The King's Daughters Have Christmas Program

On Tuesday night the Patient Circle of The King's Daughters met at the home of Mrs. Charles Blanchard, with Mrs. H. T. Smith, Mrs. Alice Keel and Mrs. Dorothy Trotman assisting hostesses. The Christmas motif was used in attractively decorating the home.

Mrs. Leon Fleming gave the devotional based on Luke 2-8, the Christmas Story. Mrs. J. K. Long was the program speaker for the evening, taking as her subject "Cultivating the Art of Happiness." She quoted from Dr. Vincent Peel and other noted writers. Mrs. Long said, "Find happiness through God's help, keeping your heart free from hate, filled with love and share with others what God has given you. Everyone cannot be talented but by building up interest in our life, the Art of Real Happiness can be attained. Worry is dangerous—poison in the body—and the solution to overcome worries and problems is human achievement."

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Clara Moys Shacckell, president, reports were given by the Emergency Committee, Silver Cross Chairman, and Membership Committee. Two new members, Mrs. Annie Long and Miss Marietta Moore, were welcomed. Mrs. Martha Lee Cowell, chairman of the Building Fund for The King's Daughters Home for aged men and women, gave a very gratifying report, after which the Circle voted to exercise the option to purchase the Vines House and proceed with plans to establish The King's Daughters Home.

Members will meet on Friday night, December 22 at the home of Mrs. Hortense Moye, to fix boxes and baskets of food, clothing and toys to be distributed to those less fortunate at the Christmas season. At the conclusion of the meeting, members sang Christmas Carols by candle light while the hostesses served a delicious sweet course.

Christmas Program Presented To Club

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club met Tuesday, December 12, at the lovely home of Mrs. L. A. Stroud. Mrs. N. C. Brooks and Mrs. Dan Vornholt were assisting hostesses. It was the Christmas program and the gay reds and greens of the red candles, pyracantha berries, and Christmas ball centerpiece on the dining-room table added to the festive spirit as the group enjoyed coffee, sandwiches, and cookies, appropriate to the season.

Then Mrs. Robert Lee Humber presided over a short business meeting. Mrs. L. A. Stroud introduced her guests, Mrs. Richard E. Hardaway and Mrs. Robert E. Tunnell. Mrs. J. L. Savage in her charming and humorous way defined the spirit of Christmas and compared and contrasted our American Christmas customs with those of many other lands. Mrs. Robert Lee Humber added interesting details of Christmas in France. Silent Night was sung, gifts were exchanged, and the real spirit of the Christmas season stirred again in everyone's heart. The next meeting will be on January 9 at the home of Mrs. W. H. Woolard.

Couple Wed In Kinston Rites To Make Home In Greenville

MRS. CHARLES FRANKLIN DAIL

The Gordon Street Church of Christ was the scene of a wedding on Saturday, December 9, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon when Miss Phoebe Julia Moore, daughter of Mrs. Mildred Wooten Moore and the late Mr. James Frederick Moore of Kinston, became the bride of Charles Franklin Dail of Greenville, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dail of La Grange.

The Rev. Paul Parker officiated to perform the double ring service. The ceremony was performed before the altar which was decorated with palms, bamboo and floor baskets of white mums and tuberose. Tall tapers burned in branched candelabra.

Mrs. T. V. Moseley, organist, and Charles Herring, soloist, sang "Because" by Guy D. Hardelot, "All For You" by Bertrand-Brown, and "O Perfect Love" was used as the benediction.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Ralph Wooten, wore an ivory satin gown, fashioned with a yoke of Princess lace forming a lily neckline, the sleeves ending in calla points over the hands and the bouffant skirt worn over hoops and crinoline swept into a wide and circular court train. Her full length bridal veil of imported illusion fell from a cloche of satin and pearls.

She carried a white satin Bible Christ topped with a purple throated white orchid.

Miss Mina Ruth Dail, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Mrs. Richard Christman of Snow Hill, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss June Morgan of Raleigh, Mrs. Rone Lowe of Kinston, and Mrs. Odell Bartlett of Durham. They wore identical dresses of nocturne velvet over crinoline skirts with matching opera pumps. Their headdress were small caps made of the matching velvet and they wore short white gloves.

Bridesmaids and maid and matron of honors. They carried a bouquet of bronze pompoms tied with satin ribbon.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Frances Wooten of Chester, Va., Miss Jean Wooten of Richmond, Miss Faye Dail, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Pat Waller of Kinston, Mrs. Paul Watson of Kinston, Miss Grace Hardy of Raleigh, Miss Mamie Wooten of Kinston and Mrs. Jack Jacobs of Roxobel. They wore evening gowns in soft shades and coronets of white pompoms in their hair.

The bridegroom had his father as his best man, and ushers were Macon Wooten, Robert Wooten, Roy Wooten of Kinston, John Dail Jr. of Raleigh, and Bobby Dail of La Grange, brothers of the bridegroom, and R. M. Harris of Oriental.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of stone blue imported Marie Frances Lace with a sweetheart neckline, adorned with pearls with a matching hat. Her corsage was of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of Periwinkle Plissa crepe with pearls, matching hat and a corsage of pink roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, the mother of the bride entertained at a reception given at her home on Glenwood Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mewborne greeted guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line composed of the bridal party, parents of the bride and groom and Mrs. Emma Parrott Wooten, the bride's grandmother.

Miss Hattie S. Parrot of Raleigh, great-aunt of the bride, invited guests into the dining room where punch was served by Mrs. John Kallam and Mrs. Vaughan Taylor. Miss Mary Bryan Wooten assisted in serving accompaniments.

Green and white were used in color motifs throughout the living and dining rooms. On the punch table was a low silver bowl holding white roses, chrysanthemums, stephanotis and fern. On either side of the centerpiece were silver candelabra holding white tapers. On the buffet was a beautiful arrangement of magnolia leaves and candles in silver holders.

Miss Pat Waller invited the guests into the hall, where Mrs. Wyatt Yelverton presided at the registration table. From there the guests went into the gift room, where pink carnations were used as a decorative touch.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Harris.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Dail left for a wedding trip in the south. For traveling the bride wore a suit of wine gabardine, with matching shoes, pocketbook and hat. Her blouse was of mauve silk and doeskin gloves. Her corsage was a purple-throated white orchid.

Mrs. Dail attended Mars Hill College, East Carolina Teachers College, and Hardinger Business College. She is at present employed with the North Carolina Veterans Commission in Kinston.

Mr. Dail is a graduate of King's Business College. He is employed as manager of the Tadiok Mutual Insurance Agency in Greenville.

The American Legion Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. W. D. Worthington in Winterville on Monday night, Dec. 11, at 8 o'clock. Mesdames J. O. Edwards, Annie Evans, B. F. James, J. L. Rollins and M. C. Sermons were assisting hostesses.

Mrs. James Worsley, president, presided. The meeting was opened by the salute to the flag and the reading of the Preamble in unison. The prayer was given by Mrs. Wiley Brown, chaplain. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved.

The subject of the program was "Rehabilitation." Mrs. J. B. Spilman gave plans for helping a needy veteran's family for Christmas. The Auxiliary voted to give her and her committee $100 to spend on this family. One member said she would give children's clothing and another said she would make some clothes.

Mrs. Rogers read a letter from Rehabilitation Chairman at Fort Bragg hospital, asking them to give Christmas tree decorations and new records. The Auxiliary voted to send $20 for this cause. It was also voted to send two pairs of nice pajamas to two Pitt County veterans at Fayetteville hospital.

It was voted to subscribe to a Series of Bulletins by the American Legion on the activities of the 82nd Congress.

A box of stationery will be sent to the Aurora unit for a bingo prize. The money from their contest will will be soloist with the College Choir of East Carolina Teachers College when the 60-member organization presents the cantata "The Mystery of Bethlehem" by Willan on Thursday evening of this week. The cantata will be part of the annual Christmas program presented by the department of music at the college. Dr. Karl V. Gilbert of the faculty will direct the choir. Robert Mays of Greenville and Hopewell, Va. will be baritone soloist in the cantata. Miss Hearne and Mr. Mays had leading roles last year in the opera "Down in the Valley" by Kurt Weill which was presented with great success by the college department of music. The Christmas program will take place Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Austin auditorium and will be open to the public.

The Auxiliary voted to increase its donation to the "Central Fund," from $120 to $160.

A lovely Christmas program followed. Group singing of Christmas songs was led by Mrs. William May. Mrs. Worthington was at the piano. Mrs. May then sang "Gisu Bambino." Mrs. Sermons gave a reading, "Annie's and Willie's Prayer." Miss Barbara Worthington read a lovely Christmas story, "A Little Child Shall Lead Them."

Mrs. Nina Fletcher was welcomed as a new member. The Auxiliary now has over 100 paid up members.

The hostesses served delicious hot, spiced tea, sandwiches and nuts.

Boy's Eye Fell Out; Undisturbed, Could See Just As Well

Hugh Jones' eye fell out Monday and broke. He could see just as well as he could before, he said. Jones, 19-year-old Negro youth, employed at Bell's Pharmacy, lost his eye nearly a year ago. A surgeon removed the optic and later on installed a glass eye for the youth.

Jones lost his second eye (the glass eye) Monday when a packing case falling from a shelf at the drug store struck him on the forehead and dislodged his eye. He caught it but it crashed on the floor. The drug store errand boy was wearing a new glass eye today. "That eye cost me 15 bucks, but it's worth it thanks to my doctor," Jones said.

The Rates Have Increased; What About The Service?

The Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company has been granted a portion of the rate increase it requested of the State Utilities Commission. The Reflector hopes the people of Pitt county who will be footing part of the bill for this rate increase will be able to get at least a portion of the better service they have been pleading for since the end of World War II.

In Greenville itself there have been delays in getting telephones in new homes which are being constructed. In the outlying sections of the community, and in the rural sections of the county, it has been next to impossible for people who want to have phones installed to secure them from the telephone company.

The rural lines for the most part at the present time are so jammed that in some instances long delays are encountered even in getting through a local call.

The desire for telephones among the people of the rural areas of the county is running high. The service which the people are receiving from the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company is at the other end of the scale.

