New Danger Grows For Flood Area

Sacramento River Levees Strained; Runoff Waters From Dam Watched

By the Associated Press Two north central California areas today faced new threats from avalanches of muddy, debris filled flood waters that had begun a general recession elsewhere in California and Nevada.

The floods have caused at least nine deaths and more than $20,000,000 damage in three days.

Army engineers warned residents along the Sacramento River between Sacramento, Calif., and its mouth to watch for possible levee breaks as the crest of the combined Sacramento and American Rivers surges downstream. The engineers termed the situation critical and ordered out 150 men to patrol levees near Sacramento. Crews worked on levees weakened by nine days of rain.

The second danger area was near Modesto, where runoff waters from the Don Pedro Dam are expected to invade lowlands and residential areas today. The dam filled yesterday and 26,000 cubic feet of water a second are still flowing into it.

General relief seemed to be at hand, however.

The U. S. Weather Bureau in San Francisco reported "the excessive rainstorm... is ended." The bureau predicted generally fair weather over northern and central California today.

Reno faced a tremendous clean-up job.

The waters of the rampaging Truckee River are once again reined by their banks after a 12-hour flood termed "the worst in Reno's history" by the Mayor. Most of the $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 loss estimated by the Reno Chamber of Commerce was suffered in damaged hotels, stores and merchandise. Mud and water filled many basements containing stocks of Christmas goods.

California damage was estimated at $16,000,000 to $20,000,000 by the army engineers. The toll is expected to go higher. The state public works department says $2,000,000 damage has been done to highways and bridges alone.

Residence Saved From Fire; One Room Is Damaged

Considerable damage was done to the residence of Watson Spain, 511 Boyd Avenue last night when a fire broke out around an oil heating unit located in the bedroom.

Prompt work on the part of Greenville firemen kept the flames from spreading out of the bedroom.

Firemen battled the flames with high pressure booster lines operating off the newly purchased fire truck for nearly an hour.

All of the contents of a closet located in the bedroom were burned. Considerable damage was done to the ceiling and walls near the heater.

No other parts of the house were damaged except from smoke. It was the second time that local firemen have answered a call to the same residence, and to the same room. The last call came in January when a closet also was the source of the fire.

On The Yalu River

This Is The Second Time United Nations Forces Have Reached The Manchurian Border; Dramatic Prelude To Appearance Of Red China Delegation In U. N.

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Arrival of American troops at the Yalu River—boundary between Korea and Manchuria—provides a dramatic prelude to the scheduled appearance of Chinese communist representatives before the United Nations at Lake Success next week end to argue allegations of aggression against America.

The specific mission of the envoys is to substantiate their charges of U. S. aggression in connection with Formosa, Chinese Nationalist base. However, an effort is to be made by U. N. members to include a discussion of Korea, and some observers are speculating whether there might even be a chance for reaching an agreement with Peiping regarding the Korean situation.

Such a hope obviously involves wishful thinking, especially since the Chinese have refused to discuss the Korean issue. However, any legitimate effort towards peace is a worthy pursuit. The arrival of American forces at the Yalu River might provide the basis for introducing the subject. This isn't the first time U. N.

troops have got to the Yalu, of course. South Koreans fought their way to the boundary at the end of October, and it was then that the Red Chinese started throwing soldiers into Korea to aid the North Korean communists. The result was that the U. N. forces were driven back, and the chances of winding up the war before winter were glimmering. The Chinese Reds excused this action by charging that the Korean War was a product of aggression by America, and that the U. S. had designs on Chinese territory. Moreover, both the Chinese and the Russian governments were fearful for the safety of the Yalu River's great power works which furnish electricity for a wide area of Manchuria and Soviet Siberia. But that, of course, is far from the whole story. Allied authorities in the Far East feel sure that Moscow is the influence behind the Chinese intervention, and that the Russian scheme is to keep the Korean War going in order to weaken the western powers, especially the United States.

Dike Builders Battle To Save Town From Flood

Residents of Chowchilla, Calif., hurriedly build a sandbag dike to keep roaring flood water from spreading deeper over the town. Most of the town was covered to a depth of four feet before the dike was plugged. The flood is regarded as perhaps the worst in the history of central California. It has taken two lives and driven thousands of people from home. Property damage is estimated in the millions. (AP Wirephoto).

Schedules 44 Cases For Criminal Court

Last Superior Court Term For Year Opens Monday; Judge Halstead To Preside; Murder Case Included

The last criminal term of the Superior Court year for Pitt will be held next week, beginning Monday morning at 10 o'clock, with 44 cases scheduled for trial by Solicitor W. J. Bundy.

Judge William I. Halstead, who is holding a civil term this week, will preside during the term. Heading the calendar is a murder indictment against William Gardner, Grimesland Negro, charged with the murder of Lester T. Peyton, Negro, last June 6.

At a coroner's inquest, held soon after the incident, it was learned Peyton died from gunshot wounds after an alleged fight with Gardner. The shooting occurred near Grimesland.

Gardner, who is in his early 30s, appeared for trial at the August term of Superior Court but was ordered by Judge Chester Morris to the Goldsboro State Hospital for observation by psychiatrists to determine whether he was sane enough to stand trial.

Physicians there stated in a report to the Clerk of Superior Court he was mentally able to do so.

In addition to the trial for murder, one manslaughter trial is scheduled. The trial concerns George C. Dunn who was indicted earlier this year for the poolroom slaying of Louis C. Driver in the Scuffleton community. Driver was a Pitt County native and Dunn is a resident of Greene.

The term is again heavily laden with drunk driving indictments, numbering 18 in all, totaling the largest number to be tried in Pitt in one week's court this year.

Other trials slated by number are: assault, three; liquor, three; motor vehicle law, three; larceny, four; and one each for breaking and entering, robbery, and drunk and disorderly. Two cases are scheduled for nol pros and one for judgment.

The term is a special criminal term requested of and granted by Governor Scott at the solicitor's request. The third special term for the year was asked for after Judge Morris became ill at the October term of court.

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 22—(AP)—The Council of State today approved a request by the State Bankers Association that Dec. 26 be proclaimed as a banking holiday in the state.

Tobacco Growers To Meet Friday

Will Discuss Program And Expected Overplanting

A special meeting of all farmers of Pitt County will be held Friday night at seven o'clock at East Carolina's Austin Building for the purpose of discussing and concretizing viewpoints concerning the 1951 tobacco program.

Upwards of 1000 farmers have been invited to attend the meeting which is sponsored by the Pitt County Farm Bureau. Particular attention during the meeting will be devoted to expected overplanting of tobacco allotments next year. It is the opinion of the Farm Bureau the farmers would like to retain the present system of allotments and price supports in an effort to prohibit surpluses arising as they did in 1951 and 1952.

Four principal speakers have been lined up for the occasion by the officers of the Pitt organization. They are Alton Edwards, president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau; Carl Hicks, president of the Tobacco Stabilization Corporation; R. Flake Shaw, executive vice president of the State Farm Bureau; and G. T. Scott, state chairman of the Production and Marketing Administration.

The speakers are not scheduled to make formal addresses. Rather, they are appearing to answer the farmers' questions and to lead discussions on topics pertaining to the program.

In urging the county tobacco farmers, which includes just about every grower in Pitt, to attend the open meeting, W. A. Allen, president of the Pitt Bureau, stated today.

"The Farm Bureau is dedicated to fighting the farmer's battles but your (the farmers') presence and support is urgently needed to meet this trying challenge. This meeting is your opportunity to add your support to maintaining our tobacco program. Be sure to come and bring your neighbor."

Stassen To Go On Global Trip

Philadelphia, Nov. 22—(AP)—Harold E. Stassen, Republican leader and presidential aspirant, leaves next week on a round-the-world journey as a private citizen seeking information on economic and political developments especially in Asia and Africa.

This was reported today by a Stassen aide, who will accompany the University of Pennsylvania president on the five week trip by air.

Plea For Probe Appears Doomed

Lake Success, Nov. 22—(AP)—Nationalist China's plea for a United Nations commission to investigate her charges of Russian aggression received slim support today in the General Assembly's Political Committee. It seemed doomed.

France and Australia joined Britain and the Soviet bloc in opposing the Nationalist resolution. The opposite position has been taken by the United States.

Liked Divorcees

Hoboken, N.J., Nov. 22—(AP) Steve Dadiak said he liked to read newspaper divorce notices to get a line on possible dates with divorcees.

Last night he drove up to keep one with recently divorced Mrs. Catherine Morrison. But he didn't keep it. Police, tipped off ahead of time by Mrs. Morrison, took him in low instead of a disorderly persons charge.

Fair Board Has 3 New Members

Legion Negotiates Sale Of Property To County Fair

Pitt County Post 39 of the American Legion in regular monthly meeting last night named three members to the Pitt County Fair Board, heard reports on this year's fair operations, authorized the sale of property next to the airport to the fair and discussed other matters of business. Commander J. Howard Moyer presided.

Commander Moyer advised the post that, acting under a former resolution, he had negotiated the sale of the post property across the river to the fair and the post confirmed the action of his committee. In order to complete the transaction the post named Frank Taylor and Lester Turnage as trustees for the post to succeed Jeter Oakley and R. W. King.

Berman McLashorn who recently attended the national convention in Los Angeles and afterward enjoyed a trip to Hawaii as guest of the national organization, made a report of his trip to the post.

Larry Averette and Walter Lewis were reelected to succeed themselves on the Pitt County Fair Board and Gilbert Winders was elected to succeed James S. Jenkins on the board.

