U.N. Sidetracks Aggression Vote

New Peiping Statement On Cease-Fire Arrangement Delays Action On United States' Charges; Austin Sees Effort To Divide Free World

Lake Success, Jan. 23—(AP)—The United Nations sidetracked U. S. charges of communist Chinese aggression today to study Peiping's statement that a Korean cease-fire could be arranged at the first meeting of a proposed conference on major Far Eastern problems.

Red China's "clarification" of its previous answer to the U. S. cease-fire call, read last night to the 60-nation political committee by India's Sir Benegal N. Rau, said:

1. A limited cease fire can be agreed on at the first meeting of a seven-nation conference which would then proceed to consider the political problems of the Far East.

2. The problems would include steps for withdrawal of all foreign troops, including Chinese, from Korea and withdrawal of the U. S. Seventh Fleet from the Formosa Straits.

3. "The legitimate status of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations must be insured."

Rau said he considered this new Red Chinese declaration, delivered to India's ambassador in Peiping, satisfied the American and U. N demand for "cease-fire first, negotiations afterwards."

U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin disagreed and termed it "a transparent effort to divide the free world and to X X X postpone, delay, procrastinate."

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb said the Peiping proposals, as reported by India, "appear to come closer to saying 'yes' to the cease-fire proposals." He urged that they be given the closest consideration.

Jebb voted with the majority to delay for 48 hours—until Wednesday—consideration of the American demand that the Chinese communists be denounced as aggressors in Korea. Many delegates regarded this 27 to 23 rejection of Austin's appeal for immediate action the worst defeat the U. S. has suffered in the five-year history of the U. N.

U. S. sources disputed this view said they were still confident their policy eventually would win overwhelming support. Agreeing, most diplomatic informants said that after token consideration of the new Peiping communication, the majority probably would vote for the American resolution.

In yesterday's vote, however, the Latin American countries, Greece, Turkey and the Philippines stuck with the United States.

Canada, France, and the Asian-Arab bloc and the Scandinavian countries all backed the British-Indian plea for close study of the Chinese Reds' message. A big factor in their stand obviously was a great fear that the U. S. is driving her allies, perhaps unwittingly, towards an all-out war with the great land mass of China.

Delegates jokingly hoped yesterday's vote would stop, for a while, Russian tirades about the "Anglo-American bloc" and the "mechanical majority" for any U. S. wish.

Offers Plan To Nab Racketeers

Wilmington, Jan. 23 — (AP) — Judge H. Winfield Smith of Recorders Court has a plan which he believes would make it "a simple matter to corner the big fellows in the rackets." The plan is to find out who puts up the money to defend minor gambling figures.

And how to find out? One way, he said in court yesterday, was to pass a law giving a judge authority to force a lawyer to tell who paid his fee, thus partially erasing the present confidential relationship between lawyer and client.

Anti-Inflation Program Pushed Nearer Reality

Truman Names Board To Study Essential Military, Civilian Needs

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—A stepped-up government program to combat inflation was drawing nearer today, awaiting elimination of several more or less technical obstacles to a freeze on prices and wages.

President Truman moved meanwhile in an effort to insure that the growing demands of the defense program will not siphon off critical materials to such an extent as to endanger the nation's economic growth.

He named William S. Paley, board chairman of the Columnbia Broadcasting system and four other men to make a study of long-term effects on "our essential needs for military security, civilian welfare and the continued economic growth of the United States."

When the projected freeze on prices and wages and other anti-inflation moves would come hinged in large part on these still-to-come developments:

1. Senate confirmation of Eric Johnston as head of the Economic Stabilization Agency (ESA) to run the program.

2. An executive order from Mr. Truman widely expected to give Johnston vastly expanded authority for the ESA over the nation's economy.

Johnston, on leave of absence as head of the Motion Picture Association of America, yesterday received 9 to 0 approval of the Senate Banking Committee to be Economic Stabilizer. Senate confirmation, possibly today, was regarded as certain.

Before the Banking committee acted, it introduced into its record a telegram from Chairman Maybank (D-SC), recuperating at Key West, Fla., from an illness. Maybank said the Truman Administration's failure to control prices has brought the country "to the brink of ruinous inflation."

Later, he told a reporter in a telephone interview he was somewhat disappointed that Mr. Truman had selected as Economic Stabilizer a man who he said lacks first hand knowledge of the problems of such large segments of the economy as agriculture, small business and labor.

Freezing Rain In West Carolina

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 23—(AP)—Freezing rain which turned into ice disrupted vehicular and pedestrian traffic in Asheville this morning and made driving conditions dangerous on most western North Carolina highways.

The ice began forming about 8 a. m. when the temperature stood at 28 degrees, ad grew progressively worse during the morning, police reported.

Chains were virtually useless on the slippery glaze.

Arrest Woman In Smuggling Gems

New York, Jan. 23—(AP)—Customs officials today disclosed the arrest of a woman accused of smuggling more than $200,000 in diamonds into this country in hollow soles of her platform shoes.

The woman, identified as Eta Hoffman, was arrested yesterday at Idlewild Airport.

Bombs Rained On Reds

B-29 bombers of the U. S Far East Air Force rain tons of high demolition bombs on a strategic Chinese Communist military target in North Korea. Okinawa based B-29's dripped 192 tons of the bombs on railway centers throughout Red-held portions of Korea. On the ground, allied forces retook Wonju air strip and a nearby hill. Several hours later, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway landed at the airstrip. He conferred with field officers at the strip and inspected the terrain. (AP Wirephoto).

Needs Soldiers

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall said today the U.S. troops under General MacArthur need 13,000 replacements a month and it will be April before his divisions are built up to "normal strength."

Marshall testified at hearings by the House Armed Services Committee on the Defense Department's request for Universal Military Service and training for 18-year-olds.

The department also asks that the length of service by drafted men be extended from 21 months to 27.

Lanier Trial Is Put Off To April

Case Continued Due To Absence Of Private Prosecutor

Kinston, Jan. 23—The trial of J. Con Lanier, Greenville attorney indicted for manslaughter, has been ordered continued until the April term of Lenoir Superior Court due to the absence of the private prosecutor.

The case was originally scheduled for hearing during the present term of court which opened yesterday morning. However, Marion A. Parrott, private prosecutor for the State, requested continuation of the trial since he is at present a member of the legislature. Judge Henry Stevens, presiding judge of the Sixth Judicial District, yesterday granted continuation.

Also yesterday Judge Stevens signed an order to turn over to Lanier's defense attorneys affidavits signed by two Pitt County men who allegedly were with Willie Henry Tripp, victim of the highway accident November 25, before he was killed. Defense counsel Jesse Jones and Albion Dunn, the latter of Greenville, entered a motion before Stevens for access to the affidavits. They were turned over to the defense today.

Tour Of Foreign Duty Extended By U. S. Army

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 23—(AP)—The U. S. Army today bolstered its forces in Germany by extending the foreign service tours of soldiers and officers by six months.

Net effect will be to increase the American troops strength in this vital outpost of western Europe's defenses. Replacements for those soldiers who had completed their prescribed foreign service now will become reinforcements.

Although the brief Army announcement did not explain the action, it appeared to be a quick method of increasing troop strength here while waiting for expected reinforcements from the United States to arrive.

The Army announced last September that it would send more troops to Germany. So far no sizeable contingents have arrived.

Gen. Eisenhower Is On Way Home

Paris, Jan. 23—(AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived here from Germany today, homeward bound after speedy stops in 10 European nations from which he hopes to draw the bulk of his Atlantic Pact army to defend Western Europe against Soviet communism.

After two days in the French capital, Eisenhower leaves Thursday by air for Iceland and Canada—the only two Atlantic Pact signers he still must visit—and Washington.

Winterville Opens Center Saturday

Home-Built Community Building Virtually Completed

Winterville, Jan. 23.—A tea in celebration of the official opening of the new Winterville community center will be held Saturday afternoon and evening from 4 until 9 o'clock.

The new community building, built through funds donated by citizens of the Winterville community, has been under construction since last summer, and is practically complete. Only finishing touches of hardware on the windows and a few strips of molding remain to be put in place before the building will be complete.

The celebration of the opening of the new building Saturday afternoon will be in the form of an open house with the tea being served by the members of the Winterville Literary Club. No ceremonies or formal dedication program has been planned for the occasion.

The movement for the new community building began in Winterville a number of months ago and has been headed by a committee composed of Mrs. Graham Oliye, Bernie Tucker, Mrs. R. H. Gorman, E. C. Davenport, Mrs. Roy T. Cox, Mrs. L. H. Harris and R. E. Boyd. The building has been built entirely through funds given by donations, and the cost of the building has been paid for with the exception of a remaining debt of less than $1,000. A spokesman for the committee said it is hoped additional donations to the community building will be enough to pay off the remaining debt.

The new building will contain a large auditorium, a kitchen, storage hallway and rest rooms.

It is to be used for various kinds of community activities. Although

Escaped Convict At Large

Jumped Prison Truck In City Yesterday; Dragnet Set In Eastern N. C.

Eastern North Carolina law enforcement officers are continuing today to search for a convict who jumped off a prison truck in Greenville's business district yesterday afternoon and eluded police and prison officers.

Superintendent Paul Crawford of the state prison camp near Greenville identified the escaped convict as Jack Wilson of the Suffolk, Va. area. Crawford said Wilson was serving 27 years on sentences from Rockingham and Surry Counties for kidnapping, breaking and entering, and larceny. He has been in prison since 1943, and assigned to the local prison camp for the past two years.

Wilson, according to the officers, jumped off a prison camp truck shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon as the truck stopped at the corner of West Eighth Street and Dickinson Avenue in Greenville's business district. Crawford said the prison guard who was riding behind the convict truck was unable to shoot at the fleeing man because of the danger of wounding pedestrians on the street at the time.

Officers said Wilson ran a short way down Eighth Street and cut through residential yards and then into the alley behind White's store, VanDyke Furniture and Taft Furniture store. A truck owned by VanDyke Furniture Company was discovered to be missing about an hour after the convict escaped, and officers expressed the belief it was stolen by the convict.

After the convict jumped from the truck, officers were notified, and city police, prison officers, highway patrol officers and members of the county sheriff's department immediately set out a drag net through the city's downtown section, the East Carolina Teachers College campus, and the residential section near the college campus. The officers were unable to pick up a trace of the fugitive, and the hunt in the immediate area was abandoned shortly after midnight.

This morning law enforcement officers of Beaufort County reported that a truck answering the description of the one stolen from the furniture company here was found in Washington. It was positively identified as the stolen truck about noon today.

Officers throughout this section of the state were continuing their search for the escaped convict.

Crawford described the fugitive as 33 years old, five feet 10 inches tall and weighing 152 pounds. Crawford said Wilson attempted an escape from a road gang on July 22, 1949 between Fountain and the Wilson county line, but was immediately recaptured.

Several months ago another convict from the local prison camp escaped from a truck at approximately the same location in Greenville's business district, and only recently was recaptured by officers.

HOT AND COLD

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 23—(AP)—Firemen laboring in 50 below zero temperatures battled flames in downtown Fairbanks early today. They estimated damage at $500,000.

A bakery and a drug store were destroyed.

Thunderjets Knock Down Four MIGs In Big Scrap

Aerial Battle Is Biggest Jet Fight In History; All U.S. Planes Return Unharmed; Wonju And Nearby Hills Seized By Allied Patrols

Tokyo, Jan. 23—(AP)—American Thunderjets streaking over northwest Korea shot down four Russian-made MIG-15s today in history's biggest jet air battle.

The F-84s also scored one probable kill and damaged four more of the Russian speedsters with the back-swept wings.

A. P. correspondent John Randolph, at U. S. Fifth Air Force headquarters in Korea, said all the American planes returned safely. Not a single bullet hole was found in the Thunderjets, he added.

On the ground, allied combat teams Tuesday reoccupied the central Korean road-rail hub of Wonju and its airstrip. They also seized nearby Hills 233 and 273, ousting a force of nearly 100 Reds off the latter with an artillery barrage. A spokesman said at 10 p.m. (8 a.m., EST) Tuesday that United Nations forces were "in control of all Wonju."

