

Scott Would Add $38 Millions To Budget Spending Proposals; No 'New Forms' Of Taxes Cited

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Jan. 9.—Governor Scott in his budget message to the joint session of the general assembly last night cited urgent need for spending thirty-eight million dollars more than the three hundred and three millions recommended by the advisory budget commission for state governmental purposes during the next two years.

He proposes to get this additional money without "new forms" of taxes by tightening collections under existing schedules and removing exemptions from application of the sales tax. He would also re-amp the tax schedule on moving picture shows. It is his opinion that this tightened-up exemption policy, plus increasing general prosperity, will yield the needed nineteen million dollars a year to meet his proposals.

The governor insists he is suggesting no "new taxes." He is equally insistent that the state cannot afford to halt progress for imaginary lack of money.

Specific recommendations, not included in the budget, are: Maintenance of school teacher pupil loads at present levels and continuance of a salary range based on $2000-$3100 for A-grade certificate holders, which will require for the biennium above the budgeted amount $17,621,637.

Salary increments for state employees, other than school teachers, which will require for the biennium above budgeted amount $1,945,545.

Continued and increased state aid for local hospital building requiring an additional $6,419,042.

Estimated expenditures for civil defense of $200,000.

The governor thinks additional auditors and field men for the revenue department will more than pay their way, and that supporting personnel in other departments would be justified.

He does not like the idea of cutting entirely on permanent improvements. Specific recommendations in this field aggregate more than a million and a half dollars, and include a classroom building at the school for deaf at Morganton; a psychiatric wing at the new hospital in Chapel Hill; a diagnostic laboratory for poultry and livestock at State College, and a wing on the spastic hospital at Durham. In addition to these new projects, he estimates ten million dollars will be needed to meet rising costs on buildings scheduled under previous appropriations for permanent improvements at all state institutions.

The governor prefaced his remarks with the statement that everything else must be secondary to the main job of preserving our status as a free people and a democratic nation. He believes it is necessary to attain this objective to maintain continuing progress in state affairs.

Reiterating his faith in the state's capacity to meet its obligations and the challenge of the times, he says: "One thing that we face with crystal clearness tonight, however, is that some additional monies will be needed to balance a budget of reasonable and necessary services."

He closed by urging that we consolidate our gains upon a firm basis, but take care not to weaken the firm foundation built during the past half century; that we authorize no new borrowing and no new forms of taxes, but that we obtain needed revenue by removal of exemptions and favorable items in our tax laws and most equitable collection possible of all taxes due the state.

Hospital Board Elects Griffon Mar. Chairman

Trustees Name T. J. Williams To Fill Job
Vacated By C. Stuart Carr Jr.

The board of trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital today elected T. J. Williams, Griffon, to the post of chairman of the board, filling the job vacated by C. Stuart Carr, Jr., Kingston.

Williams enters the position from the vice chairmanship, a position he was elected to when the board was formed in 1948. Elected vice chairman today was John G. Clark, Greenville oil distributor. Clark joined the board January 1 replacing Carr who vacated the trusteeship from Greenville township when he moved to Kingston.

The trustees' meeting was held primarily to elect a new chairman and also to discuss and formulate hospital rates. Through noon today, no decision had been reached on the latter discussion. However, Carr, who was present at the meeting, stated the rates will not be any higher than the average rates charged by hospitals in eastern North Carolina.

The board also re-elected Swan C. Ives as secretary of the board. Ives is cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company in Bethel and was elected to his position in 1948. Elected to the treasurer's position was Jesse R. Moye, Jr., Greenville, Woodrow Wooten, Falkland, was elected assistant treasurer.

The credentials committee was also appointed today. Consisting of six doctors and three dentists, the committee will pass on all doctors' credentials before they can practice in the hospital. The medical committee consists of Drs. W. H. Fort, W. B. Brown, Fred Haas, and F. Brooks, all of Greenville, and Dr. C. G. Garretton, Bethel and Dr. John M. Newborn, Farmville. The dental credentials committee consists of Dr. Paul E. Jones, Farmville, and Drs. M. B. Massey and B. McKay Johnson, Greenville.

Williams' term of office as chairman will run through 1952. Clark's will run through 1953.

Stassen Hopeful At End of Trip Surveying World

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Harold Stassen returned from a round-the-world trip today convinced that while there "are very real dangers of world war, the prospects of world peace are brighter than at any time in the past three years."

The president of the University of Pennsylvania gave three principal reasons for his conclusions.

First, he said, "the whole world is awakening to the extreme evils of Communist imperialism and that awakening is one of the key things."

Second, "people everywhere, including the iron curtain countries, want peace and freedom and the Russian Kremlin faces a counter-revolution, which will include the Red Army itself, if it begins an aggressive war."

Third, "America and other peace-loving nations are rearming and thereby filling the vacuum spots of weakness all around the world."

Award Contracts On Big Coliseum

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Although a request for an investigation is pending the State Department of Agriculture apparently planned today to go ahead with the construction of 9000-seat coliseum at the state fairgrounds.

D. S. Coltrane, assistant director of the budget, said contracts for the large, ultra-modern building had been awarded. The Murrehead Construction Company of Durham was awarded a contract for general construction at $1,118,956 and the Smith and Mills Plumbing Company was awarded the plumbing contract at $47,955.

Navy To Call Up More Reservists

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Navy announced today that it will order 47,000 enlisted reservists to active duty during April, May and June. The revised three-months quota is 32,000 more than the Navy said last month would be added during the three months.

Classifications to be called up include Waves in the three petty officers categories and male petty officers in some 25 specialties.

Enlisted men in the first three pay grades will also be ordered to duty as seamen, firemen, airmen, and stewards.

Ice Cream Price Hike Announced

A nickel increase in the cost of a pint of ice cream was announced today by John V. Webb, manager of Carolina Dairy Products here.

Webb attributed the price rise to increasing costs of butter fat solids and paper containers. He stated the dairy imports all their butter fats for making their ice cream. Privately, however, the rise was caused by the higher costs of paper containers, a cost which the dairy negotiators has absorbed.

Beginning this week pints will cost 30 cents. Ice cream in the half-gallon package will cost $1. Webb stated: "There has been no increase in the cost of milk to the consumer, he said."

No 'Deals'

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Congressional leaders today foresaw almost sure defeat for nearly any out-and-out "Fair Deal" measures on which President Truman decides to push for action this year.

They weren't saying so publicly, but in private they saw little chance for enactment of Mr. Truman's pet domestic proposals. They gave the best chance to his request for federal training of doctors and nurses and government help to the schools.

Mr. Truman himself, in his message to Congress yesterday, did not even mention his previous urgent demands for repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor relations law, or his past endorsements of the so-called Brannan farm aid plan.

He did ask for "improvement of our labor laws" and "improvement of our agricultural laws to help obtain the kinds of farm products we need for the defense effort."

Ercel Webb To Head Merchants

President And Officers Of Association
Elected Today

Ercel S. Webb, of Carolina Dairy, was elected president of the Greenville Merchants' Association at a meeting this morning of the newly named board of directors of the association. Charles A. White was elected vice-president. L. S. Garris was elected treasurer. Mrs. Cora Powell was named executive secretary and Miss Lois Edwards was named assistant secretary. The meeting was held in the Board of Aldermen room of the municipal building.

Before the election of officers, retiring president D. J. Whitchard, Jr. praised the work of the directors and committees during the past year and thanked them for their cooperation.

In taking over the gavel President Webb likewise praised the work of the board and officials including that of Judson H. Blount, director of the state association. He promised his untiring efforts in behalf of the association this year and thanked the directors in advance for the cooperation he said he knew he would receive.

The directors decided that meetings this year would be at 8 o'clock p.m. on the third Monday night of each month the same as in the past.

Directors for this year include: E. S. Webb, J. A. Taylor, W. L. Harrington, B. D. Johnston, L. S. Garris, C. W. Harvey, Jr., C. A. White, C. B. Bissette, C. E. Blair, Bancroft Moseley, H. L. Ormond, A. H. VanDyke, Hartwell Campbell, J. C. Fleming, Jr., D. J. Whitchard, Jr., and J. H. Blount, state director.

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Hearing of a Republican protest over the seating of a Madison County Democratic representative was postponed today by the House Committee on Elections.

Fat Stock Show And Sale Given Support By C-of-C

A cattle fat stock show and sale for Pitt County this spring was virtually assured last night when the board of directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce authorized an appropriation to be used in sponsoring the show in cooperation with the vocational agricultural teachers of the county and the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

The agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the vocational agricultural teachers of the county have been working on preliminary plans for the show for approximately two months. Floyd Hendrix, who made the agricultural committee report of the Chamber of Commerce directors, said between 30 and 40 beef cattle are expected to be ready to participate in Pitt County's first cattle fat stock show.

Final plans for the show will be announced when they are completed.

Keen Johnson, former governor of the state of Kentucky and now a public relations official of the Reynolds Metal company, has accepted the invitation to be the principal speaker at the annual membership meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce on February 26.

Badger Johnson, chairman of the activities and public relations committee, said the speaker has contacted Harold Staton, chairman of the banquet subcommittee, accepting the invitation to speak at the banquet. The banquet is to be held in the dining hall at East Carolina Teachers College. Johnson said the Chamber of Commerce was able to secure the use of the dining hall for February 26 because the date is during the spring holidays of the school.

The annual meeting of the board of directors of the organization will be held at 8 o'clock January 29 in the office of the Chamber of Commerce. New directors will be in-

VA Benefits Extended To Vets Of Korea War

James D. Walters, officer in charge of the local Veterans Administration office, stated today vocational rehabilitation benefits have been extended to veterans of the Korean war.

The extension of the benefits, which were written into law by the 78th Congress, marks the first time such extension has been made for veterans other than those of the last war.

Walters pointed out that while this is the first extension of the benefits, those who suffer injury or disease in line of duty in the present campaign may be entitled to disability compensation at full wartime rates. This holds true, he said, even though the country is not officially at war. Reason is because the law provides for payments at war rates for disabilities suffered while in extra-hazardous service.

The new law is retroactive to June 27 of last year, the date President Truman ordered U. S. troops into Korea. No date for the termination of the benefits available under the new law has been set. Future events, Walters said, will have to enter into the making of that decision. The final date will be set by the President of the United States at a future date.

Eighth Army Continues Its Fighting Retreat To South

Taxation 'Until It Hurts' Ahead Says President

Letter To Sen. Byrd
Raises Talk Of National Retail Sales Tax

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—President Truman said today the nation must be taxed "until it hurts" to arm the free world against the menace of Communist aggression.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, it was learned, believes that despite widespread recommendations for "pay as you go" financing, taxation steep enough to pay out of hand for the huge re-armament effort would rip the nation's economic fabric.

