Brisk Fighting Rages Near Wonju In Snow, Bitter Cold

Red Korean Attack Crumples Before Aerial Strike And Artillery Blows; Another Encircling Force Threatens Entire United Nations Position

Tokyo, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Blistering allied air strikes and artillery barrages crumpled a Red Korean attack near Wonju today. But another Communist force striking 30 miles behind this allied position threatened the entire United Nations stand in central Korea.

The deep-striking Red column skirted the American-French-Dutch line in the Wonju area. It fought several sharp clashes with allied patrols on the approaches to Tangsang, 37 miles southeast of Wonju.

The flanking R's set up a roadblock, mind a vital supply highway and poured a hail of small arms fire into an allied force sent out to clear the route.

Two North Korean divisions—the Sixth and 10th—were ramming a deep wedge into the U.N. positions in central Korea. Possibly 20,000 Communist troops were in this force which threatening the supply and withdrawal routes of the U.S. Second Division and its French and Dutch supporting units making a fighting stand just south of Wonju.

The immediate peril in the Wonju area eased as day-long allied air strikes and artillery barrages routed two Red Korean regiments which had seized a commanding height Thursday night.

This force, striking from the northeast, had cut across the Wonju-Chechon road, occupied the dominant hill and slammed a withering fire into the allies' horseshoe-shaped defense perimeter just south of Wonju.

The fighting raged in foot-deep snow and bitter cold.

Allied planes including the big B-29 Superfortresses rarely used on tactical missions sowed heavy explosives and fragmentation bombs, machinegun fire and jelled gasoline into the Red positions.

Navy pilots from the carrier Philippine Sea scoured the half-mile ridge with napalm firebombs. They killed an estimated 400 Reds. "They were trying to make an advance and we caught them," said Lt. (jg) Don Loranger, Hanford, Calif.

Second Division Artillery slammed a rain of steel at the Reds.

Feld dispatches said the artillery pounding wiped out part of Wonju.

The Communists broke and fled into the northern hills at dusk. Allied troops then recaptured the dominant height southeast of Wonju.

Allied cargo planes Thursday dropped 215 tons of food, ammunition, medical supplies and clothing to the central Korea defenders.

Other Red forces were dug in south of Wonju.

But brisk fighting swirled in the Tangsang area, far behind this exposed allied position. Tangsang is a rail and road center south of the Han River at its southernmost bend. It is a strategic withdrawal route for the Second Division leading toward the old Pusan beachhead.

Greenville Group Given Incorporation Papers

Greenville Industries Incorporated, Aimed For The Development Of Industry Here, Is Now A Going Concern

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.
Greenville Industries, Incorporated, a business organization for the development and expansion of industry in Greenville and Pitt County, is now a going concern, having received its incorporation papers from the Secretary of State this week.

The corporation was formulated late in December when eight local business men took out the necessary shares of stock to become incorporated. The job before them at the present time is to sell $50,000 in stocks to the general public.

Present stockholders are J. B. Kittrell four shares; R. M. Garrett, four; M. K. Bloun, four; Van C. Fleming, Jr., four; T. I. Wagner, four; Thomas W. Rivers, four; James S. Ficklen, four; and Willard T. Kyszer, one. Each share will cost $25, making the immediate sale of stock number 2,000 shares.

Van Fleming, Jr., chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's industrial committee which began the idea of the present corporation, stated this morning that shortly the sale of stock will get underway. He emphasized the fact that the corporation will not sponsor a subscription campaign for selling the shares but it will be a direct sale with the stock backed up in cash, real estate, short term interest-bearing securities and bonds.

The total authorized capital stock of the corporation will be $250,000 consisting of 10,000 shares of common stock at par value of $25 per share. The corporation's charter states that from time to time common stock will be offered for sale and issued and sold whenever authorized by the board of directors which will be elected at a later date.

Quoting from the charter, the object of the corporation is to "promote, encourage and assist in any and every manner the balanced industrial and business growth and development of Greenville and Pitt County . . ." The corporation may "secure options, purchase or otherwise acquire lands and interest in lands situated within the county, and to own, hold, subdivide, plot, improve buildings or otherwise, and to lease out or otherwise use for income purposes, or to encumber, sell, and dispose of any such real estate or improvements, or any interest therein or to lease the same, either as landlord or tenant, and to purchase, construct or otherwise acquire, and own, maintain and operate buildings of any character."

Although the corporation will work for the industrial growth of Greenville and the county, it can have branch offices and places of business out of the state and elsewhere.

Manpower Goal Hiked By Truman

Fighting Forces' June 30 Goal Newly Increased By 260,000 Men

Washington, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Senators were told today that President Truman had increased the June 30 manpower goal for the nation's fighting forces by about 260,000.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg testified that Mr. Truman had approved raising the armed forces strength to 3,462,205 by that date or "at the earliest possible moment."

The previous June 30 target was 3,200,000 men, although Mr. Truman has talked of having 3,500,000 in the next year or two.

Mrs. Rosenberg made her announcement as she and top ranking Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine officers appeared before the Senate armed services subcommittee to urge drafting of 18-year-olds.

Mrs. Rosenberg said she had just received a telephone call from Secretary of Defense Marshall informing her of the higher total for the armed services.

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff requested it yesterday," Mrs. Rosenberg said. "The Secretary of Defense and the President approved this morning."

The law now requires registration of all men of 18 but restricts actual induction to those 19 through 25 years old. The Defense Department wants the age minimum lowered by one year to help meet the accelerated preparedness program.

Ninety-Six Male ECTC Students Go Into Uniform

Large Number Volunteer For Service Since Emergency Declared

By BILL LLOYD
A total of 96 male students have withdrawn from East Carolina Teachers College to enter the military service since the beginning of the winter quarter, November 28, it was revealed this week by Dr. J. K. Long, college registrar.

Long reported that of the 96 students withdrawn, 90 of them have left school since January 2, because of the declaration of national emergency.

Mrs. Rosenberg said she had just received a telephone call from Secretary of Defense Marshall informing her of the higher total for the armed services.

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff requested it yesterday," Mrs. Rosenberg said. "The Secretary of Defense and the President approved this morning."

The law now requires registration of all men of 18 but restricts actual induction to those 19 through 25 years old. The Defense Department wants the age minimum lowered by one year to help meet the accelerated preparedness program.

Clear Police In Fatal Shooting

LaGrange, N.C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Two policemen have been exonerated in the fatal shooting of a young Negro here Tuesday night.

Chief of Police J. A. Wheeler and Officer W. E. Willford were acting in the line of duty when they fired on Bobby Lee Joyner, 17-year-old Negro high school student, a coroner's jury ruled last night.

Joyner was killed after he resisted arrest with a knife.

Basis For Settlement

Two Proposals, One From United Nations And The Other From British Commonwealth, To Meet Korean Issues; Nothing To Be Gained By U. S.-China Talk

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Efforts to find a basis for settlement of the Korean war were rewarded from two important directions yesterday.

The United States accepted a United Nations committee plan for an immediate cease-fire in Korea. This would be followed by negotiations on all Far Eastern problems by America, Britain, Russia and Communist China.

Simultaneously the British Commonwealth conference of nine nations in London took action in effect backing this U. N. move. At Lake Success the measure was sponsored by Canadian Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson.

Oddly enough this highly encouraging development had been preceded by an astonishing report from London that the Commonwealth conference had been considering proposing a parley between the United States and Red China to discuss a Korean settlement. The suggestion of such a bilateral conference immediately raises the burning question of whether the Korean war is a United Nations problem or whether our over-worked Uncle Sam is being assigned the task of playing Atlas to all the world's woes.

The Commonwealth conference quickly disavowed advocacy of a Chinese-American meeting. However, it agreed that the non-Communist world must avoid war with Red China in every way possible—an attitude naturally strengthened by the vast material interests of the British Commonwealth in China.

It also must be noted that a war with China would be waged in the theater which encompasses a great part of the British Commonwealth. Such a war certainly is to be avoided if it can be done with reason.

Naturally any suggestion that the United States and Communist China engage in a two-power conference over the Korean issue would be fantastic. The Korean war isn't the exclusive affair of the United States by a long shot.

'Pay-As-We-Go' Basis For Defense Is Truman Appeal

Taft Views Truman Remark As End To Bipartisan Handling Of U. S. Policies; Talks Of Curbing Limiting Appropriations.

