TRUMAN STRESSES PREPAREDNESS

Wonju Is Given Up To Red Horde After Heavy Fight

Holding Action Bought Precious Time For Retreating Eighth Army; U. S. Casualties Light; New Line Based 50 Miles Southwest Of Wonju

Tokyo, Jan. 8—(AP)—Allied rearward forces yielded the ruins of Wonju to an overwhelming horde of Chinese and North Korean Reds today after a bitter holding action that bought precious time.

Red troops entered the burning road and rail center as U. N. forces withdrew to new positions. The allies had fought fiercely for the city, 55 miles southeast of Seoul, to buy time for the main body of U. N. forces to retreat southwestward from Seoul on the road leading to the southeast port of Pusan.

A. P. correspondent Tom Lambert reported in a delayed dispatch that the main forces Sunday had pulled back south of Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul.

New Line That's 50 miles southwest of Wonju and on the main route from the burned and abandoned South Korean capital to Taejon and Pusan. It was at Osan that the first American soldier to fight in the Korean war was killed last July.

Wonju's defenders battled Saturday, Sunday and Sunday night to keep the Red hordes from sweeping into the gateway city to the heart of South Korea. A web of roads lead from Manju into the interior.

Held at bay by the grim defenders were seven Chinese armies, possibly 210,000 men, and their Korean Red comrades.

Then the defenders abandoned the town and its airstrip. Allied warplanes strafed and fire-bombed Wonju after the withdrawal. An ammunition train was blown up.

Casualties Light U. S. Eighth Army headquarters said allied casualties were light during the holding action. Headquarters said fighting continued in the Wonju area, east and west of the city.

One battalion counterattacked Monday morning, but pulled back after a brief fight. Planes attacked Reds on ridges on Wonju's flanks.

The allied rearward still was fighting desperately to block the Reds from a southward sweep that would menace the main body of U. N. troops.

General MacArthur's summary, timed at 2:40 p.m. (12:40 a.m. EST), said heavy casualties were inflicted on the Reds.

The communists had penetrated the devastated city's outskirts Sunday only to be hurled out by a counterattack.

'Fierce' Siege AP correspondent Don Huth, at U. S. Eighth Army headquarters, reported the siege of Wonju Sunday was fierce. East of the town, the Reds blew up 37 railroad cars in the hopes of thus depriving the defenders of needed supplies.

In West Korea, Red troops were fanning out from Suwon, 20 miles south of Seoul—U. N. rear guard patrols spotted Red forces 17 miles south east of Suwon.

There were no contacts reported by noon Monday either with Chinese advancing down the west coast or with North Koreans moving south down the mountainous east coast.

Prospective Recruits See The Sergeant

One of the hardest working fellows in Greenville for the past several days has been the local Army Recruiter Sgt. Don Fare. In the above picture, Fare is shown with a portion of the crowd which has been swamping his office for the past week, as he explains some of the many questions being asked by enlistees. Enlistments at the local recruiting office are about 40 per cent above average, with the majority of the enlistments going to the Air Force. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Twenty-Three Arrested In Big Pitt Liquor Round-Up

Graham Said Slated For Key Defense Post

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)—White House officials said today President Truman has tagged Dr. Frank P. Graham for an important defense post.

These officials, who asked not to be named, told a reporter the former Democratic senator from North Carolina soon will be named to a position in the organization of Charles E. Wilson, director of defense mobilization.

Mr. Truman originally was reported to be planning to appoint Dr. Graham as director of the National Science Foundation, created by Congress to promote scientific research.

However, it was learned that Graham's name was not among those recommended to the President by Dr. James B. Conant, chairman of the foundation board.

Red Ranks Purged All Over The World, Communist Parties Are Cleaning Out Their Weaker Members To Meet Any Contingency; U. S. Reds Said Ready To Sabotage; Purge In China

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Communism's drastic purges of dissident party-members in strategic countries emphasizes the gravity of the international situation.

Soviet Russia is preparing to intensify her world revolution for spread of the Red Ism, and she is getting set for the contingency of world war.

This doesn't necessarily mean Moscow expects a world war in the near future. It certainly does mean she is playing it smart by preparing for possibilities.

Approxos of this Newsweek magazine, in its forthcoming issue, will state that the American Communist Party in its recent national convention boasted it was ready and able to sabotage the defense mobilization.

The magazine says carefully screened delegates were told the party had the machinery for such sabotage.

This work would be entrusted to hand-picked, thoroughly trained specialists whose loyalty to communism was unquestioned. A purge of dissidents from the party is a

Illegal Possession Of Liquor 'For Sale' Charged Group Following Intensive, Long-Range Probing; First To Be Tried Given Stiff Sentences

By ROY HARDEE A mass drive conducted by State ABC undercover agents and Pitt County ABC officers, carried on for the past several months, was climaxed over the past week with the arrest of 23 persons in a county-wide round-up on charges of illegal possession of liquor "for the purpose of sale."

A total of 33 cases were booked against the 23 Pitt countians arrested over the past weekend by combined law enforcement officers of Greenville, Farmville, Bethel, Ayden, Winterville, Grifton, Pitt Sheriff's office and county ABC officers.

Included in the round-up were 17 Negroes and six white men. One Negro woman was arrested in the round-up.

Of the 23 persons arrested, five were Greenville taxi drivers and three worked as bell hops in the Hotel Proctor.

Some of the cases which warrants have been served date back as far as August and as recent as December 31. The largest part of the cases are set to be tried in Pitt County Recorders Court Tuesday morning, January 9.

In commenting on the arrests of the taxi drivers, Police Chief Guy C. Langston stated that the permits to operate taxis now held by the arrested drivers will be taken up by the police department.

County ABC officers stated that the raid was one of the largest in the county in the past several years but did not reach anywhere near the total which past years have seen. As high as 80 persons have been arrested in past undercover raids by the ABC officers.

Two special agents of the State ABC office told, in City Court this morning, how they purchased whiskey from local taxi drivers and other persons in the course of the lengthy drive aimed at clearing out the heart of the illegal liquor traffic in the county.

The taxi drivers tried this morning and the sentences imposed were as follows: Carroll Farmer, 106 W. Fifth Street, Greenville, one warrant, given a six-month suspended sentence and fined $50 less costs. Samuel Cherry, 604 Wiley Street, Greenville, charged with two violations, given a six-month suspended sentence in each case and fined $50 in each case also ordered not to drive a taxi cab anywhere in North Carolina for a period of two years.

Norman E. Tripp, Greenville, asked for a jury trial and his three cases were sent to superior court. Willie J. Knight, Negro, also was granted a jury trial in superior court. Three bell hops of the Proctor Hotel, also were sentenced this morning as follows: Dan Early, Negro, one case, given a 12 months suspended sentence on payment of $200 fine. Charlie Wilson, Negro, charged with two violations, was handed a 12 month suspended sentence in each case and fined $100. George Raymond Whitfield, Negro, was given a six-month suspended sentence on payment of a $50 fine.

All persons arrested in the drive and the number of cases are given below:

Roy Daniels, Negro, Winterville (1); Matthew Harper, Negro, Grifton (1); John Seamster, white, Greenville (4); Ruffin Carr, white, Greenville RFD (3); Toney Waller, Jr., Negro, Winterville (2); James Harris, Negro, Belvoir (2) (requested a jury trial in superior court); Moses Jones, Negro, Greenville (2); Annie Woodard, Negro, Greenville (1); Carroll Farmer, taxi driver, Greenville (1); George Yelverton, Negro, taxi driver (1); Willie Ca-

Meat Price Control To Be 'Tried'

Valentine Hints Rationing And Subsidies Likely In Control Attempt

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)—Economic Stabilization Administrator Alan Valentine said today "a big try" will be made "as soon as we can" to control skyrocketing meat prices.

He hinted broadly that the effort might be accompanied by rationing and "probably subsidies."

"The real fact is we don't know to what extent meat prices can be controlled, but as soon as we can we'll make a try at it, and it will be a big try," Valentine said.

This statement, made in an interview with the weekly news magazine "U. S. News and World Report," coincided significantly with a speedup in the agency's drive to build up a staff big enough for the gigantic job of controlling prices and wages. Valentine ordered the recruiting step.

In promising an attempt at controlling meat prices, the ESA chief indicated that he considered food costs a major obstacle in the path of possible new wage controls.

Asked if "the lack of any control of meats makes it impossible to handle the stabilization of wages," he answered: "That's the point. Not impossible, but difficult."

Valentine said he had not "come on a single man in the industry who feels that, without strict rationing and probably subsidies, meat prices can be controlled, really controlled."

And without such control, he said, the so-called escalator agreements in some labor contracts might tend to keep wages creeping higher. Escalator agreements call for pay increases to meet rising living costs.

Valentine explained that a break in wage controls would result in rising production costs and these costs in turn would call for more price increases which would again require other wage increases. "And then you get the same old ring-around-a-rosy all over again," he said.

Valentine said it appeared that "to price-control some consumer goods you'd almost have to ration because that's the only way in which you could reduce the demands which would otherwise knock the ceiling off your controls."

Personal Poll Favors Quitting

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8—(AP)—Frank Porter, commentator for Richmond radio station WXGI, polled his listeners today on the question: "Should we pull our men out of Korea?"

Porter received 98 telephone calls with the few minutes allotted after he put the question on the air on his program "Porter's Poll."

The result was 98-0 in favor of United Nations troops abandoning Korea.

'Aggressor' Charge Held Up Until UN Efforts Fail

London, Jan. 8—(AP)—Britain took the view today that the non-communist world can hardly brand Red China an aggressor in Korea until all United Nations efforts to obtain a cease-fire fail.

This was disclosed as qualified diplomats reported Commonwealth premiers were considering whether to sponsor a new U. N. bid to end the Korean war.

Even if this move fails, best-informed opinion here suggests Britain and several of her Commonwealth partners will shrink from taking some of the steps envisaged by the United States to punish Red China—on grounds that the consequences too easily could involve them in war with the Chinese communists.

Apparent British unwillingness to go along with a punitive American policy towards Red China reflected general West European uneasiness toward the latest United States proposals.

The State Department set forth those proposals in a memorandum sent last week to 30 key non-communist U. N. member capitals.

A Foreign Office spokesman was pressed at a daily news conference to tell what the British government thinks of the American memorandum, and whether Britain proposes to go along with its suggestions.

He replied that the American memorandum "relates to circumstances which have not yet arisen—it relates to circumstances which would arise only if the United Nations Cease-fire commission fails to effect a cease-fire in Korea."

Extension Courses Are Organized For Quarter

President Holds To Plan Of Firm Stand In Europe

Eisenhower And French Military Leaders Confer

American General Confers With Top Ministers; Silent To Newsmen

Paris, Jan. 8—(AP)—The top military leaders of France met with General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower today to talk, in terms of men and guns, of their contribution to his Atlantic Army.

