Red Cross Leaders Hold Pre-Drive Meeting

Members of the special gifts committee of the Red Cross got the 1951 funds drive underway early this morning with a kickoff breakfast to begin the countywide campaign.

Meeting at the Hotel Proctor at eight o'clock, members of the committee's special solicitation teams ate breakfast and heard several local and area Red Cross officials make formal talks about the purposes of the drive and reasons for this year's 30 percent quota increase.

Headed by Bancroft Moseley, chairman of the committee, the teams departed to their assigned areas of the city and county and by noon had turned over to the Red Cross chapter more than $500 of the requested $5,000 goal.

Moseley urged all members of the 30-odd teams to make the drive complete and to try to wind it up today if possible. "Any drive that is to be successful must be done quickly and I urge each of you to finish up your jobs today," he stated.

Speaking also before the group was Miss Betsy Lane Quinlan, area representative for Red Cross from the Atlanta office. She stated that during the last year she was stationed in Iceland where most of the services provided the troops came through Red Cross channels. This year's national budget of $85,000,000 will be cut up into several funds with much of the money going to special services for the Armed Forces, she said.

President Henry Brown, who presided over the informal breakfast meeting, outlined the dispersal of the national budget. He stated that this year only a small part of the funds collected throughout the nation will be given toward paying salaries of employees of the Red Cross. For the first time this year the national president performs his duties free of charge, he said.

Where U. S. Units Are In Action

This map locates areas of the Korean front where seven U. S. divisions have been identified in action in a cautious drive against Chinese and North Korean Reds. The boxed figures north of the Han river indicate the number of Chinese Red troops that have been reported strengthening defenses and building up for an expected counter-offensive. Open arrows locate areas where sharp resistance was met Tuesday by U. N. troops. (AP Wirephoto Map).

Enemy Shot Up

Allied warplanes shot up enemy troops, vehicles, buildings and gun positions. The Fifth Air Force's score by late Thursday afternoon: 170 Reds killed or wounded, two tanks destroyed, 300 buildings, four gun positions and a supply dump destroyed or damaged.

Near Seoul, American troops invaded Sand Island in the Han River but withdrew after a five-hour fight. They had landed in assault boats on a mission to clear the way for tank crossings.

The main ground action was on the central front, in the sector where allied officers have predicted the Chinese would mount their expected counter-attacks.

After the Reds struck southwest of Hoengsong, a front-line officer said the Communists were "showing a greater determination to remain in the areas where they are in contact with allied forces. They are fighting stronger delaying actions."

The spearheading Marines, veering from a northeasterly attack, struck due north in rugged fighting for vital hill positions around Hoengsong.

They seized the two main crests of Cloverleaf Hill, closest height to Hoengsong.

Other Advances The main action at the center of the line sparked similar allied advance at the western and eastern anchors of a 60-mile front.

U. S. Third Division doughboys fought on the western end of the line. Seventh Division infantrymen battled it the eastern end.

Maj. Maurice Roach of Memphis, a Marine battalion commander, described the bloody end of the Marine fight for the two hills: "When they reached the skyline I saw them leap into the Chinese trenches and saw them thrusting and stabbing with their bayoneted rifles."

The Assault The Marine assault forces jumped off at 2 a.m. nine hours later they had taken two crests of Cloverleaf Hill, just west of the Twinan River. This is the nearest high point to the strategic road hub of Hoengsong.

Then the Marines shifted their attack northwest toward Hill 315, where the main enemy defenders were believed dug in.

Two miles to the west another Marine force ran into a tougher fight in their assault against wooded Hill 438, which rises 1,500 feet from the valley floor. The Chinese, holed in, resisted all efforts to dislodge them.

No Miracle To Report

In Response To The Reflector's Query, Foreign Affairs Analyst MacKenzie Says New Zealand And Australia Are Not Yet Rid Of Socialist Programs

The Greenville (N. C.) Daily Reflector invites this column to report how the people of Australia and New Zealand have fared since their Labor (socialist) governments reverted to anti-socialist regimes just over a year ago.

Well, one succinct answer to that comes from Gordon Tait, AP Chief of Bureau at Sydney, Australia. He pins it down with the remark that "There have been no miracles."

However, the situation does present an interesting study, especially since the socialist government of England, head of the British Commonwealth to which Australia and New Zealand belong, is sailing stormy seas these days.

GI Is Shipped Home; Allergic To His Uniform

Columbus, Ga., March 1—(AP)—A Columbus soldier has been shipped home from Korea, not a victim of bullets or frostbite—he just can't wear the Army's wool uniform.

Sgt. Glenn E. Garrison has what doctors say is an allergy to wool. "Of course you had to wear wool in Korea," Garrison said at a funeral home yesterday. "And I'd break out and swell up."

A veteran of the Hamburg evacuation, he has been in 11 different Army hospitals where doctors explored his allergy.

Oddly enough, Sgt. Garrison served three and a half years in the Army in World War II. But most of this was in the South Pacific where only cotton was worn. He expects a discharge soon.

City Recreation Body To Gather

A spokesman for the group said the election of officers for the commission and further consideration of applicants for the position of full time director of city recreation will head the list of business matters for the meeting. The commission likewise is expected to discuss the possibility of moving the Teen-age center from its location to the armory.

Three adult-education courses will be given at East Carolina Teachers College during the spring quarter. Dr. Orval L. Phillips of the College Bureau of Field Services has announced. Organizational meetings for a series of courses offered by the college for the coming twelve weeks were held early this week. The work to be offered includes Art Appreciation, American Literature, and Advanced Composition.

Students who wish to enter these classes, states Dr. Phillips may still do so. Those who plan to enroll in a class are asked to be present at the next regularly scheduled meeting. Each class holds one weekly meeting extending over three fifty-minute periods, and each may be taken on a credit or non-credit basis.

Three Adult Education Courses In Spring Term

The purpose of the tests is to determine what sort of job the students are most suited for, and to aid the students in finding jobs for which they are suited.

The program of giving aptitude tests to high school students who plan to enter the labor market was begun on a large scale in Pitt county by Mrs. McCrary in 1947, and the practice has now spread to other areas of the state. Between 150 and 200 students from the high schools of the county are expected to be given the aptitude tests this spring.

Query Answered

In a recent meeting of the Daily Reflector's editorial staff the question was raised as to how Australia and New Zealand had been faring since their labor governments had been replaced by political parties underwriting free enterprise.

The political revolution of world-wide import occurred over a year ago, and no one could recall having encountered a report on how the new governments were faring. The logical source of information was DeWitt MacKenzie, AP foreign affairs analyst.

Plan Aptitude Tests For Pitt High School Seniors

Plans are being made by the Pitt office of the Employment Security commission to give aptitude tests to all members of high school senior classes in the county who are planning to enter the labor market upon their graduation from school this spring.

Mrs. McCrary said today after contacting the Raleigh office of the employment security commission, she has been assured by the state officials of the commission that qualified persons will be sent from the state office, and others from the area will come to Greenville on the appointed day to help give the aptitude tests to the high school seniors.

Labor's Big Walkout

Organized Labor's Leaders Quit The Defense Program; Their Reasons; Dissatisfaction With Role Of Labor In Mobilization; Labor's Views Outvoted

Washington, March 1—(AP)—Organized labor's leader—representing perhaps 15,000,000 union workers—have walked out of the defense program.

Labor representatives have taken part in various defense agencies, sitting on boards or commissions or committees, expressing labor's views.

All have now stepped out. Judging from the mood of the labor leaders who announced the walk-out last night, labor will not again take part until—

These leaders feel labor will have a strong voice in what's being done and until they get some, if not all, of the things they want. They have expressed dissatisfaction on four main points: manpower, wages, prices, and the part of big business in the program.

Manpower—Some months ago Secretary of Labor Tobin, in whom the labor leaders apparently have confidence, set up inside his Department of Labor an "Office of Defense Manpower."

Its purpose: to work out on a voluntary basis manpower problems connected with defense, such as getting workers for plants that need them.

Tobin's defense manpower office set up a labor-management committee to discuss and advise on manpower problems. This advisory committee was made up of labor and business representatives, with Tobin as chairman.

Traditionally, labor has opposed any attempt to impose controls on workers, such as freezing them in jobs or saying where they must work.

The labor leaders seemed satisfied with Tobin's plan. Then Charles E. Wilson, boss of the whole defense program, stepped into the picture.

Labor has been increasingly unfriendly towards Wilson, former president of the General Electric Company, charging he was surrounding himself with representatives of big business to run the program, ignoring labor.

When word got around that Wilson wanted to abolish Tobin's manpower set-up and create a board

Round Table Meets With Mrs. R.R. Taylor

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Robert R. Taylor entertained the Ladies of the Round Table at her home on Harding street.

The hostess welcomed her guests into a living room cheerful with early spring flowers.

During the business session the following officers were elected to serve for the next year: President, Mrs. Ed Rawl; first vice president, Mrs. Charles Horne; second vice president, Mrs. R. R. Taylor; recording secretary, Mrs. W. C. Vincent; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. D. Munkel; and treasurer, Mrs. D. L. Moore.

The program for the afternoon was given by Mrs. D. S. Spain, who gave an excellent paper on "Women in the Fine Arts."

