HST Calls Economic Advisers

Truman Calls Conference; Considering Emergency Proclamation

Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—President Truman summoned his top ranking home front economic advisers to the White House for a (4 p.m. EST) conference today.

Those asked to come included Chairman W. Stuart Symington of the National Security Resources Board; members of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Alan Valentine, Economic Stabilization Director; Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle and Chairman Cyrus Dingsell of the Wage Stabilization Board.

The conference was called as Mr. Truman considered issuing an emergency proclamation to pave the way for stringent new economic controls over the economy.

Top White House advisers say that wage and price controls are inevitable, and much depends on how long it will take to set up organizations to administer them. The critical situation at the Korean front is expected to hasten the buildup of these organizations.

W. Averell Harriman, special foreign affairs adviser to the President, was asked to sit in on the White House conference as well as members of Valentine's staff. Leon Keyserling, one of the President's key economic advisers, already has called for heavy new taxes and boom production to deal with communist aggression and home front inflation.

Some congressmen voiced approval of Keyserling's proposals but there was disagreement as to whether these tools would be adequate without wage-price controls. Keyserling, chairman of President Truman's Economic Advisory Council, declared that wage-price curbs are important—and he indicated they probably will be invoked eventually.

The nation just can't enter upon a defense program of the size contemplated "without a good many more controls than we have now and a good deal more rigid controls," Keyserling said. Some, he added, will come very soon.

Entrapped Troops Escape, MacArthur Visits Warfront

What Reds Have Done In Two Weeks

Map traces main movements of Chinese Reds in two weeks of smashing advances in North Korea. The northwest front has been quiet since the Eighth Army, routed when the Reds turned their right flank, consolidated positions along a defense line south of Pyongyang. But it was different in the northeast where 10th Corps units retreating (broken arrows) from November 25 battled the grave menaces of entrapment. Some 20,000 troops south of the Changjin reservoir smashed their way to Hungnam where the fleet appears to be preparing for a possible mass evacuation. (AP Wirephoto Map).

Marines And Doughboys Reach Sanctuary Of Port City; Wreaked Havoc Among Reds In Fighting Retreat; UN Commander Says Forces In Excellent Shape; Enemy Claims Exaggerated

Tokyo, Dec. 11—(AP)—General MacArthur flew to Korea today for a hard look at his heavily-hit United Nations command. Afterward he said it remained unbeaten, relatively secure, and able to battle the Chinese hordes.

His secret visit to both the northwest and northeast fronts came as the last elements of 25,000 bone-chilled, unshaven American Marines and Doughboys streamed down on to the Hamhung coastal plain from a series of Red traps near Changjin Reservoir.

A huge fleet stood off Hamhung's port of Hungnam. But whether it would evacuate the weary, outnumbered U. S. 10th Corps units in the northeast remained to be seen. The northwest front was relatively quiet.

There was a note of guarded optimism in MacArthur's statement to correspondents after he returned to Tokyo from his quick trip to the warfronts. He had conferred on the spot with his top generals.

Optimistic Note "The United Nations command, in spite of its recent heavy fighting, is in excellent shape with high morale and conspicuous self-confidence," the U. N. commander said. "Although heavily outnumbered it has come through in a superior manner."

Claims Exaggerated "The enemy's claims of United Nations losses in men and material are fantastically exaggerated. We are being forced to give ground but our fighting capacity has suffered little general impairment."

He added that the Chinese Reds had failed in a plan "to out-pass our destruction by one massive stroke."

"All our units are intact and the losses inflicted on the enemy have been staggering—estimated by local commanders in the field as high as 10 to one compared to our own," MacArthur said.

It was the general's first statement to correspondents on the Korean campaign since he personally directed the battle of the Chosin Reservoir at daybreak Nov. 24 a push turned into a full retreat the night of Nov. 25 by bugle-blasting hordes of Chinese infantry.

General Concerned It was evident that MacArthur was concerned seriously about the conditions of his forces, particularly the U. S. First Marine Division and units of the Army's Seventh Infantry Division which battled for two weeks through a frozen, Chinese-lined hell on both sides and south of the Changjin Reservoir in northeast Korea.

A Marine spokesman said the last elements of the 25,000-man escape force had completed the hazardous, winding descent from snowbound mountains ringing the big hydroelectric reservoir to the coastal plain leading to Hamhung.

Bitter Retreat The bitter 50-mile retreat—the longest and one of few in the history of the spirited Marine Corps—began Nov. 28. The spokesman estimated the Leathernecks alone killed 15,000 Chinese in breaking through the series of traps.

With the Marines were the 31st and 32nd Regiments of the Seventh Division and about 100 British Royal Marines. They joined forces Sunday with a northbound task force of the U. S. Third Division after a vital bridge, blown by the Chinese, was repaired.

It Was Tough One grimy, bewhiskered Leatherneck, huddled in his tattered parka, probably expressed the feelings of all of them with this comment:

"It was tough. That's all—tough!"

Marine medical officer compared the Leatherneck casualties to those the Corps suffered in taking the tiny stoll of Tarawa in World War II—3,168 men. But total Marine and doughboy casualties were higher.

AP correspondent Jack MacBeth said the service newspaper said more than 4,000 wounded were flown from the snow-mantled airstrip at Koto until two days before the final breakout drive.

Casualties High Most of the wounded were Marines. There was no estimate of American dead, but MacBeth said the number would be high.

Two days ago, he was awarded a Purple Heart for his service in a big game by a bulldozer. There was no time for more elaborate arrangements.

MacBeth called the withdrawal "one of the fightingest retreats in military history." He said the Leathernecks "walked out of 12 days of freezing hell, full of fight after a gory nightmare of death in Korea's icy mountains."

Another Trapped Unit Somewhere north of Hamhung was another American force, 6,000 to 8,000 men of the Seventh Division's 17th Regimental Combat Team.

The regiment's withdrawal from the Manchurian border at Hyesanjin still was cloaked by a security silence. Its retreat route stretched over more than 100 miles on a mountainous, Red-dominated territory.

On the far northeast coast, elements of two Republic of Korea (ROK) divisions, the Third and the Capital, were retreating southward toward Hamhung and its port of Hungnam. Some of the ROKs were removed by sea.

Thirteen Nations Meet To Write Korean Peace Plan

Asian And Middle East Members Of United Nations Consider Final Terms Of Proposal; Chinese Reds Silent On Appeal

Lake Success, Dec. 11—(AP)—Thirteen Asian and Middle East countries met behind closed doors today to consider final terms of a new Korean peace plan. They were expected to submit the plan to the political committee of the U. N. assembly later in the day.

India's Sir Benegal Rau, leader of the peace efforts, said he still had received no word from the Chinese Communists as to whether they would accept a previous appeal to halt at the 38th parallel.

Details of the new plan were kept secret, but informed quarters said the resolution would include an appeal for a cease-fire and probably would urge creation of a demilitarized buffer zone along the 38th parallel, old dividing line between North and South Korea.

The conference was held while the political committee, in a nearby room, continued its debate on a six-power resolution demanding withdrawal of the Chinese Reds from Korea.

A spokesman for the United States said the U. S. would not comment on the 13-nation plan until they saw it in its final form.

He said, however, the U. S. delegation would be inclined to go along with the proposal if it is based solely on the military situation and has no political connotation.

The first speaker in the political committee was Charles Malik of Lebanon.

The U. S. so far has refused to deal with Peiping in such a way as to imply recognition of it as a legal government. There has been no hint it might modify this position in order to take part in such talks. Washington has insisted that the U. N. is the proper forum for the negotiations.

Discussion of a proposal for direct negotiations—instead of through the U. N.—might be one of the "objectionable qualifications" which the state department said yesterday it would oppose in a ceasefire resolution.

The Control Picture

A Day-To-Day Account Of How The Administration Has Been Working Its Way Closer To Wage-Price Controls, From The Korean Outbreak To The Deepening Crisis

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—This is a kind of day-to-day story on price and wage controls which are being talked about but still seem some distance away.

Meanwhile, in the period that they've been talked about, some months now, consumer costs—the prices on the things you buy for everyday living—have hit an all-time high.

The Nor Korean invasion of South Korea on June 25 started the ball rolling. On June 27 President Truman ordered American planes and ships to help the South Koreans.

And on June 30 he sent American troops into action. Very quickly it became apparent our military strength—on land at least—wasn't very good.

On July 13 Mr. Truman told a news conference he had no immediate plans for asking congress for emergency powers to deal with allocation of materials or wage price controls.

And there was some difference in congress on what was needed. For example, Senator Taft, Ohio Republican, said he was flatly opposed to giving Mr. Truman stand-by economic controls.

High Court Upsets Contempt Sentence

Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—The Supreme Court today threw out the contempt sentence given a grand jury witness who refused to answer questions about alleged Communist activities.

An 8-0 decision overturned the one-year jail sentence imposed at Denver on Mrs. Patricia Blau who refused to answer the questions because she said she might incriminate herself.

Justice Black delivered the court's opinion, which Justice Clark took no part.

In her appeal Mrs. Blau said that if she answered the questions she might make herself liable to prosecution under the 1940 Smith Act. The law makes it a crime to teach or advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

Mrs. Blau pointed to the New York conviction of 11 top Communist leaders under the Act and claimed for herself the constitutional guarantee against self incrimination.

Agreeing with her contention, Black said that provisions of the Smith Act "made future prosecution of Mrs. Blau far more than a mere imaginary possibility."

Gov't Orders Less Natural Rubber In Tires Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—The government today ordered a cut on the use of natural rubber in new automobile tires.

The National Production Authority announced that in January and February manufacturers must reduce the consumption of natural rubber by 28 per cent from November levels.

The November quota set by NPA under a previous order was $2,000 tons of natural rubber. The total amount of consumption of both natural and synthetic rubber for the month was 90,000 tons.

NPA said its January and February quotas—despite the reduction in natural rubber uses—still remains at approximately 90,000 tons.

Nobel Prizes Awarded In Stockholm And Oslo Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 11—(AP)—Nine men were presented Nobel prizes yesterday at resplendent twin ceremonies here and in Oslo, Norway. It was the 54th anniversary of the death of Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite and creator of the awards.

Winners of the prizes, totaling nearly $200,000 in cash and representing the world's foremost honors for contributions to humanity, included four Americans:

Mississippi novelist William Faulkner, awarded the 1949 literature prize, $30,007.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the first negro ever to be so honored, who received the $31,674 peace prize for his work as United Nations mediator during the Palestine war.

Dr. Philip S. Hench and Dr. Edward C. Kendall of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., $10,571 each for their research in hormones, including the discovery of cortisone, a powerful agent in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis.

Gov't Orders Less Natural Rubber In Tires Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—The first three months of 1951 will see American business invest $4,800,000,000 in new factories, machinery and equipment, the government reported yesterday.

The figure is a record for the first quarter of the year, and the Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) said capital outlays for the whole year will be the highest on record.

The agencies conceded that higher costs are responsible in part for the prospective record spending. But they said surveys indicate a sizeable increase in the physical amount of plant and equipment.

Detectives listed Rummel's death as murder under mysterious circumstances.

The coroner's office, after a cursory examination, said the death was a possible homicide.

"Rummel was shot in the neck," said investigating detectives. "The bullet came out the back of his head."

HIKE RECORD PRICE New York, Dec. 11—(AP)—Decca Records, Inc., announced today a 10-cent price increase on its popular records. Industry circles predicted other record companies would follow suit.

Farmville GI Is Korea Casualty

Farmville, Dec. 11—It was learned here late last week that Private First Class Roland Morgan, son of Jasper Morgan, Rt. 2, has been wounded in the Korean fighting.

Morgan, who lives about two miles from here on the Fountain highway, was notified by the Secretary of Defense. No details were learned concerning the extent of his son's injuries.

He was reared on his father's farm and attended the Farmville public schools. He has been in the Army about five months.

Truckers Set Up Policing System Charlotte, N.C., Dec. 11—(AP)—North Carolina's motor trucking industry today organized a statewide safety patrol to police the big trucks that roll over the state's highways.

Plans for the voluntary, cooperative patrol were drawn up here at a meeting of 30 long-line trucking companies under the sponsorship of the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association.

Legion Endorses State Speed-Up In Education

General Assembly To Be Urged To Adopt Accelerated Educational Program As Prepared By Greenville Man

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.

The General Assembly will be urged to allow accelerated educational programs in the public schools as the result of a resolution passed by the North Carolina department of the American Legion's Executive Committee meeting in Raleigh Saturday afternoon.

