

New Delays Threaten U. S. Move

Condemnation Of Red China Still Debated By United Nations Delegates

Lake Success, Jan. 24.—(AP)—New delaying action today threatened a U. S. drive in the United Nations Political Committee to have communist China branded formally as an aggressor in Korea.

A lukewarm attitude by other big powers, outright opposition by the Soviet bloc and another "last-hope" peace plan by 12 Asian-Arab countries stood in the way of a quick, decisive vote by the committee to support the U. S. proposal.

Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate, was ready to take the floor again to condemn the Peiping regime's latest words—transmitted informally through India's ambassador to Peiping and Sir Benegal N. Rau, India's delegate to the U. N.—as a trick to split the non-communist world.

A delegation source said it was highly likely that Austin would speak at today's meeting, but he predicted that debate possibly would continue through Friday. The delegation still foresees more than 40 members of the 60-nation committee ranging from the U. S. to the final vote.

This despite Prime Minister Clement Attlee's pronouncement yesterday in the British House of Commons against any step to condemn Red China now as an aggressor.

This, despite the agreement of 12 Arab-Asian nations last night to try for the fourth time to draft a Korean truce, cease-fire or peace plan that Communist China, Russia and the majority of the United Nations will accept.

Rau said the Arab-Asian group agreed last night to try again on the basis of the latest informal Peiping offer. This call for a seven-nation meeting to take up in order—a limited cease-fire, withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea, and removal of U. S. protection from Formosa, Red China, Peiping added, must be insured of her "legitimate status" in the U. N.

The U. S. Senate joined the House of Representatives yesterday in demanding that the U. N. condemn Red China as an aggressor and bar the Chinese communists from U. N. membership.

Local Rainfall Is Well Below Past Averages

Rainfall last night in the Greenville area totaled .19 of an inch, the weather bureau reported this morning.

The local weather bureau also reported that a slight drop in the temperature, indicating that colder weather is on its way, has been noted in the past 24 hours.

The highest reading recorded here yesterday was 65 degrees with a low reading of 49 being reported early Tuesday morning. The high of 65 was reached between two and four o'clock yesterday afternoon, the weather records show.

So far this year the rainfall in the Greenville area is way behind the same month last year. Up to today, in January 1950, over two inches of rain had fallen as compared with the 76 of an inch recorded so far.

Temperatures, however, seem to be running along the same lines in comparison with last year. The highest reading on record for a year ago today was 71 degrees with a low of 47. One year ago today at eight o'clock, the thermometer stood at 50 degrees with an official reading today at eight of 49 degrees.

ANOTHER MESSAGE
Lake Success, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Communist China has sent another message to India relating to United Nations efforts to obtain a cease-fire in Korea, an Indian spokesman said today. He described it as "reassuring" but would not disclose its contents at this time.

The Republican foreign affairs adviser to Secretary of State Acheson expressed confidence that the Japanese will become worthy members of the free world, "now that their militaristic ambitions have been broken."

One doesn't question Japan's present good intentions. It is indeed to be hoped that her eyes are fixed on peace. Still it certainly is given to wonder whether, despite the best of intentions, she may again encounter circumstances.

What has impelled Japan to embark on her numerous wars? Some of them have been inspired by imperialistic ambitions, but to a large degree she has been spurred by the lack of sufficient arable land to support her population.

It's the old, old story upon which many nations have based their excuse of aggression against more

Nehru Issues Strong Call For Major Powers To Negotiate

Broadcast Bristles With Criticism Of U. S. Policy In Asia; Opposes Condemning China

New Delhi, India, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India, in a broadcast bristling with criticism of the United States' policy in Asia, called tonight for a conference of major powers to discuss world problems, "instead of talking at each other across thousands of miles."

"It is clear that enough has been said on both sides for negotiation in a conference to be the next fruitful step," Nehru said.

The Indian leader contended that the American proposal to name communist China an aggressor in Korea, a policy backed by both houses of the U. S. Congress "cannot lead to peace." He said: "It can only lead to intensification of conflicts and might perhaps solve the door to any attempt at a tremendous responsibility for any person to take such a step. At no time should this door be closed, for if we close it, we also close the door to a civilized approach to any problem."

Nehru's broadcast marked his return from the London meeting of Prime Ministers of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Great Britain also is opposing any plans to impose U. N. penalties against the Red Chinese as aggressors.

British Foreign Minister Ailing

London, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Foreign Office disclosed today that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has pneumonia.

Bevin, who has been in poor health for the last two years, came down yesterday with what was first diagnosed as influenza.

A spokesman for his office said today that the Minister's physician has now found "a patch of pneumonia on one lung."

He had just recovered from a severe cold which he contracted last week.

Effective Price Curbs In Making

Washington, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Rep. Spence (D-Ky.) said after a White House call today that President Truman is preparing legislation to strengthen the whole price machinery and "provide effective control of food prices."

Spence, chairman of the House Banking committee, told reporters the bill to bolster existing laws for "price and rent control" will be sent to Congress shortly.

Farmville's Tax Lister Optimistic

Rate Is About Same For Past Years; Larger Total Seen

Farmville, Jan. 24.—Provided the present rate of tax listing is continued, total tax listings for Farmville and the near-by regions will go well above the 1,900 mark, tax lister L. P. Thomas, sported today.

While most of the county was reported to be lagging behind in the number of persons reporting to list their taxes, Farmville's tax lister estimated that nearly one-half of all persons who will list this year have already done so.

"In my opinion," stated Thomas, "the flow of listings this year is just about in keeping with the same time last year, or about an average year."

Yesterday between 50 and 75 persons reported their taxes with the tax lister whose office is located on the second floor of the city hall building.

"Farm listing is the one thing which is slowing down the taking of tax listings this year more than anything else," declared Thomas.

"People don't know much about the amount of crops they raised last year on their farms, other than tobacco," the tax lister commented.

"When asked about their farms, the persons can always give the total acreage of tobacco grown, but on other figures, they just don't know. More than fifty per cent of the time now taken up with filling out the farm tax listing forms could be saved if the people would just check on their acreage figures prior to coming to the office, so that when asked they could give them correctly without having to figure them up."

Indications are that the tax listings this year will top last year's listing somewhat, but as yet the exact figure is not known.

Last year about 1,850 persons listed taxes in the Farmville office. A word of warning was sounded by Farmville's tax lister, however.

Jaycees Propose To Find Rooms For Servicemen

Plan Assigning Rooms In Private Homes For Weekend GI Visitors

Greenville's Junior Chamber of Commerce today announced the inauguration of a program to furnish rooms in private homes of the city for service men who visit Greenville on the week-ends.

The decision to undertake the project was made yesterday afternoon at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Jaycees. Arrangements have been made to begin immediately to take the names and addresses of people of Greenville who will take service men into their home for the weekend either as guests or for a small charge.

Dave Whitchard, chairman of the Jaycees committee appointed for the project, said he has been keenly aware of the increased numbers of service men who are visiting our city. In a number of instances these boys have not been able to find places to spend the night, and we feel the people of Greenville would like to extend to these service men the same type of hospitality which service men received in Greenville during World War II."

Arrangements have been made with the Greenville Chamber of Commerce office to take calls during the week from people of the city who have rooms available for service men on the week-ends. The calls will be taken at telephone 2725 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be on duty at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce on Saturday to assign rooms to service men who wish to stay in a private home while visiting Greenville. Present plans are for the office to remain open until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

A spokesman for the Jaycees committee composed of Whitchard, Charles Howard, Jr. and Lester Turnage, said the Junior Chamber of Commerce has undertaken the project as a temporary arrangement until some facilities can be provided for service men who visit Greenville on the week-ends.

They urged the people who have spare rooms available to contact the Chamber of Commerce office so assignments may be made to the service men on the week-end.

"We are anxious to have this program get under way this week-end," a spokesman for the group said, "and we will greatly appreciate the people of the city contacting the Chamber of Commerce office as soon as possible."

Kenneth Phillips, manager of the Hotel Proctor, said the number of service men in Greenville has been increasing steadily on the week-ends since the first of the year. During the past week-end the facilities of the hotel were filled and a number of service men were allowed to sleep in the hotel lobby because they could find no other place to spend the night.

NPA Bans Use Of Nickel In Auto Trim, Other Items

Washington, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The government today banned the use of nickel in automobile trim and in nearly 400 other civilian products.

The purpose is to conserve the short nickel supply for defense and essential uses.

One of the most important defense uses of nickel is to make jet airplane engines resistant to great heat and corrosion.

The National Production Authority (NPA) made public a long list of products for civilians in which nickel silver or nickel plate may not be used in new manufacturing on March 1 and thereafter.

It issued another long list of civilian products in which nickel-bearing stainless steel or high content nickel alloys may not be used, beginning April 1.

However, the NPA allowed manufacturers two months to complete articles started before the effective dates.

Among the items in which nickel bearing stainless steel was banned after April 1 are automobile bumpers, grilles, hubcaps, trim, wheel rings and wheel covers.

Nickel plating may not be used after March 1 in automobile accessories, dash panels, gasoline caps, grilles, interior trim, lamp housings, ornamental trim around windows, radiator trim, wheel discs or window levers.

Other products in which various forms of nickel were banned range all the way from barn cleaners to bicycles.

American Jets Win Again Over Russian-Made Planes

DiSalle Hints At Freeze On Prices

Price Stabilizer Recommends Action, Possibly By Tomorrow, To Newly-Sworn Mobilization Chief Eric Johnston

Washington, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Price Stabilizer Michael DiSalle said today he has given Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston recommendations for a general price freeze.

He made the statement before the joint Senate-House Economic Committee.

DiSalle did not make public details of his recommendations but said that an announcement probably will be made within a couple of days.

His testimony followed word from other officials that a price rollback may be expected tomorrow, possibly to be followed by a wage freeze on Friday.

An overall price ceiling at levels of Jan. 2 was reported by informed government sources to be in the works.

The wage action, it was understood, will put a lid on wages as of the day announced.