Among them was Gen. Alphonse Juin, career soldier and an Eisenhower colleague of World War II, who is strongly reported due to be the Atlantic Army's ground force commander.

The famous American General paid calls on Premier Rene Pleven and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman early today, and then went to the Defense Ministry to get down to work.

Defense Minister Jules Moch received him privately first, then convened a session of his highest ranking officers and chiefs of staffs.

Eisenhower met today with only his chief strategist, Lieut. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, and two aides, plus two French officers as translators and escorts. Two motorcycle policemen started out as an escort but got lost in Paris traffic.

He gave no details on any of these. Precisely what he proposes will come out piece-meal later in special messages and through submission of specific legislative proposals to the Congress.

Mr. Truman omitted any specific mention of many of the proposals he has called the "Fair Deal"—such as civil rights laws—which Congress in the past has refused to give him.

Low-Range View But he emphasized the possible long-range nature of the present era of tension and told the legislators they should give continued attention to "the measures which our country will need for the long pull." He continued:

"To take just one example—we need to continue and complete the work of rounding out our system of social insurance. We still need to improve our protection against unemployment and old age. We still need to provide insurance against loss of earnings through sickness, and against the high costs of modern medical care.

"Above all, we must remember that the fundamentals of our strength rest upon the freedoms of our people. We must continue our efforts to achieve the full realization of our democratic ideals. We must uphold freedom of speech and freedom of conscience in our land. We must assure equal rights and

Hospital Board To Pick Chairman

The trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital will meet tomorrow morning to elect a new chairman of the board. The new chairman will replace C. Stuart Carr, Jr., who was elected to the position when the body was formed in 1948.

To date no name on the 15-man board has been talked for the position of chairman. The board is composed of one representative from each of the townships with the exception of Greenville which has three.

Carr retired from active trusteeship January 1. Last June he moved to Kinston but remained chairman until the first of this year. At that time he was replaced on the board by John G. Clark of Greenville.

Although he will not be active on the board, Carr will serve as master of ceremonies at the hospital dedication January 18.

Vinson Outlines New Navy Bill

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)—A new $2,000,000,000 Navy shipbuilding program, including a so-called super aircraft carrier, was outlined today in a bill introduced in the House by Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.).

Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said the bill bore the approval of both the Defense Department and the Budget Bureau, and could be considered an "administration bill."

Merchants To Install Board Of Directors

The annual installation of Merchants Association board of directors will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the aldermen's room of the City Hall.

At that time the present board will hold its last meeting. The newly elected directors have been notified to be present at the meeting. Their names will be announced tomorrow and afterward they will elect their officers.

Warns Russia Is Out To Take Over World; Cites Preparations For Mobilization And Long-Range Domestic Needs; Sets Goals Of 50,000 Planes And 37,000 Tanks Yearly

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)—President Truman said today Russia's leaders are out "to take over the world, step by step" and warned: "We will fight, if fight we must, to keep our freedom and to prevent justice from being destroyed."

In a personally delivered "State of the Union" message to Congress, Mr. Truman said, too, the United States is "willing, as we have always been, to negotiate honorable settlements with the Soviet Union."

"But we will not engage in appeasement."

Policy Defense Mr. Truman's 3,500-word message was first of all a defense of his foreign policy which is geared to the idea of building American and Western European strength to the point where Russia will respect it.

It was second a general outline of what has been done so far in the way of military mobilization and a broad sketching of what is to come.

"We are preparing for full wartime mobilization, if that should become necessary," Mr. Truman said.

Preparation As part of that preparation, the President said he wants changes in the draft law, higher taxes, greater wage-price control powers, improvement of labor and farm laws, aid in training men and women. He gave no details on any of these. Precisely what he proposes will come out piece-meal later in special messages and through submission of specific legislative proposals to the Congress.

Mr. Truman omitted any specific mention of many of the proposals he has called the "Fair Deal"—such as civil rights laws—which Congress in the past has refused to give him.

But he emphasized the possible long-range nature of the present era of tension and told the legislators they should give continued attention to "the measures which our country will need for the long pull." He continued:

"To take just one example—we need to continue and complete the work of rounding out our system of social insurance. We still need to improve our protection against unemployment and old age. "Above all, we must remember that the fundamentals of our strength rest upon the freedoms of our people. We must continue our efforts to achieve the full realization of our democratic ideals. We must uphold freedom of speech and freedom of conscience in our land. We must assure equal rights and

Legislative Program Mr. Truman submitted a ten-point legislative program calling for:

First, appropriations for our military build-up.

Second, extension and revision of the Selective Service Act.

Third, military and economic aid to help build up the strength of the free world.

Fourth, revision and extension of the authority to expand production and to stabilize prices, wages, and rents.

Fifth, improvement of our agricultural laws, to help obtain the kinds of farm products we need for the defense effort.

Sixth, improvement of our labor laws to help provide stable labor-management relations and to make sure that we have steady production in this emergency.

Seventh, housing and training of defense workers, and the full use of all our manpower resources.

Eighth, means for increasing the to Europe, no matter what the plans might call for eventually. It probably would be a couple of years before this country and Europe together could put enough ground troops in uniform to stop Russia.

It would be nice of the Russians of course, if they waited until "built-up" Europe's defenses were so built-up Russia wouldn't dare attack.

Maybe Russia has different ideas. Western Europe is weak now and the Russians have about 4,000,000 men under arms and might be able to throw another 4,000,000 into uniform in 90 days after war started.

Since there's no public knowledge of what the Russians are thinking, it's possible they won't be ready to attack by spring or, if they did, are afraid of what this country's atom bombs might do to them.

grave task. The President told the lawmakers they face "as grave a task as any Congress in the history of the republic."

Emphasizing the uncertainty of the times ahead, he said: "Peace is precious to us. It is the way of life we strive for with all the strength and wisdom we possess. But more precious than peace are freedom and justice.

"We will fight, if fight we must, to keep our freedom and to prevent justice from being destroyed."

And finally, he closed by saying: "This is our cause—peace, freedom, justice.

"We will pursue this cause with determination and humility, asking divine guidance that in all we do we may follow God's will."

Mr. Truman pledged that this country will not abandon its leadership of "the community of free nations."

Reply To Critics Replying, in effect, to recent demands by former President Herbert Hoover and Republican Senator Robert A. Taft that this country limit its military aid to Western Europe, the President declared:

"Our national security," he said, "would be gravely prejudiced if the Soviet Union were to succeed in harnessing to its war machine the resources and the manpower of the free nations on the borders of its empire."

Mobilization In his report on mobilization efforts, the President said American industry must be made capable of producing 50,000 planes and 35,000 tanks a year. But he said he hoped there would never be any need to produce that many.

Much of his address was concerned with the grave international situation and he appealed to the legislators:

"I ask the Congress for unity in these crucial days."

The President said the threat "of world conquest" by Russia is "a total threat and the danger is a common danger."

"We are preparing for full wartime mobilization, if that should become necessary. And we are continuing to build a strong and growing economy, able to maintain whatever effort may be required for as long as necessary."

First, appropriations for our military build-up.

Second, extension and revision of the Selective Service Act.

Third, military and economic aid to help build up the strength of the free world.

Fourth, revision and extension of the authority to expand production and to stabilize prices, wages, and rents.

It isn't positive, of course, that the Russians intend to start a shooting war in western Europe at all, for if the allies fall out among

Federal Reserve Survey Includes Pitt Consumers

Pitt county will be included in the areas used by the Federal Reserve Board for its annual Survey of Consumer Finances. Interviewing in this area will be conducted by local people for the surveys, sponsored by the Board and conducted by the Survey Research Center, provide information regarding the current economic situation and the financial position of consumers, their purchases and plans to purchase durable goods and houses, their current attitudes toward saving and investment, and their expectations as to future economic developments.

The cities of Baltimore, J ton, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, St. Louis, and Washington, and their suburban areas are all covered by the survey. Other points are scattered throughout the nation. Respondents are selected by chance, according to addresses chosen by picking certain blocks at random and counting around the blocks to certain addresses. The names of the respondents are not known to the interviewers.

The survey will take account of income and saving in 1950, changes in assets during the year, major purchases during the year, and intentions to buy during 1951, the extent to which instalment credit was used in 1950, and is depended on for purchasing in 1951, and attitudes toward different forms of saving and investment. Receipt of G. I. insurance refunds and the use made of them will also be covered. Some of the questions will also be concerned with the consumer's attitude toward his current financial position and his outlook for 1951.

The information developed in the previous surveys has been of interest to many groups, including business and labor. Particular attention is paid to consumer purchases and intentions to purchase durable goods and houses because of the central position of these industries in the national economy. The attitude of the average consumer toward various types of investment opportunity is another special subject considered in the survey.

Link Con Men To Carnival Barker In Speech Style

Los Angeles—(AP)—When you hear someone say: "You should have piped the squish on that mark when he left the flatie all tapped out," you're listening to either a carnival hawk or a con man.

So says a University of California sociologist who reports that research on the subject reveals the two are linked by a striking similarity in their language.

Dr. Edwin M. Lemert says his studies indicate that the language similarity seems to have arisen in the past out of a common origin and association of the two groups, though present day con men, in contradistinction to the carnival worker, generally operate outside the law. He translates the above phrase as "You should have seen the face on that person when he left the gambling game broke."

Bullet-Proof Steel In Demand

Singapore —(AP)— The Government of Thailand wants to get the permission of a Singapore technical engineer to use his patent for the process of bullet-proof steel plates. F. Baldwinson, attached to the Hume Industries of Singapore, perfected his process in December, 1948, and offered it free of charge to the Federal Government of Malaya for use by rubber planters and tin miners.

Baldwinson's plates have a thickness of one-eighth and one-fourth of an inch. They can easily be mounted on cars, trucks and other vehicles used on rubber estates and around tin mines for protection against Communist terrorist attacks. Tests by Kuala Lumpur police proved the plates successful against heavy rifle and Bren gun fire.

'Kidnaped' Boy Held As Runaway

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 5—(AP)—A 13-year-old Negro boy, who told police he had been kidnaped at Elm City, N. C., last Tuesday, is being held here as a runaway.

A hearing is scheduled in juvenile court tomorrow. Afterward the boy probably will be turned over to his parents, Sgt. Ray Racine, head of the Police Youth Bureau, said.

