Austin Set To Counter Red Charges

Twenty Stinging Questions To Ask Chinese Reds Before UN Today

Lake Success, Nov. 27—(AP)—The United States plans a slashing counterattack in the United Nations today against Chinese Communist charges of American aggression in Formosa.

With a new Red offensive blazing against U.N. troops in Korea, U.S. Delegate Warren R. Austin has prepared 20 stinging questions to ask Communist Spokesman Wu Hsuichuan when he shows up for his first appearance before the Security Council. (3 p.m., EST).

The exact nature of the questions are a carefully-guarded secret, because—as a U.S. source said—"we don't want to do the Reds' homework for them."

Presumably, however, they will probe the reasons for Red China's entry into the Korean war, what they are doing there, and what their future intentions are.

Austin is expected to accompany the questions with a demand that Peiping get its soldiers out of Korea.

Wu will probably counter with a demand that the U.S. get its forces out of Korea and also order the Seventh Fleet out of Formosan waters, allowing Peiping to launch its long delayed attack against that island stronghold of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists.

These Chinese charges are scheduled to be detailed earlier today in the 60-nation -Political Committee by Russia's Jacob A. Malik. Wu and other members of the nine-member delegation are expected to appear to back up his claims.

Reports were current yesterday, however, that Malik might delay his speech. Informed sources considered the Russian diplomat too canny a propaganda expert to detract from the news value of Wu's afternoon appearance by a premature revelation of the exact nature of the charges.

They also felt he would not want his own speech buried beneath accounts of council's interplay of charges and countercharge.

If, however, he does keep his public promise, made last Friday, to read the indictment against the United States this morning, U. S. Delegate John Foster Dulles is ready to enter an absolute denial.

Gregg Cherry Saved His Books

Gastonia, Nov. 27—(AP)— Former Gov. Gregg Cherry, now practicing law here, solved a legal problem during the $200,000 fire which destroyed the Eagle Department Store Saturday.

His law office is in the Commercial Building near the Eagle store. Flames damaged the Commercial Building slightly. Cherry ran up to his office, and sure enough some of his law books were smouldering. He saved the books before further damage.

History's Worst Blizzard Slams Cleveland

Northeastern States Left Stunned By Fury Of Storm

Grief, Misery And Industrial Paralysis Lingers On; At Least 226 Known Fatalities

By the Associated Press

The storm which mauled the whole northeastern section of the nation with record fury over the weekend had vanished today but grief human misery and industrial paralysis lingered on.

At least 226 deaths were blamed on the devastating winds along the Atlantic seaboard and the heavy snow which fell as far south as Mississippi and Alabama. Damage in New England alone was estimated at $100,000,000, with threatened floods expected to add to the cost. Most of western Pennsylvania and northern Ohio still sere digging out of snow which brought business to a virtual halt in such cities as Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Columbus, Akron, Youngstown and Dayton.

The wind which hammered parts of the Atlantic Coast with a force of as much as 108 miles an hour at times was described by the Weather Bureau as the worst ever to hit that region. It left many areas still without power service today and thousands still shivering without heat or lighting. Losses to boat owners were the heaviest since the 1938 hurricane.

The blow was accompanied by torrential rains which sent some New England streams out of their banks. Some others were threatening to overflow. New York City however, harvested a 25-day water supply. The city reservoir trapped 25-billion gallons, building up a needed reserve supply.

Resumption of normal business in the snow-bound sections of Pennsylvania and Ohio still was not in sight today.

Transportation facilities were too crippled to carry sufficient workers to their jobs. Many schools including Penn State College, Bucknell, Duquesne University and Carnegie Tech in Pennsylvania all were closed for the day at least.

All public and parochial schools remained closed in Pittsburgh where the snowfall measured a record 27 inches. Mayor David Lawrence declared a state of emergency in the city and appealed to all but essential workers to stay off their jobs and help clear the city's side streets.

All bus service in the city was snow-bound and only partial trolley service had been resumed today.

With more snow forecast for today, Gov. James H. Duff declared an emergency in 17 western counties and declared today and tomorrow legal holidays there so that the banks could remain closed.

The shutdown in Ohio was more widespread.There too, banks and schools remained closed and transportation stalled as crews bored through snow drifts as deep as 23 feet in some places in clearing the highways.

Laundry's Boiler Room Is Destroyed By Sunday Fire

By ROY HARDEE

A mid-morning fire of unknown origin destroyed the boiler room of the Cascade Laundry yesterday morning, and for a time offered a serious threat to a nearby warehouse and other buildings of the cleaning firm.

One fireman, A. T. Denton, was injured when he stepped on a fallen power line as he was helping to battle the flames between the boiler room and the main building of the plant. The fire had been underway for some time prior to Denton's injury, but the current going into the building had not been shut off. Denton was taken to Pitt General Hospital for treatment of a burned foot and released.

The fire was engulfing the entire building when the first alarm was turned in, which is isolated between the main part of the laundry and Harris and Rodgers Warehouse. Greenville firemen, using booster lines and a one and one-half inch hose line direct from the new fire truck, battled the flames until large hose lines could be stretched into the area from a hydrant.

The building was of wooden con-

Ilse Koch Goes On Trial Today In German Court

Augsburg, Germany, Nov. 27—(AP)—Isle Koch, the Witch of Buchenwald, went on trial before a German court today, accused of instigating murder.

Mrs. Koch, a portly redhead of 43, sat stony faced during the trail preliminaries. The prosecution accuses her of instigating the murder of 45 inmates of the Nazi concentration camp at Buchenwald, attempting to instigate the murder of 135 others and acts of brutality to still others.

It was the second time she has been on trial for her actions at the infamous concentration camp which her late husband commanded. A U. S. War Crimes Court sentenced her to life imprisonment at trials in Dachau. The term later was commuted to four years and she was released amid a storm of protest. The Germans picked her up immediately for another trial.

The first sentence was for crimes against foreigners; this trial accuses her of crimes against Germans and Austrians.

The prosecution says it is going to call 430 witnesses. Some of them are expected to testify about charges that Mrs. Koch selected handsomely tatooed prisoners to be murdered and thus provide her with decorated human skin for lampshades.

Group To Watch Airborne Tactics

Fort Bragg Site Of Two-Day Combat Demonstration

Fort Bragg, N. C. Nov. 27—(AP)—Two hundred officers, including 10 generals and an admiral, gathered here today to view live firing demonstrations. These demonstrations of the latest methods in airborne warfare and ground support will require two days.

Several hundred paratroopers will jump from Flying Boxcars of the 314th Troop Carrier Wing from Stewart Air Force Base in Tennessee.

Combat demonstrations will include live fire air support by F-84 Thunder Jets of the 31st Fighter Group from Turner AF Base Ga. These jets are the standard Air Force plane for air ground support.

Helicopter troop carrying and evacuation demonstrations, parachuting of heavy 105 mm. artillery pieces, and other improvements in airborne landing will be shown by Army Field Forces Board No. 1 which, together with the Ninth Air Force, 82nd Airborne Division and the Army Air Support Center are staging the demonstrations.

Survive Cold In Marooned Auto

Asheville, N.C., Nov. 27—(AP)—A Mt. Holly mother and young son were alive today after spending 15 hours marooned in a stalled auto in 15 degrees below zero weather on 6,000-foot Craggy Dome.

Blue Ridge Parkway rangers who used snowplows to fight their way to the car—22 miles from Asheville—said she ripped out the upholstery in the car and burned it piece by piece in the grim fight to keep from freezing to death.

They identified her as Mildred E. Harkey, 29, and her son, Allan, 7.

Headlines Of Disaster

Major Domestic News of Past Few Days Has Not Been Political, But Dealing With Tragedies; The Weather And Seasonal Storms; The Disasters Of Recent Years

By MAX HALL

Washington, Nov. 27—(AP)—Congress starts a short session today but the major domestic news of the last few days has not been political. Rather, the big black headlines have had to do with disasters.

First, the nation was appalled by the rear-end collision on the Long Island Railroad, one of the most sickening train wrecks in American history.

Then, while the investigations of this accident were getting underway, the eastern third of the country was ravaged by one of the worst cold weather storms on record.

The death toll of this storm has reached at least 200 and the property damage was steadily growing.

It was an unusual storm not only in violence but in its character.

Terrific wind banged the northern seaboard but it was not the "northeaster" that often strikes that area, for it blew out of the east and southeast. The air was warm, and there was no snow.

At the same time, astonishing snowfalls occurred inland, in the region of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia. There, the air was icy cold. Stiff winds rushed out of the north, northwest, and west. The storm in this region took on the character of a blizzard, though the Weather Bureau says it wasn't a "typical blizzard," which fills the air with snow blown from the ground.

Now this may sound like two different storms, but the Weather Bureau says it was all the same storm, caused primarily by a big area of low atmospheric pressure which moved up from the Carolinas and sucked air inward from various directions.

The storms that kill the most people in this country are not cold weather storms at all. They are hurricanes and tornadoes. September is the height of the hurricane season, and May is the height of the tornado season.

The nation's worst death dealing hurricane was the one that struck Galveston, Tex., in 1900, driving a huge wave out of the gulf. About

End-The-War Offensive Is Dealt Jolt By Red Attack

Reluctant Congress Opens 'Lame Duck' Session Today

Washington, Nov. 27 — (AP) — The 81st Congress returns today for a short "Lame Duck" session and it was pretty evident the lawmakers were not in the mood to do all the things President Truman wants them to do.

Republicans generally haven't left much doubt that they would prefer to leave everything but emergency legislation until Jan. 3, when the new 82nd Congress with increased GOP strength takes over.

The program Mr. Truman wants is pretty well known. It includes a $4,000,000,000 excess profits tax on corporations, rent control extension, statehood for Alaska and Hawaii, relief funds for drought-stricken Yugoslavia and probably $10,000,000 or more in new military money.

The President arranged to talk over the legislative program this morning with his Capitol Hill lieutenants. Such Monday morning conferences are normal when Congress is in session. Republican leaders planned a strategy session either today or tomorrow.

Portions of the President's fairly ambitious program is imperilled not only by the changed political complexion of the next Congress, with its added GOP strength, but by the shortness of time—five weeks at best. The general expectation is that the session will last at least three weeks, possibly longer. Any pending legislation not passed by Jan. 3 will automatically expire.

Then, too, the dying Congress contains a lot of "lame ducks"—legislators who have been defeated at the polls. Altogether, some 75 are near the end of their terms. Ten senators were defeated; four did not seek re-election. Thirty-two House members were defeated; about as many retired voluntarily.

A additional factor which may reduce White House influence is that Mr. Truman's two top Senate lieutenants—floor leader Lucas of Illinois and Senator Myers of Pennsylvania—are lame ducks. Both lost to Republicans.

In the Senate, with its unlimited debate, prospects are that a lot of time will be spent talking about foreign policy, especially in the Far East.

Complete Collapse Of United Nations Drive Threatened By Massive Chinese Blow On Northwestern Korean Front; Reserves Rushed To Sagging Line

Tokyo, Nov. 27—(AP)—Complete collapse of the United Nations end-the-war offensive was threatened today by heavy new Chinese attacks on the frozen northwest Korean front.

The U. S. 24th Division its right flank imperilled by infiltrating Red forces, pulled back from Chongju near the west coast.

It was the second time this month that the battle-hardened Americans were forced to give up without a fight the rail and highway city 51 miles south of the Manchurian border.

All along the northwest front allied forces were shoved back by elements of two Chinese Red Army—more than 100,000 men. Swarms of Chinese attacked in pre-dawn darkness to the blare of bugles.

A spokesman described the situation as "quite confused."

Field dispatches said the eastern anchor of the line, Tokchon, had fallen to the Reds.

In the northeast a surprise tank led Red attack forced back South Koreans advancing north of Chongjin some 55 miles south of the Soviet Siberian border.

Stiffening Red resistance was reported elsewhere by the northeast, U. S. Marines, pushing westward in a drive from Changjin Reservoir, were halted by dug-in Chinese four miles west of Yudam.

On the northwest front the 24th Division's withdrawal from Chongju was forced by Chinese slipping through the Republic of Korea (ROK) First Division lines southwest of Taechon. The 24th Division itself was not under attack.

On the ROK First Division's right flank, the U. S. 25th and Second Divisions battled the Chinese fiercely throughout Monday.

A U. S. First Corps spokesman said the 25th was hit hard in the Majon area, six miles northeast of Yongbyon. He said the situation there was critical.

AP correspondent Don Whitehead with the U. S. 25th Division, sized up the situation this way:

"The big United Nations offensive to bring an early end to the Korean war was threatened with complete collapse today. This was the stark reality of the situation after 48 hours of savage fighting.

