Wage Ceiling Order Under Study Despite WSB Rift

Economic Stabilizer Johnston Considers Action; Decision Unlikely Today; In Hopes Of Patching Up With Labor Members Who Walked Out

Washington, Feb. 16—(AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston today studied whether to order into effect a 10 per cent ceiling on wage boosts despite a labor walkout on the proposed national wage-control formula.

There were strong indications that Johnston, hoping to patch up the split in his Wage Stabilization Board, would not make up his mind today.

One aide said Johnston plans to give "very careful, very thorough" study to the formula, with the help of his special assistant on labor problems, George M. Harrison.

Walk Out On Vote
The wage board voted 2 to 3 for the order which would restrict wage boosts to 10 per cent between Jan. 15, 1950 and next July 1. Workers who have not received such a boost would be free to bargain for up to that amount.

But the three labor members of the labor-industry-public board withdrew after the vote early this morning, denouncing the formula as being "unfair and unworkable." Under the majority's proposed formula, workers who had already had their pay boosted eight per cent since Jan. 15, 1950, for example, would be held to a two per cent boost until July 1.

Crisis Point
The labor members' departure brought the whole stabilization program to a crisis point, for officials fear that unions will not give full support to the formula if their representatives on the board withhold approval. The possibility of a production-crippling wave of strikes thus lay ahead.

The three industry and three public members of the board, who approved the formula, said the whole wage structure would be reviewed before July 1 but this did not appease the labor riot. To Continue Work
W. Wilbur Wirtz, acting executive director of the board, said the WSB staff will continue all its functions and continue to hand down interpretations of its wage orders "including the present one." But trouble lay ahead if the labor members do not return. Obviously wages must be controlled, as provided by law.

Cool And Cloudy Weather Outlook

Prospects that the cool and cloudy weather around Greenville and Pitt will continue for several more days, seem good, according to the official weather observer in Greenville.

Highest temperature reading recorded here yesterday was 45 degrees with a low of 38. A slight trace of rain fell late last night, but was not enough to be measured, weather reports show.

On Wednesday, the highest temperature reading on record for February since 1930 was reached when the mercury soared to 80 degrees. In 1930, a February high of 83 degrees was set.

Balkan Danger Spot

Menace Of Soviet Satellite Attack On Marshal Tito, The Feared Enemy Of Moscow, Could Set Off Major Conflict; Why Moscow Is Anxious Over Tito

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Yugoslavia is definitely spotlighted as the most dangerous area in Europe from the standpoint of being the potential focal zone of another war.

Marshal Tito's repeated warnings that Russia was preparing to strike at his country through neighboring satellites has been followed by a declaration from Secretary of State Acheson to the effect that any Red attack on Yugoslavia would dangerously strain the fabric of world peace.

Put in less euphemistic terms, this means that if Russia should commit aggression against Yugoslavia, it might produce war. This warning comes after a long period of Soviet maneuvering and Russo-Yugoslav tension which scarcely could proceed much further without an explosion.

The conflict grows out of General Tito's revolt against Moscow's domination of his country. The Marshal refused to delegate Yugoslavia's sovereignty to Moscow and inaugurated a policy of nationalism.

Allied Power May Double During '51

Acheson Gives No Figures In Report To Senators, But Says Troop Strength To Balance A-Bomb Advantage

Washington, Feb. 16—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today "the combat forces of our European allies may be expected to double in the next year."

He gave no figures in prepared testimony calling upon the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees to support the Truman Administration's plan to send 100,000 additional United States troops to Europe to bolster defenses against communist aggression.

Acheson said the United States must use the time it has—by virtue of its lead over Russia in air power and atomic weapons—to build up with its allies "balanced collective forces" needed to deter aggression.

He added that "the value of our lead" in atomic weapons will decline but he said balanced land, sea and air forces in western Europe will help offset the loss of that advantage.

Acheson said America's allies "are now taking steps which bring us measurably closer to realization of our ultimate goal" of an adequate defense force.

"Roughly speaking," he went on, "the combat forces of our European allies may be expected to double in the next year."

Secretary of Defense Marshall told the committees yesterday of the plan to send to Europe four more American divisions plus supporting troops to reinforce the two already in Germany.

Marshall's disclosure of the definite figures took much of the steam out of the opposition in the troops-to-Europe controversy. The size of the forces contemplated was smaller than had been anticipated.

But Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who wants to put some kind of a limit on the number of troops to be sent, was ready with a lot of questions for Acheson. Since Taft is not a member of either committee, he would have to get special permission from members of both groups.

Afterwards the crowd of between three and four thousand dispersed to inspect a display of Marine Corps weapons, including a turbojet engine used in jet-type aircraft of the Marine Second Air Wing. Other equipment, which was laid out earlier this morning on the grounds, included a display of projectiles used in the Corps' artillery and several demolition and anti-personnel bombs.

Winner of $100 first prize for the best float in the parade was the Exchange Club which depicted the four freedoms as outlined by President Roosevelt. Second prize of $75 was awarded to the High School Monogram Club which displayed athletes of the school in the various uniforms of the sports in which they participate. Third prize of $25 went to the Third Street School, showing Uncle Sam buying defense bonds.

The $200 in prizes were presented to the representatives of the schools and Exchange Club and were awarded by the Junior Chamber of Commerce which this week is sponsoring the Americanism activities.

Other organizations and schools which entered floats were the Kings Daughters, West Greenville School, Fleming Street School, East Carolina Baptist Student Union and the Red Cross.

Besides the Marine Corps band, other bands in the parade were from Greenville high school, Eppes High School and the drum and bugle corps of East Carolina. Drum majorettes led the school bands. Marching in the parade were the entire Air ROTC unit of East Carolina, the white and colored Boy and Girl Scouts and Brownies, the Sea Scouts, and the Naval and Reserve unit here, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, and the Kiwanis Club.

The flag was raised on the courthouse square by John Russell, member of the Sea Scout ship here, while a bugler played "To the Colors." Mayor Stafford then led the crowd in the Pledge of Allegiance after which the Marine Band, under the direction of Master Sergeant Henry Genco, played the National Anthem.

Miss Taylor responded saying that "by helping her students, she was helping to make her life happier."

Ann Jackson next gave a toast to the Future Homemakers of America followed by introduction of the guest speaker, by Barbara Worthington, who presented Dr. E. J. Carter, acting head of the Educational Department of East Carolina Teachers College.

Dr. Carter, spoke on the topic, "Let Us Look At The Women," mixing his comments with a variety of humor.

After Dr. Carter's talk, the event was adjourned with the group singing, "Good Night Mothers."

Brief Ceremony At Court House Follows Parade

Evans Street Lined With Spectators; Prizes Awarded Winning Floats

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.
Short but impressive ceremonies on the courthouse lawn today at noon, preceded by one of the biggest parades ever held in Greenville, marked the first wholesale public participation in Greenville's Americanism Week activities.

With Evans Street lined with spectators, all watching with curiosity, apprehension, or patriotism, a display of the nation's potential armed might marched past, accompanied by four bands that led the procession to the courthouse where the American flag was raised, signifying a renewed faith and zeal by the publicizing the meaning of Democracy.

The simple ceremony at the courthouse included music by the Cherry Point Marine Corps band, which played three march selections and the Star Spangled Banner to wind up the service.

Mayor W. S. Stafford presided over the ceremony and presented $200 in cash prizes to the three float winners in the parade. Reverend C. D. Patterson, pastor of Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church, offered the benediction in which he called on the citizens of Greenville to renew their belief in the meaning of liberty as it concerns Americanism.

Afterwards the crowd of between three and four thousand dispersed to inspect a display of Marine Corps weapons, including a turbojet engine used in jet-type aircraft of the Marine Second Air Wing. Winterville FHA Banquet Staged

Large Number Attend Mother - Daughter Event Last Night

Winterville, Feb. 16—Nearly 180 persons attended the annual "Mother and Daughter" banquet held by the Winterville Future Homemakers of America Club last night in the Winterville High School.

The invocation was given by Rev. E. J. Cole, and the welcome was made by Club President, Betsy Castellone.

In addition to the more than 70 club members from the Winterville Club and their mothers, club officers and faculty advisors from all other Pitt County F. H. A. Clubs were in attendance, along with members of the Winterville school board.

A toast to the mothers of the club was given by Betsy Castellone with response, by her mother, Mrs. Obed Castellone.

Two talented members of the Club rendered a solo selection each: Ruth Little, singing "To My Mother" and Denyse McLawhorn, "With A Song In My Heart". They were accompanied by Mrs. Howard Bodkin at the piano. Peggy Dall, secretary of the F. H. A. Organization recognized the special guests present with response from County School Superintendent Don H. Conley.

A toast to the faculty and school board, by Jean Anne Liverman with response by Mrs. Rommie Mallison.

Next, a group of the club members paid special tribute to their class teacher, Miss Alva Taylor, and presented her with a gift from the class.

Miss Taylor responded saying that "by helping her students, she was helping to make her life happier."

Ann Jackson next gave a toast to the Future Homemakers of America followed by introduction of the guest speaker, by Barbara Worthington, who presented Dr. E. J. Carter, acting head of the Educational Department of East Carolina Teachers College.