Johnston, long-time president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and lately the president of the Motion Picture Association, is understood to be planning a radio and television broadcast tomorrow evening, at which time he will tell the public of his plans.

He took the oath of office from Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson in a brief ceremony in President Truman's news conference room in the old State Department Building.

An order was due shortly from Johnston giving autonomous power over prices to DiSalle and over wages to the nine-member Wage Stabilization Board headed by Cyrus S. Ching.

Under Johnston's predecessor, Al Valentine, who resigned Friday, DiSalle enjoyed only limited authority and the Wage Board had received no delegation of power—it was merely an advisory body to Valentine.

Johnston has told a congressional committee he will have broad supervisory power over not only wages and prices, but also over all economic phases of mobilization including credit control, rents, home financing, and general fiscal policy.

Administration Has Key Senate Support

Pivotal Committees Endorse Dispatching Of Troops To Europe In Spot Check; Differ On Imposing Of 'Ceiling'

Washington, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Administration can count on the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees to approve a resolution endorsing the dispatch of American troops to Europe.

A spot check by the Associated Press of 21 of the 36 members of the two committees showed that as of today 14 favor such a move and not one publicly opposes it.

A favorable recommendation by the two committees would carry heavy weight with the Senate floor.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who favors limiting the number of divisions involved, has said he will carry that issue to the Senate floor.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) told reporters that if any such limitation were voted it "would discourage Europe and encourage Stalin to strike before there is enough manpower over there."

Connally said he will call together this week the Foreign Relations and the Armed Services Committees to look over a resolution assigned to them yesterday by unanimous agreement of the Senate. Connally is Foreign Relations chairman.

The resolution, sponsored by Republican floor leader Wherry of Nebraska, was aimed at barring any commitment of troops to Europe by President Truman until Congress passes on the issue. Mr. Truman says he has authority to act regardless of Congress' action.

Lifting Embargo

Washington, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Air Force will resume acceptance of volunteer enlistments on Feb. 1, after a several weeks' embargo because of crowded conditions at indoctrination centers.

The Air Force announced yesterday its scheduled call for admission of 1,200 recruits daily at Lackland, Texas, Air Force Base and 300 daily at the newly-reopened Sampson, N.Y., Air Training Base.

The Navy said its freeze on enlistments, also imposed because of heavy volunteering, will continue at least to the end of this week.

Flashing Air Battle Over North Korea Staged; Women Riflemen Seen In Red Force; Strong Allied Patrol Probes Deep Into Enemy Lines

Tokyo, Jan. 24.—(AP)—American warplanes fought and won another flashing jet air battle over Korea today. Allied ground troops recaptured Yongwol, tungsten mining town in east central Korea.

Five hundred women riflemen were spotted in a Red Korean force of 1,500 seven miles south of Yongwol.

F-84 Thunderjets shot down one Russian-made MIG-15 and damaged three others in a 15 minute dogfight over the Anju-Sinanju sector near the Manchurian border.

Tokyo, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Allied troops slashed more than 10 miles beyond Wonsu on the central Korean front today and the southeast recaptured the mountain town of Yongwol.

A heavily-armed patrol with tanks blazed through Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wonsu, and pushed on to within 33 miles of the 38th parallel before withdrawing, a field dispatch said.

It was the farthest northward advance by any allied force since Seoul, the Korean capital, was abandoned. On the way back the task force was engaged by a company of enemy troops. The Reds retreated with heavy casualties.

Between 16 and 20 Russian-type jets swooped across the Yalu river and attacked 16 U. S. F-84s. They came off second best as they did yesterday in the same area when three and possibly four were damaged.

In neither fight was an American plane lost or damaged.

Effective Pilots
Two Austin, Tex., pilots, Capt. Allan J. Gilbert and Richard T. Rutherford were credited with inflicting most of the damage Wednesday as the enemy planes. Gilbert was credited with downing the shadowing MIG-15 and Rutherford was credited with damaging two. The Fifth Air Force in Korea said a third Russian type plane was damaged.

Both Gilbert and Rutherford flew in Tuesday's battle—the biggest jet fight in history—but neither claimed to have inflicted any damage on the enemy planes.

Victories Praised
Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of the Far East Air Force, lauded the American jet victories. He said 17 Russian-made MIG-15 jets have been destroyed in air-to-air combat with F-84s since Nov. 1.

Six other enemy jet planes were probably destroyed and 37 damaged, he said in a statement.

Stratemeyer said Tuesday's battle "demonstrates the Thunderjet as a first-line jet in air-to-air combat."

He added: "Our F-8 Thunderjet has exceeded all expectations, both as a close support tactical weapon and as a fighter."

Bombing Raids
Other Far East Air Force and Fifth Air Force planes ranged across the peninsula. B-29s dropped tons of bombs on the northeastern coast supply center of Komu, 20 miles north of the Changjin Reservoir.

The attack struck at noon (10 p.m. EST, Tuesday) with about 20 B-29s hitting the transport center for 25 minutes.

This was the first time the Superforts had hit Komu, an important rail junction and supply center just 20 miles south of the Manchurian border.

Draft Law Changes

Changes Sought By Defense Department To Boost Size And Quality Of Armed Forces; Why National Guard And Reserve Associations Want Modification

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Defense Department, to boost the size and quality of the armed forces, wants some changes made in the present draft law.

It prepared a bill which it asked congress to pass, carrying out those proposed changes. Before it does so, congress probably will alter the bill a bit. Committees are holding hearings on the bill now.

As it stands, the bill would not make any direct changes in the National Guard or the Reserve groups. Yet the National Guard Association and the Reserve Officers Association are concerned about the bill.

They have suggested some changes in it so that it will more positively speak of the need to preserve the future strength of both groups. The main objection of the National Guard Association is this:

At this moment, under the present law, a youth under eighteen and one-half years of age, if he joins the Guard, is free from the draft so long as he performs his guard duties satisfactorily. The bill would wipe out this deferment for under-eighteen and one-half year olds who join the Guard. The Guard Association protests that this would tend to cut down its strength.

Why? The pool of youths under that age serve as a steady field for recruiting new Guard members. Still, the armed forces say they now rust draft youths reaching 18. The Guard wants the exemption continued for youths joining up before they are eighteen and one-half. These youths, of course, would be liable for service if their Guard units were called up.

Under present law a youth reaching 18 must register with his draft board but cannot be drafted until he's 19.

There may have been some feeling around the country, by people who didn't read the bill, that it might make direct changes in the

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
THE KINGDOM AT HAND
When Jesus began to preach it was with the declaration that the kingdom of heaven was at hand. Here is a basic Christian teaching which many people fail to comprehend. The New Testament tells us that Jesus established the Kingdom of God on earth. That is, he brought down a portion of heaven into earthly environment and established it by changing men's hearts until they were filled with heavenly light and supported by a power far above anything known to the common ways of life.

The kingdom will never be fulfilled until the last great day. But the kingdom has been established. Its doors are open, inviting us to enter. Every moment of our lives it is true that the kingdom of heaven is at hand. The opportunities to live the heavenly life begin here and now and find their complete possibilities in the opportunities which we believe eternity will offer us.

We do not build the kingdom of God; the kingdom of God has been established by Jesus Christ. But two things we can do and these two things are of overwhelming importance. First we can accept the invitation God gives us and enter that kingdom. Then we can busy ourselves extending its influence and spreading its beneficent power among men everywhere.

Swift Justice

A Lost Virtue?

Action in the Farmville recorder's court against three driving drunk cases, it seems to us, could well set an example for the other courts of Pitt county.

There were three driving drunk cases on the docket, they were tried Monday, the defendants found guilty and dealt nice stiff sentences justly deserved by those who operate a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant. Mayor Walter Jones gave each of the defendants a $100 fine and suspended his operator's license for 12 months.

There was no long delay in bringing the cases to trial; no length of time in which the witnesses could become hazy about the details of each case. It was swift justice, meted out as the founders of the American legal system meant for it to be meted out. There was not a lot of red tape and technical delays aimed at using time against justice to the favor of the defendant.

The people of Pitt county have witnessed in the procedures of the criminal terms of Superior court delay after delay in bringing cases to trial. Not only driving drunk cases but others as well have been docketed, delayed, set on the calendar and then continued time after time. At the beginning of the criminal term of court this week the backlog of cases numbered 191, and the cases dated back as far as 1948.

What witness can remember clearly the details of an incident which happened three years ago? . . . or two years, or one year ago for that matter?

When the lag is so great between the time the incident out of which the case arose, occurs, and the date the case actually gets to trial, it is a wonder as many people as do receive just punishment for their violations of the laws.

As a whole there is a great need in our courts for a shortening of the period between the time the charge is brought and the time a case actually begins trial. The action of the Farmville court is an incident which indicates what a court in one community is doing to cope with the problem.

Be Sure The Service Men Benfits

North Carolina's delegation in Congress should give careful consideration to the matter before voting in favor of the bill proposing a free $10,000 life insurance policy for each man in the armed services.

On the surface the foregoing statement of The Reflector's conviction may sound unpatriotic and unappreciative of the great service which is being rendered by members of the armed forces. But when politics, government and big business are combined, it usually pays to look below the surface.

Actually, we are of the opinion that the free service insurance bill now in Congress, if passed, will be by far a greater boon to the life insurance companies of the United States than to the service men in the nation's armed forces.

What does the bill do? It gives $10,000 worth of free life insurance to every service man for the time he is in service and for 90 days thereafter . . . but then what? It snatches from the hands of an ex-G. I. what probably will be the bulk of his life insurance holdings; and leaves his family or other dependents without security if he should suddenly die.

If he is to have insurance after he is released from the armed service, he must seek it on the open market . . . and pay for it at his actual age at the time—an age which will have increased by several years during his stay in the armed service, and consequently will make his insurance more costly.