Any hope that sizeable new federal deficits could be avoided by increases taxes appeared to be fading as members of the new Congress sized up probable outlay and came to a tentative conclusion that the government will need somewhere in the region of $75,000,000,000 in the coming fiscal year. That is $25,000,000,000 more than the record $50,000,000,000 collections of this year.

The President gave his warning that "it is necessary to tax until it hurts" in a conciliatory letter to Senator Byrd (D-Va.), with whom Mr. Truman has often clashed. The senator made the letter public today.

The letter immediately aroused talk of a possible national retail sales tax, or other forms of taxation on all or most of the nation's commerce.

It was learned that Secretary Snyder told the armed forces "industrial college" here in a recent talk:

"We must recognize that it is impossible in fact to cover all the expenditures of a full-scale military effort through taxation of current incomes. . . . In a system of free business enterprise such as ours, there is no alternative in war financing other than a combination of taxation and borrowing."

Upon releasing Mr. Truman's letter, Byrd told newsmen:

"I feel certain that, if the budget is balanced, Congress not only must cut all non-essential government spending and increase the existing sources of revenue, but also must enter new fields of taxation—probably such as a retail sales or transactions tax."

Byrd did not advocate any specific tax plan in giving his opinion of what might be necessary if the national budget hits $75,000,000,000 to $80,000,000,000 a year.

Mr. Truman told Byrd he had always tried to make the revenues meet the expenses of the government, and added: "Present conditions are such now, however, that it is necessary to tax until it hurts."

Brooklyn's Dime Locker Torso Slaying Solved

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A housepainter confessed to Brooklyn's dime locker torso slaying early today, officials said, a few hours after detectives nabbed him trying to flee his boarding house.

Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy and District Attorney Miles F. McDonald announced the confession by Pasquale Donofrio, 38.

McDonald said Donofrio admitted the slaying of Dorothy Martin, 37, of Saugerties, N.Y., last Nov. 25. Her dismembered body was found stuffed into two suitcases last Dec. 4 in two lockers in the Long Island Railroad station. An autopsy showed that Miss Martin died from strangulation.

Donofrio was booked on a homicide charge. No motive for the slaying was announced by officials.

Begin Talk With Bonn Government

Bonn, Germany, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Western Allies and the West German government opened negotiations today on the question of German rearmament. A senior allied official said the first session, three hours long, was "friendly and useful."

They will meet again a week from today.

Twelve representatives of Britain, the United States, France and Western Germany participated in the conference, held in the Petersberg, a hotel perched 1,000 feet above the Rhine.

Counterattacking Allied Units Take Heavy Toll Of Reds; Most Of Action Limited To Patrols; Chinese Building Up Big Force At Osan; Troop Movements Clog Roads South Of Seoul

Tokyo, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Allied troops fought desperately today to slow the communist tide rolling toward the heart of South Korea and menacing the U. S. Eighth Army's retreat route to the old Pusan beachhead.

Two United Nations battalions attacked a Red Korean force two miles south of battle-wrecked Wonsu, road hub abandoned Monday to the Reds.

An allied regiment counterattacked strong communist forces six miles southwest of Wonsu.

Allied artillery slammed shells into the Reds and fighterbombers roared down in close support.

Field dispatches said the fighting still was raging shortly before midnight Tuesday.

The counterattack six miles southwest of Wonsu was in the area where the Reds gained a half mile Monday and allied forces later recovered most of the ground.

Action on the western front south of abandoned Osan was limited to patrols.

But Army intelligence reported the Chinese were building up a massive attacking force around Osan. At least 20 Chinese armies—possibly 80,000 or more troops—were spotted in the area.

The Eighth Army continued its retreat to the southeast. Vanguards of the fast moving Red forces pressed close on the heels of rear-

Censorship Over Korea Tightened

News Dispatches
Chopped Up; Word
'Retreat' Banned

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Censorship is throwing a black curtain around news of the tremendous pull-back of United Nations forces in Korea.

Field censors have clipped large chunks out of dispatches on the grounds of military security. Some Associated Press stories have arrived in Tokyo minus their first and most important paragraph.

Correspondents are not permitted to use the word "retreat" in connection with the pullback. Security officers in Tokyo say this is a planned and orderly withdrawal—not a retreat in the face of Red China's overwhelming manpower.

A field dispatch from A. P. correspondent Tom Lambert was completely junked by censors here because it dealt with what American troops are thinking in the pullback.

Lambert's and other field dispatches show the soldiers know they are in retreat.

All field copy is routed through Eighth Army headquarters in Korea for censorship. The minimum delay is one hour. Censorship is airtight because the Army controls all communications.

In Tokyo correspondents still voluntarily submit their material to a "press advisory division," then transmit it over uncontrolled telegraph and telephone channels. There is a minimum of delay and security officers have been willing to discuss disputed points with newsmen.

Censorship was applied in the field less than three weeks ago after Army officials said the competition for news had produced a number of security violations. Since then the only case of this sort has been what officers termed premature disclosure of the withdrawal from Seoul.

First Things First

President Truman Carefully Said Nothing Yesterday To Distract Congressional Attention From Foreign Policy
Requirements; Domestic Plans Took A Back Seat

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—President Truman is soft-pedaling his "fair deal" program for 1951.

He needs all the support he can get in congress on his foreign program, since congress already is split wide open on that.

Besides, a large part of congress' energy this year is going to be needed for international dealings and defense.

In his State of the Union message to congress yesterday Mr. Truman seemed very careful not to anger anyone very much about his domestic program.

The whole tone of what he said on domestic affairs was far less aggressive than his State of the Union speech in other years.

His Trumanite Democrats in congress are outnumbered by the Republicans and southern Democrats, any time they team up.

The Republicans are his biggest hurdle on foreign affairs. He'll need to woo the southerners, or at least not push them away from him.

He infuriated them in other years guard troops.

Two patrol fights flared 13 and 14 miles southeast of Osan. These attacks put the Reds only 30 miles less by air—from the Kum River where the U. S. 24th Division began its tragic defense of Taejon last July.

Former Route

The Korean communists, bulked now by hundreds of thousands of Chinese who entered the war when the allies almost had it won, were retracing their route of summer conquest into South Korea.

The Reds walked into abandoned Osan Monday. Osan, 28 miles south of Seoul, is the town near where the first American soldier of the Korean War was killed last July.

Communist forces rushed Tuesday into the Osan area, massing for the continuing pursuit of the fleeing Eighth Army. The Reds moved artillery southward across the Han River at Seoul.

An Eighth Army spokesman said one force estimated at 10,000 troops were spotted near Osan.

Troop Movements

Allied pilots said communist troops were clogging the roads south of Seoul and in the Wonsu area 55 miles southeast. One airman said:

"I've never seen so many people on the roads up there. They were all moving south."

The airmen were ordered to shoot up all groups behind communist lines, whether in or out of uniform, except for obvious family groups or children.

Associated Press correspondent Stan Swinton reported from Fifth Air Force headquarters that the order was provoked by the Reds' persistent use of civilian clothing to camouflage their troops.

Phoney Civilians

Thousands of Chinese and Korean Red soldiers clad in white civilian clothing have infiltrated refugee columns passing into allied lines.

Pilots spotted 4,000 Reds changing Monday from uniform to peasant clothing.

A Red patrol attacked two allied companies early Tuesday 13 miles southeast of Osan. Red mortar fire showered another U. N. company 14 miles southeast of Osan. Allied forces drove off the Red patrol.

Low clouds, rain and snow Tuesday hampered air attacks and observation of communist troop movements. But one - 80 Shooting Star jet strike swept through ground-hugging clouds south of Seoul and shot up Chinese field pieces.

This was the first report that the Reds had moved big guns south across the Han River.

A U. N. battalion surprised a sleeping Red regiment south of Wonsu Monday and killed 350 communists. Then allied fighter-bombers tore into the fleeing Reds. Total enemy casualties in this action were estimated at 1,650.

One allied regiment reported it had annihilated a battalion of the North Korean 27th Regiment, including its commander and staff. This fight raged Sunday in the mountainous country south of Wonsu.

Buncombe Court Fines 'Sheriff'

Asheville, N.C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Hubert Davis was fined $100 in Buncombe Superior Court today for acting as sheriff of Madison County in defiance of a court order.

His chief deputy was fined $50, and seven other aides $25 each.

Davis, a Republican, and his deputies were also ordered to "cease and desist" from acting as law enforcement officers.

Conservative Line For Advisory Budget Body

No New Taxes Proposed; Minor Amendments In Revenue Act; Permanent Improvement Outlays Are
By-Passed

Raleigh, Jan. 9.—Report and recommendations of the advisory budget commission, accompanied by effectuating bills, filed with the general assembly last night, are definitely on the conservative or "hold the line" level.

No new taxes are proposed. Minor amendments in the revenue act deal with administrative procedure. No permanent improvements are contemplated.

Increased appropriations with few exceptions are those absolutely necessary to maintain the state's physical properties and social services at approximate current standards. In some instances it would appear there may be curtailment, rather than extension, of services.

The commission recommends general fund expenditures for the next biennium of $303,506,96. This amount is approximately ten million more than anticipated revenue and contemplates a carry-over from the current year ending next June 30 of about eleven million dollars.

The recommendations are some forty-five million dollars more than the budget commission proposed two years ago, and about twelve millions more than was actually appropriated for purposes other than permanent improvements. State spending agencies this year had requested allocation of $351,199,930 for maintenance and operation, plus $49,966,936 for permanent improvements. Against these total requests for $401,166,826, the budget commission recommends $303,506,964 for continuing operation and nothing for permanent improvements.

The report was signed by Governor Kerr Scott as director of the budget, and by all six members of the advisory commission: Grady Rankin, Edwin Pate, Larry I. Moore, W. Frank Taylor, Harry B. Caldwell and Alonzo C. Edwards. None of the signers is entirely satisfied with the report. Governor Scott clearly indicated his displeasure in his budget message last night, and at least one member of the group told your reporter

History Is Repeating

Today's Conditions Similar To The Time When League
Of Nations Balked At Branding Japan An Aggressor
In Manchuria; UN's Fate Is Also In Balance

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

The reluctance of the United Nations to condemn and punish Red China as an aggressor against Korea places the peace organization in the fateful position of the deceased League of Nations in its relations to Japan in 1931.

It's only 19 years ago that Nippon, feeling her special position in Manchuria endangered by Chinese nationalism, intervened militarily and established an independent state under control of Tokyo. Naturally that was a terrific challenge to the authority of the League, which had been established to prevent just such use of force in settlement of disputes.

