U. S. Appalled By Indecision And Fear In United Nations, Presses For Strong Stand Against China

Lake Success, Jan. 20—(AP)—The United States, appalled by the indecision to which Chinese communist intervention in Korea has reduced the United Nations, pressed urgently today for a strong stand against the Peiping regime. American diplomats held a series of conferences with non-communist countries, lining up support for a resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor. For the third day in a row an American spokesman said the resolution would be introduced in the 60-nation political committee this afternoon. (3 p.m. EST). The resolution, which would open the way for later direct action against Peiping, faces three chief hurdles: 1. Stone-wall Soviet bloc opposi-

Consider Arming Chinese Guerrillas

U. S. Authorities Close-Mouthed On Idea; Strength Of Anti-Communist Forces On China Mainland Undetermined

Washington, Jan. 20—(AP)—Government officials here are understood to have studied the possibility of arming anti-Communist guerrillas on the Chinese mainland to help check the spread of Red power in the Far East. Responsible authorities, however, are close-mouthed about the whole idea. Basic United States policy is opposed to any extreme measures which might set off a world war in China.

American weapons are now moving urgently to the Chinese Nationalist's Island of Formosa, under a $50,000,000 program worked out last summer through Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo. Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, head of the Nationalist government, has close contacts with some non-communist forces in China and it now seems probable that some of the arms assigned to him may find their way into the hands of guerrilla units.

Estimates of guerrilla strength in communist China vary. Some officials here use the figure 500,000. Nationalist Chinese estimates run up to 1,500,000. In any event, the total does not represent a single force but many small bands, mainly in southern and southwestern China. Those having contact with Chiang, include remnants of his once-great mainland armies.

Assistance to these guerrillas has long been a possible line of action advocated by the Formosan Nationalists. In American government quarters, however, the idea appears to have emerged as part of a broad scale study in the Defense and State Departments on what to do about the Far Eastern situation, following communist China's expected rejection of United Nations efforts to arrive at a peaceful settlement in Korea.

New Attempt To Return Pelley

Noblesville, Ind., Jan. 20—(AP)—A new move to return William Dudley Pelley to North Carolina to serve a five year prison sentence was made yesterday. Prosecutor Frances Neal filed a petition for rehearing on a habeas corpus action brought in Pelley's behalf last year. Miss Neal said she acted on a request from North Carolina authorities.

Fox Hunting's Decline

England's Traditional Riding To Hounds Is Dying Out; Landed Aristocracy Is Being Taxed Out Of Existence; Estates Broken Up; Princess Watched A Hunt

England's lively princess Margaret is the subject of another bit of gossip which is being rolled under the tongue at the time this time because of her reported curiosity to see a fox hunt with hounds in full cry. Her Royal Highness has been rebuked by the League Against Cruel Sports on the ground of having followed a hunt, and this despite the fact that she was riding sedately in an automobile. Her reply, if any, isn't recorded, but imaginative readers can fill that in. As a matter of fact it's easy to understand the desire of the princess to get a glimpse of the picturesque procession of red coated riders racing across country after the hounds. While many folk disapprove of the way the fox is killed, yet there remains a thrill in the time-honored sport and in the skill of the trained mounts, especially when there are fences to jump. Incidentally Margaret's uncle, former King Edward VIII and now Duke of Windsor, was a keen rider tion. 2. A move by 12 Asian-Arab countries to try another peace appeal to Peiping. 3. A deeply-ingrained fear among European countries that the U. S. will become so deeply embroiled in Asia that they will be left open to aggression at home. The American view is that the Chinese communists are obviously aggressors and should be denounced as such. Washington maintains that the entire idea of collective security is at stake and that a retreat from that principle in Asia would weaken it disastrously in Europe. The U. S. feels that delay in the face of Peiping's military action in Korea, for whose defense the U. N. has pledged itself, has gone on long enough and the time to speak is now. A high American source, however, said that the preliminary arguing has been a useful thing, since many different points of view have been uncovered, and it is better to thresh such things out before, rather than after, a decision has been taken. The Arab-Asian bloc—Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen—plan to meet today. They will continue discussion which may lead to a reactivation of their earlier resolution calling for a seven-power conference on Far Eastern affairs. This is remarkably similar to the cease-fire appeal which Peiping rejected Wednesday.

Resigns Post

The County Commissioners in joint meeting last night with the boards of Education and Health accepted the tendered resignation of Herman McLawhorn, Winterville, as chairman of the county ABC board.

The three boards appointed T. Station Ross, Ayden, to fill the office vacated by McLawhorn and moved J. W. Joyner, member, up to the chairman's position. Joyner will leave the chairmanship, subject to reappointment, June 30. In a written statement to the members of the three boards, McLawhorn stated he was leaving his duties on the advice of his physician. He had been in failing health for some time. He was appointed to the board February 28, 1949, for a three year term.

U. S. Jets Again Meet Red Planes

Undamaged In Brief Brush With Russian-Made MIGs

U. S. Fifth Air Force Headquarters, Korea, Jan. 20—(AP)—American jet fighter planes and Russian-made MIG-jets met twice today over northwest Korea. No damage was reported in either encounter.

Twelve MIGs made two passes at four U. S. F-86 Shooting Stars south of Sinuju in the first meeting. The American pilots said six Red planes swooped at them from below and six more from above. The fliers said they did not think the Red planes fired any shots.

Five MIGs jumped two F-84 Thunderjets later in the day, but missed on one diving pass and kept going. It was the Thunderjets' first reported encounter with the MIGs.

After the earlier encounter, Lt. Glen P. Rice of San Gabriel, Calif., said the communist jets apparently planned "hit and run passes at us but changed their mind when we began maneuvering." Lt. Robert H. Bechtel of Rapid City, S. D., confirmed the enemy craft did not fire on the Shooting Stars.

Five groups of B-29 superfortresses based on Okinawa bombed five important communist military targets with 192 tons of explosives. The commanders of the three large fighting forces told the Senate Preparedness subcommittee that it is absolutely necessary to start drafting 18-year old boys for a minimum of at least 27 months service.

Ask For Help In Enforcing Laws

Atlanta, Jan. 20—(AP)—The men who have to enforce the liquor laws in eight southeastern states asked Congress for help at a meeting here yesterday.

The group, invited here by Georgia Revenue Commissioner Charles Redwine, asked that federal liquor permits be limited to holders of state permits.

Report Of Theft Easily Believed

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 20—(AP)—A man entered the police station here yesterday and reported that he had been robbed.

He said two men beat him, took $24 and all his clothes except his underwear. The police took his word for it—all the man had on was his underwear.

Willard T. Kyzer Vice President Of Fairs Group

Willard T. Kyzer, manager of Greenville's Chamber of Commerce, was yesterday elected vice president of the North Carolina Association of Fairs at a meeting of the group in Raleigh.

Kyzer's term of office is one year and during that period he will be one of five directors of the body. Purpose of the Association is to attempt to formulate regulations that will make local fairs more in accordance with recommendations of the Department of Agriculture concerning livestock and other agricultural exhibits.

Representing the Pitt County Fair at the meeting were James Worsley and Frank Taylor.

Eisenhower Now In Germany On New Mission

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 20—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who once entered Germany as a conqueror, declared today "I would like to see the German people lined up with others in defense of the western type of civilization."

Eisenhower, who flew in from Luxembourg on the wind-up of his tour of Atlantic Pact nations to lay the groundwork for a united defense against Communist aggression, told reporters: "I hope that some day the great German people will be lined up with the west. I believe in the freedom loving quality of the German people."

U. N. Forces Re-Occupy Wonju

The center white arrow points to Wonju, railway and highway hub in central Korea, which U. N. forces re-occupied Friday with no opposition. Only a few hours later, communist forces opened a three-pronged attack on the Wonju area in what some believed the start of a new all-out Red offensive. There were reports of enemy forces threatening in the areas of Yoji, and Yongwol. Heaviest Red concentrations still were reported in the west, south of Seoul. (AP Wirephoto Map).

'Stalin, Hitler Alike' Asserts Pres. Truman

Brands Russian Ruler As Another Despot In Rare Denunciation; Conciliates Critics Of Troops For Europe

Washington, Jan. 20—(AP)—President Truman last night declared "there isn't any difference" between Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin and Hitler, Mussolini, and other notorious despots of history. "They are all just alike," he believed in the enslavement of the common people," Mr. Truman told a "Business Mobilization Dinner" of the Society of Business Magazine Editors.

But, he added, "we are going to win." In a conciliatory mood toward Senate critics of his right to send troops to Europe, Mr. Truman indicated he thinks the Senators' motives are the best.

"There is not a Senator," he said, "who is not just as anxious to see the U. S. government continue as a free government in the world as I am. And actually, no matter what they say for publication, when the time comes for action they will be right in there. I am just as sure of that as I stand here."

He declared that "we are faced with aggression, and we are faced with inflation" but freedom "is going to prevail in the world." The President has often scored Soviet Russia as the fountain of Communist imperialism, but his prepared comment last night was one of the rare occasions when he has criticized Premier Stalin by name.

His denunciation of Stalin as a dictator recalled that in 1948 Mr. Truman referred to the Soviet leader as "Old Joe" and called him a prisoner of the Politburo, Russia's top political council. Mr. Truman makes a hobby of reading history, and he reached back to the legendary days of ancient Rome for historical tyrants to keep Stalin company.

"I am not going to agree to any limitation that would tie the President's hands," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told a reporter. "An emergency might arise in which we would have to move quickly to dispatch ground forces to Europe."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who wants to limit troop commitments, said in a separate interview that so far as he is concerned, the number involved is the peak issue in the soldiers-to-Europe controversy now boiling in the Senate.

"I will support an affirmative resolution to authorize the sending of a reasonable number of troops to Europe," Taft said. "But Congress should insist on an over-all limitation."

While he wouldn't say publicly, there were indications that the Ohio senator is thinking of a ceiling of about five divisions. Connolly told reporters he probably will have ready soon a resolution which would put the Senate on record as favoring the sending of American "armed forces" to Europe to bolster its defenses.

Unwilling To Put Ceiling On Needs

Washington, Jan. 20—(AP)—Senator Connolly (D-Tex.) said today he is unwilling to accept any legislative ceiling on the number of U. S. troops President Truman may commit to the defense of Western Europe.

"I am not going to agree to any limitation that would tie the President's hands," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told a reporter. "An emergency might arise in which we would have to move quickly to dispatch ground forces to Europe."