The State Utilities Commission has granted the telephone company increases in its rates. With the increase in rates, The Reflector hopes the company will see fit to give better service to those who already have telephones, and to those who have been trying for a long time to secure telephones.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—The dramatic contrast between the allied statesmen of World War II and the Anglo-American leadership in the current crisis was strikingly exemplified in the recent meetings of President Harry S. Truman and British Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee for discussion of a solution of the Korean and general world problem.

It is doubtful if modern history records such a remarkable change in the philosophies, personalities and backgrounds of the principals of the world drama as has occurred since Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill used to blueprint defeat of the Axis amidst roars of laughter and the tinkling of highballs in the late President's cluttered bedroom or the historic upstairs oval study in the White House.

GLOBAL—As F.D.R.'s currently published letters reveal, he and the "Prime" had many "jolly good times" in the depth of seeming disaster to themselves and to their beleaguered peoples.

The Hyde Park aristocrat and the descendant of Marlborough spoke the same language. They viewed the universe from their respective peaks. Their glances backward and forward were global.

Roosevelt knew the name and importance of every atoll in the Pacific. Churchill could match him with tales of how victories had been won at Blenheim and elsewhere by democratic peoples against dictators as shrouded in the mist of history as Kubla Khan.

LAUGHED—Indeed, "Winnie" could quote Coleridge's splendid, unfinished poem on the Kubla's ghostly palace, while Roosevelt retorted with "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere" or "Old Ironsides."

They laughed until the tears streamed down their furrowed faces as they recalled how, at Casablanca, de Gaulle could not decide, from day to day, whether he was the reincarnation of Charlemagne, Joan of Arc or Napoleon. Finally, they agreed that he was "just a naughty Frenchman."

CRUSADE—As a naval student, F.D.R. could name almost every capital ship in the fleet, and also their commanders. The navy was his "baby." The "former naval person," to use his code identification in Washington-London cables and despatches, could recall England's naval supremacy from the days of Nelson at Trafalgar to Beattie at Jutland.

They were kinsmen in birth and blood and background—warriors, statesmen, students. They were, too, Arthurian figures who, by their flaming orations and vivid personalities, were able to transfigure a bloody, brutal and senseless war until it shone as a crusade for civilization.

It is no irrelevance to today's leaders—Truman and Attlee—to report the remark of a veteran observer of world affairs on the great difference between the Washington conferences of then and now:

"It is like shifting from grand opera at the Metropolitan to a road show in Peoria!"

GENERATION—President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee do not look, act, talk or think like their predecessors. They belong to another school, if not to another generation. Theatricality is foreign to them. Neither would attract a second glance in a Christmas shopping crowd.

Mr. Truman's background and beginnings are well known—farmer, clerk, haberdasher, county commissioner, senator and vice president through a political accident. Death placed him in a post for which he admitted he was not equipped.

His knowledge of war and the world is limited, save for readings of the 1861-1865 conflict. He relies entirely on diplomatic and military advisers and refers often to maps and documents. His aides did more talking than he at the recent conferences.

PROFESSORIAL—Mr. Attlee is the bookish, professorial type, extremely learned. Economic studies rather than factory experiences led him into the labor movement. He has the stoop and the short-sightedness of the scholar.

He possesses the Briton's hereditary affection for the empire although, to Churchill's horror, his party has helped to break it up. Like Mr. Truman, he has been more concerned with domestic reforms than with national defense or foreign threats.

Both let their armies, navies and air forces go to pieces. So, the present challenge is no heroic summons to battle, as it was to the two men before them.

It was "Mister President" and "Mister Prime Minister" when they met here for the third time, not "F.D.R." and "Winston." They conferred soberly around businesslike tables at the White House, at the Blair mansion and aboard the grim, trim Williamsburg. There were no rollicking quips, no droll anecdotes of mutual experiences or historic recollections.

Ships That Pass

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Some days, as you well know, it's a struggle to find a column idea, and others I bump right into them. An example of a bump-in happened Monday, when I was talking to Mr. Jack Kilgo of the Liggett-Meyers Tobacco Company and the subject of hunting came up.

The fact that Mr. Kilgo went hunting Saturday is almost a story within itself. If you can remember last Saturday, you know the weather was rough. It was raining, cold and generally dreary. But to the hunter, there's no weather too rough for hunting. Likewise, the golfer always finds pleasant weather on the golf course. Amazingly, it can be raining in town, and sun shining on the course. And it's never too cold or hot there.

Mr. Kilgo went hunting with Check Allen, a Coca-Cola salesman, and Ab Perry, a farmer. They said that Ab has two of the best bird dogs in this section, so the party had full confidence in their undertaking. After considerable discussion, they decided to go to the Ponney Grounds, off the Stantonburg highway. If there were birds anywhere, they'd be in the Ponney Grounds, so Somebody Told Them.

There are plenty of hunters who will drive around a city block three times looking for a parking place two blocks closer to his destination, and yet walk for miles after a few birds. Saturday Mr. Kilgo and company estimate that they walked at least 10 miles. And Mr. Kilgo said he was going to recommend the Ponney Grounds to Paramount Studios of Hollywood as a location for their next jungle movie. As far as briars are concerned, he vows that there are none in Africa to equal the ones they encountered.

But he spoke of all you might say that the mission was accomplished. In country where there were bound to be birds, the group found seven, and killed four of them. Check Allen killed two, Mr. Kilgo one and Ab Perry one. Ab's wife was sick, so Check and Mr. Kilgo gave their birds to him, as a treat for his wife.

On the way back to town, Check said, "Let's stop by to see my brother-in-law, Charlie Jackson. He has a pretty pointer dog that I'd like to see."

The hunting experts agreed that Charlie's pointer, Lou by name, has possibilities of being a great dog when she is training. To test her present ability, Check took her to the Ponney Grounds. In nothing flat the dog was almost out of sight to Ab and Mr. Kilgo, with Check hot on her trail. At one point in the race Check hollered to a friend to head Lou off, but the friend missed.

The next time they saw Lou she had that well-fred expression, which was quite a contrast to Check's "Live and learn," he says. And I thank you.

CHANGE—Members and clerks in the 1951 general assembly will find other changes about the century old legislative halls besides new chairs and paint. Clerical offices on the senate balcony are being re-arranged so as to give more room for the engrossing office. The change will not affect offices of the principal and journal clerks, but the files of printed bills will be moved from their long time location on the north-west corner to the balcony anteroom at the southeast corner of the senate chamber. This will work considerable hardship on senate gallery visitors, who may find difficult if not impossible to use the east stairway or get into the east gallery without passing through the room filled with printed bills. Also, it imposes more responsibility upon guards of the bills, because of public access to the file room.

RECURRING—While involving some inconvenience to legislators and visitors the change is necessary because of expanding requirements of the legislative engrossing office. A similar situation prevails in the main halls because of expanding demands of space for news coverage of the legislature. There is nothing new in the nature of these problems. Secretary of State Thad Eure says the problems are only slightly different, but no more acute, than when he served as a member of the house in 1926 and as principal clerk for the three following sessions. Secretary Eure doubts that building additional room would solve the problem, except very temporarily.

GROWING—He points out that other states with commodious new capitol buildings face similar questions of inadequate space. And he recalls that other state departments seem just as crowded now as they were several years ago before many of the new office buildings were erected around Raleigh. He has noted, further, that somehow each succeeding general assembly and all state departments manage to get along and has no fear of serious difficulty during the upcoming session.

SEATING—Secretary of State has completed the seating chart for the next session. What used to be a real cause of grief to his office is now almost a matter of applying a simple formula in allocation of seats. Returning members get the same seats occupied the previous session. In case of vacancy by failure of a member to return, the seat is allotted to another returning member upon request and this assignment is on basis of first come first served. Seats are held for returning members until five days after the general election. Then unassigned seats are open to newly elected members, and again the first-come system of priority is employed. Eure had on file long before the election, requests from several prospective new members for special seats. As soon as the five-day period after the election had passed he checked this file and made assignments on basis of date priority. He held up printing of the chart as long as possible so that members might trade among themselves if they desired, and several such trades have been made. The chart had to go to the printers by today in order to have it ready for the opening of the session on January 3, and no further changes can be made.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

ECKUSES NOT ENOUGH (Kinston Daily Free Press)

In the matter of the current delay over construction of a much-needed municipal swimming pool for negroes, despite the fact that a federal directive aimed at pools, theatres and other amusement places seems to threaten to delay it for many more months, excuses about reasons for the delay are not enough for a city that is determined to equalize the current inequity of facilities between the races here.

City Manager W. J. Heard and others in charge of this important project did not move with sufficient dispatch last summer and fall, once the go-ahead was given. Potential expansion was allowed to overshadow the program after the announcement came that the DuPont plant near here. Then came the federal directive about pool construction along with tightening of controls on the usage of steel.

For those who are merely seeking excuses for delay, this might be considered enough to stymie the program indefinitely. But Kinston is committed to provide a much-needed facility as soon as possible and the program should not be allowed to be shelved in any such manner. Pool construction in this case is not a luxury, but a definite necessity. It is an effort to meet an inequity which will do much to promote harmony and good relations between the races here. It is even more important than many of the school needs which will be approved under the pressing international situation.

It is a time for the city officials to press onward toward a goal to which the municipality is committed and to find ways and means to overcome the current obstacles in the path of this project.

Excuses are not enough.

MISSING THE NEWSPAPERS (New Bern Sun-Journal)

The city of Pittsburgh has just found out what it is like to be without its daily newspapers for a prolonged period of time. Editions on Sunday, November 19, were the first since a walkout of mailroom employees closed the three Pittsburgh dailies on October 1. A survey taken by a national advertising and public relations firm shows what happened to business and to individual readers.

Automobile dealers were unable to advertise new 1951 models and took losses ranging from 5 to 70 per cent. Beauty parlors estimated a falling off in trade of 20 to 50 per cent. Clothing retailers saw the decline as 25 per cent. Drugs, entertainment, florists, schools, sporting events all showed sharp declines.

A total of 82.4 per cent of people interviewed thought newspapers had become more important since they had been unable to get them. A total of 84.8 per cent said they found it difficult to find out facts or get them straight when newspapers weren't available.

