Magazine Team To Report On Pitt Draft Study

County School Superintendent Don H. Conley (left) and Greenville City School Superintendent J. H. Rose (right) are shown with two representatives of Life Magazine who arrived in Greenville yesterday to interview and photograph six Pitt county men who were rejected for the draft because of failing the mental tests. America Being Geared For All-Out War, All-Out Peace

Top Mobilizer Wilson Promises Better Than-Ever Future, Unless Destiny Tarnished By Fear And Disunity

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—Defense mobilization director Charles E. Wilson said last night "unless we tarnish our destiny by fear, disunity and improvidence" Americans can look to better than ever future, "ready for all-out war or all-out peace."

In his first report to the nation on "The State Of Mobilization" Wilson called for a giant effort during the next three years to build up unprecedented productive strength. He spoke over a nationwide radio hookup.

The chief mobilizer promised war to extinction on profiteering and inflation, strongly backed President Truman's request for a quick new tax levy, said without elaboration that wage policies are being modified, hinted at the necessity for changing farm price protection and promised swift production of the mightiest arsenal the world has ever seen.

Wilson indicated, in pegging his estimates and predictions to the next two or three years, that the nation may be over the hump of its task by then—barring, as he repeatedly said, all-out war.

He discussed some of the thorniest problems of mobilization, but his speech was obviously aimed at balancing atomic age terrors, congressional wrangles, loyalty quizzes and battle reports with a faith that the nation's problems are only a measure of its opportunities.

"This nation of ours is in a sound position," he said, adding, "my greatest hope is that you will come to share with me my own profound confidence in our ability to take a storm, to weather it, and to come out with strength and vigor."

A provident, fearless and united American people, he said, "can look forward to Capacity Unlimited... this is an age which again calls for bold minds and not for little men."

A further effort to solve the highly dangerous feud between India and Pakistan over possession of the princely state of Kashmir is being made by America and Britain through the United Nations.

This move doesn't represent an entirely new proposal but rather is a fresh start on the old program of holding a plebiscite to see whether the population wants to join Pakistan or India. The main difference between the old and new proposals is that the latter provides for arbitration if other methods fail.

May Launch Inquiry Of Reds In Defense

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee may sidetrack temporarily its Hollywood probe to launch an extended investigation of communism in defense industries.

Chairman Wood (D-Ga.) told newsmen today that committee hearings would open in the very near future—possibly next week—on the extent of Communist labor infiltration into sensitive defense plants.

"We know that Communists who have been expelled from the CIO are now being employed in defense industries, including munitions plants," Wood said.

"It is a very serious situation of which the public is too little aware," Wood, however, made clear that the Red-in-defense probe did not wash out the committee's interest in possible Communist influences in the movie industry.

Committee investigators armed with subpoenas for at least a score of Hollywood figures are already in the movie capital laying the groundwork for hearings. If preliminary investigation warrants, Wood said yesterday, a special three-man subcommittee will hold on-the-spot hearings on the west coast.

The defense industrial areas on cover key basis, "wherever defense plants are located," the committee chairman said.

Tobacco Plants Facing Early Attack By Pests

Pitt County Tobacco Specialist Sam Weeks today cautioned local tobacco farmers to take steps to prevent damage to their tobacco beds by bridge larva and crane fly larva.

Weeks said the appearance of the larva along with grub worms in several sections of the county. The fly larva and grub worms pulverize the top of the soil in the plant beds and uproot the young plants.

The assistant county agent recommended to farmers of the county that they take steps to control the presence of the larva and the worms in the plant beds. "They can be controlled by dusting the plant beds with one per cent parathion dust at the rate of one and one-half to two pounds per 100 square yards," Weeks stated. "The dust should be applied late in the afternoon, and the person doing the dusting should take precautions not to breathe any more of the dust than absolutely necessary."

Although there are relatively few tobacco plants up in the beds this early in the season, Weeks said the weather conditions this winter have been more favorable for the germination of the tobacco seeds than they were a year ago.

He also pointed out that "equally as many" Pitt county farmers are using weed control chemicals in their plant beds this year as last year. "I think we have had sufficient moisture this winter for the weed control to be effective, and still get good seed germination."

Dry weather, during last winter slowed the germination of the tobacco seeds in the plant beds, and cold weather late in March caused some cold injury to plants which were up in the beds.

Surprise Quads Baltimore, Feb. 24—(AP)—A 28-year-old wife of a Baltimore steel mill employee who had been expecting twins gave birth to quadruplets—their fondness so good they weren't placed in incubators.

The quads—two boys and two girls—weighed about four pounds each, a hospital spokesman said. They are Mrs. Pappas' first children.

New Angle Likely For RFC Probe

Senatorial Group May Hunt Influence Welders In Ranks Of Congress

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—A Senate subcommittee investigating huge government loans steered likely today to start a new hunt for influence welders' tracks on Congress' own doorsteps.

It already has charged that the spoor of "political favoritism" can be followed to the desk of a White House aide—a charge which stung President Truman to retort that the accusation was asinine.

Disclosure yesterday that Mr. Truman had quietly obtained from Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) files, 700 to 900 letters, mostly written by Senate and House members about RFC loans, roused the subcommittee to wrath. Its members chorused accusations that this was a retaliatory attempt to intimidate Congress and the subcommittee.

But Mr. Truman last night topped off a day of dramatic developments in the controversy with what looked like a peace overture and possibly a hint as to how Congress could cut short the inquiry without losing face.

Joseph Short, White House Press Secretary, announced the President "knows of no evidence of illegal influence of the RFC" by anyone in Congress or any members of his staff.

Short said: "This material was requested by the President for his examination and review in connection with his plans for reorganization of the RFC."

Short did not explain why such material would be of value to his chief. The reorganization plan mentioned would abolish the jobs of the RFC Board of Directors and put a one man boss over the agency to pass on loans.

But the fact that the President called for the material raised the probability the subcommittee will explore anew and more deeply the question of how far a congressman may properly go to urge the lending of public funds. Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.), the subcommittee chairman, said in his first round of inquiries into RFC policies.

Wherry has proposed that the Senate record itself as opposed to the President's dispatching any more divisions to join the North Atlantic defense force until Congress passed on the policy involved.

Dewey said his opposition to the Wherry proposal does not imply approval of all aspects of our foreign policy, of the present fiscal policies of the government, of its wage and price control policies or of the national budget.

But he said the adoption of the Wherry Resolution would be interpreted in Europe as indicating an American withdrawal into "isolationism."

"If this resolution should be adopted it would be taken in every capital in the world, both free and slave, as a signal that the United States has hauled down its flag," he said in a prepared statement.

Boy Tortured In Initiation Rites Mobile, Ala., Feb. 24—(AP)—A boy was tarred and beaten with leather straps here in a high school fraternity initiation which a doctor compared with the torture of medieval days.

David M. Campbell Jr., 15, said he and four other initiates were taken into the country Thursday night, forced to build a bonfire and strip of their clothes. Their bodies were covered with a tarry substance and a liquid was poured over them with painful effects.

Then, they were lashed with leather whips and taken for an automobile ride at high speed. At the end of the ride, they were supposed to walk home.

Meanwhile, however, David's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Campbell, had become worried when he failed to return from the initiation at a late hour. They set out to look for him.

A speeding car zoomed past and they recognized their son hanging on to the fender.

"We chased the car a long distance and when it stopped David stepped off and fell to the ground," Mrs. Campbell said. "When we first approached him, he didn't know who we were."

Korea Campaign Kills Another U. S. General

West Central Front Korea, Feb. 24—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, commander of the United States Ninth Corps, died today after he walked away from his crashed helicopter in the Han River north of Yosu.

General Moore collapsed and died in the van of Brig. Gen. H. J. D. Myers, 24th Division artillery commander. It was not immediately determined whether Moore died of crash injuries or a heart attack.

The helicopter plummeted into the Han River as it lost power suddenly. Both the General and his pilot (name unavailable) were helped ashore by troops from a U. S. engineer unit camped along the river.

The General was able to walk ashore and was taken to General Myers' van before collapsing. Moore was superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point until shortly before his appointment to succeed Maj. Gen. J. B. Coulter, as Corps Commander was disclosed Feb. 13.

Moore was the fourth General lost by United Nations forces in Korea.

Dewey Calls For Army In Europe

Don't 'Haul Down The Flag' Urges N.Y. Governor

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey urged Congress today not to "haul down the flag" by barring the sending of American troops to Europe.

The New York Governor told the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees approval of a resolution by Senator Wherry of Nebraska, "would paralyze the capacity of this nation for its own defense."

Wherry has proposed that the Senate record itself as opposed to the President's dispatching any more divisions to join the North Atlantic defense force until Congress passed on the policy involved.

Dewey said his opposition to the Wherry proposal does not imply approval of all aspects of our foreign policy, of the present fiscal policies of the government, of its wage and price control policies or of the national budget.

But he said the adoption of the Wherry Resolution would be interpreted in Europe as indicating an American withdrawal into "isolationism."

Military Chiefs Of U.S., China Talk In Formosa

Taipei, Formosa, Feb. 24—(AP)—American and Chinese Nationalist military commanders conferred at length for the second successive day over defense of Formosa.

No announcement was forthcoming. But well-informed observers expressed belief the meetings yesterday and today had two purposes: 1. Close meshing of U.S. and Chinese Nationalist efforts in defense of this island if Communists try to invade it.

2. Full discussion of Nationalist military needs—for army, navy and air force.

The conferences were regarded in this capital as the most important Chinese-American talks in Taipei since General MacArthur visited Formosa last July.

No Need Of World War III Now

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23. Only a spiritual world awakening can prevent another World War sometime. Wars appear to be one of God's ways of bringing people to their knees. There, however, is no need for another World War now.

Advance U.S. Patrols Hit Road Hub In Central Korea

Move In And Out Of Hoengsong Twice Today, But Make No Attempt To Hold Town; Chinese Slowly Withdrawing From Scene Of Disastrous Defeat

Tokyo, Feb. 24—(AP)—American forces pushed into Hoengsong twice today but made no attempt to hold the Reds' major central Korean hub.

A tank-infantry team withdrew after a three-hour fight Saturday morning with Chinese forces north of the town.