Golden Text: "Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory forever and ever." (1 Timothy 1:17)
From the Bible: "Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God." (Isaiah 44:6)

And from "Science and Health" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God, the great I am, the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving, and eternal principle, mind, soul, spirit, life, truth, love, all substance intelligence." (Page 587)

Musical Program At Grimesland-Simpson Ruritan Meeting

The Grimesland-Simpson Ruritan Club held its first meeting of 1951 on Thursday night, January 4, in the Community Building at Simpson. The newly elected president, Johnnie Hardee, presided. The other new officers for the new year are: J. B. Smith, vice-president; W. E. Little, secretary; B. W. Oakes, treasurer; C. G. Nickens, chaplain; E. D. Tucker, sergeant-at-arms; A. J. Hardee, assistant sergeant-at-arms; and J. Elbert Mills, reporter.

After recognition and welcoming of guests, the club was served a delicious supper by the women of the Simpson Home Demonstration Club. After the supper the members were entertained by the Harmonizers of Greenville, consisting of Pat McLawhorn, James Ray Pittman, Ralph Sullivan and Cliff Sullivan. Pat McLawhorn acted as master of ceremonies. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Glenn Scott. After several numbers by the Harmonizers, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Vance Arnold rendered a piano duet, which was enjoyed very much.

After the entertainment was over, the club resumed its course of business. Two delegates were chosen to attend the Ruritan National Convention to be held in Roanoke, Va., on January 22 and 23. The delegates to the convention are J. Elbert Mills and S. D. Tucker.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

January 8, 1911
Miss Mattie Moye King came home Saturday from Laurinburg and other towns.

Mr. R. L. Humber returned Saturday evening from Baltimore where he had been to place his son, Johnnie, under treatment of an eye specialist.

Miss Lowry Shuford of Hendersonville, who has been visiting Mrs. Frank Wilson, has returned home. Mr. Edward Hearne spent Sunday in Washington.

Miss Lillian Burch left Sunday afternoon for Bruce to resume teaching in the school there.

The attendance at the men's prayer league Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church was by far the largest of many meetings yet held, more than fifty being present. The subject was "What Do the Boys Think of Us?"

The league members have adopted a plan of charity work for the league and the project has been heartily endorsed.

End of the Century club meets with Mrs. Bert Moye at the home of Mrs. Charlie Forbes at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday afternoon.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THAT ONE STAR

Polk Reisenberg tells in his autobiography of a voyage he took on a windjammer through storm and darkness toward the treacherous Straits of Magellan. One night when Reisenberg was on the bridge, the clouds suddenly parted and he saw a single star. He recognized it as the star of the sextant and frantically computed his position. To his amazement and terror, he found that the ship was headed directly toward the reefs of Desolation Island, and only by the most heroic efforts were he and the crew able to change the course of the vessel.

This corresponds does it not, to periods of darkness which every one of us has experienced at some time in his life or hers. The sky is hopelessly overcast. We neither know where we are or where we are going in the voyage of life. Then suddenly one star appears. We compute our position, find that we are in much more danger perhaps than we suspected, and then by a mighty effort we change our course and escape Desolation Island.

Many a person, remembering some wise and loving word of counsel spoken by a parent years before, has got back on the right course and escaped ruin. Very often the brightest star of all is the prompting of our conscience. One heartbeat, as it were, from the very center of our being, sends the vital blood of renunciation, of new purpose, of restraint and love coursing through our souls.

We Are Improving Schools, But Not School Attendance

North Carolina needs its school attendance law enforced. We have a law on the books which makes it mandatory for children to attend public schools from the time they are six years old until they are 14 years old.

We have the law, but for the most part the law is not enforced.

The General Assembly during the current session will have the opportunity to put teeth into the law and provide the means through which it may be enforced. The Reflector is in hopes the General Assembly will take the steps necessary to see that the law is enforced.

The state is now in the process of spending millions of dollars in the various counties to build and equip better physical plants for educational purposes. North Carolina has raised the salaries of its school teachers and plans already have been formulated for another hike in teachers salaries in an effort to attract the best possible teachers for the public school system.

All this money and all this improving will mean nothing, however, if the children are not present in the classrooms to absorb at least a portion of what is being offered.

In Pitt county for instance, it has been well over a decade since there was any concerted effort to enforce the school attendance law. There have been some scattered instances in which the welfare department has brought students into the schools, but for the most part the truant children who should have been in school have been left unbothered.

School officials and welfare officials have pointed out that in many cases poor economic conditions in the homes are the determining factors in the children's not attending school. The children just don't have the clothes to wear to school.

That may be so, but The Reflector is of the opinion a good system of school attendance enforcement throughout the state would bring into the classrooms the majority of the eligible children who are staying out of schools.

The General Assembly has at hand the opportunity to set up the machinery through which the school attendance law may be enforced. It is important that the necessary steps be taken during the current General Assembly.

New Land For The College

The Raleigh News and Observer in its editorial column Sunday called for the state and East Carolina Teachers College to seek the "best possible bargain" in the purchase of additional land for the college; but urged "now is the time to get the land."

The News and Observer and The Reflector are in wholehearted agreement on the matter. A bill has been introduced in the General Assembly by Senator Paul Jones of Farmville proposing that 30 acres of land be bought by the state for the college. Some months ago interested businessmen of Greenville purchased an option on land adjacent to the college property to hold the land until time for the General Assembly to meet, to make sure that the land was available if the state decided to buy it.

East Carolina Teachers College is a growing institution, and it is located in a growing city. It is unfortunate that the campus of the college is cut off by residential sections except for the 30-acre outlet which is now available for state purchase.

If the college is to grow in the future it must have a larger campus. Unless the campus is to be split into two entirely different localities, the land which is now under option for the college must be secured by the institution.

A fair price should be determined for the land, and if no gift of the land is forthcoming from an individual, the state should purchase the land and purchase it now for the future use of the college.

Watch That Easily Borrowed Money

There are a lot of rackets designed to fleece folks out of their money, but one of the most notorious is the loan racket which preys on unsuspecting folks who are looking for easy loans and "easy payments."

This morning for instance the Greenville mails were full of loan pamphlets from a company which offered loans from $50 to $300 on an "easy term" basis. What are those easy terms?

Well, first of all it only takes a mortgage on enough household equipment to cover the cost of the loan. And then the interest—just 3 per cent per month on the first $150 of the loan and 2 per cent per month on the remaining portion of the loan up to $300.

According to the literature those rates are in accordance with the laws of the state of Iowa, the state in which the finance company is located.

It may be that some people of Pitt county are tempted or will be tempted by these "easy loans" in the future. But before you borrow money from one of these loan concerns, stop and figure just what it's going to cost. At the interest rate of 3 per cent per month, the borrower is going to pay 36 per cent interest on his loan in a period of 12 months. That rate of 36 per cent is exactly six times the legal rate of interest at which money may be loaned in North Carolina.

Even at the loan company's interest rate of 2 per cent per month, the borrower is paying 24 per cent interest on his money during a 12 month period. That is four times the maximum legal interest rate in North Carolina.

There are a lot of ways to borrow money; but rest assured of one thing... when it is so easy to get the money on a loan, it is likely there's a catch in it somewhere and the borrower is going to get stung before he gets through.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—A Congressional survey of the condition of the millions of dollars worth of foodstuffs taken over by Agriculture under the price-support program will be made soon as a result of widespread reports that there has been serious deterioration of surpluses that would become essential in the event of war.

The investigation will not be a partisan affair, designed to expose certain faults with the Wallace-Anderson-Brannan scheme of maintaining a return to the farmer.

For whatever criticism that system provoked because of its tendency to raise living costs to the consumers, the granaries of wheat, corn, dried eggs and other commodities may prove a godsend in either limited or general warfare. They did in World War II.

DEPENDENT—Both European and Oriental allies would become almost wholly dependent on the United States for many food items, even more so than in World War II. A Russian conquest of western Germany and the Scandinavian countries, which are now furnishing large quantities of food to their neighbors, would eliminate this source of supply.

We have already had to rush food to Tito's Yugoslavia because of famine conditions there. Spain will be in the market for this kind of aid as soon as we have established a diplomatic family in Madrid. Should we renew relations with Chiang Kai-shek, his first request will be for food.

OUTPUT—European rearming will take men from the farms into the factories. It will also cut down the supply of agricultural tools and machinery which they have been turning out in order to step up production. It is estimated that there will be a sharp drop in output of agricultural commodities throughout 1951.

With Russia stockpiling, even though it means an extremely scant diet for her civilian population, and with the demands that will be made upon us from overseas, food could become the western world's Achilles heel in a long-drawn-out conflict.

Since Secretary Brannan has shown no special concern with this problem, worried Congressmen plan to look into it, even if it means grimy poking into warehouses, barns, bins and jerry-built shelters throughout the country.

SPOILING—Farm Representatives in House and Senate have received disquieting letters from their constituents on the status of their crops in storage under government auspices.

According to these reports, a large percentage of the grain commodities are spoiling for want of proper protection against the severe weather of recent months.

President Truman may owe his 1948 election to his charges that the 80th Republican Congress had failed to provide sufficient storage facilities, as evidenced by his victory in eight normally Republican farm states. The 81st session did try to remedy this situation, appropriating funds and giving additional authority to Secretary Brannan.

INADEQUATE—But the increased storage space was wholly inadequate, according to farmers' complaints. The government rushed war-surplus gunboats, which were stuck from two to four feet into the ground.

Although drainage systems were provided, they have failed to keep out the rain, the snow and the thaw. In consequence, the commodities dumped into these emergency bins are rotting rapidly, far beyond the normal, expected deterioration of 25 per cent. It is bad enough that the government's investment is being liquidated in a way that was not anticipated. But, even worse, in view of the threat of war and world food shortages is the fact that "Baldy" Brannan's cupboard may be bare when Uncle Sam and his global family need it the most.

Why Not Use The Gun?

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN KIBBIT Raleigh, N. C.

INDEPENDENT — There had been ever since the primaries last spring considerable speculation as to how the 1951 legislature would stack up with respect to following Governor Scott's lead. There were some who thought the present assembly would be more anti-Scott than last session. Some thought it would be more pro-Scott. It is too early for fair appraisal, but on basis of behavior for the first few days, the type of men elected to official posts and appointed to committee chairmanships, opinion seems justified that both predictions were wrong. The 1951 general assembly is less anti-Scott and less pro-Scott than was its predecessor. It is more independent and gives promise of considering legislation on merit and probable effect upon the state, rather than because the governor is for or against it.

NON-FARM — Report of the state-federal crop reporting service on farm population in North Carolina, based on the 1950 census, shows only a little more than one-third of the people live on farms. The number of all people living on farm tracts of three acres or more is given as 1,471,048. That is 36.8 percent of the state's total population of slightly above four millions.