"Chinese and North Korean Red troops have dealt a stunning blow to United Nations forces. The offensive that rolled forward for two days has been stopped cold. U. N. troops are on the defensive after giving up most of their gains."

Reserve units of Americans, British and Turks were rushed up to bolster a sagging 30-mile eastern section of the winding 80-mile front stretching inland from the Yellow Sea. The front runs from 40 to 60 miles south of the Manchurian border.

An estimated 130,000 Reds — most of them Chinese in quilted winter uniforms—began the counter-assault late Saturday night.

Republic of Korea troops and the U. S. Second and 25th Divisions bore the brunt of the attacks, which continued with increasing fury Sunday night.

Correspondent Leif Erickson said the American Divisions stopped the second night attacks in the center of the line after earlier withdrawals of several miles.

The situation on the eastern flank manned by the ROK Seventh, Eighth and Sixth Divisions, was not clear. Fighting withdrawals of four to 11 miles in the ROK sector were reported Sunday.

Field dispatches indicated heavy allied casualties. An indirect censorship settles over operations as a security measure.

Troop Train And Freight Collide

Burst Into Flames; Three Persons Reported Injured

Screven, Ga., Nov. 27—(AP)—A troop train smashed into a freight train at this small town's depot today and both burst into flames. Three persons were injured, but no one was reported killed.

The troop train, carrying about 200 soldiers, was en route from Savannah, Ga., about 75 miles northeast of here, to Camp Rucker, Ala.

C. W. Collins, a resident of Screven, said he heard the crash and was at the scene in a few minutes.

"The freight train was parked at the depot," he said. "The troop train was coming from Savannah. The trainmen told me they saw the freight, and tried to stop.

"But the brakes wouldn't hold. The trainmen jumped and the train crashed into the freight."

Burning oil from the diesel engines spewed over the depot and cars of both the troop train and the freight. The depot and several cars of both trains were destroyed.

Army authorities at the scene said all the soldiers were accounted for. Several had bruises and minor cuts, but none was reported seriously hurt.

Most seriously injured was a trainman whose name was not immediately learned. He suffered broken bones when he leaped from the train.

Sunday Blaze Damages Old Grifton Landmark

Grifton, Nov. 27—An early morning fire, believed to have started from a faulty chimney flue in an apartment of the Old Cobb Hotel here yesterday, gutted the attic and part of one room before being brought under control by Ayden and Kinston firemen.

The fire was first discovered between 9:30 and 10:00 a.m. and was gaining headway by the time firemen arrived on the scene. The 60-year-old converted Cobb Hotel houses five families who were in the building at the time of the fire's outbreak.

Ayden firemen who were first to reach the fire, followed closely by the Kinston fire department, battled the blaze with booster lines, managing to bring the fire under control in about 40 minutes.

The two-story frame structure, which is located on Main Street in Grifton, was endangered for some time, were other near-by buildings, firemen reported. Additional fire equipment from Greenville was about to be called in to aid the fire fighters when the blaze was brought under control.

Firemen remained at the scene for more than two hours following the fire to prevent its rekindling.

Grifton does not have any fire equipment, but does have water hydrants for fire fighting.

Owner of the Cobb Hotel, Ivan Bissette, local businessman stated that smoke damage to the building was very light, but there was heavy water damage in the kitchen of the apartment burned. He unofficially estimated the damages at "a few hundred dollars." However, the owner said had the building burned it would have been a heavy loss, not only to the hotel building but to the nearby buildings.

The damaged apartment was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Nelson.

Mutual Aid Pact Idea Is Suggested

Charleston, S.C., Nov. 27—(AP)—"Mutual assistance pacts" between states for civil defense were suggested here today to the southern governors' conference.

The idea was proposed by Gov. Fuller Warren of Florida, who warned that "civil defense will not be a local matter" if another war comes.

An Offensive Slowed

MacArthur's Hopeful Statement Jolted By Chinese Counter-Blow; A Gamble With The Weather; Chinese Aims Still Doubtful; Analyst Doubts Mao Wants War

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Fierce Chinese Communist counter-attacks have placed another grave hazard in the way of General MacArthur's big offensive to force a quick ending of the war.

Even before this surprising enemy assault, the Commander-in-Chief's expectation of getting our soldier boys home by Christmas had caused doubtful raising of military eyebrows. After all, a month is a mighty short time to achieve victory and then ferry the lads back home across the vast Pacific. Still, even if the transportation estimate might seem optimistic we shouldn't write the U.S. offensive off as a failure at this early stage. Give it time.

The position in North Korea reminds one rather forcibly of that never-to-be-forgotten Battle of the Bulge in mid-December of '44. Then our troops were near disaster as the result of a heavy enemy counter-attack over a forty mile front. But we withstood the powerful drive and then went on to win one of the great battles of American history.

The U. N. Commander in Chief may have been making a shrewd gamble on the weather. Winter already is maneuvering to get its icy grip on Korea and, once it has succeeded, big scale military operations will be exceedeinly difficult.

However, between the start of winter and the ice-bound days (which come in early December), there is a brief period in which troops can be moved and heavy fighting can take place. So it could be—and this is speculation on my part—that MacArthur has aimed at a quick knockout of the Chinese Communists in North Korea, just before winter shuts in and makes it impossible for the Chinese in Manchuria to move further reinforcements across the Yalu River until spring arrives.

Should that happen, it would indeed be the end of the military task given MacArthur. He could assign the guarding of the frontier to the South Koreans, and release at least some of the other U. N. troops.

Prizes were presented to Retired General Hal Turnage of Alexandria, Va., who traveled the greatest distance to be present, Dr. J. Y. Joyner of La Grange, 88, oldest member present, and Howard Nobles of Winterville, 3, youngest person present. In a drawing of names registered, C. V. Cannon of Ayden and Haywood Smith won "silver dollars," which were also presented to the quiz contestants.

An offering was received by Eleanor Glenn Newton and Caroline Lewis. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" closed the meeting. A basket lunch was served in the banquet room upstairs from a table centered with a huge arrangement of fruits, vegetables and yellow lighted tapers.

The president's table was decorated with a bowl of yellow chrysanthemums and red carnations. Centering the east mantel was an arrangement of pyracantha berries and other greenery.

J. R. Taylor of Ayden was elevated from the second vice presidency to first vice president.

New Desert Well Is Hope For Crippled Children

POACHED EGGS FOR DESSERT — They're in hot water.

AP Newfeatures

Desert Hot Springs, Calif.—A hot water well so hot it will poach eggs may soon be put to use to loosen the muscles of crippled children.

Bill Tarbutton, who has been drilling for hot water since 1934, says that the well in the desert crest area near Indio registers a temperature of 200 degrees, which would make it the hottest well ever drilled in California. (The U. S. Bureau of Mines reports a few wells that hot in Oregon.)

Tarbutton named the well the Suzie C—after his granddaughter, Suzie Canon, who was cured of a rheumatic ailment by hot desert baths—and he has offered to give five acres of land next to the well for a children's hospital which will use the therapeutic waters.

The water-unlike most desert wells—is not vile-smelling or sulphurous, says Tarbutton. It is good drinkable stuff, suitable for making coffee or tea right on the spot as it comes from the ground.

The well is 331 feet deep and stands at about the 75-foot level. It pumps about 2,500 gallons an hour. The water comes bursting forth with a roar of steam and you have to step lively when the wind starts blowing.

Tarbutton's gusher is the hottest in a region that abounds in underground hot water, presumably running along the famed San Andreas fault, "mother of earthquakes" in southern California. The driller previously had brought in 22 wells exceeding 100 degrees. Others in the area run a temperature of only 75.

Bazaar Plans To Serve Luncheon, Dinner At Church

Christmas is the old story that is ever new each year. It is spun of two threads—believing and make-believing.

From the end of one Christmas season to the beginning of the next, the women of St. Paul's Auxiliary begin the old plans anew for a bigger and better bazaar the following year. They believe in working to raise money for the upkeep of the church and the parish house. They also believe in make-believing that there is a Santa who likes to visit their bazaar each year to pick up new gifts for friends and unusual toys for children.

So this year Uncle Mistletoe and Aunt Holly are extending a special invitation to all citizens of Greenville and eastern Carolina to visit their bazaar and view the hundreds of original gifts which will be on display on December 7.

In addition to the many wonderful things that the women have been working on for the past year, luncheon and dinner will be served to the visitors between the hours of 12:00 noon-2:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m.-8:00 p.m. There will be delicious meals prepared under the direction of Mrs. Lee Folger, Jr., which will be served in the Canterbury Room of the Parish House.

The bazaar will be the story and song and sugar-plum tree of childhood. It will be a time of breathless excitement—a time of beauty and gaiety and festivity. It will be a wonderfully thrilling experience to usher in the Christmas season. Prepare to attend and share the spirit of Christmas with the other bazaar friends.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 27, 1910

Miss Helen Forbes' delightfully informal musical on Thursday evening was a rare treat to her music loving friends. The affair was planned in honor of the recent bride, Mrs. W. L. Best who had just returned from her honeymoon trip. Miss Forbes wore a pink satin gown elaborately embroidered in gold. Mrs. Best was daintily gowned in blue satin and embroidery. Those assisting in the courtesies of the evening were the married sisters of Miss Forbes, Mesdames Quinerly, Hadley, Moye and Best.

After the guests, composed of talented women had arrived, they were served refreshing hot chocolate and pimento sandwiches. A most entertaining program of both vocal and instrumental numbers then followed, participated in by women whose ability would do credit to a town of broader opportunities than those of Greenville.

When repeated encores had been given those who took part in the program, the hostess served delicious fruit Mousse and cake.

Suspends Sentence For 3 Years Of Probation

Judge William I. Halstead, presiding over a one week term of Pitt Superior Court, suspended a Negro's sentence this morning and qualified it with ome man-to-man remarks about respecting the law.

The Negro in the case was John Ellison who was indicted by the ... officers of the county for possessing non-taxpaid liquor. Halstead suspended a sentence of 18-24 months on the roads, ordered him to pay a $100 fine and costs, and placed him on three years' probation.

The judge stated he was suspending the sentence because Ellison had never been convicted of anything before. ... also reminded the Negro he was giving him the key to the jail.

"If you break any law for a period of three years, just use the key to open the jail. But if you prove yourself an upright citizen and an example for your race, you'll get out of serving the two year sentence," Halstead said.

Other judgments rendered during this morning's proceedings were:

Wilbur Hill, Negro, robbery; three to five years.

Frank Mauney, breaking and entering; six months.

Cases continued this morning were Vayden Mathews, drunk driving and hit-run driving; and Marshall Lee, drunk driving and reckless driving.

Order Of Moose Installs Chapter

On Friday evening, in the National Guard Armory in Greenville, there was a very impressive installation program of the Greenville Lodge 885 of the Loyal Order of Moose. Preparations for a local lodge were begun here in Greenville during August of this year by Mr. J. D. The meeting was opened by Mr. Smith who in turn introduced Deputy Supreme Secretary Milton V. struction with a tin roof and the back of the building was set flush with the side of the warehouse. Quick thinking on the part of the first firemen to arrive prevented a possible serious fire threat to the warehouse, as hose lines were taken into the warehouse to prevent any breakthrough from the burning building. As the firemen entered the building, flames were leaping from piles of tobacco baskets stacked against the side of the building. Only a small section of the baskets was burning and a small part of the roof had caught fire. Firemen reported that thousands of baskets were piled in the general area in addition to other items of an inflammable nature. Booster lines played on the fire reduced the threat and the blaze was soon put out. Two windows on the side of the warehouse where the baskets were located opened into the boiler room.

Heat and sparks set fire to the back roof of the main laundry building but only moderate damage was done. The two buildings were about seven feet apart. Located next to the burning boiler room was the dry cleaning room of the laundry which contained many barrels of solvent used in cleaning clothes and is highly inflammable. Firemen, battling both the flames and a cold driving wind, prevented the building from catching.

More than an hour was required to completely put out the fire in the ruins of the boiler room. Piles of trash and rubbish and other items fed the flames from time to time.

Owner Wyatt Brown yesterday morning stated that he did not figure the loss as being too great; however, he could not make any exact statement as to the loss. Examination of the steam equipment and boiler in the burned room yesterday afternoon revealed that all seemed to be in fairly good working condition, with the exception of a few dials and gauges which were being replaced last night. Brown stated that the boilers had fires in order that pipes would not freeze in the unusually cold spell which hit this section over the weekend. He also announced that there would be no interruption of service and the plant opened as usual this morning. Plans for rebuilding have already been made.

The alarm was the second call which Greenville firemen answered in less than one hour yesterday morning. Earlier, a house at 213 Reade Street caught fire, but only moderate damage resulted.