The question of sanctions immediately arose in the League. But then, as now in the case of the United Nations, the League could employ only such methods as the majority of its leading members supported.

There was a lot of vigorous talk about sanctions. But the major powers, which would have to enforce the sanctions, declined to take the chance of creating war with Japan.

So the league tried impartial investigation and conciliation. A special commission was sent to Manchuria and it reported back that Japan had been a very bad lad and was a bad aggressor.

The commission decided that a restoration of the status quo in Manchuria wasn't desirable but it proposed a plan to preserve China's integrity while maintaining Japanese privileges in Manchuria. That was a good trick if you could do it—and it was a good trick if you couldn't. But Japan refused any settlement which didn't recognize Manchuria's independence, and withdrew from the League.

There is a wide split between America and numerous other non-communist members of the U. N. over the method of handling the Chinese communist action in Korea. The U. S. wants the U. N. first to proceed to sanctions—economic, diplomatic or military.

As for this American position

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

January 8, 1911

Miss Helen Pope of Weldon is visiting Misses Mary and Lizzie Higgs. If you don't like Greenville, it might be easier to move out.

With the numerous cases of small pox reported in this county, compulsory vaccination would not be bad order.

Instead of some of the legislators introducing local and near-by bills, they had better save their work for an entire state bill that is coming along before the session closes.

The tobacco market has started up again after being closed for the holidays. Sales are light, but prices are better than they were before Christmas. Farmers should finish selling their tobacco early now, so as to have it all out of the way before starting crops for this season.

Rev. Jones Concludes Interim Pastorate

Friends of Rev. H. Frederick Jones of Winston, a former pastor of Memorial Baptist Church in Greenville, will be interested in the following article found in the Religious Herald, published in Richmond.

First Baptist Church of Goldsboro, N. C. was fortunate to have had the services of Dr. H. Frederick Jones as interim pastor for the two months ending with the first of the year.

Dr. Jones in his pastorate prepared the way splendidly for the coming of the new pastor, Rev. H. Gilmer Cross, from Oak Hill, West Virginia, and maintained the spiritual life of the church at a high level. Many members expressed their appreciation to Dr. Jones for the manner in which he quickly fitted into the life of the church and the community.

While Dr. Jones was in Goldsboro, a mid-week prayer service was started that had an average attendance of better than 100. He drew the church members close in brotherly love and loyal dedication to the work of the Christian religion.

Dr. Jones will continue to make his home in Winston, N.C., RFD 2. He will be available for special services and for work as interim pastor. He is serving Neuse Association as moderator.

Rotarians Stage Policy Discussion

By WYATT BROWN

The Rotarians engaged in a poll of opinions last night on the issues of the day faced by the United States Government. Dr. Carl Adams, who had prepared the questions and who conducted the session, said he "wondered if we are justified in judging what happened last year in terms of things we know today. Anyway, it looks like we are getting near a precipice of some sort. If the United States is going to take a place of leadership in the world, we must get together on a program."

Reactions to some of the questions found Rotarians rising to their feet to make pertinent remarks. At the suggestion of Ty Wagner Dr. Adams called for a show of hands on the question of whether Nationalist Chinese troops should be used in Korea. The result showed a division of opinion. Due to some confusion about the question placed for the show of hands, the resultant hands might have shown a greater majority for Chinese Nationalist intervention. Limitations of time prevented a complete clarification.

The moderator promised a tabulation of the written response to the poll for next week. Great difficulty was experienced in keeping private discussions of the issues from interrupting the carrying out of the poll. The lobby was full of groups in heated discussions following adjournment.

Prior to the poll taking John Spinks Jr., representing the Junior Chamber of Commerce, presented the matter of the choosing of the "Young Man of the Year." Mr. Spinks explained that it was the choosing of a person to receive the Distinguished Service Award for having contributed the most to the community in the past year. The Junior Chamber of Commerce makes such a selection each year.

He urged the Rotarians to think the matter over and come prepared next week to indicate on prepared forms the man of their choice over 21 and less than 35. The man chosen does not necessarily have to be from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, he further explained. Members of the four civic clubs are being approached for recommendations.

Karl Worsley Jr. was greeted as the Junior Rotarian last night. The following visiting Rotarians met with the local club last night: Dr. John Mewborn and Elvin Coates of Farmville and Ray Phillips of Washington. The program was presented by Beecher Flanagan, chairman of the Program Committee. Charles White, vice-chairman, presided.

Lions See Movie On Communism

A special Air Force movie dealing with Communism and the way it has been used to overcome nations of the world, was shown to the Greenville Lion's Club at their regular weekly meeting last night at the Woman's Club.

The movie traced the history of the communist party from its birth to the present day, and was shown by Major L. L. May, commanding officer of the East Carolina Air ROTC unit.

Plans for attendance of the mid-winter Lion's convention, to be held in Wilson next Monday, were made by club members.

A spokesman for the Junior Chamber of Commerce John Spinks urged members of the club to study candidates for the annual Jaycee "Man of the Year" award to be voted on in the near future.

Guests of the club included Frank Reid and Bobby Lee, Junior Lion from the high school.

President Larry Averette presided.

Dr. Frank Fuller Speaker At St. Raphael's P.T.A.

The Parent-Teachers Association of St. Raphael School met in the school auditorium last Wednesday night.

Mrs. R. B. Arthur, president, presented Dr. Frank G. Fuller, of East Carolina Teachers College, as guest speaker. Dr. Fuller made a most interesting talk on "Discipline and the Reward in Punishment." He stressed the thought that too many people think of discipline only as punishment, forgetting the fact that it is also educational and rewarding. Children are individuals and there are differences that exist in each child; therefore, we must realize they need to be recognized as people. Particularly should we recognize good behavior. In his discussion of punishment, Dr. Fuller brought out that the emphasis should be placed on the act, and not on the child.

Following Dr. Fuller's most informative talk, a short business meeting was held, after which refreshments were served.

Cotton Growers Convene Today

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Cotton growers from North Carolina, South Carolina and 14 other states met here today to discuss the cotton requirements of the national emergency.

Walker Randolph of Montgomery, Ala., chairman of farm representatives here for a series of government conferences, said the group likely will map out some formal recommendations to make to government officials to speed up cotton production. He said the recommendations probably would include proposals for new cotton legislation, the possibility of price control, price supports and the relation of cotton and synthetic fibers.

Ayden Free Will Baptist Church Scene Of Page-Branch Wedding

The Ayden Free Will Baptist Church was a scene of candlelight wedding Sunday afternoon at five o'clock, when Miss Geraldine Branch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Branch of Ayden, became the bride of Talmadge Page, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Page of Rockingham, N.C.

Vows were spoken at the altar against a background of palms, ferns, candelabras and baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

The Rev. C. L. Patrick of Grifton officiated using a double ring ceremony.

Prior to the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Elbert Davidson of Ayden, organist and Miss Ruth Little of Winterville, cousin of the bride, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a winter white suit with navy accessories. She carried a white prayer book topped with a purple threaded white orchid show-

Several Hundred N. C. Students Drop College For Military Life

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Several hundred students dropped out of North Carolina colleges during the Christmas holidays to enter military service, a survey showed today.

The survey showed that the University of North Carolina, N. C. State College, Duke University and Wake Forest College all lost students over the holidays to the military.

The number leaving from the University and N. C. State was greatest, however, because they operate on a quarter instead of a semester system. Their fall quarter ended just before Christmas. Duke and Wake Forest still are in the first semester of their school year.

Roy Armstrong, director of admissions at the University of North Carolina, said that the enrollment there is down about 800 from the start of the fall quarter and that between 500 and 600 of those who left school did so because of the world situation. Some students dropped out to enlist during the fall, but Armstrong estimated that the number leaving to go into service over Christmas was upwards of 300.

W. L. Mayer, director of registration at N. C. State, said that some 200 students who were eligible to return to school for the winter quarter failed to return. He attributed about half of these to the war situation.

Wake Forest reported that some students have left school to enlist but there was "no flock of with-

Value Your Health More Than Riches

Some folks think that fine clothes and fine, big houses are the most important things in life, but these things really don't mean too much if a person doesn't feel well enough to enjoy them.

Most folks don't realize this, but Mrs. Lucy Braswell of Route 2, Stone Mountain, Ga., realizes it very well. Mrs. Braswell takes HADACOL and by taking HADACOL she found her system overcome deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mrs. Braswell's own statement: "I have been sick for some time with stomach disturbances. I began taking HADACOL and I have been taking it about six weeks. I am so much better and much stronger. I will continue to take HADACOL. It sure has helped me. I tell my friends about HADACOL. I can't praise HADACOL too much. I am 59 years old."

Britannia's Sword Added To London's Theft Wave

London, Jan. 9.—(AP)—"Gads, Chumley, things can't go on like this. First the Scone Stone and now Britannia's sword. Bad show."

Indeed Britannia's sword is gone. The four-foot bronze sword was attached to a girdle around the figure of Britannia seated at the base of a statue of Scotsman Lord Clyde, the Indian Mutiny hero. It was reported missing last night by the Ministry of Works, probably swiped sometime last Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

The statue is in Waterloo Place, right off Pall Mall, in the heart of London.

Scotland Yard detectives, still mystified by the disappearance of the coronation stone from Westminster Abbey on Christmas Day, were switched to the new theft.

They had these facts to work Saturday night, London was filled to overflowing with soccer fans who travelled from all parts of the country to take in the Football Association matches.

Sunday morning the sword was gone.

Detectives scratching their heads, asked this question: "Who took it?"

Frankly Scotland Yard didn't know.

Marriages Rise In 'Crisis' Year

New York, N. Y.—There were nearly 1,675,000 marriages in the United States in 1950, or 5 percent more than in 1949, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians report.

The rise reflects the spurt in marriages following the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, for in the first half of 1950 the number of weddings was below the level of the year before.

"In the early months of 1950," the statisticians explain, "there was every indication that the decline in marriages would continue for the fourth successive year. In March, for example, the rate was down to 7.7 per 1,000 population, one of the lowest in the past 12 years. In fact, the marriage rate in the first six months of this year averaged 5 percent below that for the corresponding period of the year before. The attack on South Korea brought a sharp reversal; July, and each month thereafter recorded more marriages than the comparable month of 1949. The boom in marriages was particularly marked in August and September."

The rise in marriages in 1950 was fairly general throughout the country. Generally speaking, in the first 10 months of the year the largest increases were recorded in the Mountain (14.2 percent) and the East North Central States (10.8 percent). Increases of only about 1 percent occurred in the West South Central and the Pacific States.

Marriages in the East South Central States as a group actually fell below the number in 1949, but this is accounted for entirely by the sharp drop in Kentucky. Other states with substantial declines were Delaware, Georgia and Texas, all Southern States.