D. J. Whichard, president of the fair reported on this year's operations. He expressed gratification at the greater interest shown in the fair this year by the people of the county and pointed out that of the $3,000 offered in premiums there were enough exhibits to claim all but about $200.00 of the premium money offered. He stated he believed this was somewhat of a record and probably would surpass other fairs in this respect. He stated that the fair would show on the newly acquired property next to the airport next year and promised that the board would make every effort toward a bigger and better fair.

Expect 150 Students For 'Congress' Here Friday

More than 150 high school students are expected to arrive in Greenville Friday to take part in a student congress being sponsored by the Greenville Chapter of the National Forensic League.

Opening sessions will be presided over by Betsy Castelle in the Senate and final session will open at 7:00 in the evening and continue until 9:15.

"The student congress is a real opportunity for pupils to gain speech experience and for American history students to learn United States government in action," stated R. B. Stirling, faculty adviser of the local speech organization, this morning. The student congress is held each year by the local club to stimulate interest in speech work in the county and nearby schools.

Later on in the year, State and Regional Student Congress with students from many states will be held at points not yet announced.

Large Still Raided And Destroyed By ABC Men

One of the largest illicit stilleries to be uncovered in Pitt county in the past several months was raided by a large ABC officers raiding party yesterday afternoon.

The still was located in the Hardy's Neck section of Pitt county about two miles west of Grimesland, and was in operation. One arrest was made at the still, Jimmie Boston, negro, age 22, of Jamesville, was at the still when the raiding party came into view. Boston ran from the still site and was chased by officers for several hundred yards before he was overtaken. When apprehended, Boston pleaded with officers as they fastened handcuffs on his wrists, "Boss, please fasten my belt, as I have almost run out of my pants." The officers in turn did their good deed for the day with no embarrassment resulting.

Heavy Majority For 'Coalition' Seen In Congress

Southern Democrats Plan Take Advantage Of Stronger Position

Washington, Nov. 22—(AP)—A working majority of at least 5 votes was claimed today by a spokesman for the Republican-Southern Democrat coalition expected to dominate the House in the next congress.

And across the Capitol, Southern Democrats were reported lining up behind Senator McFarland (D-Ariz) for majority leader in the new Senate.

The move—disclosed by a Dixie lawmaker who asked not to be named—indicated that Southern senators intend to take full advantage of the strengthened position given them by election defeats of Northern and Western Democrats.

The estimate of GOP-Southern Democrat strength in the House came from Rep. Aloysius J. Sweeney, the assistant GOP floor leader. While a coalition has been effective there in recent years, the elections gave it added strength.

Arends told reporters the coalition does not propose simply to block portions of President Truman's domestic program and to take a close look at foreign programs. It will offer "constructive" plans of its own, he said.

In the new House convening in January, there will be 199 Republicans, 235 Democrats and one independent. That represents a drop in Democratic strength of 27 votes from the present line-up.

But of the 235 Democrats, about 100 hail from the South, and most Southerners have been cool to the president's legislative program.

Arends put at 240 votes the "rock bottom" strength of the anti-administration group in the new House. A House majority is 218 votes.

Rep. Cox of Georgia, a leader of the Southern Democrats, was more liberal. He claimed the coalition could muster at least 252 votes anytime it needs them.

If Arends' more conservative estimate proves right, the administration forces could count on only 195 sure votes.

Southern Senators' backing for McFarland as floor leader apparently is based primarily on the fact that he voted with them against breaking a filibuster which shelved the Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) bill in the present congress.

Crisis Meeting

London, Nov. 22—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee announced today the heads of the British Commonwealth nations will meet here behind closed doors in January to discuss the international crisis.

Attlee told the House of Commons the prime ministers of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, Pakistan and Ceylon will attend the conference.

Dr. Daniel Malan, prime minister of South Africa, will send a representative.

The prime minister of Southern Rhodesia also will be present.

Engineers Differ Over Smoke Cure

Concur On Analysis Of Smoke-Ash Condition; Solution Plans Vary

Two engineers' reports submitted to the Greenville utilities concerning smoke conditions in the Third Street school section of the city coincided in the general analysis of the conditions, but differed in some details of recommendations for alleviating the condition.

The reports were sent to the utilities commission by H. B. Lammers, chairman of the Coal Producers association committee for smoke abatement, and Carl A. Weston, district engineer for the Thermix corporation. The reports were made public by the Greenville utilities commission which will discuss the reports along with a report from a third engineer in a special meeting within the next week or two.

Lammers in his report stated: "Much of the smoke, dirt and cinders in the area (near the power plant) may result from the switching locomotives. Operations observed indicated a great deal of objectionable smoke at times as well as cinders. Since the locomotives operate at a very low elevation, much of the dirt emitted from the stacks falls on the complaint area."

"The power plant emits smoke and fly ash. The former is approximately at the limit usually permitted by ordinance in cities having such regulations; the latter dust loading conforms to what is approximately permitted in other cities."

However the combination of plant elevation and stub stack prove to be a very decided disadvantage in that the top of the power plant stack is but approximately 45-50 feet above the plateau on which residential properties are located. The stub stack and general location results in some additional down draft at this point. Even with an efficient dust collector, a great deal of dust will be thrown out on the complaint area."

Lammers said in his report "the basic equipment installed in the plant is satisfactory," but that consideration might be given to a taller stack and a more efficient fly ash collector.

In his recommendations, Lammers suggests additional equipment may help remove some of the fly ash which is being emitted from the power plant; but in his recommendations he advises, "before any major changes to the present collectors are made" the Pratt and Daniel company be contacted and requested to send engineers here to study the problem and equipment.

Lammers made specific recommendations for more careful operation of the power plant to keep smoke and fly ash to a minimum. He suggested smoke recorders be used to keep operators and supervisors informed and smoke criticism if underserved or not in line with the record." He advised an analysis of the coal to determine ash content, a check by an engineer on the performance of the pulverizer mill, and other operational precautions which would cut down the amount of ash emitted from the plant stack.

The report by Weston was made from an investigation of the Greenville plant by E. W. Dandridge, engineer in charge of service for the Pratt-Daniel corporation, and Weston.

In his report the engineer stated: "Examination of the dust collector equipment in connection with your number 2 steam generator unit which was off the line at the time of our visit indicated that the equipment is operating in such a way as to remove approximately 85 per cent of the ash leaving the steam generating equipment." He recommended minor repairs to the equipment which he said would produce more efficient operation.

The report stated: "The operation of the unit was satisfactory though some improvement might be made as outlined below. The

School Bus Hits Truck In Minor Highway Mishap

A minor highway accident yesterday afternoon involving a Pitt County school bus and a car sent Pitt's accident toll for the month of November to 32.

According to Patrolman Richard Chadwick, a car driven by Francis Drake Dixon of Route 2, Greenville, was struck in the rear by a county school bus. The accident occurred on a narrow rural road between Hudson's Cross Roads and Hudson's store, about two miles from Black Jack.

Chadwick stated that the driver of the car told him that she had stopped to discharge a passenger and saw the bus in the rear mirror and thought that it was a safe distance away.

The driver of the school bus, Kermit Gatlin, of Route 1, Grimesland, stated that he turned his head to determine the reason for noise in the back of his bus, and that when he looked up he was right on the car.

The vehicles suffered little damage. No charges were filed against either of the drivers.

Big Bombers Hit Vital Red Bases

Utilities Oppose Excess Profits Tax As Planned

Testimony Winds Up Week's Hearing By House Tax-Writing Body

Washington, Nov. 22—(AP)—Spokesmen for the public utilities industries said today an excess profits tax might mean higher charges to the average citizen—more for gas, electricity, telephone and transportation services.

A score of witnesses representing major utility groups urged special consideration for utility companies whose profits are regulated by state and federal agencies to a "fair return"—usually six per cent—on capital investment.

Their testimony wound up a week's hearings by the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. It has been working on President Truman's call for a $4,000,000,000 tax on business profits to help finance the nation's defense program.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) expects to hold the committee in Washington over the Thanksgiving weekend to bring out a bill in time for debate by the short session of Congress convening on Monday.

In general, utilities spokesmen urged that they be given 100 per cent tax credit for "normal" earnings computed over the proposed base period of 1946-48.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's suggested formula for computing the "excess profits" tax would allow only 75 per cent credit against average earnings computed as normal for that time. All other profits would be taxed at the rate of 75 per cent.

Will Reconsider Export Control For Some Items

Washington, Nov. 22—(AP)—The Commerce Department told Senate probers today that the goods it allowed to go to Red China were (a) not of strategic importance and (b) in surplus supply in this country.

The department's answer to complaints by a Senate commerce subcommittee was made to Acting Chairman O'Connor (D-Md.) by Ray C. Miller, head of the department's Office of International Trade.

Miller said that in view of the interest shown by the subcommittee, a government inter-agency committee on exports will take another look at the advisability of re-controlling certain rejected and scrap steel items.

Rent Control Battle

Another Shooting Spree Over Rent Controls In Congress; Confused Battleground For This Key Item

By MAX HALL

Washington, Nov. 22—(AP)—The cold war over rent controls is about to break out into another shooting spree in congress. Everybody dukes.

This happens once or twice each year. But it's a bit different this time. The battlefield will be somewhat hard to trace on the map. Rent controls have been largely in the hands of local communities for some time now, and there is no uniformity in the land.

American cities and towns fall into several groups.

1. Some have never been under rent controls.

2. Some have de-controlled themselves. They decided they no longer needed rent ceilings. So they took advantage of a federal law passed in 1949, and got rid of them. This group includes Miami, San Diego, Oklahoma City and about 400 other communities.

3. Some have been de-controlled on the initiative of the federal government, on the ground that the housing shortage had ended there. More than 500 communities are in this group.