The resolution, as authored by June H. Rose, chairman of the Legion's education committee and Greenville school superintendent, calls for lowering the school entrance age and also graduation in 11 years instead of the present 12.

The resolution was a highlight of a three-hour meeting of the committee in its winter session. It was presented by Rose and will be recommended to the State Board of Education when it presents its report to the Assembly.

The Executive Committee's budget was prepared by J. Howard Moye, Greenville, member of the Administrative committee of the Legion. It was approved during the meeting and was presented by Moye.

Rose told the committee the changes he proposes will be for the "duration of the present emergency." He proposed cutting back to 11 years the necessary graduating time for high school and also asked that the time required to obtain a BS and AB degree from college be reduced to three years.

The latter request and recommendation will be urged upon the boards of trustees of schools and colleges in the State.

The Legion resolution is also being discussed throughout the State by the Federation of Women's Clubs and other civic groups. Rose stated today he hasn't "found any opposition to the proposal" from any group he has talked to in the State.

"I think it should have been done sooner," he said, "considering the national emergency." The proposed legislation, if passed, will not be compulsory on any county or city school system, Rose said. It is to be left up to those particular school bodies as to whether the acceleration can be effectively installed.

Republicans Fail In Censure Move Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—Republican leaders failed today to reach decision on a proposal by Senator Ives of New York that senate Republicans declare "no confidence" in Secretary of State Acheson and demand his immediate ouster.

In a closed door meeting, a four-man subcommittee of the Senate Republican Policy Committee considered a resolution drafted by Ives calling for Acheson's removal. Ives told reporters afterward that they reached no conclusion at all.

"At this time it is utterly impossible to forecast what the outcome of these deliberations will be," the New York Republican said after the meeting in his office.

Other members of the subcommittee are Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Senate Republican Leader; Senator Millikin of Colorado, the Senate Republican Conference Chairman, and Senator H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey.

India's Policy Changes

Middle-Of-The-Road Policy In East-West Struggle Being Revised By Nehru; Defense Preparations; Importance Of The Move; Pakistan A Likely Ally

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Indian Prime Minister Nehru's middle-of-the road policy in the East-West struggle apparently is undergoing a sharp overhauling.

India suddenly has shifted to intensive arming for defense.

Red China's invasion not only of Korea but of Tibet—which lies up against India, Burma and Pakistan—has given the New Delhi government a rough jolt. Tibet could be used as a base for air attack on these sister states.

The writing on the wall can't be ignored, and it proclaims that Communist China isn't going to let moral suasion stand in the way of its program of expansion.

So we see Nehru, exponent of peace and a potential leader of Asia, making the abrupt and dramatic move of giving top priority to the strengthening of India's defenses. And this great idealist displays his practical side by declaring that defense consists not only of large armies and many guns, "but industrialization, self-sufficiency in food and maintenance of high morale among the people."

This development must be setting Nehru much heart-burning. He has been pursuing the principles of peace taught by Gandhi, whose faithful disciple Nehru was for many years. The Prime Minister, like the little Mahatma, has been stubborn in his peace stand.

The reaction of India's sister state, Pakistan, hasn't yet been announced. These two big new nations have had some bitter differences which at times have come close to dangerous blows. However, peace negotiations have been going on between them, and good results have been reported.

Anyway, in the event of attack by an outsider on either of these nations, one would expect them to stand together. Between them they have a population estimated at more than 430,000,000 (India, 360,185,000 and Pakistan, 70,103,000)—almost as big as China's estimated 463,500,000.

The partition of the Indian peninsula into two states in 1947 resulted in a division of the armed forces which had been created by Britain. Approximately two thirds went to India and the rest to Pakistan.

The strength of the Indian Army hasn't been announced of late, but the figure in 1948 was given as 300,000, plus a small navy and

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

December 11, 1910

A little before 3 o'clock Sunday morning, by the firing of pistols, barking dogs and cries of "fire," Greenville's only means of giving a fire alarm, the people of the town were aroused from their slumber to learn that there was a fire somewhere. The family of Mr. Frank Wilson on Fifth Street had been awakened by their home being filled with smoke, and upon making investigation found that fire was burning fiercely directly underneath the kitchen. The basement was used for the storage of wood and how the fire started is a mystery. Just about the time this fire was out, and while the firemen were still running a stream under the house, a bright glare to the southward showed that there was another fire in the tobacco section of the town and it was found to be the Peoples Warehouse on Ninth Street. As quickly as it could be done the firemen moved to the new scene of trouble but the flames made such headway in the frame structure that the fire could not be checked until the warehouse, prize house and stables adjoining and also the new brick stables of W. H. Dall Jr. next to the warehouse were destroyed.

The book on women in education in this state is the major project of the state organization of Delta Kappa Gamma for 1950-1951. Research and investigation have been in progress for some time, and under the general leadership of Mamie E. Jenkins of Raleigh, retired member of the East Carolina faculty, the volume is nearing completion.

White gladioli and chrysanthemums were used against a background of palms as altar decorations. Cathedral tapers in seven-branched candelabra were used for illumination during the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Paul Braxton of Friday night, December 9, in the Masonic Temple, the Ladies Night supper, an annual entertainment of Greenville Lodge No. 284 A.F. and A.M. was thoroughly enjoyed by the nearly 200 persons present. This date marked the 82nd anniversary of the Lodge.

Boswell, Junior Warden; W. Herman Hardee, Treasurer; and A. R. House, Secretary.

Wilbur C. Ormond, of Ayden, entertained with musical selections on the accordion. He was assisted vocally by Mrs. Glenn Scott and Tige Gardner.

W. F. Owens, formerly of Greenville, now of Washington, D.C., introduced the principal speaker, D. M. Williford, also of Washington, Chief of Title Claims, Alien Property Custodian office.

The speaker recalled some of the dark days of this country's eventful history. Then the future was viewed with foreboding. He assured those present that a re-survey of our glorious past should convince all that this nation, the most powerful on earth, is not on the brink of disaster, but has the determination and ability not only to survive, but to press on to a greater future. He advocated a strong stand by our country against any communistic aggression on the part of those who would subjugate free people.

George W. Smith, Walter G. Garner, Harold E. Alder, Charles P. Gaskins, and C. M. Respass were thanked for their part in making the party a success.

T. I. Moore closed the meeting with a benediction.

hasn't accepted the criticism at all.

The latest tirade of the President is against Critic Paul Hume of the Washington Post staff who wrote a criticism of Margaret's appearance the other night in Washington.

President Truman, unable to stomach the opinion of a man who really knows music (he doesn't confine it to bar-room piano banging), wrote Hume a letter on White House stationery rebuking him savagely for his comments about Margaret's appearance and threatening, among other things, to give Hume a smashed nose should they ever meet.

Hume's only comment was considerate and gentlemanly. We can't say as much for the comments of the President.

The president in his letter to Mr. Hume stated:

"I never met you, but if I do you'll need a new nose and plenty of beefsteak and perhaps a supporter below.

"Westbrook Pegler, a guttersnipe, is a gentleman compared to you.

"You can take that as more of an insult than as a reflection on your ancestry."

In reply to questions about the White House letter, Hume said:

"I can only say that a man suffering the loss of a close friend and carrying the terrible burden of the present world crisis ought to be indulged in an occasional outburst of temper."

Hume is more kind in his remark than most people would have been; but nevertheless, it leaves no doubt as to who is the real gentleman.

It is a shame that such a picayunish man as Truman is the head of the greatest nation in the world.

He has made a complete ass of himself all over again. But worse than making an ass of himself, Truman likewise is making an ass of the whole Democratic party and all the people of the United States.

Strength for the Day

 FORMULA FOR HAPPINESS

What is happiness?
 Some people would say that happiness consists of the kind of life one can live if he has a big income. Others would say that happiness is equated with social position. Still others would say: "If I could do what I want to do, I would eat, drink, and be merry. I would buy myself all the indulgence I wanted and I would live a life free of responsibility."

To say that such appraisals of happiness are unworthy is to indulge in understatement. They are the ebullitions of two-legged animals who long to live as do the animals who walk on all fours. Happiness reduced to its simplest terms consists of the attitude we maintain toward others, toward ourselves, toward our surroundings, and toward the universe in general.

And as a matter of fact, it is the attitude we maintain toward the universe which conditions all other attitudes. For if at the center of the universe stands a Being who created that universe and now sustains it, then all thoughts, attitudes, and situations have to be considered in proper reference to Him.

The truest happiness consists of getting right with God and staying right with God. Do this, and all other varieties of happiness will spring up and bear fruit in the natural course of our living.

Another Evidence Of Educational Leadership

Pitt county, and particularly Greenville, has long prided itself in its educational facilities—both public school systems, and Eastern Carolina Teachers College.

The Greenville school system reached another milestone of progress last week when C. M. Eppes high school was accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The accrediting by the scholastic organization means the Eppes school has met the standards set forth by the organization of educators. It also means Eppes school, as an educational institution, is ranked on the same level as Greenville high school.

Education for members of the Negro race has long been a touchy subject in North Carolina, and all over the South for that matter. But in the past two decades great progress has been made in providing adequate educational facilities for Negro children. Great strides in improving the educational system for Negroes has been made in Pitt county during the past few years with large new Negro schools being constructed in Farmville and Greenville as well as smaller schools in other communities throughout the county.

Although we maintain separate schools for the Negro children and for the white children, the efficiency of the two systems is being put on the same level. The educational advantages of the two systems are being equalized—not by lowering one to meet the other, but by raising the standards of both to a new high.

Fundamentally, the solution to the South's economic problem lies in the better education for larger numbers of both the Negro and the white children of the region. With better education, the youngsters will mature into men and women with a better understanding of economic values, the ability necessary for more highly skilled jobs, and the knowledge of the importance of better standards of living.

Better education will increase the earning power of the people of the South, and will benefit the region as a whole.

The accrediting of C. M. Eppes school is an achievement of which all the people of Greenville—not the school officials alone—should justly be proud. It is another tribute to the progressiveness of the community. It is another evidence of our leadership in the field of education.

Harry, Your Ears Are Growing Longer

With each passing week President Truman does something, peculiar to his own character, which makes his ears appear a little longer. From his actions he always looks more like the mascot of the Democratic party than its "leader."

Margaret Truman has entered the field of professional music. And as such she is subject to criticism, both favorable and unfavorable, from those who are qualified to criticize her musical ability. Margaret for the most part has accepted the comments of the critics with the ear of a professional musician. Her father, on the other

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—All plans for financing future government and rearmament costs on a pay-as-you-go basis have been discarded on Capitol Hill.

Treasury experts have warned that such a cash-and-carry program would practically bankrupt the nation's economy and make every citizen a mercenary soldier working only for the government.

While this decision gives a small break to today's taxpayers—a very small break, however—the alternative of borrowing from the banks or individual investors for yearly deficits is almost as gloomy for tomorrow's stockholders in the United States Government.

Borrowing will mean the addition of approximately $20,000,000,000 to the public debt each year, which will boost the national mortgage to almost $400,000,000,000 in five years if the current crisis cannot be resolved by diplomatic negotiations based on a "negotiated surrender" in Korea and China generally.

DEBT—Should the public debt soar to that peak, the annual interest charge alone will be $10,000,000,000, if it can be carried at the present 2 1/2 per cent, although there is no guarantee that this figure will not increase under inflation. The interest only on what Uncle Sam owes will be twice as much as the total federal budget was in 1939.

To dramatize this prospect and terrorize the taxpayers into a realization of the gravity of the domestic and foreign situation, here is a comparison of the financial situation between 1939 and 1951 estimates.

Budget	$ 5,103,000,000	$ 75,000,000,000
Military Exp.	1,000,000,000	50,000,000,000
Public Debt	40,000,000,000	260,000,000,000

To make matters worse, these figures are based on mere preparation for a possible war, not on active participation in another global conflict. If a World War III should be upon us, even these astronomical statistics must be tossed into the wastebasket.

DANGER—On the basis of our own and other nations' experience, the money men here estimate that we cannot spend more than 25 per cent of our national income on government without going beyond the "economic danger point." To rush past that red flag, they say, produces lazy and lessened production, employees' letdown, loss of purchasing power and unemployment.

Prospective national income is placed at about $220,000,000,000, which fixes the maximum tax take at roughly $55,000,000,000 a year. And that is about the figure at which the rate in the current tax measure and proposed boosts in 1951 has been set.