Patrols prowled into the town again in the afternoon but pulled back when the communists began firing from the northern hills.

East of Chipyong, allied infantrymen flushed a battalion of Chinese Saturday afternoon in the Sangosong area.

Elsewhere along the w. front, there was little action.

Under pressure by 100,000 men of six allied nations, the Chinese were withdrawing slowly toward a new defensive line cutting across mountains north of Hoengsong.

This pullback from the scene of a disastrous Red defeat was made while reports circulated of a shake-up in the Chinese High Command.

United Nations sources on the west central front held that Gen. Lin Piao, "The Manchurian Hammer," has been shifted back to south China.

Lin, one of the ablest of Red China's field commanders, is believed to have been succeeded as leader of the Fourth Field Army in Korea by Gen. Peng Teh-huai, Peng is deputy Commander-in-Chief of all Chinese Red armies.

The Missouri's 16-inch guns touched off a tremendous explosion during a bombardment near Songjin, on the northeast coast 185 miles north of the 38th parallel.

A massive barrage by artillery, tanks and planes blasted Reds out of a mountain pass today on the east flank of the 60-mile central front.

The Reds offered stiff rear guard resistance. On the approaches to a new mountain defense line north of Hoengsong and Chipyong.

That 20-mile segment of the front defends Hongchong, a Red assembly and communication hub.

United Nations-held Chipyong, 40 miles east of Seoul, is the point where an encircled French and American combat team helped break the back of a Chinese counteroffensive last week.

Some 15,000 Reds had been expected to stand or die in Hoengsong. But a field report today from Eighth Army headquarters said the Reds appeared more likely to make that stand north of the war-torn town.

Series Of Three PTA Study Courses Finished

By MARTHA FORBES The series of study courses being held under the auspices of the city P.T.A. Council got underway on Tuesday night with a session on the "Pre-School Child," conducted by Miss Annie Mae Murray of the East Carolina Teachers College faculty.

The meeting, the first in a series of three, was held at the Third Street School. Mrs. W. L. Whebede, president of the school P.T.A., presided and introduced Miss Murray, who is in charge of the college kindergarten.

In her talk, Miss Murray discussed the mental, emotional, social and physical aspects of the pre-school child. "The education of the child begins at birth," stated Miss Murray, "and is a continuing process from the cradle to the grave."

She stressed ways of helping parents to prepare their children for their school experiences, and in so doing, she covered all phases of child development. She suggested that parents realize themselves what an important and different experience entering the first grade is for children. They step into a new world of adjustments and have to learn many new behavior patterns, emotional responses, and development of personality traits, she informed her audiences. Even their physical life is changed; they have to learn to stay still for longer periods of time; they learn control of bodily functions; and they begin to develop some muscles previously not used very much. Their social behavior becomes an important part of their development, and learning self-control becomes an integral part of their education, she continued. For the first time, probably, they become conscious of a specified learning process, and reading, writing and drawing make them aware of their mental development.

First Corps Rests After Long Drive

Quietly Confident Troops Dug In On Han River After Push That Marked Departure In Tactics, And Success

By JIM BECKER Western Front, Korea, Feb. 24—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Frank Milburn's First Corps today sits quietly confident on the south bank of the Han River across from Seoul. Its first job since the allies regained the Korean initiative is completed.

In a drive that began almost exactly a month ago, two American divisions and attached allied units drove 30 miles north across a 40-mile front to reach the present position.

The drive marked a departure in U.N. tactics in Korea—and the first allied victory over the Chinese Communists.

Carefully and methodically the allied push, which was kicked off from prepared positions south of Osan, where the first American soldier died in this war, combed the rugged hills that barred the road to the South Korean capital of Seoul.

The 25th Division, with its tough 35th Regiment in the vanguard, drove up the main Osan-Seoul road. The Third Division slogged through to the east. Turkish, British and South Korean units were mixed in the drive.

Discarded with sweeping armor smashes. Eighth Army Commander Matthew B. Ridgway outlined the strategy. "Use every daylight hour to seek out and destroy the enemy," he ordered. "Inflict maximum casualties and sustain a minimum of your own. Withdraw to strong enemy defense positions at night. Search every piece of ground. Do not push on until you have eliminated every Communist."

Fantastically heavy concentrations of artillery and air power were used to pave the way for the foot sloggers. Hills were pounded and fire-bombed and then pounded again. Then the infantry climbed them and killed the enemy, dug in on the slopes.

At first the troops found fanatical resistance. They used bayonets and rifles and courage and pried the Chinese and North Koreans off the hills.

Always there was another hill beyond. Then two weeks after the push to the north had begun, the main defense line cracked. The Chinese fled to north of the Han and left only a small screening force of North Koreans.

The last few days were easy.

U. S. Negotiates For Atomic Plane Engine

General Electric Corp. Consulted For Project While Air Force Discloses Jet Bomber Makes Record Flight

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—With jet bombers already sipping across two oceans at a 400-mile-per-hour clip, the United States is negotiating for actual construction of the world's first known atom-powered aircraft engine.

Plans for the atom-driven engine were disclosed yesterday, with Air Force permission, by the General Electric Company. A GE spokesman said contractual negotiations for the nuclear power plant "are under way."

The announcement was made shortly after the arrival here of an English-made Canberra jet bomber which streaked across the North Atlantic Wednesday in four hours and 40 minutes.

Then the Air Force disclosed that one of its B-47 stratojet bombers spanned the Pacific to Honolulu Thursday in something under six hours for an average speed above 400 miles an hour.

While pushing its program for development of atom-powered planes, the U.S. is planning to expand its capacity for turning out jet engines. This was disclosed last

Plane Wreckage In Baltic May Be Red Victim

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 24—(AP)—U.S. Navy officials said today they are investigating the possibility that airplane wreckage found by a German diver in the Baltic may be that of a missing Privateer fired on by Russian fighter planes last spring.

The four-engined Privateer vanished with its crew of 10 April 4, 1950, on what the Navy said was an unarmed training flight from Wiesbaden to Copenhagen.

After days of search, in which only some flotsam which may have been part of the plane was found, the search was given up.

This week a German diver working off the Baltic coast near Luebeck reported he had located wreckage of a four-engined U.S. plane.

Wilson's Radio Talk

Boss Of The Defense Program Offers John Q. Public A Fresh Look Into What The Future Holds In Store; Indirectly Answers Labor; Vast Goals That Lie Ahead

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—Tougher for a while, then better if there's no war. That's the look into the future offered last night by Charles E. Wilson, boss of the defense program, in a radio talk.

His speech served a double purpose: it was a kind of pep talk to the nation and it got Mr. Wilson's views across.

Apparently, he thought it was time for him to put them across. For more than a week Wilson has been under attack by labor leaders who accused him of freezing labor out of an important say-so in the defense program.

bably decided he wasn't going to sit idly by while his stature was whittled down.

He took the bull by the horns and marched up to a microphone to speak his own piece for himself, which would indicate that Wilson wants to and intends to stay around here for a while.

He called for equality of sacrifice and pointed out some of the usual points which have been emphasized a number of times since the defense program started:

1. Building up defenses so well that Russia will be afraid to attack.

2. Building up at the same time our capacity for producing arms to such a point that defense output can be poured out on a tremendous scale if war actually comes.

3. At the same time, by expanding our capacity for producing, not only be able to produce defense stuff for a number of years but at the same time produce a lot of stuff for civilians.

No. 3 will have to wait a bit and (Continued on Page Eight)

Laymen's Day At Church Sunday

By WYATT BROWN
Laymen's Day will be observed at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at the Sunday morning worship service when the whole service will be led and carried out by laymen. The laymen taking part will be Joseph S. Moyer, president, Jonathan W. Overton, D. H. Conley, Reynolds May and W. W. Howell. The last named will be the speaker.
A report on the progress of the major project of the church for the year—the new Educational Building—will be made by Reynolds May, representing the Board of Stewards, and the Building Fund Finance Committee.

Laymen's Day is an important day in the life of the Methodist Church and is being observed throughout the world Sunday, February 25, by all Methodist Churches free to carry on the program they may choose, commented Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial. He further stated, "Laymen are occupying the pulpit of Methodism on the same Sunday as a witness concerning their Christian faith and their belief that the strength of the church lies in the faithfulness of the men and women who ordinarily occupy the pews."
"Methodism began as a lay movement, and its strength today is determined by the work and loyalty of its lay members." It has been a custom through the years for the Methodists to annually observe this special day for laymen to bear witness.
The contractor on the new Educational Building began pouring concrete for the top floor yesterday. Laymen's day, the Building Committee, the Building Finance Committee, and the Board of Stewards said they thought was a good time to bring the congregation up to date on the progress that has been made. Ollie VanNortwick is chairman of the Building Committee and Lyman Ormond is chairman of the Building Finance Committee.

Robinson Union School PTA Meet Has 135 In Attendance On Tuesday
Winterville, Feb. 23.—The regular meeting of the PTA of Robinson Union School in Winterville met Tuesday night, February 20 at 7:30 p. m. with 135 persons present with the president Mr. David Henderson.
After the regular routine of business matters, especially reminding parents of the Choir Festival Sunday afternoon at 7:00 o'clock, a one-act comedy "Here Comes Aunt Sarah" was presented, directed by Miss R. L. Harris and Mrs. participating. Characters included Mrs. Olivia Ward, Mrs. Lizzie Henderson, Mrs. Emerline Wallace,

"Feed My Lambs!"

A little group of fisherman sat around an open fire on the shore of the sea of Galilee. In their midst was the greatest Teacher the world has ever known, Jesus of Nazareth.

When they had finished their simple breakfast He turned to one of them and said, "Simon, do you love me more than the others?"

The burly chap, who had thrice denied his Master, winced. "You know, Lord, that I love you."

Then Jesus said, "FEED MY LAMBS!"

The echo of that simple commandment has never died away. It rings from the belfry of every Christian church. It calls from spiritual starvation to a full and abundant life of service to others.

Attend and support a church in your community. Receive all the good things it offers you . . . and help your Church bring these blessings to other people.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Korean Vets See Minstrel Show

Smiles Brought To Hospital Wounded

By ROY HARDEE
Camp Lejeune—Here at this Marine Corps Hospital, there are some 2,400, the great majority of which have received wounds and injuries while in action on the Korean warfront.

