Huge Gas Tank Installed; Still Awaits Odd Parts

The gas tank shown above has been installed to help relieve the present low gas pressure in the southwestern area of the city. The 30,000 gallon steel cylinder was recently installed just off the Atlantic Coast-line railroad track between 12th and 13th streets. However, the recent railroad strike has held up shipment of parts that will complete the construction of the auxiliary pumping station. It is expected by the Utilities Commission that a 10-15 day waiting period will be necessitated before the station begins operation after arrival of the parts. (Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Truman's Latest Defiance Of Congress Stirs Solons

RFC And Subversive Control Board Appointments Adds To Existing Friction; Pressures Noted, Friends Suggest Key West Vacation

Washington, Feb. 13—(AP)—President Truman's newest political defiance of Congress found critical lawmakers spilling a fight today over RFC and subversive control board appointments.

Adding to the White House-Congress friction, Senator George (D-Ga.) joined economy critics in demanding a $5,000,000 slash in the budget the President dared the legislators to cut.

And Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) wrote James K. Vardaman Jr., a Federal Reserve Board member, that Mr. Truman has "failed to grasp the basic issues of fiscal policy" in the Treasury-Reserve Board row over interest rates.

The President's action in sending back to Congress 10 nominations once given the deep freeze treatment obviously dismayed some of his best friends on Capitol Hill.

These lawmakers guessed privately that Mr. Truman's timing was off a bit because of presidential irritation at criticism of his policies and appointees and because of physical weariness from his heavy burdens.

Senator Douglas (D-Ill.) went so far as to note publicly that Mr. Truman has been working "under tremendous pressure."

Some friends have been suggesting that the President ought to take a brief Key West, Fla. vacation, as he has in other years about this time. But he has rejected the idea.

The President's action in resubmitting five nominations for the RFC board caught by surprise some senators who believed that a compromise on the dispute status of that agency was well along in the works.

This compromise was reported to call for reduction of the board to one man and preservation of the agency as an independent unit.

In this case, W. Elmer Harber of Oklahoma, the present chairman, would carry on. Democratic leaders said privately they believe Harber is the only one of five directors who could win confirmation without a serious fight.

It's a notable commentary of our times that Persia's serious young Shah has joined Asiatic leaders who at long last recognize abject poverty as being the cause of most of the unrest in their part of the world.

Twice within recent days 32-year-old Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi has made striking moves to better conditions in his own country. He first will sell his huge holdings to the land-hungry peasants. Yesterday he capped this by ordering that the celebrations in connection with his marriage to the Princess Saraya Efsandiari should be stripped of the usual regal pomp and be confined to one day as a measure of national economy.

Vote Bill Loses

Raleigh, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Senate voted 29 to 15 today against lowering the voting age to 18.

The roll-call vote came after lengthy debate and after the upper chamber defeated an effort by proponents to postpone consideration until Thursday.

If approved by the legislature, the question would have been submitted to voters of the state at the next general election.

Yesterday afternoon the road-block of all highways leading into Greenville by the Highway Patrol and the Police Department was described as highly successful by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who participated with the law enforcement officers. Each car that was traveling toward town was stopped by the officers and the driver was handed a card describing Freedom Day by one of the Jaycees.

Approximately 1,000 cards were printed for the event and were completely given out by two o'clock. It was reported that many out of state motorists were stopped and reminded of the day and its activities.

Tomorrow is open house day at the city schools. All parents are invited to attend the children's classes and to inspect the city schools' facilities for teaching. Tomorrow night the radio station will continue the nightly series of broadcasts on some phase of Americanism when a round-table report—"Your City Reports To You"—will be conducted by members of the city government.

At dusk, the slanting rays of the sun lighted up the balloons' bottoms, giving them the saucer-like appearances, Liddell said.

He added that many of the disks were sighted as the sun set.

He said the existence of the big balloons was kept secret because the project was connected with atomic developments.

Liddell, who was in charge of the balloon tests, said they carried instruments to record the results of collisions between cosmic rays and atoms in the earth's atmosphere.

He added that secrecy was no longer necessary.

The physicist said 2,000 reports of "flying saucers" were checked, and those considered "whimsical" were eliminated. Of the "reliable" reports, he said "there is not a single X X X observation which is not attributable to the cosmic balloons."

Colder weather was in prospect for much of the central part of the country as the cold air mass spread southward from the northern plains. It was below zero today in some midwest regions.

Sleet and ice covered a large portion of northern Illinois, northern Indiana and southern Michigan today, making driving extremely hazardous.

One to two inches of snow has fallen over much of Iowa, southern Wisconsin and lower Michigan.

There were fresh falls of snow in a wide belt from the Great Lakes region southwestward to the southern plains and central Rocky Mountain states. Rain and freezing rain pelted the southern edge of the snow belt from Lake Erie to northern Missouri.

It was 22 below zero in Bismarck, N. D., early today and 15 below in Duluth, Minn. Sharp drops in temperatures were forecast for the north central states, and cold waves were predicted for Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

Comparatively mild weather was reported over most of the eastern and southern states, in the far southwest and most of the Pacific coast.

By The Associated Press Winter threw another blast of sub-zero cold, snow and sleet over mid-west areas today. Some of the icy weather spread into the central Rockies and northern Texas.

Offices Of City Open To Public

Citizenship Day Observed; Open House In City Schools For Tomorrow

Americanism Week took its turn with the students of the City school system today as students and teachers alike observed Citizenship Day, the second day of the week-long program designed to bring the fundamentals of Democracy home to the public.

The Declaration of Independence was read to the students for the first part of the day's program in the classrooms. And throughout the rest of the week the student government activities, that are practiced through the year, will have special emphasis placed on them.

Meanwhile, the offices of the City Department were opened to the general public for its inspection. All offices in the City Hall were opened as were the Fire Department, the courthouse and the county jail. During the rest of the day the public is invited to inspect the buildings and the facilities of each of the city and county offices.

School Superintendent June H. Rose will continue the day's emphasis on the school system when he delivers a 15-minute talk tonight, generally on the subject of freedom of education. The program will be aired over WGTG at eight o'clock.

Chinese Attempt To Split Allied Lines In New Attack

Big Four Deputies To Arrange Meet

Will Set Terms, Place And Date Of Foreign Ministers' Conference; Move Climaxes Long Series Of Notes

Paris, Feb. 13—(AP)—Big Four deputies will meet in Paris between March 10 and 15 to arrange for a meeting of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, a French government official said today.

This source said the deputies would set the terms, a place, and date for the meeting.

Such a meeting would have as its main purpose the working out of an agenda for the Big Four conference.

The deputies, it was reported, will be special representatives named for the occasion. Alexandre Parodi, director-general of the French Foreign Office, is expected to be the French delegate.

Some sources here said Philip C. Jessup, U.S. ambassador at large, might represent the United States. Jessup has been meeting with the British and French ambassadors in Washington on western policy toward a Big Four meeting.

The exchange of notes between the East and West on the proposed Big Four meeting began last Nov. 3 when the Soviet Union invited the western powers to meet and discuss the future of Germany with accent on the demilitarization of that country.

The western powers agreed to a conference on condition that all the world's critical problems would be discussed. Russia answered that she was willing to participate in such talks but she still clung to the contention that Germany should have top priority in any meeting.

Russia said the deputies in their Paris meeting must be restricted to framing an agenda for the Big Four statesmen with no preliminary talks on policy matters.

Salisbury, N. C., Feb. 13—(AP)—Two young men were caught last night and the FBI said they admitted robbing the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Granite Quarry of $44,000 yesterday morning.

Charles W. Brown, agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said the third participant in the robbery was William Odell Black, 27, of Kannapolis, who has not been arrested. Brown described Black as having long burnside, and a tattooed dagger through a sn-- on one arm. The agent said Black also has a black cat tattooed on one shoulder.

State Highway Patrolmen arrested James Josey, 18, of Granite Quarry, and Kenneth Eugene Jackson, 20, of Kannapolis. The FBI quoted them as admitting the robbery and saying a third man was with them. Officers recovered $15,000 which they said was Jackson's share of the loot.

Two other men also were implicated in the case and arrested. They are John Josey, James' father, and Jason Dockery Cole, Charlotte taxi driver in whose cab James was caught. Cole was charged with receiving stolen money for allegedly accepting $500 to drive James from Charlotte. That amount was found in his cab, officers said.

Jackson was arrested while walking on a highway near Granite Quarry, which is four miles from Salisbury. James Josey was caught in the cab at Faith, which also is not far from the bank in Rowan County. Both were arraigned before a U. S. Commissioner here and bound over to the April term of Federal Court in Salisbury. They were taken to the Stanley County jail in Albemarle to await trial on bank robbery charges.

They were taken without resistance.

Washington, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Labor Department said today the wage rates fixed for construction work on the Savannah River atomic project in South Carolina reflect the "prevailing wage" in the locality as required by law.

The CIO has protested to President Truman that the rates set by Secretary of Labor Tobin on Saturday were "wholly inadequate" for workers living under "boom-town conditions" in construction camps. The rates ranged from 90 cents for unskilled labor to $2.50 an hour for plumbers and steamfitters.

Under the Walsh-Healey law, Tobin is required to make sure that wage rates paid to workers on government contracts are at least equal to those prevailing in the locality.

Witness Relates Hiroshima Story To Rotary Club

Masami Koizumi Describes Fateful Day When A-Bomb Fell; Saw Blast

Hiroshima and its atomic blast was brought to Greenville Rotarians last night by one who witnessed it a mile and half away and lost a child and his home in the cataclysm—Masami Koizumi of Osaka, Japan. He was introduced by Dr. Howard McGinnis who said that Koizumi was born and educated through college in Japan and since 1945 has been an interpreter in the Educational Division of the American occupation forces. "A good will ambassador" is what Dr. McGinnis called him.

Koizumi is in the United States on a scholarship to study for one year at the University of North Carolina with the funds provided by the 27th District of Rotary International of which Howard McGinnis is District Governor and in Greenville club a part. The scholarship idea was originated by Gene Booth but matured and brought to fruition under the District Governorship of Dr. McGinnis.

"Distinguished Rotarians of the Rotary Club, I am grateful to be able to come to the USA and meet the distinguished members of the Rotary Club. Broadmindedness, goodwill, and generosity brought me over the ocean," Koizumi opened his remarks. He declared he could not thank the Rotarians enough; so, he was resolved to work his hardest.

He explained that he had been in the United States just two weeks and was trying to get adjusted. In spite of the fact he said every word distinctly and spoke in good sentences with a fine appreciation of American idioms, he apologized for his poor English.

"All the people in my country have been very grateful for your economic support and your political and educational leadership. The people of Japan are ready to work with the people of the United States," he stated as his message from his people to the United States.

Then he began to tell of Hiroshima. He was in Hiroshima City August 5, 1945, seated at his office desk in the plant where he worked in a clerical capacity. He said he saw the light in the sky.

At this point he warned that the Rotarians would not like the story and only proceeded at the insistence of his audience. He said he had reached his office at that bright, warm, sunny day at eight a.m. It was at 8:15 that he saw the bright light and a few minutes later heard the great blast. People in Hiroshima, he explained, were just waiting for their turn from the American bombs since the Japanese cities were being bombed one after another.

