Army Chief Of Staff States Troops Will Stay In Korea

General Confers Again In Tokyo; Announces Replacements Arriving Soon; Second Division Carries On Battle For Time As New Commander Named

Tokyo, Jan. 15—(AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today that American forces "will certainly stay and fight" in Korea.

The U. S. Army Chief of Staff told a news conference in Korea that troop replacements will begin to arrive in numbers in two or three months. Some already are going to the front, he said.

One new Regular Army division will be organized, Collins added. National Guard units will be called into service.

Withdrawal

While Collins was taking a close look at the Korean war situation, allied troops withdrew under heavy fire from Yongwol, on the east-central front. They had recaptured the fire-blackened town only Sunday.

The withdrawal highlighted the mounting pressure against the U. S. Second Division, which has been holding off powerful Red forces near Wonju, 30 miles northwest of Yongwol.

Also a grave threat to the Second Division's defenses of roads fanning out into the heart of South Korea was a communist force of possibly 30,000 far behind the front.

This communist force was reported operating in the rugged mountain areas 25 to 55 miles south of Wonju. It threatened to choke off the Second Division's withdrawal route back to the main body of allied troops.

Meanwhile, communist reinforcements were reported pouring into the area north and west of Wonju. There they would be in position for a frontal assault against the standard American, French and Dutch troops of the division or a flank sweep building up the cut-off threat.

Tokyo Conference

Collins' promise that the U. S. would stay in Korea followed a series of high-level talks in Tokyo. These brought together General MacArthur, Collins, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U. S. Air Forces Chief of Staff, Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Chief of the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency, and Maj. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling, Army Chief of Intelligence.

High Naval officers also sat in. The talks touched off a flurry of speculation—even that Nationalist China's troops might be permitted to fight in Korea.

There were even reports that the talks dealt with the possible evacuation of Korea by U. N. troops.

Offensive

Osan, Korea, Jan. 15—(AP)—United Nations forces suddenly went over to the offensive on the western Korean front today. By nightfall, tank-infantry teams had rolled up to 12 miles northward toward Seoul. They recaptured the ash and ruins of Osan, Kumyangjang and Chon. Frontline morale soared as weary fighting troops realized—at least locally—that the allies had grabbed the military initiative back from the Reds.

There was a strange lack of Chinese resistance.

Moscow 'Sick-Leave'

Another Communist Leader Has Gone To Moscow For Medical Treatment; Norwegian Joins Other Prominent Reds; More Than Their Health Believed Being Talked

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Communist party headquarters in Oslo, Norway, has announced that Johan Strand Johnsen, deputy chief of the Norwegian Reds, has gone to Moscow for medical treatment.

Johnsen thus joins a notable company of sick folks who are in the Soviet capital for what ails them: Maurice Thorez, the French communist leader, and Palmiro Togliatti, Red chief in Italy, also have been on the official sick list in Moscow.

All of which causes a smile among those who recognize that it seems to be a common practice to characterize political visits as matters of health. One hastens to add that this doesn't mean reasons of health aren't involved at times. Togliatti and Thorez certainly have been ill not long since. Georgi Dimitroff, Bulgarian premier and internationally known communist leader, died in a sanatorium near Moscow some months ago.

In any event we are entitled to believe that the current presence of foreign communist chiefs in Moscow concerns affairs of state as well as health. These are perilous times in which Premier Stalin must keep in contact with his lieutenants abroad.

We don't hear much about Stalin these days. He spends several months each year in the pleasant climate of his beloved Georgia on the Black Sea. However, although he reached the age of 71 on his last birthday in December, there has been no public indication that he has given over the helm of the ship of state. He is the ruler of the Soviet dominions. His word is final.

And what emergency would call for the presence of men like Thorez, Togliatti and Johnsen in Moscow? There has been no announcement on that score, but the reason doesn't seem hard to find. The Soviet Union is laying out the course which it aims to follow in the developing world crisis.

Whether this means Moscow expects another world war remains

Driver Says This Happened At 35 MPH

The driver of the above car was quoted by Highway Patrolman Ernest Guthrie as stating that he was traveling 35 miles per hour at the time his car turned over. The car, driven by Hubert Edwards, Negro, of Route 1, Winterville, turned over on the Reedy Branch dirt road about 12:15 yesterday. The car traveled 240 feet after the driver lost control of the car. Edwards was charged with speeding by Patrolman Guthrie shown in the above picture as he notes damage to the car (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Decree Construction Halt For Commercial Buildings

One Month 'Freeze' Ordered To Save Vital Materials For U. S. Mobilization Program

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—The government today banned the construction of new stores, restaurants, office and other commercial buildings until Feb. 15.

Thereafter, each private new commercial structure must be specifically authorized by the National Production Authority.

NPA issued the order to save materials for the mobilization program. Commercial building will be authorized, in general, only if it (1) furthers the defense effort, (2) is essential to public health, welfare or safety; or (3) alleviates or prevents a hardship in a community.

The order applies to new construction "starts" and not to building already under way.

During the initial one-month freeze, NPA said it will grant permission "only in emergency cases." The types of construction regulated include banks, hotels, office and loft buildings, barber and beauty shops, garages, service stations, laundry and dry cleaning establishments, shoe repair and tailor shops, eating places, printing shops, hotels and tourist camps.

Undertaking and cemetery buildings, community and neighborhood structures, facilities for the storage, distribution, sale or display of consumer goods, including all retail stores and shopping centers, are covered by the order, as well as storage warehouses for personal effects.

In the case of a multiple-use building—such as an apartment house with stores or offices—NPA will require authorization for the portion intended for commercial use.

The order does not restrict the building of wholesale food establishments or wholesale supply facilities for fuel oil, gasoline, coal, or gas distributing systems and pipelines.

It was made effective as of midnight last Saturday.

Seek Space To Store Tobacco

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15—(AP)—The Flue-cured Tobacco Stabilization Corporation is looking for space to store tobacco.

The cooperative, said General Manager L. T. Weeks, will need the space when the 1951 crop is hauled to market.

In the past it has stored large quantities at Charlotte, Charleston, S. C., Wilson and Norfolk, Va., but because of the national emergency little of the space will be available another year.

Farmers Of Pitt Begin To Apply For PMA Funds

Farmers of the county today began applying for funds from the Production and Marketing Administration for buying lime, fertilizer, grasses, drainage tile and other practices under the conservation program.

To date the county committee has about $40,000 remaining in their year's allotment for dispensation to farmers. Purchase orders for the funds will be taken until the money runs out. PMA officials stated.

At the present time farmers can get money for ladino clover, fescue grass or orchard grass. Funds for those three will not be given out until the State Committee determines a fair price. However, all other commodities can be obtained on purchase order and all other practices.

Gunmen Holdup Western Union

Goldsboro, N. C., Jan. 15—(AP)—Two masked men held up the Western Union office yesterday and got away with $379.

The holdup occurred shortly after the office opened at 9 a. m. Aline Sneed, who was alone in the office, said one of the men drew a gun and ordered her to "give me what you got there."

Incentive

Harrodsburg, Ky., Jan. 15—(AP)—Attendance at the Mackville Lions Club has jumped from 76 to 97 per cent lately, and small wonder.

The Lions recently bought a pig, with the understanding that the first member who was absent had to take care of the porker until another absentee was forced to take his turn as the pig's nursemaid.

Prison Sentence Given Ilse Koch

Augustsburg, Germany, Jan. 15—(AP)—Ilse Koch was sentenced to life imprisonment today for causing the murder of Buchenwald concentration camp prisoners.

The "Red Witch of Buchenwald," 44 years old, was convicted of crimes against Austrian and German prisoners of the Nazis. The red-haired widow of the camp's wartime Nazi commander was not in court to hear the verdict.

Mrs. Koch broke into a hysterical frenzy in her prison cell last night. A court doctor testified she was in no condition to attend the session today and hear the sentence.

It was the second life imprisonment sentence for Mrs. Koch. The first, imposed by an American War Crimes Court after the war, had been commuted to four years. She was convicted by the U. S. Court for crimes against allied personnel.

Southern Demos Slow To Accept Truman Advances

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—Southern Democrats apparently are taking with a grain of salt President Truman's latest moves for peace within the party family.

Their reaction to his recent "Dear Harry" letter to Senator Byrd (D-Va.) and his failure to ask specifically for civil rights legislation in the State of the Union message may be defined more clearly tomorrow in the inaugural address of Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

Byrnes, former Supreme Court Justice and Secretary of State, takes office for a four year term. There are strong indications that he may become one of the central figures around whom Dixie Democrats will rally in the 1952 presidential nominating convention.

After he resigned as Secretary of State, Byrnes broke with President Truman on the "Fair Deal" issue. He is looked upon as one of the men likely to be most vocal against a possible renomination bid by the president.