But aside from the fact that the men returning from service will have to pay a higher price for new life insurance than they would have, had they taken the insurance sooner, the Congressional bill as it now stands makes no provision for life insurance for the veteran whose physical condition calls for an unusually high premium rate; or for the veteran whose physical condition makes it practically impossible for him to secure life insurance.

The bill, it is true, would give the service man free insurance coverage while in the service. But it would offer him and his dependents no security for the future . . . the real purpose of insurance.

In order to purchase insurance at an age of 18, 19, or 20, the man now going into the armed forces of our country would have to purchase from a private company a policy which would stay in effect after his release from service. But since practically all the life insurance policies for young men now carry a "war clause" which says the policy will not pay off if death is caused while on active duty with the armed forces, the man actually would be paying on the policy during the time he was in service for the sole purpose of keeping the cheaper rate after leaving the service. Such a policy would not be collectable were he killed while in service.

We repeat: The free service life insurance bill as it now stands is a greater boon to the private insurance companies than it would be to the men in service.

The Reflector firmly believes the bill should be altered considerably before being enacted into law. It is going under the guise of a great benefit for the man who is serving the nation in its armed forces. The bill should be framed so it actually will aid the service man while he is in service and likewise after he returns to civilian life.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York has mapped an expansive political program for himself, the nation and the Republican Party for the next few turbulent years, and here it is:

As of today, Governor Dewey favors the nomination of General "Ike" Eisenhower by the G.O.P. in 1952. As against the Taft-Hoover philosophy, Mr. Dewey leans toward the Truman-Eisenhower-Dulles-Vandenberg belief in complete intervention in Europe by our armed forces.

Should the 1952 presidential contest become a duel between the Dewey-Eisenhower forces and the Taft-Hoover faction, Governor Dewey expects to be the decisive factor.

Besides New York's 94 delegates, he believes that he will command the 300 nominators who backed him in 1944 and 1948.

With that support, Mr. Dewey could nominate General Eisenhower, so he thinks. And, despite Senator Robert A. Taft's growing strength, a Dewey-Eisenhower alliance would make a formidable political combination.

G.O.P.—Should General Eisenhower still be involved in European military problems in 1952, and therefore unavailable as a presidential candidate, Mr. Dewey might seek the nomination for a third time.

Despite his two defeats, he does not think that he has been counted out. He believes that his attitude on foreign affairs, especially as it coincides with Wall Street's, will give him an edge over the "isolationist bloc" headed by Senator Taft.

Mr. Dewey has another arrow in his political quiver. He is convinced, along with many veteran observers at Washington, that President Truman will eventually get rid of Dean Acheson as Secretary of State, and that General George C. Marshall will soon resign as Secretary of Defense.

Governor Dewey does not want Dean Acheson's job. But he does hanker for the defense post, regardless of the effect of its acceptance on his immediate political fortunes. He will not accept a Cabinet responsibility, however, unless he is given a free hand at Washington.

QUESTIONS—General Eisenhower, incidentally, will be asked several embarrassing questions when, as President Truman's military scout, he testifies before several Congressional committees on the State of European rearmament, and the willingness of those countries to resist a possible Russian invasion.

General Eisenhower's European tour has been observed closely by members of the Armed Services and Foreign Relations Affairs committees in the House and Senate.

They noted that, after visiting the international spy and espionage city of Lisbon, Portugal, he skipped Madrid, Spain, and flew directly to Rome. In the opinion of Capitol Hill, he made a diplomatic rather than a military mission on this leg of his journey.

UNDEMOCRATIC—Portugal's military forces do not match the strength of the National Guard in New York or Illinois. Militarily, it has no value in the defense of Western Europe.

Moreover, Portugal's government is more fascist and undemocratic than Franco's in Spain, Tito's in Yugoslavia or even Stalin's in Russia. Yet General Eisenhower saw fit to consult with the Salazar regime.

TROUBLE—Italy cannot organize or maintain an army, navy or air force. In two world wars her soldiers did not stand up against the Germans or the Austrians. Italy, next to France, has the largest number of Communists in her population.

INCIDENT—A seemingly trivial incident in the Senate shows how much smarter the anti-Truman opposition is than the batch of White House spokesmen and leaders.

When Mr. Truman sent his enormously expensive budget message to Congress, it was first read in the House, which meant that it would be published in the "Congressional Record" for all members to read.

The Naughty Word

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

After attending the regular bi-weekly meeting of the 3015th Reception Center, I came home determined to write another column about the unit. My first story on the unit appeared two weeks ago. The 3015th is one of two Army Reserve Units located in Greenville. My reason for a second column on the unit is to spread the word that men eligible for the draft can enlist in this unit, or the Induction Station Unit, also located in Greenville.

In case of all-out mobilization, the Greenville units would be called to active duty and have as their mission the receiving, examining, inducting, clothing, classifying, and shipping of 800 men a day. Men who enlist in the unit will be required to meet with it every other Tuesday night, for which they will receive a day's pay. The meetings last two hours. They say that anything can happen in the army, so it's dangerous to predict the destiny of the 3015th. However, I'll go out on a limb and mention three things that can happen to the 3015th: (1) It could remain intact and in Greenville. (2) It could be called to active duty and function in accordance with the mission as now designated, or (3) it could be called to active duty and then dissolved, and the members spread here and yon.

A man destined for the draft would be smart to enlist in the 3015th. If he is adapted to and likes clerical work. There are about 50 openings for enlisted men in the Greenville section alone of the 3015th. These openings are for general clerks or clerk-typists. Even if the members of the 3015th are shipped to the four winds in case the 3015th is dissolved, the man who joins will be classified as a clerk, trained as a clerk, and will stand a good chance of remaining in that type of work even if he leaves the 3015th. If time allows, he may even be promoted. About two-thirds of the openings in the 3015th are for men in the non-commissioned ranks, so it's entirely possible that a new man could be promoted to a non-com. However, the promotions will probably be six months apart.

Because of a misunderstanding by the general public, the army has eliminated the rank of "Recruit." News reports have said that "Ret. John Doe was killed in action in Korea," indicating that a man with only a short period of time in service had been sent to the battlefield. Of course this did not necessarily follow. A man with 10 years' service could be a recruit if he had not been promoted. Because this rank was misleading, the army has eliminated it. However, there are two pay scales within the rank of private, $75.00 a month and $82.50. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

By LYNN NISBET

Daily Reflector Bureau

TRENDS—Although the general assembly has been in session three weeks and has had in hand the advisory budget commission report and proposed money bills for two and a half weeks, very little has been accomplished. In fact, it is difficult to discover any trends or indications of what course legislation will take. Experienced observers can detect increasing optimism among those recognized as advocates of larger spending than the budget proposed. There is rather general belief that the delay is working to the advantage of the heavy spenders.

BLOCS—There are no clearly defined blocs or groups, but there is evidence that advocates of additional tax levies are not so dependent as they were the first few days of the session. A former legislator who has been around Raleigh since January 3 watching proceedings of this session remarked yesterday that the conservatives had organized both branches of the assembly, but were marking time so long the liberals were perfecting their organization and might well be in position to take the offensive in a few days.

OVERHEAD—One hears more and more often around the lobbies of the capitol and the hotels expressions that maybe the money cannot and should not be held just where the budget book marked it. There hasn't been serious consideration of any item in the budget appropriation bill, but several other bills for additional appropriations have been approved. Sponsors of larger spending cite action of the assembly itself as justification for their claims. They point out that one of the first bills enacted was to raise the pay of legislative employees thus throwing the appropriation for the general assembly way out of balance. A department head or school superintendent has a good talking point for more money for his subordinates in the action of the legislature with respect to its employees. All this kind of gossiping overhead around the edges of the assembly arena lead to conclusion holding the line at budget book point will be extremely difficult.

SPEED—Apparent efforts to rush through at unusual speed some of the pet projects of certain members leaves sponsors of these bills vulnerable to claims for consideration on part of other causes. The judge retirement pay, or "Hamilton Bill," is one example of this undue haste. Another are the proposals seeking allocation of $175,000 for the agricultural building annex and $750,000 for mental hospital construction, even while there is pending a complete study of all unexpended permanent improvement funds allocated in 1947 and 1949. While these spenders were speeding, the group expected to oppose additional taxes and appropriations have made little headway. No one has suggested that the objects of proposed expenditure are not entirely worthy. Even the opponents of the fairground coliseum admit the building is desirable. Point is that these special items are not being weighed against total state needs and resources, as was the case with budget consideration of the whole matter.

STUDIOUS—One reason for the slow start is that more than usual number of legislators are really studying the unusually large number of reports and recommendations made by commissions since the last session. The assembly may not follow any of the recommendations in the studies on highway safety, state-municipal roads, stream sanitation, domestic relations and others. But members will be influenced to considerable degree by the factual information presented in these reports. And already a number of special subcommittees have been named from the larger groups to carefully study pending bills affecting governmental reorganization and other basic matters.

DISTURBED—As many people expected, but hoped would not happen, the placid relations between Governor Scott and the general assembly have been breached.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

No Longer "Land Of The Sky-Blue Water" (Greensboro Daily News)
Its "clear and sparkling streams" were to the forefront of the assets which most impressed the earliest settlers in North Carolina.

But "time and chance happeneth to all." Many of these streams have in the course of time become clogged and polluted so that they are hardly fit for man, beast, fish or industry. The problem is a difficult one because municipalities and manufacturing plants are the biggest polluters, and because the cost of cleaning up the water is not light.

Nevertheless the problem must be confronted and solved by North Carolina if it wants to keep its people healthy and attract new industry. The longer the procrastination, the higher the cost of the final solution, as Pennsylvania and other states have learned.

An excellent analysis of the whole problem in this state, which we commend to citizens and legislators alike, can be found in the current issue of Popular Government. It is an article entitled "Stream Pollution in North Carolina" by Philip P. Green, Jr., Donald B. Hayman, and Ernest W. Machen, Jr., assistant directors of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill.