DRY—The government now receives about $43,000,000,000 a year in taxes and it is expected that 1950 excess profits measure will bring in $4,000,000,000. That means that still another $39,000,000,000 must be raised next year to attain the $55,000,000,000 maximum, and the heaviest burden will have to fall upon the small and middleclass wage-earners, people making from $3,000 to $10,000 a year.

Although they are not publicizing it, Treasury and Congressional tax tappers virtually concede that no more money can be obtained from the so-called "fat cats."

The 1950 hike in excess profits and corporate levies is an admission that this source will have been drained dry.

Since annual expenditures from now on will hit at least $75,000,000,000, federal income will fall short of that figure by twenty billion each year. And this amount will have to be piled on top of the already unworkable public debt.

THIRD—But even this dark canvass does not present the full picture. In estimating that a people cannot fork over more than 25 per cent of the national income in taxes, the experts include state, county and city levies, which now total about $18,000,000,000 annually. They, too, will probably increase from now on.

With the inclusion of this burden, the forthcoming tax bill will amount to 33 per cent-plus of the national income, and that during a period of a twilight war.

Since individuals always furnish the money for taxes, whether in direct payments or in rents, prices and service charges, everybody—and that means everybody—will have to turn over one-third of his wages, salary or dividends to some government till for an indefinite period.

STANDARD—These forecasts, which are based on the most reliable and available figures, statistics and estimates at Washington, lie behind the low spirits of business men who have recently had the benefit of off-the-record advice from the top men in the government.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN KISSBY Raleigh, N. C.

SPECIALIZATION—Current emphasis on the proposal for the state to establish a special law enforcement agency to deal with compulsory attendance of pupils in public schools is cited as a further step toward specialization. Also toward centralization. This trend is in direct opposition to the recurring demands for more local government. It is conceded on all sides that the law requiring parents or guardians to send children to school within the specified ages is commonly ignored. However, instead of requiring regular officers to do their duty in this respect, the solution sought is to set up a new system, to be supervised and paid for by the state.

ELECTIONS—Several years ago the state board of elections recommended that enforcement of election laws be transferred from local to state officers, with the attorney general having responsibility for initiating prosecutions. The suggestion proved unpopular, for the reason it would tend to centralize government too much and take it further from the people.

S.B.I.—Even the casual observer can see that the state bureau of investigation is assuming every year a larger part of the duty ostensibly belonging to local peace officers. This has come about not so much because of the desire of SBI to inject itself into local issues, but because local officers find it easy to pass the buck to the state. There are numerous instances in which the training and technical facilities of the state investigators are necessary to discover criminals and work up evidence leading to conviction. It is difficult to understand how routine "raids" on crap games, slot machines and illicit manufacturers and sellers of liquor can properly be put in this class, either for assistance from SBI or the state highway patrol.

PATROL—Considerable criticism has been directed for years at the highway patrol for its ventures in non-traffic activities. There has been and is serious question whether the patrol is as much at fault in many of these instances as are the local agencies which appeal for help—in order to lighten their own jobs. While local peace officers call freely upon the state patrol for help in all kinds of law enforcement, it is very rare for a local officer to aid in enforcing the traffic laws.

A.B.C.—Another glaring instance of specialization and divided responsibility resulting in lack of full co-operation is enforcement of liquor laws in A.B.C. counties. There seems to be more co-operation in that field than in traffic regulation, but in many instances sheriffs and constables leave liquor cases to the ABO officers.

MUNICIPAL—Most noticeable of all is the way state and county officers duck responsibility for enforcing laws inside municipalities and leave that job almost wholly to the city police. That attitude is common with the public as well as with law officers. It is so general that Raleigh's morning newspaper a few years ago vigorously criticized the Raleigh police, and commended the Wake county sheriff for doing the city police department's job when the sheriff raided some gambling places inside the city. In most counties with large cities the cities have half or more of the county population, pay more than half the taxes to support county government—and yet the county officers are prone to regard the cities outside their province.

OTHERS—These are only a few of the numerous instances of the trend toward specialization and the growing inclination to pass the buck in law enforcement. Failure of parents to send their children to school illegal sale of liquor, excessive speeding on the highways, stealing and what have you are all violations of the law which established officers have been sworn to enforce.

INEVITABLE—A man who has spent nearly forty years as a law enforcement officer in varying capacities was talking about this trend a day or so ago. He isn't worried, because he says it is inevitable. He pointed out that everything is being specialized now. No longer does the same doctor set a broken limb, pull a tooth and make up pills for stomach ache. The same automobile mechanic does not work on the generator and carburetor and paint the car. Of course, it costs more, he says, and maybe it's not any better than the old scheme—but we'd just as well recognize that the specialists have taken over.

DEATH PENALTY—Recent rehashing of a capital case resulting in a man being executed nearly two years ago revived talk of a bill to abolish capital punishment in North Carolina. There are four crimes for which the death penalty can be imposed: conviction of first degree murder or rape carry mandatory sentence of death; conviction of first degree arson or burglary involves death sentence, unless there is recommendation for life term by the jury.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

City Wide Aldermanic Elections. (Washington Daily News)
 The Board of Aldermen of Washington voted sometime ago to have our representative in the legislature, W. B. Rodman, introduce a bill whereby the elections of aldermen in Washington would be on a city wide basis and not just in the wards.

At the last meeting of the aldermen the position was clarified further, and in the bill to be introduced will be provisions to take care of a second primary, should one be needed.

Least there be some misunderstanding regarding the bill, let us point out that under the provisions of the bill the aldermen would still come from the wards they represent. Each ward now elects two aldermen. If the bill goes through, each ward will still elect two aldermen. But instead of the voting being from one ward alone, all the voters of Washington will ballot on the candidates.

The city wide voting seems to be very fair to us. With a second primary available if needed, then the election by a majority is assured.

The Daily News looks with favor on the proposal for one clear reason. Whereas, it is only human nature that when an alderman is elected by his ward only, the alderman tends to think in terms of his ward too much and not enough in terms of city.

Election on a city wide basis will eliminate that to a great extent. It is only natural that aldermen should be that way, because each one owes a debt to the people who elect him. It is human nature, and anyone of us would feel the same way in the same position.

Now, the new method of city wide elections will put our government on a basis whereby each alderman will think in terms of the entire city more and on the basis of a single ward less. That position seems wholesome to us, and it is one which we feel will be beneficial to the people of the city.

To our way of thinking the aldermen threw aside petty politics in making "his resolution. It stands to reason that some of the members, should they seek reelection, may be defeated on a city wide basis. We are not saying that it is a fact, but only that it could be that way. Then to us, we feel that the city fathers took a very unselfish view of the whole matter.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 The pattern of clearance sales next January may be very ragged. Some stores may be offering deep price cuts to clear the same merchandise other stores are short of. Some stores may try to clear only seasonal merchandise, while others may be offering store-wide reductions.

It is then that the summer mistakes of store buyers will come in to full bloom, to their own embarrassment and the smug satisfaction of competitors.

There seems to be little doubt that the buying departments of some stores were caught up in the panic of last July. The same executives who were laughing at housewives for hoarding sugar were frantically stepping up their orders for goods and, worse, they didn't get over it as quickly as the housewives.

They seemed to have good reasons at the time. Retail sales continued to advance. In fact, they have continued to advance through higher withholding taxes, through two waves of credit controls and through restrictions on housing credit. They are still advancing and there is still a possibility that sales this month will top the December, 1948, peak.

The only trouble is that inventories, in many places, have advanced faster than sales. Even if Christmas buying does set a new mark, some retailers are going to find themselves with unwieldy stocks on the morning of Tuesday, December 26. In addition, they are going to be facing a few uncertainties.

While the general trend of employment is expected to be up next year because of the coming rise in defense work, there are going to be some dislocations. We have already had a small taste of this in October and November, when employment declined largely because men were laid off during conversion of assembly lines from civilian to military products. Top government planners have said that rearmament will really "take hold" around next April and that suggests that reconversion lay-offs may reach a peak early in the year, which can have its effect on retail sales.

In addition, there is usually a seasonal dip in employment in January, when Christmas workers are laid off and weather curtains some activities.

Stores that have the capital to manage it will probably hold staples for sale at prevailing prices. In some instances, retailers have been selling some items, such as shirts, at lower prices than they have agreed to pay for spring deliveries. There'll be no rush to clear articles like that. But purely seasonal goods that are unsold will weigh heavily on stores' liquidity and some of the price cuts may be very deep.

INSTALLMENTS FREE
 IN EVENT OF STRIKE
 Insurance policies with time purchases are not new, but a Buffalo store is using one which claims is broader than anything ever offered before. If an installment buyer is laid off, becomes sick, goes on strike or is in an accident, the store makes the payment during the period, up to two months. In event of death, the store cancels remaining payments.

SEES PRICE RISE
 IN ALL TOILETRIES
 Prediction that practically all toiletries would advance in price after Christmas as a consequence of higher costs of materials was made by S. L. Mayhew, executive vice president of the Toilet Goods Association. He said the industry had no general rise in prices since 1920 and that a dollar box of powder had sold at that price as long as he could remember but that it would go to $1.25 next year.

TIP TO FARMERS:
 BUY INSECTICIDES
 Many insecticides will be both scarce and higher in price next year. Such ingredients as sulphur, chlorine, benzine, alcohol, copper, arsenic and lead have already increased in price and some are under allocation. Farm advisers are urging agriculturists to order and get delivery on supplies as early as possible. Ammonia, an important ingredient in fertilizers, is going up from $4 to $6 a ton in January.

NEW AND HOT
 PORTABLE: A new model portable typewriter is being introduced (by Royal) with several new features. The remodeling was completed in seven months, said to be a record for the industry, and improvements were based on a survey of users' wants.

With U. S. Second Division, Korea—(AP)—The weird convoy beat a bloody trail through a flaming five-mile roadblock.

It was his fight, evacuating men of the American Second Division trapped in the Chinese Red breakthrough of the Chongchon River line in northwest Korea.

Two ambulances, three general field vans and four commandeered trucks were used to bring the men out. The division's Headquarters Company ran a gantlet of withering fire to reach safety during the United Nations retreat.

"To the best of my knowledge we didn't leave a wounded man behind," said Capt. W. O. Burla, 48, of Los Angeles.

The lanky, gray-haired captain directed the rescue. He said: "It was wonderful to see how those men—the wounded and those who helped them—conducted themselves. It made a man proud to do what little he could to help."

The decision to evacuate the headquarters command came about noon on Nov. 29.

Efforts to crack the roadblock had been unsuccessful. The Command Post had been under fire the previous night. There were at least 28 wounded already on hand to move.

"We lined up the ambulances, trucks and vans," Burla related.

"The two ambulances already were full. They were crowded with between 10 and 12 men each. We fell in behind the last group pulling out of the last Command Post. It wasn't very long before we ran into heavy fire. The column slowed down. Killed and wounded men were lying all along the road."

Burla said the medics "were really wonderful. Gunfire was going on all around us, they worked among the men doing as much as they could for them. They worked like Trojans."

The wounded were coming so fast the trucks filled up quickly. The side guard rails from disabled trucks were used to make a second tier so each vehicle could handle more men.

"We just kept loading the wounded as we moved slowly along," Burla said. "A truck blocked the road and was abandoned, we just rammed it off to the side."

"The boys would work alongside the road to determine if the men lying there were alive or dead. Sometimes it was hard to tell. It didn't make any difference who it was—American, Turk or South Korean. We picked them all up. We weren't thinking of individuals. We were thinking of the whole operation."

"It was pitiful to see some of those boys. Their faces were white with shock. But when they opened their eyes you could see how grateful they were. It made you almost want to cry. But it gave them confidence and you could see the color come back to their faces."

"Why I even saw some boys who were wounded themselves helping other wounded boys get aboard the trucks. It seemed everybody that could was helping someone else."

It was a long and rough trip through the Chinese hall of fire which poured into the trucks as they moved south.

Some men who were wounded in action were wounded again after they had been loaded into the ambulance convoy. The generals' vans were splattered with blood.

Burla said: "It was pretty tough to have to walk by those trucks and have to walk by those trucks and have one of the wounded stop you and say 'Captain, how much farther do we have to go?' You could hear some of the wounded moan, but I didn't hear a single soldier who complained.

"They were real men."

Burla said they were from Fox Company of the 38th Regiment "were the heroes of that drive." He identified them as Robert R. Calvert and Harry B. Talcott. (Addresses unavailable). He said:

"They were driving trucks and were as cool as they could be. They never panicked or hurried. With bullets flying all around, they drove their trucks slowly while we made sure we hadn't missed anyone. They would stop and sit until the wounded were all loaded before they continued down the road."

