Truman, Attlee Said To Concur On Korean Policy

U. S. And British Leaders Determined To Carry On Korean Struggle But To Avoid Involvement In State Of Open War With Communist China

London, Dec. 5 (AP)—A British informant said today President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee have determined that United Nations forces should return to Korea in the event Chinese Communists drive them out in a Korean Dunkerque.

The source said the President and Prime Minister had agreed that for the present, however, the United Nations should do everything possible to avoid being involved in a state of open war with Communist China.

The decision was taken during a 90-minute meeting at the White House yesterday, informants said.

Gen. Omar Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, gave Attlee and his aides a firsthand account of the military situation in Korea at that meeting.

Bradley's assessment was reported to have taken into consideration all possibilities, including a United Nations withdrawal from Korea.

The American and British leaders were faced with a decision whether then the United Nations should write off Korea completely.

The unqualified decision was "no," the source said.

A United Nations withdrawal from Korea was discussed as a last resort only.

The policy is, if possible, to stabilize the military situation by getting up a defense line which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces can hold against Chinese communist pressure—and then to negotiate a settlement with the Peiping authorities if possible, the source said.

Truman and Attlee were said also to have agreed to try to avoid taking any action which might touch off a war against Communist China.

They ruled out, for instance, suggestions that U. N. forces in Korea should bomb Manchurian bases.

Information in possession of the British government is that an attack on Manchurian bases by U. N. forces would bring Russia into the fighting, the source said.

The informant said there is reason to believe the Russian Air Force is in charge of many Manchurian airfields. Russian-manufactured aircraft are believed to be based in Manchuria in some strength, he added.

The informant said some kind of formula will have to be found whereby the big Western powers can fulfill both their political and military commitments in Korea without getting involved in a war with China.

Child Is Victim In Grifton Fire

Grifton, Dec. 5.—A two-year-old Negro boy was burned to death about one o'clock this afternoon when the house in which he was sleeping caught fire and burned to the ground.

The boy, son of John Wesley Harden, was asleep in the home of Marvin Harper, proprietor of a store and beauty salon which adjoined the house.

It was reported by Chief of Police Herbert Adams the fire presumably started when food on an oil stove boiled over onto the floor.

The child's mother had left the house to go to a neighbor's for a few minutes, Adams said, leaving the child alone.

Lagging Civil Defense

Growing Emphasis Being Placed On Civil Defense; Slowness In Preparations; Various Impediments Contributed; Federal Government Is Largely Blamed

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Big emphasis now is on civilian defense against an atomic attack on American cities. This is the result of the crisis with China and the possibility of World War III around the corner.

This country's plans for civilian defense are far from complete. It has been dawdling along, apparently hoping war wouldn't come. Here is a step by step outline of the history of the problem.

Six months before Pearl Harbor President Roosevelt created the OCM—Office of Civilian Mobilization.

OCM's job was to help states and cities plan what they'd do in case of atomic attack. For example: the tasks of police and firemen; removing and caring for the injured; disposing of the dead; clearing wreckage; restoring lights; supplying food and water; providing bomb shelters.

We still were at peace and things moved slowly, even after we got into the shooting in Korea in June, 1950, although there was a mild flurry of interest in civilian defense then.

Still, by that time OCM had been in existence a year and there had been much talk of civilian defense among states and cities. Some had even made plans. So in July 1950, I asked OCM people the simple question:

In what kind of shape is our civilian defense now? The answer

Truman Asserts China Deliberately Risks War

Terms Korean Intervention One Part Of Overall Communist Scheme; Says U.S. To Remain Firm On Aims

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—President Truman said today the leaders of Communist China have deliberately confronted the world with "the grave risk of general conflict."

"We are struggling to preserve our own liberty as a nation," the President said, and to meet the threat posed by communist imperialism the United States must enlist "the combined resources and the common determination of the free world."

The big scale Chinese Red intervention in the north Korean fighting, Mr. Truman said is just "one part" of the communist scheme to "dominate the world."

The President, speaking through his spokesman, said that the United States will remain firm in its resolve to work through the United Nations in the hope of building "a world order based on freedom and justice."

"That is the only way out of an endless circle of force and retaliation, violence and war—which will carry the human race back to the Dark Ages if it is not stopped."

Excess Profits Tax Bill Ready In House

Passage At End Of Today's Debate Appears Certain; Senate Chances Helped By International Tensions

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A multi-billion dollar excess profits tax bill was ready for House approval today. It apparently faced clear sailing in the Senate later.

Passage at the close of House debate today appeared certain. There was a possibility, however, that the final vote might be put off until tomorrow.

Its chances for final enactment, once dim, were brightened by international developments making it obvious that no ends is in sight to vast defense spending. The administration renewed a drive to swell the amount it will bring in.

Before the final vote that will send it to the Senate, the bill faces

Vote Extending Law For 90 Days

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A 90-day extension of rent controls was approved today by the House Banking Committee.

The committee voted 17 to 3 to keep the law on the books until March 31, three months beyond its expiration date, and give the incoming 82nd Congress time to decide on some final action after it meets in January.

RFC Loan For Kaiser-Frazer

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today granted another $25,000,000 loan to Kaiser-Frazer Co. to help it maintain auto output and get into defense production.

Simultaneously, Henry J. Kaiser announced the auto-making concern plans to open a plant in the San Francisco-Oakland area to make military products and is getting ready to go into shipbuilding.

More Testimony On Atrocities By Ilse Koch

Augsburg, Germany, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A former concentration camp inmate testified today that a fellow prisoner was beaten to death after staring at Ilse Koch.

Frau Koch, widow of the commander of the Nazis' infamous Buchenwald camp, is on trial before a German court charged with instigating the murders and atrocities at the camp.

Another former prisoner told the court he had seen prisoners forced to crawl in the snow for failing to salute Frau Koch.

A third witness told of Frau Koch watching a prisoner hung by his hands to a tree, and of her watching while savage dogs were set on Jewish prisoners.

Inquest Friday On Road Death

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse today announced that an inquest will be held into the highway death of Melvin Hudson, age 18, who was killed late Saturday night when his car struck a parked truck. The inquest is set for Friday night at seven-thirty in the Pitt County court house.

Rouse said that the inquest was being put off until Friday because of the condition of William Hadcock, driver of the truck. He was not believed to be seriously injured at the time but is now under hospital treatment.

Box Score

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—The Motor Vehicle Department's record of highway accidents for the 24-hour period ending at 10 a. m. today:

Killed—3. Injured—53. Killed to date—1949—771. Injured to date—11,210. Injured to date in 1949—8948.

UN Retreat Is Termed Orderly; Losses Light

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The United Nations withdrawal in northwest Korea is orderly and is being conducted with "relatively light" casualties, a Defense Department spokesman said today.

Officers told reporters at the regular Pentagon briefing that all reports from the 8th Army indicated the U. S. and allied units were falling back "without panic," with most of their equipment, and with their major units intact.

Reporters were told that in the northeast the Chinese Reds had pushed a spearhead eastward to the highway about midway between Hungnam and Wonsan, two principal east coast ports.

The spokesman said that obviously the First Marine Division and elements of the Seventh Army Division would have to fight their way through strong communist road blocks. He did not comment on press dispatches from Korea suggesting that the Marines and infantrymen might have to depend largely upon an airlift to get out of the trap.

Hodges was elected chairman of the board, entering his third successive year in that capacity, and Dupree was elected vice chairman. Both were elected by unanimous vote.

The five man board proceeded thereafter to the appointments for county offices. John Clark Jr. was appointed to fill the office of Register of Deeds, taking over the job from Charles P. Gaskins who previously had requested resignation to enter private business.

The board also appointed W. W. Speight, Greenville lawyer, as county attorney to succeed S. B. Underwood Jr. Salary for the new attorney was set at $150 a month, marking a raise from $40 each month paid to Underwood since he has held the job.

It was understood that dropping of Underwood from the county payroll was in accordance with Commissioners' policy of making a change each three or four years. Speight's salary will be a retainer's fee each month and will be a flat salary unless fees are incurred by appearances in court on county business.

H. E. Hill, Paotow, was appointed superintendent of the County Home, succeeding Jarvis Tucker who held the job during the past two years. Tucker resigned from the position for unnamed reasons. The position of matron for the Home will be filled later, pending approval of the superintendent.

All other county office appointments remained intact. Reappointed yesterday were A. T. Powell Jr., county auditor, and Miss Rosa Exum and Miss Sammy Langley, county accountants. Powell's position during the year will also be as supervisor of taxes. Both appointments carry the same salary.

Other appointments were H. L. Andrews, county tax collector. W. N. Moore and B. L. Tucker were reappointed assistant collectors.

The board appropriated $15,000 from county funds to be turned over to Pitt Memorial Hospital trustees for maintenance of the plant and also to enable it to open the first home, succeeding Jarvis Tucker who held the job during the past two years. Commission Members Are Sworn

Make Three Appointments; Give Sum To Hospital; Okay FHA Request

By JOHN SPINKS JR.

The County Commissioners yesterday made three appointments to county jobs, turned over $15,000 to Pitt Memorial Hospital, and approved a request making Pitt eligible for Federal Housing Authority, all constituting the most important order of business dispensed with during 1950.

