New China Offensive Awaited

Front Relatively Quiet; Raiding Patrols Prowl Deep Into Red Lines

Tokyo, Jan. 18—(AP)—Allied troops battled a strong force of Chinese Reds tonight in a brief but fierce local clash on the Korean western front.

Allied commanders expected a general communist offensive may come at any time.

"All hell might break loose soon," an officer said.

A U. N. raider patrol, one of several exploring the strength of enemy troops massed all along the battle front, jabbed in and out of Kumyangjang, 25 miles southeast of Seoul.

The co mander of the allied motorized patrol said he met strong resistance in Kumyangjang and called for air support when it appeared his troops were being flanked.

But after 90 minutes of tough fighting he said both his patrol units had safely withdrawn from the battered town, Associated Press correspondent Jim Becker reported.

The fight started at 4 p.m. Thursday (2 a.m. EST), Becker said, and when the U. N. units disengaged they had taken one prisoner.

The Kunyangjang battle was the heaviest action reported by allied patrols prowling the far-flung lines during the day. They penetrated as far as abandoned Wonju, 26 miles north of Chungju, a road hub in U. N. hands.

A patrol probed into the no-man's land highway center of Wonju Wednsday and then withdrew safely Thursday afternoon after spending the night in the ruined town. Eighteen prisoners were brought back from villages in the Wonju area.

Capt. Forrest Walker, of Kansas City, Kans., a husky Negro patrol officer, said Korean civilians reported communists approached the northern edge of Wonju Wednesday night but did not enter.

A.P. correspondent William C. Barnard reported another U. N. patrol surprised 50 Reds Thursday in a village 15 miles southeast of Wonju.

Barnard's sharply censored dispatch (12 of the first 15 lines were deleted) reported one prisoner taken. The prisoner said he was from the 31st Division of the First North Korean Army Corps. This was the first identified appearance of that division on the central front.

Approximately Five Hundred Citizens Turn Out For Dedicatory Ceremonies In Which Former Army Secretary Underscores Value Of Hospital To Eastern Carolina

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.

Former Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall today paid tribute to the citizens of Pitt County when he described the building of Pitt Memorial Hospital, which was dedicated this morning, as a "project that can and will send this part of our State forward."

He lauded the 500 gathered persons, representative of the county communities, on their recent achievement in completing the million-and-a-half dollar structure. He stated the hospital can "improve human happiness and welfare by caring for the sick and suffering over a wide and important segment of Eastern Carolina—by providing a ded facilities for preventive medicine,—by thus attacking the health problem on a dual front."

Royall, now a practicing attorney in New York City, was introduced by hospital trustee John G. Clark, Greenville, who was instrumental in pushing the 1947 hospital bond election through a 7 to 1 vote of the people.

Royall, formerly of Goldsboro, returned to his native section particularly for the formal dedication. He described the return as one of "heart-warming pride in Eastern Carolina." North Carolina is a progressive state, he said, and a varied state which extends from Manteo to Murphy.

"But rich fields and woods—busy plants—inspiring mountains—unequalled coastal regions—these are not the answers. These are only the props—the stage settings. The real attraction of North Carolina is its people.

"I do not know where you could find a better example of North Carolina's care for its own that you can actually see in the edifice that we are dedicating today. Here we can glory in Carolina works not words. But there is another aspect of this great hospital—the pressing need which it fills. And the existence of this need is not so complimentary to our State—just the contrary."

He stated there is much to be done in the fields of public health, education, and low average income. He illustrated the needs with the record of draft rejections in the last war and, on the education side, 41 states in the country are more literate than is North Carolina. He added that 42 states have a higher per capita income than does North Carolina.

He described the three failings as "red-ink entries in North Carolina's human ledger. They are so closely related that they are likely to move together downward or upward."

What the hospital means to the county, he said, is an "omen for human progress as well as for material progress. North Carolina will—it must—continue to move on the upward spiral."

Before he introduced Royall, Clark praised C. Stuart Carr, Jr. his partner in the pre-election work throughout the county. He stated that No man could have done more work, or expended more effort, energy or money than he has done. And I know the people appreciate it."

Prior to Royall's speech, Carr, who served as master of ceremonies, read telegrams from Governor Scott, Senator Hoey, former Senator Umstead, and Congressman Herbert Bonner expressing their regrets that they could not attend the ceremonies. He introduced to the crowd County Commissioners M. Brown Hodges, F. F. Hendrix, Marvin

U. S. To Use All Pressures To Brand China Aggressor

President Endorses Acheson Rejection Of Chinese Reply To UN Offer; Other Nations Slow To Act On Proceeding

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—President Truman said today the United States will bring every pressure it can to brand the Chinese communists as aggressors in Korea.

At a news conference, Mr. Truman said he endorses completely a statement yesterday by Secretary of State Acheson turning down as "unacceptable" the Chinese communist reply to a United Nations cease fire proposal.

Acheson denounced the Peiping regime for its "contemptuous disregard of a world wide demand for world peace."

Mr. Truman spoke at a time when Red China's aggression, now that peace moves have failed, threatened to split the free world.

On orders from Secretary of State Dean Acheson, the American U. N. delegation prepared to introduce a resolution which would condemn communist China as an aggressor and ask the U. N. collective measures committee to decide what to do next. The U. S. has previously said it thinks that 14-nation group should recommend a complete economic and diplomatic break with the Peiping regime.

The U. S. began lining up support for its resolution yesterday, but response in many quarters appeared to be less than enthusiastic.

An American spokesman said this country hoped for wide cosponsorship of the resolution, including some Asian countries, but indicated the necessary preliminaries might delay introduction until tomorrow.

An independent survey of Asian opinion showed only the Philippines, Thailand (Siam) and Turkey in substantial agreement with the U. S. position.

The Scandinavian countries—Norway, Sweden and Denmark — were understood to be urging a slow and cautious approach to the problem. This also is the view of some other countries who are afraid the U. S. may commit the greater part of its armed force to the Far East and strip Europe of defenses.

Opening Set For College Theater

Dedication Ceremony Followed By Thornton Wilder Play, Officially Opens New Structure Friday Evening

By MARY H. GREENE

East Carolina Teachers College will officially open its new College Theatre tomorrow evening. A dedication ceremony at 8:00 o'clock followed by a performance of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize play "Our Town" by the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatic club, will make up the program for the evening. President John D. Messick will be master of ceremonies and Professor Samuel Selden of the University of North Carolina, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will be principal speaker.

The attractive Theatre, said to be one of the most carefully planned and best equipped in the state, has been under construction since late summer in 1949. It is located in an annex to the Training School on the East Campus and is designed for use by college groups and by children attending the campus school.

Outside, the Theatre is modernistic in design. Three wide flights of steps lead to the main entrance. The facade of the building is of white stone, and the major part of the structure of steel and red brick, with white concrete trim.

A foyer finished in soft tones of gray contains a ticket booth facing the entrance to the main auditorium. The walls of the Theatre proper are finished in rosy gray and are broken on each side by five large windows shaded with white Venetian blinds and curtained in mauve velour. A sloping floor of gray asphalt tile leads to the state. Seats are upholstered in wine color and provide accommodations for an audience of 760 people.

The stage is well designed an includes a number of unusual details of construction. A broad flight of five steps curves in front of the proscenium arch and leads from the main auditorium to the stage. These steps, says Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of dramatic arts at East Carolina, will make possible unusually plastic performances and will aid in establishing a close relationship between audience and performers both in dramatic productions and other programs. The graceful curve of the light is also a decorative asset to the Theatre.

A handsome curtain separating the auditorium from the stage matches the mauve draperies at the windows. Two cycloramas are available as background for the stage,—one of gray rep and one of black velour. In addition, a concert curtain of gold brocade may be used when only part of the stage is needed, as for music programs by soloists or small groups.

Air Force Plans Call Up Reserves

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—The Air Force announced today it is immediately calling up "a major portion" of the Air Reserve and National Guard and large numbers of volunteer air reservists.

The call involves about 150,000 men and is designed to increase Air Force manpower to 971,000 as soon as possible.

The Air Force said it will call at least 12 additional National Guard wings, 21 Air Reserve training wings, most of the ground supporting units and a volunteer reserve personnel.

The Air Force has already called up 10 National Guard wings, a Guard Tactical Control Group, 4 reserve wings, and 50,000 individual officers and enlisted reservists.

Other smaller reserve and Guard supporting units have also been ordered into active duty.

The current call includes all of the 21 remaining Air Reserve Training Center Wings.

Six of these are carrier wings which will be assigned to duty with the Tactical Air Command between April 1 and May 15. The remaining 11 carrier wings and four light bombardment wings will report for duty between March 1 and May 1.

Famous Berlin Garden Re-Named

Berlin, Jan. 18 —(AP)— Berlin's famed old Lustgarten will be renamed "Marx-Engels Square" in honor of the German creators of Communism, East Berlin authorities disclosed today.

The Communists have dynamited the castle and removed it entirely to make way for the new Moscow-type "Red Square."

President Pledges Invoking Controls On Wages, Prices

Truman Says Government Will Invoke Controls Just As Rapidly As It Can But Unable To Name Date For Freeze

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—President Truman said today the government will bring prices and wages under control just as rapidly as it can.

He told his news conference that he could not attempt to pin down the date of a price-wage freeze or other action, but said ceilings will be imposed as soon as practicable.

He said he had not discussed with Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson a reported proposal to bring Eric Johnston, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, into the Office of Defense Mobilization as chief economic advisor.

But Mr. Truman said he was sure Wilson would discuss with him such a proposal if Wilson has it in mind.

The New York Times said today that the Motion Picture Association of America, which Johnston now heads, had agreed to grant him leave for the government post.

Wilson last night called for "speed and forthrightness' in the application of price and wage controls. Other high officials said privately the ODM director favors a general freeze within a few days.

In the absence of any official word on exact timing, the best guess seemed to be that a general price freeze, probably rolling back present high levels somewhat, would come perhaps within a week—almost certainly not much longer.

This was just one development in a marked speed-up in defense mobilization.

President Truman laid down late yesterday a national manpower policy calling for voluntary measures now. But he cautioned that sweeping controls will be sought if necessary. The idea is to see that defense industries and other essential undertakings get the men they need.

Then, too, the Defense Department sent Congress a drastic new military manpower program. It also outlined an $87,000,000,000 program to buy the arms needed now and expand production facilities.

On the question of price-wage controls, Defense Mobbilization Director Charles E. Wilson laid it on the line in a Philadelphia speech last night:

"Voluntary methods will not work. . . . The power of the law must be invoked. . . . Whatever the causes for delay up to now, we must proceed with courage, speed and forthrightness to adopt the controls which will insure stability and fairness in our civilian economy."

Big Quantity Of Meat In Lockers

Washigton, Jan. 18—(AP)—Government food officials said today upwards of 1,000,000,000 pounds of meat may be stashed away in family freeze units and lockers in anticipation of rationing.

That quantity is equal to about a two weeks' supply for the nation.

The heavy market demand for meat indicates there has been considerable buying in recent weeks above day-to-day table needs, Agriculture Department officials said.

The department recently reported a sharp increase in the number of home freezer units in American homes in the past few years. Estimates on the number of units in use vary from 2,250,000 to more than 3,000,000.

The department said if consumers use somewhat more than half their deep-freezer and locker space for meat, they would have room for at least 1,000,000,000 pounds on hand now.

Talk of meat rationing has been heard in connection with government plans to control prices.

John L. Lewis And Coal Industry Near New Terms

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—John L. Lewis and a sizeable part of the soft coal industry were reported near an agreement today on a $1.60-a-day pay boost for miners.

Some operators said a decision was possible "within hours" but they added that the apparent accord might blow up just as quickly.