To these men confined in the hospital units, some for only a short period of time, others for years, every day routine boils down to the point where it offers nothing new, and for the men who are entirely bedridden, endurance of the confinement sometimes nearly reaches the breaking point.

Countless beds line the long hospital wards, with unhappy faces staring up from the patients therein.

Last Sunday, something happened to the men at the base hospital which in one way or another was to change the appearance of some of those faces, at least for a while and give them something to talk about for a while.

From Greenville came the cast of the Kiwanis Minstrel with complete scenery and costumes, where it had just finished a three-day stand presenting the well known Kiwanis Dixie Land Minstrel.

To the Kiwanians, college students and others who made up the troupe, traveling to the base hospital on Sunday meant giving up their one free day, arising early, setting up scenery in a few short hours, dressing in costumes and ready to go on the stage with the opening number at 2 o'clock; but all felt it well worth the effort.

The arrangements for the presentation of the show at the base hospital were made by the Pitt County American Red Cross through the Camp's Recreational Director, Miss Mable Bryant. Transportation of the cast, which numbered around 65 persons, was paid for by the Red Cross.

Word soon spread around the hospital that a show was on for the afternoon, with a lot of pretty girls in it, and from that time on, the number of men deciding to go to the afternoon show more than doubled, Miss Bryant stated. Reaction to the presence of "Just another day show" did not offer much in the way of entertainment for the boys it was pointed out. While the majority of the cast was busy setting up scenery and putting everything in final readiness for the opening of the show, a musical group made a tour of wards in which patients were kept who could not attend the auditorium show because of either limited room or the nature of their wounds.

The show opened before a packed audience which seemed to catch on to the spirit of the production at once, and from the opening number until the curtain came down, laughter echoed.

"I have never seen the boys enjoy a show as much as they have this one," a member of the staff remarked during acts.

Walking patients filled the front sections of the auditorium, with the back devoted to use by the bed patients, many of which had to raise up and prop to see the show. Others watched from wheelchairs.

The men's reaction to the show was wonderful, one cast member stated. "Why men who came in and just seem to sit there, not the slightest sign of a smile on their faces, would begin to smile; some for the first time in a long time, as some particular part of the show moved a responsive chord in them."

Talking with some of the patients, they all seemed to agree that the show was the best entertainment which they had encountered since they arrived at the hospital and, a lot of them had been there for quite awhile.

"Some of the jokes which were told to the more than 500 persons jammed into the auditorium will be repeated from ward to ward until the entire hospital will know them by heart," a Marine stated.

To the members of the cast, as they gathered around after the show, one thought and one thought only was expressed: That it was more than worth the extra time and effort to bring the show down to the base and an idea began to take root among some of the members to form a smaller show and return to the base at a later date.

"Just to be able to watch the expressions on those boys' faces was worth the work we have gone through," several of the girls commented.

SWEET JEA AND THE BOYS:—The hit of the Lejeune show was the one and only Sweet Pea, shown above shaking hands with some of the boys who came to see him following his performance with the Kiwanis production. Sweet Pea, alias Tige Gardner, kept the boys laughing from the time they entered until they left. Here he draws smiles with his blackface make-up, long cigar and three-foot tie. (Reflector Staff Photos by Roy Hardee).

BOY, THAT WAS A GOOD ONE:—The three Marines shown in the above picture seem to be getting a big kick out of some of the end men's comedy in Sunday's show.

SOME WALKED, OTHERS BY WHEELCHAIR:—The reaction of the wheelchair patients shown above was typical of that shown by Marines who attended the show. Walking patients, stretcher cases and wheel chair wounded turned out in record numbers.

BEST AUDIENCE WE EVER PLAYED FOR:—Those were the words spoken by members of the Greenville cast as they closed their Dixie Land minstrel Sunday at the Camp Lejeune Naval Hospital where an audience of more than 500 men, veterans of the Korean war, saw the show. Above is a portion of the jam-packed auditorium with the minstrel in the background.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
CAST OUT EVIL WITH GOOD
Jesus once spoke of a man out of whose life an evil spirit had been cast. This evil spirit went and got certain other spirits more evil than himself, and when they went back again to the man's life, they found it swept, garnished, empty. They entered in, and the last state of that man was worse than the first.

Nature abhors a vacuum. This is true not only in the material realm, but in the spiritual as well. If we put evil out of our hearts, we have only enlarged the danger of its coming back again, unless we fill the empty place with heavenly powers which can successfully resist the return of evil. The Christian formula is, Overcome evil with good—not only overcome evil, but do it by using goodness to force evil out of the life and to hold the citadel of the heart against its return.

Someone has said that prayer is offering hospitality to God. It is the opening of our hearts to Him with the invitation that He come in and tenant the places formerly occupied by evil impulses and desires. Be assured of this, that you are never through with evil until you have supplanted it with good.

No Wonder Churchill Was Indignant!

We too, confess to a share of Winston Churchill's surprise at the meek acceptance by the Socialist government of an American Admiral to command the North Atlantic Treaty Nations navy.

The tradition of Great Britain has been sea power. It has been their one great pride since the days of Drake. Probably in no other branch of the NATO's armed forces could they have offered so much in contributing to the common effort as in the naval forces.

Just why the Attlee government declined to insist on this responsibility is mystery. Are the socialist leaders so lukewarm to the idea of standing up to an enemy that they want no part of the responsibility involved? After centuries of leadership as a sea-faring people, do their traditions mean so little? Is the pride of a once great nation now mere humility?

The natural indignation of the old warrior, Churchill, was backed up by a large number of socialists in Commons. Prime Minister Attlee has promised to again take up the matter. But the question remains: How much can rely on the sense of cooperation and team-play by Attlee and his fellow-socialists?

That Senate Desk Looks Better, Even From Here

Just how much basis of truth there is in speculation and off-the-record remarks by friends that Harry Truman would like to return to his old Senate seat, we don't know. But by now, it appears pretty obvious his job as President is no longer as pleasant as it used to be.

There has been an unprecedented wave of crises, political, domestic and foreign, to plague the Chief Executive. They have taken their toll. He can't . . . no one could, carry the whole load alone.

Adding to his nominal burdens, there seems to have grown a spirit of near-antipathy between the President and the Congress; an attitude which Mr. Truman has made little effort to smooth over, and which makes even routine tasks more difficult.

Mr. Truman is planning a brief "rest" at Key West. Actually, his work will go on as before. But the strain of the Washington atmosphere will be eased.

Sometimes the way we treat our presidents seems sadistic. We elect him; give him the burdens of governing a nation; provide him with a moderate salary, then sit back to watch. He can't please everybody, and is a constant target of criticism. One bad guess, one thoughtless statement, and he isn't allowed to forget it for months. It's even harder when his governmental policies have the approval of a bare majority of voters.

We expect too much of our presidents. The job itself is too big for one man. There once was talk of having the vice president share some of the administrative headaches, but somewhere along the line it went out the window.

Yes, it's quite probable that Harry Truman looks back on his Senate desk as representing the happiest days of his life, and would like to recapture the less strenuous and trying days.

On the other hand, with such a dark prospect in store for any presidential prospect, who'd want to be President?

Another Federal Aid Bill For Schools

Federal aid to education popped into the news again yesterday with the announcement of Representative Graham A. Barden that he will propose a new bill in Congress for federal aid to public schools.

In this session, we sincerely hope Barden will frame the bill in the manner in which it will do the most good to the educational systems of the states—not in the manner in which it will garner the most potential votes for the politicians.

The last federal aid to education bill was designed like most federal aid bills are. That is, to touch the pocketbooks of a particular group of people; and by doing so, to align this group more closely with the powers that be in the federal government. The federal aid bill for public schools would have put millions of dollars into teachers salaries, and therefore would have tied in with the federal government payrolls of teachers across the country.

Needless to say, it would be perilous indeed for the federal government to control the public school systems of the United States. Such a condition would be one of the quickest steps to indoctrination of the youth of this country in any sort of "ism" which crept into the government. With the highly centralized federal government we now have, the safest policy for the future of the American way of life is for the individual states to continue to control the public school systems.

It is recognized that the public school systems of most states need financial aid from some source. If aid is to come from the federal government, we believe it will best serve the interest of the nation and the school systems—if not the best interest of the vote-getters—if the federal money goes into physical plants and improved educational facilities rather than into teachers salaries.

If the burden of supplying physical plants is lightened from the shoulders of the individual governments which have to build the schools, the school systems will be able to well take care of their own teachers salaries. And the federal government will not have its finger in the pay checks of the nation's teachers.

News Behind The News
Every Saturday this veteran Washington columnist devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6306 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—"On January 30," writes M.H.B. of Clemson, S.C., "the United Nations Political Committee branded Communist China as an aggressor in Korea by a 44-7 vote. I note that among the seven against the motion were Poland, Czechoslovakia, the Ukraine and, of course, Russia.

"Will you please explain how Russia gets votes for her satellites while the United States, Great Britain, France etc. have only one vote each? It seems to me that there was another example where the appeasers had their way."

GUARANTEES—Answer: M.H.B.'s conclusion is not precisely true. When the U.N. was organized Poland and Czechoslovakia had not become "satellite" countries.

According to the terms of the postwar treaties, they were to be free and independent. Our latest note to Stalin, in reply to his famous "interview," charges that he violated these guarantees.

A stronger case can be presented against the inclusion of the Ukraine and Byelorussia as members of the U.N. In demanding that they be given membership, Stalin contended that they were separate republics within the Soviet, whereas they are actually provinces. He also noted that Britain's erstwhile dominions were to be given membership and a vote.

CONCESSIONS—President Roosevelt countered in jocular vein that, if the Ukraine and Byelorussia were to be included, he might insist that all of our forty-eight states be permitted the same status. There would have been as much equity in this demand as in Stalin's.

But it must be remembered that the U. N. was planned in an atmosphere of friendliness and hope. F.D.R., like Wilson at Paris, was willing to make almost any concessions, hoping that the U.N. would provide a medium for peaceful settlement of world disputes.

TENURE—"In your January 27 article," writes Mrs. F.M.R. of Crescenta, Calif., "I notice that you said twenty-six states had approved the amendment limiting the presidential tenure to two consecutive terms. Could you list the states which have not ratified? I am going to see what I can do to arouse interest there in favor of ratification."