"Although the marriage boom had already passed its peak in October, indications are that marriages still remained above their 1949 level in November and December," the statisticians observe. "Despite the rise in marriages this year, the rate of 11.0 per 1,000 population, including the armed forces overseas, was the fourth lowest since 1939. The outlook is that the rate in the near future will fall to one of the lowest levels in our history."

Wrecker Victim In Road Mishap

A wrecker and a wrecked car which it was hauling turned over yesterday afternoon, about two miles from Fountain on highway 258. Patrolman D. E. Perry reported.

The wrecker, operating out from Rocky Mount, was being driven by James A. Ricks, Negro, of Rocky Mount.

Perry stated that the driver told him that a gasoline truck passed him and cut back into his path, causing him to brake his truck, which resulted in the accident.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
POINT OF NO RETURN

Aviators often refer to the point of no return. By this they mean that when an aviator starts out with enough fuel to get him from his point of departure to his point of destination, he reaches a point in that journey where he must keep on going because the distance back home is so long that he would run out of gas before he reached it.

The point of no return is a solemn reality to every aviator. He knows that if anything goes wrong with his engine, he just has to keep on going anyway. The point at which he could turn back has been passed. He has to face the journey ahead of him at all hazards.

All through life we face points of no return. Opportunity passes, and we can never again retrieve it. We make some great mistakes, and although most mistakes can be rectified, there are some that cannot. For the harm is done, or an injured person is dead, or the power to rectify the mistakes has departed.

We should always be solemnly conscious that in moral situations there is a point of no return—no return to honor, purity, good reputation. The forgiveness of sin is always possible, but in every moral disaster there are some things which can never again be restored.

We Hope The Courts Do Their Part Too

The law enforcement officers of Pitt county and the individual communities of the county are to be congratulated on the clean-up they made in the illicit liquor traffic during the past week-end.

The officers' crack-down was by no means a clean sweep—nor do they assert that it was. But it was a great stride in the removal of the illegal liquor sales which have been going on in the county.

The method through which the officers went to nab the twenty-three bootleggers which fell into their trap was by no means simple. It took months of detailed planning, months of diligent work and months of assiduous cooperation between the various law enforcement groups throughout the county.

The people of Pitt county have every right to be proud of the achievement of their law enforcement officers. The county should realize how fortunate it is to have its law enforcement groups so well coordinated and so cooperative.

The law enforcement groups are by no means unaware of the bootleggers who were not brought to the courts by the sweep of the past week-end. But the success of the clean-up project which has just been completed brings new hope that similar work will continue in the future until the bootleg traffic is blotted out in Pitt county.

No matter how hard the law enforcement officers work to bring these criminals into the courts, however, their work will be of no avail unless the court sees that justly severe punishment is dealt to each of the offenders who is found guilty of the crime of bootlegging.

Bootlegging is a profitable trade. It will continue to be a profitable trade which attracts more participants unless the courts of the county see to it that those found guilty of plying the trade are given stiff sentences.

The Reflector sincerely hopes the courts discharge their obligation to justice as well as the county's law enforcement groups have.

The State Of The Union

The state of the Union? Grave! Grave as the American people have faced since the dawn of independence.

Those were not the words of President Truman yesterday, but they convey the meaning of his speech... a speech which was keyed to the times the American people are facing. It was a message the like of which the American people listened to in 1939, 1941 and the war years which followed.

It was a message which placed the job of preparedness for defense and the preparedness for war first and foremost. It was a speech that only touched on the domestic issues which just two short years ago were the principal concern of the American administration, the American Congress and the American people.

President Truman outlined to the Congress yesterday a ten point program calling for more guns, planes and tanks for ourselves and for our allies; more men prepared to sacrifice their lives for freedom; economic controls to keep our necessities within reach of our dollars; higher taxes to keep our financial debt within reasonable reach; more people trained for longer hours of defense work; and grim but significant of the dreadful times ahead, more people trained to care for our injured, wounded and dying.

A better program for labor, a better program for agriculture and a better program for education... they were there too, but they nestled relatively quiet in the background of the President's message.

Civil rights, socialized medicine, more benefits to the aged? They were in Truman's message, not specifically but in general terms, as a sort of an afterthought just to let the people know the administration still has them in mind should the time come when the nation once more may give its principal attention to such measures.

The President's message was grave indeed. But for the most part it fell upon the ears of Americans who already have taken cognizance of the position in which the nation finds itself. It fell upon the ears of the people, who for the most part already have resigned themselves to the hardships of a second mobilization within a decade... a people who awaited only to hear the specific recommendations of the commander in chief.

There are still points of the program which should be debated in Congress and parts of the program which will not be moulded just as the administration may wish. But the program of preparedness will be the chief concern of the government and the people.

President Truman in his message brought no new ideas, no new revelation to the people. This time the people were ahead of the administration.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—An anti-Truman coalition far stronger and more ruthless than any previous New Deal-Fair Deal opposition on Capitol Hill has taken control of all legislation, federal finances and taxes out of the hands of President Harry S. Truman.

Almost the only role left to him is that of Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, for the 82nd Congress will give him all the money and authority he needs for rearmament or the conduct of a war.

But Congressionally imposed changes in leadership and committee memberships enable the legislators to determine how he shall use that power and collect the taxes for unprecedented peacetime expenditures.

POLITE—It has been a most peculiar revolution in that it was polite and even punctilious. There have been only a few political recriminations between the Truman partisans and the enemies.

Barring a few references to the Fair Deal's "socialistic program," which is admittedly dead now, there was no flitting at the small palace guard that fought a losing battle for the White House.

LEADERS—The actual leaders at the eastern end of Pennsylvania Avenue, although not the nominal rulers in each instance, will be Senators Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Harry F. Byrd of Virginia in the Senate, and Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts and Representative Charles McNichols (Gene) Cox of Georgia. This quartet has pulled the strings behind the opening week's maneuvers.

Three of the four are personal as well as political foes of Mr. Truman. He has said that "there are too many 'B-y-r-d-s' in the Senate. He regards Mr. Taft as the architect of most of his 1948-1950 misfortunes. He thinks that Mr. Cox should be read out of the Democratic Party.

House Minority Leader Martin has the faculty of remaining friends with his political enemies, but that does not influence him in his anti-White House role.

BLOC—Another result of the great 1951-52 rebellion is that the southern producers' and farmers' bloc now sits in the legislative saddle. In alliance with similarly minded men from the Midwest, Southwest and Far West, they have routed the city-consumers' group far more disastrously than they had anticipated.

The "liberal" O'Mahoney-Sparkman slate in the Senate leadership battle lost to the McFarland-Johnson ticket by a 30-19 vote. It is doubtful if the lines between two regional groups were ever so sharply drawn in recent years as in this contest.

POWER—The Deep South now holds eleven chairmanships in the Senate, with the other four going to the Far West. The North Atlantic seaboard area and the Midwest have none.

In the House the South enjoys twelve chairmanships, the North has only three and the Midwest four. But even this more advantageous position is offset by the fact that the anti-Truman faction returned to the Rules Committee its historic power to pigeonhole legislation displeasing to the twelve ultra-conservative members of this committee.

SIGNIFICANCE—It is obvious that not a single one of the many New Deal-Fair Deal measures so popular in the cities and with the O'Mahoney-Sparkman-McMahon group has any chance of floor consideration, not to mention favorable action, under this sudden shift of the center of political gravity.

There is far more than legislative significance to this challenge. It reflects and possibly forecasts a reorientation, if not a revolution, within the Democratic Party.

Then there are allied conservatives have served notice that they are willing to endanger Democratic possession of the White House rather than squirm under the presidential leadership of a man with Harry S. Truman's politico-economic philosophy.

PLANS—To add to President Truman's troubles, a powerful and skillful leader capable of mobilizing this antagonism outside the halls of Congress—in short in conventions and at the ballot boxes—may appear next week in the person of James F. Byrnes, former Representative, Senator, Supreme Court Justice and Secretary of State in the present Administration.

Mr. Byrnes has invited a distinguished group of Washington officials, legislators and veteran newspaper correspondents to his inauguration as Governor of South Carolina at Columbia next week.

It is understood that a large contingent will attend, not only in the expectation of hearing another "economic galley slave" blast, but also to ascertain whatever plans he has for leading an anti-Truman movement between now and 1952.

OUTLETS—The bright young men in the Washington office of Eric A. Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Association of America Inc., forecast a comeback for their industry and finer movies for the theater-going populace, even in the face of the television threat.

Assuming that a war does not close down Hollywood and its local distributors entirely, they believe that they will benefit from civilian cuts and shortages.

Should controls cut essential and semi-luxury goods, including television—it is axiomatic that people will find other outlets for their money. They did during World War II when night clubs, restaurants, theaters and sports events had record attendance. One easy and accessible outlet will be the movies for a people seeking relaxation in a time of strain and confinement.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

At Carolina I had a professor who used to say, "If it were up to me, the movie industry would have to fold. Movies are for the ten-year-old mind. It's a waste of money and time to see them." As I sat in his classroom and heard him say that, I said to myself, "Thank God for my ten-year-old mind."

Professors aren't the only people who reach the stage that they think they know too much for their own good. People in other walks of life get the same idea, and it's unfortunate. It cuts down on that thing called fun, and these days we need to have more fun than ever. With world tension mounting by the day, relaxation is as important as food.

Look magazine has reported the twenty stars that were the top twenty ticket sellers in 1950. If you have a "10-year-old mind" like mine, and go to movies, see how your opinion stacks up with

Look's:

John Wayne takes the No. 1 spot, mainly on the strength of his performances in Sands of Iwo Jima and She Wore a Yellow Ribbon. In 1949 John was 16th, and last year he was 4th.

Bob Hope was in the top spot last year, but slipped to No. 2 in 1950. His movie was Fancy Pants. Bing Crosby was second last year, but slipped to third. For the five years prior to 1949, he was No. 1.

With performances in Winchester '73 and Broken Arrow, James Stewart rises to fifth place. He was 11th in '49. Abbott and Costello were number three in '48 and '49, but slipped to sixth this year.

In my opinion Clifton Webb should be in the top three, but Look says he's seventh. His movie this year was Cheaper by the Dozen. Esther Williams held her own in the eighth place, with her performance in Duchess of Idaho.

Last year Spencer Tracy missed the top twenty, but this year he's back in ninth place with the movie Adam's Rib and Father of the Bride. Randolph Scott (of Charlotte, N. C.) climbs from 12th in 1949 and 18th in 1948 to the tenth spot. His movies were Colt. 45 and The Nevada.