Babson On Military Training

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19. I am not a military expert and cannot speak with authority as to what is to happen to our 18 to 22 years old young men during the next few years. The plans and hopes of many homes, jobs and colleges are completely upset.

LET US NOT WORRY Let me, however, add a little hope to frightened families. Men who know what the probabilities are assure me that the future is not as bad as it now looks. They insist that only a few more boys will be shipped to Asia. We will be willing to supply guns and munitions to enable the Japanese to protect Japan, to enable Nationalists to hold Formosa, and to give needed aid to the Philippines. But no more American boys will be sent to Korea, Indo-China, Burma, India or elsewhere in Asia.

Experts at Washington believe that World War III, if it comes, will be fought mainly by the navy and air force. They say it would be suicidal to depend upon numbers of infantry to meet the Russians, even in Europe. With the large number of communists who infect each European country, it may be best to limit our help to Western Europe to supplying them with A-bombs. Therefore, I believe that mothers and boys are unnecessarily excited. Americans seem unable to strike a middle course. They either ignore danger and insist on "business, profits, wages and entertainment as usual," or else they become panic-stricken and go too far in the opposite direction.

TRAIN FOR USEFUL WORK I, therefore, strongly advise that parents and their youths avoid getting unduly excited. First, the chances are 3 to 2 that Russia will not risk a "hot war" for some time to come; and second, if only the present "cold war" continues, 2,500,000 young men in training would be a nuisance and handicap to all concerned. I, moreover, speak with some authority, having founded three colleges and graduated thousands of young men. I further advise young men between 18 and 20 to quit listening to radio commentators who know no more as to the future than you my readers do. Go on about your plans for schooling or work the same as if no war is now probable. Then if you are called, it

Allied Probing Troops Are Pushed Out Of Key Wonju

Burney To Open Criminal Court

One-Week Term Starts Here Monday; Thirty-One Cases Await Disposition, Among Them A Case Slated For Trial Since Oct. 1948

Judge John J. Burney of Wilmington, a ball of fire on the Superior Court bench in North Carolina, will open a one-week term of criminal court here Monday.

Burney will take over the bench on a swap of districts from Judge Leo Carr who finished a week's term of civil actions here Thursday. He is considered by the court authorities throughout the state as probably the fastest man in the disposition of a county's court calendar of any of the regular and special jurists in North Carolina's Superior Court system. He has proved it in several counties where he held court terms past the usual afternoon closing hour and into the night.

Facing the jurist will be 31 cases for trial or other disposition and 18 cases that will be tried in past terms which will appear for non-compliance with previous judgments, judgments absolute on bonds, or to show they may comply with previous judgments.

First case for trial concerns the oldest case that still remains on the Pitt docket. It concerns Frank Harrington, charged with operating a gambling house, and has been slated for trial since October of 1948. The Solicitor W. J. Bundy expects to take a nol pro in the case since Harrington cannot be found.

Other trial cases on the first calendar of the year concern six persons indicted in 1948, 14 persons indicted last year and the remainder since January 1 of this year. Sixteen cases have been scheduled for hearing before the Grand Jury and can be scheduled for trial any day a true bill is found. There is one kidnapping indictment among those Grand Jury cases, that of charges against Thad Braxton, Jr., Finnie Croon and Herman Newell who are charged with kidnapping three Pitt and Greene County Negroes last fall. They will also be tried at a later date in Greene County Superior Court.

One manslaughter indictment also faces the Grand Jury, that of James Robert Garris, 34, 1 Greenville, who was indicted for the highway death of Billy Forbes, Crisp, October 7 last year.

Other Grand Jury cases concern assault with intent to kill, three cases; breaking and entering and larceny, five; larceny, three; forgery, two; and bigamy, one.

There are six cases appearing for non-compliance with previous judgments. The oldest one dates back to the January term of 1948. Two others were originally tried during court terms of that year. In four of the cases, capias were issued in succeeding court terms for disposal of the non-compliance proceedings and the persons did not appear in court.

Also, six persons have been called to show they have complied with previous judgments. All were tried during the November special term of last year and were ordered by Judge Halstead to make payments in lieu of sentence at succeeding terms during 1951.

Six other persons are slated to appear for judgment absolute on their bonds. Meanwhile, 1950 proved one of the busiest years of the court here as it concerns scheduling of cases for trial. More than 300 were calendared during the regular and special terms, whereas 250 is the usual number in an average year.

The court was beset by two unexpected events last year which prohibited disposing of any cases. Judge Chester Morris was scheduled for the fall term of court and became ill the second day of the August term and again became ill the first day of the October term. Special terms following those were scheduled in order to catch up the docket.

As of the present time there are 191 cases remaining on the Pitt docket which either have not come to trial or the indicted person cannot be found, which necessitated issuing a capias. Many of those remaining have been continued, for one reason or another, from preceding terms, dating back to 1948.

Warren Austin Calls For Unity

New York, Jan. 20—(AP) Chief-U. S. delegate Warren B. Austin appealed for unity against Red China today, warning undecided U. N. delegations that "he who wishes to stand aloof risks standing alone."

In a speech to the International Benjamin Franklin Society, which awarded him a gold medal, Austin declared "the price of protection by the many is full participation by each in proportion to his ability in the system of collective security."

Washington, Jan. 20—(AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins declared today that the U. N. army in Korea has "plenty of fight left in it and if the enemy attacks in any strength they will be very severely punished."

In a surprise appearance at a Pentagon briefing, to which he was accompanied by Secretary of Defense Marshall, the Army Chief of Staff also said: 1. The enemy on the western end of the front "has shown no disposition in the last week or two to push south from the Han River."

2. A thorough study of the entire eastern section of North Korea by Air General Hoyt Vandenberg, made by airplane, helicopter and finally on a personal trip with a ground patrol unit, showed no sign of enemy forces moving in that snow-clad countryside.

Washington, Jan. 20—(AP)—Allied probing troops were forced out of the key road-rail hub of Wonju in central Korea today by Reds attacking in overwhelming numbers. An Associated Press field dispatch said the reinforced allied patrol held off one attack. Then as Red fire subsided the allied force withdrew at about 4:30 p.m. (2:30 a.m. EST) to positions south of the city.

An allied convoy bringing food to Wonju had cut its way through a Communist roadblock southeast of the city earlier. It left Communist dead strewn in the snow. The dispatch described the fighting in Wonju itself as intense.

General MacArthur, on a flying visit to Korea, gave new assurance that the allies' fight will continue. While Red troops swarmed around the east and west ends of Wonju and streamed into the city along the rail line from the northwest, other Communist forces were on the move in the Yongwol-Chechun-Tanyang triangle to the southeast. The Eighth Army said these two actions indicated a step-up in the Communist attempt to drive south along the Wonju-Andong axis.

Andong is 70 miles southeast of Wonju and only 40 miles north of Taegu, keystone of last summer's allied head-on defense box in southeast Korea. Strong Communist activity has been reported for days around Tanyang, 34 miles northwest of Andong. Once the Reds crack the Sohaek mountain passes leading to the highway center of Yongju, halfway between Tanyang and Andong, they would have a direct and fairly open route to the south.

But General MacArthur on his visit with Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway in Seoul, said a new conference: "No one is going to drive us into the sea. This command intends to maintain a military position in Korea just as long as the statesmen of the United Nations decide that we should do so.

"The army stands resolute and undefeated, awaiting that further political decision which can only come from the chancelleries of the world now faced with this new and entirely unanticipated problem."

After 90 minutes in secret conference with Ridgway, the Eighth Army commander, and 10 minutes dictating his statement to war correspondents, MacArthur flew back to Tokyo. The Eighth Army said another fight broke out four miles southeast of Wonju between an allied company and a Communist force. The Reds were attempting to throw a fire-block across the road, one of two leading back toward the main United Nations line. Allied airpower took a heavy toll as the Reds increased their movements along the western and central fronts. Air Force pilots claimed almost 800 Friday, boosting Far East Air Forces' total since Sunday to 3,650 killed.

The Navy announced planes from carrier Task Force 77 killed 2,200 of 3,000 Reds sighted Wednesday in a valley near Tanyang. Ground troops confirmed the figure, the Navy said.

A Gradual Process A Step-By-Step Description Of The Slow Process Of Industrial Controls And Allotting Of Priorities; Industry Not Yet Forbidden To Normal Goods By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 20—(AP)—Sounded like double-talk: inventory control, priorities, allocations, horizontal cuts. But they all mean steps taken by the government to push more and more materials into defense production, less into civilian stuff. The pushing is being done by NPA—the National Production Authority—which handles controls over the materials that go into production. These controls have not been used all at once, but step by step, starting back in September when NPA was created. Inventory controls—NPA laid down a list of 32 basic items that were important to defense and included steel, copper, some chemicals and certain building materials. In effect, this is what NPA told manufacturers: "Don't try to hoard those 32. You can keep on buying them—lo make whatever it is you make—but only in the amount you usually bought."

Priorities—this was the next step understanding it or carrying it out. It meant this: If a manufacturer made a contract with the government to turn out a defense item, he got a priority over a man making only civilian goods. For example: Jones got an order to make tanks. Smith wanted to keep on making electric irons for civilians. Both needed steel. Both asked a mill to sell them the steel they needed. The mill had to fill Jones' order before it could take care of Smith. Up to this time there's been only one kind of priority—a defense order. understanding it or carrying it out. It meant this: If a manufacturer made a contract with the government to turn out a defense item, he got a priority over a man making only civilian goods. For example: Jones got an order to make tanks. Smith wanted to keep on making electric irons for civilians. Both needed steel. Both asked a mill to sell them the steel they needed. The mill had to fill Jones' order before it could take care of Smith. Up to this time there's been only one kind of priority—a defense order. But as defense production gets going and the government needs some items ahead of others, there'll be different priorities. Example: If the Army needs tanks ahead of jeeps and jeeps ahead of machineguns. The makers of those items will get priorities something like this: 1-A, 1-B, 1-C. All need (Continued on

A STITCH IN TIME

This little seamstress has already been taught how to save her dolly's clothing by mending them before they are worn out. Though she has not yet attained great skill, she is learning the value of industry and thrift.

It is wise to give children good use of their spare time. Not only does it develop their skill and talents, but it keeps them from idle mischief. Let us not forget the essentials of life, however, in training our children.

While little hands are learning useful tasks, little minds should be taught of the Heavenly Father and His loving care, and little hearts should be filled with kindness and consideration for others.