Men missed chiefly, in order of importance: local news, sports, national news, foreign news, radio and television information, comics, columnists and editorialists. Women missed local news, local store advertising, radio and television information, vital statistics, national news, food and cooking, comics, and foreign news.

The survey organization footnotes these last two findings on men and people questioned may have had a women readers to the effect that tendency to minimize their real interest in comics and play up their interest in "more important things." Be that as it may, the range of interest covered the entire paper. One reader summed up his feelings at being without his paper: "It's like losing an old friend."

By ELMER ROESSNER... Administration leaders have warned that personal taxes as well as corporation taxes will have to go higher. The number one reason is that the turn of international events requires considerable more armament than was contemplated earlier. The number two reason is that prices for materials going into armaments have risen so much so fast.

The recent rise in the price of steel means that all steel for defense will cost more, and steel goes into almost every military item, from tanks to cans for soldiers' rations.

Some of this increase will be recovered in corporation taxes and in taxes on steel workers' incomes. If prices of steel and other domestic materials keep on rising, the government can employ a freeze or even a roll-back.

But in things we acquire abroad for our armed strength, we are almost, if not quite, helpless to hold prices down. We cannot freeze the price of imports; we cannot regain excess profits from foreigners who raise prices. And where the profits filter down to workers, we cannot regain any of the money with personal income taxes.

We have only two recourses. We can ask friendly governments to keep prices down. So far, that has proved ineffective. The British Empire showed no inclination to reduce the price of wool in Australia; it has been content to let Russian interests bid up the price. Our Allies have one answer: why should we cut our potential incomes as long as they remain below American incomes, or why should we act to lower our standard of living as long as it is below the American standard? If there is a rejoinder to that, it hasn't been stated very clearly.

Our only other recourse is to raise the prices of things we sell to foreign nations. Some of that has taken place—and the price to Americans has been raised at the same time. If we continue to increase prices, foreigners can refuse to buy, or buy in other markets.

Just how great the increase has been in imports is indicated by a recent Federal Reserve survey of prices of internationally traded commodities. It shows that the price of rubber, from June 1-23 to November 1-17, rose 154 per cent; tin, 77 per cent; wool, 42 per cent; sugar, 36 per cent; cotton, 23 per cent; cocoa, 18 per cent; zinc 18 per cent; copper, 10 per cent; coffee, 9 per cent; wheat, 1 per cent. The things we export, such as cotton and wheat, have made only moderate advances compared with the things we import, such as rubber and tin.

MEXICAN CANNED MEAT MAY BE ADMITTED

Canned meats from Mexico may soon appear among imported goods on grocery shelves. They have been banned because the United States has held that Mexican inspection standards were not equivalent to American standards. However, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has proposed that the United States accept the Mexican standards. The ban was imposed during the outbreak of hoof and mouth disease, which has since been controlled with American aid.

FORESEES SHORTAGE OF SOME TOYS

Better grade toys may be scarce before Christmas, the Toy Guidance Council reports after a survey of retailers. However, toys in general are in ample supply, the survey found.

MOST PROSPERITY IN GREAT OPEN SPACES

The booming section of the country is the 11th Federal Reserve District, which includes Texas and parts of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisiana. In that area, department store sales—a good index of prosperity—during the first 11 months of the year were 11 per cent higher than the same period a year ago.

Nearest rival was the Sixth District, with headquarters at Atlanta, with a 9 per cent gain. The average national gain was 8 per cent.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Q—Does Regulation W cover rental sales? Could I rent an article to a customer for a dollar a week and give title when the rent equaled the full price?—J.M.B.

A—Definitely not. An interpretation of Regulation W by the Federal Reserve Board specifically states that "a transaction does not cease to be subject (to the regulation) merely because the parties chose to call it a 'rental' rather than a 'sale.'" Ask your nearest Federal Reserve Bank for a copy of this interpretation before trying bright ideas along this line.—E.R.

Hal Boyle's Column

By TOM LAMBERT (For Hal Boyle)

With U. S. Marines, Korea—(AP)—The weary, dangerous road to safety lay steep on the sharp-ribbed, snow-capped mountains. Then it unfolded leisurely along a brown, snow-dappled valley crusty with frost.

The Marines came down the road slowly. Their eyes were red with fatigue. Their faces and hands were gray with cold. They were under the tension of the past terrible 12 days which shall be written boldly in Marine Corps history.

These were the last Marine troops to come out of the Chinese trap which the Leathernecks themselves had jammed apart. They were tired, dirty and bearded, but unafraid and proud with a pride which brought a lump in your throat.

They were not all there. Not all who drove far inland from the sea; through snow and ice and freezing cold to Changjin Reservoir, where the Chinese tried to spring a trap.

For many Marines died alongside that great reservoir and on the bloody road back to safety. Their bodies will lie forever in this barren and inhospitable wilderness.

This was the source of great bitterness for some, that other Marines had died in a battle which the living could not win. Those who came back halted briefly in the shadow of the mountains. They dug dirty-handed into cans of cold C rations, their motions clumsy under the weight of winter clothing.

They were gentle with each other, like brothers, for theirs is the fraternity of danger and battle and you enter that fraternity only by chancing danger and battle with them.

Some climbed wearily from their vehicles, many of which were gaudy, like gypsies' wagons, with the vivid red and yellow and white silk from parachutes which had floated food and bullets to them while they were cut off from all help except by air.

There were the tired but joyful cries of profane greetings which failed completely to hide their regard for each other. And there were lispoken reports like "Bill got it at Ha, garu."

As they halted briefly under a war-torn sky which half melted the road ice into slush, they ignored the nearby artillery which rocked the valley with thunderous blasts.

They gave little attention to the ever-present Marine Corsairs which circled overhead tirelessly or darted down, strafing and bombing the serene mountains.

Then the Marines climbed stiffly back into their vehicles. A few drivers, grinning weakly, tooted their horns in response to the peanut whistle shrilling from tiny locomotives which had hauled some Maines south to safety from the valley railroad.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—Already the air is about us with Christmas melodies, and we'll soon be hearing everything from the old-time favorite "O Come, All Ye Faithful" to this year's "The Christmas Tree Angel." While most of the carols we sing and hear are centuries old and come from other parts of the world, American composers continue to write new songs and popularize old ones in the yuletide spirit.

Certain favorites crop up again, year after year, like Irving Berlin's wartime "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas." Last year's hit, "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," is on the popularity list again this season.

"I'd Like to Hitch a Ride with Santa Claus," "That Christmas Feeling" and "Silver Bells" are 1950 additions to holiday music by Americans. The carols of Europe arrived with the peoples who came to America to settle. "O Come, All Ye Faithful" (Adeste Fideles), the National Geographic Society says, "belonged to no one nation but was the common gift of the continent."

It was eventually translated into 119 languages and dialects.

From Germany came Luther's hymn for children, "Away in a Manger, No Cry For a Bed," England sent "Ode to the Virgin, Gentlemen," and France provided the beautiful "Cantique de Noel." National Geographic says that three American composers did much to revive carol singing by writing new songs in the 19th Century.

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" was the inspiration of Edmund H. Sears, a Massachusetts Unitarian minister, in 1849. Ten years later Dr. John Henry Hopkins, Jr., an Episcopal minister, composed both words and music for "We Three Kings of Orient Are."

Inspired by a trip to the Holy Land, Phillips Brooks, a young Episcopal minister, was later to become Bishop of Massachusetts, wrote what is perhaps America's best-known carol, "O Little Town of Bethlehem." The popular "Jingle Bells" was written by John Pierpont, also a minister.

According to National Geographic, the first genuinely American Carol was written about 1635 by Father Jean de Brebeuf, Jesuit missionary to the Huron Indians. Composed in Huron language, it was called "Jesus Akatonna."

Parents' Attitude Is Reflected By Children

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE AP Educational Writer

The chances are your children don't do what you say, but do as you do.

The reason is simple says Dr. A. Wellesley Foshay, a research associate at the Horace Mann-Lincoln Institute of Teachers College, Columbia University. Says he:

"If a child is disrespectful and rude to his parents, the parents should look within themselves to see what it is that they do, that their child is reflecting. It is necessary to realize that adults tend to judge themselves by their own intentions, but that children must judge adults not by their intentions but by what they do.

"The way your child behaves toward you is likely to be a faithful reflection of the way he thinks you behave toward him. To change the way he behaves toward you, you must change your way of behaving toward him." He suggests that:

(a) Adults must look at what they do rather than what they mean to do.

(a) They must try to see what they do through their children's eyes.

(c) They must realize that as adults they often misjudge the children's intent (just as the children misjudge the adult's intent) by seeing a child's behavior insensitively."

Continuing, Dr. Foshay says,

"It is very important, then, for parents to remember that children imitate what they do, not what they mean to do. And if parents want from their children more than mere servility, they will seek ways to look at this problem frankly and objectively with the children."

Dr. Foshay, who is director of a project cooperatively sponsored by the Springfield, Mo., schools and the Institute, is now in the process of getting the answers to such problems as the social attitudes and values which operate in the lives of children, how they can be studied in the average home and school, and what parents and teachers can do to change these values and attitudes in one way or another.

He finds that if a parent wants his child to have the proper social attitudes, it is necessary first to understand the attitudes they now have. To do this, it is necessary to understand that people have attitudes toward specific things—that they do not have attitudes in general. Thus, a child may be responsible about brushing his teeth, and irresponsible about putting his toys away. The same adult who is a thoughtful and effective member of his church may be an irresponsible maniac behind the wheel of his automobile. He has one attitude toward church work, another toward traffic laws. Dr.

Santa Claus A B C's Taught in New York

Ablion, New York—Charles W. Howard right, standing, Dean of America's Santa Clauses, and founder of the only school for Santa Clauses in the world, believes that United States Savings Bonds twenty-five subjects to department store Santas from all over the country. Howard said "every benefit everyone."

Foshay says:

"We are talking here of social attitudes; consequently, the referents we are concerned with are people. The attitudes children show toward other people—their playmates, or their parents or other adults are the attitudes that concern us here."