The house was occupied by Jimmie Little.

Industrial . . .

Greenville of an industrial development corporation.

W. T. Kyzer explained that the general purpose of the industrial development organizations in other cities is to provide buildings for new industry which might want to locate in the city, and to be instrumental in helping to locate new industry in the city.

An industry development corporation known as Greenville Industries, Inc., was formed in Greenville in 1938 and built the building now owned and occupied by the Greenville Full Fashioned Hosiery Mills. The building was leased to the mill by Greenville Industries, Inc. for a while, and then the building was sold to the hosiery mill. Some time after the building was purchased by the hosiery mill, the industrial development corporation, Greenville Industries, Inc. was dissolved.

Strength for the Day

A SPIRITUAL DISEASE

We get nowhere in this world by hating people. Literature is replete with the accounts of people who have dedicated their lives to the painful project of hating someone. On such a spirit the noted feuds have been based. And always they have resulted in nothing but blood-letting and the wrecking of happiness.

In the first place we should remember that we will never bring anyone around to our way of thinking by hating him. And much less will we arouse his admiration or his love by showering him with contempt. The thing we need most to remember is that hate bounces off the lives of those against whom it is directed, and comes back to destroy our lives. Just as certain lethal rays may enter the human body and bring about death and the victim is not conscious even of discomfort until all hope of remedy has passed, so hate eats away our souls and we are unconscious of it until we discover that everything we prize most in life has died within our hearts.

Hate is a spiritual disease. The person who tolerates it in mind and heart is desperately ill. The specific by which it can be cured is religious faith and a mighty exercise of the will to begin loving people instead of hating them.

'Petty Graft' Is Not 'Petty' Any More

Governor Kerr Scott recently commented that policies inaugurated by his administration for curbing "petty graft" among state employes had saved the taxpayers five million dollars.

At the time, Columnist- Correspondent Lynn Nisbet raised the question "Are North Carolina officials and employes this crooked?"; and if this train of thought were followed further, we might ask the extent of "petty graft" that prevails on all levels of government, from town and city to the national levels.

There is some question as to whether the governor was talking about a five million dollar savings per year, or for the full period of his administration; but whether the sum represents a one-year or four-year figure, it is still a fantastic amount of money for the people of the state to pay and see it evaporate.

Put in such a fashion, "petty graft" isn't "petty" any more.

The Reflector has complained loudly and often about non-essential spending in government, but the governor's disclosures open vast new horizons for speculation on how little the taxpayer actually gets for his dollar . . . on all government levels.

We trust and believe that the overwhelming majority of men in public office are wholly honest in their affairs, that their consciences guide them in their dealings and they respect the responsibilities of their positions. On the other hand, it would be no surprise to learn that in many cases such men have retained traditional prerogatives which are classifiable as "petty graft" and whose cumulative effect represents a staggering waste of the taxpayer's money.

It appears that Governor Scott recognized this facet of fallibility and met it with the only reasonable solution: calling attention to the fact, and relying largely on the natural honesty of the individual to refrain from practices that fell in the category of "graft." In instances where positive action was practicable, outright orders were issued.

Such action would be profitable and in the public's interest on all levels of government. We have no small pride in the overall honesty of the majority of public officials, and believe that if their attention were forcibly called to the expense and waste of "petty graft" they would desist.

As for the outright dishonest and larcenous-of-heart, there is only the prospect of diligent exposure and dismissal to solve their blight on the public weal.

They Should Keep In Mind The People's Wishes

The lame duck session of Congress convened today as the administration began its efforts to jab through legislation before the new Congress becomes a reality in January.

And in the lame duck session of the 82nd Congress, North Carolina has a new senator who, from his campaign statements and past actions, stands to the right of the major portion of the administration's domestic program. North Carolina's two representatives in the Senate now see more closely eye-to-eye than did Senators Hoey and Graham in recent months.

The balloting in the second primary in the Tar Heel state last June showed the people have drifted away from the far-to-the-left tendencies of the Truman administration. the majority of the Democrats in the state apparently are in favor of more conservative federal policies than have been proposed by the administration during the past few years.

North Carolina's representatives in the lame duck session of Congress as well as those who will be members of the 82nd Congress which convenes in January, should keep in mind the wishes of the people and work for more conservative, more stable, and more farsighted programs for the federal government.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Although labor's top brass refuse to admit that they have made a major blunder by committing all their eggs to the Democratic political basket on the single issue of Taft-Hartley repeal, a threatening revolt among the leaders and mass membership of union locals may force the bigwigs to revise their tactics.

"Get out of partisan politics and get back to the Gompers strategy of fighting for higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions for us on a non-partisan basis," is the theme of the workers' protest.

It was heard in great volume at the recent CIO convention, where President Philip Murray defended his long-time alliance with the White House, and it has been voiced in union halls throughout the country.

In post-election interviews, AFL President William Green and other professional leaders agree with Mr. Murray that labor's unusual political activity did not react adversely.

Like President Truman, they attribute the Democratic reverses to "local issues." Unlike him, they admit that Secretary Acheson's foreign policies and the Korean setback on the eve of the voting also accounted for the losses of a pro-labor Administration.

DIGNIFIED—Messrs. Murray and Green base their contention that workers themselves did not repudiate their political activities by citing the re-election of Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut and the defeat of Senator Forrest Donnell of Missouri. Mr. McMahon has voted the straight labor line, while Mr. Donnell wanted to strengthen the Taft-Hartley Act.

But the fact is that the Connecticut Senator reversed his field in the recent campaign. Breaking away from the Bowles-Benton advertising team, he waged a dignified and businesslike fight, designed to win him the support of independents and Republican conservatives.

He stressed his work in the atomic field as chairman of the joint Congressional committee, and his efforts for a world peace plan.

Governor Bowles and Senator Benton, on the other hand, placed greatest emphasis on President Truman's "fair deal" program, especially its social and labor aspects. Mr. McMahon won by approximately 48,000, an off-year record for a Democrat. Governor Bowles lost, and Mr. Benton squeaked through on the McMahon coat-tails by about 1,300.

• • • •

DIVIDED—The Donnell defeat was even less of a victory for the Truman-Murray-Green forces. In this contest the local Republicans were hopelessly divided and disorganized, and Senator Donnell had to wage almost a one-man fight.

The winner, ex-Representative Tom Hennings Jr., had to trounce the Truman-Boyle-Pendergast machine in order to get the nomination in the first place. The White House group hand-picked State Senator Emery W. Allison, although he happens to be an ultra-conservative on many questions. Mr. Hennings defeated him easily because of the hostile reaction to presidential interference.

• • • •

MANAGER—In the election itself, Mr. Hennings emphasized his support of the Administration's general foreign policy rather than domestic questions. He, too, received many votes from Republicans and independents whom Senator Donnell had antagonized by his spotty record at Washington.

As a further answer to the Murray-Green complacency, Mr. Hennings' western campaign manager was ex-Representative Roger C. Slaughter. He was "purged" by President Truman because, as a member of the Rules Committee during his House service, he fought the "fair deal," including Taft-Hartley repeal.

Nationally, the rebuke to professional labor leaders' efforts to obtain control of Congress was reflected in the votes in such great industrial centers as New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and other Ohio cities, Chicago, Indianapolis, Los Angeles etc. Where Democratic majorities once ran from 200,000 to 500,000, they averaged about 100,000 or less, or they lost to the opposition by tremendous margins.

• • • •

"FRIENDS"—"The League Reporter" has no illusions about labor's losses. This is the political weekly published by the American Federation of Labor at Washington. Its officers are President Green, Secretary-Treasurer George Meany and Director Joseph D. Keenan, who managed the AFL campaign.

In its post-election issue, it mourns that trade unionists will have only 183 "friends" and 255 "enemies" in the next House, as against 209 "friends" and 212 "enemies" in the present session. It notes that there will be 38 "friends" and 58 "enemies" in the Senate of the 82nd Congress, compared with 44 "friends" and 49 "enemies" in the current body.

"A friendly Representative," the editors explain, "is one who opposed the Taft-Hartley Act in 1949, or who supported T-H repeal in his campaign, and was backed by the trade unionists."

• • • •

REALISTIC—The most realistic labor leader, John L. Lewis, offers no alibis, apparently figuring that he took a licking. In the 1940 campaign, when he backed Wendell Willkie, he learned that his miners will follow him almost blindly when he works for their bread-and-butter interests—wages, hours, working conditions—but that they will not obey his political orders.

Selected Shorts

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, MINN., DAILY JOURNAL: "Some top men in government seem committed to increased spending. Their idea is to continue a policy of reckless expenditures, and simply pile the emergency military spending on top of the heap."

TELLURIDE, COLO., TRIBUNE: "Government is curtailing building of almost every kind. Suppose it will be a prelude to a huge government housing project within the next year or so. Doctors are also being drafted in large numbers. No one wants the armed forces to be without the very best medical care, but a false shortage of civilian doctors would probably soften the public up and make them more receptive to socialized medicine."

ELWOOD, INDIANA, CALL-LEADER: "The man who thinks that he pays no taxes because he owns no property and his income is under the taxable earnings of the income tax does buy shoes. And he does buy clothing on which there is a six-cent tax fo revery dollar he spends for a suit. If the man rents he may think that the $40 he pays in rent is not taxes, but if his landlord were not so heavily taxed that man might be getting his rent for $25 or $30."

Daily Reflector Bureau — By LYNN NISBET — Raleigh, N. C.

PERSONNEL—The department of personnel, which has never been quite independent of budget bureau control, is on the way to becoming even more an auxiliary of that agency with selection of John McDevitt as director. McDevitt comes to his new post from the budget bureau, where he has worked for two years. Prior to his connection with the budget office he had taught school, worked with the state department of public instruction, and served as assistant business manager and public relations counsel for Western Carolina Teachers College. McDevitt is personally popular with state employees who know him, and there is no objection to him as personnel director—except as it ties the agency that much closer to the budget bureau.

INDEPENDENT — For some years state workers have sought separation of personnel control from the budget bureau, which deals mainly with dollars. Establishment of a theoretically independent personnel department by the 1949 general assembly was hailed as a major victory for state employees. Its operation has proven for most part very satisfactory. Principal objection has been that it still was under domination of the budget bureau, and was not in fact independent.

LEGISLATION—During recent weeks there has been suggestion that the 1951 general assembly might take cognizance of this situation by making the "divorce" more complete, or more probably by integrating the personnel set-up as a division in the budget bureau. The latter course seems more likely now. Economy-minded legislators think the state can save money without losing anything in efficiency of operation by combining the functions of dollars and personnel supervision—especially since the dollar angle has been dominant under the dual agency plan. State employees would still like to have an independent personnel department if they could get it.

SCHOLARSHIPS—Comes another private business enterprise with proffer of aid to college students. The North Carolina Foundation Seed Producers, Inc., announces through Dean J. H. Hilton that it has made fifty $50 scholarships available to as many Tarheel boys who will enter short courses early next year—January 8 to February 2. Scholarships will apply to courses in dairy production, beef cattle production and crop production. Only one scholarship will go to a county, and only boys living on North Carolina farms or engaged in farming are eligible. Application should be made in writing to the county farm agent.

PHILANTHROPY — Operating in reverse from the foundations established to improve college instruction by supplementing salaries of professors and technicians, the scholarships have the same major objective—to make available to a large number of boys and girls the best possible training in their chosen fields.

ROADSIDE — Meeting of the North Carolina Roadside Development Council in Raleigh Tuesday afternoon, November 28, will discuss and further implement the program for beautification of highway borders throughout the state. The council has for some years been working with state agencies to dress up the roadsides, devoting major interest to the area just beyond the right of way over which the state has no legal control. Recently formed co-operative group among employees of the state department of conversation and development and the highway commission brings nearer to attainment the goal of attractive scenery immediately adjacent to the roads. The state advertising division concluded that it was foolish to spend money inducing people to travel in this state and not make some real effort to give them something pleasant to look at. W. D. Snider, director of public relations for the highway commission, is chairman of the joint committee and will explain the program.

MODEL—The roadside council, of which Mrs. N. A. Edwards of Goldsboro is president, has a "Model Mile" plan, objective of which is to get every landowner along the public roads to make every mile of his roadside land a model mile. This includes clearing up domestic premises, keeping farm machinery and unsightly woodpiles to the rear; evening up fence posts and keeping weeds cut from field edges, and cultivation of attractive flowers and shrubbery wherever possible. It includes also removal of automobile graveyards and trash piles, elimination of old cans, bottles and scrap paper from filling station premises, and similar little jobs to make the roadside more attractive.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THE ONLY SOLUTION
(The State)

The only way we can ever have world peace is through a world federation of governments.