At 72, Byrnes isn't a candidate for anything and thus may be in a better position to lead the Southern forces at the next convention than some in his party.

Byrnes' former colleagues in the House and Senate are awaiting further developments before they accept at face value recent overtures made by the president.

Plane Stewardess Dies A Heroine After Crash

Philadelphia, Jan. 15—(AP)—An attractive 24-year-old stewardess—just five months in flying service—died on duty yesterday after rescuing 10 passengers from the flaming wreckage of a National Airlines plane in which seven perished.

Volunteers Now Enlist Via Boards

President Orders Enlistments To Be Funneled Through Draft Boards

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—President Truman today directed that all youths volunteering for the armed services must do so through their local draft boards.

Under his order, the volunteer must file an application with his board for voluntary induction. This is required whether or not the volunteer has been registered.

If a registrant is unable to return to his local board to volunteer, he may file application with the local board in the area where he may be residing at the time of his decision.

Under the regulations, a man filing for voluntary induction will be classified as soon as possible and placed in the class available for military service if he qualifies.

A man not required to be registered for induction who volunteers will be registered and given a selective service number in the same manner as those required to register.

The White House made public Mr. Truman's order without any immediate explanatory statement. It was not clear whether it would leave the volunteer free to enter the service of his choice.

At present, the Navy and the Air Force have been receiving all the volunteers they can handle.

The draft has been used only to get manpower for the Army.

Mr. Truman's order was issued while Defense Department officials pressed at the Capitol their contention that 18-year-olds are needed to meet the armed forces manpower goals.

Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense, and top officers of the military services were scheduled to appear before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee with additional data to support the program they proposed last week.

Odd Coincidence May Mean Clark Play Is On TV

"East Street" or "Easy Street," possible titles of one and the same play, posed a problem for Register of Deeds and playwright John Clark Jr., today.

Clark wrote a play titled "Easy Street," which describes the confidence man racket, and it was published in Esquire magazine last May. Yesterday Clark read in the New York Times television section that a play titled "East Street," written by J. G. Clark, Jr., will be produced tonight over the ABC television network. The TV show stars Chester Morris in the leading role.

The coincidence of the title, the play's theme, and the author's name prompted Clark to call a friend in New York to verify the authenticity of the whole thing. However, the friend was out of town and Clark couldn't contact his agent either.

And, more, television sets hereabout can't get ABC, leaving the author still up in the air.

$71 Billion Spending Policy For Next Year Is Laid Down

March Of Dimes Drive Launched In Pitt County

Chairman Reports Eager Response Even Before Fund Drive Started

Throughout Pitt county today workers launched a drive to raise $12,000 for the Infantile Paralysis foundation through the annual March of Dimes.

In opening the campaign this morning, March of Dimes Chairman Dr. Elmer R. Browning said, "Already there is every evidence that the people of Pitt county are wholeheartedly behind the March of Dimes campaign. The response even before the drive for funds started indicated the people were willing and eager to help in raising funds for this worthy cause."

Throughout the county the people who were asked to help with the campaign immediately accepted positions on the various committees.

"Now we are appealing for the aid of all the people of Pitt county in assuring that the March of Dimes drive this year will meet and surpass its $12,000 goal. The money is needed desperately by the polio victims already stricken in our own county, and those of us who may be stricken with the diseases during 1951."

Pitt during 1950 had 10 cases of polio scattered throughout the county. Twelve of the cases were among white people and four of the cases were among Negroes. None of the cases were fatal although several have required and continue to require considerable hospital treatment.

The Pitt chapter's expenditures during the year amounted to $3,393.76, and for the first time in the chapter's history it finds itself without funds at the opening of the March of Dimes campaign.

Shortly before the first of the year it appeared that the county chapter would have to borrow money from the state pool to meet its expenses, but the chapter managed to get by without borrowing money. Now the funds of the local chapter are practically exhausted.

J. H. Rose, chairman of the Pitt County chapter of the Infantile Paralysis foundation, this morning stated, "For the first time the Pitt County chapter finds itself at the opening of the drive without funds. We're not a lot of chapters that had to borrow from the national fund, and we have most of our bills paid. But we still have the after care of the 16 cases we had last year and also the after care of some cases we had in previous years."

"The conditions now make it imperative that we do more than ever this year. Before this year we have been able to meet our local expenses and send money to the state pool to be used in other places in the state that need money. This year we need the help of the people of Pitt county more than ever."

In addition to Chairman Rose, other officers of the Pitt chapter of the Infantile Paralysis foundation are J. W. Overton, Dr. C. G. Garrenton, K. T. Futelle, D. H. Conley and Dr. T. G. Basnight.

Among the committee chairmen appointed by Browning to assist in the March of Dimes drive this year are:

Dave Whitehead, publicity director; Miss Annie Laurie Aske, radio publicity; Tige Gardner, special events; Larry Averette, president's bail; Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, sports; Mrs. Richard Gorman, county home demonstration groups; Mrs. Ruel W. Tyson, Business and Professional Women's Aid Bureau; house to house canvass; James Keel, parking meter collections; D. H. Conley, county schools; J. H. Rose, city schools and Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of music programs.

Dr. M. N. Posey of the ECTC facility is in charge of the talks in connection with the campaign and has on the campaign talks committee the following school principals throughout the county:

Garland Bailey, Bell Arthur; E. F.

Second Division Not Endangered

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—The Defense Department said today that the Second Division in Korea "is not in any danger whatsoever of being cut off and destroyed."

A spokesman at the regular Pentagon briefing made that statement to reporters in connection with suggestions that encircling movements by the Communist enemy have exposed the division to serious danger.

He said the Second "is doing a hell of a job" in denying the Reds the use of the vital road junction near Wonju.

President Says Taxes Should Be Increased By Over $16 Billions To Balance Proposed Budget; Controversy Expected Over Increase In Non-Defense Spending, Fair Deal Program

THE BUDGET AT A GLANCE
By The Associated Press

	Fiscal Year Ending June 30 1951	1952
Spending	$ 47,210,000,000	$ 71,594,000,000
Income (X)	44,512,000,000	55,138,000,000
Deficit (X)	2,698,000,000	16,456,000,000
Year-end Debt (X)	260,300,000,000	276,300,000,000
(X) Under present tax laws.

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—President Truman laid down today a $71,594,000,000 spending budget for the government next year and declared sound policy requires that taxes be increased $16,456,000,000 to balance it.

"This is a budget for our nation's security in a period of grave danger," Mr. Truman told the congress, which will have full say on new taxes.

The huge expenditure the President proposed for the fiscal year starting July 1—more than half of which would go to the military—figures out to about $471 for every one of the some 152,000,000 men, women and children in the U. S.

And if the President has his way, just about the same amount will be collected from the average citizen although some of it, of course, would be in the form of hidden taxes.

In a sense, Mr. Truman's bulky budget message was a more controversial document than his "State of the Union" address delivered last Monday.

The fact that the budget proposed a slight increase in non-defense spending rather than the reduction many lawmakers have been demanding seemed certain to arouse ire in some congressional quarters.

So did the fact that the message called for many of Mr. Truman's pet "Fair Deal" measures such as the civil rights program and a major part of the Brannan Farm Plan.

In its broad aspects, the budget: 1. Estimated U. S. military service costs for the year starting July 1 at $41,421,000,000—58 per cent of the budget total. That is more than double the $20,427,000,000 the President estimated will actually be spent in the current year. It counted on active armed force strength of nearly 3,500,000 by mid-1952, with "our troops supplied with the best weapons in the world."

2. Proposed a $7,461,000,000 outlay of military and economic aid to friendly foreign countries—compared to $4,736,000,000 this year—to further the cause of "international security." The foreign program would take nearly ten per cent of the total to the multiple other home-front costs of government, a $1,622,000,000 increase over this year. Mr. Truman said in this connection that "the requirements of national security are reflected in every major function of the budget."

3. Assigned $23,112,000,000 or 32 per cent of the total to the multiple other home-front costs of government, a $1,622,000,000 increase over this year. Mr. Truman said in this connection that "the requirements of national security are reflected in every major function of the budget."

4. Included in this total proposed outlays of $1,100,000,000 to help expand production of such basic products as rubber, steel and aluminum; $1,277,000,000 to enlarge output of "atomic materials and weapons"; $276,000,000 to enforce the budget.

The message showed the President expects the government to take in an unprecedented amount of revenue in fiscal 1952. Even without the $16,456,000,000 he said should be levied to balance the budget, Mr. Truman estimated the net tax take at $55,138,000,000. That allows for $2,703,000,000 in tax refunds.

This total compares with an anticipated revenue of $44,512,000,000 in current fiscal 1951 and the $44,762,000,000 in wartime fiscal 1945, the record actual intake thus far.