Answer: Adoption of this constitutional amendment now seems assured before the end of the present year. Six states have ratified since I wrote the January 27 column, increasing the total to thirty-two, with only four more to go. The reform must have been approved by thirty-six states before March 26, 1964.

PLAGIARISM—I am indebted to Mrs. G. C. Richard of Odessa, Tex., for an amusing sidelight on Winston Churchill's oratorical tricks and plagiarisms. She writes: "In your column on February 4, you said that Winston Churchill coined the expression 'iron curtain' in his Fulton, Mo., speech. If you will consult Bartlett's 'Familiar Quotations,' you will find the expression was coined by Von Kroegh, Hitler's Minister of Finance, and was used by Goebbels in his propaganda material for some time before Mr. Churchill adopted it."

Answer: Churchill apparently has been given undeserved credit for this exquisite characterization of Russian isolation. I do not believe that he gave his original sources when he used it in the presence of President Truman that day.

REPEATS—Like every author and orator from Shakespeare to F. Scott Fitzgerald, Demosthenes to Truman, Mr. Churchill repeats or pilfers or paraphrases when original inspiration runs dry. I caught him up on what was perhaps his most famous utterance. In paying tribute to the airmen who staved off the Hitler blitz, he said, if I remember correctly: "Never in human history did so many owe so much to so few."

In 1908, when he gazed on the majestic headwaters of the Nile at Lake Victoria Nyanza, he commented: "Nowhere else in the world could so enormous a mass of water be held up by so little masonry."

Why Do They Stray?

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The privilege we have to say what we please about the President of the U. S. is a rare one. However, now and then people make statements about the President that they don't want their names attached to. A good example is the one that follows, by a "friend" of HST:

"He's just trying to do too darn much. It's tiring on him. Why, he snaps and snarls at those closest around him. It used to be that he sloughed off his troubles at night. Now he takes that darn briefcase of his to Blair House every night, filled to the locks, and sits up at all hours, studying about an appeal for grain for India. Mr. Hoover said, 'I'm going to make a radio speech and criticize your foreign policy again.'" Truman snapped back, "You go ahead and say whatever you want to. It will do the country good to know just exactly where you and your crowd stand." Eleanor Roosevelt said about Truman, "It is unfortunate when anyone feels the strain they are under so greatly that they are unable to think things through. But you must realize that President Truman is carrying the greatest load in history—even greater, she added, than that carried by her husband."

Harry knows that the boys are trying to get him to take a vacation. They could keep trying, he said, and it might work. But Harry will not go to Key West, and for a good reason. He says that pictures of the President playing in the warm sand at Key West would not look good beside pictures of GIs dragging through mud and snow in Korea. But about the first of next month Harry might head West on an inspection tour, dropping off for a few days in Arizona.

And I thank you.

Interested in a television set for $7 cents?
A rebuilt typewriter for $8?
A pair of women's shoes for a nickel?

This is the town for you, then. At least it was a couple of days ago. I'd have told you about it sooner except that my feet got stepped on.
(No, Junior, the man doesn't write with his feet. It just sounds that way sometimes.)
What happened to my feet and to the high cost of living, was a strange local institution known as the Washington's Birthday Sales.

Don't confuse these with quiet little events such as New Year's Eve in Times Square. They're in a class by themselves. They're a mob scene, an all-night vigil, a store manager's nightmare, a housewife's dream.

Also, they're painfully hard on the feet.
On Washington's Birthday, in this town, you can buy men's suits for $5, women's dresses (list price $10.98) for 99 cents, nylon stockings for 49 cents, side-arm chairs for 99 cents—oh, golly, they almost pay to cart the stuff away.

There are a couple of jokers in the pack, however:
1—A lot of these out-of-the-bone items are frankly a n d u n s h a m e d j u n k . The ads say so. The store manager will tell you so. This doesn't stop people from buying, though. A bargain is a bargain, even if it falls apart before you get it home. Ask any woman.

2—The most spectacular bargains—$8 electric refrigerators, for instance—come in a small quantities. A store will offer only three or four of them. To get one, you've got to stand for sit or lie down in line for hours. This year's champ was a man who stood it out 22 hours. He got a television set for $9.90.

This has been going on annually for about 30 years but I hadn't heard about it before and nothing would do but I had to take a look.

Oh, brother
The bus was crowded, the streets were crowded. It was a holiday (or so the calendar said) and yet there hadn't been so many people around town since Franklin Roosevelt's second inauguration. You couldn't get in some of the stores, the doors had been barred and the cops were holding the crowds back.

My wife, who had come along to provide the "woman's angle," took a limited view of the "whole" enterprise.
"Let's go home," she said.
"We'll be trampled to death," I said, "I want to get inside one of these stores and Ouch!"

A large, befeured woman, sailing past with an armload of packages and a wild gleam in her eye, trod neatly and heavily on my left foot. It hurt.

"See what I mean?" my wife said. "These people are crazy today. It's not safe to be out."

I was beginning to agree with her, but the door of an F Street novelty shop burst open just then and I saw my chance. I shouldered my way inside.

"Watch it, bud," said a man coming out.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

PARTY—First full scale "party" of the legislative session was enjoyed Thursday night when the clerks, pages and other employees chartered buses and took their bosses out to Tar Heel Club and fed them barbecued pig and chicken—and then danced with them until midnight. It was a delightful occasion featured by total absence of speech-making or serious consideration of any matter other than the prime objective of having a good time. Attractive young women who serve as clerks made up majority of the composite host group, which may account for the fact that wives of legislators were not included in the invitation. That perhaps also accounted for absence of a few members and for greater enjoyment of a few others. (Names not available, even if requested!)

DUMPING—The committee on Counties, Cities and Towns are sort of dumping grounds for large part of local bills introduced in the general assembly. Courts and Judicial Districts committees get some of these bills; Propositions and Grievances get some; occasionally subject matter of the bills requires consideration by committees on Elections or Finance or Judiciary. Most of them are sent to the Counties, Cities and Towns groups. That led one house member to comment that his committee had to consider more "bad" legislation than all the others combined. Many of the local bills are carelessly written and fail to achieve the desired purpose; many others are very skillfully drawn with obvious intent to get around provisions of the general statutes.

Furthermore, nearly all of the public hearings involving personal feelings and animosities are before these committees—such as extension of corporate limits, change in charger provisions, attempts to legislate officials out of office and other instances of hanging local wash on the public line.

THROAT-CUTTING—Experienced legislators know that there is much more danger of getting their "throats cut" politically over local bills than on statewide issues. Occasionally a member may be defeated for re-election on basis of a vote cast for or against mechanical inspection of automobile, liquor referendum or some other statewide issue. Many more casualties are due to the fact the member at the previous session voted "wrong" on such matters as fixing salary of the sheriff, or extending corporate limits, or changing the number of county commissioners or board of education.

WATCHFUL—Members sitting on the Counties, Cities and Towns committees are alert to implications in local bills, not only on account of the risk of political retaliation but because many of these local measures have statewide potentialities, and may become precedent-setting. To illustrate this situation, let's sit in with the house CO&T committee at one of its dull sessions.

SALARIES—There was a bill fixing the salaries of clerk of court, registrar of deeds and sheriff of Beaufort county, but permitting the county commissioners to raise or lower the salary as much as ten percent. Oh, no, said an observant committee member. We can't subject the high sheriff to threat of having his salary changed by the county commissioners, and it isn't good policy to give them control over compensation of the other elective officers during the terms for which they were elected. So the bill went over for further study. Bills were approved for additional deputies sheriff and fixing salaries in Cur-rituck and Northampton counties.

PRIVATE SALE—There was a bill authorizing the Dunn town board to sell the municipal building and lot either at public or private sale. Nothing doing, said several members. We can't authorize private sale of a city hall, maybe without notice to the public. That also went over for more study. Two local bills affecting public offices in "bloody Madison" were also continued for a public hearing next week.

ELECTIONS—The committee was not too much concerned about bills requiring elections by the people back home. In rapid order it approved measures having to do with elections in Mebane, Greenville, Elizabethtown, Matthews, and Dunn, and vetoed an election proposal in Raleigh. Also gave quick approval to purely local bills affecting publication of records in Montgomery; disposition of non-tax funds in Manteo and Windsor; terms of grand jurors in Duplin and a tax collector in Carteret; extension of police authority at Holly Ridge, Bladenboro and Elizabethtown.

SNAGS—Then there were some snags. The senate-passed a bill turning over a legalized Bingo concession at Fontana Village to the American Legion was held up, because it gave a gambling monopoly to one organization. Two innocent looking bills purportedly affecting only Cherokee county were held over because they contained legal definitions of taxicabs different from accepted meaning, and might involve bypassing the utilities commission control over public bus transportation. A measure designed to regulate activities of professional bondsmen in Caswell county was held over, because it also affected residents of other counties and might be in fact a statewide bill.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(Henderson Dispatch)
Essential need for a huge production of cotton this year adds to the significance of the meeting that has been called for tomorrow night at the court house. The purpose of the conference will be to study the situation and to stimulate growers to put in as large an acreage as possible for 1951.

Vance county is on the northern fringe of the cotton belt, so far north indeed that it is never possible to obtain yields comparable with those in the Deep South. But normally the county does make about five thousand bales. Last year, however, only about one-third of that amount was produced here, or, roughly, 1,800 bales.

As every one knows, the short yield in 1950 resulted from one of the worst boll weevil infestations on record, coupled with an unfavorable growing season. These conditions were discouraging to growers, many of whom turned their major attention to tobacco, in which allotments had been increased and which promised and provided a far better financial return. Small quotas also held down production for the season.

These circumstances will not continue. Better weather is in prospect for 1951, or at least is hoped for—on the law of averages, if nothing else. The bitter winter is believed also to have killed off the boll weevil in large measure. And there are no quotas this season. The sky is the limit for farmers who go in for cotton.

Moreover, cotton is now selling at an all-time high price, and the size of this year's crop, however large it may be, is not likely to depress the price below a profitable level. Farmers, therefore, who go in for the crop on a big scale in 1951 stand to profit both in production and price. For those who are familiar with the process of cotton cultivation, the outlook, at least at this time, is very promising. Cotton may again be king this year.

