Eighty-One Dead Counted In Plunge Of Commuter Train From Trestle; 500 Are Injured

Woodbridge, N. J., Feb. 7.—(AP)—A crowded commuter train plunged off a newly-erected trestle last night, killing 81 persons and injuring about 500. It was the nation's worst train wreck in 32 years.

Throughout the night and far into today, rescue workers hacked through the twisted mass of wreckage. They said other bodies still may be found in the crumpled coaches and debris.

The 11-car Pennsylvania Railroad train, "The Broker," averted wildly and jumped the tracks as it sped onto the midtown overpass. It cars, jack-knifing crazily, hurtled down a 20-foot embankment.

The new, temporary overpass had been put in service only a few hours before the crash.

The dead included bankers, lawyers and businessmen, prominent in their localities and civic life, most of them home-bound from New York City offices.

In mid-morning, the list of known dead stood at 77, with four bodies still unidentified.

The rush-hour crackup was the worst in the nation since 1918 when 115 were killed in a Nashville, Tenn., wreck, and more disastrous than a 1943 accident outside Philadelphia that took 80 lives.

It was the third major train wreck in the Metropolitan area in less than a year. A total of nearly 300 died in the three crackups. Commerce Commission ordered an inquiry into the new disaster, with a public hearing to open tomorrow.

On orders of New Jersey Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, the state's Attorney General, Theodore Parsons, also began an investigation. He reached the scene early today, and sent an assistant to a hospital to question the critically injured engineer of the wrecked train.

It was loaded to the aisles with homebound commuters—mostly from New York—on their way to Red Bank, Long Branch, Asbury Park and other communities on New Jersey's wealthy North Shore.

Engineer Joseph H. Fitzsimmons, a veteran of 33 accident-free years on the road, blamed the overcrowded coaches and the new trestle for the tragedy.

South Is Warned New Cold Wave Travelling East

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The weather bureau issued a new cold wave warning for southern and eastern states early today.

It said a mass of "much colder air" travelling east had already reached Ohio.

The new cold front comes on the heels of a death-dealing cold wave which passed out to the Atlantic ocean only two days ago.

Text of the weather bureau's bulletin:

"A mass of much colder air moved into the central U. S. yesterday and last night and at 6 a. m., this morning the leading edge had reached as far south as the Gulf of Mexico and as far east as Ohio eastern Tennessee and Alabama."

"Cold wave warnings have been issued for Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania for today and tonight, and much colder weather is forecast for the Atlantic states for tonight and Thursday."

Economy Forces Slow Tax Moves To Force Saving

Senate And House Tax-Writing Groups Jointly Study Truman Plan

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Congressional economy advocates work today for a slowdown on new taxes in an effort to force substantial cuts in President Truman's $71,600,000,000 budget.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that the Senate and House tax writing committees are making a joint study of whether to handle the budget-balancing $16,500,000,000 in new revenue which President Truman wants in two packages.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means committee said he had discussed the matter with Senator George (D-Ga.) chairman of the Senate Finance committee. No decision has been reached and none is probable for some time, Doughton told reporters.

He said he has not made up his own mind and has not discussed with his committee how new tax legislation should be handled.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.) told a reporter he hopes Congress will have a chance to vote on nearly all of the regular government money bills for the year beginning July 1 before it makes any final decisions on raising taxes.

Mr. Truman has asked for an immediate $10,000,000,000 in new taxes and has said Congress should find an additional $6,500,000,000 or so later—enough to balance the budget.

Byrd contended, on the other hand, that there might not be any necessity for such a large tax boost if Congress can whittle down spending. He has proposed a $9,000,000,000 cut in the budget to put non-defense outlays on what he calls an "austerity" level.

"I think that if Congress delays acting on taxes we will have a much better chance of cutting expenditures," the Virginia Senator said.

Soviet Note Still Hedges On Talks

Washington Views Reply As Excluding Far East Topics

Moscow, Feb. 7.—(AP)—New Russian notes on a proposed Big Four meeting reiterated that German rearmament is the chief threat to peace, but they leave the door open for talks on other world problems—in the Council for Foreign Ministers as set up by the Potsdam Agreement.

In Washington officials interpreted the call for a "Council" meeting as meaning Russia could exclude discussion of Far Eastern questions unless communist China was represented, since Potsdam included China on the Council for such discussions.

(The United States does not recognize the Red China regime and would not agree to its inclusion in the talks, Washington sources pointed out.)

The Russian notes, latest in an exchange with the western Big 3 which began last October, were made public last night. They were delivered Monday to the United States, Britain and France.

The last western communications have asked if the Soviet Union would discuss, at a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers, basic causes of world tension rather than German problems alone.

Discussion of "other questions," said the Soviet reply, was "possible"—"by the Council of Foreign Ministers in the composition and manner provided for by the Potsdam Agreement."

Scouts And Fathers In Annual Banquet Tuesday

A total of 175 Pitt district boy scouts and their fathers attended the annual district Father and Son banquet held last night at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

J. B. Kittrell, chairman of the Pitt district, presided at the annual meeting held in celebration of National Boy Scout Week.

For the second consecutive year, troop 33 of Greenville won the attendance cup at the banquet. The troop had 100 per cent representation of its scouts and their fathers.

W. C. Chadwick of New Bern, president of the East Carolina council, told the scouts and their fathers. "Your district is really picking up. The council is expecting great things from this Pitt district. You boys are expecting you to advance. You men, we are expecting you to expand scouting in this district."

Reynolds May of Greenville, principal speaker at the banquet, told the scouts, "You are the most important thing in America today. You represent the youth of Greenville and as such you represent a cross section of the youth of the United States." He pointed out to the scouts that they are in the phase of their lives in which they are forming their character. "Character is the most important thing an individual has," the speaker asserted. "If you don't have character you're a nobody."

May reminded the scouts of the American heritage which is being handed down to them, and cautioned them to "keep the ideals of this country's forefathers alive. That job is up to you." He stressed loyalty to the government of the United States, and related to the scouts the details of several cases with which he became familiar while working with the FBI during World War II.

District Commissioner Jack Dowdy presented mess kits to Scouts Dickie Newell and Jack Clifford, both of troop 30, for having the district from February to June of last year.

Lester Turnage presented certificates of advancement to scouts who have attained higher ranks recently. Scouts receiving certificates at the brief court of honor ceremonies were: Jerry Britt, troop 34, star rank; Roger Bullock, troop 205, Wilbur Jackson, troop 34, Jesse Powell, troop 205, Curtis Patterson, troop 205, Hugh Duncan, troop 30, Angus Duff, troop 30, and Billy

Railroad Stoppage Crisis Is Easing

More Striking Switchmen Join Yesterday's Back-To-Work Movement; Some Dark Spots In Overall Picture

By The Associated Press

The critical and costly tie-up of the nation's railroad transportation appeared easing today as more striking switchmen joined in the back-to-work movements which started yesterday.

However, there was not a full-scale return across the country marking the end of the "sick call" walkout which started on Jan. 30. Indications were that the crippling week-long stoppage was nearing an end in most parts of the country.

Several bright spots appeared on the troubled rail front following the first major break yesterday when thousands of switchmen returned to work.

Service was normal on major lines in the New York and New England areas. It was near normal in many other cities. And many carriers expressed hope for normal service soon as the back-to-work movement spread from city to city.

But there were some dark spots, too, in the overall picture. There were a couple of new, although small, walkouts. And not many trains were moving in some of the key rail centers—notably Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland and the Twin Cities.

The delay in a full return to work delayed the recall of thousands of workers in rail-related industries. More than 250,000 had been made idle in the last week because of the rail work stoppage.

Despite the apparent growing back-to-work moves, the Defense Transportation Administration (DTA) in Washington ordered trucks to give top priority to movement of vital government shipments and to help break the log jam of undelivered mail.

A railroad spokesman in Washington yesterday said that "any idea that the show is over is completely erroneous." He said that for every group that goes back to work "there's another bunch that goes out."

The situation in Chicago, where about 95 per cent of the normal freight movements were paralyzed, remained serious.

Look Into Delay Over REA Loan

Local Utilities Commissioners Meet In Washington With Officials To Determine Causes Of Hold Up

The five-man Utilities Commission met this morning in Washington with officials of the Rural Electrification Authority to find out why the requested loan for extending power to rural residents has been held up and whether or not it will be granted any time soon.

The commission and Superintendent Martin Swartz met with REA Administrator Claude Wickard at 10:30 and Senator Clyde Hoey. The conference was the upshot of months of delaying action concerning the $910,000 loan, action that has assumed an on-again-off-again air.

Swartz stated yesterday afternoon prior to leaving for the conference the commission seeks to find out just what is the holdup on the more-than-a-year-old request. Too, the members want to confer with REA attorneys concerning a change in the wording of the revenue bonds.