Staging Areas In Northeast Korea Blasted; Infantry Patrols Probe Entire Front Where Reds Plan Stand; MacArthur Reports General Advance

Seoul, Nov. 22—(AP)—B-29 bombers blasted Communist staging bases in northeast Korea today as infantry patrols probed along the entire front to find where the Reds plan to make a stand.

Waves of Superforts rained 140,000 pounds of high explosives on the Musan border area while other B-29s struck the port of Chongjin, 45 miles to the southeast. It was the second strike in a week at Musan.

North Koreans are reported reorganizing and Chinese Reds concentrating at Musan to block the United Nations march toward the Soviet Siberian border.

Musan is 80 miles northeast of Hyesanjin, where U.S. Seventh Division troops raised the U.N. blue and white flag Tuesday on the Yalu River opposite Red Manchuria. Other Seventh Division infantrymen were hunting for a fight with two Communist battalions reported to be holed up 10 miles southwest of Hyesanjin.

General MacArthur's war summary in Tokyo reported: "United Nations forces continued to advance generally along the entire Korean battle front yesterday (Tuesday)."

Here's the way the front looked from east to west:

East coast—Eight inch guns of the U.S. cruiser St. Paul panned the way for the Republic of Korea (ROK) Capital Division pursuing "a retreating disorganized enemy" toward Siberia.

South Koreans were eight miles south of Chongjin port city 55 miles from the Soviet border where the Reds apparently were preparing to make a stand. The Communist Chongjin after being struck, ran into heavy anti-aircraft fire there.

Manchurian border—The Seventh Division's 17th Regimental Combat Team dug in around Hyesanjin. It reported no sign of enemy activity on either side of the 100-yard wide Yalu River which divides Korea from Red China's Manchuria.

Other Seventh Division elements, 15 miles to the south, struggled with faulty maps and bad roads in an effort to find and wipe out two Communist battalions. The Reds were in Samsu, 10 miles southwest of Hyesanjin.

One road that maps said went to Samsu ended abruptly seven miles up in the mountains near Kyohang. The Americans tried another. This was blocked by a burning bridge and a landslide.

Car Crashed In Store Window After Accident

Considerable excitement was caused last night when an automobile belonging to W. O. Dudley, of Richmond, Virginia, jumped the sidewalk near Roep's store on Evans and crashed into the side window.

The apparent cause of the accidental crash into the window of the store came as a result of a minor automobile collision which occurred at the intersection of Fourth and Evans streets.

Greenville police officers arrested Ella Proctor Greathouse, of Snow Hill, driver of one car and Dudley, the second driver, on charge of careless and reckless driving.

The Dudley car was damaged on the left rear fender while the Greathouse car was slightly damaged in the front grill.

No one was injured.

Thanksgiving Service

"Thanksgiving" is the lesson sermon topic for Christian Science services to be held on Thanksgiving Day. The Golden Text: "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with rejoicing." (Ps. 107:21,22). Citations from the Bible: "O Lord my God, I cried unto thee, and thou hast healed me. Thou hast turned for me my mourning into dancing: thou has put off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness; to the end that my glory may sing praise to thee, and not be silent. O Lord my God, I will give thanks unto thee for ever." Ps. 30:2,11,12)

From "Science and Health" by Mary Baker Eddy: "To those leaning on the sustaining infinite, today is big with blessings."

The annual Thanksgiving service will be held in the Christian Science church, 1006 Dickinson Avenue, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Most large lumber and paper companies in the United States have placed their timber resources under management which will yield a continuous growth of trees.

Mrs. Flavia C. Kaufman, 2436 70th Ave., Baton Rouge, Louisiana, says it is a full time job keeping tabs on her little granddaughter, Mildred Gore, but it is a job she thoroughly enjoys. Yes, everything in life for her these days is enjoyable—because she has at last found her secret of feeling better. She now takes HADACOL regularly because she was suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron.

Here is Mrs. Kaufman's statement: "I have been taking HADACOL for over a year. Before I started taking HADACOL I was terribly nervous and upset all the time. I was underweight and just couldn't eat at all. My appetite was so lax that I ate irregularly at all hours of the day. Then I started taking HADACOL. After the third bottle I felt 100% better. I have gained weight, my appetite is tremendous and, best of all, I sleep well nights and my nerves are steady as can be. HADACOL is a very wonderful product. I just can't praise HADACOL enough."

HADACOL is that wonderful new preparation—promising blessed relief for your indigestion, stomach disturbances (gas, heartburn, sour "risings" after meals), as well as that general run-down condition, and nagging aches and pains, if due to a lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin in your system.

HADACOL is so amazingly successful because if your system lacks Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin it acts directly to relieve this deficiency—the real cause of your trouble. That's the kind of product you want—the kind you should buy—the kind you should start taking immediately.

Only One Genuine HADACOL. Don't go through life suffering those nagging aches and pains if caused by such deficiencies when relief may be as close at hand as the nearest drugstore for sufferers from these deficiencies. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL. If your drugist does not have HADACOL, order it direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

sign, which may have prevented the accident had it been erected, was taken down when highway crews were working on the roads, and was not replaced. The fact that the sign which would well have prevented the death of a man was not replaced points to negligence on the part of someone or some group of individuals connected with the highway commission.

An accident has been caused by someone's negligence. A man was killed in the accident which in all probability could have been prevented had an individual attended to his job.

Yet the coroner's jury holds there is no ground for placing the blame for the accident on either of the drivers of the vehicles involved in the crash. We must assume then there is surely evidence which indicates someone in charge of the road work at the particular intersection is at least partially to blame for the accident.

Negligence on the part of drivers is a criminal offense which in a fatal accident could result in charges of manslaughter. If there was negligence on the part of those whose job it is to maintain the highways, it should not go unpunished in the case of this fatal accident.

Progress Is Hard To Beat

Another fire truck is coming to Pitt county by virtue of the action of the Winterville board of aldermen. The town is spending approximately $7,350 for the new piece of fire equipment which will give the town its own real fire protection for the first time.

Winterville is a small town, but when it comes to civic improvement, it sets a pace which few if any of the towns of Pitt county can surpass. It wasn't so many months ago that Winterville almost overnight transformed its appearance by hardsurfacing practically all the streets of the town. At the present time a new community building is nearing completion, and will be opened before too long. And just a few days ago the town board let the contracts for the new fire truck which will arrive in April.

The town of Winterville is making a lot of progress and is setting a good example which could well be followed by other towns, large and small, in Pitt county.

News Behind the News
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—The swaddling clothes television industry has landed squarely in the middle of an uproarious political struggle as a result of the Federal Communications Commission's highly controversial order authorizing use of the color system developed exclusively by the Columbia Broadcasting Company and its associates.

With more than 9,000,000 families now owning sets, it will be fought out in living rooms as well as in the courts and on Capitol Hill. It will involve the unions because of the order's possible adverse effect on sales, business activity and employment.

It has already led rival companies—Columbia and Radio Corporation of America—to engage such politically influential counsel as Samuel I. Rosenman and Clark Clifford, respectively, two White House ghost writers.

INVESTIGATION—It will probably lead to a Congressional investigation of charges that FCC has exceeded its authority, shown economic partiality and behaved in a high-handed and dictatorial manner. It may force President Truman to revamp the commission when and as vacancies occur.

Chairman Wayne Coy, a combination of Fair Dealer and New Dealer, may face stiff Senate opposition if he is reappointed next June. He has been one of Columbia's strongest champions on the agency, teaming up with such a former anti-Truman opponent as ex-Representative Robert E. Jones of Ohio.

MONOPOLISTIC—Senator Taft has followed the situation closely, and is understood to feel that the FCC has gone much too far. Other Congressmen on committees regulating the radio-television field fear that the order constitutes as flagrant an example of monopolistic tendencies as has been witnessed around the Capitol in years.

According to this theory, it is as if, in the early days of the automobile, the government demanded that all cars be equipped with a certain engineering device produced by only one firm.

In that event, the customer would have to buy that make or go to the expense of adding the government-specified gadget to his machine.

HEALTHY—The FCC's disruptive directive also comes at a time when the industry was beginning to reach a healthy state after years of heavy losses during the period of development and educating the public to this new medium. Now most of the manufacturers, distributors and dealers report that they are in the black.

Should sales fall off after the holidays, as expected, the decline will be attributed to the FCC's hasty and unexplainable intervention at this particular moment. Other factors, such as the new tax and credit regulations, will be partially responsible, but emphasis will be placed on the government's alleged high-handedness.

PRESSURE—As the Chicago court suggested when it granted an injunction against immediate use of the CBS color system, it might have been wiser, legally, economically and politically, for the FCC to give the various competitors more time in which to develop color telecasts that would be universally available to the seeing and listening public.

Finally, home audiences appear to be in no mood for color on their screens. The pressure for precipitate action has come mainly from Advocate Rosenman, his clients and the Coy-Jones bloc on the commission.

Anyway, it has been many years since a single federal agency has invited a fight from so many powerful interests on and off Capitol Hill.

HANDICAPS—The names of two prominent Democratic Senators are written in capital letters in the Truman-Boyle black book because of their contribution to the party's November 7 reverses, and the handicaps they have hung around the Truman-for-1952 movement.

One is Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who first antagonized the take-it-easy Missouri-crowd by smashing the regular Crump machine in Memphis a few years ago. The second is Guy Gillette of Iowa, whose current independence of presidential persuasion derives from his survival of the Roosevelt "purge" in 1938.

Mr. Kefauver's new crime is that he exposed the crooked connection between law enforcement officers and politicians, mostly Democratic, in the months before the polls opened. He was impervious to quiet suggestions that he delay any action or hold closed hearings. He is held directly responsible for the defeat of Senate Leader Lucas of Illinois, and for a general fall in the Democratic vote in many large cities.