Washington, Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Truman's statement he will consult congress in sending U. S. troops to Europe—but won't be bound by it—was labeled by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) today as "the end of the bipartisan foreign policy."

At the same time, Senator Wherry (R-Nebr) challenged Mr. Truman's indirect claim that the American people will back substantial use of U. S. troops to bolster western Europe's defenses against attack.

The President told his news conference yesterday he had authority to send more foot soldiers to Europe and intends to use it. But he will consult with congressional foreign relations and armed services leaders as a matter of politeness before he does it, he added.

He said that, as Commander in Chief, he isn't bound by any decision congress makes unless it restricts the number of troops.

limiting appropriations.

And if the lawmakers want to go to the country with that kind of a restriction, he declared, he is willing.

He licked 'em once before, the President said in an obvious reference to his attacks on the Republican 80th congress in the 1948 presidential campaign.

Taft told a reporter he thinks the only practical limitation on the President's authority may be in such appropriations restrictions.

But Taft said the President's insistence on his right to send troops to Europe without prior congressional approval of the policy and what Taft called Mr. Truman's bypassing of elected Republican leaders in his consultations "brings an end to the bipartisan foreign policy."

Mr. Truman also told his news conference that Gen. Douglas MacArthur, contrary to some published reports, has not recommended that United Nations forces be withdrawn from Korea. And he denied a Tokyo report that the U. N. commander had been "muzzled" by Washington to prevent his speaking publicly about Korea.

The President said he always has and will continue to consult with members of the foreign relations and armed services committees.

A reporter pointed out that Taft, who heads his party's policy committee, GOP floor leader Wherry and Senator Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the conference of all GOP senators, are not members of those committees.

Mr. Truman replied that Taft controls the Senate Republican and could be on the committees if he chose. He made it clear that Taft can ask to come to the White House to see him but isn't likely to be invited.

UN To Vote On 'Final Peace Bid' To Chinese

Lake Success, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The United Nations drove toward a vote today on a final peace bid to Communist China, offering a political conference on Far Eastern problems in return for a cease-fire in Korea.

The United States accepted the plan, Russia, in what seemed to be a stall for time, expressed coolness toward it.

Non-Communist spokesmen made it plain that if Peiping rejects this offer, the Reds can expect no further overtures and the war will go on.

Diplomats here held little hope that China's communists would agree to the proposals. They felt, however, the effort was worth while if only as a demonstration that the U. N. had explored the last possible avenue to peace.

The five-point plan, drafted by Cease-fire Commission members, Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, Sir Benegal N. Rau of India and Canada's Lester B. Pearson, was ready to be put before the 60-nation political committee in a resolution this afternoon.

Announcement of the plan yesterday brought from Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik the charge that it was an ultimatum. Malik, however, did not completely close the door. He said he needed more time to study the proposals.

Explaining U. S. approval, American delegate Warren R. Austin said the proposals restated the principle that a cease-fire must precede negotiations. He added the U. S. wanted to maintain the unity of the United Nations.

Greenville Casualty In Korea Chides 'Gripping' Over Paying Tax Increase

Pfc. Charles F. Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Harper of 2501 S. Dickinson Ave., has written his parents that he was injured in fighting in the Hungnam area in Korea. Pfc. Harper is shown above with his young sisters, Frances (left) and Nina (right). The snapshot was made when Charles was at home on leave last spring before going overseas.

A Greenville soldier, casualty of the Hungnam evacuation, gives his reaction to the war in Korea in two letters recently received by his parents here in Greenville.

The soldier, Pfc. Charles F. Harper, is the 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Harper of 2501 S. Dickinson Ave.

In a letter received yesterday by his parents, Pfc. Harper informed them that his foot had been injured during the action in the Hungnam area and he is now in a Pusan hospital. A letter written on December 28 was received by Mr. and Mrs. Harper from their son in Pusan, but at the time he did not tell them he had been injured.

In his letter received yesterday, Harper told his parents:

"Just a few lines to let you know where I am. I am in the 3rd Station Hospital in Pusan now, but it is nothing serious; just my foot got a little too cold at Hungnam, and a 105 shell fell out of our gun on my foot and the doctor seems to think it is fractured. . . . It was badly swollen and they couldn't tell whether it was fractured or not.

"I haven't seen much of Pusan; but what I have seen is something I wish you folks back home could see.

Dairy Ups Milk Prices Saturday

Carolina Dairy announced to its consumers today the price of milk per quart will take a one-cent jump effective with tomorrow's delivery.

Reasons given for the hike are increases in "cost of dairy products, feed, labor and supplies." The notice to the consumer stated the Dairy hopes for a price roll-back and that even the cost of milk will be reduced.

Ercel Webb, assistant manager, stated today one of the main reasons for the increase is more money being paid to producers of raw milk. Beginning with the increase, the dairymen will receive $6 per 100 pounds, whereas heretofore they have been receiving $5.80 for four percent butter fat content.

The increase in pay to producers, Webb stated, brings the county's 20-odd producers "in line with other dairymen in the state."

Effective tomorrow price of a quart will rise from the present 23 cents to 24 cents delivered.

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Rep. George A. Long of Alamance says he will introduce within a few days a bill to re-establish the motor vehicle inspection program.

The bill, he said, will call for lanes to be set up in each of the state's senatorial districts. Each car owner will be required to have his vehicle okayed at least once a year.

He added that the measure would also allow inspections at state-approved garages.

School Speed-Up Plan For City High School Approved

Accelerated Program Of Education Offered Students; Board Unanimous In Its Decision

Beginning in June an accelerated program of education will be offered by the Greenville city schools for students who wish to take advantage of the speed-up program in high school.

The decision to install the accelerated program in the city schools came yesterday afternoon by unanimous vote of the city school board.

The plan of offering the accelerated program to the students who wish to take advantage of it will be similar to the accelerated high school program which was offered in Greenville high school during the World War II years from 1941 to 1945.

Superintendent J. H. Rose emphasized yesterday afternoon after the meeting of the school board that the accelerated program will not be compulsory for any student in the city schools.

"The old program will be there for anyone who wants it," Rose stated. "The board feels in the face of this national emergency we ought to try to get all these boys high school diplomas before they get into the army. The girls ought to get out of school and go into nursing or other fields in which they are needed."

"The accelerated program will be safeguarded as it was before," the superintendent asserted. "Comprehensive exams and good judgment will be used throughout the program. It is a well thought-out program and will not be a hit or miss program at all."

The general outline of the accelerated program of education in the city schools as outlined at the board meeting yesterday will have three principal phases:

1. The city schools will operate, beginning in June, regular summer schools of 11 weeks. The summer school work will be offered to give students opportunity to do extra work toward their high school diplomas, and at the same time it will offer an opportunity for students to do extra work which may have been failed during the regular school year.
2. The seventh, eighth and ninth grade work will be combined into two years for students who wish to take the accelerated program and are found qualified to do so.
3. Certain students in high school grades will be allowed to take five subjects a day rather than the standard four subjects a day which is now in effect in the high school program.

Rose explained the accelerated school program will not be a general proposition, but it will be an individual proposition with the pupils in the program considered child by child with the consultation of parents. He added that the faculty of the city schools has been working out the details of the program for some time.

Those high school students who already are in the junior class or who are in the rising junior class will have the opportunity of taking advantage of the accelerated program this summer.

In the lower grades the accelerated program already is being conducted to some extent, Rose said, but it will be done more generally under

Lawmakers Notified Nation's Security Will Require Lending Authority Totalling $140 Billion For This Year And Next; Much Higher Taxes Sought

Washington, Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Truman today called on congress to boost taxes this session by "very much more" than the $8,000,000,000 combined total of the last two increases.

The President, in his annual Economic Message, notified the lawmakers that the nation's security will demand lending and spending authority totalling $140,000,000,000 for this fiscal year and next. The present fiscal year runs out next July 1.

First Principle

Mr. Truman said it should be the first principle of policy to "maintain a balanced budget, and to finance the cost of national defense on a 'pay-as-we-go' basis." He added:

"Corporations should pay much higher taxes. Individuals should pay much higher taxes. Excise taxes should be higher and more extensive."

Mr. Truman said new tax proposals soon will be submitted to congress carrying these recommendations as well as recommendations for closing "many loopholes" in present laws.

