on to say, "Now, at 46, you can find him at the country club almost every day. At two in the afternoon he's playing golf, at four he's playing golf on the pretty days and gin rummy on the rough ones. At ten o'clock in the morning you can find him in bed.

"The last time I saw this friend I asked him how long he expected to have a successful business. I told him that if he stayed at the country club his business would hit the rocks.

"Listen here," George told me. "I've got some capable help running that business. Every Saturday morning I go to the office and make a routine check. If things aren't going right, somebody gets fired. By paying good salaries, I can get somebody to do a job well, so the ones who lag get the boot."

In my opinion, George has the right idea. Unfortunately, too many men don't know when to quit. By the time they earn their fortunes they are in the habit of working so hard that they don't know how to stop. Many others have neglected recreation so much that they don't know how to play.

If you think this fellow George has the knack of enjoying his fortune, tune in on me in 1971 when I'm a ripe 47 and loaded with cabbage. (Might as well be optimistic, don't you think?)

At 10:30 I bound out of bed and waded through every readable funny paper known to man, plus one all-around newspaper. During breakfast I listen to Arthur Godfrey.

My afternoons will be split between swimming, golf, movies, and ping pong. There'll be a ping pong table on all four levels of Edwards Hotel. Of course there'll be two swimming pools: one indoor and one out. The evenings would be filled mostly with bridge, combined with plain old visiting and a few movies.

At least one week a year will be spent in New York City, just off Times Square. With every new season on Broadway, there'll be a trip to the city. Sportswise, I'll hit the nation's top football game of the week during the season, even if it means leaving Wednesday to see a game in Texas on Saturday. The World Series, NCAA basketball championship games, Sugar Bowl, heavyweight boxing championships, and national swimming championships would be musts.

This life sounds great, but after all, wouldn't it be better to enjoy a few of these things all along for the next 20 years, and let the fortune idea go? Maybe it would. Moderation is the ticket. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Raleigh, N. C.

PRESTIGE—"Don't forget that South Carolina got a big boost in prestige too," interjected a Sand-lapper bystander during a discussion of how North Carolina had benefitted by results of the recent election. Actually in both Carolinas the primary rather than last week's election determined results. Nevertheless both states profited substantially from the switch in congressional control which came about by elections throughout the country.

LOSS & GAIN—One of the most important pages in a business ledger is the loss and gain account. Translated into political terms results of last Tuesday's voting occasioned both gain and loss for North Carolina, only gained for South Carolina. Our own state lost entire at the White House but gained prestige in the new congress; our southern sister gained prestige in both quarters—although still behind North Carolina in congress.

BYRNES—There was no change in general attitude of the South Carolina congressional delegation, such as occurred in North Carolina when Senator Smith replaced Senator Graham. That was a White House loss and a congressional gain for Tarheelia. South Carolina didn't have much to lose, in either place. South Carolina did gain a lot in prestige by election of James P. Byrnes as governor. Byrnes is one of the nation's recognized "big men" although physically he is little above pint size. Former representative and senator in congress, top assistant president to the late Franklin Roosevelt, and secretary of state, Byrnes is an international figure. He is regarded everywhere except among the small group of ardent Truman Fair Dealers as one of the top Americans. It is illustrative of his allegiance to Jeffersonian principles that he consider being governor of a sovereign state a fitting finale to a distinguished career in public service. Any state with Jimmy Byrnes as governor has unusual prestige.

COMPARISON—By reason of longer tenure in office North Carolinians outrank South Carolinians—as well as most other states—in top committee assignments in the house of representatives. We have chairmanship of Ways and Means, Doughton; Agriculture, Cooley; Labor and Education, Barden; and high places on numerous other committees. Seniority gives South Carolina senators better position in normal times. In the peculiar circumstances of the present, Senator Hoey occupies important place on several committees. According to the visiting South Carolinian the comparative rating of the two states checks up about like this: North Carolina with Governor Scott is closer to the White House than South Carolina with Governor Byrnes; North Carolina representatives outrank South Carolinians in committees; North Carolina gained in congressional prestige under the new dominance, while South Carolina held its own. In the aggregate, South Carolina gained more, because it had nothing to lose anywhere, and any progress at all toward recognition and prestige is noteworthy. Both states are in better position among their sister commonwealths, because the general trend throughout the nation seems to be the way the Carolinas have chosen—somewhat less left of center than the national administration has been inclined to go.

BI-FOCALS—Americans are too much inclined to look at the world through rose colored glasses, when we ought to be using spiritual bi-focals, says Congressman Harold D. Cooley. The fourth district representative and chairman of the house agriculture committee was speaking to the N. C. Optometry Society at their annual banquet Monday night. He said the bi-focals were needed so that people of the United States could see what goes at home, in their own communities and in the country, and also what goes on in other parts of the world.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TOBACCO TAXES (New Bern Sun-Journal) The National Tobacco Tax Research Council sees the welfare of North Carolina tobacco farmers at stake in a "mad desire to saddle tobacco with disproportionate taxes."

For the privilege of enjoying their smoking pleasure and making it possible for thousands of tobacco farmers to enjoy some measure of prosperity, smokers of North Carolina last year paid the Federal government more than thirty-one million dollars in cigarette taxes, says F. M. Parkinson of Richmond, Va., executive director of the council.

There is a movement on foot, he warns, to assess a state tax on cigarettes in North Carolina at the forthcoming session of the legislature and thus increase the cost of cigarettes three cents per package. This tax, if enacted, will saddle North Carolina smokers with another twelve million dollar tax bill, making a total tax of forty-three million annually for the privilege of enjoying one of nature's "most beneficent products."

The danger of the proposed new tax is real. Numbers of cities throughout the nation have already chosen to add taxes on cigarettes as a means of securing added finances. Once adopted, the new tax remains. New sources of taxes are being sought throughout the entire tax structure, and North Carolina retains a sales tax which was adopted as a temporary measure.

WE QUESTION LEADERSHIP (Kinston Daily Free Press) The Free Press seriously questions the wisdom of selecting Senator Richard B. Russell, Junior senator from Georgia, as the majority leader succeeding lame duck, Scott Lucas, the senator from Illinois who was defeated by his Republican opponent on November 7th.

Senator Russell was affiliated with the so-called Dixiecrats in the 1948 campaign. The idea now that he is broad enough to forget questionable associations and become a national leader seems to be gaining ground in Congress. In fact the suggestion has come, we believe, from two stalwart administration leaders in Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico.

Senator Walter George, senior representative of Georgia in the upper branch of Congress, is one of the ablest and clearest thinkers in the Congress. Whether he age and health would permit him to assume the arduous duties of leader, of course, is a question. For many years he has been chairman of the powerful Finance Committee of the Senate.

Senator Russell's past affiliations would certainly be the brunt of considerable criticism in other sections of the country where it is the custom to malign and traduce the South.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Sellers of television sets appear to have by-passed the road block built by the threat of color television. A few weeks ago retailers were moaning that business was dying on their hands. Today sales are running along at a brisk rate and prospects of Christmas gift sales are good.

Undoubtedly, retailers and their suppliers had something to worry about. The overnight change of color telecasting from the discussion stage to a period of experimental reality certainly gave the public pause. Consumers could have very well sat on their hands—instead of using them to pay out currency and turn dials—if dealers and manufacturers had not acted. But act they did.

The first current efforts were to promote the idea that color television, for all practical viewing, was still years away. But that is basically a negative idea, and negative ideas rarely sell. So the merchandisers quickly shifted to a positive slant: that black-and-white television would bring $100,000,000 or $125,000,000—the figures were fast approximations—worth of talent into set-owners' homes every year for many years to come.

Then this positive idea was nailed down with guarantees. Not all manufacturers and retailers offered guarantees, but many of them did. They guaranteed that sets being offered could be converted to color, and they guaranteed that it could be done inexpensively.

A New York chain used full-page ads to announce it guaranteed to furnish new buyers with a color converter and/or adapter as required, when they are available, at a price of $49.50 or less. The guarantee was offered in writing and applied to 19 makes of sets.

Ohio's largest television retailer announced the granting of a policy with the sale of every television set, agreeing to exchange black-and-white sets for color sets if color television became available in northern Ohio within a year from purchase. Users are to pay 33 cents a day for each day the b&w set is used.

In other markets, similar assurances of the value of the b&w programs were publicized and various guarantees offered. The Voice of America may not be able to all the world on accepting democracy, but the voice of television has pretty well sold the American public on the idea that b&w sets are still a good investment.

NEW POSTAL RULE HITS C.O.D. ORDERS
 A Post Office regulation that became effective last August has put a dent in c.o.d. sales of mail order houses. The regulation cut from 20 to 15 days the time a post office may hold a c.o.d. parcel. If the addressee can't raise the money in that time, the post office must return it to the sender.

Further, another provision permits the post office to return a collect parcel immediately if it considers it undeliverable. In the past, packages with errors in addresses were often delivered when the addressee inquired about non-delivery.

The new regulation has reported return from 10 and 15 per cent to 20 and 30 per cent. An undelivered parcel may cost the sender $1 or more in postage and fees, and hence a rise in returns can fast wipe out profits.

SHORTAGES EXPECTED TO CONTINUE LONG
 Even if an all-out war does not develop, current shortages of materials will continue for the more than a year, 49 per cent of the purchasing agents interviewed by Purchasing magazine believe. Twenty-five per cent believe the shortages will end within a year, 26 per cent within six months.