Washington Letter

Washington—Mr. and Mrs. Capus Waynick are talking about going "home" to Managua, Nicaragua, in January, though they own a 130-acre farm near Raleigh, N. C., and have lived in the capital since last May.

Mr. Waynick was asked by President Truman last spring to come back to the United States to help set up the Point Four program. Believing they would be here only about three months, they left their two-year-old Boston terrier, whom Mrs. Waynick describes as "quite a character," with the staff and servants of the embassy.

"We love the country, the people, the climate and the embassy residence," Mrs. Waynick told me, adding that their "home" in Managua, especially built for the U. S. Ambassador, is situated on a 64-acre hillside plot overlooking Lake Managua and the mountains.

The 23-room white stucco, Spanish-type mansion was partially furnished, but like all U. S. diplomatic service folk the Waynick tells me, is very gay. The ver, linens, and bric-a-brac and picked up native paintings, furniture and other items to make the place seem like their own. In addition, the ambassador is building up a fine collection of native wood carvings of the pre-Columbian era.

Life in Managua, Mrs. Waynick tells me, is very gay the people the Waynicks meet are highly cultivated and speak good French and English.

"We have a terrific schedule—a formal wing-ding about once a week, stag luncheons, cocktail and buffet supper parties and such," Mrs. Waynick said. "Sometimes we have a dance."

The Waynicks were both newspaper people before they got into politics. Mrs. Waynick the former Elizabeth McBee, was reporter and society writer on the Greensboro Daily News and on the Record, which Mr. Waynick owned, and later on the High Point Enterprise, of which her husband was editor. Then they went to Raleigh, where Mr. Waynick served some years in the state legislature "Fieldstone Farm" is the name of their 160-year-old farm.

While Mrs. Waynick is waiting to return to Managua she manages to squeeze in shopping trips between a gay round of parties. Because of the tropical climate "at home" she is laying in a fresh supply of summer clothes.

Happy Marriages Are Not Menaced By Those Minor Spats Says Expert

Winnipeg—(AP)—Marriages are not headed for the rocks just because the husband and wife do not see eye-to-eye on everything.

Dr. Gerda Allison, mother and doctor, says it is perfectly natural, and also desirable, for husband and wife not to agree on everything. The prime requisite of the happy marriage is agreement on the ultimate goal.

She said each person has to take some individuality into marriage and retain it.

Dr. Allison was one of three speakers who addressed the Westminster Church marriage clinic. The others were Dr. Murray Campbell and Dr. Dorothea Wardrop.

Dr. Campbell said the truly happy couple must have a number of things in common.

In addition to a real affection, emotional maturity, intellectual union and a union of body and soul, he said the happy couple should have common background, church, grammar, table manners and similar elements including a mutual hobby.

Complete frankness and an understanding of your mate is vital, he added.

Both doctors stressed equal partnership status for husband and wife. "Dignified Victorian acquiescence is no longer fashionable," Dr. Allison said. Also, as far as the wife is concerned, she deplored "slavish submission."

Marriage was not the end of the story. "It is just the beginning," a "dynamic state" calling for continual adjustments. The key to happy marriage is "tolerance, understanding and good humor.... and an informed and realistic attitude toward sex."

Dr. Wardrop said "Sex education should be according to the development of a child and should start with children, not at the pre-marital stage."

Pastor Points To Biblical Advice

By WYATT BROWN

Moral development has lagged behind the advance in all other fields and what is needed most is to learn the teachings of God as revealed in the Scriptures; so the truth may be known declared Reverend Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, yesterday morning in his sermon. "The Bible reveals the only true God and shows how to find Him," he pointed out. Mr. Russell said he chose the occasion of Universal Bible Sunday for his sermon on the Bible.

In his opening statements he declared that the Bible is the central book of Christian faith. Then he proceeded to look to see if the ancient book had any meaning for contemporary living.

The Bible's age disqualifies it in the minds of some. Mr. Russell offered that the Bible can make its contribution to moderns because of its ability to touch and influence the heart of the human family. God nor man have changed; so the Bible applies.

With accomplishments in all fields of learning having gone far. Mr. Russell said moral development had lagged. "We do not know how to control what we have," he said.

Speakers for the truth do not care about the age of the book from which it comes. "Timeless, as up-to-date as the latest communique," it has the message that the man of today needs.

After relating the Bible's Christmas story Mr. Russell firmly stated that unless men "are star lifted and love-led our world is doomed."

Then he went on to say that the Goble Cannon, 1106 Hebert St. St. Louis, Mo., says in this day and age it doesn't matter how old you are—it is how young you feel. Mr. Cannon says he's seen a lot of these young, high powered fellows just burn themselves out, while folks that know how to live never seemed to get old. Mr. Cannon says that since he has been taking HADACOL he feels as spry as a 18-year-old. Mr. Cannon found he was suffering a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.

Mr. Cannon was very proud to give us this statement: "My job as crossing watchman for the Wash Railroad keeps me in one place and I don't have a chance to get much exercise. I seem to get gas on my stomach and then I lose my appetite. Many times I have had nervous spells and been unable to sleep at night. Then one day I heard how other folks were being helped by HADACOL. Now the gas on my stomach has vanished, my appetite is first rate and I get a good night's sleep and those nervous spells? I very seldom have them any more at all. I think HADACOL is mighty fine—just look what it has done for me."

The most important thing about HADACOL is that you get Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in liquid form, which means that they are quickly absorbed and dispatched to the blood stream, ready to go right to work. HADACOL helps build up blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every part of your body.

Remember HADACOL is that wonderful new preparation—promising blessed relief for your indigestion, stomach disturbances (gas, heartburn, sour "risings" after meals), as well as that general run-down condition and vague aches and pains when they are due to a lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin in your system.

HADACOL is so amazingly successful because if your system lacks Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin it acts directly to relieve this deficiency—the real cause of your trouble. That's the kind of product you want—the kind you should buy—the kind you should start taking immediately.

Only One Genuine HADACOL. Don't go through life suffering those vague aches and pains if caused by such deficiencies when relief may be as close at hand as the nearest drugstore for sufferers from these deficiencies. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL. If your drugist does not have HADACOL, order it direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

McCrary Drops East Carolina, 61 - 50

Top Semi-Pro Outfit Sparked By Former College Stars; Sonny Russell Leads Individual Scoring With 16 Points

By BILL LLOYD
Reflector Sports Editor
A strong McCrary Eagles semi-pro outfit, led by several former college stars, outscored East Carolina's Pirates here Saturday night, 61-50, before 1,800 fans that packed Wright gymnasium.

Sparked by such stars from the collegiate ranks as Coy Carson, ex-Carolina standout, Hilliard Nance, one-time All-North Stater at High Point, Ab Williams, former Wake Forest great, and Bill Sheets, another High Point star, the Eagles from Asheboro broke a 24-24 tie at the close of the first half and then coasted to their victory.

From the outbreak of things, it looked as if the Buccaneers might be successful in quest of their third straight victory, as Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman, two high-scoring forwards for the Pirates, stripped the basket with torrid pace, to give EC's cagers a 20-16 lead midway of the first half.

But at this point, Carson and H. Nance began hitting with deadly accuracy to roll the Eagles within two points of the Bucs, 24-22.

Forward Dave Allen hit on a lay-up to knot the count, 24-all, Nance followed with a shot from the outer court, and made good on a charity toss, soaring the Eagles to a 28-24 margin, and after this, the Pirates' quint was unable to catch up.

All-Conference Sonny Russell received the individual scoring honors for the night with 16 points, with Huffman and Bobby Hodges, who made a futile scoring effort in the second half, had 12 points apiece.

Hilliard Nance bucketed 13 points for the winners for runner-up honors for the night, while Carson and Sheets dipped in 11 points each.

Coach Howard Porter's quint plays its final tilt before Christmas holidays here Thursday night against the Catawba Indians, in their second conference game. East Carolina has a 1-9 record in the North State, with a victory over Guilford.

Ray Scarborough Traded To Boston Red Sox By Chicago

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 11—(AP)—Once again, as in the past three seasons, the fence-busting Boston Red Sox rule a strong favorite to win the American League pennant—and with good reason.

Already strengthened by the acquisition of Lou Boudreau, the once peerless shortstop, the Red Sox yesterday struck fear into the hearts of their rivals by the completion of a $4,000,000 five-man trade with Chicago that helped where it was needed most—pitching.

The important deal, first to be consummated at the winter baseball meetings here, brings to Boston a pair of front line hurlers—left-hander Bill Wight and right-hander Ray Scarborough—in exchange for rightfielder Allen Zarilla and pitcher Joe Dobson and Dick Littlefield.

All except the rookie Littlefield are veterans of many campaigns. Littlefield, a 24-year-old southpaw, came to the Red Sox from Birmingham last August and finished with a 2-2 record. Both sides insist no money figured in the deal.

Wight, 28, won 10 and lost 16 for the second division White Sox last season. Scarborough, who came to the Sox in a six-man trade with Washington last May, wound up with a 13-18 record. The latter, known as a "Red Sox killer" over the years, is 32. He has been credited with knocking the Red Sox out of two pennants. He beat them in decisive last ditch games in 1948 and '49. Boston was beaten for the flag by one game each season. Zarilla, 30, had a fine year with Boston hitting 325 in 130 games and knocking in 74 runs. Dobson, 34, had a 15-10 record last year. His lifetime mark against Chicago is 17-6.

The deal, on the eve of the start of the major league meetings today, left the leaders of Detroit, Cleveland and New York Yankees utterly dismayed.

State Scraps Temple In Week's Top Game

Richmond, Va., Dec. 11—(AP)—William and Mary's Indians, who surprised Wake Forest Saturday night, make their second appearance of the campaign in Southern Conference basketball competition tonight at Maryland.

The Indians, led by Peery (Bitsy) Lewis, turned back the Deacons of Wake Forest, 71-49. Lewis contributed 22 points.

Maryland will be making its first start in league play. The Old Liners have played three non-loop tilts, beating Virginia and losing to the Quantico Marines and Pennsylvania.

In the only other contest tonight, Wake Forest goes to Winston-Salem, N.C., to battle the independent Hanes Hosiers.

North Carolina State, the circuit's defending champions, ended the first big week of conference play by leading the family feud with three triumphs against no setbacks. North Carolina was second with two wins. William and Mary and West Virginia were deadlocked for third, each with one decision. In Saturday night's other games, North Carolina squeezed by Davidson, 72-69; Enka (N.C.) Mills stopped Washington and Lee, 3-67; Virginia Tech downed Roanoke College, 71-61; Duke remained unbeaten by whipping Virginia, 77-57; Presbyterian edged Clemson, 78-76; Georgia Tech routed Furman, 87-50; West Virginia battered Bethany, 93-51, and the Norfolk (Va.) Navy five tripped Virginia Military, 51-44.

The remainder of this week's schedule: Tuesday—Temple at George Washington; South Carolina at Georgia; Quantico Marines at Washington and Lee; Furman at Newberry.

Wednesday—Maryland at Virginia; George Washington at University of Richmond; Virginia Military vs. Roanoke College at Roanoke, Va.

Thursday—Furman at South Carolina; Clemson at Georgia; Hampden-Sydney vs. William and Mary at Hampton, Va.; Eastern Kentucky at North Carolina State.

Friday—Duke at Virginia Military; Virginia at George Washington; Wake Forest at Washington and Lee; Davidson at University of Richmond.

Tourney Plans Made By Officials Of Northeastern

Edenton, Dec. 11—Kinston and Elizabeth City were named co-champions of the Northeastern conference in the annual fall meeting last week.

It was decided to award both teams the championship by a six to one vote, and identical trophies will be presented to both schools.

The question of revision of the conference constitution was brought up during the meeting, and a committee composed of Jack Horne, principal of Kinston High School, Joe Kornegay, principal of Washington High School, and George Thompson of Edenton, was appointed to work on the revision.

Tournament plans for the 1950-51 basketball season were also set up during the meeting. The conference officials decided to hold the annual Northeastern tourney the last week-end in February in Greenville, with the games being played in the Wright gymnasium at East Carolina Teachers College.

The pairings for the tournament place the four top teams into two brackets, with team one and team three in the first bracket, and teams two and four in the lower bracket. The clubs will draw for their opponents and byes.