Meeting for the first time in the Commission's new year, the board was sworn in shortly after lunch and immediately proceeded to new business. Clerk of Court D. T. House Jr. swore F. F. Hendrix in as the newest Commissioner, along with the old members, C. C. Harris, Marvin Smith, J. T. Dupree and M. Brown Hodges.

Hodges was elected chairman of the board, entering his third successive year in that capacity, and Dupree was elected vice chairman. Both were elected by unanimous vote.

Chinese Reds Said Entering Pyongyang

U.S. Casualties In Korean Fight Have Hit 31,785

With Exception Of Koreans, U.S. Contributed Most, Suffered Most

By The Associated Press

With the exception of the Koreans themselves, the United States has contributed the most and suffered by far the greatest casualties in the United Nations war to turn back Communist aggression in Korea.

The total number of Americans fighting on the ground in Korea is estimated at about 100,000. Probably about 25,000 more naval and Air Force men have been engaged. The casualties of all three services total 31,784, including 4,789 killed, 21,900 wounded and 5,018 missing. These casualties include only those whose next of kin had been notified up to Dec. 4.

Unofficial estimates have placed the number in the ROK (Republic of Korea) army at about 100,000. The Korean defense minister said on Dec. 2 he believed nearly 1,000,000 South Korean soldiers, police and civilians had died. He did not disclose how he arrived at the estimate. Previously, President Syngman Rhee had given a rough estimate of 100,000 military and 200,000 civilian deaths. He said his estimate was based on the reports of governors, magistrates and police.

Five other nations have about 17,900 men in action in Korea. Available reports, admittedly incomplete, indicate they have suffered about 349 casualties.

These figures would indicate that the United States has furnished about six times as many men for the ground fighting as the other U. N. allies and has suffered more than 90 times as many casualties.

Exact comparisons cannot be made, however. Naval contributions to the U. N. force have come from 10 nations. The ships of seven have seen combat action. The manpower involved in these contributions is not available in most cases.

Likewise, six member nations have contributed air assistance. The airmen of four have been in action. How many men are in these forces also is not available in most cases.

Moreover, there is no central clearing agency for casualties. Each nation unit reports to its own government on its losses. Some of the available figures on casualties are two weeks or more old. Since they became available some of the units, especially the British Commonwealth Brigade and the Turkish Brigade, have been involved in heavy fighting north of Pyongyang, the former North Korean capital, in the retreat before the Chinese Communist onrush.

Brady, the nation's top military officer, testified on the world military situation at a closed door meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

Some of those who heard him said the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff gave the senators a much more optimistic picture of the situation in Korea than they had received at previous briefings.

One senator, who asked not to be quoted by name, said Brady told the group that withdrawals of U. N. troops have put them in a position where they could be evacuated by sea if it becomes apparent that the Chinese communists in overwhelming numbers intend to continue their attacks beyond Pyongyang and the 38th parallel.

Evacuating UN Army 'Possible'

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley was reported to have told senators today that withdrawals by United Nations troops now have made it possible to evacuate them if a defense line can not be held in Korea.

Mr. Leon W. Tucker, who on Monday retired from the office of sheriff of the county, goes out with the honors of a faithful steward who has left a faultless record. He has served three terms. He was only 24 years of age when first elected and among older officials was called the "Kid."

Another officer who retired on Monday after six years of faithful service, was S. T. White, county treasurer. He, too, is a young man, the youngest the county ever chose for this responsible position. Both of these officers retire with the plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Art Gallery Exhibit Features Wood Inlays

On Thursday afternoon, Dec. 7th, at two o'clock an exhibit of woods and wood inlays will open at the local art gallery. In the exhibit will be found 130 species of woods gathered from the four corners of the earth—including such exotic woods as avodire from Africa; amboina from the Spice Islands; the yuba from Australia; balaustra from the West Indies; and the Carpathian elm from France and many others. Every continent is represented in the collection. Thirty "wood paintings" or inlaid wood pictures will also be found in the show.

This collection of woods and the inlays are all the work of J. G. Gibbs, highway engineer of Waynesville, who has recently come to Greenville to live. Mr. Gibbs says painting in woods is a laborious but interesting hobby. Using a jig-saw and other tools he cuts out thousands of little pieces of wood to achieve the right colors and tones and then patiently fits them into mosaics. His work ranges from portraits to landscapes. He has also made more than 100 inlaid card tables and all sorts of household furniture, including dining room tables, sewing cabinets, bookcases and shelves. A few years ago he went to Washington, D.C. and presented one of his tables, the top of which is a map of the U.S., to President Truman. A replica of this table is in the current show.

Mr. Gibbs has exhibited his work at the N. C. State Fair, Meredith College Art Department, the Spartanburg, S. C. Fair and the Raleigh Woman's Club. He is a favorite speaker for civic groups. He will make a talk about his work in the art gallery Thursday at 2:30. The public is cordially invited to hear him and to see his interesting exhibit.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . .

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 16 years. Long Time In Solitary Is Awaiting N. C. Fugitive Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—If the State Prisons Department makes an escaped convict keep his promise, he'll spend a long time in solitary confinement when he is finally recaptured.

Ed Smith, 50-year-old convicted train robber of Beckley, W. Va., signed a statement not to violate any prison rules shortly before he fled to freedom last Thursday.

Assistant Prisons Director H. H. Honeycutt said yesterday that under the signed statement, Smith volunteered to spend the remainder of his term in an isolation cell if he broke any prison rules.

Smith signed the statement after the new prison classification board agreed to transfer him from Central Prison to a road camp.

While being taken to the Macon County prison camp, Smith managed to get out of the truck somewhere between Waynesville and Franklin, Honeycutt said. No trace of him has been found.

Smith has caused plenty of unrest for the prison department in past year, according to prison records.

Later, records showed, he was sentenced to 12 years and six months in Vance county for armed robbery. In June of last year, Smith and two companions fled the Pitt county camp and he was arrested a week later.

Smith would have completed his sentences in 1954.

E. C. Cosmetologists Elect Officers

The Eastern Carolina Cosmetologist Association held its monthly meeting in the private dining room of the Knotty Pine Inn in Washington, N. C., November 28. A delicious turkey dinner was enjoyed by all.

The business of the meeting was the election of officers for the year of 1951. The officers elected were as follows:

President: Mrs. Bruce Hemby, Greenville; secretary: Mrs. Annie Ruth Joyner, Greenville; treasurer: Miss Augusta Williams, Greenville; first vice-president: Mrs. Julia Harris, Greenville; and second vice-president: Mrs. Stella Cavanaugh, New Bern.

The meeting was adjourned to meet in Greenville, December 19, for the annual Christmas party. Members will be notified of the place and time.

China Demands 'Full Voice' In Korea Decisions

New Delhi, India, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Communist China has demanded a "full voice" in any Korean settlement, sources close to India's foreign ministry said today.

These sources said India's delegate to the United Nations, Sir Benegal N. Rau, after talks in New York with Peiping representative Wu Hsiuchuan, reported that the Chinese were insistent that they participate as an equal party in deliberations on the Korean question.

Rau, these sources said, told his government peace for Asia—and perhaps for the whole world—depends on the United Nations according to Peiping's demand.

The Indian delegate reportedly advised that it was vital that the U.N. decide on the matter as soon as possible.

Gives Clean Bill In Prison Break

Yadkinville, N.C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—State Prisons Director John M. Gold has given the Yadkin County Prison Camp a clean bill of health.

Following an investigation of the camp from which six prisoners escaped Sunday night—the second large break in the past six weeks—Gold said last night that he had found no evidence of carelessness.

None of the prison officials were responsible for the Sunday break, Gold declared. "I don't know that there is much you can do about a break like this."

Drivers Charged in Bus Accident

Southport, N. C., Dec. 5—(AP)—Two drivers faced charges of careless and reckless driving today as the result of an accident yesterday in which 36 Negro school children were injured.

State Highway Patrol Sgt. A. H. Clark said the charges were brought against Bonnie Smith, 16-year-old Negro of Supply, driver of the school bus, and James R. Bullard, 21, of Route 4, Whiteville, driver of the truck.

Only three of the 39 children aboard the school bus escaped injuries. Four were seriously hurt. All of the injured were brought to the hospital here for treatment.

Clark said the accident occurred three miles west of here on a section of highway only 16 feet wide. The bus and truck, he added, were each eight feet wide.

The produce truck, Clark related, attempted to pass and struck the left rear of the school bus. The bus swerved off the road and completely overturned. The truck also overturned and skidded 138 feet down the highway.

Dogs can see only black and white, no colors.

Local Youth Has Cowboy Book Written About Him By Aunt

Bryce Cummings, young son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cummings of 1003 East Third Street of this city, has the leading role in a new cowboy book for children, published last week by the Steck Company of Austin, Texas.

The title of the book is "Gee Whillikens," and its author is Bryce's aunt, Mrs. Adda Mai Sharp of Denton, Texas.

Mrs. Sharp is the author of several elementary textbooks that are used in the Texas school system. But "Gee Whillikens" is her first attempt at fiction for children and advance previews indicate that it will be a best seller for the Christmas trade.