Early religious training is the greatest gift for any child. Take your little one to Church and Church school for the foundation of a fuller, richer life. Do not wait; it can make the difference between happiness and sorrow, between success and failure.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Hill-Turnage Rites Solemnized In Farmville Christian Church

Farmville.—The marriage of Miss Mary Ann Turnage of Farmville and John Darius (King) Hill of Sunbury was solemnized Sunday afternoon, January 14th, at four o'clock in the Christian Church.

The bride's pastor, Rev. Z.B.T. Cox, performed the double ring ceremony.

Nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Henrietta M. Williamson, organist, Miss Willa Rae Harper, soloist, sang "I Love Thee" and the "Wedding Prayer."

A floor basket of white gladioli, snapdragons and carnations flanked by two seven branched candelabra holding lighted tapers was placed in front of a background of Oregon fern, Magnolia leaves outlined the choir rail.

Given in marriage by her father, Lester Earl Turnage, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin with sweetheart neckline appliqued with bulge beads. The snug fitting bodice ending in a point at the waist was closed in the back with self covered buttons. The full skirt extended into a regal train. Her finger tip veil of imported illusion fell from a tiara of tiny beads.

She carried a bouquet of white freesia and baby carnations surrounded with lace and centered with a white orchid and tied with white satin ribbons which extended into streamers.

The bride's only attendant, Mrs. Lester Earl Turnage Jr. of Greenville, her sister-in-law, wore a sage green tulle gown designed like the bride's. Her green headband was trimmed with a yellow plume and she carried a bouquet of yellow carnations tied with yellow satin ribbons.

James W. Hill of Sunbury, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Lester Earl Turnage, Jr., of Greenville, brother of the bride; A. C. Turnage, Jr., of State College, cousin of the bride; Emmett O. Parker of Gates, uncle of the groom; and B. B. Powers of Suffolk, Va.

The bride's mother was attired in a navy suit, lavender blouse, navy straw hat trimmed with lavender flowers. Her corsage was an orchid. The groom's mother wore a black suit with matching accessories and orchid.

Mrs. Hill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Turnage. She received her B.S. degree from Flora McDonald College, Red Springs, taught in Aulander last year and was home economics teacher at Pink Hill prior to her marriage.

Mr. Hill, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard O. Hill of Sunbury, received his education at Duke University.

Immediately after the wedding the bride's parents received at an informal reception for close friends and out-of-town guests at their home near Farmville.

The hosts and Mrs. Willard O. Hill greeted the guests. Mrs. A. B. Moore presided at the register placed in the den. Mrs. R. Leroy Rollins received in the gift room.

Mrs. Boone of Seaboard, aunt of the groom, poured lime ice from one end of the table and Mrs. A. C. Turnage, aunt of the bride, served the three tiered cake at the opposite end after the bride and groom cut the first slice. Assisting in serving green and white mints and salted nuts were Misses Soleta Tucker, Nell Beamon, Vidueu Joyner, Betty Swain of Raleigh, Mrs. Wallace Barrett, Miss Bettie Joyner, Mrs. J. B. Joyner and Mrs. C. C. Harris.

The table was laid with a linen cut work cloth centered with an arrangement of white snapdragons, carnations and double wedding rings flanked by silver candelabra holding lighted tapers. Hanging from the chandelier were love birds used by the bride's grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Turnage, at their golden anniversary 25 years ago.

The buffet was barked with green magnolia, silver candelabra with tapers and wedding bells at either end. White flowers and tapers were used on the mantel in the living room and hall.

After the reception the bride changed to a least suit with matching hat, beige blouse, gloves and topper. Her shoes and bag were green.

VFW Entertains National Guard

The V. F. W. Post and Auxiliary entertained the local National Guard members Thursday night at a barbecue chicken supper prepared and served by the V.F.W. Auxiliary. More than 100 Guard and V.F.W. members were present at the supper.

Commander S. J. Waters of the V.F.W. post presided at the meeting and welcomed the members of the Guard to the club. He invited the National Guard members to make full use of the club facilities for the evening.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts of Greenville recorder's court spoke to the group assembled on the failure of man to consider God's power in planning the future of the world. Roberts declared, "Many mistakes have been made and a lot of bungling done by our leaders because they have left God out in making their plans."

Roberts praised the local National Guard unit, and told the members of the organization that the people of Pitt county are proud of the service the National Guard is rendering the nation in this time of crisis.

Roberts was introduced by Commander Waters.

Missionary Is Kiwanis Speaker

By WYATT HIGHSMITH At last night's meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis Club Miss Venetia Cox, a native of Winterville and a returned missionary from China, gave first hand information on the situation in China and described in a picturesque manner how the Communists have come down from the north and through forced training and education and with an organized system of propaganda have changed a majority of the Nationalist Chinese in central China into Communists. Miss Cox emphasized the fact that if we are to combat communism and convert other people to our democratic way of life it will be necessary for us to be more devoted to Christianity and let the world know that the Christian way is the only way of survival.

When asked if any of the Christians of central China were going over to communism, Miss Cox answered that most of the adults were holding true to their religion but that many of the high school students were becoming Communists. She stated that she would hate to see the atom bomb used on China because she had many friends there. However, she did say that many of her friends would welcome a bomb rather than live under the perils of communism.

It was a rare privilege to have Miss Cox bring the Kiwanis Club the message that she did last night and if more of us as individuals would put into practice the ideas set forth by her we would have a better world in which to live.

Ell Bloom announced that practice for the minstrel would get in full swing Tuesday night at 7:30. For the Kiwanians the minstrel is the important event of the year, because it is the way they have of raising funds to help the underprivileged children in the community.

N. C. Air Base To Be Re-Activated

Washington, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Rep. Deane (D-NC), announced last night that the Laurinburg-Maxton, N. C., Air Base will be reopened for use of the Air Force.

Deane said the Department of Defense told him the reopening of the 6,000-acre base is subject only to cooperation from local communities in housing, schools and transportation.

The base is expected to have a personnel of 6,000 and will be used for troop carrier service.

It was built by the government in 1942 at a cost of about $11,000,000. The base has four concrete runways of a mile each.

Most of the buildings were sold as surplus after the war. In 1948 the government decided the property to the towns of Laurinburg and Maxton with the provision that it could regain possession in an emergency. A commission representing the towns has handled the property and rented several facilities to private business.

The base has railroad tracks, paved roads, electrical, water and sewage systems, a sewage disposal plant, warehouses, shops and laboratories, airplane runways and hangars, and a gasoline storage system.

SWIM SUIT—This bathing suit is made of skin-tone nylon fabric and black nylon lace. Neckline is accented by velvet cuff top. The suit can be worn with or without straps.

CHORISTERS ARRIVE — The Vienna Choir Boys, 22 youngsters between 10 and 12, arrive in New York aboard liner Liberte to start their concert tour of the U. S. and Central America.

'Good Old Joe. Has Been Re-Classified

The switch in official opinion of the character of Joseph Stalin is now complete. It was not so long ago that the Russian premier was termed "Good Old Joe"; now the President has put him in the same classification as Hitler, Mussolini and other despots.

This reversal lagged far behind American public opinion.

A large segment of the U. S. citizenry distrusted Stalin during the war, questioning his ultimate motives immediately following the war, and that feeling spread.

Within the past two years, that distrust has grown to far greater proportions. . . is shared by more people. Their fear has grown into a certainty the Soviet dictator bodes no good for peace loving peoples.

The campaign of hate which has welled out of the Kremlin against all that is American, all that is freedom and the things for which democracy stands, has made its mark.

For years, the poisonous lies, distortions and cunning malevolence have been used to whip up the laggards of the Communist line. The tactics back-fired; those who knew the truth have been shocked into anger and revulsion.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News
 Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—"Why all this uproar at Washington over President Truman's fight to send troops abroad?" asks R.M. of Altoona, Pa.

"The Republicans did not complain when Coolidge used to ship marines into Nicaragua to suppress internal revolutions. Wilson did it in Mexico. Hasn't almost every Chief Executive enjoyed and exercised this authority as Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces?"

TRUE—Answer: It is true that many Presidents have frequently ordered our forces into overseas action without prior authorization from Congress. They were sent into Caribbean countries to suppress banana revolutions, and into Mexico to chase bandits who had shot up border towns.

Perhaps the most spectacular example of presidential use of the military was when Jefferson dispatched a fleet to quell the Barbary pirates in the Mediterranean. It was a Republican Administration which permitted fairly large-scale military operations in China during the Boxer rebellion.

DEPARTURE—But in all these instances American lives and property were immediately endangered, and their protection was an elemental requirement of our government. Moreover, and this is a question of good common sense rather than high policy, we had the strength then to back up our demands. It was a big-stick-soft-talk program.

Korea, insofar as I read history, was the first instance in which we committed troops in what might be termed a world-wide movement or crusade, if you please, rather than to safeguard our citizens, their property and rights guaranteed to them under formal treaties.

I am not criticizing that commitment, simply pointing out what a definite departure and precedent it was.

POLICY—Now, however, Mr. Truman means to send an unknown number of divisions, air units (some are in England now) and naval forces to Europe as a permanent and component part of an international army. No emergency such as Pearl Harbor requires their immediate dispatch. In fact, the army they are to join does not yet exist.

Senate opponents maintain that this program and policy cannot be compared in any way to overseas employment of troops such as I have cited above. In their opinion, it is a question of embarking on a grave, new national policy rather than a technical dispute over the President's constitutional authority and historical prerogatives.

Sending out a few policemen to round up a dangerous criminal loose in a city or on its outskirts is quite different from stripping that city of its small police force in order to corral a gangster in another state. At least that is the feeling on Capitol Hill.

ADVICE—Mr. Truman has a sensible and practical solution at hand, if he will forget his pride and prejudices.

My canvass convinces me that a majority of the Senate, possibly 70 members, would approve full American participation in the defense of Western Europe, assuming that our allies will show a willingness to rearm and the courage to fight. I think they would agree to the use of ten or more divisions in that area as a protective and deterrent force.

Since there is no great hurry for the sake of national unity and responsibility, he should obtain prior permission from the Senate. If I were in his place, I would prefer to take such a step with the backing of the American Congress rather than on the ex parte advice of Dean Acheson, George Marshall or such a politically minded Attorney General as J. Howard McGrath.

SERVICE—I am bothered by this proposal to make 18-year-old boys take 21 or 27 months out of their lives for military service," writes F.A. of Brooklyn, a mother and former school teacher. "Do they realize the delay that will mean in finishing their education and starting on their careers?"

