Crisis - Conscious Congress Taking Up Money Matters

'Small' New Tax Measure And Huge Defense Appropriations Hold Attention Of Lawmakers This Week; Need For Additional Revenue Underscored

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—Separate bills to put an estimated $3,000,000,000 into the federal treasury and take $17,850,000,000 out of it hold the attention of a crisis-conscious congress this week.

Born of the war in Korea, the huge defense spending bill and a smaller new tax measure portend still heavier taxes for everybody. The $3,400,000,000 excess profits tax measure comes before the House today for two days of debate and passage expected tomorrow or Wednesday. It is the second step in a sharp upward revision of the federal tax structure made necessary by heavy outlays for national defense.

The first step was taken by congress last September when it increased income taxes. It may boost them again next year and also slap on some excise, or sales, taxes and increase corporation levies.

The current House bill would impose a tax of 75 per cent on excess business profits. Excess profits are defined as those more than 85 per cent above the average of the best three years a taxpayer had from 1946 through 1949. The first 85 per cent would be taxed at the present rates of corporate income tax, a maximum of 45 per cent.

Republicans don't like the new bill. Their opposition was responsible in part for trimming down the 4,000,000,000 measure requested by the administration. The administration wanted a 75 per cent tax on corporate profits in excess of 75 per cent of the 1946-1949 average.

The bill allows several alternatives but they are expected to be used but little. It puts certain corporations to pay the excess profits tax on the basis of invested capital or, in the case of most utilities, allow them to consider as normal income the maximum profit allowed by state rate-making bodies.

Republicans will center their effort on a substitute which they have little hope of passing. Its final has not been determined, but it is expected to provide for a milder excess profits tax, perhaps coupled with a boost in corporation income levies. GOP tax experts claim their plan not only would produce as much revenue but would be less injurious to business.

The Senate Finance Committee will start hearings on the tax bill as the House commences debate. Final passage by Dec. 21 is the goal of congressional leaders. When they passed the first tax increase last September, both the House and Senate went on record to instruct the tax-writing committees to draft an excess profits tax bill this year. The action stalled off efforts to tack one onto that initial bill.

The need for additional revenue was underscored last Friday when President Truman asked congress for an emergency $17,850,000,000 appropriation for national defense. Hearings on the big money bill started Friday before the House Appropriations Committee, which hopes to have the bill ready for a House vote within two weeks. The Senate Appropriations Committee plans to conduct its own hearings concurrently with those of the House group.

Attlee Arrives To Confer On Policy

Five Indicted

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—Three scientists who worked on the atomic bomb and two men identified as veteran communist organizers were indicted today for contempt of congress.

The indictments returned by a federal grand jury named Steve Nelson, 47, Communist party organizer for western Pennsylvania who allegedly set up a Red cell in the wartime University of California radiation laboratory.

Marcel Scherer, 51, like Nelson linked by the House un-American Activities committee with Red infiltration of the radiation laboratory. David Joseph Bohm, 33, Giovanni Rossi Lomanitz, 29, and Irving David Fox, 36, scientists who worked in the radiation laboratory in connection with the development of the atomic bomb.

Plan Collect Used Toys On Wednesday Evening

Wednesday night between 7 and 9 o'clock has been set by the Jaycees as the time for their house-to-house canvass for used toys.

Bob Ross, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce Christmas Cheer committee, said a group of Jaycees has been assigned to each section of Greenville and will knock on the doors of the city's residences Wednesday night to request used toys for the Jaycee project.

The toys which are in need of repair will be refinished by the Industrial Arts club of East Carolina Teachers College which is working on the toy project in conjunction with the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Kenneth Bing, faculty adviser for the Industrial Arts club, will direct the repair work on the toys which are collected.

Ross requested those people who can find used toys to contribute to the drive to have the toys ready when the Jaycees call Wednesday evening. "We have a lot of territory to cover in the two hours Wednesday night," Ross explained, "and we will appreciate the cooperation of the people of Greenville in helping us do a good job of collecting these toys. As a matter of fact, the success of this Christmas Cheer project depends upon the cooperation of the people of Greenville. There are a lot of unused toys in the homes of Greenville which could make some needy kids very happy at Christmas if the toys are distributed to them. That's what we hope to do."

Even though the house-to-house canvass is two days away, the Jaycees already have begun collecting used toys to be repaired for Christmas. People who have toys they wish to contribute to the project may have them picked up before Wednesday by calling telephone 3070 during the day or 5238 at night, Ross said.

Winston-Salem, N.C., Dec. 4—(AP)—The Winston-Salem Ministers Association today voted to open the doors of all churches of the city from 3 to 4 p.m. next Sunday so that prayer for world peace "in this critical hour in history" can be given.

China Issue Put Before Assembly

Veto-Free UN Body Formally Asked To Take Up Intervention In Korea

New York, Dec. 4—(AP)—The United States and five other countries today formally asked the United Nations Assembly to take up as an urgent matter the Chinese Communist intervention in Korea.

The request was made in a telegram to U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie. Diplomatic quarters said it might be taken up by the Assembly's 11-nation Steering Committee either today or tomorrow. The telegram was signed by the chief delegates of the United States, Britain, France, Norway, Cuba and Ecuador. These were the six countries which sponsored the Soviet-vetoed Security Council resolution calling for the withdrawal of Chinese troops from Korea.

There was no indication whether the same resolution would be submitted to the Assembly or whether it would be revised in an effort to brand the Chinese Communists as aggressors. This may be decided after consultations in Washington tomorrow between Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and President Truman.

Consultations continued here throughout the day, but delegates were unusually reticent about what was going on behind the scenes.

The six-nation telegram to Lie said: "The delegations of Cuba, Ecuador, France, Norway, the United Kingdom and the United States to the fifth regular session of the General Assembly of the United Nations present their compliments to the Secretary-General of the United Nations and have the honor to request that the following item be included in the agenda of the present session of the Assembly as an important and urgent question: 'The intervention of the Communist Government of China in Korea.' An explanatory memorandum will follow."

Draft Group Of 87 Sent Raleigh

Pre-Induction Tests Today; Induction Date Postponed

The Pitt draft board sent 87 men to Raleigh this morning for pre-induction examinations for the Armed Forces. The contingent numbered 43 white and 44 colored out of an original call for over 100 men.

The board also announced the call for induction, originally scheduled for December 20, will not be effected until January 4. Reason for it is the induction center at Fort Jackson, S. C., where inductees are received, cannot handle any more men after December 15 until the first of the year.

There were 10 men listed with the local board who did not report this morning. They will be considered delinquent. Also, 11 men showed up who were married. The delinquents plus those who are married cut the total number sent to Raleigh to 87.

Those men who did not report today are: Jesse James Darden, Rt. 4, Greenville; Billy James Hughton, Norfolk, Va.; Henry Staton, Jr., Ayden; Alton Wilson, Riverside, Calif.; Louis Milton Green, Rt. 1, Winterville; William Izell Guion, Rt. 3, Greenville; Willie J. Freeman, Bell Air-Terrace; Horace Best, Jr., Rt. 2, Winterville; James Thrill Daniels, Rt. 1, Winterville; and Lloyd Melvin Stalls, Rt. 1, Tarboro.

Waldo Cheek Is Sworn Today For Insurance Post

Raleigh, Dec. 4—(AP)—Waldo Cheek was sworn in today for two more years as state insurance commissioner.

Cheek, 38, took the oath of office at a ceremony in the hall of the state house of representatives. Some 75 persons watched Secretary of State Thad Eure administer the oath to the Asheville man.

Cheek was named insurance commissioner by Governor Scott in June 1949 filling a vacancy left by the resignation of William P. Hodges. He was elected on November 7 to the remaining two years of the Hodges term.

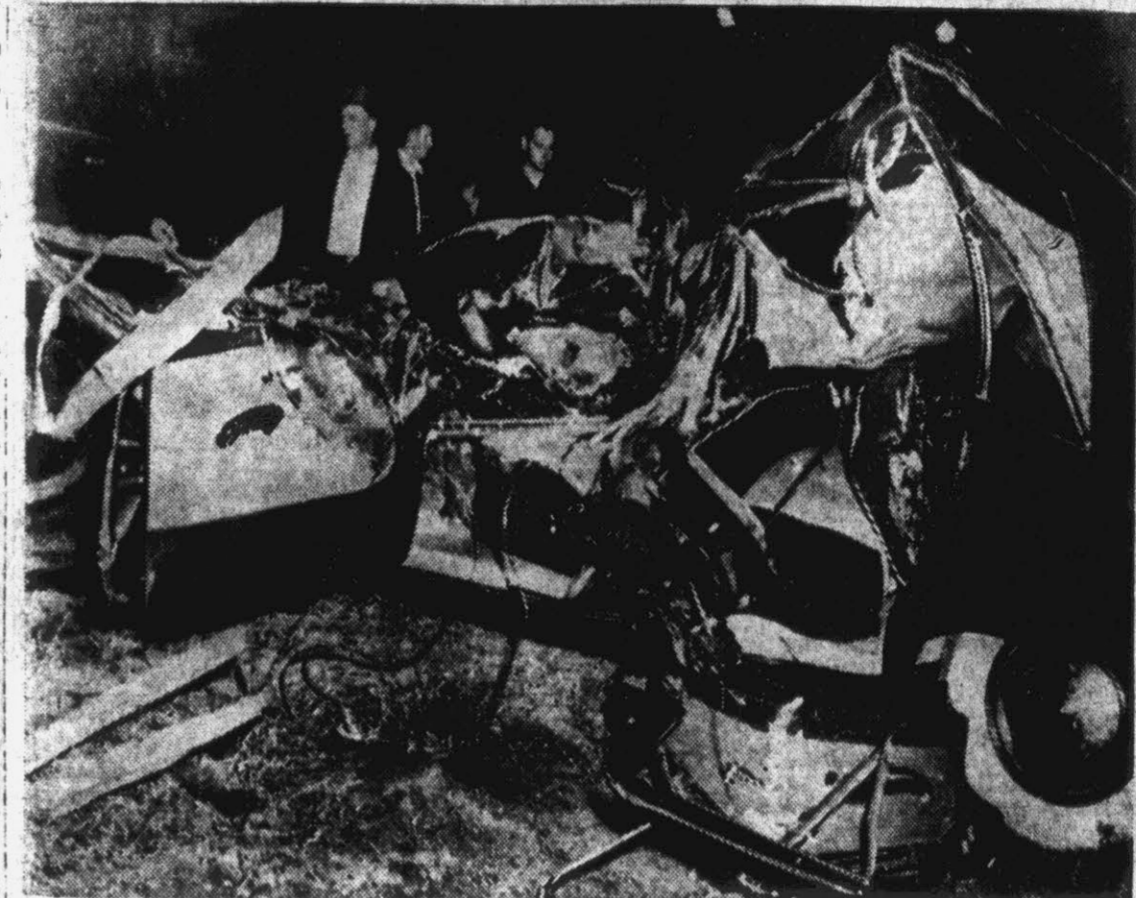

In a brief talk Cheek said he accepted the post "both as an honor and a responsibility, for I am impressed with the importance of this office to the general welfare of all of our people."

Smashed Auto In Which Youth Was Killed

One of the worst wrecks in recent months in Pitt county Saturday night took the life of an 18-year-old youth when his automobile struck a parked truck. The accident occurred on the Black Jack highway just off Highway 43, around 11 o'clock. The entire front of the car was completely demolished. The body of the driver, was found just to the left of the front door in the above picture, between the car and truck. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Saturday Wreck Kills Pitt Youth

Melvin Hudson Victim When Car Struck Parked Truck

By ROY HARDEE A highway accident, termed by local law enforcement officers as being the worst to occur in Pitt County in recent years, snuffed out the life of an 18-year-old youth late Saturday night.

