Stafford To Ask Revaluing Of All Property In County

Aldermen Endorse Request To Assemble Giving Tar River Port Commission Authority To Issue Bonds; Ban Use Of Bright Lights In City At Night

The Greenville board of aldermen meeting last night was highlighted by an announcement from Mayor W. S. Stafford that he intends to ask the county commissioners to call for a revaluation of all the property in the county.

Likewise outstanding in the meeting were requests from the heads of the police department and the fire department for an across the board 10 per cent wage increase for the personnel of the two departments, effective immediately.

The aldermen endorsed resolutions requesting the General Assembly for a legislative act giving the Tar River Port commission authority to issue revenue producing bonds, and an act which would prohibit the possession of tear gas in the state except by authorized persons.

The aldermen adopted an ordinance making it illegal for automobiles to use bright lights in the city at night, and instructed the city attorney to prepare another ordinance which would require all cars owned by residents of Greenville to display new city tags not later than March 1 of each year. The ordinance likewise is to grant a 90-day grace period for new residents of the city, after which they will be required to have city tags on their cars.

Stafford read to the board a letter from the student government of East Carolina Teachers College requesting the city take steps to improve the conditions of the sidewalks of East Fifth street in front of the college. The board instructed the mayor to write the student government of the college informing the body that the city at the present time has no funds for such a project, and that when the project is undertaken, the trees along the street probably will have to be removed.

Stafford also read to the board a letter from the recreation committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce for membership on the new city recreation commission which is to be formed in accordance with the ordinance passed by the board at the last meeting. Stafford requested the recommendations from the Jaycee committee, and they were turned over to the recreation committee of the board of city commissioners.

The fire committee was instructed by the board to take the necessary steps to have repairs made to one of the city's fire trucks.

City Attorney R. B. Lee explained to the board the content of the requested General Assembly action dealing with the Tar River Port commission. The act, if passed by the legislature, Lee said, would do two things: (1) It would revamp the port commission act now in effect and would give the commission full authority for the operation of the port. The aldermen and the county commissioners would continue to appoint the members of the three-man port commission. (2)

Appraising A Fallacy

Eisenhower Makes The Point That Building Up West European Defenses Should Not Be A Cause For Soviet Attack; They Are Certain Of Safety, Asia Is Goal

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

General Eisenhower's talk to members of Congress regarding defense cooperation with western Europe made the point that it is fallacy to believe strengthening of these defenses would invite a communist attack.

That appraisal immediately raises the query of why such a drastic move wouldn't draw fire from the Reds. There are several facts to the answer. One is that Moscow probably doesn't want a European war because it is far more profitable for her to hold her present line there and develop the "hot war" in Asia.

Actually Russia has overrun as much European territory as possible without resorting to an all-out military offensive. Strengthening of the western defenses in Europe perhaps would merely emphasize this situation and act as a deterrent to a Red attack rather than provide an invitation to assault.

However, by merely safeguarding her present great territorial gains in eastern Europe, Russia is able to exploit the vast and inflammable Asiatic theater, and this scheme has become particularly fruitful since development of Moscow's partnership with Red China.

The Asiatic project is doubly attractive. The underprivileged masses of the Orient—countless millions of whom are literally primitive peoples—are susceptible to Bolshevik propaganda picturing a new life. For that matter, they are subject to any sort of propaganda which promises betterment of their present tragic position.

Moreover, by feeding the flames of strife in Asia—as in the case of Korea—Bolshevism is able to place the rescuing western powers—and especially the United States—under a heavy economic strain. This is calculated to weaken the defense of democracy the world over.

But what about the strain on

Police, Firemen Ask Pay Raises

Across The Board Pay Raises For Departments Sought By Langston And Gardner In Aldermen's Meeting Last Night

Across the board pay raises for members of the Police and Fire Departments were asked last night by Chief of Police Guy Langston and Fire Chief George Gardner.

Both men requested of the Board of Aldermen that each department be granted a 10 percent raise in salary of employees effective immediately. Langston stated the hike would cost the City $2,528.50 during the next five months. It would cost $830 for the next five months for his department, Gardner said.

The Aldermen referred the proposal to the finance committee and in addition the committee were asked to make a full study of the financial structure of each of the City departments as it concerns salaries of employees. The committee, headed by J. Ed Waldrop, was asked to report its findings at the March meeting or at a special meeting in the meantime.

Langston's request was made "to give us a chance to keep the type of personnel in the department that we like to have." He stated later that some of the employees are "living hand to mouth" and the pay increase will give them enough to "meet their monthly bills."

Contracts Let On Pitt Road Work

Monthly highway contracts awarded by the Highway Commission in Raleigh yesterday will give Pitt County nearly 13 miles of more paving and widening projects on four existing roads.

Longest project planned for the county and of local concern to persons in Greenville is the widening and resurfacing of N. C. 43 west to Bruce, a distance of 6.94 miles.

The project calls for widening the present highway to 22 feet and adding an asphalt "blacktop". Present width is 16 feet. The road will also be graded and have new culverts and other structures added. The project is slated to get underway during the latter part of this month if present highway plans follow through.

Hint Halt UN Forces At Parallel

Authorities Say Decision Reached, Will Be Sent to Gen. MacArthur

Washington, Feb. 2—(AP)—A reported decision to halt United Nations forces short of the 38th parallel, if they can drive that far north, indicated today that this country is ready to keep the way open for a possible diplomatic settlement of the Korean war.

Responsible authorities said last night that such a decision had been reached and would be transmitted to the U. N. commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, if it had not been already. Although they were reluctant to discuss the development even privately, the intent appeared to be to create if possible a basis for new efforts at a political settlement.

The old dividing line between North and South Korea is still regarded by officials as having political significance even though it has been crossed and recrossed by both the United Nations and communist forces in the past.

The idea that a cease-fire arrangement might be worked out by having the Chinese communists withdraw north of the parallel and United Nations forces remain south of it has been discussed in the United Nations.

Moreover, the present military situation in Korea is such that experts here feel a decisive victory by either the communists or the United Nations forces is virtually impossible and if the struggle is to be ended it will have to be by other than military means.

With respect to a political settlement, the United States in the past has taken the position that an agreement to end the fighting must precede any negotiations on the terms of a final agreement.

L. V. Morrill Rites Slated Saturday

Snow Hill, N.C., Feb. 2—(AP)—Lawrence V. Morrill Jr., a man who played a key role in bringing prosperity to tobacco farmers through crop control, is dead.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Episcopal Church in Snow Hill.

In declining health for several years, Morrill, 61, died yesterday in McGuire Veterans Hospital in Richmond.

Although he was crippled with arthritis, Morrill toured the state's back roads in the late summer of 1933 to organize the tobacco growers. In August of the same year he authored and organized both the huge mass meeting of farmers who gathered in Raleigh and of the resolution which was passed:

"... be it resolved by the tobacco farmers in mass meeting assembled . . . that His Excellency, the Governor of North Carolina, J. C. B. Ehringhaus, be required to close every tobacco warehouse in North Carolina under his exercise of Martial Law, and that he keep them closed until the federal government has time to put into effect measures that will raise the price of tobacco to a level of twenty cents averages or more until the tobacco companies agree of their own accord to raise the prices to that level."

Ehringhaus closed down the warehouses and the price of the weed

Japan Invited To Join U. S. In New Defense System

Dulles Voices Offer; Warns Choice Involves Risk Of Red Aggressors

Tokyo, Feb. 2—(AP)—The United States today invited Japan to join a collective defense agreement based on American power after a peace treaty is signed.

Ambassador-at-large John Foster Dulles made the offer in a careful and official speech before the American-Japan Society. Top government and business leaders were among several hundred persons present.

Dulles said Japan could decide for herself. But he warned Japan must choose between joining the United States or inviting Communist aggression, and declared:

"Today the principal deterrent power to aggression is possessed by the United States.

Dulles said the United States is prepared to combine this power with that of other western nations, under the United Nations charter, "so that the deterrent power which protects us also will protect theirs."

He said the United States would consider retaining defense forces in and near Japan "as a testimony to the unity of our countries."

This was in effect the first official proposal to continue the present actual defense precautions for Japan after the treaty.

Dulles reiterated that the only deterrent to a possible aggressor is "fear of retaliatory power used in the interest of collective security"—the kind of power he offered Japan.

"An armed aggressor" against Japan "would be subject to a striking power, the immensity of which defies imagination," he continued.

First Of Seven Rapists Executed

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2—(AP)—Four of seven Martinsville Negroes, denied an eleventh hour stay by the Chief Justice of the United States, were electrocuted in the old state penitentiary here today for the rape of a white woman. Three others are to die Monday.

They paid with their lives for the mass assault on Mrs. Ruby Stroud Floyd two years ago in a "shanty town" section of Martinsville. The electrocution of the four required exactly one hour.

First of the Negroes to die was Joe Henry Hampton, 22, who was strapped in the chair at 8:05 a.m. and pronounced dead seven minutes later. Then at 15-minute intervals, Howard Lee Hairston, 21, Booker T. Miller, 22, and Frank Hairston Jr., 21, were executed. The last was pronounced dead at 9:05 a.m.

Executed with the Negroes and the first to die was George Thomas Halley, a 27-year-old Halifax County white man, sentenced for murder in the rape slaying of Marion Lloyd, a 14-year-old school girl.

The other three Martinsville men to die Monday are Francis Desales Grayson, 40; John Claborn Taylor, 24, and James Hairston, 23.

Fear Of Building Curbs Pushes Up Construction

Raleigh, N.C., Feb. 2—(AP)—A rush to beat possible drastic building restrictions pushed the valuation of building permits issued in December in Tar Heel cities to an all-time high of $18,982,700.

