All that remains of the three-room house in which an Ayden Negro man died Saturday is the burnt ruins shown above. The body of Reuben Carman, age 30, was found across a coal stove after flames had completely destroyed the building and heavily damaged a nearby house. Investigation of the death is still being conducted by Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

German Socialists Win Election Test

Opponents To Creating Army To Bolster Western Defenses Win Thumping Victory; Communists Take Drubbing

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 20—(AP)—West German Socialists—fierce opponents of the creation of a new German army to bolster Western defense—won a thumping weekend election victory in the American Occupation Zone.

Voters in two states snubbed the powerful Christian Democrats, who dominate the Federal West German government and have urged German rearmament.

The states of Hesse and Wurttemberg-Baden, which voted yesterday for new state parliaments, also decisively rejected Moscow's policies in Germany. With not a single communist elected, the Reds suffered their worst drubbing since the war.

Socialist leaders immediately hailed the results as a victory for their stand against West German rearmament.

"The outcome represents a clear protest against the policies of Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, especially on the question of remilitarization," said socialist chairman Willy Knoke of Hesse. Fritz Heine, general secretary of the Socialist Party, claimed the elections show the German public has lost confidence in the Federal Government, especially because of its attitude on rearmament.

Heine said the socialist victory "underscores our demand for new elections for the West German Parliament." The Socialists demanded the new ballot to give the people a chance to vote yes or no

The Balance Of Power

Analyst Believes War With Russia Has Been Thus Far Staved Off Because Western Allies Still Hold Edge In Strength; China's Role Is To Cut It Down

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Red China's reaction to Washington's earnest assurances that the United States has no designs on Manchuria probably stems more from Moscow than Peking.

All evidence indicates that the Chinese communist chief, General Mao Tse-tung, has entered into an alliance with the Russians to keep America indefinitely engaged in the Korean War. That being so, he no longer is a free agent; the Soviet Union speaks for him. This scheme of course is aimed at bleeding the United States both militarily and economically, thereby weakening her defense against the communist world revolution. If the plot should be successful it ultimately would give Mao a dominant position in Asia though naturally under suzerainty of the Muscovites. He must accept dictation from Moscow, which is the fountain-head of world communism.

There is small possibility of either Moscow or Peking laboring under a misapprehension that America really is aiming at Manchuria. Even a boy playing soldier with a wooden gun would realize Uncle Sam can't afford to get entangled in a major Asiatic war at this critical juncture, with Russia sitting on the sidelines and fostering her strength.

Without detracting from the importance of the Asiatic zone, Western Europe must remain the vital theatre for allied preparedness so long as Russia remains aloof, building up her already great power. The weakening of allied strength in Western Europe by heavy commitments in the Far East would be inviting disaster.

To my mind, the reason we are not in another world war this moment is because the western allies hold the balance of power—both military and economic—over the Soviet bloc.

The maintenance of peace depends on the maintenance of the balance of power the way it is. Another global upheaval isn't inevitable so long as this balance continues.

Only 4 Highway Mishaps In Pitt During Weekend

Usual Heavy Toll Is Lightened; One Person Required Hospital Attention

Pitt County patrolmen reported only four highway accidents over the weekend which covered the period from Friday afternoon to Monday morning. For the past several weeks, wrecks have totaled as high as 12 for one weekend, with the past week one of the lightest in months.

One person was taken to Pitt General Hospital for treatment of injuries yesterday afternoon when a truck turned over near Bell Arthur.

Patrolman Paul C. Whitley listed Henry Strickland, of Route 1, Greenville as the injured person. Strickland suffered an injured hip and was reported to be the driver of the one and one-half ton truck which turned over on a curve near the Bell Arthur school.

Whitley stated the truck traveled a considerable distance down a ditch before coming to rest at a ditch pole. The entire top of the truck was demolished. The accident occurred around 4:15. Whitley stated that investigation of the accident is not complete.

Two cars were in collision near Wallace's Store on the Stokes highway early Friday afternoon. Patrolman B. W. Parker of Robersonville reported this morning. A car operated by Jim Scott pulled out from Wallace's Store into the path of a car driven by George Ross of Robersonville.

Scott was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Minor damage was reported to the two vehicles. Stray mules came into the lime-light again over the weekend as a car driven by Robert A. Fountain, 18, of Fountain, was wrecked when three mules came onto the highway into the path of his car.

The accident occurred about one-half mile from Falkland Saturday night. Fountain told Patrolman Paul Whitley that he was meeting another car, and the lights from the car blinded him so that he could not see the mules on the highway until after he had passed the car.

The car, which was slightly damaged, struck one of the mules. The driver was not injured.

Charges of passing at an intersection were filed against a Bethel man Saturday night as the result of a highway accident which occurred at the intersection of the Bethel highway and the prison camp road.

Patrolman Delton E. Perry gave this account of the accident. A truck being operated by Edward S. Whitney, Negro, was attempting to make a left hand turn at the same time a car driven by Rufus R. Davent, of Bethel, started to pass. The truck struck the right side of the car causing moderate damage. The truck was not damaged.

Thieves Entered Store In Chicod

Thieves entered Gardner and Brunson's store in the Chicod community last night or early this morning and walked off with several shotguns, rifles, ammunition and a small amount of money.

The thieves entered and left through a side door which they jimmied open.

The store is owned by Alton Gardner and Keith Brunson and is located on highway 43 just across from Chicod school.

The investigation is being carried out by the sheriff's department S. B. Dorsey, city-county fingerprint expert.

Telephone Strike Ends As Negotiators Solve Issues

New York, Nov. 20—(AP)—More than 33,000 telephone employees return to work across the country today under compromise settlements that ended their 11-day strike against units of the huge Bell Telephone System.

The agreements were reached yesterday in New York and Detroit, where federal mediators had been seeking peace in the pay and contract dispute.

The big break came here at the end of a 25-hour marathon bargaining session between Bell's Western Electric Co. and Division 6 of the CIO Communications Workers of America (CWA), representing 11,000 equipment installers.

Within a few hours, parallel settlements were announced here between Western Electric and 5,000 maintenance and warehousemen in Division 18; in Detroit between the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and 17,000 members of CWA Division 15; and in Haverhill, Mass., between Western Electric and 700 Division 68 plant workers.

The companies both are subsidiaries of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the parent Bell corporation.

A. T. & T. said that aside from some local interruptions, it maintained nearly normal service throughout the strike.

The union claimed a strike victory. The companies called the settlements "fair"—although "costly" in the Michigan dispute. In the compromise, both sides actually receded from their hard-and-fast strike positions.

Plenty Of Christmas Seals For The Mayor

Mayor W. S. Stafford will have plenty of TB Christmas seals for his Christmas letters and packages if he runs into many more salesmen like the three young ladies who dropped by his office Saturday morning. The three young ladies shown with the mayor are (left to right) Betsy Whedbee, Stuart Bost and Anne Evans who decided they would get the Pitt county Christmas Seal sales started a couple of days early by having Mayor Stafford purchase some seals Saturday. Thousands of T. B. Christmas seals were mailed to people all over Pitt county today by the Service League of Greenville. (Reflector Photo).

Pitt Tobacco Farmers To Discuss 1951 Plans

Farm Bureau Calls Open Meeting Friday To Formulate Recommendations Affecting Next Year's Tobacco Program

A county-wide open meeting of farmers has been called by the Pitt County Farm Bureau for Friday night to discuss the overall tobacco program for next year with particular reference to over-planting.

The meeting has been hastily called to get the farmers together so recommendations can be made to the Secretary of Agriculture, through spokesmen of the national Farm Bureau, before the planting begins in January.

Spokesmen of the county Bureau today stated they expect upwards of 1,000 farmers to attend the open meeting. It will be held in East Carolina's Austin Auditorium at seven p. m.

The meeting will climax recent appeals from members and non-members of the Bureau to hold an open forum on the subject of the tobacco program. There will be no scheduled speeches, just an open meeting whereby the present program can be discussed with reference to its continuation and the benefits received by the farmers.

Four persons connected either with the Farm Bureau and other branches of the Department of Agriculture will be present to state the case. Alonza Edwards, president of the State Bureau, will be present as will Carl Hicks, president of the Tobacco Stabilization Program. Others on the program will be R. Fluke Shaw, executive vice president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, and G. T. Scott, chairman of the State Committee of the Tobacco and Marketing Administration.

In addition to overplanting by farmers, which will be discussed, the penalties for overplanting will be one of the topics for consideration as will the possibility of increasing the acreage for the 1951 crop.

It was stated today by Arch J. Flanagan, Farmville, chairman of the Farm Bureau membership drive, that any recommendations made by farmers at the Friday meeting will be in order to pass along to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Anything recommended at the meeting will be considered for advising Secretary Brannan concerning an increase or decrease of allotment next year, he said.

Flanagan stated, "The tobacco program has worked out better for the farmers' benefit than any other government control program. It has been set up as a model which other agriculture programs can follow. What we're interested in through this meeting is getting the advice and thinking of both the big and little tobacco farmer."

"The program has to work for both of them if it is to work successfully," he said.

Winterville, Nov. 20—The town of Winterville completed negotiations Friday for the purchase of the first fire truck in the history of this Pitt county town.

The American-Marsh company's low bid of $5,723 was accepted for equipping the chassis already purchased by the town board for a fire truck. The new fire truck, when it is delivered in Winterville early in April of next year, will cost the town approximately $7,350.

Until the action of the board of aldermen of the town at a meeting Friday night, Winterville's only fire fighting equipment consisted of a hand reel with about five lengths of hose. The town, however, has been able to call on the fire departments of Ayden and Greenville in the past when fire threatened its buildings.

The new truck will have a 500 gallon water tank with a booster pump, 300 feet of booster hose and approximately 1,000 feet of two and one-half inch fire hose.

Winterville already has large fire mains in the business sections of the town and two-inch mains to the fire hydrants in the residential sections of the town.

It was about two months ago that Mayor Burney Tucker and Aldermen W. A. Weathering, Walter A. Dail and Graham Olive began negotiations with truck dealers and

Stafford Urges Aid In Seal Sale

Cites Local Effort Against Tuberculosis In His Plea

Stressing that "no home is safe while there is a single case of tuberculosis in the community," Mayor Stafford today issued a formal proclamation urging active support of the Greenville Tuberculosis Association from November 20 to December 25.

"Tuberculosis is a communicable disease and therefore a public health problem which should be the concern of every community resident, as well as Greenville officials," the Mayor said in issuing his proclamation. "The work of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association towards preventing and controlling tuberculosis in this area has helped city officials to improve the health standards of the community."