RURAL — The fact that less than 37 percent of North Carolinians live on farms does not mean that 63 percent of the population is urban. Political speakers and others who have made much of the fact that two thirds of our people are rural may have to change their statements; but it is still true that perhaps more than half of all Tarheels live in the country or in villages of less than 2500 population, which is the usual line between urban and rural classifications. While strictly farm population is declining, the acreage planted to crops has increased about one and one half percent in the past two years. This is due to mechanized trends, and the fact one man and a tractor can do more work than several men with mules.

CLOSED — The sparse dozen or so members of the general assembly who stayed in Raleigh over the weekend found time heavy on their hands. In previous sessions the Saturday contingent utilized the time visiting state departments, gathering information and discussing pending bills with interested officials. This year they find all state offices closed, due to the five-day week schedule adopted a year ago. Opinion is general that the five-day week has worked well and that state employees accomplish as much, perhaps more, than when they worked shorter days but stayed on the job until noon Saturday. It was suggested Saturday that the legislature might request some offices to remain open with skeleton staffs every Saturday during the session.

PROGRAM — If this attitude continues the program effectuated by the 1951 general assembly will be the legislature's own program rather than the governor's. There is also evidence that in a great many respects there will be complete harmony in objectives. In some matters there will be lack of accord. When such differences arise legislative ideas, rather than executive, will prevail.

legislature might request some offices to remain open with skeleton staffs every Saturday during the session.

INCONSISTENT — One young lady who likes the Saturday-off system hooted at the idea of legislators calling on other state officials or employees to work on Saturday. She didn't think even a member of the general assembly could be that inconsistent. The Saturday morning session are usually restricted by adjournment motion of the previous day to consideration of local bills only, and they are always sparsely attended. The first Saturday of current assembly had three senators and less than a dozen representatives in attendance. The house was in session less than one minute and transacted no business. The senate was in session about two minutes and appointed two sons of Senator Weaver of Buncombe as honorary pages. Principal reason for the shorter house session was that Newspaperman Tom Bost, sometimes called a blockade preacher, substituting for the chaplain, made the opening prayer very short. Inconsistent or not, the general assembly is the big boss and if it votes to keep state offices open they will be open. Period.

DIVERSION — The American Public Works Association has cited data compiled by the federal bureau of public roads to show that twenty-four states last year "diverted" more than 166 million dollars of highway revenue to purposes other than road building. The amount is not given for each state, but North Carolina is included among the states using large chunks of highway revenue for police, prison administration, hospitalization and other matters not related directly to road building. In the 24 states studied only 54 percent of total highway user tax receipts were applied directly to state highway work, according to the public works association.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FOOD CONTROLS (Wilson Daily Times) Whether we like it or not, we must face one fact: All the dictators aren't behind the iron curtain. In our midst are several would-be dictators if only they could get the proper authority. In every bureau in Washington we have some, all of whom are certain they could do a better job of running America than the Americans do. It's those people who're howling for controls of one sort or another, always in the hope that they'll do the controlling. But are we going to be fatuous enough to fall for their requests until we're certain they're necessary?

Even under the impact of full defense, there's no reason to believe that many controls will be necessary. Of course, official Washington won't agree to that; it never does when it has an opportunity to push us around. But official Washington, in the sense in which we mean it, isn't necessarily running the nation. Congress, we hope, will exercise its prerogatives, seeing that some semblance of commonsense is observed. For Congress is under no obligation to the bureau. They can function only if granted permission.

Make no mistake about where The Times stands. It's for anything that's necessary to win the war. But The Times doesn't believe in unnecessary interference merely because some bureaucrat thinks we ought to be interfered with. It doesn't subscribe to the theory that nuisances are required to make people war conscious. It was the theory of a lot of bureaucrats in the last war. They outlined things for us to do not because they were needed, but to give employment to a lot of unemployed people. Let's hope we don't repeat that mistake. Nor will we if we make those bureaucrats subservient to Congress, not the President.

A VANISHING VIL (Henderson Daily Dispatch) Only two lynchings occurred in the United States in 1950, according to records compiled by Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, which has voluntarily for decades accepted the role of statistician on this type of violence. The figure was one less than in 1949, and compared with two in 1948, one in 1947, six in 1946 and one in 1945.

A Georgia Negro and an Alabama white man were mob victims last year. All three of those lynched in 1948 were Negroes, two in Georgia and one in Mississippi.

Here, then, is further evidence, accumulating over a period of years, of an evil that is rapidly vanishing. It may never disappear entirely. But one or two crimes of this nature in an entire year do not justify a Federal law to deal with them when states have statutes covering the situation. Yet in every Congress for years past—and this new one will probably be no exception—attempts are made to enact a Federal law against lynching. Thousands of murders occur every year, but no one is interested in a Federal statute on that crime. They wouldn't be as with lynching, either, except that it offers a chance to appeal for votes on the basis of race prejudice. Eliminate that so-called advantage and no one would ever hear again of an antilynch law near Capitol Hill.

No section is more gratified than the South, where most of the few lynchings occur, that the crime is gradually disappearing. No one would be more pleased than the South if it vanished entirely. But the hue and cry for a Federal statute does not come from this section. It is heard among representatives of other parts of the country that are catering with all their might to the Negro vote. Those same sections harbor crimes equally as despicable as lynching. They should remove the mote from their own eye before becoming so excited about the beam in their neighbor's eye.

The whole basis of the antilynch law agitation is political to the core, and that may be one reason why such a Federal statute has never been enacted.

A NEW KIND OF INTEREST (Williamston Enterprise) Much has been said about interest government bonds pay. Invest a certain amount now and get a certain amount later, it was pointed out. Some are now saying that the investments made back under are not proving profitable. Some, unfortunately, chose to dispose of them, claiming they had been cheated.

However, there's more to government bonds than pecuniary interest returns. The investor had a part in maintaining a serviceman and the interest of self-preservation was and is greater than the full amount of interest pledged at full dollar value. It could be that now we'll be called upon to invest in bonds, not after a sugar-coated fashion, but in the interest of our freedom and our way of life.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESNER

Fewer defense contract awards on bidding and more by negotiation are expected under the reshuffled mobilization set-up.

There has already been a distinct trend in this direction.

Last week the Quartermaster Procurement Agency in New York placed orders for 3,530,000 pairs of tan cotton socks, at a price around $1,000,000, with twelve manufacturers. It was all done by negotiation.

The major contracts with the auto industry have been awarded after negotiations, although contracts for some parts have been awarded on bids.

The business man's annoyance with red tape attributed to Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson and Defense Production Administrator William H. Harrison is only a minor factor in the shift from bidding to negotiation, Washington observers say. Top military planners favor it and the experience in the last war indicates it.

Advantages of negotiation are these:

1. It is quicker, since bidding requires time to prepare calls and more time for suppliers to respond. By negotiation, a producer with facilities available can start production immediately and settle price questions later.
2. It can help avert manpower dislocations by placing contracts in areas where manpower is available.
3. It can be used to decentralize industry further, making it less vulnerable to attack.
4. It can be used to eliminate bidders who promise to deliver more than they can produce, or who quote prices too low for efficient production.
5. It can place war orders with those who have the greatest experience and best facilities in a given line instead of with shoe-stringers who hope to pull through with the grace of government loans and priorities — although some of those shoe-stringers did fabulous jobs in World War II.

There are disadvantages, too. It does not provide for such strong incentives for economy: it can cause suspicion for favoritism, and it sets a doubtful precedent for peace times.

The change should have no serious disadvantages to the average supplier, since negotiated contracts provide for normal profit margins. Smaller firms, as before, can continue to get subcontracts.

DEFENSE ENDS SEVEN REPORTS Seven periodical industry reports have been suspended by the Department of Commerce because of the transfer of key personnel to the National Production Authority. Discontinued are reports on canned fruits and vegetables; chemicals and drugs; coffee, tea, cocoa and spices; latex and oils; lumber, plywood and allied products; rubber and sugar, molasses and confectionery. It is expected that trade publications will keep industry supplied with similar data.

TOOTH-PASTE TUBES MAY GO PLASTIC "Shaving soaps and tooth pastes may soon be appearing in plastic tubes. With the National Production Authority cutting the amount of tin and aluminum available for dispenser tubes, the Collapsible Tube Manufacturers Advisory Committee reports that two or three plastics appear to be satisfactory substitutes.

DRAFT, ROMANCES AND $750 GOWNES Because matrimonial activity usually rises with draft calls, there is heavy interest at the Bridal Show being held for retailers in New York. Heaviest ordering was for bridal gowns in the $49 price class, thought 40 manufacturers offered gowns from $20 to $750.

"SWIFT COURIERS" AT TURTLE PACE It took the New York postoffice a week to deliver a parcel a few blocks away on the same street. That was only one of the gripes disclosed in a survey of the post-office cutback made by the Commerce and Industry Committee of New York. The survey disclosed that the slowdown is adding costs and losing business for many firms.

One of the most frequent complaints is about late delivery of the morning's mail. Office employees waste many hours in the aggregate waiting for mail with which to start work. First class mail, the survey found, arrived 24 to 48 hours later than formerly; parcel post to the west is about six days longer.

NEW AND HOT COOKIES: A mass invasion of the American market is being planned for English cookies. Products of a dozen famous bakeries are to be offered through chains and other large retailers (through Scribners-Kemp (U.S.A.), Ltd., 500 Fifth Ave., New York). Extensive advertising is planned.

SCENT: A new woody pine and cedar scent for men is being introduced by Monstear, Inc., 121 Broad St., New York. Sprayed under laps, it will survive dry cleaning, the makers say.

INSECTICIDE: An insect control compound, claimed to be effective against a long list of pests while being harmless to animals and plants, has been developed. It is called C15 (by Cofco Chemical Works, Inc., 114 Greenpoint Ave., Brooklyn 2, N.Y.)

Hal Boyle's Column

Washington Letter

By SAUL PETT (For HAL BOYLE)

New York—(AP)—In the new movie, "Born Yesterday," which has ignited talk of an Academy Award for Judy Holliday, she plays a beautiful dumb blonde who learns to be an intellectual.

Corny but true, the fact is that in real life Judy Holliday is a beautiful blond intellectual who had to learn to be dumb.

And so she found life in Hollywood very dull. "Making pictures is fine," she said. "It's stimulating, exciting. I respect and love it."

"But the social life is dead. Go to a party and you always meet the same people talking about the same thing—pictures. The urgent topic of conversation is: are you on the way up, or on the way down, or on the inside or outside?"

"You're weighed the second you walk into a room. You can almost see the minds working: what's she wearing? What did her last picture gross? Who did she come with?"

"If you happen to have an outside interest, a columnist brings a story on it. And then it's no longer private, no longer your own."

