

New Amendment To Constitution Has Final Okay By 36th State

Tenure In White House Now Limited To Two Terms, Or 10 Years, By Plan

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—From now on, no President of the United States—except for Harry Truman—may be elected to more than two terms.

And under the 32nd amendment to the Constitution, which for all practical purposes became law last night, no man or woman may serve more than ten years in the White House.

The amendment, while limiting future presidents to two elective terms, allows a person who has served two years or less of an unexpired term to be elected twice on his own.

As President at the time the amendment was approved by the Republican controlled 80th Congress, Mr. Truman was specifically exempted.

Thus he would be permitted to run for a second full term in 1952 even though his White House tenure would then fall within the ban set out in the new amendment. He has not said whether he will run. Utah and Nevada legislatures acted in quick succession last night to approve the amendment. Nevada completed action at 7:30 p.m. (EST), becoming the 36th state to ratify the amendment.

The Constitution requires that amendments to it be ratified by three-fourths of the states—or 36 at present—to become law. A two-thirds majority in Congress is required to submit amendments to the states.

The new amendment could be repealed by the same procedure, of course, just as the 18th—prohibition—was repealed by the 21st. It was ratified on Dec. 5, 1933. Nevada legislators had stood by to grab for their state the honor of being the 36th state to ratify the new amendment. Minutes after learning that Utah had approved, Nevada senators voted 16 to 1 for ratification. The assembly has approved earlier, 29 to 12.

At least two other states were also near ratification votes—Minnesota and Maryland. The Minnesota Legislature had suspended the rules to schedule a vote this afternoon in the hope of becoming the 36th and deciding state to act.

The amendment has been before the states since March, 1947.

After an initial spurt of ratification votes, interest in the proposal apparently lagged and only 24 states had acted favorably by the start of this year.

Then came another rush, bringing approval by Legislatures of a dozen states within the past few weeks.

ACL Applies For Reconstructing Of River Bridge

It was revealed today by Col. R. C. Brown of the Corps of Army Engineers for this district that the Atlantic Coast Line railroad company has made application to the Engineers Corps for the reconstruction of their railroad bridge across Tar river at Greenville.

No information on the proposed reconstruction of the bridge was available today from the local office of the railroad company.

In the information from Col. Brown, the district engineer for the Army, stated the proposed reconstruction is to consist of the replacement of the existing swing drawspan by a two-track girder fixed spans. The notice said the existing vertical clearance of 24 feet above the mean low water level and a horizontal clearance of 57 feet are to be maintained.

A Fuse Is Smoldering

Opposition Among Satellites Increasing To Boiling Point Against Domination By Moscow; Evidence In China, Czechoslovakia; Revolt Has Solid Growth

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Opposition to Russian domination is increasing among the satellites. Red purges, which are the natural corollary to rebellion, also are increasing. These reprisals are in effect, Moscow's back-handed admission that she is encountering trouble.

The most sensational development is the Peiping announcement that Chinese Red leaders have ordered the death penalty for any acts which might be interpreted as opposition to the communist regime. Washington State Department officials have interpreted this as presaging a large and bloody purge of dissidents.

However, the heavy hand of Bolshevism also is striking in Europe where a revulsion to communism is showing itself in numerous countries. While this ferment of opposition has been working for a long time, there is no doubt that the sensational—and thus far successful—rebellion of Generalissimo Tito of Yugoslavia against Moscow's domination has spurred the malcontents of other countries. Notable among the nations in which anti-communist feeling runs strong is Czechoslovakia. Born out of World War One, this sturdy republic has been intensely proud of its independence. It therefore isn't surprising to find many of her citizens taking a page from Tito's book of protest against surrendering the sovereignty of this state to Moscow.

The revolt against Red rule in Czechoslovakia seems to have got a solid hold, because President Gottwald has gone to the extreme of announcing publicly that the communist party has discovered a five year old plot to swing the country into the camp of the western European Democracies. He added grimly:

"Czechoslovakia will not be a second Yugoslavia. XXX believe in the party, comrade XX in the end every one of these vagabonds is caught. Every one is caught and deserved punishment given."

Gottwald charged that this plot was engineered by Vladimir Clementis, former Foreign Minister, who has been mysteriously missing for several weeks. It was announced that he was in the hands of the state police.

Spirit Of Progress For Communities Stressed

'Make The Most Of What You Have,' Keen Johnson Tells Chamber Of Commerce; Points To College As Big Asset

"Create a spirit of progress in your community and make the most of what you have," declared Keen Johnson, vice president of Reynolds Metals Corporation and former governor of Kentucky, as he addressed the members of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce last night at the annual meeting of the organization.

"That Chamber of Commerce which is most effective is the one that makes the most of what it has," Johnson told his more than 200 listeners in the East Carolina Teachers College dining hall. "This college is your great asset. I wonder if you are always alert to do what you can to accelerate its growth. Only as you unify your efforts can you make a good town better. Enthusiasm must be sustained every day throughout the year."

Johnson warned the businessmen of Greenville, however, not to overlook the importance of their churches, schools, local cultural and governmental institutions in their quest for more business for the community. "You must member the moral tone of your community is important," he stated.

Johnson's address on community progress, and the importance of the individual community's activity in the present mobilization program was spiced with the dry humor of the former chief executive of the Blue Grass state. At the outset of his address, Johnson described himself as a "reformed politician."

A successful politician, he declared, is one who stands for what he thinks the people will fall for; and if you businessmen apply that philosophy to your business, there's no telling how successful you will be."

With reference to the present mobilization program, Johnson told the Chamber of Commerce members, in order to preserve freedom, temporarily we are going to have to surrender part of that freedom while we mobilize. Freedom is not free. Freedom is again threatened.

"The present struggle, he asserted, is a contest between the American assembly line and the Soviet party line. We need more produce from the farms, more production from industry." After World War II, Johnson said, the United States "ran so far back we were completely demobilized. We must now rebuild our force so communism will not dare attack. We may never need all this army we're building up, but if we need it and ain't got it, we'll never need it again."

The speaker urged the Greenville businessmen to realize the seriousness of the mobilization program, and to be sure that it will have an effect on business on the local level as well as on the national level.

J. B. James, Greenville attorney and first secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, was toastmaster at the annual banquet. Johnson was introduced by J. Herbert Waldrop, past president of the North Carolina Bankers association.

Van C. Fleming, Jr., immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce, reviewed briefly the projects which were completed by the organization during the past year. He pointed out that during the year the Chamber of Commerce sponsored the organization of an artificial breeding association for dairy cattle.

District C-Of-C Meeting Friday

Eastern Carolina Executives In Annual Session Here

Chamber of Commerce Executives from eastern North Carolina will assemble here Friday morning, March 2nd, for one of the two area meetings being held in the state by the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives, of which Mr. Charles L. McCullers of Kinston is president.

Sessions will begin at 10 AM in the Board of Aldermen's room in the Municipal building and will be concluded with a dinner at Reynolds-James Barbecue House at 3:30 P. M. when Honorable W. Fran Kattlyor, speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives, will address the group on the "legislative outlook."

The program for the day includes an address by Mr. T. J. Pearsall, president of the Rocky Mount Chamber of Commerce, who will speak on the subject, "Agricultural Activities for Eastern North Carolina Chambers." Julian H. Lines, general industrial agent of the Atlantic Coast Line RR of New York, will talk on industrial development; Dr. Ernest Stockton, consultant for Small Business Committee of Congress, will discuss what the Washington committee is trying to do for the small business as well as procure-

Help Wanted

The Daily Reflector's news room today issues an appeal for help from its readers.

Wanted: to borrow old pictures pertinent to the history of the Tar River and its place in the story of Pitt County.

Particularly sought are pictures of the old river boats, logging rafts, unusual fishing catches, river excursions, and similar items of general interest.

Current plans provide for use of the pictures at a very early date. They will be carefully handled and returned to their owners before March 3.

Tragedy Strikes Dog And Boy

Four-year-old George Allen Carter holds the body of his dog, Brownie, killed at San Diego, Calif., by an automobile which hurried on. George saw the tragedy and ran to gather up the remains of the little brown cocker Spaniel. They had been constant companions. Back in the days when George was learning to walk, the dog trailed him everywhere—and pulled him back by the seat of his pants wherever the little boy appeared to be in danger. (AP Wirephoto).

Priorities System Ordered To Assure Limited Materials For Continued Operation Of Plants

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—The government issued an order today aimed to assure that every business enterprise, public and private institution will get limited quantities of materials needed to keep their plants and facilities in operating condition.

The order from the National Production Authority (NPA) establishes a special priority rating for supplies for maintenance, repair and operations—excepting materials going into end products.

The new order, a part of the whole controls program, came on the heels of one regulating the civilian use of rubber products—affecting 40,000 items in all—and at a time when a declaration of national wage policy was imminent.

Manly Fleischmann, the NPA Administrator, said the new order is designed to enable business and industrial firms, schools and other institutions to remain in good repair "so that they can operate at a maximum rate consistent with direct defense requirements."

He added in a news release that many enterprises and institutions are now having great difficulty in obtaining materials and equipment for such purposes.

NPA's order permits business concerns and other institutions to apply a priority rating, called "Do-97", to orders for maintenance repair and operating supplies without individual authorization by NPA.

However, this priority rating may not be used to purchase production material, which was described as material or parts to be incorporated in end products. The rating may be used to purchase materials for minor capital additions, defined as additions in which the total cost of materials does not exceed $750 each. But it may not be used to purchase major capital items.

The order applies to all business enterprises, and to any federal state or local governmental agency. It applies also to any legal public or private institution in the United States, specifically including schools, libraries, hospitals, churches, clubs, and welfare establishments.

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—President Truman today asked Congress to double postal rates on second-class mail and increase from one to two cents the cost of carrying a postal card.

These were among the recommendations Mr. Truman made in a message aimed at wiping out "the bulk of the present postal deficit, which should not be borne by the general taxpayer."

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—The Powell Bill to boost state aid to city streets without new taxes seems assured of final legislative approval despite administration objections.

The major question today appears to be whether the powerful forces supporting the measure would accept amendments the measure is now before the House Appropriations committee after being approved by the Senate.

Although disclaiming any intention of pushing for amendments, Dr. Henry W. Jordan, highway commission chairman, said that "there are things about the bill which need to be clarified in the interest of sound administration."

Rep. Lamar Gudger, who conferred with Jordan and Governor Scott yesterday, said he would seek to have the bill amended, and Rep. Kerr Craig Ramsay of Rowan, who is considered a member of the legislature's anti-administration forces, said he would favor amendments if he is shown they are needed to clarify the bill or to make administration easier.

Navy's Building Program Passes

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—A bill authorizing the Navy to go ahead with a $2,358,000,000 ship building and modernization program is ready for President Truman's action.

The Senate approved it yesterday by voice vote, making no changes from the version approved last month by the House.

Top Czech Reds Under Arrest For Conspiracy

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 27—(AP)—Former Foreign Minister Vlado Clementis and four other top communist leaders are under arrest today in an alleged plot to assassinate Czechoslovakia's communist Central Committee coincided with its announcement that since September it has thrown out 170,000 members out of the party in the biggest housecleaning since the communists took the power three years ago. The housecleaning is continuing.