"The Pitt County Tuberculosis Association works tirelessly the year round to free this community from tuberculosis. Yet it makes but one appeal a year for funds to finance its twelve-month program, aimed at the protection of all of us against this dread disease. I urge every Pitt County resident to buy and use as many Christmas Seals as he can and thereby make an investment of health for the coming year."

Following is the text of Mayor Stafford's proclamation:

WHEREAS, tuberculosis kills more young adults between 15 and 35 than any other disease and, WHEREAS, no home in this community is safe while a single case of tuberculosis exists in Greenville and, Pitt County.

WHEREAS, the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association is waging a year-round battle against tuberculosis to bring it under complete control in Greenville and Pitt County.

WHEREAS, the sale of Christmas Seals constitutes the sole support of the association and all its projects.

THEREFORE, I, W. S. Stafford, Mayor of Greenville, do strongly

The Inflation Fight

Gov't Asks Public For 'Voluntary Cooperation'; What They Want Buyers To Consider In Purchasing; Question And Answer Session With An Official

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—The government is asking you for "voluntary cooperation" in fighting inflation.

What sort of cooperation? What do they mean? They attribute inflation to the existence of too much purchasing power in relation to the amount of goods. Are they suggesting you shouldn't buy that refrigerator, television set, or pair of shoes you've been wanting?

Alan Valentine, the Economic Stabilization Administrator, made a speech the other night. Again and again he asked for the "voluntary cooperation" of industry, labor, and the public. He urged "restraint" and "self-control" and "personal sacrifice."

Valentine asked businessmen and labor to exercise restraint on prices and wage demands. But concerning the cooperation of the public—individual who has no direct power to determine the size of prices or wage demands—Valentine wasn't quite so clear.

He only asked: "Should not American women,

Battle For Kapsan Turns Into Red Rout When Trap Disclosed And GI's Beat North Koreans To Punch; Chinese Are Shocked By Fire Power Of U.N. Forces

Seoul, Nov. 20—(AP)—American infantry paced by tanks surged down a snow-covered North Korean valley late today within two miles of the Manchurian border.

A 10th Corps spokesman said leading units of the U. S. Seventh Division were only two miles from their goal, the border town of Hyesanjin, at 4 P. M. (2 A. M., E.S.T.)

He said the troops probably would wait until Tuesday before pressing into the town.

Red resistance, sporadic to light earlier, dwindled to "practically none" by late afternoon, the officer said.

Advances also were reported in three other sectors:

U. S. Marines moved two miles up the east shore of the great Changjin Reservoir of central Korea, South Korea. South Koreans fought up the northeast coast under cover of American naval guns. And the ROK (Republic of Korea) Second Corps advanced up to three miles unopposed on the right flank of the northwest front, where Reds fought stiffly Sunday.

The rapid sweep toward the border carried the Seventh Division's 17th Regimental Combat Team through a winter wonderland. Tanks clanked between hills covered with glistening snow. Fluffy white clouds sailed overhead in a bright blue sky.

The expected battle of Kapsan turned into a Red rout Sunday morning. A sharp fight on the outside of Kapsan, which left scores of North Koreans dead, was followed by the tanks of tanks on the hillside where they had planned to ambush the American column.

But the trap was disclosed by two Reds. Terrified by the approaching tank column, they jumped from their foxholes and ran.

The American tanks opened up on the hillside where the Reds were dug in. As U. S. infantrymen closed in, the tanks lumbered across a stream, up the hillside and over the Reds' rock barricades.

Associated Press correspondent Tom Stone, only newsman with the 17th during the battle, said it lasted only 30 minutes. Sixty five Reds surrendered when their trap collapsed. Others fled.

"They figured they could ambush the hell out of us," said Col. Herbert B. Powell, commander of the column. "But they didn't. We beat them to the punch. We caught them by surprise."

MacArthur's headquarters indicated the Chinese communists were looking forward without relish to the forthcoming clash with the strong U. N. forces.

The attitude of Chinese troops was learned from prisoners. An intelligence officer said the Chinese were shocked and demoralized when U. N. forces smashed into them Nov. 5. They never had met such strong fire power, nor had been strafed from as low as 50 feet. Before that ordeal, their morale had been high.

The prisoners, from the Chinese Red 38th Army, were surprised when asked if they had volunteered, as the Red radio has insisted. They said they knew of no Chinese who had volunteered to fight in Korea.

They said they were warned to fight to the death, not to surrender, and that U. N. troops would kill them if they tried to give up.

House-Williams Vows Spoken In Private Ceremony Wednesday

In an impressive candlelight ceremony on November 18 at four o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stokes, Mrs. Lodie Williams and Lester House of Robersonville were united in marriage. The bride, W. E. Grimes, pastor of Flat Swamp Church, officiated.

The vows were spoken before an improvised altar of seven branch candelabra, white snapdragons and plumosa fern.

The wedding music was furnished by Mrs. W. C. Stokes, niece of the bride. The couple entered together and spoke the vows unattended.

For the ceremony the bride chose a teal blue crepe dress using grey accessories and wore an orchid corsage.

W. C. Stokes and Linwood Thomas served as ushers.

A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stokes followed the ceremony. A green and white color motif was used in the dining room. The table was centered with white snapdragons and flanked by three branched candelabra with white tapers.

Mrs. Ella Pate, Miss Rebecca Pate, Mrs. Shep Roebuck of Williamston, and Mrs. J. H. Thigpen of Ahoskie served the bridal refreshments which consisted of bridal cakes, minis, nuts, and lime ice.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Z. V. Whitehurst entertained at a dinner for the bridal party and guests at their home in Robersonville.

Mr. and Mrs. House are at home in Lees.

Mrs. Worthington Is Bridge Hostess

Grifton — Mrs. Jake Worthington was hostess on a recent evening to members of her bridge club at a delightful party. In the living room three tables were placed for the games amid a setting of chrysanthemums in pretty arrangements. Thanksgiving appointments were used at the tables.

Mrs. Manley Lee and Mrs. Tom Gower were highest scorers among the club members and Mrs. Jack Chapman for visitors. Other players were Mrs. Robert McCotter, Mrs. Walter Murphy, Mrs. Claude Hart, Mrs. Wilbur Murphy, Mrs. Bryan Davis, Mrs. John Coward, Mrs. Albert Tyson, Mrs. Paul Bradley, and Miss Doris Smith.

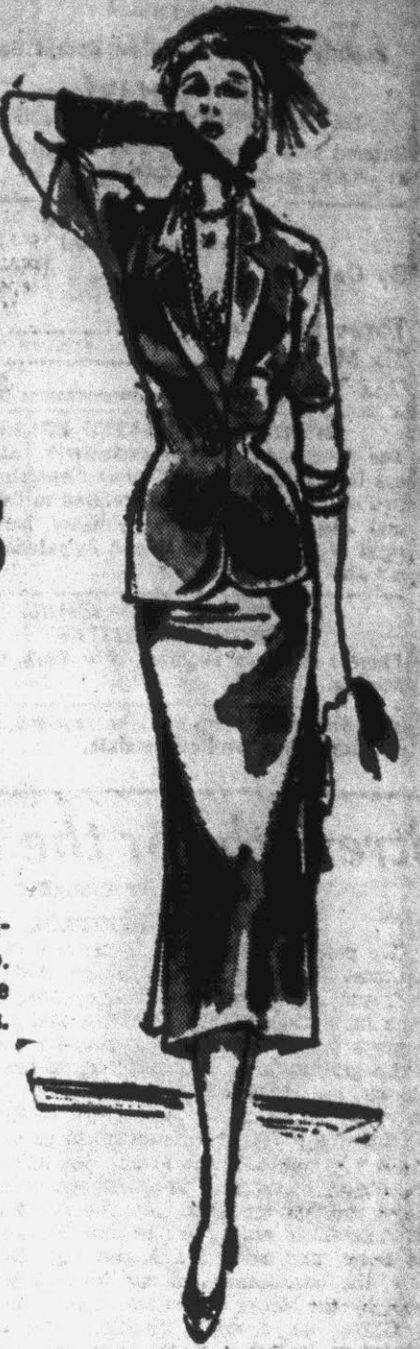

During the games Coca-Colas and nuts were passed and as cards were laid aside strawberry shortcake and coffee were served.

Acheson's Defense Should Be Sound

Secretary of State Dean Acheson has begun his battle against the Republican critics who have been urging his dismissal from the post at the head of the Department of State.

But if he is to successfully defend his position as head of the State Department, he must defend the country's foreign policy against questions not only from the Republican side of the fence, but from the Democratic side as well.

The country's foreign policy and the trend of world conditions were big factors in the recent election which went against the Democratic party. There are many party leaders and those throughout the party ranks who blame the foreign policy of the United States for at least a part of the licking which the Democratic candidates took at the polls earlier this month.

The foreign policy of the United States at the present time is not following a clearly drawn pattern. It needs clarification and it needs examination to see exactly what position the country is actually taking in the various spheres of international activity.

Acheson may have a sound defense for the foreign policy which is being followed by the Department of State; but in presenting his defense, he should stick to the points in question rather than digressing to other issues and evading the questions which the people of the nation want answered.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Crest-fallen Democratic chiefs and Congressmen trickling into the Capital for post-election meditation agree that Harry S. Truman must be re-nominated, regardless of the family's inclination in the other direction, for the simple and stark reason that the party is utterly bereft of presidential possibilities.

These back-romers will not admit their plight publicly, for that would be to own up to political bankruptcy. But, after scanning November 7 survivors from New England to California, they find no face with a winning smile and sufficient gray matter behind it that looks or behaves like a 1952 winner. It is doubtful if any major party has suffered from such a dearth of candidates in modern political annals.

Here is the result of a regional canvass of other-than-Truman entries as made by down-to-earth politicians who cannot afford to kid themselves or let themselves be kidded:

PROSPECT—New England: The only two figures in this area are Governor Paul Dever of Massachusetts, who was re-elected by a large majority, and Senator Brien F. McMahon of Connecticut, whose reelection in the face of severe handicaps was a tribute to his Capitol Hill Record, his personality and his astute campaigning.

Governor Dever, however, is regarded as a mere parochial figure. Mr. McMahon does not yet measure up to presidential caliber, although he has been mentioned for second place. While it is distasteful to discuss religion in connection with politics, he is a Catholic, and it is doubtful if fearful Democratic leaders would risk his nomination even as No. 2 man.

New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey: There are no Governors or Senators from this once fertile presidential field. The only remote prospect is Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., but he is still far from presidential stature. Moreover, by 1952 the appeal and glamor of the very name may have been diminished. Keep him in mind, however, as a V.P. possibility.