"If you don't happen to conform, you're hounded. There are always the interviews with the fan magazines. And they always appear this way: 'I was confronted by a pair of sparkling brown eyes and I just knew it had to be Judy Holliday!'"

Judy Holliday paused. Slowly she crawled back from the end of the limb.

"I really mustn't say anything about the fans," she said. "I'm liable to be bombed or something. They're aggressive children. I love them all—please put that down. But their little lives are bounded on one side by the unrealistic movie—they see and on the other, by the lives they're trying to live in imitation of the movies."

Miss Holliday cringes from use of the word, intellectual, about on concerts and museums and books and conversations of some importance.

"In Hollywood," she complained, "all you see is screenings." The fact that she got the movie lead in "Born Yesterday" is practically revolutionary. She had played it on Broadway for three years to the acclaim of critics and public alike.

But when it was bought for pictures two years were spent considering 30 other actresses for the part. Then finally an idea flashed through somebody's mind: Why not Judy Holliday? Yes, why not? And thus history was made, fearlessly.

"I really had grown tired of playing the part," Miss Holliday said. "But I had to do it in the movies. It had become an emotional thing with me. I could see myself telling my grandchildren about my three years on Broadway and then showing them the movie with Marie Wilson in the lead."

Washington—"If you love art, folly and the bright eyes of children, speed to Pollock's," wrote poet Robert Louis Stevenson more than 80 years ago.

The advice still holds. Pollock's is the only surviving publisher of the Toy Theater which was so popular with children and grown-ups too in the British Isles throughout the 19th Century, is again doing a thriving business.

This has been made possible partly by the Children's Museum of Washington, which is making the enchanting little theater with its Regency styles, lithographed sheets of characters and sets (plain or colored), and play scripts available to children of the United States.

The scripts are all based on actual plays performed in the London theater over a 100-year period. New ones include British Actor Laurence Olivier's screen version of "Hamlet" and "The High Toby" by J. B. Priestly, written especially for the Toy Theater.

To Pollock's, in the dirty, dreary East Side of London, trekked the world's great and near-great. Famous actors, artists, movie stars from America and men like Winston Churchill. "The last World War, H. Pollock's stood intact, however, in the midst of ruins. Not even one of its century-old window panes was shattered. But toy theaters gathered dust while Miss Louisa Pollock, the last of the family, sold medical supplies instead.

Meanwhile the Children's Museum of Washington was having its own troubles. The Museum which had been the joy of many growing boys and girls in wartime Washington was ousted from its home. It has moved from place to place, including for several years a trailer. Now its officials believe the sale of Pollock's Toy Theater to children and adults throughout the United States may well help it to survive. As representative of Pollock's in this country the museum will realize a small profit on each theater sold.

Miss Matilda Young, director of the Children's Museum and its guiding light for many years, says any funds raised will go toward a campaign to save "Woodley," the summer White House of four Presidents, the former home of General Patton, and the home for almost 20 years of the late Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. Built by the uncle of Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner," in the early 1800s, it is a Georgian mansion house in its own park.

The Children's Museum is working with the "Save Woodley Committee" because it hopes that one day it may occupy a portion of the building and find in it a more or less permanent home again.

Scott's Budget Message Scheduled To Be Heard By Lawmakers Tonight

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 8—(AP)—The state legislature will get Governor Scott's views on taxes and spending for the next biennium when he delivers his budget message tonight.

The Senate and House are due to meet at 8 o'clock and then will go into a joint session at 8:30 to hear the Governor.

At the same time the legislature will receive a proposed budget prepared by the Governor and the Advisory Budget Commission.

The commission spent much time last fall conducting hearings at which heads of state departments, agencies and institutions outlined their budget needs for the 1951-53 biennium. The commission then drew up its proposals to the legislature.

Revenue and appropriation bills prepared by the budget commission are also expected to hit the legislative hopper tonight.

Tonight's session marks the beginning of real work for the lawmakers who returned to the capitol today after their first weekend trip at home. Last week's opening sessions were devoted mainly to formalities and early organizational work.

Governor Scott is expected to tell the legislators tonight that some tax increase is needed to meet the state's revenue needs.

This recommendation could signal the start of a major legislative battle. Several legislators have asserted they are strongly opposed to tax increase. One of these, veteran Senator Rivers D. Johnson of Duplin, dean of the lawmakers, has advocated a strong "hold the line" policy against any tax boost.

Some other legislators have indicated they want to wait and find out what the state's revenue needs are before taking a definite stand for or against.

In the Governor's biennial message to the General Assembly Thursday, he pointed out that more money will be needed to meet "new and continuing needs, but I am hopeful that this can be accomplished in large measure by anticipated increases in revenue, by the removal of certain tax exemptions, and inequities and more uniform collections."

While the Governor made no mention in his biennial message to the $15 maximum sales tax on a single purchase, he has indicated he considers it an inequity. He had pointed out that under the $15 sales tax ceiling, a high-priced automobile carries the same tax as a small car.

Even if the revenue and appropriation bills are introduced as expected tonight, it may be next week before hearings on the two measures can begin.

House Speaker W. Frank Taylor has not yet named House committees but is expected to do so tomorrow.

Lt. Gov. H. P. Taylor, presiding officer of the Senate, named the Senate committees last week. Heading the Senate Finance Committee is J. Hampton Price of Fockingham, while the Appropriations Committee is chaired by John D. Larkins of Jones.

Farm Population Of State Climbs

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 8—(AP)—North Carolina's farm population totals 1,471,048 persons, an increase of 48,000 in the past two years.

This was reported in a 1950 farm census released yesterday by the State Department of Agriculture. The figure includes all persons living on farm tracts of three or more acres.

During the two-year period, total farmland area in the state showed a gain of 299,706 acres.

A breakdown under land utilization shows: land used for harvesting crops, including hay, 6,570,624 acres; idle (no crops grazed or harvested), 1,375,451 acres; land used for pasture only, 1,577,132 acres; all other land, including timber, cutover areas, waste land, roads, etc., 11,708,728 acres.

The summary shows the following livestock totals: 163,964 sows and gilts for farrowing before June 1; 326,963 milk cows and heifers two-years old and over; 8,441,045 hens and pullets of laying age. Beef cattle were not listed.

Frantic Efforts To 'Save' Big Coliseum

Raleigh, January 8—A special meeting of the state board of agriculture was hastily called for Monday morning to approve the contract for the coliseum at the state fair grounds.

Call for this meeting went out after the state board of buildings and grounds at another hurriedly assembled meeting after office hours Friday had declined to approve the contract. The buildings and grounds group took the position that since it had not previously had any part in the matter, had not been consulted about employing an architect or approving plans, any action now would be out of place.

The unusual speed manifested by promoters of the project right now, after nearly two years of marking time, is apparently an effort to have the contract firmly approved before the general assembly can take steps to block the building. There has been a lot of opposition by members of the legislature to spending a million and a half dollars for a modernistic coliseum at the fair grounds. Such a building to seat 9,000 people, there is belief that many other projects are more vital now—especially since the 12,000 capacity Reynolds coliseum at State College is only two miles away.

Governor Scott, Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine and Fair Director J. E. Dorton have been insistent upon going ahead with the building, in spite of the fact the $1,257,000 appropriated for it lacks about $400,000 of being enough. The budget bureau last week let the contract for the main building, leaving off some heating and lighting facilities, and by transferring funds from other state fair items.

Several legislators have voiced objection to the project at the time and they particularly dislike the unusual procedure adopted to have the contract confirmed before they can take any action on the matter.

Big Buying Rush For Fancy Pants

Stockport, Eng., Jan. 8—(AP)—The young sprigs of this sombre manufacturing town have begun a mad buying rush for a new kind of fancy pants.

The three-toned trousers were turned out by a London pants firm in the hope of starting a spring fad. The firm sent a few pairs to Stockport on trial.

Without waiting for spring, the young men of the city have swamped the haberdashers with orders.

Favorite color combination—blue-green legs, gray cuffs, dark brown pockets.

"Now," a leading outfitter told newsmen, "we are hoping to persuade the men to go really gay with pockets and cuffs of bright red, blue and yellow."

"captain of the men of death"

PNEUMONIA is a disease which strikes swiftly and proceeds quickly and dramatically to a crisis. Until recent years little could be done to help the patient. The brief decisive struggle between the infection and the patient earned for pneumonia the dreadful title, "Captain of the men of death."

In the parlance of the army, the captain has been felled. First came antipneumococcal serum; which removed one bar. Later, powerful sulfa drugs and, more recently, penicillin teamed up with serum to break the captain completely. All of these powerful weapons are kept in readiness in our prescription department, waiting only for the physician's order.

Aircraft Plant Workers Strike Over New Pact

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 8—(AP)—Some 4,500 production workers went on strike today at Fairchild Aviation Division, sole producer of the Air Force C-119 Packet, familiarly known as the "Flying Boxcar."

Milling pickets swarmed around a car and threatened its occupants in a tense moment at Plant No. 2, the main assembly line 3 1-2 miles north of Hagerstown.

There was no violence, however. The police reported "everything orderly."

The company and the CIO-United Auto Workers failed to agree on a new contract after long negotiations. The company offered a flat increase of 12-cents an hour in the wage scale, which starts at $1.27. The union demanded an end to the "merit" wage scale now in force, asking instead a series of automatic raises.

Ranzino Out Front In Conference Scoring

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8—(AP)—Sammy Ranzino, North Carolina State's 6-foot, 1-inch forward from Gary, Ind., clung to first in the Southern Conference individual basketball point-making race today.

Ranzino has 126 points in five conference games. He collected 32 of them Saturday night as State whipped Duke's Blue Devils, 77-71, in an overtime battle.

Dick Groat, Duke forward, trailed Sammy by six points. Against State, Groat tallied 36 points before he fouled out.

Jay Handlan, Washington and Lee forward, is third with 113 points. Jimmy Slaughter, South Carolina's center, has 112. Mark Workman, West Virginia's center, is the only other player to break the 100 mark in conference competition. Workman has 102.

North Carolina State moved into the Southern Conference lead with that victory over Duke. Maryland pulled even with West Virginia by downing the University of Richmond, 46-42. State has a 5-0 league mark. Maryland and West Virginia have 4-0.

William and Mary, Duke and South Carolina all have 3-1 records. W&M scored its third loop triumph Saturday night by smothering Washington and Lee, 76-55. South Carolina trampled Furman, 82-47.

In other games, Davidson clipped The Citadel, 55-52; Virginia Tech edged Virginia, 60-59; Morris Harvey trimmed Virginia Military, 71-60; Niagara University handed West Virginia its second setback, 83-76; Temple dropped North Carolina, 70-

Pirates Put Unbeaten Conference Record On Line With Invading High Point; Apps, Bears Here This Week

East Carolina's North State conference basketball nominees put their unbeaten record on line tomorrow night, facing the conference powerhouse of the High Point College Panthers.