It was generally felt that bargaining was being pushed by both sides in order to get pay raises and a possible 50-cent a ton price increase on coal in effect before the government applies wage and price controls.

The contract between the industry and Lewis' United Mine Workers may be opened after April 1, but both sides agreed they couldn't wait for that if they wanted to beat the prospective freeze on prices and wages.

Industry spokesmen said they hoped to avoid labor troubles this year, and getting together on something now would help to smooth relations between Lewis and the mine owners in the uncertain months ahead.

Lewis was to meet Harry M. Moses, chief negotiator for about one third of the industry—including the steel company mines, to learn whether Moses had obtained the approval of other top coal men of the north and midwest to the pay proposal.

The mine workers' chief called his 200-man policy committee into session here to be ready to act on any contract developments.

The Southern Coal Producers Association assembled its 30-man executive board in special session to await a report from Association President Joseph E. Moody, who has been meeting privately with Lewis.

Red China's Reply To United Nations Peace Efforts Shows They Are Going Ahead With Undiminished Zeal To Humble The Peace Organization, Force Entry

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

An ambitious Red China, its confidence bolstered by Moscow's hand upon its shoulder, has (as forecast by this column) rejected the U. N. proposal for a cease fire in Korea and has countered with demands of a conqueror.

As was to be expected, Secretary of State Acheson announced that the counter proposal "is unacceptable to the United States government and, I have no doubt, will be to the United Nations generally."

The Peiping proposal in effect calls for the recognition of Red China to the exclusion of Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist regime which is now cooped up on the island of Formosa. This means that the communists would be given China's seat in the U. N.

Nationalist China is polished off politically by the provisions for a seven-nation conference which would be held on Chinese communist territory. Chiang's regime would be excluded, the conferees besides Red China being the Soviet Union, America, France, Britain, India and Egypt.

The coup de grace for the Nationalist China is contained in the stipulation that the conference must be preceded not only by the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea, but by the withdrawal of American naval forces from the vicinity of Formosa. This Formosan qualification obviously is calculated to achieve a double object:

1. It would render Chiang impotent to move his forces from the island for an attack against the Reds on the mainland.

2. By stripping the Nationalists of American protection it would lay them open to attack by the Russian backed Chinese communists.

All of this was, of course, to be expected when the cease-fire proposals were submitted to Peiping. As I pointed out several days ago, there has been nothing to en-

Problem Of Manpower

How To Build Up Our Armed Forces, Yet Provide Sufficient Labor To Keep U. S. Production Lines Moving Is Next Headache; President Warns Of Controls

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—President Truman has opened up one of the touchiest problems in the whole defense program, if the program continues in high gear very long. That's the problem of manpower.

Mr. Truman dug into it in a memorandum—called "National Manpower Mobilization Policy"—which he sent yesterday to the heads of government departments and agencies.

While it was addressed to them only it was, nevertheless, the strongest kind of nudge to workers, union leaders and employers to begin thinking of their joint, future problems, which will be many.

What the President said, briefly, was this: manpower problems should be solved on a voluntary basis; if they're not, the government will step in with controls to solve them by compulsion.

Through compulsion the government could tell an employer what to do about hiring or firing or the number of employes he could have and the government could freeze workers in their jobs or shift them around.

Such power would certainly require approval of congress through passage of a special law which might have any one of a number of names, like "Nation Service" or "Labor Draft."

Both labor and business people dislike such an idea heartily. And at this point in the program, this early stage, compulsive laws or government controls seem a long way off.

Manpower headaches were an endless problem in World War II. But it wasn't until almost the very end—in January, 1945—that President Roosevelt asked congress to pass a "National Service" law.

It almost did but the war ended before the House and Senate, which quickly passed separate and different bills, could agree on a compromise.

The manpower problem can be

Past Matrons And Patrons Honored At Meeting Of OES

Greenville Chapter 149 O.E.S. held a regular meeting on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Emogene Duffin, Worthy Matron, presiding.

Following the impressive ritualistic opening, the past matrons and past patrons were presented and welcomed by the worthy matron as the honor guests of the evening. They were then escorted to seats.

A report was given on the school of instruction, held at the home of Mrs. Duffin, W.M., on Thursday evening, Jan. 11th. Quite a number attended and many expressed their enjoyment and remarked of the educational value of the meeting. Another school of instruction will be held at the Masonic Temple on Jan. 23rd at 7:30 p.m. All members are invited to attend.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Hilda Laughinghouse for the bed that she gave the Masonic and Eastern Star Home on behalf of Greenville Chapter. A letter was read from Superintendent Bennett of the home, saying the bed had arrived and thanking the chapter for it.

Happy birthday was sung to Mrs. Mildred Kennedy and Mrs. Thelma Maxwell.

Following the business meeting the worthy matron turned the program over to Mrs. Marguerite Howard. Mrs. Howard turned back the pages of history to April 20, 1922, the time of the institution of the Greenville Chapter. With Mrs. Blanche Smith, organist, playing soft music at the piano, Mrs. Howard gave the highlights of each year, as Thelma Maxwell, conductress, escorted each past matron and patron present to the east. In a very original and interesting way the past matrons were presented as nurses of the new born baby (Greenville Chapter) and the patrons as the doctors. The chapter was carried through the teething, adolescence, high school, war age, silver anniversary etc. by the narrator. Those present were: Mrs. Carrie Munford, 2nd Worthy Matron, Mrs. Susie Ragsdale, 4th, and Arch R. House, who served with Mrs. Ragsdale in the east. Mrs. Mollie Brown, Mrs. Vivienne Hines, Mrs. Louise Wells, Mrs. Mellie House, Mrs. Nell Moore, Mrs. Lucille Cox, Mrs. Daisy Whitehurst, Mrs. Beulah Brown and Miss Alya Ray Taylor. Mrs. Blanche Smith played "Memories," "Old Fashioned Garden," Brahm's lullaby, "At the Stage Door Canteen" and "Evening Prayer" during the program. Attractively wrapped gifts were presented each past matron and patron from Mrs. Duffin, present worthy matron. Each past matron and patron expressed her appreciation for the gift given them. Many gave interesting facts about their year in the east.

Following the meeting everyone was invited to the dining room where delicious refreshments were served from a beautifully arranged table.

Accepts Position As Choir Director

Mrs. J. Thurman Madry of Scotland Neck, who has been living in Greenville and teaching music in Grimesland Public Schools since September, has accepted the position of choir director in the First Presbyterian Church here and began her duties Sunday, following the sudden entry into military service of the church's former director of music.

In addition to her musical services, the Scotland Neck lyric soprano is taking at the local college night courses leading toward a master's degree.

Mrs. Madry has had wide experience in the musical world, having sung in practically every state of the Union and in many foreign countries. After receiving her degree in music at Meredith College, she took post graduate work with the internationally-famous Westminster Choir and toured Europe with that group, singing before royalty on the British Isles and in most of the continental countries. She has performed for the president and cabinet members in the White House at Washington.

Mrs. Madry formerly served as director of music at the First Baptist Church in Rocky Mount and in Scotland Neck. She assists with the operation of Madry Manor at Virginia Beach during summer months.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
January 18, 1911

The Reflector believes that it would be good policy for any town that is trying to secure or wants the location of manufacturing enterprise to exempt such plants from municipal taxes for a certain period of years, at least until they are operated long enough to be on a paying basis. Factories are a great help to a town, and to relieve them from such taxation would not only hold out an inducement to them to come but also would pay the town in the long run. We have known of instances where factories would have located in Greenville but were turned away after the prospectors looked into the matter of municipal taxation.

Notice to Contributors To Hospital Library

Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick would like for all persons who donated books to the Pitt General hospital library to come and get them if they wish. If not the books will be sent to the Sheppard Memorial library to be used as it sees fit.

There is no available space provided at this time for a library in the new hospital. However, the hospital would like very much to have current magazines, church magazines and small books, "The Upper Room," or other daily devotionals.

Mrs. J. K. Proctor Discusses Scout Work At Jr. Club

At the regular program meeting of the Junior Woman's Club which was held at the Club House on Wednesday night, Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Commissioner of Girl Scouts for the past 3 years, spoke to members about girl scout work.

With the speaker were five girl scouts who presented demonstrations of some of the things taught and practiced in the troops. The scouts, representing a Color Guard, presented the Flag Ceremony for the group. Because Girl Scouts work for world friendship, they used the world flag in the ceremony, as well as the troop flag and the American flag. The club members joined them in giving the pledge of allegiance to the flag and in singing "America."

Mrs. Proctor explained the girl scout promise and laws and gave a brief history of the scouting movement in the United States. She stated that the work was started by Juliet Gordon, who moved back to the United States from London after the death of her husband. The first girl scout troop met in Savannah, Georgia, on March 12, 1912.

In concluding her informative and interesting talk, Mrs. Proctor said, "The organization exists to serve girls from 7 to 18. The training they receive prepares them for intelligent participation in our American way of life."

The president, Marion Perry, announced that an executive board meeting would be held on Wednesday night, January 31, at 8:00 p.m. She also urged all members to help collect stamps for wounded veterans. This collection of stamps is the national Junior Club project for the year. Miss Perry explained that stamp collecting is not only a hobby with the 61,000 hospitalized veterans but is also good therapy, both physical and mental. Stamps wanted are those above the 3c denomination and all commemorative stamps.

At the conclusion of the meeting the hostesses for the evening, Mesdames Wyatt Highsmith, Robert Ross, R. W. Chadwick and Kenneth Mercer, served refreshments to club members and the scout visitors.

European Cathedrals Topic Given At End Of Century

Mrs. B. W. Moseley was hostess to the End of the Century Book club on Tuesday afternoon at her home on Fifth street.

During a brief business meeting the president, Mrs. C. A. White, appointed Mrs. J. S. Moye and Mrs. A. D. Frank to serve on the Book Club Day committee. The meeting was soon turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. J. H. Thomas, who presented Mrs. Frank Wooten as guest speaker. Mrs. Wooten delighted the club with an informal talk of her recent European trip, dwelling principally upon the cathedrals of Europe. She showed in a graphic manner the important part the cathedrals played in every city of the old world and described in detail the beautiful architecture and the deep significance of religion in the life of the European peoples. Interspersing her descriptions with the historical background behind each one, Mrs Wooten gave a realistic and deeply interesting survey of many churches in England, Germany and Italy. She gave in detail the history and architecture of the cathedrals of Canterbury, Cologne, Milan, Florence and Venice, concluding her talk with a description of Rome in this Holy year and an audience with Pope Pius.

After this delightful program the hostess invited her guests into the dining room where from a beautifully appointed table delicious refreshments were served.

"I WANT TO TELL THIS TO WOMEN IN YOUR 40's"

I find Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound wonderful to relieve distress of 'change of life'"

"Any woman between the ages of 38 and 52 should be interested in my experience. I was going through functional change of life and found myself terribly embarrassed from hot flushes, and I felt so nervous, easily upset because of this.

"What really shocked me was when I overheard my husband explaining my shortcomings behind my back. He said, 'Don't mind Louise—she's going through change of life.' That made up my mind. I had heard how effective Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was for relieving such symptoms, and I decided then and there to try it. Thank heavens I did.

"I find Pinkham's Compound simply marvelous to relieve embarrassing symptoms due to this cause. In fact I now take Lydia Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against hot flushes, tense emotions, flighty, nervous, tired feelings—due to this cause. I wish anyone when troubled this way would try this great medicine." P. S. Pinkham's Compound tastes swell in a little fruit juice or plain water. A wonderfully effective medicine made especially for women.

Land Valued So Highly It's Sold By The Basket

Khatmandu, Nepal—(AP)—The people of this tiny kingdom value their land so highly that it is sold by the basket.