VICE-PRESIDENTIAL—Ohio, Illinois, Michigan: The only prospects here are Governor Adlai E. Stevenson and Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois. Governor Frank J. Lausche of Ohio and Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, if he emerges as the winner in a neck-and-neck race with ex-Governor Harry F. Kelly.

Governor Stevenson and Senator Douglas must be taken into consideration, but as vice-presidential rather than presidential material. Both are serious, studious men, and sometimes they try to act as statesmen rather than politicians, to the chagrin of the Truman-Boyle professionals. They also lack what is known as "platform and personality."

"Soapy" Williams does not impress the insiders at all, especially in view of his close race in such a supposedly pro-labor state as Michigan. His weakness for calling commands in country square dances, his baby-kissing and similar campaign crudities helped him in up-state and rural Michigan, but they might become liabilities rather than assets in a national struggle.

LOCHINVAR—Governor Lausche did not endear himself to the White House machine with his semi-nomadic life of the one man President Truman and National Chairman Boyle wanted to defeat and discredit—Senator Taft of Ohio. He is too much of a lone-wolf to suit the politically gregarious and hard-driving Missouri cowboys. Moreover, like Mr. McMahon, he is a Catholic.

From the Mississippi River to the Pacific Coast: In all these broad areas there is no Democratic Lochinvar, and it will be impossible for one to train and mount between now and 1952.

Southern and border states are not listed as presidential training schools for obvious reasons. Despite the States Rights' 1948 rebellion, Dixie is counted on to trail along with the party, regardless of the ticket's makeup.

PROTEST—Ohio was not the only political laboratory where the myth of a solid labor vote supposedly controlled by well-paid, political, professional leaders at Washington was exploded on November 7. Indeed, it is probable that the First Massachusetts District, nestled in and around the Berkshire Hills, provided an even more spectacular demonstration.

The Democrats nominated Anna Sullivan of Holyoke, for ten years regional director of the CIO's Textile Workers of America. Cy O'Brien, northern New England regional director for the CIO-PAC political organization, virtually managed her campaign against Representative John W. Heseltine of Old Deerfield. Williams College professors, ADA members, wrote her speeches and furnished intellectual guidance. Regular Democrats were shown in the far background.

Eleven officials of local unions in North Adams were so resentful of their own leaders' tactics that they bought a newspaper advertisement, and signed their names in protest. The workers themselves showed even greater indignation at the polls.

MORAL—Mr. Heseltine got both an unprecedented vote and a record majority for the district. He carried industrial cities—Adams and Holyoke—never before won by a Republican candidate for Congress. He did not lose a single one of the 85 towns or cities in the area. He swept tobacco and potato-growing areas once Democratic in gratitude for federal handouts.

Calling The Tune!

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYON NISBET Raleigh, N. C.

NAMES — Certified lists of elected members of the congress, the general assembly and other positions afford opportunity for a bit of play with names. They also show that some of the once "common" names do not appear so often among the leaders in government today. The Smith family, for instance, must depend entirely upon the junior United States Senator, Willis Smith, to carry the banner. Not a single Smith shows on the roster of the state legislature.

JONES—But the Jones family has moved into the picture in a big way. Two of the twelve representatives in the national congress from this state bear that honored name — Hamilton C. of the tenth district and Woodrow W. of the eleventh. Furthermore, three of the fifty state senators are Joneses—Paul E. of Farmville from the fifth senatorial district; R. Posey of Mount Airy from the twenty-third and R. S. (Dick) of Franklin from the thirty-third district.

TAYLOR — There are several duplications of surnames in the legislative roster, with Taylor apparently in the lead. The 1951 senate will have as presiding officer Lieutenant Governor H. P. Taylor of Wadesboro, and there are three Taylors in the house—Roy A. of Buncombe, William W. of Warren and W. Frank of Wayne. There is more than even chance both branches of the assembly will have a Taylor as big boss, since odds now highly favor Frank Taylor of Wayne to be speaker of the house. There were also three Taylors in the last house, although there is one new given name this time. Roy and Frank are coming back, but Williams of Warren replaces Claire of Caswell.

DIMENSIONAL—The 1951 session will not be quite as "Little" but it will be just as "Long." Earl Little of Alexander and Hal Little of Anson are coming back. J. C. of Wake did not make the grade. There will still be just one Long, Robert of Swain having given the honor for that family to George of Alamance.

DUPLICATIONS—Other duplications in names occur. The 1951 house picked up Moore. Larry I. of Wilson will be supported this time by H. M. of Clay. The same two Fishers will be back—Troy of Cumberland and Ralph of Transylvania.

COLORFUL — The 1951 house should be just as colorful as the last session. There are two Browns, instead of one, Frank of Jackson having added Wade of Watauga. It is just as Blue (Clifton of Moore) and just as Greene (Harry of Hoke). It will have more White, in the person of John Fernando of Chowan—who is no newcomer to legislative halls but was not here in 1949.

OCCUPATIONAL — While the 1951 house lost a Shomaker, it will not lack for occupational classifications. There will be a Barker (Oscar of Durham), a Bender (R. P. of Jones), a Collier (T. J. of Pamlico), two Fishers (Troy of Cumberland and Ralph of Transylvania), a Stoner Paul G. of Davidson), three Taylors (Roy of Buncombe, William of Warren and Frank of Wayne), as well as Sanders (Richard T. of Durham) and Venters (Carl of Onslow) and others. To further extend occupational qualifications the senate provides a Sawyer (Thomas B. of Durham), a Leatherman (M. T. of Lincoln), and a Weaver (Zeb, Jr., of Buncombe).

COMPREHENSIVE — A great deal has been said and written about North Carolina being a diversified and well-balanced state. Most of it was true, although sometimes perhaps stretched a bit for propaganda purposes. It would seem that with a general assembly constituted of such varied colorful and occupational names, the Old North State has very little to fear with respect to the kind of laws that will be enacted next year. Every element of the citizenship should be able to claim fair representation in that layout.

MISTAKES—Of course the legislators will make mistakes, individually and collectively. Which recalls a conversation in the hotel lobby just before this paragraph is being written. Half a dozen men were talking about the fact that nobody should be expected to be right all the time. "Why, I remember," said one man, "that I made a mistake once. It was in 1912, when . . . et cetera. The rest of the fellows had made so many mistakes since then they were not interested in hearing what that guy had done wrong nearly forty years ago."

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THERE MUST BE A REASON (Henderson Daily Dispatch)

Considerable attention has been attracted by the launching of a movement in Greenville to discover, if possible, the cause for the large percentage of rejections for the draft. Pitt County's record is perhaps about in line with most other counties, so that the difficulty is not peculiar there.

Were some tangible reason discovered for the heavy failures of young men summoned, as to both their physical and mental status, it would be helpful elsewhere, and for that reason the undertaking has attracted a good deal of interest.

Chances now the Pitt draft board, however, to offer the opinion that there are no specific reasons for the low scores. Three members of the board could arrive at no definite conclusions. One member said it appeared "that the I. Q. of some of those who flunked was just as high as those who passed," and speculated whether some of the men might be required to take the tests again.

One reason for so many failures is the high standards set by Selective Service. Were the bars to be lowered slightly, acceptances would be greater. No one would impress into military duty any youth who is not capable of the service expected of him, either physically or mentally. But standards could be relaxed slightly without assuming such risks.

Another reason for rejections is the modern trend, which is more or less common to all ages and not to young men alone, toward unrestrained living, mild or serious dissipation and lack of proper care for the body in the way of proper food and sufficient sleep and rest.

If the schools are to blame, the trouble is with the human equation rather than educational facilities, at least as to physical plants. These are as good and in most instances far better than at the time of the first world war and wars that preceded that, yet there were no such wholesale rejections as now. There will likely be those who will promptly light upon that phase of the educational system and use it as inclined to feel that teachers gain little from the summer sessions. By talking with numbers of them, too many take the attitude that summer schools are attended merely to meet the requirement of certificate holders.

Teaching is a real art, and it is not something which a person has just because he or she attended some school and graduated with a teacher's certificate and a Bachelor of Arts degree and later attained the Master's status.

We are placing far too much emphasis on degrees and far too little on real ability in the classroom. We can see this in so many schools when the graduates enter college. The going is often rough, and a lot of the blame can be laid on the teachers who are not equipped with the teacher's personality.

The school superintendent who made the observation about degrees as against real ability was speaking many truths.

KEEP TALKING (Greensboro Daily News)

Communists in China have notified the United Nations that she is accepting an invitation to present her own case to the Security Council. She says she will discuss American aggression against her but not her aggression against the United Nations.

But the probability is that she does not know what will be discussed, for the truth is that discussions have a habit of covering more ground than is set out in the agenda or contemplated by the parties.

In this case we hope that both sides keep talking because the more they talk the less likely they are to fight, and nobody can welcome a war between the United States (or the United Nations) and China, except the men in the Kremlin who did what they could to precipitate a war between the Axis and the Allies.

Like the League of Nations, the United Nations may be criticized as "a debating society," but while debating may not be "the moral equivalent of war," it can serve a very useful purpose in time of international tension by providing a forum in which steam can be let off and war can be at worst postponed or at best averted.

Business Today

By Elmer Roessner
All the pressure in favor of excess profits tax does not mean that the corporations will carry the financial load for re-arming. If the Administration's "pay as you go" policy is maintained, there will also have to be a sharp rise in personal income taxes.
The same facts that Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder used to advocate the EPT carry the implications of higher personal income taxes.
He said that corporation profits in 1950 would be about 37 billion dollars. At the current rate of corporate taxes, 45 per cent on all above $25,000 a year, about 16 billion dollars are being collected, leaving 21 billion.
Current government spending is at a rate of 45 billion a year, Mr. Snyder pointed out, and total tax collections under the newest tax laws are estimated at 43 billion dollars.
"Since commitments and obligations are now being made at a rate considerably greater than current expenditures, and since many items of military procurement have to be ordered long in advance of deliveries, expenditures for the fiscal year 1950 and later years will have to be substantially above current levels," he said.
Mr. Snyder did not guess how much above, but talk of a 60-billion-dollar-a-year budget for many years to come is generally heard around Washington and appears to be based on defense planning.
This gives us a problem in simple arithmetic:
Annual federal spending.... $60 billion
Current annual tax take..... $43 billion
Additional revenue needed..... $17 billion
And we also have this one: CORPORATE PROFITS..... $37 billion
Less taxes at current rates..... $16 billion
Net profits..... $21 billion
It can be seen that if corporation taxes were doubled—taking almost 90 per cent of corporation earnings—collections still wouldn't be enough to pay as we go. And if corporation taxes ever went anywhere near that point, there would be a tremendous liquidation.
The only remaining major source of revenue is increasing taxes on personal incomes, and that's what we're likely to see. Furthermore, it will apply to lower incomes. If incomes were taxed 100 per cent of all above $100,000 a year, they would produce less than one billion more in taxes. A sixty-billion-dollar-a-year budget means tax increases almost all the way down the income scale.