GUIDE TO BELGIAN TRADE OFFERED
 A "Guide and Directory on Doing Business with Belgium, Luxembourg and the Belgian Congo" has been prepared by the ECA mission in The Hague. Exporters can obtain a free copy by writing to the Office of Information, ECA, 800 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C.

HOUSING BOOM BOOMS HOBBY SALES
 Sale of hobby equipment, especially power tools, is booming, the industry reports. Christmas sales are expected to set a new high mark. One reason: more young husbands than ever before own homes today and these provide space for workshops and create endless numbers of repair and improvement jobs.

NEW AND HOT REMOTE: A dictating machine also has a remote station for the stenographer's desk. The remote station is only five inches high and 5 inches wide, and may also be used as an office intercom. (It is by Crescent Industries, 4140 W. Belmont Ave., Chicago 41.)

ICE-MAKER: An ice making machine for taverns, hotels, institutions, etc., produces 450 pounds, or 8,500 cubes a day. Turn of a knob produces crushed ice instead of cubes. The machine takes up only 24 by 25 inches floor space (and is by Carrier Corp., Racine, N.Y.)

SACHET: A liquid hair sachet that is claimed to kill bacteria that cause body odor as well as soften and perfume the hair is being introduced (as Ocean Blue, by Trylon Products Corp., 2750 N. Wolcott, Chicago 64.)

TAPE: A new and thinner Scotch tape is being made with adhesive on both sides (by Minnesota Mining and Mfg. Co., St. Paul). The two-sided adhesive adds many new uses to the tape, such as attaching riders and memos to documents, mounting clippings and window cards, etc.

Chongchon River Front, Korea —(AP)—American officers were in sharp disagreement over what the future holds for United Nations forces in Korea.

It appeared that one man's guess was as good as the next. One general officer said he feared the Chinese Reds were mounting an offensive drive on the former Red capital of Pyongyang forces and split them down the middle.

Another officer predicted the war would be over by Dec. 1. A third said that if the Reds cannot achieve a decisive diplomatic victory then the Chinese will continue fighting throughout the winter.

The situation was a puzzle throughout the Army, with a guessing game going on over the outcome.

Col. Ernest V. Holmes of Defiance, Ohio, said he believed the war would be ended during the first week in December—and he was willing to be quoted.

"I doubt that we ever will go near the Manchurian border," he said. "Some damn fool might cross it and cause trouble."

Then he added: "I will see you in Hawaii on Christmas Day." Lt. Col. Jacob Shacter of Augusta, Ga., said dryly:

"Let me collapse your bridge of optimism: "There is the possibility the Chinese are shifting to the center of our line for a drive on Pyongyang and a full-scale effort to outflank the western half of our front."

He said the Reds may be holding positions on the Chongchon front merely to give time for an offensive drive. There were signs that the Reds were taking defensive positions by digging new trenches, laying mines and setting up roadblocks.

The enemy are withdrawing in some sectors and putting up heavy resistance in others.

Many military men feel the war has now become a diplomatic battle which easily could develop into World War II—if the Chinese come into North Korea in full force.

A general said he believes the Americans on the Chongchon river front could drive forward to 15 miles without meeting material enemy resistance. Then he added:

"The Reds have nothing to lose and all to gain by keeping the Chinese fighting us."

He concluded that if the Russians and Chinese Reds can achieve a decisive diplomatic victory then "we will close the war amiably."

Shacter said if the U.N. forces continued the drive north they would fight their way out of the narrow neck of the Korean peninsula.

"Then we would have a front that is 870 miles long. The present front is about 110 miles long."

"We should have five times as many troops if we want to have the same impact on a 870-mile front as we now have on a 110-mile front," Shacter said.

He pointed out that a short length of the north Korean frontier borders on Russian territory—Siberia. And, he added, the Russians in his opinion would not agree to a free nation holding a border touching Russian territory.

"To protect the Iron Curtain," he said, "Russia must have a buffer state between her and a free nation."

Hal Boyle's Column

Washington Letter

BY JANE EADS
 Washington—If you wanted to fly across the country 20 years ago you traveled by airplane only in the daytime. At night you traveled by train in connecting service. Then Transcontinental and Western Air began putting passengers in a hotel at Kansas City overnight and flying on the next day.

Some of the people who flew the planes when that first all-air transcontinental service began in 1930 are still in the business.

The boys still laugh about the elderly visitor to one of the 110-mile-an-hour, 12-passenger Ford trimotor-planes before the inaugural flight from Newark, N.J.

"What do you do with trucks?" the lady asked as she surveyed the narrow cabin. The attendant, his mind on practical matters, misunderstood the lady's query by one letter—a "d" instead of a "t."

"Oh, we just throw them out," he said.

Airline travel 20 years ago seems a bit crude by comparison with the 300 miles an hour, the pressurized cabins, hot meals aloft, one-stop trans-continental flights of today. Airliner pilots of 1930 took care of passenger comforts as well as the planes. Now they have an engineer to check engines and a couple of pretty stewardesses to serve not only the passengers but also the pilots' meals.

In those days pilots who didn't dress like a combination duck hunter and fullback were obviously "showing off and trying to make the job of flying look easy"—which it wasn't. Twenty years ago pilots had to carry firearms because they carried the U.S. mail. Railroad mail car workers wore sidearms, and the fact that few highway men prowled the skyways meant nothing.

"The pilots didn't mind," one recalls. "It was, as a matter of fact, a welcome touch to point up the Superman idea with which the airlines were credited. That is, to all except one pilot."

"Going into New York from Newark airport one day, he was seized upon by the police and charged with carrying firearms in violation of the Sullivan act. It took the airline company, the Post Office Department and no end of trouble to shake him loose."

RAYON WORSTED . . . This rain-or-shine coat is water-repellant, smart enough for sunny days, in a handsome check.

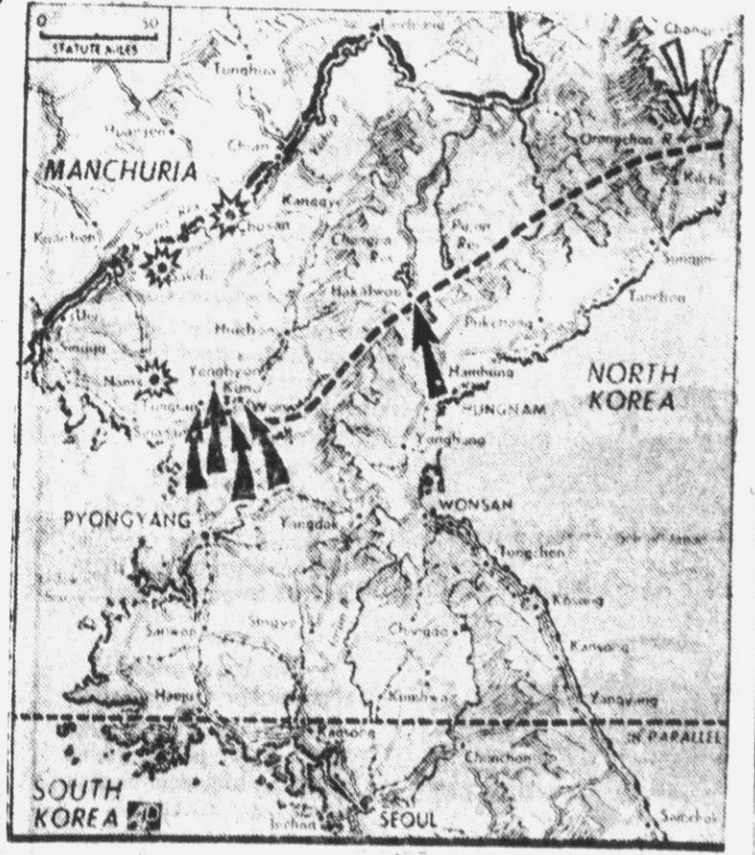

THE CASUAL ENSEMBLE . . . This outfit, designed by Vera Maxwell, is a top hit among college and career girls. It consists of coat in Venetian covert with full, sweeping back, with cuffs and facing in tissue weight plaid, to match the flared skirt.

Desert Rescues Being Practiced

Tripoli, Tripolitania—(AP)—British and American service personnel have been cooperating in air-desert rescue exercises in Africa's northern wastes. White panels were laid out in the desert to indicate a crashed plane. Then RAF and USAF planes began a search. Two ground parties were set up, one with eight light vehicles, the other with 10 heavier type vehicles for evacuation of personnel. Communications were centered at the British-operated Castel Benito Airfield. The U. S. has a military air transport unit at nearby Wheelus Field. London has had as many as 74 dense fogs in a single year.

ADVANCE IN KOREA—U. S. and South Korean troops are meeting resistance ranging from slight to heavy in their advance on the western end of the Korean battle line. Spearheads of the attack reached Tungsan, Yongbyon, Kumu and Won Monday. In the center of the line, strong Marine forces advanced unopposed for five and a half miles in their push toward the Changjin Reservoir. North Koreans on the eastern end of the line attacked in force and pushed across the Oranchnon river. Blast symbols show objectives of heavy U. S. bomber attacks. (AP Wirephoto Map).