Plans, Controls

The President also informed congress that staffs are being rapidly gathered to apply "broader controls" over prices and wages.

"In the general policy must be to hold the price line with utmost vigor."

He asked that the Department of Agriculture be granted authority to control speculative trading and to strengthen its regulation of commodity exchanges.

Emphasizes Threat

At the end of his message, the President emphasized the great threat from communist aggression.

He said "large and menacing forces" led by Russia are "arrayed against the free world."

"The great manpower under the control of Soviet communism is being driven with fanatic zeal to build up military and industrial strength," he continued. "We invite disaster if we underestimate the forces working against us."

Budget Needs

The $10,000,000,000 figure used by Mr. Truman does not necessarily mean the government will spend that much in the two years ending July 1, 1952.

The funds may be committed over several years ahead and Mr. Truman did not hint at the size of the budget to be presented on Monday.

Bravo

By the end of 1951, Mr. Truman declared, defense and foreign aid spending should hit a rate between $45,000,000,000 and $55,000,000,000 a year. This is roughly double today's outlays.

The Real Cost

"The real economic cost of this defense effort is that we must work harder, reduce consumption, and forego improvements in farm, business and household equipment," Mr. Truman said.

"This cost cannot be put off into the future. It must be paid by the people now, one way or another, and it should be paid through taxation."

Inflation Hazard

Laying great stress on the inflationary hazard, the President then called for "broad extension of price and wage controls" to hold the anti-inflation line for the duration of the emergency.

He also asked congress to provide:

Rotary And Clergymen Baffled By Papal Order

Chicago, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Rotary International officials and some Catholic clergymen were baffled today by a decree of Pope Pius XII forbidding all Roman Catholic clergymen from membership in Rotary clubs.

A former president of Rotary International said he was "amazed" at the action of the Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office in Vatican City which has decreed also warned Catholic laymen to follow the Canon Law in regard to membership in Rotary given.

"We can't figure this one out," said a spokesman at headquarters of Rotary International.

He added the organization, which has 34,000 members in 7,300 clubs around the globe, had never had any "trouble with the church that I can remember."

In a statement issued over the signature of Rotary's President, Arthur Laqueux, of Quebec, Canada, who is a Roman Catholic, it was emphasized that the organization is "not secret," nor does it "seek to supplant or interfere with any religious or political organization."

"Qualifications for membership do not require information as to race, religion or politics," Laqueux's statement said. "By conventional action, each Rotarian is expected to be faithful to his religion and loyal in his citizenship. In the short space of 46 years the Rotary ideals of friendship, fellowship and service to others have spread to the six continents."

The decree was published by the Vatican's newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano. A source connected with the newspaper said it appeared aimed at European and Latin American countries where Masonic connections have been attributed to Rotary, rather than against Catholic membership in Rotary in the United States.

In those countries there have been differences of long standing between the Catholic Church and the Masonic order.

It'll Never Happen

When Democrats And Republicans In Congress Agree On No More Fighting, No More Disagreements . . . Live Happily Ever After; Things Will Be Dull

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, Jan. 12.—(AP)—I don't expect to live long enough to be around when it happens but it would be a change of pace if something like this happened in congress:

Promptly at noon the Democrats and Republicans file in and take their seats. They have seats. They have reached an agreement. No more fighting, no more disagreements. They've agreed on one thing already.

One man from each side will get up for the last time and denounce the other side, trying to sum up in a sentence or two all the things they have against each other. The room goes deathly still. Everyone leans forward in his seat, eager not to miss a syllable. The Democrats and Republicans are all smiling and nodding at one another.

The Republican begins: "We're the ones who have the brains. We have a monopoly on brains. These Democrats, stumbling around trying to lead the country down the road to dictatorship. The Democrats ought to keep their mouths shut and follow us. We'll tell them how to run the country."

The Democrat jumps up and throws their hats in the air—they all brought their hats along, just for this—and almost knock one another down, springing across the floor to shake the Republican's hand.

"Right you are," the Democrats say. "You hit the nail on the head. Bravo."

Then a Democrat leaps to his feet—and after everyone is seated against—the latter smile and bow to him or wave to him to encourage him. He begins:

"The Republicans never had an idea in their life. They're so far back in the woods we couldn't lead them out if we tied a rope to their heads. Their whole philosophy is this: 'If we can't go back, then for the love of Mike let's—and still . . ."

Then they all go back to their seats.

SIX DIE IN CRASH

Seguin, Tex., Jan. 12.—(AP)—A B-29 Superfortress—grooping blindly through an overcast—crashed in flames last night, killing six men.

Pfc. Charles F. Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Harper of 2501 S. Dickinson Ave., has written his parents that he was injured in fighting in the Hungnam area in Korea. Pfc. Harper is shown above with his young sisters, Frances (left) and Nina (right). The snapshot was made when Charles was at home on leave last spring before going overseas.

Elementary Children's Pictures On Display At Art Gallery

By MARTHA E. FORBES
On display at the Art Gallery in Sheppard Memorial Library is an interesting collection of art work done by the elementary children in the North Carolina schools. The exhibit will be there until Saturday, January 20, after which a new show will open.

This particular showing is a representative collection of paintings and drawings which were selected last spring by a nationally recognized child art expert from hundreds of entries sent in from schools all over the state. It represents work done by children from the first through the sixth grades. The spring arts festival at which the contributions are judged and rated is sponsored by the Art Department of the University, Woman's College in Greensboro, North Carolina Federation of Clubs and the AAUW.

Incidentally, Greenville schools had three showings which were adjudged prize winners in last spring's festival, but they are not included in the particular section which is being shown in Greenville.

When one can convince himself to look at art as creation only and not as realistic representation, then one gets the proper perspective on some of the paintings that apparently are without form, substance or meaning. This child's exhibit is comprehensive in style, subject matter and art mediums used, and in understanding the pictures as a child's creation of an artistic urge unbounded and uninhibited by form and set rules, then one can begin to appreciate the efforts of these young North Carolina artists.

There are crayon sketches, finger-print drawings, potato prints and pictures done with poster paint. Certainly children are attracted by vivid, intense colors, as nearly all the pictures which have been judged as tops in their class are bright and gay. There are some that look like merely designs; others show a definite realism in portraying scenes. One of the most interesting is a finger-print drawing by a first grade child which turned out, accidentally, to bear the semblance of a face. Another one of the pictures shows a great deal of the humor that is present in the child's mind. It is a picture of a child taking a tumble on a pair of skates.

The pictures are interesting, and to one who understands art and appreciates creative endeavor, there is a lot of beauty in them. To anyone who has ever watched his own children attempt to transform a mental image on paper, the pictures are intriguing and worth making a special visit to the Art Gallery to enjoy.

Lector Club Meets With Mrs. Forbes

The Lector Book Club held its first meeting of 1951 at the home of Mrs. Harold Forbes on the Falkland highway on Tuesday, Jan. 2.

Mrs. R. C. Stokes III, who was in charge of the program, introduced Mr. Hartwell Campbell, manager of station WGTC, who spoke about the future of radio and television.

In language common to the layman, Mr. Campbell explained briefly what radio and television were, technically speaking and told of some of the new things that were being developed. He made some predictions as to the future uses to which television could be applied and emphasized the marvels of this new scientific medium.

Following Mr. Campbell's discussion, a brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Holly Van Dyke, president. A report was made by Mrs. L. W. Gaylord Jr. on the family for which the club provided at Christmas. A collection of food, clothing and toys was gathered and supplied to the club's "adopted" Christmas orphans.

The hostess served a salad course to the members and Mr. Campbell, guest, at the conclusion of the meeting.

In his passing we realize that we have sustained a great loss and the City of Greenville has lost a most efficient and faithful officer and citizen.

South Pacific Reviewed At Semi-Cent Club

The Semi-Cent Book Club met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. L. W. Straughn. This was the first meeting since November, as a delightful Christmas party replaced the regular December get-together.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Straughn and as the secretary was absent, no minutes were read. There being no business to be attended to, the program was turned over to Mrs. Bob Russ.