Robert Lee Humber of Greenville has been preaching this doctrine for several years, and the more we see of the trend of international events, the more we are inclined to agree with his views.

So long as there is no world-Wide federation or some similar organization, we are bound to have armed conflict. We commend Mr. Humber for the work he has been doing in trying to bring about a better international understanding. We have heard him speak on this subject a number of times: we wish you could hear him also. In this connection, we suggest that you invite him to your town and let him speak before one of your local organizations.

FIREWORKS
(Washington Daily News)

There is a law against shooting fireworks in North Carolina. The sale of them is banned also.

It is easy for people to order them from other states where the sale is legal. Some people detest the shooting of fireworks. They shutter at the very mention of the word.

Some people, especially the children, seem to enjoy them. But shooting fireworks at the Recreation center is dangerous and should be stopped immediately. Recently, we are told that boys have been throwing fireworks in the building. On three occasions fire crackers have been dropped down the chimney exploding in the fire and on one occasion threatened to do considerable damages.

Those guilty are unknown now. What has happened, and no amount of talk can change the events. Parents probably know when the children have fireworks, and the Recreation center is for the enjoyment of all the children. When such acts, inconsiderate and dangerous, are committed such as throwing firecrackers down a chimney, then it is time to do something about it.

When hot ashes are blown over a floor and young children are enjoying an evening of fun and play at the same time, then the danger increases. If the police are called, then perhaps the parents will get mad. It narrows down to a sense of cooperation between parents, children, and Recreation officials. We hope this spirit of cooperation will prevail from now on.

HOLDING.. THE.. LINE
(Washington Daily News)

The people of the United States have seen prices rise, salaries go up, and the end is not yet in sight.

During all this time there is one business which has held the line against rising prices. That is the bottling business.

A bottle of any standard soft drink cost five cents during the heart of the depression. Today while prices on some merchandise have more than doubled, the average citizen can go into any soft drink stand and get a bottle or a glass of his favorite drink for five cents.

There is probably a long story back of this phenomonon. The bottlers probably found out a long while ago that if the line was to be held, then they must do two things. First, they must cut costs of production, and next they must sell more of their products so that the profits would remain stationary.

Both of these factors had to be accomplished without lessening the value of the product. That the bottlers have been successful in their efforts is shown by the five cent price tag on the average soft beverage today.

But the fact that they have held the line in the face of rising prices, inflation, wars, and scarcities is a glowing tribute their business prowess. Today, over the world with so many five cent vending machines selling soft drinks, it represents an enormous outlay and one which would be made useless perhaps if the price of drinks went up to six or seven cents.

Yes sir, while others have given away to the rising price trend, the soft drink bottlers have held the line.

PASSING MUSTER
(Raleigh News And Observer)

It probably would be an overstatement to say that it is the greatest event in the Army since crossbows were replaced by muskets, but high up in the strata of Army history should be included the news that in this enlightened year of 1950, the Army put black-eyed peas on mess hall menus.

Fanciers of the black-eye, with a natural habitat among slivers of fatback, may reluctantly give the Army credit for a good sense of taste now. Reluctantly, because for lo these many years the Army has neglected these delicacies of the pot. Indeed, the publicity about the development of soup-to-nuts Army meals in metal packages takes on a hollow ring when that publicity is considered in the light of the absence of the noble black-eyes from the Army table until now.

While giving the Army its due, the populace should remember that most of the glory goes to the peas. A year ago, GI cooks were told in several Army installations to carry out test runs of the peas in order to determine their future culinary statue. This year, the black-eyes were accepted. It is a worthy triumph for a worthy vegetable. Black-eyed peas in this region long have been among the most palatable of foods, and by passing a muster of Army cooks they proved that their goodness is no temporary, fleeting quality, but a characteristic as sturdy as steel.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

With stores so full of so many things these days, it is difficult to realize that there may be serious shortages next year. Martin Gainsbrugh, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, has predicted that severe curtailments in civilian consumption of aluminum, copper, nickel, rubber and other basic materials would make business mortality "more pronounced" after January 1.

Restrictions on cobalt, copper, tin and other materials may cause a cut of from 25 to 40 per cent in radio and television manufacture next year, according to the Radio-Television Manufacturers Association. While the manufacturers will replace much civilian production with government work, this will be hard on retailers who need sets.

Refrigerator production may be cut 25 per cent by the shortage of sheet steel as well as other materials. Electric stoves may be cut back as much. In fact, almost all appliances and a great many other things in which metals are a component will be produced at curtailed rates.

Several basic plastics are in short supply as a consequence of defense demands. Natural rubber is also scarce in relation to demand and it will be a close race between stepped up supplies of synthetic rubber and demand.

Availability of cotton and wool depends much on prior government demands. Cotton futures have already hit the highest price since the War between the States.

The automobile picture is not yet clear. Production will be reduced by diversion of metals to defense work, but whether credit controls will reduce demand as fast or faster remains to be seen.

These shortages will be accentuated by powerful factors: the shortage of manpower which may cut supply even further, and the increases in employment and wages, which will increase demand. A study by the Department of Commerce indicates that as credit controls restrict buying of durables, the spending power will be shifted from instalment payments to the purchase of uncontrolled goods. Where this buying pressure appears, it will reduce stocks of goods further, tending to create more shortages.

ADS TELL HOUSEWIVES ABOUT SOCIAL SECURITY

The Advertising Council has taken on another no-profit job. At the request of the Social Security Administration, it starts today to "advertise" to the housewife the fact that if she employs a maid for at least 24 days and pays her as much as $50 in a three-month period, she must file social security forms under a new law effective January 1. Radio and television will be used first, followed by other media.

2 PERCENT LESS COFFEE IN YEAR AHEAD

World coffee production in the 1950-51 season is now estimated by the Department of Agriculture to be 2 per cent below last season's crop. Exportable production this season is estimated at 31,200,000 132.3-pound bags. The annual prewar average was 35,000,000 bags.

The trade does not expect further sharp increases in prices because the size of the crop has already been taken into consideration in the future market.

TENSIONS SENDING MORE TO MEDICS

Doctors with classy clientele are enjoying a mild boom these days.

Many corporations are sending important executives for physical checkups. Industrial expansion threatens to create a shortage of executives and companies want to know which ones are able to carry heavier loads and for which ones they ought to be developing replacements.

In addition, worries over shortages and taxes are sending more men to doctors with ulcers and other psychogenic ailments.

U.S. RUNS SERVICE ON FOREIGN TRADE

A loose-leaf "International Reference Service" for importers and exporters is being published by the Department of Commerce. It consists of about 150 reports a year on changing economic conditions, marketing, foreign exchange, regulations, operating costs abroad and annual reviews. The service may be ordered, at $5 a year ($6.75 foreign) from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D.C.

Hal Boyle's Column

With U. S. 8th Army, Korea—(AP)—There are 110,000 puzzled United Nations soldiers in the grand offensive now underway to seize the northwest corner of the Korean icebox.

They are members of the Eighth Army making a drive to the Manchurian border which they hope will wind up the dreary, five-months-old Korean campaign.

But their puzzlement is as deep as their hopes are high. No soldier really knows what lies ahead. This is as true of commanding generals in the field as it is of the privates who carry out their plans.

Therefore there are 110,000 men marching forward strongly but cautiously on a journey into doubt. They are like a man moving at twilight through a strange and frozen forest who sees nothing in sight to harm him but uneasily feels the eyes of unseen foes upon him.

Intelligence officers believe that at present there are no more than 100,000 north Korean and Chinese "volunteers" in the 50 and 60 miles of rugged mountains that lie between the Eighth Army and the Yalu River frontier.

The doubt lies in whether that force will be steadily reinforced by scores of thousands of fresh troops brought secretly across the border at night as "volunteers." And on that critical point there is a new Chinese wall—a wall of Chinese silence.

This uncertainty is peculiarly exasperating to the military mind. Commanders don't like to commit their own troops to battle until they are pretty sure what the enemy is trying to do and what he is capable of doing. And there are those who believe that if Red China does cross the Manchurian border in power the current by 110,000 soldiers will turn out to be merely one of the largest patrol actions in history.

"Frankly I don't know what will happen," a general said. "we don't have enough here to deal with the troops the Chinese can send across the border if they want to."

Here are some other reactions by American officers and men:

A Chief of Staff in a forward command post—"I have been looking at maps all my life, but the map on this operation doesn't tell me a damn thing of what I want to know."

A Colonel—"this is a problem now for diplomats, not soldiers. The striped pants boys are going to have to find a rabbit to pull out of this hat."

A Major—"The Chinese will try to tie us up here and bleed us to death. That's what the Russians want them to do."

A young Lieutenant—"I have been wounded twice in this campaign and I feel my luck won't last a third time. But Im a professional soldier and that's the chance we take. If they want a real war it might as well start now."

A philosophic Private—"Hell, better to freeze going forward than to freeze sitting on your rump waiting for the Chinese to make up their minds."

But most of the troops are more optimistic. They feel that diplomatic decisions are in the making at high levels. Despite the cold weather their morale is high. They are glad the lull is over and that they are on the march again toward a real goal.

And they have a great faith in General Douglas MacArthur. They feel that he is the Santa Claus in uniform who will lead them to final victory by Christmas.

Washington Letter

by JANE EADS

Washington—American GIs soon are going to get a dose of film footage teaching them how to brush their teeth, change their socks and take a bath. The new training film is made by the Army Signal Corps. Tooth brushing and other techniques are "shot" to the tune of old American folk songs such as "The Bluetailed Fly" and others. Corps officers are not quite sure how the boys are going to react but they're optimistic.

Millions of feet of training film used n World War II are still being used. Use of film cuts the time of training one third or more, as well as saving wear and tear on instructors.

During World War II and the emergency period preceding it, the commercial facilities of the Army Pictorial Service of the Signal Corps and the motion picture industry itself produced more than 2,000 training films and almost an equal number of film strips. These aids were distributed, as they now are, through a film library system serving all posts and installations.

Col. C. S. Stodter, chief of the Army Pictorial Service, says considerable improvement in training film production technique has been noted since the first films were made.

"Much of the best of Hollywood and commercial talent has contributed to these productions," he told me. "Subjects have ranged from simple 'how to do it' films to the more complex 'attitude builders'.

"The trend differs today somewhat from the earlier simple 'nuts and bolts' pictures showing the mechanics of a project in minute detail....such as taking a gun apart. We've found that actually a man learns these things better by doing them."

Training and educational films, as well as various other types of films, are turned out at the Signal Corps Photographic Center at Long Island City, New York. In actual footage released, corps officers estimate the center's production tops that of any Hollywood studio. Its laboratory processes more than 4,000,000 feet of film a month.

Many reels are of foreign language recordings in which existing Army training films are renarrated in Spanish and Portuguese to serve the needs of the Western Hemisphere defense program. Currently recordings are being made in other languages to be used in the new Military Assistance Program abroad.

Dixie Governors' Meet Is Opened

Charleston, S.C., Nov. 27—(AP)—The Southern Governors Conference officially opened here today with a round table discussion on civil defense.

The discussion was led by Gov. Gordon Browning of Tennessee, with Governors Fuller Warren of Florida and James Folsom of Alabama participating.

The conference, in which 15 states are represented, opened unofficially last night with a reception given by the city of Charleston.

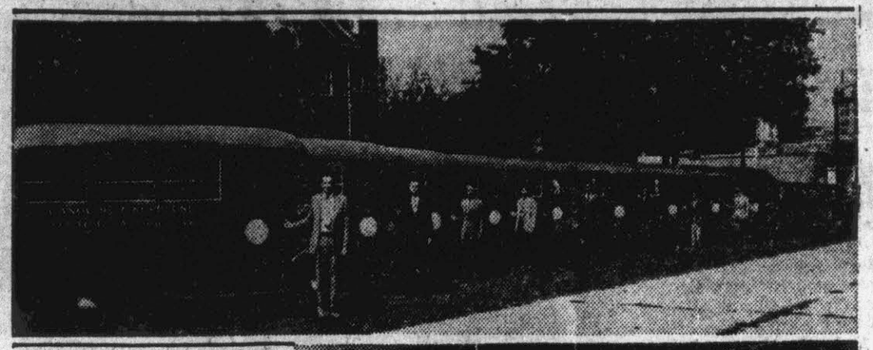

South Carolina Gov. J. Strom Thurmond and Charleston Mayor William M. Morrison welcomed the delegates this morning.

A luncheon meeting featured an address by Dr. Josiah K. Crudup, president of Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga. Another round table discussion, led by Gov Herman Talmadge of Georgia, was scheduled for this afternoon. To be discussed was southern regional education.