N. C. Motor Vehicle Count Shows Big Gain For Year

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 15—(AP)—North Carolina's motor vehicles registration ballooned 13.2 per cent this year, the third largest increase in the nation. In total registration, the Tar Heel state stands 15th in the nation and leads the South. The Motor Vehicles Department quoting a report issued yesterday by the Department of Commerce, said only Louisiana and New Mexico topped North Carolina in percentage vehicle increase. The Commerce Department's figures show this state had 720,455 automobiles and 182,388 buses and trucks for a total of 902,843 vehicles last year. This compares with an estimated 819,000 autos and 203,000 buses and trucks for a total of 1,022,000 in 1950. The figures also show that North Carolina ranks lowest in the South only Louisiana and New Mexico topped North Carolina in percentage

Delaware is the state with the lowest elevation, averaging around 60 feet; Colorado, averaging 6,800 feet, has the highest. Annual growth of timber in the United States is only about one-sixth the amount removed from forests. FOR CHAFED SKIN Quick relief follows mild Resinol Soap cleansing and application of soothing, gently medicated Resinol Ointment and SOA.

Four Sparkplugs For Farmville Midget Team

Phantoms Test New Plays For Pam Pack Clash

Greenville's Phantoms polished up their pass defense yesterday, and then Coach Farley instigated a few new plays, as the injury-riddled Phants continued their preparations for their closing game with Washington there Friday night.

Yesterday's brief workout was concluded with a spirited dummy scrimmage, with each man checking his blocking assignments. Quarterback Eddie Farley also sharpened his passing eye for Friday night's curtain-closer against the strong second-place Pam Pack.

Bert Warren, (27), left halfback; and 'Hump' Allen, (20), quarterback, are expected to be the key figures in the Farmville attack. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

East Carolina Quint To Meet Naval Air Cagers

Penlites Sweep Into League Lead

Carbon Bowling League
Penlites	12	9 571
Black Cats	12	9 571
Nine Lives	11	10 606
Evereadys	7	14 333

The third place Penlites of the National Carbon League swept their third three-game week of the season to beat the Nine Lives and take over the Lives' possession of first place. The latter team slipped into third after the Black Cats had taken two games from the Evereadys Monday night.

Second Pre-Season Tilt For Porter's Crew In Norfolk Thursday Night; Open Season December 2

East Carolina's cagers make their second pre-season outing tomorrow night, as they travel to Norfolk, Va., to play the Naval Air Station there. Coach Howard Porter's cagers looked highly impressive in their first pre-season tilt with George Glanack's Grand Rapids pro club, as they battled the Hornets throughout, before losing 66-49, in Rocky Mount three weeks ago.

The New Rocky Graziano Says A Few Words To Dancing Class

By JACK HAND
New York, Nov. 15—(AP)—It says here Rocco (Rocky) Graziano, the boxer, will address members of the Wally Der Dancing school on physical fitness at 4 p. m. So you go.

sters sat down on the polished floor, forming two lines. The guest speaker waited outside. Out in the hall the Rock passed the time of day with the hangers-on. "What'll I tell them?" he said. "How to fight? Stay away from pool halls."

tel 'em. What more?" "Any questions?" Somebody asked. "How long did your last fight last?" Asked a bright-eyed boy of 5 or 6. "It went 10 rounds," Graziano answered, sadly it seemed. "All out for the 5 o'clock ballet class," called a bright blonde honey bun in shorts.

Deacon Soph Is Week Standout

Raleigh, Nov. 15—(AP)—A young end who scored Wake Forest's winning touchdown against Duke is Associated Press Southern Conference Sophomore of the Week this week.

He is Jack Lewis, an 18-year-old, six feet two inch, 190-pound youngster from Birmingham, Ala. Lewis broke into the Deacon starting lineup early in the season and has shone in several games, particularly in the Wake Forest 13-7 triumph over North Carolina. The play that won for Lewis his Soph of the Week selection came in the second quarter of the Duke-Wake Forest fray. The Blue Devils were leading at the time 7-6.

Eppes Bulldogs Meet Last Foes Of Grid Season

The Eppes High Bulldogs take on their last opponent of the season tomorrow when they meet Clinton there. Coach Percy Daniels' grid-diggers enter the season's finale with a record of two wins against five losses. Last Friday the Bulldogs annulled their second victory by beating Snow Hill 12-0. Eppes dominated most of the offensive action throughout the game and scored both touchdowns through the ground attack. Halfback Griffin was the star of the contest as he scored both markers around right end.

Pirates Polish Up Aerial Attack And Defense Plan

For the second straight day, East Carolina's Pirates went through spirited drills, readying themselves for Friday night's Bohunk battle with Atlantic Christian here.

Pass defense again drew much attention yesterday, as Coach Dole prepared his charges for the all-ways threatening aerial attack of the Bulldogs from Wilson.

Although winners in only two games this season, the Bulldogs have impressed all observers this year with various defenses set up for their foes' onslaught varying from a 3-3-2 formation to a 4-3-4, and sometimes going into an extreme 1-5-5.

The Pirates, closing out their season here Friday night, also brushed up on their pass patterns, with All-Conference Roger Thrift sharing the chunking chores with his understudy, sophomore Sandy Siler.

Common Sense Greatest Need In Administration Of Schools

By Lynn Nisbet
 Raleigh, November 15—One of the principal needs, perhaps the greatest of all, in the North Carolina public school system is some old-fashioned, common, horse sense.

That is the opinion of a veteran school man, presently a county superintendent, who came up through the ranks from a classroom teacher. He thinks applied common sense in place of some of the applied "standards" and book-value ratings would greatly improve the public schools of this state.

Quite understandably he declined permission to use his name because he said he had to do business with the folks who think a college degree is worth more than inherent innate ability, and that tenure is more important than proven efficiency in teacher rating.

The man admitted he was a little bit peeved at some recent actions of top rank-school authorities. He had just had his lunch room program low-graded because he was operating it at labor cost below what the state authorities said should be the standard.

Furthermore, one of his best elementary schools had been taken off the accredited list because some of the teachers did not have the book rating demanded by the accreditation folks—although he insisted these teachers were among the best in the state.

He also resented the fact that some of his best teachers, proven by years of successful experience to be among the best, could not participate in distribution of the seven and a quarter million dollars they pay under the continuing provision in the 1949 appropriations act, because they did not hold A, B, or G certificates. He doubts that some of the G-certificates teachers in his county are doing as good a job as some of the non-standards teachers. But when asked if he wanted the responsibility of rating the teachers and fixing their salary on basis of his own opinion of their real worth, he answered with an explosive "NO."

He thinks the mania for artificial standards of competence represented in the demand for "letters after the names" of teachers (meaning college degrees) has led the school folks into many unsound practices. He used the state superintendent of public instruction as an example. He thinks Clyde Erwin has done a good job in that capacity, and points out that the people of North Carolina seem to agree with him because they have four times elected him to head their public school system. Yet Clyde Erwin is not a college graduate, although he has been awarded honorary degrees for proficiency in his field and is commonly known as "Dr. Erwin." The man said Dr. Erwin would find it difficult, perhaps impossible, to qualify for a principal's certificate under arbitrary and artificial rules set up by the school folks.

Apparently realizing he might have been talking a little bit too fast, the man said he knew that anything as big as the North Carolina public system—with more than thirty thousand employees, nearly a million pupils, and upwards of four million patrons—must have some fixed and established standards. It is obviously impossible to put every teacher and every pupil on individual basis. At the same time, he thinks there is room for more common sense with respect to interpretation and application of the standards adopted.

Carrying his philosophy somewhat further, he thinks facilities provided in public school buildings ought to be a little above the average enjoyed by patrons of the school—but not so far above as to leave pupils dissatisfied and unhappy because they cannot hope to bring home facilities up to school level. His thought is the schools should encourage progress and inspire efforts toward better things. His idea of education is to "bring out the best" in the pupils, rather than show them a goal utterly impossible of attainment.

Because he knows his philosophy does not harmonize with that of many of his co-laborers in public school work the man says he would like to remain anonymous—but would also like for the public to know that some school folks do not concur in all the present day ideas.

Slight Reduction In Food Prices

Washington, Nov. 15—(AP)—The government reported today that retail food prices dropped about 0.4 per cent during the last two weeks of October.

Lower prices for fresh fruits and vegetables were mainly responsible for the decline, but small drops were reported in prices of meats, poultry, coffee and sugar. Higher prices were reported for eggs, dairy products, fish, canned and dried fruits and vegetables.

Prices were lower for 21 foods, higher for 21, and no change was reported for eight others covered in a Bureau of Labor statistics survey.

On the basis of a special survey of 50 food items in eight cities, the Bureau estimated that on Oct. 30 food prices stood at 208.1 per cent of the 1935-39 average, or more than double. That would be a rise of about 1.6 per cent since June 15, before the Korean fighting began.

Slight declines were reported in July and August and a drop of 1.2 per cent was experienced in the last two weeks of August, the Bureau said. But the late October decline was the first since then.

Prices for fruits and vegetables in the eight cities averaged 1.6 per cent lower over the two week period. A decrease of 2.5 per cent for fresh fruits and vegetables offset increases of 1.3 and 1.1 per cent for canned and dried fruits and vegetables.

Prison Center's Opening Delayed By Construction

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 15—(AP)—The Prison Rehabilitation Center for Negro youths at Goldsboro probably won't be in operation before Jan. 1. It had been hoped the center would be in operation before the first of the new year. The center will be similar to the rehabilitation center for youthful white prisoners, at Camp Butner.

State Prisons Director John Gold said a construction delay is responsible for the opening of the Negro center being delayed. Gold declared yesterday, however, he is now screening applicants for superintendent of the camp.

The superintendent and other camp personnel will be Negroes.