Mrs. Spain told of some of the American women who have achieved much fame in the fine arts of sculpture, music and dancing. And in the realm of painting she spoke of the Grand Old Lady of American Art, Anna May Robertson Moses. Grandma Moses began to paint when she was 78 years old. Her paintings have been shown in more than 65 exhibitions throughout the United States. Some of them have brought as much as $3,000 each and have been widely reproduced on Christmas cards. Greenville is hoping to have an exhibition of her paintings at some future date.

The program was concluded with some interesting reminiscences in the life of Mrs. Howard McGinnis.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Hunsucker, served a delicious chicken salad course with hot rolls and coffee.

Mrs. Kenneth Phillips was a special guest.

Study Of Holy Scriptures Given At Inter Se Club

In her paper on the study of the Holy Scriptures which was presented at the Inter Se Book Club on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Sam Northrop painted an inspiring and beautiful picture of the Bible as a piece of literature and recalled its purpose as a pattern for moral living.

"The Bible is described as a beautiful palace built up of solid blocks of marbles, each block of the Bible representing a different block," Mrs. Northrop said.

"The unity of its purpose is described throughout the study of the Holy Scriptures, ending with Israel's hope—the Messiah—in whom was gathered up into one constant pattern all the fragmentary visions of the seers of ancient times, one who was at the same time the son of David, the son of man and the suffering servant of the Lord." was the way she summed up the material she had gathered.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Jack Edwards. Throughout the home profusions of spring flowers added grace and beauty to the rooms.

The hostess served a delightful salad course, assisted by Mrs. F. D. Duncan and Mrs. Sam Northrop. The club welcomed Mrs. Reynolds May, Sr., and Miss Lillian Sugg as guests for the afternoon.

J. H. Rose Reports On National Convention

The elementary teachers in the Greenville city schools held their third meeting of the year on Tuesday evening at the Training school.

Mrs. D. M. Clark, chairman of the group, presided. Mrs. Clark reviewed the past two meetings of the group and introduced Mr. J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools, who reported on some of the highlights of the national school superintendent's convention which he recently attended in Atlantic City.

Mr. Rose stated that the general feeling at the convention was that the greatest threat to American security is moral destruction rather than physical destruction by atomic power. The American people can not buy their freedom and democratic way of life. It can only be preserved by the strengthening of the individual's spiritual resources.

As teachers, have the opportunity to give the youth of today some of the spiritual security which they need in order to meet the problems they are now encountering.

Cosmetologist Association Meets
The meeting of the East Carolina Cosmetologist Association was held in Washington, N. C., at the Knotty Pine Inn, on Tuesday evening, February 27, with twenty-two members present.

A steak supper was served. Mr. Leo Facenna, representative from Southern Beauty Supply Co., Norfolk, and Miss Ann Thornberry, of Baltimore, representing Miss Clair Co., were the guest artists. They were assisted by Miss Jean Canife, hair stylist.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Greenville on March 27.

Girl Scout News

The Colored Scouts have seven troops that meet regularly now with an enrollment of 117. This is the largest enrollment they have had for several years. They are very fortunate in that the teachers who are well qualified with a background of training and teaching will take time from their busy day to lead a troop.

Mrs. C. V. Marshmond and Miss Flora Phillips are the leaders for Brownie troop 16. They have each had several years experience as Brownie Scout leaders. This is the only troop in Greenville that continued with weekly troop meetings during the summer months. Mrs. Marshmond had them meet at her home in the afternoon. Mrs. Lula S. Simmons and Miss Lucille Rich are committee members for this group. Troop 17 has Mrs. N. W. Cherry for their leader. Mrs. Cherry has been working with Scouts for a number of years. This troop meets at the Fleming Street school.

Troops 11 and 13 meet at the Epesa school with Miss Lotiya Graye as leader of troop 13 and Miss Christie McKnight as leader of troop 11. Both Miss Graye and Miss McKnight have had experience with Scout troops.

Mrs. L. R. Taylor is the leader for Scout Troop 15 which meets at the Fleming Street school. Mrs. Taylor has been active in Scout work since it was started several years ago.

Another big Brownie troop that meets at Fleming Street school, is troop 14 which is under the leadership of Mrs. L. J. Sledge and Mrs. N. B. Godette. Both leaders are teaching in the school and are well prepared to do the splendid job they are doing with the Brownies.

Miss Catherine L. Caesar and Mrs. M. G. Robinson are the leaders for troop 20 which meets at the South Greenville school.

Miss Sadie I. Sauter who is always interested in doing everything to promote the Scouting program with her people is the president of the group leaders. Miss Sauter has held this position for a long period of time and is well qualified for the work she is doing.

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin

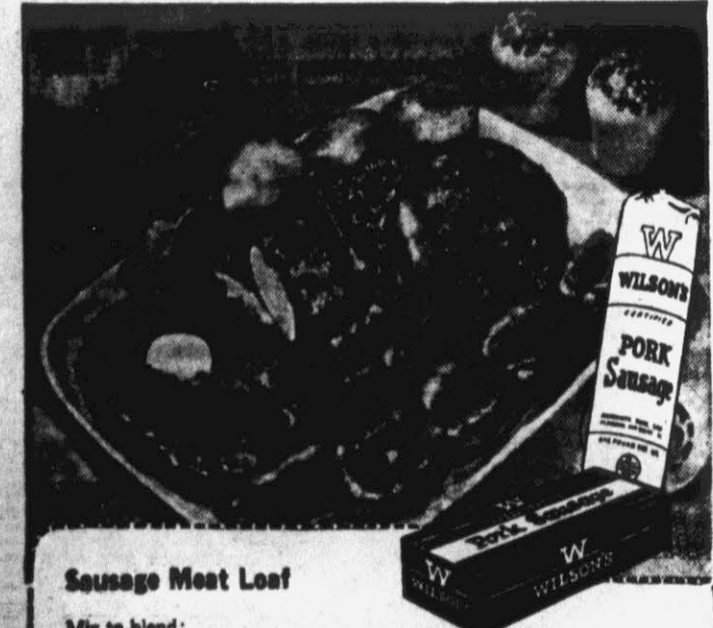

from the RECTOR KITCHENS

Grandmother always made a luscious, juicy meat loaf we never can forget. It was tender, its savory juices poured forth at each and every cut, and it was flavorful beyond compare! When we inherited her cookbook this was among the first recipes we looked up. We found the secret... EUREKA... it's easy, too!... Wilson's Certified Pork Sausage!

So Rector Kitchens swung right into action, we got out a one-pound roll of Wilson's Certified Pork Sausage. Part of the roll we measured off to knead into the chopped beef for its flavor beyond compare! (The rest we sliced into country-style patties for breakfast.) As the meat loaf bakes, the sausage flavor bastes the loaf to a crispy, crusty goodness!

Result — a meat loaf with irresistible appeal... and the marvelous flavor of Wilson's Pork Sausage that did the TRICK.

Sausage Meat Loaf
Mix to blend:
1/4 lb. Wilson's Pork Sausage Roll
1 1/4 lbs. lean ground beef
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 tablespoon B-V dissolved in
1/2 cup catsup
1 bay leaf, if desired

Shape into a loaf in shallow pan or on oven-proof platter. If you like, a row of hard-cooked Clearbrook Eggs may be buried in center. Serve plain or with a Certified Pork Sausage baba or patties border.
Bake at 375° F. 45 to 60 minutes.

Fashion Show Presented At Nurses Club

The Greenville Graduate Nurses Club met at the home of Mrs. Jake Dixon on Tuesday night with Miss Phyllis Michalik as assisting hostess.

Miss Frances Horvat, president, presided during the business session. Mrs. Dixon, treasurer, reported that a donation of ten dollars had been made to the March of Dimes. Plans were discussed for the spring District meeting, which will be held in Greenville on April 1.

A committee composed of Mrs. Sam Quinerly, Miss Phyllis Michalik and Mrs. Jake Dixon was appointed to make preparations for the meet.

The program was in charge of Mrs. J. L. Evans and Miss Michalik, who presented an unusual and interesting entertainment in the form of a fashion show. Miss Doris Michalik, Miss Edna Stry and Miss Frances Horvat modeled the newest spring fashions from 'Brody's', who provided dresses, suits, blouses and the latest spring accessories for the models to wear. This was thoroughly enjoyed by all present and was followed by a social hour, during which time the hostesses served Coca Colas, sandwiches and nuts.

Anniversary For Greenville Store

Brody's Incorporated, women's fashion store here, is today marking the opening of spring sales with celebration of its 15th birthday anniversary in Greenville.

According to the management of the store the anniversary is being marked by arrival of new spring and Easter styles which were modeled in the store all during the day. Refreshments were served to customers during the informal showing of fashion. Tonight Brody's will participate in the style showing following the Duck Derby at East Carolina's Wright auditorium.

The firm opened its doors in Greenville in 1935 and has been doing business at the same location on Evans Street ever since. It is independently owned and operated and has gone through three remodelings during the 15 years. The latest remodeling was done early last fall when complete changes in the interior decor were made.

At present the firm is managed by Morris Brody, a native of Sumter, S. C.

Debating Teams In Hickory Event

Two teams of debaters from the Jarvis Forensic Club of East Carolina Teachers College are participating in the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament at Lenoir-Rhyne in Hickory Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week.