Since the middle of October, when REA received a proof of the bond, the holdup has been over what would be mortgaged to secure the loans. REA, in most instances, requests mortgaging the rural lines of the plant requesting money. But according to correspondence between the commission and the solicitor's office, the revenue of the entire electric facilities of the Utilities must be mortgaged to secure the bonds. That won't be agreed to by the commission, Swartz stated.

The loan was requested during December of 1949 after months of consideration by the commission. Only a third of the full amount—$334,500—will be used, if the loan is granted, at first. That amount is the present cost of constructing 353 miles of power lines in Pitt, Craven and Beaufort counties. The lines will serve 1,800 members when they are constructed.

If and when REA approves and grants the money asked, the commission will subsequently advertise for bids on the construction.

Four more counties have reached their quotas for the $50-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner here Saturday night.

State headquarters reported yesterday that Durham, Buncombe, Cleveland and Sampson had sent in their checks. Durham was $250 over its quota.

Two other counties reported that they had exceeded their quotas—Lee by $50 and Wake by $450.

Warmer weather was growing so warm that doughboys shed their parkas. If it gets much warmer the Reds south of the Han will have a thawed-out river at their back. They would hamper a retreat, but bridges across the river are down.

One allied tank force led by Capt. Kenneth Fisher, Johnstown, Pa., found a big force of the 7th and 50th Army behind anti-tank minefields around Mt. Chongye, and one-half miles south of the Han.

Suicide squads of Chinese who were to detonate the mines fled as the allied tanks rumbled up. American soldiers detonated the mines and the tank tank force rolled through. Its blasting guns caught the Reds on hillsides and in their foxholes.

Big Breakthrough

The allied gain in the west came simultaneously with a big breakthrough by the South Koreans. They smashed a massive force of Red Koreans and were still moving 23 miles south of parallel 38—farther north than Red-held Seoul to the west.

On the east coast a smaller allied force worked in the vicinity of Kangnung where the American battleship Missouri and an allied naval task force Tuesday battered the area with big guns. Kangnung is just 17 miles south of parallel 38, the old boundary between North and South Korea.

Late field reports put the nearest allied approach to Seoul at less than six miles.

The Fisher tank force whipped west at Tums and roared on to Sangjeng. The road was covered with anti-tank mines camouflaged with rice bags. The Chinese soldiers assigned to the sure-death job of setting off the mines fled their posts at the approach of the tanks and were shot down.

Tito Looks Westward

Observers Think Soviet Satellites May Move Against Yugoslavia Before The Year Is Out; Reasons For Conclusions; Tito Expecting Help From The West

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Western Europe is stirring uneasily over indications of strife between the Soviet Union and non-conformist Yugoslavia.

General Tito, the Yugoslav dictator, himself has announced bluntly that Russia and her satellites are plotting to "swallow" Yugoslavia. He says his country's borders are directly menaced by armies totaling 660,000 men.

There are signs that the showdown between all-high Moscow and an ideologically rebellious Tito may not be long delayed. "The Economist," British weekly, points out that "Tito's most serious present difficulty is a shortage of food, which would seem to suggest that if he is to be attacked it will be before harvest."

That is a deduction which looks like justifiable speculation. However, it may be qualified with the fact that the United States is in process of shipping $70,000,000 worth of food to hard-hit Yugoslavia and that some of it already is being distributed. A mild winter has aided the distribution.

And what is the interest of the western powers in a Yugoslav plot which not so long ago was saluting Moscow as the source of all good news? The answer is that Yugoslavia

(if in the western camp) would, together with Greece and Turkey, form a powerful right flank for the western allies in defending not only western Europe but the Aegean and Mediterranean theaters. That is true geographically, and it is also true in the sense that these three countries boast some of the world's top fighting men.

Tito accuses Moscow of maneuvering to create an excuse for invasion. He says Yugoslavia faces a struggle for its survival.

It is of more than passing interest that, coincident with this statement by the Generalissimo, an army spokesman intimated to the public for the first time that Yugoslavia would look to the West for aid in case of war. The spokesman quoted no authority for this intimation. However, it's easy to see that even if it was a guess it showed one thing: The western powers were likely to be drawn into a conflict.

Apologies of this suggest western aid. Yugoslav plot to ally with Moscow in present

Meat Controls Readied By OPS In Regulation

Slaughter Control Order Rushed To Prevent Big-City Meat Famines And Black Marketing

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The government prepared today to issue a slaughter control order aimed at preventing black markets and big-city meat famines under price control.

The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) was putting finishing touches on an order licensing all slaughterers and giving them a quota of animals to kill. The action is intended to discourage the sort of behind-the-barn slaughtering which fed black markets in World War II and contributed to the abandonment of OPA.

Issuance of the slaughtering order was understood to be awaiting only the approval of DISA.

As outlined in advance, the regulation would outlaw slaughtering by any person who lacks a license, thereby discouraging the entry of fly-by-night operators into the business of furnishing animals for black market distribution.

The device also can be used, as it was under OPA, to compel meat packers to follow their normal pattern of deliveries across the country. Under price control, the tendency is to sell near home, and during the last war such eastern cities as New York and Washington suffered serious shortages while midwestern cities enjoyed comparative plenty.

HOOTED OFF STREETS

Charlotte, Feb. 7.—(AP)—A youth wearing a Ku Klux Klan robe was hooted off the streets here today. He was advertising a movie, "Storm Warning," an expose of the Klan.

Bond Interest

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—A bill to permit holders of series E government bonds to keep them for more than 10 years and continue to draw interest was passed yesterday by the House.

Passage was by voice vote. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Series E bonds are in small denominations, and are those generally held by the public. Some $35,000,000,000 worth are outstanding.

The first of the outstanding series will start maturing May 1, ten years after issuance. The interest averages 2.9 per cent if the bonds are held for ten years.

Your Tax Exemptions

Special Exemptions For Special Cases; Know Them, They're Worth Money To You; Who Is Considered A Dependent; Only Close Relatives Are Considered So

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Pay close attention to the exemptions you can claim in making your 1950 income tax return.

For each exemption, you deduct $600 from your income; what's left can be taxed.

Everyone filing a return is allowed a $600 exemption for himself. He's also allowed these exemptions:

1. An extra $600 if he was 65 before the end of 1950 and another $600 if he became blind before the end of the year.

(A person is considered to be 65 on the day before his 65th birthday. So if you 65th birthday was Jan. 1, 1951, you were considered to be 65 on Dec. 31, 1950 and can claim a $600 exemption.)

2. You also get a $600 exemption for your wife, if she had no income, or, if she had income, if she files a joint return with you.

Also, if she had no income or, having had income, if she files jointly with you, you get another $600 exemption for her if she reached 65 in 1950 and still another $600 if she was blind before the end of 1950.

(Note this: Under the tax law, a wife is not considered a dependent. So if she had any income, it matter how small, but does not file jointly with you, you can claim no exemption for her at all.

(If she had less than $600 income of her own, she doesn't have to file a return but, as noted, unless she does file jointly with you, you can claim no exemption for her. It makes no sense for a wife with no income or less than $600 income not to file jointly with her husband.)

(If she has $600 or more income and files her own separate return, then she gets a $600 exemption for herself, plus another $600 if she reached 65 in 1950, plus still another $600 if she was blind before the end of 1950.)

3. And you, filing a return, get a $600 exemption for each dependent you can rightly claim. Who can be considered your dependent?

A close relative who got more than half his support from you in 1950 and whose income, if he had any at all, was less than $500. Note that $500.

(No one with less than $600 income has to file a return but, through a quirk in the law, no one can be claimed as a dependent if

X-Ray Unit Here

Again this year a mobile X-ray unit will be stationed in Greenville to make free examinations of the public for possible discovery of tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases.

The unit will be located at Five Points for two days, February 13 and 14, and will be open from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.

All food handlers whose health cards must be renewed are requested by the Health Department to have their chests X-rayed at that time. All other persons wishing to have the service performed are invited to get a free examination.

Man-Of-Year To Be Given Award

Annual Jaycee Presentation Set For Tomorrow Night

Interest in who Greenville's Man of the Year is was running high today on the eve of the annual presentation of the distinguished service award to the young man of the community who has made outstanding achievements in personal and community progress during 1950.

The award will be made tomorrow night during a special meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. It will be presented by Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina, who will make the first public announcement of the man. Heretofore, his name has remained a secret, having been selected by a committee composed of a representative of the Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary and Exchange clubs in Greenville.

The presentation by Messick will be broadcast over station WGTC. Messick's talk and the subsequent naming of the man will be recorded by the station during the program and broadcast at nine o'clock.

Members of the selection committee will be the guests of the Junior Chamber for the dinner and ceremony. They are John G. Clark, representing the Exchange Club; D. L. Conley, Kiwanis; Henry Swain, Lions; and Wyatt Brown, Rotary.

The committee made the selection after considering the written recommendations of members of the four clubs. The members were asked to base their recommendation on the man's leadership ability, contribution to community affairs, improvement in his own business, and his activity in community projects.