Answer: That is the most troublesome aspect of the program. So many other letters of similar nature suggest. Ordinarily, it would mean that a youngster would not complete college until he was 24 or 25, and graduate work for law, medicine or collegiate teaching until he was 28 or 29.

Several prominent educators, including Conant of Harvard, advance what seems to me like a sensible solution. They suggest that the ordinary college course for a B.A. be reduced from four to three years by lengthening the school year. I have always thought since I got out of school—not before, of course—that the summer vacation period was too long. Why not give a month instead of two or three?

POSSIBILITY—Under that system, a boy would matriculate at 23 or 24, and he would finish three or four years of graduate work at about the same age that he does now.

Here's another possibility: The services should conduct good schools for the youngsters during their 18-20 enlistment period. I don't mean the hit-or-miss courses they advertise on the recruiting posters, but standard college sessions. Should college enrollment drop, many instructors will be available as civilians or as junior officers. Then, after passing examinations, the soldier-student could be given credit for this work when he reenters school.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The Federal Communications Commission has automobiles with special equipment to trace down secret transmitters of unlicensed radio stations. One of the FCC's men, Edward Adams, received a report that there was an unlicensed station in central Ohio with the call letters WKGR.

By driving in the vicinity of Columbus, Ohio, Adams picked up his first, faint signal on a frequency of 650 kilocycles. Adams was surprised when he heard the station send out recordings, news shorts and amateur talent, commercials plugs for such concerns as the jewelry store and coal company of the county seat of Union County, Maryland, population 4,272. He rather expected the station to be broadcasting in a secret code.

When he arrived in Maryland, Adams discovered that there was nothing secret about the radio station. In fact, it was well known as one of the town's most thriving business enterprises. Adams had no trouble finding the studio offices on the second floor of a building on main street. When he entered the station he was greeted by a receptionist who took him in to see the station's five owners and operators.

General Manager Gene Kirby, 19, admitted with modest pride that WKGR had "just grown" from a ham station he had built in his family's back-yard garage five years ago, when he was 14. His transmitter, made from a beat-up B-17 airplane, had been bought at an army surplus sale. In December, when the owners decided to put the station on the air commercially, the station was souped up to reach a 12 mile radius by the Station Engineer, who holds a third-class radio operator's card. The engineer in the outfit is 26.

The Advertising Manager, a blazng 21, explained why the station was called WKGR. The boys had gone over a listing of U. S. stations and picked four letters that didn't conflict with any others. Program Director Floyd Coll, 18, and Business Manager Curt Scheiderer, 22, said they thought all you had to do in the U.S. if you wanted to start a business was to start it.

The FCC agent sat down and told the boys a few facts of life. They perked up when he said that the maximum penalty for running an unlicensed radio station is a fine of $10,000 or two years in prison. After the lecture, the agent picked up WKGR's mike and told the radio audience that the station was off the air because the "management" had no federal authorization to operate.

Mostly because of the ages of the staff, FCC decided not to take legal action. Maryland businessmen at first stood behind the boys in an effort to open the station legally, but they fell by the wayside when they found out it would take $20,000 to buy the equipment necessary to meet FCC requirements for a license.

Two of the owners have enlisted in the Air Force. Two others are seriously considering joining up, and the fifth is awaiting his draft call.

And I thank you.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Bugs Island Power for Langley Field (The Durham Herald)

It is difficult to understand the opposition which was demonstrated, fortunately unsuccessfully, to the plan to build a power line from Bugs Island to Langley Field. One of the purposes of the Bugs Island project is to provide additional electric power, needed both for development of the Roanoke Valley and in times of national crisis. Construction of the proposed power line by the government is designed to provide more power for one of the major installations in the Atlantic coastal defense to contribute to its ability to serve better its purpose.

The reported reason for the opposition of Senators Hoyt of North Carolina and Robertson of Virginia seems somewhat selfish: DIVERSION OF POWER FROM OF THE TWO States near the dam if the people who occupied the area which is needed for the reservoir can be required to give up their homes and lands for the advantage of the larger public group, surely the people of the Bugs Island area can agree to the diversion of some power for defense purposes, should the national security require it.

It would seem that the first claim upon power generated by a government project would be that of national security. In view of the overall development of the Roanoke River basin, it is doubtful if the power provided Langley Field from mBugs Island will prove a serious diversion of power from the area.

As for another objection, that a private firm can provide Langley Field with power, it should be noted that this is merely an opinion and represents no definite agreement by the firm. If the government is generating power, it would seem more to the two states near the dam, power to its military installations instead of depending upon private firms. Approval by both House and Senate of the construction of the power line is an indication, in one respect, at least, of the intention to make Bugs Island serve the best interests of the people generally.

Industrial Know-How (New Bern Sun-Journal)

The nation's leaders and most responsible observers have been worrying a great deal lately about where America would stand if all Europe fell into Russia's hands, says Bruce Blossat, editorial writer of the Newspaper Enterprise Association. Especial stress has been laid on the danger of letting the Communists grab the huge industrial potential.

The worry is well grounded, Mr. Blossat continues. Our peril would be multiplied many times should Europe come under Soviet control. But in our emphasis on the grave risk, we must not assume that in such an event our case would be hopeless. There is no need to adopt a defeatist attitude. Russia already has an overwhelming superiority in numbers of men. With Europe in tow, it would add greatly to both its material resources and its industrial capacity. Yet there's another side to the story.

The United States has the greatest rate of productivity—production per man-hour—of any nation in the world. During World War II our man-hour output was three times that of Germany and Japan combined, or Britain and Russia together. Furthermore, and this fact has been carefully documented by economists who studied World War II, this country actually turned out more munitions of war in the peak year 1944 than Germany, Japan, Russia and Britain together. In other words, we out-produced both the enemy and our two principal allies. And we did it while still allowing production for civilian purposes to rise above pre-war levels.

Today, of course, our position in this field is stronger than ever. Our productivity has risen considerably since the war. More than that, we have spent eighty-three billions on industrial expansion and are planning to spend another twenty-two billion in 1951. America's ability to produce is thus far beyond 1944.

 AP Newsfeatures
 Salt Lake City—The wild west of fiction with its swashbuckling hero and black-hearted villain has an able champion in Frank Chester Robertson.

This Utah farmer-writer has turned out hundreds of stories about the west he knows so well. Born in Idaho, he has been a farm worker, sheep herder, cowboy, mucker, potato picker, laborer and homesteader. There is no second-hand taint to Robertson's sagebrush drama and homespun philosophy.

He wrote his first Western story in 1922 out of sheer financial desperation. He promptly sold it to a pulp magazine for $35. Since then he has penned more than 150 Western novels and novellas and countless short stories.

Lives on Fanch
 Robertson now lives with his wife and son on a ranch near Springville, Utah.

Born in a crude cabin on a winter night 60 years ago near Moscow, Idaho, Robertson grew up in the lustrous west while his parents migrated from town to town.

Robertson tells the story of this struggle for existence in an autobiography, "A Ram in the Thicket" (Abelard Press). In it, the Utah author demonstrates his knack for realism, his skill for simplicity and his success with color and compassion.

Many Types
 Robertson tells of the illiterate farm hands, the rounders, the gun-packing homesteaders and the rocky, folksy people of the wild, isolated, and sometimes destitute, Platte Mountain area. But despite many ugly scenes, the book is no "Tobacco Road." Its characters may be unpolished but they are not degenerate.

The Robertson family was typically Western but the partans were as different as burlap and silk.

Mary Robertson, a former Nebraska schoolteacher and daughter of a pastor, was patient, long suffering, self-effacing and deeply religious. Will Robertson, a former Texas cowhand, was a tyrant, incredibly inept in swinging a bar-gain and with a quarrelsome nature which was a constant trial to his wife and three sons.

Mrs. Robertson, who always looked for her "ram in the thicket" in periods of adversity found comfort in her sons, so much so that, we have spent eighty-three billions on industrial expansion and are planning to

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 The excess profits tax has added an important new factor to the old question of whether a small or moderate-size business is better off as a corporate, or as a proprietorship or partnership venture.

This question has been persistent over the years because there is no general answer. The only answers available are those for specific businesses and these can be reached only after a careful analysis of all the affairs and circumstances of the business.

There are several obvious advantages to incorporation. It limits liabilities to the assets of the corporation; owners or partners—of their wives—property is not jeopardized by judgments. It is often easier to continue a corporation than a proprietorship after the death of a principal owner. And there are taxes.

Many authorities have tried to draw up schedules of tax advantages under incorporations and under proprietorships, but these tables cannot be conclusive because so many variables are involved, such as the size of proprietors' salaries, dividends if any and state and local tax rates.

Prof. E. R. Dillavou and Alice C. Kirkpatrick, writing in the August, 1950, University of Illinois "Current Economic Comment," presented a series of tables, assuming various conditions, on comparative tax liabilities of sole proprietorships, partnerships and corporations. In general, the corporate form saved taxes only after net income reached $50,000 a year, except in the case of sole proprietors, when the tax saving by incorporation began after income passed $10,000 a year.

The good professors must have put a lot of work in their calculations. Then they were knocked cock-eyed by the excess profit tax and the boost in personal income taxes.

The excess profits tax, stiff as it is, probably makes proprietorships—advantageous, tax-wise, than corporations to a greater number of businesses. Certainly business men think so, for most state capitals report many reorganizations of corporations into partnerships and proprietorships since the EPT was enacted.

Changing the form of a business organization should never be done just because other people are doing it. Each situation requires a careful analysis by a tax accountant, a lawyer specializing in taxes, or both.

And the lawyer should take into consideration the fact that Congress is not only planning a sharp rise in personal income taxes, but is talking about an excess profits tax formula for individuals and partnerships too.

CHRISTMAS PENNIES
 FAIL TO RETURN
 Add shortages: pennies. Christmas selling requires more pennies than usual and stores draw them from banks which, in turn, draw them from the Federal Reserve. In January, the coppers start flowing back to the FRB coffers. But this year the New York Reserve Bank reports slow returns. Either member banks, stores or customers are hoarding them.

OLD PROMOTER HEARS AUSTERITY IS COMING
 "It's not a question of what, but of when," announced the Old Promoter.

"No riddles today, thanks," we said. "What are you bursting to tell?"

"I've just returned from Washington," he said. "And from what I heard there, it's not a question of what will be controlled. The answer is just about everything. The only thing undecided is when."