"We shall prove," said one of the reports to the committee on the arrests, "that there is a place in the party only for those who in the most holy manner love the Soviet Union, the communist party of Bolsheviks and Comrade Stalin."

Five lesser alleged conspirators also are reported in prison. These defendants are accused of plotting to assassinate President Klement Gottwald, to replace party Secretary-General Rudolf Slansky and Prime Minister Antonin Zapotocky, and to seize both the party and the government. All five have been ousted from the party central committee and from parliament.

Approve Request For Port Bonds' Enabling Act

The County Commissioners, meeting in special session last night, approved a request for an enabling act by the Tar River Port Commission which would grant that body the right to issue revenue bonds for operation of Port Terminal here.

An amendment was added for the presentation to the Commissioners that necessitates taking the act back to the Board of Aldermen for approval before submission to the General Assembly.

That amendment concerns mortgaging terminal properties to make the bonds more marketable and was not in the original act as passed by the Board of Aldermen February 1. The act as rewritten will be presented to the city board Thursday night at its March meeting.

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—Senate investigators received testimony today that an $8,540 mink coat, delivered to Mrs. E. Meri Young last fall, was charged to the account of a Washington lawyer who has handled RFC loan applications.

Louis O. Wheeler, New York furrier who sold the coat, said it was first charged to Young about Sept. 15, 1950, but later the charge was switched to the account of Joseph J. Rosenbaum. Rosenbaum has been described by the investigators as a man who never to influence the granting of RFC loans.

Wheeler testified before a Senate Banking subcommittee which is looking into the question whether influence and favoritism has figured in loans by the reconstruction finance corporation.

Rep. Sutton (D-Tenn) charged in a House speech recently that the coat was a payment for influence on RFC loans. He said that at least he had heard rumors to that effect.

Young, whose wife is a White House stenographer, swore to the Senate subcommittee last week that it was he who bought the coat.

A New Political Era

Twenty-Second Amendment To The Constitution May Bring An Era In Which Presidents May Start Groom- ing Their Successors To Carry On Their Work

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)—Now we enter the era of the fair-haired boy: a President's choice for President.

Hereafter—except for Mr. Truman—no man can be elected President more than twice.

Except for a few formalities, that became law last night through a new amendment—the 22nd—to the constitution.

You can almost close your eyes and see what's going to happen in the case of a twice-elected president whose second term is running out:

If he's anxious to see his pet policies carried out, he'll probably try to hand-pick his successor. This crown prince can't make the grade, of course, unless the voters want him but the retiring president can be a big help building him up.

We may never know whether this limit on the presidency is wise until we get into a crisis and have to choose a new leader.

But at least Congress and 36 of the 48 state legislatures thought it was a wise way of keeping any man from perpetuating himself in

Near East Study Class To Have Second Meeting

The second in a series of study courses being attended by the members of the W.S.C.S. of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and the members of the Christian Women's Fellowship on "The Near East" will be held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church on Thursday morning beginning at 10:00.

The first class in the study course was held at the First Presbyterian Church several weeks ago, when Dr. David S. Chabala, a native of Persia and now a resident of Charlotte, brought a message to women of the Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian churches on "Mohammedism."

"The Near East" was chosen by the planning group of the International Missionary Council as the subject for a foreign mission study for Protestant churches in the United States and Canada. Because the subject is so timely and that part of the world is a focal point of attention now, it is hoped by the leaders of the study classes that a large number of women will avail themselves of the opportunity to learn more about this part of the world.

The program on Thursday will get underway at 10:00 with an opening devotion presented by Mrs. S. T. White. Mrs. J. K. Long will discuss the question "Why Study the Near East?" followed by a travelogue talk on the geographic conditions of the country presented by Mr. J. B. Cummings. Mrs. A. D. Frank will talk for a few minutes on the subject, "The Uneasy Near East."

The class will conclude with a short talk which will dramatize an imaginary Foreign Missions Board conference between the Board secretary and a group of returned missionaries. Those taking part will be Mrs. Long, as the secretary; Mrs. D. H. Conley as Professor Wise, an educator; Mrs. Lee H. Moore as Dr. Well, a health officer; and Mrs. Paul Murray as Mrs. Mater, representing the status of women.

Altrusa Club Completes Series Of Benefit Parties

On Tuesday evening, February 20, at the home of Mrs. J. B. Spilman, the Altrusa Club entertained friends at a benefit bridge-canteen party from eight to ten o'clock. The guests received the guests with the assistance of club members. Immediately upon the arrival of the guests, a delicious dessert course was served.

During the evening prizes were won by the following guests: Mrs. J. L. Hassell, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Messick, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Blount, Mrs. N. O. Warren, Miss Marian Perry, Mrs. L. M. Ernest of Greenville, Mrs. Jack Quinley of Arden, and Mrs. Thurmond Williams of Grifton. Cut prizes were potted azaleas, presented by Mrs. Key Brown.

The Altrusa Club is happy to announce the successful completion of the scholarship fund. This fund has been presented to a local county girl, and has been the means of the completion of her freshman year.

Mr. Gibbs to Exhibit Inlay Work. Mr. J. C. Gibbs of the State Highway Commission, who is noted for his fine work in wood inlay work will exhibit some of his work and deliver a lecture on this art and the different woods at the Meadowbrook Presbyterian church Thursday night March 1st.

The program will get under way with a supper meeting at 7:15 of the Meadowbrook Men's Community club.

No adequate explanation has been found for the annual migrations of birds and animals.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
February 27, 1911

Greenville's interest in baseball the coming season was shown by the large attendance of enthusiasts at a meeting at the city hall yesterday, something like 75 being present. J. B. James was asked to preside over the meeting. In calling the meeting to order and stating its object, Mr. James said he had received letters from Kinston, Grifton and Ayden asking that Greenville join with those towns in establishing a league to be composed strictly of home players, each town to have two games each week, beginning the middle of June and continuing until September. So it looks like Greenville can enjoy good ball playing this summer.

Little Theatre Guild Notice
Play rehearsal will be held at Sheppard Memorial Library tonight at 7:30. Regular meeting has been postponed until further notice. All members are invited to attend.

Garden Clinic
The Garden Clubs of Kinston are sponsoring a Garden Clinic on March 1 in the Lewis School auditorium. Admission will be 50 per person. Time—2:00 to 5:00 p. m.

Mrs. Dorothy Biddle of Pleasantville, N. Y. will talk on the fundamentals of flower arranging, make arrangements of all types, give ideas and suggestions, and answer questions. Mrs. Biddle is a nationally known authoress, lecturer and flower show judge. Although she has been in the state many times, this is her first trip to Eastern North Carolina.

This clinic is open to the public and if you are interested in attending, call Mrs. W. J. Stoll at 3342.

Miss Fisher Speaks To Falkland Parents
The Falkland P.T.A. met this month with Mrs. Bert Little presiding as president. The meeting was opened with a devotional by Miss Vera Dare Windom and the song, "America" was sung by the audience.

Miss Fisher and Miss Johnson, county school nurses, were introduced to the parents by Mrs. Edward Mayo. A very enlightening talk on "The Health of Your Children" was impressively given by Miss Fisher, who received her nursing training in Philadelphia and at John Hopkins. She stressed the point of how closely related a child's mental health is to his physical health. How the importance of good environment and a happy peaceful home atmosphere goes toward bringing out the best school work in children was brought out emphatically by Miss Fisher.

Parents were reminded of the necessity of the removal of diseased teeth and tonsils and the treating of eyes and ears and were assured by Miss Fisher of financial help from special funds for that purpose for people who do need that help in the county.

The attendance prize which is a lovely new American flag banner with gold fringe was won by Mrs. King Mayo's third grade.

A plan to send to Chicago a donation for the securing of a national headquarters building for P.T.A. was discussed.

Interesting history of the P.T.A. was given in program form by the seventh grade. It was in 1890 that the first P.T.A. was formed in the U.S.A. and that it was one of Falkland citizens, the memorable Mrs. Sally Southall Cotton, who gave much of her time and help towards the organizing of the P.T.A. in the state of North Carolina.

Mrs. C. A. Lawrence brought to the parents a message of hope for a brighter future through faith and works as our forefathers proved to be true.

The nominating committee for president for next year was appointed and will be Mrs. Annabelle Little, Mrs. King Mayo, and Mrs. Luther Garris.

Mr. Chadwick, principal, discussed the need of interest in school and education bills about to be passed in Raleigh which would lower standards considerably and perhaps force teachers to be partly high school graduate students, and school bus and gas money would be drastically cut.

He suggested parents could help by getting in contact with Dr. Paul Jones, Mr. Kilpatrick or Mr. Worthington, state representatives, and influence them to prevent the legislature from cutting down funds for children's education.

North Carolina is next to bottom in the nation in some educational standards of public schools, Mississippi being on the bottom of the 48 states.

Tomorrow's Gardens

It is just within the last few years that many of us have learned the wisdom of planting gladiolus bulbs very early. They will grow and bloom if planted late and for a successive of flowers we advise putting in a few at bi-weekly intervals up until June but the main planting should be in as soon as possible.

Advantages of early planting are many. The flowers are large and held erect on strong sturdy stalks and in addition fine bulbs will be produced for another year's planting.

Plant them deep and fertile the well. In a ten-inch trench use fertilizer—about one pound to a thirty footrow, then two inches of soil and on that place the bulbs, covering them with good soil. Space the bulbs six to eight inches apart.

Planting in rows is perfect for the cutting garden but for color accents in the border use them in clumps. Keep the same depth, fertilizing and spacing but plant them in groups of six to twelve, all of one color.

In buying new bulbs buy them by color or description unless you know the named varieties. There are great numbers of named varieties, usually the very new ones being quite expensive.

When the young shoots are about eight inches high, dig them up again, putting the fertilizer at the side and using the same amount as when they were planted.

Gladiolus bulbs may be left in the ground for a year or two but we prefer to dig them up as soon as the leaves turn yellow and store them in a dry place.

George Washington died at his home at Mt. Vernon on Dec. 14, 1799.

Teachers' Workshop Takes Up Problems Encountered Daily

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.
Where else but in a teachers' meeting would questions such as these turn up?

Will Not Appeal Schools Ruling

Durham, N. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Today is the deadline, but Durham school officials say they will not appeal a Federal Court ruling that city public schools for Negroes are inferior to those for white children. The decision Judge Johnson J. Hayes made in District Court 30 days ago permanently enjoins school officials from discriminating against Negro school children. However, no stipulations were made on what would be required of the school board before facilities are considered equal. Parents of Negro students brought the case. They also named state school officials, but Judge Hayes rules that state officials should not be a party to the action. Attorneys for the Negroes said last night, on the eve of the appeal deadline, that they weren't completely satisfied with the decision, but wouldn't appeal the decision clearing state officials. Meanwhile, superintendent Stacy L. Weaver said that bids for extensive alterations to Durham High School (white) would not be opened today as originally advertised. He said the alterations have been postponed indefinitely "until we get a clarification of Judge Hayes' decision."

ing system based on ability? The answer, of course, is nowhere else but. They are some of the discussion questions teachers in the county school system asked themselves during three after-school workshops held in Winterville this month. The workshops were held during successive weeks, one afternoon each, and were the final sessions held during the past five months in which teachers taught themselves, through discussion of common problems, how to coordinate their teaching abilities in the several schools.