This was announced today by the State Department of Labor. Department Statistician C. H. Pritchard remarked:

"The prospect of drastic curtailment of many types of building as the result of government restrictions appears to be the main reason for the unusually high December figure."

"Evidently, a lot of folks think they will stand a better chance of getting their building done by having a permit issued for it, with the permit dated as far back as possible."

Two Chinese Armies Being Chewed Up In Mounting Attack; Dreaded Typhus Infecting North Korean Units; Enemy Trap Is Smashed By U. S. And French Elements; Turks Slash New Gains On Front

Tokyo, Feb. 2—(AP)—Allied forces pressed closer to the Han River today by chewing up, bit by bit, two Chinese communist armies and diseased elements of the North Korean Red army.

Instead of patrol action, there were large numbers of UN troops only 10 miles south of the thawing Han, which skirts the age-old capital of Seoul.

This placed the allies 40 miles from the 38th parallel in the ninth day of a limited offensive which had carried them 20 miles since Jan. 25 and against enemy opposition which was weakening daily.

An Eighth Army spokesman estimated that 6,650 Chinese and North Korean communists had been killed by ground action between Jan. 25 and 31. Air reports listed casualties for that period at 1,442, but some may be duplications.

Enemy Cracking? Even so, there was a difference of military opinion as to whether the allies have cracked the main enemy defenses, despite notable losses in manpower and shrinking morale among the Reds.

Chopped up are the Chinese 50th and 38th armies. Resistance has slackened even though the communist 39th and 40th armies are in immediate reserve, allied commanders said.

Reliable sources said the ghastly threat of typhus has made its appearance among North Korean troops, and that tuberculosis, trench foot, frostbite and other wartime diseases likewise were taking a toll among the Chinese allies.

Typhus Reported Prisoners of war said 50 to 100 per cent of some North Korean companies are infected with typhus, a disease transmitted by vermin from rats. However, U. S. Eighth Army investigators said there was no evidence that Chinese troops have been affected seriously by the disease.

No typhus cases were reported among inoculated U. N. troops.

General Favors Quick Dispatch Of U. S. Troops

Washington, Feb. 2—(AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower told a congressional meeting today that the transfer of some additional U. S. units to Europe will be essential.

In a statement issued after a two-hour meeting with the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees, Eisenhower was quoted as saying:

"One unit sent soon to Europe will be the equivalent of two or three sent later because of the physical and psychological factors now involved in collective rearmament efforts."

Las Vegas Again Rocks To Atomic Concussion

Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 2—(AP)—A new atomic test rocked Las Vegas with the force of an earthquake today.

Residents said it appeared to be the heaviest of four felt here in the past week as a result of experiments at a new government atomic range on the desert northwest of here.

"It was just like a quake," said one observer. "The building rocked and the concussion blew in swinging windows."

"It took the concussion six minutes to reach here, after a brilliant orange-yellow flash lit the northwestern skies, etching buildings in this gambling resort town and the mountains which ring it."

The flash was timed at 5:40 a.m. (Pacific Standard Time). It was visible in a pale orange flash as far distant as Los Angeles, some 300 miles away.

Since Saturday, the government has been testing atomic weapons of undisclosed nature at the new 5,000 square mile range on the desert. The Atomic Energy Commission has consistently declined to comment except to confirm that tests have been held

A Log For The Fire

Eisenhower Adds More Fuel To The Great Debate On American Participation In Defense Of West Europe; How It All Began; Three Phases Or Issues Raised

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 2—(AP)—General Eisenhower has thrown a couple of logs on the fire of the so-called Great Debate, which began two months ago and now has branched out in several directions.

That debate began with the question:

1. Should this country send troops to Europe until the Europeans are well able to defend themselves?

Then it moved on to:

2. Does the President have power to send troops to Europe without the approval of congress?

And then on to:

3. If we send troops to Europe, should we put a limit on the number?

As time passes less and less is heard about no. 1. Question no. 2 is still being talked about, and isn't dead yet.

But no. 3 is the one which seems to have the most fire now.

General Eisenhower was quoted by Senators last night as having told them in a closed-door session that he opposes any action by congress to limit the number of American troops for Europe.

The argument got rolling early last December when Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Britain, made a speech questioning the wisdom of pouring troops into Europe.

In mid-December former President Hoover made the debate really nationwide with a speech urging that not another man of dollar be sent to Europe until Europe had erected a "sure dam" against attack.

(His critics jumped on this as meaning we shouldn't send any help to Europe until Europe is so strong it doesn't need help.)

This was followed by a speech by Senator Taft, Ohio Republican, who challenged the right of President Truman to send U. S. troops anywhere without congressional approval.

C., was injured early this morning when he went to sleep at the wheel with his car going out of control and wound up wedged between a tree and a house. The driver, Albert Roy Gardner, Jr., who walked away from the wreckage, is confined to Pitt General hospital with injuries, the full extent of which is not yet known. Mrs. J. B. Spilman Guest Speaker At Sans Souci Club

One of the most enjoyable meetings of the Sans Souci Book club was held with the president, Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, at Respass-James restaurant at one o'clock Tuesday.

After Mrs. Ragsdale welcomed the members and her guest, Mrs. Spilman, she invited them into the private dining room, where the table had as a centerpiece a most unusual arrangement of flowers, greens and candles, placed on a wooden ornament in the shape of a boat. At either end of the table were pots of blooming petunias, tied with ribbon. Each one was served a delicious dinner with pie and coffee. Mrs. Ragsdale called the meeting to order. Thirteen members were present.

A note was read from Miss Irene Hester, former librarian of Sheppard Memorial Library, who has returned to Greensboro. She expressed her appreciation to the club for its part in the gift of the watch that was given her by all the clubs in town.

Mrs. Chas. White sent a message reminding the members that the Carolina Play Makers would present "Romeo and Juliet" the 13th of February in the new auditorium at the college.

The club was fortunate in having Mrs. Spilman give an interesting program on "Women in Government."

Principles Of Protestantism Topic At Aries

"Unfortunately, the word Protestant has a negative sound," stated Mrs. John Reynolds in her paper on the "Principles of Protestantism" which was presented at the Aries Book Club last night. "However the literal meaning implies that the Protestant has something for which to testify," she continued in introducing her paper.

Mrs. Reynolds, the second person to make a study of modern religions of the world, the subject for discussion for the remainder of the club year, brought out five principles that give inner unity to Protestantism in general, which help to unite all the sects into a single family. These principles, as stated by Samuel McCrea Cavert, are beliefs in a direct relationship with God, the Bible as a spiritual authority, universal "priesthood of believers," religious freedom, and the potential sanctity of lay life as well as of the professionally religious.

Mrs. Reynolds spoke briefly of the causes and results of the formation of the different Protestant churches and pointed out that most differences among the sects were minor in importance and that fundamentally the beliefs and principles adhered to by all were the same. The Protestant movement grew and flourished side by side with man's desire for political freedom and intellectual freedom. Today there is a strong tendency to unite all divisions into one common cause of the Christian Church.

Mrs. T. J. Ashworth was hostess to the club, which met last night at her home on East Fourth Street. During the business session which preceded the program, a vote was taken on the question of inviting new members to join.

Mrs. M. L. Starkey announced that in the spring a prominent member of the Christian Science Church would visit the club.

She also announced that the Carolina Playmakers would present a performance of "Romeo and Juliet" on Tuesday night, February 13, under the auspices of the Greenville Music Club.

The club discussed plans for the annual observance of Book Club Day and went on record as opposing a luncheon but were in favor of some kind of joint meeting.

The hostess served cherry tarts with whipped cream and coffee before the books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Cosmetologists Make Plans For Year

The Eastern Carolina Cosmetologists Association held its regular meeting in New Bern Tuesday night, January 30, at the Gaston Hotel at 7:30.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Bruce Hemby. The business of the meeting was to appoint committees, reporters, social service, program, place of meetings and membership.

A delicious steak dinner was served, following which the meeting adjourned to meet again in Washington on Feb. 27 at 7:30.

Each beautician is asked to join the association.

Women In Gov't Topic For Discussion Before Round Table

In spite of inclement weather twenty members of the Round Table and two guests, Mrs. Paul Ricks and Mrs. W. C. Marshall, were present to enjoy the hospitality of Mrs. Howard McGinnis at her home Tuesday afternoon, January thirtieth. Prior to the business session the hostess served coffee and a delicious salad plate. Following the delightful social hour Mrs. Royce Hunsucker presented a paper on "Women in Government."

Reviewing the achievements of American women in national affairs, she traced their services from modest beginnings as post-mistresses as early as 1789 to the distinguished careers of numerous appointees of the present administration. Commenting on representation in the House of Congress, she brought out the fact that since 1929 when there were nine women in both houses, the number of women in the 71st thru the 82nd Congress has remained within the eight to ten range. In contrast to this relatively small number of elected representatives is the vast army of women employed by the government under civil service.

In the field of national and international diplomacy women have been accorded signal honors in the last two decades. Mrs. Frances Perkins attained cabinet status and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has the distinction of being one of the two women members of the United Nations General Assembly. Mrs. Edith Sampson of Chicago, a negro with wide experience as Public Relations Counselor, has been named by President Truman as alternate delegate to that body. Another woman, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, who won her laurels in city, state and federal positions of trust because of "her ability to give advice that makes sense and her ability to mediate disputes," was recently chosen Assistant Secretary of Defense on the recommendation of Gen. George C. Marshall.

In contrast to the favorable reception given by the public to the appointment of these women was the comment of "political pay-off" which greeted the naming of Mrs. Perle Mesta as United States Minister to Luxembourg.

Mrs. Hunsucker closed her paper with a brief biography of fifty-one year old Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, the first woman treasurer of the United States. Something of Mrs. Clark's fine spirit is seen in the concluding sentence of her acceptance speech when she took her oath of office: "I hope," she said, "that my appointment will encourage women every where to become still more interested and more active in public life."

