

Guy Langston Discusses Child Citizenship Training At West Greenville PTA

At the regular monthly meeting of the West Greenville PTA, Mr. Guy Langston, chief of police in Greenville, brought a stirring and thought-provoking talk to members present on the subject of citizen training of the child.

Chief Langston was introduced by Mrs. C. B. West Jr. He prefaced his remarks by stating that he was looking at the problem from the point of view of what the police department is thinking in regard to the needs and problems of the children of this community.

Mr. Langston said, "The educational facilities offered children today are different from those of the past and the problems that face youth today are different also. Yet we are still trying to handle children in the same way. Unless parents recognize this difference, they can not understand their children. There is a different world picture and we have to train them to fit it."

He further stated that most parents have lost sight of their responsibilities towards the children and this delinquency on the part of parents has led to the so-called juvenile delinquency. In the experience of the police department, he said, children with whom they have had dealings in brushes with the law for the most part come from homes where the parents refuse to accept their responsibilities of exercising proper supervision. As an example of this situation, he cited the cases where children were turned loose to go to the picture shows as often as they desired, with no attempt on the part of parents to select the proper type of show they see. Many of the current films depict crime, warfare, sex, and law violations that children do not or cannot evaluate properly. To them too often the criminal in the picture, though usually losing out in the end, is an exciting personality and they tend to admire his daring and courage and emulate him in real life. He stressed the point that if children are taught worthwhile things in school by means of educational film strips, they learn just as quickly the wrong kind of things at undesirable

Cosmos Club Hears Program On Browning

The Cosmos Book Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Edwards, Jr., on the Ayden highway.

Upon arrival the guests were served a delicious dessert of cream and strawberries, nuts, candy and coffee.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. W. M. Scales, Jr., and two members of the Cosmos Book Club were chosen to be on the committee for Book Club Day to be held in May. They are Mrs. C. H. Edwards, Jr., and Mrs. Dale Gidley.

Mrs. C. H. Edwards, Jr., gave her own program and in her soft voice and gracious manner gave a most interesting talk on the life of Robert Browning.

Robert Browning was born in 1812 and died in 1889. He was one of the great poets of the Victorian era.

Browning's education was received from private tutors and from travel on the continent. He wrote poetry while he was a boy, but he looked with disfavor on his own early attempts in the poems of Shelley and Keats came into his hands, but they confirmed him in his desire to be a poet.

In 1844 Browning became acquainted with Elizabeth Barrett and the acquaintance grew into love, and they were married in 1846. Their life together was beautiful and her death in 1861 was a shock from which Browning never completely recovered. After his wife's death he moved to England but later returned to Italy where he died.

Some of his best known works are "My Last Duchess" which is a dramatic monologue showing his love example of his optimism, and "Pauline," his first poem which shows his philosophy.

After this interesting program books were exchanged and the club adjourned.

Luncheon Given To Honor Miss Thorne

Farmville—Miss Betsy Jones entertained at a barbecue luncheon Saturday afternoon at her home honoring Miss Mary Leah Thorne, bride-elect of January 27.

The bride's table was laid with an imported linen cutwork and embroidered cloth and centered with a table of pink and white carnations and white snapdragons flanked by pink tapers. Seated at this table were Miss Thorne, whose place was marked by a tiny bride doll and a corsage of pink carnations, her mother, Mrs. John T. Thorne, Miss Agnes Quinley and Miss Vivian Scott. Mrs. Jack McDavid, Jr., of Columbus, Ga., and the hostess. Each place at the main table was marked with a bridal doll attendant.

Candles centered the auxiliary tables at which Mrs. A. C. Monk, Mrs. A. C. Monk, Jr., Mrs. B. O. Turnage, Mrs. W. B. Willis, Mrs. R. A. Fields, and Mrs. Hayward Smith were seated. Mrs. Larry James and Mrs. Bert James of Greenville were unable to attend because of illness.

Place cards featured pink nose-gays.

The course luncheon consisted of fruit cocktail, topped with lime ice, barbecue, candied yams, congealed grapefruit salad, slaw, pickles, corn sticks and individual lemon pies.

The hostess remembered Miss Thorne with a crystal cream and sugar set with silver base. Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Jones, parents of the hostess, presented Miss Thorne a monogrammed silver fruit bowl.

Pink azaleas, greenery and a bowl of pink gladioli, jonquils and Dutch irises were used in the reception rooms.

Miss Burton Conducts PTA Study Course

On Tuesday, January 16, Miss Genevieve Burton, field secretary for North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers, conducted a four-hour course on "Mental Health" in the Pactolus Community Building.

This had been an annual meeting sponsored by the Pactolus P.T.A. for several years now and is held in place of the regular monthly meeting. It is called "Parent's Day" and affords the opportunity for a larger number of parents and visitors to take advantage of the yearly study course than if otherwise presented.

Miss Burton began the program at 4:00 with a group discussion pertaining to the bearing which mental health has on the relationship between parent and growing child. Three movies were shown to bring out more clearly the points being emphasized and audience participation was encouraged by the leader.

At 6:00 a delicious supper consisting of chicken salad, gold plate with hot coffee andiced cup cakes was served by the Hospitality Committee to those present. All food was donated by members of the community.

The meeting was continued afterward until its conclusion at about 8:00. Approximately 50 parents, friends, teachers and visitors attended, all of whom readily agreed that the meeting was a most enjoyable and informative event and that Miss Burton is a most interesting speaker.

Girl Scout Council Elect New Officers

The Greenville Girl Scout leaders met Monday night with Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, commissioner, on Monday night, January 15.

Mrs. R. B. Lee, a member of the Girl Scout Council, had charge of the program. She led a round table discussion on discipline in troop meetings. The leaders entered into the discussion readily and many interesting phases of discipline were considered. It was emphasized that troop discipline should not be school room discipline, because the Scout program is primarily a recreational program and the Scouts should enjoy the meetings and not work under too many restrictions. All the members seemed to agree that interest and work and planned activities on the part of the Scouts and their leaders were the greatest aids to better troop discipline than any other thing.

Plans were announced for the annual Girl Scouts parents' banquet to be held Tuesday night at the Rotary club.

This was the last meeting of the year and officers for the coming year were elected. Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Jr., was named chairman. Mrs. Sherman Parks was elected secretary and Mrs. Ben Harrison was named program chairman.

Mrs. Porter Gives Program At Round Table

Mrs. D. H. Conley graciously welcomed the members of the Round Table to her home Tuesday afternoon, January 16th. Mrs. E. E. Rawl, the president, presided over the business session. Mrs. Conley presented the following guests, Mrs. W. H. Woodard, Mrs. E. G. Haney, Mrs. Guy Evans, Mrs. Paul Ricks, and Mrs. C. W. Murray.

Mrs. Howard Porter, in a very charming manner, delighted the group with a most informative talk which she called "American Beauty." She told the story of Elizabeth Arden and her miraculous success in the cosmetic world. She borrowed $5,000 to begin her business and in later years refused $17,000,000 for it. She is credited with making more money in business than any other woman in the United States.

Miss Arden attributes her success to using her imagination in business, and to her aids in making women of all ages feel that they are more attractive. Her sales technique is very interesting, and she has always owned controlling stock in her business so that her decisions are final.

Some facts about the history of cosmetics were given. It was Elizabeth Arden who introduced eye shadow and mascara to the women of the world. Her chief competitor has always been Helene Rubinstein. The ingredients used in creams were discussed and the fact that price and package do not always indicate quality has been proven by laboratory tests. Elizabeth Arden products are attractively packaged as Mrs. Porter pointed out by displaying some of the items lent her by Bissette's. Her other interests include horse racing and two farms.

Mrs. J. W. Higgs gave a most interesting special report.

The hostess served a very attractive and delicious salad plate with ham biscuits, cheese straws, olives, nuts, and coffee.

Protestantism Subject Of Talk At Aries Club

Continuing a study of the religions of the world, Mrs. T. G. Basnight Jr. presented a paper on "The History of Protestantism" at the Aries Book Club when it met Thursday night with Mrs. A. W. Bryan.