U. S. Cost Of Living

Right Now, Your Living Costs Are At Their Highest In History; Still Going Up; Controls Promised, But When? A Review Leading Up To Today's Conditions

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—Living costs now are at their highest in history: thirty-one per cent higher than in June, 1946, when OPA was scuttled and price controls were lifted.

They've risen more than three per cent since the Korean shooting started in June. The next government figures, expected in a few days, probably will show costs still rising.

Last week President Truman made it clear price and wage controls are coming. But when? Not, it seems, until the government has been able to assemble a staff big enough to handle them. That may be months away.

This is a brief review leading up to where we are now. When this country got into the Korean fighting, and was kicked around, the nation realized a big defense program was needed.

To get it started, President Truman on July 19 asked congress for some very limited powers: to allocate materials to defense plants and to curb credit as a brake on in-

Altrusa Club Holds Luncheon Meeting Tuesday

The Altrusa Club of Greenville held its first regular monthly meeting on Tuesday January 9, in the Marine Room at the Old Town Inn.

The president, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, called the meeting to order and presented a representative of the Dramatic Department of East Carolina Teachers College who gave an interesting interpretation of the coming drama, "Our Town," to the group. This play is to be given at the new theatre in the Training School auditorium for a community showing on January 23.

After a delicious luncheon and general business discussion, Miss Mamie Chandler, director of the Methodist Center for East Carolina students, and Altrusa chairman of International Affairs, gave an intelligent and informative talk on our international situation at the present. The chief request Miss Chandler had for all women in any position of influence was to guard against hysteria. Youth of today face an unsettled world and can make very few long-ranged plans for the future. "Let us, as women who are anxious to do our part, begin by trying to keep our own faith, and help the youth of America keep their faith in our country and our God," suggested the speaker.

The encouraging announcement was made that the Altrusa Club had paid all expenses for the Scholarship Fund at East Carolina Teachers College for our Pitt County protégé, with the exception of the final quarter. There will be a benefit bridge and canasta party held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. B. Spilman on January 26 at 8:00 p.m. Please call 2388 and make an appointment for your bridge or canasta club reservations! Many lovely prizes will be presented at this time.

"Sacrament" was the lesson-sermon for all Christian Science services Sunday. Golden Text: "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world." (John 6:33).

From the Bible: "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten son into the world, that we might live through him. No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us." And from "Science and Health" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Love inspires, illumines, designates, and leads the way. Whatever inspires with wisdom, truth, or love—be it song, sermon, or science—blesses the human family with crumbs of comfort from Christ's table, feeding the hungry and giving living waters to the thirsty."

Executive Board Of City Council Announce Plans

The Executive Board of the Greenville Council of Church Women met in session on Thursday morning at the home of the president, Mrs. James S. Jenkins.

At the meeting plans were made for the World Day of Prayer to be observed on Friday, February 9, at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. This day, set apart in late winter, is the time when Christians unite their hearts in prayer all over the world, and local churches cooperate in holding a joint worship service. This year the services will be under the direction of the women of the Memorial Baptist Church, under the leadership of Mrs. B. McK. Johnson. The hour of the observance will be 11:00 a.m.-12:00 noon. The Merchants Association has agreed to cooperate as usual by having business establishments close their doors during this hour. The World Day of Prayer is sponsored by the Greenville Council of Church Women every year and is a definite contribution to the spiritual life of the community.

A report was presented by Mrs. Wyatt Brown on the proposed Protestant kindergarten that the Council is trying to establish. Mrs. Brown stated that her committee is investigating the possibilities of a place to use, the response with which it will meet and the mechanical processes to be adjusted in connection with this project.

Mrs. F. P. Brooks announced that plans were being worked out with the Negro churches of the city to observe a Day of Prayer at the same time as the services are being held in the white churches.

Mrs. H. G. Haney, head of the Ecumenical Movement in Greenville, a movement sponsored by the National Council of Church Women to foster the spirit of unity and cooperation among all the Protestants in the United States, stated that she is going to visit all the general meetings of the women's church societies in town to enroll them in the Ecumenical Register. This is a counting of women who are willing to acknowledge their support and cooperation of the ecumenical movement.

The Executive Board of the Greenville Council of Church Women is composed of the following officers: president, Mrs. James S. Jenkins; vice-president, Mrs. D. H. Conley; secretary, Mrs. Paul Ricks; and treasurer, Mrs. F. D. Duncanson. The presidents of the various church societies; the wives of local ministers; and one other representative named from each church.

New Pastor Is Elected To Serve At Greenville Free Will Baptist Church

Rev. Rashie Kennedy of Goldsboro, N. C. was unanimously elected by vote of the local Free Will Baptist Church to serve as its pastor, beginning March 1, of this year. He is the son of Rev. R. C. Kennedy of Beulaville, N. C.

At the age of 29 Rev. Kennedy answered the call to the ministry. He received his diploma from the Free Will Baptist Bible College of Nashville, Tennessee in 1945. While in this college he majored in Bible and Christian Education. This being a two-year college at that time, he transferred credits to Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, N. C. and graduated there with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1947. He majored in English in the Wilson college.

While in the Free Will Baptist College, Rev. Kennedy served as pastor of the Oaklawn F. W. B. church near Nashville. His first summer out of school was a very fruitful one. He conducted an evangelistic campaign in Jacksonville, N. C. which resulted in a fine church in that city.

Rev. Kennedy resigned from the First Free Will Baptist Church in Goldsboro, where he has served since June of 1945, to accept the pastorate of the Greenville F. W. B. Church. Besides serving the Goldsboro church, Rev. Kennedy has served as a member of the F. W. B. National Foreign Mission Board for the past four years and serves as its present chairman. He serves as Director of Foreign Missions Interest in North Carolina and is a member of the N. C. F. W. B. Mission Board. He is also a graduate of the Standard Training Course of the Evangelical Teacher Training Association and is much interested in better-trained Sunday School teachers in the local churches.

REV. RASHIE KENNEDY

He has conducted several Sunday School Institutes, and has given out over 600 certificates to Sunday School workers.

Square Dancing Lesson Offered

"Swing your partner 'round and 'round, Georgia Alabam' we're going to town" — that will be the theme of a special interest meeting of county 4-H boys and girls to-night when they meet to learn the rudiments of square dancing.

The meeting is sponsored by the home demonstration agents of the county in conjunction with the 4-H program for the purpose of teaching square dancing fundamentals to the clubs at large. Four delegates from each senior club will join the fun tonight and later go back to their clubs to instruct their members in the dance.

Purpose of the instruction is to show that square dancing is an art and not an exercise and graceful figures of the dance will be stressed.

Meeting time is 7:30 at the agriculture building auditorium. A short social hour will follow the meeting.

American Home Department Has Regular Meet

The American Home Department of the Woman's Club met in regular session on Friday afternoon at 3:30 at the club house. The president, Mrs. C. D. Ward, called the meeting to order by having the members sing the club hymn, after which Mrs. R. P. Rogers led in reading the collect.

Mrs. C. C. Hilton made a plea for instructors of first aid and stated that the club members would all be called on as helpers in the near future.

Mrs. Vance Perkins announced that plans had been made for an Art Festival which will be held on April 6th through the 13th.

Mrs. Vance Perkins, E. T. Stafford and Luther Herring were welcomed as new members. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Leonard Topping and Mrs. Claude Gaskins.

Mrs. Ward announced that the next meeting would be a Valentine party in February.

Mrs. C. E. Oakley, program chairman, presented Mrs. C. A. Bowen, the speaker, who gave an interesting and informative paper on "Russian Education." Mrs. Bowen pointed out that the learning process for the Russian people is a continuous process of political ideology and indoctrination from the cradle to the grave. She stated, "In educating their youth, the people teach them hatred—hate the enemy or anyone who does not cooperate with the state or incorporate the belief of the Communist." Stalin has defined education as a weapon to be used against the enemies of the state. The Soviets do not recognize a God and religion is taught as a taboo.

Following this thought-provoking talk, delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames C. W. Murray, S. L. Daughtridge, John Briley and C. C. Hilton.

VFW Group Calls For Safeguards, Draft Of Youths

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 15—(AP)—Complete mobilization against communist aggression and internment of known party members in this country are urged by southern members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The resolutions were adopted at the close of a two-day session of VFW officials and delegates here yesterday.

Immediate drafting of 18-year old youths was proposed by the ladies' auxiliary, and approved by the conference.

Delegates called for legislation to intern all known communists. They urged President Truman to "use his emergency powers to completely mobilize labor and management, industry and manpower alike to combat communist aggression."

Medical Men To Register Today

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15—(AP)—Approximately 1,800 Tar Heel doctors, dentists and veterinarians were expected to register today in the second draft registration for the medical group.

State Selective Service Director Co. T. H. Upton said the registration was for those under 50 years of age not already registered and who are not in a reserve component of the military service.