DEFENSE AIDE—Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, of New York, who has been selected as Assistant Secretary of Defense, answers questions from newsmen at a recent Pentagon press conference. Secretary of Defense Marshall says Mrs. Rosenberg is "the outstanding manpower expert in the country." She will probably be sworn into office November 20. (AP Wirephoto).

Open Bids Today For Bonds Issue

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 15—(AP)—State Treasurer Brandon Hodges was scheduled to open bids today on a record-breaking total of $32,500,000 worth of general fund bonds.

Hodges has predicted the bonds will sell for less interest than was charged for the state's last offering of highway bonds. Up for sale are $25,000,000 in school bonds and $7,500,000 in ports bonds.

In September, 1949, the state marketed $50,000,000 in rural road bonds for interest charges totaling 1.87 per cent. Last March $75,000,000 were marketed for slightly more than 1.82 per cent.

Hodges said "better market conditions resulting from higher federal taxes" would aid considerably in unloading the general fund bonds, which are tax exempt.

They also have a shorter average maturity than the road bonds, nine years against 12 years. Generally, short term bonds carry lower interest rates than long term bonds.

Open Road Bids Nov. 28 On 20 Major Projects

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 15—(AP)—The State Highway Commission will open bids Nov. 28 on 20 projects covering 177.34 miles of road improvements.

Work under the projects will be spread over 25 counties. Bids, set out for advertisement yesterday, will be opened in the hall of the State House of Representatives.

Among the major jobs up for bid are projects calling for: a double lane addition to U.S. 29 between Concord and Charlotte, grading and structure on U.S. 15 and 501 between Durham and Chapel Hill, and a new bridge over the French Broad River at Hot Springs in Madison County on U.S. 25 and 70.

In the continental United States the temperature has dropped to 60 degrees below zero in Montana, and risen to 134 degrees in the shade in Death Valley, Calif.

Believe 20 Dead In Norway Wreck

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 15—(AP)—Twenty persons were believed killed or injured in a train accident at Hjukseboe, on the Oslo-Kristiansand railway today.

The Oslo-bound train from Kristiansand collided with a freight car which had broken loose on the main line.

Hjukseboe is 82 miles north of Oslo. Emergency squads including doctors and nurses were sent to the accident scene from Kristiansand and Drammen.

The accident occurred about 10:48 a.m. The express was going at full speed when it crashed.

The first coach of the express was demolished. A spokesman for Norwegian State Railways said that about 20 persons were believed killed or injured.

A flood in the Ohio River valley in 1913 accounted for the loss of 400 lives and $100,000,000 in damage to property.

Austrian Glider Sport Banned In Russian Sector

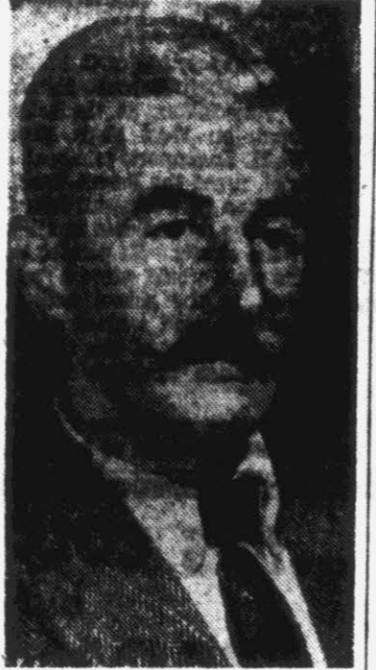

VIENNA—(AP)—In December, 1949, the Russians gave permission to glider enthusiasts to take up their sport again. Recently, however, the Soviets banned glider flying in the Russian zone and proposed that the four allies occupying Austria dissolve the glider pilots' club.

The western allies refused, so Soviet zone pilots now do their flying in the American, British and French zones. The reason for the Russian about-face is obscure. American officials said it is possibly designed to limit glider activity until the Russians themselves make a strong bid for control of the sport through well-organized Communist glider groups.

Another Silver Star To Tarheel

Tokyo, Nov. 15—(AP)—General MacArthur's headquarters announced today these enlisted men and officers of the 24th Infantry Division have been awarded Silver Stars for gallantry in action:

M-Sgt. Lonial W. Caro, Cumberland, N.C., during a daylong concentrated enemy artillery and mortar attack near Yongdong on July 24 Caro went from one heavy howitzer section to another directing fire. The howitzer platoon under his direction was attacked by enemy armor and infantry. Because of his skillful leadership, the platoon halted the enemy with accurate and heavy fire, inflicting heavy losses on the Reds. The platoon destroyed seven tanks.

WINS PRIZE—William Faulkner (above), Oxford, Miss., author, has been awarded the Nobel prize for literature for 1950. The prize was withheld last fall and was made this year at the same time Britisher Bertrand Russell was given the 1950 award. It was the first time two full prizes were awarded simultaneously. Recorder's Court Has Heavy Docket Tuesday

By CHESTER WALSH

In Pitt County Recorder's Court Tuesday, Judge Dink James found Walter Lee Dail, white farmer who lives on the Ram Horn Road, near Pactolus, guilty of resisting arrest and assault on two law enforcement officers and found Dail guilty of trespass on the premises of Johnnie Whitehurst and his wife and assaulting them with a deadly weapon. Sentences are to run concurrently. Judge James gave Dail six months for resisting arrest and assaulting two officers and 30 days for being drunk. He gave him 30 days in jail for assaulting with a deadly weapon Johnnie Whitehurst.

Deputy Loyd Manning testified in court that he and Deputy Sheriff Jasper L. Mills were called to Dail's neighborhood on a Sunday night to quell a disturbance. The officer said Dail was drunk; that he had six empty fruit jars, but disposed of them. Manning further testified that Dail said the officers could not arrest him and that he assaulted them with his fists.

Both officers quoted Dail as saying that if the officers would walk to the house with him, he would submit to arrest.

Manning said, "We are going to arrest you. While Dail was attacking the two officers near his home, Manning tripped him to the ground and then handcuffed the prisoner.

The officers quoted Dail as calling to his wife in the direction of his house to bring his gun. She did not respond, they testified. In the mix-up Dail struck Deputy Manning and choked him and gave Deputy Mills a black eye.

The officers said they put Dail in jail in Greenville. On the way in the prisoner continued a stream of vile profanity. Deputy Mills on an "old grudge," the officer stated.

The court found Johnnie Whitehurst and his wife, Mattie, not guilty of assault and damaging personal property. The court found Evelyn Williams guilty of trespass and assault. Johnnie and Mattie Whitehurst were witnesses against her.

Eddie Salebury, colored, was found guilty of trespass and being a "peeping Tom" on the premises of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Strickland at Bethel. He was given four months on the roads.

John Chapman and James Chapman, both colored, guilty of possession of non-tax paid whiskey. The court fined each $11.

Isalah Anderson, colored, driving drunk on a learner's permit without a driver being present, four months gued a committee report for the better part of two hours.

Marshburn stood up the members sat back. "Gentlemen I move we adjourn" he began, and sat down.

Motion passed.

Pactolus Ruritan Elects Officers

New officers for the coming year were elected Monday night at the monthly meeting of the Pactolus Ruritan club. The meeting was held in the community building and was presided over by President George Cherry.

Hubert Simmons was elected president of the Pactolus club for the coming year and will be installed along with the other new officers at the club meeting in December. Other officers elected for the coming year are: W. F. Little, vice president; Cecil Satterthwaite, secretary; Horace Morris, treasurer; R. D. Picklesimer, sergeant at arms; Jim Chauncey, chaplain; Walter Langley, song leader; and Noel Lee, Jr., reporter.

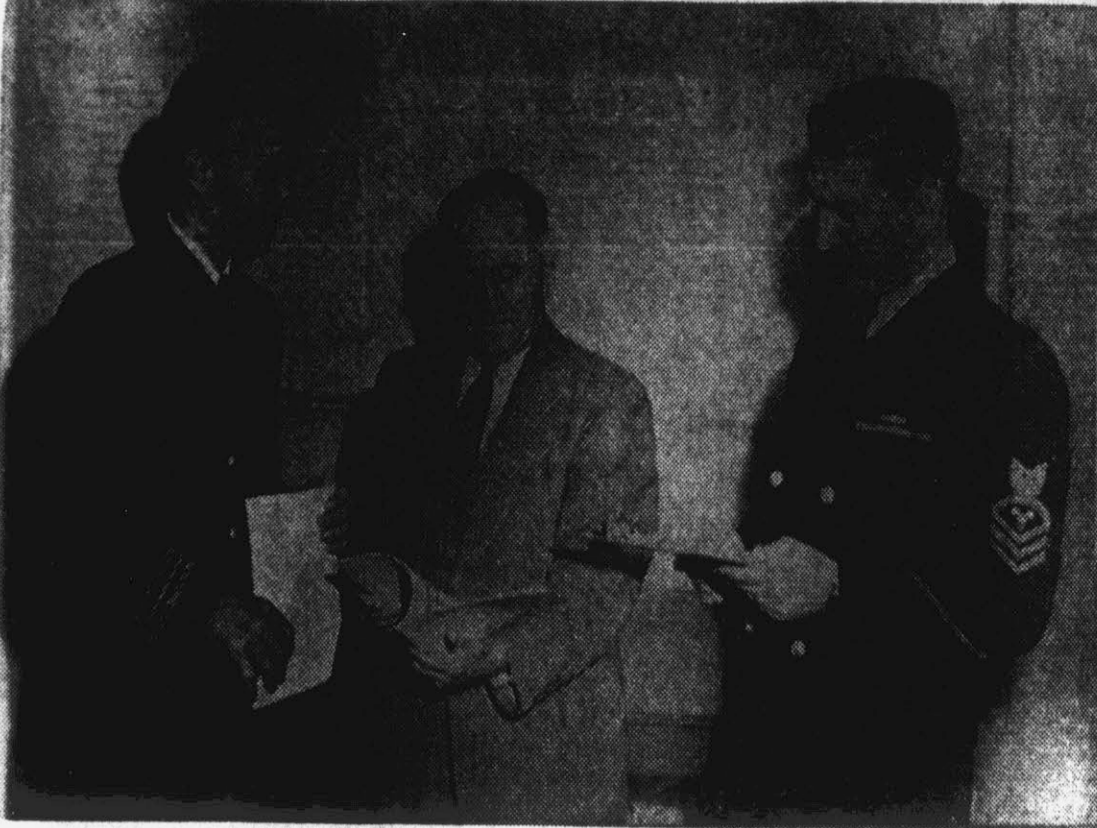

Five new members also were inducted into the club at the meeting Monday night. They were: R. D. Picklesimer, Horace Morris, Harold Chauncey, Jack Tripp and Lester Simmons.