"Price controls are sure. And because nobody can figure out how to stop prices from rising while wages continue to rise, there will be wage controls. And it won't stop there. Salaries will not only be frozen, but Uncle Whiskers will take almost everything over $25,000 a year. People will be frozen into jobs, too, if the jobs are essential. There'll be fewer and eventually no tin cans for beer, oil and dog food. Vests will disappear, so will trouser cuffs."

"Rationing?" we asked.

"Later, but it's coming. First on meat, then on other things."

"We suppose you went to Washington to do a bit of five-percent-ing?" we asked.

WEATHER'S COLD BUT MERCURY RISES
 A few days ago this department thought it was news that mercury had got to $180 a flask, up from $115. The New York price is $186 as this is written and it's only a guess how high it will be Monday.

Hal Boyle's Column
 By WILLIAM C. BARNARD...
 (For HAL BOYLE)
 Somewhere in Korea—(AP)—
 "I haven't exactly been on a Sunday school picnic," said the Sergeant as he put the newspaper down.

He had just read of a Defense Department proposal to give "hard pay" to soldiers and marines who were "in front of regimental headquarters" in the Korean War.

Under this plan, Master Sgt. Olin Wilkinson, of Port Townsend, Wash., and San Diego, Calif., would receive no such battle bonus, for he is with the Headquarters Company of the 23rd Infantry Regiment of the 2nd Division.

(In drafting legislation for combat bonus pay, the Defense Department anticipated Sgt. Wilkinson's complaint. The proposed bill would apply both to troops engaged in direct battle with the enemy—as the sergeant was—and to other men who serve in immediate support of combat forces. Further the bill stipulates that all servicemen killed or injured while in actual combat or in direct support action would be entitled to the pay regardless of their period of combat duty. Those who are not casualties must have at least six days of combat in any month to qualify.)

Yet the regimental Command Post where Wilkinson serves as Operations Sergeant has been under repeated attack in Korea and he has won both the Silver Star and the Bronze Star for valor in combat.

Furthermore, the Command Post has suffered 40 percent combat casualties since the division landed in Korea in August.

"Maybe that doesn't add up to hazardous duty," Wilkinson said, "but I don't think any of those bullets that were flying around us were kidding."

"Last August our regimental CP was in the very front line defense of Taegu. On Aug. 31 four enemy divisions overran the 2nd Division on the Naktong River and 150 members of the CP were in the thick of the battle.

"In another sector of that same front all the cooks, clerks and supply people were assigned to front line operations. We stopped 11 communist attacks in 15 days.

"Then on Sept. 29 at Hyeonchon our regimental Command Post was again on the front line."

Sgt. Wilkinson won the Silver Star in the engagement. He ran under heavy fire to an American tank, manned its guns and killed 50 North Koreans singlehanded.

"Three days later," Wilkinson went on, "our CP was taken under fire at Anul—shell fire that was so intense it killed six officers and wounded 25 officers and men in one hour.

"During that hour Wilkinson won the Bronze Star for carrying three of the wounded to safety.

"But we had our biggest excitement later in November when our CP was the most northerly advance unit of the entire Eighth Army," said the 5-foot-6-inch, 130-pound Sergeant. "That was during our advance toward the Yalu River. For two days the officers and enlisted men of the CP had fought on the front lines. The second night the Chinese overran our command post.

"They came right into the tent and shot the chairs up. They shot the map off the wall. They killed or wounded 17 officers and men of the CP. Lt. Peter B. Bennett (of Sebastopol, Calif.) was sitting right in that chair when four bullets hit him. (Bennett now is recovering in California.) Maj. John B. Dumaine (of New Bedford, Mass., and Olympia, Wash.) clobbered a Chinese with the butt of his revolver. I killed two with my carbine.

"Officers and men in our Command Post had a pretty busy time before the withdrawal through Kumsu Pass. They fought in foxholes three days and nights. And our Command Post helped the regiment fight the rear-guard action when the 2nd Division came down that pass.

"I feel the fellows in our CP should draw some of that hazard pay. Personally, I won't feel safe until I'm back in the United States."

 Washington—From the time he was a lad in short pants Leo Pascal wanted to collect automobiles. It was a millionaire's hobby, but Leo was no millionaire. The year he kept growing and Leo decided he'd indulge in the hobby in his own way.

"I simply collect pictures, toy models, gadgets and stuff relating to automobiles instead of the real thing," he told me. Today Mr. Pascal, an architect in the industrial records branch of the National Archives, has a collection of what he calls "automobileiana" which he has forced him to move from his apartment to a house in a nearby suburb.

Among the many items he has are some of the first pictures and accounts published in America of a new-fangled thing called a "horseless carriage."

"The horseless carriage era has never been given its proper social, recreational and historical significance," he told me. "And I've gone after the things that illustrate some of these aspects.

He has old automobile toys made of glass, iron and tin; horseless carriage buttons, which were worn on "dusters," a U. S. Government account of a "steamtricycle," and an illustration of the first automobile brought by the Post Office Department, in 1901.

In addition to collecting old advertisements about such hot rods as the 30-mile-an-hour Crestmobile of 1904, Mr. Pascal also has material on early automobile songs and poetry and a share of stock in the Perry Auto Co., one of the ill-fated syndicates of its day.

Among the songs he has collected are "Take Me Out for a Joy-Ride," "Henry Made a Lady Out of Lizzie," "The Little Ford Had to Get Along," "Ford Have to Get Under. Get Out and Get Under and Keep Away From the Fellow Who Owns An Automobile."

Mr. Pascal says about 600 songs have been written about automobiles. He has copies of most of them, but he regrets he has no copy of "In My Merry Oldsmobile."

"One of the important recent things I've collected is a horseless carriage pipe and the printed musical score for the 'Vanderbilt Cup,' a musical comedy of about 45 years ago," he said.

Mr. Pascal finds many items in old shops, antique shows and shops and stores and store rooms. His hobby hasn't broken him, but it's overflowing and has robbed his wife of her old hope chest.

East Carolina's Theatre Dedicated At Performance

Thornton Wilder Drama Is Staged As Opening Project

By MARY H. GREENE
East Carolina's new College Theatre was dedicated last night, and the first major dramatic performance was presented there. Samuel Selden, professor of dramatic arts at the University of North Carolina and director of the Carolina Playmakers, was principal speaker at short exercises marking the opening of the Theatre. The first of three performances of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize play "Our Town" was presented by the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatic club, and was well received by a large audience.

Training School on the campus and to groups from the college. For all of eastern North Carolina, he said, the opening of the Theatre marks the beginning of "an accentuated emphasis on dramatic art."

Professor Selden, principal speaker of the evening, pointed out that interest in drama and participation in the production of plays has grown of late years in communities all over the United States. Every community, he stated, needs a theatre. The values of drama, he continued, are to provide entertainment, education, and morale among people working together. Both audience and participant, he said, are benefited by sharing experiences in the theater. He congratulated East Carolina on its excellent program of dramatics and on the completion of the new Theatre, which he described as one of the most beautiful in North Carolina.

Dr. Lucile Charles, director of dramatic arts at the college here, spoke of the theater as a "temple of democracy" and as a great spiritual and religious force in society.

Clifton Britton of Goldsboro, an alumnus of East Carolina, was introduced to the audience as one who during his student days at the college gave a "great impetus to dramatics on the campus. Frances Wahl, principal of the Training School; Lillah Gaut of the college home economics department; Anne Redwine of the college and the Training School faculties; and Rose Messick of Greenville were given recognition for their help and advice in planning the interior decoration of the Theatre.

Donald Blood of Greenville played the leading role in the presentation of Wilder's "Our Town." As Stage Manager of the production Blood introduced the scenes of the simple, yet emotional, drama of life in the small town of Groves.

The play, in which Wilder was influenced by the Chinese theater, was produced with a minimum of scenery and properties. Artistic effects of lighting executed under the direction of John B. Johnson of Rocky Mount and George McFadyen of Wilmington added much to the dramatic values of the play and to the fine performance of the student cast.

Joseph Congleton of Littleton and Carolyn Eisele of Statesville as the romantic leads gave competent performances. Others who were outstanding in the cast included Mrs. Aldridge of Kinston and Robert V.

Craft, Fr. of Beulaville as Dr. and Mrs. Gibbs; and Annette Hughes of Willard and Elmer Williams of Washington as Mr. and Mrs. Webb.

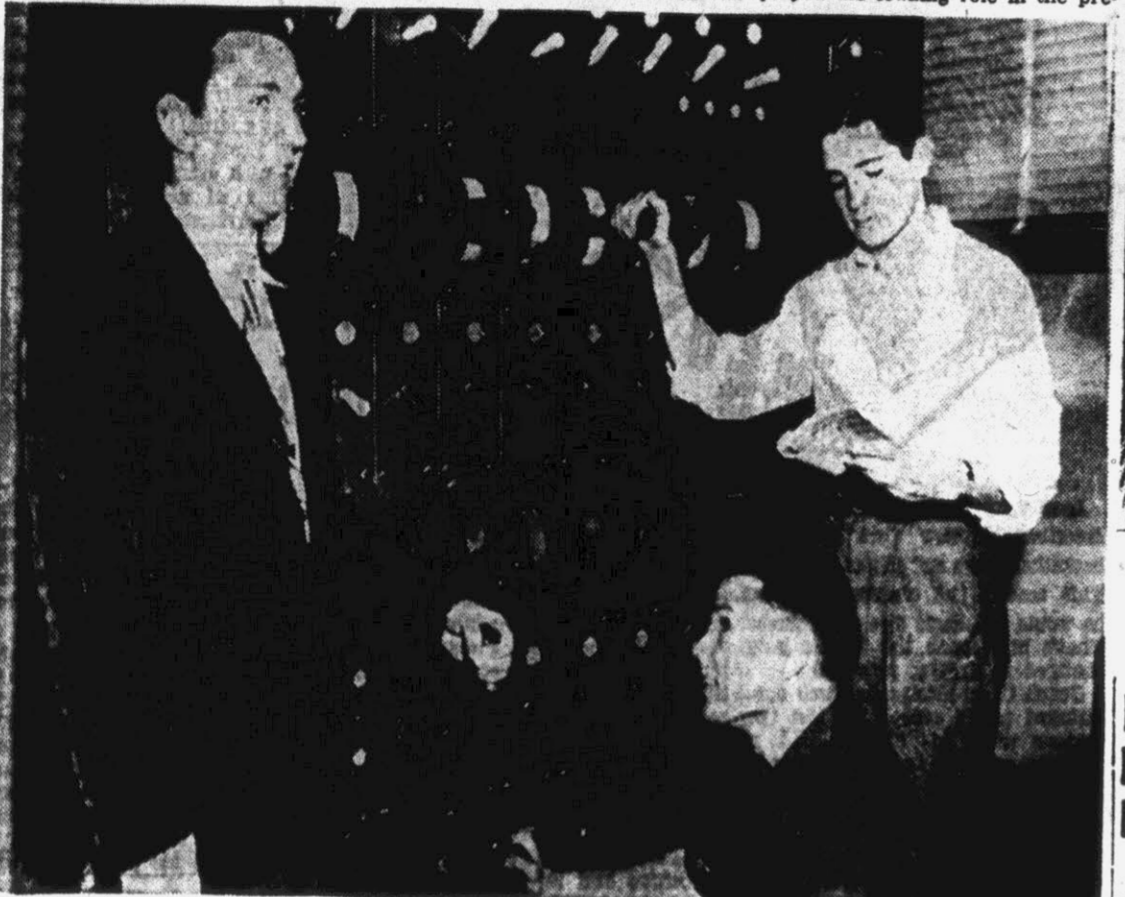

The musical background of the play was provided by the College Singers, and Peggy Lane, organist, of Asheboro, who played the new Wuritzer organ, which is included in the equipment of the Theatre.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles directed the play, with Carl Smith of Washington as student director and William Robbins of Plymouth as stage manager. Mark Moore, Jr., of Bath, headed the business staff of the play.