Shall We Tell Him?

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Many times I have wondered what I'd do if I had the opportunity to interview a big wheel, like Harry Truman or Betty Grable. The biggest figure, literally and figuratively, I've encountered so far is Lauritz Melchior, star of the Metropolitan Opera, screen, and radio. He was easy because he loves publicity.

Last week Carl Shires, a 24-year-old student of Columbia University, stumbled into a lucky personality, no other than Joe Stalin's boy, Jacob A. Malik. Before entering Columbia, Carl was a copy boy on the Richmond Times-Dispatch, but last week the Times-Dispatch printed his interview with Malik.

How did a 24-year-old student get the interview with Malik? Very simply; he just walked up to him in the delegate's lounge at Lake Success and started a conversation. Odds are 10 to one that if he had gone through normal channels, he could have never made an appointment. That type of boldness reminds me of the American lady who telephoned Joe Stalin immediately after the outbreak in Korea to ask him what he was up to. "Mr. Stalin," an official tactfully said on the phone, "is not feeling well and therefore is not receiving calls."

Mr. Malik's response to Shires was much better. In fact, he even took a couple of digs now and then during the interview, living up to his reputation. Malik was very clever to reverse the interview. As it appeared in print, it looked more like Malik had interviewed Shires.

When he learned that Shires is a student at Columbia, he mentioned Columbia's president, Ike Eisenhower. "A great peace-loving nation like America," he said, "should have an ex-general in the White House." Of course he was referring to the campaign which is underway to interest Ike in a presidential nomination for 1952.

Then Malik began to shoot questions at Shires: "Has the general at Columbia militarized everyone?" After Shires had assured him that he had not, Malik wanted to know, "Do you study for war or for peace?"

Shires shot back, "For neither. I'll tell you boys at the United Nations do my war and peace studying." Malik seemed to like that statement. He grabbed Shire's hand and shook it. "During the interview," Shires said, "we shook hands four times—at the introduction, at the departure, and twice spontaneously at Malik's instigation. I still don't know why we got in those two extra ones."

And I thank you.

Raleigh, N. C.

OUCH!—Governor Scott hit back at his critics during the regular press conference Tuesday in such manner as to leave no doubt of the criticism of his administration has gotten under the gubernatorial skin. The conference was moving along in routine style, with the governor getting in some licks at monopolistic throttling of state progress by private corporations, very frank answers to some questions and obviously evasive answers to some others, but with everybody on friendly terms. Then a reporter's question about alleged peculations and progress of the petty graft investigation set off some minor fireworks.

"BABY STUFF"—Turning to Jesse Helms, newsman for radio station WRAL, and the reporter who "broke" the story on the J. B. Moore case, the governor said there is still a lot of things wrong in the set-up and that the matters which Helms has been parroting were just "baby stuff."

He further charged that Helms established himself as a critic of the administration and in his broadcasts could say nothing good about the governor or his program. The governor added that he knew of things much worse than any Helms had publicized, but that so much improvement had been made, he felt compliments should be mixed with adverse criticism. Helms insisted he had publicized the progress, the elimination of free meals at prison camps and other state institutions, the reduction in private use of state-owned automobiles and similar changes, and said he would be glad to help the governor in furthering the clean-up campaign. The radio man didn't think exposing the head of the prison department for improper conduct could be classed as "baby stuff."

AGUE—The governor was equally positive—and equally vague—in his statement that the cement trust had throttled development of a plant in this state by buying up land or obtaining options on land with limestone or marl deposits suitable for cement manufacture. Asked about the current program of the state obtaining mineral-rights leases on lands in southeastern North Carolina with cement materials, the governor said the idea was to save these deposits for development outside the "trust" groups. He added that the state has been talking about a cement plant for thirty years and always before the monopolistic group had come in and bought up land options to smother the plans for development. In answer to a direct question if he could cite times and places where this smothering process had been followed, he said he could not.

AGE—To get away from political controversy for a moment, the leases now being obtained on marl beds in the southeastern section of the state recalls the question of how old these deposits may be. A workman at the Superior Stone Company's marl pit at Belgrade gave the answer to that question. That particular bed is now two million and twenty-one years old, according to the workman. He told a group of visitors in 1943 that it was 2,000,014 years old. He knew, because in 1929 the state geologist said it was two million years old then. That makes it 2,000,021 now.

SPEAKERSHIP—Back to straight out politics and the contest for speakership of the 1951 house of representatives between Frank Taylor of Wayne and Fred Royster of Vance. The governor said he has not and will not take any "active" part in that race, leaving the impression he is not entirely disinterested in outcome.

PREFERENCE—The governor left no doubt of his preference, despite his lack of active participation in the contest. He said it would not make much difference, but admitted it would make some, on the effectuation of his program. In a characteristically cryptic observation he said: "He was antagonistic before, and it didn't make much difference." A reporter asked if he would further identify that "he" and the governor said he didn't think so. All the newsmen, of course, knew the reference was to Taylor, who was chairman of the appropriation committee last session and after the legislature was singled out by Governor Scott for personal castigation because of failure to go along all the way with the Scott "Go Forward" program. There is no doubt the governor would rather have Royster as speaker.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

HOSTILE YG GOVERNMENT.

(New Bern Sun-Journal)
 Nowhere among the world's democracies do we find such fear and distrust of government as in the United States. The Southern Political Science Association was told in Durham during the past week-end. Dr. Paul H. Appleby, dean of the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University, was the speaker. Even the burdens imposed upon the Germans by Adolph Hitler have not left as deep resentment against the government as is apparent throughout the United States, he added.

The authority found a fundamental reason in the fact that the American colonies were founded by men who fled the restrictions of monarchical government and this tradition of personal freedom flowered in the American Revolution. Desire for less restrictions led to the push westward across the Great Plains in the early 1800's. At that time the frontier offered a kind of secession to any citizen.

But there was, in the address of Dr. Appleby, the suggestion that there is less reason in and defense for American politics which he said are characterized by all-promising, all-denouncing speeches with suspicious and glib listeners for both. In no other place in the world he says, do we see candidates for governmental responsibility denouncing government and its works and appealing for support in effect by saying, "Put me in the government and I'll give you no government."

strained invective at everything governmental when the Republicans do the same when out of power. Apparently the people believe both of them, and believe in nothing governmental.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Store shelves and windows will soon have a new look. We've just got through one revolution in packaging and now we're about to go through another.

Since the end of World War II, there have been enormous changes in packaging. Few are the packages that look the same today as they did in 1945.

There were compelling reasons for the change. Manufacturers wanted to get away from the drab substitutes of the war; they wanted their products to stand out more in the increasingly competitive self-service fields; they wanted to take advantage of the new plastics, new foils and other new materials; they wanted their products to televise better. Now they are starting in all over again.

Paper and cardboard are rising in price and some grades are hard to get. Prices of paper containers were recently increased for the third time. Cellophane is very scarce and the National Association of Purchasing Agents reports that despite planned plant expansion, "it is optimistic to expect much increase in over-all production in less than two years."

Some plastics have also become difficult to get; most of them have gone up in price. Metal foils are even harder to come by. The 35 per cent cut in aluminum for civilian use, ordered by the National Production Authority, will cut into use of the new aluminum foil for packaging; the shortage of tin and lead will affect both price and supply. An order stopping the use of all metal foils for packaging would not be unexpected.

Cotton, which has many uses in packaging, is now at a thirty-year high in price.

Glass production was hit by the recent strike at soda ash plants, but it has pretty well recovered. However, glass containers are 7.5 per cent higher as a consequence of higher materials and labor costs.

Tin cans are still in adequate supply, but the shortage of steel as well as the shortage of tin may foreshadow restrictions, especially on cans for non-food products. More than 6 per cent of all steel production went into tin cans during the first half of this year and of this only 60 per cent was used for food.

Facing these facts, manufacturers are trying to devise new packages that will require cheaper materials in good supply—which will still look good on shelves and on televisions.

COMMITTEE PREPARES FOR MOTHER'S DAY
 While other people are planning for Christmas, the National Committee on the Observance of Mother's Day has been planning for May 13, 1951. It has already approved an official poster, painted by Norman Rockwell. The poster is being made available to advertisers for tie-ins. Profits from the license will be used for child welfare work.

HOME INSURANCE IN ONE "PACKAGE"
 While an automobile owner could get insurance for almost any eventuality in a single "package" policy, home owners usually have to get separate policies for every risk.

One insurance organization (the Insurance Co. of North America) has introduced a package policy for home owners, providing for fire, theft and liability protection at 20 per cent under rates for individual policies. It is sold for five-year terms and is payable in advance or in annual instalments.

Permission to write the policy has been granted by the Pennsylvania Insurance Department and similar authority will be sought in all states.

HUMAN ENGINEERING SUBJECT OF BOOK
 A study of the designing of mechanical equipment on the basis of detailed studies of human capabilities, which took three years to write, has been published in book form by the government. It was written by the Tufts College Institute for Applied Experimental psychology under contract with the Navy's Special Devices Center.

The "Handbook of Human Engineering Data for Design Engineers" is available from the Office of Technical Services, Department of Commerce, Washington 25, D.C. for $5.

NEW AND HOT SEALER: A new liquid sealer is said to protect auto body finish, chrome and interior trim. It is sprayed on from a pressure can and, with no rubbing, hardens in 40 minutes. (It is marketed by Phillips Products, 342 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.)

HEADREST: Dollies, towels and other cloth headrests found in railroad coach seats may give way to permanent headrests of woven Velon plastic (made by Howard Zink Corp., Passaic, N.J.) They may be cleaned by wiping with detergent.