The Khatmandu city market is possibly the only one in the world where baskets of earth form a staple commodity. Farmers buy them to spread on land from which they take from three to four crops annually.

A farmer returning home from selling his produce at the central market here never returns empty handed. Always his baskets are filled with earth, either brought from the market or scooped from the muddy bed of a river on his route to be spread on the land which gives him a living.

Easier Parking Zones Arranged

Monterey Park, Calif.—(AP)—After a six-weeks trial this city has installed an unusual "easy parking" system.

Under the plan two 20-foot parallel parking stalls are provided between each 11-foot 9-inch "no parking" zone. The smaller areas, painted red, enable motorists to swing into a space without having to halt and back in, thus blocking the flow of traffic.

Vacuum Cleaner Revives Organ

Pasadena, Calif.—(AP)—August Schroef liked to play his pipe organ for relaxation, but sometimes in the evening his feet hurt and he didn't like to be bothered pumping the bellows with the treadle.

Why not hook up the vacuum cleaner to do his work for him, he thought. He tried it; the air went in but no music came out. He tried again, reversing the cleaner so the air was sucked out. The organ played beautifully.

As the cleaner is a little noisy, Schroer's next project is to locate it in the basement and connect it up with a long pipe.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE FINAL EFFORT

Recently a freshman at an eastern university was summoned by his faculty adviser. "You are reported failing in French. Why?" the professor demanded. "Aren't you doing the world?"

The student looked sheepish. "Oh, the work isn't too hard," he replied, "and I always do the assignments. But the class comes at eight o'clock in the morning, and I'm usually so sleepy that I forget to pass in my paper."

Let us draw a merciful curtain over the remainder of this scene. But how many people fail in life for similar reasons—fail because they lacked the push to carry the job all the way through, even though they had done most of the work already.

There is an old saying that whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Many an employee has failed to win promotion after years of faithful service because he did not make that extra effort which turns ordinary work into distinguished achievement. Many a marriage which started out brightly has ended in Reno because neither partner would give his whole heart—or hers—to making a go of it.

How close are you to being the person you dream of being? Closer, perhaps, than you think. If your idea is worth dreaming of, isn't it worthwhile to make that final effort for fulfillment?

It Is Your Hospital; Help It Serve

Today Pitt county dedicated its new $1,400,000 hospital. Soon the doors of the institution will open and the people of Pitt county will have in their midst the services of the best medical facilities available in this section of the state.

But in spite of the potential benefits the hospital offers the county, these benefits will not be realized unless the people of the county make use of the facilities.

The running of the new hospital is going to be a big job which will require not only the close coordination between the hospital trustees, the administrator and medical staff; but likewise the cooperation of the people at large of the county.

The success of the hospital to a large extent will depend upon the use the people of the county make of it. If the new hospital facilities are not used to the fullest extent by Pitt Countians, the people of the county will not be receiving their full value for the more than $500,000 of county funds which have gone into the construction of the hospital. The hospital will be unable to achieve the great accomplishments for which it was designed and constructed.

Pitt County Memorial hospital is partially owned by every man, woman and child in the county. It is your hospital; help it serve.

Look At The Forest First

In our way of thinking, Larry Moore, of Wilson county, has given the members of the House Appropriations committee some mighty sound advice: "Let's look at the forest before we start looking at the trees."

As Moore pointed out, there are a lot of members of the General Assembly and likewise of the appropriations committee who commit themselves on particular items of the budget before they have the opportunity to evaluate the particular items in relationship to the rest of the state's budget for the biennium.

All sorts of pressure groups are hard at work on the appropriations committee members, and all the other members of the General Assembly for that matter, seeking assurance that particular items will receive the financial support requested during the coming two years. If definite early commitments are made on these select items, the legislators may find themselves seriously handicapped when the time comes for adding together all the appropriations and keeping the proposed spending within the means of the state's revenue.

Now don't misunderstand our position on the matter. In giving first consideration to the forest, we don't believe the legislators should neglect the individual trees when the time for the actual appropriating rolls aroudn.

Quite the contrary; The Reflector is of the opinion that a considerable amount of pruning should be done on the component parts of the appropriation forest. Some of the trees should be left standing as they are, some should be clipped rather close, and some few could well be cut down altogether in the interest of state economy.

Right now is the time for studying the forest as such. The time for action on the individual trees will come after study of the situation as a whole.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—The political, diplomatic and military strategists at Washington must decide to support Chiang Kai-shek within ninety days or permit Russian and Chinese Communists to become so strong that Japan, all of China, Formosa and Southeast Asia will fall into Red hands.

In that event, our Far Eastern defense frontier would be forced back to the Hawaiian Islands. History is on a furious march in the East.

That disastrous prospect lies ahead of us as a result of the Reds' plan to capitalize on their Korean successes, according to every advice which reaches here from our remaining sources of intelligence in the Orient.

This prospect has been the constant theme of General Douglas A. MacArthur, and it is generally accepted by experts at the Pentagon.

Moscow's program of conquest will be set in motion (1) if the United Nations forces are driven from the Korean peninsula to Japan or (2) if they are cooped up and contained on the narrow Pusan beachhead by a relatively small force of trained and equipped North Koreans. Both events are imminent.

PAWN—The defeat of the United Nations token forces in Korea would be only the first small loss of an humble pawn in Moscow's game of world chess. When that occurs, the Kremlin gamblers will move quickly to attain their real ambitions in that section of the world.

While the North Koreans hold our limited army at bay on the peninsula, Russia will move a vast force into the northern area. She is already making the Sakhalin and Kuriles Islands, which were given to her at Cairo, into strongholds just north of Japan. These leaping-off places will be held by Russian, not Chinese Communist soldiers.

Mao Tse-tung will then withdraw his veterans from Korea so that they can join the two million men now under training in North and Central China. He will be free to rout Chiang Kai-shek's guerrillas in the southern section below the Yangstze River.

Once that has been accomplished, he will employ them against Indo-China, Malaya and Burma. His troops will meanwhile complete their conquest of Tibet at the other corner of northern Asia.

WEATHER—Several factors lie behind the military men's fixing of three months as the limit for American decision and preparation. Even if they capture all of Korea, it will require time for both the Russians and Chinese to rearm and regroup.

Monsoons and wretched weather will delay large-scale action until late April or early May. And the enemy has plenty of time, among other things.

It is before this period that Washington must decide whether to free Chiang Kai-shek of the shackles in which President Truman chained him, when Mr. Truman, Secretary Acheson and General Marshall, against the judgment of the majority of the military, decided to throw our forces into Korea.

We will have those three months of grace while the Communists are mounting their even more threatening and major offensive—the overrunning of Asia, with its 800,000,000 or more people.

TROOPS—American observers in this area report that there is no earthly power which can check or break up the Stalin-Mao program except the anti-Communist Chinese forces on Formosa and their guerrilla allies in Southern China. If they are kept in check by the Truman directive, or if they become demoralized for want of outside support, the two dictators will have a clear field for conquest in China and Asia.

Chiang has 500,000 troops on Formosa, and their morale is reported to be high. Of this total, 250,000 are hardened veterans of wars against the Japanese and the Communists. The other 250,000 may be characterized as militia in training. Their commander, General Sun Li-jen, is a fellow-alumnus of General Marshall at Virginia Military Institute and a fine soldier.

There are approximately 1,000,000 anti-Communist guerrillas in South China. Some are under Chiang's indirect command, others are members of a spontaneous resistance movement.

Their numbers are increasing daily because of growing resentment against Communist brutality and failure to keep promises of land redivision to the peasants. It was these very promises which had made them fuel and fodder of revolt against Chiang, in years past.

• • • •

RICE—While nothing is certain in such a strange and revolutionary war as now looms, the military men see Chiang as our only hope. With his flanking outpost of Formosa strengthened so that it could harass the mainland with commando operations, and with the guerrillas on the mainland armed, they doubt if the Reds would dare to make an advance south into Indo-China.

It is important to remember that southeastern Asia is the rice basket of that part of the world and a source of many essential war minerals. Possession of those would enable the two dictators to grab and hold all this area permanently. There would be no Normandy invasion there.

It doesn't need a Marshall or Bradley or Eisenhower to foretell what will eventually happen if the conquerors of Korea are permitted to carry out this program, which would eventually mean the loss of Indonesia and Nehru's neutral, standoffish India.

The western world would not become a "Gibraltar of civilization" or, as Mr. Truman envisages, a rampart of democracy against communism. It would become an "Orphan Annie."

THE GOOD LIFE
(Industrial News Review)

For the first time since the American revolution, with the exception of the War Between the States, the people of our country are faced with a stark test of faith. The conflict with world communism is not to save the world for democracy, but to repel an enemy who is determined to destroy in our own land the Christian ideal of human dignity and individual liberty and the political system which upholds that ideal. Our faith and our strength is this ideal.

As a nation, we came through World War II with little discomfort. Living standards have risen to record levels. So has the public debt which is exacting its toll in depreciating money. However it is evident that devalued dollars have not yet cramped our style. Last year, according to the Commerce Department, U. S. citizens spent a staggering $178,832,000,000. The fabulous "American way" is well illustrated in a current joke which defines a pedestrian as a motorist who has found a place to park his car. The list of American "haves" could go on indefinitely. Already there are 8,000,000 television sets in our homes—homes which are equipped with tens of millions of deep freezes, refrigerators, electric stoves, radios, washing machines, ad infinitum.

In restrospect, after nearly two centuries of freedom and the boundless progress that only freedom could have achieved, it would be a wonder if we were not confused when suddenly confronted with the prospect of a fight for actual survival. But the time when we can afford confusion has nearly run out. These words of Lenin, uttered thirty years ago, ring with new significance: "As long as capitalism and socialism remain we cannot live in peace. In the end, one or the other will triumph—a funeral requiem will be sung either over the Soviet Republic or over world capitalism. . . . We have to use any ruse, dodges, tricks, cunning, unlawful methods, concealment and veiling of the truth."

This is the ruthless concept, backed by vast military force, which is confronting America and the world. To meet it we will need more than arms and men. We will have to lay our sights on primary objectives and keep them there. We must forget the adolescent notion that material security is an unqualified "right." The "rights" embodied in the American ideal are few and elemental. They include equality of opportunity, freedom of speech and religion, and the protection of private property. They are the tools with which the individual may achieve "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness."

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

One of the most talked-about topics in Greenville, or any other town, is the draft. There are several questions that are most often asked by those who discuss the draft: Is it fair to defer a million men because they go to college? How can we weed out the fakers among the 4-F's? Shall we let 17- and 18-year-olds serve? While these questions remain unanswered, they are worthy of plenty of consideration.

As dull as figures can be, in the case of the draft you have to study them in order to get a picture of the situation. Our goal is 3,500,000 men. In order to reach that goal, 1,000,000 must be drafted during the next twelve months and 1,000,000 every year thereafter.

At first it looks easy, because there are 7,500,000 American men in the age bracket 19 through 25. But finding one million begins to look harder when you knock off the men who are exempted. First, you have to eliminate 2,700,000 men who are in this age bracket and are veterans of World War II. Another million are exempted because they have dependents. About 865,000 non-veteran college students have been deferred temporarily. A million men have already been examined and found to be physically or mentally unfit for service. A good number have been eliminated because they have already volunteered for service: 300,000 in the branches, 275,000 in the National Guard, Reserves or ROTC; 175,000 have been given occupational deferments; 40,000 granted deferments as ministers or divinity students; 10,000 are conscientious objectors, and 5000 aliens. That leaves 1,130,000 men classed as 1-A. Records show that 30 to 35 per cent of these will be rejected as failing to meet armed-forces induction standards, so of that great number, 7,500,000, we have about 800,000 eligible for the draft under the present law and regulations.