Rep. Redden To Retire In 1953

Asheville, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Rep. Monroe M. Redden has announced that he will retire to private law practice in Hendersonville upon completion of his third term Jan. 3, 1953.

Redden said yesterday that he would not be a candidate for reelection in 1952. He added that he had no political plans for the future.

But top Democratic leaders in western North Carolina are discussing him as a possible candidate for U. S. senator when Senator Hoey retires, possibly in 1956.

Pitt ABC Sales Show Big Gain

Sales in the Pitt County ABC stores over the past month topped sales figures for the same period a year ago by a total of $13,091.90, the local office of the ABC Board reported today.

Sales figures released for the month of January 1951 stood at $109,744.60 as compared with $96,652.70 for January 1950.

No reason was given for the unusually heavy flow of traffic in the county's stores for the month.

CAUSE FOR TENSION

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson today accused the Iron Curtain countries—Russia's satellites—of building up very great armies in excess of peace treaty limitations. He said this is one of the major causes of world tension.

REMAINS RESTRICTED

Charlotte, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Railroad freight and passenger traffic through Carolina cities especially on Southern Railway lines, continued severely restricted today.

Greenville Service League Welcomes Provisional List Into Full Membership

The Greenville Service League met at Sheppard Memorial Library on Monday morning, February 6, at 10:30.

The president invited the members to enjoy a social period before the beginning of the business meeting. At this time Coca Cola, sandwiches, salad and minis were served. This entertainment was given by members of the Executive Board in honor of the provisional members who, having completed the necessary requirements, were welcomed into full membership at this time. The new members are Mrs. W. S. Bonner, Mrs. Wesley Harvey, Mrs. Dale Gidley, Mrs. Hoyt Minges, Mrs. Boley Farley, Mrs. William Davenport, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, Jr., Mrs. W. C. James, Mrs. Ed Parkinson, Jr. and Mrs. Harold Thomas.

The program chairman introduced Mrs. E. W. Harvey, a member of the Advisory Council. Mrs. Harvey welcomed the provisional members into full membership and gave an inspiring talk on the meaning of Service League work. She pointed out the challenge for new members to be found in the twenty projects of the League. After the program the secretary called the roll and read the minutes of the January meeting. Reports were heard from the treasurer and from chairmen of the various projects and committees.

The Projects chairman reported a busy month, members having served as hospital guides and in the Coffee Shop the day of the dedication of Pitt Memorial Hospital. During January League members also assisted with the March of Dimes and did considerable calling by telephone in relation to Dollar Day.

A final report was heard from the R. Seal Sale chairman, and a letter of congratulations was read from Mr. J. H. Waldrop on the success of the drive.

It was announced that the new hospital is to open for patients on Thursday, February 8 and the Service League Coffee Shop will open the same day.

The second term at the Thrift Shop began Tuesday, February 6. The Placement chairman read the names of the daily workers, substitutes, and officers of the day for the new term.

The chairman of the Finance committee gave a report of money earned by the January committee and also from the sale of cook books. The committee for February was read and it was announced that a series of bridge tournaments will be held during the month. Money raised by the Finance committee is for the support of the Laughing-house Hospital Bed. The Hospital Bed chairman reported that two children were cared for from the fund during January.

Mrs. Ormond gave a report on the Girl Scout banquet held in January. Girl Scouts helped with the Polo drive at the local theatres and will help with some of the Service League work at the new hospital also. At the conclusion of the business session the meeting was adjourned.

The way sentiment is growing in that direction indicates that the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people is coming.

The doom of the near beer joints seems to be a foregone conclusion. If the legislature does not go a step further and shut liquor out of clubs, it will make a huge mistake.

It is quite a slam on Kansas that only eight members of the state senate were able to repeat the Lord's prayer. Put to the same test there are plenty of men who would fall down.

Don't Let Aches And Pains Get The Best Of You

HADACOL Has Brought Relief to Thousands Who Suffered Deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

It is no longer necessary to let annoying aches and pains, due to deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron make your life miserable. Thousands of folks have found that the great modern formula, HADACOL, has relieved the real cause of their trouble, due to such deficiencies and once again life is pleasant.

Mrs. A. L. Bush, 429 S. W. 19 Road, Miami, Fla., is just one of the many fine folks who was suffering such a deficiency and found relief with HADACOL. Mrs. Bush says: "I am 45 years old, and had been suffering from aches for some time. But, now, I have used HADACOL for three months, and am happy that I feel so fine."

HADACOL can help you, too, if you suffer from stomach distress, certain nervous disturbances, insomnia due to an upset stomach, aches and pains or a general run-down condition caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.

Give remarkable HADACOL a chance to benefit you. Sold on a strict money-back guarantee—you'll feel better after the first few bottles you take, or your money back. (C) 1951, The LeBlanc Corporation.

Saturday Luncheon Honors Ione Bradsher, Bride Elect

Honoring Miss Ione Hooker Bradsher, whose wedding will take place in March, Mrs. W. I. Wooten and Miss Lillian Wooten were luncheon hostesses on Saturday at 1:00 p.m. Guests were welcomed into the hospitable home by the hostesses and Miss Bradsher. The honoree was wearing an unusual shoulder-ette composed of red carnations arranged in the shape of a heart. The decorative scheme attractively used in flower and table appointments suggested the approaching Valentine season. Red and white carnations were used in floral arrangements, and heart-shaped cards marked the places for guests in the dining room and at auxiliary tables in the living room.

Upon their arrival the luncheon guests were served tomato juice in the library, after which they were invited to find their places at the tables.

The large table in the dining room bore an angelabra as a centerpiece. This held four white taper which were in revolving holders and was surrounded by a circle of red carnations. Red and white satin streamers tied with small carnations by the hostesses.

After a two-course luncheon the guests were entertained at games of bingos.

Miss Bradsher was remembered with a silver cream and sugar set by the hostesses.

All-White Wedding Unites Miss Edith Bowles To Wesley Johnston In Formal Ceremony

In a ceremony of simplicity and dignity, Miss Edith Merricks Bowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Hughes Bowles of Greenville, became the bride of Stephen Wesley Johnston, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Vines Johnston, also of Greenville.

The ceremony took place on Saturday, February third, at half after four o'clock in the sanctuary of the Memorial Baptist Church with the Reverend Richard E. Hardaway, pastor of the bride, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with profuse arrangements of plumosa, oregon fern and huckleberry greenery. Tall standards of white snapdragons and New Orleans gladioli were banked against the altar rail. Multi-branched wrought-iron candelabra holding cathedral candles were placed at intervals against the flowered backgrounds. On either side of the satin kneeling bench were tiered standards which held white candles. Pews for the family and close friends were marked with white satin bows caught up with clusters of snapdragons.

Prior to the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered at the organ console by Mrs. Karl V. Gilbert. Her selections included "Reverie" by Schubert, "Serenade" by Schubert, "Berceuse From Jocelyn" by Godard, "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life" by Herbert, "Elizabethan Lullaby" by Noble, "Clair de Lune" by Debussy, and "Beloved, It Is Morn."

Mrs. Moye Dail, soloist, sang "Treat Me Not To Leave Thee" by Gounod and "If God Left Only You" by Denmore.

During the ceremony Mrs. Gilbert played softly "Liebestraum" by Liszt and Mrs. Dail sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte as a benediction. The traditional wedding marches from "Lohengrin" by Wagner and "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn were used as a processional and recessional.

The entrance of the wedding party was preceded by the playing of the chimes. The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was gowning in a period wedding dress of heavy white bridal satin fashioned with a tight-fitting basque bodice over a panned skirt falling in gathered folds into a long cathedral train. The bodice had a standing collar of lace sprinkled with rhinestones, and insets on either side of the front buttons formed rows of embroidered lace which went from front waist to back. The sleeves ended in points over the hand and the jacket was fastened at the back with tiny self-covered buttons. The skirt was finished in bias folds of satin, in which small satin bows were tied. Her imported veil of French illusion fell in fingertip length from a satin cloche trimmed with seed pearls. Her bouquet was composed of white orchids and French lilacs with lily of the valley, tied with satin streamers.

Mrs. William Franklin Johnston of Norfolk, Virginia, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was dressed in a gown made with a strapless satin bodice deeply pointed in back and front and which had a full-gathered skirt of nylon net. The bodice was topped with a small bolero jacket with small standing collar. She wore a Juliet cap of white satin banded with frenched red carnations. Her bouquet was a cascade of red antherium and red carnations tied with crimson velvet streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Johnston of Tarboro, sister of the groom, Mrs. William Cadet Whitehurst Jr. of Bethel, Miss Melba Ruth Browne and Miss Joyce Duke, both of Greenville. They wore gowns fashioned like that of the matron of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Mr. Johnston chose as his best man his brother, Mr. Alton Robert Johnston of Greenville. Ushers were Eugene Hamilton Gray of LaGrange, brother-in-law of the groom, William Franklin Johnston of Norfolk, brother-in-law of the bride, Troy Rouse of Winston-Salem and John Dixon Fleming of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Bowles wore a dinner length gown of Nile green crepe with a small imported hat of white violets accented with green nylon veiling. Her corsage was a pink Hybrid orchid. Miss Addie Johnston, aunt of the groom, was gowning in a two-piece mauve crepe dress with matching hat. Her corsage was a natural hybrid orchid.