"I was waiting myself to be killed by a bomb any day. The Emperor had said we would fight to the end," he related. On hearing the explosion he got under his desk and waited for the next one. Hearing none, but noticing the talking of some people outside the plant, he went out. There in the sky was the mushroom cloud high up. At the time he thought it was some kind of gas that had been dropped from planes which had been ignited, for it was some time later he learned of atomic energy.

Massive Drive Through Corridors; Arthur Visits Western Front; Air Power Taking Toll Of Reds; Bitter Fighting Eases

Tokyo, Feb. 13—(AP)—Chinese communists shifted the direction of their massive attack in central Korea today and headed down mountain corridors in an effort to split the allied lines between Wouju and Yoju.

General MacArthur visited the western front and warned on his return to Tokyo that the enemy still has plenty of manpower and supplies.

The first Red onslaughts dented allied lines as much as 18 miles and swept United Nations forces out of the road center of Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wouju and 50 air miles east of Seoul.

But this apparently was only the eastern wing of a heavier attack now gathering momentum.

Heavier Attacks Ledoff columns of at least seven Chinese divisions massed in the area west of Hoengsong and north of Chipyong struck southward Tuesday. They slipped past Chipyong, 19 miles west of Hoengsong, and headed down two mountain valleys toward the Wouju-Yoju road.

The Chinese were moving in bands numbering up to 1,000 men. They ran into a fury of allied air attacks.

Allied Air Force, Marine and Navy planes combined in low-level strikes aimed to break up the mounting threat to the main east-west road in northern south Korea.

Once in possession of the road the Reds would be in position to strike east or west behind allied lines. They would menace the four or more divisions along the western front in the Seoul area; and 10th Corp units holding the central front line near Wouju.

Allied air power scoured one band of 1,000 Reds moving down the westernmost of the two valleys near Chipyong. They hit with flame-throwing napalm jelled gasoline and machinegun fire. Pilots estimated they killed 700 of this group.

Allied planes also hit two other groups—about 400 Reds 10 miles northeast of Yoju and another 100 skirting Chipyong.

There was little ground fighting Tuesday compared with Monday's blazing battle around Hoengsong. American and South Korean troops had fought their way out of the trap sprung by a 100,000-man Red force and had taken up new defensive positions.

Armies Regrouping Much of Tuesday was spent by both allies and communists in regrouping for new fighting.

But there was one clash 15 miles west of Wouju. An allied force drove back into the hills a Red column striking for the Wouju-Yoju road. Allied planes aided in routing the Reds.

The withdrawal from Hoengsong leaves Chipyong the northernmost allied stronghold on the central front.

Between the allied forces on the central and western fronts, U. S. Ninth Corps artillerymen pumped shells into Red-held areas where communists were believed massing for another big-scale attack.

The Ninth Corps had a new commander, Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, he relieved Maj. Gen. J. B. Coulter, whose new assignment was not disclosed.

Ione Bradsher Honored At A Coca Cola Party

On Friday morning at her home in Hillsdale, Mrs. Wesley Harvey was hostess at a Coca-Cola party to honor Miss Ione Bradsher, who will soon be married to Grover Cleveland Maxwell Jr. of Augusta, Ga.

Guests were received informally by Mrs. Harvey and Miss Bradsher and invited into the living room. Here red roses were used in lovely arrangements to add attractiveness to the room.

The dining room table was centered with a spray of pine encircled by winter fruits. A silver pitcher held a buffet arrangement of red snapdragons and fern.

A large cabbage holding hors d'oeuvres on toothpicks was placed in the center of the pine. Guests served themselves to sandwiches, canapes, nuts, mints and cakes, while the hostess served the Coca-Colas.

Approximately a dozen friends of the honoree enjoyed a delightful social hour following the refreshments. Miss Bradsher was given a gift of china as a remembrance from the hostess.

U.D.C. Contributes To Robert E. Lee Memorial

The United Daughters of the Confederacy will now have the privilege of memorializing General Robert E. Lee in the National Cathedral, Washington, D. C. This memorial is designed as a prayer chapel and occupies an outstanding position within the nave of the cathedral.

Millions of world travelers will visit this building dedicated to God. It is particularly fitting that a man of Lee's Godliness, of his sacrifices, of his colossal achievements, shall take his place in this holy structure.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy realize that our country's first line of defense is the moral integrity and stabilizing influence of spiritual ideals of our people. These ideals must be interpreted in a way that will command attention.

This cathedral, holding in its bosom the prayer chapel of Lee, is destined to do to the end of time.

Valentine Dance By College Groups Is Staged Saturday

A Valentine dance given Saturday evening in the Wright building at East Carolina Teachers College celebrated the 15th anniversary of the founding of the college department of business education. Members of the Commerce Club and the Beta Kappa chapter of Pi Omega Pi, student departmental organizations, were hosts and hostesses.

The auditorium of Wright was beautifully decorated for the dance in a color scheme of red and white. The center of attraction was a huge birthday cake in the heart of the dance floor. A large heart at the rear of the auditorium faced the stage, and was gaily decorated and brightly lit.

Lighting of candles on the birthday cake was carried out in a dance figure in which officers of the two organizations, faculty members of the department, and sponsors participated. Taking part were Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the department, and Mrs. Browning; Jane Al-

Bridge Party Held Friday By Am. Home Dept.

American Home Department of the Woman's Club held its February meeting at the clubhouse on February 9th.
At this time the business meeting was dispensed with and a bridge party was held instead.
A Valentine motif was carried out. Despite weather conditions bridge was played at five tables.
The following members received prizes: Mrs. C. C. Hilton, Mrs. J. L. Evans and Mrs. A. D. Barnes.
At the close of the bridge game, Mrs. Hinton Best, chairman of the refreshment committee, served the delicious refreshments, aided by the following hostesses: Mesdames C. D. Ward, Roy Martin, Ed Carter, Alton Baker, W. J. Bundy, Jack Foley, Howard Moyer, J. D. Aman, Banks Cozart, G. T. Stafford, R. H. Scheller.

Major M. A. Bradshaw, shown above, has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service in the Korean fighting. The award was presented in Japan where the Greenville flyer is stationed with the Far East Bomber Command. Bradshaw is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Bradshaw, 411 E. 10th Street.

Inoculation For Travelers Given
Geneva—(AP)—The World Health Organization has compiled and published a list of inoculations required by 122 countries and territories for travellers. Copies of the list can be obtained from national health administrations, port and airport health authorities, steamship navigation companies and airlines.

A reminder of the period of validity of certificates of vaccination or inoculation is also included. Figures from the date of immunization they are valid for smallpox inoculations from 14 days to three years; for cholera, seven days to six months; for yellow fever, 10 days to four years; for typhus, one year.

Ethiopian Coins Vanishing Soon After Issuance
Addis Ababa—(AP)—Ethiopia's silver and copper coins are vanishing from circulation almost as fast as they are issued. The situation is so grave here that a paper Ethiopian dollar is reported to be worth only 90 cents in coins on a new currency black market.

Some believe the shortage of hard cash can be traced to a preference among farmers for metal coins. They have never completely trusted paper currency and generally hoard their savings in the ground. Other reasons for the shortage are believed to be a hoarding of coins for their metal content and the underground transfer of coins to neighboring Eritrea, soon to be federated with Ethiopia.

'Elite' Workers Short-Changed By Mine Record
Berlin—(AP)—East Germany's 120,000 "activists" (the German version of the Russian Stakhanovs), are cursing the day that Adolf Hennecke dug 380 per cent of the required coal quota in a six-hour shift in a Saxony coal mine. The entire "work harder" movement in the Soviet zone was named after him.

The Communist East German Government decided, after Hennecke's feat, that none of the workers were doing as much as they could, otherwise, how could one miner have set such a record? As a result work quotas were increased, which meant the average worker had to work longer and harder for the same pay. Privately, it's admitted in the East zone that the "activists" are actually the most cheated of all workers.

Over 150 Attend Lions' Annual Event Monday

More than 150 Greenville Lions and visitors from over eastern North Carolina were present for the 12th annual Charter and Ladies Night held by the Greenville Lions Club at the Woman's Club last night.
The program was to have included Edgar M. Elbert, 2nd vice president of Lions International, as principal speaker but bad weather in Chicago forced the grounding of all flights South.
Call to order was made by Lions President Larry Averette and the group joined in singing "America," directed by Dan Vornholt.
There followed the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and invocation by A. Harwell Campbell.
Following the turkey supper, introduction of guests was made by Henry Swayne, which included the following civic club heads: Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Haney, from the Kiwanis Club; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Saied, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce; Rotary Club, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Wilkerson, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moyer, representing the Exchange Club.
Lewis Howe was present as Junior Lion from Greenville High School.

Club presidents and officials from other clubs in the district were present.
A special musical program by three members of the East Carolina Teachers College music class was well received. Several selections were rendered by Mary-Wallace Foy and Alfred Krekler, accompanied by Madeline Hodges at the piano.
District Governor O. E. Dowd introduced former District Governor Lewis Day of Rocky Mount who spoke to the club on "How To Make Your Lions Club Better."
Each of the ladies present were given a corsage, a small gift and candy.
The meeting adjourned with the singing of the North Carolina Lions Song.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
ROCK OR SAND?
COST OF FAITH

It is of little use for us to talk about our religion unless we try to put that religion into operation every day so that it will bring us confidence, security, and peace.

St. Paul was explicit in his directions to his followers as to how they could achieve this end. "This is the way I obtain it," he said; "you can obtain it in like fashion. I gave up an external, legalistic type of religion for the internal, spiritual religion of Jesus Christ. I renounced all things that I might gain that Person as my Friend, Companion, Lord, and Saviour. I paid the cost, and I received the reward."

But having received it and having entered into this new life, Paul did not allow himself to think that he had obtained all there is to obtain in a Christian experience or that he had already been made perfect. "But," said Paul, "I press on, if so be that I may lay hold on that for which also I was laid hold on by Christ Jesus."

Religious faith is acquired at the cost of sacrifice and continuous discipline. Having made one gain, we must press on to further and ultimate objects. Spiritual security is never gained permanently. The price of its retention is eternal vigilance.

The Need Becomes More Acute Each Year

North Carolina's motor vehicle registration for the past year reached an all-time high of 1,171,228; and this year the department of motor vehicles expects a registration of one and one-quarter million cars and trucks to operate on North Carolina's highways.

With the number steadily increasing from year to year, and the highway accident rate steadily rising, it is becoming imperative for more effective methods of coping with the state's highway problem.

The legislature already has killed the bill for a mechanical inspection of motor vehicles. It is still pondering the proposal to refuse to issue operator's licenses to illiterate, and other bills which affect the state's highway problems.

There is no one cure-all for North Carolina's terrible highway record. It is going to take a series of measures by the General Assembly to provide the necessary machinery which will cut down the highway deaths and injuries. But we would like to see the 1951 General Assembly take positive steps to meet the problem.

The need for legislation concerning the state's highway safety has been acute for some time. During the next two years it will become even more acute.

Citizenship-An Every-Day Quality Of Living

Citizenship is a word which carries with it a group of conflicting interpretations used by individuals to their best advantage.

Citizenship, according to Webster, is owing allegiance to a state. The owning of an allegiance to a democratic state or nation carries with it a responsibility to uphold the laws of the nation and its subdivisions of government. It carries with it the obligation to support the nation's philosophy of government, and to contribute to the welfare of the nation as a whole by participating in government activities through exercising the right of the secret ballot on election day.

To some people in this country, citizenship denotes a right to behave as they please without regard for the welfare of the country or its people.