This month's workshops were centered on the problem of evaluating and reporting pupil progress. Sixty-six teachers, including all principals, attended this particular workshop and numbered more than any of the previous three. The others were on the subjects of music, mental health and guidance and physical education (held in January).

The last meeting of the evaluation and reporting workshop was held last week and the group really got down to business at that time. Under the direction of Dr. Ed Carter, head of East Carolina's Education Department, the teachers split into four groups for discussion of 23 pertinent questions which had been asked for discussion.

And in order to practice the actual evaluation and reporting of progress, they did the same on themselves, answering such questions as (1) Was the meeting slow in getting started? (2) Was the atmosphere easy, relaxed and comfortable? (3) Were members eager to speak? (4) Did the leader dominate the meeting? or (5) Did the leader get a consensus?

In answering 38 similar questions pertaining to themselves did the group learn how to evaluate and report the progress of the students' daily classroom work. Although there was not enough time in which to answer completely all the 23 questions that had originally been put, the teachers did come up with a desire to continue in the future that particular workshop. Too, they came up with three basic fundamentals, all answering the premise, "These Things We Believe." They were, (1) promotion of student is to be considered as an individual problem, (2) promotion must be based on a child's continuous growth in all emotions—physical, mental and social, and (3) further study on the subject is required.

Other features of pupil progress, or lack of it, discussed concerned: "pushing up" of students along with their classes, placing of pupils in grades according to ability, what constitutes the final grade in a course, how to work with each member of a crowded class in a short period of time, and explaining to parents why their child differs from other pupils. Those subjects were thrashed out as much as possible in the time allotted each group and the results of each will probably be borne out in teacher-pupil-parent relationships in the near future. The three workshops were chairmanned by Sam Bundy, principal of El Farmville school, with Mrs. Thadys Dewar, of Bethel, recorder. J. E. Miller, administrative assistant of the State Department of Public Instruction, addressed the group in the first session. He stated the evaluation and reporting of pupil progress was a problem, not only in the Pitt schools but throughout the state. Too, he said, it has a great deal to do with and is closely related to every other area of school life.

There is no reason why any little girl should be lonely, be without playmates, a place to play or things to play with. Not when the Girl Scouts have so much to offer. The trouble is lots of little girls never get to know about Girl Scouts and scouting, particularly if they live in a neighborhood where there aren't many youngsters. Now the Girl Scouts have decided to do something about apprising girls of the advantages of being a Girl Scout. The first step in that direction is a charming little movie called "The Growing Years," narrated by Henry Fonda. It is the story of Janet, who moves to a new neighborhood and is lonely and unhappy until some Scouts take her under their wings. After she becomes a member of the organization, there is never a dull moment. Janet learns that teamwork is important because one can profit by mistakes and learn by trial and error. She learns to share her play and engage in community activity. Most of all she learns how to bolster the morale and offer encouragement to girls who find themselves friendless as she herself was once. Especially during these times when so many girls find themselves mixed up and confused for lack of guidance by their elders, this movie is sorely needed.

Girls often find themselves in bad company only because that is the only group available to them or sympathetic to them at the moment. Loneliness does strange things to people and if we are not taught the difference between good and evil, then evil can seem good when it fills a necessary place in our lives.

The Girl Scouts hope to show their 20-minute movie throughout the land to school, civic, church and club groups to interest little Janets everywhere in their fine purposes.

America is a wonder place and sometimes young moderns need to be reminded by visitors to their land that nowhere in the world is opportunity so great.

Take the story of Helga Kramer and Peter Neuhof, 18, who attend classes at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. Helga and Peter are Germans enjoying school in this country under a scholarship program. After the school year, both will go back to their country. But they have learned to love and appreciate America. Says Helga, "Life in America is so comfortable and easy and happy. Most people here don't know any other way and take all these things for granted. They seem to think nothing can happen to them, but it can."

"Americans have never had to do without things (food, clothes, heat or fun) in wartime. If so they would understand."

Peter shares Helga's sentiments and adds: "This has been the happiest year of my life. Everything is so easy and wonderful. Americans should be more aware of all these things and be ready to keep anything from happening to them." So there it is, kids. You have everything on your doorstep. Take advantage of all America's freedoms; it is only by understanding them, recognizing them and practicing them that you will care enough to protect them.

No Tax Hike For Schools: Taylor

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Lt. Gov. H. P. (Pat) Taylor believes the General Assembly will provide necessary funds for public school needs without increasing taxes.

He made this statement in a talk yesterday before the Raleigh Exchange Club. He said the needs of the schools must be met. He added, however, that "we must demand excellent and efficient service" from school authorities.

Missing Prince Is Home Again

Lost Angles, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Prince David Mdivani, last of the three marrying Mdivani brothers, is back home after being reported missing when he did not return on schedule from a business trip. "I guess I should have told her I was not coming home over the weekend," the Prince, now 48, said on his return yesterday. His wife, helress, had roused police with a missing person report.

The manager of the La Quinta Hotel at Palm Springs said Mdivani was seen there Saturday and Sunday. Asked about this, the prince shrugged: "Well, perhaps."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
YOUTH COUNCIL

In a vague sort of way we all understand the importance of childhood. We know that human beings are usually either made or broken the first decade of their lives. By the time a person arrives at voting age, he has usually entered upon a certain way of life which will persist as long as he lives.

Lord Shaftesbury, almost a hundred years ago, observed that nearly all criminals fell into the course of crime between the ages of 8 and 15 years. We know today that one of the alarming phenomena of the present crime situation is the continuing decrease in the age of criminals. Some years ago the average age of criminals was in the late twenties; now the prisons are full of people hardly old enough to be called adults. The lives of these men, and in many cases women also, were destroyed before they had a chance to live them.

Modern parents are averse to give their child every privilege possible, yet many do not realize that the establishment of moral standards in the lives of children and the induction of these children into lives of religious faith is more important than all the education, recreation, and financial advantages they can ever have.

Youth counts—and it counts for so much that we may well be terrified by the responsibilities resting upon us.

The Drug

How far can a nation go down the road toward socialism without becoming socialist? How long can the people depend upon the government for a large number of subsidies without becoming dependent upon the government for a livelihood.

It is difficult to conceive that a free, independent, aggressive people would give up their independence under a system of free enterprise and accept in its stead a socialistic form of government. Yet we have seen that very thing happen in Great Britain through a gradual process. At first the people of Britain had no idea of becoming wholly dependent upon their government for a livelihood. But they began accepting more and more handouts from their government, and gradually they began demanding more and more handouts from their government.

Today they have reached the point where a large portion of their economy is completely socialized, and the nation's industry, business, and economy as a whole is on the downgrade.

It seems the condition in which the British people find themselves should serve as a glaring beacon of warning to the people of the United States. But we continue to charge headlong down the road toward socialism... demanding each day more money, more favors, and more handouts from the federal government for agriculture, for labor, for industry, for business, and for the individual.

The whole situation brings to mind the plight of the seagulls of St. Augustine, Fla., which are now starving by the thousands along the beaches, and on the sand bars of that fishing port. For decades St. Augustine was the home port of a vast shrimping fleet. The seagulls of the area for many years have feasted on the scraps thrown from the shrimpers nets in the St. Augustine harbor. They have feasted and grown fat through little efforts of their own. The gulls no longer had to fly to sea in search of schools of small fish for meals, or use their God-given talents of keen eyes and swift wings to acquire a livelihood.

But now, more bountiful shrimping waters have been found farther South; and the shrimp fleet which until a few months ago filled the St. Augustine harbor has moved away, and there are no more scraps for the gulls' daily feast. The birds sit on the beaches starving to death, because they no longer know how to use their talents to secure food for themselves. The ornithologists are amazed that the birds do not use their natural instinct to fish for themselves as do gulls in other places along the east coast.

Apparently the gulls have feasted at the tables of the shrimp boats for so many generations, the older birds neglected to teach the younger birds how to seek their own living without the doles from the shrimp boats.

And now that the boats are gone, the birds can no longer use their talents which once made them rank with the most independent and resourceful of fowls. Their benefactors are gone, and they are starving.

Are the American people falling into the same apathy which has overcome the gulls of St. Augustine? Will we become so addicted to the laziness which we acquire through filling our bellies at the federal government's table that we forget how to use our own hands... and forget to teach the next generation how to earn a living without the doles from the government?

The United States has reached another crossroads in its path of existence. The people of the United States will determine whether they are anxious to follow socialism to the downfall of this great nation; or whether they are willing to break away from the government's feast table while we still have the will power and the ability to earn a living by the sweat of our brow.

Another Milestone For The American Constitution

For the 22nd time since 1789 the people of the United States have seen fit to amend the constitution... the fundamental law of the land. Consider the fact that the first ten amendments of the constitution came as the bill of rights, and actually the people have found it necessary to make only 12 constitutional changes in the past 162 years. That in itself testifies to the greatness of the document.

In the 22nd amendment which became a part of the nation's constitution yesterday after being ratified by the Nevada legislature, provisions are made whereby a man can not be elected president of the United States for more than two terms, and a vice president who succeeds to the position, may not serve for more than ten years as president.

There is some foundation in the view that the Republicans who instituted the Congressional bill for the constitutional amendment did it to prevent a man from holding the position as chief executive as long as Franklin Roosevelt did. There may be some truth to the speculation that several of the southern states which ratified the constitutional amendment did so as a step against President Truman.

It is our opinion, however, that neither of these schools of thought is entirely correct. The people of the United States do not jump up and make a constitutional amendment directed toward one or two individuals. The basis for the amendment is indeed much more fundamental to the preservation of the other sections of the constitution.

The people of the United States have realized the increasing power of the chief executive of this nation; and they have been able to visualize the catastrophe which may overcome this nation should one man hold too much power for too long a time. They have taken steps to prevent such a catastrophe from occurring.

The people of the United States have passed another milestone. We believe they have made a wise decision.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Truman may soon duplicate his surrender in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation squabble by compromising his bitter controversy with the Federal Reserve Board over the inflationary use of billions of dollars of bank credit throughout the nation.

His more sensible advisers have warned him that his lending and credit policies were destroying the confidence of business and industry.

The White House has been impressed—and shocked—by the way in which the banking community has rallied behind the Federal Reserve faction, which wants an increase in the interest rate on government issues to raise the cost of money generally.

There has been hardly a whisper of support for the earlier Truman-Snyder insistence on the relatively low 2 1/2 per cent rate for federal securities.

OUTVOTED—The extremists in both camps have been shoved into the background by the peacemakers. Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, who has been the chief champion of the inflationary 2 1/2 per cent figure, is in the hospital for a few weeks. His disappearance may help toward a settlement.

Federal Reserve Governor James K. Vardaman Jr., who carried the Truman torch within that agency, has been outvoted twice by members of the board and the Open Market Committee on the question of backing down to the White House demands.

With his group almost solidly behind him, Federal Reserve Chairman Thomas B. McCabe has sent two letters to Mr. Truman, explaining the problem's implications in simple, elementary terms.