"Our Town" will be presented this evening at 8:00 o'clock and again on Tuesday evening at the same hour.

Student make-up artists work under good conditions at East Carolina's new College Theatre, which was dedicated last night. Catherine Stephenson of Willow Springs is pictured above in one of the attractive dressing rooms to the rear of the stage touching up the eyebrows of Annette Hughes of Willard, who has the role of Mrs. Webb in the play. Lloyd Whitfield of Kinston, also a member of the cast, waits his turn.

Student electricians were in charge of lighting effects for the production of "Our Town" last night by the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina College. At the switchboard, where 49 levers control the lights of the theatre, are (left to right) George McFadyen of Wilmington, Alton Blue of Southern Pines, and John B. Johnson of Rocky Mount. Much of the success of the production of the play was due to the unusual and artistic effects of lighting.

"End of the Century" costumes used in the production of "Our Town" by the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina Teachers College last night gave cast members a big laugh. Joe Congleton of Littleton and Carolyn Eisele of Statesville, romantic leads in the play, look on while Jeanine Ennis of Dunn holds up for inspection the gaily striped red and white shirt which Congleton wears in the play.

Arrest Four In Brutal Beating By Night-Riders

Conway, S. C., Jan. 20—(AP)—Four men were arrested last night in connection with the beating of two white men by night riders on Wednesday night. Sheriff C. E. Sasser of Horry County said more arrests will follow.

It has not been established whether the beatings were by Klansmen. Sasser identified the four in custody as Harvey Johnson, a hardware store operator and D. E. Guyton, driver-salesman for a soft drink company, both of Conway, and Almond Chestnut, a farmer, and Jack Causey, a mechanic, both of the Shell section of Horry County. Bond for each was set at $5,000.

The sheriff said that J. C. Gore, 25, of near Conway, and his uncle, Sam Gore, 49, a farmer of the Shell section, were beaten by a large group of men Wednesday night.

Non-Agriculture Employment For N. C. Soaring

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 20—(AP)—Non-agricultural employment in North Carolina last month soared to 914,600, according to the State Department of Labor.

The high figure was attributed to booming Christmas retail sales, increased postal services, and holiday travel.

Seasonal employment gains increased 8,800 in trade, 4,400 in postal services, and 700 in transportation.

These gains, the department said yesterday in its report for December, offset a decrease of 5,600 workers in Tar Heel factories.

The state's 422,900 factory workers continued to earn an average hourly salary of $1.16. Out of an increase of a half-hour in work schedules, which brought the average work week up to 41 hours, raised weekly earnings to $47.64.

Invites Town To Help Celebrate

Newark, O., Jan. 20—(AP)—Editor-publisher Fred J. Neely, 70, wants everyone in nearby Johnstown to help celebrate his 55th year with the weekly Johnstown Independent.

So he bought out the 300-seat Dorsey Theater for four showings of a picture next Wednesday and Thursday. All 1200 residents of the central Ohio town are invited.

Gold Medal Tourney Begins At Farmville Monday Night

Sixteen teams, including both girls and boys teams from nine high schools representing six different counties in North Carolina begin the third annual Coastal Gold Medal dribble derby at Farmville Monday night.

This colorful event, going into its third successful year, is being sponsored by the Farmville Junior Chamber of Commerce, with Marvin Speight as director of the tournament.

The tournament will run four days beginning Monday, January 22, with the finals being staged Saturday, January 27. No games will be played on Tuesday and Friday nights, these dates being open to enable the teams competing to carry out their regularly scheduled dates.

Ayden's once-defeated Tornadoes will be the top-seeded club in the boys' division, while a strong sextet from Snow Hill will get top billing in the girls' division.

Monday night's opening round will pair Vanceboro and Stantonsburg girls' teams in the first game at 8:30 p. m., with Farmville's defending boys' champions engaging Vanceboro's quint at 7:30 p. m.

Rounding out the four games to be played Monday night will be top-seeded Snow Hill's lassies playing Walstonburg's six at 8:30 p. m., and South Edgecombe's boys team strapping Stantonsburg at 9:30.

Wednesday night's schedule: 6:30 Farmville's defending girls' champs vs. Bell Arthur; 7:30 Snow Hill boys vs. Walstonburg; 8:30 South Edgecombe girls vs. Ayden; 9:30 Ayden boys vs. Walstonburg.

Semi-final games will be played on Thursday night, starting at 6:30.

Elon Plays Host To Pirates Tonight

After a highly-impressive win over their old rivals, Atlantic Christian, Thursday night, 83-35, East Carolina took to the road again today to play Elon's surprising Christians tonight at Burlington.

Elon, always a threat in North State circles, is the only team yet to defeat high-flying High Point College in conference play, and they did that only this week with a thrilling 62-60 verdict in an overtime period.

East Carolina's scoring attack seems to have sharpened into a high-scoring threat since shifting over to a fast-breaking offense, with such lanky lads as Big Boy Bobby Hodges, 6'5" guard, handling the backboards with Charlie Huffman and Sonny Russell.

All-Conference Russell and freshman Huffman are expected to provide the scoring punch for the Pirates in tonight's league contest. Russell has hit on 77 field goals and 19 free throws for 177 points in 13 games this season, for a scoring average of 13.6 points per contest.

Huffman is only one percentage point behind the New Bern import with 176 points in the same number of games for a 13.5 mark per tilt. Hodges ranks third in the Buccaneers scoring machine with 128 points in 11 starts for a 11.6 average.

Don Gehrmann To Whip Wilt In Tonight's Miler

Philadelphia, Jan. 20—(AP)—If Don Gehrmann, the 120-pound University of Wisconsin graduate, can stay within five yards of Fred Wilt in their future mile duels, the FBI agent will have to change his strategy.

The pair go at it again tonight in Boston, and Gehrmann will be favored to take his 35th straight on his performance in the Philadelphia Inquirer games last night. He won the eight furlong affair in 4:12.4 on the slow, 12-lap Convention Hall boards.

Furthermore, he beat Wilt decisively. Fred actually looked as though he was walking, so speedy was Gehrmann at the end.

Wilt, of course, had full intentions of getting a lead that Don could not overcome. But he couldn't shake his rival. If he can't do any better tonight or in the future, he's not going to win many races.

Leonard Truxex of Ohio State was third and Ingar Bengtsson of Sweden was fourth. Bengtsson did well until the end, but he didn't have it.

Other than the mile, Arthur Wint, the medical student from Jamaica, gave the crowd of 8,500 its biggest kick when he won the 600 yard run in 1:13.6, beating Charley Moore, of Cornell, with ease.

Dillingham Hits For Ten As Roanoke Rapids Falls

Virginius Haymes Plays 'Swan Song' Game For Locals; Baby Phantoms Take Victory, 31-22

Little Virginius Haymes, although not the high scorer last night, made a brilliant performance as he sang his "swan song" to prep school basketball last night, with Greenville's Phantoms rallying in the second half to defeat Roanoke Rapids, 41-35.

Haymes, who has been called up by the local National Guard unit, ball-hawked all over the court, and was a consistent floor leader for the Phantoms as they gained their second win in the Northeastern Conference.

Jimmy Dillingham, who usually provides the scoring punch for the G-Men, was again the scoring leader last night, hitting on three field goals and four free tosses for ten points. Scrappery Glenn Scott contributed eight points, while Sydney "Charity Toss" Briley had seven.

Guard Ted Topping was high for the Roanoke Rapids five with 11 points.

Coach Bo Farley's Phantom crew gained an early 4-0 lead in the first quarter, but relinquished it to the home lads who were more accustomed to the court in the waning moments, as the RR lads took an 11-9 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Things began popping in the second quarter, with Greenville, led by Haymes and Dillingham, tried desperately to overcome the two-point deficit, but Roanoke Rapids stayed out front until intermission 19-14.

Mid-way of the third quarter, Jim Dillingham and Johnny Aman, who recently returned to the Phantom squad, found the Roanoke Rapids

Greenville's Midgets play host to Coach Jack Wallace's Baby Red Devils of Farmville tonight in what promises to be an air-tight cage clash.

Game time is 7:30 p. m. in the Greenville High School gymnasium.

The local Mighty Mites, who were practicing at the new Training School gym, have been having some difficulty in finding a new place to practice since the college has taken over the gym with its intra-mural program.

Lack of practice may hurt the Tiny Tims in tonight's contest with arch-rival Farmville.

Greenville's Mites have a record over a two-year period of 22 wins out of 23 starts.

Tommy Saled, the smallest lad on the Greenville team, has been looking good in drills this week. Saled hit for 17 points against New Bern last week.

Here is the probable starting lineup for the Midgets in tonight's game, Bob Howell and Edgar Moore at forwards, Hal Edwards at center, and Pat Sawyer and Tommy Saled at guards.

Larry Scott who has been improving with every game, will likely have plenty of action along with Tommy Norris and Joe Taft.