Mrs. Johnston was educated in the public schools of Danville, Virginia, and is a graduate of Averette College in Danville and East Carolina Teachers College at Greenville. For two years she taught in the South Norfolk High School and at present is a member of the faculty of the Farm Life High School in Vanceboro.

Mr. Johnston was educated in the local public schools and attended East Carolina Teachers College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He spent 32 months in the Burma-India theatre of war during World War II.

Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home on east Eighth Street.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. Ruy Tyson and introduced to the receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Bowles, the bride couple and wedding attendants.

Receiving in the gift room was Mrs. Moye Dail, while Miss Joyce Duke and J. B. Spilman, Jr., presided at the register. Directing guests into the dining room were Mrs. Karl Gilbert and Mrs. James Barrow.

In the home varied arrangements of pink snapdragons, Dutch iris and pink and yellow carnations were used. Burning tapers were used on mantels and tables to furnish illumination.

The table in the dining room was draped with a white organdy cloth with lace inserts placed over a green satin undercloth. A center arrangement of white snapdragons and white carnations interspersed with fern was flanked on either side with 5-branched silver candelabra with white tapers. From bowls at either end of the table Mrs. J. B. Spilman Sr. and Mrs. Roy Coburn served punch. Silver dishes held accompanying nuts, mints and decorated bread cakes. Assisting in the dining room were Misses Jean Hilton, Christine Jordan, Peggy Barnhill and Mrs. Pete West.

Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Ford McGowan.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs.

Johnston left for a wedding trip to Florida. Mrs. Johnston wore a plum colored suit with white accessories and the orchids lifted from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return they will make their home in Grifton.

After the wedding rehearsal on Friday, Mr. and Mrs. William Franklin Johnston of Norfolk entertained for the bridal party, families and out-of-town guests in the ladies' parlor of the Memorial Baptist Church.

Guests were greeted by the host and hostess and the bride couple. On one table was a three-tiered wedding cake which was cut and served by Mrs. Roy Coburn. From another table Mrs. Edgar Barnhill poured punch and Miss Peggy Barnhill and Mrs. Richard E. Hardaway assisted in serving the accompaniments.

Both tables were covered in white embroidered cloths, and white and green flowers, with many lighted tapers used at intervals on the mantel and tables, were added decorative touches.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Miss Linda Renfrew and William Parker from Raleigh, Mr. and Mrs. John Bowles and Mr. and Mrs. Troy Rouse of Winston-Salem, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Wilson, Miss Jean Calvert and Miss Lois Calvert of Danville, Virginia, Mrs. Eugene Gray and Misses Jeannette and Mary Margaret Gray of LaGrange, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Preston McClain, Mrs. A. M. Nichols of Norfolk, Ray Jefferson of Fountain and Mr. W. C. Whitehurst of Bethel.

Is Root Knot still robbing you of top tobacco profit?

If root knot attacked the roots of your tobacco plants last year you can be sure it'll do even greater damage this year... unless you treat your soil with D-D.

Make sure you get highest yield and quality in 1951

D-D is the profit answer. Pest-free soil allows healthy root systems to support bigger quality plants... with greater yield and profit from every acre.

Treat your soil with D-D!

Growers all through this area are using D-D... are satisfied that soil treatment with D-D is the one sure, low-cost method of beating root knot. Many growers are doing it themselves with simple homemade applicators on plows or cultivators. You can too...

or we'll do it for you

We'll send a trained crew with their own equipment. They'll do a thorough job... and its cost will be repaid many times over in increased crop value!

Either way... we have the D-D! Phone, write or stop in for all the facts.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
THE TOP OF THE NEWS

Those who listen to Fulton Lewis Jr., the brilliant radio commentator, know that he always ends his broadcast with the statement, "That's the top of the news as it looks from here."

Some weeks ago he was speaking about the necessity for spiritual health in our nation, if we are to survive these days of chaos. These were his words: "Let us always remember that statement, 'More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of.' That's the top of the news as it looks from here."

Mr. Lewis may not have noticed the significance of his statement when he put the quotation about prayer and his closing broadcast words together. It's always the top of the news that more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. The fact that God is willing to listen to human prayer and that He puts at the disposal of human beings all his divine power and love, is of more importance than all the headlines that ever appear in any newspaper. God's willingness to answer prayer is the top of the news every day of every year.

And Mr. Lewis is right in his appraisal of our present spiritual lack. Unless and until we realize that the only power that can save us is spiritual power and that the only real resources we have are the divinely given resources, we shall be unable to face our problems with composure and sufficiency.

A Dream Comes True At Last

The success of Pitt County Memorial hospital is going to depend principally upon the support the institution receives from the people of the county.

Tomorrow the new $1,400,000 hospital built by the people of this county will open its doors to the sick and afflicted. Even though the hospital is the finest medical institution in the eastern part of North Carolina, its presence in Pitt county will mean very little unless the people of the county take advantage of the wonderful facilities the hospital offers.

The hospital was built for the sole purpose of furnishing better medical care for the people of Pitt county. No matter how fine the facilities of the hospital are, it can not carry out its purpose without the cooperation of the people who live in the county.

The rates at the new hospital are very reasonable. In fact, the county will be fortunate if the hospital will be able to continue to operate at such low rates.

The opening of the Pitt County Memorial hospital tomorrow brings to the people of Pitt county an institution which has long been needed, and has long been desired by the people. Now that the institution is opening, the people should make use of its facilities.

41st Birthday For Boy Scouts

This week the Boy Scouts of America celebrate the 41st anniversary of their organization which has influenced the lives of more than 17,750,000 American men since the movement began in 1910.

After several years of relative inactivity, scouting in Greenville and Pitt county has been on the upswing for the past three years. More troops and cub packs have been formed, and more boys between the ages of 8 and 16 have come into the organization.

In the Pitt scout district today there are approximately 543 cub scouts, boy scouts, explorer scouts and scout leaders. These boys and their leaders are forming a nucleus around which an even larger boy scout organization can grow. Through scouting the future leaders of this county, and perhaps the leaders of this state are being groomed in the ways of better citizenship and better living.

But if the program is to continue to progress, it must have the cooperation not only of the parents of the boys of scout age, but the cooperation of the adults of the community in general.

On the 41st anniversary of the beginning of the scouting movement in this country, The Reflector congratulates the local scouts on their achievements, and extends to them best wishes for continued progress and continued growth.

Rough Measures For Higher Taxes

The eyes of a lot of individuals were opened by a detailed report from Secretary of Treasury Snyder on the new tax proposals of the administration.

The proposed increases in taxes on items such as automobiles, television sets, gasoline, whiskey, beer and cigarettes, plus the proposed four per cent increase in personal income taxes would take a big bite out of the buying power of the average family. Of course every family doesn't include in its daily buying habits all of the items mentioned above; but for the most part, the excise tax increase would touch the pocket book of every family. The individual income tax increase would likewise drain away more of the fast disappearing cash of the individual family.

The idea of the new tax program, so far as we can determine, is two-fold. First, it is designed to put the country's mobilization program as nearly as possible on a pay-as-we-go basis. Second, the tax measure will drain off any surplus money which the family may have, and thus theoretically prevent any greater inflation.

The success of the program in either category is somewhat doubtful. Without controls, there is hardly a way to separate the effects of higher taxes from the effects of higher costs of living. For practical purposes, the higher taxes become part of the individual's living expenses. Thus the taxes may begin a new round of wage hikes if positive steps are not taken to prevent such a maneuver. What the taxes would actually amount to in that instance would be an inflationary measure to secure more dollars . . . but at the same time the value of the dollars would be lowered, and the actual tax collections in numbers of planes and tanks would be little more than it is now.

The mobilization program is going to be costly to the American people; more costly than most folks realize. The financial sacrifices which the people are going to have to make are just beginning to appear on the congressional horizon.

The general belt-tightening which has until now been more or less a figure of speech, is about to become a reality. And in the words of a congressman, the new tax measures are "rather rough."

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—General "Ike" Eisenhower is admittedly more popular with the people as a possible Republican presidential nominee in 1952, but Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio is far more popular with the politicians who do the nominating. As of the moment, "Mister Republican" has an overwhelming lead in the race, according to all canvasses on Capitol Hill and throughout the country.

It is not the Senator's unprecedented November triumph that has shot him into the van, so much as the nature and the results of that victory. It ended once and for all party enemies' contention that he could not be elected to the White House because of the opposition of organized labor. He could not have carried such a state unless many thousands of workmen had defied and ignored Green-Murray-Lewis orders.