If you want respect and consideration from your child, says Dr. Foshay, "take advantage of every opportunity that arises to give him explicit verbal praise for things he does well. From the child's point of view, silence does not mean approval. Praise him when he is helpful. Upbraiding him for not being helpful will not make him helpful; it will only make him angry or, worse, give him a feeling of worthlessness.

"If he dresses himself especially neatly some day, say so. If he has learned to deal with his little brother or sister in a way that shows improved understanding of the little child, say so. Your comments will have an effect on his regard for your intelligence, as well as an effect on his relation with his little brother. And it will make him more affectionate and respectful toward you."

Parents must recognize also says Dr. Foshay, the tremendous influence of their children's friends on what children do and believe. The importance of the opinions of their friends concerning what they do grows rapidly as children grow older. By eight or nine the approval of their friends is at least equal in importance to that of their parents and teachers, he said.

Parents can help children develop adequate social attitudes only by giving them many chances to have the experiences out of which attitudes develop.

Fulton-Johnson

St. Stephen A. M. E. Zion church was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Thanksgiving eve when Miss Juanita Fulton, daughter of Mrs. Floxie Fulton Tyson and the late Frank Fulton, and Mr. Richard Bernard Johnson were joined in holy wedlock by Rev. L. J. King, pastor of the bride officiated, using the double ring ceremony.

Wedding music was rendered by Mr. Earl Artis, organist, and Mrs. Minnie Martin, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Glen Harris Fulton, wore a gown of slipper satin with a fitted bodice and a yoke of sheer nylon net. It had long sleeves with full skirt and a circular train. Her veil fell from a Juliet cap of white satin. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Mary Francis Fulton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of gold satin with Juliet cap fashioned after that of the bride. She carried pink carnations with satin ribbon. The bridesmaids were Misses Lorraine Johnson, Willie R. Barnes, Annie L. Gatlin, Helen J. Harrison, Eva T. Maye and Mrs. Minnie Martin. They wore gowns of rainbow colors and carried arm sprays of carnations. Their dresses were similar to the maid of honor's.

John Wesley Edwards was best man. Ushers were Messrs. Thomas Foreman, Wilton Gatlin, William Simpson, James B. Armstead, Ossie Blount and Leroy Redden.

The bride's mother wore a blue crepe street-length dress with corsage of white roses.

After the ceremony the reception was held at the home of the bride's mother.

Mr. Johnson is a graduate of A. & T. College and is now doing graduate work at A. & T. College. He expects to complete this in March.

Mrs. Johnson is a graduate of Fayetteville State Teachers College and is now a teacher at the Bethel High School.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were from Bethel, Fountain, Wilson, Greenville, Snow Hill and Roanoke, Va.

The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in Washington, D. C.

Greenville Plays Host To Rocky Mount Here Tonight

Tip-Off At 8 PM In Wright Gym

Revenge Battle Seen As Two Teams Renew Court Rivalry; Dillingham, Briley, Haymes Expected Leaders

Coach Bo Farley's basketballers have revenge in their eyes tonight, as they meet Rocky Mount's class AAA Blackbirds here in the second game between these two schools.

Game time is set for eight o'clock in the Wright gymnasium on the East Carolina campus.

In their first scrap at Rocky Mount, the Phantoms fell 42-26, before a last half splurge by the Blackbirds.

Tonight's game will be the fourth Class AAA high school game the local G-Men have played this year.

Expected to provide the scoring punch for the Phantoms tonight are forwards Jimmy Lillingham and Virginia Haymes, along with Center Sydney Briley, six-foot rebound man.

In three games thus far this season, Dillingham has scored a total of 31 points for an average of a little better than ten points per game, while Briley has followed up with 25 points, and Haymes has bucketed 18 points.

Rounding out the Phantoms starting five will be Guards Johnny Aman and Glen Scott. While not scoring as many points as Haymes, Killingham, and Briley, both boys have been the steady play-makers for the Phants, and are counted on heavily for the floor work.

Leading the Phantoms reserve strength will be players as Eddie Farley and Leon Moore at forwards, big Wallace Conway at center, and Billy Wooten and Jake Higgs at guards.

Two more games remain on the Phantoms pre-Christmas schedule. They will travel to Wilson Friday for a return game with the Cyclones, and then close out their pre-holiday slate here Monday night against Raleigh's Caps.

Ayden Five Wins; South Edgecombe Sextet Triumphs

Pinebluffs, Dec. 13.—Two breathtaking and hair-raising games were played between South Edgecombe and Ayden last night, with the South Edgecombe girls emerging victorious, 43-42, while the Ayden boys eked out a 38-36 triumph.

Sue Lilly, outstanding forward for the South Edgecombe sextet, dropped in 18 points, with her game-winning marker coming in the few moments to provide the win.

Katherine Wooten was individual scoring star for the tilt, as she bucketed 29 points to pace the losers.

Ayden's Tornado quint were successful in winning their third straight game without a loss, as Mac Whitehurst, who had a total of 11 points for the night, dipped in a field goal in the last minute and a half, to overcome a South Edgecombe lead. Ayden led throughout until the final minute of the third quarter, when Dudley Whitley, who sank 16 points, put the Edgecombers ahead until Whitehurst dropped his field goal.

Score by quarters:
Girls' Game
South Edgecombe 14 5 10 14—43
Ayden 7 10 13 12—42

High scorers: South Edgecombe—Lilly 18, Cookie Whaley 9; Ayden—Wooten 29, Alice Jean Cox 7

Evereadys Win 2; Nine Lives Gain

National Carbon Bowling League
Nine Lives 19 14 576
Black Cats 17 16 515
Evereadys 16 17 485

Penlites' lead in the National Carbon Bowling League was cut down Monday night, as they lost two games to the cellar-dwelling Evereadys, while Nine Lives took two games from the Black Cats to break a two-way second place tie.

The Black Cats, by virtue of their two-game triumphs, took over sole possession of second place, two games behind the league leaders.

L. Stokes of the Evereadys took the outstanding individual honors for the night, posting a three-game high of 438 pins, while S. Brooks of the Black Cats registered the highest single game total of 174. Stokes followed closely behind with a 170.

B. Wells of the Evereadys posted the second highest three-game score of 432 pins.

Busy Bob

With six of the top eight players from last season's team which won 24 and lost five games available, the basketball situation is rosy enough in the St. John's University camp.

Coach Frank McGuire, now in his fourth season as tutor of the Redmen, and St. John's supporters would regard the outlook rosy if Gerry Calabrese and Ray Tully were on hand again. Calabrese, who scored 402 points last season, was graduated and is with the Syracuse Nationals. Tully, however, had two more seasons of eligibility. The 6-4 rebound ace signed a baseball contract with the Boston Red Sox just before the school term began.

Coach McGuire figures to start an all veteran team consisting of Jack McMahon, Co-captain Frank Mulzoff, Bob Zawoluk, Co-captain

Al McGuire and Ray Dombrosky. Ronnie MacGillivray is the first replacement and general utility man. These six boys have good speed, shooting ability and good rebounding strength.

Zawoluk scored 588 points last season as a sophomore, the highest total ever collected by a New York City player. With the benefit of a year's varsity experience and some new shots he could quite possibly be even better. He is the Redmen's big gun, in height and in scoring. Bob stands six inches over the six-foot mark and is a mobile, well-coordinated athlete. His efforts under the boards are limited because his coach has no replacement of equal height or experience. For this reason Zawoluk must refrain from fouling out.

Charles Signs For Bout With Oma; Louis Trains

New York, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Ezzard Charles and the man he succeeded as heavyweight champion, Joe Louis, mapped busy winter ring schedules today — but apparently not aimed at another meeting.

Charles signed to put his title on the line for the sixth time. The place is New York's Madison Square Garden, the date Jan. 12 and the challenger Buffalo's veteran Lee Oma.

After that, Ezzard is slated to meet one of a number of not-too-menacing contenders in Miami in February. This one is still in the talking stage.

Louis announced a firm intention of continuing his comeback despite pleas, official and unofficial, that he quit while the quitting's good.

John (Ox) Dargosa, Pennsylvania Athletic Commissioner, announced plans to try to bar Louis from fighting in his state "For the best interests of boxing."

In Bell River, Ont., where he's training for a Jan. 3, bout in Detroit against Freddie Beshore, the once-feared Brown Bomber took Dargosa's announcement calmly.

"I wouldn't raise a fuss if any state barred me for failing to measure up to its rules and regulations and physical requirements," he said. "I plan to get back in condition and take on each opponent as he comes up."

After Beshore, Louis is talking about fighting Tommy Gomez in Miami and Rex Layne in San Francisco.

He said he's not thinking about a second meeting with Charles, who won a decision over him last September. "I never thought about anybody but the next man when I started back and ended up fighting Charles. That's the way it is now."

Maury Cagers Score Twin Victories Over Bell Arthur Teams, 42-35, 38-18

Bell Arthur, Dec. 13.—Maury High School took both ends of a double-header here Monday night, with the girls coming out ahead of the home Bell Arthur sextet, 42-35, and the Maury boys triumphing, 38-18.

Edna Dall, with 15 points, led the Maury forwards, while Betty Jones topped the Bell Arthur scoring with 27 points, to take the night's individual scoring honors.

Hawkins and Moye combined to lead the Maury quint over Bell Arthur's five, with Hawkins sinking 10 points, and Moye with seven.

David Harris led the losers with six points.

Majors Seek Commissioner; Chandler Refuses To Resign

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 13.—(AP) The major league club owners, determined to remove Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler without becoming involved in legal entanglements, will select a new commissioner as soon as possible.

Uncertain whether they can force Chandler from office before the end of his term, the owners are hopeful that the naming of a successor soon will prompt the commissioner to resign. Meanwhile, Chandler remains commissioner.

An attempt to buy up Chandler's contract failed when the commissioner reiterated his determination to stick to the $65,000-a-year job until his five-year contract expires May 1, 1952.

The owners voted yesterday to select a new commissioner to replace the former governor and U.S. senator from Kentucky. This unprecedented action was taken in a special meeting after a series of conferences involving the 16 club presidents, both league heads and a bevy of lawyers. This followed by about 20 hours the failure of the club owners to vote Chandler a new contract.