Killed instantly when his automobile struck a parked truck on the Black Jack highway was Melvin Earl Hudson of Route 3, Greenville.

A car operated by Hudson was traveling the Black Jack highway headed in the direction of Black Jack around eleven o'clock Saturday night when it struck a parked truck driven by William B. Haddock, age 16, of Route 2, Greenville. The parking lights of the truck were on, and the truck was pulled off onto the right shoulder of the highway, headed in the direction of the New Bern highway, patrolmen stated.

Haddock, who was seated in the cab of his ton-and-a-half truck at the time of the accident, told investigating officers Paul C. Whitley and R. C. Holt the following story of the accident:

Haddock said he pulled onto the shoulder of the road and turned his lights on "dim" to aid two boys who were searching for some lost items in front of his truck. "I saw a car coming down the road at an angle, towards my truck, and yelled to the other boys, 'Look out for that car,'" Haddock said. The door was opened on the truck by the driver as he called to the boys. When the car struck, the force of the impact threw Haddock from the truck a considerable distance. He suffered minor bruises but was not believed to be seriously injured.

Patrolman Whitley stated that the truck was turned around onto the highway at about a 170 degree angle, with the car swinging around, crossing the highway, coming to rest on the right shoulder of the highway, blocking the road. The point of impact on the truck appeared to have been on the left wheels, which possibly accounted for the truck being moved such a distance; however, the entire left side of the truck was damaged.

Point of impact on the car was the right front end. The terrific impact pulled back the entire front and top of the 1950 model car. The steering wheel and post were bent flat against the front seat of the car.

Hudson was thrown from the driver's seat, with his head apparently striking the windshield post inflicting fatal head injuries. His body was found by the left front wheel between the truck and car which were about a foot apart. No one was with either of the drivers.

The apparent cause of the accident, patrol officers stated, was driving to the left center of the middle highway line. Damage to the truck was estimated to be over $250.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse could not be reached this morning for statement on when an inquest will be held.

For Pitt County it was the 17th highway death this year, with what Patrol officers term the "worst part" of the year yet to come.

Snyder Warns Big Tax Boost To Be Necessary

Gov't Outlays May Jump 59 Per Cent In Next Fiscal Year; Treasury Head Says More Revenue Prime Need

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today government outlays may jump 59 per cent to a $67,500,000,000 total in the next fiscal year starting July 1.

He said this may be the result of "vast increases in defense costs" that will require "very substantial tax increases." Snyder, appearing before the Senate Finance Committee, urged enactment of President Truman's $4,000,000,000 "excess profits" tax bill. He said a substitute bill recommended by the House tax-writing committee would raise only $3,000,000,000 annually.

"The events of the past few days in Korea and in other parts of the world testify to the compelling need for the enactment of additional profits taxes at this congressional session," Snyder said.

"The over-riding consideration at this time is the government's need for more revenue." Snyder told the Senate committee that his previous estimate of $45,000,000,000 in outlays and a $2,000,000,000 deficit this fiscal year, which ends next June 30, "may prove to be too low in light of the events of the past few days."

He continued: "The prospects for fiscal year 1952 (beginning next July 1) and subsequent years are far more serious. The President's budget estimate for the coming year will not be complete for some time. As a result of the vast increases in defense costs, the level of government expenditures next year may be half again as large as this year."

"Very substantial tax increases will be required to carry out the essential policy of financing the greatest possible amount of these costs by taxation. The importance of sound national finance to an adequate defense effort leaves no room for hesitation. We have far too much at stake to risk the consequences of inadequate and tardy financial preparedness."

"Urging that congress adopt the President's pending 'excess profits' tax proposal without change, Snyder declared corporate profits this year have been so large they can be tapped for $4,000,000,000, "without imposing hardship on corporations."

Estimating that corporate profits for 1950 "will probably aggregate $37,000,000,000, or almost $10,000,000,000 more than last year."

Marines And Soldiers Consolidate Near Reservoir In Face Of Fanatic Efforts; Chinese Forces In Korea Swell; Allies Continue Pyongya Retreat

With U. S. Tenth Corps, Korea, Dec. 4—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond said tonight Marines and soldiers of his Tenth Corps "today climaxed a bitter five day battle to consolidate in the vicinity of the Changjin Reservoir."

Almond issued a summary saying: "Fanatic efforts by at least six OCP (Chinese Communist Forces) divisions to prevent the assembly by setting up roadblocks and by frontal and flank attacks, as well as efforts to 'divide the force and conquer,' were overcome."

"By blocking counterattacks and coordinated fire and movement, the Marines hurled back the enemy, inflicting heavy losses." The Marines are elements of the First Marine Division, the soldier members of the U. S. Seventh Infantry Division.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gen. William H. Walker, U. S. Eighth Army Commander, said the Red Chinese had rolled five armies of divisions, up to 150,000 men, in the Chongchon River valley striking distance of Pyongyang.

These were the first Chinese units more than 1,000,000 Chinese that General MacArthur had leading for the battlefronts from Manchuria and central China.

In the bitterly cold northeast reinforced Chinese mounted a critical and more immediate threat to the U. S. Marines and four other U. N. divisions. The Reds were driving on the twin east coast industrial cities of Hamhung and Rungam. They threatened to take the entire U. N. Corps area and scatter it over the rugged north-east Korean loch.

In the northwest, AP correspondent Leif Erickson reported that the Eighth Army's retreat eventually might wind up along a defense line around the Republic Capital of Seoul and its port of Incheon. He said it did not appear possible to set up a line across the peninsula, linking up the scattered 10th Corps.

Erickson said Walker apparently was directing a skillful escape from the familiar Chinese envelopment tactics. Allied fighters and bombers pounded incessantly at the Chinese and remnant Korean Red forces throughout north Korea.

So massive were the oncoming Chinese forces, however, that it appeared likely they could pour through into south Korea if such a decision was made by the Red High Command.

Far behind allied forces on the east coast, a Chinese force was wheeling from the middle of the peninsula toward the supply port of Wonsan. This thrust threatened to cut off the 10th Corps with its back to the sea of Japan.

The appearance of more and more Chinese communists at the fronts deepened the threat to the entire U. S. position of the peninsula.

General MacArthur estimated 818,000 Chinese are in north Korea and along the Yalu River boundary and Red Manchuria. He said another 200,000 Chinese are moving to the area from central China. Thus, China appeared to have committed one-fourth of her armed strength of some 4,000,000 men to her undeclared war in Korea. MacArthur said preparations for this absorbing into the U. N. campaign against invading Korean Reds

Conference On Crisis

Both Prime Minister Attlee And President Truman Well Prepared For Talks After Confering With Topmost Advisers; Prelude To Momentous Decision

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Great Britain's Prime Minister Attlee, like President Truman, has made his approach to the hastily arranged Washington talks through emergency conferences with his advisers and with the French leader, Premier Rene Pleven.

They were reported to have agreed that Attlee must urge upon Mr. Truman the view that the war in Korea should be kept bottled up there at almost any cost—that is, that war with Red China must be avoided—and that the western powers should express readiness to meet with the Soviet Union on world issues.

Diplomats here conceded that the western Europeans, sitting behind the thin military defenses which now stand between them and the Russians, were understandably fearful. Yet Washington appears strongly opposed either (a) to showing any kind of weakness in relation to Korea or any lack of determination to stick to the United Nations commitment there, or (b) to resuming bargaining with Russia in the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council at a time when the western powers are in a weak position. These and many other questions were canvassed by the President and his advisers in the weekend night from the Army-Navy football game at Philadelphia. Mr. Truman called in Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Defense Marshall and Gen. Omar Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Presidential press secretary Charles Ross said they reviewed all aspects of the war in Korea for two hours. Early Sunday morning Acheson visited military headquarters at the Pentagon building and later he, with Marshall and Bradley, called on Mr. Truman again. W. Averell Harriman, the President's chief foreign affairs assistant, joined the group. This talk lasted two and a half hours. Following the Sunday Blair House session Acheson went to the State Department where nearly all top officials were on hand for work on the preparation of the U. S. attitude on the questions expected to arise in the Attlee talks and

American Homeland Unscathed In Two World Wars Is Preparing For Real Defense This Time; Civil Defense Story Of The Past; A Sense Of Urgency Prevails

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—The American homeland, almost unscathed by the enemy in two world wars, is unprepared for one-time attacks in case of a third. "Therefore, with the world situation growing worse, civil defense has become a subject of red-hot activity almost overnight. In the first world war, the enemy depended the U. S. mainland by a few acts of sabotage only. Probably the closest approach made by German military forces occurred on July 21, 1918. Just off the Cape Cod shore, in plain view of astonished bathers on the beach, a U-boat poured shells into a string of four barges and sank them. In the second world war, the enemy made deeper pinpricks. On the evening of Feb. 23, 1942, while Americans listened to a fire-side chat by President Roosevelt, a Japanese submarine rose from the sea near Santa Barbara, California, and shelled an oil refinery. In the same period, a submarine shelled the shore batteries at Astoria, Oregon. And a plane released from a submarine dropped incendiary bombs near Brookings, Oregon, in an effort to set forest fires. Other submarine-based aircraft are believed to have flown over Seattle. Air raid scares agitated Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York and other cities—1,440 rounds of anti-aircraft ammunition were fired in Los Angeles—but there appears to be no proof that enemy planes visited any of those places. Later in the war, in 1944 and 1945, the Japanese sent thousands of bomb-laden balloons floating across the Pacific. One of them killed a woman and five children who were picknicking near Lakeview, Oregon, on May 5, 1945. The FBI says there were no cases of enemy-directed sabotage in World War II. Eight German saboteurs were brought to Florida and Long Island by submarines in June, 1942, but they were arrested in New York and Chicago, and six of them went speedily to the electric chair. Six months before Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt had created

Mrs. Bryan Tells Experiences Of Life In Java At Aries Club

Mrs. A. W. Bryan was the program speaker for the evening when the Aries Book Club met with Mrs. M. I. Starkey on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Bryan, who lived for a year and a half in Batavia, Java, told of her experiences and impressions while residing there.

Mrs. Bryan's husband was sent to Java as a representative of the National Carbon Company. They had just been married in Cleveland, Ohio, and left there by train for the West Coast. They took a boat at San Francisco and stopped over in Honolulu and Singapore before arriving in Batavia six weeks after they left Cleveland.

When they arrived in 1940, the South Pacific war had not broken out, but there were rumblings of the coming conflict on the horizon. Eighteen months later Mrs. Bryan had to leave on one day's notice when women and children were evacuated. A few weeks later her husband left on an hour's notice and traveled back to the States on a perilous cattle boat trip across the ocean.

Mrs. Bryan told of her life on the island—her living accommodations, her social life, her impressions and experiences with the natives. She displayed many items which were examples of Javanese art and handicraft, and the members evidenced great interest in examining these.

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins, vice-president, plans were announced for the Christmas party. The club voted to hold only one meeting during December, and this will be a dinner party at the Woman's Club on the night of December 13, to which husbands and guests are invited.

Mrs. Starkey served a sweet course with coffee at the conclusion of the meeting to the twelve members present and one guest, Mrs. Herbert Scoville.

Clio Book Club Hears Review Of South Pacific

Mrs. Jake Hadley was gracious hostess to the Clio Book club on Tuesday afternoon, November 30. Upon arrival delicious date loaf with whipped cream, coffee and nuts were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. James Moye.