"The reason for the beginning of the church," began Mrs. Basnight, "was God's love for sinful man." It was a catholic church in its beginning — a universal church for all Christians. The division which led to the establishment of the Protestant church came as a result of the lack of spiritual satisfaction to be found in the autocratic Roman Catholic church which assumed dictatorial power over its people during the 16th century.

Mrs. Basnight vividly traced the influence of Luther, Zwingli, Cranmer, Calvin and other reformers on the lines of the people during the Reformation. She told how they repudiated the ultimate authority of the Roman Catholic church councils over the souls of men and set up instead tenets of belief based on faith in God and Christ alone as the head of the church instead of the Pope.

"In taking this position," stated the speaker, "the Protestant faith broke the chain which so long had kept men in endless fear and spiritual bondage. It also sought to exalt the church as a fellowship of believers."

She concluded her brief history by stating that the first vigorous movements among Protestantism led to the many different sects, each teaching a doctrine according to its own particular views.

During a business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Harry Forbes, two members, Mrs. John Reynolds and Mrs. Astor Richardson, were appointed to represent the club on the Book Club Day Committee. Routine reports followed, after which the constitution was reviewed in connection with the nomination of new members to fill vacancies in the roll. All members were urged to turn over names to Mrs. Bill Goodwin, membership chairman, before the next meeting, at which time new members will be elected.

Following the program the hostess served a sweet course with coffee to the thirteen members present.

"I Now Get Amazing Relief from Monthly Female Pains and nervous feelings several days before... by taking Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound"

"Believe me, it's no picnic to suffer distress from female functional monthly ailments such as headaches, backache and 'bearing-down' pains—at such times. What really got my goat was I'd feel so nervous, irritable and restless several days just before my period.

"A nurse who is a friend of mine suggested I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. And what an amazing medicine Lydia Pinkham's Compound is! It not only relieves this painful distress for me but also accompanying nervous tension and tired, weak feelings—of this nature. I take Pinkham's Compound every day now, because I find that this helps build up resistance against such female distress. It tastes swell in a little fruit juice! I do hope any girl or woman who suffers this way will give Pinkham's Compound a trial.

willings to spend his share of the extra millions of dollars it would have required to organize a police force, or whatever it would take to stop wars. On paper, it looked fine. No one would dare to stand up to such a powerful body and despite its orders wage ruthless war.

The afore-mentioned taxpayer has received nothing tangible from the United Nations. It was a hope... is still a hope... but that hope is fading fast.

A basis for a real peace-enforcing organization has been formed but the members are so divided, so self-centered, so willing to barter words for more words, that we wonder how it has hung together so long.

In previous tests as a peace organization the UN has a poor record of accomplishment. In its current quandary, they have not even now decided who is the "aggressor."

Such infantile statecraft gives ample evidence as to why the world is on the verge of a nervous breakdown today.

If The Shoe Were On Another Foot

John L. Lewis has done it again. Never a step backward; it's always a 'Go Forward' campaign for higher wages in the coal fields.

The personal power of this labor czar is awesome in its implications, and there recurs the constant thought of what Mr. Lewis could accomplish in other fields of endeavor. Such singlemindedness of purpose would insure success in almost anything he might undertake.

Labor leaders have often sought a greater voice in government, and among their ranks there are unquestionably able men. It is possible that once having been given new responsibilities and outlets for their talents, the country might gain through their services.

It would be fascinating to watch them operate in the fields of management, whether in industry, business or government, with all of the strange new problems they would encounter.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—Although a federal sales tax on every article except food appeals to many members of Congress as a relatively painless method of raising part of an additional fifteen or twenty billions required for rearmament, the House Ways and Means Committee has been shocked by perusal of the Treasury experts' confidential report on this subject.

Accustomed to municipal and state sales taxes of around two per cent, they had thought of a similar federal levy. But the most recent studies show that, on the basis of current expenditures in the retail market, omitting food and goods already heavily taxed under the federal excise levies, it would require at least a ten per cent federal sales tax to produce $10,000,000,000.

HURTS—Imposition of such a burden on top of local and state duties of the same kind would bring a howl of protest, in the opinion of the Ways and Means members. For, in addition to this heavy tax on the pocketbook, there would have to be another boost in current individual and corporate taxes to finance the Washington budget on a pay-as-you-spend basis.

There is likewise the possibility that this severe increase in the cost of commodities would curtail buying to such an extent that a ten per cent tax would not produce the amount estimated. It might also mean stagnation of business and industry, with resulting unemployment.

On the other hand, the failure to resort to this system of taxation would necessitate a tremendous hiking of existing individual income and corporate taxes, as well as a sharp rise in excise duties already in effect. President Truman is not fooling when he told Congress that it must "tax until it hurts."

PAY—Contrary to the general opinion, the Treasury survey suggests that even a ten per cent nationwide sales tax would seem to give a "break" to the low-income bracketers. Here are the amounts it is estimated the various income groups would pay out annually under such an impost:

Salaries to $1,000	$ 50
Salaries between $1,000 & $3,000	150
Salaries between $3,000 & $5,000	350
Salaries between $5,000 & $10,000	600
Salaries above $10,000	3,000

These figures cannot be guaranteed as mathematically accurate because a sales tax of the sort foreshadowed would undoubtedly change buying habits among the poor, the middle class and even the extremely wealthy. For one thing, there will be far less of many things for them to buy when the shift to manufacturing weapons in volume gets under way.

BURDEN—But, generally, the table above gives a fairly reasonable idea of the effect which a ten per cent federal sales tax, with food exempted, would have on various sizes of pay envelopes and pocketbooks.

The lines for and against this method of raising more money have already been drawn behind the scenes of Capitol Hill. Labor and retail representatives are bitterly opposed.

But spokesmen for large income groups and the corporations seem to favor it, figuring that they might benefit if the new burden were carried, as Mr. Truman suggested in his economic report, by the lower and middle income groups.

"STOOGES"—General "Ike" Eisenhower's political stock has gone down in value among many influential Republicans on Capitol Hill since he went abroad as the military emissary of the Truman Administration. To use their own language, they figure that he is permitting himself to be used as a "Truman stooge."

This is not written here as any criticism of General Eisenhower, for he did not seek the difficult and unpleasant assignment. He could not have declined it, if he wanted to do so.

It was represented to him, correctly, that he was the ideal individual for the delicate, diplomatic task. Nevertheless, politics being what they are, his new role has hurt him with certain so-called "professionalists" in the G.O.P.

CLASH—In looking forward to 1952, barring a war in the meanwhile, these party Warwickians anticipate another clash between the Taft and Dewey wings, even though those two individuals may not be involved personally. But they expect a dispute over the party's trend between the eastern and the midwestern factions, and Mr. Taft and Mr. Dewey symbolize the two elements.

So, in his present work, General Eisenhower has been forced into the camp of the Dewey-Dulles-Stassen-Vandenberg group as against the Taft-Hoover alignment. Moreover, in view of the faith in the former European commander, his report on the extent of our allies' remaining and willingness to fight will undoubtedly have great influence with the American people and, therefore, in G.O.P. circles generally.

It does not help General Eisenhower, politically, that Governor Dewey has already indicated that the "professor" is his favorite for the 1952 nomination.

It's The "New Atmosphere"

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The more I read the more I am convinced that the American people are trying to scare themselves to death. According to the reports of some of our news experts:

1. Our equipment is no good.
2. Our allies are no good.
3. Our guard is down.
4. Our morale is hopeless.

Someone who doesn't know better could read American periodicals and conclude that Russia has already won here probably tell him that it's time to start marching. And probably the only reason he doesn't is that he suspects it's a booby trap.

Naturally I have to admit that America is in a mess. But, after all, we have been in plenty of messes before. But before it seems that we were more certain that we would survive the ordeal. Frankly, I'm sure we'll get out of this turmoil okay, and I think that every American should feel that way. Granted, we'll have to make sacrifices; in fact, we may even have to fight the enemy on our own shores for the first time in 135 years. But while there are factors against us, there are more for us.