HEATER: Chilly spots in plants, etc., may be heated by a new plug-in mat resembling a door mat. It is waterproof for safe use on wet floors, and can be used on walls or hung vertically in space. (It is by Walter B. Snook Enterprises, 751 Loma Verde Ave., Palo Alto, Calif.)

Hal Boyle's Column

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

(For Hal Boyle)

As far as I can figure, there's no way for an American to escape being a snob.

A young man named Russell Lynes has written a little book called "Snobs" in which he places people in categories according to their opinions. It seems to me Mr. Lynes has figured out Snobism so carefully that it is impossible not to be a snob, provided one has any opinions at all, and expresses preferences.

For instance, there are Regional Snobs—the ones who think where they come from is the best of all possible places. Lynes says the best known regional snobs come from Virginia, California and Boston, but actually can come from anywhere. He also has a category called the Reverse, or Anti-Snob, Snob, who says where he came from isn't the most wonderful spot in the world. That makes me a Regional Anti-Snob because I come from New York and I don't like it very much. There is, he points out, the Tolerance Snob (sub-division of Moral Snobs). This means that if you are proud of your live-and-let-live philosophy, you are assuming one type of superiority mantle. If you don't you are running the danger of being called a bigot—another type of snobbery. You can't win.

My own favorite varieties of snobs come under Lynes' "Sensual Snob" category. That's the food and Drink Snobs, with a further break-down to Herb Snob (a real Herb Snob is a FRESH Herb Snob) and Casserole Snobs. We've all known them — and I'm afraid I've got a little dish made with rice, onions, garlic, etc. that I do some small boasting about myself.

On the other hand, you're a Lynes-type snob too—he calls them the Plain American Food Snobs—when you proclaim loudly about hamburger, a good cup of coffee and eating in diners. In this connection, too, you're an Art Snob if you carry on about painting—and you're a Reverse Snob if you confess you don't know much about art but you know what you like.

There's even Game Snobbery. The chess player looks down on the bridge player. The bridge player scorns the Canasta fan. In sports, the golfer sneers at the bowler, and the billiard player high-noses the pool addict.

In all of this, land, apparently, we are running around trying to grasp security by finding something to feel superior about. Take, for example, Lynes' sub-grouping in the Regional Snob category. He's the Native Snob vying with the Summer Snob Snob. Both look down on the other—which is a very satisfying situation for everyone concerned.

The author hinted around the edges of what is a snob, but ducked a definitive enunciation on the ground that the worst snob in the world is one who defines a snob. Webster took a flyer at it, albeit unsatisfactorily. The dictionary's first definition is "a cobbler or shoemaker," which certainly wasn't what any of us have in mind. The number five definition comes closer: "one who repels the advances of those whom he regards as his inferiors; one conscious of his superiority; one inclined to exclusiveness."

Personally, I'm inclined to think that the way it has worked out, a snob is anyone who holds firm opinions concerning his own worth or interests and who expresses the opinions in cliches.

Washington Letter

By JANE HELEN

Washington—Mrs. Helen Hamilton Woods, socially prominent granddaughter of J. Pierpont Morgan and mother of four grown children, has a strong sense of duty to Uncle Sam and works around the clock to prove it.

Upon the death in 1942 of her husband, Arthur Woods, one of the original officers of the Army Force in World War I, a former New York police commissioner and head of the Williamsburg and Rockefeller building projects, she up and joined the Army.

One of the original WACS, she first served as consultant to Col. Oveta Culp Hobby in the original pre-planning group that set up the Women's Army Corps. She stayed in until 1946 and wound up as Lt. Col. Woods.

She is now on mobilization work assigned to the Military Art Transport Service. But that isn't her biggest job these days. As chief of the public liaison branch of the Economic Cooperation Administration, she is concerned with bearing all sorts of information on the Marshall Plan to Americans everywhere, through pamphlets, handbooks, speeches, exhibits and travel.

Her first job upon joining ECA 19 months ago was to suggest a program to meet the requests of national women's organizations.

"These particular groups felt they had a special stake in helping win the peace," she told me. "They felt we should give a certain amount of economic security to free peoples of the world through integrated joint effort."

Mrs. Woods and her staff got out a Marshall Plan Basic Handbook and booklet providing pertinent information to Americans traveling abroad. This is given to travelers by the State Department with their passports. She also gets out a periodic "Marshall Plan News" now running into 20,000 copies.

Mrs. Woods says the information project has developed like the "cuckoo in the nest"—that she not only works many hours during the day in her office, but takes her work home with her nights.

Strength for the Day

THANKSGIVING

This is a year, certainly, when we have much to be thankful for. The earth has brought forth plentifully. Employment has maintained itself at a high level. The health of the nation certainly has not been any worse than in recent years. We had our liberty challenged by the invasion of Korea, and that provocative situation has been handled by the United Nations—and chiefly by our own country—with a firm hand.

And yet all these things constitute but an outer shell. What about the inner life of our people? Are we better than we were a year ago? Is the spiritual life of the country richer and more responsive to the leading of the divine hand?

Full barns and numbing industries are fine, but no country is ever prosperous until its people are contented, well behaved, and purposeful.

What applies to the nation applies to the individual. And of this we can be sure—our condition of mind and heart is something over which we can exercise control if we only will. If we are not better persons than we were this time last year, it is our own fault.

Check up and see. What do you have to be thankful for? Not how much, but what?

Thanksgiving-1950

"Sing unto the Lord, O ye saints of his, and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness. For his anger endureth but a moment; in his favor is life: weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning. And in my prosperity I said, I shall never be moved."—Psalm 30; 4-6.

Three hundred thirty years ago a little band of people paused in their struggle to carve a home from a wilderness and gave thanks to Almighty God for his blessings. Today the band has grown into millions and the individual blessings have multiplied a thousandfold.

Thanksgiving day, 1950, finds American youths again on foreign soil laying down their lives for the freedom of the people of the world. The nation's industry is gearing itself to a war economy, and the world is preparing for another global conflict. But the hardships which appear ahead are completely eclipsed by the bountiful blessings which have been poured out to the people of this nation.

Is there a person among us who can say he has not been blessed by Almighty God during the past year? Is there a person among us who could not spend the whole day recounting his blessings, and find himself only partially through his task at nightfall?

Who thanked God for yesterday or for today; or for the opportunity to kneel and pray? Who thanked God for life and love, for faith and hope or even for a crust of bread?

Once each year in this land, the whirl of activity stops in a moment of Thanksgiving to God for his blessings. Each man must count and recount his own blessings, and give thanks to God in his own way.

In our surroundings of prosperity and happiness, the people of this nation are prone to forget the blessings which have been rained upon them during the past seasons. We accept our prosperity as a matter of course, and stop to consider its meaning only when it flies from us.

The people of this nation, which has been built upon the foundations laid by the Pilgrims on that first Thanksgiving, need to return to the altar of their forefathers and bow humbly before God in genuine Thanksgiving for His blessings.

May tomorrow's Thanksgiving find a prayer on every lip, a song of praise on every tongue for the blessings of God.

Someone Is To Blame For A Man's Death

A Pitt county coroner's jury has ruled that neither of the drivers involved in a collision near Stokes which claimed the life of a man should face criminal charges.

So far as the coroner's jury found, the accident was not caused by the negligence of either of the drivers. It came out in the hearing, however, that a stop sign which should have been up on highway 903 at the fatal intersection had been taken down and not replaced.

A witness at the hearing said the stop

You Can Bequeath Property -- And Protection

Even though you cannot bequeath your years of experience, which have made your business judgment so dependable, you can provide the same careful protection of your estate through a Trust arrangement. One creates a Trust under a Will by naming in his will a Trustee. One can change it or revoke it at any time. There are advantages to be gained...

- 1—A Trust under a Will gives a Trustee power to exercise discretion along the lines you designate.
- 2—It provides a steady income and provides also for emergencies in the way you desire emergencies to be met.
- 3—It protects a wife against embarrassing requests for loans from relatives or friends.
- 4—It gives a son and daughter financial backing when they need it.
- 5—It makes possible the elimination of duplicate costs and taxes.

The businesslike way to make sure that your estate is fully protected is to have your lawyer draw your Will, providing for a Trust arrangement.

Thrift And Maennle Chosen For All-Conference Team

Thrift Unanimous Choice For Squad

Dwight Shoe And Don McKenzie Receive Honorable Mention; Appalachian And Lenoir-Rhyne Place Five Men Each

Quarterback Roger Thrift and Frank Maennle, East Carolina's outstanding passing combination this season, have been placed on the 1950 All-North State Conference eleven.

Thrift was the coaches' only unanimous choice selection, and was named honorary co-captain of the 1950 team along with Frank Little, Lenoir-Rhyne end, who made the all-star team for his fourth year.

Thrift's record of 124 completions in 287 attempts for 1,907 yards and 20 touchdowns was the outstanding individual feat of the year, as he set an unofficial conference passing record.

Dwight Shoe, stellar flankman for Coach Bill Dole's forces, and Don McKenzie, outstanding guard on the Pirates' defensive unit, received honorable mention on this year's mythical team.

Appalachian's champions and Lenoir-Rhyne's Bears share honors in the annual All-North State Conference grid team, with five men each on the 22-man squad.

Eleon trails with four men, Catawba placed three, Guilford and East Carolina two each and High Point one to complete the roster.

Western Carolina and Atlantic Christian failed to place men.

The 20th year of conference history produced perhaps its greatest selection of stars.

Jack Groce, scabbard for Appalachian, gained 1,022 yards rushing in another outstanding individual performance.

Little, Thrift, Bill Topping of Guilford at end, Frank Snyder of Lenoir-Rhyne at guard and Al Johns of Guilford and Bill Lloyd of High Point in the backfield are re-peaters from last year's club. Lloyd is a three-time member of the All-Star squad.