Chandler, who succeeded the late Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis in 1945, appeared in person before the owners to make a plea for his job. Emerging from the momentous session 15 minutes later, Chandler refused to comment. Later, however, he said:

"I went in and told them the whole story. I did not recede from my stand earlier in the day."

Despite the drastic setback, Chandler last night continued his annual custom of playing host to the club officials at a dinner which went off without a hitch. The commissioner seemed his old self, living up to his nickname of "Happy."

The only owners among those who attended the meetings but who were missing from the banquet were Fred Saigh of St. Louis and Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants. Both clubs had representatives however.

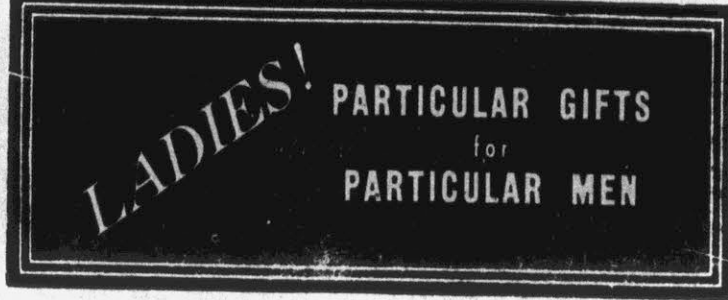

Cheered by his well-wishers with such remarks as "Don't give up,

Happy" and "Keep your chin up," he replied, "I've never backed down from a fight in my life and I don't intend to retreat now."

"Something may happen yet," he added hopefully.

In the meantime, club owners said committees would be named soon to consider candidates for the job. Dan Lopping, president of the Yankees, said he was hopeful that some progress would be made by the time the owners meet again next February.

No one ventured to mention any possible candidates for the important position, but leading possibilities were Ford Frick, president of the National League; George Trautman, head of the minors; and Warren Giles, president of the Reds.

More Questions Raised By High Court Decision

Washington, Dec. 12—(AP)—More questions were left unanswered today than were settled by a Supreme Court decision that persons quizzed by grand juries about Communist activities may keep silent if their answers might involve them in criminal prosecution.

There was plenty of speculation about the impact of the decision on similar but not identical cases, but most legal experts shied clear of predictions pending further study.

Some of the questions, it was obvious, could be answered only by new court tests.

Citing decisions dating back as far as 1807, the high court yesterday knocked out a one year's contempt sentence imposed on Mrs. Patricia Blau in Denver for refusing to answer questions before a federal grand jury.

Deciding that Mrs. Blau had a constitutional right to remain silent, the court cited the fifth amendment's guarantee that "no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself."

Speaking for a unanimous eight man court—Justice Clark took no part—Justice Black declared it does not matter whether any answers given would by themselves be strong enough to support a criminal con-

College Band In Concert Friday

The Concert Band of East Carolina Teachers College, a seventy-member music group, will give its annual Christmas program Friday morning of this week at 10:00 o'clock in the Wright auditorium.

A special assembly of students has been called by President John D. Messick of the college, and at this time the college community will hear a concert by the band, assisted by the newly organized men's glee club of East Carolina.

Herbert L. Carter of the faculty will conduct the band as it plays an all-Christmas program; and Dr. R. E. Willmann, chairman of the department of music, will direct the men's glee club. Singing of carols by the audience, accompanied by the band, will be included in the morning's program.

President Messick will give Christmas greetings to students of the college, who will leave the campus for the holidays at noon Saturday.

The public is invited to attend the program.

Durham Council Okays Inquiry Of Police Dept.

Durham, N.C., Dec. 13—(AP)—Durham's City Council yesterday authorized a full-scale investigation of the local police force.

The action followed by less than three weeks the suspension of five officers allegedly involved in the jail beating of a Duke University student. Two other officers, suspended in connection with the shooting of a Negro man, were returned to duty last week.

The council indicated that the probe would be made to disclose underlying reasons for any poor administration or irregularities in the police department.

City Manager Robert W. Flack said he wanted "the best talent in the nation" to conduct the investigation. Police Chief H. E. King did not comment on the council's action.

George Perry Piano Concert Followed By Social Hour

George E. Perry, faculty member of the department of music at East Carolina Teachers College, gave last night a program of music for the organ before an audience of approximately 450 people gathered in the Austin auditorium on the campus. The concert was sponsored by the Greenville Music Club.

Mr. Perry's program was made up of compositions appropriate to the Christmas season. Included were selections by Bach, Brahms, Gullmunt, Daquin and other composers. As his closing number, Mr. Perry played his own arrangement for the organ of "Silent Night."

Following the concert, members of the city Music Club and their guests were entertained in the reception room of the Alumni Association in the Austin building. Christmas decorations made the scene a festive one. Mrs. John Karsnak and Mrs. E. S. Hamric poured coffee at the attractively appointed table where refreshments were served. Others who received guests were Mrs. Guy Smith and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Clifford.

Among special guests at the social hour were Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Perry of Reedsburg, Wis., parents of George E. Perry, who are in Greenville for a visit with their son at his home on Holly Street.

School And Church Roles In Meeting Delinquent Youth Problem Discussed

By WYATT BROWN

The Rotarians were presented with a problem in delinquent youth Monday night in their weekly meeting by J. H. Rose, superintendent of the City Schools, with details, suggestions, and pleas by K. T. Futrele, Superintendent of the County Welfare Department; Miss Frances Wahl, principal of the Training School; Miss Elizabeth Hyman, teacher of one of the youths; Rodney Fulcher, President of the High School Student Council; Clerk of Superior Court D. T. House, Judge of the Juvenile Court; Chief of Police G. C. Langston.

"Greenville is a good town," declared Mr. Rose in his opening statement and he insisted that there was no desire to be negative about the matter but just show some of the problems the speakers have to face and secure the cooperation and suggestions.

Speaking in general about the problems to be presented Mr. Rose said there was a lot of adult and parental responsibility. He cited the following example:

The city schools asked each child on Monday whether he or she went Sunday School, Church or Mass the day before. One parent objected. The parent related that their son wanted to go to Sunday School but that the parents wanted the son to go with them each Sunday fishing or to the beach. Since the school asked the child about Sunday School and the parents wanted otherwise, a guilt complex was being induced in the child. So the parents said they wanted to register an objection to the practice of asking about Sunday School attendance at School on Monday.

Pursuing further the idea of parental responsibility for delinquency, Mr. Rose said many parents were using modern psychology excessively and permitting children to do just as the child wants to do.

Next Mr. Rose contrasted his day with the modern youth who can get twice as much done by pushing buttons as he could in less time. And that youths just seemed to want more than they used to have. Then, he warned, if they do not get it from the parents who do not have it, they get it anyway.

It does no good just to pat the delinquent youth on the wrist. He raised the question of what to do. The problem confronts every community in America just as it does Greenville, he explained.

He told how several years ago a gang developed in a certain area of the city. This was satisfactorily handled and the gang and its trouble ended.

Now a new gang has appeared in the same area.

The area seemed to have the gang potentially and just waited for a leader. Such a leader appeared twelve months ago and the various agencies and interested persons have been working on it for twelve months.

The most recent crime was the theft of a Hudson automobile.

Other crimes have been their breaking into three filling stations, some repeatedly. Breaking into the swimming pool. Breaking into the football field store at the college. The training school got twenty-five thefts. Hodges Store, Picklen's Warehouse were broken into. They made a practice of going through the clothing of the classes working in the gym who had left their clothing in the locker room.

Next Mr. Rose gave the case histories of each of the six boys ranging in age from ten to thirteen. Case A—ugly attitude toward adults who seems to get alright when left alone for a while and then he starts up again. No Sunday School connection, parents both work, mother said all she wanted from the school was the little white paper which showed he had been promoted each year. When the father was told his son had broken into a store, the father laughed.

Case B—Slow in school work. Spent summer working at a beach concession. At this point Mr. Rose interrupted his reading of the case in hand to make the general observation that all the boys under question seemed to go to the movies quite a bit—seem to live on them.

Case C—The record shows that his brothers were trouble makers. Parents seem to not know how to handle him. They whip him but he seems indifferent to the beatings.

Case D—Trouble maker. Wants to be the center of attraction. He accomplishes this by throwing up a half a dollar on the school playground and letting the child who gets it keep it. (This is possible, Rose said, because he steals the money in the robberies listed.) No Sunday School. Comes in late at night and parents do not know where he is. One night the parents were worried when he was after two a.m. coming in; so they called the police. They found him eating supper at an all-night cafe. Both parents work. He has been stealing a long time. HE seems unable to tell the truth.

Case E—Lazy, dirty, lessons unprepared. Undesirable home. Parents shiftless. Parents fight with each other. Joined the gang last Spring.

Case F—Moved here from South Carolina. Mother committed suicide. Father works at odd jobs. Boys never gave trouble until he stole a car. Recently the father was married again. Father drinks. Thanksgiving the father went to the woods with the boy saying he was taking the boy hunting. Instead he whipped the boy and left him behind in the woods.

At this juncture with the cases cited Rose called on Miss Wahl, principal of the school the boys attend, and who has been working with the problem.

Miss Wahl said the problem has arisen. The teachers of the school and Miss Wahl have visited in the homes where the parents declared themselves ready to cooperate but they did not, she told the Rotarians. There are good points in every child "but how can we get them out of the children," she went on. Her suggestion was that the youths must be employed. Then she raised the question of whether the home was going to leave it all to the school? She concluded her brief remarks with an appeal as to what is the duty of the school and what can the schools do?

Mr. Rose took the floor again and commented that there is a big gap between the slap on the wrist and sending a boy to a reformatory where he becomes a branded and married person. Then he presented Miss Hyman.

Miss Hyman opened by saying she was concerned about what is going to become of the boys under discussion. It may be the turning point in their lives she pointed out. She added that there is nothing in the homes to help the situation and that help must come from outside.

Since she was speaking of one who is in her class, Miss Hyman reported that this particular boy has shown the right spirit and is ready to make restitution. Since the arrest, she went on, the boy has started attending Sunday School, he has accepted his court orders including not going out at

"We need a Juvenile Court Judge with more time to study these cases," Mr. House declared forthrightly, in concluding his brief statements.