The story, which is part fact and part fiction, is a honey little tale of a boy (Bryce) and a wild palomino pony (Gee Whillikens). After getting off to a flying start with a stampede of wild horses, there is not a dull moment as Bryce's dreams of owning a horse and having a shiny new cowboy outfit both come true during one exciting spring and summer on his father's new ranch in Texas.

There is an unusual twist in the story of how the boy acquired his palomino colt. There are exciting adventures, narrow escapes from death and a prairie fire which climaxes the summer's activities. The way the horse acquired his name is a very interesting aspect of the story. Daddy Jim and Mother Marion are also characters in the book although the story is primarily Bryce's.

The book is beautifully illustrated in color drawings and some black and white sketches by Miss Elizabeth Rice of Austin, Texas. Miss Rice is well-known for her art work in children's books. She used photographs of Bryce as models for her drawings of the boy in the book.

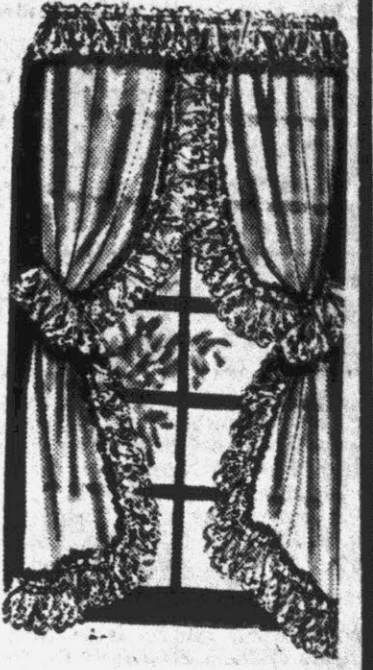

Mrs. Sharp is the author of other books such as the popular Woodland Frolic Series, with such characters as Chippy Chipmunk, Cubby Bear, Billy Beaver and Patsy Prairie Dog. Young Bryce received an autographed copy that was the first to come off the press.

Lagging Civil . . .

Even as late as Nov. 21 the picture didn't seem much better. On that date the American Municipal Association, composed of 10,500 cities and towns, made public a report which, in effect, said:

If atom bombs fell that day most U. S. cities could put into action only a small part of the civil defense effort needed to save lives and rally from the attack. Who was to blame for this unpreparedness?

Mostly, the report said, the federal government. Why? Because it hadn't told the cities in detail what to do, how much real civil defense would cost, and how much of the cost the government would share.

Actually, though, two months earlier, on Sept. 18, President Truman sent to congress a blueprint, or master plan, for a vast civilian defense program. It was in a booklet called "United States Civil Defense"—and had been prepared by the NSRB.

It outlined a mutual aid system reaching into every American home and calling for the services of hundreds of thousands of paid and unpaid workers for the government, states and cities.

But—this plan didn't say how much the program would cost. The Truman administration, though, asked congress to pass a law setting up a regular government civil defense agency.

Why, since OCM already was in existence? Because OCM was created under presidential order and such an agency doesn't have the same standing with congress as one which congress itself creates by law for in the law congress can spell out and limit the agency's powers.

Congressmen in September didn't see much need for speed. Nothing was done. Then in the past week we got into the crisis with China in Korea.

So on Nov. 30 the Truman administration offered congress a bill to set up by law a civil defense agency and asked for fast action. Maybe this time congress will do something about it.

They Are . . .

However, one has to report that the cases of many Chinese Red troops lacks the glamor of such fanatical sacrifice. For their frequently is a forced service. However, one way or another, the Chinese soldier is a brave man. Chinese Nationalist sources who have been through the war will tell me the Red recruiting system is ruthless. They put the matter like this:

The soldier is forced into the ranks and kept there by threats of harm to his family if he doesn't obey orders.

This threat also is laid over the fighting men in massed attacks. Frequently, too, they are driven into action with machineguns. Either they fling themselves on the enemy and thereby gain some sort of chance at survival or they are shot down by their own people from the rear.

Sometimes before an attack Nationalist sources say, the troops are given narcotics, or are sent into action intoxicated. A recent report from Korea told of a fierce attack by drunken Chinese Reds.

But regardless the Chinese are expendable. And there is an inexhaustible reservoir of manpower in the country's population of some 300,000,000. That's why the U. S. is so deeply anxious—and rightly so—to prevent a major Chinese war growing out of the Korean crisis.

Missouri Man Advises Folks Who Feel Bad

Carl Schaffrin, 217 Perry St., St. Charles Mo., says there are some folks in this old world who feel good and there are other folks who feel bad. The folks who feel good he wants to congratulate, but for the folks who feel mighty bad he says he wants them to read what he has to say and then take a word of advice—take HADACOL if one suffers from a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron.

Here is what Mr. Schaffrin has to say about HADACOL since it overcame the effects of such deficiencies in his system: "I have been a shoe cutter for over 32 years—I now work for the Boyd Welsh Shoe Co. in St. Louis. For quite some time now I haven't had any appetite at all—seemed like I didn't have enough energy to do my work. I was tired all the time—and really didn't enjoy doing anything. It affected my work too. Then I heard how other folks who took HADACOL had increased their appetite and seemed to have a limitless amount of energy. I tried HADACOL and it is amazing what a change it has made. Now I feel like eating everything on the table, my disposition is 100% better and my work—in fact, everything I do I now enjoy. For an entirely new outlook on life I recommend HADACOL."

Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL, which everyone is talking about. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corp., Lafayette, La.

Strength for the Day

MAKE WAY FOR THE PSYCHOLOGIST

The psychologists and the psychiatrists are enjoying great popularity today and in the opinion of the writer of this feature they have grown too tall and too heady. It is about time the physiologists spoke up and demanded to be heard.

Almost everything that happens to a person today is attributed to tension, frustration, repression, conflict in the subconscious mind. It is well for us to remind ourselves that our behavior has a physical as well as a psychological basis. Abraham Lincoln's depression was said to come from colitis. Thomas Carlyle's cynicism was largely the result of dyspepsia. We spend too much time looking for psychological reasons when behavior shows some variation from normal and too little time looking for physical causes.

Old Lyman Beecher, the evangelist, used to question his converts about what they ate, how much they ate, the number of hours they slept each night. He attributed a great deal of human cussedness to irregular ways of living. When people came to him overwhelmed by a deep sense of sin, he pried into their ways of living until they were often shocked and insulted.

But he was on the right track. Behavior and health are very closely related.

It's The Steady Progress That Counts

Are we in the midst of a building boom? Most folks just off hand do not consider Greenville at the present time as having a building boom, but the city's building report for the first 11 months of this year shows remarkable strides in construction are being made.

Since the first of the year building permits have been issued in Greenville for the construction of 211 dwellings. Only 19 of these permits were issued during the month of November, so we may assume the major portion of the dwellings for which permits have been issued are either well under way or already completed. Even with 211 new dwellings during the past eleven months, there seems to be little evidence of an easing of the housing problem.

People are still looking for houses and apartments to rent; and even though the situation is not quite so acute as it was several years ago, suitable housing still is being sought by a large number of Greenville families. The issuance of the large number of building permits for dwellings is indicative of new people moving to Greenville. It shows that Greenville is continuing in its growth and is continuing its efforts to meet the demand for housing.

But aside from the building permits which have been issued for dwellings, there have been 20 building permits issued this year for the construction of commercial buildings. That too is an indication of the growth of the business of the city, for there is no vacant commercial building space in Greenville, and there is a demand for additional space.

Steady construction of additional housing and commercial buildings in a community is a sure sign of progress; and the construction in both categories is moving on an even keel in Greenville.

The Fork In The Road

Since before the turn of the century, the close friendship of the United States and Great Britain has held the nations tightly together in the face of international crisis; and together the two nations have retained the world's power.

But now the rift which has come between the two nations is reaching a stage where it is causing speculation as to the actual strength of the Anglo-American coalition at the present time. By no means have the relationships between the United States and Great Britain been demolished by the growing international crisis; but the international outlook of the two nations are no longer the same.

Since the close of World War II the two nations in some respects have taken different attitudes toward the growing communist tide in Asia. Great Britain with little hesitation recognized the communist government of China as the true representative of the Chinese people. The United States, on the other hand, has not yet recognized officially the communist government of China. It may well have been this rift in the Anglo-American attitude in the east which caused the international leaders of the communist movement to continue the concentration of their efforts in the east where the unity between the major powers of freedom was weakening.

And now again the two major free powers in the world are differing on the matter of affairs of the east. Behind closed doors the top leaders of the United States and Great Britain are trying to reconcile the views of the two nations. If they succeed it will mean a stronger unity. If they fail, the communists will have won what may well be the most important victory in their bid for world control. If there is a split between the United States and Great Britain on the policy in the east, it may eventually spread to a split on international policies in general. And if the United States and Great Britain go their separate ways, the solid front of the world's democracies will be divided between the group which will follow Uncle Sam, and the group which will follow John Bull.

The two great powers have come to another fork in the road of international policy they have followed. Before further moves are made, they will decide whether to continue their journey together, or to go separately down the ever-widening paths.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Although food costs will head toward new peaks in early 1951, a special Senate study of the high cost of living may be terminated because the investigation threatens the present price levels of the pet product of the new chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee.