A formal state banquet, with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former military governor of West Germany, as principal speaker, will be held tonight. He will be introduced by South Carolina Governor-elect James F. Byrnes.

A group of Spanish colonists, first white settlers in the Southwest, arrived in what is now New Mexico in the year 1598.

MOTORIZED LABORATORIES, each manned by a graduate chemist, have been placed in operation by the Gasoline and Oil Inspection Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Shown above are the 12 specially equipped trucks and their inspector-drivers, who will make on-the-spot checks of gasoline at terminal supply points and 13,000 filling stations throughout the State. One of the inspectors, R. C. Glover, of Wilmington, is shown at right in one of the truck labs preparing to run a test on the distillation range of gasoline. This is one way of determining whether gas has been "cut" below legal requirements. The trucks also are equipped for testing the flash point of kerosene, an important safety factor. These traveling labs will supplement the more detailed analytical work of a central laboratory in Raleigh.

Socialists Gain In Bavarian Vote

Munich, Germany, Nov. 27—(AP)—West Germany's Socialists—bitter opponents of German rearmament for western defense—scored big gains yesterday in Bavarian state elections.

With returns still incomplete, the Socialists were running a strong second to the pro-rearmanment Christian Democrats in the balloting for members of the state parliament.

The surprising Socialist showing in this traditionally conservative state was certain to be interpreted as a third protest vote within a week by German voters against rearmament.

Hesse and Wuerttemberg-Baden rolled up Socialist victories on Nov. 19 in elections widely regarded as a slap at the Christian Democrats, who control the federal government, for their support of German rearmament.

Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, the Christian Democrats' leader, already has agreed to take West Germany into the projected western defense system. He must obtain approval fro mthe federal parliament, however.

This year the Socialists challenged the Christian Democrats in Bavaria solely on the rearmament issue. They argued that the Germans should refuse to take up arms again until they have full independence and enough allied troops in Germany to repel any Soviet attack.

The Christian Democrats countered that the danger of Soviet aggressio was imminent and therefore Germany should not delay in agreeing to rearm.

Honesty Won Him Suspended Term

Olivetti turned himself in to game wardens and pleaded guilty. His excuse: "The deer turned its head in such a way that the spikes formed a fork. I thought it was a legal animal."

Ancient Town Doomed By Wealth That Created It

SALT OF THE EARTH, but it brings the house down.

AP Newsfeature

Hamburf, Germany. — Nature is playing a bad trick on one of the oldest and most beautiful towns of northern ermany.

Lueneburg—center of the picturesque Lueneburg Heath, medieval hunting residence of the Kings of Hanover—is gradually being destroyed.

Salt which once filled the purses of its inhabitants and led to the founding of the town in 900 A. D. is now slowly leading to its doom. Lueneburg was built on and around a 5,000 foot deep pillar of salt stone. Surrounding this pillar is chalk.

Rain water gradually oozed into the salt pillar and through it to the bottom. It melted some of the salt.

The ground level gradually and at first unnoticeably began to give way. Houses started crumbling.

People with money moved out of the old stone houses and built new ones on the outskirts. Only the poor remained and others moved in as the rents became cheaper and walls and streets began to crack. Town fathers are pondering a way out.

So far they have supported toppling walls with poles. Streets were repaired. But some houses have had to be evacuated.

In some places the ground sinks, in others it rises because of the surrounding pressure of the chalk.

Just Lovesick

Providence, R.I., Nov. 27 — (AP)—Police arrested two lovesick boys today because they keep bumping into each other—with automobiles.

Lt. Charles W. Rathbun said charges of reckless driving were brought against Stanley G. D'Orsi, 18, and Frank Hennessey, 16.

Rathbun said the pair have been duelling with automobiles ever since a night six months ago when they both tried to date the same girl.

Last night their cars rammed again and D'Orsi's smashed into a tree, Rathbun said.

He said he asked the pair: "You mean you've been battling like this for six months?" and one of them answered:

"Not all the time, just most of the time."

'Letter' Warns Of World's End

PENANG—(AP)—Is the end of the world near? That seems to be a main topic of conversation among villagers in outlying districts of Penang and Province Wellesley these days. Those doing the talking say that the sun will soon disappear for three days and nights and after that it will be seen rising in the west.

This, say rumor-mongers, is a sign that the world's end is near. All of this kind of talk originated from a letter reportedly discovered in far-off Mecca, and sent here. So superstitious-minded village folks are spreading the "news."

'La Boheme' Presented At College Wednesday

Puccini's "La Boheme," one of the most popular operas of all time will be presented at East Carolina Teachers College by the Charles L. Wagner Company Wednesday evening, November 9 at 8:00 o'clock in the Wright auditorium. The program is sponsored by the College Entertainment Committee as one of a series of entertainments offered during the 1950-1951 term.

Since its early history "La Boheme" has been high in popularity among operas. At the Metropolitan Opera House, it has ranked with "Aida" and "Lohengrin" in the highest number of performances. Both Edward Johnson, the lately retired managing director of the Met, and his predecessor Gullio Gatti Cassazza claimed the "La Boheme" could always be counted upon to sell the greatest number of tickets, with "Carmen" and "La Traviata" not far behing.

"La Boheme" appeals especially because of its beautiful melodies its rich orchestration, and its sentimental story of young love in the Latin Quarter of Paris.

Charles L. Wagner, whose touring opera companies have appeared in many leading cities throughout the nation for the past ten seasons will bring to Greenville for the performance a cast of young American singers. Specially designed scenery and costumes will add to the effectiveness of the production, and an orchestra and chorus will appear with the production. The Wagner production is directed by Desire Defrere, leading stage director of the Metropolitan Opera Company for the past nineteen years.

The sale of tickets began at the Austin building of East Carolin Teachers College this morning and will continue through Wednesday. Hours are from 10:00 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Skipper Is Saved By 2 Passengers

Buxton-on-Cape Hatteras, Nov. 27—(AP)—The 60-year-old skipper of the Hatteras-Ocracoke mail boat is alive today because of quick-thinking by two young passengers.

Capt. Charlie Mack Williams was swept overboard when his vessel was struck by a heavy sea in a blizzard Saturday. At the time, he was 20 minutes out of Hatteras on course for Ocracoke Island, carrying mail and the two passengers.

Lonnie Burrus, Jr., 16-year-old son of Bos'n's Mate A. O. Burrus at Cape Hatteras lifeboat station, made for the anchor when the skipper went overboard. S-1c Ray Scarborough, young Kinnakeeter, cut the engine.

The two youths, drifting the boat, succeeded in getting a boathook in the skipper's collar and hauled him aboard. Then the two boys brought the boat to dock in Hatteras village.

Steel Skeletons Being Replaced In Construction

New York —(AP)— Reinforced concrete is taking the place of the usual steel skyscraper skeleton in the construction of a 20-story luxury apartment project on New York's East River front near the United Nations headquarters.

The $7,000,000 structure for 390 families will be New York's first building of this height to be constructed entirely of concrete, according to Paul Tishman, the builder. A two-level underground garage will take 200 automobiles off the street.

All living rooms and master bedrooms with large windows facing the river, will be five-sided rooms.

Headlines Of . . .

6,000 people died.

The worst tornado was the "tri-state" tornado of 1925. It slashed a path through Missouri, Southern Illinois, and Indiana and killed 689.

The worst flood, in terms of deaths, killed an estimated 2,200 people at Johnstown, Pa., in 1889, though other floods have caused more widespread damage to property.

Forest fires have been known to kill more than 1,000 people, and the San Francisco earthquake and fire of 1906 killed hundreds. But the greatest fire toll in a single building occurred in the Iroquois Theater, at Chicago, in 1903, when 602 people were either burned or trampled to death.

The year 1947 was a year of disasters in the U. S.

In March, a coal mine explosion at Centralia, Ill., killed 111 miners. In April, a ship explosion at Texas City, Tex., took a toll of 512. Then there were four major plane crashes, in which 43 were killed at LaGuardia Field, New York; 53 near Bainbridge, Md.; 50 at Lookout Rock, W. Va.; and 52 near Bryce Canyon, Utah.

Those aviation disasters were exceeded last June by the death of 58 persons in a plane which fell into Lake Michigan.

The largest death list in a U. S. train wreck was 101 at Nashville, Tenn., in 1918.

Motor vehicle accidents are not usually classed as "disasters" because the deaths come in ones and twos, but the victims are just as dead—and they mount to a fearful annual total. The record year was 1941, when 39,969 were killed. The National Safety Council says this year's total may be about 35,000, a post war record.

THE RAILROAD MURDER CASE

By R. M. Laurenson

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 32

Marc walked the length of the car, followed by a battery of hypnotized eyes, and stopped before Miller.

"For instance, you, Mr. Miller."

Miller returned Marc's stare coldly, drops of perspiration on his fat upper lip his only sign of emotion.

"Your presence and actions have caused us no end of speculation. It seems most irregular that a passenger would purchase a railroad ticket—particularly a Pullman ticket—and then use about one third of it. To be sure, you explained about a jealous wife, but why not make your amorous stopovers on the return trip? Your leaving the train at Calumet has all the earmarks of a sudden decision, precipitated by some unusual occurrence. Now I ask you, what occurrence can be more unusual than murder? What've you to say, Mr. Miller?"

The perspiration spread to Miller's forehead and his lips drew to a white line. "Nothing. You're just guessing."

"Mr. Miller," Marc chided him, "you malign me. But to continue, there was another will-o'-the-wisp riding Number 61 that night, in the form of a presumably beautiful woman. Presumably beautiful, because her eyes were marred by dark glasses, and her hair was tied up unbecomingly in a kerchief. It has been definitely established that she had very pretty legs!"

Dorene uncrossed her legs and slid her skirt over her knees. Marc ignored the interruption.

"This lady also did a vanishing act; in fact, took some pains about it—riding a cab to a side street and walking away from it. The part that'll interest you, Miller, is that you were seen in earnest conversation with the lady earlier in the evening. It might be helpful if you would identify the phantom."

"Don't be stupid," replied Miller.

"Indeed," murmured Marc. "It's a fault I struggle to overcome. Let's digress for a moment. Fingerprints sometimes enter, even as in this case. Some very intriguing fingerprints were unearthed. A beautiful hand print appeared on the glass of the rear door to the car ahead of this one. That is, the door to the platform on which Richards' body was found. Astonishing as it may seem, the same prints—a woman's left hand—appeared on the handle of a villainous knife found in a wastebasket just a few feet from the murder spot. Now why would a woman drop a knife—innocent of any marks of violence—in that basket? To establish a complicated and indirect alibi? Possibly."

"Pardon the interruption, Jordan," said Arnold coolly, "but where's all this leading? It's getting late and you don't seem to be making any progress."

Marc whirled around to face Arnold. "I'm sorry to be taking up your time, Mr. Arnold," he said sharply, "but I want to bring us all up to date. Perhaps then we will make progress."

"Let's examine the actions of our phantom lady in more detail. It appears that she purchased a ticket to Chicago, and boarded the train at Hastings. The agent happened to remember her because she was the only Pullman passenger that night. It also appears that she arrived at Hastings shortly before train time via a sporty red roadster, said roadster being parked at a nearby garage."

Marc pulled at his pipe for a moment, and then turned to Mrs. Johnson.

"I wonder, Mrs. Johnson," he said slowly, "whether it's entirely coincidental that you drove off in your red roadster about eight-thirty Tuesday evening, and were gone most of the night?"

"That's a base insinuation!" she snapped, darting a glance at her husband, who stared at her blankly. "I visited friends for a while, as I told you."

Marc nodded. "So you did. But something about that trip puzzles me greatly. Perhaps you'll be able to enlighten me. When I called on you at Duck Lake Wednesday afternoon, your maid volunteered the information that you'd driven away in your roadster at eight-thirty, returning in the small hours of the morning. When I saw you late in the afternoon, you were still in deshabille, having spent most of the day in bed. Now, how did it happen that your red roadster was not in the garage at that time, but your husband's sedan was parked in its place?"

Dorene gasped "I don't know what you're talking about."

"I'll tell you," replied Marc grimly. "I'm talking about the fact that as soon as the rest of the party left Duck Lake, you went to your room, packed a bag, slipped out to your car, and drove off. You drove to Hastings, where you parked your red car in a garage across from the railroad station—where I saw it the next day, and checked the license number. You 'disguised' yourself in dark glasses and a head kerchief. You bought a berth on the Chicago Flyer, and quietly boarded it when it stopped at Hastings.

"You were recognized by George Miller, one of your pals from way back, and talked with him. You bribed Andrews to deliver a note to Cliff, who was to deliver it to Mr. Richards. You thought no one would know that you are ambidextrous as the result of an injury to your right elbow while you were part of a vaudeville knife-throwing act, so you wrote the note with your left hand to disguise the handwriting. You thought that would be safe, even if the note was later found.