Today's registration hours, Upton said, were from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. In the first medical draft registration last November, some 300 doctors registered in the state. In that group were those who received their medical training at government expense or were deferred to get their training and who did not serve a sufficient time in the armed forces.

Warns Of Tragic Result In N. C. Teacher Pay Cut

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15—(AP)—Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has asserted that a teacher pay cut would bring "tragic consequences."

Dr. Erwin's statement came in a letter to a statewide meeting here over the weekend of the United Forces For Education. He was unable to attend because of a previous engagement.

In his letter, Dr. Erwin asserted that the proposed budget for 1951-52 as laid down by the Advisory Budget Commission will make it impossible to maintain a $2,300-$3,100 teacher pay scale which the teachers are now receiving on a contingent basis.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
SPIRITUAL GROWTH
Adoniram Judson, the great Baptist missionary of a century ago, once wrote: "I never was deeply interested in any object. I never prayed sincerely and earnestly for anything but it came; at some time, no matter how distant a day, somehow, in some shape, probably the last I should have desired, it came."
In religious writings we often encounter the words, "unanswered prayer." In fact these words occur in one of the best beloved of our hymns. Yet actually there is no such thing.
We have the idea that for a prayer to be answered, it must be answered the way we want it and at the time we designate. The universe would indeed be in chaos if this were true. It would mean that every individual has the right, as it were, to pull the levers and push the buttons which run the universe and thus cause everything to occur according to his convictions or his whims.
This is not the way prayer operates. Prayer gives God an opportunity to do for us what needs to be done. God's answer to prayer may be No or Yes or Wait. The greatest calamity that could come upon us would be for us to have all our desires granted by the Heavenly Father.
But the life of prayer leads us into the very heart of God and causes us to see his will. Thereby we grow.

Preparedness For The Home-Front

Having neither read nor heard of similar steps in other city schools, we strongly suspect that the Greenville School Board is miles ahead of its fellow-boards in other communities in preparation to meet the period of uncertainty ahead.

The speed-up in education, which starts in June, is based on experience gained in a past emergency. Agreement as to its re-application bespeaks the far-seeing and conscientious viewpoint of the Board.

It is not compulsory; and the description of its operation strongly indicates that the intensified teaching program will not be available to the student who cannot qualify, or for whom the speed-up would prove to be more of a burden than an advantage.

No small number of young men had their school education interrupted by World War II. The armed services offered an educational program for this group, but a number of those for whom it was available did not take advantage of the opportunity. On returning to civilian life they were handicapped to a degree in which they themselves were among the first to realize.

There are advantages in the educational speed-up other than that of acquiring a diploma before the student is called into the armed forces by the government. Those boys who will not be called, and the girls, find themselves in a position to complete their high school education sooner than might otherwise be expected. This opens the door to other fields, either of private endeavor or of public service. It is evident that the "home front" will provide many opportunities for varied services and occupations. Entrance into these fields will be greatly helped by the earlier acquisition of a high school diploma.

In due time, other city school boards will adopt the speed-up technique in their high schools. Greenville can congratulate itself on the fact that their own board was among the first to adopt this common-sense approach.

Twenty-One Is Still A Good Age For Voting

From all indications, amending the constitution of North Carolina is going to be a popular pastime among members of the General Assembly this session.

There is no reason to quarrel with the general process; new conditions have arisen, once unheard-of ideas are common property. It is nothing new to modify the basis of laws to meet the changing times.

One such modification, an amendment to the state constitution, appears to us as un-called-for. Governor Scott and some members of the legislature have given it their support. We speak of the right to vote for eighteen-year-olds.

Now before we go into our discussion of this touchy subject, we hasten to add there are a precocious few of these young people who have the judgment and sense of maturity equal to, or surpassing, that of some of their elders who have been "voting" for decades.

The right to vote is not a thing to be considered lightly; and we have frequently thought that the responsibility involved has been ignored by too many grown-ups... people whom you would normally expect to be conscious that they bear not only their own welfare, but the welfare of the entire state when they cast their votes.

Should we add to this not inconsiderable number of "capricious" voters?
Nature has endowed the 18-year-old with certain physical capabilities which, to put it mildly, frequently overshadow the endowments of their elders. On the other hand, the processes of time and experience should have endowed the older age groups with maturity and responsibility.

What does an 18-year-old know of the problems involved in earning a living? In conducting a business? In the paying and determining the usage of his tax-dollar? He has no experience to guide him... only theories propounded by his text-books; and there is no book which can substitute for the knowledge gained by experience. At eighteen, the young man or woman is still in the process of development... ideals, philosophies and conclusions are still dependent upon the opinions of others.

Government is the biggest "business" in the world. It has the greatest number of partners; it has the greatest responsibility in terms of spending and the guidance of the way of life it is dedicated to safeguard. When the vast group of prospective voters is unfamiliar with the commonplace problems of governing their own lives, how can they be entrusted with a voice in the government of others?

We suggest the greatest arguments for the 18-year-old vote are sentimental in character. And on previous occasions the Reflector has expressed the conviction that in some phases of government, sentiment is a poor crutch upon which to lean.

National Whirligig
News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—A far more sensible and practical attitude toward the profits-wages-prices system exists among the economic czars brought to Washington for the present emergency than prevailed among the ideological planners who managed the civilian economy during World War II.

In the unofficial War Cabinet headed by Charles E. Wilson, former head of General Electric, there is not a single Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles or Harold Ickes.

Whereas they revelled in tempestuous, crack-down and dictatorial methods and always had an eye out for instituting and fastening permanent reforms on the economy, the present group seek only to alleviate the pressure of rearmament and heavy spending.

CHANCE—Mobilization Director Wilson, Economic Stabilizer Valentine and Price Administrator Di Salle have already shown that they intend to give full consideration to the demands and needs of manufacturers, workers and consumers, although realizing that somebody is bound to feel himself hurt under their regulations.

Industrial executives, for instance, will be given a chance to show that a flat and rigid price level may be unfair to them under the conditions prevailing in their fields. There will be no exorbitant and rough-handed decrees, as in World War II, if the need for exceptions can be proved by the victims.

DIFFERENCES—Wage Administrator Cyrus S. Ching, in current conference with representatives of management and labor, indicated that he recognizes the need for "stabilizing" rather than "freezing" pay envelopes.

If labor spokesmen can prove that cost of living provisions in their contracts should continue to be recognized, and to be revised periodically, they will be.

The personality and background of Mr. Wilson also account for these fundamental differences. Donald W. Nelson, World War II director as head of WPB, had been a merchant. Mr. Wilson's forte has been production as well as sales, giving him a far broader grasp of today's problems.

REMEDIES—Economic Stabilizer Valentine, who will have considerable influence in fixing any wage-price structure, is so opposed to the general ideas of controls that Washington was amazed at his selection to this post.

While realizing that anti-inflation ceilings must be applied when and as civilian and military expenditures skyrocket to $75,000,000,000 or more annually, he believes that the basic remedies consist of taxation, credit curbs, savings and general restraint on the part of the sellers and buyers.

He is no high-pressure, take-it-or-leave-it man like cigar-smoking toulie-haired and bicycle-riding Leon Henderson.

ATTACKS—Indeed, Mr. Valentine delivered one of the sharpest attacks on the World War II stabilization legislation when he appeared before a Senate Committee in February of 1941.

It is doubtful if President Truman had read this testimony when he appointed the up-state New York Republican and former president of the University of Rochester.

"The bill," said Mr. V., "delegates to one man full power to control completely the industrial life of America, down to the smallest factory, for it authorizes full control of the manufacture of all defense materials and defines defense materials so broadly that they include anything that floats or flies or could be used to injure an enemy, or anything that could contribute to the manufacture of any of these."

ABNEGATION—"Is the emergency so great that the President needs all this power?" he continued.

"If he intends to use it, he kills all the fundamentals of democratic procedure. If he does not intend to use it, why should he have it?"

Around Capitol Square

Daily Reflector Bureau By LYNN WILSON Raleigh, N. C.

TWO SIDES—The bill pending in the senate, offered by Senator Hamilton Hobgood of Franklin, providing that no voting precinct shall contain more than one thousand voters has occasioned some interest in small precincts as well as large ones. Many students of highway safety are convinced that excessively slow speed constitutes as great a traffic hazard as excessive high speed. There is belief in some quarters that if maximum limits are to be imposed, there should also be minimum limits.

PRECINCTS—Obviously one voting precinct with two thousand or more registered voters is at disadvantage because of time required checking registration books and for voters to mark the ballots. Just as obviously a precinct with less than twenty-five voters imposes a tremendously heavy per capita cost on the county for maintaining the election machinery. Vance county after many years took steps to consolidate Nutbush precinct, which used to be the first to report in every election. Cattanohoe precinct in Haywood county held that honor in the 1950 elections. When all seven registered voters had cast their ballots the election officials closed up shop and went home, sometimes before noon. There are geographic considerations which may necessitate small precincts and large precincts for convenience of the voters. There is some sentiment for a plan that would fix reasonable maximum and minimum number of registrants essential to constitute a legal voting precinct.