The topic of tournament debates is the national intercollegiate query Resolved that the non-Communist nations should form a new international organization.

In December, 1950, the four East Carolina debaters participated in the Dixie Championship Forensic Tournament in Charlotte. The affirmative team made up of Self and Saleed won a place among the "Big Ten," teams chosen as outstanding among those at the meet. Late this spring the two teams from the college here will debate in the Grand National Forensic Tournament at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Virginia.

Birthday Party Honors Class Member Tuesday

The T. E. L. class of Memorial Baptist Sunday school met Tuesday evening February 30, in the home of Mrs. A. W. Hodnett.

The class meeting was in the form of a birthday party for Mrs. Hodnett's and Miss Louise Clark's mother, Mrs. Betty Clark, who was 92 years old.

Arrangements of early spring flowers made a lovely setting for the party.

Gifts were arranged on a card table at Mrs. Clark's side. Rev. R. E. Hardaway gave a short devotional and several of Mrs. Clark's favorite hymns were sung by the group.

A most delicious sweet course was served and the twenty-two guests departed wishing Mrs. Clark many more happy birthdays.

It's surprising what a difference good vision can make. Smart girls know this, and have their vision corrected with lovely, streamlined glasses that add to their appearance by giving full, fresh beauty to their eyes and full freedom to their attractive personality.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
SECULARISM VS. RELIGION
 The secular spirit cries out today, "See what the world has come to!" The spirit of religion responds confidently, "See what has come to the world."
 For our hope is in Christ. Though the heavens shake above us and the foundations of the earth are moved beneath us, this all men and women of faith maintain, that the powers which are on the side of right are stronger to an inconceivable degree than the powers which are on the side of evil. The world has come to this because it has forgotten and forsaken the things that are vital. Let us not say in these troubled times that God has forsaken the world. God is in the world today the same as He has always been, but He is in a world where men have become singularly unaware of his presence and power.
 With everyone crying out and saying, "See what the world has come to," Christians need to make this stout rejoinder, "See what has come to the world." God has sent us a Prince of Peace, if we will take him—a Teacher, a Healer, a beneficent Guide, a Saviour. Let us keep our minds on what has come to the world, and we shall be in a better position to do something helpful for a world which in anger and folly, is plunging down the road to ruin.

The Mission Of Mercy

In times of national emergency when American boys are on far-flung battlefronts; in times of local catastrophe when nature leaves her beaten path and goes on a rampage, the people of the United States turn with anxious eyes to the Red Cross for the aid that has never failed to come.
 But the reason the Red Cross is able to perform its countless deeds of mercy is that the American people have seen to it the organization had funds to operate . . . not always enough funds for all the work which needed to be done, but enough to carry on.
 In this national emergency the government of the nation has requested the Red Cross to be the official collector of blood to be used by the men of the armed forces; to give first aid courses throughout every state in the nation; and to organize nurses aides and home nursing courses among the housewives and young girls of the country.
 In the same manner the individual citizens of the nation have turned to the Red Cross with assurance that the organization will carry comfort to the station hospitals where Americans lie wounded; that the Red Cross will make life more pleasant in every way it can for those men in the battle areas; that the Red Cross will aid service men and families of service men in any emergency which may arise while a soldier is away from home.
 Pitt county today begins its quest for $14,614 for the Red Cross. The goal set for the county is a 30 per cent increase in the amount assigned Pitt county during 1950, but the work of the Red Cross has increased more than 30 per cent during the past nine months.

The Red Cross needs the help of every individual in Pitt county to raise the money it needs for this year. How can you help the Red Cross? How much can you give to the Red Cross campaign for funds?

Where Should "Equalization" Begin?

Can the tax valuation placed on the property in Pitt county be equalized successfully without a complete revaluation of all the property in the county?
 That is a problem which the county commissioners have had under consideration since Mayor W. S. Stafford and members of the Greenville board of aldermen appeared before the county governing board early in February and asked that a complete revaluation of property in the county be taken.
 There has been vigorous opposition to the proposal of revaluation from a few individuals in the county since the meeting of the commissioners. The commissioners do not deny there are instances of unequal taxation values placed on property throughout the county. Even those who oppose the matter of a general revaluation do not maintain that all the property in the county is on the tax books at the same percentage of the actual value.
 However, in lieu of the complete revaluation of the property in the county, the proposal has been made that steps be taken to "equalize" the taxation value of property in the county which is out of line with the majority of the property on the tax books.

The Reflector doubts the "equalization" move would remedy the discrepancies in the property valuations of the county.

In the first place, the board named by the commissioners to do the "equalizing" would have to determine by some method what particular pieces of property need a higher or lower tax valuation to put them in line with the county standard. If the particular pieces of property are taken arbitrarily by the board, it is extremely likely that many pieces of property which actually need their tax value equalized would be misused.

In the second place, how could such an equalization board determine whether particular pieces of property are on the tax books at too high or too low a valuation without first visiting the property and comparing it with other properties throughout the county which it likewise had visited?

The inequities in the property valuations can not be determined fairly without a complete survey of the county. Since the complete survey which is made to determine the inequities could just as easily be made a survey for the revaluation of all the property, it seems to us a complete revaluation by a group of impartial experts is the answer to the county's problem of tax valuation inequities.

An "equalization" movement, we fear, would leave many inequities in property valuations, and would not result in putting all the property of the county on the same level.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, March 1—A new and sordid era of organized bootlegging, racketeering and serious gangsterism will return to the United States under the Treasury's proposal that the federal tax of $9 on a gallon of hard liquor be boosted to $12, according to statistics submitted at Internal Revenue and Congressional hearings on the Administration's $10,000,000,000 tax bill.

Besides actually reducing revenue by curtailing legitimate buying, the industry's experts insist that the increase would prove a bonanza to illegal operations in metropolitan areas and in the hills of Dixie. Hoarding retail prices would be beyond the reach of honest customers at the very time that illicit profits would offer an inducement to the law-breakers.

Members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which will tackle this delicate subject on March 12, have been impressed by a breakdown of the federal, state and local tax burden imposed on spirits. Few had realized how great a share of the consumers' dollar went to Uncle Sam.

PRICES—The $12 figure, which compares with the $9-a-gallon originally fixed in 1935, means that the federal government grabs 41.85-cents of every dollar spent on cocktails, highballs or a straight slug.

To put it another way, $2.07 of every $3.75 bottle represents the federal, state and local tribute, while only $1.68 accounts for all other expenses from manufacturer to the mouth, including profits.

With the natural pyramiding, the price of even mediocre liquors will jump to almost $4 for a fifth, although retail prices will vary slightly. Dining or entertaining outside the home may become a forgotten fancy, with individual drinks costing about a dollar for palatable stuff.

As against these prohibitive prices, southern bootleggers without any overhead can make vile but drinkable stuff for eighteen or twenty cents a fifth. Their city cousins, who must rent tenements, basements and warehouses, can make illegal liquor for the "carriage trade" at twenty-five and thirty cents. Underworld syndicates, it is contended, will not miss this chance for easy money.

TRIMMINGS—Two factors seemingly unrelated to the question of the liquor trade or costs will be given serious study during Congressional consideration of the proposed tax boost. These indicated that, regardless of one's views on the subject of drinking, it may be sociologically unwise to recreate prohibition's trimmings at this particular moment.

The Kefauver crime inquiry has forced at least a temporary curtailment of such lucrative underworld activities as book-making, gambling on basketball and other sports, slot machines, the numbers etc. But the same investigation shows that, once the crooks are bailed in a certain field, they always find another source of crooked profits. They never quit their nefarious games.

Thus, if the result of a higher tax makes bootlegging on a large scale more profitable or less dangerous than other outlets for their criminal instincts, they will turn to that industry overnight.

The relatively small, individual operators of today will be supplanted by commercial syndicates, with their fleets of trucks, their bloody feuds over distribution of territory and all the other evils of the Volstead days.

It was repeal, not dry-law enforcement, which terminated that unsavory period in American history.

MARKET—From the sociological standpoint, the unfortunate fact is that today's military and economic expansion will combine to provide a large and lucrative market for the bootleggers and their evil allies. It will be a condition that did not exist before or during the two other world wars.

The United States will become an armed camp within the next year, with training centers, airfields and naval bases dotting the countryside. With civilian and other workers, approximately 5,000,000 young men will be away from the influences of home, church and school for the first time in their lives. On the average, they will be younger than the 1917 or 1941 draftees.

Simultaneously, many cities and small towns will become industrial bee-hives, attracting young men and girls in search of higher wages and excitement. It happened from 1950 to 1945, and there is no basis for believing it won't happen again.

AGENTS—The taxes and costs of beer and wine will also be raised, under the Treasury schedule, making them more expensive. But in times like those ahead, the more compact bottle of hard liquor too often becomes the handier and preferred purchase. Statistics show that.