Another factor for consideration is that we have 87,000 men who become of draft age every month. This adds up to 1,050,000 a year, and remember that we'll need 1,000,000 every year to maintain our standing force of 3,500,000. Of those who become of draft age every year, you can count on about half being rejected.

It seems impossible that we don't have enough men to supply the need for a peace-time force of 3.5 million, when there were about 14 million in service during WW II There are a number of reasons. In case of all-out war, millions would flock into service without a call. Draft ages would be extended, rejections would be reduced from their present rate of 58 per cent to say, 25 per cent. There are plenty of 4-F's with bad feet but good hearts, who could do the army a great job in an office. Somebody estimated that it takes 14 men behind the lines in supply and administration for every one man at the front. At least 10 of these could be men that have been rejected.

You can see from these figures that the draft law will have to be changed in some way to include more men. There are several ways to extend the law, and in my opinion it will be done very shortly.

And I thank you.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Buying for hoarding is soaring again.

It hasn't got the touches of panic and hysteria that last summer's scarce buying had, but it appears to be bigger and more dangerous. Fear buying last summer was concentrated in sugar, coffee, soap, nylons and a relatively few more things. The buying for hoarding today encompasses a broad range of goods.

Department store sales, which constitute a rough index of all retail buying, in the week ending January 6 were 39 per cent higher nationally than a year ago. They were up 75 per cent in Little Rock, 69 per cent in Indianapolis, 68 per cent in Cincinnati, 66 per cent in Tulsa and 65 per cent in Boston. Better weather than a year ago may have been a factor in some sections of the country.

National figures for the second week of the year are not yet available, but the buying rate appears to be continuing. New York department store sales, which were up 38 per cent in the week ending January 6, were estimated to be up 25 per cent in the week ending January 12. They were up only 19 per cent in the four weeks ending July 29, the peak of the summer scare buying.

These figures clearly depict buying far above current needs. It's "advance buying," which is a euphonious term for hoarding.

It involves appliances, television sets, apparel, some foods and an indeterminate number of automobiles.

This surge of buying has more reasoning, although just as selfish, motives than last summer's panic buying. Consumers have heard from their government that production of appliances and autos will be cut back for reasons of rearmament. They have heard about increase after increase in wages in practically all lines of manufacturing. They have been told that a large amount of nylon will go into parachutes and that a large amount of wool and cotton will go into uniforms. They have been told that an atomic attack may close down stores and halt traffic.

And, most important of all, they have seen with their own eyes and felt with their own pocketbooks the steady rising of prices with little more than talk to stem them.

They are less conscious of the fact that they are buying themselves straight into tougher credit controls, and spending themselves into higher taxes and, perhaps, rationing.

PLENTY OF SMOKES, DISTRIBUTORS SAY

No need to hoard cigarettes, according to the National Association of Tobacco Distributors. "There is nothing on the horizon at present that indicates a shortage of cigarettes," it states.

RESERVE BOARD CLARIFIES TRADE-IN REGULATION

Dealers who have been crediting trade-ins against the down payment of articles controlled by Regulation W will have to change their methods. The Federal Reserve Board is warning retailers that trade-ins may be credited against the entire purchase price, but not against the down payment alone.

If a retailer sells a TV set for $200 and allows $25 credit for an old radio, he can't cut the minimum down payment from $60 to $25. But he can count the price as $175, which would make the 25 per cent minimum payment $43.75.

NEW MAGAZINE IN PLASTICS TRADE

The growing plastics industry has given birth to a new publication, devoted entirely to retailing plastics. It's Plastics Merchandising, published at 122 E. 42nd St., New York. First issue has 80 slick pages, many in four colors.

WOMEN FIRMER IN BUYING BEER

The hand that rocks the cradle is particular about the brand of beer it reaches for, judging by a survey by National Family Opinion, Inc., of Toledo.

The survey shows that 45 per cent of the women said they would accept only one brand of beer or go to another store, while 43.7 per cent of the men were so insistent on a brand.

However, more men (82.7 per cent) than women (75.7 per cent) ordered beer by brands.

ICING VEGETABLES PAYS, SAYS COMMERCE

Displaying fresh fruits and vegetables on crushed ice pays, says a Department of Commerce Small Business Aid. It points out that (1) loss of moisture and consequently weight is held to a minimum, (2) loss due to decay is lessened, (3) good appearance and nutritive values are retained, and (4) turnover and impulse sales are increased.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

BREAKFAST — Thirty-odd members of the general assembly from the area served by the Farmers Federation of Asheville were entertained at breakfast Wednesday morning by James G. K. McClure, president of the federation. The occasion was the first of what may be several regional or sectional get-together m tings of legislators. Those who attended the breakfast report that neither legislation nor politics was discussed, that the fellows were just getting better acquainted with each other.

QUESTIONED — Representatives from the Piedmont section were disposed to question the complete lack of politics. As the mountaineers filed into the breakfast room, a couple of Piedmonters were noted standing by with shaking heads. Finally, one of them could stay quiet no longer. He observed to his colleague that "the Piedmont is going to catch it now." He amplified the statement to explain he meant that the western end of the state was ganging up for a bigger share in state appropriations, most of which comes from money collected from the industrial Piedmont.

BUTTONHOLING - One senator and one representative called upon typewriters and mimeograph machines to help them in long-distance buttonholing of colleagues in behalf of pet projects. On the desk of every senator Wednesday was a typewritten tabulation breaking down traffic accidents by age class of drivers and age class of cars involved. She sheets were distributed by Senator Hamilton Kobgood of Franklin. Representatives found on their desks mimeographed reproduction of editorials appearing in both Raleigh daily newspapers opposing the coliseum at the state fairgrounds. This bore the n of Representative Edwin Pou of Wake. Apparently Senator Hobgood was building up background support for the 18-year-voting bill, and Representative Pou was seeking support for the resolution he introduced last week calling for full investigation of the coliseum project.

VISITORS—Among the visitors extended privileges of the lobbies and floor in the senate Wednesday was Kenneth Royal, former senator from Wayne, later acting secretary of war and first secretary of the army in the consolidated defense set-up, now practicing law in Washington and New York. On the house side similar courtesies were extended to Nat Crews of Winston-Salem, former representative from Forsyth county.

REMINISCENCE — Six of the current house members served with Crews in the hectic session of 1933. They are Robert P. Bender of Jones, B. C. Brock of Davi. R. Bruce Etheridge of Dare, Wayland Spruill of Bertie, Thomas Turner of Guilford and Brantley Womble of Wake. Present Senator J. Robert Young of Harnett was in the house then. Some of these old-time colleagues refreshed the memory of your reporter, who was around then as newspaperman, about one crucial vote. After months of wrangling over the revenue bill, during which reconsideration and c anged vote. itched margins from day to day, the then youthful Nat Crews of orsyth by parliamentary maneuvering changed his vote on a final roll call, which resulted in breaking a tie and enacting the revenue bill which has in all essential element remained constant for eighteen years.

CONTRIBUTION — The basic revenue act of 1933 produced the necessary income to keep public schools open during the depression years, and built up the reserve funds which enabled the state after the war to launch its biggest construction program, and to meet demands of the Scott administration for greatly expanded state services. It is appropriate now to recall that the alert strategy of the Forsyth man eighteen years ago made very substantial contribution to the sound fiscal policy and progressive development of North Carolina.

LOBBYISTS — Representative Howard Woltz of Surry has in mind amendments which would put more teeth in the law requiring registration of lobbyists. Some known lobbyists for business enterprises have not yet registered, and many lobbyists for public associations have all along maintained they were not required to register. Woltz says he has no criticism of lobbyists, and during the first two weeks of his experience he has found them very helpful. He does feel, and in that opinion many people concur, that they should be on record as to motives and source of their compensation. Speaking of lobbyists, Senator Hawley Poole of Moore says one of his favorite stories about them comes from Washington. A congressman was asked by a friend if he had seen the light. His answer was, "No, but I sure have felt the heat."

With U. S. Eighth Army, Korea —(AP)—A young Pennsylvania flier during the first six months of the Korean campaign flew more jet plane combat missions than any other man in history and he did it without ever seeing an enemy plane in the sky.

This odd distinction fell to Lt. Robert J. Swartz, 24, of Butler, Pa.

It didn't please him at all—the fact he chalked up more than 130 combat trips and never once got a chance to test his guns against an airborne foe. But he took the situation calmly. He felt his break would still come before the war ends—and perhaps it has by now.

"You just gotta be there when they're there," he said philosophically.

Swartz, a pleasant, clean-cut flier who resembles screen actor George Montgomery, served as a private in the Air Force during the second world war. He came back into the service in 1948 because he had his heart set on flying.

He flew a jet plane for the first time last May and was one of the pilots rushed here to provide air cover for civilians evacuating besieged Seoul.

Swartz quickly became a workhorse of one squadron of the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing, an outfit known as "The Headhunters." He flew two and even three missions a day in his F-80. Other jet jockeys chased and tangled with North Korean planes over the rugged hills. But fly as often and as far and as hard as he could—Swartz never could locate an enemy aloft.

But he did an impressive job against ground targets. One day he knocked off six locomotives. Another time he was credited with destroying three Russian YAK fighters he caught on the field and with killing 200 troops.

His target preferences are enemy vehicles and tanks because their results are more clearly evident.

"They blow up easily," he said.

His mates tease Swartz by calling him a nickname they invented—"famous." He takes the kidding light-heartedly but would like to be less famous for his bad luck at finding enemy planes in the air.

"I'm itching to get a MIG—I really want to catch one of those babies," He said. "But I still have 18 months of overseas duty left to do it in. My luck ought to change in that time."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—Music fairly echoes from "Seeger's Barn," an old fashioned frame house in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., where a family of talented, uninhibited individuals live happily. Head of the household is Charles Seeger, chief of the music division of the Pan American Union.

Then there's Michael, 17, who is a pretty good singer of folk songs and plays an auto-harp which his mother describes as a "lazy man's zither." There are Peggy, 15, who plays a guitar and knows a lot of songs; Barbara, 13, who likes to dance; and Penny, 7, who is "lots of fun and shows promise."

The third floor of "Seeger's Barn" is reserved for the six children of Charles Seeger's three sons by a former marriage. One of thse sons is the well-known folk singer, Pete Seeger, a member of "The Weavers," who have made recordings of many of America's popular folk songs.

Ruth Crawford Seeger, mother of the four most recent Seegers, is well known in her won right. She's the first woman composer to receive a Guggenheim Fellowship, she won the award in 1930 and took the money to go to Berlin and Paris to study and later wrote compositions for string quartets, piano and small orchestras and some chamber music that have won her wide acclaim.

After she returned home the Ohio-born musician married Mr. Seeger, under whom she had studied in New York. They came to Washington in 1935, when he was with the special skills division of the Resettlement Administration. He later became assistant director of the WPA.

It was through this work that the two got started on folk music, Mrs. Seeger told me. They went out to the country to make recordings of what people were singing.

Soon they met up with John A. and Alan Lomax, pioneers in the field of collecting American folk materials. Together they got out "Our Singing Country," a collection of some 200 folk songs selected from more than 1,000 recordings. Mrs. Seeger was music editor of the publication.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Pravda, Please Copy
(The Boston Herald).

The Bureau of Labor Statistics is overhauling its cost of living index. It seems the average American family has outstripped the bureau in the things that have become necessities. So a revised index will be out next month in which the cost of such things as television sets, frozen foods, baby foods, home permanent wave lotions and electric toasters will be reflected.

That's one item of news. Another is the discovery by the Federal Reserve Board that four in ten American families have a net worth of $5,000 or more, and nearly one in ten is worth $25,000 or more.