The 22-man squad:

ENDS—Tom Hendrix, Appalachian; Frank Little, Lenoir-Rhyne; Frank Maennle, ECTC, and Bill Topping, Guilford; TACKLES—Bill Cleary, Appalachian; Bob Donaldson, Catawba; Sal Gero, Elon; Claude White, Lenoir-Rhyne; GUARDS—Henry DeSimone, Elon; Jack Pennell, Appalachian; Charles Price, Catawba; Frank Snyder, Lenoir-Rhyne; CENTERS—Earl Hen-

Bill Wells outstripped the other four keggers when he rolled 157; 163:155-475.

Leading the Penlites was Francis Whelihan with a three-game score of 433.

Meanwhile, Nine Lives were beating Black Cats in two games out of three and moving into first place from third which they occupied last week. Bill Bryan proved to be the workhorse for the Lives as he rolled the highest total for the night's activities. He bowled 510 on games of 166, 156 and 188, which score enabled him to move into third place in the three game bracket.

Best score for the Cats was by Sam Brooks with 445 on games of 127, 163 and 155.

Among the five best averages, Bryan was enabled to move back into first place which he gave way

Robersonville To Close Season As 'Host' Thursday

Robersonville puts the finishing touch on Coastal conference football Thanksgiving Day, as they play host to Central High of Elizabeth City at Robersonville.

Kickoff for the Turkey Day finale is set for 2:00 p.m.

Coach Bob Lee's scrappy eleven wound up in third place in the circuit standings with a 1-2-1 record, and have an overall record of three wins against four losses and one tie.

Robersonville will be minus the services of their outstanding passer, Billy Greene, who was injured in last week's 25-6 victory over Benvenue. However, Bobby Bullock, versatile runner for the Martin County lads, is expected to see yeoman duties at both tailback and wing-back.

Coach C. O. McMullen's Central High charges have a less impressive record, but are known for their speed and fighting spirit throughout the season.

South Edgecombe and Farmville closed out the league battles last week, with Coach Wiley Parker's second-place club emerging victorious in a thriller, 19-16, over the winless Red Devils.

Ayden's Tornados clinched their second conference title four weeks ago, as they rolled through an undefeated, untied season this year with nine straight victories, four of them coming in the conference.

Mighty Mites Play Raleigh In Bowl Tilt Here Tomorrow

Greenville's Exchange Club stages its second annual Exchange Bowl game here tomorrow afternoon, as Greenville's undefeated midgets clash with Raleigh's mites in East Carolina's college stadium.

Kickoff is slated for 3:00 p.m.

In its inauguration last year, the Exchange Bowl met with high success, as a large crowd was on hand to watch the Mighty Mites roll over Selma, 33-7, last Thanksgiving Day.

Coach Bill Kittrell sent his Tiny Tims through their last rough work yesterday afternoon, as they prepared for the strong Raleigh eleven.

Two injuries caused a headache to the midgets' able mentor yesterday, with Pat Sawyer, versatile little back, and David Zetour, a stellar tackle, turning up with knee injuries, and will be out of the lineup for the Turkey Day clash.

Tommy Key Norris was moved into a starting halfback position to fill Sawyer's vacancy, while Joe Taft will get the starting nod at tackle. Taft played a terrific game against Farmville's mites here Saturday night.

The Minutemen of Greenville will be seeking their eighteenth game without a defeat in tomorrow's holiday affray. They have rolled through seventeen straight games in two seasons, with only two ties marring their record.

The Exchange Bowl lineup for Greenville will probably see Salcedo and Johnson at ends; Moore and Taft at tackles; Hollingsworth and Barrett at guards; and Riddick at center.

In the backfield, Sideris will be a quarterback; Norris and Speight at halfbacks; and Howell at full-back.

Coach Walker Is Convinced State Play Was Illegal

Wake Forest, N.C., Nov. 22—(AP)—As far as Wake Forest Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker is concerned, N. C. State College's controversial game-tying pass play was illegal.

The Deacon coach, after viewing movies of the game yesterday, declared it was "very clear" that Referee Dave Kaufman should have ruled the play illegal and called the State touchdown back.

The play, in the closing minutes of Saturday's football game, enabled the Wolfpack to tie Walker's Wake Forest club, 6 to 6.

N. C. State Coach Beattie Feathers had previously conceded the play was on the borderline of doubt. However, he declared he thought the movies showed the play was legal.

New Career For Johnny Pesky

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22—(AP)—Boston Red Sox Third Baseman Johnny Pesky revealed today he was launching a new career later this month—disk jockey for a Boston radio station.

Pesky said he had signed a contract to be master of ceremonies on the musical record and sports comments program.

"It will be an all-request program," Pesky said, "and we'll play anything and everything—except the 'Yanks Are Coming.'"

Basketball Season Looms, But Grid Triumphs Of Pirates Not Forgotten

By BILL LLOYD

King Football has been concluded at East Carolina, and immediately after the Thanksgiving Day holidays, basketball will come into the spotlight.

But not forgotten is East Carolina's gridiron successes during their 1950 campaign.

Coach Bill Dole's colorful Pirate eleven, which plays the brand of football fans love to see, lived up to, and even surpassed, pre-season predictions that "they were an up and coming ball club and would definitely have to be contended with."

Two years ago, East Carolina didn't win a game, losing nine straight.

Last year, under the cautious and masterful guidance of Dole in his first year at "the home of the Pirates," East Carolina experienced its building process period with four wins against five losses and one tie.

This season, all faces have turned upward as Dole's dazzling Buccaneers have eluded their grid fortunes tremendously, winning seven while losing only three in close battles.

East Carolina opened the season against Naval Apprentice at Newport News, Va., and put the wind in their sails with a 21-7 victory.

One week later, the Pirates traveled westward for a game with highly-touted Lenoir-Rhyne. The Bears were greatly favored, but with Thrift tossing, Shoe and Maennle catching, and the defensive unit playing a terrific tilt, the Pirates emerged victorious, 27-19, in a major upset for their first conference win.

The next two weeks were the most dismal on the Pirate schedule, as they lost two straight, one to Hampden-Sydney, 38-26, in a hotly contested scrap, and the second to Elon, 21-16, after throwing a scare into the Christians in the first half, as the Pirates led 10-7 by virtue of Hardee's field goal.

The Purple and Gold charges quickly gained their footing again, as they rolled to two straight North State triumphs and one non-circuit win.

West Carolina fell before the Pirates' onslaught, 36-6, before a large Homecoming crowd; Guilford dropped by the wayside, 26-7; with the Dolemen making it three straight over Cherry Point with a 20-12 score, before a record 8,000 throng.

East Carolina played its worst game of the year at Boone, as wintry winds made Thrift's tosses inaccurate, and the Pirates were shutout, 20-0, by the Apps.

High Point and ACC rounded out tional riding honors on a face-to-face basis Monday at Bowie.

It's obvious, too, that their contest will be decided at Tropical Park in Florida in December. The jockeys, going into today's races, are tied with 333 winners apiece for the year. Both have thoroughly busted Johnny Longden's previous modern record of 319 for a year.

Cotton Bowl's Prospective Entry Scratched

Dallas, Nov. 22—(AP)—The Cotton Bowl has lost one good prospect but has plenty more in the pot for the Jan. 1 football classic in which Texas, champion of the Southwest Conference, will be host team.

Michigan State, member-in-waiting of the Western Conference, yesterday was denied permission by that league to play in the New Year's game here.

But the Cotton Bowl selection committee, headed by Joe C. Thompson Jr., is due to meet for the first time today to shake up the hat and see who can and will accept its invitation for the big show.

Doak Walker Is Setting Records

Detroit, Nov. 22—(AP)—Doak Walker, the guy who was "too small" for pro football, is making a run-away of the race for rookie of the year honors in the National Football League.

All the former Southern Methodist star has done this season in the uniform of the Detroit Lions is:

1. Score 91 points to rank second in the pro conference.
2. Lead the Lions in ground gaining.
3. Handle the team's punting, place-kicking, and kick run-backs.

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Lawenson

AP Newsfeature

Chapter 28
"Johnny, you've worked around here a long time."
"About forty years," replied O'Conner.
"You probably know everyone who worked on the railroad."
"I know a lot of 'em. Why?"
"Did Eric Linden ever work in the signal department?"
"O'Conner considered. "You mean that fuzzy-faced feller that's treasurer at something?"
"That's the one."
"Don't know as he ever worked for the signal department, but he worked different places. Started as a telegraph operator, I think, and was clerk in the traffic department a while."
"Has he ever been up here?"
"Oh, sure." O'Conner spat accurately at the open ash door of the stove. "All the big shots been here. Old Dick was right proud of this job and he was forever droppin' in. All the brass hats on the railroad was here a couple months ago."