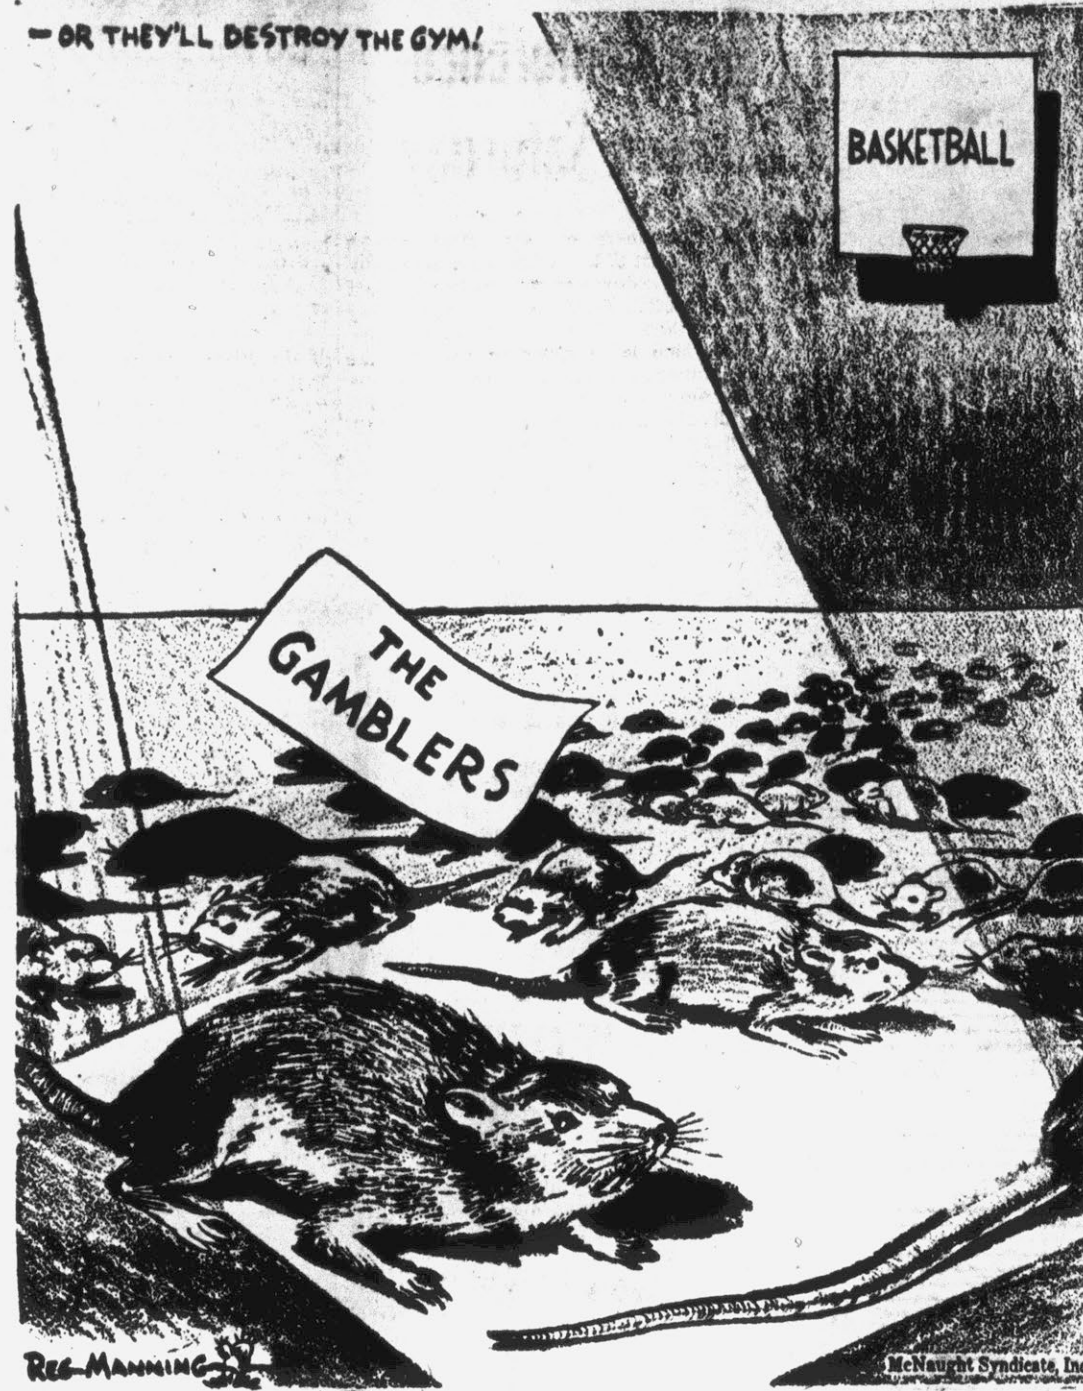

Although the Alcohol Tax Unit officials deny that prospects are as bleak as painted, maintaining that they can enforce the laws, they have asked for an additional 100 agents. Although there is evidence to the contrary, they also deny that the proposed rates were fixed on a basis of guess-work by superior Treasury officials without any practical knowledge of past or prospective trends in this field.

"War is a hateful job," writes W. Alton Jones, of the Cities Service Company. "It calls for all-out attention, a singleness of purpose, an intensity of effort. It cannot tolerate the discussion and debate of democracy at peace. It demands—and gets—the subordination of the individual citizen to the State. This is the antithesis of our concept of government, which subordinates the State to the individual citizen."

Drive Out The Rats—

—OR THEY'LL DESTROY THE GYM!

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Everybody thinks his job is the hardest, and the other fellow's is a snap. With the column as a hobby, selling is my livelihood, so naturally I think it's the roughest occupation known to man.

The selling game is full of ups and downs, and quite often it seems to be full of downs. For example, it makes you feel grate (like the bottom of an old stove) to have a truck from a competitive company drive up and unload while you're trying to sell a firm. It's even worse when you think you've got the man's business, and discover with a rude awakening that you're missing the boat.

It seems to me that the most important thing in selling is to gain the buyer's confidence in you as a salesman. From there, it's easy. But sometimes it's a long and hard pull to win that confidence.

A good salesman must have a rubber personality—one that can be stretched to suit a variety of people. A good salesman needs a stock of good jokes to fit the buyers. In making calls from week to week, there are buyers who expect to hear a new one every week. You have to have mild ones for the mild customers and strong ones for those that like to hear a risqué story. And you even need moron jokes for the morons.

Quite often a buyer will try his best to get a salesman to kick the other man's product. For this type, I have the standard response that I picked up from another salesman (Never have I claimed to have an original idea.)

The salesman says, "We have the Dayton tire line, and we are proud to say that we have experienced complete customer satisfaction. The price is competitive and the product can't be beaten." The buyer says, "Well, I'm selling US tires. What do you think of 'em?"

"It's a good tire." The buyer is floored. "You mean you aren't going to kick a competitive brand?" "Nope, not a chance, but since you mentioned it, there is one thing wrong with US tires."

"What's that?" "Buddy, when you buy US tires, I don't make a cent, and as far as I'm concerned, that makes US not worth a cent! But understand now, it's a good product."

These day's it's a pure oddity to find a salesman who tells the truth, so with a little simple honesty you can sell loads of merchandise.

Now that I've given you a few pointers on salesmanship, you give me some. Having been in the game for such a short while, I need at least a thousand tips to help me reach the goal. And I'll thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

Daily Reflector Bureau

BANKS—More than a hundred bankers moved on Raleigh Wednesday for the public hearing on par clearance before a senate committee. The committee listened for an hour and a half to arguments that tended to array big banks against little ones and then very quickly voted death sentence on the measure which would have required all banks to clear checks at par. That is the story of the hearing as it appears on the surface. There is another and much more significant story.

RESENTMENT—There was marked resentment on part of many of the bankers at the active part taken by Gurney P. Hood, state banking commissioner, in efforts to enact a par-clearance law. In several of the short talks before the committee there were jibes at the commissioner and in off-side conversation there was more serious criticism. The resentment was grounded in two considerations: First, opposition to further centralization of authority over banks in a Raleigh agency; and, secondly, personal partisan activity of an administrative official seeking to put over legislation, which the banking commission and the N.C. Bankers Association had declined to approve or endorse.

BIG-LITTLE—Big banks and big business were pitted against little banks and small towns throughout the hearing. The state merchants association favored the par bill; so did wholesalers groups and credit men's organizations, and local merchants associations in some large cities. Several telegrams were read from small town merchants associations opposing the bill, and all spokesmen against it were identified with small town banks. Argument on the one hand was the non-par practice imposes cost of over a million dollars upon merchants for bank exchange during the year; and on the other, that exchange represents so large a part of banking profits that small banks could not exist without it.

EFFECT—It was admitted that big banks can absorb the cost of handling checks and drafts at par, but time after time small bankers said effect of mandatory par clearance would mean shifting the burden from out of town and out of state sources to the merchants on main street and the farmers out in the country—because loss in revenue would have to be made up by imposition of excessive service charges. Further effect, it was claimed, would be to put a good many small town banks out of business.

HUMOR—The bankers were deadly serious about the matter, insisting it was question of life or death for them. But there was a lot of humor mixed in with the serious business. For example, when Commissioner Hood referred to loss in population in Mississippi and less than national average gain in other states with non-par banks, one man in the rear of the room asked in a loud whisper when non-par clearance became responsible for birth control. Mr. Hood also inferred that DuPont located a big plant near Kinston instead of near Goldsboro partly because Kinston has par banks and Goldsboro does not. Later Clarence Stone of Stoneville reminded him that Kinston also has liquor stores and Goldsboro does not.