COMPROMISE—The prospective compromise contemplates raising the interest rate to approximately 3 per cent instead of the 2 1/2; insisted on by the Treasury. Arranging the details for applying this figure to present, future and refunding issues may be difficult, but it is believed that it can be accomplished without too much trouble.

Sir Stafford Cripps made the changeover in Britain, when he discovered that the 2 1/2 rate had a distressingly inflationary effect on the national economy—wages, prices, living costs generally.

COUNCIL—It now develops that two of the backstage promoters of the Truman-Snyder theory of "cheap and easy money" were the ultra-liberal members of the President's Economic Advisory Council. They are Chairman Leon H. Keyserling, who wrote many New Deal reforms as secretary to former Senator Robert F. Wagner, and John D. Clark, a lawyer-professor from Wyoming.

They have long advocated the idea that the government should take advantage of its control of credit, money supply and rates to force business and industry to support its policies.

Most spectacular instance was when they persuaded Mr. Truman to agree to finance expansion of the steel industry, if private interests did not increase capacity in accord with his specifications.

Their insistence on a cheap borrowing rate for the government obviously would strengthen their long-range program for federal construction, operation and possible ownership of plants built under the rearmament program.

"BONANZA"—The Keyserling-Clark antagonism toward "Wall Street" was reflected in their discussions of federal interest rates with spokesmen for the Reserve Board and the Open Market Committee. Answering their suggestion of a 3 per cent rate, Mr. Clark retorted:

That's Encouraging

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

To me, this letter to the editor makes sense:

Dear Editor:
I read in a copy of a newspaper the other day which a north wind blew in from my neighbor's house—I got his trash in the winter, he gets mine in the summer, no use wasting energy when the wind will do it for you—where a lot of people are complaining that taxes are eaten up.

Of course everybody agrees we got to spend money to get ready, but nobody agrees on where the money ought to come from. People all join in complaining saying opportunity has been banished from this country, initiative stifled, and it don't do no good to make any money because taxes take it all, but I can't help noticing the money goes on piling up in the banks and last year more new cars were made and sold than ever before. In fact, I noticed the financial statements for big business last year revealed the highest profits, after taxes were paid, in the history of the nation, and only yesterday I read where individuals' incomes were also at the highest peak in history, and I been thinking.

Now my income ain't in that shape, it ain't quite enough to suit me, the same as it's been for years, and I have decided I would like to swap places or move over and get into that group being taxed to death.

I guarantee I will holler just as loud and long, complain just as much, predict the end of civilization if somebody will manage to get my income up to the level of these people being taxed to death. In the meantime, until I get there, I aim to holler about taxes anyway. I'm in practice. I got the know-how, if I just had the income to go with it.

Speakin' of taxes, this is something rare for this part of the country, but the other day I was wandering around over my pasture not thinking about anything in particular, might as well have been in the legislature drawing a salary for all the good I was doing, when I stumbled on a magazine, at least I thought it was a magazine, but when I went ahead and bent over and looked at it I discovered it was a copy of the Congressional Record, but to make the most of it I sat down right where I was instead of straightening up and while I was leafin' through it came to a fiery address by some congressman who was denouncing what he called hidden taxes. Said it was outrageous the way Congress didn't have the nerve to come right out and tax the people in plain daylight, but was always figuring out ways to hide the taxes, slip em over on the people. Said if you was buying a pair of shoes you paid at least fifteen different hidden taxes on em.

Now I ain't in favor of taxes, but I just don't believe that congressman knows anything about human nature. It ain't a question of deceiving the people, but a matter of keeping public offices filled. If everybody had to pay all their taxes in one lump sum, the life expectancy of the average officeholder would be three weeks.

Yours faithfully,
H. B. FOX
And I thank H. B.

MILLENNIUM—"The millennium has arrived," said Charles Parker, director of the state advertising, as he read and re-read a letter Monday morning. The letter was from John Farrell, manager of the Wilmington chamber of commerce offices. There was nothing unusual about that part of the request. It was the next paragraph or two that surprised and delighted the state advertising man. Farrell especially commended the excellent treatment accorded the Piedmont and Mountain sections, and wanted the books to encourage Wilmington visitors from outside the state to travel through the uplands on their way home. This attitude has long been fostered by the state advertising division and numerous local chamber of commerce folks are realizing that they obtain mutual benefits by helping to boost all areas and facilities which combine to justify North Carolina's title of "Variety Vacationland."

CO-OPERATING—Not so many years ago the different areas of the state fought each other, and the combative attitude followed down among communities in the same general section. Some business men in the northeast formed the Albemarle Association, and as he read and re-read the letter, came along the Associated Western North Carolina Communities. There is now in the making of a southeastern or Cape Fear group organization with similar objective of promoting the entire area. Each of these regional groups works with state agencies, and none of them attempts to hamper any local community in special efforts. The Western Carolina Tourist Association and the Southeastern North Carolina Beach Association have proven the value of co-operative efforts in tourist attraction alone, and they are utilizing statewide advertising materials as well as their own. Further extensive of cooperative in industrial development gives promise of paying handsome dividends.

SENATOR—Now comes the esteemed and highly honorable Associated Press trying to steal one of the "firsts" from a native North Carolinian. In an AP feature story, under by-line of Edwin B. Haskinson, there is prediction that Harry Truman will not run for president again, but is a likely candidate for his old seat in the United States senate from Missouri. The story sets out that John Quincy Adams served in the house of representatives after his tenure as president, but that no president had ever returned to the senate.

JOHNSON—Stuff and nonsense, as well as attempted thievery! Andrew Johnson, born in Raleigh, went to the senate from Tennessee and from the senate to the vice-presidency, moving up to the presidency upon death of Abraham Lincoln in April 1865, and had a right hard time as chief executive in the post war years.

To that point his career and that of Harry Truman closely parallel. Withstanding attempts to impeach him, Johnson retired from the presidency in 1869. Six years later he was again elected to the United States senate from Tennessee, and so far holds the record as the only man to serve in the senate after tenure as master of the White House. It took a long time for North Carolina to overcome prejudice and accord Johnson recognition as an honored native son. Two years ago a monument was erected to the three presidents credited as native to North Carolina. It stands on Capitol square and was dedicated by President Truman. Now we ain't gonna let Mr. Haskinson or Mr. Truman or Missouri get away with stealing some credit belonging to him. Maybe Mr. Truman will be the second man to go back to the senate after serving as president, but he can't be the first.

LEVELING—Retail sales volume is leveling off, according to report of the national newspaper publishers advertising section. The weekly report has this significant sentence: "While both dollar and unit volume increased (for last week) there were fewer indications of anticipatory buying." That is a highbrow expression for hoarding. Stabilized prices and well filled home stocks are chief reasons for the slight change in trend.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A Southern Republican Party (Wilson Daily Times)

We can't, under our system of government, pick out every fourth man in Wilson and say, "you're a Republican." But if we could prevail on large numbers to change the state would be infinitely better off. For then we would have a dual system whereupon we'd be cultivated by other states. We might even, on occasion, have a local man on the national ticket. Except for John Nance Garner in 1932 and Alben Barkley in 1949, that's something that hasn't occurred since the Civil War.

Originally, of course, the South followed John C. Calhoun and his slavery policies. During reconstruction, it was only logical that all the whites would adhere to the party. It offered them their only defense. But that need has long since passed. And today the colored people who vote for the most part vote Democratic because they favor many of that party's policies. Why, then, must the white man stick to a time-honored course? Is he a Democrat because of reason of because, for generations, the members of his family have been Democrats?

In North Carolina, it's true, many who are registered as Democrats vote Republican in national election. That's because they're out of step with the programs of the national administration. If they can vote Republican in national elections, why can't they do likewise in local elections? If that were done, it would mean a great deal to the Southern states which in all the elections since the Civil War have been looked on as safe for the Democrats. Until Roosevelt, however, the Southerners had a voice in what was going on. In recent years, though, they've been ignored until, through some type of mass action, they show by their votes that they're not in harmony with what's taking place in Washington.

Unless future cutbacks in supply of critical materials are much more severe than now anticipated, and unless the electronics industry is swamped with defense orders, the supply of television receivers should be adequate this year.

For one thing, there are some pretty high inventories around the country, although sets are scarce in some regions.

For another, the industry has done a remarkable job in redesigning sets to minimize the use of scarce materials.

For a third, demand is being whittled down. Credit restrictions require a 25 per cent down payment and the excise tax on TV sets may be boosted. Few, if any new areas will be opened up to telecasting until station materials become more plentiful.

New larger electrostatic-focus picture tubes, on which work started several years ago, require 70 per cent less cobalt, 90 per cent less brass and 35 per cent less steel.

Almost all chassis are being redesigned to require less metals. Circuits are being modified—adding to, not diminishing the, functioning of the sets, manufacturers say. Shorter mounting bushings, smaller speaker magnets and the use of plastic in non-conductive parts instead of metal are being introduced in many sets. One company has designed a circuit that eliminates the usual heavy power transformer. One new receiver is said to eliminate the use of cobalt entirely, and to reduce the amount of aluminum needs by 68 per cent, of silicon steel by 58 per cent, ferrite by 51 per cent, copper by 26 per cent and nickel by 15 per cent.

Many manufacturers are reducing sharply the amount of trim and finish to cabinets; some concede that they are "utility models"—but good. Further cutbacks in materials could produce "austerity models," and these would not be as good as present sets.

Savings are being made in antennas, too. One company is saving 50 per cent in aluminum used for masts by employing smaller tubing and stronger alloys. It has also reduced use of copper in antenna transmission lines by 33 per cent. Wooden masts are on the way. They are being made of stout wood with just enough metal imbedded in grooves in the wood for protection, to gain good reception. These masts are just as sturdy as metal and, in some erections, even sturdier, manufacturers say.

It wasn't a gag. A Buffalo store advertised a sale of power lawn mowers this month and even surprised itself with the large number sold.

After this, it may be possible to sell iceboxes to Eskimos—especially if the Eskimos believe there's going to be an acute shortage.

SYNTHETIC BLANKETS
UNDERSELLING WOOL
Blankets of Dynel, the new synthetic fiber, are now selling below the price of wool blankets, C. A. Setterstrom, of Union Carbide and Carbon, told a meeting of New York buyers.

The blankets were introduced to sell about $3 higher than wool blankets, but the rise in wool prices makes them now about $9 lower. The synthetic blankets are warm and won't shrink and resist mildew, insects and flame.

THEATER NIBBLING
AT $400 MILLION A YEAR
Theater-goers are spending $7,000,000 a week in lobbies for popcorn, candies, soft drinks and other refreshments. Boxoffice estimates. Total spending last year is estimated at $400,000,000, with $135,000,000 going for candy.

WORLD FIG CROP
13 PCT. BELOW NORMAL
The world's 1950 dried fig crop is estimated by the Department of Agriculture at 172,000 short tons, 13 per cent below the 10-year average. Italy is the largest producer of dried figs, growing almost half the world total, followed by Turkey, United States, Greece, Portugal, Syria-Lebanon and Argentina. Despite its rank in fig production, the United States is also an important importer.