Mrs. Hadley introduced Mrs. Astor Richardson who spoke interestingly of the current hit on Broadway "South Pacific." Mrs. Richardson has delighted several groups recently with this review and although she has not seen the musical herself she enthralled her listeners with the story, the background of the production and interesting sidelights on the members of the cast, particularly Elio Pina and Mary Martin. Mrs. Hadley assisted Mrs. Richardson in playing several of the most popular recordings from the musical.

Discussion of Christmas plans and other pertinent business was presided over by Miss Elizabeth Norman.

After exchanging books the club adjourned.

Mother Of Mrs. J. C. Waldrop Died Friday

Mrs. Elsie T. Wheelwright, 90, mother of Mrs. J. C. Waldrop of Greenville, died at 7:30 p.m. Friday night at Blue Gables Health Retreat, near Skyland, after a long illness.

The funeral services were held at St. James Episcopal Church in Hendersonville, of which she was a member for many years, at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Wheelwright's four grandsons, Lewis Tebeau, J. Edmund Waldrop and Howard Waldrop, all of Greenville, Charles Richard McManaway of Raleigh, served as pallbearers.

Mrs. Wheelwright, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Bragg Clayton, was born in Holly Springs, Miss., but the family moved to Columbia, S.C., where most of her girlhood was spent. Born in 1860, she was married in 1881 to Edmund Purse Tebeau, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Lewis C. Tebeau of Savannah, Ga. Their children were—L. Emmett Howard Tebeau, USN, who died in 1914; the Rev. Albert Clayton Tebeau, an Episcopal minister, who passed away in 1941; Mrs. McManaway (Eloise Tebeau) and Mrs. Joseph Carroll Waldrop of Greenville.

In 1899 she was married to William Wheelwright, who passed away about three years later. The family had moved from Kissimmee, Fla., to Fitzgerald, Ga., before Mr. Tebeau, who was in the real estate business, died at the home of his parents in Savannah. They continued to reside in Fitzgerald for awhile during the time that Mr. Wheelwright lived. She is also survived by the following grandsons: Lewis Waldrop, and Howard Tebeau Waldrop, all of Greenville, and Charles Richard McManaway Jr. of Raleigh, and three granddaughters, Mrs. Mates Barter of Pittsburgh, Pa., Mrs. Ella M. Ramsdell of Homestead, Fla., and Miss Mary Patricia Waldrop of Greenville. She is also survived by a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Albert Clayton Tebeau and son-in-law, Joseph Carroll Waldrop, both of Greenville, and another son-in-law, C. R. McManaway, of Hendersonville, and six great grandchildren.

During the active years of her life, Mrs. Wheelwright was widely known as a musician. She was a leading soprano soloist and choir leader in Fitzgerald and at other places. In recent years she had made her home with Mrs. McManaway and with Mrs. Waldrop, formerly of Hendersonville, in Greenville.

Nurses Club Visits Hospital On Tuesday

The Greenville Registered Nurses Club met for its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night, November 28, at the home of Mrs. Dan Johnston, with Miss Davey Fleming as assisting hostess.

After a brief business meeting conducted by Miss Martha Bunn, president, refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The program for the evening was a tour of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital, Miss Phyllis Michalk, who will be the superintendent of nurses at the new institution, guided the members of the club over the entire building. All were enthusiastic in their praise of the well-arranged rooms, wards, children's wing, the completely equipped kitchen and dining hall, the offices, operating and delivery rooms.

The nurses were greatly impressed with everything about the hospital and expressed as their opinion that the opening of its doors would be a step towards greater advancement for Pitt County and its citizens.

Women In The Church

Miss Irma Highbaugh, of Kansas, who heads the Department of Christian Homes under the National Christian Council of China, has been working recently with the International Missionary Council in establishing similar departments under church councils in Japan, the Philippines, and elsewhere in Asia.

On the nineteenth anniversary of the birth of Jane Addams, Chicago social worker, United Nations publications recalled her lifelong efforts to unite women to wage peace; and quoted her as saying, "People do not make war for honor or understanding, but for destruction. We shall not put an end to war by outlawing it, but only by fostering an intelligent development of life's values."

Miss Carrie Meares, staff member of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association of the U.S., is in South Africa on a two-year stay to advise in the promotion of YWCA activities among the non-European groups of the Union of South Africa. She will have headquarters in Durban and in Port Elizabeth.

Barrio Fugoso is a small city within the City of Manila, Philippine Islands. And it is a city of women. They are the pre-war wives who lived in the old walled area of Manila, but who are now widows—their husbands massacred and their homes burned. So Barrio Fugoso was set aside as a "widows' city," and the widows and their children built new homes there out of whatever rubble could be salvaged. The city has been described as "made up of row upon row of tiny one-roomed shacks built high on stilts to keep them above the mud and slush. They are filthy, rickety shacks, with walls made of bits of board, pieces of tin, and license plates nailed together. And in the windows and doors of many are flowering plants growing in rusty cans." Here, in a shack larger and cleaner than the rest, the Young Women's Christian Association has organized the "Mutual Aid Society of Women," and the structure serves as YW health clinic, feeding station, and school for cooking, handicrafts, and sewing. Across the street is a playground for the children. Mrs. Remedios Santos, a widow, is YW leader of the community.

Birth Announcements
Mr. and Mrs. A. K. McCowan, Jr. of Roanoke Rapids, announce the birth and death of a daughter on December 3, 1950.

Attention, Presbyterian Circle No. 6 of the First Presbyterian church will not be held tomorrow night as scheduled. Instead the meeting will be held on Tuesday night, December 12. All members of this circle are urged to meet with the new organization of young adults at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow night.

W. C. T. U. Notes
Mrs. J. N. Williams, 422 W. 5th Street, is treasurer of the local W. C. T. U. All members who have not yet paid their dues are requested to contact Mrs. Williams on or before Wednesday. The dues are one dollar and the educational fund is fifty cents. It is important that these funds be paid promptly so that the new year may be started with a clean slate.

"Home For Christmas," a dramatic service of worship, will be presented by Alpha Zeta Chapter of Wesley Players, on Sunday, December 10, at 7:30 p. m. in Jarvis Memorial Methodist church.

This is the annual Advent Service which is presented by the Wesley Players of the Methodist Student Center, as their contribution to the church observance of the Christmas season.

The service is under the direction of Miss Mamie Chandler, director of the Wesley Foundation. Elaine Smith of Wilmington is student director. Twenty students are in the cast and a chorus and speaking choir will also take part in the service.

"Return Engagement," the highly amusing comedy which will be presented tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Austin auditorium, are bustling around in preparation for dress rehearsal tonight.

Mrs. Autum Hetherington, played by Mrs. Lindsay Savage, has quite a surprise in store for members of the cast, and you, when she "gets dressed up" in her paraphernalia with all the ancestral rhinestones, Carolyn Clapp as Patsy Tomkins, and Claude Taylor as Bill Barber, are hoping for a fair, warm night since one of their acts calls for bathing suits.

All the actors and actresses at the Stockton Playhouse are "fine folks" and they cordially invite all of you to meet them in Austin on Tuesday night, December 5, at 8 o'clock.

Christian Science Service
"God, the Only Cause and Creator" was the lesson-sermon topic for Christian Science services Sunday. Golden Text: "Lord, Thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is." (Acts 4:24)

Citations from the Bible: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, I Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all." (I Chron. 29:11)

From "Science and Health," by Mary Baker Eddy: "There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause. Immortal Mind is the only cause; therefore disease is neither a cause nor an effect."

Elks Memorial Services Held Here Yesterday

S. O. Worthington, Pitt County representative in the State Legislature, was the speaker at the Greenville Elks' Lodge memorial services at the Elks Home Sunday afternoon. Exalted Ruler Jesse R. Moye II presided.

Wherever there is an Elks Lodge memorial services for departed members are always held on the first Sunday of December. Members of the families of departed Greenville Elks attended the exercises.

Elks memorialized yesterday were A. L. (Roy) Barrett, N. O. Warren, J. B. Lane, Jr., John Flanagan, I. W. (Jack) Netherland, L. E. Garris, Dall Laughinghouse, Sr., C. B. Rowlette, Jr., Charles F. Manning, Felix Scheller, and Cecil Jones.

The Elks memorial services are an important part of the organization's ritual. The theme is: "The faults of our brothers we write on the sands; their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."

The Greenville lodge, organized in 1940, now has nearly 200 members.

Miss Moore Chosen Honorary Cadet Colonel At Military Ball At East Carolina

Miss Evelyn Virginia Moore of Portsmouth, Va., unanimously chosen by officers of the Air Force ROTC at East Carolina Teachers College as their honorary cadet lieutenant colonel, was chief honor guest at a military ball given by the college unit last Saturday evening, December 2, in the Wright auditorium. Miss Moore is a freshman at East Carolina.

Her appointment was announced at the formal dance by Major L. May, professor of military science and tactics at the college, who presented her to those present for the evening.

The ball, second annual event of the kind to be staged by the Air Force unit here, was attended by members of the college ROTC and their guests.

Decorations for the dance carried out a patriotic motif in a color scheme of red, white, and blue. The auditorium was festooned with streamers draped in inverted-bowl shape from the sides of the building to the center of the dance floor, where they met to form an arch. Through this, participants in the figure, presented as a special event of the evening, passed. Refreshments tables with white covers formed a hollow square around the dance floor.

During the evening members of the Senior ROTC class and their dates formed an honor guard in double column extending from the stage of the auditorium to the archway. Sponsors of the ball and their escorts were presented from the stage; descended a wide white stairway to the dance floor; and, passing through the aisle formed by the honor guard, stood in key formation as Miss Moore was introduced by Major May, and received from him a bouquet of red roses.

An attractive blond, Miss Moore wore a white evening gown of silk net with bouffant skirt, silver-embroidered bodice, and puffed three-quarter length sleeves.

Those taking part in the figure, with their cadet officer escorts, were: Miss Jean Farror of Morehead City, with Major Kenneth Stargardt of Richmond, Va.; Miss Dee Wilkinson of Rocky Mount, with Lt. Col. Robert Chick of Rocky Mount; Miss Florence Pope of Scotland Neck, with Capt. Russell B. Tatum of Hopewell, Va.; Miss Olivia White of Scotland Neck, with Capt. Robert Bass, Jr., of Seaboard; Mrs. Loui Efrink with Lt. Col. Efrink of Greenville; Mrs. Dorothy Whittington of Beavertown with Major Richard B. Whittington of Snow Hill; Miss Betty Heath of Kinston with Maj. Gilbert Woolard of Williamsport; and Miss Alice McKenzie of Salemburg, with Lt. Col. Eddie Salter of New Bern. Miss Moore's escort was Lt. Cecil Winalow of Hertford.

Those in charge of arrangements for the dance included Kenneth Stargardt, Richmond, Va.; Otis Bain, Wilmington; Russell Tatum, Hopewell, Va.; Charles Rice, Greenville, and Charles Self, Greensboro.

Stormy Weather

Stormy weather was in the offing in the Greenville area today following a typical summer day yesterday when the highest temperature was 75 degrees. Lowest temperature here last night was 57 and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 57. A slight drizzling rain occurred here last night.

The temperature took a considerable drop during the forenoon. Heavy clouds and a northwest wind prevailed up until noon.

The temperature here a year ago yesterday was 45 degrees high; 23 degrees low during that night, and it was 30 at 8 a.m. next day, Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported.

Study Causes Of Damage To Nets

New Brunswick, N. J. —(AP)—Rutgers University will begin immediately a year-long study of the effects of the coastal sea waters near New York harbor on various types of cordage, including fishing nets, according to Dr. William H. Martin, director of the N.J. Agricultural Experiment Station.