Thirty-one miles southeast, allied forces were battling Red Ko ns in Yongwol. Heavy fighting raged southeast of Tanyang.

Near Mixup

In the air fight, 33 U. S. Thunderjets tangled with 18 to 28 MIGs over Sinuiju, just across the Yalu River from Manchuria.

"There was a real commotion, a real mixup," said one airman.

Soon after daylight Tuesday the Thunderjets struck at Sinuiju airfield where photographs had showed a number of enemy planes.

Then the swift jets in flights of four rocketed and machinegunned the field while other F-84s flew cover.

The enemy jets flashed across the Yalu River from Antung in the sanctuary of Manchuria.

For 30 minutes the air battle flamed as the roaring jets streaked from high altitudes to low and swooshed upwards again at dazzling speeds.

"I'll say this for the MIG pilots," one American jet Captain commented. "They are damned good and they aren't afraid of us."

Bombing Raid

In a companion raid, 46 F-86 Shooting Star jets screamed down on the flak defenses of Pyongyang to clear the way for a massive B-29 strike on that Red Korean capital.

The Fifth Air Force had 79 jets in the air in the two strikes.

Last Dec. 22, eight F-86 Sabre Jets shot down six MIGs and a probable seventh.

The allied patrol that pushed through Wonju was bolstered with tanks. U. N. forces withdrew from the town one week ago after a fighting stand there but returned last Friday and have poked into the road center almost every day since.

Communist resistance there has lessened steadily.

But the Reds who retreated from fill 273 took up positions on a nearby height and fired at allied forces throughout Tuesday afternoon. Allied air and artillery strikes pounded the Reds.

Prisoners said two Chinese regiments were moving 17 miles west of Wonju.

Reds Trapped

In the fighting 10 miles southeast of Tanyang, U. S. Seventh Division doughboys had cornered nearly 3,000 Red infiltrators and were hammering at them.

Artillery and mortar blasts reverberated against the lofty, cold mountains. Field reports said 400 of one group of nearly 2,000 Red infiltrators had been killed in the sharp action. Another group of 1,000 Red Koreans and 200 women also was in the area.

Guardsmen Start A 'Full-Time J[illegible]'

Preparation for movement of the local battery of the National Guard which went under federal control this morning is moving rapidly as can be seen in the above photograph. Boxing and crating of equipment which the battery will carry with it when it leaves will take a good part of the next days to come for the Guardsmen. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

They're In The Army Now, And Battery C Is Packing Up For Move To Camp; Unit Departs Next Monday

By JOHN SPEARS, JR.

Bright and early this morning Active Duty entered the Armory and greeted members of Greenville's National Guard Battery C who were standing by waiting for it—some eager, some puzzled, still others used to it, but all alert and ready for whatever it may mean.

Today at eight o'clock the complement of close to 100 men donned their olive drab uniforms permanently and transposed themselves from their recent alerted routine to full time Army duty. From this morning on they will have cast off the "Mister" prefix to their names and become a very active and regimented part of the growing numbers of recruits, privates, corporals, sergeants and officers of the new Army.

Today was the "same old Army" to many of the veterans of the last war and it included the preliminary business of taking out GI insurance, learning the Articles of War and making out allotments to parents, wives or relatives. Later, the men got down to business with close order drill, instruction in the pieces of Guard equipment, and labor in getting those pieces crated up and ready for shipment out of Greenville.

Destination of the battery is Camp Campbell, Ky., and it will pull out of its local stamping grounds next Monday. Both men and equipment will leave at approximately the same time, the men going by rail or private transportation and the guns, trucks and other equipment on flat cars.

Captain J. B. Tyndall, commanding officer of Battery C, stated the group will probably remain at Camp Campbell, a World War II armored battalion camp, for about 14 weeks for basic training. After that, he said, it's up to the Army where his men will go.

"We're all ready to leave," he said, "and have most of our personal equipment ready."

On the main floor of the Armory the new and old men alike were being instructed in the finer points of close-order drill. Arranged in three squads of seven men each, the platoon showed the markings of previous nights of drill instruction, which will make the 14-week basic training somewhat less of a headache.

In the office Captain Tyndall and M-Sgt. Walter Beddard were checking their records with those of the North Carolina State National Guard officers who were here to transfer the State's equipment to the Army. Doing the job for the State were Captains F. D. Harding, Air Force, and J. S. Coxe, Infantry. Besides the men's personal clothing, mess equipment and other items, the Army will get ownership of two 155 mm. howitzers, three weapons carriers, two two-and-a-half ton trucks, two tractors and a jeep. These will be loaded onto flat cars during the latter part of the battery's stay here and will leave with the men for Kentucky.

A detail of five men will precede the battery and on arrival at Camp Campbell will draw rations for the rest of the men, arrange for quarters and drawing of fighting equipment. The detail will leave this week.

Instructing the men during the rest of the week will be Col. H. E. Camp, of the New Bern Guard, who is here to teach the men the fundamentals of field artillery maneuvers before they go into the rudiments of it during basic training.

The men will eat only two meals per day at the Armory while they are here. There will be no reveille in the morning which does away with the necessity of preparing breakfast. Between eight o'clock each morning and nighttime the men will go through their Army paces. After a full day of instruction, they will be off duty until the next morning.

The first Army meal the men ate was dinner at noon today. Kitchen police were assigned for the meal and served it in Army fashion. But in order to break the Army gently to the recent civilians, the menu consisted of, among the usual staples, steak. That, the battery officers reminded, won't be the usual fare after they leave Greenville.

Alpine Avalanches Boost Death Toll; Slides Go On

Vienna, Austria, Jan. 23—(AP)—Giant avalanches thundering down Austria's mountains brought new peril to isolated villages and towns today as estimates of Alpine Europe's death toll reached 34 persons.

In Switzerland lessening of the snowfall and a temperature drop cut the avalanche danger sharply, but reports from all areas in the Austrian Alps said the slides still were roaring down, carrying boulders and uprooted trees with them and demolishing farms, hunting lodges and haystacks.

Between 112 and 127 persons had been buried by the snow in Austria during four terror-filled days. The number of missing was unknown as an estimated 45,000 persons—including thousands of foreign tourists—remained isolated from the rest of the world.

In Switzerland 68 bodies had been recovered and at least 11 more persons were believed dead. At least 20 were listed as severely injured and scores of families were homeless in the icy winter.

Italy reported 25 dead, 30 injured and 20 missing following huge slides in the Livigno Valley, on the Swiss-Italian border, and in the Venezia Tridentina region, near the Austrian border.

Three were dead in France.

Innsbruck, capital of the Austrian Tyrol, and its 100,000 population was isolated except for a one-way path cut through the mountain passes to the east. Lack of drinking water, caused by slide destruction of most waterworks, threatened the city with epidemics.

Announce 4,000 Victims Of New Guinea Volcano

Canberra, Australia, Tuesday, Jan. 23—(AP)—Australia's External Territories Department announced today that 4,000 persons were killed or injured in the eruption last Thursday of Mt. Lamington, in New Guinea's equatorial jungle.

The department did not break down its casualty figure into dead and injured.

Latest reports from the government secretary at Port Moresby, S. A. Lonergan, said the major eruption of the volcano appeared to have subsided.

The casualty estimate came from Ivan Champion, Director of District Services in New Guinea. Other official messages said 34 Europeans still were not accounted for.

Col. J. K. Murray, government administrator for New Guinea, sent this message after an air survey of the Mt. Lamington area:

"In 20 villages no people were seen. Houses were wrecked and trees denuded by the blast. Ground parties are going out Tuesday to contact the native injured and bury the dead."

Australian officials said today the volcanic explosions have caused the century's worst disaster in this section of the globe. The estimated toll of 4,000 dead and injured was questioned however. Some officials at Port Moresby predicted many of these would later emerge from the jungle into which fright may have driven them.

Alibi In Court Poorly Received

Atlanta, Jan. 23—(AP)—The man had an alibi but the judge said something suspiciously like, "baaah."

Police Recorder Luke Aronld said the man was accused of driving while intoxicated and related this story yesterday:

"I lost my stomach in an operation several years ago and physicians replaced it with a sheep's stomach. Now every time I pass green grass my stomach pains me something awful and I have to take a dose of paregoric. That's what I had done when police arrested me on this charge."

The judge put him away for three days where no grass grows.

Soviet Attack On Arming Western Germany May Lead To Denouncing Treaties With Western Nations; Moscow Tried To Absorb All Germans In Past Overtures

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Soviet Russia is turning some of her heaviest artillery against rearmament of West Germany, thus emphasizing that this is one of the paramount issues in the western theatre.

Moscow has sent blunt notes to both Britain and France, declaring that plans to rearm West Germany are a violation of Russia's treaties of alliance with the two western powers.

Now that's tough talk! It can be variously interpreted but it certainly means that the Soviet Union is being purposely belligerent, either to try to frighten Britain and France or to pave the way for her own denunciation of the alliance.

A projected Russian denunciation could mean that Moscow is preparing its people for the contingency of another world war. However, I don't believe we should try to read into that more than its face value. The western powers are mincing no words in warning their peoples that war is a possibility and should be prepared for. It's natural for Russia to do the same.

The future of Western Germany—key state of central Europe—depends heavily on the desires of its own people, and it is in some doubt, although the country leans strongly towards the West. The Germans are standing firm in their insistence that they be given equality with the allies in any rearmament program, and this is causing some anxiety among the western European countries which have been through two world wars against the Reich.

However, the western powers have made it clear that they have no intention of trying to force the Bonn government to accept a rearmament program. It is agreed that rearmament must be done voluntarily and willingly. General Eisenhower during his recent visit was emphatic in his insistence that if the Germans come in it must

How NPA Was Built

This Busy Governmental Agency Is A Part Of The Commerce Department; Experts Called In From Private Jobs To Head Divisions, Act As Advisors, Planners

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—Every day scores of serious businessmen bustle through the long corridors of the Commerce Department building, looking for room numbers.

All seem to have brief cases. Sometimes a baffled one sticks his head in a door, asks a question, and then hurries along, confident at last that he's on the right track.

These businessmen are seeking advice connected with their business, or they're here to give advice about their business, or they're looking for a job with the government.

But all of them are looking for someone in NPA—the National Production Authority—which controls the materials used in defense and civilian production.

When the defense program got started last September, NPA was set up inside the Commerce Department, which is headed by Secretary of Commmerce Charles Sawyer. There was a practical reason for starting it there.

NPA was brand new and had to get a staff together. Since it's the Commerce Department's job to deal with industry and commerce, it was able to move some of its specialists wholesale into NPA.

These were all regular government employes. And they formed the nucleus for NPA's staff which now numbers about 1,000. But they were only a starter. A lot of people who didn't work for the government had to be induced to come into NPA.

You can see why. NPA is split into divisions, each dealing with a special branch of industry, like the Steel Division, the Rubber Division, and so on.

And since each division was going to issue orders profoundly affecting its individual industry, men who knew those industries inside out were needed, particularly men in whom members of an industry had confidence. Such men special-

Legion Auxiliary Hears Ralph Rives Speak On Americanism And Security

Ralph H. Rives, a student at East Carolina Teachers College, was introduced by Mrs. Chester Harris as the guest speaker at the American Legion Auxiliary meeting when it met with Mrs. J. Knott Proctor on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Rives spoke of Americanism in relation to national security and defense. He defined Americanism as the invisible force that guides American people from within and makes the American way of life different from the totalitarian mode of conduct.

He traced the growth of the nationalistic spirit in the United States and pointed out that it came to be born amid the struggle for American liberty during the Revolutionary War. He spoke of the forces and events in the nation's history that have welded and strengthened the feeling of naticnal unity and patriotism.

"The American philosophy of life," said the speaker, "is embodied in the Preamble to the Constitution, which guarantees to all men life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We have fought for this ideal through the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Civil War, the Spanish American War and through two World Wars to date. We have formulated doctrines and international policies to foster and preserve these freedoms, not only for us but also for freedom-loving men everywhere."