NUMBER GAME ATTRACTS SHOPPERS
Retailers in Garden City, Long Island, fighting to prevent Christmas business from drifting to New York City, are attaching numbers to many items in their windows. Numbered cards are distributed to residents and if they can find an article with the same number, the article is theirs. The stunt has already increased window gazing in Garden City and the merchants are confident it will increase Christmas buying, too.

Hal Boyle's Column

With U. S. 8th Army, Korea, (AP)—It was on a day when the whole American front surged forward.

The thick dust hung like a yellow fog over every road, and under the dust men and machines moved up in pursuit of the enemy. At every road intersection or bridge detour the long elastic lines of vehicles jammed together like a folding accordion. I stepped out of a command post to hitch a ride just as an armored column ground to a halt. The dust settled and there in front of me was a weapons carrier that had been converted into an open air ambulance.

A young medic was seated on one of two litters that stuck out of the rear of the ambulance. The other litter was empty. I held up a thumb and the young medic said:
"Climb up, old man—if you can make it."

I made it. A medic inside the ambulance then said to my neighbor on the other litter:
"That's a nice cigar the man is smoking, Junior."

So I pulled out my last cigars and passed them around. Junior bit a big chunk out of the end of his and lit it ineptly. Junior was a big boy with a rough and ready tongue. But his close cropped hair cut and the tiredness in his eyes made him look no more than 18.

"Come on Red," he said, turning to the driver, "let's get on with the war."

Red hesitated a moment, then swung the ambulance out into the road. We went several hundred yards up the motionless column and met a jeep containing a military policeman. He was a small dark man in shiny boots and helmet. His uniform was neatly pressed, his pistol holster and belt were highly polished and a bright scarlet scarf shielded his throat up to the chin.

His task of keeping the straggling vehicles from snarling the road had worn his temper raw. "Get back in line, damn you," he shouted. Red obediently pulled back into the halted column. But Junior said, "we got the right of way. We're going up after the wounded."

"There aren't any wounded up there yet," snapped the MP. As he drove slowly by, Junior called loud enough for him to hear:

"I wonder how Little Red Riding Hood figured that out. No MP ever gets that close to the front."

A minute later the jeep came back up the road and the small military cop said, "Follow me. I'll try to get you out of here."

He reddened but said nothing. As Junior shouted to one of the medics "It must be pretty safe still if the little people in pink neckties are going up there. You never can find an MP if the gooks are coming down the road."

We rode about a mile, Red then pulled back into line as the MP dismounted to clear the path of some vehicles that had massed in double column.

"If I ever see that MP at the front I'll shoot him," said Junior loudly, patting his rifle. The other medics laughed but the little MP never turned his head.

"Right there is where the gooks overran our aid station," said Junior, pointing at a draw in the hills. "We were right near the artillery. They were all around us before we knew it—and they got most of us."

"See that rock up there? A gook up there was firing at me. I tried to get back at him with my carbine. I fired 60 rounds at him and missed every time. Then a doughboy next to me lifted up his rifle and knocked off the gook with one shot."

"I guess that's when I broke down. I just laid on the ground and shook. I guess they'd kept us up here too long. They sent me back to the hospital for a rest. But my nerves are okay now again—I guess. It sure looks peaceful up here now."

The road ahead was clear. The little MP climbed into his jeep and backed up behind us to tell us we could go ahead. "Well, I guess Little Red Riding Hood is going back to the rear to beat up some more soldiers," Junior said loudly. "It's the only fun an MP ever has. But if I ever catch him at the front I'll—"

Junior paused because the MP had walked around and was standing in front of him. His features were working in wordless anger. But as he glared into Junior's eyes something seemed to calm him.

Slowly and deliberately the MP took off his bright scarlet scarf. A wide and terrible scar stretched from his chin down across his throat and disappeared beneath his jacket. It was the kind of a scar a large mortar or artillery shell fragment leaves. And it was only freshly healed.

The MP wiped the dust sweat from his face with the scarf. He rolled the scarf into a ball and tossed it into Junior's lap. Then he stepped back and smiled.

"Good luck, son," he said. As our vehicle started up the long road, one of the medics said to Junior:

"What did you say you were going to do to that MP if you ever catch him up front?" "Shut up!" said Junior. And nobody looked at Junior for a long time—for fear he might begin to cry.

Washington Letter

BY JANE EADS

Washington. — Mrs. Alice P. Trimble's long bus trip through 40 different countries this summer convinced her more than ever that American women are about the luckiest in the world. "All the women on the junket realized the freer, better position we enjoy," she told me. "We can speak up as human beings and not always have to express ourselves through our husbands or other men of the family as do women in some countries."

"Our standard of living is higher. We have better organized homes, more modern kitchens and generally our lives are made much easier by use of labor-saving devices and modern science. It is strange to think even in some places where women have access to new equipment and new methods of doing things, they do not make use of them."

Mrs. Trimble, home demonstration leader for the U. S. Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Hawaii the past 16 years, first went abroad to attend the triennial conference of the Associated Countrywomen of the World at Copenhagen, Denmark. Later she was one of 68 American women who made the bus trip which covered about 4,500 miles. The went to Belgium and Holland and Italy.

"Women's role and position varies in each country," Mrs. Trimble told me while here to attend a conference of agricultural specialists. "So of course, does the standard of living. I seem to me there should be some way of establishing or recognizing a standard of living, a sort common level below which we should not let any people fall."

"Take such things as modern food storage and lighting, etc. In some countries where electricity is so cheap it still has not been harnessed to reduce the hard work of the housewife. In many areas people are still in the generation where the family is adapted to the house, instead of the house being made to serve the family."

Great progress has been made in Hawaii in raising the standard of living for all peoples. Mrs. Trimble explained, in discussing the work she does with 2,500 rural women in some 175 home demonstration clubs.

"Of course, the women in these clubs represent all different racial backgrounds—Hawaiian, Puerto Rican, Japanese, Caucasian, Filipino. We took the best from each culture and tried to work out a standard that would be fitting and best for Hawaiian homemakers."

Tug Boat Blast Claims Life Of Second Victim

Charleston, S.C., Nov. 20—(AP)—An explosion aboard the tugboat Cecilia about 10:30 o'clock Saturday night claimed the life of a second victim early this morning.

Edward C. Myatt, engineer, died at Roper Hospital at 1 o'clock from third degree burns suffered when the tug's boiler exploded instantly, killing the fireman, Charles D. Sweatman, of Cannon Street.

The explosion, which ripped the forward sections of the boilers loose, occurred while the Cecilia was docking the British freighter Eastern Prince at the North Charleston terminals of the South Carolina State Ports Authority. The freighter is on her maiden voyage.

New Cold Wave Fans Southward

By the Associated Press
Another cold wave was fanning out over the middle west today and threatening more freezing temperatures as far south as the Gulf.

The storm center was over the northern plains states early today, where some points reported sub zero readings. Bismarck, N.D., had eight below.

The cold air was expected to reach the Gulf Coast of East Texas, Louisiana and Alabama and the central and north Atlantic states by tomorrow night. A low of 12 degrees was predicted for Chicago tonight as the cold air moves across the Great Lakes region.

Rain had changed to snow from the Iowa-Missouri border to Chicago and over central and lower Michigan today in advance of the chilling blast. Some sleet was reported in central Illinois, and there were showers and thunderstorms in the Ohio valley. Evansville, Ind., had 1.18 inches of rain.

Former Housing Official Dies

Washington, Nov. 20—(AP)—John H. Fahey, who became a top government housing official after a long career as a newspaperman, died of pneumonia at Emergency Hospital yesterday. He was 77.

Fahey was visiting in Washington when he was stricken. He had retired from government service in 1948, and lived since then at Swampscott, Mass.

A co-founder of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, he was president of that organization in 1914. He also served at one time as second vice president of the Associated Press.

Fahey was an executive of the one-time Eastern Associated Press in New Haven and later of the AP in Boston. He was subsequently publisher at various times of the Boston Traveler, the Worcester (Mass.) Post, the Manchester (N.H.) Mirror and the New York Evening Post.

He headed fund raising for the Democratic National Committee in the 1932 campaign which resulted in the election of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

War Curtailing Asiatic Cruises

SINGAPORE—(AP)—The Korean war seems to have put a decided crimp in the cruising business. The 9,600-ton liner President Polk docked in Singapore the end of October on a five-day visit—with only 22 salon passengers. Usually she carries a hundred or more in that class. The lack of a big passenger list was believed to be due also to unsettled conditions generally in this section.

Missing Kitten Was Taken To Laundry

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 20—(AP)—A month-old kitten, napping in a pie shop laundry bag, got taken to the cleaners by mistake.

The next day, shop employees missed the kitten and called up the laundry.

A search through a stack of bags of soiled linen turned up the kitten, none the worse for the experience.

This Little Tree Has Really Grown

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Found Ridge, N. Y.—It was the night before Christmas, the children were in bed and Lloyd and Jean Ensign were decorating the tree.
When the stockings were filled and the last ornament in place, Lloyd picked up a piece of bright aluminum foil and idly started cutting a design. When he had finished, a shining miniature Christmas tree stood on the table.
"Why, it's perfect for a centerpiece!" said Jean. "Let's make some ornaments for it."
From other scraps of red, green, silver, blue and gold foil they fashioned tiny bells fastened them to the tree with bent pins. When the neighbors saw the glittering little tree the next day, everybody wanted one. Lloyd and Jean whipped up a supply for their friends, and somebody said:
"Why don't you put these on the market next year?"
Lloyd, an oil company executive, considered the matter and thought it might be nice to spend more time at home. He worked out a machine to make the small ornaments and ordered the sheets of varicolored foil stamped out in New York.
Then the Ensigns began production, first in the basement of their home, later in a rented factory in nearby New Canaan, Conn. Samples were ready to show at this year's Gift Show in New York, and the orders poured in from important stores all over the country.
Now Lloyd and Jean Ensign are working day and night keeping up with their orders, and the festive Christmas tree is to be seen in shop windows across the country. It comes packed flat in a cellophane envelope, with a package of the glittering little ornaments attached, sells for a penny price. The eight sections of the tree are stapled together, open out to make a full-fledged table tree.
That's how a little tree fashioned by a weary father last Christmas Eve has grown into a big business in just one year.