Hunters Fined

Two deer hunters, Hal Windley and Norman Griffin, both of Belhaven, were tried yesterday in the Beaufort County Superior Court, for the offense of fire-lighting deer at night, according to J. O. Teel, Pitt County's Protective Wildlife and Game warden.

According to Teel, Windley and Griffin were arrested Dec. 23, 1948, but appealed the case to Superior Court, which was held yesterday.

Judge Chester Morris, presiding over the court, fined the two hunters $150 each, payment of court costs and revoked their hunting privileges for a period of two years. In addition, Judge Morris warned the hunters that any violation within the next four years would automatically give them a road sentence, in addition to the fines.

Teel reported that the expensive hunting equipment of Griffin and Windley was confiscated, and would be sold at auction.

The two hunters were in the Beach Ridge Road section when arrested.

Belvoir-Falkland Sextet Triumphs

Grill Takes Two From State H'way

Carolina Grill swept two games from league-leading State Highway in Thursday night's city bowling, knocking two full game off the pace-setters' lead.

However, the individual scoring went to a State Highway bowler, as Smith rolled the night's single game high with 240 points in his second game, and took the three-game high totals with 801 points.

W. Wells of Carolina Grill was the night's runner-up scorer in both department, registering 182 pins in a single game, and a grand total of 466 in three games.

Saad's Shoe Shop keglers moved up the ladder somewhat in Thursday night's bowling, also gaining a forfeit with Norris Texaco.

Robin Roberts Inks 1951 Phil Contract

Philadelphia, Jan. 20—(AP)—The National League champion Philadelphia Phillies have pitcher Robin Roberts, a key moundman last year, under contract for 1951.

The young right hander received a substantial pay increase, and it is believed he will draw in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Roberts was the victorious pitcher in the final pennant-winning game against Brooklyn last year. He ranked fourth in the National League among pitchers who hurled ten complete games.

Roberts sent in his signed contract yesterday from Clearwater, Fla., where he spent the winter with his family.

The George Washington Bridge between New York and New Jersey opened October 24, 1931.

Williams Set Irish Record

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—(AP)—Notre Dame's 1950 quarterback, Bobby Williams, threw 210 passes, the most ever thrown by an Irish back. He completed 99 tosses, for an 47.1 percent record. His passes were good for 1035 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Farm Agreement Between Yanks, Seals In Effect

San Francisco, Jan. 20—(AP)—A working agreement between the New York Yankees and the San Francisco Coast League baseball club was in effect today, with the Seals already assigned two players.

There had been rumors for several weeks that an arrangement was in the making between the American League club and the Seals. It was announced last night.

First baseman Fenton Mole, who played with Kansas City and Portland last season, and third baseman Gene Valla, Jr., were the players acquired by the Seals.

Mole, a left hander, hit .260 in 86 games for Kansas City and, before that, .224 in 52 games for Portland. Valla hit .290 in 136 games for the Kansas City American Association team.

State And LaSalle Renew Intersectional Rivalry

Raleigh, Jan. 19.—North Carolina State and LaSalle renew their intersectional cage rivalry tonight at 8:15 p. m. at the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum before a near capacity crowd of approximately 12,000.

The Explorers, who last year handed Coach Everett Case's Wolfpack a 66-51 licking for one of the worst defeats ever suffered by a Case-coached team, will bring an impressive 12-2 record to Raleigh to test against State, which has won 16 of 18 games this year.

LaSalle, although minus four regulars from last year, boasts one of the best corp of sophomores seen in the East. The sophs are led by Johnny George, a 6-2 sharpshooter, who transferred from Notre Dame, and 6-5 Center Norman Grekin, who led the LaSalle freshman scorers last year. Both men have started starting berths this year.

Besides George and Grekin, LaSalle has its dependable captain, Jimmy Phelan, a preseason All-American selection in many quarters. New Jones, a 6-3 set-shot artist and Charles Donnelly, a 5-11 speedster. Both Jones and Donnelly are juniors and Phelan is a senior. Grekin replaces 6-11 Larry Faust, who graduated into the professional ranks.

State's scoring punch likely will be supplied by Forward Sam Ranzino and Center Paul Horvath. Ranzino, after slumping to only 13 points in games against Villanova and William and Mary, bounced back to cage 19 against Wake Forest on Tuesday night. He has tallied 377 points for better than 20 point average this season. Horvath, a 6-7 center, is currently whipping the hoops for a 14 point average per game.

Wolverines Defensive Standouts

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Michigan football team which defeated California in the Rose Bowl was a Western Conference No. 1 defensive unit during the 1950 campaign. But this is nothing new for Wolverine teams. During the past four years the Wolverines ranked as the Big Ten's toughest defensive eleven each year.

Unknown N. C. Pro Gets Lakewood Lead

Long Beach, Calif., Jan. 20—(AP)—If you like to bet on longshots, you can pick a haulful from the field still left in the $10,000 Lakewood Park Open golf tournament as shooting starts today in the second round.

From a list of 300 which took two days to play the first round, such virtual unknowns as Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., only six months a professional; Henry Nettelbladt, Avon, Conn.; Ralph Blomquist, Glendale, Calif.; George Kinsman Jr., New Richmond, Wis.; and Lloyd Porter, Dennison, Ia., are among the good chance bets for the $2,000 first prize when the tourney ends Monday.

But if you prefer to put your money on champions, such as familiar names as Lloyd Mangrum and Henry Ransom, winner and runner-up in the recent Los Angeles Open, Clayton Heafner and defending champion Fred Haas Jr. are riding up there, too.

Despite hard rains which left the course sopping wet as the early threesomes teed off yesterday, par took a terrific walloping.

Thirty-nine of the 150 starters, bested the 35-36-71 figure for the 6,235-yard Lakewood layout and it took 74 or better for the surviving 141 to get into today's play.

Boros, a six-foot 200-pound original from Bridgeport, Conn., who turned pro only last summer, took a two-stroke lead over the hot field with a sizzling 65, getting five birdies on the back nine for a 31, chiefly by casually dropping put after putt from eight to 12 feet away.

Assails Hospital Food Reduction

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 20—(AP)—The economy axe wielded by the Advisory Budget Commission has chopped hard at the food supply of mental institutions, much to the chagrin of North Carolina's mental health officials.

Unstead, a member of the State Hospitals Board of Control, asserted yesterday that the "hold the line" commission cut almost $1,000,000 off the food budget requests of the state's five mental hospitals.

If the commission's recommendations are upheld, declared Unstead, institutions would receive less per capita for food than they are now.

The commission lopped $424,500 from food requests for the first year of the biennium, and $484,500 for the second year.

In making food requests the board based its figures on the cost of food as of last July 1. Those prices already have risen.

A great deal of the hospital system's food is grown by the institutions, which calls for farm equipment, tractors and other planting materials "are absolute musts if we are to continue our extensive farm program," said the Representative from Orange.

Health Dept. To Ask State For Building Funds

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 20—(AP)—Another state department needs more money for its construction program.

In a meeting yesterday the State Board of Health voted to ask the legislature for an extra $350,000 to build a new Health Department building.

The board also named Dr. John H. Hamilton assistant State Health Officer to succeed the late Dr. George Cooper, who died Dec. 18.

The 1949 legislature appropriated $600,000 for a new health building. But the board said that because of increased building costs, $950,000 is now needed.

If the project is completed, the new building will be named in honor of Dr. Cooper. Dr. Hamilton is director of the Laboratory of Hygiene.

Winterville Wolverines, Ayden Quint Get 11th Wins

Winterville, Jan. 20.—Winterville's Wolverines posted their eleventh win in 12 starts this season, downing a dauntless Bethel six, 50-31.

Bethel's high-scoring quintet turned the tables in the second half of the twin bill, however, with a one-sided 73-48 victory.

Jean Liverman with 25 points, paced the Wolverines while Anne Spier added 15 points to the cause.

In the boys' tilt, Bethel's lads blazed away with their scoring guns, in gaining their 14th win in 16 tilts. Fred Keel, demon forward for the Indians, led the scoring with 19 points, with center John Nelson following close behind with 18 points.

Thomas Nobles took the individual scoring, however, with 22 points for Winterville.

Ayden's six, with their two lanky forwards leading the scoring, Katherine Wooten with 31 and Alice Jean Cox with 25, had little trouble in overcoming the Grifton lassies.

In the boys' scrap, Ayden had to come from behind a 10-7 deficit at the end of the first quarter to post their 11th win in 12 starts. Teedy Bullock with 22 points led the Tornado quint.

Elmer Valo Signs 1951 Contract

Philadelphia, Jan. 20—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics have the names of eight players on 1951 contracts.

The eighth came into the fold yesterday when Elmer Valo, 29-year old outfielder from Palmyra, Pa., sent in his contract. Valo, who hit .280 last season, will be starting his 10th season with the A's.

First baseman Fenton Mole, who played with Kansas City and Portland last season, and third baseman Gene Valla, Jr., were the players acquired by the Seals.

Mole, a left hander, hit .260 in 86 games for Kansas City and, before that, .224 in 52 games for Portland. Valla hit .290 in 136 games for the Kansas City American Association team.

Bill Despres set the new mark in the 200-yard breaststroke. His time of 2:32.3 was 1.4 seconds better than the old mark set in 1948 by Bill Kelly, also of North Carolina State.

The Wolfpack took six first places in the eight-event meet.

Ex-Temple Star Dies Suddenly

Philadelphia, Jan. 20—(AP)—Howie Black, one of Temple University's greatest basketball stars, died last night at the age of 35.

Black, who was the big gun in the Temple attack that led the Owls to the 1938 national championship, had been ill for a long time.

Perhaps his greatest court achievement came on Dec. 20, 1937, when Temple played Stanford before a sellout crowd at Convention Hall.

Howie, opposed to the great Hank Luisetti, held the Stanford sharpshooter to five field goals and a foul—11 points. One of Black's five field goals put Temple ahead in a 35-31 upset over the coast quintet.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

Chapter 17
They hurried along as fast as they could; but by the time they were at the foot of the long terrace, it was quite dark and the old-city night life had begun. There was no time to do anything but grab a taxicab and get back to the ship by some manner of means. The Continental would be sailing before midnight. Moreover, Captain Rosario, with his ultra-conventional ideas, would be wild when he learned they'd separated themselves from the crowd.

With no sense of direction they walked through the narrow, winding streets in search of a cab, getting deeper and deeper into the native quarter. Skirting around snake charmers, street magicians, peddlers hawking their wares. Passing an endless variety of strange people—city and desert Arabs, men in odd-looking uniforms, children in gaily colored dresses, and women in the somber wrappings of Islam.