Mr. Rives pointed out that Americans have sought to spread this concept of life to others through non-imperialistic trade, missionary enterprises and philanthropic efforts of the government as well as of individuals.

In concluding his remarks, he raised the question: How can the U. S. defend Americanism? He did not seek to answer this question, but he quoted from the address of President Truman when he addressed the 82nd session of Congress in January, at which time the president outlined a ten-point program towards bolstering the nation's defenses. They were as follows:

1. Appropriations for the military services.
2. Extension and revision of the Selective Service act.
3. Military and Economic aid to help build up the strength of the free world.
4. Revision and extension of the authority to expand production and stabilize prices, wages and rents.
5. Improvement of agricultural laws.
6. Improvement of labor laws.
7. Provision for housing and training of defense workers.
8. Means for increasing supply of doctors, nurses and other trained medical personnel.
9. Aid to states to meet the most urgent needs for education.
10. Major increase in taxes to meet the cost of such a program.

At the business meeting which preceded Mr. Rives' address, Mrs. James Worsley, president of the Auxiliary, presided. Routine reports were given from the various committee chairmen and reports from the secretary and the treasurer were duly made. The Auxiliary voted to send a donation of $25.00 towards furnishing a day nursery at the veterans' hospitals. They also voted to order 7,000 poppies and three dozen collection cans for use on Poppy Day. The Auxiliary voted to send a potted plant to Mrs. B. F. James, whose father recently died.

Mrs. E. W. Barnhill was appointed to serve as National Defense chairman. The president also announced that the February meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. Ty Wagner, at which time Dr. J. D. Messick would be the speaker.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the hostesses, Mesdames J. K. Proctor, K. B. Pace, H. C. Parsons, H. R. Rogers, Paul Scott, J. H. Waldrop, Luther Bowling, D. M. Clark, Clyde Hollowell, R. L. Humber and J. B. Kittrell served tea, sandwiches, cookies and nuts.

Annual Religious Emphasis Week In Full Swing

Religious Emphasis Week, which began at East Carolina Teachers College Sunday evening with a service conducted by Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities at the college, will continue through Thursday. This morning at 10:00 o'clock a special assembly of students and faculty members initiated a series of talks by the Rev. Ray Holder of Christ Church, Raleigh. Experience Isn't Any Help On Job

Before the war Bill was a member of a traveling show and his specialty was a gymnastic act atop a 120 foot pole. He thought climbing telephone poles would be a cinch after that, but when he found he needed both hands for working and had to depend for safety only on a safety belt, he was terrified. His former self-confidence was based on hand to hand contact with his support.

Ashenfelter To Try Again

NEW YORK—(AP)—Horace Ashenfelter 3rd would certainly like to be Horace Ashenfelter the first. In 13 races at one and two miles last winter, Ashenfelter of the Penn A.C. was unplaced only once yet did not win a race. At two miles he was runnerup four times and third five times. In one of these races he set the pace for 17 of the 22 laps.

Ashenfelter, the American 10,000 meter outdoor champion, will compete in the two mile race in the annual Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden Jan. 27.

Children's Welfare Is Job For Parents

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Education Editor

A child's welfare, moral as well as physical, is primarily a parent's concern, and to fulfill this responsibility parents must assume a great deal of guidance or authority.

A recent meeting of a parent-disucssion group at Adelphi College, Garden City, N. Y., brought out the need for emotional stability in parents and the wisdom of a judicious use of authority in the rearing of children by parents.

"Children reflect the attitudes and concerns of their parents," Dr. Agnes Snyder, director of teacher education at Adelphi, told the group. "Many problems disappear for children as parents gain security in their own lives."

Dean of Adelphi's Graduate School of Social Work, Dr. Alexander Handel, commented on the increasing acceptance by both parents and professional specialists of a "permissive philosophy" in the rearing of children. Says he:

"The past ten years has witnessed the increasing acceptance by both parents and professional specialists of a permissive philosophy in the rearing of children. Thus we find more and more parents, pediatricians, social workers, teachers, psychologists, etc., recognizing the validity of self-demand feeding, self-regulation in toilet training and general permissive guidance procedures. Unfortunately, the spread of these concepts has created some confusion; many parents and professionals seem to feel that if self-regulation is good for infants it follows that the use of authority and a framework of firm limitations is contradictory and necessarily bad."

Nothing is farther from the truth, says Dr. Handel. Parents must exercise authority or, better still, young child of three is capable of sensing and accepting limits upon what he can do. The younger the child, the more numerous are the areas where clear firm limits have to be established. Obviously, feeding a young child can be a messy job, says Dr. Handel. And within limits parents can permit it to remain so. But when junior starts throwing plates and bottles around, certainly parents should adopt firm attitudes in discouraging this form of behavior. And, as a child becomes increasingly able to accept responsibility, limitations and authority may be relaxed, he says.

Unless, concluded Dr. Handel, parents adopt firm attitudes and sound guidance techniques toward their children, rather than permitting them to go their own way, the ultimate result will be, he finds, "judicial decisions punishing parents for the 'misdeeds' of their children."

Push Development Of Odd Autos That Also Can Fly

By JAMES J. STREBIG
Associated Press Aviation Reporter

Washington — The government is interested in a machine you can fly through the air and drive down the street.

To help test two ideas for such "airautos" or "roadplanes," the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) has offered to rent 10 of each type for six months for use by field agents. The planes would be distributed among CAA's nine geographic regions and get the benefit of operation under a variety of climates and terrain conditions.

One of the "flymobiles" was built at Danbury, Conn., by Robert Edison Fulton, Jr. Over a period of years he has flown his "Airphibian" more than 100 hours and driven it thousands of miles.

The other is the "Aerocar" built by Moulton Taylor, president of Aerocar, Inc., Longview, Wash. It first flew last February and has been tested extensively on the ground and in the air.

Both types have the same basic plan — a single power plant for driving or flying, with removable wings and tail section — but they differ greatly in detail.

The "Aerocar" is a pusher plane. That is, the propeller is at the tail. For ground use, the wings and tail section fold together and can be hooked to the rear of the car and hauled like a trailer. This would permit a pilot to land at one airport, drive into the city and take off from a different airport.

The Fulton "Airphibian" is a tractor airplane, the propellor is in front. For ground use the wing, tail section and propeller are removed for storage at the airport while the automobile is driven away.

Either type carries two persons. Air speeds are around 100 miles an hour and ground speeds are comparable to those of other light automobiles.

The CAA is an agency of the Commerce Department charged with enforcement, operational and promotional aspects of civil aviation. This includes development and testing fo new devices for flying.

Occasionally the CAA promotes a special purpose design by paying the cost to a private contractor. A recent example is a $50,000 contract under which Texas A. and M. College built a plane intended to meet the special needs of agricultural flying such as crop dusting, spraying and seeding. The plane now is being flight tested.

The offer to rent the Fulton and Taylor machines, providing a cost figure can be agreed upon, fits into the CAA's long-time effort to give private flying greater utility. Studies have shown that lack of usefulness, resulting from the inconvenience of airport locations and weather delays, ranks with cost as a major cause of discouraging airplane ownership.

Oversea Air Bases Is Key American Strategy To Launch Counter-Blows

By C. YATES MCDANIEL

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—America's global war strategy is now keyed to counter bombing attacks launched from overseas bases which are much nearer Russia than the U. S. home fields of the giant B-36.

Events in rapid succession highlighted today the Air Force emphasis upon acquiring more foreign bases from which U. S. planes could take off and maintain atomic or other bomb retaliation. These include:

1. B-36 bombers have completed a non-stop return flight to Texas after paying their first visit to Great Britain.

2. The British Air Ministry announced that the U. S. Air Force will open in March its sixth air base in the United Kingdom.

3. Gen. Omar Bradley disclosed that our retaliation bombing bases should be as close to Russia as we can establish them ahead of time to seize and hold them the moment the need arises.

Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a Senate committee yesterday that the "closer the bases are to the enemy" the easier and the less costly it will be to provide a "sustained retaliation air attack."

Bradley also said that U. S. strategy, for which the Chiefs of Staff are primarily responsible, "does not include a retraction" of all American power to continental America.

The fight in congress and the services last year over the effectiveness of the B-36 created the mistaken impression in some quarters that the U. S. Air Force planned to place all of its strategic eggs in one basketfull of intercontinental bombers. Since then the Air Force itself has moved to correct such impressions.

Three bomber bases are already operating in Great Britain. One jet fighter group is there to help the Royal Air Force protect the B-29 superforts. American anti-aircraft guns and crews are established and increasing in strength around these bases in England.

The B-36 flight to England renewed speculation that the big planes capable of carrying A-bombs would be based overseas. Airmen say there is no technical reason why the six-engined planes should not operate from bases such as we have in Great Britain.

Most airmen feel, however, that the B-36s' great advantage, their ability to fly greater distances than any other known plane, would be negated by basing them at points where smaller and faster planes could operate just as easily.

The retaliation strategy emphasized by Bradley, demands that it must be prompt, devasting and capable of being sustained.

The old B-29 proved at Hiroshima and Nagasaki that it could carry and drop an atomic bomb effectively. The improved version of this plane, known as the B-50, can do better than the B-29's, 2,000 mile combat radius. The newer B-47 all-jet bomber has the same combat radius rating, but a much higher speed than the original atomic bomber and the B-36.

The retaliation strategy calls for smaller and possibly faster planes, operating from as many bases as can be protected by ground and sea power, to strike back quickly against any big assault. The big B-36 bombers, flying at something less than 300 miles an hour, could not be expected to hit a target in Russia as quickly as some of the smaller planes.

Pou Says Scott Bawled Him Out

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 23—(AP)—Rep. Edwin S. Pou of Wake said last night Governor Scott had assailed him for introducing a resolution calling for a probe of the proposed coliseum at the state Fair Grounds.

The resolution resulted in the formation of a special legislative committee to look into the $1,350,000 ultra-modern structure. The committee was scheduled to hold a public hearing today on the issue.

Pou said the Governor told him last Friday that "I had neither the background, ability or experience to interpret the wishes of the people."

The Wake legislator, serving his first term, said he went to the governor's office after being told the governor wanted to see him about "a rumor."

The rumor, Pou explained, was that "I had written a performance bond covering the contractor who had bid low on the heating for the project and that since the heating contract was not being awarded I was pushing opposition out of spite."

Pou said he had intended to tell the governor the rumor was unfounded and that "I had written no bond for any contractor bidding on the project."

"I never got a chance," the young legislator asserted. "The governor sailed into me immediately after I entered his office. He told me I was leading the lawyers who were ganging up on the farmer in this legislature."

Scientists Announce New Long-Life Battery Made

New York, Jan. 23—(AP)—Bell Telephone Laboratory scientists today announced a new long-life storage battery which they said will save the telephone industry more than $1,000,000 a year.

It lasts at least 50 per cent longer than present batteries, goes many months without needing more water, suffers less corrosion and loses only 4 per cent of its total charge each month. That loss is about one-fifth the loss of present storage batteries.

Storage batteries are used in the nation's telephone network to provide standby power in case of power failure. The new battery was developed specifically for the telephone network, but later may become available for other users, the Bell announcement said.

The clue to the better battery came when scientists tried to find the source of a gas that was tarnishing parts of the switches in the dial system. They found a gas, antimony hydride or stibine, coming from storage batteries.

The battery gas was not the culprit in the tarnishing trouble. But the scientists discovered one reason why batteries run down. Antimony, used to harden lead, was passing from one plate to another within the battery cell, speeding up corrosion and setting up an electrochemical action which partially discharged the negative plate. By substituting calcium for the antimony in lead, they got rid of the antimony troubles and produced the better battery.

Loses Libel Suit Against Pearson

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—Fred N. Howser, former California Attorney Genral, lost his $360,000 libel suit against columnist Drew Pearson in Federal District Court last night.