The General Assembly has before it a proposed bill which would give the State Stream Sanitation and Conservation Committee power to gather information needed to deal with the problem and then to establish standards of "water quality" and adopt regulations for methods of protecting watercourses. This is the most flexible and probably the most practical way of handling the problem. Flexibility is needed because the problems of stream sanitation vary with varying locations and conditions. Since the end of the war 27 states have worked on their stream sanitation laws and 15 of them have established agencies similar to the one proposed for North Carolina. South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee are studying the problem. North Carolina must move ahead if she doesn't want to be left behind.

The most recent Twentieth Century fund report, on "Monopoly and Free Enterprise," made the point that "any arbitrary attack on bigness as such in American industry would be both unwise and unnecessary. This feature of the report was widely hailed by industry. It coincided with the quiet campaign to persuade the Administration to go easy in its anti-trust campaign on the grounds that making defendants of the important industrialists would interfere with rearmament. This enthusiasm somewhat obscured the fact that the Fund's report also recommended a series of actions to break up monopolies. The actions would constitute revolutionary revisions of some prevailing legislative philosophy. The report urged:

1. Repeal of the Webb-Pomeroy Act which exempts export trade associations from anti-trust regulations.
2. Repeal of the Miller-Tydings Act and so-called state fair-trade laws which permit manufacturers to set retail prices of trademarked goods.
3. Deletion from the Robinson-Patman Act of provisions that violate the general principle that price differences should not be out of line with cost differences.
4. Amendment of the Sherman Act so that labor will have immunity only in those markets in which it sells its services.
5. Revision of agricultural marketing agreements legislation to give consumers representation and to prevent possible abuses by producers, processors and distributors of agricultural commodities.

The Twentieth Century Fund, while obviously not reactionary, is no "let's be" organization. It was founded by the late Edward A. Filene, a liberal millionaire, and the committee that approved the report is headed by James M. Landis, liberal lawyer; Marion Hedges, ECA advisor; Donald M. Nelson, former WPB chairman; Frank M. Surface, consultant and former Standard Oil official; Jacob Viner, Princeton economist; and J. Raymond Walsh, former C.I.O. economist. A. S. Goss, National Grange master, was a member of the committee until his recent death and he dissented from the fifth proposal.

RECORDED VOICES MAY SPEED DEFENSE

Tape recording devices may enable unskilled persons to do skilled work in defense plants. The Mohawk Business Machines Corp. is working on a magnetic tape device which can be geared to production machines and tell a new workman what to do next, Frank F. Ryan, president, disclosed.

It is possible that when a man sits down at a machine with this attachment, a recorded voice will say, "Pull the lever at the right." Pulling the lever could activate the attachment to say, "Now push a sheet of metal in the slot in the center!" and so on until the operation is completed. Making an error could activate another voice to say just what the mistake was. The machines can also be adapted to training military personnel. Theoretically, a machine could be so attached to a tank or a plane to speak instructions so that a raw recruit can handle it.

CREDIT YEAR BOOK EXPLAINS OPERATIONS
Techniques and procedures of credit departments of both large and small stores are explained and evaluated in the new edition of the "Credit Management Year Book," published by the National Retail Dry Goods Association, 100 W. 21st St., New York 1. The 470-page manual is $6 to members, $10 to non-members.

MAIL CATALOGS SHOW NEW PRICE LEVELS

Because a mail-order catalog is their show window and salesmen for six months into the future, the catalog houses must plan further in advance than retail stores. They have got to evaluate prices and supplies far ahead, or lose either sales or money.

The spring catalogs of the big houses are now in the mails. They show that their specialists believe prices will be high and that many goods will be scarce.

Higher prices than last year are general. Biggest advances are in wool carpeting, with some up 33 per cent over a year ago. Clothing prices are generally higher, although some items have been cut. Cotton goods and shoes are up.

One company dropped its automatic washer; several have reduced their number of refrigerator models. Some have dropped white-tie and other scarce items.

With U. S. troops in Korea—(AP)—The word "gook" has just about disappeared from the American soldier's vocabulary here.

And that is a good thing. It is an outward sign of an inward change toward the people for whose right to democracy he was sent here to fight.

When the Americans first arrived in force last July, they hardly regarded the Koreans as ordinary people—so much as they did inhabitants of a country almost as strange and unknown to them as Mars.

They saw Korea only as an old and tired backward land, smelling of the honey-wagon and filthy with ancient disease. And they thought of the Koreans chiefly as a race of dog-eating tribesmen given to child marriage and thievery and totally incapable of ever knowing the meaning of democracy.

And in their arrogance they began calling all Koreans—North and South—"gooks." It was a term of lumped contempt and it was uttered in contempt. It might have jolted the superiority of some of them to learn that the Koreans also had a word for "American" in their language. It was "megook." But there was no contempt in it. It meant only "foreigner."

If it has done nothing else, the extended police action in Korea has helped bridge the gap between the gooks and the megooks—between 150,000 American troops and nearly 30,000,000 Koreans. They have been through much together and they understand each other better now.

This result may hardly be worth a war, but it is only one of many results. And it certainly is important in a narrowing world that Americans realize the vital need of understanding the peoples whose destiny will be linked with theirs.

After seven months of comradeship in a campaign marked by a long retreat and a frustrating victory followed by fresh withdrawals, the average American soldier no longer feels like calling a Korean a "gook."

"Many of our men have come to know and like individual Koreans," said one field officer. "And through them they have come to understand and have a sympathy for the Korean people as a whole."

A soldier in the line said: "It was the civilian refugees—the courage they showed in leaving their homes to march back with us—that made me respect them. Hell, I hope my folks at home never have to show that kind of guts."

The kindling interest of the troops in the plight of the Korean people has also been shown in group contributions to their welfare and an increasing number of acts of personal kindness. And it goes far deeper than gifts of chewing gum and candy to ragged children on the streets. With kindness goes tolerance.

Washington Letter

Washington—Rachel L. Carson, who grew up in Pennsylvania, was always fascinated by the ocean, even before she had seen it. Now Miss Carson, a government worker, editor-in-chief of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, has become an authority on oceans. She has just finished a book on the subject. It is a remarkable book and a work so warmly and immediately acclaimed, Miss Carson is all but breathless.

She began in the summer of 1948 outlining the book thoroughly, chapter by chapter, using material she had previously written and published in magazines and doing further intensive research.

A few chapters, submitted of the Oxford Press, sold them. Then casting about for magazine sales, she sent a chapter to the sophisticated "New Yorker." The "New Yorker" practically "bounced off its chair," according to staff members, and snapped up ten of the book's 14 chapters to be condensed in a series.

Another chapter on islands appeared in the Fall issue of the "Yale Quarterly Review" and Award for 1950, given by the George Westinghouse Foundation and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. In addition, when partially completed, the book won Miss Carson the Eugene F. Saxton Memorial Fellowship to aid in its completion.

This last, she says, helped her to take some time off for her writing from her government job. The longest time she took off, however, was a month.

Miss Carson, who came to work for the government in 1936 as an aquatic biologist, was graduated from the Pennsylvania College for Women and got her master's degree at Johns Hopkins University. She did summer work at the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Mass.

An early ambition was to go to the ocean's bottom in William Beebe's bathysphere, but she put it in the Smithsonian Institution before she had a chance," she said.

Mr. Beebe urged her to do some helmet-diving off the Florida coast during 1946. However, most of her oceanographic research, she says, was done off George's Bank in New England. The study of the ocean had been carried on a very small scale until World War II, she explains

'Short Form' Method For N.C. Income Tax Payments Advocated

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24—(AP)—State Department of Revenue officials yesterday urged the legislature to adopt a simplified "short form" method for payment of state income taxes.

The suggestion was one of 22 proposed amendments to the State tax laws presented to the legislature's joint finance committee. The Revenue Commissioner Eugene C. Shaw said the "short form" tax return would permit persons whose annual income from salaries, commissions, dividends and interest does not exceed $5,000 to file under this plan. It would automatically allow a blanket deduction of 10 per cent of the gross income.

The short form return, similar to that used by the federal government, would be optional with the taxpayer making $5,000 or less annually. Shaw pointed out that the taxpayer could still use the present long form if he thought deductions for such things as contributions, medical bills and interest would total more than the allowed 10 per cent.

Shaw said he thought the revenue loss would be offset by simplified accounting and a greater compliance with the income tax law.

He said the proposed plan would be as simple as writing a postcard. He explained that the short form would be a punched card. The taxpayer would write in four figures—his income, personal exemptions, allowance for dependents and the 10 per cent deduction. The card could then be returned to the department along with a check or money order.

Other amendments would: 1. Levy a three per cent gross receipts tax on amusements for which an admission is not charged but where donations of offerings are accepted.

2. Add to the list of items not deductible from state income tax: federal excise taxes and dues and initiation fees paid to social, civic or recreational facilities.

3. Include in a person's gross income alimony payments up to $1,000.

4. Deduct from state income tax: federal excise taxes and dues and initiation fees paid to social, civic or recreational facilities.

Urge Stockpiling Surplus Cotton

Biloxi, Miss., Jan. 24 (AP)—The National Cotton Council wants the government to stockpile surplus cotton.

A resolution to that effect was adopted yesterday after conflicting views on the proposal were expressed. Doses of minor resolutions had passed with monotonous unanimity before the stockpiling proposal brought a discordant note in a harmonious convention.

The gist of the proposal was for the government to buy for a cotton stockpile any surplus left over from the projected 16,000,000 crop farmers hope to produce in 1951.

The resolution provided that this would be done on order of the Secretary of Agriculture to the Commodity Credit Corp. The CCC, the resolution said, should buy the excess cotton—if any—on the open competitive market at the market price.

After the resolution was read, Caffey Robertson, Memphis, Tenn., cotton merchant called for a discussion and told the delegates:

"This proposition seems inconsistent with the meeting thus far. We've heard talks about preserving our free enterprise and about government intervention, but this seems to be inviting more intervention. We should think a long time before asking the government to enter the open market and compete with cotton buyers."