He is Senator Allen J. Ellender Sr. of Louisiana, who will succeed Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma because of the latter's defeat in the primaries. As a representative from the cane sugar country, Mr. Ellender naturally wants to protect the privileged position which sugar was given in the existing statute. It was framed to safeguard the interests of both the producers and domestic refiners of cane and beet sugar.

PRO-SUGAR—The shift in the chairmanship, incidentally, shows how basic, nationwide problems are affected by such personnel changes. Senator Thomas is chiefly concerned about cotton, and had no political reason for blocking a sugar inquiry.

Senator Guy M. Gillette, chairman of Agriculture's subcommittee investigating food costs, favors Iowa corn products, which frequently enter into competition with commodities made from sugar.

But the entrance of Mr. Ellender into the picture as a powerful figure transforms the committee from a cotton-corn group into a pro-sugar combine. The expected addition of several southern members in place of the defeated Thomas and Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, who was a consumers' man, will strengthen the Louisianaian's position.

"EXPLOITED"—Lobbyists for the refineries along the Atlantic Coast fought fiercely and successfully for a statutory bar to processing of the raw product by island refiners.

These industrial interests here earn large profits from their handling of the crude, although this discrimination helps to create such unemployment and unrest in Puerto Rico that the island has become a permanent poor-house and recipient of American relief funds.

In fact, it is the poverty and wretchedness of the natives which has given rise to the independence movement, whose leaders are now accused of having had a hand in the attempted assassination of President Truman. The nationalists make considerable propaganda from charges that Puerto Rico is "exploited" by the American Congress and its politico-economic associates.

EXPIRES—The Gillette committee's life expires with the death of the present Congress on January 3, 1951, when the 82nd session takes over. Whether it will be extended usually depends on the desire of the committee chairman.

The Iowa understands that Senator Ellender will oppose any further grant of time for the inquiry on the ground that it has completed its work and should wind up by making a report to the Senate.

Mr. Gillette thinks that his group, like the committee for progressive investigation of national defense activities and expenditures, should be a continuing body for protection of the consumers.

MAJORITY—If Mr. Ellender opposes this plan, Senator Gillette will offer a resolution for creation of a special committee that will not be answerable to Senator Ellender. However, the La Follette-Monroe reorganization act ruled against the formation of such special groups, declaring that inquiries should be conducted by subcommittees of regular committees.

In any floor showdown, the sugar Senators would undoubtedly win easily. Cane and beet sugar are grown in about twenty states, and seven other states produce more, are refinery-minded. Thus they can usually poll fifty or more votes, a majority.

BOOST—Food prices, however, will become a controversial and explosive issue when the Ellender-Gillette squabble reaches the floor.

Unprecedented federal expenditures will combine with shortages and higher wages to boost the cost of the market basket, according to these forecasts. No rearmament money is yet being spent, whereas it should begin to pour out at the rate of $3,000,000,000 early next year, then rising to $5,000,000,000. This will naturally increase consumer demand, as will expected fattening of pay envelopes.

PANTRY—Simultaneously, however, the armed forces will enter the market for food for our troops now overseas, which will have to be increased, and to stockpile for the projected defense force of 3,000,000 men.

The same conditions will exist in Europe. As Europeans shift from ordinary production to the manufacture of weapons, they will require greater supplies of food from the United States.

As in this country, there will be shortages of farm workers and a smaller output of fertilizer, agricultural machinery and other equipment. The United States will then become, to a large or small degree, both the arsenal and the pantry of the "free world."

Under such circumstances, Congress may be forced by public opinion to set up an agency which has frequently been proposed in the past—a Permanent Committee to Investigate the High Cost of Living.

Fire prevention is important at any time. It is especially important in a time of emergency, such as the present, when there is a heavy demand for manpower and materials of all kinds, and when waste is a serious drain on the energies of the nation.

The organized war against fire has increased in intensity. The experts are doing all they can to reduce the toll. But, unfortunately, the waste is continuing at a high and disgraceful rate. In the 12 months which ended September 30, for example, direct fire loss was more than $685,000,000—an increase of about two per cent over the preceding 12 months. This can only be a reflection of the public's failure to learn and apply the simple rules of fire prevention.

One tragedy of fire is that prevention, with few exceptions is easy. It is estimated that less than 10 per cent of our fires are truly unavoidable. All the rest are caused by human failure of one kind or another. And the most common failures are plain carelessness and indifference.

The individual's principal fire prevention job lies in his home. Most home fires arise from the simplest of causes. Carelessness with smoking materials—improper disposal of pans and solvents and other flammables—accumulations of old clothes, paper and trash—defective heating and electrical equipment—these are fire's most potent allies. Yet all of them can be easily and inexpensively eliminated.

Prevent fire—in your own interest, and in the interest of your country.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

You've heard of Bernard Baruch, the 62-year-old genius who has given away more free advice than Dorothy Dix and Mr. Anthony combined. What's hard to understand is that some of America's leading citizens ask Baruch for advice, and then pay no attention to what he says. Here are some good examples:

In 1919, Woodrow Wilson asked: From your experience as Chairman of the War Industries Board (World War I), what do you recommend for the future?

Baruch said: There should be created a peacetime organization with members in charge of raw materials, finished products, facilities, prices, labor, planning, statistics, priorities and conservation. It would meet at least once a year to discuss and outline plans and keep in touch with one another and with the general world situation.

Result: Tabled. World War II found us unprepared for immediate conversion to war status.

Franklin Roosevelt, in 1934, asked: What do you advise about our resources?

Baruch said: Build up a stockpile of natural rubber and tin.

Result: Not done. During WW II rubber shortage, Baruch made his famous rubber report, advising use of synthetic rubber, which was then done.

In 1937, F.D.R. asked: What shall we do about Japan?

Baruch said: Quarantine Japan; don't buy gold from her and don't sell her steel or scrap iron.

Result: Ignored until Pearl Harbor.

In 1947, Billy Rose asked: Shall I buy the Longchamps Restaurant chain?

Baruch said: I happen to know how much money you have. It will take you until 1970 to spend your old money before you get around to spending your new.

Result: Rose called the deal off, is still busy spending his old money.

In 1950, the Senate Committee asked: Now that we are engaged in military action in Korea (July), what is your advice for the home front?

Baruch said: We must have stand-by controls over prices, wages, rents, profits. Priorities and price control are like Siamese twins. They go together.

Result: The Administration was going to ignore this, but public opinion forced them to reconsider. America is lucky to have a genius like Bernard Baruch to consult. What a shame that we won't listen to what he says!

And I thank Helen Lawrenson.

Raleigh, N. C.

POLITICS—Governor Scott told newsmen at a recent press conference that he did not hear any politics talked at the Southern Governor's conference in Savannah. The reporters let that statement ride without comment, but took it with a grain or two of salt. It seems hardly possible that one could be even in the same city at the same time with Governors Strom Thurmond, Fielding Wright and James F. Byrnes and not hear political talk. Thurmond, it will be remembered, was candidate for president of the United States two years ago, and Wright was candidate for vice president on the States Rights ticket. Governor-elect Byrnes is world figure, having served as representative and senator in congress, justice of the U. S. supreme court, assistant president under Roosevelt, and secretary of state. No politics in a crowd like that? Uh, huh.

DEFENSE—Governor Scott did hear some nice things said about North Carolina being "on the ball" with respect to civilian defense. State Director E. Z. Jones, one of the first to be appointed by any state governor, has his program ahead of schedule. Many cities and communities have workable local organizations which can be alerted in a few minutes if occasion requires. Presidential appointment of former Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida as national director of a civilian defense program should enable North Carolina's set-up to prove more efficient through co-ordination with neighboring states.

ISSUE—By 1952 world conditions may have changed so that the political campaigns will be waged on issues not now dreamed of. It is almost certain that one issue in North Carolina will be lowering the voting age to eighteen years, from the present twenty-one. Secretary of State Thad Eure, frequently mentioned as a potential candidate for governor, has long championed the lower age. Governor Scott endorsed the idea in his inaugural address two years ago and reaffirmed his support at the national 4-H club convention in Chicago last week.

FLAG—Blue and white flag of the United Nations is fast becoming familiar to Tarheels. It was flown at the state fair during the recent exposition, which is believed to be the first time the UN flag was raised on state owned property. Not long thereafter a flag was presented by the home demonstration club to the State of North Carolina and has since occupied position between the United States and the North Carolina flags in the governor's office. Last week the women of the Oakwood community in Wake county presented a hand made UN flag to L. Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, who says it will fly from the top of the THIRD HOUSE—Reference has been made to the fact that more than half the members of the 1951 general assembly will be experienced legislators, returning either from the 1949 or some previous session. Advance information is that an even larger proportion of the membership in the "third house" will be veteran lobbyists. R. D. Coleman is expected to be on hand to watch legislation affecting the pulp mills, particularly the Champion Fiber Company; Harry Buchanan will be here for the motion picture interests; Fred Bowman will be on hand for the bottlers. Sam Blount will be on the job, but for new clients this year. His long-time berth with the brewers foundation will be taken over by F. E. Wallace. Also interested in legislation affecting malt beverages will be Willie Lee Lumpkin and Shelby E. Caviness. Wallace, Lumpkin and Caviness are relatively new as lobbyists, but have been leaders in legislation through several sessions in the past. J. Elmer Long, for many years a lobbyist, will return in the same post he held last session as legislative counsel for Governor Scott. Besides these top flight veterans of the "third house" the threat of additional taxes will almost certainly bring other men of more than state reputation to Raleigh for the legislative session.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A GOLDEN TOBACCO YEAR (Wilson Daily Times)

It's wholesome when the tobacco growers of North Carolina can take $441,000,000 for what they raise. It exceeds by $90,000,000 any previous year. But it's awesome, too. For it means that many a tobacco grower who might add other crops and some livestock may delay that till another year. For they're affluent from tobacco alone. Why add other back-breaking duties? Why be tied down with chickens and cows?