The Korean war will go down in my record book as a defeat for us. But the mission as originally understood was successfully executed against heavy odds. South Korea was liberated, and the Reds were driven back to the Manchurian border. Only the help of the Chinese Reds turned the tide. The Korean war has shown us that it's foolish to match our limited manpower against the millions of Asia. The Korean war has also shown us that the American soldier is a fighting piece of machinery. We cannot forget that. It helps to mention a couple of factors that will be a great help to us: (1) Everybody knows, including Stalin himself, that we can out-produce and out-invent Russia. (2) When Hitler invaded Russia in 1941, his armies took as prisoners hundreds of thousands of Russians who swarmed over the German lines because they thought they were being freed from Russian Imperialism. The bosses in Russia aren't as confident as we think they are. The Communist bosses of China are reported to be in serious trouble, and it could be worse when and if our State Department goes to work on the project.

We are Americans and we should act like Americans. Be confident that the best man will win. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

Daily Reflector Bureau

FORWARD-LOOKING—It is natural that younger folks should look more to the future, leaving settlement of current issues to their elders and reminiscences of the past to the really old. So it is not surprising that the Young Democrat Clubs of North Carolina are already planning for the 1952 political campaign, by staging a state conference at Sedgfield this week-end. The regular party organization is engaged with the project of a Jefferson-Jackson dinner, in Raleigh on February 10. That is a fixed annual event related more directly to the national than to the state level. So far as a real state party meeting the next one scheduled is the Democratic convention sometime in early summer of next year. Besides the Sedgfield conference this week, the YDC folks have projected several other statewide meetings, including an annual convention in early fall.

JAYCEES—The Young Republican Clubs also have some meetings planned and the State Junior Chamber of Commerce, non-partisan in its make-up, is arranging for observance of a different kind of "Freedom Week" sometime in February. Primary objective is to get more people to think seriously about the kind of democracy which we know as Americanism.

BUSES—Another place at which the wartime restrictions may seriously pinch North Carolina is in the acquisition of replacement school buses. Normally the state buys from 600 to 800 new buses a year. There was considerable furor over delayed deliveries on the 1950 purchases because of steel scarcity and diverted orders. That may not be entirely cleared yet. The situation now looks serious enough to justify a conference among the governor, legislative leaders and educational officials, seeking some means of getting contracts confirmed and priorities granted.

CONFERENCE—When newsman learned that Lieutenant Governor Pat Taylor and Speaker Frank Taylor, with their respective appropriations chairmen, Senator John Larkin and Representative Larry Moore, were closeted with Governor Scott they thought maybe something of political interest was cooking. It developed they also had Director of Purchase and Contract Charlie Williams, Controller Claude Douglas and Transportation Director Charlie Brown of the board of education in the conference, and the subject was school buses—very important but very prosaic.

BYRNES—North Carolinians have displayed keen interest in South Carolina affairs all along, and are particularly interested now in prospects for the administration of Governor James F. Byrnes. In his inaugural address the new Palmetto governor dealt mainly with national and international affairs. Information comes that in less formal conferences he is laying plans for substantial revision of state government machinery. One thing on his program is to restore the governor's office to its former prestige and made comparable in dignity to the chief executive offices of other states. Through the years the general assembly of South Carolina has progressively assumed for itself functions formerly in the governor's office. Some of the chief executives have not objected, others have protested but without sufficient influence to stop or reverse the trend. Governor Byrnes comes to the office with perhaps more personal prestige than any governor of any state. He served as representative and senator in the congress, as justice of the U.S. supreme court, as "assistant president" under Roosevelt and as secretary of state. If force of his reputation and experiences can not reclaim the prestige of the governor's office, our southern neighbors are in bad way. The factor of practical politics also enters the picture. Governor Byrnes happens to be more nearly of the political faith of Edgar Brown and Sol Blatt, who have run the state for years, than any of his recent predecessors.

EXAGGERATED—Your reporter has personal appreciation of what Mark Twain meant when he said the reports of his death were grossly exaggerated. Mark seemed to be spot of peeved about it. Your reporter wasn't too pleased at rumors that he had suffered a severe heart attack at the Morehead Planetarium Wednesday night, but he was gratified at the number of people who manifested concern. The incident was a temporary fainting blackout, a condition that has recurred every few years since childhood. It was not intentional or premeditated, although one good friend suggested that it was just a normal effort to steal the show—even from the "Star of Bethlehem."

REWARD—Proposal to pay a reward of $50,000 to the first person or firm to bring in a commercial oil well in North Carolina may be regarded at first as a facetious matter. Several persons, including Representative Marion Parrott of Lenoir who sponsored the bill, see nothing funny about it. The bill leaves up to the state geologist and the board of conservation and development authority to determine whether the oil yield is in "commercial" quantity.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

AS IF BY STEALTH
(Wilson Daily Times)

Not all Americans vote, it's true, but almost all Americans have the right to. Wouldn't even those who don't exercise that right be indignant if it were denied? Yet in another way they've been denied another right. No longer have they any control over the purse strings of Congress. That came about when we abandoned the gold standard in 1933. Afterward, the government could use the printing press, putting out great quantities of irredeemable money. If, like banks, it had to be liquid, keeping a sufficient reserve in gold to meet its commitments, we wouldn't forever be going into debt. We wouldn't, if the people so said, be operating on deficits. In what way could that affect the status of our people? In the first place, what we owe we owe to ourselves. Whether you hold any of those bonds or not, how would you feel if they were redeemed with a 25-cent dollar. It wouldn't change the face of your insurance policy, but it would affect its value. It wouldn't change the size of the deposits you have in banks, but you wouldn't get as much for your money. By resorting to the inflationary spiral, the national government could wipe out the public debt. It would be tantamount to robbing the people of $265 billions. It would reduce many middle class families to poverty.

It's in the manufacturing of that poverty that governments get the upper hand. It paved the way for dictatorships in Italy and Germany; it made possible the seizure of power in Russia. It could as easily pave the way for a dictatorship here. For our safety valve lies in our middle class groups. Wipe them out, as inflation did in Germany after the first war, and we have handfulls of rich and multitudes of poor. Let us recapture those purse strings from Congress, forcing the nation to return to the gold standard and we check the inflationary pressures that are beating our dollars down. Not to see it in that light is to invite disaster. Otherwise that inflation in the end will give you a dictatorship.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Retailers as well as consumers are participating in the current wave of increased buying. Retailers, however, buy for "inventory" rather than for "hoarding."

Orders at the American Furniture Mart in Chicago have been higher than even manufacturers expected, so high that some makers are declining orders from new customers. New York apparel makers report record sales since the first of the year; unprecedented sales were reported at the semi-annual market week of the California Apparel Creators in Los Angeles. The Lamp Show closes in New York today with many lines completely sold out. Grocers, appliance dealers and retailers in many other lines are increasing their stocks as much as their bankers will finance.

Retailers, like consumers, have valid reasons for this accumulative process. Like consumers, they know that manufacturers of goods containing metals will soon be cutting back civilian production as they expand military output. Like consumers, they know the government has imposed restrictions on long lists of materials and even longer lists of products.

Like consumers, they know that workers are demanding higher wages which will force prices higher. The Textile Workers Unions of America, C.I.O. is currently asking a 12 per cent wage increase for 180,000 workers and a man who doesn't realize that this will make apparel cost more has no business being in business.

Like consumers, retailers know that while soap prices were voluntarily frozen as of December 1, the price of ingredients is still rising. Tallow has gone up from 14 to 18 cents a pound since that date and hence the retail price will either have to be raised through the ceiling or manufacturers will be losing money on soap. So retailers increase their supplies.

The retailers have the same reasons as consumers have for "advance" buying, and they have a significant one in addition. That is, that consumers are buying more. Retail sales, as noted here yesterday, are from 25 to 75 per cent higher than a year ago. Sound business practice calls for inventories in ratio to sales. A retailer can't be blamed for increasing the size of his inventories by half if his sales rise 50 per cent.