Business Today

The more perspective with which one looks at the present economy, the more it looks as if the present whirl of inflation is one of the fastest and dizziest the United States has ever experienced, with the exception of the post-civil war era.

Commodity prices rose an average of 16 per cent between mid-June and mid-February, almost half as much as they rose during all of World War II. The consumer price index rose 4.8 per cent between mid-June and mid-December; more recent figures are not available because the Bureau of Labor Statistics is revising its method of calculation, but they are certainly higher. While the money in circulation has not increased spectacularly since July 1, the money supply increased by $7,200,000,000 from July 1 to January 1.

And what has happened so far may be only the beginning. As has been frequently noted, the price freeze does not affect farm prices and it cannot prevent foreign prices from rising.

The Wage Stabilization Board has approved a 10 per cent increase in wages and labor is asking for 12 per cent. If experience with the "Little Steel" formula in World War II is an example, this approval will serve to speed the increases on their way.

In addition, taxes are in the process of being increased. Di-Salle told the House Ways and Means Committee that he is ready to adjust ceiling prices to allow for higher taxes, remarking that, "You cannot add taxes without increasing prices." He will also have to allow price increases for higher farm prices, for higher import prices, and for higher wages, or business will come to a standstill.

During Germany's inflation after World War I, housewives going shopping needed bushel baskets to carry their money. That may never happen here. Besides, bushel baskets will be too expensive.

FEDERAL TAX RISE
HITS STATE LEVIES
The rise in federal corporation taxes means a reduction in state revenues in 11 states, Commerce Clearing House points out. These states allow the deduction of federal taxes before computing state taxes, hence the bigger federal bite will leave less on which to assess state rates. As a consequence, many legislatures meeting this year will hear proposals to base state corporation taxes on earnings before federal taxes.

Business men and trade associations may want to watch for such actions.

PLANT CUTS FATIGUE AND WASTE MOTIONS
What is said to be the first clothing plant designed expressly to increase productivity by improving working conditions and achieving perfect straight-line production will be opened in Brooklyn by Eagle Clothes early in April.

Production was first designed, then a building to house it. As a consequence, raw material will enter at one point, travel in straight lines, and emerge as men's suits at another point. All working positions have been designed to save workers every possible move and controlled ventilation will keep temperatures agreeable. The steaming machines in the sponging room will be sealed in. Economies in moving materials and the elimination of fatiguing conditions are expected to keep production costs down.

Plans for the plant were worked out in cooperation with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers union.

SELLING GUIDE
ANNOYS PROMOTER
"It's mutiny!" said the Old Promoter, walking into the office no more announced than usual. "Look at this!"

He displayed a little booklet published by the Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, for salesmen who try to sell it. The booklet welcomes the salesmen and explains that the company wants to help them do their job. Then it lists the commodities it buys, the officers who purchase each, and their visiting hours. It also contains a map showing nearby parking and eating places.

"Looks like a splendid idea," we said. "What's the beef?"

"Oh the idea is all right," said the O.P., "but it is tough on 8-percenters like me."

WASTE PAPER DRIVE
GETTING RESULTS
The campaign to stimulate the saving and sale of waste paper staged by the Midwest Consumers of Waste Paper, is bringing in results but still more waste is needed to keep mills at capacity, the group reports.

The campaign was begun last August with newspaper ads offering "Cash for Your Waste Paper" and was stepped up in December by adding telephone exchange stations. Ads urge people to save paper and when 100 pounds are accumulated, to phone the exchanges. Trucks pick up the paper and payments for it are made to designated charities.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ED CREAGH (OF HAL BOYLE
Who is On Vacation)
Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—Interested in a television set for $7 cents?

A rebuilt typewriter for $8?
A pair of women's shoes for a nickel?

This is the town for you, then. At least it was a couple of days ago. I'd have told you about it sooner except that my feet got stepped on.

(No, Junior, the man doesn't write with his feet. It just sounds that way sometimes.)
What happened to my feet and to the high cost of living, was a strange local institution known as the Washington's Birthday Sales.

Don't confuse these with quiet little events such as New Year's Eve in Times Square. They're in a class by themselves. They're a mob scene, an all-night vigil, a store manager's nightmare, a housewife's dream.

Also, they're painfully hard on the feet.
On Washington's Birthday, in this town, you can buy men's suits for $5, women's dresses (list price $10.98) for 99 cents, nylon stockings for 49 cents, side-arm chairs for 99 cents—oh, golly, they almost pay to cart the stuff away.

There are a couple of jokers in the pack, however:
1—A lot of these out-of-the-bone items are frankly a n d u n s h a m e d j u n k . The ads say so. The store manager will tell you so. This doesn't stop people from buying, though. A bargain is a bargain, even if it falls apart before you get it home. Ask any woman.

2—The most spectacular bargains—$8 electric refrigerators, for instance—come in a small quantities. A store will offer only three or four of them. To get one, you've got to stand for sit or lie down in line for hours. This year's champ was a man who stood it out 22 hours. He got a television set for $9.90.

This has been going on annually for about 30 years but I hadn't heard about it before and nothing would do but I had to take a look.

Oh, brother
The bus was crowded, the streets were crowded. It was a holiday (or so the calendar said) and yet there hadn't been so many people around town since Franklin Roosevelt's second inauguration. You couldn't get in some of the stores, the doors had been barred and the cops were holding the crowds back.

My wife, who had come along to provide the "woman's angle," took a limited view of the "whole" enterprise.
"Let's go home," she said.
"We'll be trampled to death," I said, "I want to get inside one of these stores and Ouch!"

A large, befeured woman, sailing past with an armload of packages and a wild gleam in her eye, trod neatly and heavily on my left foot. It hurt.

"See what I mean?" my wife said. "These people are crazy today. It's not safe to be out."

I was beginning to agree with her, but the door of an F Street novelty shop burst open just then and I saw my chance. I shouldered my way inside.

"Watch it, bud," said a man coming out.

I tried to watch it but he was too quick. He nailed me squarely with a size brogan on three toes of the right foot.

Hobbling and moaning, I joined my wife. She was three doors down the street by that time and there was a strange, fixed look in her eye.

"In here," she breathed. "Ration slips for 27 cents. Wait for me!"

I didn't, though. I limped to a taxi.

Nothing serious, the doctor said. He strapped on some adhesive tape, told me to keep off my feet for a day or so, and charged me $4.

But as I said: There are some great bargains in this town on Washington's Birthday. If you're in town next Washington's Birthday, look me up. You'll know me. I'll be the fellow on stilts.

Washington Letter

By JANE WADS
Washington—Mrs. F. Peavey Heffelfinger has raised a family of five. Now she says she owes it to them to find out what kind of a world they're living in and how help make it better.

National Republican Committeewoman from Wayzata, Minn., she's off on a semi-official trip to Spain, the Arab countries and West Germany to see U. S. foreign policy in action. She will report to her party on her return in several months.

"Our foreign policy will affect every American, Republican or Democrat, but it's the way the Republicans conduct themselves in the matter that will determine whether they will be made or massacred in 1952," she told me on a visit to Washington.

"Politics is no hobby with me," she said. "It's business. I'm not looking for anything, however. I just want good government. I feel I'm working directly for my children and my grandchildren, of whom there are three—and one to carry."

The children include Jinx, now Mrs. Richard Clark, wife of the European editor of the United Press; Peavey, Jr., 28, father of two, now living in Winnepeg, Canada; Lucia, who is Mrs. John Sallantinn of Princeton, N. J., mother of one, said expecting another; Rosalie, recently married to Philip Wilkie, son of the late Wendell Wilkie, and Mildred, 16, at Mills College, Oakland, Calif.

"They're all internationally-minded and a wonderful bunch," Mrs. Heffelfinger said proudly.

"The family has gone on some terrific trips together, all over the U. S. and Europe by train, plane, motor, pack horse and canoe... ever since the kids were knee-high to a grasshopper."

Mrs. Heffelfinger visited DP camps in Germany as guest of the Army in 1949 and returned home on a DP ship. She has toured South America and visited Japan. On her current trip she will see government officials in every country—Egypt, Trans-Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, Cyprus, Israel, India, Pakistan, Siam.

"I'm particularly anxious to see what the women are doing in India and to study health programs," she said.

Thirty-one members and guests assembled in the spacious dining room, attractively decorated for the occasion. Valentine programs and corsages of white carnations tied with red ribbons marked the ladies' places and boutonnières for the men. Lighted red candles, nestled in magnolia leaves, on the table cast a glow of hospitality. The mantel and fireplace were banked with magnolia leaves and red hearts.

Mrs. Tyree Stokes, president, expressed regrets that Mrs. Ella Ross Crandall was unable to attend due to the fact that she was critically ill in Pitt Memorial Hospital. 40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR February 24, 1911
On Thursday night the doors of Mrs. John Linwood Hassell's lovely home on Pitt Street were thrown open to about fifty of her lady friends, the occasion being a George Washington party.

The guests were received at the front door by Master Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse in costume representing George Washington in evening dress. They were then served a cherry smash from the punch bowl placed in the receiving hall on a table covered with a centerpiece which was hand embroidered in cherries.

Mrs. Hassell then received the guests in the parlor, where tables were arranged and appropriate place cards on them.

Each guest found her place and began an interesting game by throwing small wooden dice in red, white and blue, spelling the name George Washington to the occasion.

The folding doors were thrown open between the library and dining room, in which was a miniature cherry tree, and each guest was given two minutes to guess how many cherries were on the tree.

Miniature bags trimmed with cherries and hatched and filled with salt almonds were placed on each table.

The entire house was beautifully decorated with potted plants, cut flowers, flags and other decorations appropriate to the occasion.

A delightful salad course, coffee and delicious red, white and blue ice and cake, were served about 12 o'clock and the guests departed reluctantly, voting Mrs. Hassell a most charming hostess.

On Tuesday, the Naval Reserve Voluntary Composit Unit 6-26 held a supper at Respass-James Barber House. Chief Machinist Mate Paul Waldrop, U.S.N.R., gave a toast to the unit of honor. Quartermaster First Class Bill Shaw, U.S.N.R., who has received orders to return to active duty with the Navy.