But let's look at it in another light! Suppose the tobacco growers got their livings from other sources, wouldn't they have all their tobacco profits for savings? It might mean more work, it's true; but it would also tend to elevate the living standards of the growers alone, but of their families. It would make this portion of North Carolina as rich in wealth as the Piedmont section which does our manufacturing. And it would raise the standing of our people on a national scale.

To those of us who live in the city, it seems wrong for a farmer to live out of a grocery store. Not a tobacco grower in the county, the times is almost certain uses all his lands. Let him learn to cultivate those unused lands and he'll have not a banner year, but a super-banner year. It will be a happy day for Eastern North Carolina when that happens. It can be a cheerful day not for those who live on the land, but for those of us who live in the city as well. For we're dependent on that grower. What helps him helps us.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE NEEDED. (Henderson Daily Dispatch)

Some months have passed since the governor of North Carolina appointed a director of civilian defense, but precious little has been accomplished in setting up effective and working organizations over the State to be ready for action in event need should arise. As the war threat heightens, necessity for speed becomes more and more apparent and urgent. As things now stand, no one can say when or whether such agencies may be called upon to function.

How many cities and counties in the State have been organized for civilian defense is more or less guess work. Absolutely nothing has been done in Henderson, and authorities here say they have had little or no contact with the State office. Practically nothing is known here as to what should be done, what the complete over-all program is, or how to proceed. If other communities are as backward, then a lot of time has been lost and any start that may be made now must be from scratch. Even so, it is imperative that some authority step in to set up an organization and see to it that it moves as rapidly as possible toward preparations to render such aid and assistance as might become necessary. With conditions as they now are, an emergency might arise at almost any time and without advance notice.

MORE AND BETTER TOYS THIS SEASON THAN EVER BEFORE.

REASON: NINE MILLION MORE CONSUMERS THAN 10 YEARS AGO

By Elmer Roessner

As both parents and dealers can see, the offering of Christmas toys this season is truly amazing. Never before has there been such variety, so many new things and so much imagination put in their construction.

Prices, too, aren't too bad. Since the bulk of retailers' buying takes place early in the year, manufacturers were able to place orders for materials before Korea. Hence they have not been under great pressure to raise prices.

Toy manufacturers of America are only partly responsible for the wide range of toys. The real activating force has been love, as reflected in the rise in the birth rate in America.

Census figures show that there are now 41,972,000 children 14 years old and younger. Ten years ago there were 32,973,000.

Almost 42 million children can demand, use—and eventually smash—an awful lot of toys.

With 25 per cent more children than there were ten years ago and with their parents with considerably higher purchasing power—the toy manufacturers have merely responded to demand. Unlike many other businesses, toy manufacturers can see the size of their market on statistical charts many years in advance. There are, for instance, more than 16 million children under 5 years of age and about 14 million between 5 and 10. It follows, therefore, that five years from now the number of children between 5 and 10 will be two million greater.

With their market so sharply delineated, toy manufacturers have been willing to spend more money in the design and invention of toys, and in improving appearance and performance. Hence the fine selection on the shelves today.

The number of potential users in the toy market will continue to grow. Census projections put the number of children under 15 at 54,286,000 in 1960, 12,314,000 more than there are today.

The lack of imports from Japan and Germany has also helped.

Result: Rose called the deal off, is still busy spending his old money.

In 1950, the Senate Committee asked: Now that we are engaged in military action in Korea (July), what is your advice for the home front?

Baruch said: We must have stand-by controls over prices, wages, rents, profits. Priorities and price control are like Siamese twins. They go together.

Hal Boyle's Column

With American Troops in North Korea—(AP)—They were coming back down the roads that led to home.

But they were coming back down them in defeat instead of victory. And every mile was more bitter than the one before. For these were miles they had bled to win—and now they were losing them.

And the dream of going home receded farther with each passing mile—like a mirage of heaviness fleeing a heart that no longer dares to hope.

The roads no longer led to home. They were only roads going back to more stubborn stands against an outnumbering foe, more wounds, more death in the snow.

It was a different withdrawal—different from that made last summer by many of these same men. Then they had fallen back in the firm faith that the might of America and other lands would come in time to save them and help throw back and destroy the enemy.

This time they had no such surety. For in their ranks the United States Army already had committed more than one-third of its entire striking power.

And how could it train and bring over enough fresh divisions in time to fight off the tidal wave of Chinese troops behind them? And how could the other United Nations do so?

Thus the American Eighth Army came back from its bitter offensive, launched on Nov. 24 aiming to reach the Manchurian border and end the Korean war.

A giant yellow paw was at its back. Before it stretched only the prospect of fresh fighting in old foxholes the men would rather forget than return to.

But in retreat and defeat—as it had been in its few brief weeks of victory—it was an army to be proud of.

Seen from the air its march held both magnificence and pathos. There was a Biblical grandeur about it.

In a plane at 4,000 feet the great retreat looked like a scene from a silent movie epic or a vast and timeless tableau in colors.

Everything seemed frozen—grey clouds...the evergreen mountains...the yellow roads...dusty battle cars...the white-clad groups of refugees wading the rivers or huddling together on the hills...the endless columns of troops in olive drab.

But as the plane came lower the tableau surged with swarming life. The battlecars became jeeps and trucks and weapon carriers and artillery pieces and trailers and ambulances carrying back wounded.

And the tiny figures became people—a tired infantryman limping behind his outfit, a shivering Korean carrying his mother on his back through knee deep water fringing the road, a group of soldiers from a parked camp voyaging out around a roadside fire.

All the 110,000 men who had jumped off in attack the week before weren't in the columns of vehicles that jammed every lane. Many would never return. But they had gone up as an army. And they were coming back as an army.

They had their courage and most of their weapons and they were ready to fight again.

The discipline was perfect. There was no panic, no haste, no reckless rush of vehicles to pass each other.

The convoys move as deliberately as if they were only on a peacetime maneuver. They roll

Washington Letter

Washington—Capital socialites witnessed something new-to them—in the way of weddings when Miss Madhu Bhat became the bride of Mr. Ashok B. Brakhamar. To the participants, however, the ritual was the same that had been followed by generations before them.

The bride, daughter of the Secretary General of Bombay State, was given in marriage to the second secretary of the Indian Embassy by handsome Mrs. Pandit, the Indian ambassador, wearing a gracefully draped white sari.

The Thal ambassador, the Ceylonese ambassador, the Indonesian ambassador and the Pakistani minister, the counselor of the British Embassy and the second secretary of the Soviet embassy were among the many diplomats who attended. State Department big-wigs and other officials as well as top-drawer social figures were also on hand.

As guests were ushered into a large reception room on the ground floor of the embassy, they saw a dais on which the Sacred Fire, symbolizing the Eternal Witness, burned. Two officiating priests sat on the floor on one side facing Madame Pandit on the other.

In an exquisite, flowing costume of sheer, flame-colored tissue embroidered in gold, the bride was escorted to the dais by an unmarried daughter of an embassy official. We were told the wearing of red or orange symbolizes life and truth but that white stands for mourning. The bride sat at Madame Pandit's side and the young bridegroom in cream-colored tunic, on the Hindu tradition of the east.

As she placed the hand of the bride in that of the bridegroom, Madame Pandit chanted the qualifications of the bride for marriage in Sanskrit, India's sacred language.

The priests, Dr. J. V. Joshi, director for India in the International Bank and Dr. N. R. Hoshi, specialist in animal husbandry for the Food and Agricultural Organization, also chanted the pair paced seven steps around the Sacred Fire chanting in Sanskrit. They gave offerings of rice and ghee (purified butter) to the Fire. Guests threw rice at them, and the wedding was over. It took an hour. In India it lasts several days.

New Honors For Robert Humber In Raleigh Meet

By Chester Walsh
Robert Lee Humber, nationally known Greenville lawyer and founder of the World Federation for Peace, who was elected president of the State Literary and Historical Association of North Carolina at a meeting in Raleigh last Friday, succeeds Dr. Charles S. Sydnor, professor of history at Duke University.

Mrs. Inglis Fletcher of Edenton, Prof. H.S. Stroupe of Wake Forest and Rev. Douglas L. Wrights of Winston Salem are the new vice-presidents.

Dr. Sydnor is now on leave at Oxford University, in England.

The State Literary and Historical Association celebrated its 50th anniversary this year. President Humber said. It was organized in 1900. Among the society's accomplishments during the half century are the establishment of the North Carolina State Library at Raleigh; the State Archives and Historical Commission; the North Carolina Hall of History; founding of county historical societies in the state and publication of the North Carolina Historical Review.