Purpose of the study, Dr. Martin said, is to help fishermen and boatmen who from time to time report mysterious damage to their lines, nets and ropes. An attempt will be made to determine how much deterioration actually occurs, its possible causes, and what can be done to protect the gear.

Seaboard States Feel Strong Coastal Gales

New York, Dec. (AP)—A coastal and inland gale was moving north through the Atlantic Seaboard states early today, but the winds were not expected to be strong enough to cause any serious damage.

Sustained wind velocities of 35 to 40 miles an hour, with gusts up to 50, were predicted by the Weather Bureau.

The big blow of Nov. 25, which caused widespread loss of life and damage in the northeast, produced sustained velocities of 75 miles an hour—hurricane force—with gusts up to 110.

The gale winds were expected to reach the New York metropolitan area about 3 p.m. (EST) today. The Weather Bureau said they would be strong enough to break tree branches but not strong enough to uproot trees or do similar damage.

Rain began falling here early today, and was expected to continue through the storm.

The course of the storm center, plotted by the Weather Bureau, put it over north central North Carolina at 4 a.m. and headed for Virginia, eastern Pennsylvania, western New Jersey, eastern New York state and New England.

Winds of 35 to 40 miles an hour were in prospect for a distance of about 100 miles on either side of the storm center, the Weather Bureau said.

Coastal storm warnings were posted from the Delaware breakwater to Block Island, south of Rhode Island.

Called To Trial In Double Killing

Franklin, N. C., Dec. 4—(AP)—Curtis Shedd, 31, of Walhalla, S. C., was called to trial here today on charges of murdering the two daughters of a man with whom he attended a trade school near his home.

The FBI said that Shedd, an ex-convict, also admitted killing the girls' father, John Boyter, 38, of Walhalla.

In the present case in Macon County Superior Court Shedd faces two murder charges. He is accused of strangling Johnnie May Boyter, 14, and Joe Ann Boyter, 8, last Aug. 13. Shedd led authorities to their bodies, hidden in Blue Ridge Mountain thickets near Highlands.

That was after he broke down and allegedly admitted shooting Boyter to death. Boyter's body was found Aug. 9 in woods near Clayton, Georgia, leading to the arrest of Shedd and a search for the girls.

The girls lived with their grandmother in Walhalla.

The motive for the slayings has not been made public.

Walhalla, Fran and Clayton are not far from each other. They are in the mountains where the North Carolinas, South Carolina and Georgia lines meet.

To Pay Dividend

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 4—(AP)—The Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corporation next month will begin paying a $4,195,416 dividend on its 1947 crop loan operations.

More than 225,000 grower-members in the Carolinas, Virginia, Georgia and Florida will share in the first such dividend since the corporation began operations in 1946.

L. T. Weeks, general manager of the corporation, made the announcement yesterday. He added that any distribution would have to be determined when the handling of tobacco from these years is completed.

Since 1946 the corporation has received under loan, at 90 per cent of parity, more than 550,000,000 pounds of flue-cured tobacco. The announced dividend is from operations covering 232,000,000 pounds.

Rumrunner Shot In Prison Break

Yadkinville, N. C., Dec. 4—(AP)—A Winston-Salem rumrunner was shot by accident; three escaped convicts were captured and three more fled in the rain and darkness.

That was the picture early today as officers from six counties converged near here for a manhunt—set off when six convicts cut their way through the Yadkin County prison camp roof.

The wounded man gave his name as Worth Cummings, 36, of Mickey Mill Road, Winston-Salem. He was shot on the Huntsville Bridge when a prison employee mistook him for one of the escapees Camp Superintendent M. J. Brown said.

He had jumped from his car and fled down the bridge—leaving behind 10 cases of white whiskey.

The break came at about 7:30 p.m. yesterday at Prison Camp #10, about a mile and a half southeast of here. The six men—two of them from Winston-Salem—apparently used several crude tools to cut through the tin roof of the cellblock, Brown said.

One of the men was captured before he ever got off the top of the building. Two more were tracked by bloodhounds and nabbed in a tobacco barn about two miles from the camp.

Playing For . . .

The OCD issued arm bands for air raid wardens, and so on. It also got some unlucky publicity—something to do with fan dancing. Congress, providing $100,000,000 for the agency early in 1942, prohibited the use of the money for instruction in "physical fitness by dancers, fan dancing, street shows, theatrical performances or other public entertainments."

F. H. LaGuardia was the first director of the OCD. He was succeeded by James M. Landis in February 1942.

I was an air raid warden in New York City, and I remember the excitement and responsibility we felt when the city had an air raid alarm soon after Pearl Harbor. We pinned on our armbands, rushed outdoors, and ordered people off the streets with a great sense of urgency. We had no way of knowing it was a false alarm, nor that the entire war would pass without the real thing coming.

Today this sense of urgency is returning, and it is not confined to the coastal cities. No one believes that the country could go through a third world war with only false alarms and pinpricks.

President Truman has created the Federal Civil Defense Administration (FCDA) headed by Mildred F. Caldwell, Jr.

The administration has asked congress to enact a law putting this agency on a sound legal basis and giving it broad powers. There is some controversy over details, but congress is expected to approve most of the program.

This time, the state governments will have a greater part in the civil defense set-up. Millions of volunteers must be called to service. They will need better training and more equipment than the air raid wardens of 1941. The whole population must be taught what to do in emergencies.

There is a widespread feeling, this time, that we are playing for keeps.

China to avoid an immediate global conflict. But will a compromise effected now mean a lasting peace or only a lull in the struggle between the communist nations and the free nations?

The decisions which must be made immediately are grave indeed. It is a time for cool heads, determined hearts and a measured estimation of what the future may hold in store for the United States and the world.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Those irrepressible Lewis brothers—John L. and A. D. (Dennie)—have been having a rollicking time since election by blaming labor's setback and election of a hostile Congress on Fellow-Unionists William Green's and Philip Murray's unquestioning allegiance to the Truman Administration.

The United Mine Workers head, who opposed Truman candidates in at least two major contests (Peoria in New York City and Tydings in Maryland) charges that organization Democrats "double-crossed" their labor allies, especially in Ohio. He warns Messrs. Green and Murray that they have lost any real influence at Washington because their blind support of the White House has led Mr. Truman to "take them for granted."

"You two fellows," he says, in effect, "have put yourselves in the same position as the 'Solid South.' Southern Democrats are disregarded and neglected by Democratic Presidents because they can always be depended on to vote right. It is time for you to break this 'unholy alliance.'"

INEPT—In his talks with rival labor leaders, and in editorials in his several publications, Mr. Lewis insists that President Truman does not really want repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. In his opinion, the Democrats aim to retain the law so that they can use it as a "perennial appeal and bait to labor."

He believes that organized labor should not ally itself with either major party, but concentrate on "rewarding friends and punishing enemies," regardless of their political affiliations. In the recent contest, more than 90 per cent of the candidates supported and financed by the AFL and CIO were Democrats.

It will be difficult, if not impossible, for Messrs. Green and Murray to accept this advice, thus admitting that they have pursued inept political strategy. But the Lewis warning has taken root among workers and the heads of local unions, as the result on November 7 demonstrated in scores of contests and in the alignment of the 82nd Congress.

EXAMPLE—Mr. Lewis cites Senator Taft's tremendous triumph in Ohio as a spectacular example of Green-Murray ineptitude and "Democratic double-crossing." The UMW president maintains that the Democrats' national and state organization actually wanted and worked for Mr. Taft's reelection.

He notes that Governor Frank J. Lausche virtually endorsed the Senator, and suggests that there was a political deal between the two friends. He points out that the White House did not insist on the nomination of a strong senatorial opponent, but accepted such an ineffective and unqualified man as State Auditor "Jumping Joe" Ferguson.

OUTSIDE—He accuses the Democrats of "laying down" deliberately. He says he has reports that in thirty-five election districts in Cincinnati, there was only one Ferguson worker on Election Day, and he was a "union business agent."

In short, the Lewis brothers believe that labor has no political future as long as it continues its twenty-year alliance with the Democrats. Incidentally, behind this reasoning lies the Lewis suspicion that President Truman or any substitute nominee will be defeated ignominiously in 1952.

Should that happen, he seems to feel, labor as represented by the Green-Murray group will be on the outside looking in, with no friends in or out.

COURT—The nation's leading lawyers think it ironic that Franklin D. Roosevelt's historic battle to reform and liberalize the Supreme Court of the United States has been less than six years after his death. President Truman has shown such slight interest in the question that, broadly speaking, the tribunal now has six conservatives and only three men of Rooseveltian philosophy.

The rightists and centrists are Chief Justice Vinson and Associate Justices R. W. Frankfurter, Burton, Jackson, Clark, Mr. Vinson cannot be classified too rigidly, for he seeks to preserve a balance between the two factions. The leftists, to use that term judicially rather than ideologically, are Associate Justices Black, Douglas and Minton.

Mr. Truman has named three conservatives—Vinson, Burton and Clark—and one liberal in Associate Justice Minton. They may not always behave in accord with this classification, but they fall into these basic categories. It is also a matter of history that so-called "wild men" usually settle down into a comfortable and cozy view of jurisprudence after a few years on the high bench.

REVEALING—Justice Black, who has turned out to have both a keen legal mind and a zeal for work, plans to make a heroic fight for his side. He is said to be slightly disappointed in Mr. Truman's failure to build up his group. He will strive even harder to write his social and economic views into law as interpreted by the final authorities.

Incidentally, a friendly biographer has recently written a revealing book on Mr. Black. Obviously on the basis of personal interviews, she says that he deliberately permits his personal views to influence his opinions. She adds that he seeks to improve the lot of the poor and to check aggressive wealth by his decisions.

She points out that every jurist is influenced, albeit unconsciously sometimes, by his mental, hereditary and environmental background, but that this is the first time a Supreme Court Justice has boldly admitted it. If she is correct, Chief Justice Vinson will have a hard time in keeping order in the court.

Selected Shorts

Human beings waste a lot of time trying to appear important to others who know they are not important.

Lots of people, in this modern age, will be surprised after death if they find out that there really is a devil.

The football season is nearing its climax but, so far, nobody has become excited over the scholastic excellence of a student.

If you read an editorial with which you agree in toto you may suspect that the editor hasn't done a thorough job in discussing the subject.

"At the heart of all important government policies is the money policy. Cheap money today means inflation. . . . And everyone knows that it is impossible for the government to create cheap money without industry using that cheap money for expansion of all kinds, thus increasing demand and raising prices."—Lawrence Fertig.

Last Christmas, a Midwest manufacturing concern went in for an unusual innovation. Instead of giving its employees their annual presents in cash, it gave them shares of stock in 14 companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange. In selecting the stocks, several criteria were kept in mind—the shares had to be in a certain price range; they had to be in companies whose names or products were widely known, and they had to have good dividend records during the preceding year.

With each gift of stock, the company sent a letter, pointing out that the employee in question was now one of the owners of the concern in which he held shares, and that he had a definite, personal interest in how that concern fared in the future. In other words, the employee was another "capitalist." The company later reported that comment from its employees on the innovation was uniformly good.

Please Don't Fire Till We're Ready

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN KISSBT Raleigh, N. C.

FAILURE—Governor Scott told the group assembled in his office for the induction of John McDevitt as personnel director that only one commission appointed by him had fallen down on its job. The statement was made in connection with complimentary remarks about how the personnel council had done a good job. The governor left his office immediately after the swearing-in ceremony and it has not been possible to check with him to see which commission he meant. Most of those in the audience assumed he was talking about the commission for improvement of court practices. He appointed Willis Smith as chairman of that commission, and when Smith got into the race for the senate against Scott's senatorial appointee Frank Graham relations between the two were not very cordial. When Smith resigned as chairman of the commission, the governor did not appoint a successor.