During the business session of the meeting the safety committee reported steps have been taken to have the section of highway which passed through Pactolus established as a speed zone. The committee also said steps are being taken to have school zone signs put up on the highway near the school.

A. B. Ward and Jack Tripp were elected delegates from the Pactolus club to the national Ruritan convention which will be held in Roanoke, Va. on January 22 and 23.

It was announced that the district convention of the Ruritan clubs of the Greenville-Goldsboro district will be held in Greenville on December 5.

Speaker Says 'Fight To Finish' Under Way

Professor E. C. Hollar (center) of the East Carolina faculty last night told the local naval reserve unit the "chips are down" with communism and it must be a fight to the finish. Pictured with Hollar are Lt. Comdr. John O. Reynolds (left), commander of the local naval reserve unit, and Chief Petty Officer Paul E. Waldrop, Jr., of the unit. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Reservists Told 'Chips Are Down' In Global Game

Professor E. C. Hollar of the East Carolina faculty last night told the members of the Greenville naval reserve unit, "The chips are down. The fight is already on, perhaps only in the preliminary stage, but it is on and has been on in earnest for some time."

Professor Hollar made his statement while addressing the naval reserve unit on the relationship between the nations of the west and the communists of the east. "There is no peace or compromise short of complete surrender," the professor declared. "The only alternative is a fight to the end. The lines are clearly drawn and at every point the ideas and aims clash. The commitments are definite, there is no turning back without surrender. From this time on our armed might must match and reinforce our diplomacy. The end is not in sight."

Hollar pointed out the governments of the east hope to control the rural millions and the urban millions of their population as they have in the past. "The state proposes to control all production both urban and rural and to ration the ownership and consumption of all wealth; yet teaching the people from the cradle up to accept their rations and thank the state for imposing rationing. They have rationed their poverty."

The speaker traced the development of the communist movement and the rise of Russia to a world power. He asserted that Russia has attempted to stall and dominate the United Nations through the use of the veto. Hollar declared: "Russia has blotted out native governments in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary; has attempted to destroy the governments of Greece and domin-

"If a small country like Belgium or Holland were opposed to a power possessing atom bombs, its forces would be more useless and resistance more hopeless than was the case in 1940. If it came to a conflict it is likely that two or three atom bombs would suffice to decide the issue. But in the case of a vast country like Russia several hundred atom bombs might not be decisive—even if such a from the plant.

The report of the engineers suggested another 100 feet added to the height of the present smoke stack may help alleviate the situation in the immediate residential area.

Martin Swartz, superintendent of the utilities, told the delegation, "We are not sending large particles of ash up your way." He pointed out that the small particles which came from the plant smoke stack were about the size of a pin point.

Swartz pointed out that electric precipitators which could be installed in the plant would take out only 10 per cent more of the fly ash than is being removed from the smoke at present, and the new equipment would cost a considerable sum.

Negro PTA Meeting Eppes High School; Committees Named

At a recent meeting of C. M. Eppes Negro High School Parent-Teacher Association, at the school auditorium, on West Fifth street, Prof. W. H. Davenport, principal of the school, urged the Parent-Teacher Association to work with him in trying to keep the children in school and off the streets. He pointed out that this work would prove a valuable asset to the school and redound to the good welfare of the children. He stressed the need of more recreation facilities for the children.

The meeting was turned into a round table discussion of important

Book Week Program In Winterville School Is Off To Good Start

Children's Book Week got off to a good start at the Robinson Union School in Winterville, under the direction of Mrs. B. G. Maye, librarian with quizzes on books and book characters given to volunteer students by homeroom teachers Monday, November 13. Three quizzes were prepared: primary, grammar grade and high school in order to promote better reading habits and reading interests.

Three records on books: Frederick G. Melchior, "The Joys of Reading"; Munro Leaf, "Save Some Time for Books"; and Dorothy Canfield Fisher, "Books—A Family Adventure" will be heard throughout the school and the week climaxes Friday with Mr. M. Kennedy and the eighth grade presenting a playlet on Books at which time winners from the quizzes will be announced with awards presented.

Some new books on the shelves are: "Winning Basketball Plays," "Famous Girls Who Became Writers," "The Pussycat's Christmas," "The Smallest Boy in Class," "With A High Heart and "The Pop-Corn Lamb and the Peppermint Sticks."

Dr. Messick Is Guest Speaker At Meeting Of Tidewater Alumni

President John D. Messick of East Carolina Teachers College was guest speaker Tuesday evening, November 14, at a meeting of the Tidewater Area Chapter of the college alumni association. The meeting was held in Norfolk, Va., and was attended also by Mrs. Ruth Garner, alumni secretary at East Carolina.

President Messick, in his remarks to members of the chapter, gave a series of facts indicating recent progress made by the college and told of various innovations which have enabled the institution to increase its services to the public. The enrollment, he pointed out, passed this fall all previous records.

Scripture—Isaiah 1:11-17; Luke 4:16; John 4:19-26; Acts 2:37-47; I Corinthians 11:17-34; Colossians 3:16-17; Hebrews 10:23-25.

Jesus came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up, and, as His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day.

As Jesus talked to the Samaritan woman, she said she knew the Christ was coming. Jesus said to her, "I that speak unto thee am He."

All that believed were together, and had all things in common, sharing possessions, eating with gladness and singleness of heart and praising God.

Paul wrote the Colossians to teach one another in psalms and hymns, singing "with grace in your hearts, to the Lord." MEMORY VERSE—147:1.

GOD IS SPIRIT. TO BE EXALTED IN SPIRIT AND TRUTH

SCRIPTURE—Isaiah 1:11-17; Luke 4:16; John 4:19-26; Acts 2:37-47; I Corinthians 11:17-34; Colossians 3:16-17; Hebrews 10:23-25.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

MORE THAN two thousand years ago, approximately 740 B. C., a Jewish prophet named Isaiah told his people how to worship God. He was not one to gloss over their sins. Speaking as one sent of God, he told them their mode of living was wicked, and that their ways of worshipping Jehovah were hypocritical.

"To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the Lord: I am full of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of goats."

"Your new moons and your appointed feasts My soul hateth;... I am weary to bear them."

"And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide Mine eyes from you: yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood."

"Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings... Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, helpful to the children as she should.

This may not be altogether the fault of the preacher or teacher. They may not have the personalities to allow their true feelings to register. This writer remembers vividly one minister, however, to whom every word of Scripture; every phrase of prayer, every hymn (which he sung lustily) seemed to be filled with life and meaning.

Most Jews hated Samaritans and avoided their land when they could do so. Jesus, however, determined to pass through the country on His way to Galilee.

There He encountered a woman at the well from whom He asked a drink. She was far from being a moral person; many must have despised her, but the Lord talked with her, telling her that He knew all about her.

When she questioned Him about the place of worship, He said, "The hour cometh and now is, when the true worshiper shall worship the Father in spirit and judge the fatherless, plead for the widow."

Ill-treatment of the poor and helpless by the rich and powerful could not be atoned for by offering sacrifices to God and praying to Him. Such worship was worthless in the eyes of the Lord—more, He loathed such hypocrites.

Briefly we may mention the episode of Jesus visiting His native town of Nazareth, and on the sabbath entering the synagogue. In every city He visited He invariably went to the synagogue to worship. We have recently studied the episode of His reading during the service and preaching—to the amazement of those who had known Him from childhood.

When He read from the scripture, the lesson must have been wonderful indeed! Sometimes in our churchgoing we may encounter a pastor who reads the beautiful words from the Bible in a lifeless manner, as if they had no meaning for him.

Or a Sunday school teacher for whom the lesson seems to have no interest, and who cannot make it as intensely interesting and truth... God is a spirit; and they that worship Him must worship in spirit and in truth." He told her also that He was Christ.

We must pass briefly over the gatherings of the early Christians, describing how they pooled their possessions, giving each man what he needed. They ate at one another's homes with "gladness and singleness of heart, praising God, and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."

In his letter to the Corinthians Paul chides the church members for their dissensions, and also for their careless, selfish and insincere manner of partaking of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

In our brief space we cannot do better than to quote the words on worship of Paul's letter to the Colossians:

"Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord. And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by Him."