SPEED—With respect to motor vehicle speed, there has never been a statute requiring that a minimum rate of speed be maintained. However, some students of the problem are coming to the belief that on highways where maximum speed for trucks is 45 miles an hour some regulation for minimum speed should be enforced. Under present practices numerous massive trucks move at speeds under ten miles an hour, backing up traffic for hundreds of yards behind them.

HAZARD—This constitutes a serious traffic hazard for the reason that drivers of blocked cars become impatient and are inclined to take chances in passing—just about the time the big truck decides to go downhill at sixty miles per hour.

AVERAGE—A group of legislators indulging in an informal "bull session" the other night got to talking about these matters. The conversation moved on to the wide variance in size of counties and municipalities. They didn't see how anything could be done about it, but noted the discrepancy in North Carolina counties, ranging in population from 5,209 (Camden) to 196,163 (Mecklenburg). The variance in size of municipalities from less than ten in Delview to more than one hundred thousand in Charlotte, is not so important because most legislation affecting municipalities is scaled to fit classified groups—such as cities above 50,000 and towns below 1,000. No such classification is made for counties. Long time efforts to consolidate or divide counties in order to establish more nearly average size units have met cold reception.

WAR IMPACT—The war came to an eastern North Carolina town in a big way last week. The annual basketball classic between Greenville and Washington high schools was played in the Pitt county town without the outstanding player of the Greenville team. Why? Because that same night, he as a member of the local national guard unit, was in check uniform at the army about two blocks away polishing rifles. That incident is humorous as compared with the serious nature of other incidents—such as casualty lists—but it serves to illustrate forcibly the impact of the war upon ordinary affairs of every day, not usually thought of as being affected at all. It serves also as omen of what may be expected in increasing ratio during the next few years.

DOLLARS—The annual "March of Dimes" campaign for the infantile paralysis fund is under way. Lots of dimes come into the fund, and some big checks. G. F.

(Jerry) Ball of Charlotte is as usual leading the "march of dollars" at numerous marathon plane playing performances throughout the state. The Esso public relations man devotes practically his whole time during January and February of each year to the plane to get contributions for the fund. The plan is simple and profitable. Jerry sets up a piano in a show window, or suspends it in mid-air above the street, or rides with it on a truck, playing all the time. His proposition is he will play any tune requested for one dollar, and if he can't play the requested tune he donates a dollar himself. During the past few years he has collected many thousands of dollars—of which he personally contributed very few, because he can play anything.

SPECTACULAR—Ball is enough of a showman to know that it is the novel and spectacular that attracts attention. Such things as fourteen hours non-stop playing and swinging from a suspended platform high above the streets pay dividends. This year he conceived but later abandoned the idea of putting his piano on top of the capitol dome, with amplifiers all around. He decided that such a scheme might interfere with serious business of the general assembly. The stunt may be used some other year.

VISITORS—There is no way to check or count the number of out-of-state people who visit North Carolina during a year. The federal government keeps fairly accurate record of visitors to national parks and forests. Well over a million people visited national areas in the state last year. One reason was the work of the state advertising division. In his annual report, prepared for the board of conservation and development, Advertising Director Charles Parker notes that his office sent out 6,989 photographs and 158 news stories, and that paid advertisements promoting North Carolina appeared in 19 magazines and 63 newspapers outside of this state.

NO JOKING MATTER (Greensboro Daily News)
As for the proposal of Forsyth's Representative Joe King that members of the North Carolina Highway Patrol be dressed in red coats with gold trappings and contrasting trousers so as to put on a flashy show for tourists and presumably those home folks whose eyes could stand the strain permanently, we hope either one of two things will happen:
(1) That Representative King's proposal is another one of the jokes which he continuously makes as comedian, ventriloquist and entertainer, or
(2) That the General Assembly, should it be seriously offered, will at least consider and treat it as a joke.

The highway patrol is created and paid to get a safety job done and not to take to the highways to strut, put on a parade or outdo the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police in glamorous or showmanship. There has throughout the years been no tendency whatever of the state's advertising division to list the patrol among our chief and most colorful attractions.

P. S.: As for the ancillary suggestion that the patrol set up information booths for tourists, we'd pass that on to the Department of Conservation and Development too. The patrol really has a prior obligation.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Whether or not men have cuffs on their trousers a year from today will probably depend on the course of action of the Politburo. But unless it adopts a more lenient attitude, men may lose their suits and women their ruffles.

Regulations eliminating the frills from clothing are not being publicly discussed in Washington yet. But it's a safe bet that government planners are working on them and statements and "leaks" to "prepare the public" may be forthcoming in a short time.

The fact is that it takes a lot of wool, cotton and synthetic fabrics to uniform an army. Military consumption per man is about four times the civilian rate—and much more in certain fields. And it is also a fact that wool is in such short supply that prices have passed previous marks and show no sign of leveling off; that cotton is higher than at any time since the Civil War, and that many synthetics are scarce and will be more scarce as rearmament demands mount.

THEME OF TRUCK SHOW
Seizing upon a topical theme, the Transport Vehicle Show in New York February 1 to 4 will feature preventive maintenance. Show officials believe that, with the coming shifts to military production, truckers will be more than ever interested in ways of extending usability and life of trucks and buses.

NEW STANDARD SET FOR PLASTIC WARE
A commercial standard for melamine plastic tableware has been set up by the Department of Commerce in cooperation with the Society of the Plastics Industry. The purpose is to set a standard that manufacturers, distributors and consumers will recognize. The society has designed a hallmark which manufacturers may mold into their products when the products meet the standard.

"FULLY ASSEMBLED" KIT ON MARKET
Not long ago a "kit" in the electric and other mechanical fields meant a box of parts and details of how to convert them into a radio set or an oyster shucker. Now "fully assembled kits" are appearing. The contents can be put into working order with a few screw turns.

Manufacturers found it was cheaper to "fully assemble" the items than to pay for detailed instructions, identified envelopes, and counting a myriad of small parts. Besides, whenever a buyer broke a part, he often claimed it was missing.

Most important of all, the "fully assembled" kit broadens the market among those only moderately gifted with mechanical skills.

COPIING: A device for copying, printed, written or sketched material and small enough to be carried in a briefcase has been introduced (by F. G. Ludwig Associates, Pease Rd., Woodbridge, Conn.) It produces direct-reading negatives from translucent paper or mirror-reading negatives from opaque paper, and features a Vinyllite pillow which presses the negative snugly against the contour of pages in bound volumes.

Hal Boyle's Column

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
(For HAL BOYLE)
Aboard the U. S. S. Philippine Sea off Korea—(AP)—A Naval officer looked down from the flag bridge at the activity on a flight deck crowded with planes.

"That's the most dangerous place on the ship," he said.

The officer, Lt. J. O. Sherman of Forest, Miss., is operations officer for Admiral E. C. Ewen, commander of the fast Carrier Task Force 77. A jet Panther pilot himself, the operations officer added:

"You can't train a team like that. They've learned from years of experience."

There was considerable excitement on the flight deck. Planes were being readied for a strike against the communists pushing steadily into South Korea.

First to go were the jet planes. The 600-mile-an-hour planes are fired off from deck catapults. They are maneuvered over the catapults by the deck crews who are in complete charge until the jets are in the air.

Just before the catapulting begins, plane crews hover over the pilots like doting parents getting Johnny ready for his first day of school. They adjust straps and test equipment.

Wind whistling across the deck prevented you from hearing but you knew they were asking: "Is everything all right?"

Some of these jet pilots are just kids. Their faces are yet untouched by a razor.

Once the jets were catapulted off, Corsair and Skyraider propeller-driven fighters rolled down the deck under their own power to become airborne. Their landing gear began retracting the instant they cleared the end of the ship.

With the striking force airborne, the deck crews hurried to get ready for their return.

The deck crews wear yellow, red and blue helmets and sweaters. The men in yellow command traffic. Those in red handle gasoline and explosives. Those in blue are plane crews.

Carrier landings are thrilling to watch. The first time you see jets come in you expect a crash each time one circles to land.

The thrill of watching must never pass. I saw one jet pilot standing on the signal bridge watching the "retire" of other planes. He was as rigid as a statue.

"All right, Out," he said into the wind as a jet dropped to the deck and wobbled drunkenly under the impact with the barriers.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—Not all of the thousands of American women who have gotten into uniform to serve their country are part of the armed forces. Many have chosen the steel gray robes of the American Red Cross.

They make up part of a vast army of paid and volunteer workers whose services in hospitals, military installations, clubs and local communities affect the morale and efficiency of GIs and ease the anxiety of their families.