"Was Johnson in the party?"
"President of the bank? Yeah, he was along."
"I see." Marc stood up and stretched lazily. He walked to the door, and waved to O'Conner. "So long, Johnny. Much obliged."
Starting across the tracks, Marc barely avoided being hit by the rear end of a train backing quietly toward him. He picked his way cautiously in the dark and headed toward a siding at the far edge of the yard where Mr. Richards' private car had been parked. As he reached for the rail to climb into the car, he was blinded by a stabbing beam of light shining full in his face.
"Goin' somewhere, buddy?" growled a gruff voice.
Marc blinked in the bright glare. "Yes, I'm going into this car, Officer. Will you please take that light out of my eyes? It hurts."
"Who're you? My orders are, no-body goes into this car."
"A wise precaution," said Marc, fishing in his pocket for his wallet. "Jordan. Here's my pass card. I'm working on this case with Inspector Anderson."
The policeman focused his light on the card proffered by Marc. Then, flashing the light back to his face, he nodded.
"Oh, yeah. I remember you. You was here when we found the body."
Marc smiled. "Right. Now may I go in the car?"
The policeman scratched his jaw dubiously. "Well, Anderson said no-body, but I guess it's all right for you, since you're on the force, in a manner of speakin'."
"Thanks, Officer. I'm sure Anderson'll support your decision. Smoke?"
Leaving a slightly befuddled minion of the law to puff a cigarette, Marc mounted the steps and entered the car; the same steps and the same car that had held such a gruesome shock for him only a few days before.
He found Cliff, chair tilted against the wall, deeply engrossed in a comic magazine. His feet hit the floor with a thud as Marc opened the door.
"Oh! Howdy, Mistah Jaw'd'n. Din't expect to see yo'?"
"Hello, Cliff," said Marc. "I thought you'd be taken care of things."
"Yas suh. Mis' Joan, she say stay heah."
"There's one question I want to ask you, Cliff. Did you deliver a note to Mr. Richards Tuesday evening?"
Cliff bobbed his head. "Yas suh. I did, suh."
"Where'd you get it?"
"F'm Andrews."
"And where'd he get it?"
"He say some lady tol' him to git it to Mr. Richards 'bout anybody seem' it. So Ah slips it to Mr. Richards on the sly."
"Did you see the lady?"
"No suh."
"Okay, Cliff. I want to look around again. I see you've cleaned up."
"Yas suh. Dat p'leeceman say he wuz through 'his snoopin' an' scratchin' round, so Ah's shined her up. Kin Ah he'p yo', Mistah Jaw'd'n?"
"No, I'm afraid not, Cliff. I've some thinkin' to do."
Marc walked slowly along the passageway, examining the details of the car. He opened the door to each room as he passed, and looked in. Entering the lounge, he snapped a light switch and flooded the luxurious furnishings with soft light. The litter of the last evening of occupancy had been removed. No speck of dust marred the bright surfaces. The brass had been burnished and the rugs cleaned.
Marc dropped into the end of the davenport with a sigh, and stretched his legs out. He was reclining against the soft cushions in this position when Cliff softly stepped through the door.
"Mistah Jaw'd'n, suh, wud yo' al'lik a cup o' coffee an' a—"

Marc leaped to his feet and strode toward the startled porter. Placing his hands on Cliff's shoulders, he shook him gently.
"Cliff!" he breathed. "You son-of-a-gin! That does it!"
Marc rapidly paced the length of the lounge and back, while Cliff stared at him in round-eyed wonder.
"What—what?" he gasped.
"Cliff, you've given me the last piece to this jig-saw puzzle. How stupid of me. It's just as plain as day. Now, Cliff, here's what I want you to do."

Scott Asks Help In Slowing Down Speedy Drivers

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 22—(AP)—Governor Scott has asked the Utilities Commission and the Motor Vehicles Department to help combat truck and bus speed violators.
"Vigorous action" is necessary, Scott declared yesterday as he referred to a report issued by the Highway Commission's Division of Statistics and Planning.
The report showed 25 per cent of buses using the state's highways exceed the legal speed limit of 55 miles per hour. It also showed that 48 per cent of the trucks exceed their allotted 45-mile-an-hour speed limit.
The governor admitted that accident reports show that trucks and buses have the lowest accident rate of all vehicles but declared "this does not give them any priority to speed on North Carolina highways."
"This report has brought to my attention a very distressing situation," said the governor in messages to Utilities Chairman Stanley Winborne and Motor Vehicles Commissioner Lindborn C. Rosser.
Of Winborne, Scott asked that the Utilities Commission check bus schedules and adjust them where it appeared that buses would have to speed to stay on time. He also suggested allowances in the schedules for weather, road, and traffic conditions.
Of Rosser, Scott asked that the motor vehicles chief have the State Highway Patrol increase its enforcement program. He also asked that the highway safety division's educational appeal to the public be stepped up.

Indians Look For A Mild Winter

Seattle—(AP)Indians who work for the Boeing Aircraft Company think this winter will be mild. Five of the men agreed that signs point to less snow and cold than last year. One woman disagreed. She thought there might be plenty of cold. Most of them said their parents or old people of their tribes were better at predicting weather than they were.
Last year Boeing also asked its Indian workers what the winter would be like. Last year they hit it on the nose—predicting lots of snow and cold.

Tells Secret Of Storage For Sweet Potatoes

New Brunswick, N. J.—(AP)—Dr. H. Raines of Rutgers University knows all about storing sweet potatoes. He says it is important because the U. S. sweet potato crop is worth $100,000,000 a year and 20 per cent of it rots in storage.
He says they should be stored at 80 degree temperature with 90 to 95 per cent humidity for a few days. This will give the potatoes a chance to grow new skin over damaged areas, and keep out disease. Then the temperature should be lowered to 55 degrees.
But if you are a housewife and just want to store sweet potatoes for a few days—dunk them in the refrigerator, he says.

Warships Shell Reds In Jungle

Singapore—(AP)—British warships are giving Communist terrorists in the dense jungles of Malaya a hot time. Units of the Far Eastern Fleet, cooperating with British air and land forces, are pumping shells into Communist camps as fast as they can be spotted.
British soldiers who often have to back their way into suspected jungle hideouts say the fleet is putting up "a fine show". From time to time, a destroyer or cruiser is dispatched from Singapore up the Malayan coast.

Keeping Secret Of Preservative

Los Angeles—(AP)In November of 1924 a member of the staff of the California State Exposition dropped a potato in a jar of fluid. Today the potato, which has been on display ever since, looks as fresh and firm as ever.
The formula of the preservative, which makes possible permanent exhibits of fruits and vegetables of all types, has remained a secret of the exhibit staff for more than a quarter century. Only two members at a time know it, according to Exposition Manager Louis V. Venator, who doesn't. The secret is passed to another only upon the death, retirement or resignation of one of the pair.

It would be easy to let the breath-taking power, the luxurious ride and the gleaming good looks of a Buick sweep you off your feet.

And once you've sampled the sweet response of Dynaflo Drive*—you feel a big lack in anything else.

But let's be practical about all this.

What does it cost to buy—and to own—this star performer?

The first answer is a look at delivered prices—and most people still are surprised to find that a car which offers so much actually costs so little.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

That's true, whether you put the SPECIAL, the SUPER or the superb ROADMASTER against other cars of comparable dimensions. They certainly shine on a first-cost basis.

But this is only half the story, as you'll soon find out on any used-car lot.

Year in, year out, the resale prices of Buicks stay much closer to first cost than the prices of cars with lesser merit.

And among recent models, Buicks with Dynaflo Drive command such a premium that you can almost figure you get this dream drive for free.

So why not let yourself go? Why not walk right into your Buick dealer's now and say, put me down for one of those!

There's no time like the present for showing your good judgment.

The Stewardship of Money

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalm 50:10-12; Proverbs 3:5-9; Mark 12:38-44; I Corinthians 16:1-5; II Corinthians 9:1-8; Philippians 4:10-20.

Jesus said to beware of scribes who loved to wear long clothing, to be saluted in the market place, take chief seats in the synagogues, upper rooms at feasts, yet oppressed the poor.

Seated near the treasury Christ watched people putting in their money. The rich dropped in large sums, but a widow threw in two mites (a farthing)—all she had in the world.

Jesus called His disciples to Him and told them that the widow's mite meant more to the Lord than all the rest, because, out of her poverty, she had sacrificed all she had.

About giving to the church, Paul wrote to the Philippians that every man should give, not grudgingly or of necessity, for "God loveth a cheerful giver."

MEMORY VERSE—II Corinthians 9:7.

THE STEWARDSHIP OF MONEY

HONOR GOD WITH THY SUBSTANCE AND THY INCREASE

Scripture—Psalm 50:10-12; Proverbs 3:5-9; Mark 12:38-44; I Corinthians 16:1-5; II Corinthians 9:1-8; Philippians 4:10-20.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

CHURCH FINANCES are always a serious matter. Few indeed are the congregations so wealthy and generous with their money that there are no money troubles. The old Jewish law made a man set aside a certain part of his income for the temple, and as his means increased, so was the size of his contribution supposed to. There is no such law in our land today. Each member of his particular church gives according to his means or inclination. Some poor give more generously in proportion to their means than do rich folk according to theirs. The Psalmist reminds us that God created all things and bestows blessings on us all, and in Proverbs we read: "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase." Jesus illustrated what type of gift would best please God when He sat on the steps (probably) of from a poor neighbor, or the woman who does your laundry to make a living for her children. Or the man who does odd jobs to make a living. Their gifts may be simple—something made by them in spare moments, possibly—but you know it represents affection and gratitude. Generous giving, according to your means, will have its reward, too, according to St. Paul, in a letter to the Corinthians. "But this I say, he that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart: not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." Few of those early Christians were wealthy, but they were generous. They collected money to send to Jerusalem, which was crowded with people, many of whom were in need.

The Golden Text

The widow's mite.

"Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart: not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." —II Corinthians 9:7.

MEMORY VERSE

"Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart: not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." —I Corinthians 9:7

the temple in Jerusalem to watch the people drop their money into one of the trumpet-shaped metal receptacles placed in the court of the women to receive the temple gifts. It is said to have been a custom for people to loiter there to watch proceedings.

They also thought of Paul, and saw that he was taken care of. To the Philippians he wrote: "But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care of me hath flourished again; wherein ye were also careful, but ye lacked opportunity."

Many rich people dropped their generous gifts into the receptacle. Then, as Jesus watched, there approached a poorly-dressed woman—evidently a widow—and into the container she dropped a very small coin—a mite. It may have been worth one-fourth of a cent, but it was all she had.