Clinic For Girls

A clinic on high school basketball for girls will be held in the Wright auditorium at East Carolina Teachers College Tuesday, Dec. 11, from 4:30 until 6:00 in the afternoon. Sponsor for the clinic will be the department of health and physical education at the college. The program for the afternoon will cover interpretations of the rules as well as various techniques of the game.

The clinic will be open to any high school player or coach in the eastern section of North Carolina. Activities will be directed by members of the faculty of the East Carolina department of health and physical education.

Phantoms Help Capital City Quint Open 1950-51 Season; Briley, Haymes, Scott, Aman And Dillingham Starters

Greenville's Phantoms, designated as Class AAA "giant-killers" after their 48-44 triumph over Wilson last Friday, go against their third outside opponent tonight, playing Raleigh's High School Caps in the Capital City.

Tip-off is slated for eight o'clock in the Needham Broughton gymnasium.

Coach Bo Parley's up-and-coming crew rallied late in the last three periods against the Cyclones Friday night to post their No. 1 victory of the season. They had previously lost to Rocky Mount.

Jimmy Dillingham, who sank 20 points last Friday night, is expected to lead the bucket-brigade in tonight's clash, with Virginius Haymes scheduled for the other forward position.

Rangy Sydney Briley, big six-foot center, will be the player to handle the rebounds and add a scoring effect for the Phants.

Wheelhorse guard Johnny Aman and Glenn Scott, who has taken a starting nod at the other guard position, will round out the starting quint for the local high schoolers.

Reserve strength for the Phantoms will be upheld by such players as Larry Flye, Eddie Farley and Leon Moore at forwards; Wallace Conway at center, and Jake Higgs and Billy Wooten at the guard replacements.

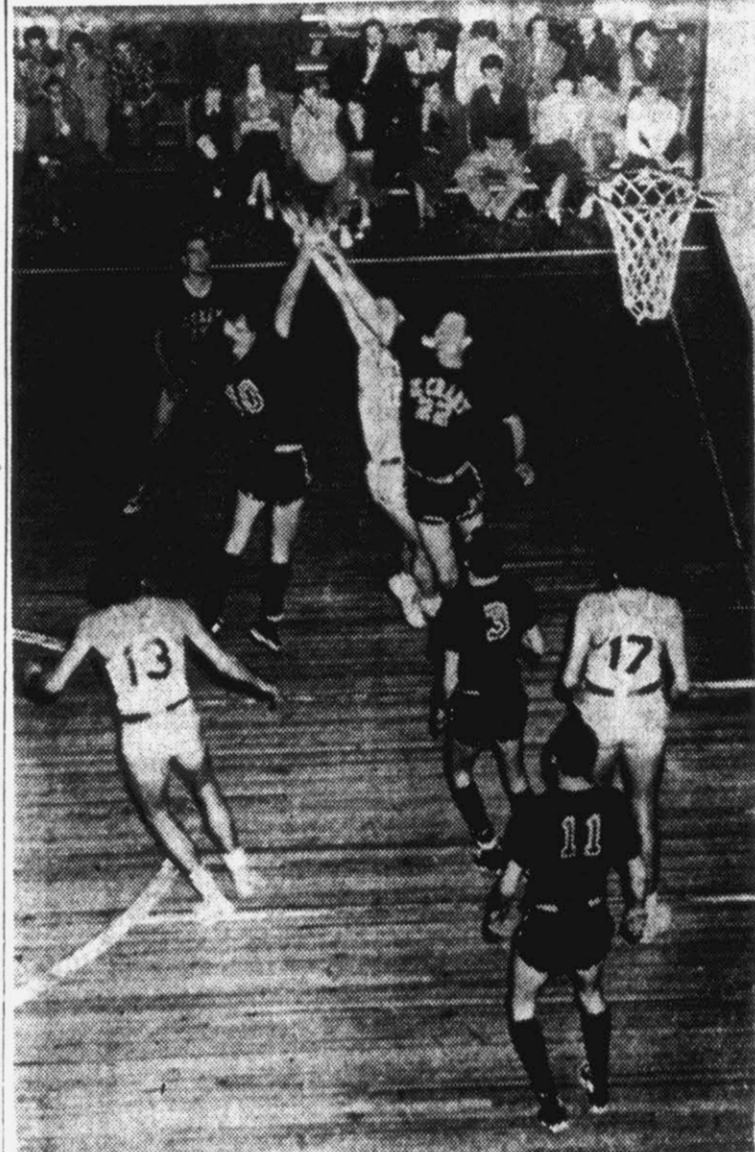

The probable starting lineup for the Caps who open their season tonight will be Thornton and Colvin at forwards; Ussery at center; and Kelly and Williamson at guards.

Ranzino, Bubas Lead State Cagers

Richmond, Va., Dec. 11—(AP)—Sammy Ranzino and Vic Bubas have shot North Carolina State's Westpack into a commanding lead in the Southern Conference basketball race.

Ranzino contributed 69 points and Bubas 51 in the Pack's first three conference games. Sammy, a forward, dropped in 24 points and Bubas, a guard, sank 22 last night as State came from behind in the second half to conquer George Washington's Colonials, 86-71. Both are from Gary, Ind. and seniors.

Three Die, Seven Hurt In Accident

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 11—(AP)—Seven Negroes were in a local hospital today as the result of an automobile wreck Saturday night in which three others were killed.

In all, 11 Negroes were riding in the car which ran off the highway and overturned several times about one mile and a half southeast of Raleigh on the Rock Quarry Road. State Highway Patrolman W. J. Currin said the only person who escaped injuries, Herman Watson of Smithfield, was charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey. Currin said the group, apparently out for a pleasure ride, was headed towards Raleigh from Clayton when the accident occurred.

Fanatic Moslem Mobs Stage Big Singapore Riot

Singapore, Dec. 11—(AP)—Thousands of violent, fanatic Moslems raged through Singapore tonight in an effort to kidnap 13-year-old Maris Berthe Hertogh, raised as a Moslem but recently returned by court order to her Dutch mother.

Hundreds of armed police, lining all roads to the Catholic convent where Maris and her mother are sheltered, so far have prevented the mobs from approaching the building, which the rioters said they would burn down "if it took all night."

The mobs ranged the city, battling police, overturning and burning automobiles, with Dutchmen as their prime target. They heaved bottles, clubs and stones at passing vehicles.

Scores of European women were attacked with bottles on the streets and in automobiles. There were unconfirmed reports that some European children had been kidnapped as hostages until Maria Bertha is returned to the Moslem faith, her Malay foster mother and her Malay schoolteacher husband.

One British police officer was seriously hurt in the clashes. Two Malays were shot and seriously wounded. More than a score of European men reported to police outposts they had been beaten with clubs, stoned and struck with bottles.

Flames and columns of smoke shot skyward as angry mobs ranged the streets attacking European-owned automobiles. Throngs of Moslems angrily shouted at foreigners to get out of Singapore as they looted bargages of stones and clubs at passersby.

As police, armed with riot New York today after being man-broke up their mass formations, the squads of Malays and Indians hid in clumps of bushes along the streets and roadways, awaiting the chance for further violence.

Tarheel Group In Washington Meet

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 11—(AP)—Governor Scott and a Wilmington delegation are scheduled to meet with North Carolina's congressional delegation tomorrow in Washington.

They will discuss the possibility of getting a lease from the Maritime Commission on government shipyard property at Wilmington.

The governor and the Wilmington group want a portion of the shipyard to be leased to the Buncher Company of Pittsburgh. Buncher has indicated it would operate a drydock promised the state of North Carolina if it can secure part of the Maritime Commission property.

Sport Slants By Pap

Coach Eddie Anderson can thank his lucky stars that Charlie Mayo changed his mind about going to Notre Dame and switched to Holy Cross. Without Mayo to give his Crusaders a big lift on offense with his brilliant passing, Dr. Anderson's return to Holy Cross would have been a dismal homecoming.

Mayo, a baby-faced, 18-year-old sophomore from Rochester, N. Y., has established himself as one of the best collegiate passers in the country. Standing six feet and weighing 175 pounds, he has the bearing of a natural football player. He has a pair of huge hands that almost completely wrap around

Rickey Predicts Diamond Sport Will Continue

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 11—(AP)—Branch Rickey, his managerial problems settled by the retention of Bill Meyer at Pittsburgh, predicted that baseball would continue in the event of total mobilization.

The astute general manager of the Pirates, who arrived here Friday for the major league convention, scoffed at rumors of a government ban on baseball to further the war effort.

"It is my firm conviction that the government would want baseball to make every effort to continue," Rickey told a press conference. "Baseball must be kept going."

Rickey pointed out that the game survived World War 2 despite total mobilization.

"If baseball served a purpose then," he said, "it would serve the same purpose now. The government, at great expense, undertook during the last war to divert attention of the servicemen from the monotony of their work. Baseball helped by organizing groups to tour the war fronts. That was done by the government for the sake of the morale of the men in uniform as well as those in overalls."

Rickey was quick to point out that baseball didn't want to do anything that would have the remotest possibility of frustrating the war effort.

Wilson 'Family' Cage Tourney Still To Be Held

Wilson, N. C., Dec. 11—Despite the fact the Korean troubles has creamed off some of the best team prospects available, the Seventh Annual National Family Basketball Tournament will be held here December 28, 29, and 30.

Faced with either dropping this unique and nationally known project or scouting to the far corners of every village and state, the tournament committee had decided to go ahead with plans this year.

Flooded with requests for entries since the tournament was started by a school teacher and newspaper writer here in 1938, this novel sports feature is practically assured of success even before it starts.

For no other reason that the fact that each family playing in the tournament thinks his clan is the best doggone family in the world, the tournament has won the acclaim of hundreds of families all over the country since its initiation.

Only persons immediately connected to a family are allowed to play—brother, sisters, fathers, mothers and even grandfathers.

The Clark Twins of Huntington, Indiana, who won this annual family argument for two years in a row, is perhaps the most popular group ever to participate. Three sets of twins in that one family were moulded into a formidable cage outfit, and the crowds loved 'em.

This year, another family composed of three sets of twins will enter, including one girl member. They're the Woodards of Bayboro, North Carolina.

The Snavely family of Sidney, Ohio and the Doyle clan of Salem, Massachusetts, are the only two entrants this year who have previously played in the tournament.

Some Military Men Back China Guerrilla Warfare

By ELTON C. FAY
Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—Some American military men believe guerrilla warfare on the Chinese mainland by Chiang Kai-shek's forces, with some help, could do effective damage to the Communist. This opinion, expressed to a reporter today by officials who cannot be named, is based on military factors. It does not take into account international political and diplomatic considerations. Because of these latter factors and White House expressions of disapproval, there is reluctance to push the idea.

One military view is that such operations would be of definite value as a diversionary operation to draw away some of the Chinese Communist strength now being poured into the war in Korea. President Truman has been cool to proposals to aid the Chinese Nationalist guerrilla effort because of the danger that Russia might seize upon such aid as pretext for openly intervening in the Asiatic war. Nevertheless, it is known that some quiet, long-range studies are underway here which could be used if and when Administration and diplomatic policies change.

Among other developments, a high ranking officer of one of the services who was an expert on guerrilla activities in the Far East during World War II has been brought back to Washington from an overseas assignment to help in the studies.

Dispatches from the Far East suggest that a sizeable Nationalist guerrilla force exists in China. Spencer Moosa, Associated Press correspondent in Formosa, says estimates range from less than 1,000,000 up to 1,600,000. But he points out they are poorly equipped, with old arms and little ammunition. And, he adds, they need a unified leadership.

Representatives of the Pitt group were Sam B. Underwood, Jr., M. K. Blount, William Watson, Greenville; and John B. Lewis, Farmville. The tax conference was sponsored by the North Carolina Bar Association and was attended by 70-odd attorneys throughout the State.

Chief speaker for the occasion was John S. Graham, Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury. Graham spoke on "Practices and Procedures in Federal Income Tax Cases"—the theme of the discussions.

Temperatures In Southeast Drop

By the Associated Press
Freezing temperatures hit the southeastern states today as more snow swirled over an area from the New England states southeastward to the Tennessee valley.

The snowfall was reported heavy at some points in New York State. Moderately strong winds in the northeastern states were attributed to a storm of moderate intensity centered off the New Jersey coast. Rain fell along the coast from Philadelphia to Boston.

Skies generally were clear and temperature moderate elsewhere over the nation except in the upper Mississippi valley, the Great Lakes region and northern Pacific coast. Light snow occurred in the upper Mississippi valley and Great Lakes area where temperatures again dipped below seasonal normals during the night. Green Bay, Wis., had a low of zero, and at Chicago the mercury dropped to 7 above.