Parents Of Girl Scouts Attend Annual Banquet Here Last Night

Parents of Girl Scouts in Greenville attended the annual banquet last night at the Rotary Club and heard Mrs. E. F. McCulloch, editor and publisher of the Bladen Journal and a native of Greenville, state the Girl Scouting program must be broad and comprehensive in these times.

Close to 75 mothers and fathers of teen-age Scouts here gathered for the dinner and program that followed which included the installation of a new commissioner and a short musical program by a sextet of Scouts.

Mrs. J. K. Long, new commissioner, was presented the gavel of the office by retiring Commissioner Mrs. J. K. Proctor. In accepting it Mrs. Long thanked the leaders for the opportunity they had given her and called on the cooperation of the parents to make the Scouting movement more successful in the future.

Mrs. McCulloch, who is a sister of B. B. Sugg, presented a four-point outline which, she said, will strengthen the Girl Scouting program. She described teaching of citizenship as one of the main assets of older persons and it should be taught to the younger boys and girls while they are growing up. America, she said, has been called upon by other nations to lead the world out of the present chaos and confusion.

It is in. To do that the emphasis must be placed on citizenship. A program of wholesome recreation is needed also, the speaker said, to aid the strengthening of any young peoples' movement—"to do something that they love to do every day." Teaching boys and girls to sing, singly and together, is also a requisite for enjoying life, she said.

Her fourth point concerned the teaching of spiritual things. She described the United States as a country that has forgotten how to worship, even though it was founded on the principle of freedom of worship.

"We must make the young people ready for tomorrow—we must re-sacrate and rededicate our lives to the cause of the young people," she said. And the Scouting movement must reach out to all areas in order to make the program stronger.

Prior to the short talk to the parents, the sextet of Scouts delivered two selections accompanied by Miss Ona Shindler. The songs were "Make Believe" and "Desert Song" and were sung by Janice Ormond, Barbara Cozart, Elizabeth Ann Williams, Sudie May Spain, Wynette Garner and Joann Manning.

Mrs. J. O. Howard was presented to the parents as the new deputy commissioner as Mrs. Long took over the gavel. Mrs. Proctor was presented a piece of silver hollow-ware as a token of appreciation of the Scout leaders for work as commissioner.

Dr. S. M. Crisp delivered the invocation before the banquet and Mrs. J. B. Spilman introduced the speaker.

Says Workers In Fewer Accidents

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 24—(AP)—Automobile wrecks in North Carolina are not caused by "jalopies" used by working men and women getting to their jobs and back but by "higher class cars driven recklessly by people going nowhere and doing nothing after they get there."

That was the view expressed here last night by George H. Whitaker, chairman of the Central Labor Union's Educational and political Committee in protesting revival of the state's automobile mechanical inspection law. He says he has sent copies of his statement to Governor Kerr Scott and members of the legislature, which has before it a bill to resume the program.

Whitaker added that heavy loss in man hours and wages was incurred when workers have to leave their jobs to have their vehicles checked.

He suggested if the state "needs the extra dollar charged for inspection, simply add another dollar" to the price charged for auto license tags.

Ancient Rome had standard signs for many of its shops such as a goat for a dairy, a mule driving a mill for a bakery and a bunch of grapes for a wine shop.

March Of Dimes Drive At High School Begins

The "MARCH OF DIMES" campaign was launched in Greenville High School last Monday by an assembly program featuring speakers and musicians from East Carolina.

Dr. Elmer Browning of the Commerce Department of East Carolina, who is acting as Chairman of the Pitt County Polio Drive presented a Woodwind quartet composed of clarinetists from the Music Department of East Carolina. They rendered an American number and also, "A Gig" by a French composer, Clair de Lune (Debussy) was then offered.

Ray Sears, a member of the Forensic League at East Carolina and a former G. H. S. student told how polio played no favorites. He pointed out that as our state had been an epidemic state for the past several years, it might be one again this year.

"Supporting this drive with dimes and dollars is everyone's responsibility. One half of Pitt County's contributions will be returned to the county to aid its polio victims," he emphasized. Sears and Dr. Browning praised the response the High School has shown toward the drive in previous years.

Bovine T.B. Is Rare In America

Washington—(AP)—The bovine type of tuberculosis in the United States is becoming very rare, says Dr. A. K. Kuttler, director of brucellosis work for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Kuttler declared that, while the situation was improving in this country, thousands of new cases of bovine tuberculosis are being reported annually in some major livestock producing countries where 25 to 50 per cent of the cattle are tuberculous.

Ice cutters around Boston and northward, often can cut two "harvests" of ice two feet thick in one year.

George Washington knew why we needed a Stock Exchange

Under a buttonwood tree... in 1789, the third year of George Washington's first term as President... was the beginning of what is now the New York Stock Exchange.

To pay for the Revolutionary War, "stocks" had to be sold by the Government. But people were naturally unwilling to invest in securities unless they could be easily resold. A market place was needed.

So a few businessmen who traded in securities decided to meet every day under the branches of an old buttonwood tree—only a few blocks from where the New York Stock Exchange now stands.

Today, the New York Stock Exchange is basically the same in purpose as in the days when George Washington knew it. It is a place where the securities of our largest and best-known businesses are bought and sold at auction.

What many people do not know is that the Stock Exchange does not buy or sell securities, or in any way set the prices. The Exchange's function is to provide a national market place. Handling investors' orders for a few shares, or hundreds, is the day-to-day business of its members and member firms.

Information on America's leading businesses, their financial picture, their earnings and dividend records can be had from member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. Their offices are located in 386 cities. Their facts and experience are yours without obligation.

Farmville Sextet Defends Title In Tourney Play Tonight

Seeded Ayden Quint Plays Nahunta Cagers

Snow Hill Boys Face Walstonburg; Ayden Girls Play South Edgemore As Medal Tourney Goes Into Second Round

Eight more teams entered in the third annual Coastal Gold Medal tourney now being held at Farmville resume play tonight with four games in the Farmville High School gymnasium.

The second round of the tournament gets underway at 6:30 tonight with Farmville's defending champions facing a scrappy sextet from Bell Arthur.

Raye Hathaway and Mittle Rouse, two high scoring Farmville forwards, are expected to pace the Red Devil lasses, while Betty Jones, a leading point-getter, will be the leader for Bell Arthur.

In the second game, a potent scoring quint from Snow Hill meets the five from Walstonburg. Snow Hill has been designated as one of the darkhorses that may upset the apple-cart of top-seeded Ayden.

Third game on schedule tonight sends a height-loaded Ayden six against an improving South Edgemore sextet. Ayden's two outstanding forwards, Alice Jean Cox and Katherine Wooten, have been two of the consistent high-scorers throughout the eastern part of the state this year, and they will carry the hopes for the Tornadoes.

Rounding out tonight's play will be top-seeded Ayden scrapping an unknown Nahunta quint from Wayne County.

Coach Stuart Tripp's charges have lost only one game this season, and have been heralded as potential tournament champions.

Mac Whitehurst, Troy Jackson, and footballer, Teedy Bullock, are the sparkplugs for the Tornadoes quint, while Delano Cox and L.N. Riggs are the workhorses of the team.

Tomorrow night's semi-finals will feature the top-seeded Snow Hill girls against Vanceboro's six at 6:30. Both teams advanced in the tournament with wins in Monday night's opening round.

In the second game, Stanionsburg boys will meet the winner of tonight's Snow Hill-Walstonburg game.

In the third game of the semi-finals the winner of tonight's Farmville-Bell Arthur game will face the winner of the South Edgemore-Ayden contest.

In the final game of the semis, Farmville's defending boys' champs go against tonight's winner of the Ayden-Nahunta scrap.

Ranzino And State Set Two New Records

Richmond, Va., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Southern Conference basketball circles had some red faces today—those of Virginia Tech's Gobblers and North Carolina State Coach Everett Case.

The Gobblers' faces are crimson because State's Wolfpack set two records against them last night. The Pack rolled up the highest score a North Carolina State cage quintet has registered in history, thrashing the Gobblers by 114-66. State's previous high basket making spree came in 1948 when the Wolfpack battered High Point College, 110-50.

Sammy Ranzino, State's great forward, set a new Southern Conference record for individual point-producing. He dumped in 47 markers. The total point bag broke the 45 figure North Carolina's George Giamack stacked up against Clemson in 1941.

State Coach Case's face was rosy because only two days ago he said Virginia Tech would be one of the two clubs he expected to push the Pack all the way. Duke was the other team and had already proved it, forcing State into overtime.

After the early stages, Tech was never in the game. State, the nation's eight-ranking outfit, led at halftime, 60-26.

Ranzino sank 21 field baskets and five charity throws to collect his big total. State Center Paul Horvath got 27 points. High for Tech was Dick Sayre, a guard who poked in 16 points.

It was State's ninth conference win without a defeat and jumped their season's record against all foes to 18 victories and two whippings—both by Villanova. The defeat made Tech's league effort four triumphs and two setbacks and an overall record of 12-6.

There was no other action last night. No games are scheduled in the circuit tonight or Thursday night.

Top bowler for the night was Braswell of the Penlites, who posted 170 pins for single game high honors, while B. Wells of the Evereadys, took the highest three-game score with 437 pins.

Mittle Rouse, with 21 points, led the Farmville sextet to their sixth triumph of the year against three defeats, with Ila Wooten contributing 13 points.

Randy Allen and Charlie Fitzgerald combined their scoring talents to lead the Red Devils' quint to their sixth victory of the season.

Grifton, Jan. 24.—Grifton's boys' and girls' teams romped to two easy wins here last night, as the boys posted their 11th triumph of the year, 62-33, and the sextet won handily, 46-30, over the two Grimesland clubs.

Edna Earle Braxton, high-scoring forward for the Grifton lasses, tossed in 17 points to pave the way for the girls to register their ninth win of the season. Evelyn Adams followed up with 12 points.

It was that brother combination again in the boys' tilt, as Rex and John Lewis contributed 36 points combined to pace the Grifton scorers.