Retailer hoarding, if you call it that, is both good and bad for the consumer. It is bad because higher buying tends to increase prices. It is good, because it relieves the pressure to raise prices on retailers. When retailers have to replace their soap stocks at higher prices, they will have to charge higher prices to their customers. But if they have a heavy stock at December 1 prices, they do not have to increase the retail price when the wholesale price goes up. They may, of course, and most of them probably will unless there is a price freeze.

CO-OP PLAN CUTS FURNITURE COSTS
Four Los Angeles furniture stores have united to form an organization which may be copied in other localities.

The stores have created a buying and advertising organization. The buying organization will order in carload lots, thereby obtaining the lowest freight costs, which are usually highest in the Far West. They will also use cooperative warehousing, reduce storage and handling costs. And they will join in cooperative newspaper advertising, thereby sharing in larger space and greater sales impact. Management of each store will continue to be independent.

ERROR IN FIGURES ON EXCISE TAX
Through an error in calculation the other day, this department was led to faulty conclusion. In discussing the relative merits of an excise tax at the manufacturing and retail levels, we wound up in the right church but the wrong pew.

This is what we should have said: If the manufacturer's price of a gadget is $1, and the wholesaler's margin is 10 per cent, his selling price will be $1.10. If the retailer's mark-up is 40 per cent, his selling price will be $1.54. A 10 per cent excise tax at retail would bring the total to $1.69 4-10.

Hal Boyle's Column

By TOM LAMBERT (For HAL BOYLE)

A U. N. Airbase, South Korea — (AP)—Not all the men killed in the Korean fighting against communism are hit by bullets or shells.

Injury and death come to some in the routine, glamorous jobs of driving trucks or jeeps, or piloting airplanes, or unloading ration trucks.

There were, for instance, no Purple Hearts for the American airmen mangled recently in an accident here, or for the South Korea laborers who shared their pain.

This airfield, only a few miles from the front, is slender, mud-floored runway beside an icy river in a frozen valley, between snow-covered mountains.

The aerial truckbuses of the Korea war—the C-46s and C-47s—had been landing gingerly, plowing up curling sprays of mud as the wheels hit the runway. They look off the same way, straining against mud, then racing their shows across the river and down the valley before climbing out heavily over the snowy peaks.

There were half a dozen transports parked along the edge of the runway, so close that their lofty noses occasionally were spattered with the mud flung up by arriving or departing planes.

Then one C-46 approached for a landing.

The pilot lowered his wheels and his flaps and nursed his throttles judiciously, aiming for his end of the runway so he wouldn't overrun the short field.

The plane skimmed low, and lower, and the wheels finally touched down precisely on the end of the runway. Then the right wheel collapsed. With a groaning shriek of grinding metal, the plane half fell, as if on one knee. The propeller on the right engine threw up a roaring gyser of mud, and the right wing sheared a spray of dirty water along the side of the field.

The pilot fought the plane valiantly—we could hear that as one engine roared harshly under impact of the right throttle. It seemed as if he would make it.

But suddenly the wildly swinging plane and the mud overcame his straining arms and legs, and the C-46 jerked sharply off the runway.

The right wing flailed another C-46 and ripped an engine from the parked plane's wing, tossing it high. It fell nose down on its propeller hub in the mud.

The runaway plane lurched back sharply and veered again, into another C-46. The left wing of the latter crunched and began bleeding gasoline.

The runaway ship staggered again and then, in a death spasm, it lowered its nose and plunged into a truck loaded with rations.

Everyone on the field had stood as if hypnotized, and the open-mouthed trance lasted a second longer.

Then the spell was broken. There was a muddy rush for the planes and urgent, strident cries of "Litters" and "Ambulance."

Someone climbed hastily up the side of the truck and into the smashed cockpit of the airplane and began sawing furiously through the brightly colored turn wire and plexiglass and aluminum.

The litter bearers first reached two South Korean laborers who had been struck by one or possibly all three planes. The men were carried groaning to the ambulance.

Other men had climbed the truck to the airplane's nose, and the pilot was dragged out. He was limp as a rag doll. His arms swung loosely. Trails of blood ran down from his dark hair. His legs were twisted. One was bent in the sickening fashion.

He was lifted into the ambulance. The awkward vehicle bounced through the mud to the green canvas field hospital.

Another airman was dragged out, limp as the first, and the shaking crew chief battered his way through the navigator's plexiglass dome in the plane's roof.

A thin crowd stood outside the hospital tent, murmuring in hushed voices about the accident.

Inside the tent doctors and medical aides worked smoothly and quickly over the pilot, whose bared chest rose and fell jerkily as his lungs groped for air. An aid man began straightening the pilot's smashed and twisted leg and fastening it to a splint.

A wrecker began towing the smashed airplanes from the runway, and the C-46s and C-47s which had been circling anxiously overhead began landing, gingerly.

Washington Letter

Washington—Earl G. Woodworth, hair-stylist to the capital's "VIPs" (very important poodles), says there are almost as many variations in poodle clips as there are in hair-styles for women.

Poodle-pampering is a Saturday avocation of Mr. Woodworth, who since 1944 has been employed in the textile research and development division of the Army's Quartermaster Corps.

Most of the VIP clients belong to other VIPs, but these are very important people, not poodles.

There's Lulei, for instance. He's the personable black male poodle pet of Mrs. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French ambassador. Lulei is the offspring of Poodle-Pundit Walter Lippman's poodles, "Courage" and "Brioché," who are patrons of Mr. Woodworth's art. Others include pets of Senator Lehman of New York and Abe Fortas, Washington lawyer and former under-secretary of the interior.

Mr. Woodworth takes his kit of tools, including hair and toenail clippers, to the homes of poodle owners, who for various reasons consider clipping essential to the poodle's well-being, happiness or perhaps vanity.

"I always try to bear in mind two very important things, he told me. 'What kind of clip is desired by the owner and what kind is best suited to the poodle. These vary from utility to show trims and run a gamut of special class variations.'

There's the "Terrier Trim" for instance. This is achieved by clipping the poodle's hair (which is more like sheep's wool) smooth through the back, shoulders and hips, with full legs, with or without clean feet with or without pom on the tail, full ears, and various head dresses.

"Some desire Whiskers and some do not," Mr. Woodworth added. There's also the "Royal Dutch Trim," which Mr. Woodworth describes as "exotic." Generally this one leaves a "high shoulder, high hip and a clean mid-section and neck and small head, usually with tassels on the ear tips."

Most popular of poodle clips, however, seems to be about as reasonable as a man's haircut. It "cleans the poodle down rather short through body and legs, leaves a clean face and feet." While it gives a well-groomed, smart appearance, Mr. Woodworth says it's liked because it's simple to care for.

Jesus Meets Growing Hostility ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 1:40-51:12

A leper came to Jesus and, kneeling at His feet, begged to be made clean. Jesus, touched, stretched out His hand and healed him, telling him to tell no one, but the man went out and told everyone he met.

After that, when Jesus was again in Capernaum, such multitudes came to see Him that there was no room to receive them, as they were gathered about the door of the house, and Jesus preached to them.

Jesus healed a man of the palsy with the words, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee," whereas some scribes present took Him to task, saying He blasphemed, for no one but God could forgive a man his sins.

Again, Jesus angered the temple authorities by healing a man in the synagogue on the sabbath day, and they consulted together and with others as to how they might destroy Him.

MEMORY VERSE—Mark 2:17.

Jesus Meets Growing Hostility

CHURCH AUTHORITIES PLOT TO KILL HIM

Scripture—Mark 1:40-51:12

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

MORE OF Christ's activities are related in today's lesson, activities that healed and blessed the common people, but which roused the ire of the church authorities. The first miracle in our lesson is the healing of a leper. The man came to Jesus and, kneeling at His feet, besought the Lord to make him clean. You remember that all lepers had to warn others to keep away from them, for fear of contagion, by crying, "Unclean! Unclean!"

Touched by the man's faith, Jesus reached out His hand and touched him, and straightway he was cleansed and whole. Jesus told him to tell no one, but to go to the priest and "offer for thy cleansing the things which Moses commanded," in other words, obey the Jewish law.