Japanese Educators Visit, Tour E.C.T.C.

Interest Expressed In Training School; Amazed At Beauty And Facilities During Brief, Unscheduled Stop

Five outstanding Japanese educators Wednesday afternoon visited East Carolina Teachers College during their study of the school systems of the United States.

The five Japanese men are in the United States under the sponsorship of the Federal government to study the school systems in the various states for three months. North Carolina is the only southern state the Japanese educators will visit.

The foreign educators were not scheduled to visit East Carolina Teachers College during their stay in North Carolina, but Wednesday afternoon they traveled to Kinston to visit Superintendent Jean P. Both of the Kinston schools, who spent ten months in Japan last year as an educational counselor for the United States government.

They were met in Kinston by Howard McGinnis, governor of the Rotary district, and Masami Koisumi, a Japanese student who recently arrived in this country to study for one year at the University of North Carolina under the sponsorship of the Rotarians of this area.

Dr. McGinnis invited the Japanese to visit Greenville and its school facilities on their way back to Raleigh Wednesday afternoon. The five visitors expressed particular

Tax - Writers Still Cool To Truman's Hurry-Up

Washington, Feb. 16—(AP)—Tax-writing lawmakers appeared unimpressed today by President Truman's assertion that they may be contributing to inflation by delaying action on his tax plans.

Commenting on the President's remark at his news conference yesterday, chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means committee declared:

"It can't help what he said. Our committee was unanimous in its decision that we should have full hearings before we attempt to write a new tax bill."

Doughton added he wasn't aware that the Administration had been very eager to brake the inflationary trend by applying wage-price controls.

Rep. Reed of New York, senior Republican member of the group, denied that committee delay of a tax increase would mean higher living costs.

"The only one endangering the economy of this country is the President himself and the people around him," Reed told a reporter. "If he hadn't gotten us into this police war in Korea we'd be in pretty good shape."

Rep. Boggs (D-La.), said the committee's decision to hold full hearings before acting on any tax bills necessary to assure that the tax increase is fair and equitable.

Red Attempts To Outflank Both Ends Of Central Korean Front Met By Cold Steel Fighting Lightens As Chinese Group For Next Drive

Tokyo, Feb. 16—(AP)—Allied bayonets slashed back Red attempts to outflank both ends of the central Korean war front today.

On the left flank, southeast of Seoul, American infantrymen—almost out of ammunition—bared bayonets and charged. They chased the fleeing Chinese survivors half a mile.

The doughboys killed some 56 Reds. Artillery already had killed about 100 of a dug-in force of 300.

On the right flank of the relatively quiet central front, South Korean infantrymen used bayonets and grenades to throw back Chinese troops north of Chechon. But Communist warfare in that mountainous sector continued.

On the western front south of Seoul, American tank-infantry patrol ran into more than 500 Chinese last night of the Han River. The Reds were dug in but lost at least 100 men.

Staggering Losses
Action all along the curving battlefront was relatively small in comparison with fighting in the past five days, in which a Communist drive on the central front was checked.

The Eighth Army counted Red casualties at 4,935 for Thursday, of which 2,276 were on the central front between Chipyong and Wonju. This brought to more than 100,000 the Red losses since the allied limited offensive jumped off Jan. 25.

Friday's action on the right flank of the central front indicated the Chinese may have shifted much of their strength to the area north and northwest of Chechon.

Flanking Movement
They struggled over some of the highest ridges on the backbone of the peninsula to apply reinforced pressure to Chechon, 14 miles southeast of the major road hub of Wiju.

A South Korean regiment was ready for them at one point. There the Chinese met stern resistance 10 miles north of Chechon. First reports indicated more than 2,000 Chinese were being held off.

An Eighth Army communique reported some of the Reds infiltrated three miles through South Korean positions but fled after a 55-minute hand-to-hand encounter.

The communique said another force of some 1,000 Chinese was moving toward Chechon on a twisting mountain trail eight miles northwest of the town.

Chips-down Battle
The flanking development came after a chips-down battle at Chipyong, 20 air miles northwest of Wonju. Allied reinforcements bolstered the finger-in-the-dike force of French and Americans at Chipyong that badly crippled three Chinese divisions in checking the main Red push on the central front earlier this week.

To the east of Chipyong, an American-Dutch force stood off mauling Red forces above Wonju.

But a menacing build-up of Chinese and Korean Red forces was reported in the hills and valleys above the central front—the area beyond Chipyong and Wonju.

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported Eighth Army intelligence estimated the Red strength at five army corps.

A Chinese Army Corps consist of three divisions, of from 6,000 to 10,000 men in each division. Hence, up to 150,000 troops could be massing for a new onslaught on the central front.

Film On Cancer Program Feature At PTA Meet

At the February meeting of the Training School P.T.A., a film on "Self-Examination for the Detection of Breast Cancer," secured through the Welfare Department in connection with the local cancer drive, was shown.

The meeting, conducted by Mrs. Dink James, president, was held in the new auditorium of the school. Mrs. J. F. Arthur, program chairman, introduced the film, which was run by Miss Frances Wahl.

The film, concise and clear in its message, was followed by a question and answer period conducted by Dr. S. R. Bartlett. Many questions were posed and discussed and much helpful information was given by Dr. Bartlett.

Prior to the film showing, Mrs. Leon Russell gave a devotional, using as her theme the idea that God's laws are designed to develop sound bodies as well as healthy minds and souls. "The laws of the body and mind are no less God's laws than are the spiritual and moral laws," she stated. "The psalmist has spoken for God in saying that one who follows God's laws, keeps His rules and lives by them will have a sound mind in a sound body," she concluded.

Mrs. Harry Forbes gave some pertinent facts about the two women, Mrs. Alice McLellan Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, who were co-founders of the National P.T.A. She cited a few of the many accomplishments that had been secured through the efforts of the organization. This information was given in observance of Founder's Day, and a collection was taken by the P.T.A. for its contribution towards the Founder's Day Gift.

The following members were nominated to serve as a committee to nominate officers for the new year:

Mrs. William H. Taft, Mrs. Ray MacKenzie and Miss Eunice McGee. Miss Elisabeth Hyman announced plans for the District ACE meeting to be held on the college campus on March 3. Mrs. D. M. Clark thanked members for their help and support of the United Forces for Education meeting held at the courthouse last Friday night.

Mrs. James announced plans for the study course being sponsored by the joint P.T.A.s of the city next week. Definite programs will be announced through the paper later.

The organization voted to allow the Ways and Means Committee the privilege of deciding on the project for which P.T.A. funds will be spent this year.

Mrs. James S. Jenkins presented a petition which was endorsed by the Association as a group and also signed individually by members to be presented to the managers of the local theaters asking them to adjust admission prices and adopt a price lower than the adult admission but higher than the child admission for the junior age group of theater attendees. Mrs. Jenkins stated, in presenting the petition, that the prices charged a young teenager were out of proportion to the average child's allowance and that he was inclined to be dishonest about his age if he were physically small, or else he was not allowed to attend as often as he would if admission prices were not so high.

The meeting was adjourned with the announcement that Miss Klingenschmitt's second grade won the attendance prize.

Joint Hostesses Entertain The Kings Daughters

On February 13th, The King's Daughters were entertained at the home of Mrs. W. L. Best with Mrs. J. H. Randolph, Mrs. W. G. Ward, Mrs. J. B. White and Mrs. J. E. Nobles as assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Clara Mays Shackell, the president, called the meeting to order and the circle repeated the "Prayer of the Order."

Mrs. Ed Harvey led the devotional. She gave the "Blueprint for Happiness" which was none other than the Sermon on the Mount, the most wonderful and inspiring sermon ever given, in her opinion. She urged The King's Daughters to read and re-read this message, thus gaining help, inspiration and happiness.

The minutes of the January meeting were read and approved. Twenty-five members answered to the roll call and three visitors were welcomed.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. H. W. Winstead and it was a very gratifying report.

The Emergency Committee chairman gave her report, which showed much help had been given to many needy families. The president reminded the circle of the convention to be held in Raleigh May 16, 17, 18 and urged all members to attend.

Sixteen members were then given the admission service.

A guest and former member of the circle, Mrs. Carrie Hooker Finch, told of the wonderful things being done for the aged by The King's Daughters in Richmond, Va.

The program was turned over to Mrs. Ed Harvey, who traced the beginning and growth of the Patient Circle of The King's Daughters in a most interesting manner. She paid tribute to Mrs. Hortense Mays, a charter member of The King's Daughters.

At the conclusion of the program two cakes were auctioned off; some vanilla was sold, and the funds were turned over to the treasurer.

The hostesses invited the guests into the dining room where icees, cakes, nuts and Valentine candies were served.

Information On Lent Given At Wesleyan Guild

The Wesleyan Service Guild Circle No. 2 met on Monday night with Mrs. F. L. Whitehurst at her home on Summit street.

Mrs. Margaret Farley, president, presided over the business session. She led the group in prayer, after which Miss Laura Bell presented a very inspiring devotional using as her text, Psalm 46. Her theme was "Health."