Rex sank 20 points, while John followed up with 16 points.

Bob Majette was high for the Grimesland lads.

Greenville Defeats Edenton, 66-38, For Third NE Triumph

Dillingham, Aman, Scott Pace Phant Scoring; JV's Win

Edenton, Jan. 24.—Johnny Aman, Jim Dillingham, and Glenn Scott rang the bell for a combined total of 42 points last night, as Greenville's Phantoms took their third Northeastern Conference victory here, 66-38.

Aman was the top scorer for the Phantoms with 15 points, while Dillingham added 14 and Scott contributed 13 points.

At the opening outset, it looked as if the home team would cause trouble for the Phantoms, as Jake Higgs had four fouls called on him after five minutes of play, and Cannady, who scored 16 points for the Aces, pulled the Edenton five to a 15-14 verdict at the end of the first quarter.

In the second quarter, however, the Phantoms romped easily with their scoring, while holding the Aces to a mere one point, leading at halftime, 26-15.

Coach Bo Farley utilized his entire traveling squad in last night's tilt, with big boy Wallace Conway pacing the reserves.

Greenville plays their arch-rival, Kinston's Red Devils, here Friday night. The game site has been transferred to the Wright gymnasium at East Carolina in anticipation of the large crowd expected to be on hand.

The Phantoms' Northeastern Conference record now stands at 3-2.

Hodges Gets 25, Fennell Sinks 19, As Elon Falts

By BILL LLOYD
Reflector Sports Editor

Bobby Hodges, 6'3" guard import from Kinston, poured in nine field goals and seven out of nine charity tosses last night, for a total of 25 points, to lead East Carolina to a 74-62 revenge win over Elon here.

The former Kinston All-Stater was aided greatly by the 19 points contributed by Toddy Fennell, junior center from Wilmington.

Not only did Hodges take the individual scoring honors, but he kept the Pirates' basket intact throughout last night's contest, as he played one of his most sensational rebound games. Fennell and All-Conference Sonny Russell were the outstanding floor leaders with their brilliant passing and ball-handling.

East Carolina jumped into an early 7-0 lead in the first three minutes of play, and continued to lead the Christians throughout the first stanza, with the halftime score reading, 35-27.

Elon came close to overcoming the high-scoring Buc's at the 13:46 mark of the first half on a long shot by Cooper, making the scoreboard read, 22-21. However, Hodges sank two quick layups to put the Pirates out front 26-23.

It looked like a repeat performance of Saturday night's 75-74 thriller at the 5:16 mark of the second stanza, as Dave Mondy worked to tie the score for the first time, 41-41.

Don Halthox, rangy 6'6" center for the Christians, gave the Eloners their first taste of the lead on another hook, 43-41. Gaither's layup increased it to 45-41, before Huffman's and Hodges' layups knotted the count 45-45.

Hank Hamrick's push shot put Elon temporarily in the lead, 47-45, but Huffman again pushed the score into a deadlock, 47-47.

There was an exchange of leads at the 7:20 point as Lou Collier's free throw made it 48-47, and Ken Kendall's push shot made it 49-48 in favor of the Christians.

After Gaither had knotted the count for the last time 51-51 at the 9:06 mark, Hodges, Fennell, and Huffman combined to pull East Carolina out front by ten points 70-59 with two minutes remaining.

Last night's victory advanced the Pirates into fifth place in the North State standings with a 5-4 record, ahead of Elon, who has a 4-4 record.

Winterville, Ayden Split Twin Bill

Ayden, Jan. 24.—Winterville's Betsy Castellone, with 20 points, put the skids under Ayden's sextet here last night, in one of the most exciting contests seen this season, with the Wolverines finally emerging victorious 58-53.

Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornadoes turned the tables in the boys' tilt however, with a decisive 46-38 win.

Katherine Wooten was the spark for the Ayden sextet last night as she took individual scoring honors with 34 points, but her effort wasn't enough to overcome the scoring power of Castellone and Jean Liverman, who each had 20 points.

The lead changed in the girls game eight times and was tied six.

Teedy Bullock and Mac Whitehurst led the Ayden boys to victory with 12 points apiece, while Thomas Nobles was high for Winterville with 18 points.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

Chapter 20

Molly waited for Elsie to continue. They were not likely to be quarantined in the Algerian harbor. Elsie had something else on her mind. Meanwhile, she was bearing down on her, Molly's late-ness; rubbing it in, so to speak. The day had gotten off to a foul start, she explained, when several refugee children suffering from some mysterious ailment had been taken up for contagious diseases. The ship's hospital, she went on to say, was already beginning to bulge at the sides with sick D. P.'s.

"Doctor O'Malley must hate that," Molly said, without thinking, recalling Peter O'Malley's remarks when the D.P.'s had come aboard.

Elsie, misinterpreting her meaning, nodded solemnly. "Sure he does, being a doctor and having the whole thing dumped in his lap. There was a mixup, you know, on account of the other doctor who was supposed to help out didn't show up. If you ask me, most of the poor things were sick when they started."

"I didn't know that—about the other doctor, I mean..."

Elsie turned accusing eyes upon her. "No, I guess you didn't. You've been too busy tearing around with that redheaded squirt. I'm beginning to believe you were just stringing me along when you said you were a bona fide working girl. You're doing much too good a job being a butterfly. I've been only wasting my time."

"Why, Elsie! Molly's eyes widened in surprise. "How can you say such a thing?"

Elsie held her ground. "Well, I've said it now, what I've been thinking for several days. So I'm adding-bull story you told me about your father being a poor country doctor and you helping out as a nurse—well, I'd hate to say what I think about that..."

"But it's true, Elsie!" Molly stared at the blonde woman in amazement. "What on earth has come over you anyhow? And why shouldn't I enjoy myself, now that I have a chance? There's nothing else to do. Besides, you're supposed to have fun on a cruise ship. It's like a vacation."

Elsie made no comment on that, but continued with her recital of the day's events, digressing briefly to point out that the well D.P.'s were almost as much of a problem as the sick ones.

"They don't mean it, of course," she conceded. "It's just that they're scared and mistrustful; they've been through so much already. Besides, you can't very well blame them for getting excited and carrying on when it's their own people who're sick and everything around them is strange."

Molly, in spite of her nervous exhaustion, was interested. "Of course not," she said. "I saw the poor things coming aboard and I thought they looked frightened. I've been doing what little I could." Elsie acknowledged hesitantly. "You know—learning them wrestling, which is the only game I know, and English. Could be I'm wasting my time there too. They're still pretty scared. And they seem to be learning all the wrong words, as well as using them in front of all the wrong people. Though I will say, she added, a note of pride creeping into her voice, "I'm keeping them from getting underfoot as much as they did. Doc says I'm a godsend—believe that if you can."

Again Molly's eyes widened in surprise. "Why, that's wonderful of you, Elsie," she exclaimed. "I knew I hadn't seen you around much for the last several days, but I had no idea you were helping out down below. How did you manage to get down there without being stopped? I thought saloon passengers weren't supposed to be Captain's orders."

"They aren't supposed to," Elsie's good-natured grin was suddenly very much in evidence.

Plan 'Death' For Blasted Carrier

San Francisco, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The atom-bombed carrier Independence is going to be blasted to Davy Jones.

The Navy says this World War II hero no longer is of any value—even as an experimental laboratory for radiologists.

Only the bulk remains of the 10,000-ton light carrier whose planes destroyed more than 100 Japanese aircraft and at least one ship, the cruiser Oyodo.

The atom bomb, scientists and engineers have blasted and stripped the mighty "I" of every usable object.

Her flight and hanger decks and hull above the water line are holed-pocked and battered—chiefly by the 1946 atom bombing at Bikini.

The mighty "I's" death will be as explosive as her life through the war and Bikini.

Her death date and grave and means of destruction are Navy top-secrets—on orders from CNO—Chief of Naval Operations, (Adm. Forrest P. Sherman), Washington.

But the date probably will be early to mid-February. The place: perhaps 500 miles at sea—far enough outside San Francisco's Golden Gate to avoid snoopers and outside of shipping lanes.

The method: "Some weapon" placed aboard, presumably on the hanger or flight deck. It will not be atomic.

Extroverts Not Always Stable

Berkeley—(AP)—The expansive traits of the extrovert, usually thought to be the mark of a well-adjusted personality, are often associated with personality difficulties, according to Dr. Harold E. Jones, a psychologist at the University of California.

With increasing age, Dr. Jones states, an individual usually changes to more internalized emotional responses. When this development fails to take place, a marked extrovert pattern persists, which may indicate poor social adjustments and personality problems.

Halt Extension Of City Limits

Henderson, Jan. 23.—(AP)—For financial reason and because of the world emergency, the Henderson City Council last night adopted a resolution halting all extension of the city limits and all street or other permanent improvements by the city at present. The ban was ordered in anticipation of approval by voters in May of a bond issue to be submitted at that time for water extension expected to cost around three quarters of a million dollars.

No Shortage In Cotton Goods Seen This Year

Bloom, Miss, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The short cotton supply will not cause a shortage of cotton products this year, a textile manufacturer says.

Fred W. Symmes, general manager of Union-Buttles Mills Company, Greenville, S. C., delegate to the National Cotton Council convention here, said, "a tightness of supply will be felt at the mills this spring but should not cut off the sale of manufactured goods."

Asked in an interview if white cotton shirts, sheets, and other consumer goods would be hard to buy, Symmes said he could see no reason why they should be.

The textile executive said the shortage—called critical by the Council—was largely foreseen in the increased demand expected during the year.

Calculating the needs for 16,000,000 bales as a minimum for this year, the industry knows that unless the crop soon to be planted is expanded, a real shortage will exist.

The 1950 crop was 9,800,000 bales, but there were 6,800,000 bales left over from the previous crop. And finally there was an import of 200,000 bales which made the total supply 16,800,000.

The Agriculture Department said increased industrial activity, full employment, more spending, and a bigger population would cause 10,000,000 bales to be consumed in this country in 1951.