However, the man did not obey the Master, but told everyone he met of the miracle. We can suppose with joy that he simply could not refrain from telling everyone, objected to this. In their hearts they reasoned that no one but God could forgive sins. They did not know that they were in the presence of One who could forgive sins, even as His Heavenly Father.

Jesus read their minds, and asked them why they reasoned thus. "But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (He saith unto the sick of the palsy), I say unto thee, Arise, take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house."

The man immediately rose, took his bed and went forth, to the amazement of the crowd, who said, "We never saw it on this fashion." Going to the sea again, Jesus passed a publican, or taxgatherer, seated at his place of business. He was an outcast from his people because he collected taxes for the master—Rome—and incidentally filled his own pockets with his collections over and above what he sent to their conquerors. Jesus called to him to follow Him, and Levi left his post and

"And when Jesus heard it, He saith unto them, They that are whole have no need of a physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners."—Mark 2:17.

In spite of Jesus' command, Jesus had been preaching and healing in the various towns of Galilee, but when He returned to Capernaum, the house in which He was staying was besieged with people who wanted to see Him, and with miracles.

The multitude was such that there was no room to receive them. Jesus preached to them. Inside the house a dramatic scene took place. A hopelessly paralyzed man was brought by his friends to be healed of Jesus. He and his friends must have had great faith to move them to bring him.

Finding that they could not enter the house by the door because of the milling crowds, they climbed up on the flat roof of the house, which was not high, and cutting away a section of it, let the man down into the room. Jesus' first words were not a healing of the body, but of the soul. He said, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee."

Some scribes who were present based on copyrighted outlines produced by The International Council of Religious Education and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

followed Him. Jesus ate with "publicans and sinners" because they needed Him to save them. When rebuked for that He said, "They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

He was also accused of breaking the Sabbath because, in passing through a wheat field on that day He allowed His disciples to pluck kernels to eat. "The Sabbath was made for man," He said, "not man for the Sabbath." Even more reprehensible, according to the scribes and Pharisees, was Christ's healing of a man's withered hand in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. That act outraged them so much that they held a counsel to see how they might trap and destroy him. Oh, for such a presence to bring us all to a sense of our sins, to save us and make us walk in uprightness, so the whole world might live henceforth in righteousness and peace!

High-Scoring Pirates Rout Atlantic Christian, 83-35

Hodges Leads Host Of Scorers With 17 Points

Arch-Rivals Held To Lone Field Goal In Second Half As Buccaneers Tighten Defense; Play Elon There Saturday

By BILL LLOYD
Reflector Sports Editor

Height, a terrific pressing defense and a jackpot of fast-breaking scores led East Carolina to an easy one-sided 83-35 romp over arch-rival Atlantic Christian here last night before a jam-packed house in Wright gymnasium.

A beautiful exhibition of sharp-shooting biased away the Pirates scoring guns, with their staunch defense holding the Bulldogs to a single field goal in the second half of play.

Bobby "Rebound" Hodges, 6'8" ex-schoolboy All-Stater at Kingston, paced the host of East Carolina point-getters with 17 points, as well as keeping both backboards under control throughout the one-sided North State affair.

Every player on the Buccaneers' bench contributed his share of at least two points, with forwards Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman sinking 14 and 15 points respectively while little Toddy Fennell rounded out the two-digit bucket brigade with 13 points.

Free-throwing Atlantic Christian, scoring more points from the charity toss line than on shots from the floor, was led by forward Jay Clark who dipped in a lone field goal and seven out of seven gratis shots for a total of nine points. The Bulldogs made 19 out of 28 free throws, while hitting only eight field goals.

Out front by a ten-point 34-24 margin at intermission, Coach Howard Forter's fabulous fast-breakers poured on the scoring steam during the last stanza, as they doubled the score 36-29 at the 7:06 mark, with Russell making good on two free throws.

It was not until the 14:48 mark that the Bulldogs were able to register their only field goal during the second stanza, with reserve forward Ed Warren hooking, making the scoreboard read, 70-33.

During the waning minutes, the East Carolina eagles made the scoreboard light up like a tingling pin ball machine, with the reserves doing most of the scoring.

Last night's victory was the Pirates' fourth win in the conference against three defeats. The Buccaneers travel to Elon College for their next North State scrap Saturday night.

James hasn't signed a new contract but Athletic Director Robert J. Kane said yesterday that he had made known his decision to remain here.

James has received lucrative offers from Duke and Minnesota, Kane said.

Dick Groat Fifth In Scoring; Sam Ranzino Tenth

New York, Jan. 19—(AP)—Bill Mikvy may need vowels but not basketball points. The sharpshooter from Temple is still the nation's leading college scorer. Jimmy Slaughter of South Carolina is tied for second, Dick Groat of Duke is fifth, and Sammy Ranzino of North Carolina State tenth.

Mikvy—you pronounce it milk-vee—has averaged 27.7 points in 13 games through last Saturday, the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau says. Slaughter's average is 25.5, Groat's, 24.2, and Ranzino's, 21.1.

Mikvy's 373 points for 13 games also is high for the season among major colleges. Groat and Ranzino are pressing him, although both have played more games. Groat had 363 points in 15 games through last Saturday, and Ranzino 358 in 17 games.

Football Hall Of Fame Is Arranged

New Brunswick, N.J., Jan. 19—(AP)—The Associated Press and the National Football Hall of Fame said today that a nationwide poll will be held to pick an all-time All-America college football team. Men chosen for the first three all-time teams will automatically participate in consideration in the Hall of Fame to be built at Rutgers University here. The final selection lies in the hands of an "honors court." No Hall of Fame elections have been made as yet.

Announcement of the poll in which Associated Press member newspapers and radio stations will participate was made by Arthur Levans, executive secretary of the Hall of Fame, and Ted Smits, general sports editor of the Associated Press.

"The National Hall of Fame recognizes the universal prestige of the Associated Press and its experience in conducting polls of this character," said Levans.

Phants Journey To Roanoke Rapids For NE Tilt Tonight

After playing three straight tilts in their own backyard, Greenville's Phantoms launch their Northeastern conference road campaign tonight against Roanoke Rapids there.

A preliminary junior varsity game between the Baby Phantoms and the Roanoke Rapids J.V.'s is scheduled at 6:30 with the varsity game following.

Coach Bo Farley held lengthy drills this week, in order to get the Phantoms' scoring stars sharpened for tonight's contest.

Supporting a 1-2 record in the conference, Greenville's hard-wooders are definitely on the rebound after two consecutive losses to Washington and Elizabeth City, and will be checking their basket sights to improve their record.

Johnny Aman, who recently returned to the squad after being out with an ankle injury, will boost the Phantoms' hopes against a highly-regarded Roanoke Rapids Jimmy Dillingham and Virginius Haymes, two high-scoring forwards for the Phants, will carry the scoring threat or the locals tonight, while Sydney "Free Throw Demon" Briley will be the main cog in the scoring wheel from the center position.

Briley has been a consistent backboard worker for the Farley-men all year, and will be counted on heavily for the rebound duties.

Little Glenn Scott and Aman or Jake Higgs will get the call at the two guard spots.

Big boy Wallace Conway and Eddie Farley will be the key reserves for the Phants on their first Northeastern road trip.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19—(AP)—North Carolina's Tar Heels tangled with George Washington University tonight in the feature of a three-game card for Southern Conference basketball teams.

Victory for the Tar Heels would host them into a fourth-place tie with Duke and West Virginia University in the conference standings. North Carolina goes into the game with a 4-2 circuit record.

George Washington, one of the season's disappointments, has a 4-5 conference mark.

LaSalle Brings Impressive Record To State's Coliseum

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 19—LaSalle's Explorers, described by Coach Everett Case as "one of the nation's best basketball teams," invades Raleigh Saturday night for a big inter-sectional battle with North Carolina State's Wolfpack.

Case, who has personally scouted LaSalle on two trips by his Wolfpack team to Philadelphia, regards the Friendly City quint as probably the toughest inter-sectional team State will face this year. "They're better than Villanova, a team which has beaten us twice," Case comments, "and unless we play our finest game of the year they'll beat our pants off."