POSITION—Nor can his opposition to Roosevelt-Truman domestic reforms or foreign policy hurt him by next year, according to his backers. The basic social and economic changes are so embedded in the national structure that, although they can be modified and improved, they cannot be torn out. Nor does Mr. Taft advocate a return to caveman days.

His advocates also think he occupies an advantageous position on foreign affairs. Should war break out, the past records of legislators on major questions of this kind will be forgotten.

His insistence on Congressional sanction before shipment of troops overseas is shared by most Republicans and Democrats in House and Senate. Their prodding of the United Nations and condemnation of Red China was a virtual endorsement of his stand.

REALISTIC—Moreover, in the event of actual warfare, General Eisenhower would be drafted for a military assignment, taking him out of the political field. As yet, he has not announced whether he is a Republican or Democrat, although his friends label him as an hereditary and sentimental G.O.P.-er.

Obviously, if chances look bright next year, the party Warwicks and the lesser brigands will prefer a stalwart like Mr. Taft to a General-come-lately.

This is a realistic appraisal of the Taft-Eisenhower situation, made in the wake of the Republican leaders' recent conferences here and "Ike's" spectacular mission to Europe, as well as his reports to Congress and the nation.

WARREN—Political insiders believe that Governor Earl Warren of California is the only figure who can offer serious opposition to Mr. Taft, assuming that General Eisenhower becomes unavailable for official or personal reasons. His overwhelming defeat of James Roosevelt last November has swept away bitter memories of his association with Governor Thomas E. Dewey in the ill-fated 1948 farce.

Some Republicans argue that the general sentiment for the more conservative Mr. Taft virtually eliminates Governor Warren, whose G.O.P. critics sometimes think him too liberal and non-partisan. In fact, they hold him responsible for the sort of "me, too" strategy adopted by Governor Dewey three years ago.

DEWEY—The Californian, however, has told friends that he objected to this kind of pussyfooting, believing that there were issues on which the opposition could take a definite and aggressive stand. Naturally, according to this theory, he was overruled by the head of the ticket, whose views on foreign policy were influenced then and now by eastern financiers and internationalists.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge has been put forward by certain eastern interests; but second place appears to be the highest he can make. Despite Governor Dewey's hankering for a third try, that is a virtual impossibility. Senator James H. Duff of Pennsylvania is listed as too old, and not sufficiently well known around the country.

Thus the favorites (and the political bookies will lay no bets on which candidate will win which place) are Taft, Warren and Eisenhower.

CRONY—Speaker Sam Rayburn's generally overlooked comment on the 1952 presidential situation has revived fairly authentic rumors that President Truman will not seek re-nomination.

Discussing the Eisenhower prospects, the Texan said that the General might be able to win either the Democratic or the Republican presidential nomination next year.

For such a cautious man as Mr. Rayburn, and for one closer to Mr. Truman than any other individual on Capitol Hill, that is a most amazing statement. Indeed, if he did not have reason for feeling it represented his presidential cronies' secret thoughts, it would be personal and political heresy.

Power In Reserve

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Five years ago there was a student by the name of Herb Carter at Columbia University who had just received a Master of Arts Degree in music. Herb was married and a veteran of WW II. Then, at 26, he was ready to teach.

In looking over the job opportunity list Herb saw that there was an opening at East Carolina Teachers College, Greenville, N. C. Herb said to his wife, "There's a job opening in Greenville, N. C. Look up the population."

Herb's wife read from the World Almanac: "34,734, plus Greenville suburbs, 37,800. That's 72,435, and those are 1940 figures. By now the population is probably 90,000."

"That's a good-sized town," Herb said, and then he checked up on the college. Liking what he found, he decided to come to Greenville and apply for the job.

Herb's wife made the same mistake that thousands make every year. She confused Greenville, N. C. with Greenville, S. C. when she looked up the population. But Herb came to the right place. He arrived in Greenville on the bus, but couldn't understand why the bus station was in the suburbs. He walked down to Five Points and into Key Brown's drug store. "Pardon me," he said, "but I'd like to know where I can catch a bus to the main part of town."

The clerk replied, "Brother, you're in it!"

Herb soon discovered his mistake, and he had wanted to settle in a larger town than Greenville, N. C. However, he liked what he saw, the people he met, and the college so well that he decided to stay. Now, five years after this incident, Herb still likes Greenville and East Carolina. This summer he'll begin work on his PhD degree.

Monday when I talked to Herb he was full of praise for the East Carolina band, which he directs. "They played better Friday night than they ever have, and I am certainly proud of them," he said. Herb was referring to the concert that took place in the new college theater, climaxing the All-State band clinic held by the college last weekend. Twenty-nine high school bands were represented. Of course the clinic is held by the college in the interest of better music, but I couldn't help asking Herb if he lined up any students for next year's band. He laughed and reminded me of what I already knew, "The clinic is held in the interest of better music."

Greenville football fans have seen evidence of Herb's ability to direct a band in colorful half-time ceremonies. During the football seasons of Herb's directorship, the show has been a highlight of every game.

In addition to his regular college duties, Herb directs the college dance band, which plays under the name of Bob Lee and his orchestra.

The influx of men like Herb Carter is the reason East Carolina is progressing like a rolling snowball. And I thank you.

PRIVATE—Senator Junius Powell has been a bit surprised at receipt of several telegrams and letters from county commissioners asking that the highway and public works commission be given a "private" hearing on the municipal street bill. As chairman of the senate roads committee Powell had set a public hearing on the measure, which was signed by 39 senators, Wednesday morning. The highway commission asked for an earlier chance to discuss the matter with the senate committee. Chairman Powell declined, on the ground that all parties interested should be heard in public and at the same time. Some senators were disturbed by the county commissioner requests for another hearing. It suggests violating traditional practice of having legislative hearings public, causing criticism for the fair colloquy study committee. It also indicates friction between county and municipal governments, rural and urban people, in that it implies opposition on part of the county commissioners to additional state aid for municipal roads.

STEEL—Governor Scott is concerned but not alarmed about prospective retardment of bridge and other construction because of steel scarcity. He told newsmen at his press conference Tuesday that the state ought not to be frightened from its forward march by rumors. "Our job is to go ahead," he said. "We'll know when the clamp down comes and will meet as best we can." That has been the governor's attitude all along. It has brought commendation from many sources for courage and faith in the state. It has also brought severe criticism as favoring of the "business as usual" policy which has been common when practiced by private enterprise. Meanwhile, state engineers are making reasonably satisfactory substitutions for steel in small structures, and the state sponsored survey looking toward establishment of a steel mill in eastern Carolina is going on. The governor said Tuesday he did not have a late progress report on that survey.

COLD—Everybody knows it has been cold during the past week all over the country. Snow fell along the coast, as unusual incident for most of that area; but not as unusual as the report that the snow around Wilmington was radioactive. Cattle died from cold in Florida, also very unusual. But the coldest place must have been in Cleveland County. Representative "Burr" Falls was happy about that. He said it was so cold the boll weevils left the cotton fields and went to hunt firewood.

DEMOCRACY—Rep. Marion Parrott of Lenoir didn't like the idea of members of the house of representatives rising to their feet when the commanding general of Camp Lejeune was ushered into the chamber to visit his post. Parrott said, and found several colleagues in agreement, that for elected civilian representatives of the people to stand up for the military was in his opinion contrary to American ideas of democracy. He thought it very fine for uniformed military personnel to stand when a general officer came around, but that it is unnecessary for civilians to do so. Some of those over-hearing his comment extended it a little further. Belief was expressed that standing for high ranking civilian officials when they appear in other than official capacity is also unnecessary and undemocratic. Prevailing custom in this state is for groups to rise upon approach of the President, a governor or a United States senator. It is a tribute of respect and does nobody any injury. At the same time a good many people think it is not in keeping with genuine democracy, and that goes double for official civilian recognition of military dignitaries. It tends too much toward the idea that military takes precedence over civil authority, a concept contrary to American traditions except in time of war. While some of those who stood up did not like it, there was general agreement that the invitation to visit Camp Lejeune was a gracious gesture and would be accepted. The assembly will make the trip on March 7.

ANOMALY—Rep. David Clark of Lincoln, although a freshman in the house, rated assignment as vice-chairman of the committee on public welfare. He has manifested keen interest in all the bills, but some of his pals have had a good time teasing about his apparent greater interest in amendments to the divorce laws. Basis for the kidding is that the youthful representative is not married, but expects to be pretty soon. It has been difficult to determine whether Dave wants the law liberalized so he can get rid of his wife more easily, or wants it tightened so his bride can't get rid of him.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

OUR SCHOOL MUDDLE (Wilson Daily Times)

Thrift is always an admirable trait, but it shouldn't be applied to schools. That's particularly true when the pupils of those schools are growing. For it's clearly naive to expect expanding institutions, in a period of inflation, to operate on less money. Yet the Director of the Budget and the Advisory Budget Commission have greatly trimmed the requisitions of the State Board of Education, forcing the latter, if it stays within the set appropriations, to curtail the school year. It doesn't exactly make sense in a period of rising revenues.