Still a third item is a report by the National Bureau of Economic Research that the 1 per cent of the population with the highest income received 13 per cent of the total income before taxes in 1939, and only 9.5 per cent in 1945. Moreover the 5 per cent of the population with top incomes fell from 28 to 19.5 per cent of the total national income.

So here we have a picture of America in which electric toasters and television sets are necessities, where families with a $5,000 backlog are numerous, and where the rich are getting poorer and the poor getting richer.

It is a picture that the Voice of America could profitably beam to the Russian people. Karl Marx, you will recall, said that under capitalism the capitalists would get richer and richer and the wage earners poorer and poorer, until the lot of the latter became so intolerable they would revolt.

"You have nothing to lose but your chains", the chains being television sets and toasters, $5,000 assets and an increasing share in the total income.

ROTC Students Are Deferred From Draft If Conditions Met

There has been a constant flow of letters inquiring of the status of Air Force R. O. T. C. cadets at East Carolina Teachers College, it was reported this week by Major L. L. May, professor of Air Science at the college.

In connection with clearing up the picture for interested persons, the college Air Force R. O. T. C. unit released the following provisions under the Selective Service Law and Air Force Regulations.

"Under current Selective Service Law and Air Force Regulations, Air Force R. O. T. C. college students, excepting first and second quarter freshmen, are deferred from induction providing:

A. They rank scholastically (in all colege subjects) in the upper one-half of their college class.

B. They are doing satisfactory work in R. O. T. C. classes, and are included in the quota (number) for the class set for the school. "Freshmen must complete two quarters of one semester of AF ROTC work before becoming eligibile for deferment.

"Quotas are alloted schools approximately once each year.

"There is no deferred quota set for Advanced Students—all are deferred.

"Quotas are set for only the freshman and sophomore ROTC classes. "All East Carolina Teachers College R. O. T. C. sophomore students are deferred. The quota for the freshmen class is 110, and this number will be deferred at the end of the Winter quarter in February."

There are presently 90 Advanced Students in the Air Force R. O. T. C. program at East Carolina, and 120 freshmen and sophomore students.

"The above statements reflect the present Air Force ROTC policy in regard to current Selective Service Deferment Policy," quoted Major May.

Hit By A Bear, He Wants $3,000

Asheville, N.C., Jan. 17—(AP)—Jessie F. Sheppard says he got hit by a bear—and he also says it wasn't funny.

He said so to the tune of a $3,000 damage suit filed in Buncombe Superior Court yesterday against Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lambert, operators of a soft drink stand near Waynesville.

Sheppard says the animal was in a cage and took a swipe at him while he was standing at a guard rail watching it.

Roy Pruitt of the faculty of Louisburg College, a district vice president of the East Carolina Alumni Association, were present for the meeting. Thirteen alumni became charter members of the new chapter Monday evening; and others, unable to attend at that time, will join the group later.

In addition to Ridenhour, officers chosen by chapter members are Sam Dees, vice president; Dorcas Sumrell, secretary; and Mrs. W. J. Harris, treasurer.

Blind Egyptian Official Offered Eyes Of Student

Cairo—(AP)—An Egyptian law student has offered his eyes to replace those of Education Minister Taha Hussein Pasha, who has been totally blind since early childhood.

The student is Abdel Hadi Heikal, who is enrolled at Egyptian University's School of Law. Friends of the blind minister say the offer probably will be turned down with thanks. A similar offer came from a Spanish student during the minister's recent trip through Europe.

Taha Hussein Pasha is Egypt's most prominent writer and scholar despite his handicap. His crusade to spread education in Egypt has won him great popular support.

Chester Allen Arthur became president when Garfield was assassinated in 1881.

Fairgounds Coliseum Question Is On Griddle And Getting Warm

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 18—The joint senate and house appropriations committee devoted its abbreviated session Wednesday to discussion of the coliseum or livestock judging pavilion or amphi-theater at the state fair grounds. Designation of the building differs with teh view point of the designator. The committee did not have time to complete discussion because of previous engagement at Chapel Hill early in the evening.

Most of the statements, speeches and questions were not apropos to the main item under consideration. The subject technically before the group was consideration of a resolution, adopted in both house and seante, calling for appointment ofa subcommittee to feasibility of the project under present conditions and report back to the full committee and to the assembly.

Attitude of spokesmen at the session Wednesday afternoon was bypass the investigation committee report and move right into consideration of the project itself on merit. That course was charted in the preliminary remarks by Edwin Pou, representative of Wake, author of the house resolution, and in responses by L.Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, Dr. J. S. Dorton, director of the fair. Senators Pou Bailey of Wake and Daniel Bell of Chatham, co-in tro ducers of the senate resolution, insisted the objective was neithre dlay nor banning of the building, but simply to ascertain if it is as much needed now as it seemed to be two years ago. Dr. Dorton implied agreement with that objective when he said he and his associates would not suggest to this general appropriation for such a building, but he felt obligated to carry through under th 1949 act.

Senators Bailey and Bell stressed material shortages now and the need for review of this and all other projects not already begun, in light of conditions as they have changed since the last assembly adjourned.

Pou devoted his arguments to show that the building is not justified, for that it will consume vital materials more seriously needed on more essential projects. Ballentine and Dorton answered with statements that this building will constitute an important asset to agriculture, partidularly development of a livestock industry in this state. None of the three apparently understood that the question before the joint committee was not whether the building should be constructed, but whether it should be given further study.

Most of the time was taken up by Pou citing lack of need because of duplicating facilities with the Reynolds Coliseum at State College, and fair sponsors citing historic background leading up to recognition of necessity for such a structure.

Assembly Asked To Delay Adding Of New Judges

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 18—(AP)—The State Judicial Council wants the General Assembly to delay using its authority to provide more regular Superior Court judges.

The legislature was given this power in a constitutional amendment approved in the general election. Under the amendment, the General Assembly may authorize the election of more than one regular Superior Court judge in any judicial district if it sees fit.

The council recommended in its report that the legislators should do nothing at this session to increase the number of judges.

"By delay," the council states, "We would gain the necessary time to determine with some precision those districts which actually need additional judges XXX."

Safety Seat For Aircraft Throws Passenger Back

Washington—A new type of seat that throws the passenger back instead of forward in the event of an airplane crash is in the mill here.

Invented by an airlines executive, the seat is adaptable for military air carrier and for civilian ground use, as well as for commercial passenger service. It is coil-spring, slung in such a way that any sharp forward impact swings the passenger down and back, rather than up and forward.

All you have to do to send the seat into a reclining position for napping while traveling, is recline. There are no levers to push or adjustments to make. Inventor Jesse B. Bennett, assitant to the president of Braniff International Airways, is correlating results of tests of his chair before making a final model and seeking a producer.

Rap Inaction In Lebanon Rioting

Beirut, Lebanon—(AP)—The Lebanese Women's Federation in a resolution expressed strong disapproval of government tolerance of recent shooting incidents.

More than 20 persons reportedly were nijured—several fatally—in a number of separate demonstrations. In some cases they involved disputes between Christians and Moslems. Participants are said to have fired machine guns and pistols and set off dynamite bombs, with no interference from the police.

The population of this tiny, mountainous country on the eastern Mediterranean is about half Moslem and half Christian.

Coupons Ranked With Currency

Washington—(AP)—Snipping the red tape of currency restrictions, which can keep books, scientific apparatus and educational films out of the hands of people who need them the most, has become a $1,000,000 business, according to the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO.

Two years ago UNESCO—the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—launched a "book coupon scheme" intended to start books moving across borders previously closed by foreign exchange controls. Today, UNESCO coupons have joined the scant ranks of currencies accepted in most parts of the world.

Lack Of Housing Closes School

Singapore—(AP)—Six hundred students from a private English school here are in search of new quarters to continue their education, because housing shortage has hit the Government of Singapore, too.

The Royal English School, owned by the government, was rented out, and now the government wants to house the National Registration Centre in the building.

The school authorities have not been successful in finding any other accommodation to house their pupils.

Together Earned Geology Degrees

Cedar Rapids, Iowa—(AP)—A young Cedar Rapids couple will soon be awarded doctorate degrees at the University of Minnesota—dividends of three summers spent in a joint geologic study in the Colorado Rockies.

Ralph Langenheim, assistant professor of geology at Coe College, near here, and his wife, Jean, went over 200 square miles of Colorado mountain country with the scientific version of a fine-toothed comb. Ralph studied rock formations while his wife worked on plant distribution for their Ph. D projects. The two started the studies on their honeymoon in 1946.

Deadly Epidemic Grips Mandalay

Rangoon—(AP)—Prime Minister Thakin Nu knelt alongside Mandalay citizens on a sun-baked field to pray for the termination of a cholera epidemic gripping the sacred city 500 miles north of Rangoon. Reports from Mandalay say the epidemic is taking a daily toll of 42 lives.

According to the reports there is vaccine sufficient only for 50,000 of the city's approximately 200,000 population.

Fairgrounds Fire Kills Race Horses

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 17—(AP)—Fire swept through a barn at the Arizona State fairgrounds last night, killing an estimated 10 to 15 race horses.

The blaze leveled one building at the track and endangered two other barns before it was brought under control after 40 minutes.

An estimated 350 horses were in the barns.

J. N. Cooper, 55, a race track worker, was badly burned about the face, hands and f t.

Cause of the fire has not been determined. The loss is covered by insurance. There was no estimate of the loss.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

To the ladies the interior appearance of a house is very important.

Flowers or vines may conceal an exterior wall crack that worries a man. A closed cellar door can hide many household sins of omission. And curtains and drapes go far toward making ill-fitting windows a forgotten chore for father.

But plaster cracks, creaking floors, blistered paint or wallpaper, sticking doors and rusty hardware are social handicaps that ought to be corrected before the next meeting of the Ladies Aid.

So it's up to you as a happy home owner to take an outsider's view of the inside of your house if you want to retain your happy title.

A good time to make this inspection is when you get home from an extended vacation, or a visit to the bright new house of a friend. Sure it seems good to be home again. There's no place like home. It feels like an old shoe—but does it look like one, too?

Only you can make this inspection. So further hints may be out of order. We'll pass the wisecracks for the plaster cracks.

These are one of the most common occurences in any well regulated household. They are usually caused by movement. All houses move with expansion and settlement. Yours is no different from your neighbors.

Cracks from movement are classified as structural cracks. They are large, well defined and extend all the way through to the lath. Minor cracks are map cracks, fine hair-lines known as fire-cracks and crazing. These ordinarily result from poor workmanship and inferior quality of plaster.

You'll find structural cracks in corners, over doorways and windows, or running diagonally down a wall. They're usually nothing to worry about. In a new house, it's a good idea to let them go for several months until settlement is completed — a year, perhaps.

But of course such things torture your wife. When she notices one and tells you the builder was a fox, it's a good idea to make a small pencil mark at the end of the crack. Continue this until the crack has stopped spreading.

When you and-or your wife are ready to have it fixed, tap the surrounding plaster lightly to see that it is not loose. Loose plaster has to be removed. Use a knife to cut out the edges of the crack, but make the cut wider close to the lath than at the surface. A wedge shaped opening like that will let the patch lock itself into place.

Get a good grade of patching plaster at your hardware store. This is better than using pure plaster paris because it hardens more slowly. If you use plaster-of-Paris without a hardening retarder, you'll find your time limited to about 10 minutes. Glue dissolved in the mixing water will slow it and so will a half-and-half mixture of water and vinegar. But commercial patching plaster is simpler.

Mix it with clean water in a clean container. Dampen the old plaster along the crack to prevent it from absorbing too much of the moisture in your patching mix.