Mrs. Russ invited as guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Astor Richardson. Mrs. Richardson has given her review of the very popular stage play, "South Pacific," before many of the clubs in town, but it was never more enjoyed than by this particular group. She spoke briefly on the interesting facts and statistics of the play itself, then on some of the main performers. She gave very absorbing sketches of each scene and act, describing the characters as she went, outlining the plot of the play. These were interspersed by recordings from the play by its original actors and actresses. Mrs. Richardson stated in the beginning that the nearest she had ever been to the play, "South Pacific" was Washington, D.C., but by the time she ended her review, one would have been thoroughly convinced that she had held a ringside seat.

After refreshments were served and books exchanged, the meeting was adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Veva Fleming.

Jesus Has a Day of Activity

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 1: 21-39.

While Jesus was preaching in the synagogue at Capernaum, a man with an unclean spirit appealed to Him; Jesus rebuked the spirit so that it left the man.

Afterwards Jesus and His friends went to the house of Simon, where his wife's mother was sick with a fever. Jesus lifted her up and she was healed, and went about her duties.

Jesus' fame spread to all the town, and people flocked to the house where he was staying, bringing their sick and lame, and the Lord healed all of them.

Early next morning, long before day, the Lord departed to a solitary place, and there He prayed until His friends found Him.

MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 9:35.

JESUS HAS A DAY OF ACTIVITY

THE LORD PREACHED AND HEALED MANY THAT WERE SICK

Scripture—Mark 1:21-39

By NEWMAN-CAMPBELL. THIS LESSON tells of one very active day in Jesus' life.

Today we all—or most of us—at any rate, lead extremely active lives. We rush from one thing to another. We go to business, do shopping, attend group meetings of various kinds, hurry home and prepare for an evening of entertainment or work on some project; retire late and arise next morning to do the same thing over again.

How many of us leave time for a period of silence and solitude when we ponder the serious things of life and commune with God? Jesus found time to go off by Himself to pray—to talk to His Father in Heaven about His course in the short life allotted Him on earth, to "find Himself," as we say, and draw strength from that Greater Strength that is God's.

Most people seem to be absolutely panic-stricken if every minute of the day is not given to activity, preferably with the rest. They hate to be left alone. To spirit was in the synagogue that day, and the evil spirit cried to Jesus, asking to be let alone, as the Lord would destroy such as he and he knew who Jesus was. Jesus rebuked the evil, one and told him to come out of the man. He did, and all were amazed, and the tale was spread abroad throughout the city.

Jesus and the four apostles whom He had called from their fishing, went to Simon's house. They found Simon's wife's mother ill of a fever. Going to her bedside, the Master took her by the hand, lifted her up, and straightaway the fever left her. She was "healed" and was able "to minister unto them."

That amazing event was also the talk of the town, and that evening, when the Sabbath ended with the setting of the sun, a touching scene was staged at this humble home. Crowds of poor people came, bringing their sick and those possessed of demons, and Christ healed many.

Very early next morning, long before sunrise, Jesus arose from learn to enjoy oneself and to feel, as the Latin saying goes, to be "never less alone than when alone," is rare.

Capernaum, that ancient city on the Sea of Galilee, was a sort of "home town" to Jesus. Here lived Simon Peter and his brother, Andrew, and Jesus appears to have made their home His headquarters when He was in the city.

On the Sabbath, Jesus went to the synagogue and there He preached. Those hearing Him were amazed at His words, for "He taught them as one having authority."

Did you ever think of that before—that when Jesus spoke, it was always with authority? He was always definite. He knew the answers, as we say today, and stated them in words that left no doubt in the minds of His hearers as to what He meant.

The scribes, on the other hand, quoted the opinions of others—those of the authorities of the synagogue.

A man possessed of an evil sleep and made His way to a place where He would be alone, to meditate and pray. He was not afraid to be left alone. He welcomed solitude. In the strange world to which He had come, he needed to be alone with His Father.

He did not enjoy His solitude for a very long space, however. Simon and those that were with him, sought Him out, and told Him, "All men seek Thee."

The Lord's answer was decisive: "Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth." "And He preached in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and cast out devils."

We are told how the healing ministry of Jesus led to the establishment in the early Christian church of institutions for relief for the needy. The origin of the modern hospital took place in the last part of the Fourth Century A. D., by Basil, Bishop of Syria, when a terrible famine caused an epidemic.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
CHRISTIAN VOCATION
There is a Christian teaching known as the doctrine of vocation. Briefly stated, it is the Biblical teaching that men and women find their salvation amid the surroundings in which they happen to live.
A man's position or a woman's housework are not external things unattached to a religious experience which one is supposed to have only in quiet sanctuaries or in hours of meditation and devotion. The lawyer finds the richness of his Christian life in the practice of law. The doctor finds it as he moves about among his patients. The millworker finds it at the lathe or at the assembly belt. The housewife finds it in the kitchen and in the hours she spends ministering to the comfort and welfare of her loved ones.
'I've got religion,' cries the recent convert. Fine. Where did you get it? You may have heard a word in Church or read a verse in the Bible which started you to be a Christian; but if you have continued to be a Christian, this continuation has had to take place amid the events of your daily life.
The doctrine of vocation teaches us that we can test the genuineness of religion by the extent to which a professed believer puts his religion into operation in the everyday circumstances of his life.

Another Streamline Job For Pitt's School System

Pitt county's commissioners have under consideration a proposal which in effect would streamline the procedure through which the local school districts may obtain funds for minor capital outlay projects.
The general idea of the proposal is good. It calls for an enabling act which would allow a school district tax levy for capital outlay to be ordered by the county commissioners rather than through a bond vote by the citizens of the district. A definite limit, however, should be placed on the tax levy which may be ordered for the district without the matter going to a vote of the people of that district.
In effect the plan would make it possible for the districts to receive small amounts of money for certain capital outlay projects which would not justify calling for a vote on a bond issue by the school district.
Formerly the districts could obtain small loans for such items from the State Literary fund, but since the fund has been disposed of, there is no agency from which the districts may borrow money for minor projects.

Unlike many other counties of the state, Pitt county's school districts must provide the money for their own capital outlays. Under the general statutes of North Carolina, the county, if it wished, could set up a general capital outlay fund for schools, and levy a county-wide tax for this fund. Then the money for new buildings in each district would then come from the county-wide fund rather than from the individual district funds. And likewise the capital outlay levy would be on a county-wide basis rather than on a district basis as it is now in Pitt county.
The county officials, however, have not elected to change the set-up of the county schools capital outlay system, and we think it is just as well for the time being anyway.

Under the proposal now before the commissioners, a district could request the commissioners to levy a school tax in the district to supply the money needed for minor capital outlay projects. No bond election or bond issue by the district would be necessary.
If the proposal is adopted it will facilitate the financing of minor capital outlay projects for the individual school districts.
The adoption of the proposal by the commissioners would be an asset to the school system of the county. But we repeat, definite limits should be set forth in the proposal adopted by the county commissioners.

A New Purpose For U. N. Forces?

The maneuvers of the United Nations forces in Korea have been of grave concern to the armchair generals throughout the United States. To the laymen the apparent full scale retreat to the old Taegon-Taegu perimeter looks as if the U. N. forces may get themselves kicked out of Korea completely.
On the other hand, this week's edition of the U. S. News and World Report offers the explanation that the retreat is part of a plan to kill as many of China's communist troops as possible and destroy as much communist equipment as possible with the least possible casualties among the U. N. forces. The magazine says the plan is for the U. N. troops to hold indefinitely around the old perimeter while they inflict heavy losses on the Chinese and thereby cut down the communist fighting force in the Far East.

Practically, the plan may be fine from a military point of view; but if we look below the surface, it reflects a change of purpose in the mission of the U. N. troops in Korea.

When the U. N. sent troops into Korea they were sent there under orders to free South Korea from the communist invaders from the north. If the future plans for the old perimeter are true, the purpose of the U. N. forces has now become that of weakening the communist war machine as much as possible without retaking Korea—at least for the present.

To us the program looks like a stall-for-time maneuver designed to weaken the communist force while the potential of the United Nations is built up for a full scale offensive against communist oppression.

It also denotes the possibility that the U. N. is planning a long range program to combat the spread of communist aggression.

It is quite likely that those who formulate United Nations policy on the side of freedom are viewing the international situation much more realistically than they have been given credit for doing.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Although the United States Senate has not given its approval to the Genocide Convention outlawing mistreatment of minorities, the international pact sponsored by the United Nations is supposed to go into effect today. It is now ninety days since the required 20 nations ratified it, with France as the only big power to assent.