"A few minutes after eleven you sneaked into the car ahead, and went to stateroom 'A'—which you knew from Andrews was vacant—to keep your rendezvous with Mr. Richards. You went there to murder him—with a knife! When you found he wasn't there, you went on to the platform, perhaps reasoning that that was a better place anyway. Correct, Mrs. Johnson?"

Patrol In Malaya Has War Record

Kuala Lumpur—(AP)—The last patrol of the veteran first battalion Devonshire regiment is going home to Britain after hanging up an impressive record in the jungle war against Communists.

Longevity Gains Over Past Forty Years Evidenced

New York, N. Y.—A twenty year-old man taking a job in American industry today can look forward to an average of 8.4 additional years of life, which is 11 years more than if he had started to work forty years ago, according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, public health authority and chief statistical officer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

At age 30 the gain in expectation of life during the same period is just short of 10 years and even at age 40 it amounts to seven years. These figures are based upon the experience among many millions of industrial life insurance policyholders.

The increase in longevity among the workers is attributed by Dr. Dublin to safe and healthier working conditions, the marked advances in medical science shortened hours of labor, and a great improvement in the economic status of the worker.

"The health of workers in our country has received increasing attention from physicians, engineers, chemists, and other technicians during the past four decades," commented Dr. Dublin. "Industrial medicine has become a well organized specialty, and the safety movement has spread widely. More and more manufacturing plants have been designed to provide better light and ventilation and better working conditions generally."

The increase in longevity Dr. Dublin pointed out, reflects very marked reductions in the mortality from a number of causes, outstanding of which are a decline of more than 90 per cent in the tuberculosis death rate at the main working ages and almost as spectacular a decline for influenza and pneumonia. He added that other diseases, such as typhoid fever and lead poisoning, which formerly took a heavy toll of life among industrial workers, have been virtually eliminated as causes of death. The mortality from accidents has dropped 56 per cent.

China is not exporting any wool. India has imposed a ban on wool export, and Tibet will not in a position to export with the Chinese invading the country.

N. C. Fires Over Cold Weekend Destroy $500,000 Of Property

By the Associated Press

At least $500,000 worth of property was destroyed in fires in North Carolina during the freezing weekend.

One of the biggest fires was at Gastonia where the Eagle Department Store, loaded with Christmas merchandise, was destroyed by a fire that threatened the heart of the town's business district.

Damages to the store property were estimated at $200,000. The only other building extensively damaged was the Spindle Cafe and a small hotel above it.

Firemen battled the blaze in freezing temperatures and high wind for two hours before bringing it under control.

At Raleigh, a $100,000 fire broke out in a woman's dormitory at St Augustine's College. About 40 students in the building when the fire broke out escaped without injuries.

Another $100,000 fire at Greensboro destroyed the wholesale grocery warehouse and offices of the Foster-Caveness Co. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

At Sanford, fire gutted the mill supply department of the Sanford General Foundry. Losses were estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000. Sanford firemen fought the blazes for more than six hours before bringing it under control.

Two Methodist churches at Roxboro caught fire within five minutes time. The Wesleyan church damage was slight, but the Brooksdale church reported damages of $8,000. The fires were reported to have been caused by a faulty furnace and an overheated stove.

Edwin Gill To Be Sworn In Friday

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 27—(AP)—Edwin M. Gill, former state revenue commissioner, is slated to be sworn in Friday morning in Greensboro as North Carolina's new collector of internal revenue.

Gill was appointed several weeks ago by Sen. Frank P. Graham to succeed retiring collector C. O. Robertson. Superior Court Judge R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids will administer the oath of office to Gill.

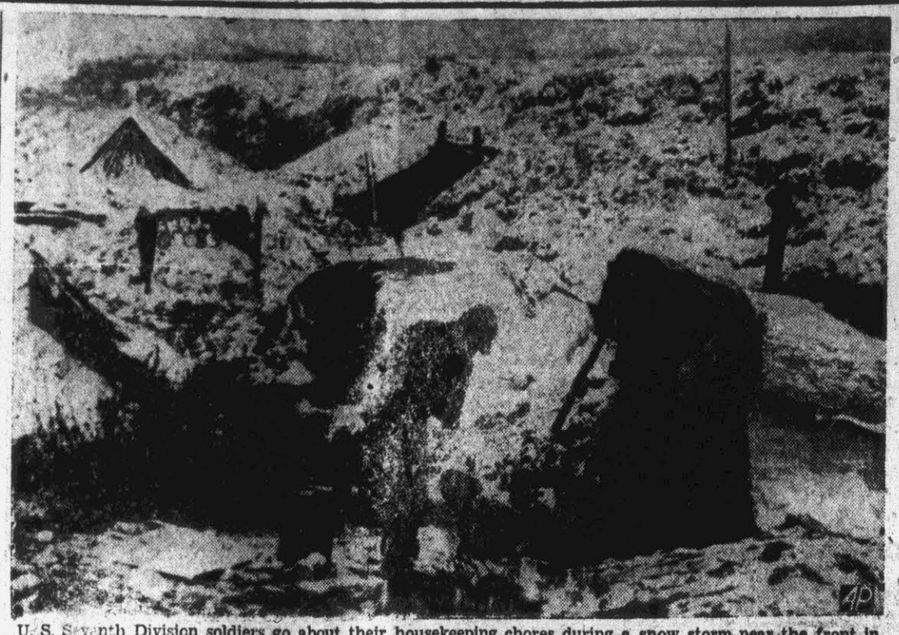

Etna Lava Flow Still Threatens

Catania, Sicily, Nov. 27—(AP)—Hot lava flowing from the fractured side of Mount Etna still threatened half a dozen hamlets on the northeastern slopes of Europe's highest volcano today.

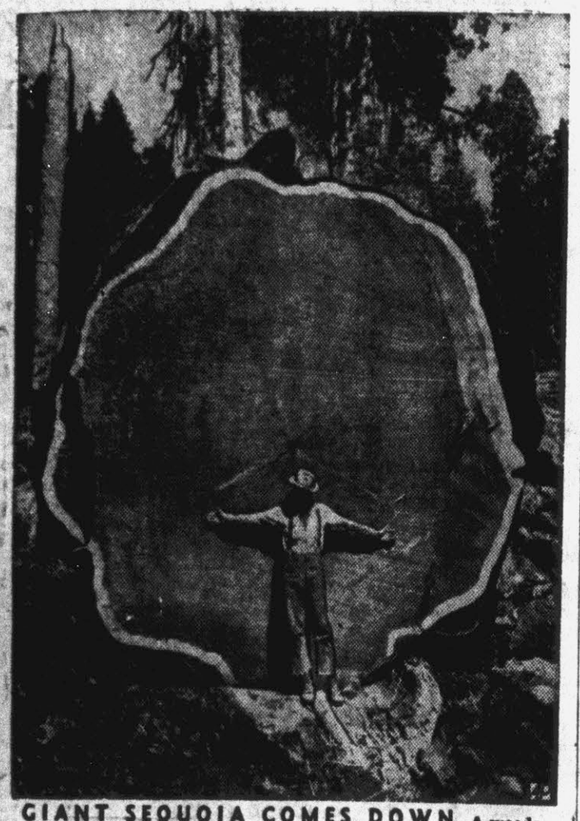

Sonce Saturday night, however, when the 10,741 foot high volcano ripped into action, the hot flow has slowed to a speed of about 100 feet per hour. Its most advanced stream had narrowed to a width of about 500 feet.

The 1,500 inhabitants of Fornazza, the village closest to the smoking, creeping flow camped out during the night—ready with their household goods for a quick getaway.

A volcano expert from the University of Catania said it was too early to make any forecasts on the flow probably would make it skirt Fornazza.

Jesse J. Darden, 23-year-old Newark, N.J., Negro, who was arrested at the Greenville bus station Sunday, on a charge of being drunk, found himself in other trouble after the officers searched h n.

They said they found a pistol in his hip pocket and three bullets in his possession. In Police Court today, Judge J. W. H. Roberts found Darden guilty of being drunk and carrying a concealed weapon. His Honor, in passing sentence, reminded the defendant that "You will have to spend this winter in the sou " The court gave him six months on the roads or pay $50 fine and costs for carrying the concealed weapon and fined him $15 for being drunk.

College Begins Winter Quarter This Morning

East Carolina Teachers College began the winter quarter of the 1950-1951 school term this morning. Registration for work for the quarter began at 8:30, and is still in progress as the Reflector goes to press this afternoon. Class work will begin at 8:00 Tuesday morning.

The fall quarter came to a close Wednesday, November 22, at noon, and practically all students left the campus for the Thanksgiving holidays.

No information was available today as to the number of students at the college this quarter. More than 2,000 students took work offered by East Carolina during the fall quarter. This number represents the largest enrollment to date in the history of the college.

Two suits in the amount of $10,775 each have been brought against Grover Lee Smith, convicted in October of manslaught, by Aubrey B.

Two New Senators, One Named Smith, Take Their Oath Today

Washington, Nov. 27—(AP)—Two freshmen senators—Willis Smith of North Carolina and Earle C. Clements of Kentucky—arranged to take the oath of office today. Both are Democrats.

They are the first to begin service of a crop of 14 new senators elected Nov. 7.

Three other new faces will appear in the senate shortly:

Frank Carlson, 57, Republican who resigned as governor of Kansas after his election, will take the oath tomorrow or Wednesday.

Richard M. Nixon, 37, California Republican moving over from the House, probably will take his seat Dec. 5.

John O. Pastore, 43, Democratic Governor of Rhode Island, expects to resign and come here after Dec. 5.

The other freshmen senators are scheduled to take their places in the new session starting Jan. 3.

The date on which a senator starts his service is important because seniority, or length of service, is a controlling factor on choice committee assignments, normally given on a basis of seniority.

Smith, 62, former president of the American Bar Association, campaigned on a basis of opposition to some of President Truman's "fair deal" proposals. He defeated Senator Frank Graham, a "fair deal" supporter, in a primary.

Clements, 54, a former member of the House of Representatives, takes the place of Senator Withers, who was appointed to fill the Kentucky vacancy resulting when Vice President Barkley resigned as a senator. Withers did not seek election.

Similarly, Carlson will replace Senator Darby (R-Kan), whom Carlson appointed to the Senate Darby did not seek election.

Nixon will succeed Senator Downey (D-Calif), who plans to resign Thursday, before his term expires, to give Nixon an edge on other new senators. Gov. Earl Warren will then appoint Nixon. Downey did not seek re-election.

Nixon doesn't plan to take the oath until California's other senator, Republican William F. Knowland, returns here Dec. 5 from a Pacific trip.

Pastore is waiting until the final formal check of Rhode Island votes, Dec. 5. Until then Senator Leahy, Democrat whom he appointed to office, will continue in his seat. Leahy did not seek election.

Pioneer

JESSE ANNA LACINAH —in her Conestoga.

AP Newsfeatures

Jamestown, N. D.—A weather-beaten, 60-year-old woman with the stamina of a pioneer and scorn for modern transportation is on her way from Montana to Minnesota in a covered wagon.

Jesse Anna Lacinah sold her ranch, cattle and most of her belongings several weeks ago and started her trek from Big Sandy, Mont.

Her plodding trip of more than 1,000 miles was interrupted when her horses, "Pick and Nally O'Mally," bolted and the covered wagon and a truck collided. Jesse Anna was hospitalized here for a rest.

She has the same wagon and horse harness used when she went west in 1914. Her destination now is Lakefield, Minn., where a sister, Mary Ohlario, lives.