One of the outstanding activities of the state society is the awarding of the Mayflower Cup annually to the author of the best book published during the previous year. The society has brought to North Carolina many eminent scholars, scientists and political leaders, including presidents of the United States.

Another honor was bestowed upon Mr. Humber at a meeting in Raleigh last week when he was elected chairman of the Executive Committee of the State Art Society of North Carolina.

Mr. Humber recently returned from Gulfport, Mississippi, where he addressed the National Convention of Manufacturers of Fertilizers.

He left yesterday for Raleigh, where he was scheduled to address the Watauga Club.

On Wednesday of this week at Chapel Hill, Mr. Humber serves on the committee to choose Rhodes scholars from North Carolina for Oxford University, England.

Nin y-six Rhodes scholars are chosen annually from the United States to study for a period of three years at Oxford University, in England. These scholarships are given as a result of a trust fund established in 1902 by Cecil Rhodes, a former prime minister of South Africa and an eminent British statesman. Incidentally, Robert Lee Humber of Greenville was a Rhodes scholar from North Carolina between 1920 and 1923.

The amount of the Rhodes Trust Fund is 30 million English pounds. The scholarships each have a nominal value of 500 pounds annually, totalling 1,500 pounds for the three-year tenure, or nominally before devaluation of the English pound, worth $7,500.

From Chapel Hill Mr. Humber goes to Carthage, N.C., where he is to address the Rotary Club of Carthage and Southern Pines. On Friday night of this week he is to speak at the Kiwanis Club's ladies' night meeting at North Wilkesboro. His next address will be given before the students at Davidson College next week.

MILK RIVER RANGE

by LEE FLOREN

Chapter 4
The five men crossed the street heading for the Steerhorn Cafe. Len Cavanaugh, watching from the drawn blind in his office across the street, viewed the scene with narrowed eyes that screened the activity of his brain. Shuffle Watson asked, "What're you lookin' at, Len?" "Leo Parker and Jim Tuttle have got Tortilla Joe and Buck McKee out of jail." Shuffle Watson made his way to the window. He stared out, his pale blue eyes emotionless. "Now how did that come about?" he muttered. "We'll know—soon." They stood there and watched the group enter the Steerhorn. A few minutes later, the back door opened, and a lean, hungry-looking boy slipped in. "Leo Parker see you leave, Peanuts?" demanded Cavanaugh. "How could he?" retorted the boy. "How much is this worth to you, Cavanaugh?" Cavanaugh flipped him a silver dollar. The boy caught it expertly. "Another," he said. Cavanaugh studied him momentarily. "Okay," he agreed, and another dollar went through the air. "Jim Tuttle went their bond," said the boy. "Put up twenty thousand apiece for them in front of Judge Herdon. Mortgaged his Lazy N-S iron to furnish the security at the bank." Cavanaugh whistled. "He must cotton to the two drifters." "There'll be a corner's inquest soon. Parker say he'll get them acquitted. If he does, the bail is outlawed—not needed any longer." "I know that," said Cavanaugh. "Now get out." The boy left. Shuffle Watson went back to his chair and sat down. "Well, what's next?" "Maybe things played our way." "I don't follow you." "You heard what Peanuts said, didn't you? Old Jim Tuttle posted twenty thousand bucks apiece bail on this Mexican an' Buck McKee. Two times twenty thousand make forty thousand—or it did when I went to school." "He mortgaged the Lazy N-S," said Watson. Suddenly he nodded, his eyes showing comprehension. He clasped his hands around his knees and rocked forward slightly. "Now if Buck McKee an' Tortilla Joe disappeared—if they left the country, you might say—"

Vast Salt Flat Is Now A Lake

Sydney —(AP)— Lake Eyre in Australia has never been anything but a vast salt pan — at least in the memory of present Australians. But now floods have filled it with water, 4,000 square miles in area. A recent exploring party toured it in a launch. One member got seasick. The party was mystified by a tide on the lake of from 12 to 15 inches.

Brothers Joined By War Wounds

With The First Marine Division in North Korea (AP)— Two Marine brothers met for the first time in two years, at the Naval Hospital in Yokosuka, Japan, recently. Privates First Class George and Michael Kaczmarek of Buffalo, N. Y., both members of the famed First Marine Division, were wounded in the fight for the liberation of Seoul. The Kaczmareks were wounded on the same hour, of the same day, while fighting with the same division in the same battle.

Beavers Hold Up Pipeline Work

Corry, Pa. —(AP)— Beavers are responsible for holding up construction of a natural gas pipeline through this section. The animals blocked up a 100-yard lakefront area in the pipeline route. Engineers were required to use several dozen sticks of dynamite in blasting the beavers' dam work. They made no effort to trap the furry creatures but farmers probable will take on the job. The beavers branched out and completed the even more unappreciated project of flooding pasture acreages and farms in the same vicinity.

After a horse gets done stompin' a man, you can't see where the rope busted his neck when we hung him." "Why bring that up?" "No offense, Len," Shuffle Watson settled back in his chair. The gunman knew what he was bucking. He knew a lot. If he talked, he could put Len Cavanaugh behind bars—in fact, push him up the gallowes stairs. And he knew that Cavanaugh, too, was fully aware of that fact. Lately, he had caught Cavanaugh glancing at him during unguarded moments, and he had seen something ominous in the big man's eyes. The memory of these moments were with him always of late, and vigilance rode sharply at his elbow.

Sister's Advice Proves Helpful To Mrs. Macaure

Mrs. J. P. Macaure, 408 Radiance St., New Orleans, La., can't imagine a person not taking HADACOL who is sick and run-down due to deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron. She says she continually sings the praises of HADACOL to all her friends. Mrs. Macaure was suffering from deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mrs. Macaure's own statement: "I have taken at least 5 bottles of HADACOL. Before I took HADACOL I was very nervous. My family was affected, too, because I was so irritable. Then my sister suggested I take HADACOL and I started taking it immediately. After the second bottle I felt like I had taken all the troubles of the world off my shoulders. My nerves are now as steady as ever. My family thinks HADACOL is wonderful because my disposition is 100% better and I am not the least bit irritable. That's because I always have a bottle of HADACOL in the kitchen shelf. HADACOL is the most wonderful product on the market." Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL. If your drug-gist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corp., Lafayette, La.

Wanted: Exchange For Gifts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY, AP Newsfeatures Writer

A bright fellow thought up, and now is making a nice living with, a necktie exchange. He figured, and rightly, that most neckties are gifts and that most males never receive ties of a design or lack thereof—they would pick if making their own selections. He also figured that for every necktie, however horrendous, there is a person somewhere who will consider it to be beautiful and suitable. Most people, of course, won't go to the trouble of exchanging a single necktie, but will quietly hang it on a rack in the closet where it will mold, untouched and unworn, until it wears away of its own weight or until a son reaches an age to be interested in something besides one-o-cat and Hoppy.

With this necktie exchange—where whole batches of gift ties can be swapped for other, more appealing batches—it becomes ultimately possible for all neckties to be worn and it also makes people happier.

I see no reason why the principle can not be applied on a larger scale, perhaps, in the establishment of a national Christmas Gift Exchange. Christmas is a time when it is absolutely necessary to find some gift of certain specifications, such as cost, size etc., for a predetermined number of persons. Frequently the donor is not privy to the whims or needs of the recipient; more often the donor hasn't time to do more than snatch a handy gift item from a counter in the frenzy of last-minute shopping. The result, whatever the cause, is the annual presentation of a large, number of unsuitable and inappropriate Christmas gifts.

Few of us dare stomp back to the store of origin to return Christmas gifts unless the size is obviously wrong, and then the polite thing is merely to exchange the item for one of the proper size. There's always the danger of offending the giver, and after all it's the spirit of the giving which is supposed to count.

Most of the time we take a large assortment of useless Christmas gifts, note on a list the name of the giver and the item for thank you notes, and then store them quietly in the northernmost reaches of attic or cellar. There they remain until the home is sold, or the occupants move. At that time, the articles are usually placed in a large metal receptacle which finally disposes.

If someone would set up such an exchange, I would be one of the first patrons. My own attic is a treasure-trove of Christmas gifts from past years which have never been removed from their original boxes.

I have, for instance, some 35 key containers, made of leather, plastic and other pliable materials which have been accumulating for 17 years. None has been used; few bear my name or initials. Several have flashlight attachments, carrying longdead batteries, and many carry accessories like coin purses and transparent compartments designed for carrying licenses and pictures of loved ones. I have also a baker's dozen of cigarette cases—all designed to carry four cigarettes short of a pack. One is magnificently inscribed with the arms of Great Britain in color, another is almost sterling silver and several are accompanied by matching compacts and lipsticks of strange hue. The are also six cigarette lighters: which probably would work for an understanding master or mistress, although they didn't for me.

I have several pounds of hand-hemmed cocktail, luncheon and dinner napkins, a bushel-basket of holders and antimacassars. I have four pink satin handkerchief cases with built-in sachet bags and two interesting wooden appliances (given hopefully by the male of the house) designed to hold light laundry in the cellar and keep stockings and such from the shower curtain rod in the bathroom. Never used.

Those are just a few items, picked at random. I haven't even mentioned the combination Swiss thermometer and music box that arrived busted or some 100 other items of like character. Our television set was NOT a Christmas gift.