Some citizens of this country advocate the overthrow of the government by force, and the creation of a state under one of several forms of dictatorship. As citizens, they say, they are given the constitutional right to say what they please, and advocate what they please.

Some citizens believe they have the right to break the laws of the state because they are sure the state guarantees them a fair trial, and they may never be punished for their offense.

But as citizens, these people are overlooking their obligation to the heritage which has given them the right of free speech, the right to express new ideas and new philosophies. They overlook the undying efforts of millions of people who have sought to preserve our system of courts and laws to this day. Indeed, without the democratic government of the people which guarantees the fundamental freedoms, there would be the right to serve the state rather than be served by it.

Good citizenship is not all philosophy. Good citizenship is daily abiding by the laws of the government, cooperating with the officials whose job it is to see that the laws are not broken; cooperating with the officials whose job it is to create the laws by which the people live; and participating in the election of the officials whose job it is to administer the government of the nation.

Citizenship is not a possession to be stored away and used only when an individual's personal freedoms are threatened. It is a quality which should be exhibited in many ways every day by every individual. It is a quality by which the individual seeks, in his own way, to make a better nation in which to live.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—The Truman Administration has notified London and Paris, as well as foreign affairs experts on Capitol Hill, that it will not confer with Stalin on a possible settlement of world disputes until it has strengthened its military position here and abroad to such an extent that the western allies will enjoy an advantage in any bargaining.

Britain and France are eager for negotiations which, in their opinion, may furnish a last chance to avoid a World War III in the near future. The United States has been hesitant and skeptical, believing that no definite or constructive solution could result from further talks.

But Moscow's February 6 memo on the question indicates that the Russians are equally eager to make certain concessions. They do not seem ready to fight it out.

TIME—The Truman-Acheson desire or delay is based on the belief that the advantage is slowly shifting to our side, and that time works for us. Meanwhile, the White House, State Department and the Pentagon have formulated a military and diplomatic strategy designed to bulwark our position even more powerfully.

Obviously, the details of the plan will not be announced formally or blueprinted. It consists of various moves which, though seemingly unrelated, form a single defensive and aggressive pattern.

In reality, it amounts to the first comprehensive and consistent program Washington has advanced against the expansions and encroachments of belligerent Communism.

MEN—Here, briefly, are the various maneuvers now in operation or preparation for this purpose:

(1) Congress must first adopt a draft or universal military training program that will insure a land force of at least 3,500,000 men by early fall, even though that total will not be prepared for active service.

It must also set up a reserve system that will provide a reservoir of soldiers for the next ten or twenty years. The Administration is willing to compromise on many of its earlier proposals in return for speedy action.

(2) In a recent off-the-record talk to a group of advisory business men, Defense Secretary Marshall emphasized that preparation for the "long pull" was as vital as creation of an immediate force. He urged them to use their individual and collective influence to impress this fact upon the public and Congress on their return to their home communities.

CHECK—(3) The Korean situation must be stabilized so that our troops' strategic position is improved, if possible. It will be of immediate importance for our world prestige, General Marshall points out, if our relatively small force can administer a severe check or defeat to Russian-trained and equipped Chinese Communists. That seems to be the situation now.

(4) A program must be worked out for use of Chiang Kai-shek's forces, in accord with General Douglas A. MacArthur's views. At the least, it may be possible to supply American arms, equipment and food to the 500,000 or more guerrillas on the mainland.

The argument against reinforcing Chiang Kai-shek, which was that it might provoke Russia to open warfare, seems to have been exploded by events. The Reds are already in the fighting up to their necks.

(5) Japan must be rearmed, albeit gradually. On his return to Washington from his Far Eastern mission, during which he discussed the problem with General MacArthur, Presidential emissary John Foster Dulles will make recommendations on this question.

EUROPE—(6) A token force of American troops, possibly two divisions but preferably four, should be sent to Western Europe as a contribution to the Eisenhower Army during 1951.

The number of fighter and bomber planes already stationed in England must be increased. Even if it means some sacrifice of weapons or units in training here, arms and ammunition must be rushed to vital points in Britain, the Low Countries and France.

The next two problems must be handled with extreme delicacy, but they are regarded as essential by our top military and Central Intelligence planners. They concern the possible use of atomic weapons, especially the smaller type tested at Las Vegas, in event of an outbreak and modernizing of Tito's dry Yugoslavian warriors with American advice and weapons.

DANGER—State Department experts are slightly worried over these last two possibilities. They are seeking a formula under which we can make our intentions clear with respect to A-bomb use and Yugoslavia with provoking Russia to an immediate march during the spring or summer.

But the military strategists insist that these two moves are vital. They argue that we cannot hope to hold off the Russians in Western Europe or the Balkans with land forces, either in 1951 or 1952. They insist that we must be prepared to drop "the thing."

They also point out we must not permit Yugoslavia to become "another Korea." Moreover, we must profit from bitter lessons that peninsula by reinforcing Tito before he is attacked by his Communist neighbors, not afterwards.

This is admittedly a difficult and far-ranging program that necessarily involves danger and facing our part. But it is believed that its achievement would force Stalin to listen to hard reason, whether or not the proposed peace powwows are held.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Although I have been living in Greenville for 22 years (except for three in the Army and four at Carolina), I had never seen a Kiwanis Minster until last year. And after seeing one, I'll never miss it again.

There are two good reasons why you shouldn't miss the show: (1) it's great, and (2) the proceeds are spent for underprivileged children in Pitt County. Newspapers usually receive complimentary tickets to shows they write up, and I was offered two to the minstrel. As much as I like to save a buck, I turned the tickets down and bought two. If 100 Greenville citizens can give their time and money producing a show worth $250, I can at least pay $1.25 to see it.

Last night at rehearsal I was talking to Judge J.W.H. Roberts, one of the show's end men. "Judge," I said, "have you got an angle for my column?"

"Yep," he replied. "You can say that Red (John C.) Clifford, the only man I've ever seen with his navel four inches off center, is considering having his navel moved." John is a member of the chorus in the men's ballet number, and his costume leaves his navel for observation.

Tonight the show is sold out to the college, but tickets are still available for the performances tomorrow and Thursday. Sunday the show will be given to the paraplegics at the Camp Lejeune naval hospital. Camp Lejeune was unable to provide transportation for the cast, so the American Red Cross is renting a Carolina Trailways bus for the occasion.

Last night the members of the cast were in high spirits, considering the grind of rehearsals for the past few weeks. Instead of being tense and on edge, they were joyous and full of praise for each other.

Every year at Kiwanis Minster time Greenville starts to buzz with speculation about the end men's jokes. The question is: how risqué will they be this year? During the nine years of production, the jokes have ranged from mild to strong, so they tell me. Nobody knows how they'll be this year, for the end men's jokes are not included in the rehearsals. One thing's certain: the more risqué the jokes, the bigger the crowd. There's nothing that draws a crowd like a shady joke. And when the profit goes for underprivileged children, I say it's OK. Anyway, the people who criticize such jokes the loudest are usually on the row "A" listening. I'll be on "N."

In case you don't know all of the end men, here's identifying information: Dr. Elmer Lansche is a dentist in the State Bank Building; Dr. Jim Barrett is a general practitioner of long standing in Greenville; James Ray Pittman runs the P and T Cash Grocery; Ed Goway is with the State Highway Commission; Judge J.W.H. Roberts is judge of the Municipal Court; Aubrey Pillely is head bookkeeper at the Carolina Dairy; Tige Gardner sells advertising items, and Kervin Conway is in the sign business.

Last year's profit for underprivileged children was $2,300. If you go to the show you might be the one to up that figure $1.25, and you'll see a show worth at least $2.50.

And I thank you.

of Congressman Hamilton C. Jones on the tenth district to stay in congress. He made it clear to your reporter and was backed up by numerous voters from his district attending the Jefferson-Jackson dinner that he expects to run again and expects to win. He isn't sure he will have serious opposition in the primary, but knows he will have a hard fight in the general election. Democratic candidates in that district always do. From other sources it is learned he will almost certainly have a fight for the nomination, but it was never intended to rule him out of the race more than a year in advance of the nominating time.

CONFUSION—The Washington contingent attending the party dinner, including both senators, several representatives, and a couple dozen other officials and clerks, bring word that there is a lot of confusion on the banks of the Potomac. They claim most of it is not serious, having a much higher nuisance value than real intrinsic worth in respect to carrying out policies of the national administration both in domestic and international affairs. The governmental setup is so big and much of it is so new it is difficult for visitors to find just where to go and who to see in order to get decisions on matters affecting them. But the Washington folks, who know more about it than the casual visitors, insist that there is a strong thread of continuity and dependability running through the maze of bureaucracy.

CANDIDATE—Newspaper folks make a lot of mistakes and many times do not double check their copy to see if they wrote what they intended to say. To their day, for instance, this corner sought to convey information or prediction that there would be real contests in the ninth and tenth congressional districts next year, as well as in the twelfth district where Congressman Monroe Redden has announced decision not to run again. What came out of the typewriter was that there would also be vacancies in the ninth and tenth districts. Whether the veteran Congressman Robert L. Doughton will run again has not been ascertained, but there is no doubt about present purposes

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

FREE HAND — Senator Willis Smith was clearing with majority leader E. W. McFarland about probable doing in the senate early this week. Senator Smith was billed to speak at the Farm Bureau convention at Asheville Wednesday night and wanted to know if he would be needed on the senate floor before Thursday morning. "No," said Senator McFarland, "there will not be any matters of consequence on the floor all week. I told them Republicans they could have their stuff and we'll take up important business again next Monday."

DIVERSITY — Some Tarheel boosters were apologizing to Senator and Mrs. McFarland for greeting them with snow and ice on their first visit to this state, since they were accustomed to such hot weather in Arizona. The McFarlands proved to be as good boosters for the variety and diversity of climate in their state as were the North Carolinians. They pointed out that in comparative weather bureau reports, Yuma is one of the hottest places in the nation and Flagstaff one of the coldest. Prescott is a mile high, and you still have to go up hill to Flagstaff. Southern Arizona is a winter resort area, while the northern part of the state is filled with summer resorts. As usual the Carolinians had to get in the last word. In this instance it was an invitation from the Smiths to the McFarlands to visit them at their Atlantic Beach place in connection with a prospective inspection tour of U.S. Marines bases at Camp Lejeune and Cherry Point, when "we will really show you something."

HAPPENSTANCE — Roy Rowe of Burgaw came a day early for the Jefferson-Jackson dinner. He said there was no significance to the early arrival; it just happened that way. Rowe is several times members of the general assembly, having served in both senate and house. Also he is an avowed candidate for lieutenant governor. Further also he has along with his other business enterprises several moving picture theaters. So he was having a hard time convincing other folks that his visit had no relation to tentative announcement of other candidates for lieutenant governor or the amendment to put a tax on gross receipts of theaters.