Following the business session the program was given by Miss Jane Hadley. Her topic "Lent" was very appropriate and interesting at this season of the year. She gave the history of Lent, which is a religious custom which has been observed by Christians down through the centuries. It gives people a greater realization of Christ in their hearts. One's relation to Christ is most important to himself. It is a time of self examination. In the law of character, if not growing, one degenerates. She explained Christ's readiness to forgive. "He prayed for forgiveness, patience, self-control, and readiness to serve. We should follow his examples," she concluded.

A Valentine story was told by Cecil Turner, Jr., who also gave a short musical selection.

At the conclusion of the meeting, a delicious dessert course was served and assisting hostesses were Mrs. C. A. Turner and Miss Kathleen Venters.

Third Street PTA Observes Founders Day

The February meeting of the Third Street School P.T.A. was held on Wednesday, February 14, with Mrs. W. L. Whedbee, president, presiding.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Sam Northrup.

In connection with annual observance of Founders Day, Mrs. Whedbee read a message from the President of the National Parent-Teacher Congress in which she eulogized the founders and listed many of the progressive measures that have resulted from the organization's work.

Miss Laura Foley, school principal, gave a brief biographical sketch of the two founders, Mrs. Alice McLellan Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst.

Mrs. Jasper Jones reported on the findings of a project committee and the members instructed the committee to proceed with their plans to purchase needed equipment for the school as they had recommended.

A call for bed linen to equip a bed in the health room was answered by donations from individual members. The president emphasized the importance of the P.T.A. study council which will be held in three sessions next week. On Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. a study class will be held at the Third Street School on the "Pre-School Child." On Thursday afternoon the second session will convene at the Training School at 3:30, at which time a roundtable discussion on the "Pre-Adolescent Child" will be held. The course will conclude with a night meeting at the Third Street School, at which time the topic for discussion will be the "Adolescent." Members were urged to attend.

Mrs. Sam Northrup presented a petition authored by Mrs. James S. Jenkins requesting theaters to change their rates of admission to include a special price in a range between children's and adults' admission for juniors or young teenagers. The petition was endorsed by the organization after a short discussion period.

When the business meeting adjourned, the members enjoyed a social hour during which time a Founder's Day cake was lighted with candles and cut by Mrs. Whedbee in celebration of Founder's Day.

Dr. Pingel Talks To Aries Club On Creative Writing

At the meeting of the Aries Book Club on Thursday night, Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr., hostess and program leader, presented Dr. Martha Pingel, member of the English department of the college, as guest speaker.

Dr. Pingel, who joined the ECTC faculty in 1947, talked about the creative process in writing. She herself is a writer of note, having published a professional book in 1948, and at present a volume of her poetry has been accepted for publication this spring.

In introducing her remarks, Dr. Pingel said she had always found people curious to know what went on in an author's mind while he was creating a composition and what feelings she experienced. She outlined some basic fundamentals that are consciously or unconsciously followed by creative writers in their efforts to produce a work.

"Creative writing," she said, "grows out of an event or occurrence or mood experienced by the author. It grows in his mind until it becomes a situation. A creative writer must possess a good memory for impressions and reactions and builds around these until they become concrete thoughts and ideas.

"A creative writer draws heavily on his imagination," she continued, "and must possess the ability to organize his mental processes into a shape or image which develops gradually into a logical form."

She further suggested the importance of mood and emotions and the analytical process of fitting congruous parts together to form a solid pattern.

She illustrated from her own experiences and compositions the stimuli which to creative writers produce the proper ingredients which result in an original work of art.

During the brief business session conducted by Mrs. Harry Forbes, president, Mrs. Stephen R. Bartlett Jr. was instated in the club as a new member. A letter was read from Dr. Orval Phillips concerning the adult education courses to be offered in night classes during the spring quarter.

The hostess, Mrs. Morton, assisted by club members, served strawberry shortcake with coffee at the close of the meeting. Books were exchanged and the club was adjourned.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slow down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 60 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filter flush out waste. Get Doan's, this today!

Rev. Leon Russell To Attend Conf. In England

The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, has been appointed as one of four delegates from the North Carolina Conference to represent that body at the Ecumenical Methodist Conference which will be held in Oxford, England, in the summer of 1951.

Mr. Russell's appointment came from Bishop W. W. Peele, residing bishop of the Richmond area of the Methodist Church. Others from the N. C. Conference who were appointed at the same time by Bishop Peele were Dr. A. J. Hobbs, superintendent of the Rocky Mount district. Rev. W. L. Clegg, pastor of Front Street Methodist Church in Burlington, and Dr. B. G. Childs, faculty member of the Duke Divinity School.

The Ecumenical Conference, which meets every 10 years, is a representative group of all Methodist Churches around the world. The largest group of Methodists which are represented are from the United States; the second largest group is from Great Britain; but Methodists of 40 different denominations throughout the world are represented at the conference.

The first such Ecumenical gathering was held in London in 1881, and except for 1941, when war conditions prevented, they have been held every decennial since.

The last regular meeting was in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1931. In 1947 there was a called meeting which was held in Springfield, Mass. Prior to 1947 the conference had been divided into an Eastern and a Western division, but at this time both united to form the one Ecumenical Conference which represents approximately 16,000,000 Methodists.

The conference to be held this summer will convene on August 27 and continue through September 7. Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, of the Missouri Conference, will preside.

The purpose of the conference is to unite all Methodists into a single denomination. As it is, they are separate groups with a common heritage and the same basic doctrines, which have divided in the past over misunderstandings and minor differences of opinions.

Among the proposals which will be discussed this summer are the creation of a united women's organization, the creation of a united youth's organization, an evangelistic program which will be conducted simultaneously throughout the world, and simultaneous observance of an Agedersday on the Sunday nearest May 24, in commemoration of John Wesley.

While in England the group will visit historic Methodist shrines in Epworth, Lincoln, London and other places in England.

Luncheon Honors Mrs. James On Valentine Day

On Wednesday at 1:00 p.m. Mrs. Larry James Jr., recent bride, was complimented at a luncheon given by Mrs. Ty Wagner and Mrs. Hoyt Minges at the home of Mrs. Wagner.

The lovely home was decorated throughout in a color note of red and white, suggestive of the Valentine day on which it was held. Graceful arrangements of carnations and hearts tied to crimson satin streamers centered the table in the dining room.

From one end of the table Mrs. John T. Thorne, mother of the honoree, served broiled chicken from a large silver tray. Seated at the opposite end was Mrs. Larry James Sr., who served a congealed salad.

Guests found their places marked at individual tables arranged in the sun room and drawing room with place cards emphasizing the Valentine motif. Each table was centered with a single red carnation.

A three course luncheon was served. The hostesses presented Mrs. James with a shoulderette of red and white carnations.

Mrs. John T. Thorne and Miss Agnes Quinerley of Farmville were special guests for the occasion.

Christian Church Announcements
At the Christian Church Sunday morning the pastor will speak on the subject, "This Nation Under God" in keeping with the emphasis of the week on Americanism. The choir under the direction of Mrs. H. L. Carter will sing "Holy, Holy, Holy" by Dykes-Ringwald.

The coffee and conference hour on Sunday afternoon is at 5 o'clock. This is an open hour of fellowship and discussion on any of the Bible theme or any subject of vital interest to the group.

On Thursday night of this week at the church at 7:30 the first program meeting of the "Christian Church Men" will be given. The speaker for the evening will be Mr. Sam Bundy of Farmville, president of the Christian Laymen's League of the Disciples of Christ in North Carolina.

The Christian Woman's Fellowship will meet on Monday afternoon at 3:30 here in the church and the speaker will be Dr. R. L. Holt who will speak on the subject, "The Christian Scale of Values."

The Chi-Rho group of intermediates will meet at 4 p.m. Sunday afternoon with the sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lupton. Today and Saturday the young people of the Hookerton Union will be meeting in a World Fellowship Youth Meet in the Gordon Street Church of Christ in Kinston.

Music Teachers Give Program At End Of Century

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Guy V. Smith was gracious hostess to the End of the Century Book Club at her home on Pitt Street. There were 15 members present.

After a short business meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. C. A. White, Mrs. Smith introduced Miss Beatrice Chauncey and Miss Elizabeth Drake from the Music Department of East Carolina Teachers College, who delighted the club with a most unusual musical concert.

Miss Chauncey, accompanied at the piano by Miss Drake, used the flute for the entire programme. In so doing she covered the wide and varied field through which this instrument could express the best in music. With a Sonata by Handel she presented the classical style at its best. She chose next to play Syrinx from Debussy, an imaginative and whimsical number, and concluded her programme with three Preludes from Shostakovich, one of the best of our contemporary composers. The flute, the oldest musical instrument, is used most often in symphony orchestra or with violin and piano, but Miss Chauncey showed how well it could adapt itself as the predominating instrument, accompanied only by the piano.

After the books were distributed the hostess served a delicious salad plate carrying out the Valentine motif.

Miss Janet Conklin from East Carolina Teachers College was also a guest for the afternoon.