INVENTORY-TAKING
CUTS WORK-WEEK
Overtime pay declined in January. The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates the average work week in all manufacturing was 40.8 hours, compared with 41.4 hours in December. The decline was attributed to inventory-taking shutdowns in many industries. However, pay envelopes averaged $62.97 in January, $6.68 higher than a year ago.

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—What's the most dangerous place in Washington?

You could get a lot of answers, serious and not so serious, to that question. But as far as this danger-seeker is concerned, there's only one possible answer. The most dangerous place in Washington for me is the government printing office.

This may surprise the people who work there. Probably it doesn't seem a hazardous sort of place to them. It's the part I'm talking about, anyway is a bigish room with a counter in the middle and row after row of government publications neatly displayed on all sides.

Dangerous?

Well, it may look to some visitors like the lobby of a religious publishing house. But for me it's about as safe to go there as it would be to enter a Chinese opium den waving the stars and stripes while disguised as Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

I have to go there three or four times a year to pick up some such fascinating piece of literature as the Statistical Abstract of the United States, and I never get out of the place without having put my bank account, my wife's security and what is humorously called my career in serious danger.

It's those damned books that do it. Sometimes I wish I'd never learned to read. You see, the government puts out all sorts of little books on all manner of big subjects, from foreign policy to the best way of cooking farina. Most of these I can take or leave alone. But the how-to-do-it books get me. I'm their slave. One look at them and away the dreamboat goes, with myself asleep at the tiller.

"How To Raise Chinchillas," for example.

I know I shouldn't pick it up. I try to stride purposefully past it. But it's like the bottle to the drunkard. I sink back, extract it furiously from the rack and take a long, deep, satisfying swig. Then I'm lost to the world for 10 minutes.

I see myself as a chinchilla rancher...tanned, toughened, 20 pounds lighter. There I am, silhouetted against the sunset, calmly surveying the furry little money-makers that are breeding all over my ranch. I see myself stitching together a few dozen hides for my wife. She could use a fur coat, poor girl. So why not chinchilla?

"Come, come," I tell myself, "this isn't practical. You have a job to do. You'd lose your shirt raising chinchillas."

It doesn't help. Those government booklets make it sound so easy, so attractive, job or no job, for two cents I'd—

It isn't only chinchillas. In imagination, I turn cotton-planter...oyster-picker...transport pilot...under the spell of those How-To-Do-It books. Frequently I'm a yachtsman, for 13 pages or so. Splice that mainsail, bo'sun. Unshiver that timber!

This from me, who couldn't navigate a paper sailboat from one end of a bathtub to the other. Sooner or later the pressure of time, or a meaningful Harumph from one of the attendants, snaps me back to reality. The chinchilla ranch fades, the sails of the dream-yacht droop. I'm just a newspaper guy again, goofing off on an assignment.

But someday—I've got to keep away from that Government Printing Office. Or someday I will kick over the traces. And I don't think my wife would like living on a chinchilla ranch, even if I promised to grow her a new coat every Christmas.

Washington Letter

Washington.—Americans are getting married younger than they used to.

The great bulk of men marry in their twenties, women in their late teens and early twenties. Half of the men take the leap between 22 and 28 years of age. Half of the women get married between 19 and 24.

Dr. Paul C. Glick, chief of the social statistics section, tells me these facts were revealed in a Bureau of Census survey of more than 25,000 scientifically selected households throughout the nation. About three-fourths of the husbands are older than their wives. Dr. Glick thinks this is because the man, as sole or primary provider of economic support for the family, spends several years building up his earning capacity before taking on a wife. Also wives sometimes prefer older men because they think they're better able to take care of them than a man their own age or younger.

The survey shows that men in jobs bringing in higher salaries, or in jobs requiring more specialized training, tend to delay marriage one to three years past the age at which most men in other occupations marry. The average marrying age of men making $6,000 or more is about 31 compared with 22 years of age for those making under $1,000.

City women, the survey showed, were about one year older on the average when they married than farm women. Dr. Glick says this is probably due to the fact that women in cities are more likely to work outside the home before marriage.

While age seems to be one of the most important factors in marriage, other factors are often involved. "People often marry someone they live close to—'proximity of residence,' census people call it. Sometimes people wait to get married until they feel grown-up enough to take the step, or until their education is completed. Men often postpone marriage until they feel they're up to supporting a wife and family. Women sometimes delay until they feel they're ready to start having children.

As for remarrying, women who remarry do so at a much younger age on the average than men do. There's about a three-year difference between husband and wife in first marriages and about five in second marriages, Dr. Glick adds.

Veterans' Deadline On Starting Courses Near

Veterans of World War II planning GI Bill education and training were reminded by James D. Walters, Officer-in-Charge of the Greenville Veterans Administration Office today that the July 25, 1951, cut-off date for starting courses is less than five months away.

The 1951 deadline applies to most World War II veterans—those discharged from service before July 25, 1947. Those discharged after that date have four years from their discharge date in which to begin.

Veterans actually must have commenced their training by the cut-off date if they want to continue afterwards, Walters said. A veteran must be in training on that date unless he has temporarily interrupted his course for summer vacation or for other reasons beyond his control.

Once he completes or discontinues his course of GI Bill training after the deadline, he may not start another course. Also, he must meet the following two post-deadline requirements:

He will be expected to pursue his training "continuously until completion, except for conditions which normally would cause interruption by any student."

And he may change his educational objective "only while in training and then for reasons satisfactory to the Administrator."

Special consideration will be given to four categories of veterans: (1) veterans who, for reasons beyond their control, either may not be able to resume their training by July 25, 1951, or may not be in a position to remain in continuous training afterwards.

The categories are (1) veterans who have started GI Bill studies and interrupt them to go back to active military or naval service; (2) veterans who completed pre-medical and pre-dental GI Bill schooling and can't get into a medical or dental school, by deadline time; (3) teachers who spend their summers taking training leading to a degree, and (4) those who complete GI Bill undergraduate courses and intend to go ahead with graduate training which would start after the deadline date.

Those who had to stop training in order to return to active duty will be permitted to resume their training within a "reasonable period" following their release from service, even though they get out after the deadline date.

They must meet these two requirements: the conduct and progress of their GI Bill course must have been satisfactory, and the period of training obtainable after they get out of uniform will be limited to their remaining GI Bill entitlement.

Veterans who have taken GI Bill pre-medical or pre-dental courses but have not yet gained admittance to medical or dental schools, will be permitted to start medical or dental training whenever an accredited school has room for them—even if it's after the cut-off date.

They must, however, establish the fact that they applied for admission each year after completing their GI Bill preliminary training. The special provision applies regardless of whether a veteran's pre-medical or pre-dental studies end before or after July 25, 1951.

Ex-servicemen and women in the third category—teachers who take GI Bill graduate courses during succeeding summer vacations—may continue to do so after the 1951 cut-off date.

A teacher will have to meet certain qualifications. His study must lead toward a degree; he must be continuously employed as a school teacher the rest of the year, and he may not skip any GI Bill summer sessions.

Summer training by teachers for the purpose of getting a degree is a "long recognized practice" of the profession, Walters pointed out. Because of the veteran-teacher's "unique" position, Walters said that VA will consider him to be in "continuous pursuit of his course" within the meaning of the governing law and regulations, so long as he takes courses each summer with the objective of receiving a degree.

16TH CENTURY CUSTOM — Members of Confraternity of Sackcloth wear sackcloth garments in Lenten ceremony in Rome. Confraternity is composed largely of Rome's leading families and sackcloth tradition dates back to 16th century.

The final category consists of veterans who finish GI Bill undergraduate courses and intend to go ahead with graduate training which would start after the deadline date.

VA regulations provide they may do so, as long as they file an application for their advanced training sometime before they complete their undergraduate work. They also must meet two other requirements. They must start the additional training at the end of their summer vacation period, and the graduate course must be a "normal progression" of previous studies.

A veteran who receives his A.B. degree in business administration in June 1951, for example, could start work on his master's degree—in business administration—that September, if he applied to VA in time.

This ruling also pertains to those who finish undergraduate studies after the 1951 date, and wish to continue advanced studies at the end of their vacation period.

Walters emphasized that most veterans may not receive training after July 25, 1951, the wind-up date of the program.

The only exception consists of those who enlisted or reenlisted between October 6, 1945, and October 5, 1946, under the Armed Act. Those veterans have four years from the end of their enlistment or reenlistment period in which to begin GI Bill training, and nine years from the end of that period in which to finish.

Building Permits Stress Dwellings

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. —(AP)—Building permits issued by North Carolina cities and towns last month totaled $16,127,277.

The State Labor Department announced yesterday $8,818,595 of January's permits went for new houses and apartments totaling 1,385 units.

Another $5,073,480 went for non-residential construction, such as stores, factories, churches and garages.

Permits for alterations and repairs last month totaled $1,880,372.

Guerrilla Raids

Taipei, Formosa, Feb. 27—(AP)—Chinese Nationalist guerrillas have captured two small islands off the China coast, they reported.

One island taken by the guerrillas aboard junk was identified as Tapeng, in the Bias Bay area about 35 miles northeast of Hong Kong.

The other island is Nanpeng, off the South China coastal town of Yeungkong, 125 miles southwest of Canton.

The report said the guerrillas wiped out more than 200 Chinese Communist defenders at Nanpeng.

IF THE STOCK EXCHANGE DOESN'T OWN ANY STOCK...WHO DOES?

A long time ago a lot of folks had the idea all stocks were owned by a fistful of rich people. Maybe that idea was right once.

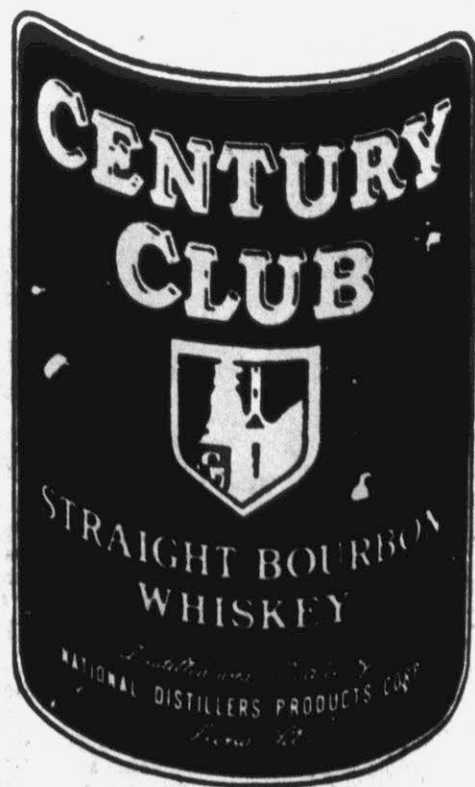

Today's estimates of how many people own stocks range up to 15,000,000. All kinds of people own stocks. Office workers...housewives...mechanics...school teachers...lawyers...storekeepers...farmers. Everyday people with small incomes and large. Owning stock is owning a "piece of a business"—risking one's money to share in the profits.

You may even own stock indirectly—whether you know it or not. Most companies issuing fire and casualty insurance, as well as many pension funds, invest a part of their resources in the stocks of American industry.