CONGRESSMAN — The Washington contingent attending the party dinner, including both senators, several representatives, and a couple dozen other officials and clerks, bring word that there is a lot of confusion on the banks of the Potomac. ## What Other Papers Are Thinking

Where The Questions Start (Greensboro Daily News) In the Raleigh News and Observer's report of the meeting of the board of trustees of East Carolina Teachers College in the Capital City preliminary to presentation of that institution's budget request to the joint appropriations committee, this paragraph caught our attention: At its morning meeting, the board approved the granting of degrees, as of February 24, to 48 candidates, as follows: 37 for the B.S. degree; 10, the A. B. degree; and one, the M. A. degree. Right there is where the question starts. How justified are E. C. T. C. and the other state teacher training colleges in offering a master's degree? How sound is their offering of graduate work? How well are they meeting their primary and designated obligation of turning out teachers, particularly elementary teachers, and how well grounded in subject matter, aside from methodology, are the teachers whom they do turn out? What co-ordinations factor or agency is behind these institutions? Are they autonomous in their ability to go ahead with whatever program or policy they wish, as for instance the offering of post-graduate courses? To the Daily News it seems that this is a field which is ripe, even overripe, for study and for guidance, correlation and the establishment of policy which will best serve the public school system, of which it must be that these colleges are very definitely a complementary part. How does a teacher training institution become a liberal arts college, when why and to what underlying purpose? One thing we definitely know is that North Carolina is not turning out the teachers—again with emphasis on the elementary—that it sorely needs. And that is exceedingly serious business, in the consideration of which the schools which are supposed to be doing the job ought to have new and closer examination.

Wrote a Navy wife: "It is hard for me to understand why C.W. isn't taking advantage of the many alleged benefits, including that of being overpaid, by immediately joining one of the armed services so that he, too, can live a life of luxury and ease. Master Sergeant Patrick D. Smith of the Marines demanded: 'Where did C. W. get his dope from?' The Daily Worker?" An unnamed officer's wife, who seemed to find her lot less glamorous than C. W.'s, pictured it, had only this to say: "I'd like a puff of that stuff C. W.'s smoking. About now, I need it."

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The fact that the price of shark oil is not controlled is only one of the reasons the wage-price regulations are barely jelling prices and certainly not freezing them.

There are a number of others. Some have been discussed here no later than yesterday. Here is a round-up of reasons why current price and wage controls don't control:

1. The Defense Production Act specifically exempts farm products that are selling below parity prices. This decontrols a lot of vital commodities.

2. The price freeze order exempts "any raw and unprocessed agricultural commodity when sold by the producer of that commodity." This involves a whole lot of commodities. It is true that the processor can't increase his prices, but when the producer insists on more for his crop, the processor has these alternatives: (a) handling the commodity at less profit or at a loss, (b) trying to get an exception to his price ceiling, or (c) selling in the black market.

3. It is impossible for the government to control selling prices abroad; therefore, when foreign prices rise importers must (a) either take less profit or a loss, (b) take an appeal to the Office of Price Controls, (c) go out of business, or (d) turn to the black market.

4. The price control exempts a long list of commodities in addition to shark oil, notably cotton when sold by the producer, raw wool when sold by the producer (the sheep, huh?), live animals, fresh fruits, tree nuts (was the peanut lobby doing?), fresh fish, seeds, exotic oils, etc. As the prices for these commodities rise, they will affect the cost of living, thus tending to increase wages tied to costs of living, thus tending to increase all prices.

5. The price control order exempts many other goods and services, some of which enter into the cost of living and hence will be a basis for increases in wages.

6. The "highest delivered price" provision of price regulations chops a big hole in the ceiling. Many companies have used a system of penalty and premium prices to discourage small-order and slow-pay customers. Now (unless Mike DiSalle does a lot of detective work and mind reading) these companies can charge all customers this premium price.

7. The margin-freeze order, now in the works, contemplates margins as of June, a high-margin month compared with January and August, enabling retailers to apply June margins the year around.

8. There is nothing in the price-freeze order to prevent manufacturers from reducing production of low-priced lines although this may be slowed down by specific orders and control regulations.

9. The Economic Stabilization Agency's policy appears to sanction wage increases contracted for before January 25, which includes cost-of-living escalation in many contracts. Thus the rise in prices will cause increases in the cost of living, the rise in the cost of living will produce rises in prices, the rises in prices will cause higher wages and so on.

10. The cotton bloc in Congress is working for exemption of cotton products; the soy, peanut, tobacco and other agrarian blocs will be under pressure for similar action. Each bloc, a minority in itself, can prevail only by logrolling operations with other blocs, thus opening the way for general exemptions of farm products and goods processed from them.

11. There is a black market. There was a black market even before the freeze. There was not only a black market all during World War II, but it was shipped by the Department of Labor and the price index was based, in part, on black market prices. (It had to be, or the index would have been merely an exercise in arithmetic.) Thus the black market will tend to shove up wages tied to the cost of living, and these wages, as in the case of coal, will have to be reflected in higher prices.

The cost of living for moderate-income families rose 39 per cent from 1940 to 1946. There appears to be no reason for believing that a similar or worse rise will not take place in the period ahead.

"RAINCHECKS" KEEP CUSTOMERS HAPPY

One way to lose customers is to be out of an article advertised at a special price. To overcome this, a New Orleans chain issues "rainchecks" when its stores are out of an advertised item. The checks permit a customer to return and buy the article later at the advertised price.

NEW AND HOT

DETERGENT: A new detergent called Joy, by Procter & Gamble Co., Gwynne Building, Cincinnati 1, Ohio, is said to make instant suds, leave no scum or grease, cause no fading and produce no sneezes.

ADDITIVE: Still under development is a new free-floating aerogel additive for lubricants, said to impart many useful characteristics. A data sheet on the aerogel, called Santocel ARD, is available from Monsanto Chemical Co., Everett, Mass.

COVERS: Matching table, chair and shelf covers are being produced from Vinylite plastic, which resists moisture, food acids and most chemicals, by Weis & Klau Co., 462 Broadway, New York 13. They may be cleaned with a damp cloth and require no ironing.

PAJAMAS: One-piece all-day pajamas for toddler featuring metal gripper fasteners for easy dressing and moisture-resistant vinylite linings in the diaper area are being introduced by Alexis, Inc., 191 Marietta St., N.W., Atlanta, Ga.

POLISH: First product to be perfected in the world-famous research work of S. C. Johnson and Son, Inc., at Racine, Wis., is a new type of wax furniture polish which gives a shine without polishing. It is not recommended for plastics and is too slick for floors, but gives furniture a high gloss.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ED CREAUGH (For HAL BOYLE)

Washington, Feb. 13—(AP)—To hear this fellow C. W. tell it, the boys in uniform never had it so good.

Listen to him: "Good salaries... small income tax... no worries about medical, dental or hospital bills... gasoline for their personal cars... generous pensions..."

"Except for the draftees, practically every man in uniform gets more money than he could in civilian life."

That's what the man said, in a letter to the Washington Evening Star.

True, he explained he wasn't talking about combat troops—mostly about military desk-sitters. But that didn't help him when the cries of indignation began to arise.

"A fine example of subversive propaganda engendered by ignorance and prejudice," thundered an Air Force Major from across the Potomac River in Virginia—where there's a building called the Pentagon...with lots of desks.

"The writer of that piece of nonsense is either terribly misinformed, drunk or in the pay of some faction trying to cause dissension," snorted another officer.

And from "disgusted wife and mother" came this picture of her husband—31, a World War Two veteran, now called back to service: "He does not even have enough clothes to wear. He is in a god-forsaken camp here in Virginia, and doesn't know why or what he is in service for."

The Star published portions of such letters yesterday and reported they're still coming. It didn't identify C. W., the author of the letter that started the fuss, but commented that he "seems to have hit the jackpot." He seems to have hit a lot of sore spots, too.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—Some 160,000 business and professional women the nation over are being asked to prepare to extend their special capabilities to civil defense jobs in the event of an emergency.

Miss Clara L. Longstreth, young instructor of Law at the Washington College of Law, American University here, is the newly-named national chairman of the project being conducted by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Inc. She is a member of the District of Columbia club, the largest of the Federation's 2,500 member groups.

"Civil defense is so big and important it has to be coordinated," Miss Longstreth told me. "My main objective is to get the highest possible cooperation, not only of our organization, but of its individual members with all civil authorities." Miss Longstreth says the organization is "stimulating" local groups to take available training courses in first aid, fire-fighting and home nursing, until such time as local authorities get their own programs started.

"If a woman is able to be an administrative assistant, she should not be wasted on a job she knows less about. Each woman should be expected to give of herself to her full capacity," she said.

With their varied occupations, interests and abilities, women members of the federation, she feels, can find a specialized job in the programs being outlined in the various communities.

"In the event of an emergency, life must go on," she explains, "so for every ability we have in our private, ordinary existence there should be a ready available skill. For every peace-time job there is a corresponding emergency need."

She says, however, that the current "calling on all women" project is primarily "an effort toward establishing and maintaining peace," rather than actual preparation for war. "It's like talking out insurance," she says.

Miss Longstreth, who was born in Waukegan, Ill., came to Washington in 1938 after flipping a coin. She almost went to California instead. She lives in Washington with her mother, Mrs. Electa Drury Longstreth, a former school teacher, her brother Russell, and a nephew. Her father, Wallace I. Longstreth, M. D., was a small town doctor.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
A "United Nations Seminar" will be held in New York City, March 27-30, under sponsorship of the Board of Education, the Woman's Division of Christian Service, and the Commission on World Peace—all of the Methodist Church. About 75 Methodist women from all parts of the nation will attend. The seminar will give special attention to the matter of U. S. trusteeship, and discuss issues in "the light of a Christian's responsibility". Mrs. Clifford A. Bender, observer at the U. N. for the Woman's Division of Christian Service, is making arrangements for sessions with the U. S. mission, and with delegates from other nations.

The newly-chosen officers of the General Department of United Church Women—now a part of the National Council of the Churches—are: president, Mrs. James D. Wyker, Ohio; vice-presidents, Mrs. J. Lewis Gillies, Calif.; Mrs. E. Thompson Hollis, Okla.; and Mrs. William Sale Terrell, Conn.; recording secretary, Mrs. H. M. Patrick, N. J.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. R. Crawford, Va.; treasurer, Mrs. Norman Vincent Peete, N. Y.

The Philadelphia Motherhouse of Deaconesses (United Lutheran Church) through its director, Sister Anna Ebert, has agreed to enroll a dozen refugee girls who desire to train for the diaconate. The young women are to be chosen in Europe and sent to the U. S. by the Lutheran World Federation's Service to Refugees. They will be enabled to spend a six-month period of probation at the Motherhouse, after which they will be free to decide whether they desire to continue their training, and serve the Lutheran church in the U. S.

Believing that there is a need for a place of quiet meditation where business women may go to escape the world's hurry for a little while, members of the Wesleyan Service Guild of First Methodist Church, Little Rock, Arkansas, have established a prayer vigil in the chapel of the Y.W.C.A. Miss Martha Allis has prepared a book of vigil worship containing prayers, meditation, quotations and Scripture readings. The women gather in the chapel for half an hour each afternoon.

Fraud Charged In Tax Returns

Greensboro, N. C., Feb. 13—(AP)—A High Point furniture store has been charged in Middle District Federal Court here with filing false and fraudulent excess profits tax returns.

The charges were filed yesterday against J. Sanders Dallas and J. D. McCrery of Dallas, Inc. The Internal Revenue Department also charged Dallas with falsifying his personal income taxes for the years 1944 and 1945.

The men posted bond of $2,500 each.

The southernmost point of Great Britain is in Cornwall, and it is known as Lizard Point.

Sweet Potato Is Often Mistakenly Called Yam

By J. W. Sumner
Asst. County Agent
The use of the word "Yam" for sweet potatoes has been with us about 40 years. It is unfortunate that this term has been used for sweet potatoes since the name belongs to another plant which is not closely related to the sweet potato. The true yam belongs to the Yam Family while the sweet potato belongs to the morning glory family.