Beacham-Taylor Vows Spoken In Ayden Rites

Ayden.—In an impressive and simple ceremony performed at the home of Rev. W. H. Bronson, in the presence of a few relatives, Miss Alice Ray Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Floyd Nichols of Greenville and Oscar Taylor of Vanceboro, became the bride of Mr. Marvin R. it the lack of incentive and ambition. It takes the responsibility of economical operation of a business from an individual or group of individuals, and puts it on the shoulders of an indifferent group. And in most instances the individual members of the group leave the work to the other fellow. As a result efficiency is lost, and the expense of production increases rather than decreases. Even though the added cost of the material produced may not be passed on to the consumer in the price of an article, it is paid by him in higher taxes which are used to defray the loss the government suffers in operating the industries.

The socialization of the steel industry in Great Britain marks another milestone in the departure from the system of free enterprise in that country. We wonder if the system will ever be restored.

National Whirligig
News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The unpublished reason for the unsolved deadlock between the White House and the Federal Reserve Board over the problems of checking inflation and financing the rearmament program is one which even Harry S. Truman's severest critics do not like to mention. But it is so well known in banking circles that it cannot be kept a secret.

It lies in the Missouriian's utter incapacity to understand the complexities involved in the sale and support of government securities. He does not possess the average man's understanding of the question, especially the effect which forcing billions of bonds "down the throat" of the Federal Reserve System has in raising prices, wages and every other cost of living item.

He believes that the government can "manufacture money" at will without any disastrous effect on the nation's economy.

CONFIDENCE—So, when he violated precedent by "inviting" Federal Reserve members to the White House for a discussion of the subject, the 864 question was not even brought up. He simply ordered them to support Secretary of Treasury Snyder's "easy money" policies, and took their silence for acquiescence.

The Federal Reserve members, of course, plan to back up the government's general financial program. They cannot let Uncle Sam's issues of bonds go abegging or find no market. It would destroy confidence in our financial system and soundness. It would make pleasant music in Moscow.

DANGEROUS—But they have their own ideas on the kind of support they should give. They think the bonds should be permitted to fall below par, thus providing higher interest rates and leading banks to hold them instead of selling them back to the Reserve as a basis for a vast amount of loans.

As Marrison E. Eccles says, and almost every financial authority agrees with him, the Truman-Snyder scheme transforms the Federal Reserve into an "engine of inflation."

In view of Mr. Truman's ignorance and assumption that he had solved an extremely simple matter with his mere say-so, they had no chance to present their viewpoint.

After all, it is impossible to tell a President he doesn't know what he is talking about, or to argue with him too forcibly. But, by a 7 to 4 vote, board members and their banker-advisors subsequently condemned the White House policy as dangerous and unworkable.

SQUEEZE—A sad and sorry stream of industrialists and business men is making a daily pilgrimage to Capitol Hill these days to protest to their Congressional delegations against the government's "hoarding" of materials required for war and civilian production. They warn that these heavy purchases mean higher prices and scarcities of essential commodities.

In their opinion, the Munitions Board is stockpiling excessively and prematurely such items as steel, tin, rubber, copper, cobalt, manganese etc. They concede the need for building up these items for rearmament or possible war. But they maintain that John D. Small's organization is boosting its inventory too heavily and too quickly. They suggest a more orderly and less panicky buildup.

In some instances, they say they cannot obtain materials which they need to fill war contracts. Moreover, the "squeeze" forces them to pay high prices that will increase the cost to the government and taxpayers.

DELAY—Partial explanation for the Munitions Board's buying methods is the long delay over giving this agency any authority or even an organization. Originally, the National Security Resources Board had charge of stockpiling.

But that unit became demoralized when the Senate refused to confirm Mon C. Wallgren, Mr. Truman's political and personal crony, as chairman. The stalemate lasted for months, or until he was approved as a member of the Federal Power Commission. Stockpiling stopped entirely.

MEDIUM—Few weeks ago, the rearmament watchdog committee of the Senate, headed by Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, severely criticized the failure of the stockpiling program. Mr. Johnson also warned that he would make a subsequent check-up and report. In preparation for that review, and to make a good showing, Munitions Chairman Small has been buying at a breakneck rate.

Unless he slows down, the complaining manufacturers insist that he will jeopardize production of everything from airplanes to kitchen aluminum pans. The victims do not protest in bitter vein. They understand the materials and manpower problems involved in shifting from a peacetime to a semi-war economy. What they aim to achieve is a happier medium.

ATTACK—A bunch of Congressmen, government officials and newspaper correspondents recently held a National Press Club talkfest on "how Pearl Harbor came to me." Each described the circumstances under which he learned of Japan's attack on our Hawaiian outpost. The prize went to Don J. Kinsey, general manager of the Colorado River Association and the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California.

Don heard the news on his radio shortly after noon. Turning from the radio to stare thoughtfully out the window, he saw a Japanese in army garb coming up his front walk.

"My God!" he exclaimed to Mrs. Kinsey. "They haven't attacked California already, have they?" He felt a lot better when he learned that the "invader" wearing his surplus-bought khaki, was only a substitute for his regular yardman, who was ill.

INDUSTRIAL—Our immediate industrial potential, in the opinion of Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, exceeds our military prospects. He believes that we can devote almost thirty per cent of it to rearming ourselves and our allies with only a slight dent in the output for civilian use.

Strength for the Day
By EARL L. DOUGLAS

GOOD FRIENDS SOMETIMES HURT US
Furchak says of Pericles that this matchless Greek leader as he spoke to his people always left a sting in their consciences. He could talk to them in such a way that they became acutely aware of the call of duty on the one hand and equally aware on the other hand of their failure to meet these high requirements. The nobility of Athens never listened to Pericles without feeling that this sacrifice in behalf of the city's welfare had been insignificant as compared with the privileges which citizenship accorded them.

There must have been something about our Lord's preaching which had a similar effect on men's hearts. So many thoroughly bad men became thoroughly good men after months of contact with Jesus that he must have stabbed their minds and hearts with the realization of their own unworthiness and held before them the profound privilege of sonship to God.

A good friend seldom hurts anyone's feelings, but he continually stings the conscience of his fellows and, without appearing to do so, goads them on to better deeds.

The good office of love is that it should make our lives better. When people really love us, our lives continually improve under the influence of their fellowship. And it is not always kindness which turns the trick. As often as not it is some word which stings the conscience and starts us along different pathways.

The Old Beauty Must Be Sacrificed

One of Pitt county's most notable landmarks has to come down to make way for progress. We hate to see it necessary to chop down the beautiful grove of cedar trees which lines the Greenville-Falkland highway just outside of Bruce; but since the choice is between the trees and the continued progress of our highway system, the right choice has been made.

Most people would like to be able to keep the beauties of the country-side and at the same time continue to improve our highways. But there are some occasions, such as this one, when both are impossible.

Greenville faced the same problem a couple of years ago when Dickinson Avenue was widened, and the trees along the street had to be chopped down. Greenville will face the problem again in the not-too-distant future, because it is going to be necessary for the city to make repairs to the sidewalks along East Fifth Street in front of the college. There again the choice may have to be made between the beautiful trees and an improvement which is essential to the welfare of the people.

Trees have a stately beauty which is a distinct asset to the appearance of a community, and distinct asset to the appearance of the country-side. But there will continue to be occasions when beauty will have to be sacrificed to keep pace with the needs of the people for improved facilities.

Another Milestone In The Loss Of Free Enterprise

Another of Britain's basic industries, steel, was taken over by the Labor government yesterday. And significantly enough, a prompt hike in the price of steel was predicted.

The independent steel companies of Great Britain ceased to exist as autonomous concerns and have been placed under the control of a government holding company. The government agency will determine prices, expansion, and take over the general administration of the industry. Free enterprise no longer exists in the steel industry in Great Britain. It has been snuffed out by the government just as it has been snuffed out by the government in the coal industry, railways, gas, electricity, long distance trucking, airways, world communication and finance.

With the disappearance of the independence of the steel industry in Britain yesterday, approximately 20 per cent of the nation's economy had been socialized. And significantly enough, the vote which the steel industry was socialized was the largest vote of confidence the Labor government has received since it has been in power.

Apparently more and more members of the House of Commons are being won over to the conviction that the socialization of the economy of Great Britain is the best policy for the country. But what do the production records of the country show? What does the economic condition of the country show?

The socialization of industry brings with

Somebody Told Me
By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Since I'm a born optimist, I assume that some day I will have enough money to buy a television set. Therefore, any news of the trends in TV is news to me.

The network TV shows that come from Chicago and New York, or on film from Hollywood, are full of top-name stars. But after all, the network shows only fill part of the time a TV station is on the air. The question is: what goes on the air during the rest of the time?

To shorten a long story, the 90 local stations throughout the country are doing a poor job of filling this time. One afternoon I was viewing WTAR-TV, Norfolk, and saw one of their local shows. The head of the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Dumb Animals displayed dogs that had been impounded in an effort to encourage Norfolk families to adopt them. If you like dogs, it was entertaining.

But no matter how good or bad the local shows are, reports say that people watch them. Most local stations are producing quiz shows, amateur hours, quizzes, shopping talks, interviews, and long commercials. Some stations are making feeble efforts to copy the networks. In Cleveland, there is a "skinny Arthur Godfrey" by the name of Bob Dale. Washington has a disc jockey who moves his mouth as the big stars sing on records.