Next to speak was Rodney Fulcher who said that Boy Scouting was wide open to help such cases because the boys wanted somebody to take an interest in them. He urged more emphasis in Scouting in the troop units. "If some of the older boys had taken a little more interest in Scouting, it might have helped these boys," he stated in concluding his remarks.

Chief of Police Langston was then presented and he told how he had had seventeen juveniles taken up since he arrived in September of this year. He made it quite clear that some of them were quite cynical about things and that it leaves him unsure whether they are good or bad.

Being perfectly frank about the matter, the Chief said it was difficult after an arrest to have to tell the parents. They seem to never understand why their child has been doing such things.

His comment was that the schools have been left to take the parental role. The fallacy in such he pointed out was the far greater number of hours the parent had the child than the school. The parent must develop the moral side of the child and then the school develops the mental side.

Then he made some concrete suggestions about fathers spending more time discussing matters with their children, being interested in their school work and progress, reading and commenting on the bible with their children and not leaving it entirely to the church.

"We have relieved ourselves of the responsibilities that we have," he warned. The tough, worldly wise attitude of children comes from seeing the movie murders he said. Unless every parent goes back to Sunday School and Church and takes an active interest in school, it is not going to be better but worse the Chief declared.

Closing the presentation Mr. Rose pointed out two items. First perhaps provide a visiting teacher to help delinquency. Second research has revealed only one thing common to all delinquency and that is that a child is delinquent because he has revolted against his parents.

Following the presentation Judson H. Blount commended the speakers for the picture they had painted. Jasper E. Winslow suggested that children be kept busy at something "all right".

Guests of the Club were Beverly Radford of Durham and Clarence Alder of Baltimore. Visiting Rotarians Paul Jones and Charlie Raspberry of Farmville were on hand. J. B. Newman was greeted as the newest Rotarian. Charles Mitchell was Junior Rotarian. The program was presented by J. H. Rose, chairman of the Program Committee. Charles White, vice-president, presided. Next Monday night the Rotarians will choose Christmas opportunities from a prepared list provided by Mr. Futrele of the Welfare Department. A special program of Christmas Music will be presented by group of young people under Miss Ona Shindler.

Chapter II
Buck called the men in and they listened to the old jailer's story. Mrs. Bornell had been in town to see Parker, but the lawyer had not had enough evidence to sweat out a warrant. Shuffle Watson had ridden in right after that, and he had seen the woman leave Len Parker's office.

Watson had been drinking in the saloon. As the whiskey went down, the loose talk came up. Finally, Parker had heard about Watson's threats. He had brought out his guns and cleaned them.

His office boy, Peanuts Brady, had slipped out the back door.

Parker, suspected the boy of being in Len Cavanaugh's hire. Now, he trailed the youth, saw him enter the saloon where Shuffle Watson was drinking. His suspicions confirmed, Parker went back to his office and waited. When the boy returned, he accused him of double-crossing him.

They had words. Parker had thrown him bodily out the door. Shuffle Watson, coming down the street, had seen the act and called for Parker to come out.

Do you have to be rich to own stocks?

When a corporation has nearly a million stockholders, they can't all be rich. Rich folks don't get together in a crowd that big. For example, in a corporation listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the facts are:

- ... over a quarter million people own just one to five shares, $150 to $750 worth, at recent market prices.
- ... not a single one of the million owns as much as one-half of one per cent of the company's stock.

Or look at the 400,000 stockholders in a company making automobiles. A third of them own less than $1000 worth of stock. And two out of three stockholders of a big food company own less than 50 shares.

It's millions of average-income people who own shares in America's corporations. Owning stock means owning "a piece of a business"—risking one's money in order to share in the profits.

Despite this wide ownership, some people still ask, "Will my investment be welcome if my spare money will buy only a few shares?" The answer is simple, positive. Handling investors' orders for a few shares or hundreds is the day-to-day business of member firms of the New York Stock Exchange.

Helpful information is yours for the asking at any of their offices, which are located in 378 cities. They invite the opportunity to put their facts and experience to work for you.

Parker had stepped out, going for his guns. Watson had waited, letting the lawyer get his weapons; then he had drawn and killed him.

"Now where," asked Tortilla Joe, "was that put us, Buck?"

Mart Tuttle answered, "That puts us and the farmers without a man for legal advice. We've lost a good friend. Cavanaugh's been looking for a chance to notch off Parker."

Wishbone Hanks rubbed his eyes. "That's it, kid."

Right now, unless I'm plumb off, he's got plenty dinero in his pocket—blood money paid him by Len Cavanaugh!"

"Where's this kid?" demanded Buck. "This Peanuts kid?"

"Sheriff Jones was lookin' for him right after the killin', but he couldn't find hair nor hide of the younger. Later, I heard that Shuffle Watson bought him a hoss an' shoved him out o'town. Reckon on the kid's jumpin' the country."

"Funny, Shuffle would let him ride out," said a cowpuncher.

"Maybe Peanuts never got away," said another.

"Jim Tuttle know this?" asked Buck, moving off a short distance with the garrulous oldster.

"I told him when I reached the Lazy N-S about midnight. Jim told me to ride out an' tell you. Jim says to be sure an' watch Mart so the kid won't sneak off an' get killed, buckin' Cavanaugh."

"I'll ride herd on him."

They rode down the gully together. At the turn in the creek they halted and Wishbone looked at the mess wagon, now about a mile away and moving north.

"I'm quittin' that jail job," he said. "Could you use an extra hand, McKee?"

"Sure."

"See you in a day or two, McKee. So long."

Buck smiled, watching the old man ride south. A tall man, he observed, riding the saddle as he himself did—hands braced against fork, lanky body standing on stirrups. Buck dismissed those thoughts and turned north.

There was a hint of rain that night, but dawn came clear and Buck, who rode last guard with Jesse Smith, came into the camp, whistling.

"We're not going any farther north, men. We're spotting the wagon here and riding circle out from this point."

Smith asked, "Why not go north, Buck? Thought ol' Jim told us to make South Creek before turnin' back?"

"Buck's right, Jessie," Mart Tuttle broke in. "We've gone far enough. If there ain't enough heifers in here for the old man, there's not enough anyplace."

"Come an' get it!" roared Mack Bodkin.

Tortilla Joe, his heavy jowls black with new beard, squatted beside Buck.

"Me, I do not cotton to thees Jesse Smeeth. He ees to big in the mouth, an' too long on the words."

"You're an old woman."

Tortilla Joe chewed his bacon thoughtfully. "Maybe so," he admitted. "We ride out in pairs, yes?" He did not wait for an answer. "I ride with you then, amigo."

Buck rode a dun gelding. He gave orders crisply, efficiently, there in the cold dawn. They would ride in pairs. At moon, they'd change horses.

"Watch your horses on those slants, men," he cautioned. "A bronc can go for a slide on those slopes after this rain. Len Cavanaugh might have riders in this district. Always keep in sight of your partner or some other Lazy N-S rider."

"Cavanaugh won't hit this herd," said Jesse Smith.

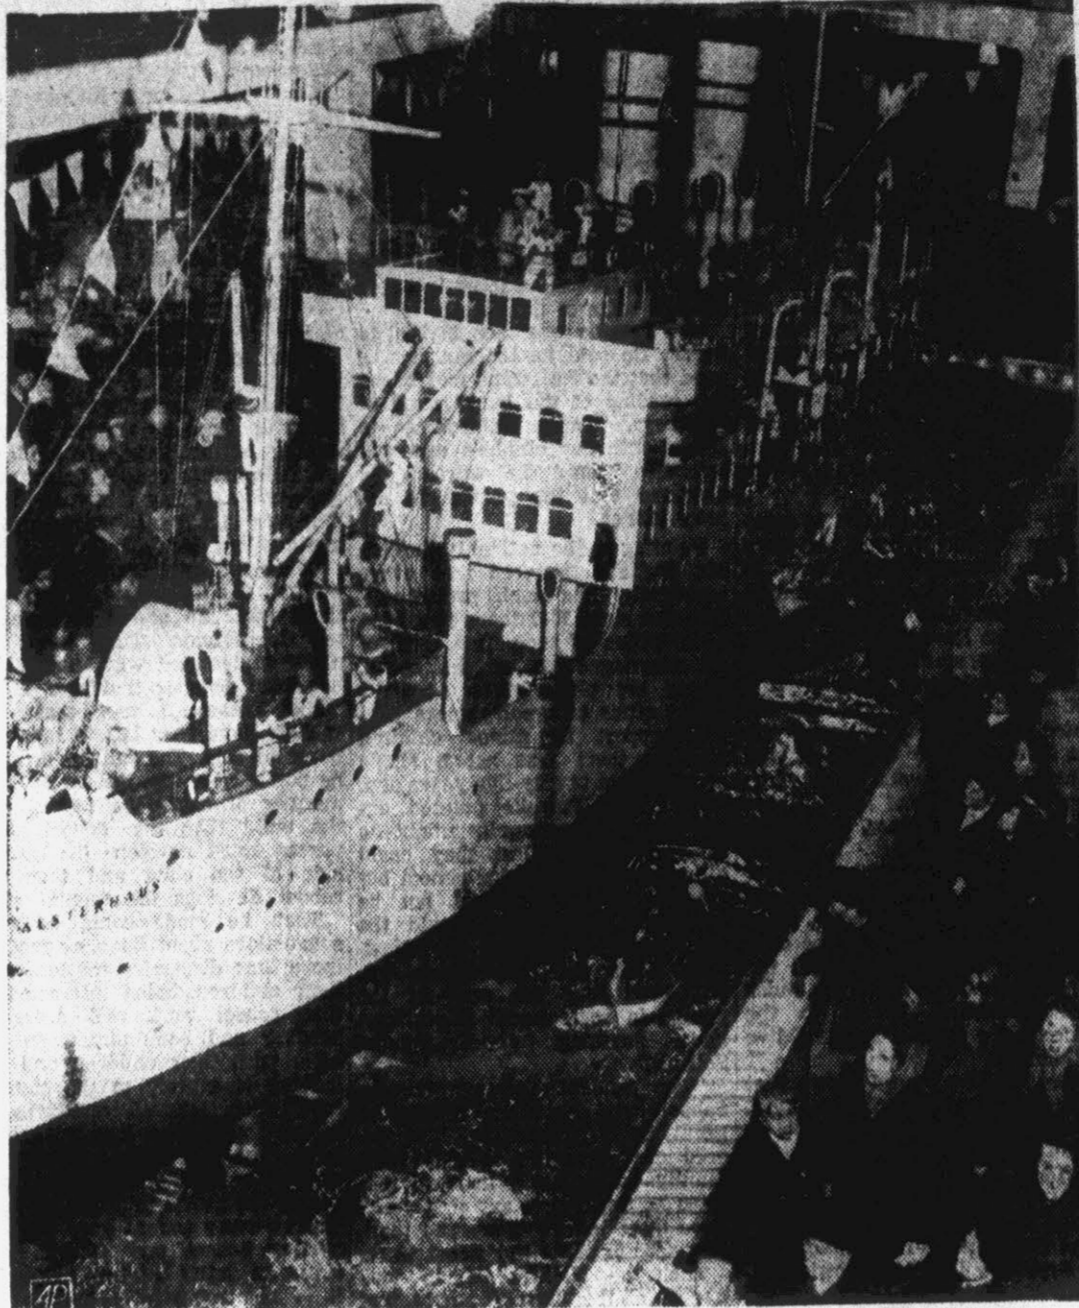

"How do you know?"