In common place the term Yam is used to designate any moist-fleshed variety of sweet potatoes although southern growers use the term for certain types grown in the south, chiefly the Porto Rico.

Big Cake For 104th Birthday

Westfield, N. J., Feb. 13—(AP)—Mr. Katherine Greensalke Lyon was 104 today thanks, she said, to good food, a little walking and a wee nip of whiskey each night before going to bed.

At the home of her daughter where she lives, the spry old lady said no special celebration was planned—just a few close friends to help eat a large birthday cake.

campaign in Peninsula, Florida to have the true yams grown commercially for shipment to New York City and other large eastern terminals. The consumer for this production was the Latin American population of these cities. Following on the heels of this promotion, the Porto Rico sweet potato was imported to Georgia and Florida from Porto Rico. This took place about 1910. It seems no one knows the exact date. Since they were already shipping true yams when the Porto Rico was brought in, it seemed logical that shippers capitalized on the original promotion to sell this new sweet potato; thus the continued use of the word "Yam" for the Porto Rico variety.

There are probably more names given to varieties of sweet potatoes than any other crop. At least 200 names are given to the varieties of sweet potatoes grown in the United States, but it is safe to say that not over 40 true varieties are to be found in this country. Only 10 of these varieties are of any commercial importance and four of them constitute about 90 per cent of the commercial crop. It would be to the advantage of growers, dealers, and consumers if three-fourths of these varieties were eliminated and only those kept that have distinct merit.

(Ed. note) The next in the series of sweet potato meetings for Pitt County will be at Belvoir High School Thursday, February 15 at 7:00 P. M. This one is to be followed by one at Grifton High School Tuesday, February 20 at 7:00 P. M.

Wife Is Held In Hotel Shooting

Asheville, N. C., Feb. 13—(AP)—An inquest will be held today into the death of William Curry McNeely, 24, who was shot in an Asheville hotel yesterday afternoon.

Coroner Dr. P. R. Terry said McNeely's pretty, redheaded 19-year-old wife, Ann, was being held in Buncombe County jail pending the outcome of the inquest.

Terry said McNeely died from a bullet wound which entered the body on the left side, ranging upward and striking the heart. The coroner quoted Mrs. McNeely, who says she was married to McNeely three times, as saying, "He smacked me and I told him if he smacked me again on my sore mouth, I'd kill him."

"He did smack me and I pulled a gun out from under a pillow and shot him."

A marriage license in their hotel room indicated they had been married for the third time last January.

Doctorate Given U. S. Ambassador

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 13—(AP)—Edward R. Dudley, Negro U. S. ambassador to Liberia, last night was awarded an honorary Doctorate of Laws by Johnson C. Smith University.

Dudley graduated from the University in 1932. He is a former Assistant Attorney General of New York state.

Educators Back School Speed-Up

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 13—(AP)—North Carolina's education standards will not be lowered if a speed-up high school education program is inaugurated during the national emergency.

This was decided at a meeting here yesterday of Tar Heel educators. The conference was called by the State Department of Public Instruction to study the question of stepping up high school and college programs to allow students to progress as far as possible before reaching the draft age.

Some 75 city and county school superintendents and representatives of colleges attended. They voted to set up a committee which will look into problems and possibilities of a speed-up program. The committee will report back at a meeting March 27.

The group also called for a committee to assemble and publish a bulletin dealing with how the draft will affect young students. The educators looked with favor on a possible speed-up in education, but declared they were opposed to any lowering of the present standards.

Hospital 'Books' Crooner Crosby

Santa Monica, Calif., Feb. 13—(AP)—Bing Crosby is booked for a week's engagement at St. John's Hospital following an operation for a kidney ailment.

The singer was operated on yesterday by Dr. F. C. Schumberger and was reported resting comfortably. The surgeon said Crosby would be hospitalized at least a week.

Monday's Cases In Police Court

Four cases dealing with assault on females highlighted Monday morning's session of City Police Court.

Assault on female: Elijah Ebron, Negro, 90 days suspended on payment of $50, costs deducted, and pay $5 per week into Pitt County Welfare Office for support of child and pay $20 to Tassie Jenkins.

Albert Carr, Negro, not guilty; L. J. Cooper, Negro, paid $15; Roy Beachum, 30 days suspended on payment of $15 and support his family and not molest his wife.

Drunk: Asher G. McLawhorn, given a 30 days suspended sentence on payment of $15.

Drunk and disorderly: Martha E. Bullock, given a 30 days suspended sentence on payment of $15 and costs, and ordered not to go to mother's home without express invitation, and not molest mother in any way and not reside in the same neighborhood.

Careless and reckless driving: Ernest F. Harrison, not pro.

Possession of non-tax paid whiskey for purpose of sale: Ron Lee Warren, Negro, 18 months suspended on payment of $500, less costs. The case was appealed to Superior Court, though the woman had pleaded guilty to the charge. Bond was fixed at $300.

CORRECTION

Only $171 of the $500 that was stolen from Little's Service Station at Bruce last week has been recovered. It was reported earlier that $271 had been recovered.

Welles Attacks Byrnes' Conduct

Gainesville, Fla., Feb. 13—(AP)—Former Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles last night accused former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes of abandoning the essentials of the Yalta Agreement at the Moscow conference in 1945.

In a speech at the University of Florida, Welles expressed the belief that had the United States upheld and taken steps to enforce the Yalta agreement, it would not now find itself in its present position in Korea.

The author-statesman spoke out sharply against what he called the "Mugshot Line mentality." "Learned gentlemen have been stating that we should get out of the rest of the world. This is the same mentality that regarded the Mugshot Line impregnable," he declared.

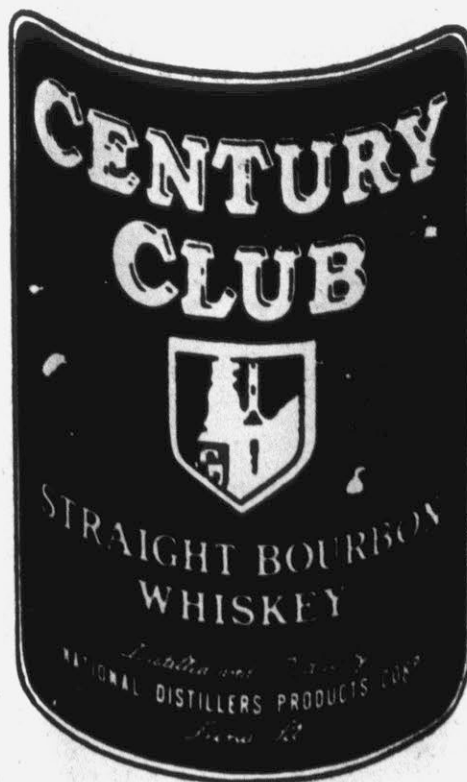

Byrnes, now Governor of South Carolina, could not be reached last night for comment on the speech.

Phantoms Meet Roanoke Rapids In Conference Encounter

Seek Fifth Conference Win On Home Grounds

The Greenville Phantoms will get back to conference play tonight when they take on the Roanoke Rapids quint here at 8 o'clock in the high school gymnasium.

The locals will be trying to get back in the win column after dropping their last two conference titles to Washington and Elizabeth City. The Phantoms are currently in fourth place in conference standings with a 4-5 record. A win tonight would bring them up to the 500 mark and a good chance to move into third place, ahead of their old rival, Washington.

Coach Farley will probably start his usual starting five, which will find Jake Higgs and Jim Dillingham at the forward spots, Sydney Briley at center, with Glenn Scott and Johnny Aman holding down the guard positions. Eddie Farley, reserve forward, and big Wallace Conway, who alternates with Briley at the pivot position, will probably see a lot of action against the sixth place Roanoke Rapids team.

The Phantoms defeated the visiting Roanoke Rapids quint in their first meeting earlier in the season, but by only a slim margin. The Phantoms came out on the long end of a 41-35 score in that contest, but had to stage a last quarter scoring spurt to come from behind and win.

Tonight's encounter should be a close and interesting game for local basketball fans to witness.

Bears Likely To Improve Record

By the Associated Press

Front-running Lenoir-Rhyne entertains cellar-dwelling Atlantic Christian tonight and hardly anybody expects anything but a slightly improved North State basketball record for the Bears.

Jim (Pappy) Hamilton's victory happy crew is currently riding saddle on the conference with an 11-2 record. Atlantic Christian is limping along at the other end of the standings with but a single conference win to its credit for the season.

Anything but a runaway for the Bears would be something of an upset.

The only other game on the card tonight features a non-conference battle between Hanes Hosiery and Guilford at Greensboro.

Last night's action saw Catawba running roughshod 79-49 over Atlantic Christian, while Western Carolina bowed 75-61 to a surprisingly strong Wofford team.

Larry Graham scored 17 points and Bill Hunsucker bagged 13 to spark the Catawba win.

Ellerbe Neal, a sparkling sophomore, found the range for 33 points for Wofford's Terriers in their win over Western Carolina.

Ninth Ranking State Will Seek Revenge Tonight

Richmond, Va., Feb. 13—(AP)—North Carolina State's Wolfpack, keeping a wary eye on the mad scramble of teams who would like a chance to unseat them in the annual Southern Conference tournament, sets out tonight to do a little avenging.

The four-time conference champions—ninth-ranked team in the nation this year—have an engagement in Raleigh tonight against the University of Louisville, one of three teams to whip the Wolfpack this year.

It's the second time N.C. State has had revenge in mind—Villanova was the target on a previous occasion. Villanova won that one and is the only team to beat the Wolfpack twice.

State had only the two defeats by Villanova to blot its record when it invaded Louisville two weeks ago and was routed, 86-70. A few evenings later, the Wolfpack was upended by William and Mary.

Nothing would please the Wolfpack more than to square accounts tonight with Louisville, now the 14th ranking team in the country.

While the Wolfpack looks to its national laurels, two conference teams will be battling tonight to stay in the running for the annual tournament the first three days in March.

Wake Forest entertains lowly Washington and Lee in one of the important struggles, while George Washington—desperately needing a win—is host to South Carolina, virtually assured of a tourney spot.

In addition to the State-Louisville battle, William and Mary has a non-conference engagement with the University of Virginia.

Lenoir Coach Named To Post At Appalachian

Boone, Feb. 13—(AP)—Preston A. Mull, football coach at Lenoir High School, has been named to succeed E. C. Duggins as head football coach at Appalachian State Teachers College.

Mull, who was an All-North State Conference guard at Appalachian in 1946, was named to the post yesterday. He will take over his new duties March 5, with the present coaching staff remaining intact.

Duggins received a leave of ab-

Sugar Ray - Jake Battle Tomorrow Night In Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 13—(AP)—Heavily favored in his five previous scraps with Jake LaMotta, Sugar Ray Robinson again is being backed from 3-1 to 4-1 to snare the Bronx Bull's middleweight belt tomorrow night.

The welterweight champion, in the peak of condition, and LaMotta battle the scales at 10 a.m. (CST) in the official weigh-in tomorrow.

Sugar expects to tip 154 pounds, his top weight, and Jake is confident he will make the 160 limit. He carried 176 a month ago before starting drills for his rival.