After dinner the Commanding Officer of the unit, Lt. Com. John Reynolds, U.S.N.R., introduced the speaker, Col. George C. Martin Jr., U.S.N.R. and professor of geography at East Carolina Teachers College.

Col. Martin made an interesting talk on the strategic northern part of the world. Only recently has the United States paid much attention to the Arctic Ocean, but Russia has always been aware of its value. The airplane has made its importance to the United States evident.

Col. Martin pointed out that Russia is comparable in geography to Canada. The top one-third is tundra and is of little strategic value. Through the middle of Canada goes the Great Northern Forest, but he pointed out that these forests are similar to those found above the timber line and the trees are only about knee-high. That part of the country has been glaciated and has been covered at one time by ice as much as a mile thick. This ice acted like a plow and scraped the earth to the bare rock, leaving many small lakes and very little soil which is quite acid.

The geography of Russia is much the same with only the southern one-third being of any economic value.

The Russian Administration of the North Sea route, Martin said, does quite a bit of work on the weather and ice conditions in the far north during a few months of the year. Russia has sent a good many ships through the North Passage. There is much talk of the Northwest Passage in the United States, Martin asserted, but only one ship is known to have gone through this passage and this was as an experiment. The Northwest Passage is of much less value to us than the North Passage is to Russia. Russia is pretty well hemmed in whereas the United States is not.

Col. Martin discussed Alaska at some length. The United States paid Russia $7,200,000 for it in 1867 and since that time has taken out five hundred million dollars in gold from Alaska and the Klondike. The sealskins that have been taken in Alaska have paid for it over 14 times so it was a very good investment.

At the conclusion of his talk, Col. Martin answered several questions and told of some of his very interesting experiences during World War II.

Lt. Com. Watts, the Commanding Officer of Volunteer Composite Unit 6-26 in Goldsboro, was a visitor at the meeting.

Kinston And Elizabeth City Advance To NE Finals

Roanoke Rapids, Wash. Fall; Finals Tonight

The semi-finals of the Northeast high school conference were reeled off here last night true to form, as both favored teams came thru with wins to advance to the finals and the bid for the championship.

Elizabeth City, top seeded team, defeated Washington, who drew a bye in the first round, in a low scoring affair, 21-19. Elizabeth City continued to play their own style of basketball and force their opponents to come to them, and it paid off as they took their second win in the tournament.

Both teams threw up a good defense and the result was one of the lowest scoring games seen in a long time. Elizabeth City held a slight 8 to 6 lead at halftime, these points coming on three field goals and two free tosses. Washington could do no better, as they hit only two field goals and two foul shots in the first half.

Action speeded up in the second half, as Fowle hit two field goals to put Washington ahead for the first time. Washington led most of the first quarter, but E. City came from behind in the closing minutes to tie it up at 17-all at the end of the quarter. Foreman put E. City in the lead on a quick field goal, 19 to 17, and they held on to their lead thru the last quarter, controlling the ball most of the time. Washington could score only one field goal in the last five minutes of the game.

Clay Foreman, shifty little guard, led the Yellow Jacket scoring with 8 points, followed by Prescott who got 5. Charles Cutrell was the outstanding defensive man for the Jackets. Pappy Fowle, husky Washington guard, led the Pam Pack with 9 points in the low scoring game.

Roanoke Rapids, who barely got by Edenton in the first round with a 39 to 38 win, gave the highly rated Kinston Red Devils the game of their life for three quarters, but weakened in the last period and dropped a 47 to 36 loss to the favored Kinston team.

Led by Felts, rangy center, the underdog Yellow Jackets set the pace in the first half. The score was tied four times during the first quarter, the last time 8-8, but Felts scored twice from the floor to give the Jackets a 12-9 lead as the quarter ended.

Roanoke Rapids jumped off to a fast start early in the second period, and at one time led Kinston by 8 points, 20 to 12. Albridge pulled Kinston back in the ball game, scoring 7 points in the closing minutes to tie the game up at 22 all at the intermission.

Kinston took a fast third quarter lead and held it throughout the third period, as the Yellow Jackets began to tire from the fast pace. Their chances for victory faded when Topping, their best defensive man, had to leave the game with a knee injury late in the third quarter. This left the Jackets without a good rebound man, and it seemed to make a difference in their play.

With Wickham and Phillips leading the scoring attack, Kinston pulled away from the Jackets in the last quarter and coasted to their well-earned victory.

Wickham led the Red Devil scoring with 14 markers to bring his total for the tournament to 38 points in the two games. Phillips shared scoring honors for the night, hitting for 13. Felts led the Jacket scoring with 10 points, and played outstanding defensive ball for the losers.

Tonight's finals will see Kinston playing Elizabeth City for the championship at 9:00, with Roanoke Rapids and Washington playing the consolation game at 7:30.

Kinston Golfers Cop First Pro-Am Match

Best Ball Of 7-Under-Par Wins Match; Greenville Golfers Second With Best Ball Of 66; Washington Third

Kinston golfers copped the first Coastal Conference Pro-Amateur match of the 1951 season yesterday when they outstroked members of four other teams on the course of the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Kinston's Pro Avery Beck and his amateurs Roscoe Baker, Dr. Munzell and Jim Parrott brought home a best ball of 65—seven strokes under par for 18 holes of the Greenville course—to edge out the Greenville Pro-Amateur combination by one stroke.

The Greenville team composed by Pro Harold Thomas and Amateurs Erceel Webb, Bill Allen and Southpaw Milton Harrington had a best ball of 66—seven strokes under par for the 18 holes.

Finishing in order for the third, fourth and fifth places in the match were the teams from Washington, New Bern and Tarboro. Cash prizes were presented to the pros of the first and second place teams, and prizes of golf balls were presented to the amateurs of the first and second place teams.

The Pro-Amateur matches in the Coastal Golf Association are played each season just before the opening of the six-week CGA matches which are played each Wednesday afternoon. This spring the matches will be played beginning March 21.

For the matches this season, however, the Coastal Golf Association has been divided into two leagues; and winners in each league will compete for the association championship at the end of the match play.

One division of the Association will be composed of the teams of Greenville, Tarboro, Washington and New Bern. The other division of the Association will be composed of the teams of Kinston, Clinton, Farmville and Smithfield.

The next Pro-Amateur match of the Association is slated for New Bern on March 9.

Phillies Already Find A Pitcher To Talk About

(PX) Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 24—(AP)—The National League champion Philadelphia Phillies, its youthful pitching staff one of the best in the majors, has a rookie hurler who is the talk of the training camp.

Righthander Leo Christiane is making manager Eddie Sawyer watch—and watch closely.

"It is far too early to pass judgment on any of the pitchers," Sawyer says, "but I'll say this for Christiane: He does everything like a pitcher should."

Christiane won 18, lost four for Utica, N. Y., in the Class A Eastern League, winning the loop's most valuable player award.