While the majority of these workers are serving on the home front hundreds are serving with the armed forces in Europe and the Far East. Sixteen women are now in Korea.

The Red Cross is stepping up its program to provide adequate service to the increasing numbers in the armed forces. It has taken on additional field directors, hospital workers, recreation and home service workers.

Working in close cooperation with home service workers of local chapters, Red Cross field directors serving with the U. S. troops assist in solving personal and family problems. Services include consultation and guidance, emergency communication, and financial assistance.

Verification of circumstances that may enable military authorities to decide whether to grant emergency leaves, supplementary recreation for military personnel and so.

"Bill Brown is out in Korea. He gets a letter from home. It's from 'Sis.'"

"Bill," she writes, "mother's sick, awful sick. The doctor says she's got to go to the hospital. What shall I do?"

Bill worries. "Sis" is still just a kid. He can't get home. What will she do? He goes to the Red Cross field director with his letter.

The field director sends the letter to Red Cross Home Service workers in the boy's home town. They find a relative who can help. They advance a temporary loan to help pay for the operation. A complete report is sent back to Bill.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Preposterous Spending (Henderson Dispatch)
A budget of approximately $460 millions for the State of North Carolina for the biennium beginning next July 1 would be preposterous spending. And the $38 millions requested by Governor Scott in addition to that would, if authorized, only add insult to injury.

The governor justified his supplemental request as intended to balance the budget "in terms of the people's needs." But what greater need do the people have than to be spared colossal spending by the State at a time when the Federal government is proposing to tax the nation some eighty billion dollars or more to pay for the war effort?

For the governor to insist upon an over-all biennial budget of nearly half a billion dollars, now or at any time, does not give the impression that he is seriously interested in the people's needs, which run directly counter to his thinking.

North Carolina has a chief executive who is very much like the President of the United States from the standpoint of his spending complex. It would be possible to go into detail in a review of the Scott recommendations, of which there were eight. Many of them, however, should be totally ignored by the legislature. Some of them have a measure of merit. All of the things mentioned would be nice for the State, to do and for the people to have. But most of them are non-essentials in this time of crisis and emergency. They can be done without.

For instance, Scott asks for an additional ten million dollars to complete authorized permanent improvements and an additional million and a half dollars for what he called "urgently needed projects." The governor did not call for "new" taxes, but he wanted "exemptions" in the sales tax, including food and medicines, to be removed. That would be nothing else but a new tax. It certainly does not exist now.

There are no new permanent improvements that cannot be deferred at least until the county can determine better than is possible now just where it is going and what it is going to face.

The legislature spent too much two years ago or authorized it, that is, it went much too far. Now a governor who would be liberal and generous with the people's money wants to go still farther.

Not a single penny of increased taxes should be imposed by this General Assembly. It could reduce even present levies without essential services being seriously curtailed, and that is what it ought to do. It will do the people of the State a great service if it turns a deaf ear to Governor Scott's proposals for greater spending. That is what the people want much more than they desire the "needs" listed by the chief executive as justified.

tying his proposed colossal outlays.

NO JOKING MATTER (Greensboro Daily News)
As for the proposal of Forsyth's Representative Joe King that members of the North Carolina Highway Patrol be dressed in red coats with gold trappings and contrasting trousers so as to put on a flashy show for tourists and presumably those home folks whose eyes could stand the strain permanently, we hope either one of two things will happen:

(1) That Representative King's proposal is another one of the jokes which he continuously makes as comedian, ventriloquist and entertainer, or

(2) That the General Assembly, should it be seriously offered, will at least consider and treat it as a joke.

The highway patrol is created and paid to get a safety job done and not to take to the highways to strut, put on a parade or outdo the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police in glamorous or showmanship. There has throughout the years been no tendency whatever of the state's advertising division to list the patrol among our chief and most colorful attractions.

Redistricting Of North Carolina Is Like A Ghost At Legislative Feast

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 15—There hasn't been very much said out loud about the subject, but the prospect of re-arranging state senatorial districts—and perhaps congressional districts—is present as a sort of ghost at many off-side conferences among members of the general assembly.

Cognizance was taken of the possibility that the issue might become acute when the house rules committee provided a full-time clerk for the committee on senatorial districts. Further recognition of needed change in present status was implied in the bill by Rep. H. M. Moore of Clay county fixing by statute a rotation agreement for the state senator in the 33rd district among the several counties now comprising that unit.

Fast legislatures have not always followed the constitution on this matter. The general assembly of 1931 ignored the mandatory provision for redistricting after the census of 1930. Assemblies through the decade concurred in that bypassing of a constitutional mandate. In 1941 there was some change in districts, but these failed to cure obvious inequities. And the legislatures for several sessions past have ignored the permissive provision for establishing senatorial districts separate from judicial districts.

Proposed congressional legislation respecting congressional districting may force action of all state legislatures, and if this happens there is considerable sentiment for finishing the districting job by bringing senatorial and judicial districts up to date.

The job of equitable distribution of representatives in national and state legislative bodies is not as simple as it looks on the surface on face of census figures. Area and distances, involving facilities for travel and communication, are almost as important as number of people counted by the census taker.

The first congressional district in North Carolina, represented by Congressman Herbert Bonner, has a 1950 population of 239,306 in fourteen counties sprawling over the northeastern corner of the state. The sixth district, represented by Congressman Carl Durham, has 396,218 people in four counties concentrated on the edge of the piedmont section. Congressman Durham can visit every county in his district by traveling approximately fifty miles. Herbert Bonner cannot touch the corners of all counties in his district in less than three hundred miles. Mail and telephone communication facilities in the sixth district are as good as anywhere in the south, whereas similar facilities in the first district are generally inadequate. Something of the same problem applies to state senatorial districts. On population basis both Guilford and Mecklenburg are entitled to two senators. Each has more than 190,000 people represented by one senator. Meantime, the first senatorial district composed of eight counties—Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Gates, Hertford, Pasquotank and Perquimans—has 115,631 people represented by two senators. That is obviously and grossly inequitable on population basis. On the other hand it is much easier for the Guilford or Mecklenburg senator to keep in touch with his constituents than it is for senators in the first and second districts.

Combination of all these and other factors make the task of really equitable distribution of state senators and national representatives a complex problem. Further consideration of the whole question of representation in the legislature must take into account members of the house of representatives as well as the senate.

Lenoir-Rhyne Defeats East Carolina Here, 62 To 51

Second Half Comeback Brings Bears Victory

Pirates Suffer Big Let Down In Second Stanza After Blanking Bears, 15-0, After Five Minutes Of Play

By BILL LLOYD
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's quint held Lenoir-Rhyne scoreless for the first five minutes in Saturday night's North State contest here, moving out front, 15-0, and sailed to a ten-point, 34-24, lead at halftime, only to suffer a great let-down in the final stanza, giving the Bears a decisive 62-51 victory.

Set-short artist Billy Wells, standing only 5'9" at his guard position, personally led the Hickory lads in their steady, aggressive second half, hitting for a total of 21 points.

The Pirates started off like a wild fire in the opening minutes of the disappointing contest, as Sonny Russell, Bobby Hodges, and Toddy Fennell contributed to the 15-0 lead. Tony Sellari racked up the Bears' first score of the night on a lay-up after 5:02 had elapsed in the lopsided first half.

Immediately after intermission, Sellari quickly closed the half-time gap with three straight field goals on two lay-ups and one push, bringing the score to read 36-33 after 2:45 had been played in the second stanza.

The Bears went out front for the first time of the night on Bill Newsum's tip, 44-42, after Willard Neighbors had knotted their count 42-42 with a one-handed push shot. Charlie Huffman, who led the Bears' scoring for the night with 14 points, decided the contest, 44-44, at the 9:16 point.

From here on in, it was all Wells and Company as the little, blond-headed pot-shot artist surged the Bruins out front, 48-45, on a long bucket from the outside.

Reserve Forward Lou Collie pulled the Pirates back into the ball game temporarily, 50-48, at the 13:10 mark, but again Wells went on a hitting rampage, and the Bears were never headed.

A close, pressing defense set up by Coach Jim Hamilton's five after the halftime stalemate the Pirates to only six field goals during the second twenty minutes.

The loss was East Carolina's second in five starts this season in North State play.

In the preliminary scrap, Camp Lejeune High School defeated the East Carolina Frosh, 45 to 31.

Four Major Teams Remain Unbeaten, Bradley Stumbles

By RALPH RODEN

New York, Jan. 15 — (AP) — Like the bison, major college basketball teams boasting perfect records are disappearing from the scene.

Just a week ago 12 major teams paraded as proud as peacocks with unblemished marks. Today only four are left.

The four who survived the tortuous weeks are Oklahoma A&M (15-0), Long Island University (11-0), Columbia (10-0) and St. Bonaventure (9-0).