If LaMotta is over 160, he will be given two hours in which to make weight. If he fails, he will forfeit his middleweight title to Robinson right on the spot and the 15 round bout in Chicago stadium, starting at 10 p.m. (EST) will be little more than an exhibition.

Robinson prescribed a long sleep for himself today. LaMotta did not plan anything more strenuous than a walk in the Loop shopping district in abiding by his decision to rest for five days preceding defense of his crown.

The fact that Robinson has decided to vacate in four of his five meetings and that Jake is vacationing five days "to conserve strength after reducing" has kept the odds pretty near the 4-1 level.

Sugar Ray was a 4-1 favorite when he first met LaMotta in 1942 and rewarded his backers with a unanimous 10 round decision at Madison Square Garden.

In 1943 at Detroit, LaMotta was a 3-1 underdog who came through with a 10-round unanimous decision to hand Robinson his only loss in 123 fights.

In 1945 at Madison Square Garden, Robinson was 3-1 and took another unanimous 10-round count. In their last meeting Sept. 26, 1945, at Comiskey Park in Chicago, Sugar was 3-1 again and captured a split 12-round decision after a Las Motta uprising in the last two rounds.

Seventeen Yachts In Bahamas Race

Miami, Fla., Feb. 13—(AP)—Seventeen sailing yachts, ranging from the majestic 72-foot Ticonderoga to the trim 32-foot Larry, point their bows into the Atlantic at noon today for the 184-mile Miami to Nassau, Bahamas, race.

A spanking 15 to 18 mile an hour east to northeast breeze and fair skies have been forecast for the 13th annual deep sea test for vessels and skippers.

Two former winners, Revenoc, skippered by Harvey Conover of Larchmont, N.Y., and Ciclon, owned by Alfonso Gomez-Mena of Havana, Cuba, head the fleet of ocean-going yachts.

Larry, owned by Jacob Cabassa of Miami, was a last minute entry after being awarded the victory Saturday in the Sir Thomas Lipton cup race, a tuneup for the Miami-Nassau classic. Larry is the smallest craft competing.

A good hunch bet would be Kenyon Jewett's Malabar 13, winner of the Class B division last year. It's the 13th annual race and is being sailed on Feb. 13.

Craft of 40 to 60 feet in length are Class A; yachts of 40 feet or less are Class B.

Included in the starting fleet are Caribee, skippered by Carleton Mitchell, Annapolis, Md., and Mistress, William Hines, Kingston, N. C.

NORMAN, Okla.—One of the reasons for Oklahoma's basketball success this season is Ted Owens, above. The 165-pound senior comes from Hollis, Okla., the same town that produced Leon Heath and Darrell Royal of football fame and Merwin McConnell, Big Seven conference indoor broad jump champion. Owens, a 6-1 guard, is a terrific long shot. On his first 131 shots from various positions he made 62 baskets and meshed 33 of his first 38 foul attempts. Owens was one of the big cogs in Oklahoma's 44-40 win over the previously unbeaten Oklahoma Aggies, who had won 18 straight.

Harrison Beats Ford In Play-Off In Texas Open

San Antonio, Texas, Feb. 13—(AP)—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, with more than $2,000 added to his bankroll for winning the Texas Open, moved on to Harlingen today for a crack at the championship of the Rio Grande Valley Open.

Harrison, veteran of 17 years on the tournament trail, took his second Texas Open title in a span of a dozen seasons yesterday when he beat out Doug Ford of Briarcliff, N. Y., by a stroke in an 18-hole play-off. Ford was trying for his first major championship. The St. Andrews, Ill., old-timer to championship gold and the 27-year-old Ford tied for first place in the Texas Open Sunday with 72-hole totals of 265.

Yesterday, they got the thing over as quickly as possible. They played 18 holes in two hours and ten minutes—a new record locally, at least—with Harrison fashioning a four-under-par 67 over dusty 6,400-yard Brackenridge Park course.

Outdriving Ford consistently and playing carefully, the 40-year-old Harrison led virtually all the way. Ford managed to even things on no. 16 when he slapped in a five-footer for a birdie while Harrison barely missed an 18-footer and took a par. But on 17 Harrison's drive carried 360 yards onto the green and he two-putted for a birdie while Ford took two to get on and his eight-footer hung on the lip. Both birdied 18 and Harrison accepted the $2,000 first money. Ford took a $1,400 check as runner-up prize.

In addition each received $260.50 from the gate receipts.

Ford also will play at Harlingen and that means the Valley Open will have nine of the ten money-winners of the year.

PGA-Mexico Golf Squabble Called Golf's Big Jump

Mexico City, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Mexican Golf Association accused the United States PGA today of going back on its word and urged fair treatment for U. S. players entered in the Mexican Open Tournament.

"The PGA has no right to classify our National Open," the body added in a formal statement growing out of the squabble over participation of U. S. pros in the Mexican event, beginning Thursday.

The dispute put the severest strain on sports relations between Uncle Sam and his southern neighbor since the famous jump of major league baseball players below the border in 1946.

The golf version of baseball's "big jump" produced this rather delicate situation:

The PGA Tournament Committee told its barnstorming members last weekend at San Antonio, Tex., not to play in the Mexican Open. The PGA said this isn't a championship event because entries are obtained by invitation rather than qualification.

Seven players, including Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., and former PGA Champion Vic Ghezzi of New York, decided to play in the Mexican Open anyhow and promptly took off after the Texas Open.

The PGA announced disciplinary action, if any, would be withheld until after the Mexican tournament opens Thursday. If the U. S. players perform, they are subject to fines or suspensions, or both.

Others, besides Demaret and Ghezzi, who went south are: Al Besslerink of Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Morris Williams of Midland, Tex.; Ansel Snow of High Point, N. C.; Tony Holguin of San Antonio, Tex.; and Stan Dudas of Shawnee-On-The-Delaware, Pa.

Demaret is the militant spokesman of the U. S. rebels. "We came to play and that is what we are going to do," he declared.

Demaret said he and the other golfers had made commitments to play in Mexico and had made no promises for the Rio Grande Valley Open at Harlingen, Tex., which conflicts with the Mexican Tournament.

TOO MUCH SMOKE?

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Only two players on the Pittsburgh Pirates roster were born in Pennsylvania. Only four now reside in the state. None of the squad makes his home in the city of Pittsburgh.

NE T Tournament Will Be Held Here Feb. 22, 23, 24

Dates have been set for the fourth annual Northeastern Conference basketball tournament, to be held in Wright gymnasium on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College. The tournament will get underway on Thursday, February 22, and will continue thru the 23 and 24.

Only tentative plans have been made for the tournament so far, but a meeting of coaches and tournament officials is scheduled to be held in Kingston on February 21, and plans for the conference classic will be completed at this meeting.

All seven members of the conference will play in this year's tournament, with one team getting a bye in the first round of play. The other teams will be seeded according to their standing in the conference at the end of regular season play.

The Kingston Red Devils won the tournament last year, and will be defending their title in this year's event. They are currently in second place in conference standings, and are a good bet to finish the season in first or second place. If so they will be the top seeded team for the second time in two years.

Coach Bo Farley's local Phantoms will be a team to watch in the tournament, and have a good chance to cop the title this year. Although they are not having a great season in the won and lost column, the Phantoms have played great ball in most of their games and most of their losses have been by close scores. They have a conference record of 4 wins and 5 losses and are resting in fourth place right now, but have an excellent chance to finish the season above the 500 mark and in third place. A third place finish would put them in the top bracket in tourney pairings, increasing their chances to come out on top in the tournament.

Playoff To Decide KC Representative

Boone, N.C., Feb. 13—(AP)—The Carolinas representative for next month's National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament will be decided in a playoff at the Hickory Community Center Feb. 27-28.

Francis Hoover, chairman of the selection committee, announced the playoffs last night. Teams to participate in the Carolinas tourney will be selected Feb. 24.

The NAIB national tourney for small colleges will be held at Kansas City, Mo.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER
When a sash cord breaks and you are faced with the task of removing the sash weights from a window frame, you can understand why these heavy bludgeons have figured in celebrated crimes as instruments of murder. The job is enough to put any man in a murderous mood. So take it easy.

The double hung window is a wonderful contrivance. When in proper order, it should work smoothly and easily, yet should be snug enough to minimize heat loss and infiltration. But problems of windows that bind or rattle, sash cords that break or become squeezed in their pulleys, and other temper-trying annoyances turn up in the best regulated households.

Hardened accumulations of paint are one of the most common causes of sticking windows. Dampness, swelling the sash or frame and sometimes making the paint sticky, is a runner-up. Both of these troubles can be rectified rather simply. Settlement of a house, throwing a window frame out of square, is more serious.

Sometimes you can loosen a stuck window by taking hold of both sash cords, pulling them toward each other to raise the weights, and then letting them snap back.

Rapping the cross rail at the top of the lower sash, or bottom of the upper sash, with a hammer, also may loosen the window. But do this carefully. Pound only the ends of the rail, where it is joined to the side members of the sash. Never pound the center. This would

Here's Good News For Parents Of Puny Children

HADACOL May Relieve Cause Of Distress If Due To Lack Of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin, and Iron.

A healthy childhood is the basis for a healthy adult life. Little Lee Horton, age four, of 108 74th Avenue, Houston, Texas, was deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron and just didn't have any appetite at all. His father, Mr. F. W. Horton, said that they just couldn't get Lee to eat. Then they heard about HADACOL on the radio, and decided to try it for Lee. After taking HADACOL, said Mr. Horton, Lee's appetite picked up and he started eating three hearty meals a day. Now Lee has gained weight, has more energy, and never has to be coaxed to eat. Here is Mr. Horton's own statement: "Lee was very weak and run-down and just didn't want to eat at all. We heard about HADACOL on the radio and decided that was what was needed. After he started taking HADACOL his appetite picked up right away. He started gaining weight and eats real well now, and has been feeling real good. HADACOL has been good for Lee and I heartily recommend it to everyone." Boys and girls, here's a gift for you. A free Captain HADACOL comic book. Just write to The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, La.

(C) 1951, The LeBlanc Corporation.

loosen the putty and panes, crack the glass, or spring the rail loose at its joints.

A few drops of linseed oil in the crevice between sash and frame often help. Once the window is movable, rub the sliding grooves of the frame thoroughly with paraffin or beeswax.

If none of these expedients is successful and hardened paint appears to be the obstacle, it is necessary to remove the sash. This is easy if the interior molding on the frame is screwed in place. But usually it is nailed.

In that event, take a putty knife or other thin instrument and pry the molding loose gently to avoid marring the wood. When the nails are out far enough to afford a grip, remove them with a claw tack hammer, placing a block under the hammer to protect the wood.

With the molding removed, the sash will lift away from the frame and the offending paint can be scraped or sanded away. Thorough coating of the pulley stile, or runway for the sash, with linseed oil or paraffin will insure smooth operation.

If the sash or frame is loose from dampness, it may be necessary to sand or lightly plane for refitting. Care should be taken to avoid a loose fit and rattling window. The new surface should be generously oiled or waxed to keep out further moisture.

To remove the upper sash, it is necessary to remove the parting bead or stop molding between the two sashes after the lower sash is removed. A parting bead can be sanded or planned in such a way as to allow more play for the lower sash when it is raised than when it is closed. A fairly snug fit along the lower part of the bead makes for weather-tightness. This tightness is not needed above when the window is open. The same applies in reverse for the upper sash.