AP NEWSFEATURES

The homemade Christmas gift truly is more appreciated than the store bought kind. A pair of mittens or a scarf or a pair of socks knit by the giver goes a long way to prove friendship. Anyone can do his shopping via the telephone, mail order or even by breezing through a department store, but when you have the interest and patience to plan your Christmas gifts months in advance, you really give from the heart.

You can set up Santa's workshop in your home a few afternoons a week, and manage to give some truly luxurious gifts that are highly original and suitable for special recipients.

After-ski slippers (which also are fun to wear after skating or on cold winter nights) can be made in a jiffy on your sewing machine. Tops are lovely in jewel-tone velveteen or other novelty fabric. Use quilted fabric if you like. Join the tops to ready-made after-ski soles.

You can make the slipper top by bracing the pattern for the top section of the boot on brown wrapping paper. A wool sock dryer will serve as a good guide. Cut four top sections. Allow 1 inch all around for seams. If you wish to line the top section, cut lining fabric to this pattern.

Join top sections with front seam allowing for insertion of 7-inch zipper. Seam opening for the zipper should be approximately one inch longer than the fastener to allow for easing the fabric. Baste the zipper in place. Next stitch zipper into front seam, enlisting the help of the zipper foot attachment on your sewing machine that enables you to stitch close to the metal. Reinforce stitching at bottom of opening to avoid unnecessary strain. Zipper should be drawn closed at all times when stitching in order to keep both sides even. After zipper is inserted and stitched, join lining to fabric.

Complete joining of top sections with back seam. Turn under raw bottom edges and hand stitch top section to soles.

With the waistline the center of attention now, a waist-nipping velveteen cummerbund is fun and easy to make. Pleat the material horizontally and line it with buckram for stiffness. The cummerbund may be fastened by lacing through eyelets made with the buttonhole attachment of your sewing machine. Or use hooks and eyes for anchorage.

Ascots may be made from scraps of velveteen or silk. A lovely gift ensemble could consist of a red velvet ascot and after-ski boots. Cut the ascot with pointed ends and make a large bound buttonhole on one side of the scarf to draw the opposite end through for flair and fit.

If Mom can't advise you on use of the zipper foot attachment on your sewing machine, your local sewing center probably would be glad to give you a hand. One girl I know makes Christmas gifts out of practically nothing—old fabric scraps, beads, and wool she finds about the house. She takes old beads of pearls, shell, wood or simulated ivory and dresses them, re-strings them and boxes them attractively.

She dissolves a package of all purpose dye in a small pan of very hot water. Then she strains the dye solution through cheese cloth into the washbowl. Into this she adds more medium hot water from the tap. Pearls are put into the dye bath, lifted and turned with a fork or spoon for about 20 minutes until they begin to turn the color you wish. They should be rinsed thoroughly with cold water and patted dry with a towel.

Light, dark or in-between shades shades work equally well by this method and you can dye your beads any shade from pearl-gray to black.

If you go through Mom's bureau drawers, you'll find lots of old pearls and beads that have been there for years because they need restringing. She'll probably be glad to see you make good use of them.

State Fair Plan Gets 'Go-Ahead'

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 15—(AP) The National Production Authority has given its okay to $2,000,000 worth of construction at the N. C. state fair grounds.

The NPA recently banned construction for amusement and recreation purposes because of material shortage. However, the fair was classified as an agricultural and educational institution.

Assistant Budget director D. S. Coltrane announced the government Bureau's decision yesterday Coltrane had gone to Washington Monday to confer with NPA officials. Accompanying him were Frank Turner, Budget Bureau engineer, and Dr. J. S. Dorton, manager of the state fair.

The state officials submitted to the NPA a list of state projects costing $55,000,000.

Coltrane said he hoped a number of gymnasium projects at state institutions and an $800,000 student union project at N. C. State College could be built. These projects, however, will have to be submitted to the NPA for approval.

"I'm inclined to think that all of them will be approved," Coltrane declared.

Plumber Claims Conspiracy To Deny Him Work

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 14—(AP) A Canton, N. C., plumber says the Canton City Clerk, Canton Aldermen and State Board of Examiners of Plumbing and Heating Contractors have "conspired" to "drive him out of work."

The conspiracy, L. A. Muse charged in a suit filed in Buncombe superior court, is the result of the refusal of W. F. Morrison of Raleigh, and others, to grant him a plumbing license. Morrison was listed as executive secretary of the Plumbing and Heating Board.

He charged that persons who otherwise would have given him business did not give it to him because they were told by the defendant "they would be subject to delay and inconveniences by reason of being subject to being brought into court by subpoena to testify in frivolous, unfounded, unwarranted, and unlawful proceedings."

For Power with Economy...it's High Compression! FOR HIGH COMPRESSION... IT'S THE "ROCKET"!

Ever since Oldsmobile introduced the "Rocket" Engine two years ago, seems like everybody claims "high-compression"—but nobody explains it. The phrase simply means squeezing the gasoline into a smaller space before exploding it. This gets more power out of the same amount of fuel. But the engine must be designed for high-compression all the way through to assure smooth, quiet, gas-saving performance. The "Rocket" is 100% high-compression—from the crankshaft out. And the lowest-priced "Rocket" Engine car is Oldsmobile's "88." Makes good sense to try it soon—doesn't it?

UN Wounded In Korea Nursed By Swedish Red Cross Hospital

A Special U.N. Correspondent PUSAN, Korea—Nailed on a postop on the road from Pusan Taegu, just before leaving the city limits, there is a small wooden sign with the inscription "Swedish Hospital" written in plain red on an characters. Under the sign an arrow points the way through a winding dusty road to the location where 188 Red Cross men and women, volunteers from Sweden, are at work caring for wounded U.N. SOLDIERS. The hospital is Sweden's answer to the Security Council's request to Member States for aid in restoring peace in Korea. It is an inspiring contribution to the United Nations effort against aggression. On the afternoon of October 5th the U.N. flag was raised on the grounds of the Swedish Red Cross Hospital, to mark the official opening of its major surgery wards. Working under trying conditions, the hospital had nursed during the previous few weeks about two hundred wounded. Now it is ready to start operations on a full scale.

The hospital occupies the site of the former Pusan Commercial School, a large wooden and stucco building that, before the Swedish Red cross unit moved in, served as barracks for the ROK Army. The building has been completely renovated by U.S. Army engineers. It was painted inside in two colors, battleship grey and white. Special large cement and stone sinks had to be installed in the operating and sterilizing rooms. Electric light had to be supplied by large generators lent by the US Army and a complete drainage system built in order that the hospital could function in accordance with the demands of the laws of sanitation.

While boxes of surgical instruments arrived from Sweden, the United Command made available to the hospital all necessary equipment including x-ray machines and operating tables. The expenses will be borne entirely by the Government of Sweden. The Swedish Parliament authorized an initial appropriation of six million crowns (about $1,200,000) to cover the initial cost involved in moving the entire staff from Stockholm to Pusan and in getting the unit ready for operation. The Government of Sweden is prepared to make further appropriations of money to cover the entire cost of running the hospital for a period of six months. If at the expiration of that time there is any further need for the hospital to continue to function in support of the United Nations effort for peace in Korea, the staff may volunteer to prolong its term of service with further backing by the Home Government.

While work of renovation was in progress in the main school building, the hospital began to work early in September as a field unit in tent wards and improvised shelters. It functioned at first as an evacuation hospital for wounded soldiers of the UN forces in the Pusan perimeter. Its capacity was limited then to a maximum of about 40 patients. With the opening of the school building and the construction of additional wards on the grounds surrounding the building, the hospital expects

Meteorite Hunt In Arizona Said Futile; Blew Up

Winslow, Ariz.—(AP)—Search for the giant meteorite that fell in northern Arizona 20,000 to 50,000 years ago can be abandoned, Dr. H. H. Nininger, noted authority on meteorites, believes. The scientist, who owns the meteor crater museum near here, said no huge meteorite exists. He believes it exploded after striking the ground leaving no single mass of material.

For years scientists have been walking around, over and in the crater looking for the meteor, and, he said, all the while they were actually "walking on it" in the form of metallic dust scattered over the area. His finding is based on a study of the minute meteoric fragments found in and for 100 miles around the 4,150-foot crater.

"These little fragments, some of them only fine dust, are spherical," he said. "This indicates they condensed from vapor—which in turn would indicate the meteorite exploded, creating the crater."

Dr. Nininger said the mass that struck the earth undoubtedly weighed several thousand tons, but he discounted previous beliefs it may have been nearly a mile in diameter. His estimate is closer to 150 feet.

A recently translated paper on a meteor that fell in Siberia in 1947 indicates the same thing happened there, Dr. Nininger said, and added any meteorite more than 10 feet in diameter would probably explode upon striking the earth.

Meteor crater is a major tourist attraction in northern Arizona.

Self Styled Judges Now Awaiting Trial

The self-appointed judges are now in jail, waiting for justice to take its course.

to reach before long a capacity of 600 beds. The Swedish Red Cross Hospital in Pusan is under the direction of Dr. Carl W. Groth, one of Sweden's leading surgeons. This being a military hospital, Dr. Groth has the rank of full colonel. His aims are to make the hospital available to all sick and ailing in the area. He believes there is a great deal of medical work to be done in Korea and plans to assist in inoculation campaigns for prevention of diseases. The hospital will be ready, he says, to answer any emergency call from the civil population.