The 1949 general assembly authorized a $2,200-$3,000 teacher salary schedule on a contingent basis. If the money were in the treasury, the teachers might have it. But that was for the school year of 1949-50 alone. Now it expects those teachers to return to the old schedule, despite the fact that the pupil load per teacher has been greatly increased. Unless adequate provisions are made, (1) for the new schedule, (2) for more teachers, (3) for sufficient bus drivers to handle the present buses, and (4) for the necessary funds to keep those buses going, our school system will greatly deteriorate in the next two years.

That something will have to be done can almost be taken for granted. For we're not so parsimonious as that. The State Board of Education is confident the state revenues in the current year will greatly exceed the revenues of last year. Are we really up to the task of the state treasury while our children are neglected in our schools? Will we use those funds, as one of the members of the board said, to build classrooms on every corner in Raleigh? The situation is far more serious than most realize. And it behooves all of us to tell our representatives in the assembly just that.

Business Today

By ELMER ROSENBERG

The "austerity" home may be on its way.

Builders and contractors generally agree that the credit limitations on new homes will not seriously diminish demand. They do agree that shortages will restrict supply. Right now they are working to get around shortages.

Copper, steel, zinc, chrome and hardware are short and growing shorter. But lumber is available, though expensive. Brick, glass, some plastics and ceramics are in adequate supply.

So the trick is to build houses with less of scarce materials and more of available supplies. Builders say they can do it.

There will be no steel girders in the austerity home. There'll be fewer bathrooms, too, although there may be large closets that can be converted into bathrooms at some later date. Plumbing and wiring patterns will be simplified. The pipes will probably be of iron instead of copper or brass and there will be a minimum of electric outlets. There will be more arches and fewer doors, to save hardware and ash. Buyers may have to use drapes over closets until they can find and install doors themselves. They may get open cupboards or cupboards with sliding glass panels.

Already a sharp shift from the policy of equipping houses with major appliances has been felt. Houses finished last year often had built-in television receivers as well as electric stoves, refrigerators and washing machines. But manufacturers have lost interest in selling to builders at wholesale prices, so builders are providing the space for these accessories and letting buyers fill them as best they can.

All this, of course, promises a revival of the old, old fights between builders and architects and city fathers over building codes. Many of these alternatives would be illegal in most metropolitan areas. But this time the builders think they have the upper hand. They can say, "Permit austerity houses or have none at all."

FOOD AT WHOLESALE OFFERED FREEZER BUYERS

Continuing supplies of frozen foods at wholesale prices are being offered to purchasers of a food freezer by a New York distributor. The distributor also supplies recipes and menus.

Sale of food freezers is high again, after having leveled off last year. War scares are causing many households to try to stock up foodstuffs, especially meats.

BREWERY PROMOTION: WRITING LETTER TO G.P.

One hundred thousand kits of stationery, containing envelopes, paper and pencils, are being given to Army, Navy and Air personnel by a major brewer. They will be distributed through the Special Services Division of the Armed Forces. It is expected to build good will both among the service men and their friends and relatives.

HUGE TURKISH TOBACCO PURCHASE

A large American tobacco company has bought out the Turkish government monopoly's hold-over stocks, according to reports to the Department of Agriculture. A total of 24,250,000 pounds was purchased for approximately $14,000,000. Private dealers are hoping to do an equal amount to other American firms.

The Turks are very happy about the deal. It increases Turkey's supply of dollars and puts the government in position to support new tobacco crops.

COMMERCE PUBLISHERS BOOK ON TEXTILES

A 326-page review of fiber characteristics and their influence on textiles prepared for the Quartermaster's Research and Development Branch, has been published by the Department of Commerce. It abstracts 1,053 reports on viscosity, deformation, friction, solvation and density and other technical aspects.

JANUARY BUYING HIGHEST IN OHIO

The January wave of buying for hoarding appears to have been largest in the Cleveland Federal Reserve District, where department store sales ran 39 per cent above a year ago. Second largest buying was in the San Francisco district, with a rise of 37 per cent. The national average was 32 per cent.

Hal Boyle's Column

By JIM BECKER (FOR HAL BOYLE)

Western front, Korea—(AP)—Watching the Korean war was like earning a living; I had to start sometime.

Sometime for me was a few weeks ago. Here are some impressions the war has made on this newcomer—impressions that it might have made on you if you were seeing it for the first time.

The legendary sense of humor is alive in this nondescript country, probably the only spot in the world where it can be muddy and dusty at the same time. A frontline infantryman was stalled behind a mudbank.

A lieutenant was stalled in the next mudpuddle.

"The next time we have visitors I want you to shave, Sergeant," grinned the Lieutenant. The Sergeant fingered the black stubble that nearly hid his face.

"You are supposed to set me an example, Lieutenant," he drawled at the officer whose beard was even blacker.

Just sleeping, eating, keeping clean—functions which you take for granted—are ordeals to the combat soldier. He sleeps in a hole in the ground—it's easier to dig now that the ground is thawing—eats his canned rations any way he can—"some jerk left the can opener out of every C ration that we had to open the cans with bayonets"—and almost never washes—it's hardly worth the trouble heating the water if you can find any.

If there is a house left in Korea you won't find it around here.

The incredible destruction of war is everywhere as opposing armies struggle over the same ground for the third time.

Almost all civilians have left the battle area. The few remaining mill aimlessly through rubble streets. They are not interested in cleaning up the mess. Owners of small businesses have disappeared, leaving their investment in machinery and equipment behind. Fires and bombs and shells have struck again and again and you can see the blackened ruins of equipment through gaping holes in the walls of tiny shops.

In one shop there is a mangled printing press that has been burned and returned into uselessness. Type is scattered over the floor amid piles of filthy plaster. You can imagine the mood of utter despair and hopelessness of the owner if he returns and sees the ruins of his livelihood.

Clean-cut young American men are dying here daily. Other young Americans have learned to accept the fact and go on about their business—which is killing Chinese.

"Sometimes you don't even get a chance to learn the names of the new guys before they get it," said a GI.

If it were not for the almost ceaseless thunder of allied artillery, a casual visitor to a frontline headquarters might never guess that there was a war on. Trucks and men all in the open, secure in the knowledge that no enemy planes will come. Many trucks and jeeps sport gaily-colored panels to identify them to friendly planes.

Fighting G's gather around a fire only a few thousand yards from the front. "It must be tough on the Chinese," said one soldier squatting beside a roaring blaze. "They cannot light fires to get warm. They just have to sit and take it. If those planes or those artillery spotters saw a wisp of smoke they would have a nice target."

Although death and wounds are the star boarders, these men seldom talk about them. A good way to end a thriving conversation is to discuss the fighting. The front line soldier busily and efficiently accomplishes his daily tasks but he does not want to talk about it when his day's work is finished.

When you get home from a hard day at the office you probably like to change the subject too.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—When Mrs. Owen Brewster, wife of the Republican Senator from Maine, first came to the Capital in 1941, she didn't meet a Republican for a whole week. "It was quite a shock," she told me.

A Wellesley graduate, born in Portland, Me., Mrs. Brewster was her husband's helpmate during his service in the both houses of the Maine State Legislature and two terms as Governor. She was ready to take on the rigorous duties of a congressman's wife in the Capital and plunged wholeheartedly into the regime, at that time more demanding than today.

"We lived at a hotel when we first came here, and the first Republican wife I met was Margaret Chase, wife of the late Rep. Ralph Chase, now herself a member of Congress," Mrs. Brewster said. "Those days we had to call on everybody. Mrs. Chase and I went out together, starting early and we did everything correctly. First call was at the White House, then the vice president's wife."

After that congressional wives had to call first on wives of members of their husbands' state delegations. Tuesdays, they visited wives of House members; Thursdays, Senate wives. On Mondays, they called on wives of Supreme Court justices who held "at homes" that day; Wednesdays on the Cabinet, and Fridays, the diplomatic wives.

Until this calling business was terminated after World War II started, Mrs. Brewster herself set aside one Tuesday a month for an "at home," held particularly for Maine people.

In addition to her calling, like most congressional wives, she joined the Congressional Club made up of congressional wives, served once as treasurer and is now a member of the advisory committee. She also joined the Senate Ladies Club, which is active in Red Cross work, and she belongs to the 74th Congress Club made up of wives whose husbands came to Capitol Hill at that time. Mrs. Truman is a member of this group. Her husband went into the Senate at the same time as Mrs. Brewster's husband.

Mrs. Brewster says her first duty has been to constituents. She used to personally conduct them about on sight-seeing junkets around the Capital in her own car.

"I had three tours I took them on. It seemed as if I were always climbing monument steps." She continues this activity today as much as possible.