But a low of 26 degrees at Birmingham, Ala., and 25 at Charlotte, N. C., compared with a balmy 40 at Billings, Mont., 31 at Bismarck, N. D., and 55 at Denver. At Tampa, Fla., the mercury sank to 42 degrees while Boston had a low of 44. Asheville, N. C., had a low of 21, and Charleston, S. C., 29.

Meat Ration Cut For Britishers

London, Dec. 11—(AP)—A 22 per cent cut in the small fresh meat rations to British consumers took effect today. Corned beef was put on the market as a substitute for the loss of fresh meat from the ration.

At the time the cut was announced earlier this month, the Ministry of Food stated the reduction was the direct result of failure of British and Argentina to agree on prices to be paid for Argentine beef.

British meat stocks are reported to be declining steadily and there is some speculation that another reduction in the weekly ration soon may be necessary.

Doctor Believes Ilse Koch Faking Insanity In Trial

Augsburg, Germany, Dec. 11—(AP)—A doctor testified today he believes Ilse Koch is faking insanity to escape her trial for concentration camp atrocities.

The "red witch of Buchenwald" was carried from her jail cell to Augsburg Hospital in a screaming frenzy last night. Her jail warden reported she shrieked, "I am guilty, I am a sinner," as she was taken from her cell.

Two doctors told the court today they did not regard Frau Koch as insane. Her trial on charges of causing murder and atrocities at the Buchenwald concentration camp continued today despite her absence as medical authorities investigated her mental condition.

Funeral On Tuesday For Lyman E. Bowen

Lyman E. Bowen, 33, died in Memorial General Hospital in Kinston at 7:50 o'clock Sunday night after having been accidentally burned Friday afternoon. Funeral services will be conducted at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Bowen, near Ormondsville Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock by F. A. Julian, minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, and burial will be in the Bowen cemetery nearby.

Mr. Bowen was born, reared, and spent all his life in the Ormondsville community and was employed by the State Highway Department. He was a believer of Jehovah's Witnesses Kingdom Hall at Maury. He was married to Geneva Suggs of near Ormondsville in 1934, and she survives with two sons: Wallace and J. D. Bowen, and two daughters: Viennie Lou and Judy Bowen, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Bowen; three brothers: R. L. Bowen of Ormondsville, Wilbur Bowen of Walstonburg and Milton Bowen of Hookerton; two sisters: Misses Irma and Lillie Dean Bowen, of the home; and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bowen of near Ormondsville.

Residents Complain About Use Firearms

Residents of the southeastern part of the city complained to the police over the weekend about boys shooting rifles in the Mill Run section, back of the Westbrook apartments, on Charles street, near 14th street.

The investigating officer reported that two teen boys who admitted the shooting said they "did not know it was against the law" to shoot firearms in the city.

WIRING IGNITED

Firemen were called to the intersection of Washington and Fourth streets Saturday night to a car which was on fire. The cause of the fire was believed to be due to faulty wiring. There was no great damage, firemen reported.

airforce. Pakistan's figures are her own private affair.

However, what we do know is that India ranks eighth among the industrial nations of the world. She has the greatest steel mills in Asia. This is a factor of tremendous importance. Armies are helpless without industrial backing—and India has that support in a big way. Pakistan's contribution apart from manpower, if she were India's ally, would be in agricultural products. They should make a good team.

The Control . . .

signed, an economic control bill. In addition to handing the President power to impose wage and price controls, if he wanted to use it, this new law gave the government various other powers. For example:

Rationing power, penalties for hoarding, control on real estate and consumer buying, allocation of scarce industrial materials, priorities for defense orders, government loans and guarantees to get defense production going, and requisitioning of plants and equipment needed by the government.

Most of those powers the government already has started using. But not rationing or price and wage controls. On Sept. 9 Mr. Truman said in a broadcast the government would use price and wage controls when necessary.

He created the Economic Stabilization Administration that same day, Sept. 9, and 10 days later, appointed Dr. Alan Valentine, and educator, to head it.

asked not to raise their prices but they went ahead and raised them. On Dec. 8 Di Salle said he saw no reason for using price and wage controls now and hoped they wouldn't be necessary. Besides, he said, it would take another 60 to 90 days to get a staff together to administer them. He figured it would need 60,000 employes and 250,000 volunteers.

Two days later, Dec. 1, Mr. Truman appointed the mayor of Toledo—Michael Di Salle, Price Administrator.

On Dec. 4, Valentine said he had only limited faith in voluntary price controls. The next day the Ford and General Motor companies raised prices on their cars. The same day DiSalle said he wanted to give voluntary controls a chance to work.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

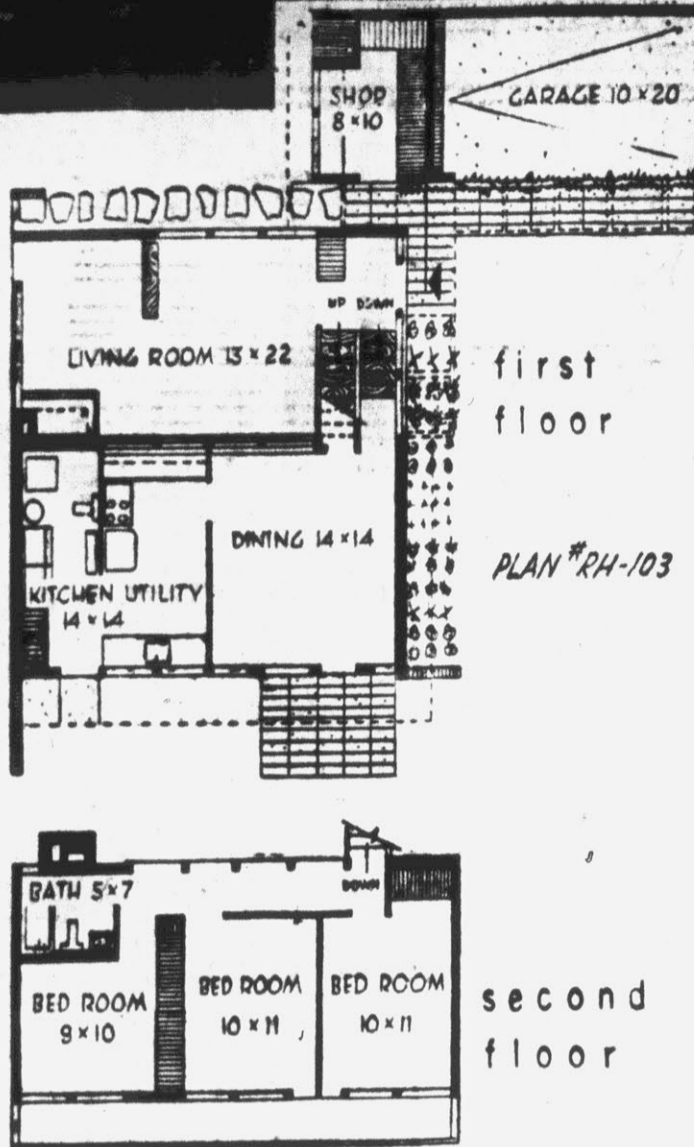

SMARTLY contemporary in style, this three-level house for a sloping site has its garage, entrance and living room on the mid-level. Half-a-flight up are three bedrooms and a bath. Under these and a half-flight down from the living room level are the dining room, kitchen and utility room.

This is Plan RH-103 by David Kunzels, 6235 Valley Rd., Kansas City, Mo. The house covers only 840 square feet exclusive of garage and shop.

Sponsored by the Southwest Research Institute, it was built in Jefferson County, Kans., for $18,000, including various quality features, such as complete copper fittings, flashing, and termite shields.

Ceiling beams and brick walls are exposed in the main rooms and natural wood finish is used throughout.

Safety Was Their No. 1 Crop

Charles F. Kettering, world-famed inventor and research consultant to General Motors, came to Chicago to address the 29th annual National 4-H Club Congress and also took time off to congratulate eight farm youths who each won $300 college scholarships plus a free trip to Chicago as the guests of General Motors for their outstanding contributions to farm safety. GM has sponsored the 4-H Farm Safety program for the last six years. Left to right are: Carolyn Younker, of Utah, Milton Spain, of North Carolina, Sally Hornecker, of Oregon, Mr. Kettering, Lawrence Beymer, of Indiana, Virginia McCoy, of Arkansas and Marian Linn, of Ohio. Kneeling are Valeria Logemann, of Minnesota and Vivian Fulton, of New York.

Home Planning Guidance To Aid Building Plans

New York—(AP)—The New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects has established a Small House Consulting Service to enable more prospective home owners to have architectural advice in the planning and construction of new houses.

A panel of 28 registered architects has been set up with each member available on appointment for discussion of individual problems at fees of $10 per hour. The chapter holds that full architectural service in the planning of a house is worth 12 per cent of the cost of the house. John Callender, chairman of the consulting panel, says "the person who cannot afford the complete services of an architect can now obtain professional advice on a part time basis. The profession feels certain it can save the public many dollars and troubles."

Average house lighting circuits function satisfactorily on 15-ampere fuses, while circuits working appliances may require 20-ampere. Latest figures indicate that there are 3,550,000 tractors tractors on U.S. farms.

Magazine Crew Roughly Treated By Townspeople

Ellenton, S. C., Dec. 11—(AP)—Two Red Book magazine staffers working on a story of the H-bomb material plant to be built in this area were on their way back to New York today after being manhandled by a group of Ellenton citizens. Chief John E. Steed said he didn't have first hand information on the fracas yesterday in front of the Baptist church. But he said that some people "have been confused and hardly responsible for their actions" since it was announced they would have to move to make way for the $200,000,000 H-bomb project. There were conflicting versions of the squabble involving the two magazine staffers—photographer Ike Vern and writer Booton Herndon. At Raleigh, N. C., Herndon said in a telephone call to New York that he and Vern had been in the area about a week, talking with people and making pictures. They had made arrangements with the pastor to photograph people in front of the church after the service. The way Herndon explained it: "A door opened and a group of men came out. They seemed to be in a hurry. A husky, stocky man was in the lead. The next thing I knew they were slugging Vern. He tried to protect his cameras. I went to Vern's assistance. The first thing I knew they were slugging me. There were at least 10 of them. "They yelled, 'get out of town—We didn't strike back—' "We didn't strike back—they were all around us. They were going for Vern's cameras. "Some other people came out of the church and watched." Herndon said he and Vern finally managed to reach their automobiles and drive away. Steed said two magazine representatives had been asked not to take pictures while the church was having services and the fracas started when they tried to photograph the congregation as it left the church. Steed said he understood "only a few licks" were passed and no one was hurt much. He added that Vern and Herndon made no complaint to his office and he intends to drop the matter unless they do so.

Disaster Warned By Evangelist

Atlanta, Dec. 11—(AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham concluded the largest religious revival in this city's history yesterday by warning that this nation has blinded itself to impending disaster. Graham's aides said the six week meeting was the third largest revival in modern history. Total attendance was figured at 494,600, an average of 10,628 per sermon. The total was surpassed only by 682,000 who heard Graham in six weeks in Portland, Ore., and by about 1,500,000 who heard Billy Sunday in 11 weeks in New York in 1922, the evangelist's aides said. The subject of Graham's closing sermon was "The end of the world." He said the earth itself would not end, but the "world system" will. He urged all to save themselves by turning to God. He said a high government official told him in Washington last summer that "we have no cause to worry about the world situation."