The jury decided unanimously that Pearson proved his radio statement that Howser accepted a $1,200 bribe from a Long Beach gambler in 1946 when he was Los Angeles County District Attorney and a candidate for State Attorney General.

The broadcast, made Sept. 12, 1948, was carried by 34 stations in California and nine other western states.

Howser, who was present throughout the six days of the trial, was not in the courtroom when the jury brought in the verdict after four and a half hours of deliberation. His attorney, Roger Robb, said the case will be appealed.

Pearson testified at the trial that James T. Mulloy, who worked in Howser's Long Beach campaign headquarters in 1946, informed him of the $1,200 incident in a sworn affidavit.

Fingerprinted

Los Angeles, Jan. 23—(AP)—The newest artificial hands are so lifelike their fingerprints are on file with the FBI.

The hands were described yesterday at a conference of manufacturers of artificial limbs. They are made of plastic and covered with plastic gloves molded from the hands of live models.

These gloves carry the fingerprints of the models, so to avoid confusion, the fingerprints are registered. Experts can tell the difference.

Will Adjust Hail Insurance Rates

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 23—(AP)—Hail insurance rates will be increased in some Tar Heel counties this year and decreased in others.

Insurance Commissioner Waldo Cheek yesterday announced he was approving the changes which will have the effect of adding an estimated $40,000 to the total annual premium costs.

Thirteen counties, he said, will have increased tobacco rates and 18 counties decreased rates. Cotton rates will be dropped in all but Cleveland and Lincoln Counties.

Big Turkey Crop For N. C. Ahead

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 23—(AP)—North Carolina farmers plan to produce a record crop of 729,000 turkeys this year.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service yesterday reported that the 1951 goal would be a 25 per cent increase over the record turkey crop of 583,000 produced last year.

Illinois Senator Defends Acheson

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 23—(AP)—Senator Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill), has come to the defense of Secretary of State Acheson's foreign policy stand.

Douglas here for an address last night, asserted that "Acheson's attitude has been misunderstood."

The Illinois Senator, in what he said was his first public defense of Acheson, declared that "Acheson's attitude is one of uncompromising opposition to aggression by the Chinese Reds and communists elsewhere."

"Since Korea he and Mr. Truman have been the strongest opponents aggressive communism has had," Douglas stated. He particularly cited the Secretary of State's action in urging the U. S. to go into Korea and in branding Red China as the aggressor.

In the struggle against communism, "we should seek protection in strength and not in weakness," Douglas stated. "It is better to deal with aggression in its earliest stages before it gathers too great a momentum—to check it before the tidal wave has gone too far."

The Senator pointed out that "wherever there is a vacuum, a weakness, Soviet Russia has struck. But where the West has asserted its strength, Russia has tended to back up."

Sheriff Reveals Woman Beaten

Whiteville, N. C., Jan. 23—(AP)—Sheriff Hugh Nance disclosed last night that a mob of white nightriders beat a Columbus County negro woman in her home Thursday. The sheriff added that the 40 or 50 men evidently were after her husband.

Nance said he learned about the incident the morning after it happened, but kept it quiet until now to aid in his investigation. But no one recognized the men, and that is handicapping the inquiry, he said.

Neither the victim, Evergreen Flowers of the Broadway community near Chadbourn, nor her husband, Willie, a farmer, could give a reason for the beating. Nor did any of the men, who beat her with sticks and a gun, say why.

Columbus county is adjacent to Horry County, S. C., where men have been reported beaten by nightriders on three occasions within the last six months. Sheriff C. E. Sasser of Horry County has said he believes the beatings were by the Ku Klux Klan, but he had no evidence to bring charges. Thomas Hamilton of Leesville, S. C., Grand Dragon of the Association of Carolinas Klans, has denied that the KKK had anything to do with the Horry beatings. He was not reachable for comment on the Columbus incident.

SUCCESS IN MARRIAGE

What does a man admire most in a woman?

The observation has often been made that whereas some girls spend their time weaving nets to catch men, the ones who really make a success out of marriage are the ones who spend their time fashioning a cage to hold them. Which of course is just another way of saying that there are certain basic moral qualities which make a marriage happy, and that, lacking these, marriages often go on the rocks.

Men above everything else admire in women moral character which can be trusted. They flirt with prettiness but usually they marry personality. Men admire refinement in women, and the less refinement a man has himself, the more he admires it in a woman.

Many homes break up over arguments about money. A woman needs to be a good manager if she covets happy marriage. Men like to come home to cheerfulness, for the world in which they carry on their work is often cheerless, and they do not want to come home to more of the same thing.

Marriage is a mixture of mystery and simplicity. The mystery part has to be left in the hands of God, but the simplicities of marriage can be understood by all who use their heads and keep on an even keel of moral soundness.

More Pitt Countians Answer The Call To Duty

Today Greenville's National Guard went on active duty. The direct effect of the national mobilization program has again touched many of the homes and businesses of Greenville and Pitt county.

The loss of these men to our community life during the next several months, or several years as the case may be, will be keenly felt not only by the immediate families of the National Guardsmen, but the citizens at large of Pitt county. Through the selective service we of Pitt county have felt the contracting of our manpower. Now that the National Guard unit has gone on active duty, we are going to be more aware than ever of the handicap under which our community life will be carried on as larger numbers of our young men enter the service of our country.

Like many others who have been called into the service of the country during the past months, the National Guardsmen are civilians who have taken up soldiering as a part-time job for the protection of the American way of life and for the protection of the posterity of our own community.

When the Greenville National Guard was last called to federal service in September 1940, the members of the unit stayed in the armed forces for more than five years. We sincerely hope the unit's tour of duty in the present national emergency will not be nearly so long.

The people of Pitt county realize the sacrifices these National Guardsmen are making in leaving their homes and families to take up arms for the defense of our nation. The people of the county know and appreciate the time and effort the men of the unit have put forth in staying prepared since the unit was reorganized in 1947.

To the members of the unit The Reflector and the people of the county wish good luck, God's blessings and an early safe return home.

A Stitch In Time

The public attitude toward the national emergency runs in hot and cold streaks. One day the people of the country are very much concerned about the international situation and the status of the United States; and the next day the shadow of impending conflict has completely disappeared.

By the same token, the people of the individual communities have had the same reaction to the civil defense program.

Greenville is now in the process of organizing its civil defense units, and the relatively few people who have been called on to take responsible positions in the organization have respondedly eagerly. But the success of the program will depend on the response of the citizens at large when the time comes to complete the details of the program.

Of course the whole civil defense program is being constructed with the hope that the time will never come when the program will actually be put in use. For that reason, people are prone to have little interest in it. But if the time ever should come when a civil defense organization were needed in this community, we would be completely lost if the organization were not prepared to function properly.

The program is one of preparing for an eventuality which we hope will never materialize.

Under civil defense there will soon be a number of first aid courses, fire control courses and other instruction offered to the citizens of Greenville. The Reflector urges the people of Greenville to take part in these courses and learn these emergency skills which all of us hope will never have to be put into practice.

After the war is brought to our shores, (if it is) valuable time and countless lives may be lost while our people learn of necessity the emergency measures they neglected when there was ample time to learn.

Don't Wait For The Last Minute Rush

That last minute rush on the tax listers looks like it will be the order of events in Pitt county again this year.

The county officials estimate 50 per cent of the tax payers of the county have not yet listed their taxes . . . and just a little more than a week remains before the books close.

Those 10,000-odd Pitt tax payers who have not had time to list their taxes should make a real effort to do so before the last few days of the listing period. The fair weather since the first of the year has made good working conditions, and a lot of people throughout the county have been just too busy getting other things done to stop and list taxes.

But since the listing has to be done by the end of the month, a little time taken out to list taxes now will be time well spent. As the end of the listing period draws nearer, the lines in front of the tax listers will grow longer by the day. The person who waits until the last few days to list taxes will find himself long delayed by waiting his turn at the lister's table.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—The anti-big-business and economic "planners" in President Truman's family have apparently rejoiced prematurely over any Administration plan to continue the ancient Roosevelt feud against U.S. Steel and Mellon interests, whose industrial dynasty has been built along the Pittsburgh-Chicago axis, embracing the vast and smoky Middle West.

As Franklin D. Roosevelt expanded the Kaiser and Reynolds aluminum facilities during World War II to minimize Mellon control over this essential commodity, so the reforming faction in the Department of Justice, Commerce and Treasury had expected Mr. Truman to renew the war against the groups he has so frequently denounced on the campaign stump.

They had anticipated an attempt to break up "big steel" or to raise powerful rivals under a decentralization program based on the need to prepare for atomic bomb attacks.

They also hoped to use the argument that the gradual depletion of iron ore on the Mesabi Range in Minnesota would force construction of new steel plants along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, with Venezuela and Labrador as new sources of ore.

STEEL—For a while it seemed that Mr. Truman's tempestuous temperament and changing conditions in the industry, as well as the need for decentralization, would enable them to accomplish their ideological aims. There has been and will continue to be a migration of steel plants to both seaboards.

Bethelehem, for instance, is enlarging its factory at Sparrows Point, Md. United States Steel plans to erect a tremendous mill near Trenton, N.J., and two others are planned in that vicinity. Only a few days ago, the National Security Resources Board and the R.F.C. combined to give the green light for construction of a $250,000,000 plant near New London, Conn. Another steel center is planned for the Atlantic area.

"Big Steel," meaning U.S. and its allies, have fought the proposed New London project. So far at least, they have refused to join the enterprise. It will be built with private capital or government money, or both, if the Pittsburgh interests continue to hold out.

SEAWAY—But Mr. Truman fooled his anti-monopoly extremists in his economic report and in his budget message to Congress. Despite lack of labor and materials in Canada and the United States, he asked for immediate construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway to provide a water route for Labrador ore to Middle West steel furnaces.

A rich deposit of ore has been found in the frozen north, although there is some question whether it is practicable to rely on it now. A 300-mile railroad must first be built to bring the raw material to the coast for trans-shipment to Pittsburgh and adjacent areas.

Meanwhile, Mesabi defenders maintain that it can continue to furnish ore for many years through rehabilitation of low-grade taconite still remaining there.

EXPANSION—But the main fact is that the President's more sound and sensible advisers appear to have persuaded him to call off his feud with "big steel," the Mellons and their politico-economic allies for the duration. And he has been sore at them because of the ha-ha they gave him when, in 1948, he demanded expansion of their facilities with the threat that the government would finance competitive construction if they did not comply.

They have complied, increasing capacity to unprecedented volume. They issue daily reports on further expansion, as if in an attempt to scare private money from backing new steel industries on the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards. Indeed, they have backed his high-wage policy by meeting CIO President Philip Murray's demands without delay or whimpers.

PLUM—Mr. Truman has been convinced that steel production is too essential to rearmament or war for him to jeopardize output. With an annual turnout of possibly 120,000,000 tons required, such a fantastic amount cannot be obtained without continued reliance on the well-established industry.

Even in such an important defense project as the New London plant, Mr. Truman could not forego a bit of political juggling. Although there was a terrific scramble among New England and Middle Atlantic States for this plum, he saw that it went to the state which reelected two Democratic Senators last November, especially as they have supported his Fair Deal almost slavishly—Messrs. McMahon and Benton.

COMFORT—Mr. McMahon's plugging for the New London site should give comfort to inhabitants on the eastern seaboard, in view of the fact that he is chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

According to him, with Western Europe and Britain transformed into defensive bastions, factories and people in that area will be safer from atomic bombing than the citizenry in any other section save the Deep South.

Pentagon experts, who have considerable voice in the location or relocation of defense industries, confirm this viewpoint. Flying across the top of the world, they say, Russian bombers could penetrate the Far and Middle West more easily than they could hit the Maine-Florida area.

Roll Up Your Sleeves, Boy

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday I was having my weekly chat with the Reflector's Managing Editor, Dave Whichard III. Since this column is a hobby with me rather than a profession, quite often a week will pass between my "conferences" with the boss.

This week Dave and I had no business to discuss, so we were socializing. We were talking about my plan to trade cars. My profound statement was, "The art of trading cars lies in one's ability to get the highest allowance for his used car."