ENFORCEMENT—However, there is another commission named by Governor Scott with considerable fanfare more than a year ago which apparently has not accomplished anything, either. That is the commission to improve enforcement of prohibition laws. Superior Court Judge Henry L. Stevens was named chairman of that commission, and it has among its members Col. L. C. Rosser, commissioner of motor vehicles; Robert W. Winston, chairman of the state ABC board; John M. Gold, at time of his appointment chief of police at Winston-Salem and now director of the state prison system, along with half a dozen other men prominent in law enforcement circles throughout the state.

PERFORMANCE—This commission was appointed following a mass meeting in the capitol and was widely ballyhooed as one that would do a great job in enforcing laws for control of the liquor traffic. If it has ever held a meeting or done anything after the first blurb of publicity the record does not show it. Maybe that is the one commission Governor Scott was talking about falling down on its job.

CHECK-UP—There might be occasion to check up on functional activities of other commissions and the reports might be disturbing if not surprising in several instances. Meantime, there is another kind of check-up under way. That is a check on the courts presided over by Judge Luther Hamilton under special commission of Governor Scott, after Judge Hamilton had been placed on the pension list because of total incapacity to hold courts. There are several questions involved in this situation, some of them extremely serious and vital to defendants in criminal actions and litigants in civil cases tried in Judge Hamilton's courts. The matter of a few thousand dollars—or a good many thousands—making up the pension paid the former judge is not important compared with status of persons participating in the cases over which he presided.

ISSUES—Here are some of the issues involved: Judge Hamilton was not a regular elected judge. He was a special judge appointed for successive two-year terms by Governor Hoey, Broughton and Cherry. He was not reappointed by Governor Scott last year. Just a day or two before his term under the Cherry appointment of 1947 expired, he applied for the pension provided in case of total disability suffered by superior court judges during their incumbency. That pension was granted on basis of his application, although the actual approval came after his term of office had fully expired. Meantime, Governor Scott appointed the full number of eight special judges permitted by law. Then nearly a year later, in early summer of this year and several times since, Governor Scott has assigned Judge Hamilton to hold terms of court. Serious question is raised about validity of these commissions, legal authority for the assignments, and the right of Luther Hamilton to sit in judgment of his fellow citizens under the circumstances. Without regard to effect upon defendants and litigants, there is also question of whether admission on part of the judge and acceptance of fees for holding courts invalidates his right to pension under the total disability angle. If he was to totally incapable of holding court he should not have been allowed to do so; if he was not and is not totally incapable he should not draw the pension provided for such incapacity.

UNDECIDED—Jack Whitaker, dairy marketing specialist with the state department of agriculture, isn't quite sure whether he ought to appreciate a free breakfast or raise sand because he didn't know it would be free in time to order some real eats. He went into the Graham Cafe at Graham the other morning and ordered his usual ham and eggs with coffee. When he got his meal check it had this notation: "Free—Compliments of Graham Cafe—You are the 100th person served." Jack says he appreciates the courtesy, but if he had known about the scheme a bit earlier he would have ordered fruit juice and hot cakes "and the works."

of the disposal of surplus property by the Federal government are sufficient to justify clamping on of an absolute ban against any further disbursements. More information that comes to light the more disgusting and disgraceful the procedure appears to be.

Representative Bonner of North Carolina is authority for the claim that many educational institutions are getting these surpluses only to resell the property for their own gain. If they are acquiring the merchandise or equipment for that purpose only, then it is a reflection upon their own motives and actions.

Bonner's House committee turned up during an investigation the information that Federal agencies, including even the armed services, are giving away to educational institutions types of supplies and materials actually needed now for the expanding defense program. That is the essence of idiotic procedure.

While all this free handout business is going on, the government at the same time is mapping programs for taxes and spending involving multiplied billions and billions of dollars to provide more of the very material that is being thus squandered. So that somewhere along the way, some one in the government should assume the responsibility of stopping outright all further disposal of surpluses both as an economy measure and as a means of speeding the stockpiling of vital equipment.

There never has been a time in the history of this country, and perhaps also never in any other, when so much wanton waste has been practiced as has been going on in the United States in recent years. The condition explains in some measure the inefficiency and the squandering in responsible public activities.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Strange Action (Williamston Enterprise) . . . The belated action taken by the Garner murder case by Judge Luther Hamilton is indeed strange, and, instead of airing it before the world, it would seem he would have preferred to remain silent. It would seem the jurist is trying to ease his conscience, so he looks around for a political enemy upon whose head he would dump the mess.

Whatever his motives were in allowing the bill of indictment to be drawn for first degree and climaxing the trial with the death sentence the jurist comes out with the argument that there was need for a worthy example. If a man's life was unduly taken, then in this case the trouble is traceable without question to the jurist.

Judge Hamilton would set an example for people to think about down in murderous Harnett by sitting idly by and sanctioning the trial of a man for his life, and then criticize someone else because the man was executed. Judge Hamilton apparently would create the example, but, in turn, would have the Governor cast it aside, possibly taking the opportunity under such conditions to condemn the Governor for interfering with his handiwork on the bench.

A SECRET WEAPON (Wilson Daily Times) . . . America, most of its feel, owes much of its present civilization to our system of public education. We had, we know, something to work with. It was our educational proclivities which enabled us to develop it. When something like 90 per cent of our people were farmers we were nothing like so prosperous as we are today when only 17 per cent raise the foodstuffs necessary to sustain life. Not all of that has been

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Napoleon said, "L'Anglais est une nation de boutiquiers." And Adam Smith and Charles Francis Adams have echoed the idea that England is a nation of shop keepers." If that is true, then America is surely a nation of tax collectors.

The heads of 4,000,000 businesses in the United States are collectors of employees' withholding and social security taxes, and of federal excises, and often of city and state sales and income taxes. A large part of the 3,000,000 salesmen and saleswomen are collectors of excise and sales taxes. In addition, there is a large body of professional collectors working for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Customs and city and state governments.

And on January 1, the government will add another group to its tax collectors when social security is extended to household workers and their employers must collect—and to—their social security taxes.

It's not quite certain how many of these unpaid collectors will be added. Some domestics do not earn enough to come under the law and some households have more than one servant, so the total number of new collectors will be less than the two to three million domestic workers. Perhaps 1,000,000.

Tax collecting, measured by gross, is a fifty billion dollar business in America, and may go up to sixty billion next year. In turn, it supports a multi-million-dollar private industry. There are thousands of businesses and individuals engaged in selling tax advice and rendering accounting services. Thousands of books of offering tips and charts are sold each year. Printing these and tax forms and regulations keep thousands of printers and press men employed. Banks and large corporations employ thousands of men to handle their tax matters. More thousands of lawyers gain their livelihoods by specializing in tax matters. Tax affairs keep hundreds of lobbyists and college professors employed.

In normal times, a drastic simplification of tax regulations and collection systems would throw thousands of people out of work and might precipitate a recession. SYNTHETIC MAY HELP TO EQUIP ARMY

Dynel comes into quality production this month and that may have more significance than a bare addition to the number of new man-made synthetic fibers. While it is not promoted as a substitute for wool, in some constructions it has proved warmer than wool. Thus, in event it became necessary to expand production of uniforms, blankets and other textile products for military purposes, the nation may have something to bridge the gap in wool supplies.

Dynel has been produced experimentally for some time, and is being used for filters, laundry nets, industrial bags and dolls' hair. Sometimes this month a Union Carbide and Carbon plant at Charleston, W. Va., will reach a 2,000,000-pound production rate and by next July a second plant there will bring the rate up to 5,000,000 pounds. As the fiber becomes available, it will be used in blankets, hosiery and wearing apparel. Basic ingredients are natural gas, salt, air and water. The present price of $1.25 a pound is expected to drop with mass production.

PURTO RICO SEEKS MORE PINEAPPLE SALES
 Puerto Rico is readying a half-million-dollar bid for a larger share of the pineapple market now largely dominated by Hawaii. Principal growers and processors have organized the Pineapple Corp. to market the Puerto Rican crop under a single brand and are subscribing $500,000 to finance the projects. Plantings are expected to expand from today's 5,000 acres to 30,000 acres.

BENEFITS GREATER IN MILITARY LEAVES
 Four out of five companies surveyed by the National Industrial Conference Board have revised their military leave policies since June, the Board reports today. Two out of three pay bonuses to men going into the service. In almost all cases, benefits extended to enlistees are equal to or better than benefits during World War II. Only 5 per cent of the companies distinguish between volunteers and draftees.

GALES BLOW, SO NAILS ARE SCARCE
 One of the curious results of the wind storm along the Atlantic Coast has been a shortage of nails. Inventories held by wholesalers and retailers have been kept low for years by the housing boom and the rush to put things together after the blow has exhausted stocks of many dealers.

NEW AND HOT
 ELASTIC: Heat used in ironing is largely responsible for loss of snap-back in elastic bands on underthings, tests by the American Institute of Laundering have disclosed. At its request, an elastic webbing with a heat-resistant rubber has been developed by U.S. Rubber Co., and is now available to elastic webbing manufacturers.

PATTERN: That leopard-skin pattern which has become so popular in other apparel is now being used in a women's vinyl plastic raincoat and hood (by Princess House, 261 Fifth Ave., New York).

Hal Boyle's Column

By BARBARA BRINES (For Hal Boyle)
 With U. S. Troops in North Korea—(AP)—This is a story about one GI Joe.

He and his manly mates were moving forward next morning to replace men who had faced the Chinese Reds.

Joe knows all about the casualties coming back from the front. He wonders what it is going to be like up there. No one can tell him, so Joe talks about something he knows about. Florida, his home.

"I sure wish I was home now," he said. "I would probably be swimming right now. There are alligators where I live. But you know what, if you killed an alligator you would get fined $500. Because alligators eat all the bad fish and snakes around the river.

"Alligators won't hurt you if you don't bother them. I've gone swimming in the river with alligators. But they have been known to eat chickens, and I heard of one around our neighborhood that ate a small baby that was playing in the yard."

Joe pulled out a cigarette, inhaled deeply and said:
 "The snakes down there are pretty bad sometimes. We have rattlers and king snakes and copperheads. But snakes won't hurt you either if you don't molest them. They are afraid of you just as much as you are afraid of them. You just have to keep your head."

"I knew a man near Port Richey, and he had a snake farm. He was not afraid of them at all. He sold the venom for some kind of medicine or something. And I never heard of him being bitten."

Joe wanted to talk because Joe was lonely. The rest of the boys were lonely too. They all moved closer to the fire to get as much warmth as they could.

Someone put another piece of wood on the fire. Joe kept on talking:
 "I made a pet of a chicken once. She was just a little thing, not much to look at when she came out of the egg. Her mother died and the rest of the chickens, so I kept her for myself. Everywhere I went that chicken followed me. I called her Shadow."

"The kids all laughed at her so much that I finally put her in the chicken yard with the rest of the hens. And then I just sort of forgot all about her until we were ready to leave Homestead. That's what we called the place where we lived."
 "We had lived at Homestead for eight years, but we were glad to move because the work was too hard. I had lost track of Shadow but my mother told me to go out to the chicken yard to take one last look around to see if everything was all right for the new owners. And there I saw Shadow, proudly walking toward me with eight new baby chicks."
 "She certainly was proud, and I was proud of her. I reached down and scratched her on the head, and she pecked me friendly-like on the hand."

Washington Letter

BY JANE EADS
 Washington—A. H. Stricker was on his way to Pinehurst, N. C., to play golf when he stopped off in Washington and began poking around looking at office desks in government buildings. He criticized them, too.