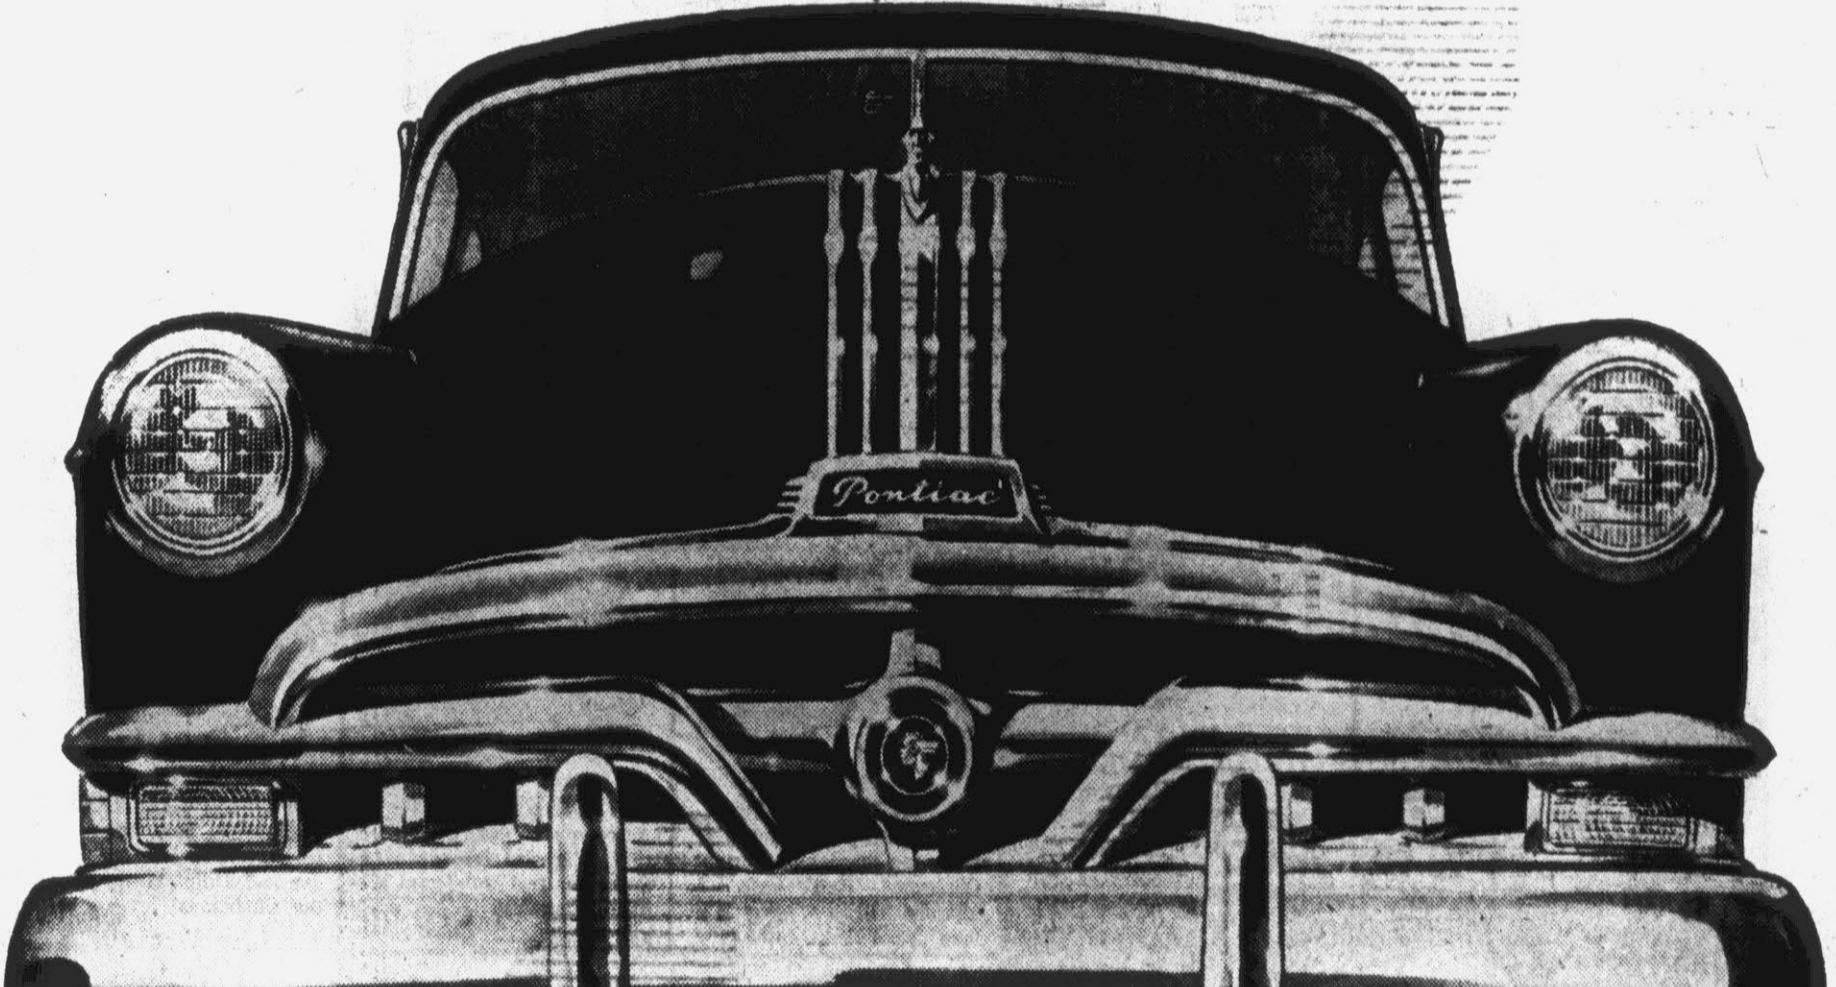

Burmese Charge Police Torture

Rangoon—(AP)—A peace mission committee at Katha, north Burma, Irrawaddy town, has charged the police of the district with excesses against the townsfolk. It has told the district commissioner that the police responsible for state property use Japanese Kempeitai methods to force confessions from suspects. These police are known as the four p's. Their official title is Preservation of Public Property Police. State property includes everything from government treasure to state-controlled forest lands.

Coal Industry Awaits Move By John L. Lewis For Wage Boost

Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—If he feels like it, John L. Lewis has only to pick up his telephone to start a movement for a fifth round wage increase for his coal miners.

He has given no indication of any plan to move before next spring, but he seldom tips his hand in advance.

The industry is now so organized that Lewis need only call Harry Moses, official spokesman for most of the commercial and steel companies' mines in northern and western fields, or Joseph E. Moody, head of the southern group. Both have offices about 100 yards from Lewis' United Mine Workers headquarters.

The contracts covering most of the nation's hard and soft coal diggers don't expire until April 1, 1951. However, there is no bar to voluntary wage increases if the operators agree to them before contracts are slapped on prices and wages.

Most operators believe that since Lewis usually puts great emphasis on his contracts, he is more likely to ask for a voluntary concession than to kick over the traces. The mine owners themselves insisted on a one-year reopening clause in the contract they signed last spring. They say Lewis would have agreed to a contract closed for two years.

Whenever Lewis decides to move, the fact he has only to deal with Moses and Moody—at least until a bargain is virtually made—greatly streamlines the procedure. Once he had to deal with several regional committees.

In 1945 and early 1946, the operators had one nation-wide committee. That didn't last, largely because the southern coal operators wanted to do their own negotiating.

Most of the balance of the industry then got together in an association with Moses at the head. He now speaks for about 150,000,000 tons of soft coal production, including all that of the "captive" mines of steel companies. That is one-third of the coal dug by Lewis' UMW.

Some operators and other management officials say they would not be surprised if Lewis waited until government controls are fixed on prices and wages before he seeks a wage boost. That is based on a theory that he would like to attack a controls system with which he might not be in sympathy.

Not all operators believe that. Some say that Lewis would rather abide by the rules in an emergency even though he did not follow the example of other labor leaders who gave a no-strike pledge in World War II.

Lewis insisted that the "Little steel" formula, limiting wage increases to 15 per cent above January 1941 levels, was unfair.

Homework Value Now Questioned

New York—(AP)—How valuable is homework?

It may have no value, says Dr. James V. McGill, first assistant in social studies in New York City's John Adams High School, writing in "High Points", a magazine published by the New York City Board of Education.

Dr. McGill enlisted four Adams High School social studies teachers in a two-term experiment. On the basis of ability and intelligence tests, they paired off 185 pupils, half in classes where no homework was required, the other half in classes with daily homework. Tests at the end of the year showed about the same level of achievement.

However cautious, Dr. McGill, let's not follow this conclusion out the window. A great deal of research must still be instituted in

Malayan Unions Losing Members

Singapore—(AP)—Malayan trade union membership is steadily dropping. The 1949 annual report of the Registry of Trade Unions revealed that 30,000 members left their unions during the year.

Only five per cent of Malayan workers—about 50,000—were in organized unions at the end of the year.

WINDSORS IN REUNION:—The Duchess of Windsor affectionately embraces the Duke of Windsor aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth just after the ship docked in New York. Pakistan Buys River Flotilla

Karachi, Pakistan—(AP)—The first of a flotilla of river craft purchased by the East Pakistan government from the Philippines is now in operation in the Chittagong area of this province.

The entire flotilla will consist of 41 barges, nine tugs, three pushers, a 30-ton floating crane, a fully-equipped floating workshop and a few other miscellaneous dispatching boats. It is being manned by Pakistan nationals but officered by Americans, Filipinos and Danes.

Reds 'Explain' Election In U.S.

Vienna—(AP)—Know why the U.S. elections were so close a few weeks ago? Wall Street wanted the two major parties to have almost equal forces so they could be easily handled. That's the story being told behind the Iron Curtain.

Communist newspapers in Hungary and Romania are explaining to their readers that the election results don't really matter anyway, since "it is well known that there are no essential differences between the two parties, both being at the service of Wall Street's war interest."

TEEN TALK

(Dear Judge)

AP Newsfeatures.....
Your backbone can be broadened by some good stiff New Year's resolutions if you make them with a firm desire to start a brand new book in 1951. It takes a lot of thought to decide where you can improve yourself. The mirror doesn't always show up faults. We must carefully scrutinize our thoughts, words and actions to determine exactly how our code of living may be improved.

After you've made your resolutions don't order a golden halo and silver wings to convince people that you mean business. You'll trip on the golden ladder lots of times and your staff will tarnish but if you set your sights in the right direction, that's half the battle.

Here are some reminders of little character builders to help bolster your morale:

1. Believe in yourself. Learn to make decisions after carefully weighing problems and don't be persuaded to change your mind when you know you are right. It is wrong to take a wishy-washy attitude toward things and then let someone else make up your mind for you.
2. Use good judgment in choosing friends. If you have been thrown in with a fast crowd, don't conform to their pattern of living because you think you must be the one out of step. On the question of manners and morals, never let anyone lower your standards.

3. Keep up with world affairs. Just don't drift through space or put yourself on a little plane out of touch with world situations. Read at least one good paper each day and study the editorials to determine how others react to world events. Compare their opinions to yours in order to broaden your own viewpoint.

4. Trust your family. Your mother can advise you on any problem from Santa Claus to sex, so why confide in others? Certainly she is better equipped than some childless authors and lecturers who are likely to give contradictory and haphazard advice. Your best friend can only give her "st-guesses" also, probably, so why not take your problem to Mother who knows you better than anybody else.

5. Honesty always pays off. If you lie or cheat, you won't hurt anybody but yourself because your conscience will bother you. The liar, in particular, always trips himself up.

6. Be loyal. Family and friends deserve your loyalty. Don't be critical of your family to strangers, and don't be a weathervane friend. A friend who trusts you deserves the same faith in return.

7. Stick to your beliefs. Pseudo-intellectuals will try to persuade you that white is black. They'll tell you that nice boys are stupid, families are old-fashioned and religion is a superstition. These people are off the beam on practically everything and adore tearing down principles society has built up. They follow a set pattern that is easy to spot.

8. Make the most of yourself. If you haven't an angel face or a glamorous figure don't climb into a corner and cry about it. You can improve your outward appearance by cleanliness, neatness and diet. If you improve your mental outlook, your looks will perk up.

9. Establish a time bank. Never let a minute go to waste unless it counts as rest or relaxation. Instead of spending time with people who do not contribute to your social, moral, educational or economic welfare, find legitimate pursuits which will further your interests now or in the future.

10. Lend a helping hand to others. If you have been endowed with more energy, money and natural resources than the next girl, help her to help herself with a little assistance from you.

Lawmakers Talk 'Smoking Age'

Bonn, Germany—(AP)—At what age should youngsters be allowed to smoke? Grown-ups in this country are just as widely split on the issue as anywhere else.

Now the law-makers of this young republic have made an energetic dash at it. What the law-makers wanted to decide was this: at what age may youngsters be allowed to smoke "in public"? After ten months of liberation they emerged with a draft of a new "youth protection law" to reduce age limit from 18 to 16 years.

Chapter 9
There came a loud knocking at the front door and Sheriff Ike Jones was instantly awake. Hastily, he pulled on his pants and went to the door.

A farmer named Doden stood there. "I just come in from the Bonnell farm," he explained. "The place has burned down. An 'Borrelli' burned up with the house, we figure."