I would be interested in acquiring on the best bargaining basis possible items such as a cellar pump, a pair of balcony seats for "Guys and Dolls," a parcheset, a couple of good detective stories or a five-year diary.

Men Of Pope Air Force Base Map Santa Project

Pope AFB, Ft. Bragg, N. C., Dec. 5.—To almost 300 youngsters of three North Carolina orphanages the Christmas tree decorations will be brighter and the yuletide spirit gayer this year because Old Saint Nick's traditional red garments will be hiding the uniform of Air Force Blue.

The three orphanages—Falcon Orphanage near Fayetteville, the Free Will Baptist Orphanage at Dunn, and the Colored Orphanage at Oxford—will be visited by Santa as part of Pope Air Force Base's "Operation Christmas."

Each orphanage has already contributed more than $200—ready contributed more than $200.00, and gifts are continuing to pour in.

"Operation Christmas" started when two airmen in headquarters squadron of the Ninth Air Force learned that the management of Falcon Orphanage near Fayetteville needed help in buying Christmas presents for its children. They told some of their buddies at Pope, and as the word spread over the base, a spontaneous desire to help the orphans resulted in the formation of a committee of airmen to receive contributions for a Christmas party.

Once started, the operation has grown by leaps and bounds in its first few days of existence. Pope personnel heard of other orphanages in the area who needed assistance, and the committee of airmen visited three other orphanages within a 75 mile radius. Two of these orphanages—the Free Will Baptist Orphanage of Dunn and the Colored Orphanage of Oxford—were deemed needy of Christmas help and were added to the operation. The management of the third orphanage, the Masonic Orphanage of Oxford, stated that it needed no financial assistance, but the committee plans to try to arrange for Santa to drop in there on a brief visit while he is on his rounds to the other orphanages.

Almost all of the work of organizing and launching "Operation Christmas" was done by the enlisted men at Pope. The two airmen who originally heard of the need existing at Falcon and started the Operation were M-Sgt. J. F. Boyland and T-Sgt. G. H. Truiston of the Inspector General's Office of Ninth Air Force headquarters. Sgt. Truiston is now serving as vice-chairman of the base-wide committee which is handling arrangements for buying distributing the gifts.

However, senior officers at Pope are lending their whole-hearted support to the operation. It was formally endorsed by Colonel Ernest K. Warburton, Acting Commanding General of the Ninth Air Force, and Colonel F. H. Chetlain, Ninth Inspector General, is serving as Chairman of the "Operation Christmas" committee.

In addition to providing Christmas cheer for the orphans, "Operation Christmas" will contribute to the future well-being of Falcon children.

One of the sources of income at Falcon is its traveling choir which presents choral programs in eastern North Carolina. However, the Committee learned that the bus used to transport the choir has been broken down for several weeks and the management has been unable to have it repaired.

State Tax Take Maintains Pace

Raleigh, N.C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Collection of state taxes maintained its increased pace during November. Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw reported yesterday that general fund collections during the month were $8,225,657, an increase of 12.68 per cent over November of last year.

The big gain was attributed mainly to the sales tax which brought in a total of $4,472,455. This was an increase of $763,582 over the same month of 1949.

For the first five months of the fiscal year, general fund revenues totalled $43,047,417, an increase of $5,762,735 over the intake for the corresponding period of last year. The highway fund also showed a big gain during November. Collections totalled $5,885,567, an increase of $1,557,945 over November of 1949.

Farm Lottery Plan Is 567 Years Old

Rome—(AP)—The little (apparently) of old San Giovanni in Persicetana in the province of Bologna, have just changed owners again for the sixty-third time in a land rotation scheme unbroken for more than 500 years. Every nine years since 1383 A.D. the plots subdivided from an old medieval estate of 4,942 acres have changed owners by a system of lottery.

Flying Boats In Korea Helpful

Singapore—(AP)—British flying boats are estimated to have flown more than 1,000 hours by day and night in helping out in the Korean war. They have been, and still are, on patrol, reconnaissance and communications operations. They are credited with having helped U.N. naval forces to blockade the Korean coast, flown search missions to locate minefields and made rescue patrols to aid survivors from lost ships.

The veteran No. 88 flying squadron is now leaving the Iwakuni base in southern Japan and returning to Singapore via Hongkong. To replace it, Squadron No. 205 of British flying boats has gone to Japan to take up anti-submarine and mine-spotting patrols.

Willing airmen towed the bus to Pope AFB where skilled mechanics are completely overhauling and reconditioning it in their off-duty hours. Several hundred dollars of "Operation Christmas" funds are being diverted to purchase parts, paint and upholstery needed for the reconditioning. The reconditioned bus will be presented to the children at their Christmas party.

Current indications are that contributions will be great enough to buy warm hats and gloves for all the children in addition to individual toys and candy. Any money left over will be used to purchase equipment, such as radios and stoves, for the orphanages.

However, senior officers at Pope are lending their whole-hearted support to the operation. It was formally endorsed by Colonel Ernest K. Warburton, Acting Commanding General of the Ninth Air Force, and Colonel F. H. Chetlain, Ninth Inspector General, is serving as Chairman of the "Operation Christmas" committee.

State Plays Wildcats Tonight; UNC At Hanes

Richmond, Va., Dec. 5—(AP)—day night.

The University of Richmond Spiders jumped into the basketball season last night when they traveled to the Quantico marine base to battle the marines.

Only one other Southern Conference team saw action. Virginia Tech, with a record of three wins and one defeat, invaded Duquesne.

Six family fuses are on this week's schedule. North Carolina State, victor over Furman by 102-41, plays twice. The State Wolfpack is host tonight to Davidson and goes to George Washington Thurs-

48; Virginia Tech breezed by the Norfolk (Va.) Navy, 89-64, and West Virginia stopped West Virginia Wesleyan, 71-64.

The rest of this week's schedule: Tuesday—Davidson at North Carolina State; Presbyterian at Furman; Virginia Tech at St. Francis; North Carolina at Hanes Hosiery; Duke at McCrary Eagles.

Wednesday—Maryland at Pennsylvania; Virginia Tech at West Virginia.

Thursday—North Carolina State at George Washington; Richmond at North Carolina; Washington and Lee at High Point; Furman at Presbyterian; Wake Forest at Elon; Hanes Hosiery.

Friday—Washington and Lee at Hanes Hosiery.

Sport Slants By Pap

Rex Is Ready

On the strength of his convincing victory over Jersey Joe Walcott, Rex Layne shapes up as the young heavyweight who could give the boxing game a sorely needed lift. The Utah youngster isn't a finished fighter at this moment, but he has the equipment to go far against the current crop of big boys.

Layne, 22, is a confident fighter. He might well have picked easier opposition than the veteran Walcott who had three shots at the heavyweight crown—twice against Joe Louis and once against Esnard Charles. In the ring, he showed no regard for Jersey Joe's reputation as he waded in and thumped away at his opponent's body.

Since turning professional after winning the National A.A.U. heavyweight championship in 1949, Layne proceeded to establish himself as the great favorite in the west. His record shows 26 victories in 29 fights, 19 by knockouts. He lost one fight, and two were draws. He since reversed that defeat at the hands of Dave Whitlock with a pair of victories. He got off to a flying start as a pro when he piled up 15 straight knockouts. He likes to fight but there is some doubt concerning his taste for the grind of training. With title ambitions thoroughly aroused in his bosom, Rex probably will take the business of training for a fight seriously. He can go far.

Only Three Teams Unbeaten In Top Clubs This Year

New York, Dec. 5—(AP)—College football's "death march" is over and only three—Oklahoma, Princeton and Wyoming—have survived as the nation's unbeaten and untied major teams.

Oklahoma's Sugar Bowl-bound Sooners finished up their season in a blaze of glory Saturday by trouncing Oklahoma A&M, 41-14, for their 31st straight victory. Princeton and Wyoming completed unbeaten and untied seasons a week ago.

However, Army failed to make it, going down before an inspired Navy team, 14-2, before 103,000 fans at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

The Navy victory, in the 51st meeting of these traditional rivals, snapped a 28-game unbeaten streak built up by the Black Knights of the Hudson over a three-season span.

Other pre-season favorites for national honors also ended on a dismal note. Notre Dame's once mighty Irish ate crow for the fourth time at Los Angeles by dropping a 9-7 decision to the Southern California Trojans and Southern Methodist's Mustangs lost their fourth game to Texas Christian's Horned Frogs, 27-13, at Dallas.

Tennessee, which meets Texas in the Cotton Bowl, tuned up for the New Year's Day battle by smothering Vanderbilt, 43-0. The Vols have lost only one game, an early season decision to Mississippi State. Texas, which ends its season against Louisiana State this week, also has only one blot on its record, a 14-13 defeat at the hands of Oklahoma L.S.U. battled Tulane to a 14-14 tie Saturday.

Results of other games which rang down the curtain for the participants Saturday include:

Alabama 34 Auburn 0; Georgia Tech 7 Georgia 0; Mississippi 27 Mississippi State 20; Virginia 44 North Carolina 13; Maryland 63 Virginia Tech 7; William and Mary 40 Richmond 6; Holy Cross 32 Boston College 14; Fordham 13 Syracuse 6; Penn State 21 Pittsburgh 20; Tulsa 28 Houston 21.