A near capacity crowd of approximately 11,500 persons are expected to be on hand at the Reynolds Coliseum for the State-LaSalle clash. Approximately 1,200 tickets are still available, but they likely will be exhausted before the 8:15 p.m. tip-off Saturday night. If remaining duets are sold 12,500 persons will see the game.

LaSalle will bring a very impressive record against the Wolfpack, having won 12 of 14 games against the nation's top clubs. Their only losses have been by three points to Western Kentucky and by eight points to Duquesne. Victories have come over such outstanding teams as Niagara, Temple, Bowling Green and St. Joseph's of Phila. among their dozen triumphs.

State will carry a season's mark of 15 wins in 17 starts against the Explorers who last year whipped the Wolfpack by 66-51 in one of the worst defeats a Case-coached State team has ever suffered. At stake will be the Wolfpack's current standing among the nation's 10 top cage outfits, since a loss at the hands of the Philadelphia five likely would drop the Wolfpack from the choice group.

Clues To Cosmic Rays Studied Deep Underground In Salt Mine

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

Two thousand feet down at the bottom of a nearby salt mine, Cornell University physicists are seeking clues to things happening high up in the earth's atmosphere.

The clues are about cosmic rays, a gold mine of information about powerful atomic forces. The salt mine work is conducted by Dr. Kenneth Gleslen and Dr. Giuseppe Cocconi of the Laboratory of Nuclear Studies.

Come From Space

Cosmic rays approach the earth from somewhere in outer space. They are nuclei of atoms, mostly hydrogen, a few helium and some heavier elements. One of the most energetic, hitting a particle of air, sometimes sets off a chain ex-plison building up to an incredible number of atomic particles. Occasionally the number is a hundred million, and the fragments spread over an area equivalent to several football grids.

Of the many cosmic ray particles which constantly rain down on the earth, only one type appears to get through the two thousand feet of rock to the mine bottom. It has tremendous energy, and appears to be what physicists call a meson. This is a material particle with two or three hundred times the weight of an electron. It is produced in the earth's atmosphere by the primary rays of other types which have survived the long trip from outer space. It lives only a fraction of a second.

In Straight Lines

The mesons entering the mine travel in straight lines. But they do not all come from the same direction. The salt mine detectors show some from directly overhead, and others at wide side angles. One angling ray penetrated ten thousand feet of rock—farther than any other ray in the world's records.

Three Boys Die In Burning House

Fort Mill, S. C., Jan. 19—(AP)—A house fire last night claimed the lives of three young Fort Mill brothers.

The bodies of Marshall Harvey, 13, Thomas Lloyd Harvey, 11, and William Grady Harvey, 9, were recovered from the charred remains of the frame house. All three bodies were badly burned.

The youngsters' mother and stepfather were both working. Their mother, Mrs. Sewanee Harvey Combs, was working an hour overtime in a nearby Springs Cotton Mill. The blaze was discovered at 10:40 p. m., twenty minutes before she would have left for home.

The stepfather is a taxi driver and also was expected home a few minutes after the fire was reported. Firemen who first reached the burning house said they could hear the screams of the boys, but the roof collapsed before they could reach them.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Mystery Flares At Sea Sought By Coast Guard

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 18—(AP)—Mysterious flares at sea off Charleston Harbor about 11 o'clock last night launched units of the Coast Guard on a search that was still underway this morning.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard said the flares were spotted apparently close to the entrance of Charleston Harbor by a lookout at the Sullivan's Island Air and Sea Rescue Station.

A boat was put out immediately and search through the night without results. A fresh crew put to sea early this morning to continue the search.

The Coast Guard buoy tender Blackhawk, en route from Charleston to Winyah Bay near Georgetown, was diverted to join the search but radioed that nothing was found.

Graham Is Assigned To Alaskan Mediation Job

Washington, Jan. 19—(AP)—Dr. Frank P. Graham, will be moderator at a meeting in Anchorage, Alaska, next Monday and Tuesday which will make plans to speed Alaskan defense construction this year.

Dr. Graham, former Senator from North Carolina, will act as a consultant to the Interior Department. Senator Hun (D-Wyo.), chairman of the senate armed services subcommittee which visited Alaska last fall and proposed the meeting, said he did not know what Graham would be paid beyond his expenses. Other sources said yesterday such consultants are often paid on a basis of about $15,000 a year, or about $50 a day.

No Indications Of Gas Or Tire Rationing Now

Winston-Salem, N. C., Jan. 18—(AP)—The National Defense Transport Administrator said here yesterday that "there is nothing at this time to indicate impending gasoline or tire rationing."

"But," said James K. Knudson of Washington, "this is definitely a time to think of conservation. I wouldn't advise anyone to go out and burn up any tires on the highway deliberately."

Knudson, a tall, broad-shouldered Utah Republican, flew into Winston-Salem yesterday afternoon to address the annual banquet of the Traffic Club here last night.

Don't Talk About Troubles; Correct Them Says Mother

When many folks get to feeling badly they just don't know what to do. They fret and stew around, tell their neighbors, their friends and their family how badly they feel—and they usually do feel miserable. But they don't help matters any by telling other folks how badly they feel all the time, because most folks don't want to be around them when they act that way. Now, for example, take Mrs. Zina Lee Bowman, Route 6, Clees Ferry Road, Nashville, Tennessee. When she got to feeling badly, she began taking HADACOL and found that by taking HADACOL she gave her system Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron in which she was deficient.

Here is Mrs. Bowman's own statement: "I was so weak I could hardly do my house work. I am 30 years old. I am the mother of 9 children. I was so nervous I hardly wanted the children to speak. I had to rest after I got breakfast and before I cleaned my house. I have taken almost 4 bottles of HADACOL, and I feel fine. The children can make all the noise they wish, and it doesn't bother me. In fact, I join them in their ball games and other games. We are a happy family, thanks to HADACOL."

Celluloid Collars, High Button Shoes.. They're Again In Style

By MARTHA COLE
AP Newsfeatures
Terrell, Tex.—The high-school kids in Terrell are wearing pointed toe, high button shoes to school. And the girls are wearing whalebone corsets that hook in front and lace up the back.

They got them from the I. Levy store, where their grandparents used to buy nothing but the best of everything. I. Levy opened that store a little more than 50 years ago.

He brought to this little town of a few thousand, set amid the cotton fields of North Texas, laces from France, silks from China, Oriental rugs, imported woollens and damask.

There it all was—old lace dresses with the high collars stiffened with whalebone, rotating on the racks, yellowed linen suits for men, ventilated Panama sailors—when the auctioneer's voice boomed among the dusty shelves and the musty racks.

There were celluloid collars, whalebone corsets, the cloche hats of the 1920's, feather boas, quinine hair tonic, jet buttons, lawn corset covers, velour coats, men's linen dress shirts with embroidered bibs.

The store had been closed since Levy died two years ago. To settle the estate that goes to the widow and one son, it was opened up again, and the relics of half a century auctioned off.

To the old folks in Terrell it was said.

"I can remember when I. Levy's was the finest store between Dallas and Shreveport," said Mrs. Ben Wilson of Terrell. "I still have two linen towels from there that I got as wedding gifts back in 1916. When Mr. Levy told you something was linen, you knew it was linen."

"He wouldn't sell you anything unless he liked you. Some of the women he didn't like had to send their friends in to buy something for them.

Claude Rousseau of Terrell said, "I don't suppose Mr. Levy had bought any new stock in 15 years."

People stopped buying those fine things during the depression. During the war Levy would have nothing to do with the second-rate merchandise that was available for a store in a small town.

So he just sat in the back of his store amid all the fine silks and damasks rotting in their boxes while the rest of the world whizzed down the highway outside in their sleek and shiny cars.

Veteran Actor Jack Holt Dies

Hollywood, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Death has claimed Jack Holt, 62, hard-riding cowboy of both the open and the cinema range.

He died last night at the Veterans' Hospital in west Los Angeles of coronary thrombosis. He had suffered three severe heart attacks since shortly before Christmas.