In response, Dave had a statement even more profound: "The way to get the highest price for your used car," he said with emphasis, "is to sell it through a Reflector want ad." My expression must have been skeptical, for Dave added with the same emphasis, "In fact, I'll make a deal with you. If you don't sell your car through a Reflector ad, and get more for it than you've been offered on a trade-in, the ad won't cost you a cent."

Dave's offer appealed to me, so I made the deal more attractive for him: "I always like to see a man who's sold on the product he's selling, so if I do sell the car through a Reflector ad, and get more than I've been offered for it, I'll pay you twice the price of the ad. The ad, run for three days, costs $1.85, so if I get $50 more for my car, or even as little as $10, it will be a pleasure to pay twice the price of the ad, $3.70."

Last night I called Dave to see if this deal is open to all users of Reflector want ads. His reply: "Some things are impossible to sell. The answer is 'not quite.' " Then I asked Dave if his father was available for comment. Dave said, "No. He's reading Esquire Magazine right now."

Mrs. C. M. Warren, who handles most of the Reflector's want ads, could be reached for comment. She mentioned the fact that the Reflector want ads are not classified, as they are in the bigger papers. "Because of this feature," she said, "you have to read all the ads to find what you're looking for. This means that the advertiser gets better results. Some people don't realize what they want until they see it advertised."

In a town the size of Greenville the want ads contain almost as much personal news as the society column. The reader can learn news about somebody else's business by reading the want ads, and that's what we love. Frankly, I don't mind admitting that one of my hobbies is knowing somebody else's business.

Quite often the users of Reflector want ads have to call off the herds that respond. Just a few days ago Joe Joyner of the Guaranty Bank advertised a house for rent and paid for the ad a week in advance. After the first day he telephoned Mrs. Warren to ask that the ad be dropped. He rented the house a few minutes after the ad appeared and the callers were keeping him awake at night.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

COMPLETED — The roster of the house of representatives was completed Monday night when Dr. W. A. Sams was sworn in as representative of Madison county—the first Democrat to sit in the general assembly from Madison in twenty years. Delay in taking his seat was occasioned by two causes, illness of Dr. Sams and contest by Republicans. Because he regards the occasion more than usually significant — capture of Madison by the Democrats—the new representative made quite a party of his induction into office. He had asked Secretary of State Thad Eure to administer the oath and had invited a number of physicians and other personal friends to witness the ceremony.

ADVICE—Dr. Sams admits it goes hard with him to take the advice he has been dishing out for years and Mrs. Sams came along to see that he doesn't exert himself too much. The doctor said he expects to follow the advice of a non-medical friend: "Don't stand up when you can sit down; and don't sit down when you can lay down."

VACANCY—Th is still a vacancy in the senate occasioned by the death of Senator-elect W. B. Reeves of Ashe county. A special election has been ordered in the 29th district, comprising Alleghany, Ashe and Watauga to fill the vacancy.

BARBECUE—Invitation extended by Governor Scott for the State Young Democratic Clubs to stage a mammoth barbecue on the Scott farm at Haw River just before the general election next year has started speculation as to whether there might be prophetic implications. By that time Governor Scott's successor will have been selected, membership in a new legislature and congress will have been fairly well determined, and main political interest will be focused on the presidential election then approaching.

PROPHETIC — Governor Scott cannot succeed himself, for if by a long-shot fluke the suggested amendment should be submitted and ratified providing for two terms for our governors, it could not be ratified before the 1952 election. There will not be a vacancy in the United States senate from North Carolina until 1955. It would seem that there is nothing available in which Kerr Scott might be personally interested in the 1952 election. If one purpose of the gesture is to strengthen his own political position, he must be looking farther ahead.

SIGNIFICANT — Almost as significant as the invitation from Governor Scott is the approval of the project by Jonathan Daniels, national Democratic committeeman from North Carolina. Original story on the proposed barbecue emanated from Greensboro, and stated that the governor just dropped in at the Sedgefield YDC conference Saturday to extend the invitation. The story quoted YDC president Bob Williams as saying Daniels approved the project. Daniels tenure as national committeeman will expire with the Democratic convention to be held in mid-summer of next year. His projection of tentative plans into the next general election campaign indicates expectation he will be re-elected as national committeeman; or that by such early attempts to arrange a political barbecue, he and Governor Scott hope to retain control of party affairs in the state after their successors have been chosen and perhaps a new state chairman has been named to carry the burden of the 1952 campaign.

NEW—It should also be noted that the Young Democratic Clubs will have held two formal state conventions before that time, at each of which presidents and other officers will be elected. In other words the Democratic party on both national and state levels, and the YDC will be "under new management" in the fall of 1952 unless the party members continue the present officials. Several party leaders have voiced opinion that plans for party rallies for the next election campaign might well be left to the new or re-confirmed leadership.

EXTREMES — Most of the newspaper folks attending the N. C. press institute at Chapel Hill were more concerned with newsprint and manpower problems than with state politics, but there was keen interest among the editors in current and prospective political developments.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

MANPOWER
(Washington Daily News)

During the last war many able bodied men went into defense plants and worked at enormous wages.

Men of similar position and education fought as combat soldiers on the front lines for meager wages. And the dangers and hardships had to be faced.

There are other men who were eligible for drafting in World War II, but who for some reason were able to stay out. We are not criticizing either of these men, but we are saying that some changes should be made this time.

If we are going to draft one boy and put him into the service as a buck private and let another go into a defense plant and make $100 a week, then there is absolutely nothing fair about this situation.

The Daily News is for making defense workers wear the uniform this time, and for keeping their wages in a comparable scale with the wages being paid in other branches of service.

We should register all able bodied men. There should be no such thing as one man getting rich while his friend is fighting a war for him. There is some glory in a defense. And during World Warr II there was also a World War II there was also a did not draft these men in defense plants.

If a man goes to a navy base to work, then we think he should be put into a uniform and be treated just as would an ordinary sailor or be accorded the same consideration we now accord a man of comparable rank in the service. His wages should be the same, and his discipline and living conditions should be on a comparable scale.

Many ex-service men today still look back at those war years when so many capable or potential fighting men were in war plants getting big salaries, and then they think of themselves facing shells and wonder what has happened to justice.

The greatest boost we could give our fighting men is to know that he is getting the best deal possible. Mr. Truman would do well to change his "fair deal" program from the economic basis to the defense basis.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Certainty of shortages and uncertainty of taxes are increasing the number of businesses offered for sale. In addition, some proprietors are expecting to be called into the services and some, remembering the controls, reports and inspections of World War II just won't go through that again.

The rise in corporation taxes, plus the probability they will be extended to partnerships and proprietorships, is also an inducement to some owners to retire early, getting out with only a capital gains tax.

The very factors that are causing many owners to sell are factors that call for more than usual caution in buying. The buyer of a retail or small manufacturing plant must satisfy himself that he can continue to get adequate supplies of goods, materials and labor. With these lacking, he may be buying a hollow shell.

The Department of Commerce recently published a leaflet on "Appraising and Buying a Retail or Service Business." People planning to buy a business may get some ideas of what to look for from this. It's free at Commerce field offices or by writing to the Department in Washington. Ask for Small Business Aid No. 517.

Goodreau Soper, who wrote it, offers these cautions:

1. Avoid letting the seller or broker rush you into buying.

2. Make the seller put all agreements in writing.

3. Do not rely on an offer by the seller to buy back the business if dissatisfied. He may not be able to.

4. Be on guard against people who buy losing business, dress them up in false prosperity, and then sell at a profit.

5. Keep in mind businesses often changing hands are usually a disappointment to each buyer.

6. If you intend to operate on a cash basis, avoid one selling primarily on credit.

7. Take possession as soon as title has passed.

8. Obtain a list of undelivered orders placed with suppliers and of undelivered customers' orders.

9. Be sure you have adequate working capital after purchase.

Mr. Soper might have added that when the seller insists the only reason for selling is to get out with a capital gain, investigate to make sure whether that is true or merely a fiction to conceal the real reason.

HOUSEWARE RETAILERS BUYING FRANTICALLY

The buying pattern at the National Housewares Show in Chicago appears to be the same as at other recent trade shows. Dealers are scrambling to get orders in, especially for staples of metals.

They can't be blamed. They have been warned that use of metals in civilian products is being cut; they know that some prices will rise despite a freeze, and they know consumers are buying just as like crazy as they are.

LAUNDRIES NEWEST BUSINESSES ON WHEELS

Automatic laundry businesses on wheels have popped up in Florida. A dozen machines mounted on a trailer constitute a typical enterprise. They are now operating near tourists camps. Operators plan to drive them north after the Florida season, heading for vacation spots or war plants.

OUTSTANDING MORTGAGES TOTAL 13 BILLION

Americans paid off $3,675,000,000 in mortgages in 1950, calculated Walter J. L. Ray, president of the U. S. Savings and Loan League. This is 57 per cent more than was paid off in 1949.

At the same time, mortgage lending reached a new high in 1950 — $5,250,000,000, for a total outstanding of $13,325,000,000, also a new high.

SEES NYLON SHORT IN SIXTY DAYS

A nylon shortage within 60 days is predicted by David A. Travis, president of (Travis Fabrics, Inc.,) one of the largest converting companies in the world. Military demands and sharp increases in consumer buying will cause it, he said. He said the shortage would be partly offset by expanding production of the newer synthetic, Orlon and Fiber V. These, however, have military uses too.

TURKISH: Newest entrant in the concentrate sweepstakes is a Turkish coffee by Spice Island Co., 610 Folsom St., San Francisco. Adding water and boiling produces the heavy-bodied drink of the Near East.

PADS: Wire coathangers can be given shoulder support of wooden hangers by snapping new lightweight plastic pads on the ends. They're by Regal Plastic Co., 710 Main St., Kansas City, Mo.

STACKABLE: Corrugated cartons with indentions around the top and collars on the bottom are being made by Shelton Mfg. Co., 42-24 Orchard St., Long Island City, N.Y. The collars fit the indentions, permitting the cartons to be stocked firmly, reducing shipping damage.

SLIP-ON: Chairs with backs and seats that can slip on and lock after delivery are being introduced at the Chicago Furniture Mart (by Douglas Furniture Corp., 555 W. 65th St., Chicago 38). The method saves shipping and warehouse costs.

Hal Boyle's Column

By TOM BRADSHAW
(For HAL BOYLE).

On the central front in Korea —(AP)—At the moment Pvt. Gilbert Hubert is a long way from the little book shop he once operated in the French Alpine skiing resort of Val Disere.

Being absent from his beloved shop is not to Gilbert's liking but it is a separation of his own choosing.

Gilbert is a Frenchman—but beyond that he is an ardent believer in the brotherhood of man. That's why he shouldered arms to fight against German and Italian aggression in World War II. And that's why he volunteered to accompany the French detachment to Korea.

Back in Val Disere Gilbert Hubert was a man of no little consequence. He was a respected businessman and something of a scholar. Moreover, he loves to ski and in Val Disere there was much skiing.

Why does a man like Gilbert Hubert leave his wife, his books and his favorite skis to journey half around the world in search of trouble?

"I believe in the United Nations," explains Gilbert. "I came to Korea to fight against the ignorance of so many people."

He says it with a slight shrug of the shoulders as if the matter was hardly worth discussion.

Gilbert's sacrifice becomes all the more remarkable when you examine the schedule of his everyday duties.

He is personal orderly to the commanding officer of the French detachment, Lt. Col. Ralph Charles Montclar, a four star general who took a considerable reduction in rank to come over.

As the commander's orderly Gilbert cooks, sews, sweeps, chops wood and last—but far from least—absorbs the explosive and frequent wrath of the man he serves so well.

Montclar, former Inspector General of the French Foreign Legion, is not a hard man to get along with but there are moments when the situation affects his temperament. Gilbert usually is the handiest target.

Gilbert accepts such outbursts philosophically and merely says, "Oui, mon General."

That's the sort of a guy Gilbert Hubert is. He doesn't fluster easily.