They walked on for a while, but there was still no sign of a taxi. Bert tried to make inquiries of the most likely-looking pedestrians, by means of gestures and simple monosyllables. But the only English word anyone seemed to know was "okay," which was peculiarly unhelpful in the present emergency.

Several passersby, when accosted, showed a willingness to help. They listened politely while Bert explained his wants as best he could. He drew diagrams with his hands and even made strange honking noises in imitation of a taxi horn. The would-be helpful ones spoke a few unintelligible words, said "Okay" and walked on. Others simply stared at Molly and Bert—some with unconcealed amusement; some with open hostility, making it clear that they were intruders and unwelcome.

"I hope you don't think I planned this," Bert said, looking down at Molly with contrite blue eyes. "I know I said we'd get lost, but you must have known I was joking."

"Why, of course, Bert," Molly tried to keep the panic out of her voice but she knew it was there. "Besides, we aren't really lost. Even if we were, nothing could happen. After all, this is 1949, not the Dark Ages. And there's a taxi just around your corner, Molly."

Molly added in a determined attempt to be gay. "I heard it honk just a minute ago."

Molly laughed shakily, trying to match his optimism. But she knew the sound he'd just heard was that of a child tooting a native horn. She had seen the child with the horn in its mouth, ducking into a darkened doorway.

She knew, and she believed Bert knew, that they were lost, really lost in the native quarter of a strange city where anything that happened in the Dark Ages could and sometimes did happen again.

W. L. DAVENPORT NOW LOCATED upstairs over Tobacco Board of Trade, room number 5. All watch repairs guaranteed. 18-12

SO SHE MADE HERSELF SAY, "Yes, it's just like a scene in the movies; any minute now I'm sure we'll be rescued." But she had never been rescued of anything in her life. After walking through tortuous streets that were growing noisier and more crowded by the minute, Molly and Bert finally came to what appeared to be a large native cafe or coffee house. They could hear the hum of voices inside, the sound of music and singing.

Karachi—(AP)—The days of Medieval justice were recalled in Karachi recently when a young man, his face blackened and a garland of old shoes around his neck, was paraded through the main streets of the old city.

He was being punished by the elders for stealing a pair of shoes from a mosque while the congregation was offering prayers to Allah. Moslems remove their shoes before entering a mosque.

Tibetan Army Defeated By Red China's Fireworks, Psychology

On the Tibetan-Indian Frontier, Jan. 20 — (AP) — A Tibetan official said today invading Chinese Communists won their big victory in Tibet without firing a shot—using fireworks and psychological warfare.

This official, who reached India after accompanying the Dalai Lama on his flight from Lhasa, said Tibet virtually lost the war when her strongest fortress at Chamdo, near the Tibetan-Chinese border, capitulated in the first days of the Chinese invasion early last October.

"The Chinese won this victory without firing a single shot from a real gun," the official said. "They used skyrockets and other fireworks to turn night into day and to permit Tibetan officers and troops to see fear on each others' faces. In a few hours, all the officers, including the commanding general, Nga Beu, fled; but they were captured by Red patrols.

After their first exposure to the Chinese fireworks, the Tibetan leaders captured at Chamdo received such kind treatment at the hands of their enemies, the official said, that they voluntarily sent messengers to Lhasa reporting "it is impossible to defeat the Communists."

The official said Nga Beu's message urged immediate capitulation of Tibet to the Reds.

"It threw the entire capital into dismay," he said, "and hastened the preparations to give the Dalai Lama full powers."

The 16-year-old ruler and spiritual leader received full governmental powers from the aged regent, who had ruled for him, two years in advance of the normal time because of the crisis.

Finally the decision was made to abandon Lhasa and move the Dalai Lama close to the Indian border to escape capture by the Chinese, said the official. Without further delay, special officers began taking the best from the famous Treasury of the Gods in Potala Palace in Lhasa.

This treasure was loaded on a thousand mules, which were given a special guard. The Dalai Lama, with a small group of officials, fled over the icy plateau through the forbidding Himalayan passes to a temporary capital at Yatung, near the Indian frontier.

Before the Dalai Lama's flight, the official said, the government notified the Communist regime at Peking that Lhasa was defenseless and that Tibet was willing to negotiate for peace. The Chinese replied by radio, he said, advising all Tibetan officials to remain at their posts and to carry on their duties.

With the fall of Chamdo—more than 200 air miles east of Lhasa—the invading Reds began an intensive and effective indoctrination, the official reported. They sent political rather than military leaders to spearhead their further invasion in order to avoid alarming the Tibetan population and angering neighboring India.

With the help of Tibetan fifth columnists, word of this program and of the Chinese "friendship and peaceful intentions" spread rapidly through the country and into every monastery. The official said the Dalai Lama is safe at least temporarily, but that the "Chinese military operations are finished."

"They are already masters of Tibet," he declared.

Also surviving are a son and two daughters by her first marriage, Willie Braxton, Mrs. F. O. Moore and Earl Hardee, both of the home; 7 grandchildren; five brothers, Jack McDaniell of Greenville, and Thomas, Willie, Johnny, and Sam McDaniell, all of Henderson; and four sisters, Mrs. Frank Newton, Mrs. John Daniel, Mrs. James Overton, and Miss Martha McDaniell, all of Henderson.

Fox Hunting . . .

(Continued from page one) is seen in the case of the young Earl of Harewood, whose princess mother is sister of King George. The Earl had to sell some one-third of his ancient ancestral estate to pay inheritance tax when his father died. Farms were sold which had been in tenant families for 300 years.

The Earl has been fortunate enough to retain part of his heritage. In many less fortunate cases, however, an inheritance has been wiped out by taxation, or if some of the estate remained, this shortly has been lost through the early death of the inheritor. The last time I was in Britain I raised this question of the disappearance of the landed aristocracy with an income-tax official. Said he:

"The sight of the re-dedicated country gentleman riding to hounds with the cry of 'Tally-Ho' is a thing of the past, old chap. The landed aristocracy is on its way out."

The cost of riding to hounds is, of course, very high. The mounts in themselves are worth a fortune. So are the carefully trained dogs which are handled by expert huntsmen. When the country squire has satisfied the government on taxation, there frequently isn't much, if anything, for fox hunting.

Arts Club Will Give Students Ballot Boxes

Student members of the Industrial Arts Club at East Carolina Teachers College will present to the Student Government Association of the college in the near future a set of new ballot boxes to be used in school elections. The project in good campus citizenship is already in progress with the construction of the boxes. Robert A. Robinson of Franklin Springs, Ga., is president of the group.

The new project is the second to be undertaken during the present school year by the Industrial Arts

Club. Just before Christmas members of the club cooperated with civic clubs of Greenville in repairing toys to be distributed to underprivileged children of the city. Under the guidance of Dr. Kenneth Bing and Paul Powell of the faculty, students and local citizens, working together at night, in the Industrial Arts workshop, mended, repainted, and otherwise renovated hundreds of toys, which were then distributed by the local civic organizations.

Lists Causes Of High Meat Price

San Francisco, Jan. 20—(AP)—The avarice of American meat hoarders and "scare talk" by government food and economic officials "playing politics with meat" have been the major causes of the recent jumps in meat prices, Loren Bamert, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, declared today.

Bamert, in an interview with the Associated Press, declared that in view of the supplies of meat available the price increases were "unnecessary and unjustifiable" and were brought on by the record hoarding of meat by consumers and the "irresponsible talk of officials which frightened people into believing they faced immediate shortages and price boosts."

Marlin's Color In Controversy

Sydney—(AP)—An Australian sports magazine, "Outdoors and Fishing", has jumped into the big game fishermen's controversy on the true color of Australian Marlin.

American scientists and fishermen have always held that the huge, beaked fish found in Australian waters is the Black Marlin, and not the Blue Marlin variety found along the coasts of the United States.

Athol F. D'Ombrian, an authority on angling here, says in an article in the magazine that on many occasions, Marlin caught by Australian anglers tallies perfectly with descriptions of the American variety. He has pictures to back up his argument.

Allocations—NPA must see that there are enough materials not only for direct military needs but for indirect ones, too. For example:

Freight cars are necessary to haul defense items and warehouses are necessary to store them.

So NPA ordered the steel mills to allocate, or set aside, enough of their steel to take care of things like freight cars and warehouses.

You can be sure the deeper we get into defense the more some materials will be allocated for special needs.

Horizontal cuts—NPA, as the weeks passed, ordered manufacturers to cut down by various percentages on the use of all the important metals, except steel, which is more plentiful than some others.

For example: makers of aluminum pots must reduce by 20 per cent the amount of aluminum they've been using.

Note that up to this point NPA hasn't forbidden anyone to make anything he normally made.

Babson . . .

(Continued From Page One) will be okay; while the chances are 50-50 that you won't be called. When you go to work, get a job with some industry which is essential to the war program;—don't be content to jerk sodas or drive a truck.

World War III Will Need Brains The next few years offer a great opportunity for young men to become expert in some one line of work. Too many young people have been getting jobs without any carefully planned aims. The new defense efforts enable a young man to take tests and ascertain for what he is best fitted and how to train therefor. If you live in a small town where there are no industries, have your mother teach you to cook. This is becoming a real profession. Drafted young men who can qualify as trained cooks are always given good opportunities for advancement.

The trouble with parents and youths today is that they visualize the next war—if it comes—will be like the last war. This is a great mistake. We cannot lick Russia by numbers. Korea proved this. It was our Intelligence Forces that let us down. We can win by brains. If World War III comes it will be a conflict of superior intelligence. Hence, let our youth prepare to use their brains; while the poor Russians, Chinese and other peoples are treated as cannon fodder. If General MacArthur had given more attention to the Intelligence Division of his army and less to old-fashioned fighting customs—things would be different. Our boys should be trained by young leaders in these new ways, rather than by out-dated old "Brass" who cannot adopt modern methods.

REMEMBER OUR RELIGION Finally, let us parents not forget that God continues to rule in His Heaven and that, in the long run, the Russians can never win without Him. God is still our refuge and our strength if we will cease worrying and take each day as it comes. Let us give more time to reading our Bibles and less to television or even the radio. Perhaps, God is using the Russians to again bring us to our knees and to make our young people—who have had things pretty easy—"stop, look and listen". At any rate, I am an optimist and believe that whatever happens, those who do their best from day to day have nothing to fear.

That BEVEDERE man is out of this world!