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laursen

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 22
"Slowly hanging up the receiver, Marc stared wonderingly at the transmitter. Then, dropping another coin, he dialed again."
"Hello, Jerry. Jordan speaking. I've changed my mind, Jerry. I think it'd be a good idea to put a tail on Miller."
"Why, you darn fool! Do you think I was weaned yesterday? I've got a tail on him right now."
"Hm. Yes of course. I just wanted to make sure. Don't lose him, will you?"
"You bet I won't lose him."
"O. K., Jerry. I'll see you later."
Marc headed briskly up Main Street to North and turned left. He examined the street and buildings carefully. Those buildings facing on Main Street showed, largely blank brick walls to the side street. Walking the length of the block, he came to a large automobile accessory store on the corner. Across the street on each corner was a garage. Entering the gaping door of one of them, he approached an attendant greasing a car.
"Howdy, mister. What's on your mind?"
Marc thumbed through his notebook. "I'm trying to trace a car. Did you ever have that number in here?" He held the book so that the man could see the number.
"Don't remember it. What kind of a car?"
"A big black Buick sedan," replied Marc.
"Nope," said the man. "Ain't had a big Buick in here for a good while."
Going across the street to the next garage, Marc repeated the questioning with the same result. One by one he worked through all the garages in the neighborhood without success. Several blocks down the street he came to "Mac's Garage—Storage and Service." Mac was busy in a little cubicle of an office, laboriously writing in a ledger with a stump of a pencil. Marc showed him the number in his book.
"Yeah, seems like I remember that one. Let's see—it oughta be in here." He thumbed through a group-by file and pulled out a card. He compared the number with the one in Marc's book.
"That's it—Buick sedan. Belongs to Mr. Johnson, president of the bank. We do all his work and store the car sometimes. What about it?"
Marc closed his book and returned it to his pocket. "Oh, I'm curious about the car. Is it here now?"
"Nope, Mrs. Johnson come and got it night before last."
"She did. Well, well. Do you remember what time she got it?"
"Around midnight. I was all set to close up when she comes in and says she needs the car."
"Are you sure it was Mrs. Johnson?"
"Oh, it was her all right."
"I wonder," Marc continued, leaning on the corner of the desk, "was that a usual thing? Did she use the car much?"

Marc shook his head. "Can't say it was. She has her own car—a sporty red job."
"I see. Well, thanks, Mac."
Marc hurried from the garage and hailed a passing cab. Giving the driver Miller's address, he leaned back and lit a cigarette.
The driver pulled up before a house that had once been painted brown. A paper sign pinned to a grimy curtain advertised to a waiting world that the establishment was prepared to furnish room and board by the day, week or month.
After a short wait, the door was opened a crack by a slatternly, stringy-haired woman.
"Good morning, ma'am," said Marc, tipping his hat politely. "I'm looking for a Mr. George Miller. Is this his address?"
"Well, he ain't here now."
"Has he been in recently?"
"He was here last night, and night before."
"Is Mr. Miller here much of the time?"
"What business is it o'yours?" she snapped.
Marc slipped his hand into his pocket and glanced at the bright object in his palm. Mrs. Flaherty stiffened.
"Cop!" she gasped. "Now listen, mister. I run a respectable place. I ain't had no trouble, and I don't want none now."
"No trouble, Mrs. Flaherty," said Marc, smiling at her. "I only want a little information about Mr. Miller. Now then, is he here much?"
"He stops in fer a night every two-three weeks."
"Does he have any company? Any guests or callers?"
"Nope, never brings nobody in. I won't stand for no monkey business."
"No one comes to see him?"
"Nope. Only time I ever seen him with someone is when some dame picks him up in a big red car."
"Could you describe the lady?"
"Never seen her very good. She always wears a veil. That's some car she drives, though."
"Does he reserve the room in advance?"
"He rents by the month. He ain't here so much, so I gives him a good rate. He just drops in."
"Thank you, Mrs. Flaherty. I think that gives me the information I want. It'd be wise for us to keep our conversation to ourselves for now. Do you agree?"
"I'll keep my trap shut, if you say so," she muttered unconvincingly. "I don't want no trouble. What's Miller up to that you checkin' on him?"
"I don't know that he's been up to anything," replied Marc. "We have to check a few things once in a while. Good day, Mrs. Flaherty."

Nash Select USED CARS

For Lasting Beauty... Dependable Performance... Extra Long Life

Don't gamble on a used car. Before you buy, ask yourself some very pertinent questions. We think you'll agree that the answers prove that the best buy is Nash—the used car most like new cars.

How About Economy?
Nash has long been known as the most economical of all full-size cars. You continue to get this same kind of thrifty performance from the used Nash you buy.

How About Safety?
Airlyte Construction (unitized) is the strongest, safest type of construction known. Body and frame are one integral unit giving greater protection and rigidity. Your Nash used car is a safer car!

How About Appearance?
Compare Nash with other used cars and see the difference! A used Nash looks new years longer, because body and fenders are fully Bonderized under brilliant, lasting Permalux enamel finish.

How About The Ride?
Most Nash used cars have individual coil springs on all four wheels for the smoothest ride you ever experienced. And all have more room for long-legged passengers and all their luggage.

How About Year-Round Comfort?
Only Nash has the famous Weather Eye Conditioned Air System—the greatest contribution to automotive heating and ventilating in the history of the industry. With the Nash Weather Eye, you can ride in shirt-sleeved comfort on the coldest day.

How About Quiet?
If you hate squeaks and rattles, choose a used Nash. It's lastingly quiet because it's built with Unitized, all-welded Airlyte Construction eliminating more than 8,000 noise-making joints.

How About Value?
A used Nash gives you more for your money on every count by which you judge an automobile. Compare and see for yourself. We have a used Nash you'll be proud to own, at a price that makes mighty good sense. See us today.

Our Nash used cars which carry the Select Used Car label have had as many as 21 rigid inspections, adjustments or replacements and are thoroughly recommended to bring the buyer better performance, appearance and dependability.

ASK FRANCIS BURKE OF LOWVILLE, N. Y.
SAYS MR. BURKE: "I have a 1947 Nash Ambassador that I use as a taxi. I bought the car used. At the time I bought it, it had 20,000 miles on it. I now have 92,000 miles on it... still get 20 miles to the gallon. It looks as good today as it did when I bought it and has never quit the road."

Tropical Indochina Rich In Great Agricultural Output

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Before the fall of France in 1940, tropical and fertile Indochina was one of the world's garden spots. From the northern highlands of Tonkin, home of the silk worm, to the rice-rich lowlands of southern Cochinchina, the soil produced rich crops. Wealth streamed into the coffers of France. Civil conflict and the struggle for independence has changed all that.

French Indochina is a land of mountains, plateaus and lowlands, drained by muddy rivers which for centuries have deposited fertile silt along their edges. These are the great rice lands. Mountains range from a natural boundary against the north and northwestern neighbors, Burma and China. Then the mountains swing into a razor back down Annam inland from the vulnerable, long coast.

Country of Contrasts
Except for the dense jungles and mountain areas, French Indochina is an agricultural area. In the back country of Laos is Asia's wild west, rugged country inhabited by elephant, tiger, rhinoceros and other jungle beasts. Mountain barriers and lack of many east-west roads leading to the sea coast have prevented much exploitation of Laos' mineral wealth—tin, gold, lead and precious stones.

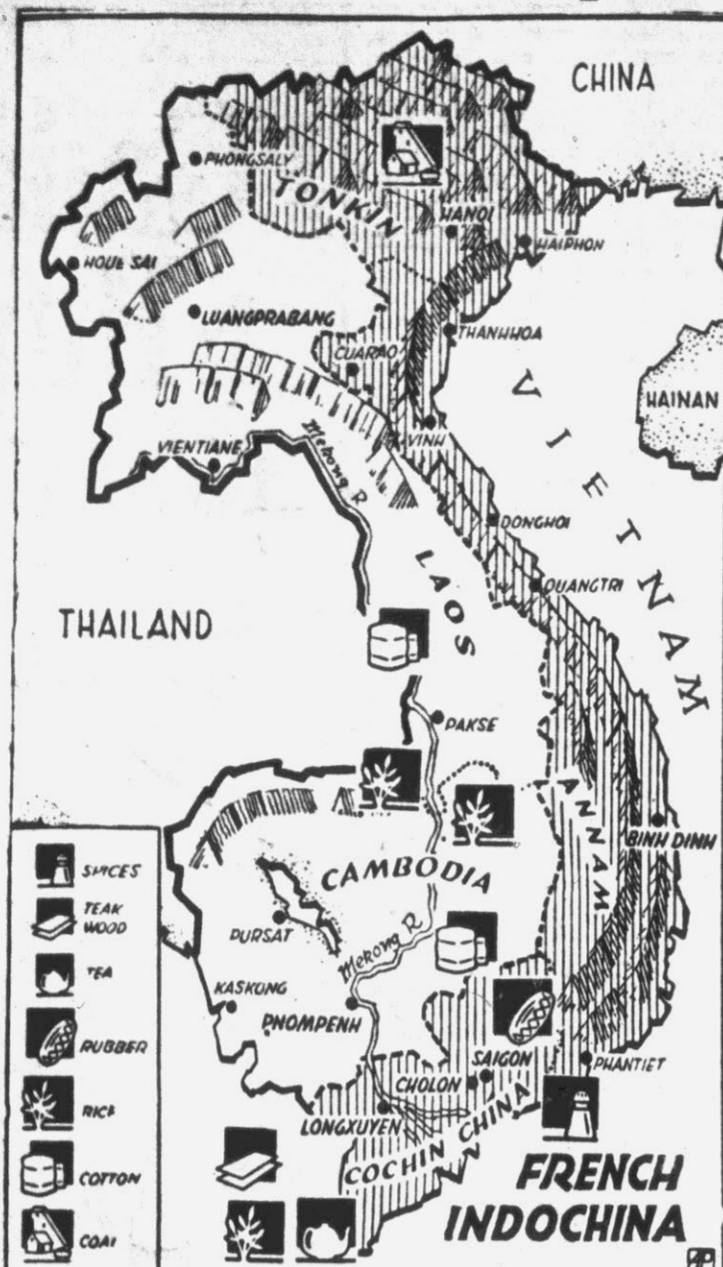

Farther south, the mighty and muddy Mekong river constantly feeds and replenishes the carefully cultivated fields on which Indochina's most important crop—rice—is raised. Before the war the lowlands produced eight per cent of the world's supply, 600-million tons a year.