What some people do not know is that the Stock Exchange does not buy or sell stocks. It doesn't put the price tag on them, either. The Exchange does provide a market place where people can buy or sell securities. The Exchange does see that prices are arrived at openly and fairly and published promptly.

The handling of investors' orders to buy or sell a few shares or hundreds is the day-to-day business of member firms of the Exchange. Information about prominent corporations, including earnings and dividend records, can always be had at their offices, without obligation.

Robersonville - Farmville Win In Coastal Tournament

Favored Teams Win In First Round Of Play

The second annual Coastal Conference Tournament got underway here last night with the local Farmville girls and the Robersonville boys coming away with victories in the first round of play. The Farmville girls had to put on their best scoring legs to come from behind in the second half and defeat the scrappy South Edgecombe girls 45 to 35 in the night's first game.

In the second game of the night, Robersonville and Vanceboro played on even terms for the first quarter, then the stronger Robersonville came away with a victory in the first round of play. The Farmville girls had to put on their best scoring legs to come from behind in the second half and defeat the scrappy South Edgecombe girls 45 to 35 in the night's first game.

In the girls' game Farmville and South Edgecombe waged a close scoring battle through the first half, that saw the lead change hands five times. Farmville took the lead, but it was short as South Edgecombe quickly came from behind to lead 20 to 15 at the half.

South Edgecombe held their lead for a short time as the second half got underway, before little Ray Hathaway starting hitting on shots from all over the court to pull Farmville back in the game and enable them to deadlock the score at 27 all at the third quarter.

In the last quarter it was Farmville all the way, as Hathaway and Rouse kept up their torrid scoring pace to put Farmville out front to stay. South Edgecombe couldn't hit their shots in the last quarter, scoring only 2 points in the last five minutes of play.

Hathaway was the scoring leader for the night, racking up 22 points for the winners. Middle Rouse scored 12 to help pull the Farmville team through to their win.

Webb and Walston were the defensive stars for the winners, both playing a great defensive game under the boards.

Anne Webb scored 18 points in a losing cause for the South Edgecombe team, followed by M. Whaley who got 10. H. Corbitt and Stallings were outstanding on defense for South Edgecombe.

Rugged Action In Coastal Tournament Opening Round

Another Player Accused In Basketball Bribe Scandal

New York, Feb. 27—(AP)—College basketball's greatest bribe scandal has extended to another star player, another season and two more games.

The box score today stood at nine accused players or former players at three local schools and a total of 12 fixed games over three seasons, including the current one.

Nobody was sure whether the mushrooming tabulation was complete.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's office built up the all-star roster last night when it announced the arrest of Nathan (Natie) Miller, 25, of Brooklyn, a former key Long Island University player.

Miller was charged with taking $15,000 in bribes for fixing two games his team lost at the start of the 1948-1949 season, the last he played.

The charge said he received $1,000 after LIU's 97-64 loss to Bowling Green State University, Ohio, on Dec. 4, 1948; and $500 after his team's 83-58 defeat by Western Kentucky State College on Dec. 30, 1948. Both games were played at Madison Square Garden.

Miller allegedly received the money from a teammate, Edward Gard, who already is under arrest in the inquiry.

The latest defendant was a teammate also of the accused Sherman White, LeRoy Smith and Adolph Bigos, who were then sophomores.

Miller is accused of contriving "to lose and to limit the margin of victory." Limiting the margin—or fixing the point spread between the two teams—makes it possible for gamblers who are in on the deal to clean up on bets.

This 1948 LIU team had a comparatively poor record, winning 18 games and losing 12. However, Miller starred both the previous seasons when LIU rang up identical 17-and-4 win-loss records. The 1946-47 team played in the National Invitation Tournament.

Miller was considered one of the city's leading playmakers—the man who sets up scoring attempts—despite the handicap of a severe World War II shoulder wound that won him a Purple Heart. He served in Germany.

Bigos and White, a Negro center who was the leading scorer in the nation, are accused with Gard of accepting bribes to fix three games of the 1949-1950 season, including a National Invitation Tournament tilt.

Stokes Boys Get Cage Victory

The Stokes boys defeated the Chocowinity five last night in a close game by the score of 37 to 35. Stokes led at the half 20 to 18, but fell behind in the third quarter and trailed the Chocowinity five by one point, 28-27. Stokes scored 10 points in the last quarter to come from behind and take the win. Jack Warren led the winners with 19 points. O'Brien Edwards got 12 for the losers.

Score by quarters:

Stokes 12 8 7 10
Chocowinity 7 11 10 7

High scorers:
Stokes—Jack Warren 19, Loyal Corey 9
Chocowinity—O'Brien Edwards 12, Jackson 11

Defensive leaders:
Stokes—Erwin Warren, Mac James
Chocowinity—Billy Taylor, Milton Hill

Pirates Will Play In District 26 Play-Offs

Kentucky Firmly In First With One Week Left

East Carolina's Pirates have accepted a bid to play in the district 26 play-offs of the National Association. Inter-collegiate Basketball play-offs, to be held at Hickory on Tuesday and Wednesday, February 27, 28 and March 5.

The Pirates were selected for their outstanding play in the North State Conference tournament, in which they went to the finals, but lost to High Point in the championship game.

Teams are selected from the two Carolinas to participate in this tournament to decide who will go to Kansas City to represent the two Carolinas in the National Association Basketball Tournament, held there each year. All teams chosen this year were members of the North State Conference and no team from South Carolina was chosen. Teams invited were: Lenoir-Rhyne, High Point, Appalachian, Catawba and East Carolina.

On Tuesday, February 27, Lenoir-Rhyne plays High Point. On Wednesday there will be two games: East Carolina will play Appalachian at 7:30 and Catawba will play the winner of the Lenoir-Rhyne-High Point game. If the Pirates can beat Appalachian they will play the winner of the 9:00 game in the finals, on Monday, March 5, to decide who will go to Kansas City.

A FIEND IN NEED

By MILTON K. OZAKI

Chapter 17
I felt sorry for Caldwell; he stood stiffly in one corner of the elevator, his face hard and his hands stiffy at his sides, like a man forcing himself to do something he hated doing.
When the elevator reached the third floor, Phelan opened the door and stepped out first. His big body blocked the door completely, but standing behind him, we could hear the buzzer responding to the jab of his thumb. Scarcely breathing, Caldwell and I waited for Thomson to open the door. Phelan kept jabbing the buzzer, insistently and imperiously. At last he stepped away from the door, a puzzled look on his face.

"I know he's in there," Phelan muttered. "Stay right here for a minute. I'm going to get the janitor."
Phelan came back up, jingling a bunch of keys, and the janitor followed with a stubborn resentful look on his face. Phelan pressed the buzzer briefly, pushed a key into the lock, then threw the bolt. The door swung open.

"Stay where you are!" Phelan directed in a hard voice. He stepped cautiously into Thomson's study, stopping beside the desk. He stood there, his body obscuring our view, then he moved aside so we could see the chair where Thomson sat. His hands folded peacefully in his lap. The tilt of a knife protruded from his chest.
"Thomson!" Caldwell whispered. "Lieutenant Phelan looked older and tired and frustrated. Almost unbelievably, his eyes moved about the room, touching the book shelves, the desk, the chairs, the piles of magazines. Then, his thick shoulders slumping in his coat, he leaned over the desk and slipped the phone from its cradle. He dialed a number and spoke wearily into the phone, then put the phone back and turned to Caldwell. "I'm sorry, Professor," he said wearily. He shrugged. "Well, it's too late now."

I left the janitor and Caldwell and Lieutenant Phelan standing there in Thomson's study, staring at his dead body, and, closing the door quietly behind me, I went across the hall and rang the bell of Apartment 3-B. Elaine Ruhl opened the door and smiled when she recognized me.
"Hello, baby!" I stepped into the room and stood admiring her. She was wearing a pale blue dress which fitted her as though it was a pleasure, and her blonde hair had the softness of pale butter-scotch. "Where's June?" I asked, trying not to let the perfume of her overwhelm me.
She giggled. "We're alone Aren't we?"
"Barbara's out, too?"
"Um-hmm. They stayed downtown to see a movie and won't be back until late probably." She said her arm through mine and walked across the room.
"Lucky me!" She sat in the center of the davenport, patted the cushion beside her.
"You're too dangerous," I said, shaking my head. I pulled a chair close to her.
Her big blue eyes were surprised, then hurt. "What's the matter? Don't you like me?"
"I like you too much," I told her, "and we haven't time enough now, anyway."
"June and Barbara won't be back until—" I said, "it's just that I want to talk to you about something."
Her eyes softened, brightened, softened again. "I hope you aren't going to ask me about that fellow who was killed. That isn't why you came to see me, is it?"
"You guessed it," I told her. "You see, you're in a spot."
A laugh trickled around in her throat and poured musically from her lips. "Silly! We didn't know anything about it. The cops came back and asked us all kinds of questions, but we couldn't tell them a thing about it. He'd called June and said he was coming over about seven-thirty and—she moved her lovely shoulders prettily—"we were waiting for him when you and the coppers came."
"That's why I've got to talk to you," I said, trying to sound grave. "Remember when we rang your buzzer?" She nodded. "What happened?"
"Why, June went to the door and let you in."
"Maybe I can help you remember," I said, mimicking June Hanson's voice. "Mr. Faraday?" I turned the last syllable up carefully, like a question.
"No!"
"Yes," I nodded positively. "We haven't much time because the cops are across the hall and Phelan is liable to remember that little inflexion at any moment. If you want to spar around, it's all right with me, but Phelan's going—and then you'll be in a real jam."
"We didn't have a thing to do with it!" she cried.

Journalists Told 'Look To Russia'

Berlin—(AP)—For the budding newspapermen of East Germany, the professor's first advice is: "Look to Mother Russia, son, and learn." Leipzig University's newly founded journalism institute starts its course off with extensive lectures on the Soviet press.
At Leipzig, the future newshawks go through a three-year course. Applicants, according to "Tae-gliche Rundschau", newspaper of the Soviet Control Commission in Russian-occupied East Germany, must have an "unequivocally progressive" outlook. The student's curriculum includes a course in social science, which lays a firm Marxian foundation for the future newsmen, then comes journalism proper, an elective subject, and finally, a full-steam language course—in Russian.

Teaching Posts For Rural Latin America Planned

Mexico City—(AP)—UNESCO efforts to train combination teachers, county agents and public health officials for rural areas in Latin America are about to be fulfilled. A UNESCO center for the project will be opened in April.
The center plans to train teachers who will go to small rural towns as both educators and public officials to step up education, improve public health and to acquaint farmers with modern methods. The center will provide for many Latin American countries, including Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Honduras, Costa Rica, El Salvador and Guatemala. It will supply Latin American governments with charts, books and teaching aids to be used in the rural teaching project.