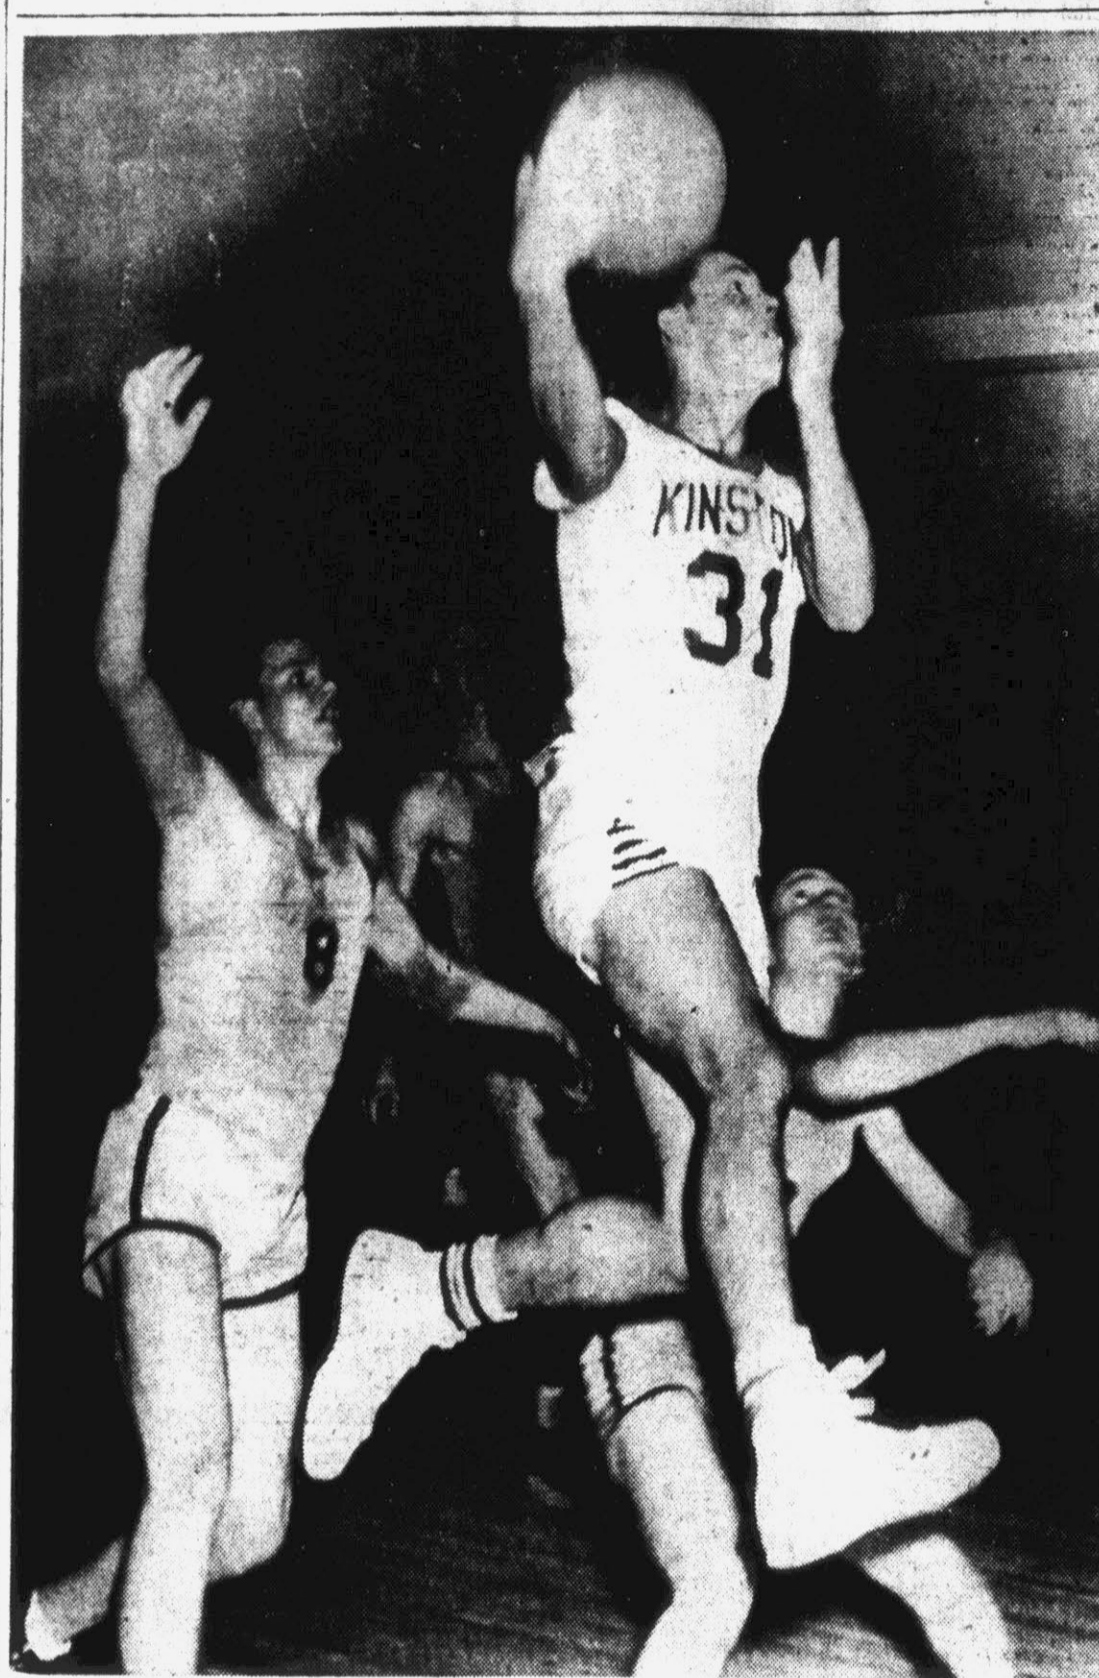

"The Star Spangled Banner" was officially made the National Anthem by Congress in 1931, although already adopted as such by the Army and Navy.

Louis Scores TKO Win Over Walker; Ready For Charles

San Francisco, Feb. 24—(AP)—Louis told interviewers he finished "fresh" and added, "My wind est. fight since he came out of held good. My timing still was a retirement last September, said to little off. I felt better at 207 pounds, day he was ready for a return match for the heavyweight championship with Lizard Charles.

The Brown Bomber scored a technical knockout over stout-hearted Andy Walker in the final round of their scheduled 10-rounder at the Cow Palace last night.

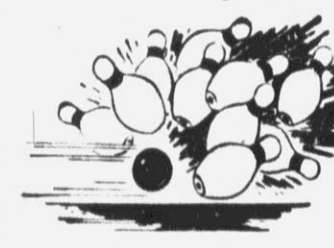

A sell-out crowd of 18,000 fans, accounting for official gate receipts of $92,087.50, saw Louis batter the rangy San Francisco Negro round after round until he was arm-weary. It was his fourth win in his campaign to come back after being soundly drugged by Charles in a 15-round bout for the title he once held.

Louis hit Walker with about every punch in the book but he couldn't floor him. He knocked the San Francisco fighter, who holds the California state title, into the ropes four times. In the final session, he caught Walker with a flurry of blows that had the California champ reeling. Referee Frankie Brown stopped the contest in 1:49 of the tenth. There was some booing by Walker fans, who thought he could have finished the battle.

In his dressing room after the match, Walker said he was sorry the fight was stopped but he wouldn't question the decision of the referee.

Louis landed so many blows on Walker, his arms were tired from the effort. But Walker stood up under the battering that would have flattened many others. Louis knocked the San Franciscan into the ropes in the first, fourth, sixth and seventh rounds. Walker took counts of three, six and eight the last three times.

Carolina Grill, State Hiway Win

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 24—(AP)—Boasting three of the four defending individual champions, North Carolina was favored to retain its title in the 16th annual Southern Conference Indoor Games here today.

The Tar Heels were shooting for their seventh straight championship and 12th in all.

Although favored from force of habit, Coach Bob Fetzler's track team figured to have a battle on its hands, with Maryland and Duke rated the top threats in the field of 10 schools represented by 156 athletes. Maryland won its own indoor games last week, with a comfortable margin over North Carolina and Duke.

Competition in three other divisions, freshmen, nonconference and scholastic, brought the total field up to 536 entries from 47 schools.

Defending conference individual champions are Dave Willis, 60-yard dash; Jack Moody, high jump, and Romans White, pole vault, all of North Carolina, and Maryland's Jack Unterkofler, in the shot put. The Maryland ace set the conference record of 49 feet, 7 and three-fourths inches last year.

Williamson Departing For Golden Gloves In N.Y.

Sports Sheet

When Crowell Williamson travels to New York City this weekend to represent the two Carolinas as a welterweight in New York's tournament of champions, he will carry the hopes, pride and confidence of East Carolina.

Williamson, a sophomore at the local college, won the right to represent the two Carolinas by winning the 147 lb. championship in the Carolinas Golden Gloves tournament held recently in Charlotte.

In this tournament he beat the highly regarded Bill Godfrey of Greenville, S.C. in the finals to win the crown, and the right to go to New York to the Tournament of Champions.

The Tournament of Champions, which is held in New York each year, brings together winners from the various eastern states and the winners in each weight division will be crowned eastern champ. They are invited to compete against the western team for the National Championship. The finals of the Tournament of Champions is held in New York's Madison Square Garden.

There has been only two Carolina boys to reach the National finals to date and Crowell Williamson hopes to add his name to that list this year.

East Carolina's Pirates advanced to the finals of the North State Tournament last night by trouncing a fighting Catawba team 69 to 52.

The Pirates came from behind to win in the last half, after trailing 32 to 27 at the intermission. They took a lead after five minutes of the second half had elapsed at 40 to 39, and were never behind after that.

Toddy Fennell, Pirates center, scored 22 points to lead the Bucs, his points coming when they were most needed. Sonny Russell, All-Conference forward, collected 17 for the Pirates. Lou Colie did a great job on defense as he held Larry Graham, high scoring Catawba guard, to eight points. Bill Hunsucker made 21 points for the losing Catawba five.

East Carolina will play High Point tonight in the finals for the championship.

A FIEND IN NEED

By MILTON K. OZAKI

Chapter 15
When I reached home Caldwell arranged himself at his desk, filled his pipe, held a match to it, and then faced me attentively.

I started at the beginning and gave a detailed account of the morning and afternoon. He listened gravely, nodded occasionally. "Are you certain," he asked abruptly, "that Lieutenant Phelan isn't aware of Straw's details?"

"Positive. Davids said that all Phelan did was make a list of the accounts, and even if Phelan had examined the returns, I don't think he'd have spotted the scheme. I happened to notice the difference between the two sets accidentally; besides, if Phelan did know about it, he'd have Edelson and Dentino and Mrs. Ross on the grill."

Caldwell smoked silently for a while. "I think we had better communicate with Lieutenant Phelan," he decided.

I phoned the detective bureau and, Phelan not being in, left word for him to communicate with Caldwell at his earliest convenience.

It wasn't more than ten minutes later that the doorbell rang and I got up to answer it. It was Lieutenant Phelan, and, giving me a negligent little nod, he walked right past me and on into the study.

"Evening, Professor," Phelan growled in a hurried, businesslike manner. "I understand you phoned headquarters."

"Why, yes, Percy," Caldwell said pleasantly. "Can you sit down a moment? Bendy and I were discussing the Straw murder. I don't suppose you've apprehended the murderer yet?"

"We've uncovered vital clues which, without a doubt, will bring an arrest before many hours have passed."

"Look, Phelan," I interrupted, "stop giving us the business. You aren't talking to the press, so you can skip the fancy blowing. You haven't the slightest idea who the murderer is, and Caldwell and I both know it."

"Better tell him, Bendy," Caldwell interrupted. "This bickering is childish, and it's wasting time." I gave Caldwell an et tu look. "Okay, Caldwell's the boss," I said.

"Never mind the small talk," Phelan cut in. "Let's hear the facts."

"Did you check Edelson's alibi?" "Yeah. It's okay."

"Where was he?" "If you've been working on anything involving Edelson, you've wasted your time. He was in his place on South State Street from five until seven. He's out."

"Did you check through Straw's apartment?" "Of course, that's routine."

"Did you notice the folders—the red and black folders—beside his desk?"

"I made a list of them. Naturally. What kind of a—"

"Let's not go into that," I said quickly. "Did you look inside the folders?"

"Yeah. Copies of tax returns."

"Did you examine the returns?" Phelan shifted uneasily. "Why TO FOSTER GOOD WILL. Free Instruction Course by mail in the Catholic Religion. No obligation. Address: Catholic Information Society, 200 West 31st St., New York 1."

Should I? One was for State returns, the other for Federal."

"No, Lieutenant Phelan," I contradicted with great formality. "You didn't examine them very carefully; if you had, you'd have noticed that both folders contain a complete set of State and Federal returns—two sets of returns for the same filing periods."

"So what?" "Straw was keeping a double set of books for eight accounts; in other words, he was maintaining fraudulent books for the purpose of swindling the government—with or without the knowledge of his clients."

Phelan's mouth relaxed in surprise. "You're absolutely sure of that?"

"Of course. The way I figure it, Straw filed bona fide Federal returns but cut the State figures to the bone. In a place like Dentino's, the savings in State retailers' occupational taxes alone would amount to thousands of dollars annually."