The Armed Services will probably push domestic use even higher, the Council added.

Bridges Brands Truman Budget As An 'Invitation To Disaster'

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—Senator Bridges (R-NH) today termed President Truman's $71,500,000,000 budget "an invitation to disaster" and demanded that the White House recall it.

Bridges, top Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, said in a statement that the White House had practiced "outright deceit" in contending that non-defense spending had been cut.

"If Stalin himself were given the opportunity to weaken America from within, he could scarcely produce a plan better calculated to destroy this government," Bridges declared. "We are being asked, literally, to spend ourselves to ruin."

Congress, of course, is not bound to vote the money Mr. Truman asked. His budget message, required by law, is a recommendation to Congress on how much money should be appropriated to run the government in the next fiscal year. Bridges contended that the budget, for the year beginning July 1, "actually requests authority to spend $94,500,000,000 and another $4,000,000,000 to liquidate old bills."

For this reason, he said, the $16,500,000,000 in new taxes suggested by the President "will not come close to balancing our federal books."

He said that by next June 3 the government may owe $65,000,000,000 in unpaid bills not figured in the federal debt, adding that it "cannot run a gigantic check kiting indefinitely."

Bridges asserted there is "obvious fraud" in the President's claim that 130 non-defense items were reduced under last year's outlays.

He said Mr. Truman claimed he had saved $23,700,000 because there was no appropriation sought for the International Refugee Organization which has "completed its program and is being liquidated."

He said Mr. Truman claimed a $2,000,000,000 saving in stock piling. Bridges contended that approximately that amount appropriated by Congress for this purpose last year hasn't been spent and there is no need for more money.

Program committee stated that the next program will be March 13. The speaker will be named at the next meeting.

The League made a contribution of $10.00 for the National Foundation of the Infantile Paralysis.

A letter from Fire Chief Gardner was read. The chief commended the organization for the fine work being done among the citizens of Greenville and especially in sponsoring some type of recreation which kept the boys from Tar river the summer of 1950.

A year prior to 1950 that one to "The City continued," "I don't recall three boys were not drowned, and it was through the type of program sponsored by the League that kept the boys from the river."

The president commended every committee for the fine reports submitted, thanked the citizens for all suggested comments on letters of congratulation and stated that there was a great job ahead.

"Therefore we must continue to work lest we forget our task," he said.

1. Find facts relative to the unemployment of the citizens of this city and see what disposition can be made of the same.

2. Investigate the home from which some children are going to school without having had anything to eat and find why such conditions exist.

3. Clothing and other articles which one would like to give some underprivileged children please inform Mrs. Anne Streeter, 206 W. 14 St., Greenville.

G. F. Garrett, Chairman Recreation Committee submitted the following projects for the year:

1. Midget Base-ball

2. Contact all ministers of the city and see what type of recreation can be had in the basement of the churches

3. Contact the various social clubs to help finance recreation.

Pitt-Wide Meet Of Leaf Growers To Close Series

The recent series of meetings of tobacco farmers concerning this year's crop will wind up with a county-wide gathering at the courthouse here tonight at 7:30. All farmers of Greenville Township and those in other vicinities who missed out on their neighborhood meetings are invited to attend.

Under the direction of county tobacco specialist S. J. Weeks, assistant farm agent, the programs have been directed toward better methods of production as recommended by the Extension Department experiment stations. The series of meetings began Monday a week ago in Grifton, and since then farmers have shown great interest in them by averaging over 75 in each of the seven to date.

This year, Weeks stated yesterday, the farmers have shown wide interest in wanting to plant resistant to black shank and Granville line types. Recent experiments conducted by Weeks in the county show farmers are planting more and more varieties that are resistant to black shank and Granville wilt than in years past. And the results have rewarded the farmer, he said.

The meeting tonight will be informally conducted with color slides of the varieties and what each produced. Afterward, a discussion period will be held for answering questions. Farmers in the county who have not laid out their beds yet are urged to attend.

Des Moines—(AP)—Hugo Wilken, of Davenport, an auctioneer who has conducted sales in Iowa for almost 50 years, is cancelling some 20 sales for farmers who were planning to retire. The farmers have turned their backs on a life of ease and decided to stay on the job producing food in the current crisis, Wilken reports.

Wilken says prices for farm machinery have shown a marked increase lately. There has been an increase in bidders, particularly for good, late model equipment. Used tractors, for example, are going for as high as $2,000, he states.

Berkeley—(AP)—Excavation of a mass graveyard 200 feet underground was reported recently by anthropologists of the University of California. The subterranean cavern was uncovered in a large, limestone cavern in a region once inhabited by the Sierra Miwok Indians.

Vast quantities of human bones were found at the bottom of a deep, vertical shaft. The anthropologists believe the corpses were probably thrown into the almost inaccessible shaft from a ledge in the upper part of the cave.

Investigation Into Building Of State Coliseum Continuing At Rapid Pace

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24 (AP)—An investigation into the wisdom of the state going through with construction of a $1,350,000 coliseum at the State Fair continued today.

A special legislative committee investigating the controversial project which has the backing of Governor Scott and farm leaders was faced with these developments as it continued its deliberations:

1. A co-chairman of the committee expressed the opinion that the project had gone so far that it would be too expensive for the state to halt construction.

2. Reports from Washington quoted National Production Authority officials as saying that if construction is continued without its specific approval, the builders may be subject to federal prosecution for using critical materials for non-defense uses.

The Raleigh News and Observer quoted NPA officials as saying that such a directive or priority is required on all commercial projects involving more than $5,000 unless the foundations of the proposed structure were substantially completed as of Jan. 13. That was the date the government ban on non-defense commercial building sent into effect.

State officials conferred with the NPA on the project last fall. At that time, they reported, it was given the green light as an educational project.

Meanwhile, a public hearing on the coliseum project was held here yesterday. Some 250 representatives of farm organizations appeared in support of the 9,000-seat coliseum.

The special committee planned to confer today with architects to determine how much the state would lose if the project were halted.

Senator James H. Pou Bailey of Wake, co-chairman of the committee, said some estimates run as high as $200,000.

Bailey said he believed "the project has gone too far to stop it."

Contracts for the coliseum, for which funds were appropriated by the 1949 legislature, were awarded two weeks ago and construction was started.

Bailey said he had been informed that all of the steel necessary for the project has been purchased and that most of the engineering work involved has been completed.

"I GET SO NERVOUS, RESTLESS TIRED, CRANKY several days before my monthly period... but I find Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound wonderful to relieve this distress"

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—An American manufacturer told a congressional investigating committee today that Canada is shipping aluminum, now in short supply, "almost continuously to Russian satellite countries."

Richard Reynolds Jr., president of the Reynolds Metals Co., made the assertion before the House Monopoly Committee.

Old Egypt Lives In Cotton Field

By EDWARD POLLAK

AP NEWSFEATURES

Cairo—The fellahs are harvesting the white cotton bolls in Egypt as they did 4,000 years ago under the Pharaohs.

The prosperity of 20,000,000 Egyptians is tied up—directly or indirectly—with cotton. It accounts for 75 per cent by value of Egypt's exports. During the 1949-50 season it brought Egypt around $401,800,000.

The rich fields stretching along the Nile are crowded daily in harvest season by thousands of black-clad women and boys wearing the national night-gown-like "gallab" dress. They work with the alacrity of locusts under the brilliant sun. Like pickers along the Mississippi, they join in cheerful folklore songs as their agile fingers pinch the white fiber from the plants.

Other women shuttle between the fields and the nearest canal, bringing water for the thirsty pickers. They walk with a graceful carriage as they carry the big earthen jars on their heads.

Pickers wear small bags tied to their waists. When these are full, the pickers pile the cotton in a snowy growing mountain on the edge of the field. Men stuff it in big bags.

Rows of trucks—mainly American made—are parked nearby, waiting to be loaded. The trucks contrast sharply with the simple landscape unchanged since the times of the Pharaohs.

The rubber content of guayule, American desert shrub, was discovered by modern men when rubber balls were found obstructing the digestive systems of livestock which had died suddenly.

In 1950 there were about 2,500 trucks on U. S. farms compared to 1,300,000 in 1941.

Quick Verdict of the New-Car Season:
"Smart Buy's Buick"

To modernize the triumphant phrase of an old campaigner—"They came. They saw. It conked 'em!"

In other words, folks are calling this smart-stepping '51 Buick terrific.

Wherever you look, you find reasons for this fervor.

You can enjoy the sweeping view from the generous glass areas of the '51 Buick to the fullest—for now you can have glare-and-heat-reducing windshields and windows. Add to all this the mighty power of Buick's Fireball engine—the superb smoothness of Dynaflo Drive—a ride that's the marvel of the industry—and you can understand why Buick dealers' showrooms are drawing the crowds.

Better go, see for yourself, what all the excitement's about.

Burma Planning Reforestation Of Hard Woods

Burmese teak may soon find itself in competition with other Burmese hardwoods if plans by Austrian-born Dr. F. A. V. Monroy materialize.

Monroy, a forestry expert with the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, has come here to help the Burmese establish an integrated forest industry. He says the Burmese have neglected several species because of the bias in favour of teak. Some of these are well suited for conversion into fibrewood, plywood and pulpwood.
Other species can be used for carpentry and house-building.

He proposes picking favourable locations in the country and going to work on what is available.
The projects will be financed by the Burmese government and will include the making of plastics, an Ancient Indian Food Is Frozen

Stoney Plain, Alta. (AP)—
There's some extra food on the shelf at the farm instructor's home in this northern Alberta Indian Reserve, but nobody feels like eating it.

The mixture, now a hardened mass of buffalo meat, fat and Saskatoon berries, is known to the Indians as Pemmican. It was unearthed recently near a farmer's home. Historians say the last major Indian encampment here was in 1885, and that the Pemmican must be at least 65 years old. Indians claim it may still be edible, but none have volunteered to find out.