Gary Cooper's only movie in 1950 was Bright Leaf, based on the bright leaf tobacco belt. With this movie Gary slipped from fifth to 11th. Gregory Peck wasn't in the top twenty last year, but claims the 12th spot this year with roles in 12 O'Clock High and The Gunfighter. For the first time, Clark Gable missed the top 10. He's thirteenth, with his one performance in Key to the City.

Rounding out the top twenty: 14, June Allyson; 15, Betty Hutton; 16, Van Houten; 17, Red Skelton; 18, Burt Johnson; 19, Roy Rogers; and 20, Cary Grant.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN MIEBET Raleigh, N. C.

RECORD—The advisory budget commission set some sort of record in getting its report and proposed appropriations and revenue bills into hands of the general assembly on Monday night. Two years ago it was Thursday morning of the second week, and usually the budget bills do not come until after committees have been appointed. The earlier delivery of these documents and the governor's budget message leads many experienced members to hope for speedy action and early adjournment.

PAY—House Bill No. 3, introduced Friday by Rep. Lee Whitmire of Henderson is intended to effectuate and regulate administration of the recently adopted amendments to the constitution increasing legislators' pay. The budget bureau and the state auditor had taken position that legislation was not necessary in order to pay the increased rate. In fact, two or three members had already drawn some compensation before the Whitmire bill was offered.

REGULATION—The legislation was desirable for two reasons: In the first place there are two sections of the General Statutes which have been outlawed by the constitutional amendment, and the Whitmire bill formally repeals them. In the second place, the constitution does not set up any machinery for payment, and the bill now pending provides that compensation may be paid every day, in installments or in lump sum at end of the session, but does not permit payment in advance.

RULES—Question has been facetiously raised whether the state senate has any rules. It is based on the technical point that for years the senate rule book has placed every senator out of order, and therefore perhaps he had no right to vote on the rules adopted the other day. Peculiar wording of Rule 15 is: "No person except members of the house of representatives, clerks of the general assembly, judges of the supreme and superior courts, state officers, former members of the general assembly and persons particularly invited and extended the privilege of the floor by the president shall be admitted to the floor of the senate during its session." That technically bars the senators themselves. The companion rule in the house takes care of the situation by substituting "members of the general assembly" for members of the house of representatives.

FUNNY—This is just one of numerous instances in which rules governing conduct of the general assembly are funny—both in the sense of being peculiar and funny "ha, ha." Legislative rules, like the state constitution and general statutes, have been carried forward from year to year with piecemeal amendments to take care of emergency needs. It often happens that amendments to one section have the effect of violating others. Also presiding officers and members have a way of making new rules at will. Both houses have rules against indiscriminate extension of courtesies—and nobody pays any attention to them. There is no authority in the rules for either house for honorary pages or pagelets—but almost every session has some appointed.

SERIOUS—This froth doesn't amount to much and often relieves tension in the legislature. When it comes to matters of public business the rules have been carefully considered and they are strictly applied.

BIG GUNS—Both Democrats and Republicans are getting heavy artillery for their respective party dinners in North Carolina. The Democrats have secured Senator Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona, recently designated majority leader in the United States senate, to make the main speech at the Jefferson-Jackson dinner in Raleigh on February 10. The Republicans have lined up Senator Owen Brewster of Maine to do the big talking at the Lincoln Day dinner in Winston-Salem on February 3. As accepted spokesman for the Democratic party in the United States senate, McFarland is probably a bigger gun now than Brewster. But as former governor of Maine and chairman of the national governors' conference, Brewster is perhaps better known on national level. In any event, neither Democrats nor Republicans in North Carolina will be playing second fiddle to any other state in caliber of speakers at their big party dinners.

PREPARATIONS—The Democrats are going about preparations for their dinner on some what more elaborate scale. Since they outnumber Republicans better than three to one in the state, they will have more dinner guests and will raise more money. Democratic State Chairman Everett Jordan and Republican State Chairman Jim Baley are helping with preparations, but since these are mainly national affairs the burden rests upon the national committees—Jonathan Daniels for the Democrats and Ed Brophy for the Republicans.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THE PHILIPPINE QUANDARY (Charlotte Observer)

The Economic Co-operation Administration is having a hard time convincing the Philippine government that it will have to increase taxes drastically if it is to get itself out of bankruptcy, because the Filipino is constitutionally averse to taxes.

In that country taxes have always been light, and evasions have been general. The authorities seem to have no conception of an equitable tax system efficiently administered so that all pay their share.

But the Quirino government finally agreed to take the bitter medicine when the ECA insisted government has very little to that no aid would be forthcoming from the United States unless the Filipinos showed a disposition to help themselves.

Taxes in that country average about 8 per cent of the national income. For a country that is actually in bankruptcy, such a rate of taxation sounds absurd. If we in the United States had to pay only 8 per cent of the national income taxes, we would consider ourselves very lucky. But the Philippine government spends money almost as extravagantly as ours, and the Bell report showed that a large part of the public funds are dissipated in graft. Yet they expect to get along with a tax of only 8 per cent of the income. It can't be done.

The United States has poured $2 billion into the Philippines in the last five years, but the show for it. With communism already making large gains, it is essential that the country be kept in sound financial condition.

If the Quirino government will follow the recommendations of the ECA as it has promised to do, the Philippines may yet be rescued from bankruptcy and communism.

Business Today

By ELMER BOESSNER

While there will be a sharp cut-back in civilian goods made of metal for the domestic market, it may not be feasible to reduce the amount of manufactured articles for export.

Some time in the future we may have a repetition of those 1946 days when people unable to buy autos and electric mixers could watch long lines of crates moving toward the deep sea ports.

Despite America's relatively high self-sufficiency, we still need vast amounts of materials and commodities from abroad. We need copper, chromium, manganese, nickel, uranium, tin, cadmium, cobalt, natural rubber, quicksilver, jute, coffee, sugar, cocoa, wool, chemicals and many other things. As defense output is stepped up, we may need more aluminum and steel.

To induce our friends to step up their production and sell these things to us, we will pay in dollars.

Now the prettiest thing about the American dollar is that it will buy things of American manufacture. And if we want to keep the flow of scarce materials increasing, we will have to preserve that aspect of the dollar. The Brazilian coffee planter and the Congo uranium miner aren't interested in working harder for dollars that they can't spend until after the emergency. They want what the dollar promises, and that is goods they can't make themselves. So we will have to keep on making for export a considerable quantity of desirable goods.

Another reason for continuing to manufacture for export is to retain the markets we have developed abroad. In 1946, the prime reason United States manufacturers were exporting the very goods that Americans were crying for was to win these foreign markets. From a long range point of view, it will not be wise to let these markets go by default to satellite countries or even to neutrals and friends.

A worker may have a feeling of futility in manufacturing a shiny gadget for export while his fellows are working on tanks and planes. He should not. He is working to get scarce materials back for defense needs and working to keep markets that will some day help support him and many of the next crop of veterans.

PUNCHED CARD SYSTEM FOR GAS

A new kind of gasoline credit system is being introduced on the West Coast. Instead of the usual credit card, an oil company is issuing books of cards in which a pattern of holes has been punched.

When making a charge purchase, the customer hands the book to the gas station attendant to enter the amounts on the card and the stub. Then the customer signs the card, tears on a dotted line, and gives it to the attendant. At a central accounting office, the cards are fed into IBM machines which sort them and make out the customers' bills. These "check book" cards save customers' time and reduce accounting and billing costs. They were tested in Oregon last year.

U.S. ACTION CONCERNS FAIR TRADERS

Proponents of laws under which manufacturers may fix retail prices of branded articles are deeply disturbed by the entrance of the United States government into a case that has gone to the Supreme Court.

The case involves the suit of two distilling companies against a New Orleans retailer who sold below fixed prices. The government's contention is that the Tydings Fair Trade Law, from which state fair trade laws stem, grants exemption from anti-trust laws only when price contracts exist between retailers and manufacturers. If this contention is upheld, manufacturers would have to make contracts with each retailer, which might prove a costly operation.

BRAZILIAN COFFEE ESTIMATE LOWERED

Brazil's 1951-52 coffee crop will be lower than originally estimated, the Office of Foreign Agriculture Relations reports. A reliable unofficial source, the OFAR says, puts the exportable crop at 16-100,000 bags, a figure 400,000 lower than earlier forecasts. However, the figure is still above the 1948-49, 1949-50 and 1950-51 crop.

Hal Boyle's Column

By STAN SWINTON (For HAL BOYLE)

An Air Base in Southern Japan—APLaid me tell you a tale of silver jets and a girl with golden hair.

It begins on a day 15 years ago when snooty, dusted the low hills around Ann Arbor, Mich. The stakes of hockey-playing in school boys raced across a frozen pond. There was one named Scott Osler who played better than the rest. Twice Scott drove the puck into the net, laughing in boyish triumph.

Beside the pond a pert-nosed girl with flaxen hair watched in adoration. Her eyes were big and blue and always on Scott. She was 10 years old and in love with him. Her name was Priscilla Osler, and Scott was her brother.

Scott did everything better than the other kids did. His stamp collection was the biggest. When University High School basketball team took the court, he was the ace.

Priscilla huddled there on the snow in her crimson ski suit and thought: Scott would be good at anything.

When she grew up, Priscilla told herself, she would be just like Scott and do whatever he did.

The years passed past. Scott Osler was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1940. He was a brilliant flying student at Dayton, Ohio, and later was selected as a Pan-American pilot. Finally he reached the top. Boeing picked him as a test pilot, riskiest job in aviation. The champion's job.

By then the little girl had grown up. Priscilla's flaxen hair had darkened to auburn. But the adoring look in her blue eyes was the same. She was graduated from Michigan State College in 1947 and promptly moved to Seattle to be near her brother.

Scott Osler was co-pilot on the first flight of Boeing's prototype of an experimental jet light bomber, the XB-47, in 1947. He flew another XB-47 prototype in 1948 for the grueling tests the U. S. Air Force demands before accepting a new plane.

Then tragedy struck. High above the arid wastes of Washington's Moses Lake in 1949 the XB-47 swished across the sky. The canopy above the pilot's compartment slipped. Just an inch or so. Just enough to crush the head of Scott Osler. He was dead when the co-pilot nosed the ship down on the landing strip.

In his short span as Boeing test pilot Osler was a key man in the development of this better-than-600 miles an hour jet bomber that came off Boeing's assembly line last summer as the first production model of the B-47.

Scott's brave life had been jet planes. Priscilla thought for a long time. When you are a girl and only 25 and can't fly how do you carry on for a famous pilot brother?

Priscilla found a way.