POLITICS—Avalon Hall of Yadkinville found himself in embarrassing situation. As a small town banker he favored the bill, and as a North Carolinian he could see no reason for this state to pattern legislation after Nebraska or Iowa. But as a staunch Republican and recognized leader in his party, he confessed some pride that North Carolina's Democratic commissioner of banks seemed willing to let a Republican state influence policy here. Several other speakers had referred to the fallacy of trying to make legislation in North Carolina fit a pattern suitable to Nebraska.

HOME TOWN—Former Solicitor Hall got a big laugh and emphasized home town pride with a story about a trip to Texas some years ago. He met a man there who asked where he was from. Hall said he was from North Carolina. What part of North Carolina? The pediment. Where in the pediment? Near Winston-Salem. "Well," insisted the Texan, how far is that from Yadkinville? It seems he knew somebody from Yadkinville and didn't know much about the state. So Mr. Hall had never again failed to identify himself right off as a resident of Yadkinville.

OPTIONAL—It was pointed out that the law now gives banks the option of par clearance if they want to do business on that basis. Oscar Mooneyham of Forest City observed he had noticed all the advocates of par clearance already had it in their communities. If they've got what they want, why should they try to force on us something we don't want, he queried.

BASIC—The question of par or non-par bank clearance is a dead duck for this session of the legislature, but the basic issue of local autonomy and optional business practice raised by the bill has not been settled.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

SANATORIUMS (Washington Daily News)
 The legislature of North Carolina is now debating whether to appropriate more funds for the treatment of tuberculosis in our state.

That brings us to a leading question. Are we doing only a half way job in our treatment of this disease? Are we taking only part of those who should be there, leaving the other sufferers to get along the best way possible and perhaps die before proper treatment can be given? In reading about the discussion one would be inclined to believe that such a condition now prevails. If North Carolina is only doing a part way or half way job, then we should seek ways and means of doing a better job.

We have three sanatoriums in North Carolina. They are located at McCall, Black Mountain, and Wilson. For the most part patients who have been treated at these three institutions have been helpful in their praise of the work being done there. That is fine. But what about those who cannot gain entrance to any of these three?

That group is the one with which we are concerned right now. If our physical facilities are inadequate, then we should take steps to correct the conditions which are prevalent. We cannot afford to do a part way job on something as important to a community as health.

North Carolina has advanced considerably in the past 20 years in the help we give tubercular patients. Our sanatoriums are considered models, and the personnel is doing a good job, according to all reports. But if facilities do not meet the needs, then it behooves all of us to find out how we can make available those additional outlays in order that we may have a happier and a more healthy North Carolina.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Business will heat again and again about a study the Bureau of Labor Statistics released this week. It is a study of how much a family of four needs for a "modest but adequate" standard of living in each of 34 large cities.

The sums range from $3,453 a year in New Orleans to $3,933 in Milwaukee. Included are goods, rents, services, personal taxes, life and unemployment insurance and occupational expenses.

These figures are equivalent to 52 paychecks a year of from $66.40 to $75.66.

The BLS figures are computed as of October, 1950. The Bureau's consumer price index rose 3 per cent between October 15 and December 15 and has probably risen another 2 per cent since then. So what the Bureau is saying is that if a man with an unemployed wife and two children under 15 (the Bureau's standard) isn't getting paid from $69.06 to $78.69 a week, his family has an inadequate standard of living.

In these United States, millions of families make more than that. But a lot do not. Employers are going to hear from them and their unions. It matters not that wages are in a semi-freeze. The argument will be that the United States government has found it is necessary for families to have from $3,453 to $3,933 a year—plus increases in the cost of living since October—and it is the duty of employers to agree to pay that much as it is to persuade the Wage Stabilization Board to let them.

Incidentally, the Washington, D. C., budget is second only to Milwaukee—$3,926—which would seem to put many government workers there in a strategic position to ask for higher salaries.

The BLS has made similar studies before. But this one is unusual in that it was made public in the midst of the dispute between Eric Johnston, Economic Stabilization Administrator, and organized labor, over how much of an increase labor should be entitled to ask.

CONCENTRATE IN LEAD OVER CANNED JUICE
 Mid-May, 1950, was a memorable time for the concentrated orange juice industry. It was then that the number of families buying the frozen concentrate passed the number of families buying canned, unfrozen juice. The Frozen Food Yearbook shows that by June 15.5 per cent of all families were buying the concentrate and only 14.8 per cent were buying the canned juice. Since then the concentrate has maintained the lead.

For a while it looked as if the concentrators would lose out when the NPA forgot to include the concentrate in foods for which tin cans could be used, but this has since been corrected in an amendment.

RETAIL PROSPECTS SEEN FAVORABLE
 Retail prospects are good, according to Perspective, a bulletin issued by the Investment Management Division of Calvin Bullock. It states: "It appears likely that total retail volume in the current year will be at least as high as the record level of 1950 — and probably higher. Taxes are certain to be higher, but not enough to reduce disposable income.

"It is even more likely that there will be an important change in the character of total retail volume, with non-durable or 'soft' goods absorbing a considerably larger proportion of the total."

MILITARY NEEDS MAKE DUCK SHORT
 Government purchases of duck textiles heavy enough to meet Army standards has pinched manufacturers of awnings, outdoor furniture and other outdoor goods. Many have been forced to turn to flat ducks, drills and twills.

GOOD OLD DAYS WEREN'T SO GOOD
 The good old days never were, say Northwestern National Life economists. The cheapness of 5-cent loaves of bread and 11-cent-a-pound pork chops was a delusion, they calculate.

It took an hour for the average 1900 factory worker to earn enough for three loaves of bread or 1 1/2 pounds of pork-chops. An hour's work in late 1950 would buy 10 loaves of bread or two pounds of pork chops, their study shows.

SCARCER MATERIALS BEING RECLAIMED
 Other manufacturers will probably follow a Cleveland battery company in setting up reclamation departments. The company, General Dry Batteries, Inc., is buying up used hearing-aid batteries to reclaim the mercury in them. Mercury has risen 300 per cent in price in the last six months.

SAVING ASSOCIATION ASSETS UP 11 PCT.
 Despite high consumer spending in the latter half of the year, total assets of the nation's savings associations rose 11 per cent over 1949, the United States Savings and Loan League reports. Assets totaled $16,300,000,000 on December 31.

NEW AND HOT CONCENTRATE: A milk concentrate is being market-tested in a number of Illinois cities (by Borden Co., Chicago). It consists of fresh, homogenized milk from which two-thirds of the water is removed. Adding water restores it to its former condition.

WASHER: For washing dishes by hand, there's a washing instrument with a nylon brush and a hose that connects with any water faucet. Detergent tablets placed in the washer dissolve and flow out through the brush, flicking a valve sprays rinsing water on the dishes. It is by Automatic Controls Corp., Wolverine Bldg., Ann Arbor, Mich.

SLING: A Tenite plastic bow and a sling of rubber shoots target arrows of several sizes and heads, and can be converted into a slingshot. It is by Glo-Lura, Inc., Medford, Wis.

TRAYS: Labor in bakeries may be reduced with new dough-proofing trays with a new vinylite resin-based coating by Nukem Products Corp., 111 Colgate Ave., Buffalo 20, N.Y. The trays may be wiped clean with a cloth, minimizing the work of removing molds and crusts.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ED CREAUGH
 (For HAL BOYLE)
 Washington, March 1.—(AP)—You can stop wondering what the future holds. I'm in a position to tell you.

For instance: Joe Stalin will become a monk. The United States will have six presidents at once.

And I'm going to be rich—or am I?

Swami tells me these things for a penny a prediction. There's a whole row of Swamis (which are a new kind of slot machine with "Swami" on the front of them) in the drug store around the corner. I spent the morning there, and I never learned so much in such a short time.

To operate the Swami: First think up your question. It must be one that can be answered "yes" or "no" although the Swami has a much larger vocabulary than that. He'll give you any of about 20 answers—for a price.

Ask your question, drop in your penny and up comes your answer on a white card.

I was a mite skeptical at first so I tried a test question: "Is this machine honest?" Click-click, and up came the answer: "You may rely on it."

My doubts at rest, I started spending pennies in earnest. (This particular Swami's first name is Ernest). Here are some of the results:

Q. Will Truman be president in 1952?
 A. As I see it, yes.

Q. How about Taft? Could he beat Truman?
 A. Without a doubt.

Q. Same answer, more or less, for three other possible candidates. I couldn't help wondering if the Swami wasn't trying to be a wise guy.

Q. Let's get this straight now. You mean they're all going to be president at once?
 A. Signs point to yes.

Q. Won't that confuse the country?
 A. It is decidedly so.

I got some more pennies from the cigar counter and turned to foreign affairs:

Q. Does Joe Stalin love us?
 A. You may rely on it.

Q. Would Stalin like to be hit by an atom bomb?
 A. The stars say yes.

Q. Will Stalin become a monk?
 A. Outlook good.
 Frankly, I was beginning to lose confidence in this Swami, so I switched my patronage to the Swami in the next booth.
 Q. Am I going to make more money in 1951?

A. Reply hazy. Ask again.
 Q. So I'm asking again.
 A. Better not tell you now.
 Q. Quit stalling. Am I?
 A. Time will tell.
 Ah, the heck with it. Your witness. Maybe you know how to get a straight answer out of a Swami.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
 Washington, March 1.—Lucille Petry, chief nurse officer of the U.S. Public Health Service (PHS), says that in addition to the military forces' acute need for nurses, nurse-power must be built up to meet increasing civilian demands.