Library Notes

The Carver Library recently sponsored a series of programs celebrating Negro History Week and the eleventh anniversary of the library.
The celebration began Monday, February 12 with a radio talk by Mrs. I. O. Wilson, chairman of the Publicity Committee of the Library. Mrs. Wilson gave the origin of Negro History Week, and general information on the progress of the Negro.
On Wednesday, February 14 which was the Carver Library's anniversary, Mrs. B. M. Atkinson, the librarian, gave a talk on the history of the library. She gave the radio audience figures on its literary resources. Mrs. Atkinson was introduced by Mrs. M. B. Allen, chairman of the Library Board. The Library Board wishes to extend a word of appreciation to the Knights of King Charles, a distinguished group of high school young men, for offering musical selections for the program.
On Friday, February 16, the series of radio program were concluded when Mrs. B. C. Maye, chairman of the Book Committee, spoke on "What the Negro Has Contributed to American Civilization."
The programs of the week came to a successful close Saturday afternoon at the library when a Negro History quiz was given, supervised by the librarian, Mrs. Atkinson. Approximately forty boys and girls gathered in the main reading room of the library for the quiz. Miss Matoka Bradley and Mr. Emanuel Jenkins' high school students conducted the quiz. The Library Staff wishes to thank Mr. P. H. Cohen, manager of the Roxy Theater, for giving complimentary tickets to the winners in the quiz.
The staff also wishes to thank the manager and staff of Radio Station WGTO for making time available for this series of programs.

Voted Best for Modern Design!

★ Rambler Convertible Sedan was given this award by Design News Magazine for these basic reasons:

1. New design of front suspension reduces the unsprung weight and gives superior riding qualities.
2. Airflyte Construction in a convertible model, with the roof rails acting as stress-bearing members, increasing rigidity and reducing total weight.

3. Unique method of raising and lowering the fabric top by electric power.

The Rambler Convertible Sedan is the only passenger car introduced during the past year to receive this award.

Extension Courses For Spring Term Scheduled

Thirteen extension courses will be offered by East Carolina Teachers College in towns of eastern North Carolina during the spring quarter, according to an announcement by Dr. Orval L. Phillips, director of the Bureau of Field Services at the college.

The courses will be given in ten centers in this section of the state. These are Elizabeth City, Chadbourn, Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Kenansville, New Bern, Richlands, Roanoke Rapids, Snow Hill, and Dunn.

Extension work, says Dr. Phillips, is planned largely to meet the needs of teachers, but courses may be taken by any qualified person. Six of the courses are on the undergraduate level, and others may be taken by graduate students, seniors, and holders of Class A Certificates. Several of the courses are planned especially for teachers in the elementary grades.

The extension courses include work in the departments of education, social studies, geography, science, health and physical education.

Malaya Steps Up Japanese Trade

Kuala Lumpur, (AP)—Importers in the Federation of Malaya are doing a rushing business with Japanese firms. They have ordered $20,000,000 worth of materials from Japan in the last six weeks.

These include wire products, wire nails, aluminum sheeting, corrugated iron sheets, galvanized wire, and building products. The imports are described as essential for reconstruction in Malaya while emergency regulations are still being enforced against Communist terrorists.

Record Claimed For Ballet Star

Melbourne, (AP)—Members of Melbourne's National Theater Ballet Co., are claiming a record for the prima ballerina, Lynne Golding, who dances the dual role in the ballet "Swan Lake."

When European companies perform "Swan Lake," it is only danced about once a month because the prima ballerina's role is so exacting. Each performance means two hours on the stage and demands a high degree of skill and stamina. Miss Golding danced the role six times in one week here as part of a ballet festival for the Australian Jubilee celebration.

tion, English, and psychology. They will be taught by members of the college faculty.

In addition to the extension courses, twenty-five courses included in the regular list of spring quarter classes and to be given on the campus have been scheduled for late afternoon, evening, or Saturday morning meetings so that off-campus students may conveniently take them. These classes will be held once each week and will include in each meeting three fifty-minute periods. This plan of scheduling courses will enable a number of teachers in service in various towns of this section to benefit from work offered by the college. The courses will be given in the departments of education, physical education, mathematics, psychology, science, and social studies.

During the winter quarter, which closed February 24, eleven extension courses were offered by East Carolina in ten towns of eastern North Carolina, according to a report by Dr. Phillips. The combined enrollment included 289 students.

There's Noise In True 'Silence'

New York, (AP)—Silence can be heard as a subdued hiss, or even as a soft hum, according to sound experts of the Radio Corporation of America. They have constructed a vault-like cavern to eliminate sound, but the hums and hisses still persist in this soundproof laboratory.

The laboratory has enough rug padding to cover 250 average living rooms. The padding has been stuffed around walls and ceilings and beneath a pen-grated floor. RCA scientists say the hisses and hums may be the "noise" of molecules hitting the ear drums, or they may be caused by the coursing of the body's blood stream.

Two Cars Damaged In Friday Accident

A charge of failing to yield the right of way was placed against Luby Pridden, Negro of Route One Greenville, Friday afternoon as the result of a highway accident at Ballards Crossroads.

Patrolman Ernest Guthrie stated that car operated by Pridden, and one by S. D. Bundy of Farmville were involved in the accident.

No one was injured. Damage to cars was placed at around $200.

A SPOT OF COFFEE—Tinkle, a six-week-old Chihuahua, weighing 12 ounces, looks comfortable in a coffee cup. Owned by Mrs. Con Eckhart of McCook, Neb., the dog is fed from an eyedropper and travels in Mrs. McCook's purse on trips.

Eleven Enlist In Army, Air Force

Eleven Pitt Countians have been accepted for enlistment in the Army and Air Force over the past several weeks, the local recruiting office reported today.

Enlistees: U. S. Air Force—Herbert Allen Edwards, Raleigh Beadford Lee, William A. Weatherbee, Wilton Charles Joyner, Frank Gerald Dupree, Benjamin Earl Robertson, James Arthur Murphy, Robert Earl Flye.

Regular Army—Lawrence Allen Speight.

Woman's Air Force—Jessica V. Cowan and Jean Parker.

The recruiting office stated that enlistments may now be taken for both the Army and Air Force, though the Air Force enlistments are only on a limited quota.

For any information on enlistment, interested persons should get in touch with the local recruiting office for detailed information.

Taft To Talk In North Carolina

Lenoir, N. C., Feb. 26—(AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) will make three speeches in North Carolina on March 16.

He will make a luncheon speech in Lenoir, a mid-afternoon appearance in Newton, and a dinner speech in Charlotte. His tour is sponsored by state Young Republican clubs. From Charlotte, the senator will go to Charlottesville, Va., where he will address a conference of college Young Republicans.

W. L. Harrington On Dealer Committee To Consider Problems

W. L. Harrington of White Chevrolet Co. Inc. has just been made a member of a zone committee which will study problems of Chevrolet dealers and make suggestions for the future development of the business to the Chevrolet central office.

Harrington was chosen for the honor by a vote among fellow Chevrolet dealers. The first committee meeting was held in Charlotte on February 6, 1951. Others are scheduled later this year. Each session leads to regional and national conferences of dealer representatives.

The dealer committee system, originated by Chevrolet 14 years ago, has been widely accepted by the industry, and was designed to draw upon the experience of retail men as a guide for future sales programs and activities sponsored by the manufacturer. Discussions first take place in zone meetings, then carried through regional sessions to reach the attention of Chevrolet officials in Detroit.

Army Completes 'First Phase' Of Rocket Study

Washington, Feb. 26—(AP)—The Army says it has finished its ultra-high altitude experiments with multi-stage rockets and now is concentrating on development of rockets as weapons.

Scheduled for Thursday night is the 57th of a series of V-2 tests at White Sands, N.M. This one will be a single V-2 rocket, not the "bumper" style combination of a big and small rocket which two years ago attained a record height of over 250 miles.

That firing was with a combination of a V-2 and a smaller missile, the "WAC Corporal." The second rocket, mounted on the nose of the V-2, fired when the V-2 had reached maximum speed and showed the Corporal to a speed of over 5,000 miles an hour.

In answer to a reporter's questions, an Army ordnance spokesman said "research in the bumper phase" of the rocket study has been concluded.

"The idea was to learn some facts in the field of high altitude flight," he said. "This information was ascertained and the project is thus completed. Information had to be obtained by these (multi-stage) shots because it was the only known way of getting needed data."

"Concentration is now on development of rockets as weapons."

The rocket scheduled for firing Thursday night if the weather doesn't delay it will carry a warhead packed with measuring instruments sent to White Sands by the Upper Atmosphere Laboratory of the Air Force, a part of the laboratory of the USAF. The Army V-2's at White Sands for both its own and Air Force and Navy research projects.

The Air Force said the instruments are for study of the composition of the atmosphere, "to measure two types of radiation and analyze artificial and natural airglow" at high altitude.

These subjects, although seemingly related to pure science, are of importance to men bent on designing intercontinental guided missiles, which, to attain ranges of thousands of miles, would have to go perhaps hundreds of miles aloft.

If, as was indicated last week, the time is approaching when atomic power will be used for manned and unmanned aircraft and large rockets, high altitude conditions may have major bearing.

Briton Is Deputy Naval Commander

London, Feb. 26—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee announced today it has been agreed that the Deputy Supreme Commander of Atlantic Pact naval forces in the Atlantic Ocean will be British.

Accordingly, Attlee told the House of Commons, he is "entirely satisfied" with the nomination of U. S. Admiral William N. Fletcher to be Supreme Commander for the area.

Thailand Plans For Home Guard

Bangkok, (AP)—Thailand has decided to organize a Home Guard to aid in defense of the country for the first time in her history.

Units of the Home Guard, which will be trained in air raid precautions, police work, guarding, supplying the military and anti-espionage work, will be set up initially in eight provinces considered strategic.

Rheumatic Fever Losing Out To Medical Science

New York, N. Y.—The outlook today for the thousands of children and young people attacked by rheumatic fever is much better than is commonly supposed.

A study by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company which traced survivorship among 3,000 patients at ages 1 to 20 shows 7 out of 8 to be still living at least 10 years later. The patients received nursing care from the company between 1936 and 1938.

Indications are that most of the survivors are leading quite normal lives. Those reaching adult life are working, and many have married. A large proportion of the girls in the group have become mothers, and not a few have borne several children.

A large number of the older boys were in military service during World War II. Many of them were in combat units and five were killed in action.

Among the children with no evident heart damage during the acute episode for which they were nursed, survivorship after 10 years was at the rate of 92 percent, and even among those with evidence of heart damage it was at the rate of 71 percent. The record for the girls was somewhat better than for the boys.

The study, based almost entirely on the experience of children in wage earning families, shows that the prospect of virtually complete recovery from rheumatic fever is good in a great many cases, according to the Metropolitan's statisticians. Moreover, the prospect has been greatly improved by recent advances in treatment.

"On the other hand, the investigation shows clearly the serious effect of significant heart damage sustained during the attack," the statisticians declare. "This emphasizes the importance of early detection and of good medical and nursing care of children with rheumatic fever."

Proxy Subs For Stricken Pastor

Centerville, Iowa—(AP)—The Reverend C. L. Bartholomew, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, spent many weeks away from his church in Florida recuperating from a voice paralysis which resulted from an attack of bulbar poliomyelitis. His sermons were regularly heard by his congregation, however.

He mailed them each week and they were read to the congregation by Max Ellis, an insurance man and a member of the church choir. The pastor wanted to resign when he was stricken realizing that it would take time for him to recover. His congregation said "no."