Life with a front line unit in Korea is not too hard for him to take. For one thing he is used to the sort of mountain country he found here.

The cold doesn't bother him as much as it might either. It gets pretty cold back in Val Disere.

His World War II experience helped harden him for Korea.

The two things he minds most are the lack of his books and the clothes he must wear at war.

He shows you some snapshots of Gilbert Hubert in civilian dress.

"Maybe," he says wistfully, "we will meet again in a different situation."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—Mrs. Gertrude Clarke Whittall, who has done much to build up the musical collection of the Library of Congress, has now made it possible for the Library to set up a special poetry corner. The Library has just announced a "generous gift" to be expended by the librarian for the "development of the appreciation of poetry in this country".

Mrs. Whittall, a wealthy widow in her 80s who lives in a Washington hotel-apartment, has long been interested in poetry and has previously given the library many valuable manuscripts. These include Edward Arlington Robinson manuscripts presented in 1938 and 1949, corrected proofs of Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade" in 1939, Dante Gabriel Rossetti manuscripts and Letters in 1939, A. E. Housman manuscripts in 1940 and a notebook of Shelly's in 1941.

Plans are now under way, Library officials tell me, for starting a series of lectures on poetry readings and other activities which will project Mrs. Whittall's ideals.

The poetry corner will be installed in the southwest corner of the third floor of the Library of Congress' main building. It will be for the use of scholars and occasional lectures and poetry readings.

People seem to be more interested in poetry today than they used to be, Miss Phyllis Armstrong, assistant to the Library's poet-consultant Conrad Aiken, tellse me. She thinks this may be due largely to the establishment of poetry-writing classes in the schools and to recordings of poetry which are available to use of poetry students.

The Library itself has already completed a first series of five five-record albums of poetry readings by poets. One of the albums is devoted to the recorded readings of English poet T. S. Eliot.

The other four albums are made up of the readings of 21 other poets. Within a month, Miss Armstrong says, a second series of five albums will be available. One album in this group will be devoted solely to the readings of Robert Frost.

The records are produced by an outside company and sold by the Library of Congress' recording laboratory for about $1.50 apiece or $8.25 an album of five records, plus tax.

In 1935 Mrs. Whittall gave the Library five rare instruments created by Stradivari, the famous violin maker of 1700.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

Chapter 19

Molly waited till they were out of earshot and she and Elsie were alone on deck. "What's all the to-do about anyway?" she asked. Then, before Elsie could answer:

"Oh, I know we were supposed to stay with the crowd and get back before dinner. And I know the captain was supposed to keep tabs on Bert, being a friend of his father's. But the way he's behaving, you'd think we'd committed a crime of some kind. I happen to know the ship isn't scheduled to sail till midnight. We're here. So why all the fuss? If only you knew what we went through..."

Obviously Elsie wasn't particularly interested in what they'd gone through, for she said, "Okay, you're here. But Mr. Norwood and Mr. Howell aren't back yet. The old man can't very well start sailing his ship till they show up."

"I don't see what that has to do with us," Molly flared. "He can't very well blame us for that."

"Can't he?" Elsie raised her eyebrows. "You don't know they're out scouring the town, looking for you? Now he'll have to send somebody out scouring it for them."

Molly, genuinely distressed by the news of this unexpected development, tried to explain. "We didn't stay out deliberately, and I'm sorry we've caused so much trouble. It's just that we got lost—and in the native quarter, at that. We couldn't find a taxi anywhere, and we were terrified. At least I was. I don't think Bert felt any too safe either, though he was a wonderfully good sport and tried to make it sound like a lark."

Elsie nodded absently, apparently having something else on her mind now that Molly was safe and once more on board. Molly raced on, hitting only the high spots:

"We walked for what seemed like hours, looking for a cab. Then we went into a cafe and there was a man there who spoke perfect English, thought he looked like something out of a murder story. When we first got into the cab Bert thought his wallet was missing. But it wasn't. So whatever the man was up to, it wasn't robbery. Bert thinks we were lucky to get out alive."

"Too bad the guy didn't take his wallet," Elsie observed calmly. "That birdbrain's got too much money anyhow. He's spoiled rotten. What you see in him is beyond me. If you're thinking of marrying him, I'm right here to tell you you're in for a dog's life. He's not the settling down type. He'll never be anything but a playboy."

Molly, annoyed at what she considered unfair criticism of Bert but not feeling up to an argument, yawned and said she was tired. Her mind was in a turmoil, her nerves taut. More than anything else, she wanted to be alone to think things out, to separate the false from the real. Things had happened so swiftly, so incredibly. Her love for Bert, it seemed, was all mixed up with the strange unrealities of their fantastic misadventure.

"Don't be cross with me, Elsie," she said. "I've had a pretty ghastly experience and I'm still shaky. I'm sorry you worried about me, terribly sorry we caused so much trouble. But I think, if you don't mind, I'll say good night now and go on to my stateroom...."

She thought a minute, then decided she should tell Elsie that she and Bert had come to an understanding. After all, Elsie was a good sport, and once she knew they were engaged she would not be likely to continue with her derogatory remarks about Bert. So she said, smiling at Elsie:

"I've got news for you, Elsie. Bert and I are engaged. Now wish me luck and I'll run along and turn in I'm terribly tired — and mixed up." She frowned. She had not intended adding that. It sounded as though she were not quite sure of herself. So she tacked on quietly:

"Not about my feelings for Bert, of course, but, oh, just about everything."

Elsie simply lifted her eyebrows, a familiar gesture when she disapproved of anything but considered it too inconsequential for comment. "Not so fast, Miss Priss," she said. "You're not turning in yet for a while. I'm going right down with you, so you needn't try to stop me. I've got news for you too. You're not the only one that's been watching a three-ring circus till you're not sure whether you're going or coming."

She volunteered no further information till they were seated in the stateroom. Then she settled back to regale Molly with a blow-by-blow account of the day's happenings aboard ship, which she declared got worse instead of better as the day wore on.

"Things are sure a-popping on this glorified tugboat," she began. "I don't wonder Cap's anxious to shove off on schedule. We'd be in a pretty pickle if we got quarantined in this out-of-the-way, uncivilized corner of the globe."

Nothing Better Than Good Food, Says Ohio Man

If a man isn't able to eat the foods he likes he's in mighty sorry shape—imagine going through life without being able to enjoy a fine big platter of bacon and eggs. That is the way Joseph N. Damillot, 3414 E. 5th Street, Dayton, O., used to be, but since he has been taking HADACOL, he says he feels just fine and is able to enjoy lots and lots of fine foods. Mr. Damillot found that taking HADACOL helped his system overcome a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.

Here is Mr. Damillot's statement: "My first bottle of HADACOL convinced me that HADACOL was what I needed for the gas on my stomach at nights. I could not keep food on my stomach, but after the first bottle I was going great. Now I eat bacon and eggs, and other foods that never would stay with me. I also can sleep well at nights. Thanks to HADACOL. I will never be without it, and can recommend it to all who suffer with the above ailments that I had. I know because I have suffered for quite some time."

TEEN TALK

(Dear Judy)

AP Newsfeatures

This is no time to twiddle your thumbs and say "but there is nothing I can do" when people inquire what you are doing in the defense effort.

Young people who think nothing of dancing until the wee hours and expending their energies in rigorous play, certainly should have the stamina to devote to little extra jobs after school and weekends.

If there is no real defense set-up organized in your town, get yourself into a job so that somebody can be relieved for more important work.

The shortage of nurses, for instance, makes it imperative for young girls to get interested in roles as nurses' aids. Sometimes nurses, who are badly needed in the war effort, must stay on the job because the hospital staff is down to the irreducible minimum. Nurses' aids can do chores which otherwise keep qualified nurses busy.

Foundling hospitals always are looking for help, and here too there usually is a shortage of nurses.

Sometimes there are jobs which can be done at home. And, of course, the Red Cross always can use help.

One group of New York girls organized a cake-of-the-month club. Each girl bakes bread, cake or cookies for service men at least once a month. These are wrapped in aluminum foil to be kept fresh until they arrive at their destination.

Another group of girls makes jellies, marmalade, pickles, etc. These jars are packed carefully in papers and straw before shipment.

The girls began this service after ascertaining the names of the boys in their community and the units with which they were serving. The girls each choose a boy to whom to send their package, but rotate the names so that each boy gets a package from a different girl every month.

This club is growing and there is now talk of a muffler-and-glove-of-the-month club, also. One boy who received a holiday fruit cake wrote from Korea:

"The fruit cake was simply wonderful and my buddy and I cut it in one-inch squares so that it would last longer. Sometimes we cheat and eat three and four squares—but we've still got a couple of weeks' supply left.

"If only one of our little pen and gift pals would think up a way to send us some bacon or ham and eggs and French fried potatoes, life would be beautiful."

The way to organize your pen and gift club is to get the names of the boys from your local church, school or draft board.

If you do not have a large enough group of girls so that each boy receives something each month, arrange to send somthing once every two or three months—better than sending nothing.

Of course if you want to be really patriotic and your group is small, each girl could be responsible for one package a week—so that each boy still could receive one a month.

Many girls have written asking how it is possible to become pen pals with service men—so here is your opportunity to be a cheerful little earful. But don't correspond with boys who are not known to your community, unless they are recommended by friends.

When writing to these strange boys, stick to interesting subjects—don't dwell on all the fun the kids back home are having. Try to restrain yourself, too, from getting a romantic attachment to your pen friend via the mailman. If you can be impersonal about your letter writing, at the same time being warm and friendly, that is ideal. But don't get possessive about a man you've never met just because you've sent him a few letters and cookies.

Young Elk Adopted By Family, Now A Pet

Franklin, Man.—(AP)—The Walter MacDonald family here has adopted a young elk into the family. The animal gets along with everybody—even a big Labrador dog on the property. Go See It .. For an Inspiration!

You ought to go see the new Cadillac. You ought to walk all around it and look at it from every angle—and you ought to open the door and get in and sit down.

You ought to slide over behind the wheel and look out over that jewel-like dash into the exciting beyond.

And you ought to do this, whatever the car you own today—and whatever the car you expect to own.

For it will lift up your spirits and add to your faith in America's industrial enterprise and productive ingenuity.

You look at those beautiful, flowing lines—and you can't escape the conviction that America's industrial artistry in metals is unsurpassed in all the world.

You look at the fabrics that tailor the seats and cushions—and you realize that America's manufacturing genius is unapproached for bringing luxury into everyday life.

You look at the flawless execution of every structural detail—and you have the comforting feeling that America's industrial craftsmanship is in a class by itself.

But your greatest inspiration is yet to come.

You ask the price of the lowest-priced Cadillac model—and you find that it's easily within the means of hundreds of thousands of American families.

Where else, in all the world—you ask yourself—could there be such a blending of luxury and practicality?

And the answer, of course, is—"nowhere." It's strictly an American "monopoly."

Yes, here is the new standard for the automotive world. It is new in beauty, in comfort, in luxury and in performance.

So come see it soon—and come with your hopes high.

Farmville Boys, Snow Hill Six Advance In Tournament

Stantonsburg Five Wins; Vanceboro Girls Victors

Gold Medal Tournament At Farmville Draws Big Crowd As Top Teams Advance In Play; Resume Tomorrow

By BILL LLOYD
Reflector Sports Editor

Farmville, Jan. 23.—The third annual Coastal Gold Medal dribble derby, sponsored by the Farmville Junior Chamber of Commerce, got underway here last night, with four games being played.

In the girls' division, top-seeded Snow Hill sextet showed their prowess on the basketball court by soundly defeating an inexperienced Walstonburg six, 49-18, while Vanceboro's darkhorse six of the tournament moved up toward the finals, with a 38-27 victory over Stantonsburg.

In the boys' division, Farmville's defending boys' champions proved they were to be reckoned with throughout the tourney, with a decisive win over Vanceboro, 41-31. In the last game, the most thrilling of them all, Stantonsburg outlasted South Edgecombe, 44-39.