Southern Californians call Los Angeles TV "probably the nation's worst." Houston, Texas, features Texas Ruby who sings hymns and gets more mail than any other performer. TV stations in the South and West feature hillbilly music, in the Midwest it's quizzes, and in the east teen-age shows.

A good example of what can be done with plenty of hard work prevails in Milwaukee, where Polish and German residents enjoy polkas played by the Grenadiers, a 19-year-old band that has become very popular in Wisconsin.

For younger viewers there is a "hot" pianist, for the older viewers, there's a program of old songs called "Let's Remember." Every Sunday the station sends a mobile crew and two cameras to telecast services from a different church.

In many cities, the TV station managers say that their local shows are inferior because of lack of talent and money. But in spite of that, the fact remains that the TV set owners will watch anything.

In Washington, the Government announced that patent No. 2540, 144 had been granted to Engineer-Inventor Emery Stern for a device which will automatically release various contents from containers built into TV sets. Set off by electrical impulses, the odors are intended to fit the particular program. A romantic scene might be accompanied by a peach blossom smell.

And I thank you.

LIQUOR—Nobody has been found willing to hazard a guess on how much North Carolinians spent for liquor last month, but customers of ABC stores in 27 counties and three municipal units bought $4,004,759.65 worth of the stuff. That was an increase of more than half a million dollars, or 16.5 percent over January sales of the year before. Robert W. Winsor, chairman of the State ABC board, thinks the increase is not due to larger total consumption of liquor, or to inflationary influences so much as to the fact purchases of liquor are being channeled into legal outlets rather than bootleg joints.

The chairman points out that over a million and a quarter dollars of January sales occurred in Mecklenburg, Catawba and Rowan counties, in the heart of the legally arid piedmont, and another third of a million in Asheville, surrounded by an otherwise "dry" area of twenty-odd counties.

ILLEGAL—Support for the claim that liquor money is being channeled from illegal to legal outlets is found in the record of illegal stills captured and destroyed. The number of stills destroyed by federal, state and local officers has continuously increased during the past several years, not only in North Carolina but throughout the country. In illegal still captures for 1949 North Carolina scores a definite first that occasions pride only because it indicates greater alertness to the problem. State and local officers seized nearly twice as many stills in North Carolina as in Alabama, more than three times as many as in Georgia, over ten times as many as in Virginia. No still seizures are credited to Tennessee local officers in the tabulation prepared by the Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc., from data of the Alcohol Tax Unit of the U. S. treasury department and records of various states.

STATE—Almost half of the stills seized by state and local agencies in the United States were captured by North Carolina officers. The number of stills seized by federal agents in North Carolina was substantially less than federal seizures in Alabama and Georgia, and just one more than in South Carolina. From one viewpoint the record of 6,065 illegal stills captured in this state (4,946 by state-local and 1,119 by federal) looks very bad. Comparative analysis makes it look better. Only five other states report more seizures by state-local than by federal agents. These are Alabama 2,862 to 1,263; Arizona 4 to 0; Florida 742 to 285; New Jersey 26 to 22; and Wisconsin 2 to 1. This compares with some other records of excess federal, over state seizures such as Mississippi none by state-local and 496 by federal; South Carolina 341 local and 1,118 federal; Tennessee none by local and 603 federal.

What Other Papers Are Thinking
Where The Shrinkage Is (Greensboro Daily News)

Official figures are now becoming available to show, beyond dispute, what is happening to college enrollment in North Carolina. And there is reason to believe that the trend will be sharply accentuated when the present school term ends and hundreds of students deferred therefor will be called into the armed services.

From Chapel Hill came the information several days ago that the University's enrollment there had dropped approximately 800 for the new semester. Now State College figures have been issued. The drop there is 320 from the Fall term total.

Certainly the Legislature, in seeking to fix the State's budget for the next biennium, cannot fail to take cognizance of these figures. Shrinkage rather than expansion is most likely to be the rule for institutions of higher learning, with special reference to those where male students predominate; and this shrinkage must be reflected in lower overhead and decreased operating costs, especially in such items as food, heating, and personnel to a degree. We make this observation as a long-time firstfrind and champion of higher education; it is mere recognition and application of realities at a time when realities will apparently have to rule.

But while there is a decline in this field, available figures show that there will be an increase in other fields where the State serves. That is particularly true in the public school system, where enrollment is still climbing and wartime birth rates are superimposed upon the already high rates, and in protection and safeguarding of health, whether it be physical or mental. Soundness of body and mind are essential to national defense and security; and an emergency period calls for all the more attention thereto. Indices show the needs rising.

Business Today

By ELMER ROEGENER
Private brands are becoming scarce. These special blends named for the proprietor, are occupying less shelf space in package goods stores; the appliances "available only" at one store are becoming less available.

So far, the trend has had little effect on private brands of canned and bottled foods. "Our own brands" may continue, for a long time. But where scarce materials are involved, the private brands are disappearing.

The manufacture of private brands has occupied an important place in American industry. If a store has considerable volume, it has been able to obtain radios, vacuum, TV sets, washers, and dryers bearing its own brand name. Even with less volume, it has been possible to obtain wearing apparel, foodstuffs and beverages with its own label.

Private brands have enabled stores to advertise that nowhere else in the world can you buy a "Spiff De Luxe radio." That the identical radio can be purchased in the next city under the name of the PM-Super radio at a different price makes no difference. The first store owns the brand name and if it isn't a Spiff why—well, it isn't a Spiff.

Full control over prices is another advantage of private brands. If the owner of a popular brand of peas puts out a line at 20 cents, the owner of a private label can push his brand at 28 cents. He's immune to "fair trade" laws and jobbers' pressure.

Most of the private brands are products, or even by-products, of manufacturers of national brands. As these manufacturers are confronted with shortages, they will have less interest in manufacturing private brands. They want to keep their own brand names, often priceless assets, before the public. So materials going into private brands are beginning to flow into national brands.

Some manufacturers are bound by long-term contracts and these they must fill. But when contracts run out, they will have less interest in renewing them while shortages continue.

The trend is being felt strongest in appliances, TV sets and other goods which require scarce metals. Less slightly, it is being felt in apparel, where the brand pattern is more open, or in beverages. It has not, as far as is known, been felt in packaged foods, nor is it likely to be unless food shortages develop.

"SALUTE TO ISRAEL" WORTH DUPLICATING
A major Boston department store has announced a promotion which may be worth duplicating in other cities. It is planning a "Salute to Israel" event in May, the third anniversary of the founding of the new country.

Washington Letter

Washington—Biggest space-eater in Uncle Sam's offices are the filing cabinets, bulging with government records.

An estimated 4,000,000 was spent for filing cabinets in 1949, according to the Hoover Commission report. It was also reported that there are some 20,000,000 cubic feet of federal records from the executive, legislative and judicial branches filling some 3,250,000 filing cases.

Government records are accumulating at the rate of 1,000,000 cubic feet a year. The business of making and keeping these records has cost the taxpayer $1,200,000,000, the Hoover Commission said.

This is the reason why Dr. Elizabeth Drury has been assigned to put records divisions of the various agencies on a much-needed diet to slim down the bulges. Her job is to help improve the management of current records, getting the agencies to save and preserve the valuable ones, waste-basket the others.

"It sounds deadly dull, but it has been fun," Dr. Drury told me. A trim, attractive young woman with lively brown eyes, she holds the title of chief of the records management division of the Federal Archives.

"You go to each office, and it's surprising to see how the records reflect the functions of the agency. At Public Health you see how the states in hospital beds and equipment. At the Census Bureau, in addition to the job of tabulating population, you see how much statistical research goes to help industry and state governments."

Important key records still come to the Archives to be kept along with other important documents which can be referred to from time to time.

Until she took over the records management job last August, Dr. Drury had served as a consultant with the Archives Reference Service for six years and had at her fingertips records from the pre-Revolutionary era through World War II. These records, have proved invaluable to agencies just getting organized.

A FIEND IN NEED

Chapter 8
Phelan looked at h. watch and groaned. "We'll have to pop it up," he said. "We've got two more apartments to investigate, and, if the people in them are as screwy as the others we talked to, we'll be here to all hours."

He pressed the button of 1 - A. Charles Edelson's apartment, and waited. He jabbed it again, shook his head, and crossed the hall to buzz 1 - B. The door opened to reveal a young couple in evening dress, obviously on the point of leaving the building.

"Going some place, Mr. Dentino?" Phelan asked.

Dentino's eyes did a rapid survey of Phelan's bulk, then passed swiftly over Sergeant Jenkins and me. His brows twitched slightly. "What's it to you?" he asked in a low, hard voice.

"I'm Lieutenant Phelan. Detective Bureau," Phelan announced. "There's been a murder in the building and I'll have to detain you for a few minutes."

"A murder?" Dentino admitted the gravity of the situation by allowing his voice to lose part of its hardness. "You'll have to hurry, Lieutenant, because my wife and I are already late."

Phelan strode into the apartment, and Dentino, with some reluctance, followed. "Now, then," Phelan began, "where were you and Miss Claire this afternoon?"