Pirates Take Second Win Over Western Carolina, 98-68

Hodges Scores 22 In Seventh Conference Win

The East Carolina Pirates put on another shooting exhibition here last night to down the West Carolina Catamounts, 98 to 68, for their second win in as many nights over the visiting western five. The shooting for both teams was exceptionally good, but there was never any doubt as to the outcome of the game, as the Pirates took an early lead and was never seriously threatened by the game, but smaller Catamount team.

The Pirates had things pretty much their own way throughout most of the game, but couldn't afford to let up at any time against the fast and sharp shooting Catamounts. The visitors began to close the gap in the closing minutes of the half, and it looked for a while that they might catch up with the leading Pirates. Rodney Rogers, the Cats' high scoring forward, hit on three straight shots from the floor just before the half ended that cut the Pirates' lead to eight points and they left the court at the intermission leading 48 to 40.

In the second half it was East Carolina all the way, as they got off to a fast scoring pace to leave the Catamounts far behind. The Pirates led after eight minutes of play had elapsed by 26 points, 72 to 52. The visitors were never able to make the game much closer than this at any time during the second half.

Bobby Hodges was the scoring leader for the Pirates, dropping in 22 points for the night. Charlie Huffman was close behind with 20. The rest of the scoring was shared pretty evenly. Lou Collie and Sonny Russell got 14 and 13 respectively for the Pirates.

Top scorer for the visiting Catamounts was little Rodney Rogers, the conference's high scorer, who poured in 19 points in a losing cause. Jim Bennett hit for 12, and Ned Strahela 10.

This win gives the Pirates a 7 and 6 conference record, and virtually assures them a berth in the North State tournament, to be held late in February.

Ryder Cup Play Is Scheduled For Pinehurst, N.C.

Los Angeles, Feb. 7—(AP)—Golf's international classic, the Ryder Cup matches between the United States and Great Britain, will be played Nov. 2 and 4 at the picturesque Pinehurst Country Club in North Carolina.

The leading 10 professionals of England will be shooting for their first victory over America's Big 10 since 1933 and their very first win in this country since the cup first started shuttling across the ocean in 1927.

The 6,970-yard Pinehurst layout was named as the 1951 site yesterday by President Joe Novak of the Professional Golfers Association following conferences with Dick Tufts, Pinehurst operator, and Robert A. Hudson, Portland, Ore., chairman of the PGA advisory committee.

It is the first time a southern course has been the honored host for the biennial golfing fixture, which has been contested on odd years since 1927, with the exception of the war years from 1938 through 1946.

Previous American Ryder Cup courses were Worcester, Mass., 1927; Scioto, C. C., Columbus, O., 1931; Ridgewood, N. J., 1935; and Portland, Ore., 1947.

The last British invasion resulted in an 11 to 1 setback. The U. S. team, however, was hard pressed to take a 7-5 win in the last matches in 1949 at Scarborough, England.

Phantoms Lose To Elizabeth City 37-31

Locals Fail In Second Half, Aman Scores 13

The Greenville Phantoms dropped their fifth conference loss of the season last night to the Elizabeth City Yellow Jacket five, in a very close game, 37-31. It was the second loss of the year to the strong Yellow Jacket cagers.

Stokes-Belvoir Split Two Games

Stokes and Belvoir split a double-header last night in Pitt County Conference basketball play. The Stokes boys gained a narrow victory over the Belvoir boys by the close score of 41 to 40. The game was close all the way, and the final outcome was not decided until the closing seconds of the game. Robinson led the scoring for Stokes with 15 points. Warren dumped in 14 to come in second.

In the girls game, Morris scored 12 points to lead her team to victory over the faltering Stokes sextet. Pollard had 10 for the winning Belvoir girls. J. Taylor scored 5 for the Stokes girls.

Score by quarters:

Eppes Loses Twin Bill To Goldsboro

The Epps high school cagers dropped a doubleheader to Goldsboro high, by a score of 35 to 33 in the boys game, while the girls lost their contest to the Goldsboro sextet, 30 to 14.

Williams led the Goldsboro boys to victory as he scored 11 points. Matthews was the leading scorer for the winning Goldsboro girls with 21 points.

High Point Sets State Record In 119-88 Win At ACC

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two games—one a loop battle—comprise the North State Conference basketball card tonight. Appalachian will be at Elon in the conference tilt and Catawba will be at Newberry in the other game.

High Point just about tore up the conference record book in its 119-88 conquest of Atlantic Christian last night.

Jesse Joyce's 44 points and Ed Suetia's 40 both bettered the old individual scoring record. Joyce also set a new record in making 20 of 22 attempted free throws.

High Point's 119 points was a new team high for the conference and the state. The Panthers' 40 field goals and 39 free throws also established new conference marks.

East Carolina Teachers almost pulled a repeat act on Western Carolina. Last night East Carolina mauled WCTC 98-68. The night before East Carolina plastered WCTC 98-69. Bobby Hodges and Charley Huffman led the winners last night with 22 and 20 points.

FIREBALL POWERED

Long-term Investment that pays daily dividends

THESE are days when thoughtful people turn their minds to the durability of things they purchase—and that makes good sense at any time.

But you may have noticed that it's a rare occasion when doing your duty turns out to be the best way to satisfy your heart's desire.

That's what's so marvelous about this '51 Buick.

If you picked a car just for the lift it gives you—your pride in its power and pace—or its generous comfort and room—you couldn't make a better choice.

But make note of this:

That gleaming new push-bar forefront, which greets your eye with flashing beauty, contains 25 grille bars made of stamped steel, individually mounted to "give" and come back unharmed. Combined with a massive, wrap-around bumper, fortified by two stalwart "bumper bombs" and two added uprights, it gives unsurpassed protection.

The springs of stout spiraled steel on all four wheels let your wheels dip and curtsy over uneven highways, while you ride level as a lance. But these springs also need no servicing, and breakage is virtually unknown.

Buick's great-powered engine is a Fireball, wondrously lively and eager at the mere touch of your toe—but it also wrings extra power from every drop of fuel, and has the mechanical perfection that comes only from years of experience with this basic design.

Dynaflow Drive gives every mile you drive effortless smoothness of control—but it also eliminates clutch repair bills, saves tires, puts less strain on the whole driving mechanism, from engine to differential.

The road-steady gait of a Buick gives you a sense of relaxed security—and is also evidence that you have a durable, deep-silled, X-braced frame beneath you.

However you check it, you'll discover this: The things that make you yearn for a Buick on first acquaintance, are the very same things that make Buick such a smart long-time buy.

Better make it a point to see your Buick dealer—soon.

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

No other car provides all this:

DYNAFLOW DRIVE—saves strain on driver and car
FIREBALL POWER—high-compression, valve-in-head engine gets more good from every drop of fuel PUSH-BAR FOREFRONT—combines smart style and unsurpassed protection
WHITE-GLOW INSTRUMENTS—greater clarity at night
TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE—steadies ride, improves driving control
DUAL VENTILATION—outside air fed separately to right or left of front compartment

4-WHEEL COIL SPRINGING—cushions ride, saves servicing costs
SELF-ENERGIZING BRAKES—hydraulic, multi-pedal-pressure five times at brake drum
DREAMLINE STYLING—tapered, car-length molders, gleaming sweepers on most models
Plus: Self-locking luggage lid, Step-On parking brake, two-way ignition lock, Safety Ride rims, Hi-Poised engine mounting, Body by Fisher

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Series.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

Chapter 32
Elsie, looking bigger than ever in an unadorned sheath dress of black satin, held the place of honor beside Captain Rosario, looking for all the world like the cat that swallowed the cream.
Every now and then she would make some droll comment that would cause a ripple of laughter to pass around the table, then join in the laughter herself. The captain would look at her blankly for a moment, then chuckle appreciatively and regard her with unconcealed admiration. It was obvious that Elsie, just being herself, was making a smash hit and that Captain Rosario was already thinking in terms of wedding bells. Molly and Peter, catching Elsie's eye, smiled their encouragement.

Countess Olga Wedemer and Mark Norwood sat at a table for two, seemingly oblivious to everyone but each other. For once, Norwood did not seem to be interested in food, although the menu more than lived up to the gastronomic occasion. His interest was in his companion, who was showing a lively interest in him.

Molly, watching them, thought she had never seen a more attractive couple than the dark, glamorous countess and the distinguished-looking archeologist. It suggested to her that they too had come to an understanding.
Even Elsie had finally conceded that the countess wasn't a spy.

"I guess I was wrong about her," Elsie had said, "though I seldom make mistakes about people. She's just a lonely woman, like myself, putting her best foot forward in the hope of finding the right man. You should see her stateroom. It's crummiest than mine. I imagine she rented those diamonds—just for show."