One of the most enjoyable features of the Round Table meetings this year has been the informal personal reminiscence. Those brought at the close of the meeting by Mrs. J. D. Messick were delightfully entertaining. In the absence of Mrs. Howard Porter, Mrs. Milton White also recounted some humorous incidents which climaxed a delightful afternoon of fellowship.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

Chapter 28
Patricia was staring at her with a supercilious smile so like Bert's that Molly was momentarily non-plussed, though she did manage to say in a fairly steady voice:

"I'll tell Miss Meacham you're feeling much better. All right? Now I really will have to run. They're probably looking all over for me now. I shouldn't have stayed so long."

"You're getting just like Peter," Patricia accused her. "Better watch your step, Molly-o."

Molly, who had opened the door and was about to leave, closed it again. "What do you mean—watch my step?"

Patricia yawned elaborately, picked up a cigarette, lit it, and took several puffs before answering. "Maybe it doesn't mean anything to you, since you're so wrapped up in Peter's little project down below. But I think I should tell you you're losing Bert."

"Losing Bert?" Molly repeated slowly, and was appalled at the sudden realization of how little it meant to her.

"I'm sorry," Molly thought a minute, then decided it would be best to tell Patricia the truth. "I'm afraid I don't want him back, Pat. Oh, I know that sounds hateful, but I don't mean it that way. Please try to understand. I just don't love him enough to marry him. Maybe you don't think love's important, but I do."

She waited a few seconds for some comment from Patricia, who was looking at her, half amused, half incredulous. Then she added lamely:

"It's just that I—well, I made a mistake, and I'm just now beginning to realize it. I'll have to tell Bert our engagement is off. I'm glad he's interested in somebody else, because the last thing I'd want to do would be to hurt him."

Patricia still looked amused and incredulous. "Bert always finds someone else. It won't be his first engagement that didn't take, though up until now he's always been the one to do the breaking off. What made you change your mind?"

Again Molly was silent for a moment, trying to think just what had made her change her mind. "I don't know," she said presently. "I must have felt it all along."

One-Time Malarial Scourge Almost Extinct In America

By HOWARD W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor
Columbia, S. C.

Malaria, America's vanishing disease, is about to flicker out entirely.

What has happened since malaria hit the skids just five years ago with use of the insecticide, DDT, is shown typically by today's figures for South Carolina. Five years ago this state had 10,000 cases. In the year just ended, 85 deaths dropped to three.

South Carolina is one of thirteen states listed in U. S. Public Health Service records as "malaria-free." Most others have done equally well. North Carolina zeroed in deaths two years ago. Oklahoma, three years ago, and then relapsed with just a few deaths.

For the other thirty-five states not listed as malarial, the number of cases has dropped to less than two each year, per each 100,000 population. This is the disease which once was a scourge nearly all over our country.

The more intriguing angle is how South Carolina and most of the other states have used their DDT, and maybe also how it's a good thing that mosquitoes don't read newspapers.

In this state the poisonous insecticide is not broadcast by planes, or even strewn over the marshes and stagnant water where mosquitoes breed. The South Carolina health authorities just spray the interior walls of houses.

That does not keep out mosquitoes, doesn't stop them from biting. But it "breaks the chain." This chain is the fact that to spread malaria, a mosquito has to bite someone sick with the disease and then bite a well person, who thereupon gets sick. More than a week must elapse between the two bites. Long before that, the infected mosquito is dead because he lighted on the walls of the sprayed house where he took his first bite, and his feet picked up enough DDT to kill him.

Dr. G. E. McDaniel of the Division of Preventive Disease of the state of South Carolina, which works in cooperation with the Public Health Service, says that most people don't want to be bitten at all and accomplish this by spraying the walls of barns, stables and outhouses in addition to their homes. When that is done, the mosquitoes in the house are cut down to eight per cent.

In laboratories scientists have discovered that mosquitoes get resistant—the DDT does not kill them. What these pampered mosquitoes learn to avoid DDT death is not known. But five years evidence indicates that the mosquitoes which spread malaria to common folks are too ignorant to learn the trick.

Herbert L. Carter, director of the East Carolina Teachers College Band and chairman of the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic, has announced that the College Concert Band will play this evening in the College Theatre at the Training School, and not in the Wright Auditorium as previously stated. The program will take place at 7:30 and will be open to the public. The concert by the East Carolina Band will be given in honor of high-school students present on the campus for the clinic on February 2 and 3.

Allan H. Bone of Duke University will conduct the Concert Band organized on the campus during the clinic when it is presented in a program on Saturday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Wright auditorium. Approximately 100 students from all sections of Eastern North Carolina will play under Mr. Bone's direction.

The public is cordially invited to attend both concerts.

"America's gayest graveyard," stated Mrs. Root, "is in Glendale, California. Forest Lawn Memorial Park is founded on the belief that a cemetery, of all places, should be beautiful—that its atmosphere should be one of peace and quiet, where all who come may find consolation."

This place of burial for the dead has been designed, as one of the most beautiful parks in the world. Marble statues, evergreen shrubs, bronze plaques and three quaintly beautiful ivy-covered churches are found within its walls. The whole is beautifully landscaped and soft music is broadcast over loudspeakers from organs in the churches all during the day.

Mrs. Root concluded her paper by briefly mentioning local cemeteries and interesting data concerning them.

A brief business meeting was held prior to the program and the hostess served a salad course with coffee at the conclusion of the program. Mrs. Ernest H. Williams was a special guest for the afternoon.

In her remarks about the famous and unusual cemeteries found in New Orleans, Mrs. Root said that they are considered by native New Orleanians as "cities in miniature whose only inhabitants are the dead but whose concern is that of the living." She explained the fact that most of the dead in New Orleans are buried above ground in vaults because until recent years before a modern drainage project was undertaken, the low, marshy delta soil would not hold a coffin.

New Orleans cemeteries are some of the most attractive features of the city. Here bodies are placed in vaults built in rows inside the cemeteries and in tiers inside the outer walls. The receptacles are usually owned outright although occasionally people will rent vault space. The graves, or vaults, bear inscription plaques with names of individuals who have been buried there. Usually a body remains sealed in the tomb for a year, after which time the bones and ashes are removed, the vault cleaned out and prepared for the

Hicks Convicted In Second Trial

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 2—(AP)—Sterling L. Hicks yesterday was convicted of conspiracy to damage the transmitting tower of radio station WBT during labor trouble a year ago. The charge against the former WBT technician grew out of an alleged attempt to dynamite the tall steel tower near Charlotte in January, 1950.

Judge John H. Clement sentenced Hicks to two years imprisonment, the maximum on the simple conspiracy charge. Defense lawyers gave notice of appeal, and Hicks remained free in $2,000 appearance bond.

It was Hicks' second trial in Court on a charge of conspiracy. Evidence was similar to that of the trial last March. He was convicted in the first trial and sentenced to 18 to 24 months imprisonment. However, the State Supreme Court upheld his appeal, saying the indictment was faulty because some of the equipment at the tower was owned by Duke Power Co., not by operators of WBT as the true bill said. Nevertheless, the supreme court left the way open for the new trial.

The state tried to prove that Hicks, disgruntled because of union troubles with the Charlotte radio station, went to Columbia, S. C., and hired Chesley (Chud) Lovell, a housepainter, to dynamite the tower for $250. State witnesses testified that Hicks was in Columbia on Jan. 12, 1950.

Witnesses for Hicks testified he was in Charlotte during the time state witnesses placed him in Columbia. Hicks, a church deacon and former member of the Charlotte Park and Recreation Commission, denied any connection with the alleged dynamiting attempt.

to speak, but Patricia had fallen into a kind of sulky silence that did not invite further confidences. Molly hesitated a moment, then went over, picked up the deceptive thermometer, and put it in the pocket of her dress. "I know it's wrong, but I'll send this in to Doctor O'Malley. I suppose it's the only way I can convince you that I haven't been trying to cut in. I'm sure he'll be up right away," she said, and left the room.

Paper On Famous Cemeteries Read At Inter Se Club

At the meeting of the Inter Se Book Club on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sam Northrup, Mrs. M. P. Hoot presented an interesting program on old cemeteries.

Mrs. Hoot, in her travels about the country, has visited famous burial places in three sections of the country and gave an informative account of the graves, epitaphs and burial customs in New England, New Orleans and Glendale, California.

"If we were to visit leading archeological museums of the world, we should find that probably the majority of exhibits which fill these museums have come from ancient tombs and cemeteries," began Mrs. Hoot.

"A cemetery, has of course always arisen close to the city of the living, and even after it has been laid in ruins for thousands of years, a city of the living always contains remains of the life of the people who were once its inhabitants."

The speaker began with a physical description of cemeteries in the New England states. She pointed out that the earliest gravestones were made from local sandstone, marble and granite. The use of symbols on headstones was frequent because so many people were unable to read. The carvings were generally in five classes: 1. recognition of the flight of time; 2. certainty of death and warnings to the living; 3. occupation of the deceased or station in life; and 5. resurrecting body and activities of the redeemed soul.

Mrs. Hoot quoted many epitaphs taken from these early tombstones and mentioned the graves of many famous early Americans which she had visited.

In her remarks about the famous and unusual cemeteries found in New Orleans, Mrs. Root said that they are considered by native New Orleanians as "cities in miniature whose only inhabitants are the dead but whose concern is that of the living." She explained the fact that most of the dead in New Orleans are buried above ground in vaults because until recent years before a modern drainage project was undertaken, the low, marshy delta soil would not hold a coffin.

Mrs. Hoot concluded her paper by briefly mentioning local cemeteries and interesting data concerning them.