George Washington was a member of the survey party which is believed to have made the first survey of Harpers Ferry, scene of John Brown's famous pre-Civil War raid and later Washington recommended the site for the nation's second arsenal, built in 1796.

Observer Says West Europe Is Still Fearful; Eisenhower Has Hard Job

By PRESTON GROVER
London, Jan. 24 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has completed his tour of Europe's Atlantic Pact nations with one sure finding—the job of building a defense will be brutally hard—at possible. This correspondent has made the same tour, covered the same nations, and has talked to some of the people Gen. Eisenhower has seen and to some he has not.

Eisenhower, pausing now in Paris before he flies tomorrow to Iceland, Canada and Washington, so far has presented to each country roughly the same proposition. He has told each one:

1. The rise of Russian aggression, either by diplomatic pressure or troops, is great. Russian aggression means the end of everything western civilization represents.
2. America is arming, expensively and fast.
3. America will help Europe arm. What is the maximum Europe can contribute?

The answer in each case—with the possible exception of Britain—has not been enough to satisfy the man who must make western defense work.

The hard fact is that most of Western Europe doesn't want to spend money and most of it is scared.

The West Europeans don't want to spend money because, in each case, it means giving up a lot of bacon, cars and shoes they only lately have again after long years of privation during and after World War II.

They are scared because they know war may start before the United States, Britain and France—the countries which really can do something—are strong enough to act.

Officials of the little nations have indicated any rearmament they may get now would only invite retaliation from Russia if the Reds decided to sweep over Europe soon.

Eisenhower has answered that each nation must do its utmost. If one nation hangs back, another will use that as an excuse to hang back. And here is the kicker—

If they all hang back, the U. S. Congress will not vote the money to send arms and troops to Europe.

That argument has a sting in it. A sample of the very real fear Europeans have is given in a story told to one of Gen. Eisenhower's party by a Dutch official.

"People here, including intelligent people I know, don't want to put their savings in the bank," he said. "They know that in case of war their savings won't be worth much, especially during the coming two years when they know Holland would be overrun in the first few days. So they buy clothes and automobiles."

And what has Gen. Eisenhower's visit done to counteract this fear? There is no hard answer. A fair estimate is that it has helped much.

Farm Bureau Holds Elections On Friday

Members of the Pitt County Farm Bureau will hold their annual election of officers at a meeting scheduled for Friday night at the courthouse and also will make plans for attending the State convention in February. Meeting time Friday is 7:30.

In a letter to all members, President W. A. Allen, Farmville, stated this week it is important that every member of the organization attend the meeting. In addition to the election of officers, the members present will also vote whether or not to raise the present membership fee. The decision of the county members will be presented to the State Convention and at that time the decision to raise the dues or hold the line will be made.

The members will also discuss a program of insuring automobiles which would be sponsored by the State group. Another point of business coming before the membership is the appointment of representatives to the commodity committees which will meet during the convention.

Allen stated the voting of the membership present at the county meeting will determine what action will be taken in regard to the matters. He urged all members to think the matters over carefully before coming to the meeting and voicing an opinion.

Chicod School Sets Up Chapter Of Beta Club

A local chapter of the National Beta Club, a service-leadership organization for high school students of America, was established on Tuesday, Jan. 23, at Chicod High School, according to F. H. Hodges, The National Beta Club, with over 100 local chapters and approximately 41,000 members in high schools of 16 states, is now in its 17th year, and has been in continuous operation since 1933.

Objectives of this non-secret, leadership-service organization are: to encourage effort, to promote character, to stimulate achievement among its members, and to encourage and assist students to continue their education after high school graduation.

Mrs. James H. Edwards, teacher of English, was appointed as faculty sponsor for the local chapter.

Permanent officers for this year are: President, Janie Clayton; Vice-President, Peggy Bryant; Secretary, Rose Keeter; Treasurer, Nina Lou McGowan.

The local organization is composed of the following students who have fulfilled the requirements necessary for membership in the National Beta Club:

Peggy Bryant, Janie Clayton, Shirley Cox, Mavis Haddock, Rose Keeter, Nina Lou McGowan, Nellie Mills, Bobby Ann Smith, Pat Stanley, Betty Sutton, Carlton Taylor, Carolyn Williams, and Silvia Jean Wrenn.

Extension Courses For Spring Quarter Planned

Through extension and adult education courses offered during the fall and winter quarters of the present school year, East Carolina Teachers College is providing an educational opportunity to many students in eastern North Carolina, according to a recent report by Dr. Orval L. Phillips, director of the college Bureau of Field Services. A total of 526 students enrolled for work in these types of courses during the period.

Plans are now in preparation for both extension and adult education courses for the spring quarter, Dr. Phillips reports. Indications are that the number of students enrolled and the number of schools and counties represented will be increased at that time.

During the fall and winter quarters, says Dr. Phillips, 466 students were registered for extension classes. The present enrollment represents 123 schools in 34 counties of the eastern section of the state, as well as two nearby South Carolina schools.

At present East Carolina is offering for the first time a series of adult education courses given on the campus in four departments of instruction. Students now number 61, and a larger enrollment is expected for the spring quarter.

Speeding Cases Highlight Court

Three cases of speeding highlighted this morning's session of City Traffic Court, with Judge J. W. H. Roberts presiding.

The judge placed a $20 fine on David K. Jones, Paul H. Manning, and Oscar McL. Kennedy for speeding. Only seven cases were on the docket.

Improper brakes: Livingston E. Hyman, judgment suspended upon payment of $15.

Hit and run: William A. Filmore, Negro, given six months suspended sentence on payment of $20 and license to drive be revoked for 90 days.

Passing at intersection: Jonah Reese, Negro, paid $15.

Crashing red light: Floyd G. Lancaster, judgment suspended upon payment of $15.

Storage Garage Guffed By Fire

Greenville firemen were kept on the jump yesterday as they answered two fire alarms in less than an hour.

The first alarm came from 110 11th street where a two-section garage, used for storage purpose, was on fire.

When firemen arrived in response to the alarm, the tin covered building was ablaze from one end to the other, with flames licking out at a nearby residence.

The blaze was soon brought under control after the interior had been gutted. One section of the garage was used to store outdoor advertising equipment, and billboard posters while the other housed wood and furniture.

Firemen reported that they received reports from neighbors who said that children playing around the building possibly set the building on fire.

A small shed built onto the rear of the garage was the place in which the fire originated, firemen stated.

A near-by house suffered damage from the heat which peeled paint from its side.

No estimate as to the loss could be made at the time. The alarm was turned in about 3:45.

Just one hour from the time the first alarm was turned in, a second call sent Greenville firemen to Allen's Alley off from Albemarle Avenue.

A chimney in the home of Martha Parker, Negro, caught fire, resulting in moderate damage.

Earlier in the day, firemen were called to a grass fire on Woodlawn Avenue, which resulted in no damage.

Judge 'Wins' His Defendant's Case

The warrant against the Negro was false pretense. He hadn't paid another Negro $13 for helping him dig some ditches. The defendant admitted it but pleaded not guilty. And he didn't have a lawyer.

Judge John Burney this morning asked the defendant, Jesse King, if he wanted him to plead his case for him. "I don't lose many up here," the jurist said. King said it was all right with him.

"No criminal action," Burney said, and threw the indictment out of court.

Other cases heard and judgments rendered during yesterday afternoon's session of Superior Court were:

Mack Clark, Jr., larceny; pleaded guilty, six months on the roads.

James Taylor, drunk driving; pleaded guilty, four months suspended on payment of $100, $50 to be paid now, $25 paid during the March term, and the balance paid during the August term; license revoked for 12 months.

Charles L. Tucker, disorderly conduct; called and failed, capias ordered.

Grover C. Barfield, reckless driving; not guilty.

Avant Long, Jr., drunk driving, reckless driving, speeding; not guilty of first and third warrants, guilty of the second, $50 and costs.

Ernest Strickland, drunk driving; pleaded guilty, four months suspended on payment of $100 and costs; license revoked for 12 months.

Julia A. Taft, liquor (two charges); pleaded nolo contendere, 12 months on first charge, sentence to be served concurrently with 12 month sentence begun last September; 18 months suspended on second charge provided she has no possession of alcoholic beverages during a five-year period.

The Grand Jury returned a true bill against Ernest Moore for attempting larceny of an automobile. Trial of the case resulted in a three to four year sentence to begin at the expiration of present 60-day sentence.

How Deeply ...

(Continued from page one) the United States—is jammed into an area about the size of Montana. Moreover, only about 16 per cent of Japan's land is arable, for it is mountainous. Where then is she to get the agricultural products with which to feed her big and rapidly growing population? Emigration to foreign lands won't solve the problem.

It's when you reach this point in analysis that you come to the uncomfortable realization that it is such circumstances which have caused many wars of aggression. In Europe Germany long maneuvered for more room. And the Reich teamed with Japan to take the last World War to take by armed force the land which they thought they needed to support their populations.

The Japanese are among the world's most resourceful and energetic people, and so we find them through the generations turning to the sea for the food which their scanty soil couldn't supply. They have depended heavily on fish.

Yet Nippon, despite her efforts, has existed on a diet which in calories has rated as meagre compared with that of, say America. Potentially Japan also is one of the great industrial powers, but here again we find her lacking in the raw materials she needs for manufacture.

So we could continue, but it all adds up to the question of just how deep Japan's militaristic ambitions may be buried. Are they so well sunk that she won't try to

The allied troops who entered Yongwol across the frozen Han River had the support of roaring artillery barrages and a 20 plane bombing attack. Yongwol is 31

A. P. correspondent William J. Waugh reported that a reinforced U. N. battalion returned to Wonju for the seventh time in eight days. It occupied both the town and airstrip to the southeast.

Only youths between 18 and 26, under present law, can be drafted but not all those. Veterans are exempt. So are men with dependents, if drafting them meant hardship for the dependents.

Friests and ministers and theological students are exempt. So are conscientious objectors, at least from combat duty.