East Carolina has been successful in its first two outings against Guilford and Catawba, ranking along with Appalachian and High Point as the three unbeaten teams in the conference.

High Point has been heralded as the team to beat in conference play this season, with such stars as Ed Sista and Bill Walz sparking their dauntless midwestern tour.

In addition to playing heralded High Point tomorrow night in Wright gymnasium, the Pirates have two more stiff contests here this week, playing current leading Appalachian here Friday night, and Lenoir-Rhyne here Saturday night.

Tomorrow night's tilt will be rated the top-notch thriller, as Coach Howard-Porter's five ended a High Point eighteen-game victory string last year by surprising 57-53 score.

The week's schedule:

Monday — Piedmont at Western Carolina, Appalachian at East Tennessee.

Tuesday — High Point at East Carolina, Western Carolina at Carson-Newman; Burner at Guilford.

Wednesday — Lenoir-Rhyne at Catawba, Elon at Atlantic Christian.

Thursday—No games.

Friday—Western Carolina at High Point; Lenoir-Rhyne at Atlantic Christian; Appalachian at East Carolina.

Saturday — Western Carolina at High Point; Lenoir-Rhyne at East Carolina; Appalachian at Atlantic Christian; Elon at Catawba.

Princeton Coach, Butts, Added To List For Duke Job

Atlanta, Jan. 8—(AP)—Coach Wally Butts of the University of Georgia has been added to the list of probable successors to Wallace Wade as head football coach at Duke University.

Butts' name was advanced yesterday by Furman Bisher, sports editor for the Constitution. Bisher wrote that Butts "has been, or will be, invited to Durham, N.C. for an interview with members of the Athletic Council of Duke University."

Butts said in Athens that he hadn't received an invitation and that he was "in the dark about it."

Among others reported being considered for the post is Frank Howard of Clemson. Howard conferred with Duke officials last week, but no announcement was made.

Wade resigned as head football coach at Duke to become the first football commissioner in the Southern Conference.

Notice Gridders!

Coach William E. (Bill) Dole, head of East Carolina football forces, announced today that winter practice for all boys interested in trying out for next year's Pirate eleven would start tomorrow.

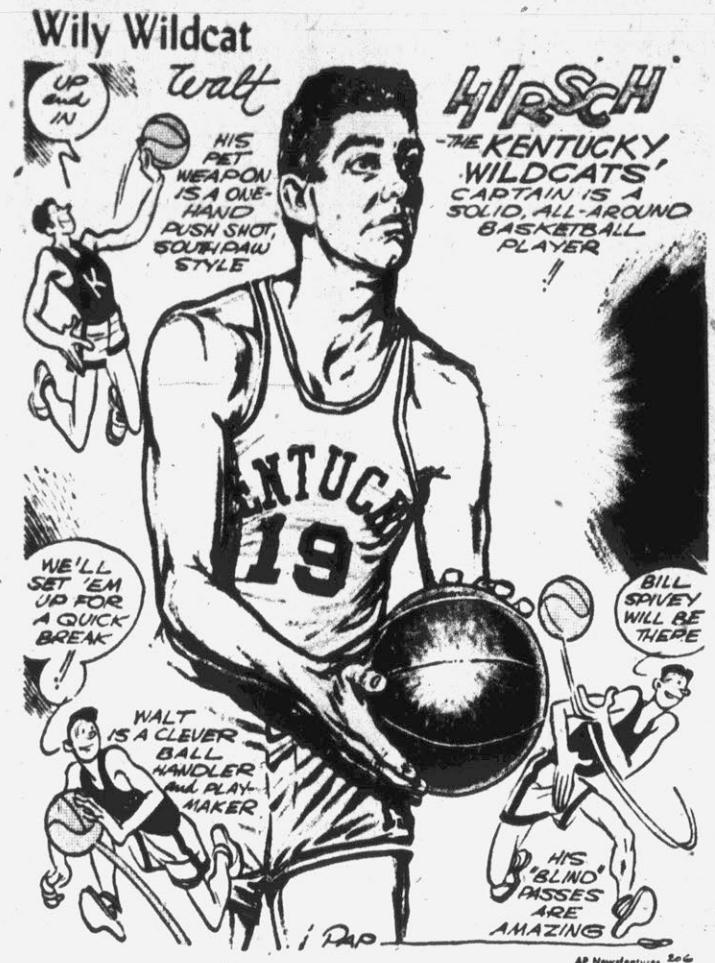

All boys interested are urged to report to the dressing room in the Wright gymnasium at 3:00 p.m. tomorrow.

The practice that begins tomorrow is for those boys who are interested in playing football next season who were not on the squad this past season.

Regular winter drills, including the entire Pirate grid hopefuls, will probably begin next week.

Dole left early this morning for Elizabeth City where he will be the main speaker at a Rotary luncheon honoring the Elizabeth City High School football team.

Sport Slants By Pap

"Potentially, we have one of the best teams in Kentucky's basketball history," declared Coach Adolph Rupp at the start of the current campaign. He then indicated what he meant by having his charges trounce a highly rated University of Kansas quintet.

The current Kentucky team includes only two seniors—Walt Hirsch, a ball-handling wizard at forward, and relief center Roger Layne. Hirsch is captain of the team. Seven-foot pivot Bill Spivey and most of his sophomore running mates who helped the Wildcats win the 1949-50 Southeastern Conference championship are back as experienced junior veterans. In addition, several new sophomore stars, headed by 6-foot-5 Frank Ramsey have come up to strengthen the team.

The Wildcats have moved into a new auditorium-fieldhouse which is considered one of the finest on any college campus. Kentucky brought a home-floor victory string of 84 straight into its new quarters. No Southeastern Conference foe has been able to beat the Wildcats on their home floor since 1939.

Ransom In Lead; Sam Breaks Hand

Los Angeles, Jan. 8—(AP)—Henry Ransom, solemn Texan, leads the field by three strokes, and Sam Snead by four going into the final 88.

As it is, Snead is in a strong position, if the methodical 39-year-old Ransom shows any sign of slipping. And Snead is a dangerous man in the stretch. Last year he had 214 of the end of 54 holes, when Jerry Barber was leading the pack with 209. This year he has 212, against Ransom's 208. In other words, he's one stroke better than he was a year ago at the same stage. His finish last year was a brilliant 66, by the way.

After his opening 67, Snead slipped to 75 Saturday but came back to 73 yesterday. Ransom, whose home is in Dallas but who plays out of St. Andrews, Ill., has carded 70-66-72 thus far. His Saturday round gave him a six-stroke lead. Par for the 7,020-yard Riviera course is 71.

Five other golfers still are much in the picture. Cary Middlecoff, who gave up a dental practice in Memphis, Tenn., to concentrate on golf, is tied at 211 with Doug Ford of Briarcliff, N.Y., three strokes behind Ransom and one ahead of Snead.

Korean War Hero Named Football's Man Of The Year

Des Moines, Jan. 8—(AP)—Football's "Man of the Year" is Lt. John Trent who died a hero's death on the battlefields of Korea.

Selection of Trent as winner of the annual award of the Football Writers Association of America was announced today by Bert McGrane, secretary of the organization.

Trent, captain of the 1948 Army team, went to Korea as a second lieutenant following his graduation from the U.S. military academy at West Point last spring.

He died Nov. 15 on a Korean hillside while crawling from foxhole to foxhole to alert his weary men. An Associated Press report of his death said:

"The whole hillside exploded with Communists as Trent half crawled, half slid around, warning his men to stay awake, despite the fact they hadn't slept for three days."

The football writers said that Trent carried the spirit of football into battle.

The "Man of the Year" trophy will be sent to West Point where it will remain for one year. A Football Writers Association plaque will be given to Trent's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trent of Memphis, Tenn.

Senior Bowlers Disappointed In Size Of Checks

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 8—(AP)—Fifty-four college stars who made their first pro appearances in the second annual Senior Bowl game Saturday played mostly for glory after all.

The South team defeated a North squad which drew heavily on Southwestern Conference talent, 19 to 18, with a glittering passing attack.

The game was played before 13,232 paying spectators, leaving large open spaces in the 32,000-seat Ladd Memorial Stadium.

When it was over, Senior Bowl sponsors reached into their own pockets for the second year to make the payoff to players who saw action.

The 27 players on the winning South team received $220 apiece. The same number of players on the North squad got checks for $150.

Several players, who declined use of their names, said they were disappointed by size of their checks.

Green Phantoms Go After Second Circuit Win With Highly-Rated Washington Team Here Tomorrow Night

Greenville's Phantoms, successful in their first conference outing against New Bern here Friday night, 50-30, meet a highly-rated Pam Pack five from neighboring Washington here tomorrow night.

Tipoff is slated for 8:00 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

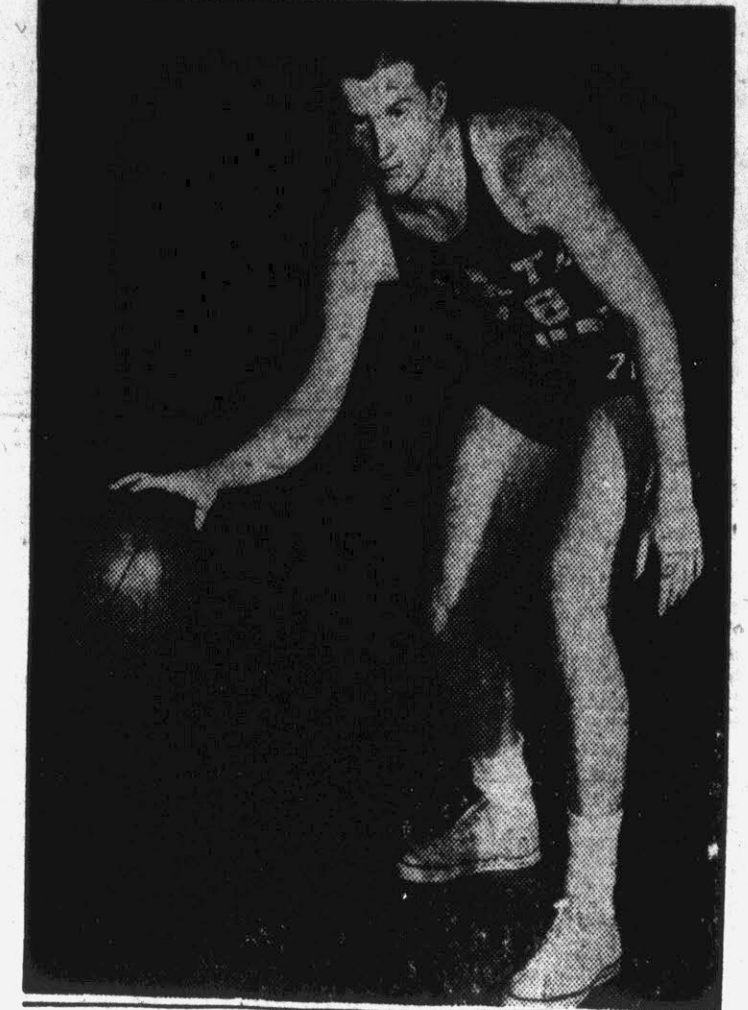

Coach Bo Farley is expected to start his regular starting five in tomorrow night's tilt. This will include Jimmy Dillingham and Virgil Haymes at forwards, Sydney Briley at center, and Glenn Scott and Jake Higgs at guards. Guard Johnny Aman is still sidelined with an ankle injury.