A brief business meeting was held prior to the program and the hostess served a salad course with coffee at the conclusion of the program. Mrs. Ernest H. Williams was a special guest for the afternoon.

In her remarks about the famous and unusual cemeteries found in New Orleans, Mrs. Root said that they are considered by native New Orleanians as "cities in miniature whose only inhabitants are the dead but whose concern is that of the living." She explained the fact that most of the dead in New Orleans are buried above ground in vaults because until recent years before a modern drainage project was undertaken, the low, marshy delta soil would not hold a coffin.

New Orleans cemeteries are some of the most attractive features of the city. Here bodies are placed in vaults built in rows inside the cemeteries and in tiers inside the outer walls. The receptacles are usually owned outright although occasionally people will rent vault space. The graves, or vaults, bear inscription plaques with names of individuals who have been buried there. Usually a body remains sealed in the tomb for a year, after which time the bones and ashes are removed, the vault cleaned out and prepared for the reception of a new body.

"America's gayest graveyard," stated Mrs. Root, "is in Glendale, California. Forest Lawn Memorial Park is founded on the belief that a cemetery, of all places, should be beautiful—that its atmosphere should be one of peace and quiet, where all who come may find consolation."

This place of burial for the dead has been designed, as one of the most beautiful parks in the world. Marble statues, evergreen shrubs, bronze plaques and three quaintly beautiful ivy-covered churches are found within its walls. The whole is beautifully landscaped and soft music is broadcast over loudspeakers from organs in the churches all during the day.

THE STILL SMALL VOICE
There is a wonderful story in the 19th chapter of the first Book of Kings which relates the flight of Hishah before the threat of Queen Jezebel to kill him. Hishah had just been the center of one of the most stupendous miracles recorded in Scripture, namely, the conquest of Mt. Carmel with the priests of Baal. Yet when the wicked Jezebel threatened to kill him, this prophet who had bravely championed God's cause, fled as fast as his feet could carry him.

Then, greatly dejected and a fugitive on the barren side of Mt. Horeb, Hishah has a wonderful experience. First there is a mighty wind, "but the Lord was not in the wind." And after the wind there was an earthquake, "but the Lord was not in the earthquake." After the earthquake came fire, "but the Lord was not in the fire; and after the fire a still small voice"—or, as the marginal reading has it, "a voice of gentle stillness." And it was the still small voice which brought Hishah a great message.

We are always looking for God in the spectacular. Usually He comes into our lives in such a quiet and unobtrusive way that we are not conscious that He has passed the threshold of our personalities. The still small voice is conscience. The still small voice rises from those decisions which mature in our souls as the result of much reflection.

Will We Also Forfeit Our Rights To Exist?

Yesterday the United Nations, in effect, recognized a criminal in world society. What that body does next will largely determine whether or not that "criminal" learns that crime pays, or that crime does not pay. It's almost as simple as that.

As things now stand, Mao Tze-Tung has certainly made his role of aggressor pay big dividends in terms of real estate and inflating his own importance in destinies of nations.

Mao has accomplished these things because he is unafraid of war or ostracism by the rest of the world. More than that, this warlord is demanding as his "right" to sit among members of a peace organization, the United Nations. Were it not for a firm opposition by American delegates, he might even accomplish this ambition.

"Crime does not pay" is a popular saying among civilized peoples. And it does not pay because a law-abiding element of society is organized to combat crime, to arrest violators of the law and mete out punishment in accordance with the degree of crime. Death or long imprisonment is the accepted sentence for a killer; and the Peiping regime of communist China has committed a series of crimes dwarfing mere murder. If we are to believe the evidence, more crimes by Red China are in the making.

Twelve long bloody weeks passed before the United Nations recognized as a fact General MacArthur's announcement that a "new war" had begun with the entry of Mao in the Korean "police action."

And it is sad to acknowledge that even the stigma of being branded an "aggressor" could not have been accomplished if the motion on which the UN voted had carried with it a proposal for punitive action.

We are far from satisfied with the constant reminder that the world risks war in crushing its criminal element, or righting wrongs, or upholding the right. It is not the law-enforcing element of world society which brings about this risk of war... it is the criminal element, who by their deeds defy written and unwritten laws of God and man.

A society which condones ruthless criminals also forfeits its rights to existence.

An Immediate Remedy Is Imperative

General Eisenhower told the members of Congress yesterday what the more far-sighted international-minded government officials have contended for a long time. We must strengthen our wall of peace. But the wall can not be built around the borders of the United States.

In building an international army for Western Europe, we can not expect those nations to do more than they are economically and industrially capable of doing. The United States must supply a large portion of the money for the project, but the individual nations of Western Europe are expected to contribute in both materials and man-power according to their abilities.

We share the General's view that the formation of such an army could not be considered a threat to the security of Russia or her satellite nations.

We must face the possibility that Russia will seize the occasion of the formation of the army to move into the Western European nations under the pretense that she is doing so before the nations march on her. But in reality, it would make little difference.

When and if the Russians get ready to move in Western Europe, they will do so whether or not the Western European nations are armed. The formation of an international army in Western Europe will not provoke a Russian march to the West. It may however, deter the Russian decision to make such a march.

The Army May Provoke Peace-Not A War

Another rail strike is threatening to paralyze the nation's freight movement. From all appearances it will be similar to the walkouts staged by the railroad workers shortly before Christmas.

The government has the immediate past on which to fall back for a solution to the problem. In these critical times when the nation is steadily increasing the pace of its mobilization program, railroad strikes should not be allowed to slow down the progress.

We hope swift action by the railroad union officials and the government will quickly bring the strike to an end.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—A group of international do-gooders, headed by the ultra-liberal Americans for Democratic Action, has raised fresh embarrassments for the Truman-Acheson foreign program with its demand that the United States give or sell at bargain rates $200,000,000 worth of wheat to Nehru's India, "with no strings attached," to relieve famine conditions there.

Although the Administration favors the proposal, it has not dared to submit it to Capitol Hill because of the virtual certainty that it would receive an unfavorable reception. Secretary Acheson prefers to create a "friendly climate" first, and the ADA has offered its services.

FAVORITE—Nehru's leadership of the opposition to our anti-Chinese Communists stand in the United Nations has not endeared him to House or Senate, which adopted almost unanimously a resolution insisting that the U.N. support our move to brand Red China as an "aggressor." But India's Prime Minister is ADA's international favorite at the moment.

In fact, Madame V. L. Pandit, New Delhi's Ambassador to the United States and Nehru's sister, did not help the wheat-give-away plan with her recent statement, made while Americans are dying in Korea, that "We fear war more than we fear Communism." Incidentally, she will be the honored speaker at ADA's fourth annual convention in Cleveland February 24.

PROTEST—The ADA-ers have antagonized Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill in many other ways, despite their tussle with the White House and State Department. In a formal resolution, they declared against acceptance of any military aid from the "defeated and discredited forces" of Chiang Kai-shek, a policy which Washington may soon have to abandon.

They also took the stand that even a nation "guilty of aggression" is entitled to a seat in the United Nations, meaning that Mao Tze-tung's service as a Moscow "stooge" in Korea, Indo-China and Tibet should be condoned. This attitude led Sal Hoffman, president of the Upholsterers' International Union, to resign from the national executive board in protest.

It was the first resignation from that body, but it is expected that there will be many more walkouts when ADA's position on foreign affairs, especially Red China, becomes generally known.

GESTURE—Proponents of the plan to ship 2,000,000 tons of wheat to India advance a practical as well as a humanitarian argument. They believe that this generous gesture might induce Nehru to become a stronger partner in the world-wide offense against Communist expansion.

But many members of Congress maintain that they fail to take other factors into consideration. Although millions of his people are starving, Nehru refuses to accept any aid unless it is given "without any strings attached." He indicates plainly that the United States need expect no shift in his attitude because of American assistance.

DISPUTE—Moreover, he could relieve hunger in other and cheaper ways, if it were not for his embroilment in a boundary dispute with Pakistan that may yet provoke war between India and this country of 100,000,000 people.

Nehru has persistently balked efforts at a settlement of the disposition of Kashmir province. The controversy has made that section of India a happy hunting ground for Red agents and local conspirators.

Nehru could have bought plenty of wheat at low prices from Pakistan, which is only 200 miles distant from famine areas. But he aims to break down that possible foe's economy, and is paying high prices in the distant Australian market, despite currency complications.

Moreover, although his only offer of reinforcement of the U.N. forces in Korea consists of 400 bags of jute, he is spending millions to build up an army for a Pakistan war. Meanwhile, forgetting appeasement experiences with Hitler and Stalin, he has recognized Red China and become her champion inside and outside the United Nations.

HASTE—A sharp and caustic remark by President Truman on the relatively trivial question of his tax-free $50,000 may benefit millions of less favored taxpayers when Congress gets around to framing a new revenue measure. Unless he meets the growing, popular demand that he subject himself to what he called a "tax till it hurts" policy, the legislators may not raise the full $15,000,000,000 or more that he has asked.

Answering a press conference query, Mr. Truman said he had not "asked for the money" and that Congress "could ball up the question, if it wanted to." His red and angry countenance showed his resentment. It was immediately recalled that he signed the bill in haste before his 1949 inauguration so that he could benefit from it. The increase would have been outlawed if he had waited until after the inaugural, for Congress cannot raise the salary of legislative or executive incumbents.

Under the proposal, Vice President Barkley and Speaker Rayburn would also pay taxes on their $10,000 exempt grants, while Mr. C. would have to pay on their own bonus of $2,500. It is estimated that Mr. Truman would be nicked by about $37,500 extra, the V.P. and Speaker by $3,500 and members by about $650.

Thus, this may be one instance in which a Truman flareup, unlike his Marine and music critic letters, may hit him where it hurts.