Recognized constitutional experts and lawyers have testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the pact "shortcircuits" the American Constitution.
They contend with what advocates assail as a "strained interpretation," that American citizens could be tried before the United Nations or the International Court of Justice for doing "mental or bodily harm," the language of the pact, to any member of the many minorities in this country.

RIGHTS—Indeed, opponents contend that a profane or demeaning remark directed toward anybody claiming to be a member of an American minority would subject the offender to possible international trial and punishment.

The opposition also contends that, if the Senate ratifies the pact, it will be tantamount to enactment of the Civil Rights Bill which Congress has refused to pass, despite President Truman's repeated requests for favorable action.

DOUBTFUL—Secretary Dean Acheson has tried in vain to stifle these fears.
In an official interpretation of certain clauses of the United Nations Charter, which contain almost the same language as the Genocide Pact, he has said that none of these international agreements can be held to supersede state laws. He had in mind certain southern states' election and primary prohibitions.

Secretary Acheson also holds that the Genocide Pact applies only in grave instances of mass murders, such as Hitler committed in Germany during the thirties, and such as Stalin is accused of staging now.
However, in view of Capitol Hill's "mad" on Mr. Acheson, it now seems doubtful if his attempt to stifle the 30 southern and border Senators will persuade the upper chamber to approve the well-intentioned agreement.

Regardless of the broader and possibly strained implications and interpretations, it will be argued that no American citizen should be made subject to a foreign trial.

WOMEN—The bitterness over the Genocide problem is reflected in the struggle over it within the General Federation of Women's Clubs, an extremely influential and powerful organization on Capitol Hill. Few legislators like to buck this feminine body.
Every state unit has gone on record in favor of ratification except the District of Columbia Federation. Despite tremendous pressure brought against their antagonistic attitude, the D. C. branch recently voted 30 to 5 against approval.

Leader of the pro-Genocide group is Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, widow of the "father of the food and drug law" when he served in Agriculture many years ago.

BLOC—A small but effective southern bloc, headed by Mrs. Ernest W. Howard, formerly of Charlotte, N. C., blocks approval. Mrs. Howard, a member of the Daughters of the Confederacy, her father having served in the famous 23d regiment of that state, says:
'I don't know what my southern sisters were thinking of when they voted for this Genocide Pact. It shortcircuits the Constitution and repeals many of the laws now in force in the South.'
She says that she would like to "preserve harmony within the Federation of Women's Clubs," but she adds, she thinks it more important "to uphold the Constitution of the United States."

REPORTED—As of the moment, in view of Russia's misbehavior and the propaganda she would make of Secretary Acheson's restrictive interpretations, it is doubtful if the Senate will get around to ratifying the Genocide Convention, although it has been reported favorably by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Pending General "Ike" Eisenhower's report on Western Europe's will to rearm and to fight, the Congress of the United States is not in an "international mood" right now.

ANTI-LADY—The Texas delegation has lost its reputation for chivalry on Capitol Hill. From Speaker Rayburn down, they are in bad with the lady reporters. The delegation holds a private luncheon in a House restaurant chamber each week. Because of its influence and voting power, it commands as guests the most important and newsworthy names in Washington. They get off-the-record, lowdown stuff from White House spokesmen.

For years they have admitted Texas newspapermen, who benefit from the remarks of prominent officials. At a recent luncheon meeting, Representative Omar Burleson of Anson, Tex. proposed that the reporter be admitted. He was howled down so violently that the question never came to a vote. Representative Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls led the anti-lady opposition.

Why Aren't YOU In Uniform?

Somebody Told Me

by I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.
Yesterday I was talking to Mr. June Rose, Superintendent of the Greenville schools, and he mentioned the basketball game between Washington and Greenville Tuesday night. Anybody who has been to Greenville High School knows that the rivalry between Greenville and Washington compares to that of Duke and Carolina. The Phantoms dropped the game Tuesday night by one point, 47-46. Two of the local regulars, Johnny Aman and Virginius Haymes, were out; Aman with an injury and Haymes was drilling with the National Guard. He'll report for active duty on the 23rd.
Mr. Rose praised the basketball team for its performance with two regulars missing, but his real point in the discussion was one of more concern than the Greenville-Washington basketball game, or any game for that matter. The game was well attended, but a survey revealed that the crowd consisted of members of the student bodies of both schools, odd parents and older supporters from Washington, and seventeen, yes, I said seventeen grown-ups from Greenville. Included in the seventeen are the members of the GHS faculty. These figures speak for themselves; everybody knows that our high school students deserve the support of the grown-ups.
Most students should be allowed to finish school in 11 years instead of 12. Mr. Rose was in favor of the 12-year schooling when it was adopted. But now we need a faster program, so we should adjust the plan to the times. The school curriculum could be changed so that the work of the 7th, 8th, 9th grades could be done in two years instead of three. Likewise, the length of college time required to get an AB or BS degree could easily be shortened to three years. Some colleges have already done this, successfully.
This plan looks good to me. In time of peace, I'd favor the present educational plan, but in wartime we must speed up to meet the demands.
And I thank Mr. Rose.

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Raleigh, N. C.
OMEN—Some observers believe the first debate in the house over spending money justifies the opinion this will be both a conservative and a short general assembly. The item involved was an emergency appropriation of $41,342 from the contingency and emergency fund to keep the state civil defense council going until June 30—when it is expected a permanent appropriation will become effective. The unusual feature of the discussion was that the measure was sponsored and defended by Representative Larry Moore and Eugene Bost, chairman of the appropriations and finance committees, and was opposed by Representative Rober Kiser of Scotland, one of last session's chief spenders, along with Reps. Dave Henderson of Mecklenburg and Marion Parrott of Lenoir, among the youngest members of the house and therefore not regarded as quite so conservative.
QUESTIONED—Actually, there was no opposition to allotting some money for civil defense. Kiser proposed an amendment changing the wording in such way as to bring statement from Moore that his amendment would destroy effectiveness of the bill. Henderson offered an amendment, which was advocated by Parrott, cutting the amount from $41,342 to $20,000, on the grounds too much of the larger amount was earmarked for salaries and purchase of permanent equipment. Back of all the discussion was the main question of respective participation of federal, state and local governments in the civil defense set-up. It was explained that subsequent bills calling for regular biennial appropriation for the agency would clarify these issues and limit scope of the state council's activity. Parrott also questioned the qualifications of the incumbent director of civil defense and his salary of $8,000 a year. It was the general disapproval of these amendments and criticisms which indicated a short session, although on the surface the futile argument seemed to be delaying progress.
SIGNIFICANT—It was regarded as significant that the money committee chairmen won their first bout with the house membership. It was further noted, as was suggested here some days ago, that the so-called conservatives are more concerned about maintaining essential services already authorized than about the mere fact of not spending public money. Both Bost and Moore made it clear their support of the emergency appropriation was based largely upon the fact that state, through action of the governor and council of state, was definitely committed to the civil defense program for the immediate present. They wanted that commitment honored. There was definite implication they would not approve any wild extension or expansion of the program.
REASONING—It was noticeable that most of the comment, other than that by the money committee chairmen, came from freshmen members of the house. One new member who had nothing to say on the floor later explained why he voted for the original bill. He belongs to what might be called the "pro-Scott" element in the house, but said he expects to follow pretty generally the lead of the money chairmen.
"Any time Larry Moore, Gene Bost and Kerr Scott get together on a project, I am sure it is for the best interest of the state," he said. Two or three others when told about that freshman's attitude's said that would also be their policy throughout the session, reserving the right to differ with everybody else on individual items.
CLUTTERMENT—The office dictionary does not have the word "clutterment" in it, but it is a forceful expression used by one backstage observer when local bills came in so fast Thursday. Several proposals for changing fixed terms of court in certain counties and for postponing revaluation or real estate for taxes in others were offered in the house. "Just a lot of clutterment," remarked the man in a tone almost of disgust.
RECORD—Most local legislation originates in the house, because in many instances a senator represents several counties. At close of business Thursday the house had received twenty-nine bills and resolutions, fourteen of which were purely local and fifteen statewide. The senate had received twenty-seven bills and resolutions, five of which were purely local. Actually there had been offered more local bills, because several of the statewide measures were companion bills, identical in both branches. This was true of the budget appropriations and finance bills, resolutions honoring Charles B. Aycock, and such items as emergency appropriation for civil defense and study of state and local governments.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

ten new divisions in 1951, five more in 1952, another five in 1953, plus several reserve divisions, all for the North Atlantic army under Eisenhower.
The majority in favor of the bill would have been larger but the Gaullists and the Conservatives abstained from voting, not because they opposed the program, but because they said the twenty divisions would not be enough.
Thus the fears that the Communists would block French rearmament were laid at rest. Premier Plevin, in fact, made a particular point of calling for a large majority in order to isolate the Communists. They were effectively isolated by the result- ing vote.
The French Government then told General Eisenhower that their ability to organize those divisions would depend on their getting equipment from the United States. That stipulation has a double meaning. If the French mean to hold back on organizing the divisions until they get the equipment, the General should make it plain to them that we are not playing that way. Let them organize the divisions, and then they will get the equipment, or they will get the equipment as the divisions are formed.
That condition may sound as if we distrust the French, but, considering the way they have held back so far, it is only a sensible precaution.