Top team to bite the dust was Bradley. The lads from Peoria, Ill., No. 1 quintet in the Associated Press poll last week, stumbled at the hands of St. John's (Brooklyn), 68-59. The defeat snapped a 15-game Bradley winning streak.

The ambush of the Braves shoves Oklahoma A&M, Long Island and Kentucky (16-1) up to the front in the battle for No. 1 honors along with Bradley.

However, the four remaining teams with spotless records are heading into stormy seas in their bid to keep their streaks intact.

Coach Hank Iba's Aggies take on a tough St. Louis University Billiken crew Wednesday night. The fifth ranked Billikens, who handed Kentucky its lone defeat, have won 12 out of 15 including a 58-52 victory over Detroit Saturday. The Aggies, second in the poll, squeaked by Tulsa, 40-38, and Drake, 32-70, during the week.

Long Island, fourth in the standings, clashes with once beaten Duquesne in Madison Square Garden Tuesday. The Dukes stubbed their toe last Monday, bowing to Cincinnati, 86-74.

Eighth ranked Columbia, with a carry-over winning streak of 19 games, tangles with Penn in an Ivy League game Wednesday and St. Bonaventure rubs against in and out Niagara the same evening.

LIU projected itself into the limelight with a 74-62 victory over St. Louis Tuesday in the Garden. Columbia kept its streak alive with a 90-48 romp over Yale Saturday. St. Bonaventure remained hale and hearty with a 71-72 victory over Canastota Thursday.

Teams that toppled out of the ranks of the elite in addition to Bradley and Duquesne were, Wyoming, Murry State, Hamline, Princeton, Washington & Jefferson and Washington. Wyoming, tenth ranked, bowed to Brigham Young, 61-57. Murry State dropped two, 60-59, to eastern Kentucky and 65-66 to western Kentucky. Hamline lost to Phillips 66, 64-61. Princeton dropped a squeaker to Columbia, 58-52. Washington & Jefferson lost a 73-65 decision to Waynesburg and Washington was upended by Oregon State, 46-41.

North Carolina State, in seventh place, lost its second game in 17 starts Saturday when upset by Villanova, 66-64. The Wolfpack has engagements with Wake Forest and LaSalle this week.

Buccaneers Play Indians Tonight; High Point Leads

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

High Point's Panthers, plugged in pre-season estimates as the class of the North State Conference, have finally unlimbered their big guns within the loop and today stand four-square at the top of the pack.

In just a couple of short weeks the Panthers, who did most of their early season cavorting outside the conference, have swept to five straight loop victories against no defeats.

The Panther's waited until the last minute of the game to edge previously undefeated East Carolina, 59-58, last Tuesday. They lost two stars in that game but went on to defeat Western Carolina 101-69, and 90-81 later in the week.

East Carolina rebounded with a 71-55 victory over Appalachian, but then dropped a 62-51 decision to Lenoir-Rhyne.

Other games last week saw Catawba drop Lenoir-Rhyne 75-60 and Elon 73-60, and Appalachian paste Atlantic Christian, 85-59.

East Carolina takes on Catawba at Salisbury in the only game tonight.

The rest of the week's schedule: Tuesday—Appalachian at Western Carolina; Wednesday—High Point at Elon, Presbyterian at Catawba; Thursday—Presbyterian at Lenoir-Rhyne, Atlantic Christian at East Carolina; Friday—East Carolina at Elon; Saturday—High Point at Lenoir-Rhyne, Western Carolina at Piedmont, Appalachian at Catawba.

Nelson Bags Crosby Golf Tournament

Pebble Beach, Calif., Jan. 15 — (AP) — Byron Nelson, making one of his infrequent sorties from the cattle ranch to which he retired in 1946, bagged the deluxe Bing Crosby golf tournament yesterday with a 54-hole total of 209.

More than 15,000 spectators lined the 181 fairway of picturesque Pebble Beach, while the one-time holder of the U.S. Open and PGA crowns, as well as many minor titles, dropped the final putt that gave him a $2,000 cut of the $10,000 purse.

Crooner Crosby's annual golf party, attracting some of the best shot-makers of the country, is played on three separate courses in as many days. Nelson shaded par at Cypress Point, Monterey Peninsula and Pebble Beach in turn. Each is a par 72 test.

Most of the topnotchers were in the field. But Sam Snead was out with a bad hand and Ben Hogan was resting for a while.

Cary Middlecoff of Memphis took second money of $1,250 with a 212. Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich.; George Fazio, Washington, D.C., and Julius Boros, Midpines, N.C., tied at 213. Boros and the other 213-shooters each took down $733.33 of the prize money.

Winter drills for East Carolina's football squad begins here today.

Coach Bill Dole expects 40 to 45 players to turn out for the initial winter workouts, including 19 lettermen from last season's squad.

Eighteen hopefuls, who were not on the squad last year, have already been working out for a week, conditioning for today's drills.

Missing from workouts this winter will be heralded Roger Thrift, All-State quarterback for the Pirates, All-Conference Frank Maenle at end, and veterans Buck Wilson, center, Leon Ellis, guard, Johnny Smith, fullback, Bill Darby, halfback, and Billy Smith, halfback. These stalwarts from last year's team which won seven and lost three will be lost in June by graduation.

Expected to lead today's drills are sophomores Sandy Siler and Jack Britt, both backfield men. Siler will take over the quarterback duties vacated by Thrift, while Britt was a consistent ground-gainer at his halfback position last season.

Greenville's bowlers divided a twin bill bowling series with Washington yesterday afternoon here, with the women kieglers emerging victorious, 2 to 1, and the men losing by the identical score.

High-scoring totals all went to the Washington alleyman, however, as B. Sheppard rolled the highest individual scores for the women with 179 pins in a single game, and a 416 in the three-game series.

For the men, O. Sheppard was tops for Washington, bowling a 199 in single game scores, and a terrific 524 in the three-game series.

Navy's Fullback May Enroll Here

Navy's estranged fullback, Dave Bannerman, who resigned from the Naval Academy after marriage to Manette Chaney, daughter of an Academy professor on December 13, is reported trying to get in school at East Carolina for the spring quarter.

Bannerman, a resident of Carolina Beach, N.C., was a star in Navy's major upset of Army, 14-2, this past fall.

The couple is presently residing with Bannerman's mother, Mrs. J. H. Bannerman, at Carolina Beach.

Dr. J. K. Long, registrar at East Carolina, reported that Bannerman has already contacted him in connection with transferring his credits to East Carolina.

Huffman's Hook Goes In Vain In Saturday Night's Tilt

East Carolina's Charlie Huffman (17) tries desperately on a hook shot in Saturday night's game with Lenoir-Rhyne. The Bears' star guard, Willard Neighbors (22) blocks the shot, while Ed Pawlak, Bear center, and Tony Sellari (30) follows up the play. Lenoir-Rhyne came from behind in the second half to defeat the Pirates, 62-51. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Hodges And Kantorski Put On Scramble For Ball

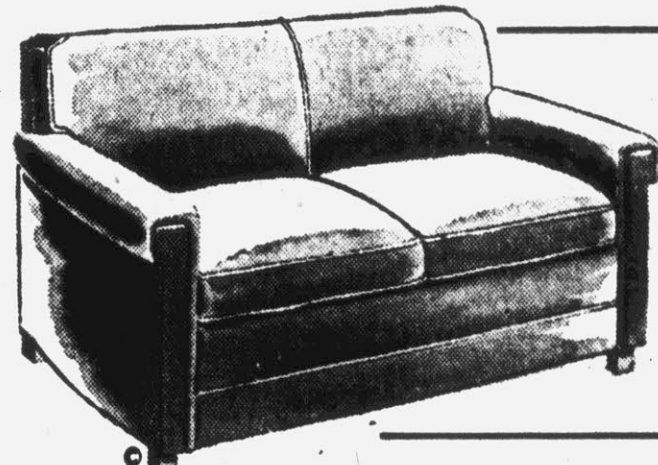

An expression of pain registers on Lenoir-Rhyne's Leo Kantorski in Saturday night's tilt here with East Carolina, as he scrambles with the Pirates' Bobby Hodges (19). Willard Neighbors (22) follows the play with East Carolina's Sonny Russell in the background. The Bears pulled one of the most outstanding comebacks of the North State Saturday night, defeating East Carolina, 62-51. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 12
She pulled her mind away from Peter O'Malley and her own possible inconsistencies to watch the refugees, who were now coming aboard. They were making their way slowly up the ship's ladder and entering the section set aside for tourists. Most of them were black, and Molly was vaguely reminded of a Moslem funeral procession she had once seen in the outskirts of Istanbul. Only these people weren't waiting and wringing their hands; they just looked bewildered and frightened.