Tomorrow Night's Pairings
6:30—Farmville vs. Bell Arthur (Girls)
7:30—Snow Hill vs. Walstonburg (Boys)
8:30—Ayden vs. South Edgecombe (Girls)
9:30 — Nahunta vs. Ayden (Boys)

Lois Jean Forrest, little, blonde-headed forward, paced the Vanceboro sextet to an easy win over the Stantonsburg six, as she led her team's scoring with 19 points. The Vanceboro six was never headed throughout the contest, keeping a 7-11 point lead through the entire scrap.

In the second game of the tournament, Farmville's five, led by Center Al Cannon, who sank 18 points, and Randolph Allen, who hit for 17 points, came from a 5-0 deficit with two minutes remaining in the first quarter to bring the score to read 8-7 in favor of Vanceboro.

In the second quarter, Coach Elbert Moye's lads began rolling, and took a 21-15 lead which they never relinquished. Cannon was a consistent leader on the backboards, while Allen played a well-rounded floor game.

It was "away down South" with Dixie—Dixie Waters, that is, as the little Snow Hill forward dipped in 23 points to lead her playmates to their one-sided victory.

Coach Red Bennett, former Carolina cage star, utilized his reserves during the entire second half, with the Walstonburg six unable to hit with accuracy, scoring only four field goals during the entire game.

The last game of the night was the most thrilling of all as Dudley Whitley of South Edgecombe and Johnny Grimsley of Stantonsburg hooked up in a scoring battle, with Stantonsburg finally emerging victorious in the last two minutes of play, 44-39.

Grimsley hit for 24 points, while Whitley led the Edgecombers with 19 points.

Doug Easom tied the game up at 39-39 with 3:30 remaining to be played. Grimsley came in for layup to make it 41-39 in favor of Stantonsburg, and Mooring and Grimsley finished out the scoring on a snowbird and free throw, 44-39.

Second round of play begins tomorrow night in the Farmville High School gymnasium, with Farmville's girls playing Bell Arthur in the first game at 6:30.

No games are scheduled for tonight, because of regularly scheduled games outside the tournament.

Semi-finals will be held Thursday night, with the finals being played Saturday night.

Howard Lines Up Tigs' 'Athletic Staff' At Event

Greensboro, Jan. 23—(AP)—"We don't practice hard at Clemson. Why, we only put on the pads about once a week and never work in the hot sun. We do all our work under nice shade trees."

The speaker was football coach Frank Howard at last night's 13th annual Daily News All-State Football banquet. His remarks were addressed primarily to the assembled high school all-stars, being honored as members of the all-state squad selected by the News.

Howard continued, "I believe you boys would like our good engineering courses down at Clemson. You might become big textile men. Who knows, we might even drink some more of that Florida orange juice, too."

For half an hour Howard kept the gathering of more than 300 entertained with his "country boy" humor. His head table colleagues, given quite a good-natured going-over, were among those laughing the heartiest.

Howard lined up a Clemson "athletic staff" composed of the other guests. He did it in this fashion:

First off, I'd make Wallace Wade (Howard's coach at Alabama 20 years ago, later Duke head, now Southern Conference commissioner), my athletic director. After all, he's a pretty smart man. Didn't he get Parker, Tipton, and those McAfees to go to Duke?

"Now for alumni secretary I want Big Chief Beattie Feathers of North Carolina State. Anybody who can handle some of the alumni he has is the man for the job.

"I think I'll give the chief another job, too, end coach. After all, he ended up well last season and got that new contract.

"Now, to coach the guards I'll take North Carolina's King Cal Snavely. You know, a lot of Snavely's knowledge departed when that fellow Justice graduated last year.

"Peahead Walker is my recruiter. Any man who can get all those Catholic boys to attend a Baptist school knows what it's all about. I hear he also has good connections with an automobile dealer. They tell me at Wake Forest Peahead has three teams—one coming, one going and another playing. They fly them in on planes and ship them home by bus."

Gold footballs and certificates were awarded the 44 players honored by selection on the college and high school squads.

Two were singled out for additional presentations. Wake Forest Tackle Jim Staton of Greensboro and Wilson Alexander, guard on the Winston-Salem Reynolds team, won trophies as linemen of the year from the Touchdown Club.

Green Phantoms Battle Aces In Loop Contest At Edenton

Kentucky Reclaims Top Cage Position

New York, Jan. 23—(AP)—Kentucky reclaimed the top position in the national college basketball rankings today, barely beating out undefeated Long Island University in the sixth Associated Press poll.

The Wildcats from Lexington, Ky. succeeded Oklahoma A.&M., which fell to third after having its 16-game winning streak snapped, 44-40, by Oklahoma last Saturday night.

It is the third time out front this season for Adolph Rupp's towering athletes, who led the poll the first two weeks before they were bumped by St. Louis in the Sugar Bowl.

The 222 sports writers and broadcasters, who participated in the latest ballot, failed to shake anybody out of the first ten although the order of the top drawer quintets was thoroughly scrambled.

Columbia, which shares with LIU the only perfect major record in the country, held fast to seventh. All other teams moved up or back a notch or two.

After Kentucky, LIU and Oklahoma A.&M. came this order: Bradley, Indiana, St. John's, Columbia, North Carolina State, Kansas State and St. Louis.

Kentucky drew 64 first place votes and a total of 1786 points. LIU, with 15 straight victories, polled 62 first place votes and 1643 points—only 143 less than the leaders.

The Long Islanders get their severest test of the year in the next two weeks on an ambitious western swing. They play San Francisco Friday and California Saturday in the San Francisco Cow Palace, then meet Arizona, Kansas State and St. Louis next week on the way back.

Kentucky, meanwhile, will try for its 14th victory in 15 games against Vanderbilt Saturday at Kentucky.

No More Tickets

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 23—(AP)—The 12,487 tickets for the return basketball match between Duke and N.C. State College here Feb. 10 have all been sold.

N. C. State officials announced yesterday that orders for tickets still pouring in will be returned.

The demand for tickets increased following the nip-and-tuck first game which saw N.C. State take a 77-71 decision in an overtime period. The match, on Duke's campus, revolved into a scoring duel between Duke's Dick Groat, who banged in 36 points, and N.C. State's Sammy Ranzino.

Jimmy Dillingham Scoring Leader For Local Cagers

Successful on their first road trip in Northeastern play last Friday night with a 41-35 win over Roanoke Rapids, Greenville's Phantoms journey to Edenton tonight for their fifth conference clash.

Greenville currently has a 2-2 record in the Northeastern conference, and will be seeking their third win with the Aces.

Jimmy Dillingham and Sydney Briley will most likely furnish the scoring punch tonight. Dillingham is leading the team's scoring with 96 points, an average of 9.6 points per game in ten tilts played.

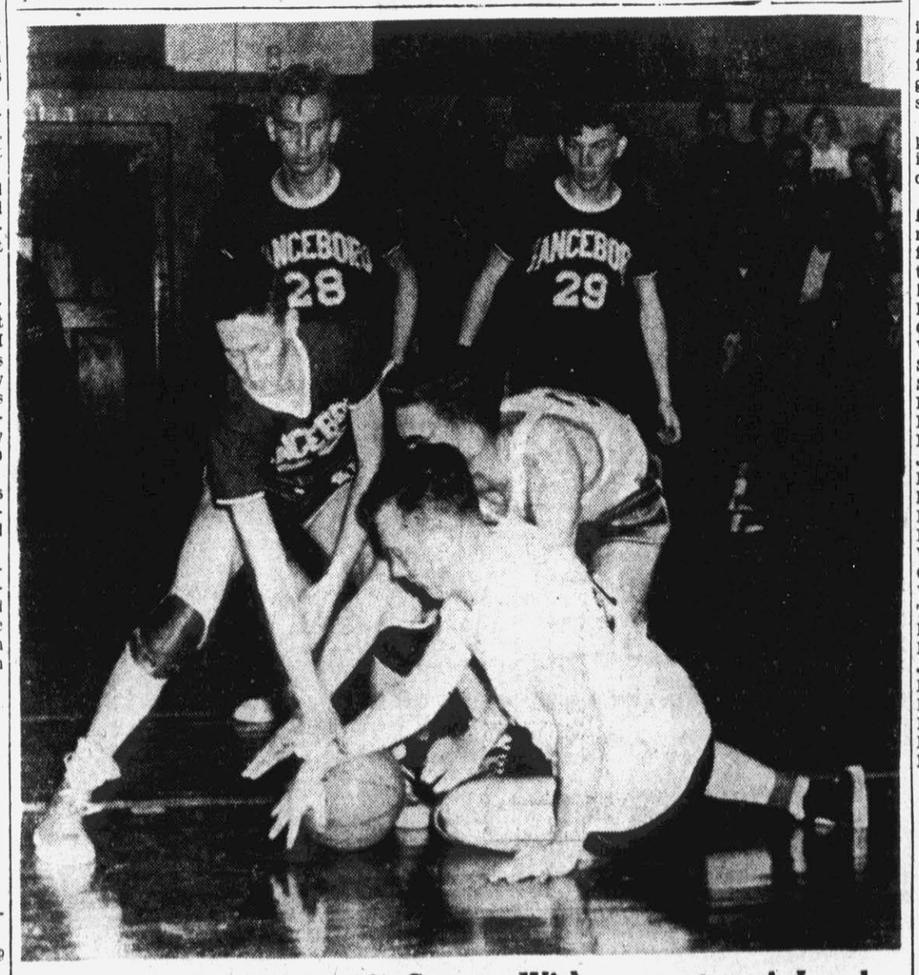

Briley follows close behind the high-scoring forward with 90 points, an average of nine points per game.

Missing from tonight's tilt will be little Virginius Haymes, sparkplug forward for the Phantoms all year. Haymes, a recruit in the local National Guard unit, will report for active duty with his unit today.

Coach Bo Farley, with injured Aman back in the fold, will most likely start Dillingham and Jake Higgs at the forward positions; Briley at the pivot spot, and Aman and Glenn Scott at the guard spots.

Farmville's Morris (20) Scraps With Vanceboro's Ipock

Middlecoff Cops Golf Tournament

Long Beach, Calif., Jan. 23—(AP) Dr. Cary Middlecoff may have been right when he decided a couple of years ago that he could make as much money playing golf as pulling teeth. And have more fun.

The Memphis dentist banked another $2,000 today, first prize in the Lakewood Park Open Golf Tournament. In three tourneys since the first of the year, his earnings have topped $4,500. He won $18,205 last year.

Aside from the steady way in which Middlecoff disposed of his competition in the final day, the $10,000 Lakewood event was chiefly notable for introducing some new names to the golfing public. For example:

Manuel de la Torre, Spaniard from Milwaukee, who finished with 274, three strokes behind Middlecoff, to take $1,400 second money.

Jimmy Clark of nearby Laguna Beach and Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., who came in at 275.

And Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., making the big time swing for the first time, who was on top for three days but slipped badly at the end.

Boros and Lloyd Mangrum started out tied with Middlecoff at 203, but Boros took a 73 and Mangrum a 75 yesterday.

Middlecoff turned in 70-64-69-68 for the four days. De la Torre carded 70-67-70-67. Clark had the final round's lowest score, a 64 for his 275. Mayer posted a 69 to get his.

Clark and Mayer tied for third with Jimmy Thomson, the long distance swinger from New York, who hasn't been much in the money in recent years, and the sober Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill.

With Boros at 276 were Art Doering of Richmond, Va., Ed Oliver of Seattle and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco.

Buccaneers Seek Revenge After Saturday's Loss

East Carolina's Pirates, showing a powerful scoring punch in their last two games, will seek revenge from Saturday night's 75-74 loss at the hands of Elon tonight, as they play host to the Fighting Christians here in a return game.

Tonight's tilt is slated for 8:00 p.m. in Wright gymnasium at East Carolina.

These two North State teams hooked up in a scoring battle at Elon Saturday night, with Dave Mondy's field goal in the last five seconds giving the Christians' their one-point margin over the Pirates.