"Because of the need for peak production in industry and agriculture and the scarcity of manpower generally, all workers must be kept at maximum efficiency," she told me in an interview.

She pointed out that industry and agriculture needs may mean that aged and handicapped workers as well as larger portions of women, many with families, will have to be included in the labor force.

Miss Petry, who is also the first woman assistant surgeon general of the PHS and was director of the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps during World War II, is concerned with all nursing resources of the nation and with methods of matching these with national needs both in peace time and in emergencies.

"During the present emergency it is imperative that all nursing needs of the nation be met," she said. "The desire is to have, as nearly as possible, an adequate supply of nursing services for both military and civilian requirements."

In order to increase the supply of nurses, Miss Petry says a recruitment campaign must be launched to inform all potential candidates about the attractiveness of the profession. She also recommends that scholarships be given, which will enable young women who could not otherwise afford it to enter schools of nursing. Further, she says, schools of nursing should be expanded and improved.

Miss Petry says nurses are short in all types of jobs but most acutely in groups who administer, teach and supervise in hospitals and public health agencies. Teachers in nursing schools are also scarce, she stated.

Malaya Calls Up 20,000 Youths

Kular Lampar—(AP)—The government of the Federation of Malaya is calling up 20,000 youths in a manpower mobilization drive. It plans to use some of these in police jungle squads battling Communist terrorists. The government is registering the 17 to 24 age group but says it has no intention of calling up the 17-year-olds. Of the 290,000 youths expected to register in the manpower mobilization scheme, 135,000 are Malays, 120,000 Chinese, 32,000 Indians and Pakistanis, and 3,000 others. U. S. game warden traveled 388,938 miles in Alaska in 1949, mostly by plane.

China Reported To Be Fighting In Indo-China

Singapore—(AP)—Between 5,000 and 6,000 French civilians and troops have been captured by the Chi Minh's rebels, said a repatriated soldier from the French army in Indochina. The soldier, Georges William Harry Pace, of Tunisia, was one of 153 French servicemen returning home after completing their time with the French forces in Indochina. They passed through Singapore aboard the Massageries Maritimes' 14,781-ton "Andre Lebon". Pace said the French are no longer fighting only the Vietminh rebels, but Chinese Communist regulars also. Pace was in the big September-October French retreat from the outposts down to Hanoi. He was wounded by a hand-grenade.

A FIEND IN NEED

By MILTON K. OZAKI

Chapter 19
"Who was there beside the photographer?"
"No one. Mr. Faraday went back upstairs, and the photographer showed June where to undress and told her how he wanted her to pose. He was rapid and businesslike about it. At first we were both embarrassed, naturally, but he paid so little attention to her and it wasn't as bad as we'd expected."
"Let's get back to last night. I suppose June has been posing for these kinds of pictures right along?"

"Just once since then."
"When?"
"About six months ago. He phoned and told her he was thinking of publishing another book and could use some more pictures. June decided not to do it any more but... well, she'd been sick and off work for three weeks, so she said she would."
"Did you go along with her again?" I asked.
"Yes."
"And Faraday was there again?"
"No. He told June when he phoned that she should go right downstairs when she arrived, so we did. The same photographer was there and gave June her money when he finished."

"Everything went the same as before?"
"Well, not exactly. You see, there were two other models, too, and he posed them in group pictures. I was never so embarrassed in my life—and June almost changed her mind."
"But she didn't, eh?"
"She needed the money—besides, they didn't know us and we didn't know them."
"And that was the last time she posed?"
"Yes. Faraday phoned June yesterday morning and said he wanted her to pose again, but she told him she'd decided not to do it any more. He told her not to be so hasty with her decision, that he'd stop in about seven-thirty to talk to her about it. June said all right. I was mad at her for inviting him to the apartment, but, since it was too late to stop him, we decided to make the best of it."
"June's a smart girl," I admitted, "and evidently doesn't believe in burning her bridges. When we rang your buzzer last night, then you both expected it to be Mr. Faraday?"
"Yes."
"Why did June say 'Mr. Faraday' in that questioning tone? She knew, immediately, that neither Phelan nor I were Faraday, didn't she?"
"That's the trouble. It's almost a year since we saw him at the bookstore you know, so we'd forgotten what he looked like. Then, expecting him at any moment the way we were, she took it for granted that it was him."
"I suppose it's a simple, clear, logical story," I sighed, "but Phelan won't believe it in a thousand years." I shook my head and added: "Not in two thousand."
"Why?"
"Because you can't prove a damned word of it."
"Why, there's the pictures and the photographer, and—"
I gestured dismissively. "Even if you knew the photographer's name, which you don't, he'd swear you were lying. Pictures like that are against the law—therefore, no photographer would admit to having taken them. The clerk at the store won't remember you—and probably didn't know what June was there for. And Faraday is dead. See what I mean?"

"Gosh..."
"If June didn't remember what Faraday looked like, how come she recognized him in the elevator?"
"Why, as soon as we saw him, we both remembered him from the bookstore."
"Jogged your memory..."
I mused, trying to think, trying to make things add up. The Anchor Book Store was printing and circulating pornographic literature, which was illegal and had to be done surreptitiously. June had posed for suggestive nude pictures, and had gotten paid for it. Well, so what? So Lawrence Straw and John Niles Thomson had gotten killed.
"Bendy?"
She slid off the davenport and sat on the arm of my chair. "Do you think it was bad of me to let June pose? I knew she shouldn't but she needed the money so bad..." Her eyes were pleading and she touched my arm timidly. I put my arm around her and, with a wry grin, pulled her into my lap. "I told her, 'you're both bad girls.' I ruffled her soft, fragrant hair and then kissed her lips. 'Don't let June do it again. As for you—don't you even go near the place.'"
"I won't, Bendy." Her voice was low and little-girlish.
"Okay." I kissed her lightly again, then said: "Be quiet, like a good girl—I've got to think." She relaxed docilely, the tip of her nose touching my cheek and her hair brushing my face. "I think I'll keep the pictures," I decided, and I pushed the envelope into my coat pocket.
I happened to glance at the face of my watch—and it was ten to nine. "Ye gods!" I shouted, jumping so violently that I almost dumped her on the floor. "I forgot about Stinky!"
"Well, for... who's Stinky?"
"Our dog. I've got to feed him!" I started for the door.
"Wait, Bendy!"—she grabbed her coat—"I'm coming, too!" She caught the door before I could slam it, and we went down the stairs two at a time.

Farmville Girls - Ayden Boys Win In Coastal Semi-Finals

Up-Set Features Semi-Final Round

Farmville Upsets Top Seeded Vanceboro 52-32; Ayden Boys Get Narrow Win 48-45; Finals Friday Night

Farmville's girls pulled the second upset in the Coastal Conference tournament last night when they came from behind in the second half to defeat the top seeded Vanceboro girls 52-32, to advance to the finals.

Vanceboro led all the way in the first half after taking a quick lead on the deadly shooting of Forrest and Hill. Midway the second period Farmville began to pull up, and gradually the game at 14 all with one minute to go. Vanceboro's Hill hit on a long shot to give Vanceboro an 18 to 16 lead at the half.

Led by Rouse and Hathaway, Farmville jumped into a quick third quarter lead and pulled away from the favored Vanceboro team to stay out front the rest of the way. Rouse, Farmville's forward, hit five straight field goals in the opening minutes of the last quarter, and this broke the backs of the surprised Vanceboro team. Little Ray Hathaway, dualmotive Farmville forward, was a big factor in the last half drive, scoring 14 of her 22 points in that period. Ila Wooten poured 16 through the nets to share scoring honors with Hathaway.

Jean Forrest, high scoring Vanceboro forward, collected 18 points but her efforts were not enough to top the determined Farmville team. Hill contributed 13 points in the losing cause.

Friday night's finals will bring together Farmville and Ayden. Ayden defeated Robersonville Tuesday night to advance to the finals. Game time 7:45.

Garden May End Cage Contests

New York, March 1—(AP)—A Madison Square Garden official says the big arena is considering dropping college basketball because of the fixed games played there.

Ned Irish, executive vice president of the Garden, said yesterday that the Garden's Board of Directors discussed such a step. No decision has been reached, Irish said, adding that the future of the college sport in the Garden "depends on future developments, the attitude of public authorities, the colleges and our own conclusions."

SC Tournament Begins Today; State Favored

Raleigh, N. C., March 1—(AP)—Defending champion North Carolina State was the solid choice in the field of eight at the Southern Conference basketball tournament got under way here today with afternoon and night double headers.

This was the opening round schedule in the three-day meet: 2-13—Clemson vs. Maryland; 4—Duke vs. Virginia Tech; 7:30—N. C. State vs. South Carolina; 9—West Virginia vs. William and Mary.

At stake, in addition to the conference title, was a berth in the March 20 first round of the eastern division NCAA tournament, also in Raleigh.

N. C. State goes into action tonight with a 13-1 conference mark this year and a 25-4 overall mark, good enough to land the no. 8 spot in this week's Associated Press poll.