He had just retired after 30 years as management consultant for the General Electric Co. He had also developed a number of desks and had the designs patented.

"A desk should be fitted to work, not work to the desk," he told me.

So concerned was Mr. Stricker about the government's desks that he had had to visit the Library of Congress to "find out the background of conceptions of proportions in the conventional desk." That probing led him into his present job as the library's management consultant. (He never did get to that golfing at Pinehurst.)

"Why," he kept asking, "is the average desk 30 and one-half inches high? Why does it have drawers on each side? Why is there such a thing as a so-called standard, single flat-topped desk?" He asked so many questions of library officials they asked him to study library environment in relation to library workers.

"I found environment mostly lousy, but not any worse than in five or six other offices about town," he said.

Then Mr. Stricker arranged an environment conference at the library. It was cosponsored by Luther H. Evans, the librarian of Congress, and David Lynn, architect of the capitol, with nationally recognized experts presenting papers on the latest developments in their special fields—sound control, illumination, ventilation, color engineering and safety.

Local C-Of-C Backs Payroll Saving Plan

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce has joined with thousands of similar organizations in volunteering aid to the United States Treasury Payroll Savings Campaign now underway.

Willard T. Kyzar, manager of the Chamber, has notified his National Bond Chairman that all business men in his organization will be asked to install the Payroll Plan for the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds in their store, office or plant.

Vernon L. Clark, national director of the Savings Bonds Division, expressed his appreciation to the organizations and their aid. In a letter he stated: "Business men up and down Main Street, U. S. A., are operating the Payroll Savings Plan to make regular saving easy for their employees. They know that it's good business, for they find the payroll saver is happier and more efficient in his work, more regular in attendance and less liable to accident or injury since he is not distracted by financial worries.

"This partial payment way to buy Bonds has been proved since 1941 to be as successful in small business as in giant industries. We need the support of the small businessman."

The local Chamber is one of 60,000 veterans, civic and service clubs and fraternal societies being asked by the National Organizations Advisory Committee to the Treasury Department to help in expanding the Payroll Savings program. The membership of these organizations includes most of the 2,500,000 business concerns throughout the nation.

High Point, N. C. Dec 4—(AP)—The North Carolina Hotel Association opened business sessions of its annual convention here today.

Before the meeting closes with a banquet tomorrow night, the Association will elect officers, discuss its legislative program, and hear speakers prominent in the industry.

Scheduled speakers included were George Ross of the State department of Conservation and Development, and Frank L. Swadley of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York City.

UNC Withdraws Bids On Medical School Projects

Chapel Hill, Dec. 4—(AP)—The University of North Carolina has withdrawn bids for a $300,000 wing for its medical school because they exceed the appropriation. However, it may seek other ways to build the addition.

Collier Cobb, Jr., chairman of the University Building Committee, made the announcement Saturday. He added that the committee probably would ask the new state legislature to pass an enabling act allowing use of funds saved from other projects.

Cobb also said the university is going ahead with two other building projects. Bids will be advertised Jan. 16 for a $900,000 addition to Venable Hall, the chemistry building. And bids probably will be sought within 60 days for the new dental school.

Tokyo—(AP)—The chief of Army chaplains here says Christmas cards will be an important morale factor with American troops in Korea.

They are "a way of letting the boys know they have not been forgotten," said Colonel I. L. Bennett, chief chaplain of the Far East Command, "and have not been relegated to the back of the thoughts of those they love."

Fog Set Off Burglar Alarm

Pasadena, Calif.—(AP)—The fog was so thick it was mistaken for a burglar.

Police reported to a building where an automatic burglar alarm was ringing but found everything in order. They called an engineer from the alarm company. His diagnosis: heavy fog had cut the beam between two electric eyes, setting off the alarm.

Fence Is Fatal For Stray Deer

Arcadia, Calif.—(AP)—Because a stray deer underestimated the strength of a steel mesh fence, state relief recipients dined on venison.

The doe ventured into town and Mrs. C. A. Dewey asked police to shoot it from her back yard. The animal jumped several fences and was headed for the hills and safety. Then it made the fatal mistake of trying to crash through the wire fence. Officers found it with a broken neck and turned it over to a relief agency.

Potsdamer Platz Is Center Of Berlin East-West Tug Of War

By DANIEL DE LUCE
 AP Newsfeature
 Berlin—On sane days, Potsdamer Platz is merely another intersection in a tumbled-down city, where people shop for food and clothes instead of political dogma. Except for signboards preaching hate, there is nothing by day to identify this shabby crossroads as the toughest no-man's-land in the global cold war.

Germans from east and west swarm freely across its flinty cobblestones. Nobody asks them for a passport to travel between Communist paradise and capitalist wonderland.

In their hearts, they may be Red or anti-Red or just confused. Who knows? Their politics are not branded on their weary faces.

The Blue and the Gray
 Rival policemen exchange comradely nods across this political frostland, though they wear different uniforms. Those in gray protect Western Allied interests. The blues are sworn to uphold the Soviet Union.

Under a pallid winter sun, the only east-west conflict in the place is for the public's pennings. Eastern chain stores have recently undercut the price for bread and potatoes. Western vendors have tastier sausages and slabs of real butter.

Many headlines have been written about Potsdamer Platz in the past five years. For here, with the raised walls of Hitler's chancellery as background, the Allied and Soviet districts of Berlin meet in ever suspicious continuity.

It's a readymade stage for political hotheads and mob brawlers.

The west fights back in Berlin—with no holds barred—against the overweening ambition and ceaseless threat of the east. Each side yells foul but itself swings low. The Marquis of Queensbury is a forgotten man.

A Misstep Means Jail
 You'll go to jail in the Allied sectors if you hand out a Muscovite leaflet to the American atom bomb. You'll go to jail, even longer, in the Soviet sector if you say you don't love communism.

It is after nightfall that Potsdamer Platz imitates Dr. Jekyll changing into a monster. You are enjoying the brisk evening air when suddenly it is rent by five giant loudspeakers blaring "Ami (American) go home!"

The loudspeakers (ironically made in West Germany) are located atop the Soviet sector department store, in which Volkspolizei reserves wait on alert, staring through peepholes in shuttered windows on the second floor.

On the westside of the platz, a huge news board light up. It is sponsored by West Berlin publishers with, perhaps, a little indirect financial support from the U. S. Government. It bears the heading: "The Free Berlin Press Reports."

Reds Try To Block It
 But in the center of the platz, just inside Russian-occupied territory, a rival signboard is turned on in dazzling power. The Communists built it in a rage to try to cover up the West's anti-Communist news.

Teen-age gangs from west and east gather, spoiling for a fight. They raid in both directions across the platz, scattering poison-pen leaflets and smearing hate slogans with paint.

The Communist bunch calls itself "peace fighters". The westerners boast they are "fighters against inhumanity".

Cardboard grenades are tossed at eastern police. Western patrolmen are booted and jostled. Out of shadowy sidestreets, more hoodlums start throwing stones from old ruins.

The delirium grows and the platz is jammed with two mobs ranting and springing at one another's throats. But slowly and firmly, a gentlemen's agreement between the gray and blue police comes into effect. They turn off the electric signs and loudspeakers. The grays link arms and patiently shove back their long-haired rowdies.

The blues disperse their flushed party agitators. The platz empties gradually as if someone had half-pulled a cork. By midnight, it is a dark deserted square in a beat-up town.

Divorce Figures Again In Decline

New York, N. Y. — Divorces granted in the United States in 1949 show a decline for the third year in a row, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians report. The estimated total for the year was 391,000, which is a reduction of seven percent from the 1948 total of 422,000, and of 38 percent from the peak year 1946.

Despite this trend, the number of divorces granted last year was the sixth highest in the country's history, exceeding that for every year prior to 1944, and more than one fifth higher than the figure for 1942, the first year of United War II.

The decline since 1946 was sharpest in the North, somewhat less marked in the South, and least in the West. In seven widely separated cities — Buffalo, Erie, Jacksonville, Knoxville, Minneapolis, New York and Portland — the decline was more than 50 percent.

Some indication that the post-war divorce decline is nearing its end is seen by the statisticians. "Each of 59 major cities reported fewer divorces in 1948 than in 1946, but 15 of these cities showed increases in 1949," the statisticians note. "In Miami and in the divorce center of Reno the increases were substantial. In Miami the total rose from 4,451 in 1948 to 4,707 last year, and in Reno from 5,782 to 5,902."

Asks To See Son In Dying Request

Goldboro, N. C. Dec. 4—(AP)—An aged Goldboro mother who is near death today had only one last request. She wants to see her young son, who is serving a 30-year term for manslaughter in state prison.

She is Mrs. Eva Thompson, who as a widow reared seven children. Her youngest is Sam Thompson, serving the state prison sentence from Lenoir county.

For three weeks, said Mrs. Sue King, a daughter, Mrs. Thompson has cried pitifully that Sam be brought to her for her last blessing. Until the mother became ill, she visited the boy regularly, but now has not seen him for more than a year.

Mrs. King, speaking for Sam's other brothers and sister, said the decision to bring Sam back to Goldboro rests with Wayne Sheriff Paul Garrison. Friends who have worked with the family to arrange the meeting said the officers have repeatedly denied their requests, saying Sam is too dangerous.

The sister said permission for the trip had been granted by the prison, but only in custody of the sheriff, and "if he will assume full responsibility."

Three Escapees Back In Custody

Raleigh, Dec. 4—(AP)—Three prisoners who escaped from a Lee county road gang Friday afternoon were back in custody today.

The trio was identified by the prison department as Rexford Joyner, 24, serving three to six years from Halifax county for forgery; Wayne Anderson, 26, serving three years from Craven for breaking and entering; and Ruel Smith, 25, also convicted in Craven on a similar charge and serving three to five years.

The convicts were captured over the weekend by Sanford police.

Tarheels Win In Sheep-Shearing

Raleigh, Dec. 4—(AP)—Two North Carolina youths today held first and second place awards in the National 4-H club sheep shearing contest.

The winners as announced here over the weekend are Bobby Wilcox, who took first place honors, and Ben Norris, who won second place. Both are 18 and reside in Watauga county.

The contest was held in Chicago. — EXPENSIVE BEE Reseda, Calif.—(AP)—A bee cost Mrs. Margaret K. Steward $500. A gust of wind blew the insect into her automobile, she told police and it stung her in the eye. Mrs. Steward's car crashed into a parked vehicle with damage to both totaling $500.

N. C. October Building Permits Hit $13 Million

Raleigh, Dec. 3 — Building permits for $13,622,289 worth of construction were issued by 73 North Carolina cities and towns during October, the State Department of Labor reported yesterday.

The October figure was down only slightly from the $13,656,540 in permits reported during September, Labor Department statistician C.H. Pritchard pointed out. The number of housing permits issued during the month was down slightly from the total of 824 reported in September. Permits for 73 new houses and apartments accounted for $5,296,581 of the October building total. They included 627 one-family dwellings, 23 duplexes and five apartment buildings, average estimated construction cost of the 627 single-family houses authorized in October was $7,610. The month's nonresidential building permits amounted to $8,865,026. They included 62 stores, 16 workshops and factory buildings, 11 office buildings, seven commercial garages, 80 private garages, 11 service stations, six churches, four institutional buildings, one public utility building, nine school buildings (average estimated cost, $405,000), and four amusement places.

Winston-Salem 'Ham' Chosen To Set Up Disaster Radio Net

Mr. Roy C. Corderman, W4ZG, Winston-Salem, has been selected to set up an organization of North Carolina amateur radio operators prepared to furnish organized emergency communication in time of disaster, it was announced today by Communications Manager F. E. Handy of the American Radio Relay League, national association of radio amateurs.