His son, Tim, also an actor in westerns, was with him almost constantly during his last illness.

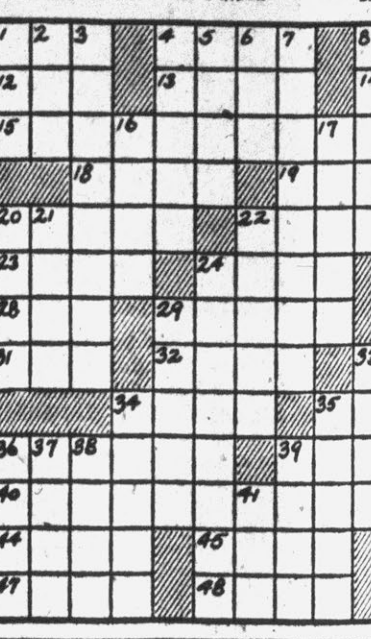

The elder Holt was a recognized star in Hollywood for 20 years in a row, a most enviable record in motion pictures. And he successfully bridged the transition from silent to talking films. He played the lead roles in nearly all the movie versions of Zane Grey's novels.

Starting his film career in 1912, Holt was still active in pictures up to his last illness. He recently finished playing the part of an Indian chief in the picture, "Across the Wide Missouri," starring Clark Gable. The film will be released soon.

Through his mother, Holt was a direct descendant of John Marshall, Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. He married Margaret Woods, St. Paul society woman, in 1916. They had the son, Tim, and a daughter, Jennifer Marshall Holt, an actress. Mrs. Holt obtained a Mexican divorce decree in 1933.

Feldspar Found In Saskatchewan

Regina—(AP)—The Department of Natural Resources says analysis of Saskatchewan's first major find of feldspar has shown it to be top quality for use in the manufacture of pottery or glass.

The samples were found early last summer by Dr. J. B. Mawdsley of the University of Saskatchewan during radioactive investigation in the Nunn Lake area in northern Saskatchewan.

Bootleggers Hit, Liquor Sales Up

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—December's increase in legal whiskey sales, says State ABC Chairman R. W. Winston, is due to putting bootleggers on the run.

Winston reported yesterday that liquor sold in ABC stores last month ran to $6,489,748. This is an increase of $442,337 over December, 1949.

Centenarian Is Not Worried By Difficult Times

Montreal—People haven't changed much in the last 100 years, says Mrs. Mariah H. Breckon of Montreal. She should be a fair judge, since she recently celebrated her 100th birthday.

"I've lived through many wars, watched five English monarchs and 21 American presidents come and go," she reminisced. "Some changes I've seen have been for the better—some were not—but I do not believe that the people of today are really any different from those of 90 or 100 years ago."

Mrs. Breckon was born Mariah Dorr of Clayton, N. Y., in 1850 and, when 21, married John Breckon. They settled in Ottawa where Mrs. Breckon took up oil painting. She has had several of her works on exhibition, but had to give up painting eight years ago because of failing eyesight.

About the future? "My generation had its difficult times but we survived," she said, "and I know the world will straighten itself out again."

Substitute For Uranium In India

New Delhi—(AP)—The annual output of the Monazite Sands factory in southwest India will be 207 tons of thorium nitrate, used as a substitute for uranium, 1,500 tons of rare earth choleoides and 1,800 tons of trisodium phosphate, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said.

Nehru added that the government had received reports of the existence of Monazite Sands in other parts of India but would postpone erection of factories in those areas until the southwest India deposits had been fully exploited.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bonnie C. Hall

Chapter 16
Bert, thoroughly annoyed with his sister, was all for letting her go her own way. But this time it was Clayton Howell who protested. He had not expected to remain ashore long, he explained. He had seen Algiers during his stint in the Army. Therefore, he would be happy to accompany Miss Hasbrook back to "ship."

"She speaks only English," he pointed out, "and I don't think she should go alone. She might have difficulty making herself understood." Only his eyes, as he said good-bye to Molly and Bert, betrayed his disappointment as having to forego the excursion. Molly, watching them go, experienced a new feeling of respect for Clayton Howell. He was every inch a gentleman, she decided. She had known it all along, but up until now it had not struck her as anything out of the ordinary.

It was obvious that he had wanted very much to stay. But he had gone rather than let Patricia Hasbrook, an American girl whom he scarcely knew, walk unescorted through the streets of a strange foreign city. And perhaps because he believed that she, Molly, and Bert wanted to be alone. Personally, Molly felt a little miffed at Bert. After all, Patricia, stinker that she was, was his sister, his responsibility. In a way, Clayton Howell's gallant gesture made Bert seem - well, yes, small.

All of this was forgotten, however, in the fascinating experience of exploring Algiers with Bert. It was all the more exciting because they were doing it mainly on foot and completely on their own. They prowled around through the principal streets, peering into shop windows, meeting all manner of people dressed in all manner of costumes; occasionally asking questions, but getting unintelligible answers, and finding their way around as best they could.

Presently, without knowing just how they got there, they found themselves in the old city where the streets were circuitous and steep, and in some places so narrow that there was scarcely room to walk arm in arm. In a way, it was like wandering through the native quarters of Istanbul, but she had never ventured there except as a member of a large party who only wanted to see the high spots and hurry on.

It was by sheer luck that they suddenly found themselves in the Rue de la Kasbah, the quaint street whose five hundred steps led up to the old citadel. Hand in hand they climbed the terrace steps, trying to count them but giving up before they had gone very far. As they descended they passed strange windowless houses whose only visible means of support was one another and whose overhanging balconies suggested lovers' trysts, prompting Bert to say:

"Gee, it must be tough on the local Romeo, climbing those ramshackle balconies. Remind me to kiss you, sweet, when we get to the top of the mountain."

He was like that - combining nonsense with romance. She would have to get used to it, Molly supposed, though she did wish he wouldn't talk as though he were doing her a favor by falling in love with her.

With no consciousness that time was passing and that they were due back at the ship long before dark, they wandered leisurely through the marble courtyard, peering into the arched galleries that surrounded it. They saw the chair of the martyred Christians, and the famous pavilion where the indiscreet day, striking a French Consul with a fan, precipitated a war that lost his people an empire.

"It just goes to show the havoc one hasty act can cause," Molly pointed out, after reading the English inscription on the plaque. "If he'd given it a second thought..."

"If you're thinking about me," Bert said, "and the way I fell in love with you all of a sudden, and want you to marry me - well, I don't need any second thought. Of course, if you're not sure of yourself..."

He did not finish the sentence. Instead, he put an arm around her and kissed her ever so gently on the lips. Perhaps it was the gentleness of that kiss, or it might have been the pleading note in his voice that touched her. But somehow, in that moment, Molly believed she was sure of herself - and of him.

And so by the time they left the citadel they had come to an understanding. Yes, they were in love. They would be married just as soon as Bert could convince his father that he was ready to stop playing and settle down.

They must have stayed at the citadel much longer than they realized, for when they began to retrace their footsteps Molly was disturbed to see that it was almost sundown.

"I should have thought of that," she told Bert. "There are no twilight in this part of the world. The sun goes down - and then, all of a sudden, it's dark."

Seal Sale Campaign Workers Attain Goal After Long And Extended Drive

By MARTHA S. FORBES

The citizens of Greenville should be proud of the workers who led and directed the TB Seal Sale Drive in Pitt County, for this is the first time in several years that the goal has been reached, although previous drives almost reached the top.

This year's goal was set at $7,000, and though the length of time devoted to raising the funds had to be extended, the workers who headed it worked unceasingly in their efforts to meet the quota, and on Tuesday morning of this week, they were happy to announce that the collections amounted to $7,004.31.

Mrs. Bryan Brown, executive secretary appointed to serve during the Christmas Seal Sale drive by the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association Commission, was ably assisted by Mrs. D. A. Evans, chairman, and Mrs. T. G. Basnight Jr., co-chairman of the drive, appointed by Mrs. J. H. Thomas, president of the Greenville Service League. That organization yearly assumes the responsibility of handling and directing the sale of TB seals. Individual members of the League cooperate, and it is through the combined efforts of all these individuals that Pitt County reached the top.