"Miss Claire ...?" Dentino considered this remark carefully. "Ah, you know," he stood poised before Phelan like a dancer about to sprout into the air and click his heels. "We were here all afternoon. It's our usual practice to sleep until five o'clock, you know."

"He smiled thinly. "Yes, I understand you do most of your work at night," Phelan commented dryly. "What did you do between five and seven?"

"We had breakfast, and then Miss Claire spent an hour practicing lyrics while I attended to some business."

"What do you mean when you say you attended to some business?"

"My auditor called about five-thirty with some tax reports. He was here for perhaps half an hour, during which time I went over the forms with him, checked his calculations, and discussed various business details with him."

Phelan's eyes strained in their sockets, but he swallowed carefully before asking: "What's his name?"

"Lawrence Straw."

Phelan's breath escaped in a loud rush. "Do you mean to say Lawrence Straw was here from five-thirty to six?"

"Why, yes," Dentino, sensing Phelan's excitement, quickly added: "Why?"

"Does Straw make a practice of coming here to see you?"

"Yes, of course. I don't ordinarily go to my place until nine-thirty in the evening, and I'm there until about seven in the morning. Straw, naturally, doesn't work the same hours I do, so he calls at the club during the day, does whatever work is necessary, and reports to me here."

"Let me see the reports he brought today," Phelan ordered. "Certainly." His face polite and inscrutable, Dentino went into an adjoining room and returned with a sheet of printed forms which he handed to Phelan.

"Yeah," Phelan handled the sheets carefully, as though they were fragile and might shatter unless handled with extreme care. He glanced at each sheet separately, reading aloud the headings: "Social Security, Illinois Unemployment Compensation, Income Tax Withheld on Wages, Excise Tax, Claim for Reimbursement."

"The usual quarterly returns," Dentino explained.

"I see," Phelan scanned the signature. "I see Straw was a notary and witnessed your signature."

"He takes care of everything," Phelan handed the sheet of tax forms to Jenkins. "Take care of these," he directed.

Dentino, with one hand raised in protest, stepped toward Jenkins and tried to reposit them. "You can't have them!" he exclaimed. "They've got to be filed tomorrow!"

Phelan waved him back. "You can file them as soon as they're photostated," he promised. They'll be back in plenty of time."

"But why?" A worried frown cut across Dentino's forehead.

Phelan turned abruptly away from him and confronted near Miss Claire, who had remained near the door ready to leave. "Did you see Lawrence Straw leave here?" Phelan demanded.

"Why, yes."

"What did he say when he left?"

"Why, nothing except - let's see." She puckered her forehead. "He said: 'See you later.'" She nodded. "That's what he said."

"Did he say where he was going?"

"No." She shook her head and the golden blonde tuft rippled like a bed of yellow tulips in a high wind.

"Just a minute, Lieutenant," Dentino interrupted. "Why the interest in Lawrence Straw? You said you were investigating a murder, but surely my business affairs have nothing to do -" he paused abruptly. "Has something happened to Straw?"

"Straw was murdered this afternoon, some time between six and six-thirty," Phelan told him bluntly.

Dentino swayed on his heels as though he had been pushed, and Miss Claire opened her red lips wide, gasped, then covered her mouth with her hand.

"He was all right when he left here!" Dentino said.

"So you say," Phelan pointed out. "But he's not all right now, and something happened to him almost immediately after he left here. He could have been here later than you admit. In fact," he eyed Dentino accusingly, "he could have been here, right here, until six-thirty."

DO YOU HATE CHANGE OF LIFE?

Do you suffer from hot flashes, nervous tension, upset emotions—due to functional "change of life" (38 to 52 years)—that period when fertility ebbs away, when symptoms of this nature may often betray your age? Start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. No other medicine of this type for women has such a long record of success. Taken regularly, Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such middle-age distress. A great medicine made especially for women. The women's friend!

Pirates Upset High Point To Gain Conference Win

Russell Racks Up 33 Points; Huffman 20

The East Carolina Pirates, led by All-Conference Sonny Russell, who poured in 33 points, scored an upset, 51-22, win over High Point College last night at High Point.

Russell, teaming with Charlie Huffman, freshman flash who scored 20 points, carried the brunt of the Pirate scoring attack as they hit on shots from all angles of the court to keep the Pirates out front during the last half, after they had rallied the potent Panthers most of the first period. Charlie Fennell played a big part in the victory, scoring 11 markers and playing a good defensive game for the Bucs. He had the tough assignment of guarding Ed Suela, High Point center, and the third highest scorer in the conference.

Richard Blake, reserve guard, played a good floor game for the Panthers and scored six points to help the Pirate cause.

Suela led the scoring for the Panthers with 20 points, followed by Lisk who hit the nets for 13.

Walstonburg Wins One, Loses One At Bell Arthur

Bell Arthur, Feb. 16—The Bell Arthur and Walstonburg cager split a doubleheader here last night, as the Arthur girls won their game 52 to 36 and the boys losing 37 to 23.

Betty Jones went on a scoring spree and scored 42 points to lead the Arthur girls to victory. The hoop happy Jones just couldn't be stopped as she hit on shots from all over the court to take scoring honors for the night. Tugwell got 17 for the losing team.

In the boys game the Arthur team would get only 23 points in losing to the strong Walstonburg five 37 to 23. High scorer for Bell Arthur was McLawhorn with 15 points. Cobb led the winners, dropping in 13 points for the night.

Marty Furgol Leads In Rio Grande Open

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 16—(AP)—The $10,000 Rio Grande Valley Open pushed into its second round today with the field chasing Marty Furgol, a golfer who's looking for a job.

The tall Long Beach, Calif., professional who has won only pocket-change thus far on the seven-week tournament trail, yesterday whipped par by six strokes over the battered, muddy 6,095-yard Harlingen Municipal Course and his 65 stood up as the lead.

He was just one stroke ahead of veteran Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., and Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Tex., when 125 players of the original field of 146 answered the call to the tee today.

Marty grinned all over. Last week, when he failed to finish in the money of the Texas Open at San Antonio, he said he guessed he'd just have to quit. His total bankroll on the winter tour was a puny $480—earned by taking

Groat Taking Duke To Conference Berth

Durham, Feb. 16—(AP)—The Duke basketball information book says history major in its personality sketch of Dick Groat.

And the swisher from Swissvale, a Pittsburgh suburb, is making considerable history on his own.

A compact 180-pound six-footer who seems small in this day of the basketball giant, Groat has rewritten the Duke record books. He is adding to his feats with every point he scores in a one-man campaign to qualify a 50-50 Duke team for next month's Southern Conference tournament at Raleigh.

Playing from a guard position, the flashy Junior has ranked with the top 10 scorers of the nation for weeks, usually in the upper half of that distinguished bracket. Through 26 games he has scored 648 points for a 24.9 average.

That's some 200 points more than any other Duke player ever scored in a single season. His 28 points against Washington and Lee Tuesday night put him ahead of Sam Ranzino of neighboring North Caro-

Rock Hill Fans Want Baseball

Rock Hill, S. C., Feb. 16—(AP)—Fans plan to meet here tonight and save Tri-State League baseball for Rock Hill.

Reports are that local interests will buy controlling stock in the Chiefs from president Art (Red) Dwyer. The team drew only 74,000 paid admissions during the 1950 regular season.

There had been a report that Greenville, S. C., which has lost its franchise in the South Atlantic League, was interested in buying Dwyer's stock and getting into the Tri-State. Dwyer, former Rock Hill pitcher, is now in the lumber business at Newberry.

Sumter and Florence have dropped out of the Tri-State since last season, leaving six clubs.

Phantoms Play Last Home Tilt Tonight

Duke-Maryland Clash Tonight In Top Game

Richmond, Va., Feb. 16—(AP)—Two more chapters in the battle for Southern Conference basketball tournament berths will be played tonight: Duke vs. Maryland and Wake Forest vs. South Carolina.

The Duke-Maryland clash at College Park is the headliner. Duke needs a win to virtually sew up a tournament invitation, and has only two other league games left. The Blue Devils' record now is 10-6.

Maryland (8-5) also is fighting for a tourney spot, but has five other conference games scheduled. And Maryland has sprung some surprises, such as the cute defense it tossed against high-scoring South Carolina Feb. 12—to hold S. C. to eight field goals.

Clemson's Tigers brightened their chances of gaining the select round of eight last night when they whipped Wake Forest, 57-47, for their sixth circuit win against three losses. The Tigers have four conference games left. Wake Forest's loss was costly, for the Deacons, with an 8-6 mark today, have only three games left to better that record and the remaining foes read like this: South Carolina, Duke, North Carolina State. It will take a lot of doing to get the Deacons in the tourney.

The Wake Forest-South Carolina game comes off tonight on South Carolina's home floor. If they lose this one, the Deacons can be counted out.

Other games on tonight's card are unimportant but numerous: Davidson and Washington and Lee meet at Lexington. Furman is at VMI. Virginia Tech plays host to Hampden-Sydney and The Citadel is at Green Cove Springs (Fla.) Naval Station.