He thanked them for their gifts, but also explained his understanding of the fact that they had always been willing and eager to provide for him, but had no opportunity to do so.

Jesus gathered His disciples about Him and said, "Verily I say unto you, this poor widow cast in more than all they that are casting into the treasury: for they all did cast of their superfluity; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living."

It is a fine thing for all of us who belong to a church to stop and think of all we receive from our worship—in comfort in sorrow; of sympathy and understanding; in spiritual uplift, in friendship.

You know how it is with your own friends. You appreciate a lovely gift from a person who can well afford something expensive; but you do have a special feeling for the present from a child or

Then consider whether we are giving as much as we should in return. We may not be able to give much money or time, but we can give ourselves—our loyalty, a friendly, helpful spirit and co-operation in the church's work. Like the widow and her mite—it will please the Lord who made us all.

If you are an early Christmas shopper, no doubt you also like to wrap your packages before the sleigh bells jingle. Then too, if you get a nice early start, your packages can have elaborate gift wraps that will dazzle your friends. Christmas packages not only should enhance the gift but also should be a decorative item for under-the-tree, or on-the-mantel.
Let's say you are giving someone a tie for Christmas. You know how a tie box always is so tantalizing about its contents—the shape never is disguised. Brother always ruins the Christmas mood by saying, "What, another tie?"... or some such maddening exclamation. Well, you can still give a tie and wrap the box so prettily that it will distract the recipient from guessing at the contents. Here's how:
Cover the box with green or red paper. Tie with contrasting satin ribbon around the box 2 inches from the top and 2 inches from the bottom. Add a small tailored bow to each. Paste a snowflake cut from a paper doily below each of the ribbons. Then cut out two Christmas tree shapes, each from a round 6-inch paper doily. Paste these on the box, so that the top points of each tree are joined in the center of the box and the trees extend in opposite directions. Paste a large red star at the point (or don't quite join the tree tops and put a star atop each). Paste gold and red seals over both trees.
A candy cane gift wrap is fun for a hanky or a stocking box. Cover the box with plain or candy-cane design paper. Tie the ribbon around the box cater-corner fashion. Do this so that you have opposite corners trimmed with the and paste the edge around the bottom of the hat as a trim. Add a band of gold ribbon on top of the doily trim and a gold ribbon bow at the point of the hat. Paste the hat on the snowman's head.

If you make your snowman right, he'll sway slightly when you move the box.
Hard-to-wrap gift items such as homemade mittens, handkerchiefs or other items for which you do not have boxes can be rolled into a little ball and wrapped in gay paper with ribbons and bells hanging from it.

Game Protector Urges Caution On Opening Of Hunting Season

J. O. Teel, Pitt county fish and game protector, expressed concern today about the hundreds of hunters who will take to the fields of the county tomorrow with the opening of quail and rabbit seasons.

"We haven't had any hunting accidents in the county so far this year," Teel said, "but I'm afraid we might have some tomorrow or within the next few days if hunters aren't particularly careful."

He said several accidents occurred in counties surrounding Pitt in the first few days after the squirrel season opened October 16, but that Pitt county was fortunate in getting by the crucial period without an accident. He urged the hunters to be careful with the fire arms, both for their own protection and the protection of other hunters.

"We're going to have a lot of hunters in the fields tomorrow," the game protector declared, "and we're going to have all kinds of hunters in the fields. Everybody is going to have to be mighty careful."

He added that caution should be taken with matches and cigarettes to prevent forest fires. "Everything in the field and woods is dry right now, and a match or a cigarette thrown down carelessly could cause a forest fire."

Teel related, however, that hunters who take to the fields tomorrow in quest of quail and rabbits should first game just as plentiful or more plentiful than during the past few seasons. He said indications are that the quail population is about the same or perhaps slightly higher than last season, and that the rabbit population apparently is higher than it has been in several seasons.

He cautioned hunters, however

Annual Services Planned Thursday

The annual union Thanksgiving service, sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association, will be held in the First Presbyterian Church Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The Rev. Ernest H. Williams, rector of the St. Paul's Episcopal Church, will preach the sermon. Mr. Al Krehler, a student of East Carolina Teachers College, will sing "The Builder."

The offering of the service will be divided among the supporting churches for the denominational orphanages.

Various ministers will have part in the service.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

George B. Hardison Funeral On Thursday

Mr. George Brown Hardison, 58, died at his home near Stokes at five o'clock Wednesday morning after being critically ill for the past two months. Funeral services will be conducted at the Chapel of the S.G. Wilkerson Funeral Home Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by his pastor, the Rev. John J. Langston, Christian minister of near Four Oaks. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Hardison was born and reared in Beaufort County in the Tranters Creek Church community and was the son of Mrs. Anna Moore Hardison and the late Charles T. Hardison. He lived at Aurora from 1930 to 1935, and after that time lived in Pitt County in the Stokes community. In 1916 he was married to Lillian Woodard. He was a member of Oak Grove Christian Church, and was a member of the Junior Order of American Mechanics.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Theibert of Aurora and LaVerne of the home; a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude E. Catter of Camp Lejeune; five grandchildren; his mother; and three sisters, Mrs. W. L. Barnhill of Wilson, Mrs. E. E. Glove of Washington, and Mrs. Paul C. Thomas of Clinton, Md.

manager of the Paramount Theatre. Mr. Edgar Duke is our new manager; he is from Union, S.C.

Union Service will be held at the Methodist Church on Thanksgiving morning at 9 o'clock. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Z. B. T. Cox, pastor of the Christian Church. The public is invited to attend.

Miss Elsie May, sophomore at Flora MacDonald College in Red Springs, is spending the Thanksgiving holidays at her home.

Thurman Joyner spent last week with his mother, Mrs. Clara Bell Joyner.

Julie Reid Jones spent several days last week with her grandparents in Rocky Mount.

Mrs. Dale Martin and daughter have returned to their home in Indiana after visiting Mrs. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David May at Lizzie and other relatives.

Mrs. Ethel Thornton continues to improve after a recent illness.

Mrs. Charlie Evans and Mrs. Willie Wooten are improving at their homes after tonsil operations.

Bob Barrett of the Marine Corps spent the weekend with his family.

Dramateers, Musicians Stage Freedom Pageant

The mixed chorus; band and dramatists of the high school combined last night to present "Of These Freedoms," the theme of this year's Thanksgiving pageant, which was attended by upwards of 200 persons.

The dramatists, under the direction of Claude West, illustrated four freedoms, using montages as backdrops to a mythical high school class which was trying to assemble ideas for a Thanksgiving program.

The students in the class—Ann Ruffin, Barbara Tilley, Joel Bunch, Frances Sigmon, Rachel Pollard, Jimmy Phelps and Dinah Porter—contributed their ideas concerning the nature of the program.

The ideas were illustrated by the montages, including the Pilgrims going to church, King George III's proclamation against the press, Pilgrims celebrating the first Thanksgiving, and Patrick Henry's address in the House of Burgesses. All four illustrated freedom to worship, freedom of the press, freedom from want and freedom of speech, respectively.

Throughout the program the chorus of 100 male and female voices, directed by Miss Ona Shindler, sang familiar Thanksgiving music apropos of the dramatic illustrations.

The band, directed by James Rogers, played an opening march entitled "The World's Greatest," after Superintendent of Schools June H. Rose had made introductory remarks concerning the program. The band then played the National Anthem, followed by a vocal rendition of "Freedom of Thanksgiving" as a prelude.

discharge from the stack was somewhat darker than we felt it should be and the dust collected seemed to carry somewhat more combustible matter than necessary. The amount of combustible matter in the ash depends somewhat upon the excess air used for combustion. An increase in excess air will decrease the amount of combustible matter but in turn may cause a slight loss in efficiency of the unit. This matter has been taken up with Combustion Engineering-Superheater, Inc. who are arranging to send one of their service engineers to Greenville within the next thirty days.

"The equipment obtained from the firm is installed in your plant in a way which we feel like you would be economically justified in going to. To make any material improvement in this efficiency or to materially reduce the amount of dust emitted from your stacks would call for a very large investment which we believe is unjustifiable."

Weston in his report said consideration was given to methods of obtaining better diffusion of the ash leaving the stack so as to distribute it over a larger area. He said in the report, "The only practical means that we could find would be the addition of an extension to your present stack so as to raise the discharge point somewhat higher above the surrounding community. The present discharge level is only slightly higher than the surrounding hill which may account for some concentration of the dust."

The report continued, "It should be emphasized that if it were possible to completely eliminate dust emission from your plant, the city of Greenville would still have a problem with dust fall. Every stack and every ventilating fan in this city contributes to this. Even if these were all eliminated, there would still be a considerable of

President Truman wants the cut-off dates extended three months beyond Dec. 31. That is, until March 31. This would give the new $2nd congress three months to argue the whole thing out after it meets in January.

The Truman administration also wants congress, sooner or later, to give housing expediter E. H. Woods the power to restore rent ceilings in areas that have de-controlled themselves but which now have new housing shortages because of the defense program. Some of those areas, according to Woods, have become trouble spots—for example, the area around Camp Atterbury in Indiana.

The hottest spot in the country just now, with respect to rent controls, is Los Angeles.

The Los Angeles City Council voted to de-control the city. Opponents of this action took it to court and lost. But the actual de-controlling does not take place until Expediter Woods signs the order, and this Woods refused to do.

He says no evidence was presented to the City Council that the housing shortage has ended, and therefore the Council's action was improper under the law.

A U. S. District Judge ordered him to sign. He appealed to the U. S. Court of Appeals here. This court gave him until day after tomorrow to sign, but also granted him a hearing today.