Molly hoped Olga Wedemer had found the right man in Mark Norwood. If appearances were to be trusted, she had. Molly believed she detected the wedding-bell look in Mark Norwood's face, in Olga Wedemer's too, and she said so to Peter. He smiled indulgently, presented her hand under the table and said:

"It's in our eyes, darling. We can't see anything else."
"No, I guess not. Maybe," Molly added thoughtfully, "because I'm so happy, I just imagine everybody else is happy too."
Impulsively she glanced across at the natty table where Patricia and Bert Hasbrook were seated, laughing and chattering away with Marcia Collings and Clay Howell. Her eyes met Bert's and she smiled at her. He was in the act of lifting a champagne glass to his lips, but he put it down and spoke to the others, motioning toward Molly and Peter. Then the four looked across, smiled, and drank a silent toast to Molly and Peter. Molly felt a sudden rush of tears to her eyes as she waved a hand in acknowledgement.

"Oh, I'm so glad," she told Peter. "Now I know we're good friends. I didn't want to hurt Bert, and I know you didn't want to hurt Pat. I'm glad they've found Marcia and Clay."

After dinner they dropped in to the smoking room bar for a few dances, and Molly danced with Bert. The orchestra was playing "Remember," and he said, drawing her close to him for a brief moment:

"I'll always remember you, Molly."

"And I'll always remember you, too."

She was glad when the music stopped and Peter came to claim her for the next number. Oddly enough, the orchestra was now playing "Always," as part of an Irving Berlin series. Peter hummed along with the music:

"I'll be loving you always..."

She managed to hum along with him. Nevertheless, she was glad when he suggested that they leave the dance floor and go up to the boat deck where they could talk over their plans again. She believed now that she had hurt Bert by breaking off the engagement. His unexpected good sportsmanship had touched her. It was Peter she loved, but she had not wanted to hurt anybody.

They sat on a bench on the deserted boat deck, their arms entwined, talking over their plans for the future; plans that were now so familiar that discussing them was more or less a matter of routine and an excuse for being together as much as possible.

Molly would go straight to Washington, give in her resignation, perhaps work a few weeks until someone had been found to replace her. Then she would go on to Milledgeville, for she and Peter planned to be married in the little church that she and her father had attended. In the town where everybody would rejoice to see "Old Doc" Leonard's daughter Molly marrying a struggling young doctor and getting right back into the groove where she really belonged, always had belonged.

How had she ever been so silly as to think she could run away from her rightful destiny? How had she ever been so stupid as to think that the people her father had ministered to would have forgotten him, forgotten her?

Meanwhile, Peter would find another small town — as much like Milledgeville as possible—where a good general practitioner was needed, and arrange to set up an office.

"We could settle for Milledgeville," she reminded him, as she had once before. "It's a wonderful town, wonderful people. And least there's a house there—and an office of sorts. I'm sure Father's old friends would just flood to you."

He put a hand over her lips.
"No more of that, darling. I want no ready-made setup, no ready-made practice. If I did, I'd go back to my home town and hang out a shingle. I'm starting from scratch, completely on my own.
Of course the going will be tough for a while, maybe always. We won't have any money for luxury cruises and things..."

"Money—what's that? She teased. "Never having had any to speak of, I wouldn't know. And as for tough going—what do you think I am anyhow, Peter O'Malley? A birdbrain?"

For a moment Peter didn't speak. He simply took her in his arms and kissed her quite thoroughly. "What do I think you are?" he repeated presently. "I think you're just exactly what any farsighted doctor would order for a wife. Even if I didn't love you, I'd want to marry you anyhow."

"Well! Of all things," Molly exclaimed. Then she grinned and snuggled close to him. This was no time to be coy or to mince words. She was as sure of Peter's love for her as she was of her love for him. That was enough for any woman.

First rehearsals in a one-act play to be staged by the Little Theater Guild for the March Drama Festival at East Carolina will be held tonight in the City Hall.

"Hands Across the Sea," a short comedy by Noel Coward, will be presented by the Guild this year and marks a continuation of the comedies that were begun last year by the group. The play concerns a mistaken effort by a man and his wife in an upper middle-class English home to entertain "Mr. and Mrs. Big" but, as it evolves, are not.

The English author and playwright's humor is sprinkled lavishly throughout and the humorous aspect of the play depends almost entirely on dialogue provided by an assortment of characters who drop into the drawingroom, speculating as to just who the couple is.

The new play has not been cast completely as yet. Directing the Guild's newest production is Mrs. Edith Spinks and Miss Anne Aske, president of the Guild, will be stage manager.

The production of "Hands Across the Sea," plus the other 11 plays during the Festival, will be free to the public.

Prominent Negro Leader To Speak Here Tonight

James A. (Bilbro) Jackson, prominent Negro speaker, will address local citizens at the Fleming Street School tonight at 8 o'clock.

The visitor is associated with two of this country's larger firms, the Standard Oil Co. of America, and is vice-president of the Southern Life Insurance Co. of Baltimore.

Mr. Jackson is a life member of the American Teachers Association, and is one of the first Negroes to be listed in "Who's Who in America."

Both white and colored residents of Greenville and the county are invited to hear him speak.

Colored News

A series of Negro History-Week programs, sponsored by the Farmville Colored Parent-Teachers Association, will be held at various churches of Farmville. Beginning the series on Sunday night February 11th, the Glee Club of Farmville colored high school will sing at Macedonia Baptist church. Other programs will follow on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. The public is cordially invited to attend.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, according to an old adage. All work and no food takes too much off the beautician's beauty. Must have been in the mind of Mrs. Gertrude Latham when she entertained Local 23 at her home Monday at 5 p.m.

Mrs. Molly Harding presided. Mrs. May E. Whitehurst read the minutes and called for reports. Mesdames Streeter, Latham and Miss Harding made their report of the coming attraction of "Hats On Parade." A discussion followed roll and adjournment.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. M. Barnhill on Tyson Street.

Mrs. Chestinn Copper Morning, long-time resident of this city, died Sunday morning, Feb. 4, at 1:00 a.m. Mrs. Morning has been ill for quite some time at her home, 1206 Clark Street. Funeral rites will be conducted at Mount Calvary F. W. B. Church of this city at 1:00 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. The Rev. E. M. Hill, pastor, will officiate.

Mrs. Morning was mother at the church, active member of the Home Mission Circle and Willing Workers Club until stricken by illness.

Surviving are her husband, Noah Morning; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Gaskins of Washington, D.C.; two sons, Robert Cooper, New York City, and Leon Cooper, Newark, N. J.; three sisters, Mrs. Mattie Hopkins, Greenville, Mrs. Beulah Saunders, Richmond, and Mrs. Mary Harold, Tarboro; one brother, Emmitt Worsley, Richmond; one son-in-law, J. R. Gaskins, Washington, D.C.; one brother-in-law, Elisha Hopkins of Greenville; two daughters-in-law of New York and Newark; and 12 step children.

The World Day of Prayer service will be conducted at York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church Friday, February 9, at 3:00 o'clock.

NOTICE OF RE-SALE

Under and by virtue of the authority and direction of those certain orders entered by Hon. H. L. Lewis, Jr., Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County in those certain Special Proceedings therein pending, entitled: "Gilbert A. Moore and others, vs. Louis W. Gaylord, Jr., Guardian ad Litem," being S. P. No. 5314, and "In the Matter of: Gilbert A. Moore and others, Ex Parte"; being S. P. No. 5315, on the 25th day of January 1951, directing a re-sale of the Ira M. Moore Lands, and the Guilford L. Moore lands, by reason of a fifth raise in bid, said lands to be re-offered for resale together as a whole, the undersigned Commissioner will on Friday, the 9th day of February, 1951, at 12:00 noon, before the Court House door in Greenville, N. C., offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash, subject to the confirmation by the Court, the following described tracts of land and improvements thereon:

1st Tract: Situate in Pactolus Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and known as the Ira M. Moore farm lands. Bounded on the South by the Grindle Creek Canal; on the East by the Henry Whitehurst lands known as the L. C. Moore lands; on the North by Roy Weatherington lands known as Spencer Moore lands and on the West by Roy Weatherington's Spencer Moore land, and containing 190 acres, more or less, and formerly known as the Carney Lands. And being Lot No. 6, of the Carney Division, excepting 13.5 acres heretofore conveyed by deed in Book T-20, page 159. For title reference see Book P-7, at page 216, and Book DD (EE) page 209, of the Register of Deeds Office of Pitt County.

2nd Tract: Lying and being in Pactolus Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and known as the Guilford L. Moore Home Place, bounded on the South by the Grindle Creek Canal; on the East by James Whichard land and J. L. Ross land; on the Northeast and North by the J. J. Perkins and Ben Randolph land; and on the West by the Henry Whitehurst lands known as the "Tuck Moore Place." Said tract of land known as the Moore Lands, and containing 180 acres, more or less, excepting the reference see Book R. R., pages 112 and 113, in the Register of Deeds office of Pitt County. And being the same lands whereon Arley V. Moore and her sisters resided, and the same whereon Ira M. Moore resided prior to his death.

The two tracts of land will be offered for sale together at a starting bid of $30,805.00, being the raise in bid. The purchaser at this sale will be required to make a deposit of ten per cent of the purchase bid to await confirmation by the court.

This 25th day of January, 1951.