She is at this bustling Air Force Base in South Japan, in a blue uniform of the Air Force service club. Sometimes Priscilla listens sympathetically when GIs eagerly tell her of their wives and girls back home. Or she jokes with a forlorn noncom who brightens at an American girl's smile.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—Mrs. Alf Heiberg, former wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, wasn't at all pleased with the capital city's defense plans.

"We were told we were only 15 per cent prepared and that in event of bombing we should either fall face down on the floor or throw ourselves in a gutter," she said. "That's when I decided to build a bomb shelter in the sub-basement of my home, 'Federal House', in Georgetown. I don't believe in just setting back waiting for things to happen. This would certainly beat falling into the gutter with your hands over your face."

Mrs. Heiberg, the former Louise Cromwell, now wife of an Air Force colonel, called in contractors and machines took seven loads of dirt from under her historic four-story, 20-room mansion. She figures the shelter will hold from 100 to 150 people. A section of the sub-basement, she says, used to serve as slave quarters. Its huge fireplaces hold 10-foot logs.

"I cancelled an order for a new car as I couldn't afford both car and shelter," she told me. "We were going along merrily as a Christmas bell with the plans until we got stymied by the District of Columbia engineers, who demanded we get a permit for the project. Now after some delay the structure is again progressing."

"I'm getting hundreds of letters from all over the place, even some long distance calls, and I know all about geiger machines, ground zero, alpha and gamma rays and all sorts of things I never heard of before," she said. Mrs. Heiberg says she got a lot of help from the Government's Civilian Defense Board and suggests that any citizens interested in building bomb shelters contact civilian defense people in their own communities.

Some friends are poking fun at her, but Mrs. Heiberg says folks laughed at Londoners who tried to build protective devices for themselves in World War II also. She will open her shelter to neighbors in an attack, she says.

Federal House was built in 1800 by a sea captain named Savage who had his own docks in Georgetown Harbor. Its foundation was built from great boulders lugged up by slaves from the Potomac, and its fine floors were brought in empty tobacco boxes from Scotland as ballast.

The mansion has 13 fireplaces, paneled walls, gleaming crystal chandeliers, and in the garden at the rear stands what is said to be the largest tree in Washington, its branches reaching up the four full stories of the house.

Pace Of N. C. Roadbuilding Tripled During Past Year

By William D. Snider
Information Director
State Highway Commission

During 1950, the State Highway Commission more than tripled its pace of roadbuilding — with the substantial aid of a $200,000,000 bond issue, unlimited manpower and materials, and excellent cooperation from the weather and the roadbuilding industry.

Volume of work finished — both on primary and secondary roads — far surpassed that done in any similar year of the Commission's history.

Most of the expansion took place in the secondary road field where private contractors and the state's roadbuilders hard-surfaced in 12 months almost as many miles as were paved during the entire 19 years since the state took over county road work in 1931. At the same time more work was finished on main-line highway than ever before in the Commission's history. This was made possible when bond issue money freed regular highway funds previously allocated to the secondary road field.

Over 4,500 miles of secondary roads were paved during 1950 in the state's 100 counties. Additional thousands of miles received stabilization treatment to place them in all-weather condition. Average cost of paving totaled about $12,000 a mile, considerably under original estimates.

The Commission let contracts for road work totaling about $58,000,000 compared with $24,000,000 for 1949. All surplus funds accumulated because of increased traffic on North Carolina's highways went to special primary road projects selected by the Commission's engineering staff. Among these special projects were several four-lane highways in the state's most congested areas centering around Charlotte and Greensboro. Other special funds went to badly needed bridge projects on main-line highways.

Korean Front Is Literally Aflame

By STAN SWINTON
An Advanced Fighter Base, Korea, Jan. 8—(AP)—The Korean warfront is aflame—literally. Smoke still belches up from the stark ruins of Seoul. Raids by U. N. planes touch off new fires as the old ones burn down to ashes.

A giant umbrella of gray smoke shrouds Wouju. The road running north from the desolate town is a ribbon of flame and death.

Planes are destroying scores of slattern villages which belt Korea north of the U. N. front.

Kwanju, Tochon, Kyongkan and the other villages southwest of Seoul stand out like a conga line of fire-ringed crones.

I flew over the wrinkled, rock-bound and tan valleys of the war front for two hours today in a jet plane piloted by Maj. Edgar S. Beam, Route 2, Vale, N. C.

From what we saw and what our radio ears heard others report, Fifth Air Force planes were making one of their kills today.

The swarming communist peasant soldiers futilely tried to hide in the black little clusters of mud-walled huts. When those were blasted the Reds exposed themselves, striking overland in small, white-clad groups.

Uniforms had been abandoned for civilian clothes to avoid air attack. An observation plane over Tochon watched 4,000 Reds shed their uniforms.

The observer called down our T-33 on one group of 30 Reds hustling away from flaming Tochon after the quick change. Our jet nosed down, the sickening pressure forcing an ooze of perspiration out of every pore. I was soaking wet when—seconds later—the twin 50-caliber machineguns stuttered. Below, the white-clad enemy crumbled beside the pines of a streamside trail.

TEEN TALK

(Dear Judge)

AP Newsfeatures

Teen news is pretty normal as we start out a new year. But here are some highlights:

Dating... There is a big trend to home dating. Girls find that parents are much more cooperative about letting them go out with a new boy in the neighborhood, providing he has been entertained in the home several times. It is a good opportunity for a boy to prove that he is trustworthy for outside dating, say the girls.

Girls are not going to be caught napping or loading on the job while their boyfriends go off to war. One girl writes:

"I know there are many boys in Army and Navy hospitals who are not receiving any mail from home. I would like to do my best to help make some of them feel a little less lonely. I realize I am too young to work in a canteen (eighteen) but I do not think that I am too young to write to service men. I would appreciate knowing how I can get information about obtaining the address of members of the armed forces."

Something new in etiquette is this postcard about "manners at dances" in the Girl Scout handbook "Your Ticket to Popularity." It gives a girl the right to beg off dancing with a boy when they just don't "click." All you do, advises the book, is say it's all your fault, and suggest sitting out or waiting for a different type of dance.

Fashion... Skiers have gone mad about gold-nugget jewelry. Girls are wearing gold nuggets in the cuffs and the clasps. The jewelry was designed by Fred Picard, ski clothes designer, and the fan started at Sun Valley.

Sweaters and skirts still are top-drawer uniforms for school girls although no sloppy sweater jobs clutter up the picture. Skirts are slim and neat, also.

Humor... Typical of youthful humor is this little tease from the Normandy H. S. Courier: Professor: "Ernie what is wrong with this sentence, 'Girls is naturally better looking than boys is'?"

Hobbies... The student newspaper editor of Burdett College found that 90 per cent of the girls not only have interesting hobbies but ones definitely on domesticated and artistic side. Whereas record collecting, stamps, and autographed pictures of movie stars used to be tops on the hobby list, nowadays rug making, interior decorating and painting on metal and glass commands the attention of the students. They also enjoy crocheting, knitting, sewing and dressmaking.

Diet... Who said teen-agers are starving themselves to get sylph-like proportions? Today's healthy teen-agers eat more than any other age group in our population, according to the National Research Council. Girls develop their biggest appetites between the ages of 13 and 15, but boys out-eat their sisters even at this age. Girls between 12 and 15 need 2,800 calories of food energy a day, say nutritionists.

Beauty... Today's glamor girl follows the theory that the new look is the "you look" according to one model agent. Her dress, makeup and coiffure are designed to suit her type and not that of her favorite screen star or best friend. She is natural and unsophisticated—a type the boys definitely like.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

Most of us do not believe in going around hunting for trouble. But there is good place to make an exception to this rule. That is in your own home. A tour of inspection can save you a lot of headaches, heartaches and pains in the pocketbook.

There's a lot of fun in owning a house. If you want to, you can rest on your oars until an emergency arises and you have to kick in for a new heating plant, paint job, or new roof. Or you can study up on everything from ten-penny nails to British thermal units so you can kibitz the carpenter and heating contractor—all in vain.

But the sensible thing to do is to give the old manse the once over and decide on the spot whether it is worth more to have the thing fixed by a professional or try to do it yourself. You have to keep in the back of your mind the factor that your time may be worth more to you than the cost of hiring a man to do the job—to say nothing of the cost of having things rectified if you botch the job.

A good place to start looking for trouble is in the basement. If you have one. The first was a look on a radiant heated slab and wonder where he will find a mover musses all the fun and muddle that we basement dwellers enjoy.

So let's start inspecting the farthest cellar corner—around the water meter, where the house comes in from the street. Odds on, you'll find the pipe and maybe the meter well coated with rust. That's to be expected, because of condensation on cold water pipes. If you want to be especially neat it's a good idea to clean the surface off with emery cloth and give the pipe a good coating of aluminum paint.

The same goes for a rusty meter. Makes it easy to see and does a lot to clean up that corner. The famous slogan, "save the surface and you save all," applies to metal as well as to wood.

From the meter on in, you may have copper or brass plumbing, which calls for no attention, but if it is iron and rusty, continue your cleaning and aluminum paint to the point where the pipe goes up in the floor or partition. Beyond that point you can ordinarily count on less oxidation because of less condensation.

You'll find aluminum paint is an excellent insulator, but for real economy all hot water and steam pipes should be covered with thick asbestos overcoats. How to apply these is another story to be discussed later.

To get on with your inspection, check the foundation and basement floor for cracks. If your foundation is concrete block, stone or other unit masonry, look for cracks between joints and any signs of mortar being loose, crumbling, or falling out.

Any spots or streaks of dampness means leakage. Often minor leaks can be stopped from the inside with new waterproofing concrete paints. On the other hand, any serious settlement crack may call for excavation on the outside, correction of the cause of settlement, filling of the crack and renewal of exterior waterproofing.

Major settlement cracks usually occur in cases of inadequate footings or construction on filled-in land. Of course, earth tremors and expansion of clay soil also can crack foundations, but construction usually anticipates such hazards in affected localities.

Much leakage in basements is caused by improper grading and poor drainage outside. Not only should your lawn slope slightly away from your foundation, but the subsoil should be graded in that direction before top soil is spread. Roof gutters, kept free of dry leaves, are important in keeping excessive water away from a foundation. Every down-spout should be connected to an adequate dry well or catch basin located six feet or more away from the foundation, or with a storm sewer.

Sometimes wet spots appear in new basements without much significance. Loose earth filled in around the new foundation allows water to collect in heavy storms and seepage results. As time goes on and grading is finished, this trouble disappears. A well-sodded sloping lawn is a big asset in carrying water away from a house.

East Carolin a Bucs Host To High Point Tonight

Phantoms Scrap Pam Pack Here Tonight

Briley, Haymes Expected Leaders In Tonight's Tilt

Washington's Pam Pack quint will be a strong test for Greenville's Phantoms' bid for Northeastern honors tonight, with the two teams meeting here in the high school gymnasium.