Mr. Corderman's assignment, which carries the title of Section Emergency Coordinator, is to band together members of the amateur radio service in his area to perfect arrangements for emergency radio communication by hams in the event of natural disasters or other emergencies. In addition to use of normal station equipment working from commercial power, amateur stations using self-powered radio transmitting and receiving equipment are needed. In this work, he will be assisted in each community by local coordinators who will call local meetings of amateurs, establish common operating procedures, and arrange regular drill periods when the hams' personal stations may be mobilized under simulated emergency conditions. His duties also include promotion of liaison planning with local chapters of the American Red Cross and other relief agencies, as suggested in the working understanding the ARRL Emergency Corps has with the national headquarters of the American Red Cross and other agencies. Liaison will be established also with local protective services, such as fire and police departments.

In announcing the appointment, Handy pointed out that radio amateurs have traditionally had the responsibility of being in constant readiness to offer assistance in time of need with ham-acquired skill, emergency-powered transmitters and a wealth of community spirit. "When sleet storms disrupt telegraph and telephone service, or floods isolate whole communities," the League's Communications manager said, "it is amateur radio that comes to the rescue with operators and self-powered equipment, often as the sole agency able to transmit messages calling on the outside world for aid for the stricken community."

Flying Boom Helps In Refuelling Big Bombers

A NEW METHOD of refueling long range bombers at high speed in high altitudes employs a flying boom instead of a hose. The boom comprises a telescoping pipe steadiied by ruddervators and fitted with de-icing devices. The Boeing factory at Renton, Wash., is modifying its wartime B-29's into KB-29P flying boom tankers for the Air Force. Here is how Boeing's flying boom works:

Unique Bank In Sunday School

By Lynn Nisbet

Raleigh, December 4—By way of the News-Argus, Goldsboro's afternoon newspaper, comes the story of an unusual kind of banking operation. It has been doing business, according to feature writer Margaret Long, for twenty-seven years during which time it never made a profit, suffered a loss or had its books examined.

Here's the story, briefly summarized and not so well written as the original:

In 1923 O. C. (Pop) Liles was superintendent of the junior department in the First Baptist Sunday school. He noticed every Sunday that children had to run around hunting change for dollars and quarters. He resigned as superintendent and set up a table at the entrance to the Sunday school rooms, equipped himself with plenty of small change, and developed an extensive service to the youngsters. It wasn't long before some of the adults began using his bank.

His bank differs from others in one respect. Absolutely no checks cashed. Not that he distrusts the check-writers, he says, but it cuts down his change too much. He change a $20 bill or a nickel, but he won't cash a check. (The story didn't say whether he would make a small loan in case of temporary financial embarrassment of a customer, but chances are he will.)

The bank hasn't made a profit, but the Sunday school has. Soon after Mr. Liles set up business weekly collections picked up considerably. That fact calmed down some of the early criticism that

TEEN TALK

(Dear Judy)

Every neighborhood should have a "Society for the Advancement of the Unusual Christmas Gift." It is tough on the girl who finds nothing but mittens in her stocking all because everybody had the same idea—"It is just what she needs."

The Christmas gift should be a bit of a surprise—it is all the more welcome when it is distinctly unusual, but useful. Usually, if you take into consideration the hobbies and general interests of the recipient-to-be, something different can be found to put under her tree. Don't be the kind of a gift giver who "gets the gift over with" by buying the first thing she sees, so there is one less name on her list.

Use your imagination. What does a young girl like? Well what would you like? Your friend would probably like some of the things you have been yearning for. How about: Lessons in figure skating or swimming? A dressing table skirt for her vanity table? A diary or fountain pen? A subscription to a magazine she particularly adores? Theatre or concert tickets? A gift certificate for a few horseback rides? A portable iron for vacations?

If she's the career girl type she'd probably like a collection of herbs, party snack spreads, a copper pot, a salad bowl, attractive laundry racks for the bathroom, ready-to-mix pie crust and cake mix, a current best-selling book, book ends, an initialed engagement calendar, leatherbound telephone address book, window boxes with herb seeds.

The young boy depending on his particular enthusiasms will gasp over a chemistry set, book on magic tricks, subscription to adventures or scientific magazines. If he's a fisherman get him lures and other equipment. Gun books are

A gift certificate for a permanent wave, silver meat fork, serving spoon or other pieces to match her silver pattern also might be welcome.

It isn't possible always to have open house during the Christmas holidays, but members of the family should arrange to have their own group to the house for breakfast, lunch or light supper during the holidays. Presents can be distributed and carols sung at this joyous time of the year which offers more possibilities for a friendly gaiety than any other season.

An attractive centerpiece can be made of Christmas ornaments and pine branches. Green, red or blue vegetable dye tablets can color water. Put it in a clear vase for a pretty receptacle for holly, pine needles or other Christmas floral decorations. This centerpiece can be used on a buffet or dining room table.

If you give important gifts to one or two special friends do not present them while the crowd is at your house. However, you could have a grab bag into which each of your visitors might put a small gift—the girls bringing one for the boys and boys for the girls.

fine for young men who admire six-shooters. An indexed record case won't be scoffed at if he's a record collector. Perhaps he'd appreciate a photograph album or tickets to the hockey game.

Dad would probably love some barbecue accessories such as asbestos gloves, a chef's hat or a chef's apron. Long-handled forks and ladies as well as outdoor cookery books also are a hit with outdoor culinary experts. The local paper or magazine he buys every day or week presents the possibility of a year's subscription as a thoughtful gift. He might even need a new tennis racket, ice skates or a horsehoe pitching set.

Corps Will Not Accept Men Slated For Draft

Raleigh, N.C. — Applicants for enlistment in the Marine Corps, who have received notice to report for pre-induction examination, will be rejected, Capt. M.D. Smith, Jr., director of Marine recruiting for the state of North Carolina announced today.

In the past, the captain explained, many men have delayed their decision as to whether or not to enlist, until the last moment, then found they had no choice as to which branch of the service they desire.

The Selective Service Act of 1948, provides that no individual will be accepted for voluntary enlistment or re-enlistment in the Marine Corps after he has received orders to report for pre-induction examination.

Men desiring to serve in the Marine Corps, must volunteer prior to receipt of notice for their pre-induction examination from their local draft boards.

March Of Dimes Preparing Drive

Chapel Hill, N.C., Dec. 4—(AP)—The March of Dimes today started a series of get ready meetings with the reminder that this has been North Carolina's third worst polio year.

Mrs. Phillips Russell of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, director of the January March of Dimes collections for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said:

"I don't believe it is realized by the general public that through November of this year North Carolina had 717 new cases of polio, and that the terrible epidemic year of 1944 had only 861 for the entire year. The next worst epidemic came in 1948."

Meetings to prepare for the March of Dimes were held today at Asheville and Cherokee. Tomorrow they will be held in Charlotte and Lenoir. For the rest of the week the meeting will be held in the valley of the Red River of the North slopes only one foot per mile from sides to center and south to north.

worry and indifference

OVERANXIETY, particularly about health, is a disease in itself. Physicians call it hypochondria. Those who "enjoy" ill health only make themselves and those about them miserable.

Opposed to chronic worry is complete indifference, to the point of disregard of common-sense health rules and contempt for medical care.

Between these two absurd extremes lies the sane middle road. Petty, transient discomforts need not cause grave concern and frequent trips to the doctor. When symptoms persist or recur with annoying frequency, it is then time to seek professional assistance. Indifference under these circumstances only invites more serious trouble.

SENATOR DUDLEY J. LEBLANC, Whose Tireless Efforts For Relief Of Suffering, Have Brought Humanity Today's Great HADACOL

Senator LeBlanc in all of his political activities has always championed the cause of the oppressed, and the poor and underprivileged.

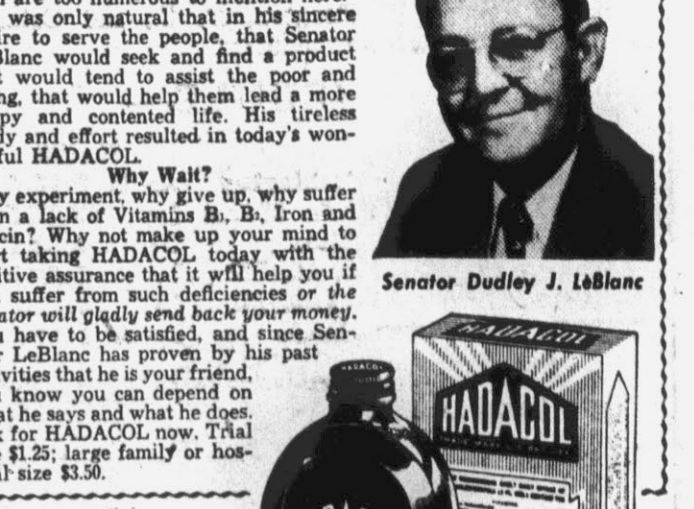

He was the first candidate for Governor to advocate a specific Old Age Pension... and today in Louisiana, he is known as the Father of the Old Age Pension. In the course of his long, lone fight he has had his critics, but to those who opposed him he has continually stated, "If you do not believe in Old Age Pensions, remember the mandate of the Lord himself—'Honor thy Father and thy Mother'—that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

Senator LeBlanc is known as a friend of the veterans. He introduced and successfully passed the law that created the State Service Commissioner whose duty it is to see that every service man receives his just compensation from both State and Federal governments. His activities in public life in behalf of the working man are too numerous to mention here. It was only natural that in his sincere desire to serve the people, that Senator LeBlanc would seek and find a product that would tend to assist the poor and ailing, that would help them lead a more happy and contented life. His tireless study and effort resulted in today's wonderful HADACOL.

Why Wait? You have to give up, why suffer from a lack of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Iron and Niacin? Why not make up your mind to start taking HADACOL today with the positive assurance that it will help you if you suffer from such deficiencies or the Senator will gladly send back your money. You have to be satisfied, and since Senator LeBlanc has proven by his past activities that he is your friend, you know you can depend on what he says and what he does. Ask for HADACOL now. ## Large Group Of Officials And Coaches Attend Northeastern Officiating Clinic Here; Jones Leads Discussions

By BILL LLOYD
Daily Reflector Sports Editor
Approximately seventy-five school coaches and prospective basketball officials attended the first Northeastern Officiating Agency officiating clinic here yesterday.

Walter Jones, well-known cage official from Farmville, directed the clinic which was held on East Carolina campus yesterday afternoon. Interpretation and discussion of rule changes in this year's basketball opened up the clinic session. With the mechanics of officiating and the setting up of mock plays closing out the discussions.

An interesting and informative movie produced by the National Confederation of High School Athletic Associations concluded the clinic session.

Several Pitt County coaches and officials, Northeastern coaches, and officials from surrounding counties were present for the meeting.

Among those present were Leo Katkavek, former all-conference and all-state cager at N.C. State, now at Roanoke Rapids; Amos Sexton, Kinston; Walter Latham, Bethel; J. D. Thorne, Colerain; Horace "Red" Benton, Wilson; Elbert Moyer, Farmville; Bob Lee, Robertsonville; and Henry Andrews, Winterville.

Several outstanding basketball officials and coaches were on hand yesterday for the officiating clinic held here. Walter Jones, director of the clinic, is shown above, pointing out some rule changes discussed.

Coach Howard Porter's cagers got off to a slow start in the first five minutes of the tilt, with both teams having trouble in finding the range of the basket.

East Carolina's reserve strength showed up well in Saturday's night's scrap, as three of the Pirates' top stars, Russell, Postas and Bobby Hodges, fouled out.

Barbara Weir was the three-game high scorer for the losers with a 275, and Edith Nisbet bowled the highest single score for Greenville with 105 pins.