"Go a list of them?" I handed over the list and he looked at it, nodded, and handed it back to me. "That's swell," he said, not a bit ruffled.

"Why swell?" "It clinches my case." A sly grin cut across his fat face. "It proves that one person—and only one person—could have killed Straw. It's as clear as crystal."

"I don't get it," I admitted. "Look at the layout," Phelan spread his hands descriptively. "There are nine apartments in the building, counting the janitors, and Straw was knifed some time between six and six-thirty. Someone in one of those nine apartments had to be the murderer."

"Why?" "Because Straw was knifed in the building. Bleeding the way he was, he couldn't have been carried in from outside the building without leaving a trail of blood. He nodded positively. "When Straw left Dentino, he called on one of the other tenants and got killed."

"Who'd he call on?" "Figure it out yourself. The Douglases were miles away. Don McGregor was playing cards in the back room of a bar, and his wife was playing games with Flecker in Flecker's apartment. Barbara O'Neil was at a stag party. Elaine Ruhl and June Hanson were home waiting for Straw—whom June knew as John Faraday—to show up for a date. Bonquist, the janitor, was in the basement helping a plumber repair the hot water boiler. That accounts for five of the apartments." He checked them off on his fingers. "He had a nurse in attendance. Charles Edelson was in his restaurant with home together, and they admit that Straw was there until six o'clock. He stopped raising his brows, and looked at Caldwell.

Time To Start Again To Get Driving License

Driver License Examiner Harry Martin today asked that all drivers whose names begin with A or B take their tests for new licenses as soon as possible in order to avoid a possible delay.

If a person applies at the office for new license before his license goes out of date, the applicant will not have to take a road test but just the written exam. However if a driver's license expires, a written test and road test will be required.

In addition, any person wanting to have their blood type listed on their driver's license should obtain a written statement from their doctor, giving the correct blood type of the person.

The listing of a person's blood type on new license was just recently placed into operation.

Education Foundation And Alumni Association Units Of UNC To Meet

The Pitt county chapters of the Education Foundation and the Alumni associations of the University of North Carolina will hold their annual joint meeting Thursday night at 7 o'clock at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

President Lee Folger of the county chapter of the Education Foundation said the list of university officials expected here for the meeting will be headed by Assistant Athletic Director Chuck Erickson. Others from the university staff who will be here for the meeting will be Jim Gill, chief assistant to Head Football Coach Carl Snavey, Jim Camp, head coach at the university, and George Hogan, executive secretary of the Education Foundation.

An official from the Alumni association also will be here for the meeting, Folger said, but the name of the official has not yet been announced.

After the dinner, the coaches will show movies of the Duke-Carolina freshman football game of last season, and a short reel of the Carolina-Notre Dame game of last season.

"All the alumni of the university and all members of the Education Foundation and other interested people are invited to attend the meeting," Folger stated.

Two members of the Pitt county chapter are members of the board of directors of the Education Foundation. They are President Folger and J. Con Lanier.

Seven Attended Greensboro Meet

Seven members of the Greenville Distributive Education Class attended the State Distributive Education conference held in Greensboro.

Students attending: Rachel Polard, B. T. Batson, John House, J. D. Adams, Alton Adams, Jake Stanley and Jack Garrison.

The group was accompanied by Mr. G. C. Frye, local faculty advisor for the club.

Those taking part in the discussion were Dr. Lucille Charles, who talked about the place of drama in the school, Miss Beatrice Chauncey, who emphasized the use of music; Miss Dora Ciriol, who brought a discussion on drawing and painting; Dr. Kenneth Bing and Mr. Paul Powell, who spoke of the value of the industrial arts; and Mrs. William Dole, who spoke on the modern dance and its uses.

Dr. Charles prefaced her remarks on drama by stating, "So far as we know, in all times and cultures there has been a theater in some form." She suggested some of the ways that drama could be effectively introduced and used in the educational program and gave examples from her own experiences to prove how otherwise uninterested and "problem" students had been drawn into active participation in the school program through their work in the dramatic field.

Dr. Bing and Mr. Powell, both speaking on the use of industrial arts in the school programs, thought that training in handicrafts and the use of tools helped pupils to understand the role of industry in the lives of individuals. Dr. Bing

Home Ec Dept. Plans Workshop

The department of home economics at East Carolina Teachers College will offer a workshop called "Adult Education in Homemaking" during the first summer session of 1951, according to an announcement by Dora Leo W. Jenkins, director of the college summer school. Dates for the course have been set for June 25-July 6.

Dr. Bessie McNeil, director of the department of home economics at East Carolina, will serve as coordinator.

Various aspects of the home and homemaking will be studied in the workshop, according to Dr. McNeil. A week's work will be devoted primarily to following the development of the child from infancy, through pre-school and school years, and into adolescence. The development and training of the exceptional, or handicapped, child will also be discussed. Religion, recreation, mental health, and finances will be considered as they apply to the family and to home life.

Films illustrative of the principles of family life education have been obtained for use during the workshop. A number of off-campus speakers will participate in class meetings. Among social events being arranged are a luncheon and a picnic for those attending the workshop.

summarized his point of view by stating, "All our culture depends on the industrial processes more than we realize. Industrial arts can direct the attention of the children and parents to occupations that they might otherwise overlook."

Miss Chauncey expressed the opinion that all children are creative and through music this instinct can and should be developed. "You can not create in a vacuum and we must give children some content first," she concluded.

Miss Ciriol said, "Every child is talented. Art is based on sincerity and one of the great values of art experiences is to instill a little self confidence in the child." She illustrated her point of view with some first hand experiences that she has had with school children in the field of art.

Mrs. Dole, in discussing the use of the modern dance and rhythms in the school curriculum, brought two students from the college class in modern dance to illustrate some of the ways that the dance can be used in interpreting responses and experiences in everyday living. She said, "The dance art is based on a creative mood, and rhythms are a natural part of the education of the well rounded child."

About 100 parents and teachers were present for this well-planned panel discussion, but time limited their participation in a proposed question and answer period which was to follow.

The last session of the year's study was held last night at West Greenville School, at which time the series was concluded with a social hour, during which time the P.T.A. of St. Raphael's school acted as hostess.

Yet, it must seem terribly wicked to God to see His people go to war over the fair distribution of oil which He has freely given to all people who own and develop oil land are entitled to receive fair compensation for their risk and expenses; but God will not forgive the hogging of this precious oil against the welfare of mankind. It truly seems as if the entire world is crazy not to insist now on a fair distribution of this oil to all nations, including Russia. For not leading such movement, it seems as if the United Nations is the "international insane asylum" of our world.

Causes of War Differ

There are many causes of war. God made people different and made nations different. Some are black, others are white; some are lazy, others are industrious; some are intelligent and others are ignorant. Nations also differ as to climate, rivers, harbors, and other resources. It would take a century to equalize many of these differences. The world's oil, however, which is needed everywhere by every nation, could be fairly distributed by the United Nations. Until every nation including Russia and China—has a fair quantity of oil, we must expect another World War. As God "sends His rain on the just and unjust, so the United Nations should send the oil of Iran to every other nation, instead of cowardly sitting by and making speeches.

What the UN Should Immediately Do

The United Nations should stop arguing over technicalities and calling each other names like silly children. The delegates should realize that God gave the world the great oil fields. The delegates should insist that Iran shall have a just recompense and not be scared by bribes, threats or intrigue, whether by England, Russia or the United States. The United Nations should further insist on a fair distribution of this oil and have all nations recognize that they need not resort to war to keep from being shut off from these God given resources. This is an illustration of what the United Nations should plan and fight for. Have we "Christian" nations forgotten THE FOUR FREEDOMS, to which Churchill and Roosevelt agreed when World War II was going against them?

fact which hasn't been stressed publicly. Among the richest agricultural areas of the whole Indian peninsula is a great tract known as the Punjab. This lies south of Kashmir. Most of it is in Pakistan, but the eastern zone is in India. Now this vast treasure house of foodstuffs is watered by rivers which rise in, or flow through, Kashmir. There are five of these—the Sutlej, Beas, Ravi, Chejab and Jehlam. They all roll across the Punjab until they join the great Indus which makes its way to the sea.

The Punjab means the Land of Five Rivers. From these rivers canals have been dug to facilitate the watering of the land. Every drop of this precious fluid is utilized. Upon it depends whether the Punjab shall continue to flower or whether it shall become a desert tract.

Obviously the nation which has complete control of Kashmir might be able—if it wished—to divert the waters so as to cut off the other nation from supplies. In such fashion the Indian Punjab could be killed, and by the same token the Pakistan Punjab could be reduced to sand.

Another example: For a couple of years a lot of steel is going into defense, which means a lot less for civilians. Meanwhile, plants for producing steel are being expanded. And by 1953 there ought again to be for civilians as much steel as they had before the Korean war.

This was not a dreary picture which Wilson drew. Instead, he tried to show that this country was going to develop itself enormously, so that it could take care of defense needs and civilian needs, too.

Plans No Inquest In Two Deaths

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse ruled "natural causes" in the deaths of two Negro women who died in Greenville yesterday. He said inquests will not be held in either case.

The coroner identified the women as Ida Moore, 66, 111 Taylor St., and Mary Randolph of 215 Center St.

Rouse said Moore died of "natural causes" at her home yesterday, and Randolph died just a few minutes after reaching Pitt County Memorial Hospital last night. The coroner said Randolph was taken seriously ill at her home and was rushed to the hospital, but died a few minutes after her arrival there. "She apparently died of a heart attack," Rouse stated.

Wilson's Radio . . .

til No. 1 and No. 2 are taken care of. While that's happening, there'll be less for civilians.

There was nothing new in this. But then Wilson added some points to show what he—meaning the government—has in mind in terms of years.

For example: For a while there'll be less aluminum. But by 1953 there ought to be—because plants for producing aluminum are being expanded—enough aluminum for defense needs and as much aluminum for civilians as they had in 1950.

Another example: For a couple of years a lot of steel is going into defense, which means a lot less for civilians. Meanwhile, plants for producing steel are being expanded. And by 1953 there ought again to be for civilians as much steel as they had before the Korean war.

This was not a dreary picture which Wilson drew. Instead, he tried to show that this country was going to develop itself enormously, so that it could take care of defense needs and civilian needs, too.