HOME ENTERPRISE . . . Lloyd and Jean Ensign put finishing touches to their festive foil Christmas tree, which grew from a toy to a profitable business.

Consider Moving Pageant To N.Y.

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 20.—(AP)—North Carolinians celebrated symphonic drama, "The Lost Colony," may move to New York City next summer for several performances.
Bill Sharpe of Raleigh, head of the Roanoke Island Historical Association which sponsors the pageant, said today the proposition is under discussion.

Sharpe said the idea came from members of the Sudan Temple of Rocky Mount, who would like to have the pageant presented in New York for four nights at the meeting of the Imperial Shrine next July 11-14. Shrine and Lost Colony officials talked it over at a meeting over the weekend at Rocky Mount, Sharpe said, but nothing definite has materialized yet.
Sharpe added that the board of directors of the historical association will meet here Jan. 12, at which time the group will consider any proposition the Shrines may want to make.

The Inflation . . .

Q. Some other examples?
A. Well, suppose a person cashes his savings.
empty lot that he can't really use at present. Or a housewife buys 100 pounds of sugar. Or a man buys tires that he doesn't need.
Q. You mean panic buying?
A. You can call it that. A good deal of this went on during the summer months, and some is still going on.
Q. If there's a November sale of summer suits, is it wrong to buy one and put it away until next summer?
A. No. Taking advantage of a sale is normal buying, too. But if a person buys suits or shoes that he doesn't need, just because he anticipates shortages or higher prices later, that's anticipatory buying and it helps to cause shortages and push prices up. Real damage is done to the country when people try to stock up on food and clothing.
Q. So when you ask consumers to use restraint, what you're saying is, "follow your normal buying practices."
A. Yes.
Q. How else can the average citizen cooperate?
A. He can save more. The more money that goes into savings—into savings bonds, savings accounts, or insurance—the easier it is to hold down prices.
Q. Do you consider it unpatriotic to cash savings bonds?
A. People should make every effort to hold onto their bonds. Of course there are obvious cases where immediate needs require cashing them. There's nothing unpatriotic in that. But a person helps inflation if he cashes bonds, or withdraws savings, just because he thinks his money will buy more now than it would later.

The Balance . . .

munist bloc is anxious to get America in particular, and the western powers in general, involved in a major Asiatic conflict. That would whittle down our resources until the balance of power shifted to the other side. Then look out for trouble!
The Red scheme, as viewed by western observers, is for China to use her vast wealth of manpower to keep the United Nations forces increasingly engaged in Korea. Russia's military contribution to the Chinese efforts would continue to be material and advice, thus preserving her ever increasing strength.
There is no doubt in the minds of western observers that Mao has been acting in accordance with Moscow's wishes in his aid to the North Korean Reds. What isn't clear to observers is whether he is laboring under the misapprehension that China is a partner rather than a satellite.

Ditching At Sea Made Safer By Rescue Team

ALL HANDS SAVED by a crash boat alongside a MARS

PLANE EXPLODES a few seconds after rescue

AP Newsfeatures
Pearl Harbor—You're lucky, or comparatively so, if you ditch your plane in the middle of the broad Pacific. The Air Force and Navy don't tell their pilots that in flight school, but many have found it out.
Chances are, if you bail out and have a life raft or a life jacket to keep you afloat, a search plane will spot you within three hours and a surface ship will be there to pull you out within 12 hours.
The Hawaiian Sea Frontier, which assumes responsibility for military emergencies in the central Pacific, won't promise to rescue you within that time limit. But it has done it every time a plane has gone down in the past two years.

During that period the Hawaiian Sea Frontier has not lost a man. If you survive the crash, chances are good you'll be rescued within a few hours.
These days, with the Pacific afloat in full operation carrying men and supplies to Korea and the Far East, airplanes in distress are providing the most jobs for the Hawaiian Sea Frontier's search and rescue headquarters here. Lt. Cmdr. C. B. Davis, head of the search and rescue command center at Pearl Harbor, calls the Hawaiian Sea Frontier the biggest and busiest search and rescue area in the world.
Search and rescue is a joint Army, Navy, Air Force operation. Here in the Pacific the Navy takes top command of military rescues but it uses Air Force planes, too. The Coast Guard has responsibility for civilian emergencies.
The search and rescue command center is notified immediately when a plane or ship fails to reach its destination on schedule, when it loses radio contact with its home base, or when it sends a distress signal. A pilot flicks a switch on his control panel, for instance, and it sets off an electronic device that lights up every radar screen within a hundred miles. The device pin points the location of the plane.

'Didn't Have A Chance', Says GI In Losing Fight

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 20.—(AP)—"Mom, we didn't have a chance." So wrote a Savannah soldier of a "night of terror" in which he said his unit was almost wiped out by Chinese Reds using war dogs.
The letter was written Nov. 4 by Pfc. Charles Edward Bell, 20, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Bell.
He said only 300 men of a First Cavalry Division unit of 2,000 men escaped from a fierce assault by Chinese Reds only 10 miles from the Manchurian border.
"We lost lots of guys the other night," he wrote. "We got caught with our pants down. We thought it was over. But it's not."
"We were about 10 miles from the Manchurian border when they hit. We didn't think the Chinks were even in on it. But they are."

Gambling, Extravagant Living Said Cause Big Embezzlements

Durham, N. C., Nov. 20.—(AP)—A New York insurance authority said here today that gambling and extravagant living cause the largest number of employee thefts in brackets above $5,000.

Every employee is a potential embezzler, said Charles W. Tye, and it is the employer's responsibility to remove every temptation to steal.

Tye, tax and legal counsel of the Royal-Liverpool Group, insurance brokers, said that during World War II, with its manpower shortages and slackening of internal controls, embezzlement hit an all-time high.

A similar pattern is already developing with today's new war clouds, he added.

He urged that salesmen and route men be required to turn in cash receipts at the end of each day and on no account be allowed to retain large sums overnight or over a weekend. This, he added, is an unfair temptation to employees.

"Remember, the embezzler frequently does not consider himself a thief," Tye said in an address prepared for delivery at an Accounting and Taxation Symposium at Duke University. The symposium opened yesterday at the University of North Carolina at nearby Chapel Hill. Many embezzlers feel that they are merely borrowing from company funds and are confident that the money will be returned, he asserted.

Tye predicted that with international tension increasing industrial production, auditing and accounting checks will relax and embezzlers will have a field day.

He cited a Chicago crime commission report saying that employee embezzlement stems from

(1) gambling, (2) extravagant living, (3) unexpected and unusual family expenses, (4) undesirable associates, and (5) inadequate income.

Nominate Alumni For 1951 Award

Nominations for the Twelfth Annual Award made by the Alumni Association of East Carolina Teachers College are now being received by the Alumni Office at the college, Mrs. Dubose Bullard of Wilson, association president, has announced.

Each year on Alumni Day during commencement week on the campus, the award for "outstanding achievement" is presented to a graduate of the college. Mrs. Nollie Keith Wright of Macclesfield, who initiated the community-improvement project made nationally famous by the Better Homes and Gardens magazine as the "Miracle of Macclesfield," received the award for 1950.

Choice of the recipient for 1951 will be made by a committee including two faculty members of East Carolina and three members of the Alumni Association. Mrs. Bullard has stated. The names of committee members are not announced by the association. Two meetings will be held early in the year, first to consider the list of nominees and then to select the recipient of the award.

Nominations may be made by members of the East Carolina Alumni Association and should be forwarded to Mrs. Ruth Garner, Alumni Secretary, East Carolina Teachers College, Mrs. Bullard has announced.

Jaycees To Push Auto Inspection

Charlotte, N.C., Nov. 20.—(AP)—The State Junior Chamber of Commerce has decided to work for a motor vehicle inspection law in North Carolina.

A resolution favoring such a law was adopted by the Jaycee board of directors who closed a two day quarterly meeting here yesterday.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to each member of the 1951 State Legislature. The last Legislature abolished motor vehicle inspections.

Burlington was chosen for next year's Miss North Carolina beauty contest. The winner will be eligible for the Miss American contest next September at Atlantic City, N.J.

The next quarterly board meeting will be at Winston-Salem in February.

Death Bell Is Housing Tipoff

BERLIN—As a century-old custom, the bell of the local church is tolled every time a resident of Stadtdendorf in West Germany dies. The housing office now wants this custom discontinued. The town is so crowded, officials say, that a few minutes after the tolling, people queue up to apply for the living quarters of the deceased.

Third 4-H Delegate To Congress From Belvoir

The Belvoir community last week took more or less of a monopoly on 4-H activities in the county when the county agents' office was notified William Harris, 17-year-old club member, will represent the state clubs at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Young Harris won the trip on the basis of his peanut production project during the past year. He joins with two fellow club members, Milton Spain and Wesley Manning, who have won trips to Chicago for their 4-H club work.

Harris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Harris of Belvoir and is a junior in Belvoir High School. To become the state winner, which entitled him to the sponsored trip, the junior farmer produced 1,940 pounds of peanuts from one acre. The trip to the Congress, held from November 24 to December 2, is sponsored by the North Carolina-Virginia Plant Foods Institute. THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laurensen
AP Newsfeature

Chapter 26
The motorcar clattered along the rails, pitching fitfully from side to side like an impatient steer shaking off a fly. The signal maintainer leaned over, intently watching the embankment and ditch on his side of the tracks, and Marc Jordan, soft cap pulled over his ears and coat bundled up to his chin against the chill in the fall breeze, did likewise on the other side.

"How far from Zola, Morrison?" asked Marc, shouting to be heard over the raucous put-put and clanking wheels of the motorcar.

"About twelve miles, Mr. Jordan," replied Morrison. "What're we looking for, anyway?"

"I'm not sure."

"They rolled slowly toward a group of section men who were methodically tamping ties. Marc approached the section foreman supervising the work.

"Hello, Joe," he called cheerfully. "How's track business?"

"Howdy, Mr. Jordan. Good shape. Ain't seen much of you lately."

"Have you been all over your section since Tuesday?" asked Marc.

"Yep, believe I have. Why?"

"Find anything along the tracks that looked out of place?"

"Like what?"

Marc scowled in thought. "I don't know. It might be a small axe, or a knife—probably a large knife. There should be a towel or rag."

He glanced around at the group of men who were leaning on picks and shovels and listening with apathetic interest. One by one they all shook their heads.

"How about a black bitch spaniel? She strayed away from Mr. Richards' car Tuesday night. See anything of her?"