Everett Case's Wolfpack won the last four tournaments played at Duke's Indoor Stadium. The added advantage of playing on its home court in the 12,500-seat coliseum tournament foe has been North Carolina, which this year failed to qualify. The Tar Heels lost three previous tourney games to the champs by a total of 10 points.

Beaten by William and Mary for its only conference setback, state will be up against a foe it has never played in the five years case has been at Raleigh.

South Carolina's conference mark was 12-7, the Gamecocks dropping three of their last five starts to tangle from third to seventh place. They have in 6-11 center Jimmy Slaughter the no. 5 scorer in the nation with a 23.1 average according to the last official release.

He and State's Paul Horvath should engage in quite a duel from the pivot post. Meanwhile State's Sammy Ranzino, no. 9 in the nation with 21.2, will be counted on to lead the team offense that had State leading the country at 78.1 when the last official count was made.

Ayden will meet South Edgemont in the finals on Friday night at 9:00. South Edgemont gained their berth in the finals by posting an upset win over Farmville in Tuesday night's second round.

Knuckleball For Card Lefthander

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1—(AP)—Al Brazie of the St. Louis Cardinals has something new—a knuckleball.

"You've got to come up with something new to stay in this game," Al said yesterday.

"I'd throw sinker, sinker, sinker—only two, three curve balls."

He said he didn't use the knuckle before because he didn't feel he could trust it. The 35-year-old lefthander has been working on his new pitch for a year and a half.

Pirates Beat Appalachian To Advance To NAIB Finals

Hickory, March 1—(AP)—Only East Carolina Teachers College stands between High Point's Panthers and a bid to the national NAIB tournament at Kansas City, March 12.

The Panthers will try to remove that barrier Monday night in the finals of the Carolinas district NAIB tourney.

The two teams advanced to the finals by cuffing opponents in first round battles here last night.

High Point had it fairly easy scoring an 87-71 win over Catawba Sparked by Ed Suetta's 27 points and 22 by Jesse Joyce, the Panthers were off to the races after the first four minutes.

Catawba had hopes in those first four minutes when the lead changed hands five times, but after that it was mostly a case of watching the Panthers' heels, despite the 14-point performance of Larry Graham and Charlie Hodgins' 13 markers.

East Carolina had it a good deal rougher before finally edging Appalachian 77-69. Each team lost five men on personal fouls, and the 68 personals committed was a fair indication of the temper of play.

Bobby Hodges led the ECTC attack with 24 points before fouling out.

Hunt and Pyecha led Appalachian with 16 and 11 points, also taking the foul route home.

Lenoir Rhydt, the only other team selected to compete in the district tournament, was knocked out by High Point Tuesday night.

Class AA High School Teams Will Play For Berths In State Tournament At Durham

The class AA high school regional tournament for this section will be played in the East Carolina gym on Friday and Saturday nights, March 2 and 3, it was announced today.

Elizabeth City, champions of the Northeastern conference, will meet either the Methodist Orphanage team of Raleigh or Chapel Hill, in the first game at 7:15 on Friday night.

Kinston, winners of the Northeastern tournament, will meet the team that does not draw Elizabeth City for the first game. The second game will be played at 8:30.

Friday night's winners will meet in the finals at 8:00 Saturday night. The winner in the finals will go to Durham to play for the class AA high school title, to be held in Duke's Indoor Stadium at a later date.

These pairings were made in the office of the executive secretary of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association. Admission will be 50c for everyone.

in all branches of sports in recent years.

Argentina always has been recognized for sports and President Juan Peron has urged his athletes to make these games a home town triumph.

Of nine championships won Saturday, Argentina took four, the U. S. two and Cuba, Colombia and Mexico one each.

The unofficial point standings on the customary basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 for six places now give Argentina 111; U. S. 97; Mexico 39; Brazil 27; Peru 24; Chile 23; Colombia 11; Trinidad 5; Ecuador 5; Jamaica 3; Panama 3; and Guatemala 2.

Probably the rudest blow was death when Rafael Fortun of Cuba defeated U. S. champion Art Bagak by inches in the 100 meters, overhauling him in the last third of the race. Forum's time, 10.6, was excellent considering the soggy track.

Don Halderman, U. S. favorite in the 400-meter hurdles, sprained an ankle warming up for the race and was badly off stride, finishing a distant third, but even if he had been at top form it is doubtful whether he could have beaten Colombia's Jaime Aparicio, who although small, speeds over the hurdles. Aparicio's time bettered his own South American record.

Argentina Leads In Pan-Am Games

By TED SMITH

Buenos Aires, March 1—(AP)—Surprising Argentina holds what may be an insurmountable lead over the United States going into the third day of the Pan American games.

Prospects that North Americans will show their usual supremacy are dimming at least so far as this sports carnival is concerned.

Maybe this 128-man team is not the biggest or the best of the U. S. could assemble, nor in the best of condition because of a winter up north compared to mid-summer weather here. But the fact remains that the Latin Americans have made tremendous strides

Planned Garden 'Best' To Save Time, Effort

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Newswriter

Experienced gardeners know that effort spent in making a garden plan before spading and planting will pay dividends in labor saved.

The plan should be drawn to scale. In drawing it experienced gardeners usually observed these rules:

1. Rows the long way of the garden will be easier to work with wheeled tools because there will be less turning.
2. If the land slopes the rows should run across the slope, not up and down the slope. This will help slow down any water that runs off in a storm. It also will reduce the amount of topsoil and fertilizer that is washed away.
3. It is a good rule to plant the long-growing crops to the south of the tall-growing ones if the garden rows run east and west. This keeps the tall plants from shading the low ones.

4. The perennial plants, such as asparagus and rhubarb, strawberries that do not require reseeding every year, should be together at one side of the garden so they do not interfere with plowing.

Before the garden plan is drawn the site should be selected so it can be fitted to the site.

If there is any doubt whether the site will grow vegetables a soil test may settle this issue. Soil tests are made by most state agricultural colleges and county farm agents.

In deciding upon a site, the size is important. How large it should be depends upon what vegetables are to be grown and the size of the gardener's family.

A plot 25 by 30 feet, for instance, will grow about all of the ordinary vegetables a family of four can use in one season, with some left over for winter storage. To obtain this much food it is necessary to plan the garden carefully and to arrange for a series of crops that mature one after another.

This is done in two ways:

1. Only a small amount of such crops as lettuce is planted at each time. Part of a row is planted at one time. About 10 days or two weeks later another part row is planted. This assures a succession of crops that are perishable.
2. Such plants as spinach, that like cool weather, are planted in early spring. Then, after they mature, the ground vacated by them is reseeded with a crop that will grow in warmer weather or in the fall. Some varieties of snap beans are a good follow up crop.

What a gardener plants will depend upon the tastes of his family, the type of climate and soil in his area and the size of his garden among other factors.

Inexperienced gardeners probably can obtain the quickest and most useful information about suitable crops from experienced gardeners in their neighborhoods.

They may get other information from the experts at their state agricultural college, their county farm agent or from the state extension service.

Consultation with one of these experts should save the first-season gardener many heartaches and failures.

Tigers Steal Show From Polar Bears On Cold Day

'NO TREAT for polar bears, but tigers like it.'

AP Newswriter

Baltimore—The Royal Bengal Tiger frolicked in 10-degree temperature. You'd have thought he had one too many cat nips.

The pig tail monkeys ignored ice in their cage, and the ocelot seemed undisturbed by snow.

Now, usually these southern aristocrats are lodged in expensive winter quarters where the temperatures range around 70 degrees.

You don't expect an animal from the sultry jungles of India—like the Tiger—to withstand ice, snow and frigid weather.

But the Baltimore Zoo lacks suitable winter quarters for tropical animals.

"So, we were faced with an experiment—probably the first of its kind in the country," said zoo director Arthur R. Watson.

"We had to let them remain in the open while at the same time provide dens that are weather tight."

"We took our experimental cue from the lions which never have had winter quarters and have come through without dire consequences."

Judging by the results, the lion can just move over—he's hogging the hero's bench. The tiger, the leopard, the ocelot and the pig tail monkey have proved that they can take cold weather too.

Watson said the warm-blooded beasts showed no ill effects from the recent cold snap. In fact they seemed to enjoy it, he added.

From the nearby den of the Polar Bear there issues an occasional grunt—probably of disgust.

Fire Is Brought To Fire Station

Missoula, Mont.—(AP)—A fire came to the fire station here.

Unable to dump a load of garbage at abate by hot ashes, a garbage man raced his truck three miles from the city dump, rushed into the fire department and said he had a fire right outside.

Firemen opened the station door, started the engine of a fire truck and with a booster line extinguished the blaze.

"The garbage man went back to the dump with a load of water," a fireman said.

Cigarette Test For Robot Pilot

Minneapolis—(AP)—A cigarette standing on end in a plane was used to demonstrate the sensitivity of a new improved automatic pilot here recently.

As the automatic pilot put a Navy transport through its paces, the cigarette remained upright, and never toppled, say aero research engineers for the Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator Co. The plane went through landing approaches, turns, and finally an automatic instrument approach.

Thief Is Caught; Loot Gets Away

Singapore—(AP)—When Chinese dealer Phua Ah Soy saw another Chinese unloading three bottles of whisky from his van into waiting pedicab, he gave chase. Phua caught the thief but when he returned the pedicab rider had disappeared along with the whisky.