Game time is set for 8:00 p.m. with the junior varsity beginning at 6:15 p.m.

Coach Bo Farley's quint, successful in its first Northeastern outing with New Bern last Friday, by a 60-30 score, will be out to put victory number two under their belts tonight with a highly-regarded five from neighboring Washington.

Farley is expected to start his regular lineup with the exception of Johnny Aman, who is sidelined with an ankle injury.

At forwards, Jimmy Dillingham and Virgil Haymes will be the scoring threats, while high-scoring Sydney Briley, who sank 21 points against the Bears, will be playing his usual pivot position.

Glenn Scott and Jake Higes, who capably filled in for Aman last week, will be at the guard spots.

Backing up the regular starters will be Eddie Farley and Leon Moore at forwards, Wallace Conway at center, and Billy Tucker and Fletcher Murray at guards.

Washington's coach, Bill Sweet, will most likely start Cherry and Woodard at forwards, Hoyt at center and Fowle and Hackler at guards.

Another Hopeful, McKeever Of LSU

Asheville, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Asheville Times reported today that Ed McKeever, backfield coach at Louisiana State University, is a leading choice to succeed Wallace Wade as head football coach at Duke University.

Duke has been without a coach since Wade resigned to become commissioner of the Southern (football) Conference.

The Asheville newspaper said that McKeever was on the Duke campus last Friday along with Frank Howard of Clemson. Howard's candidacy for the post was established long before Clemson's trip to the Orange Bowl in Miami New Year's Day, the Times said.

The newspaper, in a story written by Sports Editor Al Geremonte, said Eddie Cameron, Duke's athletic director, had been questioned and quoted him as saying:

"Yes, he (McKeever) is being considered."

Gaynell Tinsley, head coach of the LSU Bengals, told the Times:

"We know Ed (McKeever) was interested in the Duke head coaching job and we hope that he is successful, but we sure would hate to lose him. He's been a great help to LSU. Duke would be getting a man who knows his business."

Bradley, Aggies Still Top Leaders

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Bradley University held firm to the No. 1 position in the national basketball standings today while Columbia created the only break in the first ten.

Bradley, riding the season's longest winning streak, drew 126 first place votes from the 252 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the weekly Associated Press poll.

The pride of Peoria, Ill., amassed a total of 2,320 points, the year's highest, to take a 509-point lead over Hank Iba's hold-the-ball Oklahoma Aggies.

Points are awarded on the basis of 10 for a first place vote, nine for a second and so on down the line.

The week's activities followed so closely to form that voters left nine of the first ten teams in the standings undisturbed from last week.

Konstanty 1950 Male Athlete

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Jim Konstanty, record-setting workhorse of the Philadelphia Phillies' pitching staff, was proclaimed 1950's male "athlete of the year" today in the annual Associated Press poll.

The mild-mannered onetime school teacher, whose tireless right arm carried the Phillies to the National League pennant, won in a close vote over Vic Janowicz, Ohio State's magnificent football halfback, and Ezzard Charles, heavyweight champion of the ring world.

There was a wide difference of opinion among sports writers and broadcasters, who mentioned close to 100 athletes in all, including a race horse, Noor, and Japan's human fish, Furuhashi.

Voters were asked to cast ballots for three in order of preference. Points were awarded on the basis of three for first and two for second, etc.

The bespectacled, 33-year-old Konstanty received 32 first place votes and a total of 173 points, 33 more than Janowicz, the bull-necked ball-toter who won All America and Heisman Trophy honors.

The "athlete of the year" was one of a growing number of honors piled on the Philadelphia relief pitcher this year.

He set the modern record for the most games pitched in one season, 74, and since these were all in a relief role he set a new all-time mark for rescues attempted.

He finished with 16 victories and seven defeats and was a natural for the National League's "most valuable" award, although no relief pitcher ever had won that distinction before.

Unbeaten North Staters Clash In Revenge Test

By BILL LLOYD
Reflector Sports Editor

Will history repeat itself? That's the question that will be answered tonight as East Carolina plays host to High Point College here in Wright gymnasium, with game time set at 8:00 p.m.

Here's the setting for tonight's tilt:

Both clubs have a 2-0 record in the conference. The Pirates, having defeated Catawba and Guilford, in conference play, the Indians falling, 62-49, and the Quakers losing, 61-35.

The touring Panthers have been victorious over the same two teams, winning over Catawba, 80-68, and overpowering Guilford, 72-51.

But these records are just a sidelight to tonight's scrap.

Last year, a highly-publicized High Point quint invaded Greenville with an 18-game winning streak, and a win over the Pirates would have given them a new state record for consecutive wins with 19.

It didn't happen! An inspired, rejuvenated Pirate crew made a sensational second half comeback to down the potent Panthers, 58-53, as towering Jack Everton, 6' 7" forward, led the Bucs with 20 points.

Tonight, another heralded Panther five comes to town, and although they are not gunning for any state record, they have been victorious in upper circle basketball, losing to such teams as Western Kentucky, Washington and Lee, Murray State, and Muskingum, in the Midwest tourney.

Coach Howard Porter has a heightened team to floor against the Panthers tonight, with Sonny Russell, 6' 3" soph sensation, at forward, along with frosh star, Charlie Huffman, 6' 4" scorer from Thomasville. Toddy Pennell will start at center, while Bobby Hodges, two-time prep All-Stater at Kingston, who stands five inches over six feet, and John Postas, 6' 4" sophomore, will start at the guard spots.

Coach C. Q. (Tex) Smith, new High Point mentor, will probably start high-scoring Bill Waiz, Indiana lad who is pacing the North State scorers with 17.9 points per game average, at forward with Bob Draper, 6' 3" net-swisher.

Easy Ed Sueta will be the Panther choice at the pivot spot, with Jesse Joyce, scrappy guard, coupling with newcomer Bobby Davidson, a frosh from Indiana, who has looked impressive since taking over injured Gray Cartwright's chores.

Citation Will Try Track Comeback In Early Spring

Arcadia, Calif., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The big news for horse followers today is that Citation is coming back to the races.

The ace of the Calumet Stable has had osselet trouble (a bony outgrowth on the leg) for two years and hasn't raced since Noor beat him in the Golden Gate Handicap last June.

But Trainer Jimmy Jones of the stable owned by the late Warren Wright says Citation is coming back and will have a try at becoming the first horse to win more than $1,000,000. His winnings now total $938,630.

Jones, just returned from Wright's funeral in Chicago, said Citation will be shipped to Santa Anita track here.

from Lexington, Ky., as soon as railroad transportation is available. Citation hasn't been named for any of the rich Santa Anita fixtures. But he'll be conditioned here and perhaps entered overnight in some of the lesser events.

If the comeback plans go well, Citation undoubtedly will go after the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park, which opens May 15.

Sanity Code Goes On Trial In NCAA Meeting At Dallas

Dallas, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The executive committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association met today to arrange the agenda of what is expected to be an explosive convention in which the NCAA sanity code governing financial aid to athletes goes on trial.

The showdown meetings of the NCAA will be Friday and Saturday and the order of business which the committee sets will be significant.

At least six schools will be up for suspension for violating the code. But there are several amendments to the NCAA constitution which would soften the terms of the code—one of them calling for taking enforcement out of the hands of the NCAA and giving it to the individual institutions and conferences.

If the "sinning schools" come up for suspensions before the amendments it is expected that it will be voted. But if they are brought up after action on the amendments which could make it possible for them to meet the code, suspension might not be voted.

Walter Byers, executive assistant to Dr. Hugh C. Willett of the University of Southern California, president of the NCAA, said there was a potential vote of 327 but that he expected only about 250 to be represented here.

The names of the six schools were not revealed by Dr. Willett but obviously four of them are Villanova, Virginia, Virginia Military and Virginia Tech.

Gray States NCAA Should Return To Advisory Group

Chapel Hill, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Gordon Gray, president of the consolidated University of North Carolina, has suggested that the National Collegiate Athletic Association return to its former function as an advisory group as a possible solution to problems created by the controversial sanity code.

The sanity code leaves the university with two courses, Gray wrote Clarence P. Houston of Tufts College, chairman of the NCAA constitutional committee, notified the NCAA last May that it was not "in complete technical compliance with regulations of the sanity code."

The sanity code limits NCAA members in recruiting athletes and furnishing financial aid beyond tuition and specified incidental fees.

Luck Shots Beat Grimesland, 71-18

Greenville's Luck Shots traveled to Grimesland last night and won their sixth game from Grimesland High School by a 71-18 score.

Grimesland got off to an early lead by making three quick field goals. The local hardwood quint bounced back with the next 13 points and by half time held a 34-15 lead.

The second half was the Luck shots' all the way. The losers scored only three points while the locals tallied 37.

Tommy Evans, center, was the spark that set off the scoring spree. Even though he fouled out before the final whistle, he managed to get 12 field goals and three free throws for a total of 27 points.

All the Luck Shots played good defensive ball.

Find Pair Dead In Tourist Cabin

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The mother and wife of a Camp Lejeune Marine were found dead in a tourist cabin six miles north of here yesterday.

They were Mrs. R. N. Richardson, about 45, and Mrs. Emily Richardson, about 20, both of Jacksonville, Fla. They had come to North Carolina to visit Robert N. Richardson of the Second Marine Division at Camp Lejeune.

Coroner Fred Barefoot said he believed the deaths were caused by asphyxiation from a small gas heater in the cabin. There was no evidence of any foul play, he added.

Midgets Win!

Here's a delayed report . . . and it's better late than never.

Coach Bill Kittrell's Greenville Mites were successful in their season opener here Saturday night, defeating New Bern by a one-sided, 50-32, score.

Center Hal Edwards led the midgets' scoring with 16 points, while Guard Pat Sawyer gained runnerup honors with 14 markers.

The Mites led at halftime, 25-14, and almost doubled the score on the visitors in the third quarter, 43-23, before Coach Kittrell began utilizing his sub freely.

Harry Scott was floor leader for the locals, while also sinking eight points.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

Chapter 7
They were silent for a few minutes while Elsie took a manicure set out of her handbag and began to work on her nails. Then, seemingly encouraged by the thought that at long last she had found an understanding friend, she proceeded to bring Molly up to date on the itinerary of the cruise and the idiosyncrasies of the various passengers.

"We've already been everywhere including Istanbul," she pointed out unnecessarily. "What I mean is, we make only a couple more stops till we get to New York. And I'm getting back to work pronto, believe you me, I'm fed up sitting around with nothing to do but give myself manicures.
I don't need 'em. I never see another luxury liner, it'll be much too soon."