"Well," said Joe slowly, "not a live one, but I seen a dead dog in the ditch yesterday."

Marc reached for his briar and tamped it full.

"Where?" he asked softly, turning to Joe.

"Beyond the head block 'bout a mile."

"That'd be about fifteen or sixteen miles west of Zola?"

"Yeah."

"Will you show me the place?"

"Yeah, sure."

"Come on, Morrie, let's go," said Marc, starting for the motorcar with long, quick strides. "Hop on, Joe. Show me where you saw that dog."

The three men clambered onto the car. After a short ride, Joe touched Morrison's arm and pointed to a spot at the foot of the bank. As the car jolted to a stop Marc jumped off and scrambled down the bank to where a small, furry black body lay partly covered with leaves. Carefully brushing away the leaves and dirt, he studied the mutilated dog from all angles. Gingerly sliding the collar around, he rubbed the dirt and tarnish from a license tag.

Marc straightened and thrust his hands deep into his pockets.

"Item: One black dog—very dead!" he breathed, eyes glistening with excitement.

Joe and Morrison gaped at him in puzzled wonder. He walked around the dog and sighted over it, up and down the track, his face wreathed in a happy grin. Then he grasped the carcass by the tail and heaved it onto the track. Unfastening the collar, he slipped it into his pocket.

"This what you're looking for, Mr. Jordan?" asked Morrison curiously.

Marc turned the dog over with his foot. "Yes, one of the things. But then," he murmured softly, "it had to be here! Absolutely had to be here somewhere."

Morrison shook his head dubiously. "I expect you know what you're doing. But darned if I see why you run around the railroad looking for a dead dog!"

Marc squinted and looked at him quizzically. "Ah, but there you have it. Was she dead, or wasn't she? And where?" He sucked thoughtfully on his pipe and stared at the dog. "As simple as that! Only how in the devil—"

Shrugging his shoulders, he turned to the section foreman.

"Joe, will you bury this so that I can tell Miss Joan that her pet has had the benefit of proper Christian rites?"

"Sure, Mr. Jordan."

"Thanks. Nice work spotting the carcass. Come on, Morrie; let's run to Zola. We've work to do."

Arriving at Zola tower after a jerky ride, they set the car off the tracks, and Marc inspected the layout. The tower was located at a crossing between the C. M. Railroad and the S. D. The tracks intersected at a long angle, with the building set in the long side of the angle. A mass of pipes spider-webbed cut at ground level and connected with the tracks. Marc walked over to the crossing and looked at the tilted parallelogram formed by the crossed rails.

"What happened to you here?" Morrison joined Marc beside the crossing.

"Well, I'm out at Perkins—that's about five miles"—he jerked his thumb over his shoulder—"on a case of trouble. We just come by there. Johnny told me to stay on account of he didn't wanta delay Number 61. So I stayed until 61 goes by, and followed him."

"I'm going through here slow, maybe ten miles an hour. Right here I was derailed like you know about. The axe musta been laying in that left-hand corner, because I went off to the right. See, there's marks on the ties. It threw me in the clear down the bank. Skinned my hand on the cinders. I called Johnny soon's I found the axe."

Marc nodded. "I know. I was in the tower when you called."

"Oh, year, sure," said Morrison. "Anyhow, it looked funny. I probably wouldn't 've thought much about it, only that train had just went by. I figured it must come off the train."

Cotton Estimate For Pitt Proven

Periodic reports from the cotton gins in Pitt show that the pre-harvest estimates for a short cotton crop was just about correct.

A report from the cotton supervisor of the Bureau of the Census in Raleigh states only 791 bales have been ginned in Pitt through November 1. Through the same period in 1949 the report shows 5,770 bales had been ginned on the surplus crop of last year.

There can be no accurate figure concerning how many of those bales were grown in Pitt. However, reports from the county agent's office yesterday stated about 10 percent more than the number of bales ginned were grown in Pitt.

County agent S. C. Winchester estimated in early September the county would not harvest more than 1,500 bales. He obtained his estimate from week-to-week reports on the boll weevil conducted throughout the summer.

Yesterday he estimated the county had not ginned more than 850 bales through November 1 and not all of them were ginned in the county, he said.

"There is a little more cotton grown in Pitt and ginned outside than there is cotton grown outside and ginned in Pitt," he said. Most of the cotton has been ginned and baled already, although there is some ginning still going on.

The agent commented that from the looks of the harvest at the present time his September estimate was high. "If we come up with 1,000 bales in Pitt, we'll be doing all right," he said.

War Claims Paid After 90 Years

ROME—(AP)—The treasury budget for 1950-51 provides for an appropriation of $641 to refund "damages sustained in war actions by the Bourbonic troops in the war campaigns of 1860-61." It was the last war fought by the troops of the late Ferdinand II, king of Naples, and of the two Sicilies 90 years ago.

Commenting the news, a Rome newspaper said: "The thousands who suffered damages from World War II can therefore be assured that their rightful descendants will be reimbursed before the year 2040."

Pedestrians Are Often At Fault In Road Deaths

Raleigh, N. C.—Of 139 pedestrians killed through September of this year, 94 were engaged in unsafe acts at the time of their deaths, the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles reported today, in releasing its nine-month traffic summary.

The figures brought to 660 the total of persons killed in the nine-month period in highway accidents. An additional 8,701 persons were injured as a result of 19,601 traffic accidents. These totals represented an increase of nine per cent in deaths, 27 per cent in reported injuries, and 34 per cent in total reported traffic accidents over the corresponding months of 1949.

The 139 pedestrian deaths marked a 1.7 per cent over the same period for 1949 when 137 pedestrian fatalities were reported. The total number of pedestrians killed during all of 1949 reached 197, with 141 engaging in unsafe practices at the time of their deaths.

The five to nine age group has led all other age groups in pedestrian fatalities and injuries, with 27 reported killed and 175 injured.

Sixty-one pedestrians were killed while crossing at non-intersections and 23 while crossing at intersections. Stepping from behind parked cars into traffic caused the deaths of 13 pedestrians. Sixteen persons were killed while crossing rural highways and 11 persons met death while walking with traffic along rural highways. Walking against traffic on rural highways brought death to four pedestrians.

Charlotte and Raleigh have the largest number of pedestrian fatalities, with eight for Charlotte and six for Raleigh. There were 43 pedestrian fatalities occurring in urban areas and 96 in rural areas.

Bicycle fatalities decreased 50 per cent over the corresponding period of 1949. Fourteen bicyclists were killed during the first nine months of 1950, while 28 were killed during the nine months period of last year. The department attributes the decrease to the emphasis placed upon organization of bicycle safety clubs throughout the State.

Collisions of two motor vehicles caused 222 persons to lose their lives. Motor vehicle and train impacts killed 20 persons and one person was killed when a motor vehicle struck an animal drawn vehicle. In the collision of motor vehicles with fixed objects, such as bridges and telephone poles, 19 persons were killed. Thirteen persons were killed when the cars in which they were riding overturned in the roadway, and 223 when their cars ran off the roadway.

During the nine months period, 1,384 motor vehicles were involved in accidents which were attributed to mechanical failure. Thirty-three of these were involved in fatal accidents.

Accident facts established by the report are as follows:

There were more persons killed and injured from 25 to 34 years of age than any other age group.

Commercial drivers were involved in more accidents than any other occupational group.

More accidents occurred on Saturday than any other day; fewest on Tuesday.

Maennle Second In N. C. Scoring Race

Frank Maennle, who closed out his brilliant football career here Friday night in a blaze of glory, scoring four touchdowns—three on passes from Roger Thrift—moved into second place in the state's scoring this morning.

Maennle with a total of 66 points ranks behind Appalachian's Jack Groce who has tallied 76 points. Groce, although the Apps were idle this week, gained 10 points, as official scorers missed one six-pointer against East Carolina three weeks ago, and four placements last week against Atlantic Christian.

East Carolina's big, raw-boned end from Kearney, N.J., has scored all his eleven touchdowns by the pass-receiving, except one which came on an end-around on the final play of the 54-7 rout of ACC's Bulldogs here Friday night.

Dwight Shoe, sophomore flanker, also ranks among the ten top leaders in the state's scoring with 42 points. He marked up his final score on a 60-yard pass from Thrift.

Leads In Scoring With 138 Points

New York, Nov. 20—(AP)—Carl Taseff, a 22-year-old fullback on the John Carroll University team of Cleveland, today led college football's individual scorers with 138 points and appeared a sure bet for a pro career.

Has No Favorites

Brooklyn, N. Y.—(AP)—The night Gil Hodges hit four home runs to tie Lou Gehrig's record he did it against four different pitchers. His blows, all into the left field stands at Ebbets Field, came off Warren Spahn, Norman Roy, Bob Hall and Johnny Antonelli. Gehrig in 1932 was the last major leaguer to crack four home runs in a regulation nine-inning game. Hodges' feat accounted for nine runs in the 19-3 Dodger win over the Braves.

Sport Slants By Pap

Lehigh's Leader

Dick Gabriel

Highlighted by its first victory over Rutgers University since 1942, the current season has been one of the most successful Lehigh University gridders have enjoyed since the Engineers took up the sport 70-odd years ago.

Pacing the Lehigh eleven this season is Dick Gabriel, the Engineers' capable captain. A left halfback, Gabriel has not matched his 1949 performances when he led the Eastern Intercollegiate Football Association in scoring with 16 touchdowns and in ground-gaining with 1,023 yards. The latter a E.I.F.A. record. Early injuries kept him behind his record schedule of last season but he has played inspired football which moved his coach, Bill Leckony, to state emphatically, "He's as good a back as there is in the East."

Only average in size standing 5-foot-10 and weighing 177 pounds, he gets extra yardage through sheer determination and drive. When Gabriel gets into a jam, he powers his way through instead of dancing and side-stepping. Many football experts compare him with Steven Van Buren of the Philadelphia Eagles professional team. That is, in running style, not size.

Greenville Midgets Trim Farmville By 26-6 To Continue Unbeaten String

Locals Score In Every Quarter After Fast TD In Opening Seconds; Play Raleigh Here

Chilled fans watched Greenville's midgets go through their 17th game without a defeat here Saturday night, as they clubbed Farmville's mites, 26-6, to clinch the Pitt County midget championship.

The game, co-sponsored by the Exchange Club of Greenville and the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Farmville, met with great success, as it drew interest throughout the county.

Greenville's Tiny Tims scored in every quarter in gaining their margin, with the first score coming on the first play from scrimmage after the opening kickoff, as Halfback James Speight streaked off left tackle for 60 yards behind beautiful blocking.