Half the exported rice went to nearby China. Postwar production has been much lower.

In the steamy tropic areas of the country men have fought constantly to keep the jungle from creeping back over cleared plantation areas. Here Indochina produced five per cent of the world's supply of rubber. Deliberate sabotage during World War II and later guerrilla warfare has resulted in abandonment of smaller plantations to the jungle. Today its rubber export is negligible: 3,000 tons in 1948 compared with the pre-war figure of 60,000.

Delta lands, from the industrial and agricultural standpoint are the most important in its economy. The lowlands in northwest Tonkin near the capital Hanoi between the Red and Black rivers are among the most densely populated in the world. Hanoi, Vietnam capital and rail center, and the important southern port city Saigon, are smaller replicas of Paris with, of course, strong overtones of the east. Anthracite deposits were discovered in the Hanoi area before the war and mining flourished importantly.

Cotton—once grown successfully only in Cambodia and Laos—is an important crop. Coffee is raised in some areas and in the northern highland of Cochinchina teak hatched huts and even headware. Tea, cocoa and spices are other important export items.

The climate of Indochina is tropical and much of the time unpleasant. There is a wet and a dry season, governed by the monsoons. Most of the land drips constantly in temperatures above 90 although in some of the high parts of the country it drops into the mid-forties.

Compared With Texas
The whole area of French Indochina is about the size of Texas. Laos to the northwest, twice the size of Pennsylvania, is thinly populated by some million persons, mostly Thais who show their racial kinship with natives of neighboring Thailand.

To the south Cochinchina, the size of West Virginia, has a population of 4,500,000, who fish and tend the terraced rice fields. The capital, Saigon, is a city of 100,000.

When the republic of Vietnam was compounded of Tonkin, Annam and Cochinchina, 22,000,000 of the country's 27,000,000 were included—and so were the most productive and rich parts of the country including the rail centers, important roads, arable lands and major cities.

Indochina's strategic importance has long been recognized by neighboring powers and by the

Reports Ex-Nazi Leader In Chile

Santiago, Chile—(AP)—Martin Bormann, former Nazi leader, was in Chile two years ago, says Pablo Hesselein, former Deputy at the Reichstag, Hesselein, who is living in Chile, said:

"I saw Bormann many times when he appeared at the Reichstag in 1930. In February of 1948 on a road that leads to the Argentine border I encountered three riders. I immediately recognized Bormann among them. He himself addressed one of his companions, saying: 'Das war doch Hesselein (that is Hesselein), and turned his horse to the Argentine border at full gallop. Later I knew from a German citizen whose name I am not permitted to reveal that Bormann lived around there under the name of Juan Gomez and had made many trips to Chilean territory. He also told me that Bormann would leave soon for Europe to collaborate with the organization of the Nazi underground movement."

Hesselein said that Bormann came to South America aboard a German submarine just after Germany's collapse in the last war.

Czechs Clamor To Enter Fight

Canberra—(AP)—Hundreds of Czech immigrants, who fought Hitler in the last war, are clamoring to enlist in the Australian military forces.

The Deputy Director of Recruiting, C. F. Lewis, has ordered all recruiting officers to take the names of these new Australians. Pending a change in government policy, they cannot be accepted.

Employees Oust Union In Voting

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 15—(AP)—Employees of the Biltmore Manufacturing Company have voted to oust the Textile Workers Union of America (AFL) as their bargaining agent.

Of 130 votes cast, 68 were for ousting the Union and 62 for retaining it. The election was conducted by the National Labor Relations board.

TWU-AFL had represented the workers since February, 1949. The results were announced yesterday.

U.S. Health Outlook 'Better Than Ever'

New York, N.Y.—Health conditions in the United States for 1950 promise to be better than ever before in the country's history, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company report.

This is based upon the mortality experience for the first nine months of the year among the company's millions of industrial policyholders. For the January-September period the death rate among these policyholders was 6.4 per 1,000, as compared with the previous low record of 6.5 per 1,000 for the same period last year.

"The favorable record for the year reflects the absence of any serious epidemics as well as the effectiveness of present methods of controlling the infectious diseases," the statisticians comment. The improvement is concentrated among the females with the rate for males continuing at last year's figure.

The four principal communicable diseases of childhood have been virtually eliminated as causes of death so far this year, according to the statisticians, and new low death rates have been established for pneumonia and influenza, tuberculosis, syphilis, appendicitis, gastritis, and the complications of pregnancy and childbirth. The mortality from acute poliomyelitis, although not a new low, was only one half of last year's, and the number of reported cases was about one third less.

Mortality from the principal degenerative diseases has continued at about the same level as last census was taken. The 1950 census shows a total civilian population of 37,254, an increase of 6,440 over the 1939 count. The returns indicate a marked trend toward population increases in outlying parishes and a decrease of 60 or 70 feet a year in the city of Hamilton. This is suit of continuous winds.

John Hyman Woolard Farm
In Greenville Township, Pitt County, On

Friday, November 17, 1950
At 12:00 o'clock Noon
In front of the Courthouse door in the Town of Greenville, N.C.

This land is a part of the Fleming lands and is located about 4 miles north of Greenville, about 1 mile west of Highway 11 on the road to Gum Swamp Church, lying across the road from Harvey Briley's farm. Farm contains 88 acres of land, 41.4 acres of which is cleared, with 8.2 acres of tobacco allotment, 5 acres peanut allotment, and 5 acres cotton allotment.

There are on said farm three tobacco barns, pack house and excellent dwelling house and building. This is an excellent farm in an excellent neighborhood, and is being sold for division among the heirs at law of J. H. Woolard.

Elbert S. Peel
COMMISSIONER

Clarence L. McKinsey, 727 South Ludlow Street, Dayton, Ohio, who is night supervisor of hospital attendants at the Ohio State Hospital in Dayton, says a man has trouble getting used to working nights and sleeping days. And if a man isn't getting the proper rest it not only makes him groggy on the job, but also makes him feel poorly the rest of the time. This will never happen to him again, says Mr. McKinsey—now that he is taking HADACOL. His system lacked those necessary Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin, which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mr. McKinsey's own statement:

"Before I started taking HADACOL I had a great deal of trouble with a nervous stomach. I had an awful hard time sleeping—I would just roll and toss all night. It affected me during my working hours, too—I was restless and nervous all the time. My nerves were so jumpy that the least little thing would put me on edge. I was just beside myself in knowing what to do. Then I heard how other folks that were nervous and rundown were being helped by HADACOL. I decided to try HADACOL. Now, after 10 bottles of HADACOL, I feel fine. In fact, I think so much of HADACOL I would walk 5 miles for a bottle of HADACOL—I'm not exaggerating. Why, the way I sleep and the appetite I have are marvelous. The best thing is that my nerves are calm as they can be. I just can't praise HADACOL enough."

Thousands Have Been Helped by HADACOL whose systems lacked Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin. The HADACOL formula is so effective for stomach distress, certain nervous disorders, insomnia due to upset stomach, nagging aches and pains, and a general run-down condition when these troubles are caused by such deficiencies.

Give HADACOL A Chance
... to help you, as it has helped thousands of others if you suffer such deficiencies. Remember, there are no substitutes for HADACOL. Always insist on the genuine HADACOL. No risk involved. Buy a bottle of HADACOL, either the trial size, $1.25, or the large family or hospital size, $3.50, and if HADACOL doesn't help you, you get your money back. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order it direct from the LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

(C) 1950, The LeBlanc Corporation.

200,000 freshmen can't be wrong!

We believe that something has happened in 1950 that you should take to heart.

Ever since this year's Buicks were introduced, their big bulge in sales has come from people who traded other makes of cars for this bounteous beauty.

The total is more than 200,000. That's 200,000 "freshmen" added to the roll call of Buick owners—200,000 people who must have sized up the current version of the cars they owned, and decided that Buick offered more thrill, more comfort, more satisfaction for the money. Beyond that, of course, there were other hundreds of thousands who already owned a Buick and bought a new one this year. But we're speaking here of new owners only.

We can name many reasons for this landslide—including Fireball power—an incomparable ride—and Dynaflow Drive.*

We can remind you that the Buick SPECIAL, SUPER and ROADMASTER just about blanket the range of a car-owner's aspirations—matching prices with many sixes in the lower brackets—matching distinction with the finest in the fine-car field.

We might add that Buick prices are doubly attractive—since their list prices include many features customarily on the "extra" list.

But why try to spell out all the reasons Buick wins in a showdown comparison? The proof of the pudding is in this great car itself. Better come in—look it over—and find out what an unbeatable buy it is.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.