Former Cardinal Will Be Playing Manager; Guided Lumberton In Tobacco State League Last Season

Roy Dissinger, owner of the Greenville Robins, announced yesterday that John Streza has been named manager of the Greenville Robins for the coming season.

Streza, a big first baseman, managed the Lumberton club of the Tobacco State League last year, and guided them to a second place finish. He hit 320 for a second place finish and drove in well over 100 runs for the season. He was one of the most feared hitters in the league, and is one of the hardest long ball hitters in minor league baseball.

The new manager is a former member of the St. Louis Cardinal organization, and was making a strong bid for the parent team when he came up with an arm injury. In Streza, the Robins will have one of the best first basemen in the league and a manager that has proven that he can win, if given any material at all. He is a strapping 6' 5", 220 pounder, and will give the Robins a wealth of power at the plate. Streza will instruct in Dissinger's baseball school in Florida, and probably will not come to Greenville until the Robins return from spring training at Melbourne, Florida.

Randy Heflin, who managed the Robins last year, will manage the New Iberia team in the Evangeline League, Louisiana, this season.

Dissinger also announced that John Pringle, former three letter man at the University of Connecticut, will be general manager for the Greenville team for 1951. Pringle will replace Steve Gross, who has been acting in that capacity since last season. Gross will go to the

State Considered For NIT Berth

New York, Feb. 16—(AP)—North Carolina State is being considered officially for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament.

The selection committee met for the first time yesterday and announced 36 teams, including State, are being considered for the 12 places. The tournament will be held in New York's Madison Square Garden beginning March 10.

Americus, Ga. club in the Georgia-Florida League as business manager. Dissinger also stated yesterday he is stepping out as president of the Greenville Robins. Into that position, which Dissinger occupied for one year, will step Russ Catalano, one of the owners of the club, from Hartford, Conn. Dissinger stated he is stepping out of the business setup entirely, leaving that arrangement to Pringle and the officers of the club organization. He will maintain control of the players on the Robins roster, however, he said.

Demaret-Dudas In First Round Tie

Mexico City, Feb. 16—(AP)—Jimmy Demaret and Stan Dudas, leaders in the Mexican National Open golf tournament, play three games today that may break the tie they ended with in medal play yesterday.

Each had a 68-four under par for the 4,364 yard Chapultepec course—in the opening rounds.

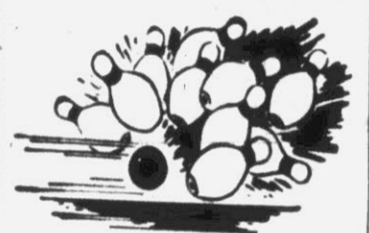

Demaret of Ojai, Calif., plays today with Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina who carded a 70 yesterday and Amado Martinez, top Mexican player who had the same score.

Dudas of Shawnee-On-The-Delaware, Penn., starts off immediately afterward with Tony Holguin of San Antonio, defending champion who turned in a 68 yesterday, and Al Besselin of Mt. Clemens, Mich., who had 71.

Demaret, Dudas and five other U. S. pros are playing here against others of the U. S. Professional Golfers Association. The PGA claims the event isn't a recognized championship tournament and conflicts with the Harlingen, Tex., Open. It hasn't taken any action against the Americans.

Of the 62 championship flight players, 16 shot par golf or better in the opening round.

"I was run-down, had lost weight and just didn't have an appetite. I just couldn't even force myself to eat at all. I heard about HADACOL on the radio and tried a bottle of it. In a week's time I noticed a big improvement in my appetite - was actually hungry and wanted to eat. I have now regained the weight I had lost, and have an amazing appetite. I have since taken about twenty-five bottles of HADACOL and do recommend HADACOL to all my friends. I always have HADACOL in the house and just wouldn't be without it."

Here is what Mr. Berry says about today's great HADACOL:

W. L. Berry 5420 West 33rd Ave., Little Rock, Ark., is a carpenter and a good one and he's mighty proud of his work. Mr. Berry says that to do a good day's work and do it right, a man has got to feel good. That's why Mr. Berry began to worry when he began losing weight, had no appetite and felt just generally run-down. But Mr. Berry didn't sit around worrying. W. L. Berry he did something about it. Mr. Berry started taking HADACOL. In a week's time he noticed a wonderful improvement. Many folks from all over the country have found that HADACOL has relieved the real cause of their troubles, when they are due to deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, and continued use of HADACOL helps keep these troubles from coming back.

Sees No Escape In Paying Costs

Des Moines, Feb. 16—(AP)—There is no escape from a pay-as-you-go policy in meeting America's defense program costs, President William H. Ruffin of the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM), said today.

"We always pay as we go," Ruffin declared in an address prepared for luncheon delivery at the National Farm Institute.

"We pay it in taxes or we pay it in inflation."

"In World War II, we paid about 40 per cent by taxes and the rest by inflation—the inflation that doubled our prices," he said.

The Durham, N. C., textile manufacturer, making his first major public speech since becoming head of NAM, urged reliance on expanded production of farm and factory products and a sound fiscal policy as the proper way to combat inflation. He discounted the effectiveness of what he called "panicky" imposition of wage and price controls.

Yadkin County To Get Hospital

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 16—(AP)—Yadkin County is going to get a $30,000 hospital.

The Medical Care Commission said low bids on the structure ran $4,600 over available funds. However, in its announcement yesterday, the commission declared local citizens will make up the difference.

The structure will be built at Yadkinville and be named the Lula Conrad Hoots Hospital.

Son Steps Into Father's Place On Bank Board

Ayden — At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank in Ayden, the resignation of R. H. McLawhorn was presented to the directors.

Mr. McLawhorn was re-elected in January to serve a new term but was forced to resign for reasons of health. He has been a member of the board for a long time, having served since his father, the late Charles McLawhorn, resigned from the board soon after he was elected in 1916.

R. H. McLawhorn, Jr., was elected to complete his father's unexpired term as director.

Flu Epidemic In Canada Spreads

Toronto, Feb. 16—(AP)—Canada's flu epidemic spread today to 25 new centers in Ontario and many schools and factories throughout the country were closed down.

Government health officials said they believe the influenza in Canada may be the same deadly kind known as Prime A Type—that has spread death to nearly 8,000 in Britain in the last few months. But they said they could not be certain until week-long laboratory tests are made.

4 Divisions . . .

ber. Two divisions only recently were inducted into federal service. While the four divisions and two combat teams are not battle-ready, they are far enough along so that some or all of them could be sent overseas for non-combat duty.

It is unlikely that the 82nd or two of the Guard divisions and one Combat Team would be sent overseas before mid-summer if they are chosen. The Defense Department on Feb. 13 announced two training exercises scheduled to be held in June and July in the Carolinas and Colorado. It said that participating in the Carolina maneuvers would be the 82nd Airborne, the 28th and 43rd Infantry Divisions (both National Guard units, the former from Pennsylvania and the latter a Vermont-Connecticut-Rhode Island organization), and the 278th Regimental Combat Team of Tennessee.

Not scheduled for the June-July exercises and thus perhaps eligible for earlier movement overseas are the other two divisions and one combat team of those federalized last September—the 40th Division of California, 45th Division of Okla-

Postpone Scout Training Course

A one-day training course for Scout leaders of the Pitt district has been postponed to March 14, it was announced today by Field Executive Howard Hunter.

Hunter said the training program was postponed because it conflicts in the plans of the scouters who wanted to attend the program. The training course will begin at 9:30 at the high school. Detailed plans for the activities will be announced at a later date, Hunter said.

SCORCHY AND BETTY FIND THAT MAC KNIGHT'S "BIG FRIEND" CHAMPION OF THE ALLEY FIGHT, IS BRUCE THE GIANT GORILLA... JUST ONE OF MAC KNIGHT'S FAMILY...

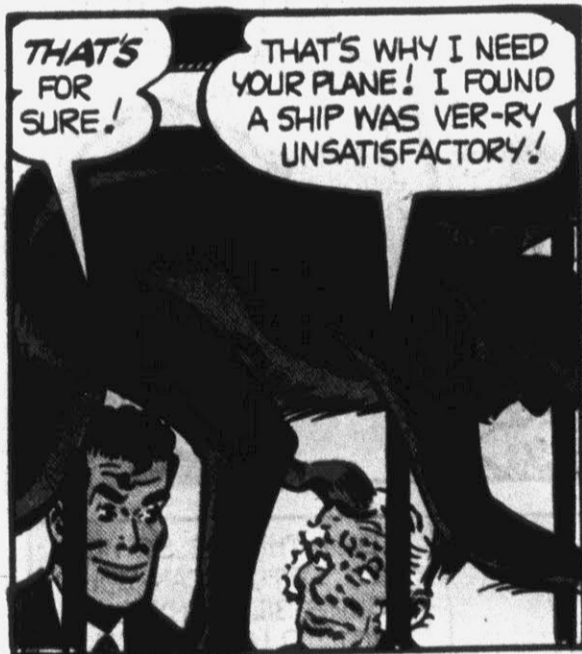

MR. MAC KNIGHT! YOU'VE GOT THE MAKIN'S OF A VERY CHOICE ZOO, HERE!