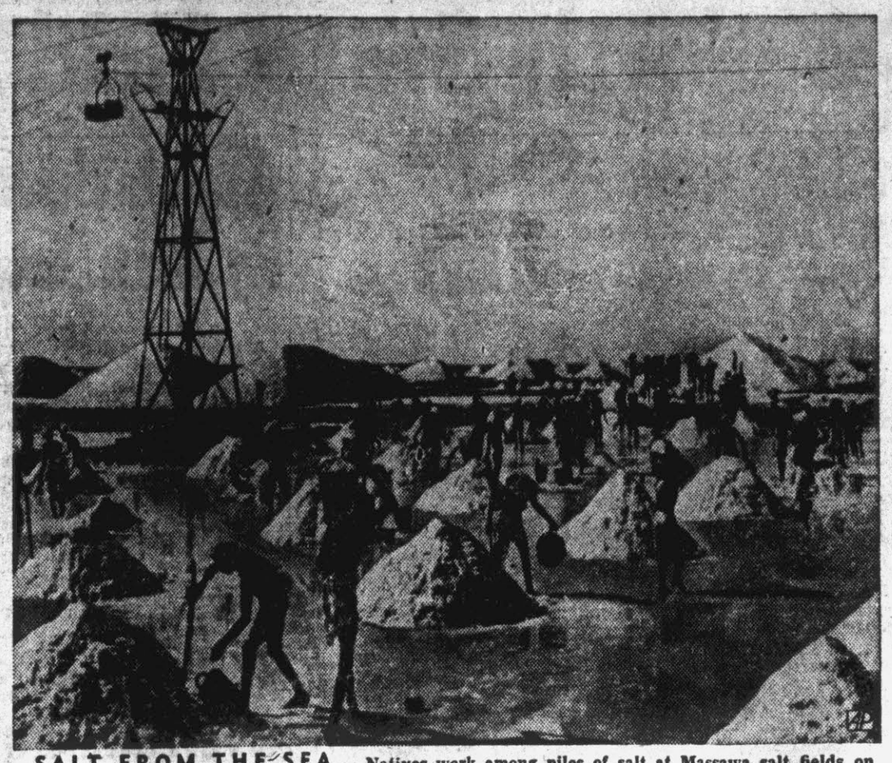

Jesse Anna eats and sleeps in her covered wagon. A bed spring is fastened to the fore part of the wagon and extends to about the midsection. The back half of the wagon is loaded with corn stalks for the horses.

To add to Jesse Anna's misfortune, her goat. "My Pal, Eliza," died. Eliza used to bring up the rear in a two wheeled cart and for her passage provided milk.

When Jesse Anna passed through Bismarck, she had a passerby call a department store clerk for her. She ordered a pair of overshoes, some safety pins and a few yards of white cloth.

She has roughly 400 miles left of her trip "back east."

British Using U.S. Carbines In Malaya Fighting

Singapore—(AP)—British troops and security forces are using American carbines in their jungle war against Communists in Malaya.

The British bought the arms in the United States in a cash deal, but more substantial military aid may soon be forthcoming if the United States grants a British appeal for $5,000,000 to buy equipment. British officers regard the American carbines as an "A-1 weapon" in the battle against terrorists.

The automatic carbines are equipped with magazines of 15 or 30 rounds of 30 calibre bullets. In addition to lightness, the barrels of the carbines are short—a decided asset for soldiers and police who often have to hack their way into jungle lairs of Communists.

Erosion Curbed By Heavy Grass

Des Moines, Ia.—(AP)— A large gully on the Guy Hensley farm near Paton, once deep enough to hide a tractor, has now been brought so well under control it could be farmed.

Ward Schilling, operating the 280-acre farm, used reed canary grass to control the erosion. The grass had been doubling itself every year. Schilling says he doesn't plan to farm it, however, nor the surrounding upland. The upland has been erodising too severely to be cropped, he said. He will use the section for pasture. The grass, which grows in clumps from two to eight feet in height, makes fine pasture and hay.

Resume Efforts To Settle Four Railroad Issues

Washington, Nov. 27—(AP)—The White House resumed efforts today to settle in a single deal the demands served by four major unions of the nation's railroads.

Head of the four unions, representing about 350,000 operating rail workers, were summoned to another conference with John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman.

Steelman initiated the talks with the unions last week, then conferred separately with representatives of the carriers.

The railroads have been under nominal government seizure for several months to prevent a strike by two of the unions, the Railroad Trainmen and Railway Conductors.

These two, plus the Locomotive Engineers and Firemens Brotherhoods, have demanded wage increases ranging up to 35 cents an hour.

Also involved is the demand for a 40-hour work week for most employes still working a longer week.

Steelman has launched a drive to settle the demands of all four unions so federal seizure of the rail industry can be lifted.

Fifteen unions representing about 1,000,000 non-operating rail employes have a separate dispute for a 25-cent hourly wage increase.

Commies Boost Theme Of Peace

At a recent student festival at magdeburg, the children sang the new tune while 30 live doves were turned loose. "They flew eastward reported the Communist newspaper "Volksstimme," "to where the bulwark of peace, the great and mighty Soviet Union, lies.

RECENTLY, a study was made to determine the present state of health and well-being of 78 diabetics who had been placed on a diet and Insulin twenty years before. Previous to Dr. Banting's discovery of Insulin in 1922, their chance of survival for more than two or three years would have been slight.

It was found that 77 of the 78, or 98 percent, were alive and living active, useful lives.

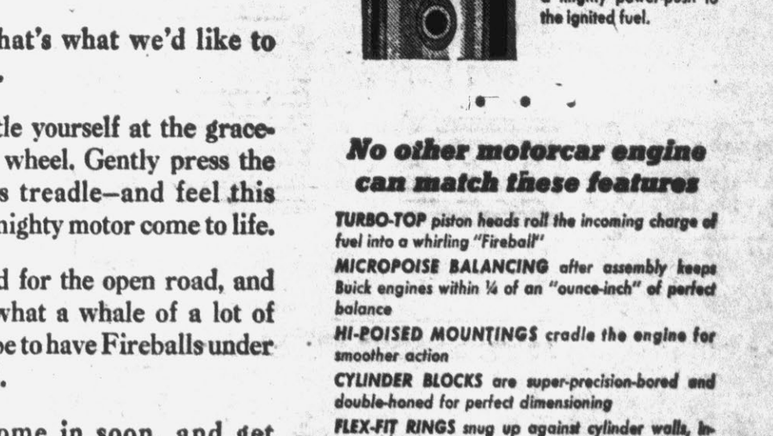

Diabetes cannot be cured, but scientific management under the direction of a physician gives comfort and happiness to people who are otherwise without hope. Do not be misled by claims for so-called diabetic cures. There is but one safe treatment, and it is thoroughly understood by your physician.

SPRY AND MIGHTY POWER PLANT
with a proud pedigree

Rushing into the cylinder, the fuel charge strikes the Turbo-Top piston — swirls into a tiny cyclone of terrific turbulence that gives a mighty power-push to the ignited fuel.

HERE you behold the up-to-the-minute version of a high-compression engine that has taught a whole industry something about fuel efficiency.

Fact is, Buick pioneered the deep-breathing valve-in-head engine 47 years ago—and thus blazed a trail that aircraft engines—and more recently automobile engines—have followed.

But don't let that ancient lineage fool you.

Today's Buick engine is not simply a valve-in-head. It's a Fireball—which means that it uses fuel-saving, power-peaking principles that are found in no other motorcar on America's highways.

"This is all very well," you say, "but what does it do for me?"

Mister, that's what we'd like to show you.

Come settle yourself at the graceful Buick wheel. Gently press the handy gas treadle—and feel this spry and mighty motor come to life.

Then head for the open road, and discover what a whale of a lot of fun it can be to have Fireballs under your hood.

Better come in soon, and get acquainted with the engine—and the automobile—that have won more than 200,000 owners of other cars to 1950 Buicks.

No other motorcar engine can match these features

TURBO-TOP piston heads roll the incoming charge of fuel into a whirling "Fireball"
MICROPOISE BALANCING after assembly keeps Buick engines within ¼ of an "ounce-inch" of perfect balance
HI-POISED MOUNTINGS cradle the engine for smoother action
CYLINDER BLOCKS are super-precision-bored and double-honed for perfect dimensioning
FLEX-FIT RINGS snug up against cylinder walls, increase oil economy.
DUREX BEARINGS provide unsurpassed bearing life
FLITEWEIGHT PISTONS combine lightness with hardness and strength
CYLINDERS are individually cooled to prevent distortion

Thrift Receives North State Grid Honor

Buc Quarterback Tops All Voting

East Carolina Back Named North State's Football Star Of Year; Will Be Feted At High Point Banquet Tuesday

Greensboro, N.C., Nov. 27—(AP)—The North State Conference, continuing its coincidental policy of alternating between a back and a lineman from year to year, will honor Roger Thrift of East Carolina tomorrow night as its most outstanding football star of the year.

Thrift, a passing quarterback from Bill Dole's East Carolina formation aerial circus, was named the conference's most outstanding in a poll of North Carolina members of the Southern Conference Sportswriters Association and the nine conference coaches. He received 91 out of a possible 115 total.

The award, a presentation of the High Point American Business Club, will be given Thrift tomorrow night at the club's annual banquet at the Sheraton Hotel in High Point. The conference will hold its winter meetings tomorrow morning and tomorrow afternoon. Roy Clogston, State College athletic director, will be the banquet speaker.

Thrift is the fifth North State player to receive the award. And as a back he continues the unofficial tradition of alternating between backs and linemen from year to year. Art Loyd, estern Carolina's Little All-American guard, received the trophy a year ago. The year before it went to Herman Bryson, a back from Appalachian. Ray Yagiello, Catawba tackle, preceded Bryson, and Tony Georgiana, Catawba fullback, received the trophy the first year it was given.

The East Carolina quarterback was the sparkplug of a team which won seven games and lost three. He passed for 1907 yards, an unofficial conference mark since no records have been kept. Twenty of his tosses went for touchdowns.

Jack George, Appalachian halfback, finished second to Thrift with 34 points and Bill Loyd, a fullback from High Point, was third with 27. Frank Little, Lenoir-Rhyne end, was the only other player who got more than 10 votes, collecting 18 from the 23 participants.

The awards banquet is scheduled for 7 p.m. Coaches of the conference will meet at 10 a.m., and then conference meeting will convene at 2 p.m. Election of new officers is among items to be considered.

Hardwood Slates Begin; Wolfpack Engages Furman

New York, Nov. 27—(AP)—What's this? Football isn't even over and here's college basketball getting up a full head of steam.

In fact, the dribble boys went into action last week with City College of New York (CCNY) taking up where it left off last March.

The first team ever to accomplish basketball's grand slam by winning both the National Invitation and NCAA Tournaments back in March opened its season Saturday with a 81-62 triumph over St. Francis of Brooklyn.

North Carolina State, defending Southern Conference champion, pries off the lid on Tuesday night against Furman.

Consolation For Illinois Gridders

Chicago, Nov. 27—(AP)—Illinois blew the Big Ten title and Rose Bowl assignment last Saturday, but it did some consolation today in landing four berths to dominate the 1950 All-Conference football team picked by the loop coaches for the Associated Press.

Michigan, whose 9-3 upset of Ohio State coupled with the Illini's 14-7 loss to Northwestern gave the Wolverines the title, and Ohio State each placed three players on the honor team.

Michaels Almost Sure Of League Scoring Honors

Richmond, Va., Nov. 27—(AP)—Washington and Lee's Generals not only held the Southern Conference football championship today but their star fullback, Walt Michaels, was virtually sure to take the league's individual scoring honors.

Michaels led the point-producers with 89 markers. He climbed into the lead last Thursday by chipping in with 25 points in Washington and Lee's 67-7 rout of the University of Richmond. Second place was held by Fred Cone, Clemson fullback, who contributed 24 points Saturday to his team's 41-0 triumph over Auburn. Cone's point total is 86.

Both Michaels and Cone have completed their regular seasons. Bob Shemonski, Maryland halfback, is tied for third with Dickie Lewis, William and Mary halfback. Each has 66 points, and both have another game Saturday.

The conference campaign ends Saturday when five league foes complete their regular schedules. Maryland entertains Virginia Tech's victoryless Gobblers at College Park, Md., North Carolina invades Virginia, and the University of Richmond journeys to William and Mary.

William and Mary scored the big upset of last week. The Indians, with seven defeats on their record knocked off favored North Carolina State, 34-0, before 10,000 Oyster Bowl spectators at Norfolk, Va. Lewis made 16 points, scoring two touchdowns and kicking four extra points. Fullback Ed Magdziak also got two six-pointers.

Jockeys Battle For Race Honors

Bowie, Md., Nov. 27—(AP)—Wee Willie Shoemaker, the wordless wonder from the west, and Joe Culmone, a cocky immigrant kid from Sicily, put their battle for 1950 jockey honors on a personal basis today.

The two little giants of horse racing will ride against each other in the Bowie Special, a $1,250 winner-take-all match race especially tailored for them.

Golfers To Play For Alexander

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 27—(AP)— A North Carolina professional team will play a Texas squad to raise money for Stewart (Skip) Alexander, pro who was seriously injured in an Indian airplane accident.

The first match is tentatively scheduled for Lakewood Country Club here early next year, when touring pros are in Texas between dates of three scheduled PGA tournaments. Later in the year another match is planned in North Carolina.

Two In Service

New York—(A Carl Braun, of the New York Nickerbockers and Jack Nichols of the Tri-Cities Blackhawks are the first two big stars of the National Basketball Association to be called into service. Braun was drafted into the Army and Nichols, a Marine veteran of the last war, was recalled to active duty.