The attempt for the extra point failed, but the little Greenies were out front, 6-0, before the crowd hardly had time to settle in their seats.

Second tally for the Exchange Club mites came in the second quarter, with Pat Sawyer, who was shifted to halfback during the week, running off right tackle for six yards and the marker. Fullback Bob Howell and Speight combined to set up the score, as they shared the running brunt on a sustained downfield drive.

Speight ran over for the extra point, giving the heralded Greenville minute men a 13-0 lead at halftime.

Coach Bill Kittrell's small eleven kept up their scoring parade immediately after the second half started, with Quarterback George Sideris passing to Billy Johnson, regular center who was shifted to end on the play, from five yards out.

Fullback Bob Howell again led the downfield march to stage the tally, along with Sawyer and Speight.

George Sideris, Greenville's chief quarterback, scored the mites' final marker in the fourth quarter, going around right end from two yards out. Sideris also converted the extra point on a run. Bob Howell, who displayed brilliant running throughout the contest, aided in setting up the score with runs of 30 and 10 yards.

Farmville's lone tally came in the fourth frame on a beautiful, long pass from Quarterback "Hump" Allen to End Johnny Hinson who outdistanced Greenville's safety man.

Loop Meeting

High Point, Nov. 20—(AP)—The North State Conference will recognize this year's football team champion and outstanding player at a meeting and banquet here Tuesday, Nov. 28.

The afternoon meeting will include election of conference officers and naming of the football champion, expected to be Appalachian which has finished the regular season with seven league victories, no losses and a tie.

The outstanding player will be honored at a banquet being arranged for the fifth straight year by American Business Club. Art Byrd of Western Carolina Teachers received last year's award.

Active Player List Is Reduced

Fayetteville, Nov. 20—(AP)—Tobacco State League baseball teams will carry two less active players on their list next season.

Officials of six clubs in the league met here yesterday and voted to cut the active player list from 17 to 15. The list will include three veterans, eight limited service men and four rookies. This is a reduction of one rookie and one limited service player.

Cornell Coach Is Injured In Wreck

Ithaca, N.Y., Nov. 20—(AP)—Cornell football coach Lefty James was recovering today from a brain concussion and facial abrasions suffered when his automobile ran into a ditch near Newfield Saturday night.

He expects to be able to direct football practice tomorrow.

James was unconscious for about two hours after the accident while his car apparently went unnoticed by passing motorists. When he roused, he drove back to Ithaca, a distance of about eight miles.

No Bowl Plans 'Til Auburn Game

Clemson, S.C., Nov. 20—(AP)—Coach Frank Howard of Clemson says "we are not interested in a bowl game until we have played Auburn" Saturday.

He made the statement over the weekend in denying a report that the undefeated Tigers had agreed to meet Wyoming in the Gator Bowl. Clemson has won seven games and been tied by South Carolina, 14-14.

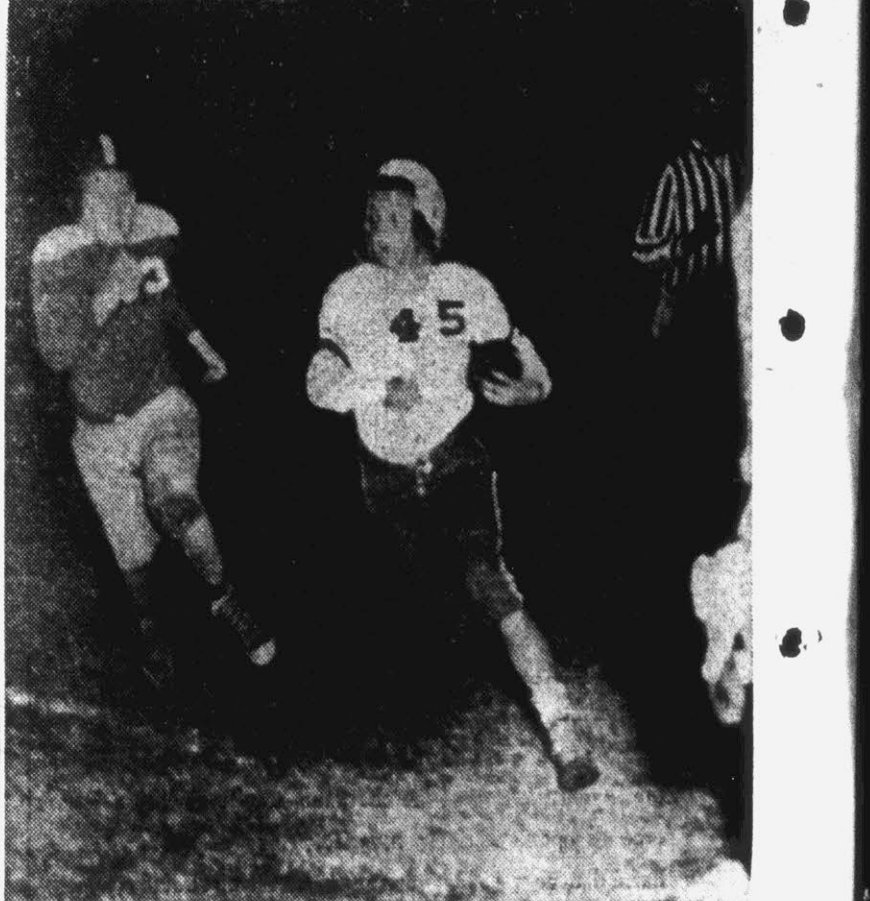

TOUGH TASK

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(AP)—Penn State's 43-year-old Coach Charles A. (Rip) Engle had a ready answer when a reporter recently asked him when his hair started to turn white. (It's now almost completely white). "When I started to coach football," was Engle's smiling retort.

PLENTY OF WORK

East Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—More than 1,700 persons—to be exact, 1,709—are required to "work" a Michigan State home football game. The total includes everyone from the boy scout ushers to the contesting grid teams, and even counts a three-man flag raising crew.

Bowl Teams Emerge As Season Nears Wind-Up

New York, Nov. 20—(AP)—Texas, Southern Methodist, Nebraska, the Cotton Bowl, Illinois and California are near enough to Pasadena to smell the roses.

A dozen other teams are afraid to stray too far from the telephone lest they miss a ring from one of the big post-season promoters.

The "pluck 'em" season is here for college football and the mad scramble is on to fill the massive stadiums in the warm weather climes with the most glamorous eleven available.

Right now the list of unpicked eligibles is headed by Oklahoma and Kentucky, with Tennessee, Miami (Fla.) and Clemson just a shade behind.

Other prospects include Wyoming, Loyola of Los Angeles, Alabama, its reported a Sugar Bowl bid is hanging in the balance. However, representatives of the Cotton and Orange Bowls also very likely will be in the stands, checkbooks handy.

Oklahoma, owning modern football's longest winning streak of 29 games, will go against Nebraska at Norman and probably can step right into any bowl it chooses, with the exception of the granddaddy of them all at Pasadena.

Texas clinched the southwest championship and Cotton Bowl role Saturday by beating Texas Christian, 21-7, while Rice was cooling off the only remaining challenger, Texas A&M, 21-13. Texas and the Aggies tangle Nov. 30.

Illinois can clinch the Rose Bowl assignment by turning back Northwestern, three times beaten, at Evanston, Ill. Failure to do this would toss the trip to Wisconsin or Michigan. Wisconsin closes with Minnesota and Michigan with Ohio State.

WHO'S A GOOSE AT CROSSING?

HONK! HONK! Take a gander at this sign! The geese warm the motorists near Palo, Iowa. "Cattle Crossing" and "Deer Crossing" signs are familiar to motorists throughout the country. But according to Mrs. Ethel Gibney, who has a goose farm near Palo and raises 235 laying geese, selling selling another 250 every Thanksgiving time, hardly a car passes that doesn't slow or stop in hope of seeing a goose waddle across the road.

Coldest Night

Last Saturday night was the coldest of the fall season. The mercury went down to 26 degrees. The temperature in the Greenville area had gone down to 27 degrees recently, Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, reported.

The highest temperature here Sunday was 60 degrees. Lowest Sunday night, 46. At 8 a.m. today it was 54.

Frost has occurred here several times during October and November.

A slight flurry of snow was reported here about a week ago.

old. They get corn only in time to fatten them for holiday tables. Abig advantage of the sign, Mrs. Gibney points out, is that the slower the cars go, the less dust they blow up from the gravel road.

Says Gratitude Vital Virtue In Christian Man

By WYATT BROWN

"If you have the virtue of gratitude, you have almost everything; if you do not have gratitude, you have almost nothing," declared Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, in his sermon yesterday morning on the subject "The Virtue of Gratitude."

He went on to say that the forefathers who first celebrated Thanksgiving met the situation out of quality of character and not circumstances; they had developed the art of appreciation so that they experienced it through triumph or tragedy.

Further it was brought out that gratitude has nothing to do with physical surroundings. The first Thanksgiving was not the end of hardships; it was not celebrated because life was easy or that outward circumstances were pleasant—it was something more. "They had made themselves strong by developing the virtue of gratitude."

Mr. Russell said that it is never what happens outwardly to a person or nation but how they react to what happens. He pointed out that a person who has developed a sense of gratitude knows that happiness is something he must create himself out of attitude and not that it is certain places or circumstances. "Get a man's attitude right and no outside circumstance can touch him," Mr. Russell said.

Mr. Russell stated in concluding that an ungrateful person is always miserable; if one cannot find happiness where one is, chances are one will not find happiness elsewhere for happiness depends on the person's attitude.

Samuel Tarnopolsky, 12, is $1,000 richer because he was kind to a despondent man. The youth was willed the money by Herman Bush, 62, who took an overdose of sleeping pills recently and left a note telling of the boy's kindness to him. (AP Wirephoto).

THE STUDY OF MEDICINE is a selective process in itself. Seven years of intensive study in college, plus one year of practice in a hospital, are the minimum requirements. It is wise to trust your precious health only to a conscientious physician of recognized standing. Avoid the quack, the charlatan, the "cure-all" type of doctor. Almost invariably they do more harm than good. Select your physician as you should your pharmacist—with care and confidence.

When your physician writes a prescription, bring it to us to be filled. We are specialists at this work.

officials for their cooperation in handling traffic at the football games at the stadium this season.

The chief also had a word of praise for the motoring public—the football fans—for their cooperation in handling the traffic situation on the college field and on adjacent streets.

"We did not have any trouble as a result of publicity about parking on the campus; good work of the college officials, the motoring public and the N.C. State Highway Patrol. Entrance and exit were available all during the games and there were no accidents."