The children especially looked under-nourished, even sick. Some of them, except for their smallness of stature, did not look like children at all. Their faces were pinched and drawn, and their eyes much too large. It was as though old faces had been superimposed on bodies too stunted to support them.

When the second boat drew up alongside the ship, Molly was surprised to see a gaunt man pick up a child who appeared to be fully twelve years old, if not older. But as the man made his way carefully up the steep ladder with his burden, the reason was all too apparent in the pitiful stumps which were the child's legs.

Molly felt the tears of pity stinging her eyelids, and momentarily she regretted her decision to give up nursing. She might have done something to help these people. But then, if she hadn't given up nursing, she wouldn't have been here at all. She would still have been in Mill-lidgeville catering to people who regarded their most common-places ailments as major tragedies.

There was one bright spot in the funeral procession. A slim, dark-eyed girl wearing a neat blue dress and with a gaily colored babushka tied around her head stood near the foot of the ladder awaiting her turn. She was carrying what looked like a very young baby nestled in her arms. Both she and the boy who stood beside her were staring down at it in the manner of proud parents the world over. The boy - for he was just a boy - carried a large canvas bag across one arm, but the other arm was just an empty sleeve.

Suddenly the girl looked up at the great white ship and her eyes smiled and waved a hand. The girl hesitated, half smiling then looked away quickly as if afraid. "Oh, the poor things," Molly murmured. "They need help. They need friends. And they're afraid even to smile."

Instinctively her thoughts rushed to Peter O'Malley, who at this very moment was disporting himself at the swimming pool - having fun, and building fences around a profitable career. So these were the people he resented, complaining that they would probably be sick all the time. Why, most of them were already sick in one way or another. It was nothing short of criminal, Molly decided, that they should be at the mercy of a flighty young doctor who had even gone so far as to acknowledge that his first consideration was for himself.

In the exciting days that followed, Molly had little time, and certainly no encouragement, to think of the strange group of people who had come aboard at Pireaus. Her ankle had given her no further trouble and she was enjoying a thrilling kind of popularity that kept her constantly on the move. For the first time in her life she had let loose for playing and companions who seemed bent upon seeing that she enjoyed every minute of the voyage.

But she did think of the people down below, although apparently it was not the correct thing to do. Most of the passengers, having made the proper contributions to all the proper causes before leaving home, were not inclined to think of the human element. Others wanted no unpleasant reminders that there had once been a war and that all was not yet right with the world.

A few were frank to say that they had not expected the Continental, supposedly a luxury cruise ship, to take on refugees; that he - on a yew what diseases they might bring aboard. Captain Rosario's assurances that nothing of the sort could possibly happen, in view of quarantine regulations, was given little credence.

Even when she was being her gayest, Molly's thoughts would fly back to Phaleron Bay, the overcrowded flat-bottom boats, the shabby dressed women; the undernourished boy with no legs, one of wartime's innocent victims. The frightened girl with the tiny baby and the boy-husband who had only one arm.

These people were human beings just as she was she reflected. But they were hidden away in the steerage while she was tearing around having fun. They were going to America, just as she was, but America was strange to them. Where would they go when they got there and what would they do? True, there were organizations, sponsors; otherwise they wouldn't be going. But so many of them looked beyond relief - "S-tilitation, even beyond hope. All of them looked uncertainly afraid. She wondered how the maimed boy was faring and if Doctor O'Malley had bothered to see that he had a place to sit of the sunny side of the ship, out of the wind. Most of all, she wondered about the boy and the girl with the small baby. They'd looked so young, so proud - and so frightened.

Molly made several inquiries of Captain Rosario, only to get a brush-off. A beautifully polite one, but a brush-off nevertheless. "Oh, the D.P.'s are doing fine," he would say invariably. "Every thing's under control, my dear." Then he would change the subject abruptly, as though she had made some unfortunate social error and it was his duty to cover for her. He also contrived to leave the impression that well-bred saloon passengers did not go slumming below stairs.

Investigation Continues In ABC Store Robbery

Pitt County ABC law enforcement officers, sheriff's officers and Grimesland police are continuing today their search for the thief or thieves who Friday night took 15 cases of whiskey from the Grimesland ABC store.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office and ABC Officer J. M. Ward said this morning local authorities thought at first there may be a connection between the Grimesland robbery and a robbery of the Saratoga ABC store Saturday night, but now they have decided the two robberies have no connection.

Wilson County authorities have taken into custody a white man and a Negro man, both residents of Saratoga, on charges of stealing 17 bottles of whiskey from the Saratoga store Saturday night. The officers recovered 12 bottles of the whiskey.

Ward said the small quantity of liquor taken from the Saratoga store have led officers to believe there was no link between that liquor robbery and the one at Grimesland the night before.

Police Chief H. D. Wright of Grimesland told a Reflector reporter this morning he believed the person or persons who entered the Grimesland store and took the liquor were watching him when he went off duty shortly after daybreak Saturday morning.

"I switched off the parking lights on the street and left to go to the house shortly after daybreak," Wright said. "Just as I was leaving the police station a car went by going very slowly, blinking its tail lights. There were two people in the front seat, but I couldn't tell whether there were any more or not. The car turned the corner and went toward the river very slowly."

Wright said he checked the doors of the ABC store the last thing before he went off duty Saturday morning, and everything was in order.

"Whoever broke in the store did it between daylight and 7 o'clock," Wright declared.

Wright said the ABC store is approximately 25 feet from the police station; not next door to it as reported earlier.

Alumni Group Holds Games Tournament On Friday Evening

The Greenville-Pitt County Chapter of the East Carolina Teachers College Alumni Association entertained at a games tournament Friday evening of last week in the North Dining Hall of the college. Twenty-seven tables of bridge and canasta players were present for the event.

The awarding of a series of prizes marked the close of games played during the evening. Mrs. W. S. Bonner was presented a cake; and Mrs. Francis Worsley, Mrs. Ford McGowan and Mrs. Alf Forbes of Winterville also received prizes as a result of a contest in which lucky numbers were drawn.

Mrs. Dot Warren and Dr. George C. Martin, Jr., were awarded high score prizes for bridge, and Mrs. Ed Moore and Dr. A. D. Frank received the second high score prizes. Winners in canasta games were Mrs. Ray King and Mr. Burke Stancill, high score, and Mrs. Bob Thompson and Mr. Bob Thompson, second high score.

Two Wrecks Are Reported In Pitt

A car operated by Fred Gray, Negro, age 34, of Route 5, Greenville, was forced from the road near Pactolus Saturday night when a car it was meeting approached it on the wrong side of the highway.

Gray told Patrolman Dick Chadwick that he made a turn off the road at Pactolus and was on the dirt road meeting the other car.

As the driver attempted to avoid striking the car he pulled to the shoulder of the road, which gave way, topping the car into a gulley below.

Damage to the car was reported at about $500 by Patrolman Chadwick.

Patrolmen are still investigating the accident, but report that the driver could not give a clear description of the other car.

An asphalt dump truck driven by Henry Worth Anderson, Greenville, turned over Saturday afternoon when it was reportedly forced from the Stokes highway by another car as it attempted to pass.

Patrolman D. E. Perry reported that the dump truck turned over after the driver claimed he was forced from the highway by a car driven by Jessie Howard, Negro.

Howard told Perry that he was attempting to pass another car at the same time the truck driven by Anderson pulled out to pass.

No one was injured in the accident, but damage to the truck was placed at about $150 by Perry.

Howard was arrested on charge of careless and reckless driving.

Moscow . . .

(Continued from page one) to be seen. In that respect Russia is captain of her own fate, for if there is a war she will have been the sponsor.

Certainly there can be no doubts in Moscow, just as there are none in the western capitals, that the dividing wall between war and peace is indeed a thin one. The consensus of western observers is that, while the dangers are great, it isn't inevitable. That is based on the knowledge that the Democracies don't want war, and the belief that the Soviet doesn't want one now.

U.S. Cost . . .

(Continued from page one) Board. And on Sept. 19 he made Alan Valentine, an educator, boss of ESA, which meant boss of both branches. On Oct. 10 Mr. Truman made Cyrus S. Ching head of the wage board under Valentine.

But for three months after congress passed the law, Mr. Truman didn't appoint a price control board. Ching's board, in the meantime, couldn't control any wages for under the law wages can't be controlled until prices are.

In those months this country scored a great victory in Korea.

Two days later, Dec. 2, Mr. Truman made Michael V. DiSalle the price boss, under Valentine. DiSalle, of course, couldn't just walk in and order price controls across the board.

He did not have a staff to carry them out. He had to build one, to get business men and economists to come to Washington to work for him. It is now mid-January and DiSalle has a staff of perhaps 25 people, far too few to do a real job of price controlling. At its peak OPA had 60,000 paid workers around the country and 25,000 volunteers.