Ground Hog Day

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Since automotive parts is my business, I naturally subscribe to the auto trade magazines. The November issue of Motor Age featured in one of its articles "New Products for 1950." No, the printer didn't reverse the "0" and the "3." The article was from an early issue of Motor Age, in which new automotive gadgets were introduced. Here they are:

Horn bellows: Foot operated. Give a longer, louder blast to your horn. Lasts years longer than rubber bulb or bell. Prevents horn-blowing cramp in your fingers. Only $3.

Grade meter: Tells you exactly how steep a grade you are having through climbing. No squinting or craning your neck. Big figures on dial can be easily read from seat. Price $7.50.

Cop scarer: This three and a half-inch brass tag is given free to every purchaser of a Jones speedometer. Attached to the rear axle, it tells officious cops that the driver knows his speed better than a mounted policeman with a cheap stopwatch. The tag reads: "Police Notice. This car is equipped with a Jones Speedometer. The driver knows his speed. Don't arrest on guesswork."

Supplemental springs: These patented spiral springs make hard-riding cars comfortable as a feather bed. Easily attached. Worth twice their cost in the jouncing they save you.

Lorgnette: Protect your eyes and face from glare and windburn. This handsome leather framed lorgnette does both. Use clear celluloid panel for bright days, the smoked panel for bright sun. Reversible handle lets you change to either panel without delay.

Musical horn: Attaches to gasoline or steam exhaust pipe. No screeching or discordant sound. Each horn is tuned to a musical note. No need to get out of order. Lasts a lifetime.

Lazyman's pump: Inflate tires the easy way. Just jack up one rear wheel of your car, start the engine, press the dull-toothed wheel to the tire. Your engine will pump a four-inch tire up hard in less than one minute.

Personal tool kit: Contains everything the autoist needs to make his own repairs on the road. Among the 38 tools are monkey wrenches, pipe wrench, foot-rule, rat-tail file, soldering iron, and sharpening stone.

Chain repairer: No more skinned knuckles and strained tempers. Simple, easy to use. Repairs broken chains in less than five minutes. Priced at only 75 cents each.

Drip apron: Don't let dripping oil from your engine make a mess on your garage floor. This oil-proof, waterproof apron catches the oil as it drips from your bearings and crankcase. Built to fit snugly on all cars.

"Motor" magazine also had a spread of over 200 pages of products introduced in 1950. Time marches on! And I thank you.

MAIL—Legislative mail is getting heavier by the day, and many of the letters and cards are urging larger appropriations. One representative got about 40 communications Thursday, most of them asking for support of the educational program. Some of the mail also insists upon larger welfare services. The flurry of letters dealing with mechanical inspection has subsided, but there is still a good many. There is remarkable unanimity of opinion on this subject. The letter writers are against it.

PETITIONS—The lawmakers are also getting bulky petitions asking action on various matters. Rep. George Long of Alamance had an armful from Chatham and Alamance counties asking for a statewide referendum on a state-paid soldier bonus. There were between 2500 and 3000 signatures, each accompanied by a mail address. That is believed to be the record for the session for one batch although probably more people signed the numerous petitions opposing automobile inspection.

POLICY—The senate committee on education passed along to the appropriations committee a number of bills affecting the public schools without taking formal action as to approving or disapproving their provisions. In direct-ly, the education group gave one bill a negative vote. Senator Thomas Sawyer of Durham had offered bill fixing A-certificate teacher salaries at a minimum of $2400 and a maximum of $5400 per year, and attempted to fix some other school operating machinery. The committee unanimously adopted a resolution offered by Senator Grady Rankin of Gaston, asking the appropriations committee and the general assembly to maintain the policy of permitting the state board of education to establish salary schedules and other provisions within the limits of an overall appropriation for the general purposes.

ROADS—Roads are not as important in this assembly as they were two years ago, but they still occupy a high place in consideration of the lawmakers. Two years ago major emphasis was upon construction. In order to catch up with the lapse of the war years when no roads could be built. Now the problem is, more of maintenance and protection of existing roads. People throughout the state have waked up to the fact that you can't build a road and leave it alone and still have it. Much larger than usual share of highway money is going into repairs and maintenance.

OVERLOAD—There is strong sentiment for the proposal embodied in Senate Bill 136, sponsored by the highway commission and the motor vehicle department, and designed to protect secondary roads built for light traffic from over loaded trucks. Briefly, the bill provides for a penalty charge of $10.00 per 1,000 pounds for all gross weight of any vehicle operated on any public road above the posted maximum load limit for that road. That means where the highway commission has posted signs stating the maximum load for that strip of highway or bridge is 10,000 pounds, the operator of any vehicle with gross weight of 12,000 pounds is liable for $20.00 penalty. In case of a huge truck with gross weight of 50,000 pounds or more, the penalty would be $400 or above. There are further provisions for immediate enforcement of the act.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

New Rules For English (Wilson Daily Tiems)

Every now and then someone bobs up who tells us that henceforth we can ignore the basic rules of English. One did the other day in New York when the Modern Language Association met. If we elect, we may use "shall" and "will" interchangeably, and we no longer need to make a "whom" out of "who." It's all silly of course, and shouldn't therefore be taken seriously. For good writers, in a sense, are poets and they'll always be. If we're sufficiently perceptive to recognize style, we'll want to follow all the old rules. If we're not, we can't write good English anyway.

Back when writing his realistic novels, he was also editor of The Atlantic Monthly. It was the Emerson, Lowell, Hawthorne and Dr. Holmes. The last was a stickler for "shall" and "will," and one occasion when Howells was calling, Holmes produced one of Howells' books with all the "shalls" and "wills" used wrongly. In a way it amused Howells, but in his subsequent novels he followed the Holmes's... Why wouldn't he if he wanted to be an outstanding novelist? For had he not served his apprenticeship under Henry James?

John Dryden, long before he was a teen-ager, was studying English under a teacher who announced that "we'll write poetry today." In the time allotted, however, Dryden managed to write only one line, but his teacher recognized it as poetry. In his later education, of course, he mastered his "shalls" and "wills," as all good poets have in the past. It was before the days of the Modern Language Association, but that was unimportant. What is important is that we quit trying to pass off our mistakes in English as a should make that clear.

Other Things Besides Voting (The State)

A bill has been introduced in the General Assembly which would give eighteen-year-olds the right to vote.

this measure is: "If our boys are old enough to fight, they are old enough to vote."

We've tried our best to figure out the connection between voting and fighting but thus far have been unable to do so.

There are other things to be considered in this matter in addition to the voting privilege. We're inclined to agree with a recent editorial in the Greenville Reflector: "What does an 18-year-old know of the problems involved in earning a living? In conducting a business? In the paying and determining the usage of his tax-dollar? He has no experience to guide him... only theories propounded in his textbooks; and there is no book which can substitute for the knowledge gained by experience. At eighteen the young man or woman is still in the process of development... ideals, philosophies and conclusions are still dependent upon the opinion of others."

All of which undoubtedly is true, but despite this, we will continue to hear the argument: "If our boys are old enough to fight, they are old enough to vote."

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the inherent weaknesses of any price freezing attempt is the impossibility of controlling prices beyond the boundaries of the United States.

This is largely recognized in the DiSalle freeze order. A long list of exotic products, ranging from cacao butter to mumi-mumi kernels, is exempt from controls.

In 1950, the United States imported eight and a half billion dollars worth of foreign merchandise, two billion more than in 1949. A large part of the increase, incidentally, represents higher prices.

In 1949 we paid the following amounts, in millions of dollars, for imports: cocoa, coffee and tea, $70; non-ferrous metals, 760; petroleum and products, 478; paper, 452; sugar, 397; rubber, 251; wool, 222; fruits and nuts, 147; jute, 142; fish, 112; fur, 109, and millions of dollars more for other things.

Government negotiation can stabilize the price of foreign sugar, but efforts to stabilize the price of rubber and wool have failed. In many markets we are bidding against the Russians for those commodities.

And almost nothing we can do can persuade foreign sellers to freeze their prices of peppers, kippers, quicksilver, spices and the hundreds of thousands of other things we import. And having heard both that we have money and are involved in a rearmament program, they will increase their prices.

Dollars and cents margins can be frozen on imports. That may check the price of imports from pyramiding, but it won't stop them from going up. And as prices of imports rise, they will affect the cost of living, giving labor reason to ask for higher wages. And they will affect the cost of manufactured articles in which imports are used, giving manufacturers cause for asking for higher ceilings.

About the only way to prevent the cost of imports from adding to inflation is for the government to do what Great Britain did: to make itself the sole importer of key commodities and sell them at the price-freeze level, paying the loss out of taxes.

So...istic? Revolutionary? Perhaps—but that is the same principle involved in the Brannan Plan for agricultural prices, and the government has already made itself the sole importer of natural

rubber. COMPULSORY SAVING PROPOSED FOR DANES
Here's another foreign idea that is probably being studied by U. S. officials: under a measure proposed by all persons with incomes over $1,200 a year are required to turn over certain percentages to the government as savings. They get it back in 10 years with compound interest at 4 per cent.

"CASH" FOR BLOOD BECOMES A DISCOUNT

A Los Angeles appliance chain is offering $35. cash to every person who turns in a certificate that uses have given a pint of blood to the Red Cross. The only catch is that the $35. must be applied on the purchase of a TV set, refrigerator, freezer or range.

RETAILERS LIKE MCNAIR APPOINTMENT

The appointment of Malcolm P. McNair, Harvard professor of retailing, as special consultant to Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle, is regarded by many retailers as a partial victory in their demands for more representation in federal economic planning.