Business Today

Retailers worried about the impact of the new, higher income tax rates on March sales may be unduly alarmed. The figures show that the income tax bite, painful though it may be to individuals, has had relatively little effect on retail sales.
Last year, for example, the Bureau of Internal Revenue sponged up more income taxes in March than it had in February and April combined, nevertheless the total retail sales in March were approximately equal to those in April and well above February. Here, in table form, is the record for the last several years:

Table with 3 columns: Year, Retail sales (in millions), Income tax take (in millions). Rows for 1947, 1948, 1949, 1950.

These figures pretty well sustain the theory that if the income tax drains consumer buying power—which it does—the drain is not seriously felt on the big tax collection month. They are further corroborated by the National Retail Dry Goods Association figures, which show that 8.1 per cent of a year's sales are made in March, compared with 6.2 per cent in February and 8.6 per cent in April.

Of course, if taxes continue to mount, especially on those people whose taxes are not withheld, a time will come when not only March but other months in which payments are due will show sales declines.
But until then, March will continue a good buying month.

Cheju, Korea—(AP)—This island off south Korea used to be the best place in the world to be a man.
It was a kind of masculine Eden. Women did all the hard work. The men folk just loafed around home all day, basking the children around if they got out of line. And at night the wives brought home the bacon.
A man didn't even have to worry about politics. The women ran the government, too, as well as the deep sea diving. And they did the plowing and the hoeing on the small stony farms. Life was rugged, but—long as as his wife's health lasted the husbands didn't have much to fret about.
War has changed this male paradise, once a popular port of call for tourists who liked to take snapshots of deep-chested lady divers grappling in the briny deep for iodine-rich seaweed and abalone.
It has become a refugee sanctuary for all Korea, and a prospective Gibraltar or second Formosa of the Pacific. What Formosa is for the Chinese Nationalist government the island of Cheju is becoming for the hard-pressed Korean Republican government of President Syngman Rhee.
Cheju is a poor and mountainous island harassed by recurrent guerrilla uprisings. It is about 8 miles long and 12 miles wide—roughly one-seventh the size of Formosa.
It bears approximately the same relation to Korea in peacetime that Sicily does to Italy. Its males normally migrate to all parts of the Orient, and this migration explains the fact that customarily there are more women than men here.
Why men want to leave a place where women do most of the work is a question the sociologists are still studying. The men who stay say the men who go away don't know a good thing when they have it.
But enough men have always stayed to keep Cheju's rocky acres overcrowded with a population of about 200,000. They export products from the sea, but have to import rice from the mainland.
IT is a pleasantly uncivilized land. You can stroll along a dusty road five miles out of town and meet only a country gentlemanly escorting a shaggy-coated black pig to market. Or you may have to run from a band of guerrillas slipping down from the hills to burn and loot the valley and to pick up a stray wife or two. Life always has an element of surprise here.
The last major guerrilla uprising, in the spring of 1948, was a particularly bloody affair. It was smashed, but the hill rebels still come down in small groups every few weeks to grab cattle and shoot up a few national police.
So far they haven't bothered the two small American contingents stationed here.
Maj. George Metcalf of Wheaton, Ill., commands one group of 11 men helping to train elements of the Korean Air Force.
'They aren't too hard to train,' he said. 'One Korean Major got 20 American victories flying with the Japanese Air Force. We flew against each other in the Pacific during the last war.'
Metcalf's men like their assignment because of the show. They can go out any afternoon and bag as many pheasants as they can eat.
More vexing are the tasks of an American Civil Assistance Team of six officers and five enlisted men, headed by Maj. Osvaldo M. Izquierdo, of San Antonio, Puerto Rico. One of their main jobs is to keep the island's chief municipality—also named Cheju—operating efficiently.
'It now has a population of 76,000, including 31,000 refugees

Washington Letter

Washington—This is the story of Barbara Nielsen and how she got to be a private first class (PFC) in the Women Marines. She's now assigned to the public information office at Marine Corps Headquarters here. Barbara was graduated from Washington State University school of Journalism last December. She looked for a newspaper job without much luck.
'Then I began reading about Korea,' she told me. 'The news made me very sick. I had had relatives in the Marines. I went to the Seattle recruiting station and before I knew it had joined up.'
Barbara enlisted Sept. 8, reported for "boot" training at the Marine Training School, Parris Island, S. C., on the 13th, began training on the 18th and was graduated Oct. 28.
Like all women Marines, she had filled basic requirements. She was a U. S. citizen. She passed physical, mental and character tests, was between 18 and 31 years old, unmarried, with no dependents. (College graduates, or those enrolled in an accredited college or university, who are at least 18 and not over 26, can apply for a commission and if accepted go to the officer candidate school at Quantico, Va.)
'You hit the deck at 5:30 a.m.," says Barbara, "march in formation to early chow about 5:40 a.m., march in formation back to the barracks to get ready to fall out for classes at about 7:30 a.m. Between breakfast and classes you have work assignments at the barracks.'
The women are given aptitude tests, and their background of experience is closely studied before they are assigned to duty centers. Some are sent to further instruction in specialized fields.
'Boots' become privates upon graduation, but usually get a PFC stripe in 10 weeks to four months, when their allowance is upped from $75 a month to $77-50. Women Marines usually live in barracks with free lodgings and board. They all get free medical and dental care.
The Women Marines were organized in World War II and reached a peak strength of 18,000, serving all over the U. S., in Hawaii and Alaska. The Marine Corps was the first service to establish an organized reserve platform for women. As of last July 30, it had an estimated 1,800 reservists and had nearly 600 regulars. They can serve in anything but actual combat. None are overseas today.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

Chapter 10

When the Hasbrooks dropped in to inquire after Molly, it was Elsie who suggested a bridge game and willingly agreed to make a fourth.

"I don't know one card from another," she chuckled, and proceeded to play a better game than anyone.

Again it was Elsie who corralled Mark Norwood for a game of canasta on the second afternoon, ordering sandwiches sent up from the dining salon as a special inducement. Norwood arrived with Clayton Howell, a quiet but rather charming young Englishman, in tow. And Elsie, feeling that she had pulled a real coup, was in fine form.

What Molly did not know was that Elsie, with the very best of intentions, had also appointed herself a committee of one to provide her young friend with what she considered a suitable background of wealth and social position. Elsie had grown genuinely fond of Molly in the short time she'd known her; also, it gave her a sense of importance to have something really interesting to tell and an audience willing to listen.

Her first thought had been to represent Molly as a motion picture star traveling incognito. Molly, with her honey-blonde curls, her small heart-shaped face, trim figure and sparkling brown eyes, was pretty enough to pass for one. But Elsie discarded the idea immediately, knowing she could not count on Molly's cooperation. Also, it was much too risky—what with Marcia Collins, a real movie star, on board.

To represent Molly as a wealthy society girl presented unexpected difficulties, too. In the first place, the name "Leonard" had no social or financial significance, so there was nothing to do but drop hints that it was an assumed one. The fact that Molly had been living in a foreign country was a help. It left no opening for questions about where she had been for the last two social seasons.