The thief was sentenced to five months and ordered to pay $12 compensation. Neither the pedicab rider nor the whisky has been found.

The state flower of Kentucky is the Goldenrod.

Claim Divorces, Crime Decrease

Prague—(AP)—Divorce and common crime are both decreasing in Czechoslovakia, says the minister of justice, Dr. Stefan Rajis.

In a recent speech, he told a conference of people's or non-professional judges—that between January and July last year, the number of common crimes had fallen 30 per cent in Bohemia and Moravia and 15 per cent in Slovakia. He said divorce figures had been dropping off ever since 1946. He gave no exact statistics for either crime or divorce. But he said the number of divorces was still too high.

Truck Driver Is Accident Victim

Thad Woodard of Route 5, Greenville was critically injured this morning around 10:30 when the asphalt dump truck which he was operating skidded on wet pavement and turned over at the intersection of Fifth and McKinley streets.

Fire Department Rescue workers who were summoned to the scene stated that the truck turned over and pinned the man in the cab. Considerable time was needed to extract the man from the wreckage. Workers stated that by his position in the truck he was being choked to death, before he was released. At Pitt Memorial Hospital where the man was entered around 10:55, hospital officials report the man's condition as being critical and at the present time is still being treated for shock. The full extent of his injuries have not been determined as yet, it was reported, due to the man's condition. However, hospital officials reported that Woodard suffered possible fractures of arm and leg and internal injuries. Rescue workers stated that witnesses to the accident said that the driver of the truck, cut out to avoid striking a Negro woman who was crossing the street, skidded on the pavement and hit a nearby house, with the truck turning over, pinning the man in the cab. The truck was heavily damaged.

Big, EXTRA PROFITS this year from EVERY DOLLAR'S WORTH of NATURAL CHILEAN NITRATE of SODA

HERE'S WHY: Nitrogen content - all nitrate nitrogen... fast-acting... completely available... the only natural nitrate in the world!
Sodium content - contains 26% sodium (equivalent to 35% sodium oxide)... sodium is essential to maximum yields... substitutes for potassium, where lacking, and makes soil phosphate more available... helps "sweeten" the soil.
Other plant foods - natural traces of iodine, manganese, potassium, magnesium, boron, calcium, iron, sulphur, copper and zinc.
Urelo Natchel says "Look for the bulldog on the bag. It means natchel soda in free-flowing pellet form. Used now for over one hundred years."

300 lbs. of Chilean Nitrate increased yields of oats 35-40 bu. per acre.
Dollar return: almost $ to 1. Chilean Nitrate also improves the feeding quality and the protein content of forage crops.

300 to 300 lbs. of Chilean Nitrate produced 150 to 200 pounds more lint cotton per acre. Dollar return: almost 10 to 1. You can't afford not to invest in natural soda this year!

300 lbs. of Chilean Nitrate increased yields of corn about 20 bushels per acre. Dollar return: almost 4 to 1. Chilean Nitrate means maximum yields for maximum profits!

New Lifeboat Is Radio-Controlled

Dayton, O., March 1—(AP)—Development of a radio-controlled lifeboat that can be guided to survivors, held in place for them to board, and set on course—from an overhead airplane—was announced by the Air Force today. The A-3 Lifeboat, all metal, is 30 feet long, and carries 15 men. It is powered by a four cylinder, water-cooled engine, and is dropped to survivors by a 100-foot parachute. When the boat hits the water, an explosive charge released the parachute, and a sea anchor goes out to keep the boat in position. After the parachute is released, a radio operator in the plane above takes over. He uses a five frequency transmitter, matching a receiver in the boat. His first signal releases the stabilizing fins which kept the boat steady during its downward trip. The rudder guard, opens the engine's air vents, and cranks the motor. Then the sea anchor is released. At the next radio signal, the engine speeds up, and the boat moves ahead. The operator in the plane can move the boat right or left, and keep it on whatever course he sets.

Anniversary For Father Maurice

Pictured with his altar boys, Father Maurice Tew, pastor of St. Gabriel's Mission in Greenville, will mark his 25th anniversary of ordination as a Catholic priest on March 4. He has been pastor of the Greenville parish for the past ten years, and conducts a weekly radio program. The statue represents Saint Gabriel, a youthful Italian cleric, who was declared a Saint by the church and is patron of the parish.

Firemen 'Rescue' Burning Trees

City firemen were confronted with a different type of fire fighting yesterday when they rolled up in front of the Greenville Elks Lodge in response to a box alarm turned in around 2:15 p.m. Burning trash around the base of several large towering trees had set the trees on fire, with large columns of billowing smoke pouring skyward, causing a crowd to gather at the scene. All of the sparks and fire in the trees were put out, with the result that no damage was done, firemen reported.

Only One Case In Police Court

In City Traffic Court this morning, only one case was docketed and that one dated back to November. Police Department officials stated. The case charged W. D. Cherry, age 52, with assault on a female. The judge ruled that the case be thrown out and the prosecuting witness be taxed with the court costs for frivolous and malicious charges. It was the first time that only one case was listed for the Wednesday morning session of City Traffic Court, court officials said.

Blueberry Pie For Final Exam

Los Angeles—(AP)—The final examination in a short story course at the University of Southern California was a easy as pie—literally. Professor Lynn Clark's students studied magazines last summer. One day they came upon an inviting picture of a blueberry pie. "You've never tasted blueberry pie until you've eaten some of my wife's," he bragged. To prove it, he brought one to the final examination and served it. "This will not become a regular feature of the test, however," he said.

Duck Derby Will Be Held Tonight

That much publicized Duck Derby will be staged tonight at Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina campus and the public is cordially invited to attend it and the fashion show immediately afterward. It is sponsored by the Association of Childhood Education at the college. First heats for the ducks are scheduled for 7:30 on the floor of the auditorium, regardless of whether or not they are acquiescent to the planned goings on. Many merchants in Greenville have entered ducks in the Derby and the web-footed wingbacks will wear their sponsors' colors down the course. Following the Derby a fashion show will be held with 11 men's and women's clothing stores participating in the showing of new spring styles. They are Frank Wilson Store, Brody's, Hill's, Jane's Shop, Blount-Harvey Company, J.C. Penney's, Diana Shop, Belk-Tyler, Glamor Shop, Suleed's Clothing Store and Merle Norman Studio. Each will have three models apiece to show their fashions. Masters of ceremony for the two events are Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Bancroft-Moseley and Eli Bloom. Pianist for the show will be Mrs. Delores Matthews. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

Airman Plunges To His Death

Dallas, March 1—(AP)—A youthful Air Force veteran, checking an unattached door on a Pioneer Airlines plane, plunged 4,000 feet from the craft early today over the little town of Exell. Around him were 20 sleeping United States airmen, unaware that the flier had fallen. The victim was Joseph Henry Dowd, 27, of Dallas. He was copilot of the chartered plane. It was en route from Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, to Lowry Field, Denver.

Labor's Big ...

(Continued from page one) new one in his own shop, labor protested. This didn't stop Wilson. On Feb. 8 he created within his own office a Manpower Policy Commission, headed by Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, who thus became Wilson's assistant in charge of manpower. Wilson's committee is made up of seven people, all government officials, with neither labor nor business represented on it. Its job is this: To study manpower problems for Wilson and prepare for him steps which he should ask congress to approve for putting controls on manpower. Last night the labor leaders made it plain they resented this intensely.

Tobacco Acreage ...

(Continued from page 1) their December mass meeting here that they want "increase," Winchester said. "But most of them don't want one that will call for a possible reduction in acreage in 1952. And at the same time they don't want any lowering of the market price because of the increase." Winchester referred to a meeting called by the Farm Bureau in mid-December at which time 500 farmers gathered in Greenville to express their views about the tobacco crop in general. At that time most of them stated a gradual increase in "a" times, was preferable to a large one, followed by a cutback such as the one in 1948.

Still unsolved was the case of the great mass of workers, particularly union workers, who depend, not on individual merit raises, but on general, across-the-board wage increases that cover all the workers in a plant or industry at one time. WSB's labor members thought all workers should be allowed a raise up to 12 per cent above what they were making Jan. 15, 1950 to take care of rising living costs. The three public members of WSB, and the three business members, thought such an increase should be no more than 10 per cent. They outvoted the labor members. Labor thought other things called "fringe benefits"—like pensions, automatic increases in pay to match rising living costs and so on—should be allowed, in addition to the 10 per cent. The other WSB members outvoted labor on this, too.

No Miracle ...

(Continued From Page One) remained about the same. Election promises to make the pound sterling go further have gone by the board because of world rises. An inflationary trend has developed. However, there's a manpower shortage in both countries and wages have risen. In Australia the increases may run as much as 15 to 20 per cent. Labor seems to be neither more nor less contented under the present government than under the previous socialist regime. There have been serious strikes in both countries. As a matter of fact New Zealand is in the grip of one at this writing. Australia hopes to get rid of much labor trouble by weeding communists out of executive positions in trade unions. The government has kept its promise to label the communist party illegal and forbid "declared" communists from holding trade union office. The business situation in both countries is such as to permit us to wind up on a pleasant note. Tait reports that business is booming. Many new public companies have been formed. There is no shortage of public money for investment, and the share market in Australia has touched an all-time high.