Using a small diamond-shaped trowel or putty knife, fill the crack to about an eighth of an inch of the surface. As the patch dries it will shrink a little. Then apply more patching plaster to fill and smooth it off even with the surface. For a professional job, keep the whole thing damp for about 24 hours. This will prevent chalkiness.

Map or fire cracks do not penetrate as deeply as structural cracks. When they are fine, you can fill them by brushing on a mixture of three parts boiled linseed oil and one part turpentine. When they are slightly wider, you can fill them with white lead thinned with turps to a thin paste. Force this paste in with a cloth, wipe off the surplus and when it is dry sand it very lightly.

Bulging plaster means it is loose. After removing the loose part, check the lath to see that it has not pulled away from the stude of joists. If it has, fasten it. To patch such places, use the same procedure as in patching structural cracks. Large patches, however, may call for the work of an expert plasterer if you want a neat job.

Sandpapering plaster to make it smooth is not a good idea. It may remove the natural glaze and leave a porous surface that will absorb more paint than the rest of th wall and consequently show the patch. If you trowel it smooth and do a careful job, the patch will never be noticeable after paint or paper are applied.

Scrap Metal Is Prized As Loot

Frankfurt, Germany—(AP)—Shortage of raw materials sorely needed for defense has caused a wave of scrap metal thefts in Western Germany.

German Police records list thousands of thefts of scrap brass, tin, zinc, copper and lead. The thieves are spurred by rising prices offered by scrap dealers. Even the youngsters are getting into the mad hunt for metal. Police blame most minor thefts on children, some as young as seven years. They say the children often are encouraged by their parents.

Air Defense Of U. S. Not Expected To Be Iron Clad

By LEIF ERICKSON

Tokyo, Jan. 18 —(AP)— Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg says the Air Forces likely would be able to strike back quickly against any unheralded air assault against the United States mainland.

"Even in undeclared war," the Air Force Chief of staff told a news conference "There would be certain indications which, if properly utilized, should put us in a position to retalfate almost immediately."

He explained that a long-range air attack "Cannot be launched instantly."

He was asked if the United States, being a Democracy, likely would not be hit a surprise air attack if a Communist enemy undertook direct assault on the United States. He answered:

"Yes, probably."

The 52-year-old General said it was an Air Force maxim that offense was the best defense.

"The whole proof of defense against an enemy power is attrition and destruction on the other end," Vandenberg said. "The American Strategic Air Force is small but very efficient."

He said the so-called "Radar fence" guarding air approach to the United States was just going in. He contended there was a point of diminishing returns in spending for air defense and interceptors.

At Britian's best in the air "Battle for Britain," the British never knocked down more than eight percent of raiding German bombers. The Germans never were able to knock down more than four percent.

Vandenberg said the goal of America's air defense system to achieve a 20 to 30 percent loss ratio against attacking aircraft.

"But this would be extraordinary," he added.

Navy Drastically Curbs Enlistees

The U. S. Navy has suspended its program which formerly enabled male reservists in the two lowest pay grades to serve two years on active duty, and in addition has placed strict quota restrictions on enlistments of regular Navy recruits and others requiring recruit training.

The boom in recruiting since the holiday season has taxed all available recruit training facilities to near capacity, Chief A. E. Cahoon said today.

Although the exact number of recruits which can be enlisted from Pitt county has not yet been announced, the Greenville office is reported as "swamped" with waiting enlistees, with a vast backlog of men awaiting examinations.

The quotas for the Navy in this region, through the week of January 14, were filled long ago the Chief reported; and the enlistments for next week, which have not been announced, will be very small.

"It will not be possible to accept, in one week, the number of boys which we formerly accepted in a single day", Cahoon stated. As soon as quota restrictions are lifted, the Navy will again accept volunteers in unlimited numbers in addition to reopening its volunteer program for reserve recruits, Choon added.

Problem Of Handling Aggression By Red China Could Divide Free World

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—The question of what to do about Red China's aggression in Korea, now that peace moves have failed, threatened today to split the free world.

Secretary of State Acheson and other top officials are said to be keenly aware of the dangers of a showdown and are proceeding with caution to draft in cooperation with other nations a U. N. resolution indicting the Reds.

As a result the wording of the resolution may be less blunt than Washington would prefer in the hope of winning support from as many U. N. members as possible. But even so it will force the issue—will make the nations at New York stand up and be counted on doing something about the Chinese war in Korea.

The possibility that at least on important country, heretofore counted in the anti-communist coalition in the U. N., may vote "no" was indicated by Prime Minister Nehru of India yesterday. Nehru said in Paris that to brand China as an aggressor in Korea "would bolt and bar the door to peaceful settlement" in the Far East.

Some other nations-perhaps still clinging to a hope for peaceful settlemc perhaps fearful of stirring up more trouble—may follow the same line. The number cannot be known until the vote is taken.

Among officials here this line is regarded on the whole as highly unrealistic. They believe that when the showdown comes a firm U. N. majority will support a resolution condemning the Chinese communists as aggressors either directly or through implication by listing the record of their deeds.

In the first place, Acheson and his aides feel the Chinese Reds have now turned down so many opportunities to make peace that any further belief in the practical possibilities of successful and honorable negotiation is simply wishful thinking.

Secondly, they are convinced that to show fear in the face of aggressive communism is simply to encourage it to more aggression.

Acheson set forth the basic United States position on the question yesterday in one of the shortest and fastest statements he has ever made as U. S. foreign policy chief. The Peiping radio had just broadcast an announcement rejecting the U. N. cease-fire proposal of last Saturday and offering a counter-proposal.

He issued a statement calling the Peiping reply a complete rejection of the U. N. plan and said it "is unacceptable to the United States government and, I have no doubt, will be to the United Nations generally."

Several hours later, in a second statement, Acheson said the Chinese Reds' proposal shows their "contemptuous disregard of a world-wide demand for peace." He added:

"Now we must face squarely and soberly the fact that the Chinese communists have no intention of ceasing their defiance of the U. N. I am confident that the U. N. will do that. The strength of the U. N. will lie in the firmness and unity with which we now move ahead."

Feet Blown Off, GI Saves Tanks

Tokyo, Jan. 18—(AP)—An Arkansas Corporal who crawled down a Korean road after his feet were blown off and saved a column of tanks has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

The award went to Cpl. William C. Earnest, of Route Two, Pine Bluff, Ark.

The extraordinary heroism was displayed near Suwon, 17 miles south of Seoul, last Sept. 20 when United Nations forces were on the offensive.

It was during the move of United Nations forces southward from Seoul toward Suwon Airbase. The Corporal's tank company was ordered to secure the base.

Earnest was in the leading tank of a task force. His feet were blown off when his tank was knocked out by a direct hit from an enemy T-34.

The tank gunner was killed outright. The driver and asistant driver were wounded and unconscious. The tank commander was so severely wounded that he could not be moved.

Earnest dragged himself out of the tank and crawled back through heavy enemy fire along the road to warn other tanks. His action saved the following tanks and resulted in the destruction of the enemy tank holding up the advance.

When medical aid arrived, Earnest refused to be evacuated until other wounded members of his tank crew were treated.

$200,000 Blaze In Madison, N.C.

Madison, N. C., Jan. 18—(AP)—Unofficial estimates indicate that between $150,000 and $200,000 damage was done by a fire that raced through the heart of Madison's business district yesterday.

The largest single loss was a $35,000 warehouse in which $45,000 worth of household appliances and approximately $10,000 worth of fertilizer and sodium nitrate were stored.

Other buildings damaged included a pool room, a market, a grocery store, the mill end store and the Masonic Hall.

Men and equipment were sent from Reidsville, Stoneville, Walnut Cove, Martinsville, Va., Leaksville, Mayodan and Winston-Salem to aid the Madison volunteer fire department.

The fire started at noon and was brought under control about an hour later. Madison fire chief George T. Martin said the fire was believed to have started in a small battery shop in the rear of the warehouse.

Burma Students Blast America

Rangoon—(AP)—Burmese students are peeved at their government's "pro-American attitude" and said so at a public meeting. Student speakers accused Prime Minister Thakin Nu of selling out Burmese interests to "curry favour with Americans."

They made it quite clear they want their country linked more firmly with the Soviet bloc whose "democratic educational system" they greatly "admired".

Third Annual Tournament Sponsored By Farmville Jayvees Begins Play Monday Night, January 22

The third annual Coastal Gold Medal tournament to be held at Farmville January 22, 24, 25, and 27 (not February, as reported in yesterdays release) will see eight boys and girls teams clash to the bitter end, in what promises to be the best tournament staged in the three-year period.

Tournament play begins Monday night in the Farmville gymnasium, under the sponsorship of the Farmville Jaycees, with Marvin Speight directing the tournament.

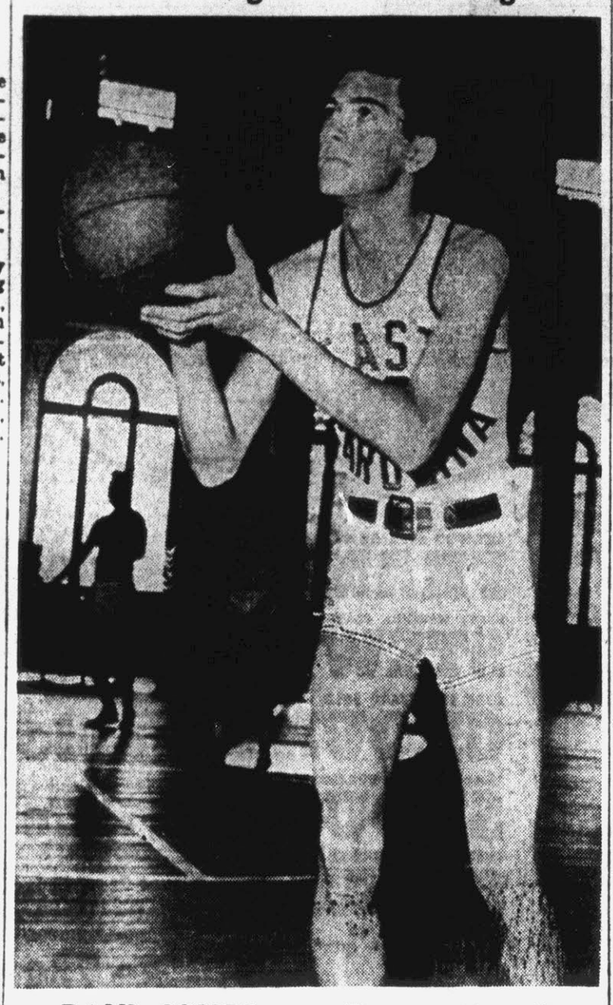

Ayden's quintet, loser of only one game in eleven starts thus far this season, will be top-seeded in the boys' division, while the strong Snow Hill sextet will get the top berth in the girls' bracket.

The eight teams entered in the Medal tourney represent six different counties in eastern North Carolina, and the field promises to be the best in the early season hardwood tournaments held in eastern section.

Both Farmville clubs are defending champions for this year's tournament.

Pairings for Monday night's play puts Vanceboro and Stantonsburg girls in opening tilt at 6:30 p. m., Farmville and Vanceboro quints in the second game, with the two top-seeded teams seeing action against Walstonburg and Nahunta teams, rounding out the first round of play. Ayden's five tangles with Nahunta, while Snow Hill scraps Walstonburg.

Holmes Just Misses Sixth .300 Campaign

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Tommy Holmes is looking forward to the 1951 baseball season with a vengeance.

The consistent-hitting rightfielder of the Boston Braves thought he had his sixth .300 season all locked up until he saw the final official averages. They showed he batted .298.

Here's how it happened:

On the final day of the season unofficial averages had Holmes hitting .301. Actually Tommy was hitting .296.