Removal of the sash offers access to the weight box, the bottom of which is covered with a panel screwed into place. This is easily removed for replacing broken sash cords. If you use chains for replacing cords your troubles on that score should be ended forever.

Adjust the length of sash cords carefully so the weight does not touch the pulley when the window is closed.

In replacing moldings and beads it is wise to use brass or other rustproof screws instead of nails, countersinking their flat heads. This will facilitate removal for any future adjustments.

Chicago, Feb. 12—(AP)—The young Negro woman who was found frozen stiff last week and amazed the medical profession by surviving the thawing out was holding her own today.

Although she was able to say yesterday that "I'm feeling fairly well," physicians at Michael Reese Hospital described her condition as still critical.

The woman, Mrs. Dorothy Mae Stevens, 23, had a body temperature of only 64 degrees—34.6 degrees below normal—last Thursday morning. When she was found lying in an alley in sub-zero weather, her body was rigid and physicians said her blood had chilled to a sludge.

Man In Uniform Costs Govm't $10,000 Yearly

Washington, Feb. 12—(AP)—When it comes to the cost of upkeep, the man in uniform is rapidly catching up with the blonde in milk and pearls.

The next time you see a GI walking along the street, you can say to yourself: "There goes a man it takes $10,000 a year to support." On the average, that is.

And the same goes for the lads in blue, green and gray—officers and enlisted men alike.

The figure is based on information the Department of Defense sent to the Armed Services Committee.

The committee is expected to act this week on a Defense Department proposal to set up a system of Universal Military Service and Training. Under this program men drafted to service would continue in a reserve force after active duty ended.

The Defense Department contends this would be less costly than maintaining a large standing army. It told the committee that it will cost approximately $35,000,000,000 a year just to support 3,500,000 men on active duty.

Committee aides explained that this money would go to feed 'em, clothe 'em, train 'em, house 'em, and put money into their pay envelopes; maintain their equipment—gas for planes, tanks and jeeps, and grease for rifles. It also would cover dependent's allotments for enlisted men assigned away from home.

But it doesn't cover the original cost of equipment, nor of barracks and bases, airfields, ships and radar warning systems.

On the other hand, Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.), of the Armed Services Committee pointed out, the reservist supports himself.

Republican Ranks Split Over Foreign Policy, But All Favor Cut In Budget

By The Associated Press

Republicans squabbled among themselves over foreign policy and "me-tooism" today but generally agreed there are still "pinkos" in the government. They all called for budget cuts.

In Lincoln Day political speeches across the nation, the GOP members demonstrated a wide difference of opinion on such issues as sending U. S. troops to Europe.

Some of them called for unity and urged a damper on "mere obstructionism." Others said that "me-tooism" had cost the party elections in the past.

There were new attacks on Secretary of State Acheson and several GOP speakers defended Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) and his attacks on communists in government.

Democrats brought McCarthy under fire in Senate debate in Washington yesterday and Senators

Hugh Butler (R-Meb.) and Langer (R-ND) sprang to his defense.

On the first anniversary of McCarthy's Lincoln Day speech at Wheeling, W. Va., which started the communist-in government fire-works, Senator Kilgore (D-WVa) demanded that the Wisconsin Senator "come to bat" with proof of his accusations.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the 1948 GOP presidential nominee, fired a blast in a New York City speech last night against Republicans who would limit aid to western Europe as Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and former President Herbert Hoover have suggested.

Calling for a world-wide Monroe Doctrine, Dewey said the United States must draw a global line and prepare to wage all-out war if Russian aggression crosses it.

He suggested that Atlantic Pact members plus Greece, Turkey, Iran, Spain, Yugoslavia and the Moslem world from Egypt to China be included in this free world area.

"Let us stop handing armies and navies over to the Russians," Dewey said. The only way to stop it is to draw the line. X X X we cannot protect ourselves by withdrawing from the rest of the world. Operation withdrawal is operation suicide."

Sen. Duff took himself out of 1952 presidential running, telling newsmen "under no circumstances" would he seek the nomination.

He said the GOP ought to forget factional fights and presidential ambitions and spend its energy on "developing a clean line of party philosophy."

Calling for a party decision "with respect to how and when and under what circumstances American troops are to be used abroad," Duff said the Republicans can't be "merely negative and critical."

Senator Saltmatt (R-Mass) denounced "isolationism" and contended that President Truman has the constitutional authority to send troops to Europe to become a part of the North Atlantic defense force.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the GOP floor leader, said in Pontiac, Mich., that Mr. Truman is "trying to 'usurp' that power from Congress. Wherry came out against sending any American divisions to Europe labelling as "compromisers" those like Taft who are willing to approve a limited number.

Wherry called again for Acheson's ouster, saying he had "failed miserably as Secretary of State."

Polio Treatment A Family Affair

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—The battle against polio is a family affair, says Dr. Robert L. Bennett, head of the department of physical medicine at Emory University Hospital.

Many children stricken with the disease, he states, must be treated over a period of years, and therefore the parent must learn the importance of both rest, and planned activity for the child. The doctor recommends that parents help the stricken child adjust socially as well as physically in the home environment.

Nurse Praises Pinkham's Compound for Relieving Periodic Female Pains and Symptoms Due to Change of Life

Has Taken It Herself For Over 30 Years!

We always consider it an honor to publish a letter from a nurse. Mrs. Rose McNally, who lives at 203 Stevens Road, Baltimore, Maryland, feels that Lydia Pinkham's Compound has been her best friend through the years. She writes us:

"I just had to tell you that Lydia Pinkham's Compound has helped me these past 30 years in relieving functional symptoms due to menstruation and the menopause. I am never without it. I am a nurse and work every day. Through change of life it has been my best friend in relieving distress of this nature, so I cannot praise it too highly.

"Lots of my friends have or are still taking it. So to sum it all up, I feel that Pinkham's Compound has been my best friend. I can swear to this and honestly. My husband is my best witness."

This Amazing Medicine Made Exclusively for Girls—Women

If you suffer painful monthly distress or feel tired, weak, nervous, "dragged-out" at such times—due to female functional periodic complaints—why not try Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve these symptoms? Lydia Pinkham's Compound is also very effective to relieve hot flashes, nervous irritability, tense emotions and dragged-out feelings—when due to functional change of life (usually between 35 and 55 years old).

You see Pinkham's Compound is what is known to doctors as a uterine sedative—it has such a wonderfully soothing antispasmodic action on one of woman's most important organs. Pinkham's Compound works through a woman's sympathetic nervous system to bring this welcome comforting relief.

Mrs. Rose McNally

Truly The Woman's Friend

Regular use of Lydia Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against this female monthly distress and functional change of life symptoms. Don't fail to try this remarkable medicine. No other medicine of this type for women has such a long record of success and use! Take it faithfully.

P. S. Many women prefer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron. Easy to take. Easy to carry in your purse.

FURLOUGH WITH FAGAN:—Pvt. Floyd C. Humeston sleeps contentedly with his pet lion, Fearless Fagan, near Fort Ord, Calif. The soldier told his commanding officer he needed a furlough to take care of his big cat which has been his pet for 17 years. He got the furlough all right, and found a home for Fearless Fagan in the animal shelter of the Monterey County Humane Society, only seven miles from Fort Ord. ## State Dept. Has New Critic In Legion's Chief Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12—(AP)—National Legion commander Erie Coker, Jr., declared today the "pink cowards of procrastination" we call our diplomats have laid a "China egg" over the Korean issue.

Coker, in an address prepared for the Legion's annual program at Abraham Lincoln's tomb here, asserted that the State Department "not only should be re-examined, it must be reconstituted."

"From the very beginning of our present dilemma," he said, "our State Department has kept the American people in the dark with its double talk, its double dealing, and what looks today like a reasonable facsimile of an outright double cross."

Coker, of Dawson, Ga., asserted that calling Red China an aggressor is "more pure pussyfooting." "Red China should be condemned as a criminal," he said.

Man's Best Friend Trapped By Fashion

By EDDY GILMORE

Paris, Feb. 13—(AP)—Man's best friend has been turned into an ornament of fickle female fashion.

This startling fact, which should make dog lovers growl from one hemisphere to the other, leaped into the limelight at one of the recent Paris fashion shows.

A model in a mauve cocktail dress toddled in dragging a poodle dyed purple to match her gown.

The dog, it was explained impersonally, was originally white.

The nice thing about having canines to match your ensembles, it was added, not without reason, is in the very variety of the thing.

Dogs are not limiting and confining like hats or handbags, which means, now that fashion has gotten around to painting pups, that more and different ensembles can be worn.

What this all shakes down to is: If the only dog you have around your house is a brown cur named Towser, this doesn't mean you are limited to wearing that old brown tweed, or the new green skirt because, while Towser might clash with a purple gown, you can change Towser's color easier than you can the gown.

Of course this new trend does not concern itself with how Towser might feel about his dye-baths, nor does it take into consideration the howls of protest that are bound to chorus from dog lovers the world over.

One of the largest aquamarines of fine quality ever found was a Brazilian stone weighing 348 pounds.

Advanced First Aid Class Held

A supplement to the standard Red Cross First Aid Manual, dealing with special injuries likely to be encountered in wartime with advanced war weapons now being used, has been released, according to Pitt County's First Aid Chairman Eugene E. King.

The new material is being taught in addition to the Red Cross standard first aid course to Red Cross trainees, civil defense workers and to the general public.

In order to give a uniform interpretation to the material and to teach the new techniques involved, a series of special training courses have been arranged.

The Pitt County Chapter of the Red Cross will be represented at this training course being held in Rocky Mount today.

Persons taking the course will be Eugene E. Knight, Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, Chief of Police Guy C. Langston, Sgt. Claude Christopher and Mrs. Lois Mitchell.

The name "meerschaum" is Locksmiths date back to Biblical times.

A FIEND IN NEED

By MILTON K. OZAKI

Chapter 5
It was like the explosion of a bomb. Sergeant Jenkins gaped and even I had trouble getting my mouth closed. Then Jenkins was rushing the girls back upstairs and telling Phelan what had happened, and Phelan, his fat face momentarily startled by the unexpected twist of names, was shaking June Hanson's shoulders and trying to get her to speak coherently.

"You say he's John Faraday?" Phelan kept asking a little incredulously, as though he suspected a trick. "His identification card says he's Lawrence Straw, and the nurse upstairs identified him as Straw!"

"Please control yourself, Miss Hanson," Phelan pleaded. "Are you sure you got a good look at him?"

"It's John!" June gasped, "and he was coming to see us!" She burst into tears.

"How do you know his name is Faraday? How long have you known him?"

"I've been... seeing him... for... months..." she sobbed. "That's his name - John Faraday."

"Where does he live?"

"I don't know."

"If he's a friend of yours, you ought to know where he lives."

"He always came here. I never visited him." June wiped her eyes and tried to make her lips cease quivering. "He was awfully nice to me."

"Were you his girl friend?" She hesitated and gave Phelan a plaintive look. "Not really," she said, "but he came to see me regularly."

Phelan stared at her thoughtfully. "Oh, yeah?" he said. She returned his stare and tossed her head with a trace of her former spirit.

"Yeah!" she snapped irritably, mimicking his tone.

business once, and we started talking. Then he asked me for a date.

"Pick up, eh?"

"He picked me out, not up!" she replied, tossing her head as she scented the words, and suddenly all the tenseness seemed to flow from her, leaving her cool and poised.