The TB Seal Sale got off to a big start on Monday, November 20, and was to terminate Christmas. However, due to the overlapping of the Community Chest drive and the slowness with which the letters were returned, the leaders decided to extend the drive into January. The money was raised through bond sales, booth sales, solicitations by mail, sales of stamps through the schools, and bangle sales. There was no house-to-house canvassing. Every agency, organization and school in Pitt County were contacted by volunteer workers who unselfishly gave of their time in this worthy effort. Coordinating all the reports and organizing each day's work were Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Basnight.

For the most part the response was generous and prompt. People in the county districts did not contribute as much as in former years in proportion to the overall total, but the city oversubscribed its quota and thus were the leaders able to reach the goal.

Special mention should be made of the fine work done by the Negro workers, headed by Mrs. Belle May Atkinson, chairman. They contributed much to the drive and cooperated in contacting all Negro schools and as many individuals as possible. Assisting Mrs. Atkinson were Mrs. Ernestine Braxton Harris, Mrs. Annie Pugh, Mrs. Fannie Gorham, Mr. Lance Wooten, Prof. W. H. Davenport and Prof. H. B. Sugas.

In a compilation of statistics, this reporter found that 3,975 letters were mailed to residents of Pitt County, containing $2.00 worth of stamps. Of these 2034 were returned with money enclosed, 298 were returned with the stamps but without a penny, 203 were undelivered by the Post Office due to various causes, and 1440 were not acknowledged in any way.

Though the drive has officially ended, the leaders are asking that all who have neglected to contribute send in money or return their stamps at any time. As the amount raised was a bare minimum to cover the needs of the TB Association in the county, it is hoped that those who have not returned their letters will do so in the near future.

There is a need for new equipment and improvement in present facilities for TB work in the county. The money raised in the annual drive is divided among county, state and national associations, with 75% remaining "at home" for local use. One of the first things for which the money raised this year will be spent will be for bringing a Mobile Unit to Greenville for two days. The unit, which is scheduled to visit the college campus in February, will be brought to Five Points by the county for two days, at which time anyone may have a free X-ray taken.

Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Basnight wish to express their sincere appreciation for the fine spirit of cooperation on the part of Service League members and to every individual who made a contribution. Their task was a hard one and a big one, but the gratification of reaching the goal recompensed them for their work.

Stockholders Of Loan Firm Meet

The shareholders and members of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association reviewed the organization's record of accomplishment during the past 12 months, reelected its four officers and eight directors, and planned its 1951 program of work during the association's annual meeting here Wednesday, January 17.

In the annual report, the association noted the calendar year closed with assets at a new peak of $2,978,114.46. This was an increase in assets during 1950 of $379,046.76, which is one of the greatest years of expansion.

In 1950, the association served approximately 2500 people, many of them lifelong citizens of the community, with many newcomers.

The Secretary and Treasurer, A. C. Tadlock, stated, "from the financial standpoint, the growth has been sound, in our estimation, because it has been accompanied by substantial additions to reserves, which are our shock absorbers, and because the new loans we have made represent sound lending practice."

In closing, Mr. Tadlock remarked, "The hour for the recapture of the world by the self-reliant individual is late, but we believe that the victory can be won from within and from without. To that purpose we dedicate this institution as we go into 1951."

The officers of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association reelected are Dink James, attorney and judge of County Courts, president; G. V. Smith, tobaccoist and farmer, vice-president; A. C. Tadlock, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Allie P. Whitehurst, assistant secretary, and treasurer.

Directors are Dink James, Guy V. Smith, A. C. Tadlock, Mrs. Allie P. Whitehurst, M. B. Massey, S. M. Crisp, J. A. Collins, M. K. Blount, and Alton Barrett.

Southern Pines, N.C., Jan. 19—(AP)—Camp MacKall, home of the 13th Airborne Division in the last war, will be used again in the current emergency.

The huge camp, located in Moore, Richmond and Hoke Counties, will not be reactivated unless an all-out mobilization is ordered, Lang said. The large water plant and numerous buildings in the area are reported in good condition.

Appeal Taken To Supreme Court In Damage Suit

J. D. Parker, Jr., and wife, defendants in a civil action brought in Superior Court this week by Godfrey Oakley, local insurance man, and wife Carrie G. Oakley, were awarded $600 damages to an automobile as the result of a collision in Greenville last April.

Oakley appealed the case to the Supreme Court.

Oakley and his wife instituted two separate suits against Parker and wife, asking for damages to their automobile and also personal injuries sustained by Mrs. Oakley. Auto damages amounted to $654.06 and personal injuries amounted to $2,500 plus $35 medical expenses.

Attorney J. B. James for Parker instituted a cross-action in both suits and requested that each be combined into one which was granted by Judge Leo Carr.

The jury answered "No" to the question, "Was plaintiff (Carrie Oakley) injured and was plaintiff's automobile damaged due to defendant's negligence as alleged in the complaint?"; "Yes" to the question, "Was defendant's automobile damaged due to the negligence of the plaintiff?"; "No" to the question, "Did defendant contribute to own injury and damage as alleged by the plaintiff?"

The suit resulted from an accident last April 6 at the intersection of Cotanche and 9th streets. Mrs. Oakley was driving east on 9th and stated she stopped before entering Cotanche. As she pulled across the intersection, the Parker car, driven by Mrs. Parker, crashed into the rear of her car.

Oakley's attorney Albion Dunn appealed the case yesterday afternoon. Bond of $75 was posted to stay execution in the sum of $650.

they may be made to obey by force it's difficult to tame them. Now of course Nehru's stand can't be dismissed thus summarily. His great nation lies within the vast Asiatic theater which communism aims to absorb. It is because this is the communist program that Red China doesn't figure it profitable to make a cease-fire agreement in Korea. Peiping prefers to let nature take its course.

Naturally Nehru doesn't want war with China, and it needs no second sight to see that Peiping's ambitions lead in the direction of India's neighboring frontiers. The Chinese moves towards Tibet and Nepal on India's borders are fair warning of possible storms to come.

Then there presumably is another impelling factor in Nehru's attitude. As head of one of the world's largest state—a country ranking eighth among the industrial nations of the world—he is credited with having ambitions to achieve the leadership of all Asia.

Such an ambition clashed directly with what General Mao Tse-Tung, the Chinese communist leader, also is generally believed to have in mind for himself. And indications are that such a set-up may have Russia's warm blessings—with the understanding that Moscow remains the big boss.

So all things considered, it's easy to understand why Nehru doesn't want trouble with China.

by enlarging them or building new ones, so that we could increase defense production on a much faster scale if war came.

If it didn't come, then the nation would be, after a while, in a better position not only to keep defense production rolling at a good clip but start producing more stuff for civilians again.

How was the job to be done? Charles E. Wilson, boss of all mobilization, explained it this week when he said:

"We are trying to use the facilities and manpower available, such as government ordnance workers, before making demands on non-defense facilities which are presently producing for civilian demands. Additional billions in orders have been placed for military trucks, but in existing truck plants."

This delicate job of trying to cut down, without too many bumps and jerks, on materials for civilian goods while stepping up defense production has been entrusted to NPA — the National Production Authority.

So far it hasn't said flatly to anyone that he can't keep on making what he made in normal times.

For instance, it has banned the use of copper in a long list of things NPA says are non-essential, like ashtrays. But if the maker of copper ashtrays can find a substitute for copper he can keep on making the trays.

But this very method—here and there withdrawing materials that can be used in civilian goods—gradually has the effect of cutting down more and more on the goods factories used to turn out for civilians.

Steel is a good example. NPA hasn't forbidden anyone the use of steel for any purpose.

But any manufacturer who has a contract with the government to make a defense item gets steel ahead of a man who simply wants steel for civilian goods, whether it's an automobile or electric iron.

So these government orders draw more and more steel away from civilian production. Later on, maybe much later on, when steel plants are expanded, there may be sufficient steel for the military and a lot more for civilians.