It had required considerable maneuvering on Elsie's part to invent a reasonable water-tight story that would not suffer from Molly's lack of cooperation, but she had confined herself mainly to cryptic statements and broad hints, leaving much to the listeners' imagination, and then assuming the belatedly cautious attitude of one who knows a great deal but is not at liberty to tell.

The result was a story rather vague as to detail, but having all the intriguing qualities of a mystery. The fact that Elsie, busy looking after Molly, had little time to elaborate, worked in her favor. Interested listeners, bored with themselves and one another, filled in the details according to their own inclinations.

The time, too, was propitious. Beyond an unscheduled stop at the Island of Cyprus, nothing had happened for two whole days. The passengers, having seen all they wanted of the Mediterranean high spots, were getting restful, eager to get home.

They knew all there was to know about one another and conversation had reached a dangerous low. They had displayed their elaborate wardrobes, played all the deck games, seen all the ship's movies, and were completely fed up with concerts. Anything that smacked of novelty was welcome. It was all the more welcome when it involved a pretty girl who was obviously upper-bracket but for some reason or other preferred to have her real identity unknown.

And so it was that Molly's reappearance on deck, her ankle neatly bandaged, created a small flurry. She was surprised, even a little flustered, at the interest shown in her by passengers who had scarcely noticed her before. Some regarded her with frank curiosity, while others greeted her with a warmth that struck her as out of all proportion to luxury-liner protocol.

She was more surprised than ever when Captain Rosario, the dapper Italian master who smiled at everyone for reasons of policy, but talked only to a chosen few, hurried over to greet her in the manner of one welcoming the daughter of an old and respected friend. He had smiled, mechanically, and looked straight through her when she first came aboard.

But now, after expressing his delight over her quick recovery, he took her hand in his, bent over and kissed it with old-world gallantry. Then, to her further surprise, he explained that he had invited a small group of fellow passengers to join him on the bridge that night for a close-up of the side-real wonders—and would Molly do him the honor of joining the party?

"You might ask your friends too, the young Hasbrooks," he said. "It will be all the more pleasant if we have you young people along."

Molly was too flustered by such unexpected solicitation to do anything more than murmur a polite "Thank you." And a moment later Captain Rosario, having bowed himself out of her presence, was projecting his politic charms in the direction of a distinguished-looking couple whose names Molly did not know, but who smiled at her as if they had known her all ways.

Dismissing the episode as inconsequential, she walked over to the guard rail and was at once engrossed in her surroundings. The ship had dropped anchor in Phaleron Bay and the rambling seaport town of Pireaus was spread out before her. In the distance she could see the Athenian hills, with the shadowy outlines of the Acropolis faintly etched against the blue skies. She could see Mars Hill, where Saint Paul once spoke to the wondering sages. (To be continued)

"I HATED THE THOUGHT OF CHANGE OF LIFE"

but Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proves wonderful to relieve hot flushes

"I had heard so many tales about women going through 'change of life' which is usually between 38 and 42 years—I really dreaded reaching middle-age for fear I like so many women, would suffer from hot flushes and nervous irritability due to this functional period peculiar to women. I tried to laugh it off but all of a sudden I found myself suffering from these embarrassing symptoms! Then believe it or not—my mother-in-law told me how wonderful Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is to relieve such symptoms. I started taking Pinkham's Compound and I find I get amazing relief from hot flushes and flighty, high-strung, nervous feelings—when due to this cause.

"In fact I take Pinkham's Compound regularly—to help build up resistance against such middle-age distress. I suggest if you suffer this way to give it a trial.

P. S. Pinkham's Compound tastes well in fruit juice or water.

East Carolina Host To Appalachian Tonight

Unbeaten Apps Scrap Pirates In North Stater

Another thrilling North State battle is on tap tonight as undefeated Appalachian (not Lemoyne, as previously reported) clashes with East Carolina here.

Game time is 8:00 p.m. in the Wright gymnasium at East Carolina.

The talented Mountaineers have rolled over four straight North State opponents in the young basketball season, setting the pace in the smaller nine-college conference, with a 4-0 record.

East Carolina suffered its first conference setback here Tuesday night, 58-58, at the hands of heralded High Point in a hair-raising scrap which was not decided until the last minute. The Pirates' North State record now stands at 2-1.

Leading the Bucs' scoring attack tonight will be All-Conference honoree Russell, who has hit 125 points in nine games for an average of 13.9 points per try.

Coupling with Russell will be fresh sensation, Charlie Huffman, 6'4" forward, who is following close behind Russell in the scoring department with 113 points for a 12.5 percentage per tilt.

Toddy Fennell is slated for the pivot position, while towering Bobby Hodges, 6'5" rebound worker from Kinston, will hold down the guard slot with sophomore John Postas.

East Carolina plays its third conference game of the week here tomorrow night against Lenoir-Rhyne's Bears. It was previously reported that the Bears were to play here tonight.

Schools Strip NCAA Rule Of Finances

Dallas, Jan. 12—(AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association may be stripped today of its sanity code governing financial aid to athletes.

A bloc of schools, headed by the Southern, Southeastern and Southwestern Conferences, will attempt to take enforcement of the code out of the hands of the NCAA and leave the handling of financial aid to the individual schools and conferences.

Leaders of the bloc were confident they had sufficient votes of the approximately 215 due to be represented to get an amendment to the NCAA constitution that would accomplish their objective. A two-thirds vote is necessary.

There is plenty of business on the agenda for today's session, including what could be a long discussion on banning television of games.

The executive committee has scheduled many items for discussion ahead of the controversial amendments to the sanity code. But advocates of stripping the NCAA of policing power say they will get their item up "as soon as possible."

This indicates they may put up a floor fight for early discussion of their proposed changes in the code. The convention will hold an all-day business session tomorrow.

Wolfpack Defends Loop Leadership With W & M

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 12—North Carolina State's Southern Conference leading Wolfpack will defend its loop leadership tonight at the Reynolds Coliseum against Coach Barney Wilson's William and Mary Indians. Game time is 8:15 p.m.

Winning six conference games, over George Washington twice, Davidson twice, Duke and Furman, the Wolfpack has maintained a perfect mark behind the brilliant play of All-America Forward Sam Ranzino and 6-7 Center Paul Horvath.

Ranzino, a 6-1 shooting ace from Gary, Ind. and captain of the current squad, has whipped the nets for 435 points in 15 games to average an even 29 points per try. Although the target of the opposition's best defensive efforts, Sam has played a major role in State's present record of 14 wins and only one defeat.

William and Mary holds the distinction of being the last Southern Conference team to beat the Wolfpack. This was a 54-50 loss sustained at Norfolk, Va. last season. The Tribesmen will come to Raleigh with a record of four wins and only one loss in conference play and will be given an excellent opportunity of upsetting the State quint.

Several thousand tickets are still available to the State-William and Mary clash. A preliminary game between State's unbeaten freshmen and Oak Ridge Military Academy will open the double-header program at 6:15 p.m.

Crosby's Charity Tourney Opens

Pebble Beach, Calif., Jan. 12—(AP)—Bing Crosby's famed Charity Golf Tournament, bringing together the top crust of pro and amateur players, gets under way today over tricky Cypress Point.

The classy field of 172 players will compete for $10,000 in prize money over the 54-hole route in this exacting pro-amateur affair, the only one of its kind.

Crosby himself has chosen to sit this one out—the first time in the ten-year history of the tournament that he hasn't been out there swinging with the best of them.

Daughter Agrees That "Mother Knows Best"

Folks in the city and in the country often disagree on many things, but they all nod their heads in agreement when they hear the familiar quotation, "Mother knows best." Mothers seem to have a way of knowing what is best for their sons and daughters. For example, Mrs. R. H. Holder, 221 Columbus St., Montgomery, Ala., certainly agrees with this, for at one time Mrs. Holder was nervous and run-down — she felt miserable. Her mother recommended that she take HADACOL and now Mrs. Holder says, "Today, I feel wonderful, just wonderful, and I owe it to HADACOL." Mrs. Holder was suffering a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Mrs. Holder says: "I was nervous and run-down and I had lost weight and had no appetite—food just didn't interest me. I had aches and pains. I felt miserable. My mother started taking HADACOL and it did her so much good that I decided to give it a try. After the first bottle I noticed an improvement. After the second bottle I felt better. I have now taken 6 bottles and feel grand. I am no longer nervous or run-down. I have loads of energy. I have a big appetite and have regained the weight I had lost. No more aches or pains, either. Today I feel wonderful, just wonderful, and I owe it to HADACOL for it has done so much for me. I just can't praise it enough."