Briley was the leader for the Phantoms in their scoring spree over the Bears here Friday night, scoring 21 points, and he is expected to lead tomorrow night's net-swishing with the Pack.

The Washington quint, coached by Bill Sweel, will be on the conference rebounds in tomorrow night's scrap, as they lost a breather to Elizabeth City last Friday night, 33-32, in an overtime.

The Pam Pack is paced by ace scorers Bob Chery at forward and Pappy Fowle at center.

NCAA Session Opens At Dallas

Dallas, Jan. 8—(AP)—Delegates to the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention, headed by President Hugh Willett of Southern California, streamed into Dallas today. A few came to town last night but none of the officials was on hand to comment on the first controversial question to be protected—Negroes in an NCAA meeting in Texas.

Mack M. Greene, director of athletics at Wilberforce State College of Ohio, accused the NCAA of racial discrimination by bringing the convention to Dallas in the first place.

He said in a letter to Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson of Chicago, secretary-treasurer of the NCAA who arrives today, that he would not be in Dallas "to subject himself to the social indignities that Texas law declares I deserve because of my ancestry."

Greene declared Willett had previously told him there would be free access to meetings rooms without discrimination but that the discrimination already had come—the NCAA moved its convention into an area "where the social patterns are openly and pointedly against part of its membership, without giving the adversely affected members an opportunity in open meeting to express their approval or disapproval." He said some Negro members had been told they would have to ride freight elevators while others said they had been advised they would not be welcome at a coaches banquet.

Dead Dove Lives

We've heard some tall fish stories in our time, but this hunting story that just came our way makes the fishermen sound like honest men.

This is a hunting story—but there are four men who swear it's the absolute truth.

Francis Jordan Jr. of Greenville was dove hunting down in Beaufort county last week with Dick Hodges, J. C. Singleton and W. T. House, all of Washington. The quartet had succeeded in knocking down a few of the doves and each had his doves in the game pouch of his hunting coat.

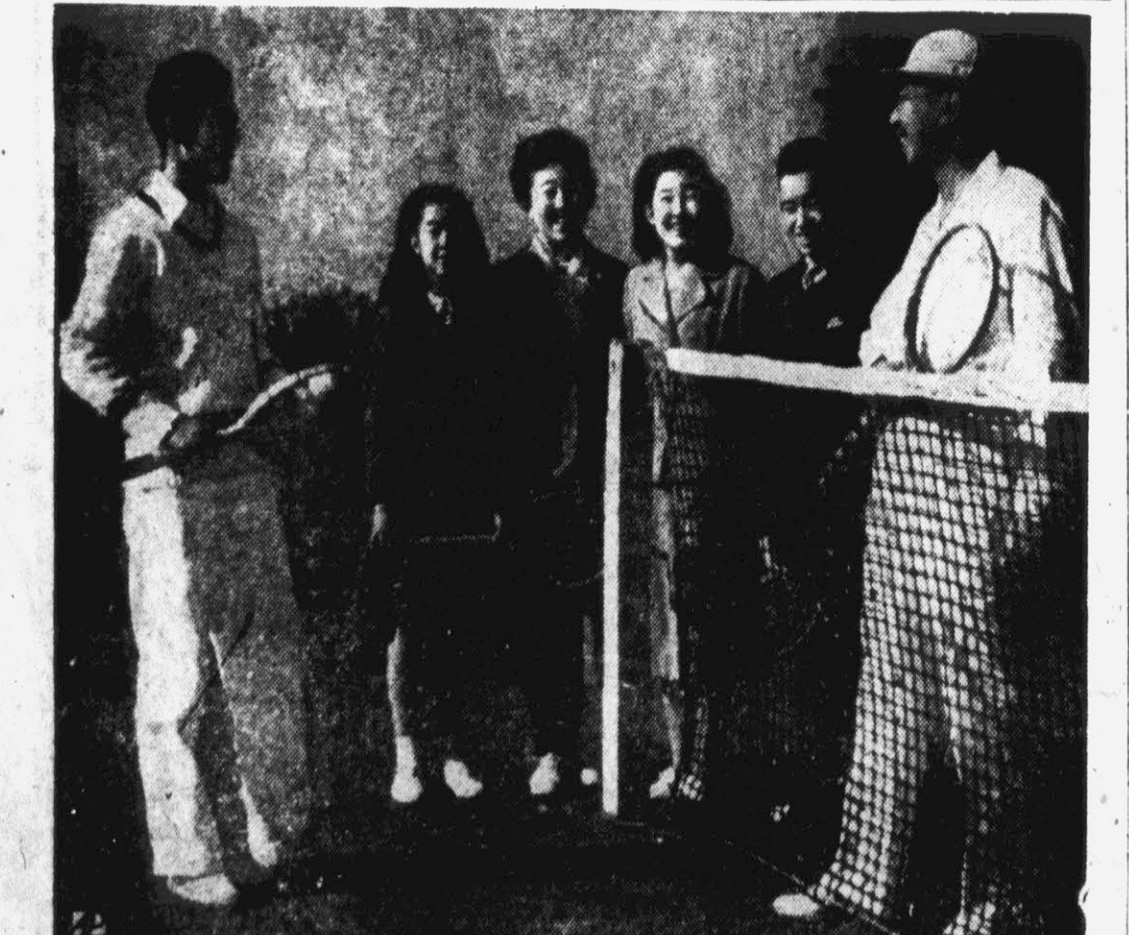

The four were standing together taking a short rest and talking things over before continuing their hunt. Jordan felt something wiggle in the game pouch of his hunting coat. He quickly reached his hand into one side of the pouch to locate the trouble; and just as he did, one of his "dead" doves flew out the other side of the game pouch.

Jordan's three companions unloaded their guns at the fleeing bird, but it kept on its way apparently unhurt by the flying pellets.

Like we said, that's a hunting story. The four told it... we're just passing it along to you for what you think it's worth.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

Chapter 6
Molly managed to escape from the dining salon without limping too obviously and took the elevator up to the promenade deck. She did not relish the idea of returning to her stateroom, a voluntary prisoner. True, it was a beautiful room, but in her present state of mind it had all the earmarks of a sick-room—complete with flowers.

It would be far more sensible, she decided, to go up on deck, stretch out in a steamer chair in the bright warm sun and pull her mind away from her troubles. She might even be able to delay the moment of reckoning for a couple of hours at least.

By the time she reached the deck chair which had been assigned her, however, she was in a virtual state of collapse. It was several minutes before she was able to achieve a reasonable comfortable position, so as to observe her surroundings with any degree of interest. She was suddenly conscious that the woman seated in the chair next to her was talking to her, and had been doing so for some little time.

"The woman—or was she a girl?—was a big but rather shapely blond with extravagantly red fingernails and extravagantly large blue eyes. She was wearing a green sweater suit, a little too much costume jewelry, and was regarding Molly with a kind of baffled, hurt expression.

"I'm sorry," Molly said. "You were talking to me. And I wasn't listening. I was in—well, sort of a fog. Do forgive me."

The blonde woman smiled—a warm, friendly smile that seemed to counteract her flashy appearance. "It's all right," she said. "I'm getting used to people giving me the cold shoulder. Most of the girls on this floating palace aren't very sociable. Too ritzy to be human."

"I hadn't noticed it," Molly answered, feeling that she should say something in defense of the night during the dancing party. "But then I only came aboard at Istanbul," she added, not wanting to antagonize this stranger who evidently wanted to be friendly too.

"Yes, I saw you. And I figured you were real folks, like myself. You're American, aren't you?" And when Molly nodded, "Didn't by any chance come from Brooklyn, did you?"

"No," Molly shook her head. "I come from a little town in the South, though I've been living over here in the Middle East for two years."

"You must have made a lot of friends over there in Istanbul," the blonde commented. "The way they carried on when they told you good-bye reminded me of the send-off my friends gave me when they found out I was taking this trip here."

She broke off here to explain that her name was Elsie Merritt, her home-town Brooklyn; that she had spent all of her savings on the Mediterranean cruise, expecting to meet interesting people, only to encounter a lot of stuffed shirts and unsociable snobs. Then she continued: "They didn't look like stuffed shirts to me—those friends of yours back at Istanbul. They looked like just plain everyday people; the kind you'd meet any day on Flatbush Avenue, or at the neighborhood movie. That's why I sized you up as I did. Then when I saw you dancing with me last night, I wasn't so sure."

Molly laughed, momentarily forgetting her aching foot. "Oh, you mean Bert Hasbrook? Why, I was just having—er—fun," she winked at the memory of that "fun" and its unfortunate consequences. "I've been working in Istanbul, at the American Consulate. My friends were all working people, if that's all right."

Israel Orchestra Obeys Tradition
Tel Aviv —(AP)—Even during its forthcoming three-months tour of the United States and Canada, the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra will stick to its old tradition, not to give any concerts on the Sabbath; the Seventh Day of the week from Friday after sunset until the first star shines on Saturday night.

Leonard Bernstein, who will conduct most of the concerts in the U.S. said in a newspaper interview in Tel Aviv, he was sure the American public would receive the Orchestra with enthusiasm.

Drunken Driving Reduced But Recklessness Costly

Chicago, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Just plain reckless, but sober, drivers caused most of the New Year's holiday traffic deaths for which specific causes are known.