Facing the Giant rookie, George Spencer, for the first time, Holmes lashed out a single. Manager Billy Southworth gave Tommy his choice of leaving the game or staying in. Holmes left the game feeling he had hit .300 for the sixth time in the last seven years. But when the official marks came out late in December, Tommy was disappointed.

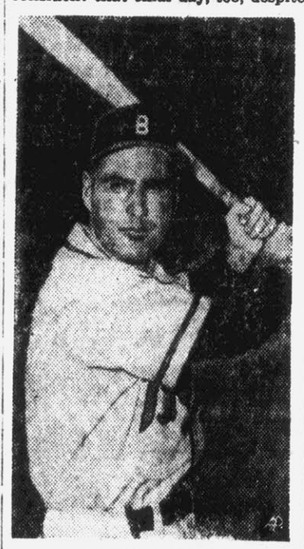

Though Holmes is not one to boast, he takes pride in his hitting and the fact that his eyes at the plate are about the best in baseball. He is somewhat peeved at himself for not reaching the charmed circle. One more hit would have given the pride of the Braves Field jury box his coveted .300.

"I'll be after that hit the first time up next season," says the popular 32-year-old Brooklyn-born outfielder. "Not only that but I'd like the start next season with two hits. It will be my tenth year and I need two hits to reach 1,500."

It's a wonder they haven't called Holmes "The Eye" because of his plate effectiveness. Until the past season he had the record for least number of strikeouts for 1,000 or more games. Brave Coach Johnny Cooney now holds that mark, having fanned only 110 times in 1172 games. Holmes whiffed eight times in 1950 and has banned but 114 times in 1262 games.

In 1945 when Holmes hit .352 and drove 28 homers he paced the National League in slugging with a .577 mark, beating out such solid thumpers as Whitey Kurowski, Phil Cavaretta, Mel Ott and Ernie Lombardi. Right now Holmes ranks fourth in most hits among the active National Leaguers. Cavaretta leads with 1842 safeties, Bob Elliott has 1768 and Enos Slaughter 1653.

Holmes still has a lifetime .304 hitting mark, fourth best in the circuit but he wishes he still had that other hit to make it an even .300 for 1950. Tommy says he felt confident that final day, too, despite the fact that Spencer spun a neat three-hitter in chalking up his first major league win by 5-1 over the Braves.

TOMMY HOLMES
'Pride of the Jury Box'

It is customary for players hovering around .300 to watch their marks the last few games each year. And its customary for them to leave when certain of .300. But you won't find Holmes misled by unofficial marks in the future.

One point sometimes means a couple of bucks when it comes time to sign a contract. And Tommy is awaiting a new document, his two-year contract having expired with 1950.

Tigs' Dick Hendley Wins Jacobs Blocking Trophy

Greensboro, Jan. 18—(AP)—Dick Hendley, the key blocker in Clemson College's single wing offense that went through the season undefeated and won the Orange Bowl football game, is the winner of the 1950 Jacobs Trophy as the outstanding blocker in the Southern Conference.

The Clemson senior, a native of Greenville, S.C., was announced as the trophy recipient today by Executive Secretary Smith Barrier of the Southern Conference Sports Writers Association which conducted the selection on vote of sports writers, radio men and conference coaches.

W. P. Jacobs, Jr., of Clinton, S.C., will make the presentation to Hendley at a Durham Quarterback Club banquet to be held later in the month. The blocking trophy for the state of South Carolina was originated by the late W. P. Jacobs, Sr. Hendley previously had been named as winner for South Carolina. His selection marks the first time a South Carolina state trophy winner has also won the conference award.

Hendley made a runaway of the vote in the Southern Conference. Off 56 ballots, the 189-pound, six-foot Tiger received first place mention on 30. This enabled him to gather 166 points, far ahead of runnerup Bob Auff, Wake Forest guard, with 42, and Bob Ward, Maryland guard, with 39.

Ed Merrick New Richmond Coach

Richmond, Va., Jan. 18—(AP)—Ed Merrick returned to the University of Richmond today as head football coach to try to bring gridiron glory back to his alma mater.

Merrick is 35 years old. For the past five years, he has guided the football forces at Fork Union (Va.) Military Academy. His success has been phenomenal. Under Merrick, Fork Union won 36 games, lost 11 and currently has a string of 17 successive victories.

Merrick succeeds Karl A. (Dick) Esleeck, whose contract was not renewed at the close of the last campaign.

Two Teams Scrap For Bohunk In North State Tilt

Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina cagers play host to their rivals, Atlantic Christian, here tonight, in the only family scrap slated in North State conference play.

Game time is 8:00 p.m. in Wright gymnasium at East Carolina.

Forward Sonny Russell, the Pirates' erstwhile scoring leader, is expected to hook up with the Bulldogs frosh sensation, Billy Tomlinson, in the first hoop meeting of the two schools this season.

East Carolina, with a conference 3-2, record, will be out to move up a rung in the loop's ladder tonight, after Elon downed High Point in an overtime period last night, 62-60.

The cherishd "Bohunk" trophy will also be at stake in tonight's tangle, as the coveted bucket always goes to the winner of any athletic contest between the two schools. East Carolina currently holds the Bohunk, after their one-sided victory over the Bulldogs in football.

Rounding out tonight's starters for the Pirates, along with Russell will be frosh star Charlie Huffman at the other forward, Toddy Fennell at center, with Bobby Hodges and Lou Collie or John Postas at the guard positions.

Basketball Scandal May Spread To Other Schools

Basketball Scandal, 24 pt hol.RBS

New York, Jan. 18—(AP)—College basketball's latest scandal, involving Manhattan College, may spread to other colleges.

This was indicated today in the wake of yesterday's disclosure that a Manhattan player had been offered $1,000 to throw Tuesday night's game against Depaul in Madison Square Garden a bribe attempt that failed and led to the arrest of two former Manhattan players for throwing games last year and three men described by police as "fixers."

Edward J. Breslin, Assistant District Attorney of the Bronx, said he had been told that other players in New York and other cities were "doing the same thing."

And Kenny Norton, Manhattan coach, asserted: "I feel that this is more than a local thing. If these termites kept waving money in front of my boys faces they must have been waving some in front of other boys faces. I cannot conceive that Manhattan players are the only ones gotten to."

"The big guys haven't been caught yet," Norton added.

Manhattan, a 10-point underdog, beat Depaul 62-58 before a crowd of 11,000 in the Garden but the attempted fix was not disclosed until yesterday afternoon.

Then police reported that, with the undercover aid given by big Junious Kellogg, Manhattan sophomore player, they had arrested Henry Poppe, 24, and John Byrnes, 22, co-captains of last year's Manhattan team, and three alleged fixers, Irving Schwartzberg, 36; his brother, Benjamin, 35; and Cornelius Kelleher, 35.

Even the subsequent defeats suffered by City College, last season's National Collegiate and National Invitation tournament champions, have not tarnished the gilt-edged victory scored by the University of Missouri over Coach Nat Holman's Beavers. Missouri snapped the City College string that had reached 12 games over two seasons.

Missouri, soundly coached by Wilbur Stalcup, an old pupil of Hank Iba in deliberate basketball, exposed City College's weakness when not permitted to play its own fast-breaking game. The Missouri Tigers broke the game wide open when they poured 17 points through the hoops while holding the Beavers scoreless. The final score, 54 to 37, left City College and its rooters thoroughly stunned.

Coach Stalcup's charges played heads-up basketball for the full 40 minutes. They played possession ball and held their fire until a good scoring opportunity presented itself. They made City College play their game and had the necessary offensive weapons in Bud Heineman, a slender 5-foot-10, eagle-eyed hustler, and 6-foot-3 Bill Stauffer, a rugged rebounder and solid scorer.

Elon Whips High Point In Extra Period; Apps Win

By the Associated Press

Two games, one a conference tilt, are on the North State basketball card for tonight.

Atlantic Christian will be at East Carolina in the family scrap and Lenoir-Rhyne entertains Presbyterian College.

Presbyterian ran afoul of a red-hot Catawba team last night and absorbed a 103-87 drubbing. Leading the scoring parade for Catawba was Bill Hunsucker with 33 points. He made good 15 of 21 field goal attempts. All told, the Indians hit on 55 per cent of their shots from the floor.

Elon handed loop-leading High Point its first loss of the season, 68-66, in an overtime game. Sophomore Ben Kendall became a sudden hero for Elon when he dropped in a one-handed push shot to tie up the regular game at 60-60, and then repeated for the winning margin 10 seconds before the end of the overtime.

In the only other conference game last night, Appalachian's Mountaineers poured on the coal in the last five minutes for a 90-80 win over Western Carolina. After a close battle all the way, the Apps built up a 10-point margin in the closing stages that iced the game. Western Carolina's Ronald Rogers took scoring honors for the night with 30 points.

Briley, Haymes Expected Leaders

Greenville's cage Phantoms, after losing two consecutive conference contests, will strive to get back on the winning path tomorrow night, traveling to Roanoke Rapids for their fourth Northeastern scrap.

Coach Bo Farley's crew won their opener with New Bern, 50-30, but have suffered two straight league losses to Washington and Elizabeth City, giving them a 1-2 record in the conference.

Johnny Aman, scrappy little guard, who saw some service in the Yellow Jackets clash, was welcomed back into the hardwood fold this week, and will probably see plenty action at one of the guard spots tomorrow night with Jake Higgs and Glen Scott.

Center Sydney Briley, the Phantom rebounder, will get the call for handling the boards again in tomorrow's contest which puts the Phants up against a highly-rated Roanoke Rapids five.

Rounding out the starting five for Greenville will be forwards Jimmy Dillingham and Virginius Haymes.

A ten-man varsity squad will make the trip to Roanoke Rapids, along with the Greenville junior varsity which will play a preliminary game with the Roanoke Rapids JVs.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

AP Newsfeatures

.....Chapter 15.....

It was almost nine o'clock when, dressed for the shore excursion, Molly made her way down to the dining salon. She was not deliberately exercising woman's prerogative of being late. She had slept beyond her usual time and taken her own good time about dressing, confident that Bert would not live all the way up to his promise. If he put in his appearance by nine o'clock, he would be setting a record.

Much to her surprise, however, he was already seated at the table, a cup of coffee in front of him, looking very much like a child who had been unjustly punished. The countess had eaten and gone, but Mark Norwood was still lingering over his second breakfast.

The two men got to their feet when they saw Molly approaching and stood until the waiter had seated her. Bert's face had lost its woebegone expression and once more he was his ingratiating self.

"I waited for you, he said. "And I don't mind telling you I'm starved. This pre-dawn air does things to a man. I've been drinking coffee till it's running out of my ears. And begrudging every bite Norwood puts in his mouth," he added, grinning at the archeologist.

"Oh, you poor thing, I'm sorry I was late," Molly apologized. "But then I had no idea you meant the real eight o'clock. You called yourself an early bird at first, remember? And I fell for that. Now I know you better."

"That's just it." Bert shook his head in mock dejection. "I try to reform, and nobody believes it. I sit up all night to make sure I'll get down to breakfast when I said I would. And what happens? I just sit here, drinking coffee, and wishing I'd stayed in bed."

Even so, they did not get an early start on the shore excursion. It was ten o'clock before the launch that was to take them through the inner harbor to the pier drew up alongside the pier. Bert was frankly peeved when he discovered that quite a crowd when be going ashore, especially when he found out that his syster Patricia and Clayton Howell, the young Englishman whom he insisted upon calling his rival, had decided to go along.

"You didn't think we'd be going alone, did you?" Molly asked, laughing at the absurdity of his complaint. "You know very well that Captain Rosario never would have stood for anything so unconventional. He would have arranged for a chaperon, even if he'd have to be it himself. Besides, why shouldn't Pat and Clayton go?