First Forward

NEW HAVEN—(AP)—Many have claimed the honor of throwing the first football forward pass, but Yale athletic officials say Walter Camp was the first. Against Princeton in 1876, Camp was tackled and tossed the ball to Thompson before he hit the ground. Princeton protested, but the referee allowed the pass after flipping a coin. Yale repeated against the same toe in 1883.

Sport Slants By Pap

All-Around Ace

" "Bob Spears is our most valuable player," says Herman Hickman, coach of Yale. "He's our best all-round boy because he usually plays 50 or 55 minutes a game. He is an excellent runner and fine blocker. On defense, he's the best."

A brawny blond standing six feet and weighing 210 pounuds, Spears is the son of Clarence (Doc) Spears one time coach at Oregon, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Toledo and Maryland. Football couldn't be ignored in the Spears household so Bob's gridiron education started early. At 14 Bob scrimmaged with the Maryland varsity in spring practice. He was well prepared for football when he entered Staunton Military Academy in Virginia a year later and compiled a brilliant record as a prep gridder.

Last season as a sophomore, Spears was hampered by a knee injury. An operation during the winter corrected the condition and enabled him to come into his own this fall. In addition to football, Big Bob is a weight thrower on the track squad and is expected to score regularly with the shot and discus. He is a fierce competitor, a trait he very likely inherited from his father, an All-America guard in his playing days at Dartmouth.

Charles - Barone Title Bout Slated Tomorrow

Cincinnati, Nov. 27 — (AP) — Schools close. Banks shutter. More snow falls. Still the Ezzard Charles-Nick [illegible] heavyweight title fight goes on as scheduled tomorrow.

With Ohio much more concerned about digging itself out of another snowfall, the powers that be determined that "the fight must go on."

Of course, there may be a change of heart today when the boys scan the snow-covered highway leading to the Cincinnati Garden, some nine miles from downtown Cincinnati. Managers and promoter are due to survey the site in autos with skid chains.

This city, built on seven hills, still battled to free itself from the icy clutches of winter yesterday as the two battlers wound up training.

Charles, making his first home start as champion in Cincinnati's first heavyweight title bout, zipped through seven fast rounds at his own gym. They said he looked great, weighing 184 pounds. That was his weight when he whipped Joe Louis in New York, Sept. 27.

Henny Andrews, Barone's manager, did not let the Syracuse light heavyweight box yesterday. The stocky 24-year-old puncher limbered up briefly and will do the same today. He will come in at about 180 pounds.

Nebraskan Tops Football Scoring Honors For 1950

New York, Nov. 27—(AP)—Bobby Reynolds the hard-charging halfback of Nebraska's Cornhuskers, is college football's 1950 individual scoring champion with a remarkable 157 points for nine games.

The sophomore sensation wound up season play Saturday by romping to three touchdowns and kicking five extra points in the game Nebraska lost to powerful Oklahoma, 49-35.

Reynolds thus regained the scoring leadership he temporarily had given up a week earlier to Carl Taseff, flashing fullback with John Carroll University. Taseff finished with 139 points for a completed 10-game season.

Kentucky Awaits Sooners' Voting

New Orleans, Nov. 27—(AP)—Kentucky anxiously awaited the results of an Oklahoma election today.

Oklahoma's Sooners were expected to vote on whether they want to play in the Sugar Bowl for the third time in a row—this time against Kentucky's once-beaten Wildcats.

The Kentuckians were named to play in the Sugar Bowl after losing to Tennessee 7-0 Saturday and toppling from the nation's undefeated elevens.

Clinic For Cage Officials To Be Held At Durham

Durham, N.C., Nov. 27—(AP)—Another clinic will be held at Duke University Sunday for Southern Conference basketball officials who were unable to attend yesterday's session.

More than 125 officials showed up for the annual clinic and rules interpretation meeting yesterday despite the fact that many were unable to attend due to weather conditions.

On yesterday's program were Eddie Cameron of Duke University—chairman of the Southern Conference Basketball Committee, and Dallas Shirley of Washington, D.C., who conducted the rule changes discussion.

Other speakers were Francis Hoover of Appalachian, speaking for the North State Conference; Bob Jamison, speaking for high school coaches, and James (Buck) Geary of Wake Forest College, speaking for Southern Conference players.

Latins Lured

MIAMI BEACH—(AP)—Venezuela will be represented for the first time in the international Orange Bowl junior boys and girls tennis championships here, Dec. 26-31. Edward Herr, tourney chairman, says the Caracas Tennis Association told him it plans to send four young contestants to the fourth annual meet.

An Offensive . . .

from Manchuria could come in the spring because they have large bodies of fighting men in Manchuria and are reported to be moving more there. Still, the question of what might happen next spring is among the imponderables.

For one thing there is no clear indication of just what the Chinese Communist leader, General Mao Tze-Tung, is aiming for. While he obviously has entered into a partnership with Moscow, there is no sign that he wants a Chinese-American War.

Mao will join Moscow in helping weaken the U. S. A., and other western nations by indirection, as in the Korean conflict. But it is unlikely he is looking for a duel with the world's most powerful nation.

The United States, for her part, has made it plain that she doesn't want trouble with China. Washington has been going out of its way to let Peiping know that we desire peace. It's only a short time ago that President Truman issued a statement stressing our friendship for the people of China. China.

Appalachian Hosts For Pythian Bowl On Dec. 9

By the Associated Press

Appalachian's conference champions will be hosts in the Pythian Bowl in Salisbury Dec. 9. Except for that game, it's all over in the North State football conference this season.

In season finales Thanksgiving Day Elon edged Guilford 6-0, and Lenoir-Rhyne topped Catawba by the same score, while Appalachian absorbed its first defeat of the season—a 26-6 rout by Emory and Henry in the Burley Bowl at Johnson City, Tenn.

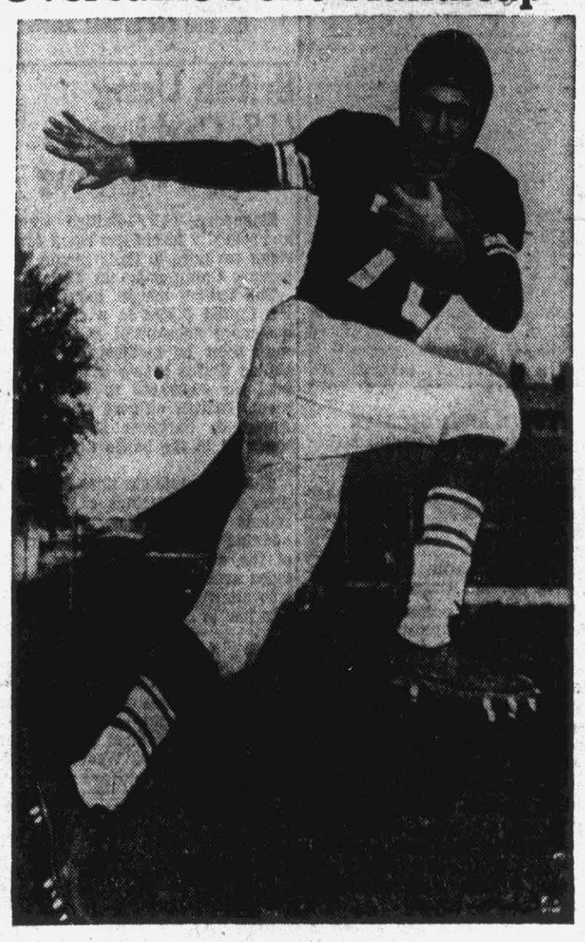

Appalachian's opponent for the Pythian Bowl game has not been announced.

Meanwhile, Coach Clarence Stasavich announced that he had filed a formal protest on two Appalachian players who played in conference games. The players are Halfback Bill Cross and Johnny O'Neal.

Appalachian, in an earlier ruling from the conference commissioner A. L. Hook of Elon, had secured clearance for the players. Stasavich maintained that the rule concerning the eligibility of former GIs has not been interpreted correctly.

The matter is expected to come before the conference at its winter meeting in High Point Tuesday.

Kicking Boy-Size Football Overcame Polio Handicap

Wittenberg's Bill Varble, fleet halfback who was stricken with polio at the age of five and kicked himself back to health, using a kid-sized football to strengthen his stricken right leg.

AP Newsfeatures

Springfield, O.—Bill Varble, star sophomore halfback for Wittenberg College, is carrying a man-sized football in standout fashion this season, and he owes it all to a kid-sized pigskin he used to work his polio stricken leg back to normal 13 years ago.

Varble, now 19, was a polio victim when he was five. The disease attacked his right leg and the Louisville, Ky., youngster was told he probably would never walk again.

After a year and a half of treatment, he recovered enough to leave the hospital and try to learn to walk again. His right leg was an inch shorter than his left, and shriveled because of under development.

Doctors handed young Bill a kid-sized football and told him to kick it with his weakened right leg. Billy kept at his kicking exercises for two years, and by that time his right leg muscles, responding to the constant exercise, were developed as fully as his left.

Varble went on from there to in two years in four sports. He was a football halfback star, a basketball guard, a baseball outfielder and broad jumped on the school where he won seven letters stardom in Louisville's Male high track team.

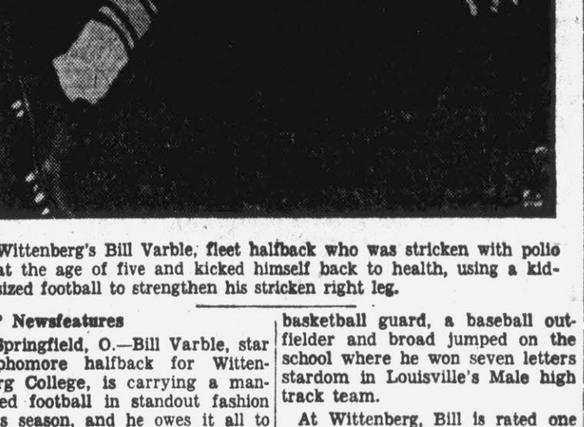

At Wittenberg, Bill is rated one of the fastest backs to come along in a decade. Coaches say he may develop into the greatest this Ohio college ever had. Flitting from his right halfback position, Varble has already chalked up three runs of more than 60 yards, and the six-foot, 158-pounder is averaging five yards a carry in more than 80 tries.

He's also considered a good basketball and baseball candidate and in the spring, Varble will broad jump for the track squad.

One College's Fraternities Put Hazing On A New Level

HAZING MAKES SENSE when pledges paint mission garage.

Springfield, Ohio—Wittenberg College's Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) has decreed that old time Greek letter society hazing is out.

Instead of the lowly pledge standing on street corners in woolen underwear and derby hats reciting nursery rhymes; capturing greased pigs; or convoying ducks on a leash along a downtown thoroughfare, the IFC has inaugurated a pledge-training program in which all the fraternities delegate half of their 88 pledges to Social and welfare work in Springfield's under-privileged areas at least one day a week.

Under this plan the first task is to help clean up the community's "bottoms" district.

Starting with the Inner Mission Society, the pledges are constructing a playground, redecorating play rooms, painting and doing other clean-up projects at a settlement house and a recreation center. Other innovations in the pledge training adopted by the various fraternities include a newspaper reading course, direction of pledges to a more active part in chapter administration, study of methods for choosing the correct college curriculum, and a study of etiquette.

Six Indicted For Contempt Today

Washington, Nov. 27—(AP)—Eafl Browder one time No. 1 American Communist, and five other persons were indicted today on charges of contempt of congress.

The indictments were based on the refusal of the six to answer questions asked by congressional committees or to give requested information.

Browder, Grederick Vanderbilt Field and Philip J. Jaffe were accused of contemptuously refusing to answer questions during a Senate investigation of "communist-in-government charges."

Dr. Edward A. Rumely, executive secretary of the Committee For Constitutional Government, and two others were indicted for a House lobby investigating committee.

Bootleg Whiskey Found Hidden In Home Of Woman

Pitt County ABC officers J. M. Ward, Claude Manning and Police Capt. Johnnie Mobley "hit the jackpot late Saturday afternoon when they found 24 pints of bootleg whiskey hidden in a trap in the home of Jessie Stancill, 30-year-old Negro woman, on First Street near Washington.

The officers, using a search warrant to check over the woman's premises, discovered the hiding place they had missed on previous visits. Officer J. M. Ward said the woman ran for the kitchen and poured out some whiskey before the officers gained entrance to the house. She provided $200 bond for her appearance in Police Court.

At the trial in Police court today, Judge J. W. H. Roberts found Jessie Stancill guilty. He sentenced her to 12 months in jail or pay $350 fine.