In all the Washington economic hierarchy there are few men considered representative of the retailers, although Eric Johnston, Economic Stabilization Administrator, is regarded as a considerate friend of small and retailing business. Most of the appointments have gone to industrialists, labor leaders, politicians and economists. Prof. McNair is also an economist, but his orientation in retailing problems is shown not only by his profession, but the fact that the National Retail Dry Goods Association has named him chairman of its emergency government controls committee.

The cutlery is being offered in every department, heavy advertising is being made, and prizes are being offered for the best slogans. In addition, the clerk selling the most will win an auto.

Hal Boyle's Column

By VIVIAN BROWN (For Hal Boyle)

Perhaps all Cupid needs is a helping hand. That idea started Drina Pearl Korman of Brooklyn on a new career. Drina, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania where she majored in psychology, decided that in these days of indecision perhaps a professional cupid would come in handy for guys and gals.

Drina sold the idea to a department store in Allentown, Pa. (Hess Brothers) while she was visiting a college chum. She now sits in a booth in the store handing out advice like little darts to puzzled romances and their sweethearts, and she expects to do a big business come Valentine's Day.

Her job is to tell them what gifts to buy, how to package them and what to write on their gift cards. After a tryout during the recent holidays Drina has decided being a Cupid is a big success. Says she:

"The only disheartening thing is that sometimes you just don't know how things turn out. There was one man who wanted to win back his wife from whom he was separated. I advised a little gift plus a recording which he could make telling her how much he missed her. He did. I'm sure it worked. But I wish I knew."

Drina also tells the story of the girl sophomore who was "stuck on the college lecturer" who was a friend of the family. He was a bachelor and little Miss Sophomore was all upset because he just treated her like a little girl. Drina advised that the parents of the girl buy two tickets to a theatre matinee, give him one, and give the girl the other. After all if they are both interested in the theatre, who would ever suspect. The last Drina heard this plan was in effect — but once again, she doesn't know what happened. Torture, isn't it? she asks.

Her advice for boys who want to select gifts for their girls is as simple as this:

1. Send a feminine gift instead of a coffee maker or a waffle iron—even if you are married.

2. More luxury items that are useful but not too personal are sure-fire hits. Let her buy her own underwear though. French panties and nightgowns, in particular, are in poor taste. Perfume and costume jewelry are more in the mood.

3. Dress up the package. Just don't trust it at her. Put a hankie or a flower or a cute little personal note in an envelope attached to the package.

When women buy gifts, says Drina, they very often do not take into consideration the likes and hobbies of their boy-friends or husbands. Sure you might like him to be a sportsman but if he doesn't like to fish or play golf, don't give him a fishing rod or golf balls.

Instead analyze his hobbies and plan the gift, accordingly. If he doesn't have a hobby, buy him something that he does on whether it is for informal or formal dress.

little gag, accompany the funny gift with something thoughtful.

As a matter of fact Drina has ventured where Cupids fear to tread—right in her own backyard. When she got bored with her boyfriend's ties which were "pretty flashy," she gave him a comparatively conservative one—and then kept reminding him that she'd like him to wear it. Pretty soon he made a habit of that tie, until he bought others like it—just to please her.

What is Drina giving to that serviceman boyfriend for Valentine's Day. Says she:

"It's a big secret and strictly personal. But I bet it suits fine."

Key To The Flare-Up (Greensboro Daily News)

While a short-lived strike at Woman's Prison in Raleigh has been put down without serious violence and conditions are rapidly re-approaching, if they have not attained, normal at this institution, we think it will be myopic on prison officials' and the State's part if they do not look beneath this surface manifestation and re-examine underlying conditions out of which it most likely came.

Official explanation is that a group of 45 to 50 prisoners refused to go back to work until they were assured that the visitors' screen which had been used for the first time Sunday would not be used again. Formerly prisoners and visitors met in the prison's tiny office building without a separating screen. But, as few prisoners could be accommodated in this space, it was decided to use the auditorium for visiting purposes; and it was there that the screen was erected to prevent, say officials, prisoners and visitors from exchanging unauthorized letters and packages. How the prisoners received this change is attested by what happened.

And there we get back to Woman's Prison's woeful lack of facilities, its cramped quarters, its unsuitable location and buildings which were after all constructed to be a road camp for men prisoners. The insufficiency and inadequacy of these facilities are obviously back of the improvised arrangements for visitors and thus led directly to the current trouble and there has been more, we are confident, unless North Carolina meets its obligations to its women prisoners in the manner that they should be met.

The McCormack Report criticized Woman's Prison probably more severely than any other unit of the prison system, which is by no means saying that some of these other units did not receive their share of criticism. In summation Dr. McCormack recommended that the state "as soon as possible build a new institution, specifically designed for women prisoners, on an appropriate site and turn the present Woman's Prison back for use of men prisoners, for whom it was designed." Anybody who will read the McCormack findings with any degree of sentience will get the key to the flare-up which has just occurred.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture--Mark 4:25-8:8

Jesus and His disciples were in a ship on the Sea of Galilee. Jesus slept, but the disciples woke Him because a storm arose and they were afraid. "Peace be still," said the Lord, and the waves quieted.

Jesus cast out an evil spirit from a man, and the devil, whose name was legion, instead of being destroyed, were driven into a herd of swine which ran down a steep place and drowned in the sea of Galilee.

On His way to heal the daughter of Jairus, ruler of the synagogue, Jesus was surrounded by the crowd. A sick woman could only touch the hem of His garment but was healed, because she had faith.

Brought to the house of Jairus, Jesus found the whole household weeping and wailing because his little daughter had died. Jesus asked why they grieved, saying, "She is not dead, but asleep." MEMORY VERSE--Mark 8:36.

JESUS--THE MIGHTY WORKER

HE HELPED MANY AFFLICTED PEOPLE

Scripture--Mark 4:35-6:6

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. SCIENCE today is doing marvelous things in healing the sick. Life has been prolonged, thousands who formerly were doomed to die are saved and enabled to do their work in the world. Jesus Christ we read, in the lesson assigned us today, restored a young girl to life, after she had died, and He was able, at a word, to still raging storms on the water. Jesus, being weary, went to sleep in the ship which He and His disciples entered to cross the sea of Galilee. So tired was He that He did not know that a storm had broken over the vessel, and was so fierce that His companions feared they would all perish. Wakened from His sleep by the disciples, Jesus stood up, "rebuked" the wind, and said unto the sea, "Peace, be still!" And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm. Then He rebuked his companions, asking, "Why are ye so fearful: how is it that ye have no faith?"

of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and when he saw Him, he fell at His feet." The man told Jesus that his little daughter was desperately ill--at the point of death, and begged Him to come and lay His hands on her that she might live. On the way, surrounded by crowds of people, Jesus felt that someone must have touched Him, and asked who it was. It was a woman whom all the physicians had failed to heal, and she was sure, even if she could not get close to Him, if she touched the hem of His garment, she would have relief. When the Lord asked who had touched Him, she came and knelt before Him, and told Him it was she. "And He said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague." While He was speaking to the woman, a messenger arrived saying that Jairus' daughter was dead. Quickly Jesus hastened to the house, and entered the room full of weeping and wailing people. When Jesus came in, He said to them, "Why make ye this ado, and weep? the damsel is not dead, but asleep." They laughed at Him, but Jesus, going into the room where the child lay, took her hand and said, "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise." "And straightway, the damsel arose and walked. . . . And they were astonished with a great astonishment." Jesus told all to tell no one, but commanded that they give the girl something to eat. This occurred at Capernaum. Returning to His home town, Jesus preached in the synagogue, but His old neighbors could not believe that this Boy who had grown up in their midst, could preach with such authority. Jesus remarked that "a prophet is not without honor, but in His own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house," and He "marveled because of their unbelief. And He went round about the villages, teaching."

MEMORY VERSE "Fear not, only believe."--Mark 8:36.

ful: how is it that ye have no faith?" Coming to the other side of the sea, they came to a place where there was a steep hill beside the sea with caves in it. From the caves came a raving maniac, possessed of a particularly dreadful evil spirit. The man had been bound, but had broken his chains and filled the air with his cries, and had been cutting himself with stones. He fell down before Jesus and worshipped Him. The evil one cried out to the Lord, praying that he be not tormented. Jesus made him come out of the frantic man, then, hearing the devil's name was legion, He sent them all into the bodies of a herd of swine, which plunged down the steep bank into the sea and drowned. "Go home to thy friends," Jesus told the man, "and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee." The man departed and published the miracle, and "all men marveled." "And behold, there cometh one

Pirates Travel To Meet Lejeune Five

Seek Revenge Win Over Leathernecks

The East Carolina Pirates will travel to Camp Lejeune for a non-conference tilt with the strong Camp Lejeune leatherneck five tonight. Although the game is non-conference and will have no effect on the Pirates' standing in the North State Conference, they will be fighting hard for a win to make up for a loss they suffered at the hands of the leathernecks earlier in the season, 63-52.

Sonny Russell, 6' 2" forward from New Bern, is expected to bear the brunt of the scoring attack for the Pirates, along with big Bobby Hodges, 6' 5" freshman guard from Kinston. These two scoring aces have been the big guns in the Pirates' offensive attack this season. Freshman Charlie Huffman will be at the other forward position with Russell.

Richard Blake, sophomore guard, will be playing before his hometown fans tomorrow night. He attended high school at Camp Lejeune, where he starred in basketball.

The Leathernecks were a tough foe for Coach Porter's quint at the last meeting of the two teams, and the Bucs will have to play their best game to avenge the defeat handed them by the high flying Leathernecks in the first encounter.

The Pirates will get back to conference play on Monday night, when they will play host to Western Carolina Teachers College. The Catawba mounts will be here for a two game series with the Pirates on Monday and Tuesday nights.

Uncle Sam Taps Lloyd; Griffin On Sports Desk

A new change was announced in The Reflector sports department today as the nation's mobilization program dug deeper into the newspaper's staff members.