Even as she asked the question Molly thought she knew the answer. Patricia Hasbrook, in her present frame of mind and without the handsome Doctor Peter O'Malley as an escort, would not be pleasant company for anyone. And Bert, for no good reason, was jealous of Clay Howell. But the answer was not at all what she thought it would be. Bert caught her arm in a newly possessive grasp and said:

"I was hoping we'd have some time to ourselves. You know, away from the mob. We've got a lot to talk about, now that we've come to an understanding. If you're game, we'll get lost."

Molly, taken aback by this calm assumption that they had come to an understanding, took no notice of his final suggestion. She was at a loss for something to say. Maybe Bert had come to an understanding with himself, but she was sure she had said nothing, done nothing, to warrant the conclusion that she too had made up her mind.

Of course she reflected, Bert was rich and spoiled, accustomed to getting whatever he wanted. But it was hard to believe he was the type of person who, having decided he wanted a thing, just moved in and took it whether or no. She did not want to believe that. It was his fine sense of good sportsmanship that had attracted her to him in the first place. His next words were reassuring.

"Why don't you tell me to hold my horses, Molly-o? If I'm taking too much for granted, it's only because I want it that way. Never believed in marriage by capture," he added teasingly. "But I still hope we get lost. I'd like to talk about weddings and things, where there's nobody around to cut in."

The group of sightseers separated at the pier, since everyone appeared to want to do something different from the others. Molly and Bert, Patricia and Clayton Howell made a fousome—with Patricia, just as Molly had feared, a disturbing element. She vetoed any and all suggestions for seeing the city, preferring to spend what was left of the morning in the smart French shops along the Rue Bab Asoun and neighboring streets.

"There'll be penty of time for sightseeing later," she said. "I don't know why you want to see the smelly old streets, with the tumbledown houses and odd-looking characters. I saw all the atmosphere I wanted to see in Egypt. Besides, this is the last stop we'll make, and I have scads of presents buy."

Molly, who wanted to see the colorful native quarters, was disappointed, though she tried not to show it. She was pleased when Clayton Howell, who had been in Algiers before, pointed out that they must not fail to see the Kasbah, and Patricia readily agreed.

But even that was eliminated from their proposed itinerary when Clayton explained that the Kasbah proper was really the ruins of a famous old citadel, not the dangerous exciting foreign rendezvous that Patricia had pictured it to be. Patricia, however, was disposed to argue the question.

"You're fooling," she announced petulantly.

"Fooling?" Clayton Howell, who was not given to fooling, looked a little embarrassed as he repeated the word.

"Yes, fooling. I know what the Kasbah is. I saw all about it in the movies—ages ago. It's like a fabulous night club or something. Only it's full of exciting-looking bandits, odd characters and good-looking shieks."

Clayton smiled indulgently, as much as to say, "Is this one of your strange American jokes?" Then he said with characteristic politeness:

"No, Miss Hasbrook. It's an old citadel, or rather what's left of it. It was once the stronghold of Algerian princes, and there were treasures stored away to the amount of millions of dollars. There's not much left of the old buildings. But the surrounding streets are fascinating. It's in the old Arab city, the native quarter, and that never changes."

"Oh. Well, you can count me out if it's another broken-down citadel. I've seen enough ruins to last me the rest of my life," Patricia said, and immediately lost interest.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

New College Theatre To Be Formally Opened Here On Friday Evening

Entrance to the College Theatre at East Carolina Teachers College, which will be officially opened on Friday evening of this week. The new theatre, located in an annex of the Training school building is said to be one of the most carefully planned and best equipped in the state. At a dedication ceremony Friday night, President John D. Messick will preside. Samuel Selden, professor of dramatic arts at the University of North Carolina and director of the Carolina Playmakers, and Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of dramatic arts at East Carolina, will speak. The first of three performances of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" by the Teachers Playhouse will also be given Friday evening following the dedication of the new theatre.

Seating arrangements in the College Theatre at East Carolina Teachers College are shown above. The new playhouse will accommodate an audience of 760 people.

Not For Mae

Indianapolis, Jan. 18—(AP)—The Indiana House of Representatives received a report today from the committee of one named to invite Mae West to come up and see the legislators some time. Miss West is now appearing at a local theater.

The committeeman, Rep. John R. Ryan (D-Terra Haute), reported:

"She can't come. She asked me what time we met and I told her 10 a.m. She said, 'Jack, where I come from the roosters don't even take off their muzzles until 11:30 a.m.' " to "fly" scenery above the stage.

Built at the rear of the stage is a plastir cyclorama. This desirable and highly useful structure is seldom found even in well equipped professional theatres. Unusual and beautiful effects of lighting are produced by the diffusion of light from the curved background.

Lighting equipment for the stage is extensive. Footlights, four rows of border lights above the stage, nine ceiling spots, eight cyclorama spots,and a varied collection of flood and baby spots are included. A projection room is at the rear of the auditorium. On the stage a large switchboard equipped with autrastat dimmers presents an array of forty-nine levers by which the lighting is controlled.

Back of the stage is a group of three rooms which open on a central lobby and are planned for use by the performers. Two dressing rooms have mirrors with lights above, useful to make-up artists, and built-in cabinets for costumes. There is also a storage and work room for scenery and properties. A color scheme of soft green, carried out in walls, woodwork, and tiled floors, makes this section of the Theatre an attractive part of the building.

Equipment for the College Theatre includes a Steinway grand piano and a Wurlitzer organ. Both will be used for programs of music.

Opening night at the College Theatre will be a gala occasion. President Messick will preside at the short dedication ceremony and will introduce Mr. Selden. Dr. Charles will speak briefly Messages of congratulation from President Messick; Prinicpal Frances Wahl of the Training School; Dr. Lucile Turner, chairman of the department of English; Alexander E. Livesay of Rocky Mount, president of the Student Government Association; and Susan Smith of Goldsboro, president of the Teachers Playhouse, will appear on the printed program for the evening.

Thornton Wilder, distinguished American playwright and author of "Our Town," has sent greetings to the Teachers Playhouse, which will present his play as the first major dramatic production to be given in the College Theatre. "I send you," he says, "all by best wishes and my congratulations on your new building. May it be the scene of many happy hours before and behind the footlights..."

The presentation of "Our Town" Friday evening will be the first of three performances marking the official opening of the Theatre. It will be given Saturday evening, January 20, and again Tuesday evening, January 23, at 8:00 o'clock. Donald Blood of Greenville as the stage manager has the star role and will be supported by a cast including Joseph Congleton of Littleton and Carolyn Eisele of Statesville as the romantic leads. Dr. Charles is the director, and Carl Smith of Washington the student director. A cast and a technical staff of more than sixty students are participating in the production.

"The College Theatre," said President Messick recently, "will be a great asset to East Carolina Teachers College. Its excellent facilities will be of much benefit to both children in the Training School and students at the college in the presentation of many different types of programs of educational and cultural value. We believe also," he added, "that an improved and expanded program of music and dramatic arts, made possible through the Theatre, will be of service and inspiration to people throughout eastern North Carolina."

Truman Certain He Holds Cards

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—President Truman said today he welcomes a Democratic party move in the Senate to voice approval of the use of American troops in Europe.

The President reiterated at his news conference that he has no question about his authority to send troops anywhere with or without congressional consent.

But, he said under questioning, he would like an affirmative expression of support from Congress.

A reporter told Mr. Truman that the Democratic majority in the Senate is working on a resolution expressing approval of the use of American troops as part of General Dwight D. Eisenhower's command for the defense of western democracies.

The President indicated he did not know about the move but he said he would like an affirmative expression of approval.

Mr. Truman added he will do whatever is necessary in the developing world situation.

U. S. May Hike Cotton Exports

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—The United States may allow between 200,000 and 500,000 bales of cotton to be exported this marketing year in addition to the 3,496,000 already allotted for shipment.

This forecast was made by Agriculture Department cotton experts today after the agency announced a breakdown on the amount already set aside for movement abroad.

stated this way: While the armed services build up, the number of plants doing defense work will grow, too. And both need men.

The draft boards can't grab just any man who comes along without hurting defense production which will need skilled workers. Still, if draft-proof skilled workers are free to change jobs at will, production will suffer.

At the same time, employers who try to hoard more workers, or at least more skilled workers, than they need, will be hurting defense output in other plants. So will employers who try to "pirate" workers from one another.

And government agencies with defense orders to be filled can make a mess of production and manpower if they dump their orders in an area where manpower is tight.

These were all problems in World War II, although only some of the problems. There was no single solution for them. There were a number of solutions in a number of places. And there were experiments that failed.

In World War II the War Manpower Commission was the government agency charged with solving manpower problems. It was in constant hot water. It was under the directio of Paul V. McNutt, as an independent agency.

There's no such independent agency for manpower this time. The only government agency set up to study manpower problems so far is tucked inside the Labor Department, under Secretary of Labor Tobin, and is called the Office of Defense Manpower.

courage the belief that the Reds would feel it profitable for them to abandon their invasion of Korea. They have a million and a half fighting men available. That is, they have the United Nations forces outnumbered perhaps 6 to 1.

Only a Chinese desire for peace (which doesn't exist) would persuade them to stop their attack under such circumstances—barring bribery by great concessions. Their sweeping counter proposals contain terms on which they are prepared to bargain.

Well, that's the sorry story. So where do we go from here?

The answer is that the rebuffed peace organization presumably will be impelled to pick up where it left off when the cease-fire project was first proposed. That would mean considering an American sponsored measure condemning communist China as an aggressor.

The adoption of such grave condemnation logically would be followed by some punitive measure. This might take the form of an economic sanction.

The U. N. is in a tight corner. The peace organization is in the position of "being damned if it does, and damned if it doesn't." The lesser of these evils may be some positive and constructive action.

Seek To Repeal . . .

General Assembly in 1947. The measure introduced today would wipe it off the books.

Said Shreve:

"Since most of the industries in North Carolina are covered by federal legislation on the subject, it seems it is only fair, equitable and just that all employes in the state be placed on a parity with those in industries covered by the federal law."

Also tossed in the House hopper was a measure to permit a governor to succeed himself. It would call for submission to the voters the question of amending the constitution to permit this.

Funeral On Friday For Mrs. Z. W. Brown

Mrs. Musette Mizelle Brown, 76, wife of Zeb W. Brown, died at her home on the Belvoir Road near Greenville at 9:55 o'clock Thursday morning following two years of illness. Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home Friday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, and burial will be in the Brown cemetery near Greenville.

Rome Is Armed Camp While Ike Visits, Confers

Rome, Jan. 18—(AP)Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower met today with Italian government chiefs for a look at this country's arms potential. Communist demonstrations protesting his visit already had taken one life and caused injury to nearly 100 throughout Italy.

As the supreme commander of the projected Atlantic Pact defense army swept hurriedly from palace to palace for preliminary meetings, Rome looked like a city under martial law. Police and caribinieri cleared traffic from streets through which he passed. There were no disorders reported in the capital itself.

The general first met with Premier Alcide De Gasperi. From there, escorted by riot police and red jeeps, he dashed to conferences with Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza, Defense Minister Randolfo Pacciardi and Finance Minister Ezio Vanoni.

Later chairman Thurman J. Williams, Grifton, presented the hospital keys to Hodges, chairman of the County Commissioners. Williams thanked the public for coming to witness the dedication and cordially invited them to enter the building during the afternoon for a personal inspection.

Among the dignitaries on the stand were Dr. John A. Ferrell, chairman of the North Carolina Medical Care Commission, and Mrs. Helen Hoggard, of the Hospital Facilities Program Division of the U. S. Public Health Service, both of whom were introduced.