Jim Dillingham Expected To Lead Tonight's Scorers

Elizabeth City's stinging Yellow Jackets, who defeated Kinston's defending Northeastern champs earlier this week, 42-40, come to Greenville tonight, as the Phantoms play host in their second N tilt this week.

Game time is 8:00 p.m. with a preliminary tilt between the Greenville JV's and the EC junior varsity slated for 6:30 p.m.

Coach Bo Farley's five, who were edged out in the last 35 seconds here Tuesday night, 47-46, by a scrappy Washington Pam Pack quint, will be on the rebounds tonight, seeking to better their 1-1 conference record.

Forward Jimmy Dillingham, who scored 23 points against the Pam Pack Tuesday, is expected to lead the Phantoms' scorers in tonight's conference scrap.

Dillingham is currently leading the Greenville net-swishers with a total of 80 points in eight games for an average of ten points per game, while Center Sydney Briley only trails by two points, with 78.

Dillingham will couple with Virgilus Haymes at the forward position, with Briley at center and Glenn Scott and Jake Higgs at guards rounding out tonight's starting lineup for the Phants.

Phantoms' scoring:

	FG	FT	PF	TP
Dillingham	35	10	17	23
Briley	26	26	12	32
Haymes	24	5	7	25

Charles Defends Title With Oma

New York, Jan. 12—(AP)—Heavyweight Champion Ezzard Charles, as trim and sharp as a razor, plans to ruin playboy Lee Oma's Cinderella ambitions well before the gong sounds for round fifteen in their title bout tonight in Madison Square Garden.

"If Jimmy Braddock was able to do it and if Joe Walcott was able to come close, then maybe I can do it," is the way the 34-year-old Oma sized up the situation.

But it looks like a case of "too little and too late" for the clowning Buffalo challenger. The coldly efficient champion, risking his prize bauble for the sixth time, should chop down Lee somewhere between the eighth and 12th rounds.

The oddsmakers rate the improving champion a 1 to 5 choice to win and a 5 to 9 favorite to halt Oma within the 15-round limit. A light flurry of betting in a very quiet wagering mart dropped the prices down from 1 to 6 on the decision and 1 to 2 on the knockout.

Despite the light betting, interest in the scrap has picked up considerably and choice ringside seats are selling at a premium. A crowd of 12,000 and a gross gate of at least $65,000 was anticipated by the promoting International Boxing Club.

The 10 p.m. (EST) bout will be broadcast by ABC and telecast by NBC.

Eppes Loses Twin Bill To Plymouth

Willis, Bell, Moore and Blair combined their scoring talents in the first quarter last night to give the Plymouth Rockies a 55-48 verdict over Eppes High School.

A first quarter rally gave the Rockies an 11-3 lead, and their sharp-shooting five increased their scoring during the second quarter.

A sudden spurt by the Eppes Bulldogs in the third quarter put the locals ahead 36-35, but they fell apart in the fourth quarter, with hte Plymouth forwards overwhelming the lead.

Plymouth's Bell sank 20 points for the visitors to take the individual scoring honors, while Hubert Walters matched the scoring for the locals with 20 points.

Plymouth's sextet made it a clean sweep of the twin bill, overwhelming the Eppes six, 30-18.

Small was high for the winners with 14 points and Jenkins was high for the losers with 11 points.

N.C. State League Votes To Increase Number Of Vets

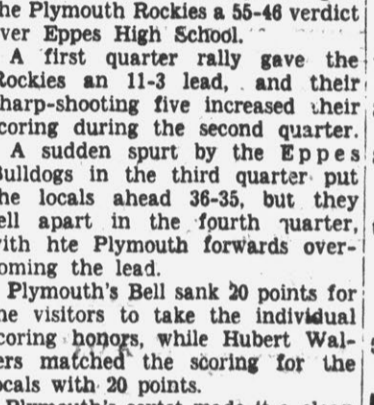

Salisbury, N.C., Jan. 12—(AP)—Directors of the North State baseball league, foreseeing likelihood of manpower shortages, voted Wednesday night to liberalize rules on player limitations.

By a vote of 6 to 3 the directors increased from three to six the number of veterans that each club may carry upon its roster. They also reduced from 10 to five the number of rookies to be carried. Each club will be required to have six limited servicemen. A veteran is a player with three or more years in Class "D" or higher organized ball; a limited serviceman is one with one or two years, and a rookie is a player in his first year.

Manley Llewellyn of the Concord club announced that the Washington Senators would not operate the club this year as a farm. Llewellyn said the Concord club would be operated by a corporation known as Cabarrus Sports Inc. and that a working agreement with a major league club likely would be arranged before the season opens.

The directors decided upon a 126-game schedule to open the Class D league on April 18 and end Sept. 8.

Music Club Has Three Vocalists For Program

Three vocal soloists presented the program for the January meeting of the Greenville Music Club, held this week at the city Woman's Club. An audience of approximately forty members was present to enjoy the occasion last Tuesday evening. Mrs. J. T. Madry, soprano and music teacher at the Grimsland schools; Miss Ruth Lambie of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College; and Mrs. Herbert Carter were presented in a program of songs. Mrs. Madry, guest artist, sang three numbers: "To A Messenger" by La Forge, "I Heard A Forest Praying" by De Rose, and Curran's "The Two Magicians." She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Elizabeth Drake of the college music faculty.

The two remaining soloists were members of the club. Miss Lambie, contralto, and Mrs. Carter, soprano. Miss Lambie's group included "Vom Tode" by Beethoven; "Mit Eines Primola Veris" by Grieg; "Absence," a Chinese poem arranged by James Rogers; and "When I Have Sung My Songs" by Charles. Mrs. Carter presented an aria from Mozart's "Magic Flute," "Les Ombres Tombes" by Spross, and Hageman's "At The Well." Accompanist for Miss Lambie was Miss Gladys Reichard; and for Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Karl V. Gilbert.

In the short business meeting preceding the program members of the club were reminded of the club-sponsored music period on Station WGTC each Sunday at 3:30 P.M. They were requested to remind friends of it. At the end of the evening refreshments were served by the hostess committee, the chairman of which was Miss Beatrice Chauncey. Members of the committee were Mrs. Fae Toll, Mrs. Agnes Barrett, Miss Ellen Rion Caldwell, and Miss Margaret Lietman.

His Hobby Rests On Truman Desk

A hobby that began with an assortment of small pieces of wood that wound up on President Truman's desk provided the program for the Men of the Church of the First Presbyterian church last night.

J. G. Gibbs, engineer with the State Highway division office here, described his hobby of making pictures from hundreds of small pieces of wood. The pictures are made, he said, by inlaying the woods of various trees and different colors so they form a picture. At the present time President Truman has a desk top made of woods from all the continents, portraying the map of the United States. Gibbs presented it to the President last year.

The music program was presented by George Perry, piano instructor at East Carolina and L.B. Starling, student baritone who sang two songs.

Paul Powell, teacher of industrial arts at the college, introduced the guests.

False Alarms

A false fire alarm was telephoned into the Greenville fire station around ten o'clock last night by an unidentified girl posing as a telephone operator. Firemen who answered the summons, said the girl told them she had received a call that a house at 701 E. Fifth St. was on fire.

Earlier in the day, firemen reported receiving a telephone call from a girl who repeated the name of a college dormitory, but gave no other information. Firemen called the dorm, but received no answer. There was no fire there, either.

(Continued from page one) It is a United Nations responsibility and America doesn't want any exclusive rights assigned her. Just in passing, it may be said that there is small basis for belief that conferences with the communists can produce a solution for anything. Broadly speaking, Moscow doesn't want differences solved, because unsettled conditions are what she needs for a successful prosecution of the communist revolution.

I know it sounds horrible to you and whoever reads this, but it's just to let you people back home know what's going on over here. I ain't just writing this letter to you. I'm writing it for all the people in the states who don't have sons over here and those people are the ones who probably say, and I quote, 'There's nothing to worry about. This war will be over soon.' But I don't want you and daddy to get that idea in your heads because I don't know when this war is going to be over myself; but when it is you can be waiting for me because I'll be there with you.