Charlie Huffman, 6'4" frosh sensation from Thomasville, is expected to lead the Bucs scoring parade tonight. Huffman has 198 points in 14 games played this year for an average of 14.1 points per game.

All-Conference Sonny Russell is second to Huffman in the Pirates scoring with 192 points in the same number of games this season, for an average of 13.7 per game.

Don Haithcox, big 6'5" center for the Christians, and Larry Gaither and Hank Hamrick will be the sure-shooters for the visiting quint.

Coach Howard Porter will probably start Russell and Huffman at the two forward positions tonight, with Toddy Fennell at center, and Lou Collie and Bobby Hodges at guards.

East Carolina now ranks sixth in the conference with four wins and four losses, however, there is a three-way tie for second place, and a win for the Pirates will move them ahead of Elon in the league standings. The Christians have a 4-3 record, and rank in fifth place.

Cardinals To Be Better This Season....Marion

By MARTY MARION, Manager

St. Louis, Jan. 23—(AP)—The 1951 St. Louis Cardinal club should be better than last year.

The basic weakness of our team last year was the many, many injuries that we suffered. The infield had only one strong point for example—and that was Al (Red) Schoendienst at second base.

At first base we tried Nippy Jones, who was recovering from an operation, and Steve Bilko, who didn't hit major league pitching adequately. At shortstop, I was bothered by a knee injury suffered in spring training and Eddie Miller was unable to play long enough to take care of the situation. At third base, Tommy Glaviano had shoulder trouble which handicapped his throwing and Eddie Kazak was troubled by weak ankles.

Behind the plate, Joe Garagiola was out most of the season with a severe shoulder separation. At necessary operation to Ted Wilks' elbow left us without an adequate relief pitcher for practically the entire season. In the outfield, Stan Musial injured his knee three separate times. Bill Howerton was out for a while with an ankle injury and Chuck Diering suffered a broken elbow.

Most of the above weaknesses have been, we hope, corrected by surgery. Operations have been performed on Garagiola, Wilks and myself, and we feel that all three of us will be recovered sufficiently to help the club. In addition, the injuries of the other players have been cleared up with the winter's rest and they will be able to go at full speed.

Training School Lunchroom Begins To Serve Tomorrow

The announcement of the opening of a cafeteria in the Training school was made today by Superintendent J. H. Rose of the Greenville schools. It will be the first time the Training school has had lunchroom facilities since year before last when the cafeteria which was operating in the basement of the Wright Building on the college campus was closed.

The cafeteria will be located in one of the two new wings to the Training school which has been completed recently.

"We think we will serve meals to between 300 and 350 students at the Training school each day," Rose commented, "but we don't know just yet."

He said the cafeteria will serve a set meal which will include milk and will cost 25 cents. Later on the arrangement may be changed to give the students a choice of foods for lunch.

Plans at present are to sell lunch tickets in each of the school rooms each morning for the students who wish to eat at the cafeteria. The students may purchase as many tickets as they wish at one time. A meeting is scheduled for this afternoon at which officials will decide on prices of individual tickets for milk and soup.

"We are trying to meet a health need," Rose stated. "The parents can really help if they will give their children a sandwich or two to bring to school for lunch and let the sandwiches be supplemented with soup and milk from the cafeteria."

Meals will be served in the school cafeteria beginning at 12:10 with the first grade students. Rose said the students of the other grades would eat in order beginning with the lower grades and continuing through all the grades in the school.

A similar cafeteria has been in operation at the Third Street school since last September, and a cafeteria is scheduled to be opened at the West Greenville school next fall.

School Is Out As Janitors Strike

School Superintendent Rufus A. Putnam said no effort would be made to operate the schools until further notice.

Lightest Docket Of Year In Farmville Mayor's Court

Farmville, Jan. 23.—The lightest docket of court cases to be on record since the first of the year was tried before Mayor Walter Jones in Farmville's Mayor's Court yesterday.

Only three cases were docketed and all three dealt with driving drunk cases.

Local police officers stated after court that the number of arrests made in Farmville since the first of the year has dropped considerably. No arrests were made during the past week, with the cases all occurring before the week-end.

The three cases were against Preston Langley, Route 1, Farmville, Negro; Moses Barnes, Negro, also of Route 1, and Jack Lloyd of Farmville.

Langley pleaded guilty to driving on the public highways in a drunken manner and was fined $100, costs of court, and his license ordered suspended for a period of one year.

Moses Barnes was fined $100 and costs and license suspended for a period of 12 months for the same offense.

Jack Lloyd was given a fine of $100 and costs plus license being revoked for one year. Patrolman Ernest Guthrie told the judge of arresting the man on the highway after he was observed driving in a drunken manner.

Farmville Mayor's Court is held each Monday morning in the courtroom on the second floor of the city hall with Mayor Jones presiding.

Newspapers Say British Plants Make Plutonium

London, Jan. 23—(AP)—All London morning newspapers carried a report today that Britain is now making plutonium, used in manufacture of the atom bomb.

The Ministry of Supply, which runs Britain's big atomic program, was mum on the story.

"We can make no comment at all on that," a spokesman said.

The press stories said plutonium was being made on a big scale. The first of two atomic piles at Sellafield, Cumberland, went into operation over the week-end, they said. These piles extract plutonium from uranium.

College Planning High School Day

East Carolina Teachers College will held its ninth annual High School Day Friday, April 6. Invitations have just been issued to seniors in 437 public schools in 66 counties of the state.

Dr. Orval L. Phillips, director of the Bureau of Field Services at East Carolina, heads a student-faculty committee in charge of arranging the program for the day. Both educational and social activities will be included.

The chief purpose of High School Day is to enable visitors to see "a college in action," according to Dr. Phillips. All divisions of East Carolina will operate as usual on High School Day. Guests will be invited to visit departments of instruction, the Training School, the nursery school and the kindergarten, and to observe various student activities. Special exhibits are being planned to show through appropriate displays the types of work being done at East Carolina.

A large group of high school students is expected to be present to enjoy the occasion. Last year 2,600 young men and women, representing 114 schools in 44 counties of North Carolina, visited East Carolina on High School Day.

First Meal In Army Is Steak

For that very first meal as a part of the United States Army, the Greenville Battery of the National Guard was served steak with the trimmings for their noon day meal. Here the cooks in the kitchen look over the steak prior to its being served. Until further notice the local Guardsmen will eat dinner and supper at the armory served by the Battery cooks. City Scrap Paper Sales Average 6 Tons Weekly

Greenville's scrap paper sales are continuing at the rate of approximately six tons a week, according to a statement this morning by Street Superintendent C. K. Beatty.

The city two weeks ago undertook the sale of the scrap paper which is collected daily in the garbage and trash collections of the city street department. The paper in the trash collection is piled at the city dump and sold there at $4 a ton to a scrap paper deadler.

"The scrap paper sales are coming along fairly well, "Beatty commented, "But we haven't had many bundles from the residential neighborhoods. We wish the people would tie up more of their old newspapers and magazines and set them beside their garbage cans for collection." The street department superintendent explained that the tying of the bundles of old papers and magazines not only made it better for the men who collect the city's trash and garbage, but it would enable the city to get a higher price for the scrap paper.

The collections of scrap paper in the business district stay about the same from week to week, Beatty said, but vary from day to day depending on how much merchandise the stores are receiving and unpacking.

Says Confidence Needed To Grow Sweet Potatoes

By WYATT BROWN

Sweet potatoes in better quality and large quantities can be grown in Pitt, Edgecombe and Martin Counties if the growers had more faith in themselves that they could do it, declared Jesse Sumner, assistant county farm agent for sweet potatoes for Pitt, Martin and Edgecombe Counties. In furtner presenting the sweet potato program Mr. Sumner exhibited slides on a screen.

This section is possessed of the soil situated furthest north suitable for growing the Porto Rican type of yam, it was pointed out by Mr. Summer. At this point Louisiana is North Carolina's chief sweet potato competitor affording this section a sixty-five cents a bushel freight advantage. This section could be the largest producer, he stated.

Jurors Accept His Testimony On Old Taylor

The question of what became of a bottle of whiskey puzzled Solicitor W. J. Bundy in Superior Court yesterday but the defendant's explanation of where it went was good enough for the jury as they returned a verdict of not guilty in a drunk driving trial.

The defendant, Church L. Perkins, Greenville, stated that bottle of Old Taylor that Highway Patrolmen D. E. Perry and Dick Chadwick found in his car when they arrested him had been used to counteract a shot of novacaine after he had had some teeth pulled. He stated the dentist had advised him to wash his mouth out with whiskey to relieve the after-effects of the shot.

However, Bundy stated a man wouldn't ordinarily buy Old Taylor for use of that nature. "That's expensive stuff," he said. "That's weekend liquor."

And in his plea to the jury in the day's second case, he familiarized the 12 persons with the story of who killed Cock Robin.

"But the State isn't interested here in what became of Cock Robin," Bundy said. "The State wants you to do two things—bring back a verdict of guilty as charged and find out what became of Old Taylor."

As stated by Perkins, what became of Old Taylor satisfied the jury and they returned shortly with the not guilty verdict.

True bills found by the Grand Jury yesterday are:

James Robert Garris, manslaughter; Thad Braxton, Jr., Finnie Croom, Herman Newell, kidnapping; Paul Suggs, forgery; Bennie Lee Eubanks, Jimmy Rogers Skinner, Garland Skinner, Obie Lee Anderson and Jesse Bryant Williams, breaking and entering and larceny; Walter Busbee, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill; Clifton J. Griffin, forgery; Annias Chapman, Jr. and Willie Lane, alias Snooks, larceny of an automobile.

No true bill was returned in the case of J. H. Farmer, larceny.

Cases heard and judgments rendered yesterday were:

Theodore Wilson, assault with a deadly weapon; six months suspended on five year probation.

Annias Chapman, Jr., and Willie Lane, larceny of an automobile; Chapman not guilty, Lane sentenced three to four years, to begin at end of present 60 day sentence for driving without a license.

Jesse Lee Moore, bigamy; pleaded guilty, three years, suspended on five year probation and payment of $15 each month for welfare of child and $60 the first of each October until the child is 16 years old.

Clifton J. Griffin, forgery; 18 months, suspended on probation for five years.

The State took a nol pros with leave in the cases of Frank Harrington, indicted for operating a gambling house, and Johnny Taylor, larceny of an automobile.

Cases continued were:

Marion O. Blount, drunk driving (prosecuting witness absent).

Bennie Lee Eubanks, Jimmy Rogers Skinner, Garland Skinner, Obie Lee Anderson and Jesse Bryant, breaking and entering and larceny.

ly were sought to head the divisions.

As an example of what followed, David B. Carson, vice president of the Sharon Steel Corporation, was brought in as boss of the steel Division. And Leland E. Spencer, vice president of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company, was brought into boss the Rubber Division. And so on.

This job or bringing businessmen into NPA started at the top. Right at the beginning William H. Harrison, president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, was made director of NPA.

Harrison and Sawyer had a pretty good set-up for pulling businessmen into NPA. Sawyer has, and has had for more than a year, an advisory council of more than 100 top businessmen.

They consult with him on business and industry problems. And since they represent various industries they've been able to help get men from their industries into NPA.

Even so the businessmen going to work in NPA full time are not the only ones connected with it. Some work part time, as consultants. Others are members of advisory committees that talk over industry problems and NPA plans and policy.

be of their own free will.

The General also declared that he would like to see the German people "lined up with others in defense of the western type of civilization."

There could be no higher recommendation than that, coming as it did from the allied commander-in-chief during the late war against the Reich. Eisenhower didn't say so, but he might have added that the Germans are among the world's best soldiers.

In any event, the point is that strategically located Germany, with its manpower and the rich coal and iron resources of the Ruhr, is needed in the defensive set-up of the western nations. And of course, it's needed by Russia as well.

Moscow has been making every possible effort to win Western Germany over through Soviet occupied East Germany. However, Chancellor Adenauer of the Western Bonn government has rejected the overtures, charging that the East German government is the tool of communism.