"Well, it could be," Phelan admitted, pulling at his ear perplexedly. "I don't imagine he came up here to play backgammon." He looked at his watch, shook his head, and, addressing Jenkins, said: "We'd better keep moving."

He shot Elaine and June a stern look: "I want you girls to stay in your apartment. Don't try to leave because I'll be back later." He motioned to Elaine and started for the door.

I winked at Elaine and murmured: "Me, too." She smiled, nodded, and wiggled her fingers in a friendly good-bye.

He pressed the button beside the door of apartment 2-A, the door swung open, and there was Mr. Flecker by name, the idol of a million frustrated women by reputation. He was tall - about five-eleven - solidly built, and handsome in a rangy, elderly sort of way. His hair was white and thick and bushy, cut in a flowing Bohemian bob in back like a prize horse's tail. It made a good frame for his thin bony eyes.

"Good evening," Richard Starr Flecker let each syllable thrash around in his throat for a while before releasing it, reminding me of the pompous tones effected by movie butlers. His eyes - big, brown, dreamy eyes - regarded us aloofly, as though we might be unclear, and, believe it or not, he raised one hand slowly and gracefully and fondled his luxuriant head of hair like a girl making sure her wave was still in place. Talk about affection!

"Evening, Mr. Flecker," Phelan said brusquely, pushing forward. "I'm Lieutenant Phelan of the detective bureau. We're sorry to disturb you but we'd like to come in."

Flecker stepped back with a little formal bow and let us pass. As I brushed against his blue lounging robe the scent of a heavy cologne touched my nostrils.

Entering Flecker's living room was like stepping into the boudoir of a Chinese potentate. Cleverly concealed lighting gave the room an exotic, rose tint effect. Cushions - big, soft, brocade beauties - covered the floor in profusion, and incense - sandalwood, I think - was curling upward from an orange porcelain brazier in the center of a group of carved Chinese gods.

Three-Way Race For Filmland 'Oscar' As Nominations Made

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 13 — (AP) — A three-way battle among Bette Davis, Judy Holliday and Gloria Swanson was predicted today as Hollywood studied the nominations for 1950 Academy Awards.

Jose Ferrer led the male star contenders on the basis of his full-blown portrait of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

"Sunset Boulevard," which collected 11 nominations, made it shape up like a two-picture race. The major nominations, which were announced last night:

Best Actor: Louis Calhern, "The Magnificent Yankee"; Jose Ferrer, "Cyrano de Bergerac"; William Holden, "Sunset Boulevard"; James Stewart, "Harvey"; Spencer Tracy, "Father of the Bride."

"Broken Arrow," Edmund Gwenn, "Mr. 220," Sam Jaffe, "The Asphalt Jungle," George Sanders, "All About Eve," Erich von Stroheim, "Sunset Boulevard."

Supporting actress: Hope Emerson, "Caged"; Celeste Holm, "All About Eve"; Josephine Hull, "Harvey"; Nancy Olson, "Sunset Boulevard"; Thelma Ritter, "All About Eve."

Picture: "All About Eve," "Born Yesterday," "Father of the Bride," "King Solomon's Mines," "Sunset Boulevard."

Direction: Joseph Mankiewicz, "All About Eve"; John Huston, "The Asphalt Jungle"; George Cukor, "Born Yesterday"; Billy Wilder, "Sunset Boulevard"; Carol Reed, "The Third Man."

The star actress contest appeared to be one of the hottest in years. All three of the leaders had monumental roles—Miss Davis, as an aging film star, Miss Holliday as a junk dealer's girl friend, and Miss Swanson as a faded film actress.

Two of the nominations were especially dramatic. Miss Swanson scored her hit after a long absence from Hollywood, where she was one of the leading glamor girls of the silent era.

Miss Davis' performance provided a triumphant comeback for a brilliant career that had been sagging.

Call Scouters To Day Of Training

A day of training for Boy Scout leaders of the East Carolina Council will be held here next Wednesday afternoon and night. Eighty-five scouters have been invited to attend the lecture and demonstration program.

The meeting will be held in the high school during the afternoon and will move to Colanich Park for supper. The classroom work will get underway at 3:30 in the afternoon. The whole program will wind up at eight o'clock.

A six-point training schedule has been mapped out by district field executive Howard Hunter. The six sessions will be on the training of both patrols and troops in different phases of the Scoutin program. The sessions will be devoted to:

(1) patrol and troop organization and leadership, (2) patrol and troop meetings, (3) patrol and troop hiking, (4) patrol and troop camping, and (5) helping the individual boy to grow.

The physical plans for the council-wide meeting are in the hands of Badger Johnson. Six men from each of the districts in the council have been invited to attend the sessions. The men will build fires in the park and cook their own supper after the high school meeting.

timed, "have been enthusiastic about learning democratic procedure." It was his opinion that the Japanese would work out their form of democratic government.

Charles Bissette asked would it be a mistake to remove MacArthur since he had some critics who sought his removal in this country. Koizumi replied that he personally hoped they would not remove the general. "General MacArthur loves our country and wants to stay."

Further, he said, "MacArthur has told us that he does not believe the people of Japan caused the war but a handful of government leaders."

Dr. Karl Pace asked about the effect of the thousands of communist trained Japanese prisoners sent back. Koizumi replied that communism is the greatest difficulty faced by the Japanese today.

He related that the Russians say that there are three hundred thousand Japanese prisoners still in Russia who refuse to come home because of the United Nations occupation. But the communist leaders now in Japan are underground. They agitate the students and young people in the rural districts.

"Ninety-nine per cent of our people are very much pleased that the United Nations forces stay in Japan for it assures the security of Japan and helps keep peace in the Pacific."

Junior Rotarian Bill Mitchell asked would the Chinese Communists invade Japan if the United Nations forces left. Without hesitation Koizumi said "Yes."

Fred Basin, a guest, asked Koizumi what the United States with her peaceful attitude historically toward all nations could do to get that across the people of Asia in the face of lies being spread about the U. S. intentions. The Japanese said he did not understand why the bad name was believed. But he explained it by telling how a wrong attitude was placed in the minds of Japanese citizens prior to the war with the United States because in spite of the historically proved friendliness the government in power refused to let the people get direct or true reports about the United States. Hence the minds of the Japanese were turned the way the leaders wanted them.

Throwing further light on his and other Japanese attitude toward communists Koizumi related what he called the three heads of communism. First the "bowing head" for they always enter a city with bowing heads. Second the "shaking head" for they always say no to whatever innocent people ask them. Third "the cut off head" for they always cut the heads of people when they stay.

When in conclusion Koizumi explained that he had come to the United States to study the educational system. He said he felt it his duty to make a contribution to his people and the world that would contribute to peace in the world. "I am sure the people of the world can have peace. They have the same God, the same sun and are covered by the darkness of night," he said.

In presenting the speaker Dr. McGinnis said he was born in 1914. Graduated from high school, normal school and went to Kyoto University. He is married and has two sons—three and one half and another eight months. The superintendents of schools in thirteen prefectures rated him as superior. He has been investigated thoroughly by Army Intelligence and others in a position to know his record. He has been brought to the U. S. to spend a year studying at the University of North Carolina. While here he will speak to twenty-one Rotary clubs in the 279th District.

Dr. McGinnis told the Rotarians that Masami Koizumi requested that he be called "Mason" when he saw Americans stumbling over his name.

Guests of the club last night were Dr. John Bridgers and Fred Basin. Visiting Rotarians were Max Roebuck of Washington, J. Y. Monk of Farmville, and Walter Jones of Farmville. Bill Mitchell was the Junior Rotarian.

The Rotarians voted to adjourn their meeting of Monday, February 26th in order to join in with the membership dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. Charles White, club vice-president, presided.

Coping With . . .

(Continued From Page One) column, Britain's landed gentry is rapidly disappearing, the change being due largely to heavy taxation which has forced the sale of the huge holdings. And on the continent, Italy has been having a field day in splitting up big estates.

Peria will be about the farthest east that this upheaval has reached on a big scale, barring the American-impelled reforms in Japan. In many other oriental countries the farmers either are tenants, paying rent to the big landlords, or their ownership comprises a tiny parcel of land. India, Pakistan and China are great nations which are prime examples of a call for development of the land.

There are more farmers in China than in any other Asiatic country. Some of these are tenant farmers who have to pay rent to the landlord, and some own their land. But in either case the holdings are tiny, and taxation is very high.

Many Chinese farmers don't devote their whole time to their little holdings, but take outside jobs to make ends meet.

Taxes And . . .

Congress did something else for the people who were in the zone "supporting" the armed forces, such as Red Cross workers, scientists brought in there to help the government, and accredited correspondents.

There's a provision in the law to let them postpone payment of their 1950 income tax but it's not clear whether this means six months from the time they return to the United States or six months from March 15, 1951.

The change in the law which makes servicemen's pay tax free while they were in the combat zone does not apply to those in "support" of the armed forces but only to the armed forces.

Here are some other points about the tax law for servicemen and their families:

The following service income is tax-free and does not have to be reported in filing an income tax return on 1950 income:

Family allowances (the government's part of it.) Allowances for uniforms or subsistence or quarters (where quarters are not furnished by the government in kind). And—

Mustering out pay of officers and enlisted men; dividends received by veterans or servicemen in 1950 on World War—National Service Life Insurance; and—Disability retirement pay—or money received by veterans as pensions, annuities or similar allowances—for injuries or sickness resulting from active service.

A contribution to a veterans' organization is deductible from your income. So are all benefits received under the GI bill of rights, such as education and subsistence.

The following income of service people or veterans is taxable and must be reported:

All retirement pay from the armed forces unless the retirement was caused by injuries, wounds or sickness resulting from active service.

And the regular pay for members of the armed forces serving in the United States or elsewhere outside a combat zone.

N. C. Cotton Goal May Not Be Met This Year

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 13—(AP)—A recent survey indicates that Tar Heel farmers will not reach the goal of 975,000 acres set for them in the nation's drive to grow 16,000,000 bales of cotton this year.

This was reported today by G. Tom Scott, State Director for the U. S. Production and Marketing Administration.

Scott said the survey indicated that the state's cotton acreage this year would be from 800,000 to 825,000. This would compare with 565,000 acres planted to cotton last year.

An intensive drive has been made to persuade farmers to increase their cotton crop this year to make up for last year's short crop and to meet increased need for cotton in the mobilization effort.

Scott said that in meetings farmers had been urged to push for larger production per acre in addition to increasing the number of acres planted to cotton.

Increasing the state's cotton production, Scott warned, depends to a great extent on maintaining the farm labor force. He said that if the draft continues to draw manpower from small farms the production would be concentrated on large, mechanized units.

He said that the State Selective Service system had been urged to advise local draft board to give greater consideration to deferments in individual cases.

The State Employment Service reported, meanwhile, that the farm labor supply is adequate now and is expected to remain so for the next few months unless mobilization changes the picture.

Tobacco Barn Is Fire-Damaged Late Yesterday

A tobacco barn on the Oscar Hardee farm on the Washington highway was damaged by fire late yesterday afternoon, fire department reports show.

A call was received from the farm around 5:00 and a truck dispatched to the scene, arriving in time to save the building.

Firemen reported that people on the farm had used water and dirt in an effort to put out the blaze and had the fire nearly under control by the time the fire equipment arrived.

Firemen stated that the barn caught fire from burning grass nearby.

Last week a pack barn on the Hardee farm was lost to fire which originated early in the morning.