Continue Search For 5 Dangerous Prison Escapees

Jacksonville, N. C., Nov. 20.—A search was still continuing today for five "dangerous" negro convicts who sawed their way out of the Onslow County prison camp Saturday night.

Camp Superintendent T. R. Johnson said last night a temporary guard had been discharged following the mass escape. He did not divulge the guard's name but said he had been on duty only 15 days.

Johnson asserted that an all day search of Onslow County's swamps yesterday had failed to reveal any trace of the wanted men. They made their break, he said, by sawing through a window of the cell block, crawling out and then scaling the high prison fence. Bloodhounds were brought in and the trail picked up, Johnson said. Throughout the day yesterday the dogs kept on the trail but finally lost it late in the afternoon.

The prisoners were identified as Jesse Sneed, Noah McDuffy, Tommy Louis Roscoe, D. E. Kyser and Horace York. The latter was serving a life term for rape, Johnson said. The other four were serving sentences of from two to five years for robbery, and assault with intent to kill. Johnson described all five as being "dangerous."

Shah Flies Over Iran To Boost Peoples' Morale

SHAH OF IRAN keeps defense forces on their toes.

AP Newsfeatures
Tehran, Iran—Iran's 31-year-old king is flying about his Communist-threatened nation on a mission to strengthen unity of some 15,000,000 tribesmen and peasants.

Personally piloting his converted B-17 Flying Fortress, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is spending more and more time showing himself to his people.

Friends say his visits to outlying areas are a morale booster for Persians wondering whether Russia is going to move into their oil-rich country.

In July the Shah visited Meshed, near the Soviet border east of the Caspian. In August he visited the western provinces of Kermanshah and Kurdistan.

Kurds Once Broke Away
Kurdish tribesmen split with the central government in 1946 and formed the Independent Republic of Kurdistan at the same time the Tudeh (Communist) party established a short-lived autonomous republic of Azerbaijan. The Kurdish republic was crushed by the army.

Kurdistan is one of the touchy spots in Iran. Soviet radio stations have hammered away ever since the war on propaganda backing a proposed Soviet republic of Kurdistan embracing Kurds scattered in Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Soviet Azerbaijan.

The movement has made little headway, however. The Shah was greeted at Sanandaj, in Kurdistan, by colorfully-dressed tribal chiefs as a gesture of loyalty.

Reds Show Resentment
The fact that the king's tours are having some effect is illustrated by the bitter manner in which they are denounced by the clandestine Communist Radio Azerbaijan.

Calling the Shah the "enemy of the entire nation," the Azerbaijan radio said the "real purpose of his trip is to spend a few nights drinking and playing with women."

Four civil suits instituted against Charles L. Whitfield in this week's term of Superior Court were continued by order of Judge William I. Halstead this morning due to the expected length of the trials.

Attorneys for plaintiff and defendant discussed the possibility of all four trials, which were scheduled for Wednesday, running into another day of court. There is no court on Thanksgiving Day.

The suits were brought against Whitfield by Thomas Earl Venters as the result of an automobile collision that took the lives of Venters' wife, daughter and mother-in-law in February of this year. The trial will probably be set again for the January term of court.

Divorces granted during the morning proceedings today were:

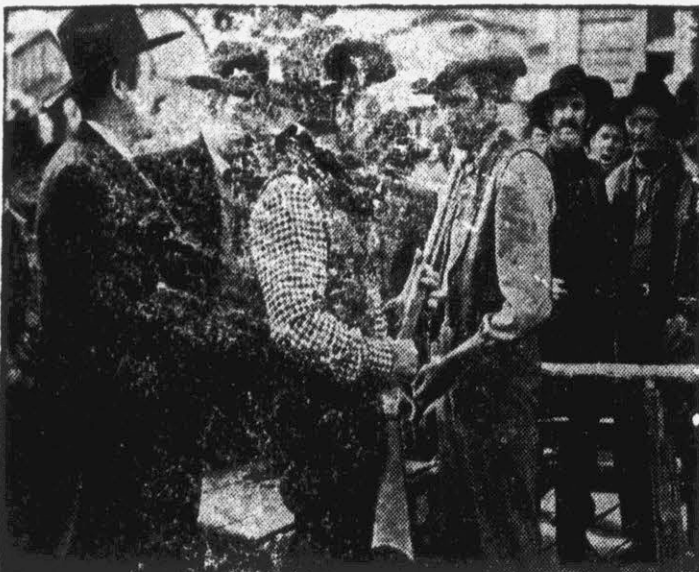

Elbert Bullock vs. Bernice Mae Bullock, Margaret S. Lewis vs. Robert W. Lewis and Doris Marie Smith Elks vs. John Elks Jr.

Thurman Lee Wilson vs. Verna Mae E. Wilson, Negroes; and John J. Cox vs. Floyd Collins Cox, Ne-GROES. All divorces were granted on grounds of two years separation.

The court also continued the cases of James E. Everett vs. C. B. Bunting Jr.; Annie Hopkins vs. Ernest Hopkins; Lina Ellison Dixon vs. Fred F. Dixon; and Wiley Cannon vs. Darnell Foods Inc.

Cases set for trial were: Walter Hardy vs. Elmond Hardy, Margaret Churchill vs. Mimmie R. Hardee, Fannie V. Bowen vs. Charles B. Moore, and Mimmie R. Hardee vs. Herman Evans.

ABC Officers Arrest Four On Liquor Charges

Law enforcement officers arrested Gus Carmack, negro farmer of the Whitehurst Station community of Pitt county last Saturday. They confiscated a quantity of non-tax paid whiskey in Carmack's kitchen. He admitted its ownership, they stated.

Carmack was released on $200 bond for his appearance at the next term of Pitt County Recorder's Court.

ABC officers J. M. Ward, Claude Manning and Deputy Sheriff Loyd Manning participated in the raid.

Achievement Day For Pitt 4-H'ers

Another successful 4-H Club year will be written into the record books tonight as the county clubs congregated for their annual Achievement Day program.

Under the direction of members of the home demonstration and county agents' office, the members of the 18 Pitt County clubs will meet in the courthouse at 7:30 to install the officers for next year and to receive individual awards for outstanding achievement during 1950.

During the program reports will be made by members of the clubs who attended camps during the summer. Also awards will be made to the outstanding 4-H boy and girl for their respective records in the past year. The award is made annually by the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

New officers of the County Council will be installed on the last part of the program. The public is invited to attend the ceremonies.

Firemen Respond To Saturday Night Call

A fire believed to have originated in a pile of discarded clothing did moderate damage at the home of Robert Conner on Perkins Street, early Saturday night.

The cause of the fire was not known by the occupants. The house was smoked to some extent but there was no actual fire loss.

Banks Urged To Slow Up Lending

Washington, Nov. 20—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Board has appealed to the nation's banks to put a checkrein on their lending. Aggregate bank loans have increased at a rate of about $1,000,000,000 (b) a month since the start of the Korean War.

Board Chairman Thomas B. McCabe said last night that banks can make a big contribution to the fight against inflation by holding down borrowing and by limiting loan extension. McCabe's letter went to the 7,000 banks of the Federal Reserve system.

Murray Demands Louder Voice In Mobilization

Chicago, Nov. 20—(AP)—A major revamping of America's mobilization setup—with a louder voice for labor—was demanded today by the CIO.

The demand came from president Philip Murray as the CIO opened its twelfth national convention in the Palmer House. He made it in his report to the 600 delegates representing some 6,000,000 CIO members.

Murray concentrated so much of his 72-page report on the mobilization program that he made it obvious he considers it labor's most urgent item of business.

He said the Federal Defense Production Act, which sets up the program, "fails in its purpose as an anti-inflationary weapon" and will "serve only to weaken" the mobilization effort.

Refuse To Hear Testimony For Substitute Tax

Washington, Nov. 20—(AP)—House Ways and Means Committee Democrats refused today to hear testimony on a Republican-proposed substitute for the Administration's $4,000,000,000 (b) excess profits tax plan.

By vote of 15 to 10—the party division on the committee—the group rejected a motion by Rep. Reed of New York that businessmen witnesses be allowed to give their views on alternative proposals.

Reed, top Republican on the committee, has proposed a substitute plan that would let a taxpayer compute his excess profits tax by applying a 27 per cent tax on normal net income and a 28 per cent surtax on excess income over $25,000.

80-Year-Old Bus Driver Never In Road Accident

Groton, Mass., Nov. 20—(AP)—The 81-year-old record of an 80-year-old woman school bus driver is this town's best argument that feminine drivers are careful and competent.

Mrs. Lillian Clapp's safety record goes back to pre-automobile days when she drove children to school (1899) with a horse and wagon—or sleigh in the winter season.

A half-century ago, Mrs. Clapp received $6 a week for driving children to school.

Now she operates a bus and gets $6 a day.

She has never had an accident, and was laid up only once—for two weeks with appendicitis.

Thanksgiving Day Pageant Tuesday

A Thanksgiving pageant "Of These Freedoms" will be presented tomorrow night in the Greenville high school auditorium by the high school band, mixed chorus and dramatizers. The pageant will begin at 8 o'clock.

The high school mixed chorus of more than 100 members under the direction of Miss Ona Shindler will render the vocal music and the 65-piece high school band under the direction of James Rodgers will provide the orchestral music for the pageant.

Twenty-four members of the dramatizers under the direction of Claude West will participate in the pageant.

The pageant will open with two numbers "The Worldglobe" and the National anthem by the band followed by a prelude "Prayer of Thanksgiving."

Individual dramatizers who will take parts in the pageant are Ann Ruffin, Barbara Tilley, Joel Bunch, Frances Sigmon, Rachel Pollard, Jimmy Phelps, Dinah Porter, Julius Kilgore, Mac Crawford, Ann Wilkerson, Nurtia Mayo, Wynette Garner, Carolyn Clapp, Anwer Joseph, Jimmy Cheatham, Doug Morgan, Sam Hux, Joe Rowland, Zack Taft, Billy Woolfolk, Jimmy Brewer, Patsy Smith, Shirley Clark, and Betty Jane Bunch.

The assistant dramatic coach for the pageant is Kathryn Clark, stage manager is Suggie Sugg and Betty Jane Bunch is in charge of costumes.

Rains, Melting Snow Floods Big Area California

Fresno, Calif., Nov. 20—(AP)—Perhaps the worst flood in central California history took two lives, drove thousands from their homes and damaged millions of dollars worth of property, crops, highways and livestock.

Mountain streams, normally little more than rivulets, bloated into raging torrents under the impact of days of driving rain and melting snow from the Sierra.

Some communities were inundated. Others were threatened by weakening dikes. Roads and bridges