"Well, it just stands to reason, I think. He'd hit the dam first."

Buck disregarded the man. "If any of you get hurt," he went on, "if a horse should fall and throw you and leave you afoot, fire twice in the air. The man who hears that signal should ride in. Tortilla Joe, riding a big black, ran the horse close to Buck.

"You mean that, Buck?"

"Mean what?"

Pitt's Junior Red Cross Sends Packages To Children Overseas

Members of the Pitt County Junior Red Cross have this year continued their Samaritan gesture of past years in sending gift boxes to children of European countries in an effort to give them some of the necessities that students in the United States have.

Members of the JRC have for several years carried on the project and although the boxes are small, they contain a surprising number of small items for use in the homes and in the schools. Each box bears the words "Gift of the Schools of the United States of America Through the American Junior Red Cross" and are packed as a gesture of friendship from one nation's children to those of another.

This year the county and city high school students packed and had shipped, through the channels of the National Red Cross, 435 boxes containing a variety of articles. The students contribute to the boxes' contents by supplying articles of their own — such as soap, tooth paste, pencils, erasers, compasses, sewing kits — or by giving money to the teachers to buy articles.

Usually not more than two boxes are assigned to each home room in the high schools for filling and shipping. So each box received in Europe represents the work of perhaps 30 students. Average cost of each is about $1.50, having risen from $1.00 since the early 1940's.

The students never know who their boxes will go to and they may not designate a particular country or city to which they will be sent. Not until a letter comes back to the home room in the school — and usually a letter arrives for each box packed — do the students know their labors have been known. Letters have been received from France, Germany, England, Finland and other Scandinavian countries. Most of them are in the original language and it takes a bit of doing to translate the language and the handwriting. Several from Finland have gone unread since the Red Cross office in Greenville can't find anyone to translate them. Those written in French and German turn out all right — the college supplies French and German professors to do the job.

The Junior Red Cross work is done under the supervision of several white and colored high school teachers who work under the direction of Mrs. J.H.B. Moore, local chairman of the JRC. Those schools participating in the project this year are: Greenville, Eppes, Farmville, Ayden, Bethel, and Chocod high schools.

White teachers supervising the work are: Miss Betty Jane Hansinger, Mrs. Ellen Carroll, Mrs. Lindsay Savage, Mrs. Roy Batchelor, Miss Lillian Suggs, Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. Lillian Crisp Lawrence, Mrs. Katherine Adams, Miss Nora Lee Hinant, Mrs. Minnie Stanell, Mrs. Olive Smith, Mrs. Lillian H. Hart, Mrs. F. Estle Biggs Edwards, Mrs. Rommie Hallston, Mrs. Emily S. Mercer and Miss Antoinette Darden.

Colored teachers supervising the work are: Rosalie E. Andrews, Anna O. Mason, W.F. King, L.H. Mosley, Tureatha H. Vines, Lillian R. Taylor, Charles McClon Emma O. Rasbury, L.L. Dillard, A.M. Wilson, E.L. Smith, M.T. Burney, Mattie K. Strong, Viola Vines, C.M. McKnight, S.A. Bowen, M.Q. Wyche and M.G. Robinson.

Eichelberger In Favor Of Arming Japan's People

Washington, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of occupation forces in Japan from 1945 to 1948, declared in an interview here yesterday that the Japanese should be allowed sufficient armed forces "to take care of their own ground defense."

Eichelberger had just returned to Washington from his Asheville, N.C. home after undergoing a major operation.

"I am going to spend the next few months telling the American people how important Japan is to us," he said.

He declared that a partial rearmament of Japan should be effected at once "if we are pushed into war."

Lots Of Gunfire But Few Hits In Malaya Fighting

Kuala Lumpur — (AP) — There's a lot of shooting going on in Malaya but many times nobody gets hurt. In the various states of the Federation of Malaya, there are gun fights daily between British Army units and security forces with bands of Communist terrorists. But days on end, one reads of firing that goes on for half an hour or more, without a single casualty.

Some foreigners have suggested that the British campaign against terrorists would progress much more rapidly if there was an improvement in their marksmanship. On

"Tops in Quality Gifts of Pride"

Mr. Norman Christopher, 2344 Cumberland, Houston, Texas, works for the Water Contract Division of the city of Houston, and he says the house tops aren't high enough nor the days long enough for him to praise HADACOL. He says since he has been taking HADACOL he feels mighty good. He found his system was deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.

Mr. Christopher says: "After I got out of the Army I was underweight, nervous, couldn't sleep and had a terrible time getting food to agree with me. When I would wake up in the morning I would always be sick at my stomach—I could never eat breakfast—imagine having to wait until noon before eating the first meal of the day. Even then just a few mouthfuls of food would fill me up. At night I couldn't sleep—I would just roll and toss all night. I felt miserable. Nothing seemed to help me until I started taking HADACOL. After the third bottle of HADACOL I could tell a difference in my eating and sleeping habits. Now after a year's time of taking HADACOL I have gained almost 20 pounds. I sleep well—and the most wonderful thing—I can enjoy 3 full meals a day. There is no way I can describe the tremendous improvement in my appetite. I have started my wife taking HADACOL and she, too, is feeling wonderful. If there is anybody who doubts my word about what I have said about HADACOL, they should have seen me before I started taking HADACOL. I sincerely recommend HADACOL to all my friends and urge them to take HADACOL."

All Ages Can Be Helped HADACOL is simply remarkable. The way it has helped folks of all ages—yes, thousands of men, women and children who have deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron. HADACOL is that wonderful new preparation — promising blessed relief for stomach distress, nervousness, if caused by an upset stomach, vague aches and pains, or a general run-down condition, when they are due to such deficiencies.

Remember, HADACOL is not a quick-acting product that only attacks the symptoms of the miseries, but actually relieves the real cause of pains and aches due to such deficiencies. Yes, and continued use of HADACOL helps prevent the miseries from coming back.

Start Taking HADACOL Now Don't go through life putting up with a stomach that is easily upset, that causes you gas pains, heartburn, sour risings after meals; a stomach that will not digest food properly; yes, if due to lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, you can overcome the deficiencies which are causing these miseries by taking HADACOL which contains these precious Vitamins.

Start taking HADACOL right away, and if you do not get the results you expect your money will be immediately refunded. HADACOL costs only $125 for a trial-size bottle. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. There is only one true and genuine HADACOL. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order it direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their pocketbooks

There's been a lot of talk in recent weeks about "the buying power of the dollar"—past, present and future.

We can't foretell the future—but we can tell you this right now:

You'll look a long way before you'll find a car that offers as much for the money as you can get in a 1950 Buick.

Close to half a million of these cars have been built and sold this year.

Close to half a million people have checked their features and prices against the field—and decided they'd better buy Buick.

As to prices—they start down below some sixes. And whether you price the SPECIAL, the SUPER or the ROADMASTER, you'll find, on a cents-per-pound basis, that few other cars can touch them for value.

And this is for sure! When it comes to performance—ride—the way they handle and hold the road—and thrifty use of fuel and oil—Buicks have never been finer.

That's another way of saying that coil springs on all four wheels—Dynaflow*—torque-tube drive—and Buick's high-compression, high-economy Fireball power produce an out-of-this-world combination.

So if you want your dollars to do extra duty—the time to act is now.

Look at the price tags—look at the features—sample the power and thrill that you get for your money—and you'll know what we mean.

*Dynaflow Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Enough Laws To Smash Rackets If Enforced

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 12—(AP)—Most states have enough laws to stamp out organized racketeers if they are enforced, the National Association of Attorneys General was reminded yesterday.

Harold R. Fatzer, attorney general of Kansas, told chief law enforcement officers of 43 states that two steps could bring about the end of gangdom.

He listed these as local law enforcement, and education of the public to realize that violation of laws against morals is as serious as violations of laws against persons, such as murder.

"Organized crime is composed of a number of small gangs and no such organization can function except where officials have failed to perform their duties," he said.

wife variety, has been duly polled. At least three out of four allege they would rather be surprised at Christmas than dictate—however indirectly—the choice of their spouse's Yuletide offering.

The pollster in this case is an important magazine (Woman's Home Companion) which deduces from its statistics that women are as romantic as schoolgirls around this time of the year.

It quotes typical reactions favoring the surprise element in Christmas gifts as "Even if the gift isn't quite what I wanted, it still reflects real thought and love" and "I feel my husband would miss a lot of fun if he couldn't shop for my gift..."

Far be it from me to fly in the face of statistics or even a poll, but I feel that a large number of the polled ladies are indulging in a little day-dreaming, quite forgetting some of the surprise presents they have encountered under the tree in previous years.

"I like to be surprised," said the first victim of my own private research "and I like to surprise my husband on Christmas. My husband always tries to surprise me, but usually he hints about what he has bought me." "What was your surprise present last year?" I queried of my friend, who is strictly a boudoir type.