These making up the Greenville were Margaret Fordham, Edith Nisbet, M. Savage, Barbara Weir, Dot Rawls, and Margaret Wells.

These two teams will meet in a second series at the Greenville Bowling Center next Sunday afternoon, December 10.

Eppes Bulldogs Open Basketball Schedule Friday

Eppes High School Bulldogs open their 1950-51 basketball season against Conetoe High Friday night, December 8, at the local high school gymnasium. Game time is set for eight o'clock.

Coach Murrell, head of the Eppes cage forces, is not worried too much of the loss of four regulars from last year's team.

Mitchell Hines, Elwood Dupree, William Myers and Hubert Walters are four lettermen returning from last season's team who will form the nucleus for this year's club, which plays thirty games.

The Eppes sextet is also rounding into shape for its first game.

Coach Grimes, girl's head mentor, is having little difficulty in replacing three lettermen from last year's club.

The girls' team is expected to be stronger during this season's campaign than they have been for the past two seasons.

Holdovers from last year's squad are Jackie Norris, a fine defensive player, Peggy Hopkins and Billy Jenkins, who leads the offensive forces. Jenkins was high scorer for the Bulldogs last season.

No Chance To Shine For Detroit Lineman
Detroit—(AP)—Les Bingham, six-three 250-pound guard for the Detroit Lions, fears he now will never get a chance to fulfill his secret ambition to play quarterback. After piling up a huge score in a recent exhibition game, Lion Coach Bo McMillin permitted his players to play any position.

Bucks became linemen and linemen, harboring a yen to carry the ball, went into the backfield. "And I with a bum ankle, couldn't play at all," moans Bingham.

Player Draft Law Subject Of Minor League Meet

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The 49th annual Minor League convention opened today with the player draft the first important topic to be tackled.

The gigantic lottery, in which some 5,000 players were up for selection for bids ranging from $6,500 to $400, began with only the Triple, Double and Single A leagues making their picks. Class B and C clubs will have their turn tomorrow.

A year ago in the first open draft, a record total of 222 players were drafted for $449,050 with the St. Louis Cardinals leading the way. It was felt that the total would be less this year because of the scarcity of older men in the lower minors. Club owners were wary of the young players because of their likelihood of being called into service in the near future.

Record For Doak

Detroit—(AP)—It took Doak Walker just nine games of the National Football League season to set a new team scoring record for the Detroit Lions. By tallying all 24 points in the Lions' 24-21 victory over Green Bay, Walker increased his total to 81. This erased Bill Dudley's 81-point record set in 1949. The league's all-time scoring record of 138 points was set in 1942 by Don Hutson of Green Bay.

First Goal Big One

New York — (AP)—National Hockey League officials, after analyzing the results of the first 53 league games played this season, report that the team which scored the first goal won 31 of the contests, and lost only 10. The other 12 games ended in ties.

Derby Timber
Even those turf experts who insist that George D. Widener's Belmont, Purdy, must be rated the top two-year-old of 1950 are willing to admit that Uncle Millie shapes up as the juvenile mostly likely to go places next spring. Uncle Millie has demonstrated that he likes to go a distance, a must in three-year-old circles.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro indicated that he would like to be up on Uncle Millie when the field breaks from the starting gate in the Kentucky Derby. Assuming the colt holds his juvenile form, Arcaro can't see how he can be headed in the Blue Grass classic.

Snead Takes Top Money At Miami

Miami, Fla., Dec. —(AP)—The remarkable Sammy Snead, golf's big money man, has added another $2,000 to his 1950 winnings to clinch again the title of "p money winner" of the year.

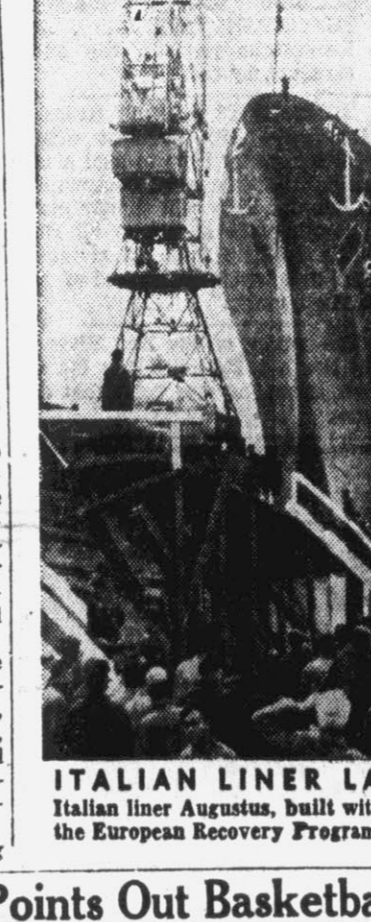

The hite Sulphur Springs, W. Va., veteran racked up his 11th major victory of the year yesterday as he coasted to a five-stroke win in the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament with a 13 under par 267.

It was his fourth win of the 27-year-old to name. Only Gene Sarazen—who won it four straight years from 1926 through 1930—has an equal record.

The $2,000 top money brought to $35,758.83 Snead's official PGA winnings for the year. In addition, he has collected $7,087.50 from unofficial tournaments, another $12,000 from exhibitions and another $35,000 or $40,000 from various enterprises—including his syndicated newspaper column.

By virtue of his easy win in the 72-hole Open, he immediately became the favorite with his partner, Jim Ferrier, of San Francisco, Calif., for the $10,000 International Four-ball Tournament which begins Tuesday at Yezziwami Country Club.

Raleigh, N.C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Flue-cured tobacco markets of the North Carolina-Virginia old belt began a new week today with a backward glance at last week's $50.25 price average, lowest of the season.

The $50.25 a hundredweight was $1.47 below the previous low of $51.72 during the eighth week of sales.

The week's volume of 5,414,744 pounds brought season's poundage to 306,582,724.

Republicans End Three-Day Meet

Winston-Salem, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Southern Young Republicans ended a three-day council meeting here yesterday, hopeful of putting the traditionally "Solid South" on a two-party basis.

William E. Stevens of Lenoir, N.C., who heads the Southern Council, said the Young GOPers weren't "just whistling Dixie" when they talked about bringing two-party government to the South.

MILK RIVER RANGE

by LEE FLOREN

Chapter 3
A rusty old man, swinging a huge ring of keys, led the way down the bullpen, laboriously unlocked a cell, and Buck and Tortilla Joe entered. The oldest, slammed the steel door shut behind them.

"Beary, bloodshot eyes regarded Buck. "They ought to give you boys a medal for hangin' Sim Hannegan. You sure did a good deed 'ard sufferin' humanity."
A voice spoke from the adjoining cell. A red-haired young man, who had a bandage across his forehead,
"Mart Tuttle, huh?" said Buck.
"Never figured I'd meet you in the clink." He shook hands through the bars.

Tortilla Joe waddled up, stuck his brown hand through. "Como esta, Mart?"
Mart Tuttle rubbed his head. His blue eyes glistened. "How come you boys hung Sim Hannegan?"
"We didn't," returned Buck.
He told Mart Tuttle the whole story, even about seeing the other riders and the man on the dappled gray that led them out of the cottonwoods where they had found Sim Hannegan.

"You mean Len Cavanaugh hung him?" asked Mart.
Buck nodded. "Looks that way."
"But why?" asked Wishbone.
Buck looked at Mart Tuttle. "Who is this old fossil?"
"Jaller," explained Mart. "Good man, Buck."
"Tell me more about this Han-negan, son," Buck said.

Sim Hannegan it seemed, had worked for Len Cavanaugh for a short time, right after coming to Milk River Basin, some two years before. But his terms of employment had been brief, due to differences of opinion. Sim had ridden away, taking up a homestead in the middle of Cavanaugh's choice range.
"What did Cavanaugh say to that?" demanded Buck.

"Funny thing," mused Mart. "Cavanough didn't seem mad."
"But why," demanded Buck.
"Would he pull out on a Lazy N-S

Santa Escorted By Four Bands In Greenville Parade Wednesday

Greenville's annual Christmas parade next Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 will be featured by the appearance of Santa Claus on a fire truck at the head of the parade.

Four brass bands—East Carolina Teachers College, Greenville High School, C. M. Epps Negro High School and the Farmville High School—will be in the parade.

Arthur Davis of Rocky Mount will be in the parade as "Uncle Sam." He has appeared in this role in many cities and at Lions' international conventions.

No commercial floats will be in the parade. The Merchants Association, sponsoring the annual Christmas parade, invites educational, religious and civic organizations to enter floats in the Santa parade. Those planning to participate should go to the Merchants Association's offices by Tuesday and register. Participants will be given numbers to wear in the parade.

Children in costumes, on decorated bicycles and with their pets, and on ponies, are especially invited to be in the parade. The Merchants Association is offering cash prizes for winners. The association also is offering cash prizes for the best floats.

The judges of the Christmas parade this year will be Sam D. Bundy, Ernest Petteway and L. W. Allen of Farmville.

The parade will form at Ninth Street and Dickinson Avenue and Ninth Street at 3 p.m. and be ready to march promptly at 3:30. The line of march will be along Dickinson Avenue to Five Points, and thence along Evans to the National Guard Armory, where it will disband.

Prizes will be awarded at the court house.

Merchants and other business people are requested to decorate their windows for Christmas.

The appearance of four brass bands in the Santa parade is expected to attract thousands of people here for the Yuletide event.

The Merchants Association is planning to offer cash prizes to the best Christmas decorated homes—white and colored—during the Yuletide season.

The Christmas decorations on the downtown streets have been installed and the Christmas lights will be turned on for the first time next Wednesday night after the Santa Claus parade.

Numbers Racket Charge Is Heard

Convicted Tickets Peddler Free On Bond; Plans Appeal

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court today, Judge J. W. H. Roberts found Jack Atkinson, 45-year-old Negro, guilty of a violation of the lottery laws. The court sentenced him to 12 months on the roads. Sentence was to be suspended on payment of $500 fine.

The defendant, through his counsel, Jack Edwards, gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

Atkinson's mother provided $1,000 bail bond for him.

SBI Agent S. G. Gibbs arrested Atkinson while peddling "numbers" racket tickets to employees of a business firm here shortly before noon Saturday. Gibbs, assisted by Greenville police, confiscated a considerable number of the "butter and egg" tickets from Atkinson when they searched him at police headquarters. The officers also found a book with a list of the names of purchasers of "numbers" tickets. They also found some tickets in Atkinson's shoes.

The officers later, with a search warrant, went to Atkinson's house on West Fourth street. They found other "numbers" tickets there, SBI Agent Gibbs testified in court today.

Solicitor Eli Bloom, in prosecuting the case against Atkinson today, said "we are trying to break up this gambling racket in Greenville. It appears to me that the sellers of these numbers tickets are sending away from here from $2,500 to $3,500 a year, and the money is being 'chipped in' by these, colored people who cannot afford it."

A murmur of anxiety rippled through the courtroom, nearly half filled by Negro spectators, when Solicitor Bloom read some of the names from a little black book, in which he said Atkinson kept a list of his customers.

Hope To Block Discrimination In H-Bomb Plant

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—Steps to prevent racial segregation at the H-bomb plant to be built in South Carolina were urged today by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Atomic Energy Commission recently picked a 250,000-acre tract in South Carolina for H-bomb development work.

Director Clarence Mitchell of the Association's Washington Bureau wrote Chairman Gordon Dean of the atomic commission that this project "must not be handicapped by the petty prejudices of South Carolina."

These "prejudices," he added, "dictate expensive and ridiculous segregation based on race."

Mitchell also urged that there be no "job discrimination."