"How can you say such a thing?" Molly protested. "This is a beautiful ship, and it's got everything. There's plenty to do."

"Sure it's got everything," Elsie admitted, grinning. "Maybe I'd feel more at home if it didn't. But it's the uppy people who ride on it that I'm talking about. They work harder showing off and trying to have fun than I do earning an honest living doing something constructive."

She had not tried to mingle with the uppy ones, she went on to explain. Despite her profession, she was not the push-and-shove type socially. But that had not prevented her from seeing and hearing a great deal. She would have all of Brooklyn in stitches when she got home and told them how the socialites behaved when there weren't any columnists snooping around.

Molly groped around in her mind for something to say to stop this unwelcome monologue, but could think of nothing that would not be likely to offend the blonde. She was confident now that Elsie Merritt was a gossip, possibly a dangerous one. It was not surprising that people avoided her. It would be best for Molly, to move carefully so as not to incur her ill will.

She tried to change her position and thus discourage further conversation, but discovered that any movement on her part simply accentuated the pain in her foot.
"I never heard of anything so ridiculous," Molly broke in, her patience exhausted. She started to add, "You just wanted an excuse to gossip," but decided against it and lapsed into silence.

A moment later Elsie's attention was diverted by the appearance of Doctor Peter O'Malley and Olga Wedemer. They were walking along the deck, chatting gaily.
Evidently the countess' threaten-

Senate Vote On Sending U. S. Troops To Europe Apparent First Big Test

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A Senate vote on sending American troops to Europe appeared likely today to produce the first test in Congress of President Truman's program to center free world defenses there.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, promised to seek action soon on a resolution barring the assignment of additional U. S. ground forces to Europe until Congress fixes an overall policy.

This issue is at the heart of the swelling foreign policy debate which has taken on added vigor in the wake of severe military reverses in Korea.

Reduced to its essence, the debate is over whether this nation should concentrate its defenses against Communist aggression within its own shores or should give extensive aid as well to friendly nations in Western Europe and elsewhere.

Mr. Truman said nothing about sending more troops abroad in his personally delivered "State of the Union" message to the new Congress yesterday.

But he described the North Atlantic community as "the heart of our defense effort" and left no doubt that he has no intention of turning back from the course of helping friendly nations to rearm.

The President also pledged that avenues of negotiation would be kept open in the hope of reaching a peaceful settlement with Russia, but he declared that "we will fight, if fight we must."

Wherry's resolution would bar assignment of any further ground forces to Europe "pending the formulation of a policy with respect thereto by the Congress."

Administration leaders planned an effort to send it to the Democratic-controlled foreign relations committee where it probably would die.

The test vote, which could come on that side issue, was generally expected to be close.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who argues that the President doesn't have

Bootleggers In Pitt Had A Hard Year During 1950

The year 1950 was a bad one from the bootleggers' standpoint in Pitt County according to the yearly report, issued today by the county ABC board covering the activities of the Pitt ABC enforcement officers.

During the year, 128 persons were arrested by ABC officers for liquor violations ranging from operation of illicit stills to selling and possession of liquor.

A total of 48 illicit stills were uncovered and destroyed by the county's officers in the year. An estimated 17,815 gallons of mash was destroyed by the officers at the still sites.

Fines handed out by the county's courts totaled $10,497.85, with road sentences totaling six years and ten months. In 1950, 25 white and colored men were caught operating stills in the county.

In patrolling the county's highways, the officers travelled 33,845 miles. Bootleg whiskey captured amounted to 686 gallons and 11 and one-eighth gallons of ABC store liquor.

Eight cars and three trucks were seized after whiskey was found on them.

It failed to meet expectations shown by the five major items not included:

1. Maintaining the present teaching load in the public school system at the contingent rate of pay provided in Sec. twenty and one-half of the 1949 appropriations act; He is now stationed at Camp Stewart, Ga.

The Colored Civic League will meet Tuesday night, Jan. 9, at the Pythian hall on Albemarle Avenue. Business of importance.—D. D. Garrett, president.

The C. M. Eppes P. T. A. will meet Wednesday, January 10, at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium. We are urging all parents and patrons to attend. Prof. W. H. Davenport will be the speaker.

The Housewives League met Monday evening at 8 o'clock to formulate plans for the State Housewives League meeting, which is to be held here the latter part of this month.

It was agreed that the meeting would be held at the West End Tea Room and the state president, Mrs. J. De Shazur Jackson, is to be notified immediately. Ways and means of raising funds to entertain the group were discussed and it was agreed that each member would contribute to the support of the meeting. The president extended the membership drive. It was reported that one of the members, Mrs. Mattie Huffine is on the sick list.

The next meeting will be held Monday evening, January 15.

The Matrons Social club held its first meeting of 1951 on Wednesday night, January 3, at the home of the president, Mrs. Ed Lee Latham. The president presided over a short business session. Officers installed for the new year as follows: Mrs. Ed Lee Latham, president; Mrs. Amy Whitehead, secretary; and Mrs. Sue Harper, assistant secretary and reporter.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Clarence Bradley at 608 Tyson street. All members are urged to be present.

Set Quota Rules For Enlistments

Washington, Jan.—(AP)—The Air Force has so many volunteers it is putting a quota system into effect.

The Air Force announced yesterday it will ration enlistments so that about 1,000 volunteer recruits will be received daily for indoctrination training at Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Texas.

A spokesman said this limit may be raised when a second indoctrination center starts operating early this spring at Sampson Air Force Base in New York.

The order established Air Force enlistment quotas for each of the six Army-Air Force recruiting areas.

The spokesman said volunteers with previous Air Force service or with two or more years of college education will not be affected by the quotas. Some men wanting in the Air Force, however, may have to wait their turn, the spokesman said.

Since the Korean War began Air Force volunteering has been heavy, and is now on the increase, Air Force officials said.

Area quotas established were: First Area 170; Second Area 215; Third Area 140; Fourth Area 120; Fifth Area 245; and Sixth Area 110.

But if Mr. Truman was asking for higher old age pensions, congress isn't expected to respond.

And, while in the past Mr. Truman banded away at congress for a compulsory health insurance program, this time he merely said: "We still need to provide insurance against loss of earnings through sickness, and against the high costs of medical care."

Previously Mr. Truman had asked congress to provide federal aid to education. This too had become a sore point.

Yesterday he mentioned this subject by saying something needs to be done to aid "the states to meet the most urgent needs of our elementary and secondary schools."

Then he hastened to add: "Some of our plans will have to be deferred for the time being."

That phrase about, deferring "Some of our plans for the time being" explained much of the soft-pedal Mr. Truman put on his "fair deal."

For a little later he added: "In the months ahead, the government must give priority to activities that are urgent—like military procurement, and atomic energy and power development."

It seems accurate to read into this a simple conclusion: He's going easy on the "fair deal" now but will return to it when, and if, he can.

Eisenhower Begins Search For Troops To Defend West Europe

Paris, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Atlantic Pact army's top commander, continues a 10-nation European tour today to find more of the army he is to lead.

He and his staff take off for Brussels today, second stop on the tour of Atlantic Pact powers which will supply his army.

He plans to go also to Holland, Denmark, Norway, Britain, Portugal, Italy, West Germany and Luxembourg, before returning to Paris. Then he flies home by way of Iceland and Canada to complete the circuit.

Before leaving for Brussels, the five-star general planned a visit to Fontainebleau Chateau, 35 miles south of Paris and one of the spots being considered for his historic international army's headquarters.

The Chateau now is headquarters for Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, commander of the five-power "Brussels Pact" military alliance.

Today Eisenhower is to lunch at Fontainebleau with Air Marshal Sir James Robb, a member of Montgomery's staff.

The general spent yesterday talking to military leaders of France, one of the 12 Atlantic Pact nations building an international defense wall against possible aggression by Russia. An authorized source said "all the problems of defending Europe" were discussed.

Eisenhower said Sunday he would return in mid-February to set up his permanent headquarters "somewhere near here."

Most speculation as to the site of Eisenhower's permanent headquarters favors Versailles, historic Pairs suburb where the general had his allied headquarters after the liberation of France in World War II.

Along with the military aspects of the Atlantic Army, western world officials have begun discussions here on who will pay for defense and how.

Milton Katz, Marshall Plan ambassador to Europe and chairman of the Atlantic Pact's finance committee, conducted several meetings here during the past two days on financial matters connected with the Atlantic community's decision to arm itself.

A closed meeting yesterday was reported to have dealt with the problem of dovetailing the Marshall Plan's existing organization into a mechanism for financing the new and greater defense scheme.

Fat Stock . . .

The directors voted at the meeting last night to take a page advertisement in the special hospital edition of The Daily Reflector which is to be published in connection with the dedication of the new Pitt County Memorial hospital.

Manager W. T. Kyzer reported to the directors on the resolution recently passed by the county board of commissioners authorizing a public housing authority for the county.

Kyzer announced to the directors that Greenville has been selected for the regional meeting of Chamber of Commerce executives to be held in March. Approximately 50 Chamber of Commerce presidents, executives and committee chairmen are expected to attend the meeting, Kyzer said.

Troop hikes during the coming weeks were given attention in the scout leaders' discussion and likewise the matter of winter overnight hikes was discussed. Dowdy recommended to the scoutmasters that careful consideration be given weather conditions in choosing times for winter overnight hikes and also that each scout taking part in such outings be required to take at least three heavy blankets and a good ground cloth.

Each of the scout troops in the district was requested to prepare a window display to be used during Boy Scout week.

The district scout program during the month of January is to be centered around the use of Morse code.

National Boy Scout Week Plans Talked At Meeting

Plans for national Boy Scout week February 4 through February 11 took priority rating last night at the monthly meeting of the scout leaders of the Pitt district.

It was announced at the meeting that the annual Father and Son banquet for the Pitt district will be held on the night of February 13 at the Greenville Golf and yesterday that Korea is a symbol which "stands for right and justice in the world against aggression and slavery."

"The free world," he added, "must always stand for these principles—and we will stand with the free world." At another point the President said:

"Our men are fighting, alongside their United Nations allies, because they know as we do that the aggression in Korea is part of the attempt of the Russian communist dictatorship to take over the world, step by step X X X."

Both European and Asiatic members of the U. N. have been studying the American idea warily and among them, Britain has been taking refuge in the argument that the non-communist countries can't label communist China as an aggressor until the U. N. fails in its attempts to achieve a cease-fire.

Other important members of the British commonwealth, now meeting in London, also are afraid of adopting the American program on the grounds that it may involve them in war with Red China. One can understand those fears, for Russian-backed communist China, with its millions of fighting men, is a formidable power.

That's the problem the U. N. is up against.