"Well, she said, "It was a pair of custom-made hunting boots."

"She was touched and she certainly was surprised. She hasn't worn them yet."

"And custom-made—so I can't exchange them," she wailed.

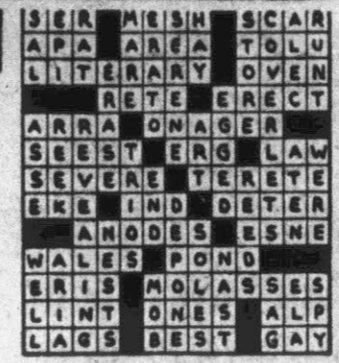

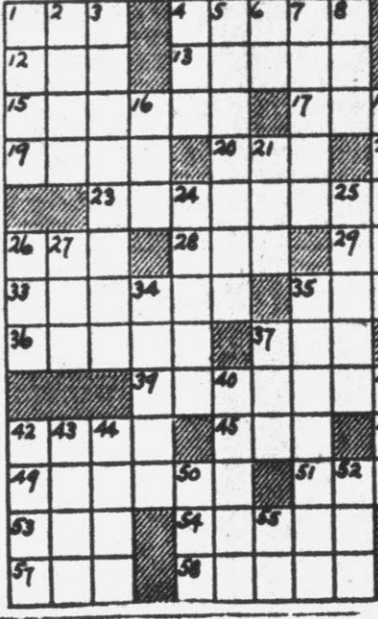

Another friend is surprised each year by her present. It's always several night gowns, hand-made, beautiful and black lace.

"I adore to be surprised by his present," she said, eyes aglow with affection. "He always asks me what I want and I always tell him a milk coat. So each year I get my black night gowns. A couple of weeks later I say casually that they are too small or too large and that I have to exchange them. Then I exchange them for something I really want. The funny thing about it is that he never notices. I've never worn a black nightgown in my life and don't ever propose to. But he's such a dear..."

Analyzing our own poll statistics, I can only conclude that women take delight in envisioning their particular man struggling ineptly and rather helplessly in Christmas shopping crowds. All I know is that four women said firmly that they preferred to be surprised by their husband's gift. Each mentioned how her husband hated to shop—apparently taking vast comfort in the thought of the male breasting the mob in search of a gift for his beloved. Apparently, a flagon of "Nuit d'Amour" obtained from a perfume counter in mid-shopping season is more greatly to be desired as an expression of true love than a couple of deer and a brace of partridges for the deep freezer acquired by Papa's camping in the cold woods for a week during hunting season.

My informants allege further that when men think of presents for their spouse, their thoughts run in routine channels: perfume, stockings, nightgowns—and robes.

"But don't ever let your husband surprise you with a robe," warned one wife. "They always buy such flossy, fussy ones you can't wear them. It's hard to exchange them for something simpler—they notice the difference and are unhappy."

In the interests of fairness, we interviewed a number of husbands. Did their wives like to be surprised by their Christmas gifts?

"My wife tells me what she wants for Christmas," was the uniform answer, "and I go out and buy it. Sometimes the instructions come in a round-about way, but I'm pretty sure of my orders in plenty of time before the great day. Me? I act surprised each Christmas over socks, ties, shirts and pipes."

'Field Day' For Russian Humor

Moscow, Dec. 12—(AP)—Cartoonists and poets had a field day today on President Truman's letter to Washington music critic Paul Hume, who panned Margaret Truman's singing.

S. Marshak, noted Soviet humorist-poet, penned verses in the Literary Gazette, one of which went:

"The rights of the President are enormous
And there may any minute perish by the atom bomb
"The critic who dared to raise his pen."

About 40 per cent of the land area of the United States has too little rain for safe general farming.

Duke Is Granted Provisional Sum

Durham, N.C., Dec. 12—(AP)—President Hollis Edens announced yesterday that Duke University has been granted $1,500,000 provided it can raise a matching fund of $2,500,000.

Edens said the money would be used toward developing graduate education at Duke University, beginning next July 1. One million dollars is earmarked for graduate education endowment.

In the difficult years ahead, that new truck of yours will have to put out more—and take it longer. So there are many reasons you'll be wise to choose a GMC.

You'll get the constant dividend of GMC's greater pulling power—truck-built horsepower with greater sustained torque than other engines.

And with that power goes the greater stamina of GMC's rugged truck-engineered frame. In practically all models, from 1/2 ton up, you get such extra value features (at no extra cost!) as Synchro-Mesh transmission, Tocco-hardened crankshaft, airplane-type bearings, and Lifetime Weathersealed cabs. They all tell you that longer life and lower maintenance are standard equipment with a GMC.

As your GMC dealer we are transportation engineers, specializing in selecting the exact combination of the right engine, axle, transmission and frame for your particular trucking job.

That's why there's a special GMC truck waiting for you. Come in, let us show you why GMC is your best buy for the years ahead!

Revision Of Beef Grades Should Not Affect Price

Atlanta. — The U. S. Department of Agriculture has revised its beef grade standards.

The grade names remain unchanged — that is, the grades generally seen in retail stores will include Prime, Choice, Good, and Commercial.

But, as of December 29, the old Prime and Choice grades will be merged under the name Prime. The former good grade will be renamed Choice. Under the shift, the Commercial grade is split with beef from the higher quality young cattle being graded Good. Beef from older cattle will continue to be graded Commercial, the Department says.

In explaining the merger of the former Prime and Choice grades, USDA says under the old standards, less than one half of one percent of the nation's total beef production qualified for the Prime grade. The higher quality young beef, formerly graded Commercial, has proven popular with consumers and the department separate grade — U. S. Good — will benefit consumers and producers.

The beef grade changes should not affect prices, officials emphasize. Beef prices, they point out, are determined by relative demand for different kinds of beef rather than by grade designations. The grades provide homemakers, retailers and packers with a uniform guide to use in meat trading.

Briefly, the new beef grades are:

PRIME — (A combination of the old Prime and Choice grades.) An excellent quality of with a wide selection of cuts suited to broiling and roasting.

CHOICE — (Formerly Good grade.) This is a high quality beef, usually leaner than Prime. Cuts will be juicy and tender.

GOOD — (Upper part of the old Commercial grade.) Beef will be relatively tender with a high ratio of lean to fat.

COMMERCIAL — (Remainder of the former Commercial grade.) Beef from older animals will come under this grade. Cuts will not be as tender as the other grades, and will call for different methods of cooking.

The revisions do not affect Utility, Cutter, and Canner beef grades.

Maid Of Cotton Named Dec. 28

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 12—(AP)—Twenty-one of King Cotton's freshest beauties, representing 10 states, were listed today as finalists in the 1950 Maid of Cotton contest.

The seven-member jury will take its first official look at them Dec. 27. The winner will be announced Dec. 28. She will be the cotton industry's goodwill and fashion ambassador.

And she'll be on the run from the time she's crowned until next July, touring more than 30 U. S. cities and eight countries—England, France, Cuba, Panama, Peru, Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay.

First she'll spend a month in New York being fitted with an all-cotton wardrobe whipped up by top-flight fashion designers. The tour starts Feb. 5.

Picking the Maid is an annual ceremony here, but something new has been added this year. For the first time the lineup of finalists will include two members of the same family—sisters Angie and Ellece Branch of Houston.

The contest is sponsored by the National Cotton Council, which announced the finalists, and the Memphis Cotton Carnival and cotton exchanges of New York and New Orleans.

Teachers Begin Receiving Checks

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 12—(AP)—Some 25,000 Tar Heel school teachers began receiving Christmas gifts by mail today in the form of contingency pay checks.

In all, upwards of $7,000,000 is being paid out by the State Board of Education.

All but 36 checks were deposited in the mails yesterday by the 172 school units throughout the state. The state board found slight mistakes in the payments made out to these 36 by their local units. Corrected checks will go out as soon as possible.

The checks ranged from a top of $420 for one year's service to a low of $20. But there were smaller checks since some of the persons eligible for the pay worked only one day.

The 1949 General Assembly, in a compromise agreement, promised the pay if general fund revenues warranted. The raise was made retroactive to the beginning of the last school year. The advisor budget commission and Governor Scott declared two months ago that the general fund revenues were sufficient to permit the pay.

OSU Needs Coach; 'Bring Back Brown' Movement Started

Columbus, O., Dec. 12—(AP)—The line of nominees — some silent, some willing and some anxious — for Ohio State University's head coaching job was getting longer today.

Wesley Foster's surprise resignation Saturday night, ending his four year regime, boosted a flock of favorite sons into the limelight and set off another "Bring Back Brown" movement.

Brown, of course, is talented Paul E. Brown, boss of the professional Cleveland Browns, four-time All-America conference champs and currently tied for the American Division of the National League.

Ohio's High School Football Association, credited with moving

Brown from Massillon High School to the Buckeye helm just a decade ago, was on the march again. Glenn (Tiger) Ellison, Middletown coach and president of the association, said letters were going out today to all members "Encouraging them to write their views to the Ohio State Athletic Department."

Former Premier Of New Zealand Suddenly Dies

Wellington, New Zealand, Dec. 12—(AP)—Peter Fraser, former New Zealand prime minister and a founder of the United Nations, died today. Jailed as a Socialist objector to World War I, he rose to become one of the Commonwealth's great leaders in World War II.

The Scottish-born farmer's son, who headed New Zealand's Labor government from 1940 to 1949, had suffered several heart attacks since he was stricken with pneumonia in October. Yesterday he rallied and left his bed for the first time since Oct. 3. Then came the fatal relapse. He was 66 years old.

AUTOMATIC WASHER

THE NEW ABC-Matic

CLEANER WASHING
BETTER RINSING
GREATER SATISFACTION

It's true! No washer can match the ABC-Matic for thorough washing action, fresher, purer rinsing. No washer has more built-in quality, more modern design or better operating features.

No other washer has "centric" agitation which distributes clothes better, washes them in a continuous movement to provide cleaner washing.

No other washer can equal the overflow and splash-away rinsing that carries dirt and soap suds up and out of the tub.

See it demonstrated today!