AYE, LAD! EVERY ONE IS WORTH A PRETTY PENNY FROM ANY CIRCUS OR ZOO!

I LOVE 'EM ALL AND HATE TO PART WI' THEM BUT THEY'LL THRIVE BETTER IN... AH, LARGER QUARTERS!

THAT'S FOR SURE!

THAT'S WHY I NEED YOUR PLANE! I FOUND A SHIP WAS VER-RY UNSATISFACTORY!

THOSE WISE GUYS WHO JUMPED YOU IN THE ALLEY WERE SAILORS?

AYE! WE WERE ALL ABOARD CAP'N DUCK'S SHIP...

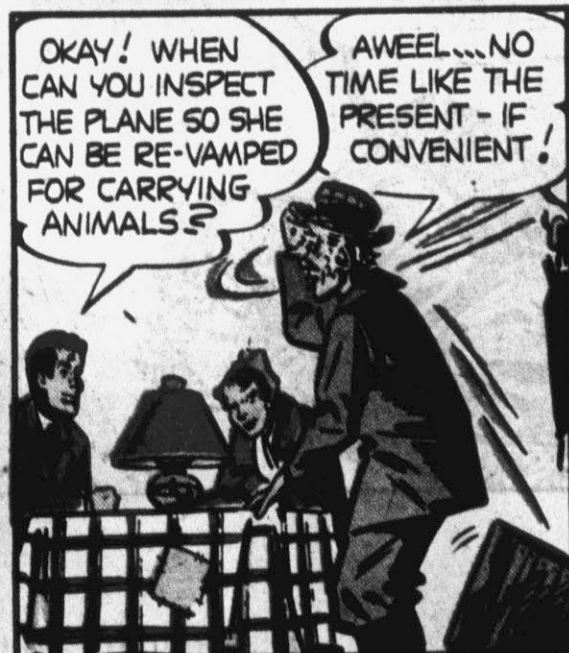

BUT HE'D CARRY US NO FURTHER UNLESS I'D PAY TWICE THE RATE AGREED ON - THE DIR-RTY PIRATE!!

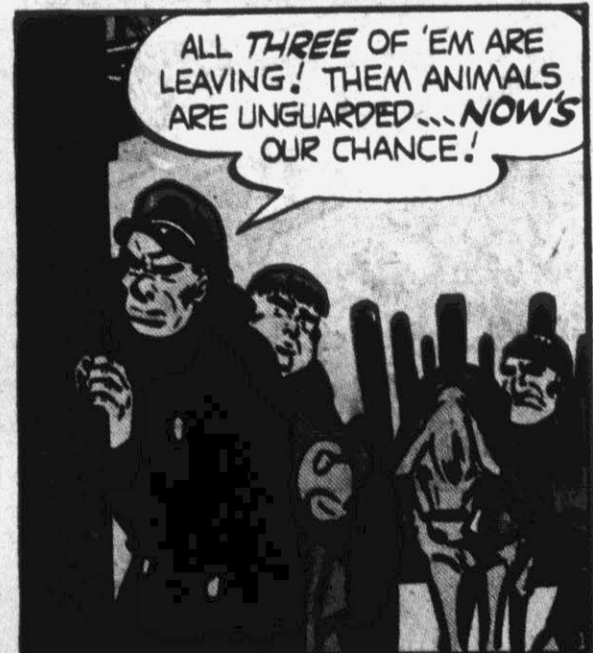

HMM - WELL, THINK WE CAN HELP MR. MAC, BETTY?

MR. MAC IS QUITE WELCOME TO MY DC3, SCORCHY! BUT YOU'RE IN CHARGE OF PRACTICAL ARRANGEMENTS!

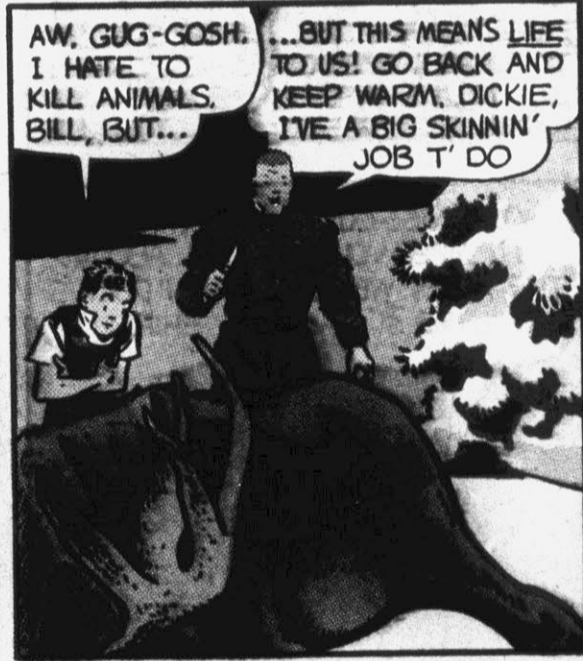

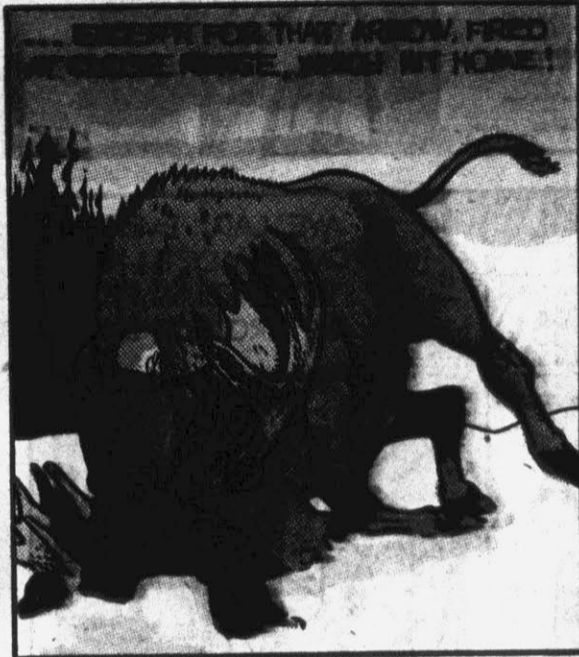

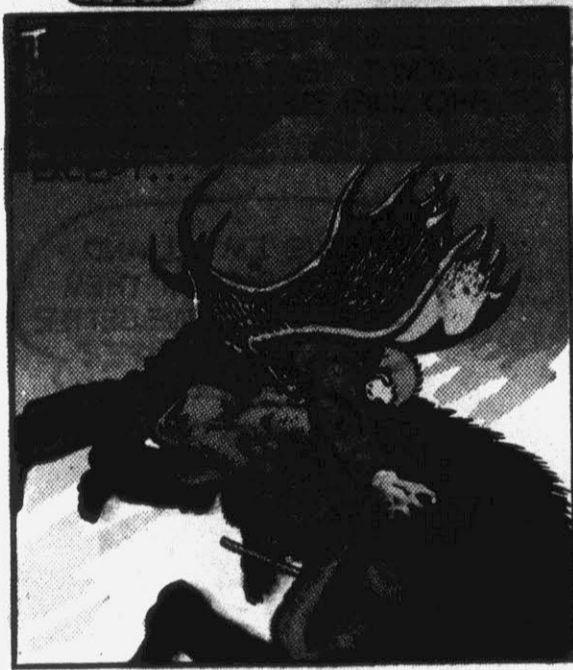

OKAY! WHEN CAN YOU INSPECT THE PLANE SO SHE CAN BE RE-VAMPED FOR CARRYING ANIMALS?

AWEEL... NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT - IF CONVENIENT!

ALL THREE OF 'EM ARE LEAVING! THEM ANIMALS ARE UNGUARDED... NOW'S OUR CHANCE!

BECAUSE HE FELT SORRY FOR THE UNFORTUNATE GIRL HE HAS JUST RESCUED, OAKY LENT HER HIS MAGIC RING... AND NOW IT LOOKS LIKE ALL HER WISHES HAVE BEEN GRANTED...

WHEW! I'M NEVER GONNA GO THROUGH THIS AGAIN!

THANKS, ANYWAY, FOR THAT GORGEOUS PALACE, AND...!

I'LL TAKE THAT RING!

HO! NOW I CAN QUIT MY JOB AS A GENIE!

I GUESS YOU ASKED HIM FOR TOO MUCH!

BUT A CHANCE LIKE THAT WAS TOO GOOD TO MISS!

COME, I'LL SHOW YOU THROUGH MY PALACE!

ER... ALL RIGHT!

AND THREE HOURS LATER

WE'VE SEEN IT FROM THE CELLAR TO THE ATTIC, AND NOW WE'LL LOOK AT THE GARDENS.

AFTER THAT I'LL HAFTA GO! KING CORNY WILL BE WONDERING WHERE I AM!

IT'S ALL SO WONDERFUL! BUT THERE'S SOMETHING ELSE I WANT!

SEEMS LIKE YOU'VE GOT EVERYTHING!

WHAT ELSE DO YOU WANT?!

CAN'T YOU GUESS?!

...I WANT A HUSBAND!

YOU D-DO?!

THEN WHY DON'TCHA TRY TO G-GET ONE?!