"I see," said Jones. "Come in while I dress, Doden." "I'd better get 'em" back Sheriff. I've got to get the doc, too. Missus Bonnell's taking it awful hard."

"I'll ride right out." Jones rode at a running-walk, his heavy body deep between horn and cantle, and his thoughts were bitter. Ike Jones knew that the war had come. And for some strange reason, he felt a sense of relief. He had held the tension a long time.

Dawn was moving into the sky, coloring it and giving it life, when he came to the break in the fence. He decided that they had been out for nippers. Some cattle were grazing in the damp alfalfa. They were Jim Tuttle's Lazy N-S stock.

A farmer loped up. "Better chase this stock out of here, Pastor," Jones told him, "or they'll blast and die."

Two farmers stood on guard at the wreckage. The sheriff nodded to them and walked to where the dead man lay. He knelt there, one knee planted deep in the ashes, ad looked at the man for a long time. Then he got to his feet.

"Borrelli, Sheriff?" asked one of the farmers. Jones looked at the corpse again. "I don't know," he admitted. "But I guess it must be, if he's no place around."

Jones moved forward and got on his horse. "Doc's coming out. Will you stay until he comes?" "All right."

Jones spurred his horse and loped toward the Tuttle ranch. Jim Tuttle saw him from where he sat, looking through the window, and went to the door. "Come on in, Sheriff, and rest your saddle."

They entered the dining room where Cynthia and Mrs. Tuttle and Jennie were. Jones nodded to each, and took a chair at the table. Then he said, "Where's McKee and the Mexican?"

"Eating down at the cookshack. We aim to start out a wagon today to work the northern hills, pull up to the Canadian line and work back toward the Milk."

"I've heard that," said Jones. "You don't know anything about this Bonnell fire, do you, Jim?" Jim Tuttle bridled. "You know me purty well, Ike. We've been friends for three years."

Jones smiled. "Hang onto yourself. I just wanted your word." "Both men were silent then, busy with knife and fork. His meal finished, Ike Jones got to his feet and placed his chair back in position.

When he was going to his horse, Buck McKee and Tortilla Joe met him outside the house, and Jones said, "This is bad range, men. Anything's bound to happen. Keep your eyes open, and if you need me, come for me. Remember this is not a gun-fighter range. We've got the law here, and I'm to enforce it. Don't take the bit in your mouth and bolt."

If you do, I'm trailing you down." Again Buck was impressed by the man's frankness, his level-headedness. "I sure will, Jones," he promised.

Mid-forenoon found him riding into the Cavanaugh Slashed Box 8 outfit. Len Cavanaugh and Shuffie Watson were looking at some horses. "You left town early," observed Cavanaugh.

Jones said, "Len, I did, and looked at the horses. They had the Running Six Iron—the stamp of a local horse outfit. "Buying some broncs, Cavanaugh?"

"Roundup coming up." Jones moved aside in his saddle; he let the tension build. He ran his gaze over the Slashed Box 8 riders and mentally counted them. One was missing.

"Where's Tom?" he asked. "He rode out," said Shuffie. "Yesterday evening."

"He was a good man," said Jones. "No, he wasn't much account, Sheriff," Shuffie corrected.

"I've warned Jim Tuttle, Len," he said. "I've warned Buck McKee and Tortilla Joe. When trouble starts—if it does start—they come to be. I'll have to ask you to do the same."

"I make my own answers," announced Cavanaugh. The group had grown ominously quiet. This registered on Ike Jones. "Just what do you know about this fire last night?"

"Not a thing." "I'm watching you, Len." "Watch and be damned." Jones turned his horse and rode away. Later, when he had passed the Tuttle ranch, he turned off the trail and rode to the blacksmith shop, where Buck was shrinking the tire on the mess wagon wheel.

"Len, Cavanaugh's on the prod," McKee, he told Buck. "I guess I can't hold you and Tortilla Joe and Jim to your promises."

"Somebody may have to kill Cavanaugh," said Buck. "That's what I've been thinking." (To be continued)

Cantata By Sixty-Voice Choir In Yuletide Program At College

"The Mystery of Bethlehem," a cantata to be sung by the sixty-voice College Choir of East Carolina Teachers College, will be a chief attraction of the annual Christmas concert presented by the department of music at the college. The program will take place Thursday evening, December 14, at 8:00 o'clock in the Austin auditorium on the campus. Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of the department, has announced. Approximately 150 students will participate. The public is invited to be present.

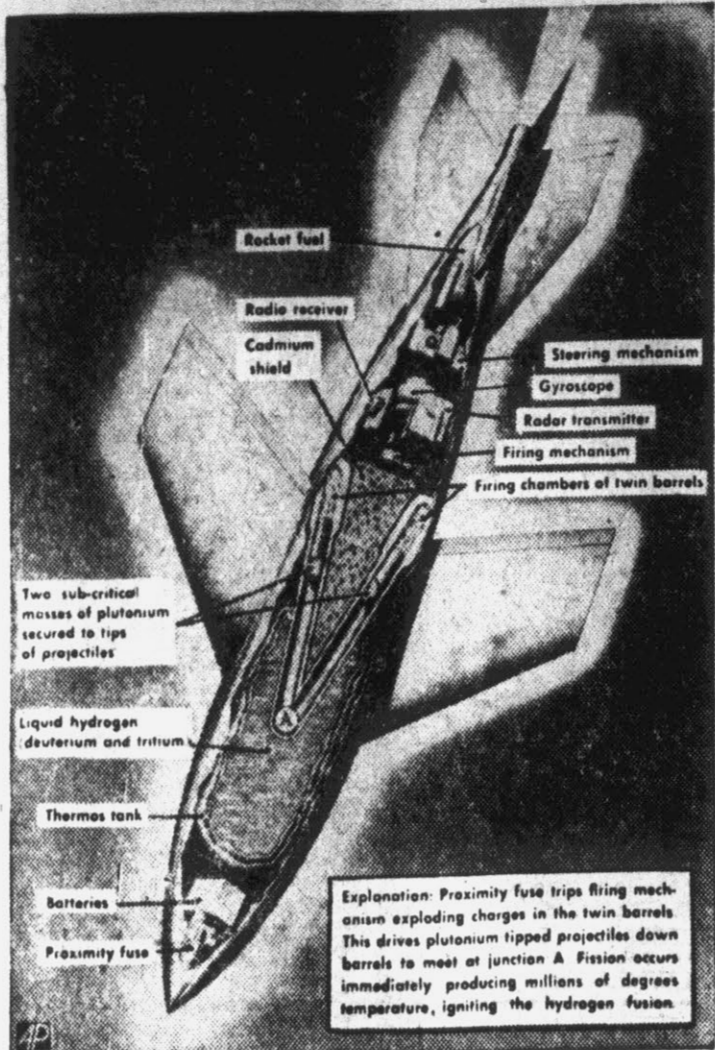

The program will begin with a Bach chorale-prelude, with Peggy Lane of Asheboro at the pipe organ. Following this, familiar carols will be given by a brass quartet directed by Herbert L. Carter of the faculty and made up of Herbert Ireland, New Bern; Ralph Lee Rogers, Jr., Rocky Mount; Boyd Elliott, Thomasville; and James Griffin, Scranton.

Both the Women's Chorus and the College Singers, led by Dan E. Vornholt of the faculty, will appear in Yuletide selections. Maxine Madrey of Severn will accompany the Chorus, and Madeline Hodges of Washington will play for the Singers. A trio, including as members Rebecca Julian, Salisbury; Loyce Carr, Wallace; and Jacqueline Waldron, Statesville, will sing under the direction of Gladys Reichard of the department of music.

Three student soloists will be presented in selections from Handel's "Messiah." They are Alfred Kieker, Götting, Nebraska; Audrey Louise Brooks, Falcon; and Mary Wallace Foy, Pollocksville. Accompanists will be Robert Craft, Beulaville; Carl Anderson, Elizabeth City; and Madeline Hodges, Washington.

Students of the modern dance, directed by Mrs. W. E. Dole of the health and physical education department, will give a dance drama "The Juggler and the Lady" as part of the concert. The College Singers will sing the old French carol "Les anges dans nos campagnes" during the performance.

Alison Hearne of Greenville and Robert Mays of Hopewell, Va., will be soloists for the cantata "The Mystery of Bethlehem," which will be directed by Dr. Karl V. Gilbert of the faculty. George Perry of the faculty, organist, Frances Dixon of Walsenburg, oboe player; and Carl Anderson of Elizabeth City, pianist, will accompany the College Choir in the cantata.

CONVICTION REVERSED:—Judith Coplon Socolov, former government employe, and her husband Albert Socolov, leave his law office in New York after learning that the Federal Court of Appeals has reversed her conviction on a charge of trying to pass government secrets to Russia. The court ordered a new trial on the ground that her arrest by FBI agents without a warrant was illegal. The court ruled "the guilt is plain" in refusing to dismiss the indictment. (AP Wirephoto).

Russia Winning, Says Dr Killian

Durham, N. C., Dec. 11—(AP)—Dr. James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said today the world is now in "World War Two and a Half" and there is explosive danger. "Russia may make it World War III."

However, he told a Duke University Founder's Day celebration that there was still hope another world war could be averted. "If the western world can reach its allies within Russia and the satellite states with the message of freedom, the communist leaders will realize that there are human aspirations which they must respect."

The Duke alumnus and member of the board of visitors of the Air Force's Air University declared that Russia is winning the cold war. He said "where the international game calls for the platoon system, we have only a defensive team, while the Russians outpoint us everywhere with the beguiling offensive tactics of communist ideas."

The celebration marked the 26th anniversary of the establishment of the Duke endowment by the late tobacco and utility magnate James B. Duke. The endowment enabled little Trinity College to enlarge and change its name to Duke University.

Objectivity Is Frowned Upon

Berlin—(AP)—A theatre critic in the Soviet sector of Berlin was sharply reprimanded for being objective about the West Berlin press.

Fritz Erpenbeck in some of his reviews quoted the reaction of West Berlin newspapers and illustrated magazines. The party press bureau objected hotly to his reprinting of West Berlin compliments for a Russian play. The statement made it clear the west press is "the warmongering press" and not even its compliments are to be accepted.

"A crass form of objectivity, in practical application, unthinkable," the statement said.

Slaying Charged Former Convict

Fayetteville, N. C., Dec. 11—(AP)—James Shelton Truelove, 26, a former convict, was captured in a barn Saturday and charged with murdering a policeman who had arrested him the night before.

Sheriff Leon Guy said Truelove admitted that he and Ester Lewis, 53, Cumberland county rural policeman, had a gun battle.

Lewis had arrested Truelove in connection with the shooting of a dog at the home of Truelove's estranged wife. The policeman was found fatally wounded in a road near here. His jeep was nearby.

A wide search started immediately for Truelove. He said in his statement that he was wounded slightly, and walked several hours before meeting his brother, Claude Truelove, 21.

Authorities surrounded the hay barn on an isolated farm near here. The Trueloves leaped from a second story window and surrendered.

Claude was charged with being an accessory after murder.

key to happiness

"WITH HEALTH, everything is a source of pleasure; without it, nothing else, whatever it may be, is enjoyable. It follows that the greatest of follies is to sacrifice health for any other kind of happiness; whatever it may be—for gain, advancement, learning, for fame, let alone, then, for fleeting sensual pleasures," advised Arthur Schopenhauer.

Stranded Dog

Syracuse, N.Y., Dec. 11—(AP)—Henry Brennan's dog has found out that what goes up—may need help getting down. Goliath was found Saturday stranded on a tree limb 35 feet above the ground. It took firemen 40 minutes to get him down.

Brennan said Goliath has been pretty good at treeing squirrels. This one apparently got away.

Man-Killing Dog Becomes 'Medic'

San Pedro, Calif.—(AP)—From trained man-killer to messenger of mercy, that's the story of Pvt. Alf. A handsome, jet-black German shepherd, Pvt. Alf spent five years of World War II guarding planes at a Luftwaffe air base in Berlin. You'll find him now, transformed from a snarling menace into a friendly "medic," stationed at Ft. MacArthur here. His harness bears a red cross, and his pack is a medical kit.

When the 400th Engineer Special Brigade was called from reserve status to active duty recently, Pvt. Alf answered the call to colors along with his master, Cpl. Joseph G. Certain. The two met in Berlin in 1948. Certain bought the dog from a former Luftwaffe officer for a few cartons of cigarettes.