An unnamed Centerville resident donated $500 to provide ministers during Reverend Bartholomew's absence.

English Leads In Israel Languages

Tel Aviv, (AP)—English still remains the most popular foreign language in Israel where Hebrew is the official and prevailing tongue.

Among the more than 200 newspapers and periodicals in Israel, 24 are published in English, nine in French, eight in Yiddish, six in German, five each in Arabic, Hungarian and Bulgarian, four each in Polish and Romanian, and three in Ladino, a language related to Spanish and spoken by Oriental, African and many Balkan Jews. 74-Year-Old Woman Writes Poetry Now

HADACOL Supplies Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron Which Her System Lacked

Did you ever feel so good that you wanted to sing about it? Mrs. Della Burrows, Route 1, Zionsville, Indiana, feels so good nowadays that she's writing poetry about it. Mrs. Burrows is feeling that way because she found that HADACOL with Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron was just what her system needed. Mrs. Burrows wanted everyone to know just how highly she thought of HADACOL and she expressed it in this little poem:

"Well, here I am, age, if you must know, 74 years young. Hair white as snow. A great many times I've heard people say 'I'm taking HADACOL every day! Just try a bottle and you will find it's what you've been looking for all this time.' So, I got me a bottle and drank it all up and soon felt spry as a pup. So, now, I'm on my fourth bottle of HADACOL. I feel so much better. I sleep like a baby, eat like a pig, and if anyone should ask me, I could dance a jig."

Only HADACOL gives you that "Wonderful HADACOL Feeling"—accept no substitutes. Buy the genuine HADACOL today.

Local Scouts At Board Of Review

Nineteen Greenville Boy Scouts had advancement certified last night at the monthly meeting of the Pitt district board of review held at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church.

Advancement Chairman Wyatt Brown said more scouts participated in the board of review last night than in any of the district has had in a long period of time. "Everyone of those boys knew the stuff and they all were ready and eager to advance," Brown commented.

Dickie Newell of Greenville and Bobby Cole of Winterville appeared before the board and were certified for the Star rank.

Sixteen of the scouts appeared before the board of review to be examined on their second class requirements, and two scouts appeared before the board to have merit badge advancements certified.

Thirteen of the scouts who appeared before the board to be examined on their second class advancement were from troop 33, and three of the scouts who were examined for second class were from troop 30. The two scouts who had home repairs merit badges certified were Donald Conley of troop 33 and Hulton Hunsucker of troop 205.

Scouts who received the board's approval for their second class advancement were: William M. West, Tom Smith, Graham Tucker, Billy Johnson, J. Picklen Arthur, Jerry Phillips, Bob Howell, Shelby Strickland, William Forrest, Donald Conley, Kelly Barnhill, Preston Cannon, and Robert T. Harrison, Jr., all of troop 33; Eugene Woodard, Barney Barrett and Edwin Wilkerson, all of troop 30.

Adults who served on the board of review last night with Chairman Brown were Clinton Joyner of Greenville, Rev. E. G. Cole of Winterville, Mark McGlohorn of Winterville, and Jack Dowdy of Greenville.

The district board of review is held the fourth Monday in each month.

GHS Delegates Capture Honors

A total of 85 students from North Carolina and Tennessee attended the sixth annual session of the Appalachian District National Forensic League Congress held on the Duke University campus over the past weekend.

The Greenville High School chapter under the supervision of R. B. Starnung was the host chapter.

The opening session got under way at 10:45 Friday morning with the "State of the Union Message" by Dr. Roma Cheek, followed by three legislative sessions.

The house which had 41 members passed 10 bills and resolutions while the senate with 34 members adopted five bills.

Only two bills passed through both of the chambers.

Rodney Fulcher of Greenville won the house gavel for "best chairman."

Greenville's delegation won the school trophy for congressional participation in the congress.

The two bills passed by both houses of the student congress were bills dealing with "Price roll back" and a resolution to prohibit pollution of lakes and streams in the United States.

Safety Meeting Held Here Yesterday

Police Officers Confer Here On Safety Action

Members of Eastern North Carolina Police Department met in Greenville yesterday for the annual study and discussion of safety reports made by the various cities over the past year.

The meeting was held under the direction of George E. Groty, a member of the National Safety Council, who conducted the informal discussion groups, with all members taking part.

The main idea behind the sectional meetings which will be held in various sections of the state in the coming weeks is that at this time the city officers can discuss the measurement of the city traffic control plans now in operation and to compare each city's report with comparable national standards.

During yesterday's meeting, traffic controls and plans for increasing the efficiency of each city's program were discussed, in order to eliminate certain parts of the present set-ups, Groty stated.

At the meetings the officers can find out if their city is above or below average as compared with cities of the same population and location, as set up by the national standards.

Reports submitted by the officers dealt with death and injury reports, engineering, accident reports, enforcement and ordinances, as well as safety organizations.

"Through these meetings we are able to place a factual valuation of any city's traffic operations," Groty commented.

Officers present for the meeting yesterday were:

Z. E. Helms, of the Highway Safety Division, Raleigh; Alice E. Fyrell, Herford; Jack A. Barnes, Plymouth; David T. Copeland, Roanoke Rapids; Hal K. Plonk, Goldsboro; James E. Civils, Raleigh; Gats T. Matthews, New Bern; F. G. Everett, Snow Hill; and all members of the Highway Safety divisions, co-sponsors of the annual affair. Lt. H. E. Williamson, and Sgt. R. H. Williams of the Wilmington Police department; H. A. Hayes of Wilson

Parade Entries To Be Numbered

All children planning to take part in the Duck Derby parade to be held in Greenville Thursday afternoon at four o'clock must contact the Merchants Association office and receive a number in order that they may be judged, it was announced this morning.

Each child entering will be eligible for the three prizes ranging from $5 for first place to $2 for third, to be given for the three best costumes carrying out an Easter theme.

By telephoning 3021 or 2432, before Thursday a number can be assigned to the children to be worn on the arm or back.

The parade will be a forerunner of the Duck Derby to be held at Wright auditorium at 7:30 Thursday night, the first such event ever to be presented in Greenville.

In addition, all Girl Scouts, Brownies, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts, are invited to take part in the parade which will be led by the Greenville High School band.

Girls in the Duck Derby will also be in the parade.

New spring styles for both men and women will be shown during a fashion show to be held during intermission of the derby.

There is no admission charge to the event.

Snyder Invited To Tax Hearing

Washington, Feb. 27 — (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder will be invited to tell House tax writers just how he would raise the $16,500,000,000 additional taxes sought by the Administration.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the House Ways and Means Committee disclosed today the group will recall the secretary. The date of his second appearance is uncertain. Snyder is recovering from an operation on his right eye.

Taft Plan Rejected By Solons

Washington, Feb. 27 — (AP) — Senators Connally (D-Tex.) and Russell (D-Ga.) rejected today a proposal by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to require Western Europe to pledge quotas to a combined defense force in exchange for American troops.

Connally told reporters he will not accept a change suggested by Taft in a resolution by the two Democratic committee chairmen to approve the transfer of U. S. divisions across the Atlantic.

Russell said another provision of Taft's proposal—requiring that Congress pass on the general character and number of forces to be placed under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's command—would be vital defense secrets to Russia.

"We have gone a long way in telling the world that we are going to send four more divisions to join the two we already have there," Russell said in a separate interview.

"If we also disclose pledges of what the European nations plan to do, it won't be long until we have to say just where each division is going to be placed."

Taft called for the European pledges and the congressional check after he told the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees yesterday that unless lawmakers limit America's share, the U. S. might have to furnish 18 divisions for the North Atlantic defense force.

Taft supported a resolution by Senator Wherry (R-Nebr.) to prohibit the President from sending any more ground forces to Europe until Congress passes on the policy of establishing an international army.

Wherry was prepared to testify on this resolution. Former President Herbert Hoover was called as a witness for an afternoon session.

In advance of Hoover's appearance, Connally tried to pin Taft down on the view Hoover expressed in a Dec. 20 speech that the United States ought not to send another man or dollar to Europe until the nations there erect a "sure dam" against communism.

Observing that Hoover probably didn't mean just that, Taft said his testimony indicated he didn't share the view Connally outlined and which President Truman had labeled as "isolationism."

Hoover said in a Feb. 9 speech he was no isolationist. He urged a buildup of sea and air power which in the event of attack, could be used against the Soviets "and" they have had enough.

nounced last night in Prague that Clementis is under arrest in Czechoslovakia on charges of spying for the West.

It's a safe bet that Moscow will go all-out to purge Czechoslovakia of dissidents, since that sturdy country is a key position in the heart of central Europe. Having already lost Yugoslavia—another stronghold—Russia can't afford to let Czechoslovakia slip away.

So we may expect that the purge in Czechoslovakia will be severe. And it may be effective—apparently—for the time being. However, the spirit of independence can't be killed in a nation like Czechoslovakia. The struggle against totalitarian rule will continue until it succeeds.

The opposition to communism in Czechoslovakia isn't new or surprising, for it has been growing under cover a long time. I call attention to it again because it further substantiates surveys which have shown that there is disaffection among the satellite countries.

in this area; work was begun on the county's first beef cattle show; the Chamber of Commerce office furnished briefs of the city for 20 industrial prospects; the organization aided in the establishment of the Greenville Mills, Inc. here; Greenville Industries Inc. was organized under the sponsorship of the organization; and the annual Farmers Day last August was under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations of the city.

The invocation was given by Dr. H. Glenn Hanes, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church.

Miss Allison Hearn, soloist, sang for the group "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child," and "One Day When We Were Young."

W. T. Kyzer, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, introduced the Chamber of Commerce officials from other cities of eastern North Carolina who were present at the meeting.

The arrangements for the meeting were made by a committee headed by Harold Staton. Before the adjournment of the annual meeting last night, F. Badger Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce for the current year, expressed appreciation to the committee which had made arrangements for the banquet and to the individuals who had cooperated in making the annual meeting a success.

Over 200 Attend Junior 4-H Meet

More than 200 of the county's Junior 4-H Club members participated in a party last night at the Teen Age center at which time they held a short business meeting and played games.

In addition to the recreational period, the Chocod and Belvoir clubs demonstrated the finer points of square dancing for the members present. Several members of both clubs participated in the demonstration which was designed to instruct the members in learning more about recreation and rural arts.

Heber Tripp, member of the Recreation Commission which turned over the Center to the club members, urged, in that connection, all county residents to use the Commission's facilities. He stated, "The city parks are always open to our county friends and we want them with their children to enjoy them when in the city."

He stated Colaniche Park is always open for picnic purposes and the swimming pool and other park facilities are at the public's disposal.

islatives approved. Last night Nevada approved. It was the 36th to do so.

Actually, the amendment does not become official until Jess Larson, the head of the General Services Administration issues a formal proclamation.

Larson's outfit is the buyer-house-keeper for the other government agencies and keeps the government's records.

(It used to be the job of the Secretary of State to issue such proclamations, but last year Congress changed that and put it in the hands of the boss of the General Services Administration.)

The proclamation was ready even before the Nevada legislature acted. Larson's lawyers drew it up and got the approval of the Attorney General that it was ship-shape and legal.