Bethel's Defending Boys' Champions Hosts To Elizabeth City Tonight

Bethel, Dec. 5—Bethel's defending boys' champions of Pitt County and the girls' sextet play their second 1950-51 basketball tilt with the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets in a non-conference doubleheader here tonight.

Coach Walter Latham's quint has a rugged 24-game slate facing them this season, and have suffered several losses from last year's championship team.

Bethel has already triumphed over Oak City with a rousing win in their opening game.

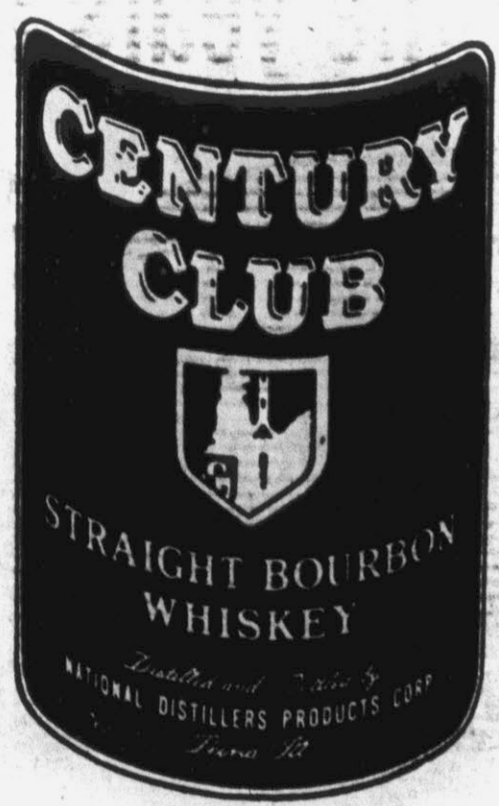

The Bethel 1950-51 cage schedule is as follows:

Will Show Color Films Of Arctic

The Arctic in all its frozen mystery will be revealed in a brilliant color film to the Greenville Executive Club Thursday night at the Woman's Club. The dinner call will be promptly at seven o'clock. The film was taken by James V. Stowell, member of the MacMillan Expedition to the Arctic wastes in 1946, and he will present it with a running commentary to the members of the club. Stowell has lived a very rich and satisfying life. He is a talented painter, a distinguished color-photographer, an archeologist of note and a well-known illustrator. He has acted. Gardner saves the day for the Players when he pretends to elope with Geneva Faulkner who is trying to get a part in the Playhouse production when it should be given to Patsy. The picture was taken when Bill is telling Patsy of better things to come for both of them in the world of theatrics. Curtain time for tonight's production is eight o'clock. All proceeds will be donated to the King's Daughters. (Staff photo) to write extensively and to lecture quite a bit. "Ice Oil Starboard" he delineates orally and by means of his famous color films the exciting realism of Arctic Labrador. The films were made while Stowell was on the schooner "Bowdoin." They are rich and colorful in the extreme and keep the members of his audiences on the edges of their chairs while they are being shown. Stowell also imprisoned on canvas many of the natives, old and young, of the frozen northlands and their many activities. His is a full and satisfying picture of these northern latitudes and he takes his listeners along with him as he pictures and describes his many experiences north of the Arctic Circle. He has proven highly popular in the Associated Clubs of the country. He presents no problems. He offers no solutions for the troubles of the world. But he does offer entertainment of the highest caliber.

Housework Not A Chore For This Lady Now

Mrs. Laura Norris, 1325-A South 6th St., St. Louis, Mo., says doing the family washing and housework is no longer a chore. She says she can do her work in a breeze now

She thanks wonderful HADACOL for her feeling of well being. She had deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains. Here is Mrs. Norris' exact statement: "It was such a long time since I was feeling 'OK.' Couldn't sleep either—just roll and toss all night. I couldn't hardly do my housework—and I was always cross and irritable. One day I heard about how other folks were being helped by HADACOL. I tried HADACOL, and after the 2nd bottle I began to feel better. I sleep like a top—in fact, I feel wonderful, thanks to marvelous HADACOL."

Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL, which everyone is talking about. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corp., Lafayette, La.

Go-Ahead Signal For Housing Job

Raleigh, N.C., Dec. 5—(AP)—The Wilmington Housing Authority had a final go-ahead signal today from the State Utilities Commission to proceed with plans for a low-rent housing project.

The commission yesterday overruled a protest to its order of last March 17 which permitted the housing authority to condemn land needed as sites for up to 400 low-rent units in the next two years.

The protest was filed late last month by C. W. Davis, Wilmington property owner, and his wife. In their petition, they contended they had not been allowed adequate time to oppose the housing authority's application and asked that the case be reheard.

A state law allots opposing parties 20 days in which to file their objections to such cases. The commission ruled that the time limit prescribed by law had expired.

Near-Skinless Man Is Saved By Wonder Hormone ACTH

Cleveland, Dec. 5—(AP)—An almost skinless man, 70 per cent of his skin burned away by fire, was saved from death by the wonder hormone ACTH, the American Medical Association was told today.

It was a near miracle that he lived. Loss of half your skin is almost always a painful death sentence.

But there were six other near miracles, an exhibit and pictures by Dr. M. James Whitelaw of Phoenix, Ariz., showed.

The man was freed from dreadful pain. He escaped shock and poisoning. He had relatively little scarring. He escaped crippling of muscles that comes from contracted scar tissue, and he survived pneumonia and appendicitis.

Perhaps most miraculous of all, grafted skin from other persons took root and spread on his body. This kind of successful grafting, except in identical twins, is something new in medical history.

The man is T. C. Gains, son of a rancher near Parker, Ariz., who is scheduled to make personal appearances at the fourth clinical session of the A. M. A. this week.

His recovery, and that of a few other burned people since, holds out promise of a new treatment in burns. Burns are one of the common, and most serious, of battlefield wounds.

Gains contributed another near miracle, in his own courage. He was burned when gasoline caught fire as he was filling the gas tank of a tractor, and a farmhand lit a cigarette. The gas spilled over young Gains. Men caught him as he ran, beat out the flames.

His whole body, above the belt, front and back, his buttocks, right leg and hands were severely burned. His left leg, arms, face and neck were burned less badly.

No one else knew how to drive Gains' truck. He took the wheel himself, painfully drove 40 miles to the Colorado River Indian Hospital in Parker. He collapsed at the doorway.

Police officers will be on duty before and after the parade to direct traffic.

Motorists should watch the officers' signals and proceed as directed. "We are anxious to get through the day without any child or grownup suffering from an accident," the chief said.

way to see the parade," he added.

Any vehicles blocking traffic or endangering property of the city or interfering with free passage of fire department equipment will be "tagged" for violating a city traffic ordinance.

Patrol Reports 2 Car Accidents

The Greenville State Highway Patrol office today reported two more highway accidents for Pitt County in the past several days.

An accident yesterday afternoon around 3:30 o'clock resulted when a truck driven by Paul W. Harris of 1205 North Pitt Street, Greenville, was attempting to make a left hand turn off the Bethel highway into the Belvoir road and was struck by a passing car.

The truck was struck by a car driven by Charlie L. Knowles, of Wallace.

Patrolman Paul C. Whitley, who investigated the accident, reported that about $100 damage was done to the car with only moderate damage to the truck.

The truck was owned by the State Highway Public Works Commission. Neither of the drivers were charged by the officer.

In the past several months numerous accidents have occurred at the intersection of the Bethel and Belvoir highways as cars attempting to make left hand turns have been struck by cars passing or following behind.

Another accident occurred near Seven Pines about 8:45 Friday.

A car owned by Dave Pitts, negro, age 43 of Route 1, Fountain, was parked in a service station drive and was struck by a car driven by Edward Harris, negro, age 26, of Route 1, Greenville.

Damage to both cars was listed as about $300 by Patrolmen Paul Whitley and R. C. Holt who made the investigation.

Harris was arrested on charges of driving in a careless and reckless manner and was tried yesterday in Farmville city court.

Report Postal Rate Boost Will Balance Books

Washington, Dec. 5—(AP)—The Post Office Department told the Interstate Commerce Commission today its proposed 25 percent boost in parcel post rates is designed to make this service pay for itself.

That increase, estimated to bring in about $110,000,000 yearly, should make parcel post service self supporting—if it doesn't cause a "substantial" drop in volume and if operating expenses don't go up.

Postmaster General Jesse Donaldson asked the ICC to revise parcel post rates two months ago and today's hearing is the first on his request. He said then it cost the department about $500,000,000 a year to handle parcel post in 1949 while revenues were only about $400,000,000.

An Even Month

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 5—(AP)—The State Prisons Department ended up all even last month in the number of escapes and recaptures.

The monthly report released yesterday showed 43 escapes and 43 recaptures for November. So far this year there have been 395 escapes and 361 recaptures.

Covington, Ky., Dec. 5—(AP)—Too weak to call for help, Mrs. Richard Gunn, 27, managed to trace the words "help me, please" on a window of her apartment here today and she and her two small children were saved from possible death from gas fumes.

Employees of a drilling machine company across the street from the apartment saw Mrs. Gunn writing the words on the window and they summoned the life saving squad.