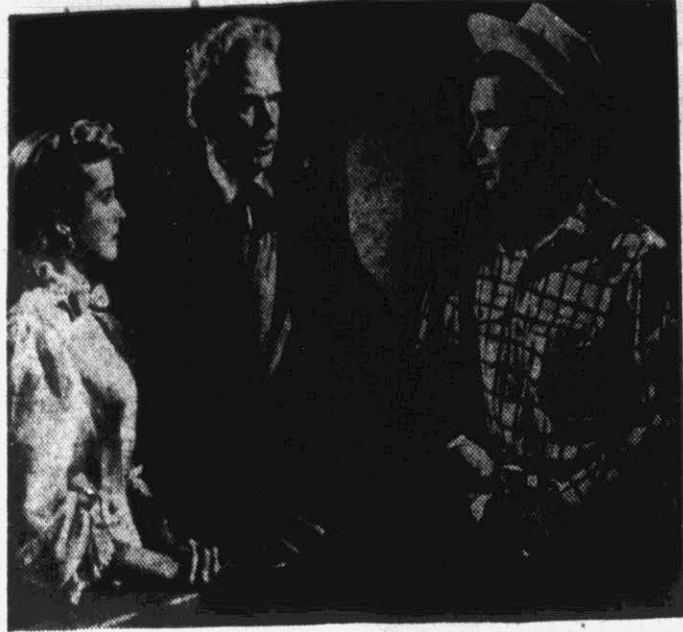

A nationwide survey by the Associated Press shows that of the 304 traffic fatalities for the period, definite causes were given for 186. Of these drunken driving was blamed directly for only seven, while 106 were ascribed to recklessness.

Commenting on the survey, Ned R. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council said:

"Many of these (reckless) drivers wouldn't have risked a dollar on the outcome of the Rose Bowl game, yet they gambled on the highest stakes there are — and lost."

The forms of recklessness included too much speed, taking a chance in passing other vehicles

Nat'l Advisor To FHA Is Visiting College Campus

Iela Smartt, national advisor of the Future Homemakers of America, is spending today on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College as the guest of the department of home economics, Dr. Bessie McNeil, department head, has announced.

Catherine Dennis of Raleigh, state supervisor of home economics education, accompanied Miss Smartt to East Carolina.

A series of meetings at which Miss Smartt will meet members of the college home economics faculty, advisors of FHA organizations and high school principals in this area, and students at East Carolina who are majoring in home economics has been arranged. Advisors, principals and student teachers of home economics are meeting with Miss Smartt this afternoon. She will speak at a meeting of all home economics majors at the college at 7:30 in the evening and afterwards will hold a conference with students in methods classes in home economics. Early this afternoon, Miss Smartt consulted with college faculty members and was entertained at an informal tea by members of the home economics department.

Indian Woman Talks To Executives Club Here

In a lecture before the Executives Club Saturday night, Miss Nilima Burn-Perry, 25-year old native of Calcutta, India, presented one of the most interesting programs that has ever been scheduled by the local club.

Topic of her address was "Women Today—And Always" and it evolved into a comparison of the customs of the women of India and the United States. Her description of the customs, dress and opportunities of the Indian woman were apt and contained many humorous allusions to women of all races.

The main difference—and the prime point of comparison—between women of India and this country is the balance between the amount of freedom the two races have at their disposal, she said. In the United States, Miss Burn-Perry stated, the women have more leisure time to begin with but have consumed that time by joinings clubs and other organizations that take their leisure hours away from them.

Not so in India, she said. Instead, it has been only recently that cultural advances have been made that enable the Indian woman to consume her time with anything else but housework. Most of those advances have come about in comparatively recent years and during the latter years of Ghandi's regime. One humorous reason for so much club work by American women is to enable them to join with their husbands more in civic circles.

The speaker demonstrated the uses of the sari—the customary garb of women and men in the lower classes of India. About six yards long, it can be draped about the body in many different ways, covering the head if desired, to effect any change of dress desired. The men use it also, she said, but generally only as loin cloths.

Miss Burn-Perry gained her knowledge of both races as the product of a Scotch father and Hindu mother. Consequently she has mastered several languages and speaks English flawlessly. She stated after the program that she will remain in the United States where she expects to make her home. At the present time she is engaged in lecturing for the Associated Clubs of which the Greenville club is a member.

She was introduced by Mrs. J. B. Spilman who entertained her after the banquet.

Reds 'Approve' Taft Stand On Foreign Policy

Paris, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Senator Taft's stand against President Truman's foreign policy is very "comforting for all honest men who want peace," the Communist organ, L'Humanite said today.

The Communist organ didn't actually take the Republican senator to its bosom, however. It said Taft is "one of those warmongers for whom the fear of defeat is the beginning of wisdom." If the U.S. had won in Korea, Taft "would talk differently."

However, L'Humanite said Taft's speech plus the recent one by ex-President Herbert Hoover, reveals "the birth of an important current of opinion against the consequences of Truman's war policy."

Cardinal Raps Rossellini Film

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman yesterday summoned every Catholic in the nation to boycott "The Miracle," the newest controversial film offering from Roberto Rossellini.

"It is a mockery of our faith," the prelate said to the nation's 26,000,000 Catholics. "We believe in miracles. This picture ridicules that belief."

Million-Dollar Fire In Virginia

Martinsville, Va., Jan. 8.—(AP)—A wind-lashed blaze cut a million-dollar hole in the heart of this southern central Virginia furniture center last night and early today before it was brought under control.

Embattled firemen mastered the flames about 2 a.m. after a four-hour fight which left most of one large block a mass of smoking rubble. The whole business district was threatened for some three hours.

Driven by winds of 25 to 30 miles per hour, the fire spread quickly after starting shortly before 10 p.m. in a large tobacco warehouse in this community of 17,000 persons about 50 miles south of Roanoke and just north of the North Carolina line.

In ruins at the finish were the warehouse, three three-story buildings and a two-floor structure, as well as a number of small shacks. Unofficial damage estimates ran as high as $1,000,000.

Believed under control shortly before midnight, the surging flames made a spectacular comeback only a few minutes later to eat away at several structures which had escaped previous damage.

Smoke and water damage was fairly heavy in a number of concerns adjacent to the burned-out area, and the roofs of a paint supply establishment and a hardware store were singed in the fire's last stand.

supply of doctors, nurses, and other trained medical personnel critically needed for the defense effort.

"Ninth, aid to the states to meet the most urgent needs of our elementary and secondary schools. . . .

"Tenth, a major increase in taxes to meet the cost of the defense effort."

In his appeal for "unity" to a Congress, many of whose members have been sharply critical of Administration foreign policy, the President asserted:

"Make no mistake about my meaning. I do not ask, or expect, unanimity. I do not ask for an end to debate. Only by debate can we arrive at decisions which are wise, and which reflect the desires of the American people. We do not have dictatorship in this country, and I will never have it.

"When I request unity, what I am really asking for is a sense of responsibility on the part of every member of this Congress. Let us debate the issues, but let every man among us weigh his words and deeds. There is a sharp difference between harmful criticism and constructive criticism. If we are truly responsible as individuals, I am sure that we will be unified as a government."

He asked everyone to put "our country ahead of our party, and ahead of our own personal interests."

The 50,000-planes-a-year figure used by Mr. Truman was the same goal the late President Roosevelt set in May, 1940, when the nation began going full scale into defensive preparations for a war that hit a year and a half later.

Is It War . . .

themselves Russia might be able to take over without a shot.

Senator Taft isn't convinced the Russians want to attack the United States. He said in a speech last Friday: "I do not myself see any conclusive evidence."

Still, Taft said, he thinks the possibility of a "destructive war against our liberty" is greater than at any time since the Revolutionary creation of a great inter-country should prepare for war.

On the radio Sunday he said he thought creation of a great international army in Europe might induce the Russians to go to war and therefore be an incentive to war rather than a defense against it.

Whether President Truman thinks the Russians will start a war by spring, isn't known, or rather he hasn't said anything about it publicly. But this country's defense plans don't seem to be built around the expectation of an outbreak in the spring.

In his radio talk to the nation Dec. 15 Mr. Truman said the communists are willing to "push the world to the brink of a general war" and "Europe and the rest of the world are in great danger."

He pointed out that at the time of the Korean outbreak this country had 1,500,000 men under arms, that now it has about 2,500,000, and he wants this raised to 3,500,000 as soon as possible.

But how many troops is the President planning to send to Europe and when?

When General J. Lawton Collins returned from a European trip Dec. 21 he told reporters some troops would be sent to Europe before next July 1, but he didn't say how many.

Anyway, if the Russians decide to move in the spring, the opposition on the ground won't be much; the western European nations won't have enough troops by then, and this country won't have enough there for there's been nothing to indicate it intended to provide all the troops necessary to stop the Russians.

in Moscow, where they have been schooled in every branch of revolutionary activity.

A reliable press report in Hong Kong says thousands have been executed during the past two months in this purge. Many other weak party members have been placed in so-called re-education camps where they are re-oriented in Bolshevism the hard way.

This purge is typical of those which have been carried out, first in Russia itself in the early days of Bolshevism, and later in all the satellites. There is no half-way about communism.

The apparent magnitude and thoroughness of the Chinese housecleaning presumably is due to the country's sudden emergence as the key nation in Moscow's drive to communize Asia. General Mao Tse-tung, the very capable leader of the Chinese communists, apparently has his dreams of making China the paramount nation of all the Far East.

Behind those dreams stands a population of close to 500,000,000. Behind the dreams also are untold millions of actual and potential fighting men, such as now are sweeping into Korea. Also in the background stands a Russia capable of providing material for military operations.

carrier-based planes hammered at supply points and communications lines. They sought to lose the twin southward drive on each side of the peninsula.

British Fireflies and Sea Furies from the carrier Thetis teamed up with U. S. Marine pilots from the carriers Bataan and Sicily, in pounding the Seoul-Pyongyang-Chinnampo triangle in west Korea. The planes attacked warehouses and supply dumps.

Clearing skies Monday brought out allied fighters and bombers in strength after bad weather hampered air activity Sunday.

B-29 superfortresses dropped 136 tons of bombs on Kimpo Airfield in the first big strategic raid on Korea's best airbase since allied forces abandoned it last week. Kimpo is 12 miles northwest of Seoul.

Extension . . .

Dr. Phillips states that much interest has been shown this quarter in extension work and indications are that the courses given by East Carolina are filling a need in the eastern counties of the state.

Three students in a course in the Teaching of Primary Arithmetic given in Fayetteville, he says, drive a round trip of 146 miles to each weekly meeting of the class. The thirty-three students taking this course, he states, represent twenty-two different schools in five counties.

JUST LIKE MONEY IN THE BANK!

A General Electric Home Freezer is a food bank that will pay you a handsome rate of interest! This is how:

Instead of paying a high price for a slice of steak or a patty of hamburger every day—you buy only when you get a "break" on meat prices—as during a sale!

You buy your fruits and vegetables in season when prices are lowest, and quality highest.

Then you just bank your food in your General Electric Home Freezer and enjoy it day after day, when most other folks have to pay high prices for the same food.

You'll be amazed how your investment pays off for you when you own a General Electric Home Freezer! And imagine the convenience of having one right in your home! Why not stop in to see us?