Joby Griffin, a native of Edenton and a recent graduate of Atlantic Christian College, has been named sports editor of The Reflector to succeed Bill Lloyd who today began a military leave of absence for active duty with the United States Air Force.

Lloyd became sports editor of The Reflector in November following his graduation from East Carolina Teachers College. He had done sports reporting for the paper for a year before becoming its sports editor.

Lloyd is the second member of The Reflector staff to be called for active duty in the armed forces in the past month. Jack Whichard, assistant business manager of the paper, went on active duty in the army in January.

Lloyd served as a navy radio-man during World War II and saw duty in the Pacific and Far East. After being discharged from service he entered the University of North Carolina and later transferred to ECTC where he became a member of the Air ROTC unit and received a commission as a second lieutenant upon his graduation from college last fall.

He will report for duty at Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala.

Griffin, who began work with The Reflector this week, will take over the position vacated by Lloyd. Griffin played three years of college baseball while at ACC, and during the 1949 season pitched for the Wilson Tobs of the Coastal Plain League. He took up mound chores for the Greenville Greenies before the end of the 1949 season, and pitched for the Greenville Robins during the early part of the season last year. Later in the season he went to the Hartsville, S. C. club and also played for the Edenton Club. He did newspaper work during his four years of college.

Uncle Sam already has his fingers on two other members of The Reflector force. Alvin Taylor of the mechanical department has been accepted for duty but deferred until he completes his college work in June. Johnnie Sawyer, stereotypist, has been accepted for duty, and is expected to be called in the next selective service group from Pitt county to report for induction.

Catawba Beats Guilford 86-46

There was only one game played in the North State Conference last night. Catawba took its seventh league victory, 86 to 46, over Guilford College. Brevard Brown, Catawba, was high scorer with 18 points.

It was Guilford's worst league defeat since Paul L. Lentz became coach in 1946. Only one game involving North State Conference teams is scheduled tonight, a family scrap at Wilson in which Western Carolina Teachers is favored over Atlantic Christian.

CROWELL WILLIAMSON . . . EC's Star Ringman

Williamson Fights Tonight In Wilmington Exhibition

Crowell Williamson, the 155-pound sophomore pug at East Carolina, continues his ring wars again tonight.

Williamson, a sensational member of Coach Johnny Long's boxing team at East Carolina last season, will scrap Crow Peel of Fayetteville in a revenge match to be staged at Wilmington tonight.

Tonight's Williamson-Peel battle will be the top amateur fight in Wilmington's City Auditorium, as the Port City tries to make a comeback in staging top-flight boxing matches there.

Williamson's fight will share the spotlight with the 10-round professional exhibition between Wilmington's Buddy Best and a fighter from South Carolina.

Coach Johnny Long reported yesterday that Williamson is in the best condition of his life, and is ready for tonight's three-rounder. A well-built athlete, Williamson has had 54 fights in his career; he has won 49; lost four and drew one.

Williamson, from Whiteville, began his ring career at Whiteville High, where he won the Columbus county championship. He lost his novice fight to Billy Short of Charlotte in the Carolinas Golden Gloves here in 1947, but that was his last. He won at Wilmington in 1947, Fayetteville in 1948, Raleigh and Charlotte in 1949 and at Clinton in 1950 as a welter.

The Whiteville whiz has been nothing short of sensational in his college boxing career, at East Carolina.

Under the watchful eyes of Coach Johnny Long, Williamson has bested such outstanding fighters as "Kid" Soboleski of Norfolk, Virginia Golden Gloves champ in 1950, and lost his first intercollegiate match to South Carolina's Jim Briggman last year by only one point. Briggman was the defending Southern conference champion.

Being a freshman, Williamson was unable to participate in the Southern Invitational college tournament at Columbia last year, but boxed an exhibition and was highly praised by Coach Jim Owen of L.S.U., coach of the national intercollegiate champions.

A smooth and aggressive fighter, Williamson comes from a fighting family, having seven brothers who have made names in the boxing circles. He is a good student, popular on the East Carolina campus, a member of the Air ROTC, and majoring in physical education and plans to coach.

Williamson mixes a modest, shy personality with a terrific ring punch that has brought him recognition as an outstanding pug through the Carolinas and Virginia.

With the dropping of intercollegiate boxing at East Carolina, Williamson has had to look around for boxing matches, and has been successful in receiving top billing on fight cards this year. He has already entered in the Carolinas Gold Glove tournament to be held in Charlotte, February 6.

Fans Give Referee Gate At Garden

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2—(AP)—A top basketball referee has refused to officiate at the Duquesne-Chicago Loyola game in Pittsburgh's Gardens Monday because howling, booing fans make life too miserable.

He is Zigmund (Red) Mihalic reported to be near a nervous breakdown brought on by spectators' taunts.

Gamecocks Out For Third Upset Win Tonight

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2—(AP)—South Carolina's Gamecocks, who upset West Virginia and Duke in their last two outings, try their luck against another Southern Conference leading light tonight — the University of Maryland.

It will be the first meeting of the season between the two teams. Maryland, which had a narrow squeak than expected last night against lowly Davidson, takes a fine 6-1 conference record into the fray. South Carolina has a 7-3 circuit mark — and the league's leading scorer in Jim Slaughter.

For Maryland the game is the second stop on a five-game Southern swing which may make or break the Terps' chances for a berth in the conference tournament. Despite their fine record, the Terps face tough sledding in future competition. After South Carolina comes Clemson, Washington and Lee, 88-70, as Mark Virginia Military, then big engagements with South Carolina again, West Virginia, Duke and William and Mary.

Besides the Maryland - South Carolina tilt, other intra-conference skirmishes on tonight's program find Virginia Tech at William and Mary and Duke at North Carolina. In non-conference games, VMI is at Quantico and the Citadel at Presbyterian.

As Maryland eked out its 57-55 overtime triumph last night over Davidson, Don Moran, sophomore center, dropped in the winning basket as the buzzer went off ending the overtime period.

Clemson hiked its conference record to 4-1 with an 89-72 victory over Furman, which lost its eighth straight circuit contest. West Virginia rang up conference win No. 7 against three losses by pounding Washington and Lee, 88-70, as Mark Workman scored 26 points.

Locals Seek Revenge In Return Tilt

The Greenville High School Phantoms will be looking for their fifth Northeast Conference win of the year, and their second win of the week, when they go to Washington to play the strong Pam Pack five tonight.

A victory for the locals would even things between the two conference rivals, and would be sweet revenge for coach Bo Farley's five, since they lost to the Pack by the close score of 47-46, when the two teams met earlier in the season.

The Phants are fresh and confident after their 43-34 victory over the New Bern Bears on Tuesday night, and should play one of their best games of the season against the fourth place Washington five.

Probable starting line-up for Greenville will be: forwards, Jake Higgs and Jim Dillingham; center, Sydney Briley; guards, "Sonny" Scott and Johnny Aman.

Baseball's Greatest Attend Celebration

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Feb. 2—(AP)—Baseball's greatest living players, headed by the great Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby, took over the town today as the National League celebrated its 75th birthday at the Broadway Central Hotel.

Ceremonies in front of the hotel, where the circuit was born on Feb. 7, 1876, were scheduled for 1 p. m. (EST). Ford Frick, president of the league, was to act as master of ceremonies and his initial chore was the reading of a message of greeting and congratulations from President Truman.

Mayor Vincent Impellitteri was to be on hand to make a dedication speech and unveil a plaque sponsored by the New York State Historical Association.

All but seven of the 23 living members of the Hall of Fame were scheduled to appear today. Among the first to arrive were Cobb, Hornsby, Fred Clarke, former outfielder and manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates; George Sisler, ex-first baseman and manager of the St. Louis Browns, and Charlie Gehringer, who starred at second base for the Detroit Tigers.

Weather conditions were delaying the arrival of a majority of the sixteen who are to attend along with Arlie Latham, at 61 the oldest living ex-major league player, and 81-year-old John A. Heydler, former National League president.

Others expected include Cy Young,

Tris Speaker, Eddie Collins, Hugh Duffy, Carl Hubbell, Kid Nichols, Pie Traynor, Ed Walsh, Mickey Cochrane, Mel Ott and Jimmy Fox.

Clemson Asserts Howard To Stay

Clemson, S.C., Feb. 2—(AP)—Clemson says Frank Howard definitely will remain as its head football coach.

That announcement yesterday by Dr. Lee Milford, chairman of the athletic council, followed reports other schools had made attractive offers to Howard.

DILLON COMES THROUGH

Dallas—(AP)—Texas football addicts agree that "Bobby Dillon is sure a handy man to have around." Dillon pulled two games for Texas out of the fire during the '50 campaign and put the Longhorns ahead against Oklahoma.

His 84-yard touchdown run with a punt won the Baylor game, 27-20. His 46-yard touchdown scamper with an intercepted pass cinched Texas Christian game and with it the conference title for the Longhorns. Bobby's interception return against Oklahoma gave Texas its second touchdown and a lead—but it just didn't stand up. His squad lost 14-13.

Chandler Pleads For 'Fair Play' From Baseball

Boston, Feb. 2—(AP)—Baseball today heard a request for "fair play in the American tradition" from Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Chandler, who wishes to keep the post for which some club owners would name another, expressed his "hope" last night at the annual dinner of the Boston chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"I have received many communications from some of the 75,000,000 fans whom I consider the directors of baseball," he told some 300 persons at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

"But," he added, "any brief filed by the plaintiff obviously meaning the club owners, who don't want his contract renewed) never has been placed in my hands."

Tucson Tourney Well-Scrambled

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 2—(AP)—The $10,000 Tucson Open golf tourney is still without a cut and tied favorite today as experienced Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N.Y., leads a well scrambled field into the second round.

Although 14 men are ahead and another eight are even, Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, and Cary Middlecott, Memphis, Tenn., strengthened their positions with the gallery yesterday.

DOWN, BUT NEVER OUT

NEW YORK—(AP)—While refereeing a professional basketball game between Indianapolis and Rochester recently, Pat Kennedy was knocked unconscious to the floor on a questionable play that saw the Indianapolis team score. As the famed whistle tooter lay motionless, Les Harrison, owner-coach of the Rochester Royals, got down on his knees and wailed, "Before you die, Pat, please tell them the basket didn't count."

HOCKEY CAREER ENDS

CHICAGO—(AP)—Jack Stewart, known as hockey's most sewed up player, has ended his ice career. The captain and star defenseman of the Chicago Black Hawks recently left the game when he learned he had a slipped disc in his spine.

Stewart had well over 200 stitches on his body as the result of 49 wounds during his hockey career in the National League. Prior to being traded to Chicago last summer he played with Detroit.

Hopes To 'Hold The Line' On N. C. Spending Near Failing

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 2—(AP)—Efforts of state legislators to "hold the line" on state spending gave increasing indications today of bursting at the seams.

In its first three days of hearings, the Joint Appropriations committee has heard state department heads ask for $15,000,000 more than was recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.

The N. C. Medical Care Commission asked the appropriations body yesterday for $6,414,042 for its local hospital construction program for the next two years.

The advisory budget group had recommended that this entire request be passed over. Actually, by spending $6,414,042, the state would get the equivalent of more than $10,000,000 worth of hospitals because of matching federal and local funds.

The Medical Care Commission also requested a fund of $400,000 for the biennium to be spent in loans to worthy students who want to study medicine and practice in the state's rural areas.

Although the State Board of Education doesn't appear before the appropriations committee until Feb. 13, it served notice yesterday that it is going to ask for money, with a capital "M."

In a statement issued publicly earlier for the board—it said "unless the suggested budget is substantially increased by the General Assembly, it will be utterly impossible to operate the schools on their present levels." The Advisory Budget Commission had lopped $26,000,000 off the education budget requests.

The board said it must educate more children—the big crop born in 1946 is now readying for school, it must heat more buildings with increasingly costly coal, it must operate more buses, and its supplies, equipment and services cost more.

Mails Restricted By Rail Walkout

Restrictions on four classes of mail to eastern, midwestern and one southern state were announced today by Postmaster J. Knott Proctor, necessitated by the current railroad switchmen's strike.

All first-class mail over eight ounces, plus all second, third and fourth-class mail will not be shipped out of Greenville to 15 states and four cities. The states are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Florida. The cities are Washington, Atlanta, St. Louis and Chicago.

However, all air mail will be sent. Too, any mail designated for Georgia, Missouri or Illinois outside of the three restricted cities will be shipped. And any mail headed for Washington state, for example, which would ordinarily go through Chicago, will be re-routed.

Proctor's announcement came on orders from the post office inspector in Raleigh. The restrictions will be in effect until another directive is announced to the public.

No Inquest Planned In Winterville Death

A 70-year-old Negro man was found dead in an outbuilding near Winterville late yesterday afternoon, Coroner Griffin H. Rouse reported this morning.

The man, John King Wilkes, died of natural causes and no inquest will be held, the coroner stated. Wilkes had been in bad health for several months, it was learned.

The Lone Star Route Highway, 1,190 miles long, runs from Chicago to Lake Charles, La.

"The public school line cannot be held," the report said, concluding "we can only hope that through some miracle it will not buckle disastrously." The report declared that the $2,200-$3,100 teacher salary schedule authorized on a contingent basis by the 1949 legislature "cannot be continued during the 1951-53 biennium."

Cold Weather For Groundhogs

The resident Groundhog of Greenville was a bundled up critter this morning when he made his annually scheduled emergence. He checked on his shadow and saw it, all right, and scooted back into his hole to keep warm.

Whether the animal realized it or not, Greenville suffered a 47 degree drop in temperature between yesterday noon and this morning. The recorded reading at eight this morning was a cold 26 degrees, having plummeted from a balmy 73 yesterday.

And tonight is going to be colder yet. Official prediction for most of eastern North Carolina, via Mrs. Carl Maiden and her weather bureau sub-station here, is that it will be the coldest night of the winter so far. A low reading of between 10 and 15 degrees is expected, she reported. It may be some warmer tomorrow, she said, but not any higher than the 32 degrees recorded at noon today.

License Tag Sale Well Over 11,000

A last minute spurt in the sales of 1951 license tags at the local Branch office of the State License Bureau over the past few days has sent the total sales figures for the year to 11,704.

The figure included all plates issued for trucks, cars, trailers and other vehicles, it was reported. The sales figure covered a period through yesterday afternoon's sales.

At City Hall, sale of City License tags was moving along very well it was reported. A total of 12,539 city plates had been sold by noon today. There was no waiting in line for the tags, as was true with the North Carolina plates.

Yesterday, long lines of persons who had not obtained their license prior to the January 31st deadline were waiting to purchase their tags. Long lines of persons have been general for all week as the Blackwood's license bureau.

Sales at the office had dropped considerably this morning even though the sales were still good.

Lawmakers Hold Final Rites For Auto Inspection

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 2—(AP)—Compulsory motor vehicle inspection legislation—already dead—was formally buried by the House Roads committee today.

There were few mourners, and several members joked and wisecracked as they went about the task of giving unfavorable reports to two bills calling for a revival of auto inspection lanes.

A bill by Rep. George Long of Alamance calling for yearly inspection in either approved garages or state-operated lanes was voted down unanimously, 29 to 0.

Another bill, backed by Governor Scott's advisory committee on highway safety and calling for annual inspections at state-operated lanes, was given an unfavorable report 38 to 2.

DR. A. D. FRANK GUEST, SPEAKER OF SMITHFIELD CLUB. Dr. A. D. Frank, director of the department of social studies at East Carolina Teachers College, was guest speaker yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Junior Woman's Club in Smithfield. His talk was based on current topics and included discussions of problems of national and international interest.

Civil Defense Meet For Wardens Tonight

A Log For . . .

(Continued from page one) Taft said he'd be willing to send a limited number of troops to Europe to carry out this country's pledges under the Atlantic Pact. Then Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, jumped in. He prefers depending on a large air force to a big U. S. land army in Europe.

And he introduced a resolution to ban sending any troops there at all until congress decides on the whole issue. This resolution is still a bit of a hot potato and it's being juggled around in the Senate.

But now white-haired Senator Tom Connally, the fiery Texas Democrat and chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations committee hopped aboard.

He came out flatly against any troop limit that would tie the President's hands. And that, of course, is the viewpoint of President Truman.

But another prominent Democrat, Senator Douglas of Illinois, got into the debate which by this time was whirling around at a pretty clip.

He had a little different idea. He wants to set up a ratio of American troops to any troops supplied by our allies. Which means: We'd tell Europe something like this: "For every five (or some other number) divisions you put in the field, we'll send you one American division."

But the Truman Administration is against the ratio idea on the grounds that it might interfere with the freedom, or flexibility, of this government and its Atlantic Pact allies in time of need.

President Truman has said, in the midst of all this, that while he'll talk with Congress before sending any troops abroad he doesn't need congressional approval to send them.

There's no room here for all the other senators and congressmen who've chosen up sides on all sides.

Appraising . . .

Russia has great military forces in western Europe but she is merely "holding the line" against a western attack which she knows full well will never develop except in self-defense. In Asia she is delegating most of the strong-arm work to Red China.

That's the situation now, and it may well continue that way for a long time. It may be that the vast Asiatic theater will develop into the Armageddon of this war of the isms.

Stafford . . .

(Continued from page one) It would give the port commission authority to issue revenue producing bonds which would be used for the development of the port, and which would be returned by the income from the port. "It doesn't create a debt anywhere," Lee stated. "The city would not be responsible for the bonds and neither would the county."

The aldermen endorsed the resolution asking for the legislative act, pending the approval of the matter by the county commissioners.

The street department was instructed to haul in sand to be placed around the high school band room to do away with the muddy condition around the building. Scout troop 30 was granted permission to use the grounds between the city hall and the fire station next week for a boy scout week display. The request was made for the troop by Scout Jimmy Phelps.

The board instructed Mayor Stafford to write the factories of the city which do not have smoke screens for their smoke stacks, and request that steps be taken by the concerns to comply with the city ordinance governing smoke stacks.

Mrs. Ruth Meeks appeared before the board and requested the Little Theatre be allowed to use the city court room during February and March for play practices. The request was granted.

Tax refunds were ordered paid to Annie S. Collins in the amount of $12.60 for taxes levied on property which is four miles outside the city limits; and to Mrs. Frank Wilson in the amount of $89.10 for taxes paid on property which was duplicated on the city tax books.

Permission was granted to Jack Teel, Negro, to have a dance here March 28.

The board authorized the payment of bills in the amount of $5,352 and authorized the mayor to pay the remainder of the city bills which come in during the month.

ing organized and is rehearsing of Duke University and an afternoon program by high-school ensembles. President John D. Messick of East Carolina will welcome guests to the college during the afternoon meeting and will make a brief talk.

A concert by the East Carolina Concert Band to be given this evening in honor of the visiting students will take place at 7:30 in the new College Theatre located in the Training School. Mr. Carter will be conductor. Those who wish to hear the concert are invited to attend.

Other events of this evening will include a short program of organ music by George E. Perry of the East Carolina faculty at 7:00 o'clock in the Austin auditorium and a dance at 8:30 in the Wright building. An informal reception for visiting directors and their wives will be given in the reception rooms of the Flanagan building by members of the college department of music.
